WEST TEXAS CAN DERIVE MOST GAIN FROM TEXAS CENTENNIAL

By RALPH H. SHUFFLER, Editor, Odessa News-Times

West Texas has for some time been rather disgruntled over the treatment accorded it in the general Centennial scheme. A part of this attitude was to my mind thoroughly justified, and a good part of it rather childish. West Texas has had a kick coming in several instances, has made that kick in each instance, and has won in a reasonable percentage of the arguments. Now it would be foolish, puerile, and disastrous for West Texas to continue to nurse a grudge, and to hold back on the most important state-wide movement in years because of petty grudges.

West Texas can have just as important a part in the success of the Centennial and reap just as rich a reward from the Centennial as any other portion of the State—if she will just get down off her high horse and get to work.

The people of the East, who will visit the Texas Centennial, will naturally be drawn here by the most spectacular show, the central exposition at Dallas. This central exposition is the joker in our hand, and if we can just draw the proper cards, we can fit it into our straight to an excellent advantage. Once they are in Dallas, these Eastern tourists will start looking for the things which are in the Eastern mind synonymous with Texas—big hats, boots, spurs, and broad ranges. They will see few of these in Dallas. The romance, ruggedness and picturesque beauty of West Texas can be sold, at Dallas, to the visiting Easterners in such a manner that they will all want to visit this "last frontier" before going home. West Texas is the only section that fits the tourist's picture of the true Texas, and if we take advantage of this fact our reward from the Centennial will be a rich one.

Further, and from an absolute dollar point of view, West Texas is the logical one to gain from the Centennial. We have here a great expanse of undeveloped territory, rich in minerals, waiting only for the necessary capital to develop it. Our future prosperity will be industrial, largely, and the Centennial, which will attract more people of means than any others, will give us an outstanding opportunity to display our treasures to the capitalistic eye.

I, for one, am ready to drop all past grievances and grudges, and get to work in the short time left us, on the job of making the Centennial a big thing for Texas and a bigger one for West Texas.

Sanctions may prove a boon to Italy by removing the need for expansion. A little fasting and the population may fit very comfortably.

Perhaps the reason a woman office-seeker usually isn't successful is that when she throws her hat into the ring, nobody can figure out what it is.

We're going back. First it was midwest cattle rustling, then the Ohio mail train robbery, and high-priced Manhattan plays provide the stage holdups.

There seems to be two schools of thought concerning the use of perfume. One is that a woman should choose the scent she likes best and which seems to be a natural complement of her personality and to her acquaintances grows to mean the wearer.

The other is that a different perfume should be used for different occasions—lighter for day time, more exotic for evening.

In contrast to the practice of using only one perfume and having that complete one's personality is the theory suggested by some screen actresses (Ginger Rogers, for example) of having one's perfume in contrast to one's personality so as to rouse interest on the part of one's masculine friends especially because of the apparent contradiction. In this way, the quiet, unassuming girl should wear a scent that is more exotic and alluring than she would generally choose.

Modes of using the chosen fragrance vary with the women who wear them. Probably the practice of putting a bit of scent on the jaw line or just beneath the jaw bone is most usual. For the girl who is very short and whose head comes just to her dancing partner's shoulder or his chin, we think a touch of perfume on top of the head is nice.

And somewhere we have read that fragrance should be put in the crook of the elbow so that the scent will drift gently and elusively upward.

And it is not to be forgotten that those glamorous women who rose to power and fame because they were women and knew the value of beauty and personality and how to use them were addicts of perfume.

FEMININE FANCIES

BY KATHLEEN EILAND

We have never been able to understand the mental make-up of the woman who does not like perfumes. Perfume is such an essentially feminine thing that we can't imagine any woman's not getting a thrill out of receiving a vial of it for Christmas or at any other time.

Who was it that said, "A woman without perfume is like a flower without fragrance?" It must have been a Frenchman, though the name escapes out not infallible memory. Of course, we are all familiar with the woman who uses a scent too heavy and too exotic and uses it too lavishly but we still maintain that, so long as the scent is not a cheap one, such use of perfume is more fascinating than none at all. Always, provided it is used at the proper place and time, which, for heavy scents, we think means in the evening.

We read an interesting theory of perfume recently. This was that if a perfume does not last as long as it should, it is because it is not suited to the wearer's personality and is "running away," while if a perfume lingers on, it is because it blends with the personality of the wearer and thus is suited to it.

One of our cherished and so far unattained day dreams is to have a perfume specially blended to express our personality (if such could be done).

There seems to be two schools of thought concerning the use of perfume. One is that a woman should choose the scent she likes best and which seems to be a natural complement of her personality and to her acquaintances grows to mean the wearer.

The other is that a different perfume should be used for different occasions—lighter for day time, more exotic for evening.

The Town Quack

take all the vanity out of a man.

Recently one of our staff members was hurried because he hadn't read something which appeared in his home paper. That's just human nature. I heard of a printer whose home received its last coat of paint in 1915, a boot maker who makes a track with the hole in his shoe sole, a baker who didn't have a loaf of bread in the house, a barber whose hair was down around his ears, a dentist with the toothache and a doctor with the colic.

And then I might write a paragraph about the postman who took the walk on his holiday, and all sort of thing. But we can pick that up some other day when we don't seem to have anything in particular to spout off about.

One republican newspaper has suggested that what the GOP needs is something that looks prettier to a farmer than an AAA check.

I saw a ragged bum the other day, down in rat row, and he had a waxed mustache which would have put Kaiser Bill's to shame. You can't be too good.

Bar Association Making Drive For More New Members

AUSTIN, (AP).—Henry P. Burney of San Antonio, president of the Texas Bar association, launched his administration with a drive to increase association membership by one-third.

He appointed Robert H. Kelley of Houston chairman of the membership committee with the injunction to add 1,000 names to the rolls by the July 6-8 annual meeting at Dallas.

Burney directed the committee's attention to his survey which showed about one-third of the lawyers attending state meetings were getting a "free ride." Of the 1,062 registered at the Houston meeting, he said, 326 were not members, and of the 1,132 at the Fort Worth meeting a year previous, 399 were not members.

A committee on enforcement of the unauthorized law practice act was another Burney singled out for active work. He made Dan A. Jackson of Houston chairman of it and Willard McLaughlin of Waco vice-chairman.

Other committee chairmen included: Legislative, C. C. Renfro of Dallas; criminal law and procedure, Sam R. Sayers of Fort Worth; State Bar Journal, L. Hamilton Lowe of Corpus Christi; special committee on cooperation with Texas junior bar, W. E. Fitzgerald of Wichita Falls; professional ethics, John C. Townes of Houston.

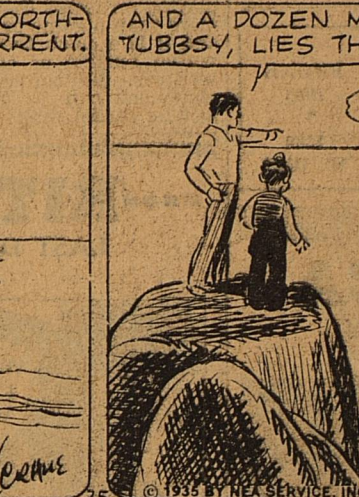

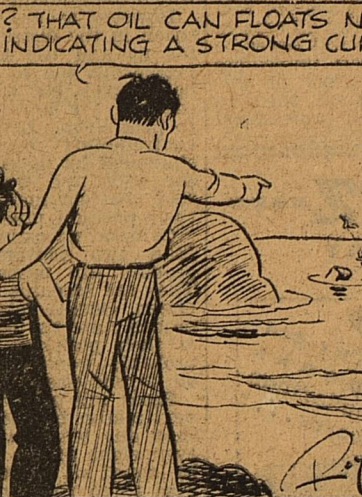

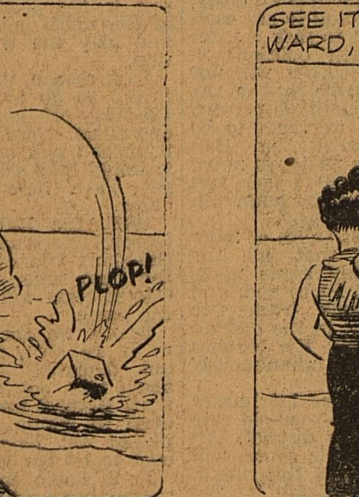

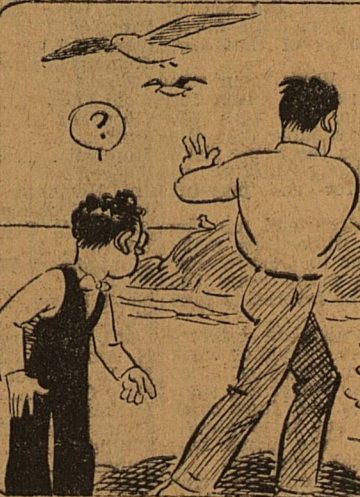

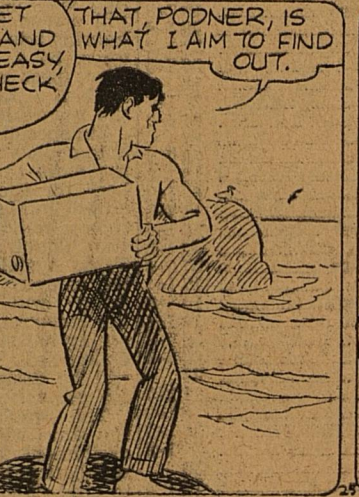

Cooperation with American law institute, Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson, Jr. of Houston; grievances and discipline, B. Wade of Fort Worth; commercial law, R. D. Morton of El Paso; Legal education and admission to the bar, R. G. Storey of Dallas; unlawful practice of the law, James A. Harley of San Antonio.

Special committee on pre-trial procedure, Charles W. Trueheart of San Antonio; special committee on rule-making power of the courts, Judge Royall R. Watkins of Dallas; special committee on state bar act, Harry P. Lawther of Dallas; substantive law reform, Judge C. A. Wheeler of Austin; uniform state laws, Judge S. C. Taylor of San Antonio; and administration and remedial reform, Judge Robert J. McMillan of San Antonio.

FLUBDUBS

They're at it again—picking all-star teams. If there is one thing that John Public thinks he can do better than anyone else, it is picking a team that can defeat anyone else.

Picking an "All" anything team, whether it is city, county, district, state or national, is rather absurd for it is impossible for one man to see enough of one man to know whether he is better than someone else. For instance, how can someone in the far east tell whether Bobby Wilson is better than Bobby Grayson. True, they can read the teams of copy about each and make up their minds, but neither man's name would appear before the public nearly as much if they were with cellar clubs.

That is the greatest weakness when it comes to picking the "best". There is undoubtedly many boys playing on teams that have not won more than a game or two all season, and it is a cinch they will never be known outside of their immediate territory. No better proof of this statement can be found than in looking at the ranks of professional football. While there are many All-Americans playing on the pro clubs, there is in all probability many more who never received more than a favorable mention.

Certain names head the long list of football heroes each year, but you can be sure that the players are always with a headline team, a consistent winner.

Andy Pilney, whose name has been on everyone's lips and in every paper since his sensational playing in the Notre Dame-Ohio State contest, would still be an unknown if he were playing with some small college—even though he were twice as good.

A halfback might be the best in the country but unless he has someone to clear the way for him he might just as well be playing on crutches. The same is true of a lineman. What good does it do him to blast a hole in an opposing line if he is doing it for some spindly back that could not find his way home.

All of which leads us up to what we start with in the first paragraph. We could not and will not try to pick an all district team in which the Midland team is an entry. However, we are going to ask each coach in the district to pick a team for us and use their opinions in presenting one to you. It will not be our pick, but will be the pick of the coaches, the best qualified persons to pick them. Let us seem to be contradicting ourselves by that statement let us say that you name the odds and we will wager you that not four men of the team win their position unanimously.

Offhand we cannot think of more than two players that will not be picked by all coaches. They are Medaniel, Pecos end, and Green, Odessa fullback. These two probably are the best in the district at their positions, but the coaches probably won't agree unanimously on anyone else.

Pecos will probably be hit harder next season by the 18-year-old rule than any team in the district. An even eight of the Eagle squad will be lopped off because of this ruling. Plus three that will finish by the graduation route. Coach Withers will have to make his entire team over. What should be pleasant news for all opposition of the Eagles next season is the fact that Kelton, barefoot phantom of the squad, will be among those ineligible because of the new ruling. Without it, Kelton would be playing havoc with opposing teams for two more years.

Others that will be lost to the team by the ruling are Medaniel, Crum, Davis, Stool, Warren, Bond and Griffin. Well might Withers say, "There ain't no justice."

McCamey, winner of the south half of district 7-B, if they are forced to play Wink for title to the entire district, would play the game on a neutral field, preferably Midland.

The McCamey coaches and players seem to feel that their chances of winning the game in Wink are so small as to be practically nonexistent. Without accusing Wink of anything shady or nefarious, officials of the district have maintained for several seasons that it was impossible for an opposing team to win on that field. It would be a swell break for Midland if they could land the game for both schools, after making a bad start to the season, have come forward fast and the game should be one of the best out here this year.

McCamey, after losing its first two games of the season, has been steadily improving with each game, and only twice has their goal line been crossed by teams in their district. They wound up a successful conference season with an easy 60-7 win over Maria and could probably make things plenty tough for the Winkites.

It is not yet a cinch that Wink will represent the north half of the district. Should they go down to defeat to Pecos in the game Thursday, and should Odessa defeat Midland, the district will be thrown into a three-way tie. Wink will be heavily favored to take the Eagles, but the dope hardly ever stands up when those two teams meet.

However, if Wink wins the game Thursday, it is up to school officials here to talk them into playing the game here. And they will undoubtedly be hard to convince that a neutral field is best for them as this is the year when the winner of the south half is to come north to play the winner of that section.

Last season the Wink team was forced to go to Fort Stockton for the play-off game, and with the enormous crowd available there, the team can pull onto the home field, it would take a strong guarantee to get them here for the play-off game.

Well, the Bulldogs end up the season Thursday when they make the short trip over to Odessa. For the first time in the history of the Odessa team will be favored to take the game.

Unless we are mistaken (correct us if we are) the Bulldogs have not defeated the Bulldogs since about 1930, possibly longer ago than that. Several times they have come close to winning but have always played out before the game was over to let the local team win.

It is liable to be different this season, however, for the Odessa club is one of the strongest to represent that school in a decade while the Bulldogs boast only a mediocre aggregate. Odessa has lost only one game this year, and that one a 1-touchdown thriller to the strong Wink club that beat Midland three touchdowns. They piled up a margin of two touchdowns over the Pecos team that had no trouble in defeating Midland by 12 points, and it will be distinctly an upset if the Bulldogs manage to come out winner.

Talking Picture
Lincoln-Zephyr
Made By Officials

A new and unusual talking picture entitled "Streamlines Make Headlines" has been developed for public showing in connection with the introduction of the V-12 Lincoln-Zephyr, newest entry in the medium-price motor car field.

The motion picture made its debut during New York Automobile Show week. It was accepted at once as a striking advance in the field of industrial film depiction. Exciting photography, good acting, comedy and an interesting plot are all utilized in this unusual picture.

Introduction to the subject of the film is made by action views of streamlined ships, planes and trains. Suddenly the Lincoln-Zephyr flashes across the screen. Breath-taking airplane views show the new automobile going through its paces.

Those interested in methods of manufacturing the new car are given brief flashes of the assembly line in operation. A professional cast brings the story and action to a satisfactory climax.

Plans have been completed for showing the picture at many cities throughout the country coincident with the presentation of the Lincoln-Zephyr, product of the combined resources of the Ford and Lincoln companies.

COLLEGE STATION. — Pigskin pageantry will reach its height, as far as the season in Texas is concerned, Thanksgiving Day on historic Kyle Field where the Texas Aggies and University of Texas Longhorns will renew their grid rivalry for the forty-second time. The kickoff has been set for 2:00 o'clock, but colorful sidights will draw interest a full twenty-four hours before that.

The game may not draw the season's largest crowd for this section, for no Southwest Conference championship will be involved. But it probably will be far the most colorful grid event, with the most colorful grid entertainments, offered in Texas for the year.

It will see virtually all members of the state senate and house of representatives occupying special boxes. And Gov. James V. Alfred probably will attend if he gets back from a hunting trip in time. It will, in many ways, be a "society game," as for years past prominent Texans have made it a point to be on hand when the Aggies battle the Longhorns.

Six special trains and hundreds of automobiles will add their quotas to the more than 20,000 fans expected here for the game. Aggie football crowds in big cities, where the multitude is noticed only at the stadium, the Thanksgiving Day crowd at Texas Aggie stadium will swarm all over the campus proper all day. Aggie "exes" will have headquarters in the reception room of the college dining hall and University "exes" in the Aggie hall. The college Y. M. C. A. will be designated as headquarters for others.

The two largest college bands in the state will add to the color and excitement. The Aggie military band, numbering 150 pieces, is second only to that of the University of Illinois as the nation's biggest collegiate band. The University of Texas band has 190 pieces. Both will parade both before the game and between the halves.

Colorful between-halves attractions also will feature the Aggie cadet corps' famous human "T", the University "Cowboys" and a number of other special attractions.

Thanksgiving entertainment at the college will begin Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 on Kyle Field, when the Aggie and Longhorn "Little Brothers," the freshman teams, will square off for their annual game. Later in the afternoon the Aggie senior class will hold its traditional "elephant walk."

Aggie officials have made extensive plans to care for the overflow crowd which will swarm the campus. As all rooms in hotels both at the college and in Bryan have been reserved for weeks, the Chamber of Commerce at Bryan, five miles North of the college, has canvassed the city for rooms available to rent during the Thanksgiving period. Lists of these rooms will be available both at the college and in Bryan. During year half, a dormitory, will be vacated by students to provide retirement rooms for ladies during the day.

The huge Aggie dining hall, one of the largest in the world under a single roof, will be open to the public from 11 until 1 o'clock, and officials estimate 5,000 people can be fed in it during these hours. The regular small number of public eating houses near the campus will be supplemented by a number of small "hot dog" stands. A new stadium entrance and parking area South of Kyle Field has been planned for convenience of fans coming from that direction. Huge 18-foot signs will be erected on both the new and old branches of State Highway No. 6 directing fans to this area. As the regular parking parking area on the college grid field also will be utilized, more than enough parking area will be available to all fans. Hundreds of these also will be distributed on each of the special trains during its trip to the college.
