Caller claims hostages in Lebanon killed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An anonymous telephone caller said today the terrorist group Islamic Jihad would kill by firing squad the American hostages it holds in Lebanon because indirect negotiations with the United States had reached "a dead end."

A later anonymous call claimed the Americans had been killed and dumped at a specified location, but police said they found no bodies there.

Six Americans are missing in Beirut. Islamic Jihad, believed comprised of fundamentalist Shiite Moslem followers of Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, has said it already killed one American and is holding the other five.

There was no way to authenticate either call, made to the office of a Western news agency in Beirut, apparently by different men. The news agency made a transcript of the original caller's statement available to The Associated Press.

"We have decided the following: the execution of the American hostages by firing squad," said the first caller, who spoke in Arabic and claimed to represent Islamic Jihad, or Islamic Holy War.

"Wait for another call from us at 1 p.m. (6 a.m. EST) in connection with the status of the corpses of the American hostages," the caller said.

At 2 p.m. (7 a.m. EST) the agency said the man had not called back. But an official of the agency, which asked not to be identified, disclosed later there had been another call at 10 a.m. (3 a.m. EST).

A man speaking Arabic said bodies had been dumped in a bombed-out factory in the Kola district of West Beirut. He hung up after a few seconds.

But it was not apparently the same man who delivered the death threat. Police said at 2 p.m. they had searched the area thoroughly but found no bodies.

The second call differed from the earlier one because the man did not precede his terse message with the first words of the Koran, Islam's holy book, that callers claiming to speak for Islamic Jihad usually use.

The words, "In the name of God, the merciful, the compassionate," were used by the first caller.

Islamic Jihad was the group that claimed responsibility for exploding a truck bomb at the Beirut headquarters of U.S. Marine peacekeepers Oct. 23, 1983, killing 241 Americans.

Last month, it released blurred photographs of what it said was the body of U.S. Embassy political officer William Buckley. It said Buckley, 57, was killed in retaliation for Israel's Oct. 1 air raid on Palestine Liberation Organization headquarters in Tunisia.

But no body was produced, and U.S. officials said the photos were not "conclusive proof" Buckley was dead. Buckley, of Medford, Mass., was kidnapped March 16, 1984.

Statements purportedly issued by Islamic Jihad have in the past contained threats to kill the hostages. But except for the claim to have killed Buckley, there have been no follow-up statements saying the threats had been carried out.

White oil owners ask impeachment

PAMPA (AP) — Panhandle royalty owners involved in the dispute involving so-called "white oil" have launched a campaign to impeach the three members of the Texas Railroad Commission.

Royalty owners began signing petitions calling for the impeachment of the commission members for what they allege to be neglect of duty.

White Deer royalty owner Dr. Harbord Cox said the Railroad Commission's inaction during the "white oil" dispute has given the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission unprecedented power over Texas minerals.

Cox and others complained that the Railroad Commission did not participate in the hearing in Washington, D.C., where the FERC ruled that 35 independent oilmen were diverting natural gas by improperly producing from gas zones.

The ruling has shut down hundreds of wells and is serving as a precedent to shut down others.

During a meeting called by Amarillo oil and gas broker Ron Slover, Cox called the commission's inaction a neglect of duty that will devastate the Panhandle economy and have statewide implications.

Many of the almost 275 people attending Tuesday's meeting signed the petition. Slover and Cox said the petition would be distributed throughout the state.

So-called "white oil" is a product derived from the pressurized cooling of vapors into a liquid. Independents who have operated LTX, or refrigeration, units at their wells contend the product is oil, but larger companies owning rights to natural gas in the Panhandle Field contend it is a gas.

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission backed the position of the large companies. Many independent producers felt betrayed when the Texas Railroad Commission failed to back them in another case and ruled that the LTX wells must be retested to assure that they conform to the definition of oil wells.

"If you operate something for 10 years under a set of rules and then you come up and you change them like the Railroad Commission has done, it's equivalent to an ex post facto law," said Rep. Foster Whaley, D-Pampa.

"You cannot come out with a law today that makes something you did yesterday a crime, but now the darn Railroad Commission has done an effective job of passing an ex post facto law."

In previous telephone interviews, Railroad Commission spokesman Ray Grasshoff has said that the Railroad Commission did not get involved in the FERC proceedings because it was resolving a similar complaint filed by Phillips Petroleum Co., and did not want one decision to affect the otner.

Hodel: America should prepare for energy crisis

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

It's only a matter of time until America faces another energy crisis and it had better be using the "breathing space" it has to prepare for it, said Donald Hodel, Secretary of Interior, who was in Midland for a fund-raiser.

The 50-year-old Hodel who took the job of Interior Secretary from presidential trouble shooter William Clark, who had headed the department for a year following the departure of James Watt, has listed lack of a coal-leasing policy and attack on the Outer Continental Shelf as part of the problem in preparing for the next energy crisis.

Hodel said he is convinced most objections against offshore drilling are political rather than environmental. "Technologically, we can solve all the environmental problems except the view. If environmentalists object to a distant offshore drilling rig that protrudes one-half inch into their horizon, there's nothing we can do about that."

Hodel, who has received criticism from the oil and gas industry over a recent five-year leasing program in California, said he had avoided a hard line position on offshore leasing because a hard line "gets you nothing." Hodel said he had made a real effort to address the needs of the states. By the same token he is on record as listing oil and gas exploration as a top priority for his office.

Hodel said there was very strong objection from some states, such as California and Alaska, to offshore drilling.

Said Hodel: "There is not a single offshore producing well in Alaska because of the objection. My predecessor, Bill Clark, withdrew 83 percent of the offshore leases in Bristol Bay for exploration. Now the governor (of Alaska) wants me to withdraw 17 percent more." He said fishermen there did not want to have their lifestyle disrupted.

The former Secretary of Energy said there had been high hopes for Alaska offshore but they were not proving out as expected. He said the U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) under his department had reduced by 78 percent its hopes for new finds offshore in Alaska, because the oil-bearing formations had not been productive when drilled in a variety of areas. He cited the multi-million dollar Mukaluk Island failure as an example.

He said there were still too many obstacles in the way of energy people, and the energy future isn't being planned well.

Hodel has also drawn criticism over his proposed reform of the lease lottery (simultaneous filing). He said the reason for going competitive in the bidding was to get more wells drilled and more income from the leases. He said the bidder would have to go after every tract of possible value. He also pointed out that there had been some gross mistakes in the lottery system, in which very valuable tracts were allowed to go for nothing. Hodel says some version of the lottery will probably survive.

Jury finds no drunken driving cover-up

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

A Midland grand jury looking into allegations of a Police Department cover-up of drunken driving by one its officers completed its investigation Wednesday without handing down any indictments.

"It's a closed issue," said Police Chief Wayne Gideon this morning. "The issue was thoroughly aired before the grand jury. There was absolutely no cover-up."

The grand jury was investigating an August 25 traffic accident in which Patrol Sgt. Vince Castillo hit a utility pole while trying to turn left from Weatherford Street on to Mississippi Avenue. According to the accident report, Castillo's car slid out of control on some loose gravel about 12:38 a.m. before hitting the pole. The report by Officer Davy Conner also indicated Castillo appeared to be under the influence of alcohol.

Castillo was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital and treated for a cut over his eye and a dislocated shoulder. He was given no breath test or blood test for blood-alcohol level, either at the scene or at the hospital.

"I'm convinced in my mind that had Vince Castillo been a citizen other than a police officer, a breathalyzer or a blood test would have been given," said Cynthia Grubb this morning.

State officials eye budget bill

By DAVID ELLIOT

AUSTIN — State officials are warily eyeing a controversial congressional proposal to balance the federal budget, saying the plan could threaten a precariously balanced state budget.

Benches in East Potomac Park are flooded as the Washington Channel, paralleling the Potomac River, rises from heavy rains. Please see related story, Page 2A.

Water closes capital sites

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Park Service said it would close the Jefferson Memorial, Lincoln Memorial and Washington Monument today in anticipation of flooding that could endanger tourists.

"The memorials are not in any danger," parks spokeswoman Sandra Alley said Wednesday. "We'd be in real trouble if water reached the top of the Washington Monument.

"But we want people to stay away for safety reasons."

The National Weather Service expected flooding of the Potomac River to crest between noon and 2 p.m. today in the Washington area. The parkland surrounding the monuments is on the river.

Ms. Alley said the basement of the Jefferson Memorial, which is on the Tidal Basin, probably would take in some water.

The Park Service also asked people to stay away from all portions of the historic C&O canal and parkways along the river. Officials were prepared to set up barricades on streets leading to many of the popular tourist and recreation sites.

Ms. Alley also said the towpath along the C&O canal from nearby Great Falls, Md., up into that state was under water and Park Service officials warned there could be washouts on the path.

Many of the original lock houses along the path — constructed when the 185-mile canal from Georgetown to Cumberland, Md., was built between 1828 and 1850 — also were flooded.

Floodwaters threaten Virginia, D.C. riverbottoms

Associated Press

Floodwaters that killed at least 36 people and left 44 missing laid siege today to the sandbagged riverbottoms of Richmond, Va., and Washington, D.C., while shocked survivors upstream faced ruined homes and businesses, fouled drinking water and the threat of water-borne disease.

In Virginia, where officials listed 19 deaths and 4 people missing, the James River crept up the cobbled streets of riverfront Richmond, toward a crest today about 23 feet above flood stage — the worst flood since the 27½-foot surge caused by Hurricane Agnes in 1972.

Authorities closed the Interstate 95 bridge and two other Richmond bridges, detouring I-95 traffic to U.S. 1, and heavy traffic was reported on the four spans that remained open as the morning rush hour began.

Four days of rain in the nation's mid-Atlantic region unleased the floods, inflicting hundreds of millions of dollars in property damage and forcing thousands of evacuations.

"They say it'll rise 10 more feet," said George Peck, co-owner of the Farmer's Market Inn restaurant in Richmond's historic Shockoe Bottom, a commercial district of Civil War-era tobacco warehouses, trendy shops and galleries. "Ten more feet and I lose everything."

By late morning, water continued to rise downtown, but the crest had passed the city's water filtration plant, five miles to the west, authorities said.

The plant, which provides drinking water for Richmond and neighboring Henrico County, remained open. City Manager Manuel Deese said workers had placed sandbags around the plant to protect it up to 28-foot water levels, but the river crested at just above 24 feet.

In the nation's capital, officials closed the Washington, Lincoln, and Jefferson monuments to keep tourists away from Potomac River flooding.

The water level had reached 9⅛ feet, exceeding flood stage by 2⅛ feet, at the foot of the capital's prestigious Georgetown section by 7 a.m. and was expected to hit 13 or 14 feet by the time the crest hit at 6 p.m. Business owners sandbagged their shops and carried expensive merchandise to higher ground.

The waterfront at Alexandria, Va., just south of the city, wasn't expected to be as hard hit, said Jeff Bowman, a spokesman for the National Weather Service.

National Park Service spokesman Earl Kittleman said Great Falls Park on both the Maryland and Virginia sides of the Potomac were closed and the Great Falls Tavern was sandbagged.

In Hancock, Md., about 75 miles upstream, the Potomac crested Wednesday at 12 feet above flood stage, putting the main street under 10 feet of water and forcing 500 of its 1,700 residents to evacuate, Mayor Joseph Miller said.

Fight for Colombian building continues

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Army troops today fired cannons and machine guns on the burned-out Palace of Justice in a renewed attack on gunmen believed to be holding at least eight judges hostage. But heavy smoke and flames kept the troops from reaching the guerrillas.

An army communique today said 17 people were killed and 34 wounded in fighting that began when the guerrillas took control of the building Wednesday.

Blazes kindled by the guerrillas inside the five-story palace, apparently to consume court records, destroyed about 80 percent of the building in downtown Bogota, fire department officials told local radio stations. Witnesses said flames still shot from some windows this morning.

More than 150 people were in the building when the guerrillas raided it, including Supreme Court judges who have their offices there. Assault troops backed by armored vehicles braved submachine gun fire and surged inside. Scores of captives, including 10 judges, had been freed by late Wednesday.

But an army captain who spoke on condition he not be identified said the president of the Supreme Court, Alfonso Reyes, and a woman judge of the high court remained today in the hands of the guerrillas, whom he said were believed to number 10.

A colonel, who was not identified, told radio station RCN that eight judges were still held hostage. Information from relatives indicated at least four Supreme Court magistrates in addition to Reyes were among the hostages.

A Colombian soldier with an assault rifle prepares to lay covering fire as other soldiers storm Bogota's Palace of Justice.

At 2 a.m. today, armored vehicles began laying down an hour of machine-gun and cannon fire, crisscrossing the building's marble exterior.

Army cannon fire punched half a dozen 2-foot-wide holes in the building's marble facade.

Soldiers, driven earlier from the building by choking smoke, advanced gradually and then re-entered the palace. However, their effort to reach the guerrillas, believed to be on the fourth floor with their hostages, was frustrated by the continued fire, said one soldier who took part in the operation.

"The heat was unbearable," the soldier said.

The cannons and guns fell silent at 5:30 a.m., but troops and police remained around the building.

An army communique said today that 17 people had been killed, including one soldier, four police, two civilians and 10 guerrillas. It said 34 people were wounded, inlcuding 20 civilians and 14 police. The communique said it wasn't clear whether the civilians had been in the building or were passersby.

The gunmen from the leftist April 19 Movement, originally estimated to number 25, swarmed into the Palace of Justice shortly before noon Wednesday and barricaded themselves. Hundreds of soldiers and police surrounded the block-long building in the heart of this city of 6 million people.

Colombia's 24 Supreme Court judges and 20 other federal judges have offices and courtroooms in the building.

At 3 p.m. Wednesday, army units mounted their first assault, using an armored personnel carrier to ram through the two-story-high wooden doors of the main entrance.

The soldiers took control of the first three floors, freeing more than 100 hostages, and laid siege to the fourth-floor wing.

Radio stations said President Belisario Betancur's brother, federal Judge Jaime Betancur, was among the court officials and workers who escaped from the building in the army assault.

Fire broke out in the Supreme Court library at about 9:30 p.m., and about a half-hour later flames were leaping out of windows.

The 10 judges then stumbled out of the building, but whether they had been freed by soldiers or escaped in the confusion was not immediately clear.

BUDGET

The Gramm-Rudman plan, which would require a balanced budget by 1991, could cost Texas $4.8 billion in federal funds from 1987-90, says a spokesman for Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby has warned Texas congressmen that passage of the Gramm-Rudman amendment could force Gov. Mark White to call a special session of the Texas Legislature.

A spokesman for White said Gramm-Rudman "is in a transitional phase and it's premature to be talking about a special session."

The amendment would require Congress to adopt a budget that includes steps to gradually decrease the federal deficit until 1991, when the debt would be erased. If the spending bill does not reduce the deficit by the desired amount, the amendment calls for across-the-board cuts in all discretionary programs except Social Security.

The Republican-controlled U.S. Senate has already approved the Gramm-Rudman plan. The Democrat-dominated House Wednesday night rejected that plan and passed another budget balancing proposal that would cut the deficit by $180 billion in fiscal 1986 — about $21 billion more than Gramm-Rudman. The two chambers will resolve their differences in a conference committee.

U.S. Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Beaumont and dean of the Texas congressional delegation, called the Gramm-Rudman plan "a disaster for the country. It's a little bit unconstitutional and it's an unprecended, irresponsible attack on our democratic form of government."

While he said he did not know exactly what impact Gramm-Rudman would have on state spending, he said "it would be very, very costly," adding, "Hobby is on the right track."

Tony Proffitt, spokesman for Bullock, warned that any estimates on the effect of the Gramm-Rudman package are tentative. "We can do the bottom line, but it's subject to so much change," he said.

If the Senate-approved version becomes law, Proffitt said Bullock estimates that Texas will lose $840 million in federal funds during the fiscal year beginning Sept. 1, 1986. During the fiscal year beginning Sept. 1, 1987, Texas would lose $1.1 billion and it would lose $1.3 billion the fiscal year beginning Sept. 1, 1988.

This spring state lawmakers approved a $37.2 billion budget for the two-year period ending Aug. 31, 1987. Budget writers counted on $7.9 billion in federal funds to balance that budget. Bullock has estimated state tax revenues will leave little — if any — money to spare.

Larry Neal, Gramm's press secretary, said he was aware of Hobby's letter but could not predict the proposal's impact on state spending. "At this point, that's a question no one can answer," he said. "We're not sure what form the final budget proposal is going to take."

In his letter, Hobby warned that Texas may have to spend more money to pay for federally mandated programs. For example, he said Texas would have to assume responsibility for cuts made to three programs Congress requires.

Texas could lose some of the $85 million it receives to educate handicapped children, Hobby wrote. And he said Texas would have to make up any funding cuts made to the Medicaid and Aid to Families with Dependent Children programs.

"Both could mean significant additional outlays at the state level," he said. "Because Texas' budget is locked into place through August 31, 1987, the governor could be forced to call a special session of the Legislature if this federal legislation obligates the state to pick up the costs of federal programs."

But Proffitt said the cuts in federal funds would not necessarily force the governor to call a special session. "The programs would still exist," he said. "They would simply be funded at a lower level. If the state wanted to fund the programs at that lower level, they could."

Jim Oliver, director of the Legislative Budget Board which oversees the drafting of the state budget, said he was hesitant to say whether the Gramm-Rudman proposal would force a special session. "I think if it were to work as envisioned, where the state requirements wouldn't be reduced but the federal funds would be, then it would have a sizable impact," he said.

While he said he "wholeheartedly supports efforts to reduce our nation's budget deficit," Hobby expressed concern over what he called the plan's "ripple effect" on Texas.

"At a minimum, provisions should be made to loosen federal program requirements in the event funds for these programs are reduced," he said. "States should be free to make their own decisions regarding the assumption of federal programs."

JURY

Ms. Grubb, the president of the Midland chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving, learned of the incident and took her information to Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre, who presented it to the grand jury.

Ms. Grubb this morning refused to disclose the source of her information.

The grand jury no-billed Sgt. Jerry Morris, who was accused of covering up Castillo's alleged drunk driving. But Ms. Grubb said the grand jury didn't indict anyone for a cover-up because, without a blood test, "The actual proof (of DWI) was in question."

But blood tests are not given automatically to every driver who shows signs of intoxication, Gideon said.

"It's not a violation to drink and drive — I wish it were," he said. "These are discretionary decisions" as to whether someone who has alcohol on his breath might be legally intoxicated.

In hindsight, a blood test should have been administered, according to Patrol Capt. Herman Wicker, who said he investigated the incident the day after it occurred.

"It (a blood test) would have stepped on a lot of these rumors," said Wicker. "The rumor was started by some of the rumor-mongers here (in the department) that Vince was DWI and Sgt. Morris was covering up for him. I proceeded to investigate it myself because of the rumors."

Although officers at the scene thought Castillo was drunk, "They couldn't swear they knew he'd been drinking," and other officers who saw Castillo at the hospital told Wicker he didn't appear intoxicated. Midland Memorial Hospital nurses who admitted Castillo didn't think it necessary to test his blood for alcohol, Wicker noted.

Wicker said someone in the Police Department "with an axe to grind" showed the accident report to Ms. Grubb, "And she went to Al Schorre and complained of a cover-up. We explained to Mr. Schorre that there was no cover-up but he decided he wanted to go to the grand jury with it."

Schorre was unavailable for comment this morning.

Castillo said he had drunk four beers over a 7½-hour period before the accident, Wicker said.

Ms. Grubb said Castillo had been involved in two previous alcohol-related incidents, one of which got him fired from the Police Department. He was later rehired, she said.

"This is the third incident relating to alcohol in this man's history," she said. "Absolutely nothing was done. What does it take?"

Gideon conceded Castillo had been fired once before, but said, "Some of the allegations were never substantiated."

He said he was "disappointed" the incident was taken before the grand jury "because I don't feel there was any basis in fact" for an investigation.

HOSTAGES

An official at the news bureau that took the call said the original speaker sounded like a man who has contacted it in the past claiming to speak for Islamic Jihad. The news agency provided the information on condition it not be identified.

The caller said negotiations with the United States through a third party had stalled, but did not elaborate.

"We wish to tell America that this sad end of the American hostages will not be the last," he said. "We shall shake the earth at America's feet and the feet of its agents."

After reading the statement, he said video tapes of the American hostages before their death would be made available to reporters. He then hung up.

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Sondra McCarty said of the reported threat, "We're aware of the same reports you are. We can't confirm them."

The United States has refused publicly to negotiate with the kidnappers, but there have been persistent reports in the Arab press of efforts through a third party to arrange an exchange.

Islamic Jihad has demanded the release of 17 comrades convicted in Kuwait of bombing the U.S. and French embassies in December 1983.

The other missing Americans are:

— Peter Kilburn, 60, of San Fransisco, librarian at the American University of Beirut, missing since Dec. 3, 1984.

— The Rev. Lawrence Jenco, 50, of Joliet, Ill., Roman Catholic priest, kidnapped Jan. 8, 1985.

— Terry Anderson, 38, native of Lorain, Ohio, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, kidnapped March 16, 1985.

— David Jacobsen, 54, of Huntington Beach, Calif., director of the American University Hospital, kidnapped May 28, 1985.

— Thomas Sutherland, 54, born in Scotland, the dean of agriculture at the American University of Beirut, kidnapped June 9, 1985.

The Harvard graduate and former director of Oregon's Bonneville Power Administration said he intended to develop a viable coal leasing policy.

"America is the Saudi Arabia of coal, and here we are importing it. It doesn't make sense," he said. Hodel said coal would never be a clean as nuclear energy, but it is clean and cost effective.

As one who has always supported a mixed energy policy, including solar and coal, Hodel discounts oil shale as an energy option for now, saying that the cost per barrel ($65-$95) puts it totally out of the market.

Soldiers, police patrol Santiago to quell protests

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Large numbers of soldiers and police patrolled streets of Santiago early today, seeking to put an end to two days of anti-government protests in which two people were shot to death and more than 750 others were arrested.

Police said 40 people were injured Wednesday, including eight who suffered gunshot wounds, bringing to 13 the number hospitalized with bullet wounds since the protests began Tuesday against the 12-year-old military government of Gen. Augusto Pinochet.

The street clashes tapered off in time for the daily three-hour curfew that begins at 2 a.m., but heavy police and army patrols continued.

Riot police Wednesday stormed the University of Chile's Engineering School campus near downtown Santiago, where students who had battled police on the streets were seeking sanctuary. Police said they arrested 396 people, all but 57 of them students.

Police said they also fought demonstrators in Valparaiso, 83 miles northwest of the capital, and in Antofagasta, 930 miles to the north.

The two days of protests were organized by opposition groups, including the National Workers Command, a union federation, which demanded freedom for six jailed labor leaders.

Police said Emilia Ulloa, 21, was shot to death by gunmen firing from a pickup truck while she took part in an demonstration in Santiago's Pudahuel zone.

Erwin Iturra, also 21, was killed in Villa Francia, a slum district in western Santiago, police sources said, but they had no details about the shooting.

Police said eight other people were hospitalized with bullet wounds Wednesday, including professional soccer player Mario Salinas. The eight apparently were hit by stray bullets and the source of the gunfire was not known, police said.

Officials of the University of Chile said five students were wounded during the police action there, none of them seriously.

A colonel and several other police officers also were injured Wednesday, none seriously, police said.

More than 20 people were wounded Tuesday in the street violence, and 300 were arrested, according to police. Police said they arrested 460 more people Wednesday, including the students and five labor leaders.

Reporters were kept at a distance as the police surrounded the engineering building at the University of Chile. Police lobbed tear gas grenades through the windows and then stormed it.

Anibal Cruz, a student, said, "The Carabineros (national police) acted in an extremely tough manner and beat several students."

Police reported that the nation's top student leader, Yerko Ljubetic, was arrested while trying to deliver a protest letter at the office of Education Minister Sergio Gaeta.

Leaders of the National Workers Command marched several blocks from their headquarters to the presidential palace to deliver a letter demanding the release of six colleagues who have been held for nearly six weeks on charges related to an anti-government demonstration Sept. 4. The six were in the eighth day of a hunger strike.

Jaruzelski resigns; Walesa walks out of Polish prosecutor's office

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski resigned as premier, but accepted the largely ceremonial post of president and held onto control of the Communist Party in a move apparently designed to allow him to concentrate on revitalizing the party.

Meanwhile, Lech Walesa, who headed the Solidarity free labor federation outlawed under Jaruzelski, walked out of a prosecutor's office Wednesday after refusing to answer questions on charges he slandered election officials.

Walesa told The Associated Press he gave the prosecutor a statement reading in part: "The continuously increasing repressive activities of the authorities have convinced me that the only possible behavior in front of the court, prosecutor and police is refusal to give testimony and silence."

Walesa is charged with issuing false figures on the turnout for the Oct. 13 parliamentary elections, which Solidarity had asked voters to boycott.

Jaruzelski, 62, announced his resignation Wednesday at the opening session of the newly elected Parliament.

He suspended Solidarity and imposed martial law in December 1981, 10 months after he was named premier and two months after becoming Communist Party first secretary. Thousands of union activists, including Walesa, were jailed in the crackdown.

Parliament unanimously approved Jaruzelski's nomination of Deputy Premier Zbigniew Messner to replace him as premier.

Messner, 56, who has coordinated the government's year-old economic reform program, was expected to present his new government to Parliament next Tuesday.

Western diplomats interpreted the transition as a sign the government regards the political crisis brought on by the 1980 formation of Solidarity and the subsequent martial law to be over, and plans to concentrate on strengthening the economy.

During martial law, the army, and not the Communist Party, appeared to be in control of the country, an unusual situation for a Soviet bloc country. Jaruzelski is now expected to devote much of his time to tightening party discipline in preparation for a party congress next year.

The party lost one third of its 3 million members following suppression of Solidarity, the only independent labor movement in the Soviet bloc.

During part of his term as premier, Jaruzelski also was defense minister, a post he relinquished in 1983. But he was named chairman of the National Defense Council, which preserves many martial law powers, and he still holds that post.

Jaruzelski replaces Jenryk Jablonski as president.

In Gdansk, Walesa said six plainclothes policemen and one uniformed officer entered his apartment several hours after he left the prosecutor's office to try to force him to return.

Walesa, contacted by telephone at his apartment, said he had submitted a written statement saying he would refuse to give testimony. He said he decided to leave when the prosecutor repeatedly turned down his lawyer's motions.

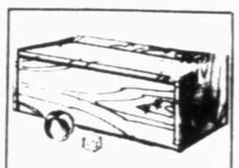

He said the police left his apartment after a doctor agreed that he was ill and unfit to answer the prosecutor's summons. Walesa, 42, suffers from high blood pressure and an ulcer.

The government said the turnout for the Oct. 13 elections was 78.8 percent while Solidarity said the figure was about 66 percent.

If convicted of slander, Walesa could receive a maximum prison term of two years.

Also Wednesday, more than 10,000 mourners gathered peacefully in the northern Polish city of Olsztyn for the funeral of a student who died after being detained by police.

Protest reported at U.S. Embassy

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Afghanistan government radio said 300,000 people protested Wednesday outside the U.S. Embassy in the Afghan capital of Kabul to protest American support of Islamic guerrillas fighting Soviet troops and the Communist government.

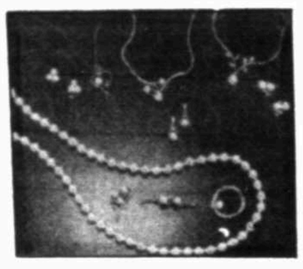

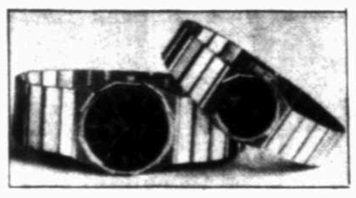

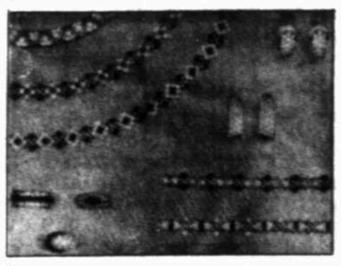

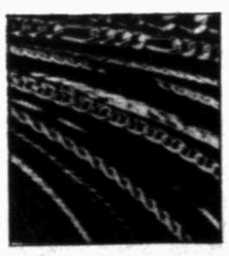

There was no way to immediately check on Radio Kabul's claims about the size of the crowd. The government bans Western journalists from Afghanistan.

The Radio Kabul report, monitored in Islamabad, said the huge crowd marched on the U.S. Embassy shouting anti-American slogans such as "Down with Reagan!" and "Down with the CIA!" The crowd included workers, farmers, government employees, and members of the armed forces, the radio said.

It gave no reports of any violence.

The crowd gathered for a meeting before the march and Deputy Premier Abdul Majeed Serbeland denounced the United States for opposing Afghanistan's government and charged that the U.S. government was waging an unjust war against the country, the radio report said.

Serbeland denounced a speech President Reagan made to the United Nations General Assembly last month charging that the Soviet Union was supporting unjust regimes in nations such as Afghanistan and Nicaragua, the radio report said.

Jet strays into Soviet airspace

TOKYO (AP) — A Japan Air Lines jet carrying 132 passengers and crew drifted off course in the sensitive region where a Korean jet was shot down by Soviet warplanes two years ago, apparently causing Soviet planes to scramble, airline and defense officials said today.

The airline said a Boeing 747 jumbo jet on a flight from Tokyo to Paris via Moscow flew about 60 miles east of its scheduled course Oct. 31 while over the Japan Sea in international waters between the Siberian coast and the Soviet island of Sakhalin.

The plane corrected its course without incident, the airline said.

On Sept. 1, 1983, Soviet warplanes shot down a Korean Air Lines jumbo jet, killing all 269 aboard, when it strayed into Soviet airspace over Sakhalin, a strategic and heavily fortified Soviet military outpost north of Japan.

Foreign Ministry officials said an air safety agreement signed in Tokyo last month by Japan, the United States and the Soviet Union may have helped avert a repetition of the shooting down of the Korean jetliner.

Government officials admonished Japan's flagship airline to be more careful, and JAL senior managing director Hideo Hirasawa issued a statement saying "we must recognize the seriousness of causing such an incident in a region where we must be extra careful."

The pilot of Flight 441, Morihiko Nishioka, 39, said in a televised news conference that he neglected to return the plane to automatic pilot, or inertia navigation system, after switching to manual control to fly around air turbulence.

Without the compensation of the automatic pilot, a west wind blew the plane off course.

"It was my mistake for not going back to INS," said Nishioka, speaking in a quavering voice. He said that when he realized he was far off course, "I knew I was in a terrible situation and had to return to course quickly."

Defense officials said that at about the same time, Japanese military radar spotted "several" unidentified planes in the skies over Sakhalin.

South African death toll surpasses 800

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police said today the charred body of a black prison guard was found near Port Elizabeth, and a policeman in a nearby black area drove off a mob that tried to storm his home.

The latest death brought the official death toll in 14 months of anti-apartheid violence to more than 800. Unofficial monitoring groups have said the number of deaths passed the 800 mark a month ago.

Anti-apartheid legislator Helen Suzman, a white, warned in a speech late Wednesday of a "bleak" future for South Africa because its 5 million whites and 24 million blacks cannot find common ground for negotiations.

In a report covering incidents from sundown Wednesday to just after dawn today, police said arsonists caused extensive damage to a school in Soweto, the black township outside Johannesburg, and that there were scattered incidents of stone-throwing around the country.

The report said the prison guard's body was found in a black township outside Port Elizabeth, 600 miles south of Johannesburg, that also is called Soweto.

It said there were no casualties in the attack on the policeman's home near Port Elizabeth. The officer drove off the assailants with his handgun, police said.

The government rarely discloses casualty figures from the unrest. But on Wednesday, Adriaan Vlok, deputy minister of defense and law and order, told an audience that 799 people were killed and 12,668 arrested from Sept. 4, 1984, when the unrest began, through last month.

WORLD in brief

Damaged lock refilled

THOROLD, Ontario, (AP) — A damaged lock on the Welland Canal was refilled with water early today for the first time since Oct. 14 when part of the lock wall collapsed, blocking the St. Lawrence Seaway and costing shippers an estimated $1 million a day.

The lock, at the northern end of the canal, normally raises a ship 46 feet, but before any ship could enter the lock today two construction barges were floated the full 76-foot height of the lock and pulled out by tugs.

The lock was filled with water by 5 a.m., and the barges were pulled into the canal on their way south to Erie, Pa.

At 6 a.m., the Furia, a Liberian-registered grain hauler, re-entered the lock where it was trapped for a short time when a 180-foot-long slab of concrete fell out of the canal wall on Oct. 14.

The last-minute discovery of a hole in the repaired wall Wednesday pushed back by a few hours the reopening of the lock, which connects Lakes Erie and Ontario, and extended the shutdown one day longer than officials expected.

Troops search jungles

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Troops pushed further into the jungled mountains of Veracruz state Wednesday searching for the marijuana traffickers, some already identified, who killed 22 members of a police anti-drug squad, authorities said.

Fifteen peasant farmers were being held for questioning by the army, which has taken charge of the search, Miguel Angel Cristiani, a spokesman for the Veracruz state government, said in a telephone interview.

Investigators have identified some of the estimated 60 to 80 attackers who a survivor said ambushed the drug squad early last Friday at a marijuana plantation, said army Gen. Jaime Jimenez Munoz, commander of the 29th military zone in Veracruz.

Jimenez Munoz refused to identify the known suspects on grounds it could obstruct the investigation. He said none of the farm workers had admitted a role in the killings.

Marcos discusses successor

MANILA, Philippines (NYT) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos opened discussions Wednesday on a possible successor, saying the person chosen to be his vice president should have the stature to run the country "if anything happens to the president."

Dealing with a subject he has avoided publicly in the past, Marcos confirmed that he would select a vice-presidential candidate for an early election he has said he hopes will be held in January.

Hijackers of Achille Lauro could face two trials

GENOA, Italy (AP) — The accused hijackers of the Achille Lauro could face trial this month for possession of arms and explosives and again in the spring for kidnapping and murder, Italian news agencies reported Wednesday.

The AGI and ANSA news agencies, quoting judicial sources, said the first trial on the lesser charges could be held by Nov. 20 and will involve only the four suspected hijackers.

Possession of arms and explosives carries a maximum five-year sentence for each count.

The second trial, for kidnapping and murder, will involve the four accused hijackers.

Handling of defectors probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA, whose Soviet prize became an espionage disaster, has exposed itself to criticism within the intelligence community for what some contend is a record of poor handling of defectors.

Prompted by the return to the Soviet Union of Vitaly Yurchenko, who last week was billed as a key KGB defector, former U.S. intelligence officials and other experts said Wednesday the CIA has failed to meet defectors' psychological problems of adjustment and has misread their states of mind.

"They have a tendency to botch these things and not to know what's going on in these guys' heads," said one intelligence community insider knowledgable about the way the CIA handles defectors, and who spoke only on condition he not be identified.

Another former CIA official, Donald Jameson, said the problems include a failure to recognize or successfully act upon common signs of depression, and even to have interrogators who speak fluent Russian.

"The kind of bond and rapport that should have been built between Yurchenko and somebody wasn't made," Jameson said of the Soviet's three-month long interrogation.

"Maybe the root problem in the whole case is the people handling him saw it as a question of paper-shuffling rather than dealing with human beings," he said.

Yurchenko was described by U.S. officials as the former No. 5 man in the Soviet KGB who defected to the West in August. He flew back to the Soviet Union on Wednesday, two days after saying he had been kidnapped, drugged and tortured by the CIA.

Intelligence experts discount this Soviet's tale but have been divided upon whether Yurchenko was part of a KGB trap or was a real defector who bolted after becoming remorseful, perhaps disappointed that a former girlfriend in Canada wouldn't join him. Some intelligence sources in Congress have endorsed the KGB plot theory, while many connected with the CIA support the other.

AP Laserphoto

Former KGB agent Vitaly Yurchenko waves as he boards a Soviet-Union-bound plane at Dulles Airport in Chantilly, Va., Wednesday.

Yurchenko returned to Soviet hands Saturday night, walking away from a dinner with at least one CIA agent who had taken him to a restaurant, Au Pied de Cachon, in the Georgetown section of Washington, according to a government source who insisted on anonymity. The restaurant is just a 10-minute walk down Wisconsin Avenue from the new Soviet Embassy compound.

"I can't understand," said Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., vice chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, "how a person considered to be a major defector was allowed to have dinner in Georgetown, a short distance from the Soviet compound."

The intelligence source critical of Yurchenko's handling said part of the problem is institutional and has been repeated in earlier cases. Two CIA groups deal with any defector, the debriefers and those in charge of helping with resettlement and adjustment to American life, this official said.

Those in this second group, he said, may not be happy with the assignment. "You didn't join the organization to babysit a cranky KGB colonel," he said.

At his news conference, Yurchenko complained that he hadn't been able to speak Russian for three months. The Washington Post reported that a woman who defected in 1977, now known as E. Alexandra Costa, told U.S. officials after Yurchenko's defection that she felt he was probably lonely and was willing to speak to him. She was never allowed to.

"Maybe they were not imaginative enough," said Jameson, "to see how important it might have been."

Intelligence experts pointed out, however, that interrogations are never easy, and that while one aim is to make a defector comfortable and cooperative, that is set against an imperative need to determine the person is genuine.

"The primary function is to establish the bona fides," said John K. Greaney, a former CIA official, "that they are real and not sent to disrupt the whole system.

"The thing people have to remember is you're dealing with a person like a spring, they're wound up as tight as can be emotionally, and it's a psychological desert they are going through," added Greaney, who defends the agency's actions.

A defector from the Czech intelligence service, Ladislav Bittman, said he and every other defector reaches a nadir of depression at some point.

"I think he hit bottom very soon," Bittman said of Yurchenko.

"It is a very, very serious psychological crisis the individual goes through, every defector," said Bittman, who has written a book: "KGB and Soviet Disinformation, an insider's view."

Another sailor asks for asylum

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Romanian merchant sailor who left his ship in Jacksonville, Fla., and asked for asylum was being held in protective custody today by U.S. authorities sensitive to criticism of their handling of three other cases.

The seaman, who apparently contacted U.S. officials without fanfare, was questioned in the Romanian language Wednesday evening by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said Patrick Korten, a Justice Department spokesman.

Government officials who asked that their names not be used identified the man as Stefan Vranea and said he was questioned to determine if he met the criteria for asylum: a true desire to stay and a reason to believe he would be persecuted if he went home.

A Romanian-owned ship, the Balder Strand, was docked in the St. Johns River north of Jacksonville.

The State Department, eager to dispel the notion the Romanian's appearance was a novel event, issued a statement that "you should be aware that approximately 15,000 to 20,000 individuals seek asylum in the United States each year; hundreds of these cases involve seamen who have jumped ship."

Yet the case attracted attention, coming after a dizzying series of developments involving Soviets in Washington, New Orleans and Kabul, Afghanistan, who at first appeared to be defectors and then decided to go home again.

On Wednesday alone:

— The Senate, in a move spearheaded by State Department critic Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., considered issuing a subpoena that would require Ukrainian seaman Miroslav Medvid to testify in Congress. The maneuver was designed to get Medvid off a Soviet grain ship anchored in the Mississippi River near New Orleans and give him another chance to defect.

— President Reagan joined in the theorizing about the recent defection cases, musing at a news conference, "Either they honestly did feel they wanted to defect and then changed their minds or the possibility is there that this could have been a deliberate ploy."

Water for Texas

Tuesday's election results may not make raincloudsgather in the Texas sky, but the state's residents should be just as assured that the passage of Amendments 1 and 2 will pave the way to future water security.

Getting the water plan past the state's voters wasn't simple or quick. It took years — if one counts proposals offered in past years — and the diligent efforts of literally thousands of individuals who recognized Texas' delicate situation in regards to available water and growth of industry and population.

There are many who deserve thanks for getting the water plan formulated, presented to the state's voters and passed. Two of the most deserving of that credit are none other than Midland's own State Rep. Tom Craddick, who tirelessly ramrodded water legislation through the House, and Sen. John Montford of Lubbock, who guided the legislation in the Senate.

As in most endeavors at formulating legislation of a highly emotional, even controversial, nature, Craddick and Montford didn't always see eye-to-eye while hammering out the state water plan. But once the proposals were ready to present to voters, Craddick and Montford joined forces to form a formidable lobbying team in taking the case for the water plan to the state's voters. Their success was in evidence Tuesday as the vote totals indicated early-on that the two amendments were finding favor with voters and that story carried through until the polls closed.

Every Texan, regardless whether he lives in a Houston high-rise, on a ranch outside San Angelo on in the dry and dusty oilfields of the Permian Basin, can be thankful that Craddick and Montford went the "extra mile" to ensure that Texas will have the water that it needs in the years ahead.

Just no scoundrel

Moammar Khadafy is near the top of most Americans' lists. We love to hate him. We would like him eliminated.

But Americans are better at talking of hate and murder than at practicing it. That's because we as a society put rights above rancor and freedom above secrecy. We hate Khadafy precisely because he assassinates his enemies and struts like a demented Napoleon, casting the dark shadow of his Islamic revolution across the sands of Africa.

Neither are we any good at dumping dictators. We're too open and democratic to keep wraps on covert plots. Often as not, we end up shooting ourselves in the foot — or worse.

That's what happened with the Reagan administration's secret plan to dump Khadafy. Even before it went into effect, the plan was leaked to The Washington Post.

The president is infuriated. And we don't blame him. But he should have expected, all along, that it would come to light either before or after the deed was done. That's the problem with trying to act like a Khadafy; we're just not bad enough to do it and in a way that's good.

There's no doubt that our enemies are fighting dirty. And there's no doubt that the role of any intelligence service in any nation is involved with covert action to confound enemies. But the difference between us and them is what we are fighting for in the world. We best succeed when we use the tools of freedom, not the implements of scoundrels. Khadafy is his own worst enemy. Let's hope he destroys himself.

Another View:

Stop the big spenders

The American Republic's first sortie against irresponsible, astronomic federal spending is drawing heavy fire from left and right, which may be a sign that it is one of the smartest things the U.S. Senate ever did.

No one should be surprised that some members of Congress itself are among the most violent assailants of the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings budget-balancing bill.

Their target is the bill that would require $36 billion reductions in the deficit in each of five fiscal years, the last of them ending in 1991. By then, the U.S. government is supposed to have a balanced budget.

If Congress does not make the necessary cuts, the president is required to do it.

The howls of alarm emerging from Washington could not be louder if flying saucers packed with deadly enemy aliens from outer space were landing around the Capitol.

From the right, columnist James J. Kilpatrick ridicules the bill as "legislative hash" and calls it "reckless and irresponsible."

Is it possible that both of these gentlemen are victims of what has been described as "the Beltway mentality," referring to the provincial mindset of Washington denizens who think the boundaries of the nation end at the edge of the freeway circling the District of Columbia?

The big spenders in Washington have been out of control for generations. They get worse every year. If they keep on at their present rate, our national debt will zoom to $13.2 trillion by the year 2000, and the interest will be $18,000 annually for each American.

The Gramm-Rudman-Hollings bill is the only thing at present that stands between American taxpayers and the calamity ahead.

It is the one safeguard, the single sword, the only shield they have.

There is nothing else to stop the big spenders. There is no other way — short of a revolution — to keep these splurgers from plunging us all into a bottomless hole.

It would force Congress to do what Congress should do — under the threat of having the president do what Congress will not do.

At the very least, it will make it necessary for those so-and-sos to stand up and tell the country why they want to wreck the one and only means of getting rid of the blasted deficit.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1874, the Republican Party was symbolized as an elephant for the first time in a cartoon drawn by Thomas Nast in "Harper's Weekly."

In 1885, the Canadian Pacific Railway was completed.

In 1916, Republican Jeannette Rankin became the first woman elected to Congress.

In 1918, during W.W.I, an erroneous report from the United Press that an armistice had been signed set off celebrations across the country.

In 1944, Franklin D. Roosevelt won a fourth term in office, defeating Thomas E. Dewey.

In 1962, Richard M. Nixon, having lost California's gubernatorial race, gave what he called his "last press conference," telling reporters, "You won't have Nixon to kick around anymore."

GEORGE F. WILL

Joint communiques don't say much

WASHINGTON — Visitors to Moscow say a theme there is that President Reagan is a manipulated cipher within his own government. Some members of his government probably think so, too, and hope to prove the point by stuffing their agenda into any communique issued jointly by the two sides at the conclusion of the summit.

George F. Will

Such a communique is utterly optional and obviously unwise. There was none at the conclusion of the Gorbachev-Mitterrand summit. Mitterrand successfully avoided having an "arms-control summit." He constantly raised issues of human rights, including lists of specific cases. This moral tone and concreteness prevented the antiseptic and anesthetizing arcana of arms control from producing numbness, that absence of feeling that U.S. diplomats confuse with "an era of good feeling."

Mitterrand understands that communiques issued jointly by democratic and totalitarian leaders must be vapid, to the totalitarians' advantage. Such communiques are tissues of muzzy formulations falsely suggesting harmony and moral symmetry.

No summit is short enough, but all are short. Divide the time (in Geneva, two days) in half to allow for meticulous translations. Then subtract time for stilted niceties. Obviously summits must be primarily ratifying occasions, unveiling work done elsewhere. Now, imagine the draining and flattening of language being done today by U.S. diplomats toiling to reinvent detente in a concluding communique designed to eviscerate Reaganism.

Diplomatic boilerplate often proves that even the platitudinous can be injurious. If a joint communique asserts, contrary to reason and history, that tensions yield only to dialogue, it trivializes this century's great division between freedom and its armed enemies. What is needed is not more dialogue but less Soviet misbehavior.

Larry Speakes, reflecting an inanity loose in the administration, says Reagan's first job is to convince the Soviets that "we don't plan to run over them." Oh? Does Soviet aggression flow from insecurity, which U.S. policy has caused and now must assuage?

Add to that loopy idea the State Department idea that "frictionless" is a synonym for "good" in the phrase "good U.S.-Soviet relations." Then add Reagan's craving for a "fresh start" in relations. Stir well and you will get a communique designed to blur edges, bleach colors and put both sides on the same moral footing.

This is a recipe for diplomatic junk food, for mental cholesterol that clogs intellectual arteries with absurd propositions, jointly affirmed, such as this: Both sides equally value adherence to agreements.

That is rubbish, and if Reagan returns to Washington having endorsed rubbish, he will have negated his recent U.N. speech, in which he denounced "numerous" Soviet violations of "all" agreements of the 1970s. He also will have repealed his five-year record of objections to Soviet violations of arms agreements and the Helsinki Accords concerning human rights.

Speaking of arms agreements, how would a joint communique deal with Soviet violations of the pact forbidding use of the sort of chemical weapons the Soviets are using in Afghanistan — the sort the Soviets' Vietnamese allies are using in Indochina? The Soviet preference is for Goebbels-like denials. They constantly call for a "comprehensive ban" on the kind of crimes they commit. The State Department wants to be agreeable ("frictionless") and adores agreements, so it probably is lobbying for communique language that treats both sides as equally committed to banning such weapons.

Speaking of human rights, the Soviets may soon perfume the Geneva atmosphere by settling trivial number of human-rights cases. So imagine a joint communique pledging both sides, as moral equals, to work to resolve human-rights problems without "interfering" in the "internal affairs" of one another. That would mean the Helsinki Accords on human rights do not apply to the internal affairs of any country. They protect human rights in ... Antarctica?

How about a paragraph painting both sides as equally horrified victims of terrorism. Never mind that the Soviet side is the foremost funder and organizer of terrorism.

Finally, a "fresh start" requires tossing some murders down the memory hole. A pledge of mutual efforts for improved air safety would obliquely communicate the lie that the massacre of Korean Airlines Flight 007 was the result of a procedural flaw, not Soviet brutality. Another pledge for "both sides" to adhere to clear rules in Germany would intimate that the murder of U.S. Army Maj. Nicholson, who slowly bled to death, was the result of another misunderstanding.

Were Reagan to leave Geneva enveloped in a cloud of such verbiage, he would demoralize those who for 20 years have taken his quite different words seriously. And he would be disdained by those who would have successfully manipulated him. Such Geneva words would retroactively discount his public life, and would confirm Moscow's current theme.

Joint communiques generate myths of moral equivalence. In Geneva, Reaganism requires reticence.

JACK ANDERSON

'Angel of Death' aided over years by family

WASHINGTON — Josef Mengele may be dead, but the Justice Department is still trying to determine whether he cheated the hangman with the help of U.S. authorities. The notorious "Angel of Death" sent hundreds of thousands to the gas chambers in the Nazi death camp at Auschwitz.

Jack Anderson

"We are combing archives around the world, talking to people in every continent, trying to put the puzzle together and figure out whether Mengele received any help or protection from the U.S. government which enabled him to hide," Neal Sher, director of the Office of Special Investigations, told our associate Lucette Lagnado.

Sher characterized the investigation as "extraordinarily complex." In terms of hard documentary evidence, he said, it is far more difficult than the case of Klaus Barbie, the SS "Butcher of Lyon," who was found to have worked for U.S. military intelligence after World War II and whose escape to South America was arranged by American authorities.

It is already clear beyond any doubt that Mengele got substantial help over the years from his family, which owns the biggest farm machinery firm in West Germany. Their help is understandable, but what bothers American Nazi-hunters is that the protection given to the war criminal is not punishable under West German law. Indeed, to this day the Mengele family cannot be forced to cooperate with investigating authorities.

Here's what our associate learned about the Mengeles from sources in Germany and this country:

— In the immediate aftermath of World War II, Mengele's father believed that his son was dead. The young SS doctor's wife, Irene, dressed in mourning clothes and had a hometown priest say a funeral mass for him. But the family soon learned that Mengele was alive and well. He returned and lived under an assumed name in a nearby village for several years.

Justice Department sources say there is considerable evidence that, once U.S. occupation forces learned of Mengele's crimes, the family helped Mengele evade capture by pretending he was dead. U.S. government documents of that time reveal that Mengele was listed officially as having died in 1946, and thus was not brought to trial with other death camp doctors at Nuremberg.

— By 1949, renewed interest in Mengele prompted him to flee Germany. According to his own personal papers, the Mengele family provided the money for his escape to Argentina.

— Before he left Germany, Mengele signed legal documents "disassociating" himself from the family firm, according to the Simon Wiesenthal Center, which investigates Nazi war crimes.

This disassociation was to prevent the authorities from seizing the Mengele company's assets, as was done with property of major war criminals.

— Despite the technical breach, Mengele continued to get money from his family. The fugitive's personal papers suggest that a Mengele company executive, Hans Sedlmeir, served as a go-between.

— In the 1950s, according to the Wiesenthal Center, Mengele's father went to Argentina and gave the fugitive 1 million marks to invest in a pharmaceutical company.

— In the 1960s, according to the testimony of people who sheltered him, when Mengele moved to Brazil, money from the family enabled him to buy a house for himself and a farm for one of the couples who helped him.

— Throughout the years, the Mengele family refused to cooperate with German authorities, under German law they were not obliged to. Nor did the family report his death by drowning in 1979.

INANITY OF THE WEEK — In a memo that suggests federal banking supervisors don't have the brains they were born with, dead-serious instructions have been issued for the proper behavior following a nuclear attack. The first rule is: "Bank examination will be suspended immediately, and bank examination personnel ... will take such actions as may be necessary or prudent for their personal safety."

ART BUCHWALD

'Treasures' are worth long-distance sharing!

Years ago when Jackie Onassis was the first lady of our land, she conducted a TV tour of the White House. My sister was so inspired by the event that she gave me a tour of her three-room apartment in Queens, New York.

Art Buchwald

I was under the impression she had retired from the stately home business until I received a call from her the other day. "The British swells have sent their greatest art treasures to the National Gallery in Washington this month," she said. "What are we sending them in return?"

"Nothing special that I know of," I said.

"That's what I thought. My girlfriends and I have a great idea. In exchange for the English lending us their heirlooms we would like to ship them treasures from the homes of Flushing, New York."

"You told me the people of Flushing would never let their heirlooms out of their houses."

"We're now willing to do it provided they are insured by Lloyds of London."

"Who is we?"

"A few homeowners in my neighborhood. We call ourselves the 'Magnificent Six.' We would have been the 'Magnificent Seven' except Martha Bordinsky's slipcovers won't be ready for months. The thought we had is that if the British are willing to display what they have in their stately homes we should give them some idea of what we have in ours."

"What art treasures are you prepared to send to them?"

"I'm willing to lend 'The Blue Boy' – the one I bought in a garage sale in Astoria last year."

"Did you ever find out if it's the original 'Blue Boy' or not?"

"The man who sold it to me said if it wasn't the original it came awfully close. I'm not the only one willing to part with treasures. Doris Dembow wants to send a needlepoint sampler which she made herself, titled 'God Bless Our Home.'"

"That's classy. The only place I've ever seen anything like it was in a Hallmark greeting card shop."

"Barbara Lupin has offered to part with a color photo of her grandchild. She says it has never been shown in public before. But she won't lend it unless a guard is stationed in front of it day and night."

"The Tate Gallery has plenty of guards. What other treasures would you like to send to London?"

"Laura Brown has a pair of Ron and Nancy Toby mugs which she purchased in Atlantic City. They were crafted by skilled artisans in Hong Kong, and the shopkeeper told Laura that they were already collector's items."

"I may be wrong, but I don't believe the British have ever seen a Hong Kong Toby mug before."

"What we're trying to do is organize our treasures so that it gives the English some idea of how the bluebloods live in Flushing. We have Myra Stieglitz nearly talked into parting with her queen-size sleeper sofa. It's an heirloom because it has been used by three generations in her family."

"What is so special about it?"

"In the daytime it can seat three people, and at night all you have to do is remove the cushions and it turns into a bed."

"Why is Myra hesitating?"

"She is afraid if the Tate Gallery borrows it, her kids' friends won't have anyplace to sleep when they come home on school vacation."

"You seem to have everything under control. Why did you call me?"

"The girls wondered if you would contact Prince Charles and Princess Di and ask them to stop by to preview our art treasures on their way to Kennedy airport."

"I would be happy to. One more thing. I'm curious about how you selected the masterpieces for the exhibit."

"We all closed our eyes and thought of England."

County forecasts

Midland, Ector, Glasscock, Upton, Reagan, Crane, Gaines, Andrews, Dawson, Borden, Martin, Howard, Sterling, Coke, Irion and Tom Green counties: Tonight: fair. Lows mid 40s. Wind south 5 to 10 mph.

Friday: fair. Highs in upper 70s. Wind southwest 5 to 15 mph.

Warming trend due in Basin

From Staff and Wire Reports

Warmer temperatures are expected to return to the Midland area Friday as the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport forecasts a high near 80.

Tonight will be clear with a low in the middle 40s, becoming sunny with a high in the upper 70s Friday. Winds will be from the south at five to 10 mph tonight, increasing from the southwest at five to 15 mph Friday.

Wednesday's high of 67 was 17 degrees below the record set in 1977. This morning's low was 15 degrees above the 1938 record of 22 degrees.

STATE

A weak Pacific cold front that pushed southward through the Lone Star State left low-level clouds and dense fog in its wake today and forecasters predicted milder temperatures.

The front moved offshore, extending across the Coastal Bend and into the Rio Grande plains. A high-pressure system centered over Southern Oklahoma pumped cooler, drier air into Texas.

Clouds were scattered over sections of the middle to upper Gulf coast. The National Weather Service said that dense fog reduced visibilities to one-quarter mile at Corpus Christi and Kingsville. And skies were partly cloudy over parts of the Panhandle.

Elsewhere in the state, skies were mostly clear.

Winds were northerly across much of Texas, except for southerly winds over the lower Rio Grande valley, Panhandle and far West Texas at 5 to 10 mph.

NATION

Snow fell in the mountains of the Northwest early today, with winter storm watches and travelers' advisories posted throughout the region.

Snow, sometimes mixed with rain, fell from Washington and northern Oregon across Idaho to western Montana and northern Wyoming in the early morning.

A travelers' advisory was posted for the Cascade mountains of Washington for today. Winter storm watches also were issued for the mountain passes of northwest Montana and northern Montana as the National Weather Service forecast cold and snowy weather into Friday.

Elsewhere, rain fell from eastern Arkansas and western Tennessee across the lower Ohio Valley to the Great Lakes. New England also got some rain.

The rain finally stopped over the Middle Atlantic States, but flood warnings still were in effect throughout the region as rivers crested well above their flood stages.

MHS vs. Lee: Little difference on paper

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Trying to draw a position-by-position comparison between the Midland High Bulldogs and the Midland Lee Rebels is a bit like throwing darts at a board while blind-folded, but the question still remains — just how do these two teams compare on paper?

The two teams fighting for Midland's city championship at 8 p.m. Friday at Memorial Stadium have little in common. Each place a different emphasis on nearly every position on the field.

Still, here is a look at Friday's matchup:

Quarterback: We start with an argument that could be waged from now until the game is over. MHS is a passing team with Matt Marcum at the helm, leading the district in total offense and passing. Marcum has 1,259 yards passing and another 67 rushing. Lee, on the other hand, is a wishbone team geared for the running attack. Lee has used two quarterbacks in Tuey Rankin and Rodney Johnson. The two have combined for 1,110 yards passing and running. Lee has been intercepted only one time this year while Marcum has thrown seven interceptions in 200 attempts. Lee has thrown only 54 times this year. We'll let the statistics rule in this one. Slight Edge: Midland High.

Running Backs: Midland High's Jake Madrid is the city's leading rusher with 580 yards on 97 carries. Lee's leading rusher is Rodney Sims with 508 yards on 96 carries. That's close, but Lee takes the lead from there own with Joe Woodard over 400 yards while Rankin and Wood are both over 300. Only Anthony Adkinson and Mark Johnson, both over 300, are the only other Bulldogs with over 100 yards rushing. Lee depth is the big key here. Advantage: Lee.

Wide Receivers: Another argument for both sides of town. MHS' Kenny DeLaGarza has the benefit of playing for a passing team while Lee's Dexter Traylor is on a run oriented squad. DeLaGarza has 32 receptions for 442 yards and three TDs. Traylor has 17 catches for 407 yards, but six have gone for TDs and has been the key in two Lee victories. Here is a situation with two great performers of 1985. Advantage: None.

Tight End: Lee's duo of Anthony Dickens and David Almand are mainly blockers in Lee's wishbone scheme while MHS' Bobby Williams is more of a receiver. Lee's tight ends have caught only six passes for 88 yards and three TDs this year while Williams has 17 catches for 285 yards and one TD. Again, this is a tough choice. Is blocking less important than receiving. Slight Advantage: Midland High.

Offensive Line: Midland High's offensive line has been a surprise this year, doing much more than anyone expected with center Robert Fortune, guards James Campbell and Marvin Mitchell and tackles Phillip Speight and Bryan DuBose, but few will dispute that Lee has the best offensive line in the district with center Wade Wiesepape, guards Jake Young and Ricky Lee and tackles Paul Sharrick and Mike Little. Strong Advantage: Lee.

Defensive Line: MHS has James Mechler, Burt Fisher, Brent Barton and Campbell while Lee counters with Brad Cooper, Eddie Mancha, Chad Bullard and Mark Breeding. This isn't the best front wall either school has had, but both have been better than expected. Lee has given up fewer rushing yards, but it's close. Slight Advantage: Lee.

Linebackers: Lee's Tony Brown, Jay Roach and Carlos Pina against MHS' William Hernandez, Steve Pruitt and Bart Brown. It looks like 1½ to 1½ from here. Advantage: None

Secondary: Lee's Terry Young, Chris Kenney, Kevin Witt and Tracy Mayfield against MHS' Jake Madrid, Anthony Adkinson, Ben Grimes and Mark Johnson. Lee has given up almost as many yards passing as it has rushing. MHS has given up almost 300 yards less passing than Lee. Strong Advantage: Midland High.

Kicking Game: MHS' Bobby Williams has 22 points, including two field goals and a 36.5 punting average while Lee's Terry Baxter has 13 points with no field goals and a 31.0 punting average. Lee's special teams appear to be stronger overall, but Williams makes the difference for MHS. Advantage: Midland High.

Incentive: Lee really has nothing to play for except the city championship. Rebel glory starts next weekend. This is the last time many MHS senior will ever put on a football uniform. Advantage: Midland High.

Winning Edge: Lee's playoff bound squads have earned the winning edge and have learned to win even when they aren't at maximum performance. MHS has yet to prove it can win the big game. Advantage: Lee.

MC faces Grayson in Classic

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Midland College faces Grayson County College at 7 p.m. today in the Langford Chaparral Center in a first round game of the Chaparral Classic.

Murray State of Oklahoma and South Plains College started today's action with a game at 3 p.m. with Odessa College and Garden City, Kan., following at 5 p.m. The opening round's final game is between Howard College and Lubbock Christian College JV at 9 p.m.

In Friday's action, consolation games are scheduled for 2 and 4 p.m. with semifinals at 7 and 9 p.m. MC-Grayson and SPC-Murray State winners clash at 7 with the OC-Garden City and HC-LCC JV winners meeting at 9.

Saturday's action is slated for 1 p.m., seventh place; 3 p.m., consolation finals; 5 p.m., third place; 7 p.m., championship.

On past performance, Midland and Odessa are the teams to beat to reach the finals. The Chaparrals and Wranglers have met in the last two finals and both were games worthy of championships.

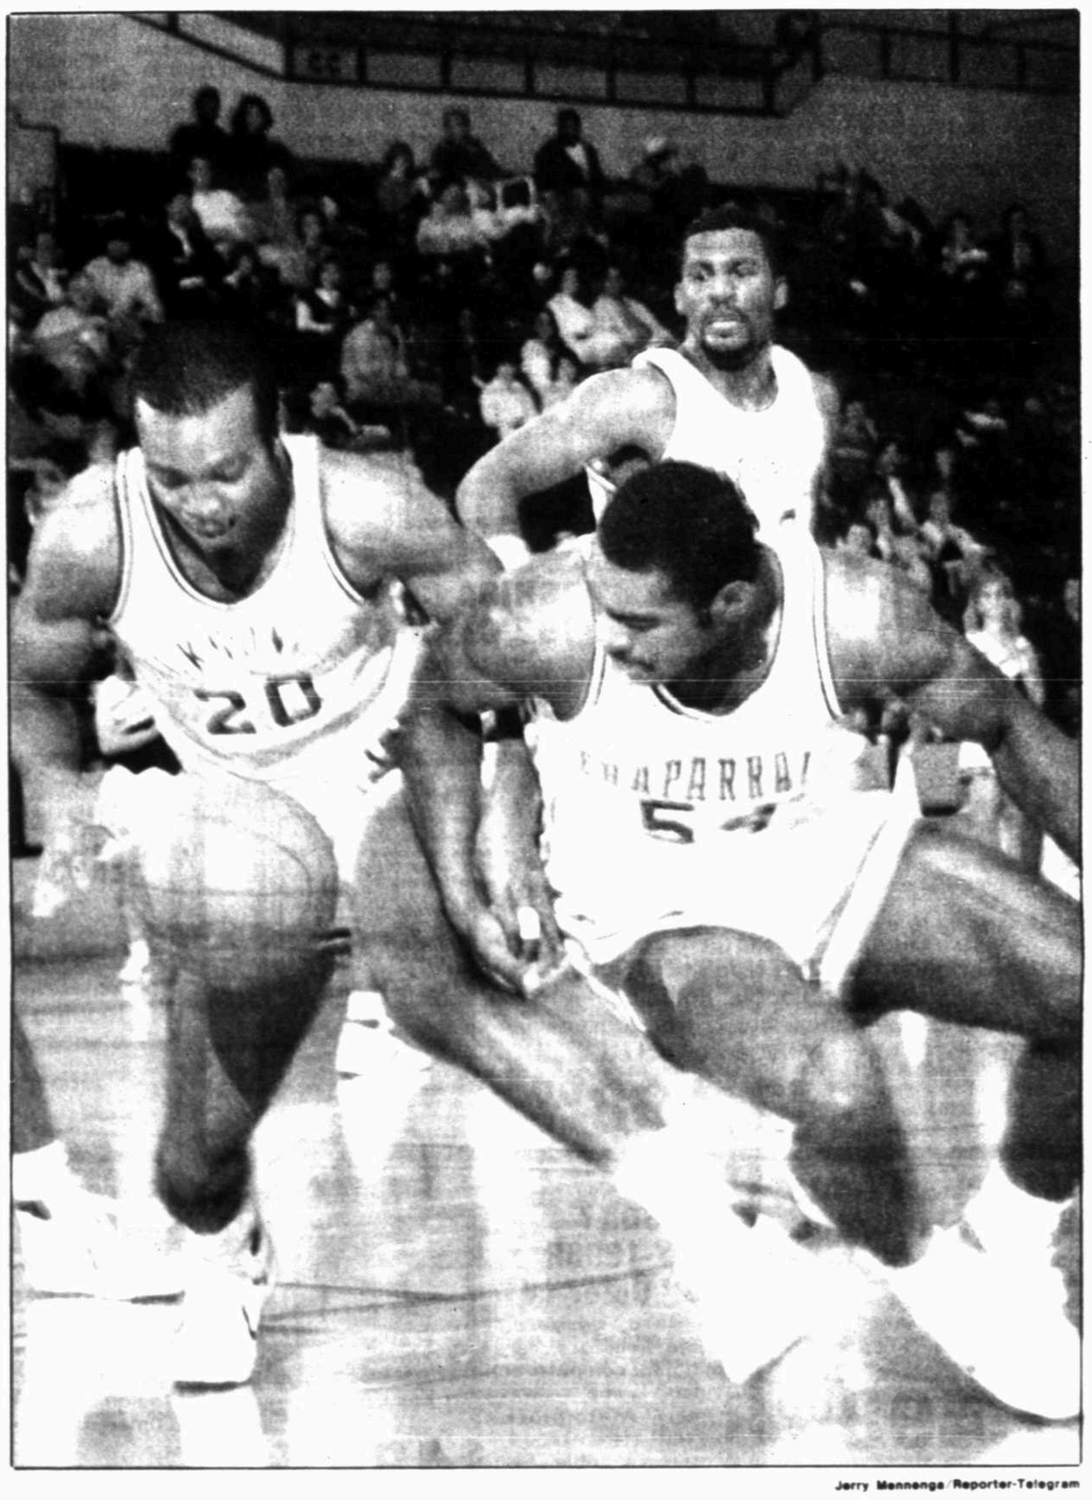

MC won in over time in 1983 and then staved off OC 66-61 in a another thriller, which was a portent of what was to come in regular season showdowns between the neighborhood rivals.

Midland opened the season against Jacksonville Baptist College with a 110-84 victory last Saturday and the Chap Classic will mark the last game in Midland until Nov. 29 when Western Junior College Athletic Conference play opens. MC will play in tournaments in Kansas and at OC in between, but still will be faced with a layoff from Nov. 16 to Nov. 29.

The early season games are important to the Chaps, since it's a young team that needs to blend four holdovers from last year's 31-8 team that finished fourth in the National tournament at Hutchinson, Kan., with a promising group of recruits.

Back from last year's team are guard Ricky Grace and inside men Tony Wright, Eddie Frazier and Derrick Lewis.

Although a newcomer, Chase Brown, a transfer from NMMI, is experienced in WJCAC combat. In fact, Brown pumped in 20 points in the opener.

Jerry Mennenga/Reporter-Telegram

Midland College's Tony Wright (54), scrambling for a loose ball, will be in action tonight when the Chaps play Grayson College at 7 p.m. in a first round Chaparral Classic game.

Badgers, Owls in playoff tuners

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

It's easier to knock someone down when they aren't paying attention, and that's just what Stanton and Wall are hoping to do this week to McCamey and Reagan County as both might be sneaking a peek into the future.

Both the Owls and the Badgers have already secured playoff berths in District 8-2A and must be feeling a little antsy about getting into post-season play. The Buffalos, who host McCamey in a 7:30 kickoff Friday, and Wall, visiting Big Lake, also at 7:30 Friday, would like to take advantage of that situation.

Momentum is with the playoff-bound schools, however. McCamey has not lost a game since the season-opener, running off eight straight. The Owls have hit stride since a district-opening loss to the Badgers on Oct. 11, winning three straight district games. An added incentive comes because no one wants to head into the playoffs with a loss in their last game.

BUT BOTH teams definitely have their sights aimed for Nov. 15. Reagan County travels to Fort Stockton to play District 7-2A champion Van Horn that day while down the road, McCamey and 7-2A runner-up Marfa tangle. Both games have 7:30 p.m. starts.

McCamey is looking forward to the return of tailback Rodney Terry who may see some time against the Buffalos Friday. Terry has played one quarter of football in the district season, getting hurt early in the game against the Owls. The speedy junior rolled up more than 700 yards in four previous games and is the Badgers' only real outside threat.

The Owls have found a winning formula on the ground, relying on the bruising straight-ahead running of fullback Tim Tatum and the occasional pitch outside to tailback James West. Sophomore quarterback Scott Lipsey, the Owls' leading pass receiver earlier in the season, has shown ability to scramble as well.

CRANE IS also looking forward to a pressure-less ballgame at home Friday with Colorado City. Before Colorado City was upset by Sonora last week, this game looked like a playoff showdown. Instead, the Cranes have already made plans, taking on the 8-3A champion Lampasas on Saturday, Nov. 16 at 7:30 in San Angelo's Bobcat Stadium.

The Cranes want a share of the 7-3A title, however, and must beat CC to do it. Ballinger is an overwhelming favorite to beat Coahoma, and it also has 3-1 advantage on possessions over Crane.

"The pressure is gone for this ballgame, it won't be pressure packed like last week for the Ballinger game," said coach Rickey White. "But these kids want a share of that district title, and they've got to win to be co-champions."

Red Devils host Wink in 'must win' 6-A outing

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

Even though there are two weeks left in the regular season in District 6-A, each game has a playoff atmosphere for the Rankin Red Devils from here on out.

Each one is a "must win" if the Devils hope to make it to the playoffs for the first time since 1981. Coach Dwayne Turner will begin that drive Friday when defending district champion Wink invades Rankin's home turf. The Red Devils conclude the regular season with another home game the next week against visiting Sanderson.

Wink, though undefeated in the district at 2-0, is not the powerhouse team they've been in the past and neither are the Devils the doormat they've been the past two seasons. But a win for the Wildcats clinches at least second spot in 6-A, and a chance to win the district when they challenge the undefeated Iraan Braves, Nov. 15.

FOR RANKIN, a win over Wink puts them in position for the runner-up spot — if they can turnaround and beat Sanderson on the 15th. There also could be three-way ties either at the top, if Wink loses to Rankin and beats Iraan while Rankin beats Sanderson, or for second, if Rankin beats Wink and loses to Sanderson while Wink loses to Iraan.

It all becomes too predicated on "ifs and buts." The simplest scenario for Turner is to win both remaining games.

"We've got to win this one to have that chance - this is where we do ore we don't," Turner says. "We don't want anybody else telling us if we can go or not. Our kids are getting ready and it'll be a good ballgame. Wink may have tradition on their side, but they don't have the same team they've had the last couple of years. And I know we're better."

RANKIN COMES into the game with two weeks rest while Wink is fresh off a 33-28 win over Sanderson. The Wildcats were given a pair of touchdowns by Sanderson, one on an interception return, the other off a fumble deep in their own zone.

Specialty teams always play a big role in big games like this one, and the Devils have done a fine job on both ends of the kicking game — coverage and returns — this season.

Steven Cole has been handling both punting and kicking duties for Rankin this season and Turner has been more than pleased with the way the senior has done the job so far. Cole is also a field goal threat, a plus in close games.

Lee, Permian bi-district dates set

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Bi-district football playoff plans were made Wednesday afternoon between the four teams of districts 3-5A and 4-5A by way of a three-way conference call and Midland Lee head football coach Jack Tayrien couldn't be more pleased with the outcome.

If the standings of District 4-5A don't change this Friday night, Midland Lee will face Amarillo High at 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 16, in Lubbock's Jones Stadium while Odessa Permian will meet Amarillo Palo Duro at 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 15, at the same site.

Amarillo High will enter the state playoffs as District 3-5A's champion while Palo Duro is the runnerup. Should Lee defeat Midland High Friday and Permian lose to Odessa High, Lee would play Palo Duro Friday, Nov. 15, at Jones Stadium and Permian would then face Amarillo the day after at 2 p.m.

Lee owns a 5-1 record in District 4-5A while Permian stands at 5-0-1. Permian must lose to Odessa High while Lee defeats MHS for the Rebels to capture the district championship.

In either case, both District 4-5A teams won the home team honors in a separate coin flips and Midland and Odessa fans will sit on the West side of Jones Stadium.

"I'm tickled to death with the way things turned out," said Tayrien at the conclusion of the conference call. "If things stand as they do now, and I don't forsee any changes after Friday, we will play Amarillo High on Saturday afternoon and that was my first preference.

"We'll take the district championship if Permian wants to help out, and in that case, we would be happy to play on Friday."

Amarillo High upset previously unbeaten Palo Duro last Saturday by a narrow 10-7 count to win the 3-5A title before a near sellout crowd in Amarillo.

Tickets for Lee's bi-district playoff game will go on sale Tuesday at 8 a.m. at the Memorial Stadium ticket office. Due to Jones Stadium's seating capacity of around 50,000, there will be no limit on tickets to individual customers. All tickets will be general admission at a cost of $3 for students and $5 for adults. All tickets on game day at Jones Stadium will be $5.

Gil Bartosh, Midland athletic director, said that tickets will be on sale from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily through next Thursday. If Lee plays Saturday, as is expected, tickets will be sold on Friday, Nov. 15, from 8 a.m. until 1 p.m.

During the conference call, Palo Duro and Amarillo High flipped for the Friday or Saturday date. Amarillo High got the Saturday date.

Permian and Lee then won home team honors in separate coin flips.

"You know it's your day when you get what you want without even having to call heads or tails," said Bartosh after hearing that the actual coin flip in Amarillo turned up in favor of District 4-5A.

Lee defeated Amarillo High in a bi-district game in 1983 while Permian defeated Palo Duro last year in the bi-district round. The Rebels have never faced Palo Duro in a playoff game.

Now it's up to Permian and Lee to finish some unfinished business in 4-5A. Odessa High and Midland High would like to have their own say on who plays who next weekend.

Mullin takes charge in NBA debut

Rookie signs pact, scores winner

Associated Press

When rookie Chris Mullin signed a four-year contract with the Golden State Warriors, Coach John Bach said the team and its fans shouldn't expect much from him when he made his pro debut a few hours later.

"I'm sure he'll get to make a cameo appearance. I want to make sure he understands it as that, and that the fans do, too," Bach said Wednesday. Giving the rookie too much playing time too quickly, the coach added, "would be throwing him into a meat grinder."

Mullin, however, had other ideas.

THE FORMER St. John's University All-American played 24 minutes, hit six of nine shots from the field and scored 15 points, including a clutch jumper with 19 seconds left, as the Warriors defeated Seattle 105-101 in a National Basketball Association game.

"I was a little nervous at first but I never got tired," Mullin said. "I've been running four to five miles every morning so I'm in pretty good shape."

Mullin, who said he got one workout with the team Wednesday morning, scored eight points in the fourth quarter while Purvis Short, a veteran forward also playing his first game after signing a contract Wednesday, scored 10 of his 24 points in the final period. Short also had 10 rebounds.

Short, the fourth-leading scorer in the NBA last season, sank a pair of free throws, then converted a pass from Joe Barry Carroll for a 100-97 Golden State lead. Another two free throws at 1:19 made it 102-97, but Seattle cut the deficit to 102-101 with 34 seconds left on a basket by rookie Xavier McDaniel and two free throws from Al Wood.

Mullin then hit a turnaround jumper from the right baseline to give the Warriors a three-point lead, and Eric Floyd's free throw with four seconds left finished the scoring.

"I got open underneath, so when I got the pass, I just turned and took the shot," Mullin said of his crucial basket. "It felt good all the way."

Carroll and Short each had 24 points for the Warriors and Floyd had 21. McDaniel led the SuperSonics with 25 points and Wood had 24.

NBA Roundup

Trail Blazers 111, Mavericks 109

Clyde Drexler scored 28 points and Sam Bowie blocked a layup attempt by Rolando Blackman at the final buzzer as Portland won at Dallas.

The lead changed hands five times in the final three minutes before Mychal Thompson's layup put the Trail Blazers ahead to stay at 108-106 with 1:20 left. Bowie made it 111-109 with a free throw with six seconds left, then blocked the last-gasp attempt by Blackman, who scored 23 points for the Mavericks.

Mark Aguirre led Dallas with 29 points, while Kiki Vandeweghe added 20 for Portland.

Spurs 81, Bullets 80

Mike Mitchell hit a 13-foot jumper with 40 seconds remaining to lift San Antonio over Washington, which lost its fourth straight outing.

The two teams exchanged the lead five times in the final 4:18 of the game, with the Bullets pulling ahead 80-79 on a basket by Cliff Robinson with 57 seconds left.

After Mitchell's go-ahead shot, Jeff Malone missed a jumper and the Spurs ran all but two seconds off the clock before being called for a 24-second violation. An inbounds pass by Washington was tapped away by Mitchell as time expired.

San Antonio, which rallied from a 48-38 halftime deficit, was led by Alvin Robertson with 18 points, 14 of them in the first half. Malone had 23 points and Robinson 22 for the Bullets.

Hawks 114, Suns 106

Dominique Wilkins scored 12 of his 34 points in the fourth quarter as Atlanta rallied to beat winless Phoenix.

Former Midland College star Spud Webb had 11 points for the Hawks.

The Suns, 0-5 for the first time in franchise history, were led by Walter Davis with 24 points and James Edwards with 23 points and 11 rebounds.

The game marked the NBA debut of Bulgarian Georgi Glouchkov, who scored seven points.

76ers 105, Pacers 97

Philadelphia scored 10 straight points in a four-minute span of the fourth quarter to hand Indiana its 40th straight road loss to an Atlantic Division team since 1982.

Moses Malone had 21 points and 13 rebounds and Sedale Threatt scored 13 of his 17 points in the third quarter for the 76ers. Clark Kellogg had 22 points and Steve Stipanovich 21 for the Pacers.

The 76ers erased a one-point Indiana lead with their 10-0 streak for a 94-85 lead with 7:14 left in the game. Sixers rookie Terry Catledge had four points during the surge.

Indiana led 59-50 at halftime as Stipanovich his eight of nine field-goal attempts, but Threatt's hot third period brought Philadelphia back.

Pistons 122, Bulls 105

Trailing 87-75 after three quarters, Detroit hit on all cylinders in the final period, outscoring Chicago 47-18 behind the shooting of Isiah Thomas and Earl Cureton.

Thomas scored 16 of his 23 points in the final quarter and added 16 assists for the Pistons, while Cureton added 13 of his 16 points in the same span.

"They really blitzed us in the fourth quarter," Bulls Coach Stan Albeck said. "There was little we could do. Isiah was penetrating and passing off, or he would take a seemingly bad shot and make it."

The Bulls, playing without star guard Michael Jordan, got 37 points from Orlando Woolridge and 18 points and 13 rebounds from Sidney Green. John Long scored 22 points for Detroit.

MHS, LEE—

If the above observation are anywhere close to correct, this game should be a close game. It shows that the difference between a team with a 2-4 record and a 5-1 record in District 4-5A isn't much. In fact, there are several areas that are debatable at best. Lee fans might lean more one way and MHS fans the other, but there isn't a great deal of difference among starters.

Prediciton: Midland Lee 21, MHS 14 — The real difference lies in overall depth and its the second half when MHS has had its problems this year. That makes the difference for Lee against Midland High and many other teams the Rebs face.

DEVILS—

"Turnovers could be a key this week, too," Turner said, "but the punting game could be real important, too. If you get down in your end and have to try and drive the ball 90 yards every time, it'll be tough."

Niekro brothers file for freedom

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitchers Phil and Joe Niekro of the New York Yankees were among several players who filed for free agency Wednesday.

Players face a midnight Monday deadline for filing and, since the abolition of the re-entry draft, they may begin signing with teams on Tuesday.

Among the other players who filed were Larry Bowa of the New York Mets, Cesar Cedeno and Doug Bair of St. Louis, Lynn Jones of Kansas City and Miguel Dilone of San Diego.

Agent Bruce Church of Atlanta told the New York Times that the Niekros filed for free agency just in case negotiations with the Yankees fell through. Niekro played out the final year of a two-year contract with the Yankees last season, during which he won his 300th game, while Joe was acquired from Houston in August.

Church said he talked with Yankees owner George Steinbrenner Wednesday.

"I feel the Yankees are sincerely interested in both Joe and Phil, but we haven't negotiated a contract," Church said.

The agent said he would try to negotiate contracts for the brothers "totally separately."

Mississippi State's Emory Bellard ...headed for Texas Tech?

Bellard denies contact with Tech

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Coach Emory Bellard says he has not been contacted about a possible football coaching vacancy at Texas Tech and that his only desire is help his Mississippi State team close its season with victories.

The 5-4 Bulldogs are idle this weekend and face season-ending games at Louisiana State and against arch-rival Mississippi, and reportedly are still in the running for a berth in the Independence Bowl.

The Dallas Morning News reported that Bellard, in his seventh year at Mississippi State, was among the leading candidates to replace Jerry Moore at the end of current season. Moore has a 15-35-2 record in his four-plus years with the Red Raiders. Texas Tech 3-5 and lost its last five games.

"I don't know anything at all about Texas Tech," said Bellard, who has one season remaining on his contract at State. "To my knowledge, there's not even a job opening there ... I've had no contact whatsoever with anybody at Texas Tech. None."

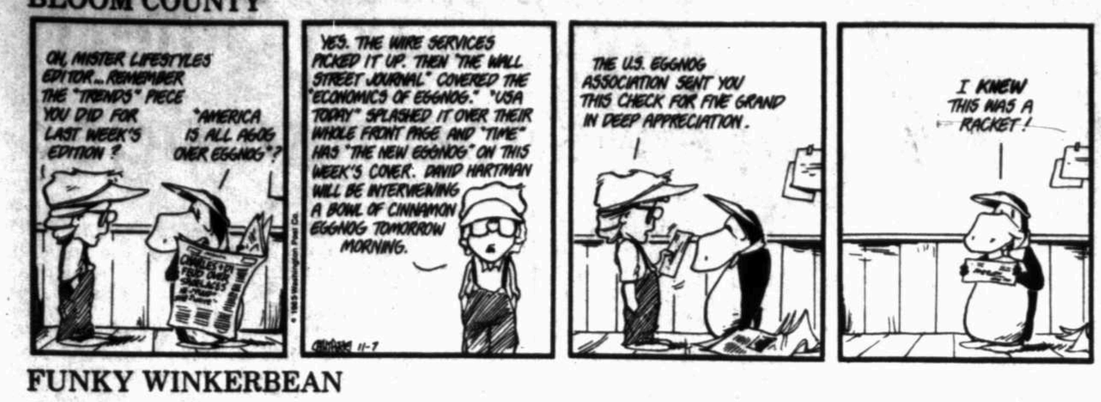

The Texas newspaper also said coach Bobby Collins of Southern Methodist, a former head coach at Southern Mississippi, was a leading candidate to replace Bellard. The report also said that Collins, a Mississippi State graduate, would replace Charley Scott as MSU athletic director.

"That's news to me," Scott said of the report. "I recognize that these kinds of rumors develop all the time, particularly around athletics. But from the knowledge I have, they are just that — rumors."

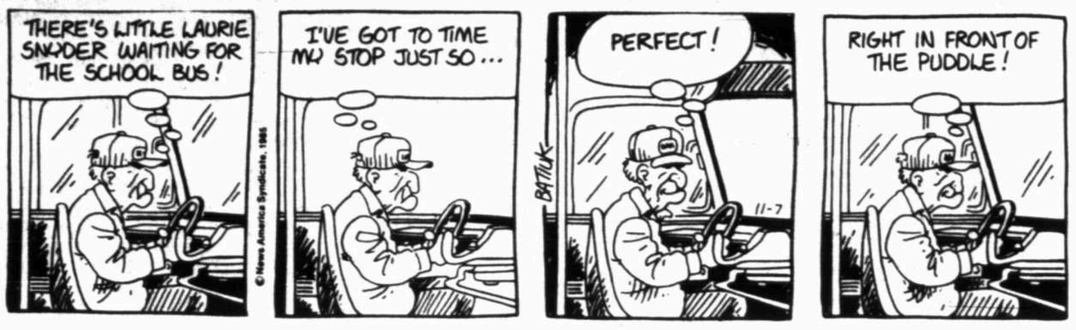

Bellard, 57, coached high school football in Texas for 15 years before spending six years as an assistant at the University of Texas. He coached 6½ years at Texas A&M before resigning mid-way through the 1978 season.

Among his many friends in Texas athletics is T. Jones, the first-year athletic director at Texas Tech. Jones is a former U of Texas quarterback, assistant

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, November 8, 1985

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Educational pursuits deserve top priority. You discover a talent you never knew you had. The financial outlook is rosy. Get in touch with a former employer or co-worker. The time is right for a project you discussed long ago. Approach potential investors with a carefully thought-out plan. It is essential that you appear well organized. Curb a tendency to be combative. A former romantic partner would like to try again. CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: Norman Lloyd of "St. Elsewhere," newsman Morley Safer, Katharine Hepburn, singer Patti Page, actress Esther Rolle, author Margaret Mitchell, English astronomer Edmund Halley.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): An obstacle to progress disappears. Take your time when making an important decision involving an older family member. Ask for suggestions from your siblings. Romance looks highly promising.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be on the lookout for financial discrepancies. A third party could try to lay claim to jointly-owned funds. Let loved ones enjoy the spotlight while you stay in the background.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A long-distance call brings terrific news. A change in the family circle will be permanent. Do not worry; eventually everyone benefits. Avoid someone who makes questionable statements.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): An unexpected invitation arrives, bringing a hint of romance. You can win big if you accept a loved one's suggestions. Follow up an intriguing possibility, even if it seems remote.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): An excellent day for those who work in sales or public relations. An older person could act boastful, flaunting his or her authority. Let it go. A languishing romance perks up.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Unexpected developments could change your plans. A family member is more demanding than usual. Think twice about switching jobs. Romance is about to take an exciting turn. Follow your heart.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Confer with an authority figure and your career could take off like a shot. Spend money only on necessities. An older person helps you arrive at an important decision. Rearrange your schedule to accommodate someone.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Do something to help others -- the rewards will be tremendous! Loved one's words boost your ego. You feel ready to attempt almost anything. Stick to projects already underway.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A good day to shop for clothes and household items. Keep a record of credit-card purchases. You will feel better once you eliminate certain foods from your diet.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Doing a special favor for someone makes up for a past slight. New career doors open. Take note of recent trends in your field. You could be missing out on a great idea.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A long-sought career goal moves within reach. Stick to the tried-and-true. A business-like manner impresses those in authority. Influential people feel they can count on you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Group activities hold special appeal today. The physical-fitness craze hits you full force. Be careful not to overdo it! At work, promote cooperation. Teamwork boosts profits appreciably.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Five of ♣.

To become an expert bridge player, you must learn to "read" the table and have the fortitude to back your assessment of the situation. This hand from a world championship match between France and the U.S. is a stellar example of this talent.

North-South bid reasonably to a fair game. In essence, it depended on bringing in the trump suit without losing a trick.

West led a club. East won the ace and shifted to a low spade. Under normal circumstances, that might have caused West a problem about whether to take the ace or not. But West easily won the ace of spades, cashed the king of clubs and exited with a spade.

To the declarer, Bobby Wolff of Dallas, Texas, West defended like a man who was looking at a sure trump trick. Backing his judgment, Wolff won the spade return in hand and led the jack of trumps.

East covered with the queen and dummy's king won. Declarer returned to hand with the ace of diamonds and ran the eight of hearts. When that won, it was a simple matter to continue with a trump to the ten, return to hand with a diamond ruff and draw the last trump with the ace. Dummy was high and the game was in the bank.

This hand was played at six tables in the world championship. A contract of four hearts was reached at all six, and in every case the defense adopted a similar line. However, Wolff was the only declarer of the six to draw the correct inference from the defense and make his contract.

Stallone takes on new role

Stallone

DENVER (AP) — Sylvester Stallone, who made his mark in movies as the boxer Rocky, then another fighter, named Rambo, is taking on a new role for his next picture: a cross-country truck driver.

The movie, "Over the Top," will be filmed at truck stops and other locations in and around Denver beginning in January, Cannon Films technical adviser Marvin Cohen said Tuesday.

The 39-year-old star will play a truck driver who is trying to win the affection of his son, whose custody he lost in a divorce, Cohen said.

Stallone will be paid $12 million for the movie, which is scheduled to be released in August to 2,000 theaters nationwide, he said.

Keillor

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Humorist and public radio show host Garrison Keillor says his Danish fiancee knows nothing about his program, "A Prairie Home Companion," or much else about his work as an author.

Keillor, 43, author of the best-selling "Lake Wobegon Days" and a contributor to New Yorker magazine, said Tuesday that he and Ulla Skaerved will wed in Copenhagen. It will be the second marriage for both.

The two met 25 years ago when she was an exchange student at Keillor's high school in Anoka, near Minneapolis, and were reunited in August at their 25-year high school reunion. They had not been in touch since 1964, he said.

Keillor said his bride-to-be is unaware of the nature of his celebrity, which included a Time magazine cover story this month.

"My true love doesn't know anything about 'A Prairie Home Companion,' she doesn't read the New Yorker and she doesn't read English well enough to know I am a humorous person," Keillor told Rick Shefchik, columnist for the St. Paul Pioneer Press and Dispatch.

Prince

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Rock star Prince failed to turn over a share of concert receipts from his tour through Florida in April, says a music production company that is suing the star in federal court for more than $250,000.

The suit, filed by Magic Productions, was moved Tuesday from Hillsborough County Circuit Court to the U.S. Middle District Court at the request of the defendants, Prince Rogers Nelson, P.R.N. Productions Inc., Rainbow Over America Inc. and Richard Klotzman of California.

Magic Productions contends it was not paid an agreed-upon share of the proceeds from the 26-year-old singer's April concerts in Tallahassee, Miami and Lakeland for which it acted as co-promoter, putting up $250,000 in advance.

Attorney Brooks Miller, representing P.R.N. Productions, said, "My client and Prince are innocent of any wrongdoing."

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Drug abuse is a major problem that deserves more attention than it is getting, says former TV and radio host Art Linkletter.

"The biggest single problem in raising money and building around drug abuse prevention is that it never ends," Linkletter said in an interview Tuesday.

Linkletter, 73, has been active in the drug prevention movement since his youngest daughter, Diane, died after taking LSD in 1969.

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — Konrad Kujau, who fabricated the "Hitler Diaries," has forged a new career — an exhibition of his copies of old masterpieces ranging from Rembrandt to Picasso.

The 47-year-old convicted forger, who will open his show Friday at Hamburg's chic Galerie Altana, said Wednesday he had copied the masterpieces since his release from prison four months ago.

Kujau was freed pending an appeal of his sentence in the Hitler Diaries case.

"I have been painting around the clock," he said.

Kujau was sentenced to a 4½-year prison term in July for forging purported diaries of Nazi leader Adolf Hitler. Excerpts were printed by Stern magazine, West Germany's largest-circulation weekly, in 1983 before experts exposed them as fakes.

Kujau told The Associated Press his exhibition would include copies of paintings from Rembrandt, Picasso, Dali and Chagall.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The will left by actor Rock Hudson, who died of AIDS a month ago, omitted his only survivors — 12 cousins — as well as his longtime companion, Tom H. Clark.

The document, filed late Tuesday, left Hudson's estate to a trust he established 11 years ago, but it contained no details about the trust and did not set a value on the estate, other than being more than $10,000.

It was amended in August 1984 to eliminate Clark, who had been named in an earlier will as recipient of the actor's cars, furniture, motion picture collection and other personal items.

Hudson, 59, nominated for an Academy Award in "Giant" and star of television hits such as "McMillan and Wife," died Oct. 2. He had acknowledged in July that he was suffering from acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

• • •

NEW YORK (LAT) — Wildman Howard Stern rides the airwaves again. The outrageous deejay, fired three years ago by Washington's DC-101 (WWDC-FM) and fired last month by New York's WNBC radio where he had worked since August 1982, has a new radio job. In both cities, Stern had been known for his on-the-air slurs directed at blacks, Jews, homosexuals, the handicapped and anyone else he could think of. He raised questions about Princess Diana's virginity on her wedding day and, following the tragic Air Florida crash, called the carrier to ask about one-way fares from National Airport to the 14th Street Bridge.

In New York Wednesday, Stern announced he was signing a "long-term deal" with WXRK-FM, an album rock station. He wouldn't give any details of his contract, which his agent said would make them both rich men. Stern said he would do the same show he has always done: "Take phone calls and go wild." He said his new employers would not stifle him and had told him "to be Howard Stern." His longtime partner, Robin Quivers who was with him here and at WNBC, will go with him to WXRK.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Teressa Bellissimo, credited with inventing the hot and spicy "Buffalo-style" chicken wings, has died after a long illness. She was 84.

Mrs. Bellissimo, who had been bedridden for 10 years after a stroke, died Monday at her apartment over the family business, the Anchor Bar and Restaurant. The Anchor Bar became a Buffalo landmark and "Buffalo wings" became popular across the country and as far away as the Yukon and England after the delicacy was first cooked up by Mrs. Bellissimo in 1964, according to her son, Dominic.

Denver considers babysitting San Francisco Giants

NEW YORK (AP) — While babysitting was not on their resume, representatives of the city of Denver, along with 12 other groups, continue their pitch to major league baseball today for franchises that are yet unborn.

Considered one of the frontrunners for an expansion franchise, the Denver group traveled to New York fresh from a meeting last week with the San Francisco Giants, who had proposed a temporary move to the Mile High City while waiting for a new stadium to be built in San Francisco.

"It's a fairly radical proposal in the sense that it has never taken place before in this form," said Steve Katich, a spokesman for the Denver Baseball Commission. "Our primary concern with the proposal is that we in Denver would like some assurances that we're not simply babysitting for a franchise."

The Denver group had a meeting scheduled today with Commissioner Peter Ueberroth, who was prepared to listen to two days of presentations from the 13 groups, despite the fact that baseball has no immediate plans to expand.

"There has been no definite decision to expand," said Bill Giles, president of the Philadelphia Phillies and a member of baseball's Long Range Planning Committee. "We're just investigating it."

Although the planning committee recommended last year that baseball expand by as many as six teams by 1990, the poor financial state of some franchises has stalled plans to increase the number of teams.

Also scheduled to meet with Ueberroth were representatives from Phoenix, Ariz.; Indianapolis; Miami; Nashville, Tenn.; New Orleans; Vancouver, British Columbia; Columbus, Ohio; Washington, D.C.; Buffalo, N.Y.; Tampa and St. Petersburg, Fla., and the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority.

Denver, along with either Tampa or St. Petersburg and lately Washington, have emerged as the favorites in the expansion race.

The Denver group met last Friday with Giants representatives to hear the San Francisco proposal. A temporary move would be for three years, but, according to Katich, if ground isn't broken by sometime in 1986 for a new stadium to replace Candlestick Park, the transfer would be made permanent.

Katich called the meeting "preliminary" and said it was "fact-finding for both sides. We have not scheduled another meeting at this point."

He said the Denver group would like assurances from baseball that, if the Giants moved to Mile High Stadium then returned to San Francisco, "we would have one of the first new franchises." At the same time, Katich said, if another existing franchise were found or expansion took place before the Giants' new facility had been built, "the Giants would have to go find themselves another home."

"We have to be careful to protect ourselves against the fear of the fans, that we were used by major league baseball, then left high and dry," Katich said.

He added that the offer was attractive, however, from at least one standpoint: Denver has been seeking a major league franchise unsuccessfully for so long, he said, that "even if a team is in for three years and they leave ... we still would at least have had major league baseball for three years. And that's more than we have now."

The Nashville and Columbus bids were made only recently. In fact, Nashville was not on a list released by baseball last month of 12 groups under consideration.

"I don't think they knew we wanted to come," said Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander, one of five state officials who will meet with Ueberroth. In any case, he said, "we were told that no decisiion would be made."

One bid, that from Vancouver, would add a third Canadian franchise, and it has been considered a strong contender. There are problems, however.

Among them are the confused ownership status. Molson Brewery holds the territorial rights, but the commissioner's expansion guidelines said local, individual ownership would be preferable. The brewery has had trouble raising specific commitments from local businessmen.

Tennis to test for drugs

LONDON (AP) — Male tennis players will be subject to random, mandatory drug testing at two selected world-class tournaments, beginning in 1986, the international governing body of the sport says.

Although some players supported the ruling, others were skeptical that it could be effective when limited to two tournaments. Others felt it was an invasion of privacy.

The Men's International Professional Tennis Council (MIPTC) said in a statement Wednesday that players would be tested at two of five major tournaments for heroine, cocaine and amphetemines. The testing sites will be chosen at random, and women players will not be affected.

"Although tennis does not have a so-called drug problem like some other sports, the players recognize that they are role models and that they owe it to themselves, tournament sponsors and fans to take the lead in ensuring that the game continues to be clean," Mike Davies, the MIPTC chairman and executive director, said in the statement.

Players who test positive for drugs will be granted amnesty and given treatment. Any player refusing to take the tests will be suspended automatically for a minimum of one year, subject to appeal, the statement said.

The testing sites will be chosen at random by MIPTC officials from among the four Grand Slam tournaments — Wimbledon and the U.S., French and Australia opens — and the Lipton International championships in Florida. The MIPTC includes the Association of Tennis Professionals, the players union.

The statement was released at the conclusion of a routine MIPTC meeting in London.

Davies told The Associated Press there was "no evidence" that any of the target drugs were now being taken by tennis players. But, he added, these and other drugs might one day be added to the test list "if, down the road, we find this is not the case."

Davies said the program was designed "more to help and educate people and give them the chance to kick the habit" than to be punitive. But, he said, drug-taking players only would be given two chances to quit the practice.

"If a player is found guilty three times, he, too, would be subject to suspension and could not go for treatment again," Davies said.

In Stockholm, where many of the world's leading players are competing in the Swedish Open, the new ruling gained a mixed response.

Frenchman Yannick Noah, the 1983 French Open champion and ranked No. 7 in the world, said, "I think it's a very good thing. A lot of people are talking and there's bad publicity all over the place."

Big-serving American Steve Denton clearly was against the ruling, however.

"I'm definitely against it. It's an invasion of privacy. Tennis is a sport where you have to be able to think all the time and if you do drugs you're only hurting yourself," he said.

Payton, Smith gain NFL player awards

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Payton of the Chicago Bears, who ran for 192 yards and the winning touchdown against Green Bay last Sunday, was named the NFC Offensive Player of the Week.

Strong safety Leonard Smith of the St. Louis Cardinals won defensive honors.

Payton, the National Football League's all-time leading rusher, ran 27 yards with 10:31 left in the game Sunday to give the Bears their ninth straight victory, a 16-10 decision over the Packers.

Smith, meanwhile, had an interception, a sack, and nine tackles as the Cardinals broke a four-game losing streak with a 21-10 upset of Dallas.

Baylor places SWC lead on line

Associated Press

SWC Roundup

The rested Baylor Bears put their Southwest Conference football leadership on the line against Arkansas in Little Rock Saturday in the renewal of a wild series that has produced some bizarre games.

It will be the 11th-ranked Bears, who are 5-0 in SWC games, against the 12th-ranked Razorbacks, who have lost only to Texas, in a 2:30 p.m. (ABC-TV) clash at War Memorial Stadium before a capacity crowd of 53,555.

Arkansas was a field goal favorite over Baylor.

The Bears and the Hogs started after each other in 1904 and Arkansas leads the series 31-30-2.

The Hogs spoiled Baylor's homecoming with a 14-9 victory in Waco last year but the Bears have been tough on Arkansas soil.

Baylor bounced the Hogs 24-21 in Fayetteville in 1983. The Bears also upset an Arkansas team that was ranked fifth in the nation 24-17 in 1982.

In 1981, the last meeting in Little Rock, Arkansas won 41-39 on a field goal with 12 seconds to play.

While Texas A&M is idle Saturday, other SWC games include Texas at Houston in a 12:04 regionally televised joust, Texas Christian at Texas Tech at 2 p.m. and Rice at Southern Methodist at 2 p.m. Texas was an 8-point choice over Houston, Tech was a 10-point pick over TCU, and SMU a 22-point choice over Rice.

Baylor linebacker Alan Jamison said of the Hogs: "This is the biggest game of the year. You work all your college career to be in this position — playing in November with a chance at the conference championship."

Tight end Kobe Fornes said, "We've set a goal of reaching the Cotton Bowl. We don't want to depend on anybody else to do it for us. We can't look down the road."

Baylor has a home game against Rice and a road game against Texas remaining on its schedule after the Hogs.

The Razorbacks must still play Texas A&M and Southern Methodist.

Both TCU and Texas Tech are winless in SWC games. The Horned Frogs have won only five in 19 tries at Lubbock.

TCU Coach Jim Wacker said the Red Raiders are a tough team despite their record.

"Well, let's see, Tech took Texas A&M to the wire and gave Texas a good test in Austin," Wacker said. "Yeah, maybe they are struggling a little like we have been, but they also have shown plenty of capabilities."

Florida picked to stay at No. 1

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

They're making a lot of noise this week in Gainesville, Fla., where the 7-0-1 Florida Gators are ranked No. 1 for the first time in the 50-year history of the Associated Press college football poll.

"It will give our team the incentive to play 100 percent," crows linebacker Patrick Miller.

Rest assured it will be noisy in Jacksonville's Gator Bowl where No. 1 Florida is a 5½-point favorite over No. 17 Georgia in their annual interstate blood-letting. The Gators are unbeaten in 18 games, the Dawgs in seven.

The pick . . . Florida 21-14.

Last week's score was 41 right — the Upset Special of Illinois over Michigan ended in a tie, but the Illini covered the spread — 10 wrong and one tie for a percentage of .803; for the year, 328-121-11—.731. Against the point spread, the count was 27-15-1—.643; for the year, 168-166-6—.503.

No. 2 Penn State (favored by 13) at Cincinnati: The Bearcats upset the Lions two years ago and have a chance to catch them looking ahead to Notre Dame — a fat chance . . . Penn State 28-7.

Iowa State at No. 3 Nebraska (by 40): Coach Tom Osborne says it's too early to be talking Big Eight and national championships for the Huskers but it's too late for Iowa State . . . Nebraska 41-14.

No. 4 Ohio State (by 25) at Northwestern: The Buckeyes' defeat of Iowa left the Big Ten and national championship races up for grabs . . . Ohio State 35-7.

Army at No. 5 Air Force (by 12½): Son of War of the Wishbones . . . Air Force 24-14.

Illinois at No. 6 Iowa (by 7): They'll pipe down in Iowa City when Long asks for quiet . . . Iowa 28-20.

No. 7 Oklahoma (by 25½) at Missouri: Woody Widenhofer, who built the Pittsburgh Steelers' "Steel Curtain" defense, tries to contain the Sooners' explosive Wishbone . . . Oklahoma 28-14.

No. 8 Miami, Fla. (by 3) at Maryland: Last year, the Hurricanes blew a 31-0 lead and lost 42-40 to the greatest second-half comeback in history. Revenge . . . Miami 24-17.

Purdue at No. 9 Michigan (by 14): The Boilers can be spoilers and decide the Big Ten against Michigan and Iowa the next two weeks. Upset Special of the Week . . . Purdue 24-21.

Kansas State at No. 10 Oklahoma State (by 33): The Cowboys have only scored as many as 33 points once all season. Their forte is defense . . . Oklahoma State 24-7.

No. 11 Baylor at No. 12 Arkansas (by 3): The Cotton Bowl could be in store for the winner . . . Arkansas 24-17.

East Carolina at No. 13 Auburn (by 30): Pat Dye's first head coaching job was at East Carolina . . . Auburn 42-6.

No. 14 UCLA (by 4) at Arizona: The Wildcats have a history of upsetting Top Twenty teams and can go to the Rose Bowl by winning their last three games . . . Arizona 24-21.

No. 20 Alabama at No. 15 LSU (by 1): The winner gets sole possession of second place in the Southeastern Conference — and if Florida finishes first, the runner-up goes to the Sugar Bowl . . . LSU 16-12.

South Carolina at No. 16 Florida State (by 14): The Seminoles avenge last year's loss . . . Florida State 35-17.

No. 18 Brigham Young (by 29) at Utah State: A tuneup for next week's Western Athletic Conference showdown with Air Force . . . BYU 49-7.

No. 19 Tennessee (by 10) at Memphis State: Even without Tony Robinson the Vols are very much in the Sugar Bowl picture . . . Tennessee 27-13.

Kentucky (by 8) at Vanderbilt: Second Upset Special . . . Vandy 27-21.

Texas (by 8) at Houston: Third Upset Special . . . Houston 24-21.

San Diego State (by 9) at Wyoming: Fourth Upset Special . . . Wyoming 28-21.

Other games:

South — Georgia Tech 35, Tennessee-Chattanooga 14; North Carolina 17, Clemson (by 3) 14; Virginia (by 8) 28, North Carolina State 14; Tulane 21, Southwestern Louisiana 20; Virginia Tech (by 28) 31, Louisville 7; Wake Forest (by 2) 24, Duke 17.

Midwest — Indiana State 24, Ball State 20; Northern Illinois 21, Eastern Michigan 14; Wichita State 24, Illinois State 21; Michigan State (by 5½) 28, Indiana 21; Kansas (by 2) 24, Colorado 17.

Southwest — Southern Methodist (by 22½) 42, Rice 14; Hawaii (by 14) 37, Texas-El Paso 17; Texas Tech (by 10½) 27, Texas Christian 13; Tulsa 35, Drake 14.

Far West — Arizona State (by 2½) 21, Washington 14; Southern California (by 10) 30, California 14.

Dollar at five-year low against yen

LONDON (AP) — The dollar fell against most major hard currencies today, hitting its lowest point in almost five years against the Japanese yen. Gold also slid.

The dollar dropped below the 2.60 level against the West German mark for the first time since April 2, 1984.

It plunged by 3.40 yen to 202.55 yen on the Tokyo Foreign Exchange Market, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins. Later, in London, it was quoted at 203.43 yen.

It was the dollar's lowest yen level since hitting 202.20 in January 1981.

Other dollar rates at mid-morning, compared with late Wednesday:

—2.5930 West German marks, down from 2.6030

—2.1335 Swiss francs, down from 2.1425

—7.9045 French francs, down from 7.9275

—2.9225 Dutch guilders, down from 2.9345

—1,751.50 Italian lire, down from 1,757.50

—1.3723 Canadian dollars, down from 1.3775

The British pound was the only currency not to register a gain. It was quoted at $1.4350 in London, compared with $1.4362 Wednesday.

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $324.20 a troy ounce, compared with late Wednesday's $324.60. At mid-morning today, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $323.60.

In Zurich, the bid price was $323.60, down from $324.50 late Wednesday.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold fell 43 cents to close at a bid $325.26.

In New York Wednesday, gold fell 50 cents to close at $323.80.

Dow Jones average closes at record high

Los Angeles Times —
Washington Post News Service

NEW YORK — Breaching a boundary that until recently many had considered unattainable, the Dow Jones Industrial Average on Wednesday gained 6.77 points to close above 1,400 for the first time.

The index of 30 of the largest corporate stocks closed at 1,403.44 after nearing or briefly surpassing 1,400 several times this week. Wednesday's gain means that since the Aug. 12, 1982, start of the current bull market, the most widely watched index of the stock market has climbed 626.52 points, or nearly 81 percent.

Volume on Wednesday was strong, with 129.5 million shares traded on the New York Stock Exchange. At one point, the Dow reached as high as 1,411.01. Other stock market indicators also showed strong gains.

Most analysts attributed the market's recent rise to declines in interest rates and the attendant rally in the bond markets. Investors believe that the Federal Reserve Board will strive to keep interest rates low over the next year to ward off a recession.

"You had (Fed Chairman) Paul Volcker come out a week ago Monday dangling a possible interest-rate cut," said Donald I. Trott, chief strategist for the investment firm of Mabon, Nugent & Co.

Stocks sensitive to interest rates did particularly well Wednesday. Among them was American Express Co., a component of the Dow industrial index, which gained $1.325 to close at $47.25.

Yet the Dow index's recent performance has been treated skeptically by many on Wall Street. There, analysts, institutional investors and economists say they are mystified by its apparent strength because it appears to be unsupported by two important elements: the fundamental industrial economy and the performance of the broader market, including smaller stocks traded over-the-counter or on the American Stock Exchange.

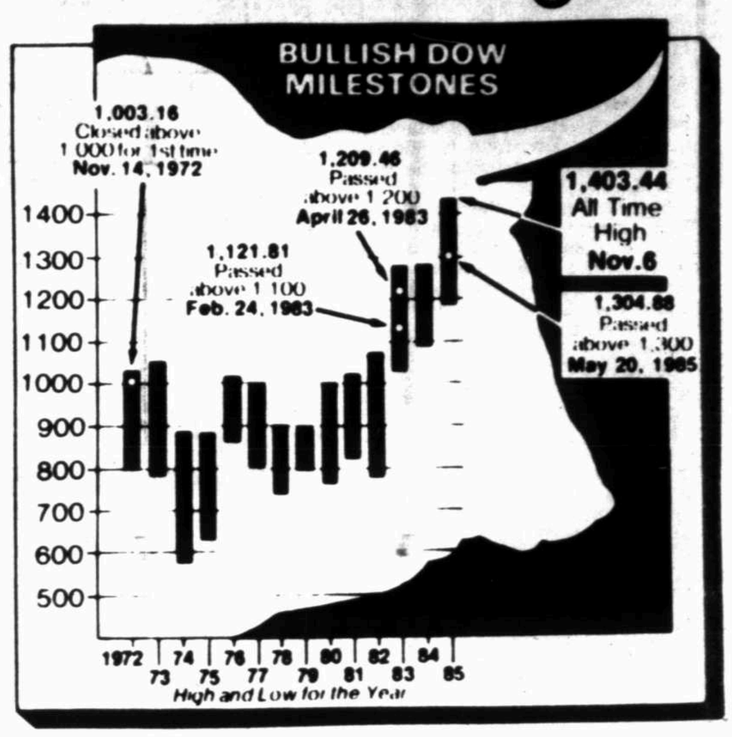

Although the Dow has been closing at record levels consistently over the last two weeks, the broader indexes remain well below the records that they set in July.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index of about 1,500 big-board stocks gained 0.24 points to close at 111.31, below its record of 113.49; the American Stock Exchange index closed at 231.20, up 0.96 but not near its record of 237.49; and the OTC Composite index closed at 296.74, up 1.49 but even further below its record of 307.77. The Standard & Poor's 500 index, an indicator watched particularly closely by institutional investors, rose 0.39 to close at 192.76, also below its record 195.65.

"The broader averages are not far from their record highs, but they're struggling," said William M. LeFevre, market analyst for the investment firm of Purcell, Graham & Co. LeFevre also noted that the Dow's record was unaccompanied by many of the so-called "technical indicators" — statistical trends and the like — that analysts scan for hints of the future.

"I can't believe how bad the numbers look," said Philip Erlanger, technical analyst for Advest, a Hartford, Conn., investment advisory firm, when the Dow tested the 1,400 level earlier this week. Among other factors, he noted that only about 100 stocks were setting new highs, compared with the 250 or so that analysts would expect in a confirmed bull rally. (On Wednesday, 121 stocks set new highs on the Big Board.)

"That's pitiful," he said. "The fact that we're not even close (to the market records set in July) means that we won't get much beyond this. I feel confident that the top is at hand."

Venezuela cuts its price of crude by 40 cents a barrel

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela, a leading oil supplier to the United States, lowered the price of its heavy crude oil by 40 cents a barrel Tuesday, following a similar move by Mexico last week.

The move will affect exports of about 538,000 barrels daily.

Products refined from heavy crude are generally for industrial use. Lighter oils are more easily converted into products such as gasoline.

At the same time, prices of exported diesel oil, heating oil and jet fuel will be increased by $1.26 per barrel, or about 3 cents per gallon, effective Nov. 4. Exports of those products are estimated at 200,000 barrels daily, the Ministry of Energy and Mines said.

The Venezuelan move matches Mexico's decision last Wednesday to lower the price of its Maya heavy crude by 40 cents per barrel, from $23.50 to $23.10. Venezuela's competing Bachaquero 17 will now be sold at the same price.

Along with the last week's drop in heavy crudes, Mexico also increased by 60 cents a barrel the price of its light Isthmus crude, from $26.90 to $27.50.

In 1984, Venezuela supplied about 10 percent of U.S. oil imports, or 536,000 barrels daily. Mexico, the largest foreign supplier, sold about 739,000 barrels per day to the United States last year.

"The Venezuelan action was fully expected," said Eugene Nowak, an oil analyst and senior vice president at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. in New York.

He noted that in recent months, there has been upward pressure on prices of such light refined products as gasoline, jet fuel and kerosene, while prices of heavier products have been weak.

With Venezuela following trends already established in petroleum markets, and with gasoline prices holding up, no significant impact on consumers was expected.

Venezuela, a member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, is bound by the cartel's price guidelines on light and medium crudes, but can adjust heavy crude prices under a special a special agreement with the other members.

Odessa companies join to open opportunities for expansion

By MELLA McEWEN
Business/Oil Writer

An agreement between Odessa-based El Paso Products and Baychem International, Inc., of Houston, will open up opportunities for expansion, and access to new markets, according to El Paso Products president O.R. Clements.

The agreement was reached this past February, but the companies only recently sent out for bids for a contractor to perform detailed engineering design a new plant to produce atactic polyalphaolefins. The plant, to be located on the polymer side of the Odessa plant, is expected to start up in late 1986.

The new plant does not necessarily mean new jobs right away, Clements said, but as the project gets underway and goes to the next step, plans call for expansion of either the El Paso or Bayport plant, which could mean a number of new jobs.

Atactic polyalphaolefin is a resin, usually made as a product of polypropylene, and this will be the first time it is purposely produced, Clements said. "It is amorphous as opposed to crystalline. It's softer, and can be used for sealants or packaging. It's an adhesive, and will cause layers to stick together, allowing it to be used for packaging, film, and other uses. It can also be used for cable, being used as a filler in high voltage transmission cable," he explained. It is also used in single ply roofing, primarily for industrial construction, which is the strongest market right now for the product.

"It's mainly a question of our product know-how merging with Baychem's marketing skills," Clements noted.

The announcement marks a turnaround for the company, which suffered heavy losses in 1982 and 1983, and faced closure by its parent company, the El Paso Co., after it was bought by Burlington Northern in 1983. Twelve former officers of the company bought El Paso Products in a leveraged buyout that was consummated the end of 1983. The company was bought for $210 million, but the investors had to put up $3.5 million in equity. Financing for the purchase was secured with Texas Commerce Bank-Houston, and Chase Manhattan. Since then, the company has shown a profit.

In 1983, El Paso Co. had laid off 600 workers nationwide, leaving a workforce of 1,200, with approximately 700 of those workers in Odessa. The company has two plants in the Los Angeles area, one in Chippewa Falls, Wis., one in Harrington, Del., one in Corpus Christi, two in Bayport, Texas, and six in Odessa. Bayport's polyethylene plant is shut down, as are the ammonia and butadiene plants in Odessa.

Chrysler may reveal reorganization plans

Los Angeles Times —
Washington Post News Service

Chrysler Corp. is expected to announce a reorganization today that will create a corporate umbrella, run by Lee A. Iacocca, over its car-and-truck business and its newly acquired finance and aerospace operations.

The realignment, expected to be approved Thursday at Chrysler's board meeting in New York, appears to remove Iacocca further from Chrysler's core business of cars and trucks. The automotive unit is to be called Chrysler Motors and headed by current Vice Chairman Gerald C. Greenwald.

Sources close to the company said the reorganization is intended to reflect Chrysler's recent and planned diversification moves to lessen its dependence on cars and trucks.

Company spokesmen refused to comment. However, sources close to Chrysler said the plan has been in the works for months and has been revised and delayed several times. One plan considered and rejected, these sources said, called for a holding company run by Iacocca to be set up, with its headquarters in New York instead of Detroit.

Lee A. Iacocca

It was unclear what type of corporate entity is being created to oversee the operating units of the company or whether Chrysler plans to offer separate categories of stock, as General Motors has done in the case of certain acquisitions. However, the move does give the company's different lines of business separate identities.

Chrysler this year has spent more than $1 billion in acquiring Gulfstream Aerospace of Savannah, Ga., a corporate jet maker, and financial-services units from Bank of America, E.F. Hutton and General Electric that will make Chrysler's financial subsidiary the nation's fourth-largest non-bank finance company.

Sources said the new alignment creates four distinct operating companies, including Chrysler Motors, Chrysler Financial, comprising the various financial units bought earlier this year as well as Chrysler's big car-financing operation; Gulfstream Aerospace, and a new technology subsidiary apparently being set up to include Chrysler's Huntsville, Ala., electronics operation and future high-technology acquisitions.

It is not clear how the new alignment will change the way Chrysler's automotive business is managed. Iacocca in recent years has gradually been turning over day-to-day control to Greenwald, who was among the first of the Ford Motor executives lured to Chrysler by Iacocca.

Mattox says some competitors hurting solar firms

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox said Wednesday "predatory competitors" are driving unprecedented numbers of honest solar heating operators out of business.

"This trend, if left unchecked, almost surely will result in a marketplace dominated by those whose very stock and trade is falsehood and deception," Mattox said in a business advisory.

The advisory summarizing the enforcement policy of Mattox's Consumer Protection Division is the first in the nation for the solar industry, Mattox told a news conference.

He noted that the written advisory does not have the force of law, but by publishing it, "it is hoped that sizeable numbers of individuals and firms will voluntarily cease" objectionable practices and avoid lawsuits.

Mattox said his office had had numerous complaints over the past two years from people who have purchased solar hot water heating units.

"It is a myth that only 'upwardly mobile environmentalist types' are purchasing solar equipment," Mattox said. "The dishonest operators are preying on the poor and the retired who live on fixed incomes. They sell them false promises of money saved."

He cited the case of an Austin women with an eighth-grade education, making $750 a month, who "was sold a bundle of misrepresentations, to the tune of $7,000 plus finance charges that ran the total up to $12,000.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

TXO reports 20 percent decline in earnings

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Oil & Gas Corp. officials say lower oil and gas prices are partially responsible for a 20 percent drop in profits for the fiscal year, the first decline in 28 years.

The company, which has agreed to be acquired by U.S. Steel Corp., said Wednesday that the figures reported for the fiscal year ending Aug. 31, were in line with preliminary results released in October.

Earnings in the fiscal year fell to $276.8 million, or $1.32 a share, from $346.2 million, or $1.65 a share, a year earlier. Revenue declined 18 percent to $1.71 billion from $2.09 billion.

Texas Oil & Gas spokesman C.D. Williams attributed the decline in earnings and revenues, in part, to "significantly" lower oil and gas prices.

On Oct. 30, Texas Oil & Gas agreed to be acquired by U.S. Steel in an exchange of stock valued at $3.6 billion.

The agreement was subject to various conditions, including federal antitrust clearance and approval of stockholders of both companies at meetings expected early in 1986.

Despite its diminished earnings, which reflect the depressed conditions in the natural gas industry, the company is highly regarded by analysts.

Texas Oil & Gas, which finds, produces and transports natural gas and explores for and develops oil wells, reported record assets of $3.82 billion as of Aug. 31, a gain of 11.2 percent from the previous year.

"Texas Oil & Gas Corp. has the capability to accomplish substantial volume increases when market conditions improve," said William L. Hutchison, chairman of the board, and Forrest E. Hoglund, president and chief executive officer in a joint statement. "Given the uncertainty in oil and gas pricing and the current volatility in the natural gas markets, we feel that there are too many variables at this time to set earnings for 1986."

Hughes Tool to shut down Corsicana plant

CORSICANA, Texas (AP) — Hughes Tool Co. will close its Hughes Drilling Equipment plant, which employs 318 people, company officials said Wednesday.

Some employees at the Corsicana plant will be transferred to the company's Houston facility, but an exact number has not been determined, said Ron King, director of Hughes' public affairs in Houston.

The local plant's product lines will be transferred to Hughes Drilling Equipment in Houston, King said.

Operations will begin to shut down in the near future, King told the Corsicana Daily Sun. Closing the plant is expected to take six months, he said.

The company opened its Corsicana plant in 1980. The 27,000 square-foot facility sits on a 47-acre site south of town.

In late 1984, Hughes Tool Co. reorganized, cutting its number of divisions from 11 to five.

Hughes MICON was consolidated into Hughes Drilling Equipment, and some workers at the Corsicana plant were transfereed or laid off.

Some employees and major product lines from Hughes' Torrance, Calif. plant, which was closed in Dec. 1984, were relocated to Corsicana earlier this year during the reorganization.

Thrifts proud of track record in wake of bank failures

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Oklahoma's savings and loans are suffering from the same economic problems as banks but have avoided the pitfalls that have led to 11 bank closings in the state this year, says a spokesman for the thrifts.

Mike Toalson, president of the Oklahoma League of Savings Institutions, said in a recent telephone interview that a major factor in that success rate is that 85 percent of the savings and loan association's loans are secured by real estate.

"What we are talking about then is the risk factor of the loans," Toalson said. "The commercial banks are into the more riskier type of venture loans to businesses and consumers. They often use inventory to back business loans but once the inventory is gone and the business can't meet the loan, there's nothing to call on to pay off the loan. The same is true for an individual who abruptly can't pay off a loan.

"Our industry is experiencing some declines and we've had our share of foreclosures (on loans)," he said. "But we're typically reducing our losses in that we can attach the real estate and sell off that real estate to recoup the loan. That's probably the biggest factor in our success."

Toalson said there are 53 savings and loans operating in Oklahoma at 250 locations, including branches. He said assets total $9.8 billion.

But he said the ability of savings and loans to establish branches around the state does not have anything to do with the health of the financial institutions.

"I think too much has been made of that," he said. "It's not a question of having a bigger capital base because we can branch. We certainly have a diversified savings structure in the state, but that's not our fault. Our industry has never opposed the banks being allowed to branch. It is the banking industry itself that has opposed it."

Toalson said he thinks state banking commissioner Robert Y. Empie is right when Empie says that the problems of the banks rest in poor loan underwriting and the economic inability to attract depositors.

"On behalf of the banks, there have been some hills and valleys in the economy this year," he said. "But in Oklahoma it's been more like peaks, cliffs and deep holes. We're all experiencing some risk factor on loans. Luckily, most of our loans can be categorized as good loans even though there is some slowdown in the real estate areas."

Toalson said the savings and loans are "very conscious of the rules that govern making loans and the borrowing limits on those loans."

"We feel there is a basic difference between the management skills in our institutions as compared to those in the banks," he said. "Mr. Empie has said, and the fact is, that many of the 20 commercial banks that have closed since 1982 were involved in insider loan transactions which were the result of executives making loans to collective borrowers with often inadequate security."

He said the OLSI makes sure its members understand the pitfalls of such transactions.

"Our education department puts together workshops for executives and workshops for employees from the biggest director of a savings and loan to the beginning teller. We, just this year, have discussed liabilities, economic forecasts, and the specific responsibilities of directors and staff," Toalson said.

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Midland field gets 195 barrel well

From Staff Reports

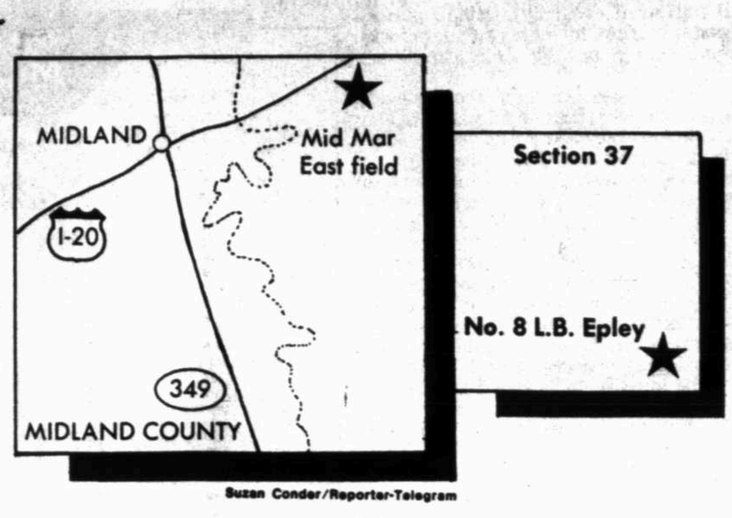

EP OPERATING CO. added a high gravity Fusselman producer to the Mid-Mar East field of Midland County with completion of the No. 8 L.B. Epley.

On potential test, the well flowed 195.8 barrels of 52.5 gravity crude and 1.075 Mmcfd on a 16/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 923 psi. Production is from perforations 11,691 to 11,711 ft., with no treatment reported. Gas-oil ratio is 5,490:1.

Drilled to 11,739 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing is set, the well is plugged back to 11,721 ft.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 2,695.8 ft., include the Upper Spraberry at 6,475 ft., Wolfcamp at 8,701, Strawn at 10,228, Devonian at 11,179, Fusselman at 11,608, and the Montoya at 11,713 ft. Pay was topped at 11,691 ft.

Location is 660 ft. from south and 910 ft. from east lines of Section 39, Block 37, T-1-S, T&P survey, 6.1 miles southwest of Stanton.

Pecos County field gains second producer

The Abell East field of Pecos County gained a second Glorieta oil producer with completion of FOUR C OIL & GAS CORP. No. 1 Abell Conoco "A".

The well tested to flow 102 barrels of 32 gravity crude, and 35 Mcfd on an 11/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 325 psi. The well is flowing from perforations 3,063 to 3,088 ft., which had been acidized with 2,000 gallons acid.

The operator drilled the well to a total depth of 6,200 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, and plugged back to 4,985 ft.

On ground elevation of 2,391 ft., the well topped the Yates at 1,232, Grayburg at 2,059, Glorieta at 2,990, Tubb at 3,662, McKee at 5,655, and the Waddell at 6,118 ft. Pay was topped at 3,063 ft.

Location is 853 ft. from southwest and 330 ft. from northwestlines of Section 13, Block 3, H&TC survey, one mile south of Imperial.

Midland firm adds to Glasscock field

PARKER & PARSLEY PETROLEUM CO., Midland, added a producer to the Spraberry Trend area of Glasscock County with the completion of the No. 1 Wrage.

The well pumped, on potential test, 55 barrels of 39.4 gravity crude, 45 Mcfd and 60 barrels of water. Production is from perforations 8,196 to 8,509 ft. The interval was acidized with 5,000 gallons of acid and fractured with 173,000 gallons gel and 431,000 lbs. 20/40 sand.

Drilled to 8,650 ft., where 4 1/2 inch casing was set, the well was plugged back to 8,563 ft.

The well topped the Upper Spraberry at 6,830 ft., Lower Spraberry at 7,477, and the Dean at 8,178 ft. Pay was topped at 6,842 ft.

Location is 660 ft. from north and west lines of Section 45, Block 36, T-3-S, T&P survey, 15 miles northwest of Garden City.

Martin County field gains two producers

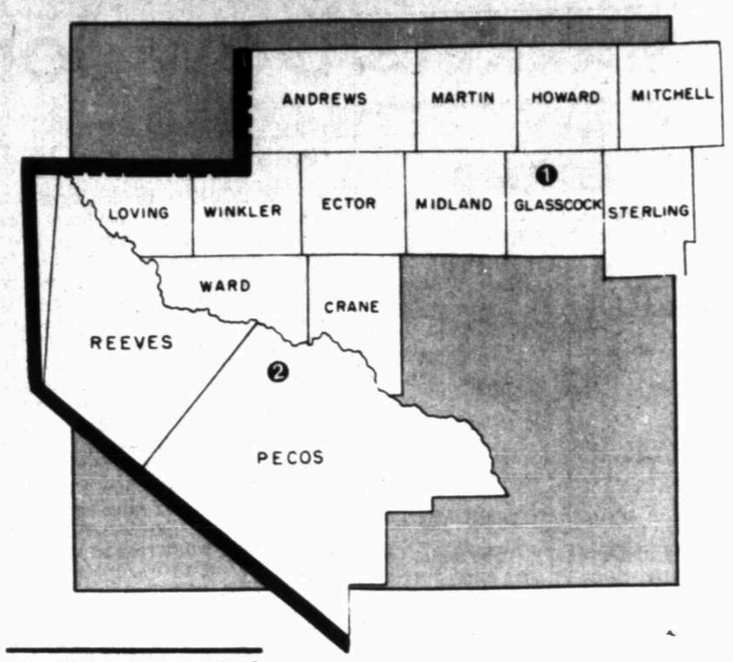

Parker & Parsley also added two wells to the Spraberry Trend Area of Martin County, and began developing the Estes "C" lease with completion of the Nos. 1 and 2 Estes "C".

The No. 1 Estes "C" potentialed to pump 25 barrels of 39.1 gravity crude, 18 Mcfd and 93 barrels of water from perforations 9,037 to 9,318 ft.

The No. 2 Estes "C" tested to pump 24 barrels of 39.1 gravity crude, 20 Mcfd and 101 barrels of water from perforations 9,014 to 9,234 ft.

Both wells are located in Section 7, Block 36, T-2-n, T&P survey, five miles northwest of Lenorah.

WILDCATS

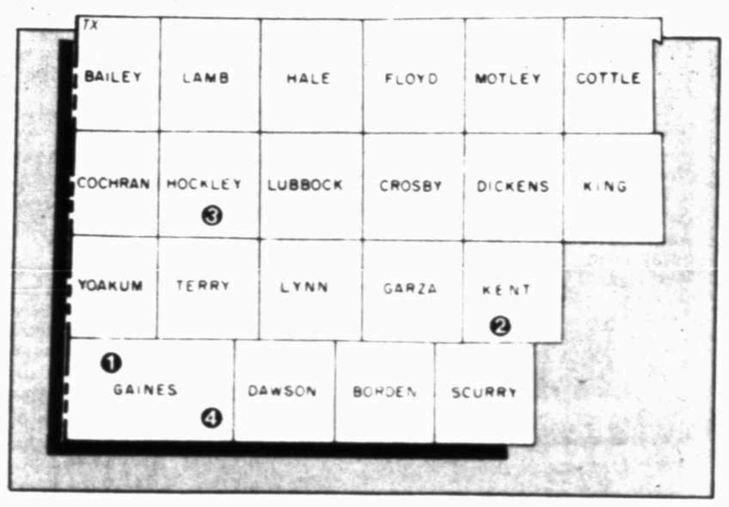

TRC DISTRICT 8

■ 1. GLASSCOCK SITE CHOSEN FOR 8,200 FT. WILDCAT. A Glasscock County site has been chosen by Diamond Shamrock Exploration Co., Amarillo, for wildcat drilling.

The No. 7-14 Steve Calverley, Jr. "B", scheduled as an 8,200 ft. test, will be drilled 1,980 ft. from south and west lines of Section 14,Block 35, Township 3 South of the T&P survey. The site is 12 miles northwest of Garden City on ground elevation of 2,548 ft.

■ 2. MIDLAND FIRM STAKES PECOS LOCATION. A Midland firm has staked the No. 1 Palisades, a 4,200 ft. explorer, in Pecos County six miles east of Imperial.

Landover Corp. has staked a location 1,787 ft. from northwest and southwest lines of Section 35, Block 2, H&TC survey on ground elevation of 2,340 ft.

Location is 1,980 ft. from south and 660 ft. from east lines of Section 281, Block G, WTRR survey. Proposed depth is 6,000 ft.

■ 2. 4,500 FT. EXPLORER PLANNED FOR KENT COUNTY. Gunn Operating Co., Wichita Falls, has planned a 4,500 ft. explorer two miles north of Jayton in Kent County.

The No. 1 London is staked 2,105 ft. from north and 2,255 ft. from east lines of Section 7, Block L, H&TC survey.

■ 3. HOUSTON FIRM TO TEST IN HOCKLEY COUNTY. A Houston firm has filed intent to drill a 10,400 ft. wildcat well in Hockley County, four miles northwest of Ropesville.

The No. 1 Hewlett-McKee is staked 467 ft. from north and 1,350 ft. from west lines of Section 38, Wilbarger CSL survey.

■ 4. PROSPECTOR SCHEDULED IN GAINES COUNTY. Transamerica Energy, Ltd., Dallas, will drill the No. 323-19 Crow in Gaines County.

Scheduled as an 8,500 ft. test, location is 853 ft. from south and 2,163 ft. from west lines of Section 13, Block A-7, PSL survey, and 1.5 miles west of Higginbotham.

HNG/InterNorth sells subsidiary

HOUSTON (SWN) HNG/InterNorth, Inc. announced the signing of a definitive agreement to sell all the outstanding capital stock of Alamo Barge Lines, to Hollywood Marine, Inc. of Houston. The transaction is expected to be finalized within the next 30 days.

Alamo Barge Lines, a subsidiary of Houston Natural Gas Corporation (HNG) which merged with InterNorth, Inc. earlier this year, provides liquid cargo barge transportation services along the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway.

"The sale of Alamo is in keeping with our company's strategy of focusing our efforts on natural gas transmission and sales, oil and gas exploration and production and related businesses," Kenneth L. Lay, president and chief operating officer, said.

Berdon Lawrence, president of Hollywood Marine, Inc. said, "Our main purpose in acquiring Alamo is to allow us to be more competitive in the market place. The combination of the two companies should make us more cost efficient." Lawrence also said, "Financing is being provided by Allied Bank of Texas."

Pickens reveals Mesa's quarterly income

AMARILLO (SWN) Mesa Petroleum Co. reported net income for common shares for the third quarter of 1985 of $10.7 million, or $.16 per share, T. Boone Pickens, Jr., President, announced this week. During the same period in 1984, Mesa reported net income for common shares of $11.0 million, or $.16 per share.

Operating income during the third quarter of 1985 was $17.0 million, or $.25 per share, compared with $20.0 million, or $.29 per share, in 1984. Third quarter revenues were $82.2 million in 1985, compared with $105.1 million in 1984.

Noble Affiliates reports third quarter loss

ARDMORE — Noble Affiliates, Inc. has reported a loss for the third quarter and first nine months of 1985 as a result of losses incurred by its discontinued contract drilling operations, and the previously announced writedown of the company's oil and gas reserves.

For the third quarter of 1985, the company reported a consolidated net loss of $5,156,000, or $11 per share, compared to net income of $4,581,000 or $.10 per share for the same period in 1984.

Fina reports increase in third quarter income

DALLAS — American Petrofina announced that net income for the third quarter of $10,201,000 or $.85 per share, as compared to $1,814,000 or $.15 per share in the same period last year.

Net income for the nine months was $24,414,000 or $2.04 per share, as compared to $27,839,000 or $2.54 per share during the first nine months of 1984.

North Sea discovery flows 11,300 barrels

HOUSTON — A Tenneco Oil Exploration and Production oil and gas discovery in the North Sea offshore the United Kingdom has flowed at a combined daily rate of 11,300 barrels of oil and 21.5 Mcfd of natural gas from two zones. Evaluation of the discovery is in progress.

The wildcat was drilled to a depth of 15,400 ft. It is in 235 feet of water, approximately 185 miles east-southeast of Aberdeen, Scotland. It is Tenneco's third exploratory well on the block since 1967.

Three Davis companies file plans for reorganization

DALLAS (AP) — Plans to reorganize and repay $915.6 million in debts have been submitted by three companies owned by Cullen Davis and his brother, Ken Davis.

Kendavis Holding Co., Kendavis Industries International Inc., and Loffland Brothers Co. filed the joint plan of reorganization Tuesday in federal bankruptcy court in Dallas.

Barbara Houser, an attorney for the companies, said if the companies' business projections are correct, all liabilities will be paid off. She said some subsidiary companies will be sold to pay off a $100 million note in 21 months.

Kendavis has not identified which companies will be put up for sale, Ms. Houser said.

The three companies were forced into involuntary bankruptcy last February by eight banks that demanded immediate payment of $319 million in debts. A month later, the companies consented to reorganization.

Banks also filed petitions on May 17 to force 16 other Kendavis subsidiaries into Chapter 11 proceedings.

However, the companies challenged the banks' right to file the petitions, and the bankruptcy court has yet to rule on them.

Ms. Hauser said the petitions will be moot if the reorganization plan is approved because the debt that prompted the banks to file the petitions will have been paid.

Alzheimer group head hopes for research center

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

If Andy Anderson gets his way, there will be Alzheimer's Disease research centers across the state and private insurance coverage for its sufferers.

"We're trying to get everyone to write a letter to their congressman," said Anderson, president of Alzheimer's Disease Association of the Permian Basin. "And there is a petition that was started at our seminar in August that is still going around. We had more than 2,000 signatures on it back then. I have no idea how many are on it now."

The petition will be presented to the state legislature when they convene in January 1987, said Anderson.

Funding research for the fourth leading cause of death among older Americans is an interest of Anderson's sparked not only by empathy for others but by close, personal tragedy. His mother died of Alzheimer's disease two years ago.

"By the time she was 67 years old she was just like a little child," he recalled. "She had to be fed and changed."

Anderson's father died when he was a young child.

The overwhelming loss of his mother to the misunderstood disease was eased some, indicated Anderson, when he met others who had also lost family members to Alzheimer's.

It is estimated that more than two million people suffer from the degenerative brain disease in the United States.

"SEVERAL OF US got together, prompted by a woman named Nell Lovitt, to form a group," he said. "We realized that we all shared certain things in common — grief, guilt, depression, resentment, anger — it helped to share those with others."

Anderson recalled those first meetings — a far cry from Aug. 28 when more than 400 people from around West Texas, medical leaders, congressmen and insurance officials assembled to address the problem.

"We started off so slow," he said. "None of us knew what we were doing."

Today, however, Anderson appears to not only know what he is doing, but is getting results as well. Pushing for the unification of all statewide Alzheimer's disease organizations, the establishment of research centers at leading state institutions and private insurance coverage are key issues for the ADPB.

The group has started by unlocking the back door.

"We've just begun an endowment fund for research at Texas Tech," explained Anderson. "Texas Tech has done more research on Alzheimer's than any other state institution that I know of."

Anderson met with Dr. Timothy Hutton, medical director of the university's Health Sciences Center, in July. Hutton, who co-authored the "Handbook on Alzheimer's disease," has researched the diagnosis and treatment of mental dysfunction, particularly among the aging. To date, $4,500 has been raised toward the project.

Anderson has hopes that research will be done at other Texas universities as well.

"Most of the Alzheimer's research is being done in the northeast and west coast areas," he said. "Mt. Sinai, Johns Hopkins, Harvard and the University of Southern California. We believe the technology and the institutions of higher learning in Texas are as good as anywhere else.

"AND WHEN YOU consider the state's population and the number of Alzheimer's patients — there is no reason why there shouldn't be a research center here," he added.

Anderson believes that the project has a better chance of getting funded if the centers are distributed in key areas in the state, such as Baylor in Houston, University of Texas in Austin and Texas Tech in Lubbock.

Vital to the establishment of such centers is the unification of the state's Alzheimer's support groups.

Library branch to open at mall

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The library has a satellite.

It's the Midland Centennial Branch Library, which will open at 10 a.m. Saturday at Midland Park Mall.

"We're shooting to get new (library) users who don't go to the downtown library a whole lot or who might prefer to come down here," said John Deats, librarian of the Midland County Public Library.

Ultimately, the branch library in far northwest Midland is to shelve about 15,000 books — about one-tenth of the 155,000 books in the central library, noted Deats. The branch mainly will shelve recreation-reading collections in the fiction and non-fiction realms and children's books.

"We don't have the shelf space for in-depth research" at the 1,375-square-foot branch, said Deats. "It's certainly not for people who want to do any kind of real research."

The central library will remain the core library for research and reference work.

"Our new branch library is officially recognized as a project of the (1985) Midland Centennial," noted Deats, "in keeping with Midland's tradition of excellence and efficiency in the pursuit of progress."

THE BRANCH LIBRARY is on the northwest side of the mall near the Sakowitz department store entrance.

"It's going to be convenient," said County Commissioner Durward Wright, the Commissioners' Court liaison to the library. "It's going to circulate a lot of books to the public." He noted the branch library was recommended in a study by Bridgewater Marketing Solutions. The Abell-Hanger Foundation funded the Bridgewater Report and made a "generous" grant toward covering first-year branch operating expenses.

Director: FTC makes sure enough 'players on field'

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

Once called the "national nanny" by the New York Times, the Federal Trade Commission today has changed its direction of protecting consumer interests toward "making sure there are enough competitors on the playing field."

Jim Moseley, 31, director of the FTC's regional office in Dallas, described the government agency as a "basic consumer protection agency" which also monitors merging companies to ensure consumers that "players," or services, haven't been taken off the field.

"No deceptive advertising, no bait switch tactics, no price fixing," said Moseley of the agency's goals during an interview with the Reporter-Telegram. "In the past, government people have over-emphasized their ability to solve problems and underestimated the free market's ability to solve problems."

Formerly a lawyer in Odessa with the firm of Shafer, Gilliland, Davis, McCollum & Ashley Inc. and Ector County Republican chairman, Moseley was appointed to the FTC post in August 1983. His region covers Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and New Mexico.

Moseley said his office staff spends 70 percent of its time on consumer issues, the remaining on anti-trust cases. Midland and West Texas have been affected by the FTC in both areas, ranging from settlement of complaints against General Motors to an investigation of oil lotteries to divestiture of small companies necessitated by mergers of the major oil companies which owned them. More recently, it was the FTC which ruled that Hospital Corp. of America had to sell Parkview Hospital because of what appeared to be a monopoly on area hospitals.

THE FTC doesn't handle all mergers, according to Moseley. The Justice Department is assigned the steel and brewing industries; the Washington, D.C. office of FTC covers hospitals and the regional office handles oil companies.

The acquisition of Houston Natural Gas by InterNorth posed a problem in the possible reduction of the number of pipeline companies, according to Moseley. "InterNorth agreed to divest itself of one of the pipeline companies."

When Socal took over Gulf it produced an overlap in some markets, he said. In the Southeast United States, both Chevron (Socal) and Gulf had service stations that were in competition. As a result, the merged company sold 3,000 gas stations, 30 distributor facilities, one pipeline company and one refinery.

In many cases, the divestiture proposed by the FTC is quickly agreed to by the companies because the smaller companies are not what the takeover firm wanted, he said. Occasionally, however, the firms refuse to follow the divestiture and the FTC "will fight the merger until the problem is resolved."

The FTC fought and won mergers of the carbon black plants in Texas and a merger between Warner Brothers Records and Polygram Records, Moseley said.

But it's not just mergers of big companies that concerns the FTC. The agency also handles complaints from consumers about products or services. As a result of allegations of defective parts from General Motors, the FTC won a case in which GM was ordered to set up an arbitration program. This has resulted in $38,000 for Midland-Odessa area residents who had complaints about their GM products, according to Moseley.

"THIS PROGRAM is working to get money back into consumers' hands quickly. The average complaint has been handled in less than 40 days with 83 percent of all complaints handled in 60 days," he said. "The idea is to give the independent consumer a fair way to resolve the problems without going to court and spending a lot of money."

This arbitration program has been set up nationwide through the Better Business Bureau, which also finds and trains the volunteer arbitrators, he said.

And if the consumer doesn't like the agreement recommended by the arbitrator, he or she has the option then of taking it to court; GM doesn't.

Moseley said GM hasn't fought the agreements nor the arbitration program. "It makes good business sense to take care of consumer complaints. It's an innovative approach to settling a case."

The FTC also is tackling investment fraud, particularly in the area of oil and gas lotteries. Moseley said Leland Industries, a Texas-based company, was ordered to set up a $2.5 million fund for redress.

In other areas the FTC has:

— Supported the Fair Credit and Reporting Act to make sure one person's bad credit record doesn't end up on someone else's good record.

— Won two cases against companies found guilty of credit discrimination against senior citizens. One was Allied Finance in Dallas, ordered to pay $125,000, and the other was Fidelity Acceptance, instructed to pay $235,000.

— Monitored debt collectors and the procedures they use.

— Checked on mail-order complaints. The consumer must receive the product ordered within a specified time limit. Two mail-order marketers advertising binoculars and tarpaulins were ordered in September 1985 to pay $350,000 in redress to consumers.

MC buys AT&T Communications System for $108,000

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Midland College administrators have reached out and purchased a new telephone system to help increase employee productivity and resolve many of the college's public relations problems. The AT&T Communications System 75 switch has a price tag of about $108,000.

The decision to purchase the equipment followed nearly two weeks of negotiations with the firm after the Midland Junior College District Board of Trustees last month voted to purchase outright a new system to relieve switchboard congestion on incoming calls.

Officials say the new system should eliminate 90 percent of the college's public relations problems and increase employee productivity.

The system is designed to provide inward-dialing to various buildings and departments across campus. Direct inward-dialing will allow persons to dial those offices direct without assistance from the college switchboard, according to MC Business Manager Bob Phillips.

The AT&T system should be installed by Jan. 1, public relations director H.A. Tuck said.

Trustees originally had agreed to lease purchase the telephone system over a five-year period at a 7 percent annual interest rate. Monthly payments were to be roughly $1,989.

In addition, MC was to have saved $9,576 in interest over the five-year period resulting in a net finance cost of $109,783, according to Phillips.

But Phillips said he misunderstood the terms of the contract that specified a lease agreement only.

"We decided to buy it outright when we found out that we wouldn't own the equipment after five years," he said.

"We're patching the system we've got," MC President Dr. Jess Parrish said of the switch that was purchased eight years ago when student enrollment and personnel was less than half the present population.

He added, "Two trunks (lines) are out. We don't even know when the lines are out because there's a continuous ring. It's becoming a tremendous public relations problem and I think it's actually deterring us in our work."

Phillips said, "Technology has caught up with us and it's just a matter of time before we have a major breakdown."

Maintenance on the present system is virtually non-existent, he added. "They can keep us going by patching, but they have to get the parts from someplace else. In most cases, they don't even make those parts anymore."

Prior to the contract negotiations, trustees had considered purchasing an Executone Eclipse direct inward-dialing system priced at $99,000. Other bidders included the low bid of $94,978 by Midessa Telephone Systems and Southwestern Bell.

Texas could really set itself apart from rest of nation

If Texans are such an independent lot, then why are we such conformists?

Are we dreamers whose grandeur is really out of our grasp?

Look at us.

We bowed to peer pressure and, like most of the rest of the States, submitted to Daylight Savings Time for half the year again and again.

And here we are competing for the federal-government dollar just because the dough is there. Where are our principles? I thought Texans were opposed to Big Government and viewed it, with a snicker, as Big Givernment.

Like some other States, Texas is both an originator and dump-site of nuclear stuff. Where is our purity of heart and soul?

And Texans, like the "foreigners" in the other 49, seek grants, handouts and breaks, as in tax, from Big Brother. Why be a follower and a me-too'er?

How come we drive cars to work and often eat at junk-food eateries instead of hoofing it to work and eating out on the ranch and howling with the coyotes?

Texans really could set themselves up and apart from the rest of the old Confederacy and the Union.

Why, with our much-lauded resources, ingenuity, entrepreneurship and stubborn streak, we could tell the federal government to take a powder, reaffirm the Republic of Texas, and show the world who's who and what's what. The United States operating within in the Republic of Texas would be at our bidding. We've got oodles of the government's military installations, plants, courts, money and influence within our jurisdiction. We'd really be on a roll.

Why not stand out.

Just think. Texans could put their belly-aching into action. We could straighten out the United Nations, reinstate the League of Nations, display our ballyhoo and clout, make Clayton Williams our Top Hand and show the world how well a West Texas rancher, oil man and adventurer can operate this spread.

Yes, sir, Texas, after playing second fiddle far, far too long to the debt-ridden and confused federal government, could stamp out all that is ill, would launch the Dallas Trials to investigate the Internal Revenue Service and the Federal Reserve System and ship their remnants to the Smithsonian Institution.

Then, after awhile, Texas would rule the sunrises and sunsets, would bring the world to a peaceful mode, and would outlaw boots, Western hats, quirts, and mustangs and "Howdy, Partner" everywhere but Texas.

Fireants found in Big Country

EASTLAND (AP) — Eastland County agricultural officials say fire ants have been reported for the first time in the Big Country, with mounds spotted alongside roads and highways.

County Agriculture Extension Agent DeMarquis Gordon said the agriculture department at Texas A&M University has identified the ants, and specialists are expected Friday to assess the situation and recommend treatment.

The particularly aggressive and venomous ants have been brought into the Big Country several times, Taylor County Extension Agent Joe Wilson said Wednesday.

Officials said more than 30 mounds of the ants line a roadway and U.S. Highway 80 west of the city.

Wilson said the closest confirmed cases of dens being set up with a queen have been in Fredericksburg and in Tarrant County.

Gordon said fill dirt used to upgrade and repair one road this summer may have been infested, or ants "hitched" a ride in dirt clinging to heavy equipment used in the road construction.

He said that hay brought into this area from South Texas last winter may also have harbored the ants.

Fire ant venom is more dangerous and complex than bee venom, according to a publication of the county extension office.. Medical treatment may be required for a sting. An acre of infested land can contain up to 500 active mounds.

Museum commercial auditions scheduled

From Staff Reports

Auditions have been scheduled for Friday for a commercial for the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum.

The 30-second public service commercial will use three actors. The first is a man from 60 to 70 years old who will play the part of a former driller. Another man in his 30s or 40s will portray a geologist and a girl between the ages of 7 and 13 will play the geologist's daughter. Tryouts will consist of reading the commercial copy and filling out a short resume.

The audition will begin at 4 p.m. in the conference room of the Petroleum Museum, 1500 Interstate 20, just west of Big Spring Street.

LIBRARY

"We're going to have more books than we have shelf space," said Frances "Tommie" Tomlinson, branch librarian. She said she sensed the branch would be "well received. ...I'm really excited about it."

The branch library's decor is in blue and oak and is enhanced with art works. The design was by Pate & Associates, architects and planners, and interior-design services were donated by Pittman Interiors of Midland.

The branch will be open seven days a week for 68 hours: 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday; noon to 9 p.m. on Monday, and 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. The branch will offer next-day service to patrons who request specific books from the downtown library. Books will be forwarded to the branch library and may be returned there.

DEATS SAID Ms. Tomlinson, a 12-year veteran with the central library, is "a natural" for the job as branch librarian. "She's got a real good feeling for what is popular."

Bill Tillman, assistant branch librarian, said the location "will be most convenient. The book stores seem to be welcoming us with open arms. I think they feel we are going to promote reading. And anything that promotes reading is good advertising for them."

Carol Joyce, manager of Midland Park Mall, said she is "very excited" about the branch.

"From a public relations standpoint, we think it's a wonderful idea," she said. "We think it will be very successful and convenient."

The mall's owner, Melvin Simon & Associates of Indianapolis, Ind., donated space for branch library use in 1985 and thereafter is leasing space to the county at a reduced rate.

"So, we feel like it's a contribution to the community," Ms. Joyce said, "and it's rather innovative. It (the branch at the mall) is a relatively new concept."

Linda Crume, manager of B. Dalton Bookseller at the mall, said she is "really thrilled" about the opening of the branch library.

"I'M A REAL book lover," Ms. Crume said. "It's nice to know they (readers) will be able to get their books one way or another" — through the library or at the book stores.

Judy Allgood, manager of Waldenbooks, which is "just around the corner" from the branch library, said she, too, is "really excited" about the opening of the branch.

"I think it is going to work out real well for us and them," she said. "We'll help each other out."

Clara Usrey, chairman of the Midland County Library Advisory Board, said the branch is a step toward "achieving a first-class library system for Midland County. I think this (the branch) is going to be a first-class facility."

Rob Sutphen, president of the Friends of the Library, which contributed $25,000 toward library furnishings, said the branch is a "step in the right direction...The commissioners deserve our encouragement and support."

The branch is funded by the county. In 1986, the branch will operate on a budget of about $80,000. The 1986 budget for the county's library system is $924,668. However, funding for the branch's first few years of operation will be through an endowment-like fund which evolved from an earlier, more prosperous time when the county had planned to build a new downtown library with the assistance of The First National Bank of Midland. The bank collapsed in October 1983.

"The new library still remains the hope, the dream," said Sutphen. "There's still a crying need for a new central library."

FTC

OCCASIONALLY, THE original ruling against the person or business doesn't work. Moseley cited the case of Theodore Weiswasser who had been selling time-shares in vacation resorts at Galveston, Texas City and Freeport even though he had been ordered to stop. He didn't pay a settlement ordered by the court and the judge has sentenced Weiswasser to three years in prison.

But the FTC wasn't always this successful. Moseley said several years ago the FTC was winning only 60 percent of its cases. With the arrival of Jim Miller to head up the commission, the agency's direction changed, he said.

"I feel it (number of losing cases) was because we were trying to make a lot of new law. Jim Miller called it Star Trek Enforcement — boldly going where no man had gone before. We lost several cases trying innovative ideas. We're trying to go back to the meat and potatoes of consumer protection and, consequently, we're winning more cases."

It was during that "Star Trek" period in the late 1970s, said Moseley, that the New York Times referred to the FTC as the "national nanny," criticizing the agency for going after the advertising shown during Saturday morning children's cartoons.

"Our efforts now are to make sure the free-market system is working."

ALZHEIMER'S

"The leading research centers in the country have been funded by the National Alzheimer's Disease Association," he said. "Eight out of the 18 groups in Texas are members of the national group, but the rest, including our group, are not."

The recent meeting of West Texas groups was geared toward bringing them together, he said.

The insurance issue is not an easy obstacle to overcome, indicated Anderson.

"Insurance companies are still classifying Alzheimer's disease as a mental disorder rather than a physiological disease," he said. "They're putting it in the same class as schizophrenia."

The sheer number of sufferers — increasing as Americans live longer — demands attention, he suggested.

"Fifty percent of all nursing home patients have the disease," he said. "Fourteen percent of the population over the age of 65 have the disease. Medicare is overworked and could go bankrupt and older people are going bankrupt themselves trying to pay for medical bills.

"If insurance companies treated it like they do auto liability coverage, it would be distributed over a broader base and wouldn't cost as much," he said.

A leading insurance representative addressed the issue at the Aug. 28 meeting.

"INSURANCE IS ONE of the most regulated businesses in the world," said Jay Poyner of Jay Poyner and Associates insurance firm. "Profit margins on group insurance today are less than 2 percent. You can't make the public sector pay for it without increasing taxes, and likewise, you can't make the private sector pay for it without some incentives."

Poyner suggested that private insurance companies and government work together.

"When it comes to considering mandated coverage, I hope the legislatures will try to set up a pool so that both private and public sectors can participate."

Still another goal of the ADPB is to establish a visible lobby group at the state level.

"We're trying to get organized so that we could form an active lobby group," Anderson said.

The legislature appears to be listening to the stirrings around the state, he indicated.

"Sen. John Montford (D-Lubbock) wrote us a letter and offered to help," he said. "And I think Sen. Bill Sims (D-San Angelo) will help." Sims attended the August meeting.

Although several bills are pending in the national legislature, Anderson believes that action at the state level could prove to be more effective.

"IT'S A WASTE of time to get any funds with the Reagan budget," he said. "I think if we spend more time at the state level, it could pay off for us and may eventually cause something at the national level anyway."

Among the bills being proposed in the U.S. House of Representatives is H.R. 2280, introduced by Rep. Edward Roybal (D-Calif.), known as the "CARE" bill. The proposal, according to the ADPB, "mounts a three-prong attack with its provisions on research, education and family assistance."

The bill authorizes funding of 10 additional research centers, special Alzheimer's research projects in support of the families, 10 state Alzheimer's programs (with funds for respite care), a national Alzheimer's education program and Medicare-/Medicaid research and demonstrations.

H.R. 524, introduced by Sen. Claude Pepper (D-Fla.), provides for the designation of 20 regional centers for the treatment of Alzheimer's disease.

Four bills proposed by Rep. Olympia Snowe (R-Maine) address care for veterans suffering from the disease and H.R. 66 and 67 (Rep. Michael Bilrakis, (R-Fla.), would establish family support groups in university medical centers and explore alternative Medicare benefits for sufferers.

Men indicted for sexual assault free on bonds

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Two men indicted by the Ector County grand jury Tuesday on sexual assault charges involving children were free on bonds Wednesday after being arrested and arraigned on the charges.

A 31-year-old Bowie Junior High School choir director, arrested Sept. 20 on two charges of aggravated sexual assault of a child and on Sept. 23 charged with five counts of indecency with a child, was indicted on one count of aggravated sexual assault.

The grand jury indictment alleged that Anthony Spann, 1624 E. 42nd St., had performed oral sex on a boy under the age of 14 on or about Sept. 21, 1984. Spann has been suspended without pay from his teaching job pending trial on the charges.

Grand jurors indicted 17-year-old Jackie Earl Ballard, Route 3, Box 252-C4, on one count of aggravated sexual assault of a child and one count of indecency with a child, alleging he engaged in sexual acts and fondled a child under the age of 14 June 22, 1985. District Judge Tryon Lewis set bond for Ballard at $10,000 on the aggravated sexual assault charge and at $5,000 on the indecency charge.

Spann had been free on bonds totaling $70,000 since his arrest. Lewis set bond on the grand jury indictment at $10,000.

According to the Sheriff's Department child abuse unit investigators, the seven charges against Spann involved boys between the ages of 12 and 17 and occurred during a three year period.

The grand jury handed down a total of 42 indictments Tuesday with a majority of them sealed pending the arrest of those accused.

Two indictments named 28-year-old Cheryl Ann Womack, 2416 Bob White, on two charges of possession of cocaine. Lewis set bond on each charge at $5,000. Ms. Womack was arrested Aug. 29 by Odessa police who had responded to a silent burglar alarm at her home and discovered quantities of cocaine.

San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros, left, and former U.S. ambassador to Mexico Bob Krueger are co-chairmen of a special committee which is coordinating aid to earthquake victims in Mexico City. They say Texans can build a lasting reminder in the stricken city by raising $5 million to construct a hospital and three schools.

Baptist president: Bible is 'infallible'

STATE

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The controversy in the Southern Baptist Convention over biblical inerrancy has created an atmosphere of suspicion and a tendency to paint labels on members, the new president of the Baptist General Convention of Texas says.

Paul Powell, a Tyler pastor elected Wednesday to head the 2.3 million-member Texas denomination, said he believes the Bible is "inspired, it is infallible, it is inerrant."

"A lot of people get hung up on words — playing silly word games," he said at a news conference shortly after he was elected.

"People wonder who's side are they on? We ought to all be on the Lord's side," said the 51-year-old pastor of Green Acres Baptist Church.

Powell said the controversy has had some positive fallout.

"It has made us take a good look at ourselves and be more cautious," he said.

Powell said he does not believe in ordination of women in his own church, but he would not object to another Baptist church having a woman preacher.

"The New Testament doesn't seem to say that women are ordained. We'd probably not practice it in my church," he said.

Powell, who was elected for a one-year term, said his top priority will be the success of "Mission Texas."

The program's goal is to start 2,000 new churches in Texas by 1990.

Powell was nominated for the presidency by William Shamburger, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Tyler.

Shamburger described Powell as "a moderate without a liberal drop of blood in his body and a fundamentalist without a Messiah complex."

Powell, who has been pastor of the 6,300-member Tyler church since 1972, was elected in a runoff ballot over B O Baker, pastor of Plymouth Park Baptist Church in Irving.

The author of six religious books, Powell is on the board of trustees at Baylor University.

"Things aren't as bad at Baylor as a few people would have you to believe," he said of recent controversy over the philosophies of some professors at the Waco university.

"I don't see a drift toward the left in my experience with Baylor. I hear about it but don't experience it first hand," he said.

Winter Texans migrating in record numbers

HARLINGEN (AP) — Thousands of retired people from northern states, known in the Rio Grande Valley as Winter Texans, have started their migration to South Texas in record numbers this year, tourist officials said.

"They're starting to come down here a lot sooner than last year," said Sam Martinez, director of the Texas Tourist Bureau. "I think we will be 5 to 7 percent over what we were last year."

He said about 300,000 people, from states like Missouri, Iowa, Michigan, Nebraska, Illinois and other northern states, will make South Texas their home for about five to six months.

The annual migration also pumps in about $300 million to the depressed area's economy, said Chuck Giles, executive vice president of the Rio Grande Valley Chamber of Commerce.

"They're probably coming a lot sooner because of the cold weather they've had up there," Giles said.

Most of the Winter Texans drive a recreational vehicles or tow a small mobile home to the area. Signs like, 'Welcome Home, Winter Texans," greet them.

They spend from October to April in the area, where the temperature usually is in the 70s and 80s during those months.

Marintez said most of them opt for South Texas, instead of Florida, because of high prices and overcrowded conditions in the southern Florida.

They spend time on recreational activities at one of 300 mobile parks in the area, at golf courses, bowling alleys or visiting friends. They play cards, dominoes, shuffle board, pinochle, among other games.

They also spend time in Mexican border cities, like Matamoros, Reynosa or Nueveo Progreso, to shop, dine or just look, Giles said.

They also spend time on South Padre Island.

Some have their own state newsletters and sponsor luncheons, dinners and dances.

Giles said that last year 15,000 more RV spaces were added in the area, bringing to 50,000 the total number of spaces available.

Area officials said a December 1983 freeze in the Valley may have spooked some Winter Texans away last winter, but Giles said people are coming back.

"Last year, we felt we had as many as we've always had, but they were spread thinner," Giles said.

He said the mostly elderly people spend money for clothes, groceries, entertainment and at restaurants.

And one Valley city, McAllen, recently was pegged by a national magazine as one of the 10 best places in the country in which to retire.

Panel seeks $5 million for Mexico rebuilding

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans should build a hospital and three schools in earthquake-ravaged Mexico City by donating $5 million to the state's relief effort, say the co-chairmen of the project.

"What's at stake here is a lot more than just good will from Texas. What really is involved here is the practical long-term working relationship with a country that's very important to Texas," San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros said Wednesday after announcing the program.

Co-chairmen Cisneros and Bob Krueger, former U.S. ambassador to Mexico, said fund-raising could become more difficult as the September earthquake fades from front pages.

"We're at that point where we may lose something in terms of high-visibility intensity but have to make it up in organization and have to make it up in continuity of discipline," Cisneros said.

The hospital and schools would give Texans a target, he said.

"The idea all along has been that Texans would feel better about giving to something where they could see the sum total of their contributions. Collecting money and funneling it to 100 recipient organizations and never being able to see any results is not as good as being able to see concrete projects," Cisneros said.

The proposed, 144-bed hospital would cost about $4 million. There is no target date for construction. The need is immediate, said Krueger, who visited Mexico City two weeks ago.

"Mexico lost some 5,000 hospital beds in this earthquake. They are using the facilities that remain and stand. They lost the most important research hospital facility that exists in Mexico," he said.

School needs also are acute, Krueger added.

"There are some 600,000 schoolchildren in Mexico out of school because of damage done to school buildings. In other cases they are being taught in garages and other makeshift buildings. We believe the people in Texas can assist in rebuilding these schools and we want to help," he said.

For $1 million, Texans could build three schools or build one and help repair damaged 732 schools, according to Krueger.

The $5 million for a hospital and schools would be in addition to approximately $5 million in cash and goods already sent from Texas, he said.

Group wants education board to delay adoption of science books

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas director of People for the American Way says two life science textbooks being offered for use in Texas' public schools are identical to books rejected by the California Board of Education.

Michael Hudson, Austin, said witnesses planned to ask the State Board of Education today to delay adoption of six proposed life science books because they do not treat evolution adequately and provide a superficial explanation of the scientific process.

"Texas, at the very least, should provide textbooks as good as those now required in California," Hudson said in a statement.

He said People for the American Way, a self-styled national citizens organization, had been responsible for repealing the "Texas anti-evolution textbook rule in 1984."

He said scientists would ask the State Board of Education to delay approval of life science books for one year.

Gallaudet to open Texas branch

DALLAS (AP) — Officials of the world's only liberal arts school for the deaf say they will open a non-credit branch at Eastfield College in Mesquite early next year.

Dallas County Community College District trustees voted Wednesday night to acept $78,000 in funding from Gallaudet College in Washington, D.C.

Gallaudet spokeswoman Donna Chitwood said the Southwest Regional Center for the Hearing Impaired will open in February.

Ms. Chitwood said Eastfield's small size was a factor in the decision to open the branch.

"You have the resources of seven institutions to draw on," she said.

Peggy Davis, DCCCD spokeswoman, said the center will be a continuing education service dedicated to improving the quality of life for the hearing impaired. It is the fifth such branch that Gallaudet has opened in the United States.

"There's been nothing of the kind here before," said John Butler, an official of the deaf education division of the Texas Education Agency. "There's not another school with the resources of Gallaudet when it comes to deaf education."

Man jailed in young girl's murder

SAN ANGELO (AP) — A 22-year-old man was jailed on a murder charge filed in connection with the suffocation of a 2-year-old girl, authorities said.

Tamela Young was pronounced dead at 1:48 a.m. Tuesday at a local hospital, a few minutes after an ambulance arrived at the emergency room. Officials said she apparently had been dead for about an hour.

Danny McClure, who police said had been living for the past month with the girl's mother, was arrested Tuesday morning. Justice of the Peace Ruth Nicholson set bond at $150,000.

Justice of the Peace Jerry Jennison ruled the death a murder after studying a preliminary autopsy report.

Electric company to pay settlement

WACO (AP) — A Central Texas electric company agreed Wednesday to pay a $1.2 million settlement to the survivors of a Waco man electrocuted a year ago.

The settlement requires Limestone County Electric Cooperative Inc. to make an immediate cash payment of $650,000 and structured payments to Lewyllyn Moore, 49, Dee Ann Moore, 24, and David Mark Moore, 5 — the mother, wife and son of Timothy Mark Moore.

Moore was killed Nov. 16, 1984, while attempting to disentangle an electrical line from a delivery truck.

Moore, an employee of Mistletoe Express Service, was making a delivery to a rural farmhouse. The truck became entangled with an electrical wire hanging over the road. When Moore attempted to disentangle the wire, his forehead came in contact with a primary wire which carried 7,200 volts.

Gas well blowout forces evacuation

RANGER (AP) — A natural gas well blowout forced a five-mile evacuation outside this West Texas town Wednesday night, but no injuries were reported, officials said.

The blowout occurred around 7:20 p.m., about seven miles south of Ranger in Eastland County, said Department of Public Safety Trooper Charlie Rose.

Rose said there were no reports of a fire or an explosion.

Three residences and a drilling unit at the site were evacuated, he said.

Sentencing set in drug-ring case

DALLAS (AP) — Sentencing has been set for Dec. 12 for three people who pleaded guilty to charges stemming from an international cocaine and marijuana ring operating out of Addison Airport.

Brenda Kay Baxter, 27, a Dallas real estate agent, pleaded guilty Tuesday to one count of possession

Veterans reach end of 'Last Patrol'

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Vietnam veterans reached the end of their 300-mile trek across Texas bringing with them blistered feet and nagging colds.

But the three-week journey from Dallas to San Antonio also rekindled spirits among the group.

Dubbed "The Last Patrol," the 20 veterans' march to San Antonio was highlighted last week when they were joined by retired Gen. William C. Westmoreland.

Led by singer-songwriter veterans Tim Holiday of Hawkins and Michael J. Martin of Dallas, the group was scheduled to leave the VFW post this morning for a march to the Alamo, where they plan a continuous vigil until Veterans Day on Monday.

"We see a lot of parallels between the men at the Alamo and ourselves," Martin said.

"We'd like to see a memorial (for Vietnam veterans) built near the Alamo," he said. "That's part of the reason we came here."

The marchers also intend to gather signatures on petitions seeking accountability from Hanoi for Americans missing in action and focus attention on physical and emotional problems plaguing Vietnam veterans and their families.

"We have a toughness that hasn't been recognized," Martin said. "We'd like to get the respect now that we didn't get when we came back from Vietnam. Most of these guys are decorated war heroes."

During the journey, the marchers met other veterans who said they were embarrassed to admit they served the United States in Vietnam.

"We've brought guys out of the closet," Martin said. "We've done some healing on this march. This is the most righteous thing I've done."

The veterans also plan to raise a POW flag at the Alamo on Veterans Day and participate in a parade.

Included in the group is handicapped veteran C.J. Gustafson of Waco. Ninja, a 2-year-old part German shepherd and golden retriever, helped pull Gustafson's wheelchair the 300 miles from Dallas.

Ninja almost had to quit the march when he developed blisters on his paws, but a medic making the trip treated the dog allowing him to continue the journey.

Society produces book, tape for Sesquicentennial

DALLAS (AP) — Members of the Historic Jefferson Foundation say they are marketing a 64-page illustrated storybook and cassette tape explaining the history of Texas for the Sesquicentennial.

More than 60,000 copies of the book, "The Epic Adventure...Texas," have been printed, officials said. The book gives a capsule description of Texas history from prehistoric Texas to the present.

Bill Moyers, Emmy Award-winning television commentator, narrates the publication. It is introduced by Lady Bird Johnson.

"I wanted to do something for the children of Texas," said Ann Hackney, who said she spent more than one year researching, writing and producing the work.

Illustrated by Carol Hodges of Hughes Springs, the publication is now in bookstores in hardback and will be released in clothbound form Nov. 15.

The Historic Jefferson Foundation is a nonprofit historical society that Ms. Hackney said is "dedicated to education and to the preservation of our Texas heritage."

She said the book and tape are expected to be on sale at tourist bureaus and will be placed aboard the Texas Sesquicentennial Independence Express steam locomotive and Texas Wagon Train during the sesquicentennial celebration.

Defectors perplex Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says Soviet masterspy Vitaly Yurchenko never gave the United States "anything new or sensational" during his three months with the CIA and may have been planted as a fraudulent defector in "a deliberate ploy" by the Kremlin.

"We just have to live with it because there's no way we can prove or disprove it," Reagan said in an interview Wednesday.

"You can't rule out personal desire, homesickness, whatever it might be" as possible motives for the decisions by Yurchenko, a seaman in Louisiana and a soldier in Afghanistan to return to their Soviet homeland, Reagan said. He spoke hours before the latest reported defection, a Romanian seaman in Jacksonville, Fla.

Reagan told the correspondents of four Western news agencies he is perplexed by the unusual series of events, coming as they have in the days leading up to his summit meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Geneva 11 days from now.

Also during the 33-minute interview, Reagan said:

— He would deploy the proposed Star Wars space shield unilaterally if other nuclear powers can't agree on a worldwide defense and disarmament program.

The president's comments appeared to negate the terms he laid out in an interview with Soviet journalists last week in which he said he wouldn't deploy a defensive system until offensive missiles had been dismantled.

"If we had a defensive system and we could not get agreement...to eliminate the nuclear weapons, we would have done our best and we would go ahead with deployment, even though, as I say, that would then open us up to the charge of achieving the capacity for a first strike," Reagan said.

— There is every indication that Gorbachev is "a reasonable man," and that gives Reagan hope he can convince the Communist Party chief the United States has no expansionist aims and genuinely wants to ease the distrust with which the two superpowers regard each other.

— His goal at the summit will be to "eliminate the distrust" between the superpowers, not to negotiate a new arms control agreement.

"I don't think the negotiation of facts and figures about which weapon and how many and numbers and so forth should take place at the summit," he added. "I think that belongs where we have already put it, and that is with the arms control negotiators who are already in Geneva."

— He called it a misunderstanding that he had cancer because a polyp containing cancerous cells was removed from his colon in July.

"In reality, the only real illness that I suffered in any way and at any time was the incision," Reagan said.

— He refused to comment when asked if his administration is trying to overthrow Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy, saying only that, "We don't have a personal relationship."

Yurchenko, who was a top official of the KGB when he defected three months ago, announced at a surprise news conference at the Soviet Embassy on Monday that he wanted to go home. He claimed he had been kidnapped and drugged by the CIA.

Reagan said the information Yurchenko provided during three months of interrogation by the Central Intelligence Agency at a secret hideout "was not anything new or sensational. It was pretty much information already known to the CIA."

Before the KGB officer's sudden change of heart, U.S. intelligence sources were crowing over what they called a gold mine of information from Yurchenko.

'Go for broke' deadline looms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government will be broke in a week. Sound familiar? This time it may be true.

Congressional wrangling over rival plans to force a balanced budget has stalled urgently-needed legislation increasing the government's line of credit — the national debt limit. The budget plans are amendments to the debt limit legislation.

In September, the Reagan administration asked Congress to increase the limit from the current $1.824 trillion to $2.078 trillion and legislators have jumped on that symbolic milestone as an occasion to prove how serious they are about getting rid of red ink.

The national debt is the accumulation of all the deficits created over the years by the federal government spending more money than it takes in. Raising the debt does not mandate spending more money, but simply gives the Treasury authority to borrow to pay the bills.

Now, the government has reached its borrowing limit and Treasury Department officials say they will run out of cash Nov. 15.

"This autumn the Congress has faced the unhappy task of raising the debt ceiling to over $2 trillion," President Reagan said Wednesday. "With only a few days left before that deadline, Congress must realize that by failing to act they are entering very dangerous territory.

"Already they have forced us to redeem prematurely the Social Security and other trust funds in order to make payments to recipients," the president said during a White House meeting with his supporters.

"Never before in our history has the federal government failed to honor its financial obligations. To fail to do so now would be an outrage, and the Congress must understand this."

Former governor gets nod to replace Heckler at HHS

Bowen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Indiana Gov. Otis R. Bowen, a politician, medical professor and family practitioner, has been chosen by President Reagan to become the next secretary of health and human services.

"It's all decided, it's all finished," an informed health industry source with close ties to the White House said late Wednesday. The source spoke only on condition of anonymity.

Peter Lincoln, an aide to Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., who lobbied Reagan on Bowen's behalf, said he also had been informed of Bowen's selection, though he did not identify his source.

"We now expect that former Governor Bowen will be President Reagan's nominee to be the next secretary of health and human services," Lincoln said.

He said Bowen was to meet with Reagan today at the White House.

In Indiana on Wednesday, Bowen said he has made two trips to Washington for White House interviews about the job, but said he was not aware of a decision and was not pinning his hopes on becoming secretary.

"I have not organized any campaign to get it, but I have enough sense of duty that if the president asked me to serve, I would respond," Bowen said.

If confirmed by the Senate, Bowen would succeed Margaret M. Heckler, who agreed last month to relinquish her Cabinet post and become U.S. ambassador to Ireland. Mrs. Heckler's job change was described by the White House as a promotion, but it came after she lost a high-stakes power struggle with White House Chief of Staff Donald Regan.

Mrs. Heckler remains as HHS secretary until she is confirmed in her new post, a process that may take until January.

Bowen has been considered a serious contender for the post since Quayle first proposed his name only a few days after Mrs. Heckler's Oct. 1 decision.

Bowen's chief competition for the job was Ann Dore McLaughlin, undersecretary of the interior, the only other candidate known to have been interviewed by Regan.

Bowen, 67, was a popular governor of Indiana who combined a successful political career with his medical practice.

He served 14 years in the Indiana General Assembly, including four terms as House speaker, while at the same time maintaining a family practice in Bremen, Ind.

He gave up his family practice when he moved into the governor's mansion in 1973 for the first of two four-year terms. Recently, he has been a clinical professor of family medicine at the Indiana University School of Medicine.

He has attributed his success as a politician to his years as a family doctor and his closeness to people. He is described locally as a conservative "country doctor" and is known by many in the state simply as "Doc Bowen."

On the federal level, Bowen served on presidential commissions under both Reagan and President Ford.

He was chairman of Reagan's Advisory Council on Social Security, which in March 1984 proposed major changes in Medicare to keep the federal health insurance program for the elderly and disabled from bankruptcy.

Among the council's recommendations were raising the eligibility age for Medicare to 67, taxing employer-paid health insurance benefits and boosting the tax on alcohol and tobacco. It also proposed that Medicare beneficiaries pay a larger portion of hospital bills, in exchange for Medicare coverage of catastrophic illnesses.

FBI agent Miller to be retried

Miller

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Government prosecutors say Richard W. Miller, the only FBI agent ever accused of spying, will be retried as quickly as possible after a mistrial declared when jurors deadlocked with most favoring conviction.

After 71 hours of deliberations, the jury reported to U.S. District Judge David Kenyon on Wednesday, "We have done our best. Our decisions are based on strong convictions that cannot be resolved."

Miller, 48, who was arrested 13 months ago, showed no reaction as Kenyon halted the 14-day deliberations. The portly defendant was hustled out of the courtroom in handcuffs for the return trip to his federal prison cell.

"I fully anticipate the government will retry Mr. Miller on all seven counts of the indictment," said U.S. Attorney Robert Bonner.

Defense attorneys Joel Levine and Stanley Greenberg said a court-imposed gag order prevented them from commenting.

Kenyon, who had sent jurors back twice to renew their talks since they first reported disagreement on Friday, reluctantly gave up.

He then asked how the jurors had been divided, and the foreman, who was never identified by name, hesitantly disclosed that the jury stood 10-2 for guilt on three of the key espionage charges, including conspiracy, and 11-1 on the four other charges.

The three counts on which they stood 10-2 included two charges carrying potential life sentences.

The 20-year FBI veteran was charged with passing classified documents to the Soviet Union in exchange for promises of $65,000 in cash and gold.

The government's case focused heavily on his sexual relationship with Svetlana Ogorodnikov, a Soviet emigre who has confessed she was a spy.

Mrs. Ogorodnikov and her husband, Nikolay, co-defendants in the Miller case, pleaded guilty in the middle of their earlier trial and have been sentenced to prison.

Neither of the Ogorodnikovs testified at Miller's trial, but Wednesday's mistrial raised the possiblity the government would seek their cooperation when he is retried.

The jurors, who spent 11 weeks listening to testimony, refused to comment on the impasse and pushed their way past reporters and camera crews outside the courtroom. The panelists said they agreed unanimously on one thing before they left their jury room — they would make no public comments about the deiberations.

"It wasn't easy, I can tell you that," said one woman juror.

A male juror who identified himself as Rick Sterner said, "I am definitely frustrated. I am disturbed. In my opinion, they (the government) had an excellent case."

Millions in winnings slide down slot

AP Laserphoto

Daniel Mayhoefer, 83, of Los Angeles, won $3.7 million from $25 slot machines in Las Vegas, played all but $25,000 back into the machines.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A "strong and bold" elderly California man who won almost $4 million in 18 days of playing four $25 slot machines at the Las Vegas Hilton has lost all but $25,000 of it.

Daniel Mayhoefer, 83, of Los Angeles, began his spree in early October, with a $15,000 jackpot picked up on his first morning.

Since then, says Cecil Fredi, slot manager for the casino, he has won more than $2 million on the $25 slots in 10 days in October, and a further $1.7 million through Wednesday, eight days into his second trip to the resort.

But though he was only $25,000 ahead as of Wednesday, Mayhoefer may still have some explaining to do to the Internal Revenue Service.

He has collected a pocketful of crumpled Internal Revenue Service forms indicating gambling earnings of $928,000.

Casinos are required to fill out a W2G form for anyone winning over $1,200. The winner signs the form and a copy is submitted to the IRS.

Mayhoefer's hot streaks have had casino workers shuttling back and forth with the W2G forms for him to sign on each slot jackpot running over $1,200. He nonchalantly crumples his copies and stuffs them in his pocket.

How is he going to explain the predicament to the IRS next spring?

"When you're 80 years old, you become strong and bold," Mayhoefer bellowed above the din of the huge casino. "I have a human spirit that likes to wander. No government has a right to inhibit that."

Fredi, meanwhile, says he is dumbfounded by the situation.

"I've never seen anything like it in my 21 years in the business," he said. "The guy is unbelievably lucky. Those machines pay out 98 percent, but still, as much as he's played, we should be ahead of him.

"He hit me for a $15,000 jackpot on his first morning here and never looked back. Since that time, he's been playing on our money. It's not that the guy's wealthy or anything. It's just that he's been incredibly lucky."

By the time Mayhoefer finished his first stand and left to return to California in late October he had signed IRS forms indicating winnings of $515,000 — although he walked away with about $10,000, Fredi said.

NATION IN BRIEF

MOVE 'lifelong burden'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mayor W. Wilson Goode says he will carry for the rest of his life the "burden, grief and sorrow" of the May 13 MOVE tragedy that killed 11 people and destroyed a neighborhood.

He promised Wednesday "to act decisively" on any recommendations made by a commission set up to investigate the confrontation "so that we never repeat the mistakes made on that day."

Goode's comments came as the Philadelphia Special Investigations Commission he appointed wound up hearings that included often conflicting testimony from 88 witnesses over the past five weeks.

Drinking binges cut

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Happy hour promotions such as "Two-For-One," "Drink 'Til You Drop" and "Beat The Clock" would be dropped under new regulations designed to reduce excessive drinking.

The state Liquor Control Board approved the measures Wednesday in a move lauded both by tavern owners and a group fighting drunken driving. The regulations still must be reviewed by the attorney general and governor.

Bars and restaurants would be allowed to offer drinks at half-price for up to two consecutive hours before midnight and to reduce the price of a featured drink without regard to the two-hour limit.

FAA may drop exits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration, despite assertions by flight attendants, Congress and safety groups that the Boeing 747 needs all its emergency exits, says it will go ahead with a test to see if people can be evacuated promptly with two fewer doors.

FAA Administrator Donald Engen said Wednesday that the test, which will be conducted at the Boeing plant in Seattle later this year, "will assess the validity" of Boeing's claim that eight emergency doors, instead of 10, meet government evacuation standards.

The jumbo jets have had 10 doors since the planes were introduced in the early 1970s. But Boeing has argued that the federal requirement is two doors for every 110 passengers. Since the planes carry no more than 440 seats, it need only have eight doors, Boeing says.

CURIOUS SHOPPER

Some individuals allergic to Yellow 5 food dye

By SONJA HEINZE

Q. On the television program "Fight Back," the remark was made that some beers in the U.S. are colored with Yellow 5. I have never seen this ingredient listed on a beer bottle, but then again, there are no ingredient lists on alcoholic beverages. However, I thought this particular color had to be listed on all products because some people are allergic to it. Please explain. R.P. Stamford, Conn.

A. The Food and Drug Administration estimates that there are approximately 100,000 persons in the U.S. who are allergic to the artificial color Yellow 5. Its addition to any food, therefore, must be so stated on the label.

Although essentially beer is a food, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms has the labeling authority over the malt beverage industry. This agency also requires the labeling of Yellow 5.

Cathy Marshall, a vice president with the U.S. Brewers Association, states that to the best of her knowledge, Yellow 5 is used only on St. Patrick's Day, when beer in some establishments is tinted green.

Yellow 5 is used in a wide variety of products including Jell-O, Tang, lemon drops, yellow lollipops, cake, ice cream and cosmetics. Persons sensitive to this color may experience hives, asthma, altered behavior states or extreme agitation and confusion. Individuals drinking beer may exhibit some of these symptoms, but apparently not due to Yellow 5.

Q. What is better to drink? I used to drink a six-pack of Pepsi on my day off from work. Now I drink maybe one or two a month. I decided to drink iced tea, but don't know whether that's better for me or not. I have a cup of coffee in the morning. I use instant tea and coffee. K.M.W., Rock Island, Ill.

A. Although you didn't mention caffeine specifically, I take it this is what you're trying to avoid. Regular Pepsi, Diet Pepsi and instant tea contain about the same amount of caffeine. Instant tea has less caffeine than brewed tea, and the longer the tea is brewed, the more caffeine is extracted.

Drinking a six-pack of Pepsi in one day, however, is the equivalent of eating 60 teaspoons of sugar. Why not avoid a heavy infusion of caffeine, sugar, citric acid, phosphoric acid and caramel coloring found in Pepsi, or the caffeine and tannic acid found in tea, by switching to natural fruit drinks or just plain water?

Q. In California at a supermarket I saw packages of quail for sale for the first time and was wondering if this is the state bird, otherwise known as California quail? Are these birds bred somewhere and, if so, how is this done? What are they fed? Are they permitted to run free? How does one prepare these birds? C.L., Santa Rosa, Calif.

A. Mirko Fatovich, the president of Plantation Quail, assures us that these birds are not the California state bird but a different variety which originated in Europe and Africa. There are actually over 100 quail varieties.

The eating of quail is popular in Europe, where half a billion are consumed annually. Principally they are raised in Spain on large "plantations" in growing houses similar to chicken houses and fed similar diets.

In one of these plants 600,000 chicks can be incubated a week. The quail chicks are fattened in cages with automatic feeding systems and dropping collectors. One fattening farm houses almost 3 million quails. The only quail farm in the U.S. is in Georgia.

Quail has a sweet, slightly gamey taste, is juicy and high in protein. On the negative side, it has a lot of little bones. Quail can be prepared the same ways as chicken, but you need more of them — they are considerably smaller. There should be a recipe booklet on a rack where they are sold.

If you try them, let me know how you rate them.

Q. Please let me know if vitamin supplements, such as iron and zinc, are the same as the iron and zinc used in construction and the making of appliances. Dario Villa, Modesto, Calif.

A. The iron in a hammer and the zinc which is probably coating it is the same (that is, it's chemically identical) to that which is found in our bodies.

'International' dried soup mixes disappoint tasters

By LINDA ANDERSON

Linda Anderson

Now that cold weather is upon us, nothing goes down better than soup. But there are only so many times you can serve tomato or chicken-noodle soup before the kids start whining.

So, to provide a little variety — and to make the soup seem a little more special — Lipton has introduced a line of International Soup Classics. These powdered soup mixes come in elegant black boxes and several fancy flavors (no plain vegetable-with-beef or chicken-and-alphabet-noodles in sight).

The adult, teen and children taste-testers checked out two of these new soups, Cream of Mushroom a la Reine and New England Clam Chowder, for taste, price and advertising accuracy.

The two boxes, each containing two envelopes of soup mix, were priced the same — $1.79 per box. Since each envelope can provide one large or two small servings, servings can cost 40 cents to 80 cents each, depending, of course, on size.

That's a touch more expensive than ordinary canned mushroom soup, which costs about 45 cents a can, or canned clam chowder, which costs about 90 cents a can. Generally, canned soups provide 2½ servings per can. (Prices listed are from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.)

Preparation method was the same for both flavors: ¾ cup water and ½ cup milk were combined with contents of one envelope soup mix, thoroughly blended in saucepan and brought to the boiling point (stirring frequently); then simmered over low heat for five minutes. This takes more time to prepare than ordinary canned soup, but the results were supposed to be worth the wait.

Label advertising for New England Clam Chowder variety claims the soup is "a traditional, hearty chowder featuring tender clams, the finest sweet cream, real butter and a medley of diced potatoes, carrot pieces and onions." Sounds wonderful, doesn't it.

Cream of Mushroom a la Reine (I never did find out what that means) is label-advertised as being "a savory cream of mushroom soup, featuring select mushroom pieces and sweet green peas, perfectly seasoned with onion, thyme and a delightful hint of Sherry." We could hardly wait...

But the disappointed taste-testers discovered that powdered soups — in spite of fancy packaging and elegant label advertising — are still just powdered soups. The clam chowder's potato pieces were grainy, the clam pieces tough (but, to be fair, clams are often tough) and the broth had a definite "dried soup" taste.

The cream of mushroom soup, which was supposed to be "perfectly seasoned" with onion, thyme and hints of Sherry, also tasted just like a dried soup mix.

We only used one envelope from each of the boxes. The others were thrown away, unopened.

Parents concerned

By MARIAN FARR

A child's eating habits can be a source of constant worry for parents. If you think your child overeats, undereats, is overweight or too thin, it's a good idea to check with your family doctor.

A physician can use growth charts and medical tests to determine your child's growth rate. If the child is found to be growing well with no weight problems, you can stop worrying.

Children often go on eating jags, eating mostly one type or just a few types of foods for several days. Eating jags are usually temporary, so continue offering good nutritious food in a pleasing way.

When a child doesn't eat much, this may be a normal "slowdown" stage of growth. Eating will increase as nutrient needs increase.

If obesity is a problem, check to see whether your child is eating too many high-fat or sweet foods, or just too much food. Are snacks nutritious or do they contribute excess calories? Does your child get enough exercise? Is too much time spent at quiet activities that use few calories?

Many overweight children have one or more overweight parents, and children often follow their parents' eating habits. If this is the case in your family, include more fruit, vegetables and low-fat foods such as skim milk, lean meats and broiled or baked foods in the family meals instead of sweets and other high-fat, high-calorie foods.

Some parents think all children need extra nutrients from vitamin pills or drops, but most children who eat a varied diet of meat, poultry and fish, breads and cereals, fruits and vegetables, and dairy products get enough nutrients.

Children who have eaten poorly balanced diets for a long time may require supplements, but let your doctor decide whether vitamins or mineral supplements are needed.

High tech phones dial calls by voice-recognition

Associated Press

Today's high tech phones let you dial with your voice — and tomorrow's telephone wonders will do everything from guarding your house to switching on the oven to cook your dinner.

There's good news for people who are tired of letting their fingers do the walking through 10 or more dialing digits, according to a report on new telephones in the September issue of Popular Mechanics. They can talk their calls through instead.

Voice-recognition telephones from Audec and TTC are on the cutting edge of technology, much more sophisticated than voice-activated devices.

Voice-activated phones are triggered by a simple sound. Voice-recognition products are programmed to respond to human language.

The voice recognition device analyzes your voice print, converts it to a digital code and memorizes the pattern during programming.

All subsequent commands are compared to the original prints. The device only obeys commands that match the voice patterns it has memorized.

The TTC "dial-less" phone will recognize up to four different voices and Audec's Command Dialer II can memorize several.

The phones are not completely dial-free — there is a dial need to program them.

The dial is used to punch in a frequently used number that is followed by saying the party's name — "Mom," perhaps. The phone stores the information — TTC's top-of-the-line model can store 80 numbers and Audec's holds 16.

As an extra security measure, both phones require you to back up your voice pattern with an identifying code number.

Cordless phones have been improved significantly in the past few years.

They are really low-power radiotelephones, and originally only three send-receive channels were available. If a lot of phones were in use in one area, it was hard to get a channel. And sometimes you found yourself receiving someone else's conversation.

Ten send-receive channels now are open for cordless communication, and top-of-the-line units will scan them to find a clear one.

Florida man-made waterway system establishes native fish population

ST. PETERSBURG BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Look, but don't touch. The fish recently established in the man-made waterway system around a new resort hotel here are not destined for fishermen's hooks.

More than six dozen Florida-bred fish, plus five Japanese koi, were brought from nearby Busch Gardens and placed in the canals for both ecological and aesthetic purposes, according to Rick Fleck of the TradeWinds resort. He says all the fish will reproduce well in captivity and in three to four years there should be a substantial fish population.

"The objective of the program is to establish a native fish population in our waterways," he explained. "We received about 50 golden river shiners, which are small fish utilized to establish a food chain, some 25 blue gills, which are popular Florida game fish, and the koi, which are showy orange fish that will be easy to see in the waterway system."

DEAR ABBY

Man finds honesty refreshing

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to "Often Stuck" was all wet. She wanted to know how to avoid giving her phone number to a man in whom she wasn't interested, and you told her to take his number instead and say she'll call him when she has some free time.

Why is it so hard for women to say no? I have had women give me their phone number after I've asked for it only to find them surprised when I call, and then I get turned down.

Women have told me that they're afraid of hurting a man's feelings by refusing to give him their phone number. Believe me, straightforward honesty would be refreshing after putting up with some of the games people play with each other. — STAN IN INDIANAPOLIS

DEAR STAN: If a woman is absolutely, positively not interested in the man, then a straightforward rejection is probably kinder than giving him false hope.

But since it's a woman's prerogative to change her mind, it's smart to ask the man for his number because the man in whom she had no interest in May might look better to her in November (after a long, dry summer).

DEAR ABBY: I'm not happy with my marriage and I want out, but my husband isn't the type to give up without a fight. We've been married for 10 years and have two children. I wasn't quite 16 when I got married, and he was 24. We fight all the time. If we're not screaming and yelling, we're hitting each other. I don't like to fight in front of the children, but I just can't stand there and take all his verbal abuse, plus punching and slapping.

Abby, just one more thing. There is this man who really cares for me and we think we could be happy together if I were free. I need to know how I can leave my husband without getting myself, my children or my boyfriend hurt. My husband can be very mean if provoked. — RUNNING OUT OF TIME AND COMMON SENSE

DEAR RUNNING: Your signature shows you to be a very insightful woman. I don't know whether your marriage went sour because you found another man, or you found another man because your marriage went sour, but don't chuck your marriage in order to jump into another.

No woman (or man) should live with a mate who dishes out verbal or physical abuse. I recommend family counseling for you and your husband. If he refuses to go with you, go alone.

DEAR ABBY: I am a pastor who believes in a lot of home visitation, and when I go into a home I will inevitably find the boob tube blaring. After I've been seated for about three minutes, I ask pleasantly, "May I turn down the TV a wee bit?" Usually they say, "Oh, just shut it off!" If they hesitate, or say, "Well, I will turn it down just a little bit," then this is a signal to me that they are more interested in their "soap" than their salvation, and in 15 minutes I am gone.

And incidentally, Abby, I do not agree with you that people are not socially obligated to turn off the TV when someone drops in unexpectedly. After all, is a television program more precious than friendship? — SOUTH CAROLINA PASTOR

DEAR PASTOR: How important a television program is to an individual is a personal matter that can be answered only by the individual. I could be mistaken, but I have always thought healthy friendships are based on mutual consideration, not obligation.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LOOKING AHEAD IN BUFFALO: Heed the wise words of Winston Churchill: "It's a mistake to look too far ahead. Only one link in a chain can be handled at a time."

(Is your social life in a slump? Lonely? Get Abby's updated, revised and expanded booklet, "How to Be Popular" — for people of all ages. Statute of Liberty renovation lighting will save energy

NEW YORK (AP) — As part of the centennial renovation of the Statute of Liberty in New York harbor, a new combination of lights will create the effect of natural daylight and save energy, notes Energy User News.

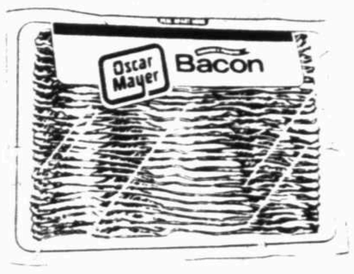

An intense blue-white light will highlight the sculptural details of Liberty's robe and features, while a warm light will illuminate the green patina of the 151-foot statue's metal skin.

The new system will be lit by 62 lamps and will cut the operating costs for the National Park Service from $22,800 to $6,000 annually.

Coupon clipper shops seriously

SHARON, Pa. (AP) — When visitors stop at Hermitage, the home of Patricia Shimrack, they are often greeted with: "Do you have a coupon? If you don't, you can't come in."

Mrs. Shimrack is a coupon collector and refunder. She spends at least six hours a day, four days a week, organizing her "business." The basement in the Shimrack home is stacked with shelf upon shelf of bulging cardboard boxes and large grocery bags filled with grocery labels, candy bar wrappers and collapsed boxes. And Mrs. Shimrack knows exactly what is in each box and bag.

She is a true pack rat, but through the 15 or 20 years she has been collecting (her mother introduced her to the "hobby"), Mrs. Shimrack has developed a real sense of orderliness and organization.

Mrs. Shimrack is known as Pennsylvania's genius at the grocery store checkout counter and has earned the tag "America's Coupon Countess." She proved she deserved the honor when she made a commercial with Pat Van Patten, wife of television actor Dick Van Patten, in which she purchased $125 worth of groceries. She didn't spend a cent; the store owed her $1.23.

Just how good is she?

Good enough to appear on PM Magazine in 1978, reaching 50 metropolitan areas coast to coast.

Good enough to be guest speaker on more than 20 western Pennsylvania stations, including KDKA Channel 2's John Cigna show in Pittsburgh.

Good enough to be honored by Pennsylvania and cited by Gov. Dick Thornburgh, the state Senate and House.

Mrs. Shimrack often jokes that she made the TV Guide with Pope John Paul II. His picture was on the magazine's cover when she was listed inside on the Evening Magazine program.

Her early background as a legal stenographer for two lawyers in Butler gave her the organizational know-how to set up a workable collection system. She also uses that know-how for the "Butler Clippers," an organization she founded. It has a membership of 100 refunders.

"I very rarely throw anything away," she said. "I can't bring myself to do that. My husband told everyone that the first house we bought after we were married was bought with 10,000 cornflake coupons," she said.

Her biggest expense is postage. And her most important acquaintance is the mail carrier. He brings her all the "freebies" she earns with her refunds, and he is just as interested in what the packages contain as she and her family are.

One of the biggest items she bought through refunding is her son's bedroom set for about $700 back in 1974. She has a favorite puppet, Mr. O, and a camera, a telephone, baseball jackets for her sons, athletic equipment, plus a tableful of other items she has received from saving coupons and refund forms.

Mrs. Shimrack's current project is saving toward a bicycle. Refunding provides an automatic free Christmas account to purchase gifts for her family.

"It breaks my heart to buy anything without a coupon," Mrs. Shimrack said. Her purse is jammed with food coupons. She asks everyone to save their "garbage," or coupons and refund slips.

Although she suffers from arthritis in the knees and back, Mrs. Shimrack works on her business in the basement, where she has a desk and phone and, more important, privacy. She also keeps coupons in a kitchen drawer. "Anything you get free is worth working for. Shopping takes time and effort," she said. She spends about an hour gathering the coupons to get ready for grocery shopping.

When Mrs. Shimrack shops, she takes along a coupon and a backup one for a similar product in case the store is out of what she wants. Clutching a handful of refund offers, she said the 50 or so forms should net her more than $50 in savings.

Machines dispense coupons

Hearst News Service

Of the 163 billion grocery and product coupons issued last year, only 4 percent were redeemed; the remaining 156.5 billion were thrown out or stuffed into kitchen catch-all drawers. But a new high-tech way to distribute coupons may change this.

Instead of shoppers clipping their own coupons, the coupons will be available at in-store automatic dispensing machines, which are springing up in grocery stores around the country.

The machines resemble video games. A color screen displays a list of items — dog biscuits, coffee, apple sauce — from which you choose the few you've come to the store to buy. For example, the screen could show a Milkbone Dog Biscuits coupon for 20 cents off. By pressing the numbers that correspond to that coupon, it is printed out in unglamorous black-and-white on a small piece of paper.

The machine, made by Coupon Systems Inc. of Rolling Hills Estates, near Los Angeles, lists 10 to 20 items. Each product holds a category exclusively for a couple of weeks. In other words, while Hills Bros. is offering coupons, Maxwell House can't.

What manufacturers like about this method is that 70 percent of the approximately 300 coupons people take from each coupon machine each day are redeemed. What the supermarkets like takes some explaining about the behind-the-scenes world of couponing.

When you redeem your coupon, the supermarket (which makes 7 cents or 8 cents on each coupon) counts it, along with others, and sends them to a clearinghouse, where they're separated into product categories. Those are sent to a manufacturer's clearinghouse in Latin America, where rooms full of women sort them. A report is issued. It takes four months after a coupon mailing goes out for a manufacturer to find out how many coupons have been redeemed, and where.

With machines like those of Coupon Systems Inc., a supermarket doesn't have to count coupons, and a manufacturer can get a daily report. Service representatives visit the supermarket daily, plug a scanner into the machine, which has a computer hooked by telephone line to the company's main computer. They read the bar codes on each coupon turned in at the check-out line and print out a report for the supermarket. The information also goes into Coupon Systems' main computer, which accumulates the data for a final report for the manufacturer.

Some manufacturers want their reports weekly, some monthly, said Michael Downs, president of Coupon Systems Inc.

Gourmet meals to go lastest trend

MONTVALE, N.J. (AP) — Supermarkets that offer hot gourmet dinners and delicacies to go — in addition to groceries — are the wave of the future, according to A&P.

The firm recently opened five Futurestore Food Markets in Georgia, Louisiana and New Jersey. The stores feature specialty-food counters and boutiques for items such as flowers.

Research necessary

Hearst News Service

You probably don't remember Gerber's Singles — gourmet servings in a baby food jar. And it's equally unlikely that you can recall A Touch of Yogurt Shampoo — something healthy for your hair.

These products were the victims of a competitive marketplace that shows little mercy for goods that don't have the right combination of usefulness, convenience, novelty and effective marketing, according to Robert McMath, the founder and head of Marketing Intelligencer Service, Ltd., a Naples, N.Y.-based company that is a clearinghouse for information on new products.

McMath said about 5,000 to 6,000 new products appear on store shelves every year. Of those, he said, 80 percent are failures.

Many new products will never get off the ground because they are the products of entrepreneurs who have great ideas but little business sense, McMath said. During an appearance on a San Francisco radio show, a businessman asked about marketing a swim aid product he'd developed and was trying to sell in Hawaii. McMath advised the caller to go to the city's big sports equipment retailers, research the market and look into the costs of hiring a distributor.

"He told me he didn't have the time to do that," McMath said. "I said, 'Then you don't have the time to be successful either.' "

The importance of proper marketing was evidenced by the controversy that broke out when Coca-Cola Co. Inc. brought out its new formula for Coke, McMath said. Because Coca-Cola wanted to keep its plans secret it did its taste tests blind (without telling the sampler what the product was), he said. The result: the company was not prepared for the loyalty of Coke lovers.

"It was not a true test," he said.

Although market research is expensive, McMath said it is an expense that can't be ignored. He said the Scott Paper Co. spent at least three years and more than $3 million to find out whether consumers would buy ScotTowels Junior, an 8¼-inch-wide paper towel, rather than the standard 11-inch width.

McMath predicts the following will be on the market soon, if they aren't already available in some parts of the country:

- Drinkable yogurt: Natural and lemon-flavored yogurt to drink.
- Absorbent sponge: Place the sponge in cooking pans and it absorbs all of the grease and oil and is discarded in its own disposable pouch.
- Insecticide pen: Insecticide in a pen applicator that can be used to draw a line of repellent around the edge of windows. It should not be used in households with children.
- Refillable bathroom deodorants: They fit inside toilet paper rolls.
