Here's Betty!

Theres no particular reason for running this picture of Betty Garde here, except that there was nothing else to put up in this corner plus the fact that Betty is not hard to look at. In fact there was some kind of a bet made that you, who are reading this now, would be more interested in what Betty was doing here than you would, for instance, in the $2,000,000 fire four columns over. Now that you know why Betty is here, sniff over and read about what happened right after the man took that fire picture.

ADMITS KILLINGS

MAN CONFESSES THREE MURDERS ON HIS RECORD

Prisoner Says He'll 'Talk Later' About Texas Crime

BULLETIN.

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 2 (AP)—Utah moved swiftly today to return John W. Deering here to stand trial on murder charges that may result in execution before a firing squad or on the gallows. Convicted men have their choice of the two forms of death in this state.

DETROIT, Aug. 2 (AP)—John Deering, 39 who, according to homicide squad detectives, already has admitted killing two men and shooting a Portland, Ore., policeman, was questioned here today in connection with the Texas desert slaying last April of Mrs. Hazel Frome and her daughter, Nancy.

Detectives said Deering admitted killing Oliver R. Meredith, Jr., in a Salt Lake City, Utah, holdup last May, and another man whom he would identify only as "a dirty rat who deserved it."

Deering was credited with saying he also had shot a Portland Ore., policeman while escaping after a drug store holdup in Portland in June, 1936.

At a police show-up today, the prisoner, John Deering, 39, was asked "what about those two women in Texas?"

Deering replied: "I'll talk about that later."

Story Incoherent.

Detective Sergeant Squire Parkinson, who said Deering confessed that he killed Oliver R. Meredith Jr. in Salt Lake City because he needed Meredith's automobile for a robbery, said the prisoner had given no coherent account of his whereabouts in late March when Mrs. Frome and her daughter were tortured, beaten and shot near Van Horn, Texas.

Mrs. Frome, 46, and her 23-year-old daughter vanished March 24 while driving from California to Parris Island S. C., to visit relatives.

A few days later, their bodies

Better Late Than Never

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 2 (AP)—A Spanish-American war bulletin which a Minneapolis newspaper printed 40 years ago has been corrected.

On Sept. 14, 1898, the paper listed Jesse L. Stegner as one of the volunteers who died at Manila.

Stegner walked into the newspaper office the other day and said he was not killed. He said he has been too busy during the last 40 years to have the item corrected.

The paper, at Stegners suggestion, printed a correction.

PAMPA AGAIN ASKED TO AID FLOOD RELIEF

A new plea for funds to aid Red Cross relief and rehabilitation work in the Colorado river flood area came from Governor James V. Allred today.

Allred telegraphed mayors of various cities urging better response to a previous call for financial aid after Howard Bonham, at Austin, assistant Red Cross manager for Southwestern States, reported 2,720 families had been affected by the flood.

Pampa's response to a plea for donations to the local Red Cross chapter for use of victims in the Colorado river flood area has been unsatisfactory to date and Alex Schneider, chairman of the local chapter, today joined Governor James V. Allred in another plea for funds.

Anyone desiring to help flood victims may leave their donations with Mr. Schneider at the Schneider hotel or at the Pampa Daily News. Pampa's quota is $120.

"We are going to send that amount to the disaster fund if we have to take it from our local fund," Mr. Schneider declared this morning, "but we would rather have the amount in donations and save our money for local emergencies"

Bonham said the national organization had increased its appropriation from $10,000 to $25,000, pending the raising of $100,000 by donations. He added it was obvious Texas had not realized the seriousness of the situation.

Bonham said relief was being administered 1,000 families or approximately 4,500 individuals. In addition, 735 families need rehabilitation as well as emergency relief.

BIZARRE PLOT

INQUIRY OPENS AS DEATH RIDES ON OCEAN LINER

Professor Vanishes After Midnight Struggle

NEW YORK, Aug. 2—Federal authorities were conducting inquiry today into the Bizarre story of a midnight death struggle on the liner Normandie which ended in the disappearance of a young college professor and the serious injury of his wife.

Officers of the French liner reported that Dr. Robert Moore Duncan, 35, assistant professor of politics at Colgate university, had vanished at sea, 450 miles from New York, after attempting to throw his wife, Alice, overboard.

Mrs. Duncan, mother of two small children and daughter of an associate of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., arrived in the ship's hospital, bruised and beaten, and was secluded today in her parents' home in Montclair, N. J.

Dr. and Mrs. Duncan left June 25 for a North Cape cruise on the liner Paris.

Couple Appeared Happy

Henry Villar, the Normandie's purser, said they appeared happy on shipboard and ate dinner in their cabin on Sunday night, their last night together.

Then, strolling on the wind-swept boat deck, they started an argument which was overheard by Seaman Joseph Brouard, the purser reported.

"Duncan grabbed his wife by the throat," Villar said, "and hit her several times over the head, apparently with some instrument, knocked her unconscious and attempted to throw her over the side."

The seaman "went down in time to tear Mrs. Duncan from her husband's grip," Villar said. "He carried her to a companionway, put her down and then went back to see about Duncan, but the man had disappeared."

A search disclosed no trace of him. "When Mrs. Duncan was revived," said Villar, "the first thing she said was, 'get my husband. He is going to commit suicide.'"

Dr. Duncan, a Princeton graduate taught at Texas Christian university, Fort Worth, and the American university at Yen Ching, China, before going to Colgate in Hamilton, N. Y., in 1934.

As $2,000,000 Fire Swept Water Front

This little fireboat wasn't much good against the spectacular blaze that swept Pier D, largest docks of the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company at Vancouver, B. C. Destroying the pier, a heavily-stocked freight shed beside it and part of a ramp connecting a rail way station with the docks, the fire did $2,000,000 damage and threatened for a time to destroy the entire waterfront and the wholesale district bordering it. The section of the pier shown in the photo was a complete ruin a few minutes after the picture was taken.

WAR 'IN AIR'

MOSCOW SENDS NOTE WARNING JAP OFFICIALS

Soviet Tells of Possible 'Terrible Consequences

TOKYO, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Japanese government announced today its feces had repulsed a large-scale, two-edged attack by Soviet troops in the disputed area on the Siberian-Manchouquoan frontier.

A later communique charged that the Russians repeatedly were bombing Korean villages in the vicinity of Changkufeng, focal point since July 11 of Soviet-Japanese conflict.

Tanks, heavy artillery and warplanes were thrown into action this morning by the Russians, the war office announced, to clear the way for infantry attacks from the north and south against the changkufeng hill region.

The battle was the latest episode in a week end of fighting for the area Russia claims to be in Siberia and Japan holds to be in Manchoukuo.

Try Negotiations.

Meanwhile, the Japanese government undertook new diplomatic negotiations in the border dispute today, but official circles made it plain that Japan was prepared to fight if necessary.

Yesterday's attack upon Japanese positions on the Manchoukuo-Siberia frontier by a squadron of Soviet warplanes intensified the gravity of the trouble, which took precedence over all other matters of government.

"Japan's policy is one of non-aggression, but she will not tolerate invasion of her territory," said one member of an official group.

"However, despite fighting in China, Japan is capable of engaging in a major conflict with Russia. The Kwangtung army, which probably is the empire's best, still is intact, both in men and munitions."

Japan already has armaments warehouses, ammunition cached in the hills, and barracks which could house 250,000 troops. Military observers believe the Kwangtung army (guardian force of Manchoukuo and named from the Kwangtung leased territory, which was under Russian jurisdiction until the Russo-Japanese war) could fight for a year as an independent unit, almost without assistance from Japan proper.

MOSCOW, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Soviet government instructed its charge d'affaires to Tokyo today to warn Japan of "probable terrible consequences" of an invasion into Rus-

JITTERS GRIP 5 STOWAWAYS

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Cunard White Star liner Acquitania arrived with a small cargo of stowaways today—all of them suffering from "vibration jitters."

Three of the line's non-paying guests, Margery Robinson, 18, of Stillwell, Okla., Dorothy Newman, 17, of Pittsburgh, and Nancy Ciano, 17, of Cranston, R. I., stowed away on the last eastward crossing of the Queen Mary. They were soon discovered and placed in isolated quarters in the stern, over the propellers.

In Southampton they were lodged in a women's prison until the Acquitania sailed, when they were again placed in the stern.

Similar treatment was accorded the two other stowaways, James Nolley, 28, and Fred Nooney, 32, both of New York, who had stolen a ride on a previous voyage of the Queen Mary and who had served a month at hard labor in an English prison before being returned.

All were released except the Ciano girl, who was taken to Ellis Island questioning by immigration authorities.

MISSING GIRL'S BODY FOUND IN UNDERBRUSH

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Aug. 2. (AP)—Sheriff Seth A. Adamson early today said the body of a girl found in a clump of underbrush near St. Charles, S. D., had been identified as that of Betty Schnaidt, 17, Sioux Falls, who disappeared last Thursday night.

The body, bound hand and foot with heavy wrapping cord and with a towel knotted around the neck, was discovered about 50 yards back from the east short of Lake Berry, west of St. Charles.

The same night another 17-year-old girl, Dorothy Monahan, was clugged by an unknown assailant.

'DEAD' APPLICATIONS REMOVED BY P. W. A.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Public Works Administration, rescinding a $1,[illegible] grant approved for Boston, began "weeding out" inactive applications today. At the same time it approved 175 additional non-federal projects and brought total authorized construction since June 22 to $1,081,484,930.

The list of such cities whose applications are inactive in the sense that there has been little or no interest shown in using allotted money, it was said, might run as high as 50.

175 Ballots Cast in City Vote at 2 p. m.

Voting in Pampa's water revenue bond election was much lighter than expected with only 175 votes being cast up to 2 o'clock this afternoon, according to Election Manager J. S. Wynne. He was hopeful, however, that the total would reach 500 before the polls close at 7 o'clock.

Eligible voters are being asked to approve or reject the city's issuance of $165,000 in water revenue bonds as its share in a $260,000 water project which would include drilling of additional water wells south of the city, more storage, more and larger water lines and more fire protection through additional fire plugs.

The question has been causing considerable discussion but the vote up to 2 o'clock failed to show the interest anticipated. Qualified voters, persons residing within the city limits who have rendered real or personal property for 1938 taxation and who have a poll tax or exemption receipt may cast a ballot for or against the issue up to 7 o'clock tonight. The election is being held in the city commission room in the city hall.

One of the nation's largest bonding companies has agreed to purchase the bonds at a premium and at a low rate of interest. The bonds, according to law, would be redeemed through water revenue and not through taxes.

SNAKE STEAK ORDERED TO CELEBRATE VICTORY

BOULDER CITY, Nev., Aug. 2 (AP)—Two Michigan schoolmarams, who sailed 666 miles down the treacherous Colorado river past rapids and whirlpools, patted their copper-tanned cheeks with a powder puff today and ordered a victory dinner of rattlesnake steak.

The only women in history to complete the perilous voyage from Green River, Utah, to Boulder Dam, Elzada Clover, 40-year-old University of Michigan botanist, and her assistant, Lois Jotter, 25, arrived here with five men companions last night.

They came in three small, motorless boats—like Christopher Columbus—towed gently over the placid surface of Lake Mead by a launch after 43 days in the jagged gorges of the Colorado.

"I found only one girl, in a southern college who might be be classed as beautiful. Even she wasn't quite up to screen standards. Her coiffure was amateurish and her manner of wearing clothes was worse."

WALLFLOWERS FOR YOUR HAIR

Milady will have to be wall-eyed if she would live amid surroundings that flatter her beauty, according to the dictum of Stanley McCandless, Yale University lighting expert. At a recent wallpaper style show in New York he said that wall coverings should be carefully chosen to harmonize with hair and complexion. At left above, a blonde miss powders her face in a room hung in warm autumn reds and browns. Yellows are terrible for her. At right, paper in cool gray and pastel shades sets off dark hair and a warm, brunette complexion.

4. Is it good manners for beauty parlor operators to talk continually with each other while they are waiting on customers?
5. Is it ever excusable for a manager to call down an employee before a customer?

GINGER DRAWS SOMETHING BESIDES CROWDS

Ginger Rogers, who has been doing all right in the movies with her pretty face and figure and her dancing and acting, is also something of an artist along other lines. Recently she has been experimenting with various mediums in an attempt to find the one which best suits her particular talents—and above are shown two samples of her work. Left, a self-portrait done in crayon, and, right, a water color of Actress Katharine Hepburn. Miss Rogers is also trying her hand at sculpture. As soon as she decides which medium she prefers, she will hire a teacher.

FUNDAMENTALS OF LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURE DISCUSSED

The first consideration in ornamental planting is a good background. Where there is not one it should be gotten as quickly as possible. The planting of several trees will tend to cause more top growth, and a greater height in a shorter period of time. Some of these may then be removed when the desired height is obtained. A stately tree is to be desired for the background planting. This planting may be made in groups or singly.

Next in order of planting is the framing. The architectural style of the house will determine the type of planting. Framing plantings may be made singly or in groups. Large houses usually require groupings.

Where the horizontal lines prevail in the general architectural scheme, trees of a pyramidal nature should be used. Where perpendicular lines predominate trees of a spreading nature should be planted near the house. Trees for framing need not be planted on a line with the house but should be a little to the front of it.

Houses which are set close to the ground do not need a base planting. The lawn should extend up to the base with groups of plantings at the corners.

Where the floor is just high enough to admit of base plantings dwarf plants should be used, with larger varieties at the corners. Avoid plantings in front of windows which will become large enough to obscure a part of the light. The plantings should be sinuous in nature, extending out at the corners and inward toward the faces of buildings. Where the width of the bed permits tall plantings in the back and low ones in the front add to the approach a great deal.

Often a variety of evergreens are planted in beds, with varying colors of foliage. This is not to be recommended because they soon outgrow their position. A judicious selection of shrubs and broad-leaved evergreens gives a greater variety of flowers, fruits and foliage.

Simplicity Is Important

The lawn planting should consider the walks, drives and curves of the lawn proper. Too much planting should be avoided, leaving the lawn open and confining most of the plantings along the walks and drives using only trees and grass. Simplicity should be the governing factor.

For lawns with a depression in them plantings should be made along the edges of it rather than in it. This applies also to valleys.

Along the drives and walks plants should be planted that are beautiful under close observation. Ample space should be allowed for the plantings to develop in a natural way. These plantations should have something distinctive about them. Large trees should be set well back and smaller varieties set closer to the walks and drives. Along curved driver group plantings are to be desired, with lines of trees being used for straight drives. Straight lines should be avoided if possible.

Specimen lawn trees should be low branched unles it is desired to give a view beneath the trees. They should also be deep rooted to allow the lawn to grow. The larger trees should be kept toward the back and and smaller varieties set closer to point of view. Where a certain degree of privacy is wanted boundary plantings should be used. They should fit well into the scheme of already existing plantations. Where conditions are such that the surrounding should be considered as part of the regular scheme the belt plantings should be broken.

Boundary plantations should be more or less sinuous in nature which will produce the effect of greater space. The border should always be of greater depth at the corners and it is here that we should have greater height.

In border plantations the sky line should be considered. Where only trees and shrubs are used the border is usually flat. Trees should be used of good appearance and shrubs which can endure shade planted in the spaces. Bulbs may be interspaced to add greatly to the beauty of the border. Avoid bedded tulips but use a variety so as to present a continuous blooming season.

Base Planting

Things to avoid in base plantings:

One, beds of miscellaneous evergreens close to the house; two, the use of tall types of plantations to the exclusion of light; three, monotonous use of shrubs; four, plants whose foliage color does not harmonize; five, straight lines; six, tall plantings for low houses; and seven, small varities at corners with tall varities in the center or face of the buildings.

Foundation plantings serve to embellish and soften the lines of the foundation. These plantings avoid the appearance of a bleak foundation if high is usually lowered by the base plantings. Foundation plantings serve to break the corners and soften them. It adds to the appearance in the size of the properties.

To form the background of a small place three trees may be used; one immediately back of the house, and the other two on either side. The framing of the house includes clumps as well as trees planted singly. These are arranged in three sets or lines beginning near the rear of the house, the second just forward of the front line and the third about midway of the front lawn. These might serve a double purpose of framing and for specimen lawn trees.

At all intersections shrubbery should be planted consisting of evergreens and decidious trees. In the wide portions of the border plantation, evergreens and trees are used to improve the skyline. The border plantings are broken in front. This is also desirable. In all instances the design should avoid straight lines and monotonous plantings.

Specimen plantings as the name suggests are made to attract attention to them as individuals because of some unusual method of growth, or coloring of foliage. They are planted near drives and walks, but should not be planted where they will destroy the unity of the lawn. They should enhance the beauty of the landscape.

The arrangement of plantings should accentuate the view to some pleasing object beyond. The spacing of plantings should be so that they will not be stiff and regular. The careful selection of plants and the avoidance of straight lines surely add to the variety of plantings. Plantings should not be crowded. It is not necessary to use many different types of plants to secure variety in plantings. A few well chosen, well placed types are better than many poorly arranged and crowded plantings.

Fur Coat Stylists Get Down to Facts

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Fashion Editor

Fur coats for the winter of 1938 tell a fashion tale of common sense.

The recession and a spring strike of fur workers have focused the fur mart's attention on the more serious side of life.

Familiar pelts have been processed in new ways to produce smart coats at little cost. Many of the new coats are cut on straight box lines almost long enough to meet the hemline of the short skirts—a practical silhouette which adapts itself both to casual and more formal clothes. Fur prices have been cut approximately 25 per cent.

Among the new coats designed for the limited budget are a number fashioned of processed lambskin which its designers call "mouton" (the French word for sheep.) The curl has been removed from the fur and the pelts clipped, dyed brown and processed to resist water spotting. They resemble Alaska seal in color and beaver in depth.

Skunk has come to the forefront this season and is being worked ("let out" like mink) in colarless box coats and short jackets.

Black Persion lamb, caracul and Hudson seal are among the standard pelts that promise to be leaders. Brown Alaska seal and nutria also are in the picture.

Sunglasses Can Be Good Even If They're Cheap

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer

What's all the row about cheap sunglasses?

All sunglasses should serve one or both of two purposes, says Joseph S. Halpert, former president of the Guild of Prescription Opticians of America.

There are glasses for those who need visual aid and glasses for those who only want protection from strong sunlight.

If you need sunglasses for long drives or while you're using your eyes a great deal—or if you try cheap sunglasses and find that your head aches—you should get glasses with ground and polished lenses.

But there is no reason why you should not buy a cheap pair in which the glass may not be ground or polished—if you know what to look for and how to buy, Mr. Halpert explains.

"It's like a sale. Among the cheap glasses there are good glasses, here are also an awful lot of poor ones. You get quality if you know how to look for it."

How should you judge sunglasses?

There are four things to watch for: Strie—extraneous matter that keeps the glass from being clear, matter which may be found in expensive glasses, too, bubbles, distortion due to imperfect treatment of the glass, and inconsistency of color (one lens daker than the other, for instance).

Here's how to test sunglasses:

Hold them still and look at a light through them; move them up and down. If the object you're looking at moves around as it would in a Coney Island distortion mirror—don't buy. If, however, there isn't distortion (motion), if the colors of the lenses match and if the glass is clear, you're doing all right in your bargain hunt.

JAPAN FACING LOSS OF AREAS TAKEN IN WAR

SHANGHAI, Aug. 2. (AP) — The Japanese army is threatened with loss of effective control of areas captured since the war began July 7, 1937, a survey indicated today.

Continued resistance by the Chinese, ambush and surprise offensives by Chinese Communist and irregular armies, the Soviet Russian-Japanese border tension, and the need for all available forces in pressing the offensive toward Hankow are the reasons.

Reports from widespread areas show that the Chinese already have reoccupied many districts, sometimes without a fight after tactical withdrawals by the Japanese and frequently after the capture of small garrisons.

The reoccupations are scattered, however, and the Chinese appear not yet to have taken full advantage of the situation. There is some doubt whether the Chinese can press the advantage, or whether they must be content merely to continue to harass the Japanese and interrupt supply communications lines.

Starting with the initial Peiping clash, the Japanese during the last year drove Chinese armies out and nominally occupied Honeh, Shansi, Shantung, Kiangsu, Anhwei, North Honan and North Chekiang provinces.

Actually, however, the Japanese occupied only major cities and towns controlling railways and highways. The guerilla armies were left in smaller villages, and it is these armies that now are slipping into the areas in which Japanese have weakened their garrisons.

The Yellow River floods in June, foiling the Japanese offensive along the railway lines to Hankow, forced the withdrawal of troops in many areas to reinforce major port cities and communications centers — so that the present offensive could be started up the Yangtze River.

The Hankow offensive still centered today about Kiukiang, 135 miles down river from the provisional capital of China.

The Japanese command announced capture of Susung, 30 miles north of Kiukiang, and said Nippon forces were preparing to attack nearby Hwangmei.

Chinese were retreating from Hwangmei, the Japanese military spokesman said, and the Japanese now had a "very good highway on the north bank of the Yangtze to Hankow."

On the south bank, fierce fighting continued near Shuichang, ten miles south of Kiukiang.

RAINS BOOST TEXANS HUNTING PROSPECTS

AUSTIN, Aug. 2 (AP)—Bountiful rains since last fall and winter have boosted prospects for the new hunting seasons.

Will J. Tucker, secretary of the game commission, said a 30 per cent improvement in physical conditions of ranges and other facilities upon which game is dependent has been noted since last year.

Parts of Southwest Texas, still suffering from drought conditions, were exceptions.

He said large-scale abandonment of cotton acreage has been highly beneficial to game birds since much of the vacated areas has been turned into pasturage and grain fields, providing more food and cover for birds.

GILLSTRAP SPEAKS TO LAYMEN MONDAY NIGHT

Central Baptist Brotherhood met last vening in regular session at the church with Homer Johnson, first vice-president, in charge. The meeting was opened with the song, "I Need Thee Every Hour."

O. H. Gillstrap, the speaker of the evening, spoke on "Laymen's Obligation to his Church" in which he stated that the church is a distinct institution founded by Jesus Christ. We, the members of the church, are as spiritual stones in the building of the church and we are united into a priesthood in the church and as such our offerings are acceptable to God.

As members of the church we are obligated to prove to the church and others what the will of God is, and to reprove those that are not in accord with the church. It is our duty to maintain unity in the church, and there can be no unity where sin and unbelief prevails, Mr. Gillstrap added.

The speaker continued by saying that we are obligated to keep our church cleansed from effeminate and worldly trends; first, by endeavoring to aid and reprove the sinful and weak members before withdrawing from them.

Among other obligations mentioned, it was pointed out that we are obligated to see that sound doctrine is taught in the church, even our own church teachers and leaders do not always interpret the scriptures correctly.

Love which abounds in any true church is a singular thing and singles us out for our church and our God. The power of God as exemplified through our church enables even the nation to carry on. When the church fails the nation is sure to, the speaker said.

The laymen will meet again August 15 at 8 o'clock in the evening. All men are urged to attend.

FUGITIVES GET 60 YEARS EACH

LONGVIEW, Aug. 2 (AP)—Three fugitives from the Grayson county jail, captured near here yesterday after two running gun fights with officers, were sentenced to sixty years each here today by Judge C. E. McGaw, after they pleaded guilty to two charges each of robbery and theft.

Jack Geesling, Arthur Whitten, and Kidd Willis, who broke from jail at Sherman last week with Willie Umphress, still at large, entered pleas of guilty to charges of theft of an automotible from Mr. and Mrs. Ben Terry of Kilgore and to taking $15 from Glynn Brumley, sandwich shop operator.

They threw themselves on the mercy of the court, and Judge McGaw gave them 50 years each in the robbery case and ten years each in the auto theft case.

When the three were brought here yesterday the Gregg county grand jury was in session and swiftly returned indictments against them, as well as Umphress, only one of the four to escape after the second brush with officers.

After the speedy trial the three were returned to Sherman by Sheriff Benton Davis of Grayson county, who was waiting to take them back.

POLICY RACKET CHARGES MADE AGAINST DODGE

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP)—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey today named former District Attorney William C. Dodge, an active city magistrate, as having been involved in bribes or intimidations in connection with the late Dutch Schultz multi-million dollar policy racket.

In addition to Dodge, Dewey named Magistrate Hulon Capshaw and the late Magistrate Francis Irwin.

The naming of Dodge came as a sensation. Dodge, a former district attorney and magistrate, long has been a power in Tammany Hall.

A special detail of police guarded the crowded courtroom as J. Richard ("Dixie") Davis, former Schultz attorney and co-defenant with Jas. J. Hines, erstwhile powerful Tammany leader, appeared to enter his plea. They are accused of conspiracy in the policy racket.

Dewey announced last week that Davis had agreed to turn state's evidence and would appear as the prosecution's star witness.

After Dewey had filed the bill of particulars, Davis stepped forward and said:

"I plead guilty."

The charge was conspiracy and contriving a lottery.

In naming Dodge and the other two, Dewey asserted they had either been bribed, intimidated or "influenced" Hines and other defendants in the policy conspiracy.

The dapper Dixie Davis, surrounded by four detectives, appeared nervous as he entered the courtroom.

COUNTY SCHOOLS GET $8,574 IN RURAL AID

A total of $8,574 was paid by the state in rural aid grants and payments to the Laketon, Grandview, Schaffer, Alanreed and Pampa schools during the school session 1936-37 according to a report of Tom C. King, state auditor. The report was received yesterday by W. B. Weatherred, county superintendent.

Rural aid grants and payments for the same period totaled $55,000 for Lubbock County, $46,000 for Collingsworth, $460 for Carson, and $654 for Potter, Scholastics and valuation of the county are the factors determining the amounts given each county.

Of the Gray County total in rural aid grants, 2,223 was for salary payments, $1,558 for tuition, and $4,793 for transportation. Laketon, Grandview, Schaffer, and Alanreed's share of the total was in salary aid, of which Alanreed has the greatest amount $1,471. Pampa's share was $216 on tuition. Alanreed and Pampa have independent school districts, as does McLean. McLean's share was $1,342 for tuition aid.

For high school tuition aid Gray county schools received $1,528, with Pampa obtaining $73, Alanreed $200, and McLean, $1,255.

The report of the state auditor is for the biennium ended August 31, 1937, and is the latest published.

Market Briefs

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (AP)—Motors and steels led the stock market on a rebound today that, while lacking real momentum, put leaders up fractions to 3 points or more at the best.

While the volume was larger than that of yesterday — transfers approximated 800,000 shares—the comparative meagerness of the turnover in relation to the wide distribution of advances was a little discouraging to recovery proponents.

Coppers, rubbers, mail orders, specialties, and even the long-neglected rails, were accorded support.

HEADS BUMPED IN LABOR CLASH WITNESS SAYS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2. (AP) — Clubs, scrap iron, night sticks, tear gas and baseball bats all had a part in a clash between union pickets and vigilantes at Monroe, Mich., last summer, the Senate Civil Liberties Committee heard today.

Andy Hraback, a picket captain at the Monroe plant of Republic Steel Corporation, testified the pickets ripped their clubs from trees and gathered up iron from a nearby dump.

The vigilantes, said Police Chief Jesse Fisher, carried police sticks and "fungo" bats. None carried firearms, he said, but tear gas shells were discharged as the forces clashed.

After the fight, an incident in the "Little Steel" strike the committee is investigating, the vigilantes dispersed union pickets and reopened the plant.

Hraback testified that Chief Fisher ignored his offer to compromise after both sides had talked over long distance telephone to Governor Frank Murphy in Lansing.

Fisher, in rebuttal, denied having discussed the matter with Hraback.

VACATION PERIOD HITS POSTAL RECEIPTS HERE

The July vacation period was felt by the local postoffice when receipts showed a decrease from last July, Postmatser C. H. Walker revealed today. The quarter, to date, however, still shows an increase over the same period last year.

Receipts a year ago totaled $7,337.54 compared with $6,313.85 for July this year, a decrease of $1,020.69.

During July the postoffice department announced 60 additional blocks of carrier service for Pampa. Residents of the streets to be served—the Finley Banks addition, the section between Cuyler and Ballard streets from Brown to Reed, the addition north of the Cook-Adams additions—are urged to call at the postoffice and register for carrier service.

To be eligible for the new service, houses must show correct street number and have a suitable mail reseptacle, either a slot in the door or a mail box.

The new carrier service will become effective August 10 and residents are urged to file application for delivery immediately, Postmaster Walker said today.

FBI MEN QUIZ PAIR.

PINEVILLE, Mo., Aug. 2 (AP)—Two men, captured after an automobile chase last night, were held here today for questioning by FBI agents concerning a series of sluggings and kidnapings which began Saturday night near Kansas City and left a trail of crime through central and southwest Missouri.

Officers said both men gave the name of "Wilson," said they were not related, and admitted orally they stole an automobile last night in Joplin with the intention of going to Arkansas.

Sergeant George Kahler of the state patrol had said earlier the men might be Floyd Hamilton and Ted Walters, who last April escaped from the Montague County, Texas, jail.

"The two here said they had known each other only a little while. One of the men is six feet tall weighs about 165 pounds, has a mustache, black eyes and curly hair. The other is an Indian, weighs between 135 and 140 pounds and is five feet four," the sheriff said.

MARIHUANA BLAMED FOR MAN'S DEATH IN CHAIR

HUNTSVILE, Aug. 2. (AP)—Vince Boss, who blamed it on Marihuana but said he was "leaving with a clear conscience," went to his death in the electric chair at the state prison early today for the murder of R. W. Albert, Brenham cheese salesman, March 21, 1936.

Boss, twice convicted and found sane, was pronounced dead at 12:14 a. m.

He was tried in Dewitt and Caldwell Counties but the first conviction was reversed. He was indicted in Harris County and found sane at a preliminary trial.

MAINE SLAYING STORY REVISED TO SAVE YOUTH

SOUTH PARIS, Me., Aug. 2. (AP)—Special Prosecutor Ralph M. Ingalls, in his opening statement today at the trial of Francis M. Carroll, charged with a murder for which 18-year-old Paul M. Dwyer is serving a life sentence, asserted it was Carroll who kicked Dr. J. C. Littlefield, elderly physician, beat him with a revolver, and then drew a belt tight around the doctor's neck. Dwyer would thus testify, said the prosecutor.

Ingalls charged Dyer's life had been threatened and that both he and Carroll had been involved in improper relations with Carroll's daughter Barbara, also 18.

Dr. Littlefield, Ingalls said, would be quoted as telling Carroll: "I know the whole story now. Dwyer has told me all. If it is true, you belong is prison. If no one else will accuse you, I will.

Then, he said, Dr. Littlefield went upstairs, and Carroll followed. Dwyer, he said, would tell of hearing a groan and of running up to the bathroom. He said Dwyer would tell of finding there that the physician had been kicked, and of his own futile attempt to protect the doctor by striking at Carroll with a wrench.

But Carroll continued to beat the doctor, first with a hammer, and then with his service pistol, Ingalls said.

Dwyer gave Carroll some of Barbara's letters that night, Ingalls said, after his life had be threatened.

Dwyer will be the state's star witness, Ingalls said. In his confession, Dwyer said he killed the country doctor because he made disparaging remarks about "his girl."

SUN BLAZES DOWN ON RAIN-SOAKED ARMIES

THIRD ARMY HEADQUARTERS, DESOTO NATIONAL FOREST, (Miss.) Aug. 2—A blazing sun beamed today on opposing forces amassed in the South Mississippi piney woods as zero hour approached for mimic warfare on a vast scale close to actual warfare.

The sun's heat began to dry out thousands of troops soaked by the steady rain of the past few days. Pup tents were opened to the aid of vapor rose from drying khaki of more than 25,000 soldiers gathered for the third army maneuvers.

The opposing "blue" and "brown" armies studied their final orders this morning preparatory for the big push, expected at any time.

The problem devised by the war department specified that the "brown" corps after landing on the Gulf Coast with intention of marching toward the Mississippi river and to the west in order to "choke off" New Orleans, suddenly escaped and the "blue" defending force was marching on them from the north.

sian territory, a consequence of the most serious frontier fighting since the beginning in 1931 of a long series of boundary incidents.

Foreign military observers had viewed the current border trouble as likely to be only another of indecisive disputes when it started July 11, but the large scale battle over the week-end inspired a far more serious outlook today.

A Soviet communique said that more than 400 Japanese were killed or wounded, and 13 Russian soldiers wer killed and 55 wounded. (Japanese versions estimated Russian casualties at 600.)

Tanks, airplanes and artillery were utilized (Tokyo dispatches said 50 Soviet planes bombed Japanese positions), and the fighting centered about Changkufeng hill, on the Siberian-Manchoukuo-Korean border area, roughly defined and poorly mapped.

The Russians captured five artillery pieces and 14 machine-guns and lost a tank and field piece. One Soviet plane was brought down, the communique admitted, and the pilot who parachuted to the ground likely was captured.

SUMMER SOLUTIONS.

When you stop to think that if all the peace proposals that have been made in the last couple of years were dealt around among the inhabitants of the earth there'd probably be at least one for every man, woman, and child, you can't help but wonder if maybe after all it is man that makes war or some unearthly demon.

Among recent arrivals is the suggestion of a professor of philosophy that a woman be made secretary of war. Women, he says, are by nature more peaceful than men, and less likely to start throwing remarks and punches until it appears there's no other choice.

There also comes to hand news of a couple of young Englishmen who want to run a foot race around the deck of an ocean liner boat from England to America, thus running all the way between the two countries and demonstrating, they say, everybody's neighborliness under the skin. They write to an American magazine asking for the boat fare.

The most practical of the recent proposals comes from a woman who suggests that the best method of building up a thoroughly effective anti-war sentiment is for women of the world to start pounding the peace idea into the heads of the next generation while it's still in the cradle, and keep at it till it takes effect.

That, at least, gets a little closer to the root of the matter.

TAX NIGHTMARE COMING.

A year from now, according to slide rule calculations of a government economist, the national debt of the federal government will be in excess of 43 billion dollars—double what it was five years ago. For the fiscal year 1939, beginning July next, congress has authorized the expenditure of 12.5 billions, six billions of which will be "deficit financed."

Breaking this town down, it found that during fiscal 1929, the federal government will spend $1,027,397,250 a month; $34,246,575 every day; $1,426,940 each hour; $23,782 ever minute; or $396 every second.

So what! Soak the rich, you say? According to the government economist (who got his figures from a treasury report), only 43 people out of the 130,000,000 in the United States had incomes of a million dollars or more in 1937. Their aggregate income was 73 million dollars and if every penny was squeezed from them it would barely meet the government expenditures for 48 hours.

Once more we are forcibly reminded that taxes—and deficits—are paid in the sweat of labor by the average citizen.

Taking Tone Apart

From the Christian Science Monitor:

Did Stradivarius know? That is a question which even the oscillograph may fail to answer. But whether or not the master violin-maker of Cremona knew how he put the Stradivarius tone into violins modern research apparently is finding out what tone consists of. From this achievement to that of actually producing the tone should be only a few bowlengths. A report on the experiments of Poul Jarnak Danish natural scientist points out that once the wave form of a tone has been ascertained harmonic analysis reveals the distribution of sound energies among the fundamental tones and the overtones. It is this distribution that matters.

There long has been a legend about varnish, and many violin-makers have experimented with varnish in the hope of matching the "Strad's" tone. Others have considered that general workmanship—co-ordination of all the parts of the instrument—was more important, given, of course, suitable wood. What modern research apparently has not yet developed the courage to tackle the question of why a violin sounds the way it does when the boy next door. . . ! But one can see even Stradivarius shaking his head sadly in response to that question.

Tex's Topics

Original ideas come high on hot August afternoons when the mercury is resting around 101 in the shade. . . So why not play hookey from the column and let it be written by Alvin J. Steinkopf, a foreign correspondent for the Associated Press, who has just returned to Europe after a short vacation in America? . . . You must understand that Steinkopf has been working abroad so long that he feels more at home there than he does at home. . . Not until he revisited America did he realize how strange are the customs and appliances of his native land . . . So, when he got back to Europe, he wrote a letter to a friend here. It wasn't meant for publication, but's it's too good to pass up. . . Here it is:

In Chicago we saw a mechanical cocktail shaker. This marvel of American ingenuity is a complicated set of chromium arms which grab the shaker and agitate the liver out of it. The saving in wear and tear on the bartender is astonishing. . . In a Randolph shop we saw the underwear with secret pockets in most extraordinary places. They're designed to fool pickpockets. . . We rode a streamlined train, the conductor of which said: . . . "Give me a Model T any day . . . Now you seem to be in a hell of a hurry to get to Minneapolis, but what's the good of it? When you get there you'll just waste all the time you are saving on these nice seats."

* * *

In Wisconsin we saw my father, who said: . . . "What the world needs is a good grasshopper plague. If folks had something real to worry about they would stop bellyaching about trifles." . . . In Minnesota I met girl cousins who have stopped drinking because they are saving all their dimes for the slot machines. . . In Milwaukee I asked about a salty old friend whose job it is to go down into elogged sewers to see what is impending progress. . . . "He's in the sewer," I was told by the foreman, "but if you'll wait until he gets to the Walnut street junction, I'll telephone him." . . . And so I learned that, in amazing America, it's impossible to escape telephones even in a sewer. I suppose my salty friend could talk to ships at sea from the Walnut street junction.

* * *

In Milwaukee, also, I visited a managing editor who said: . . . "One doesn't have to be crazy to hold my job—but it helps a lot if one is." . . . I detected a curious change in my uncles. Five years ago they were bragging about their expensive automobiles. Today the greatest virtue is to have the cheapest car in the neighborhood, and to tone down life to the tempo of the five-cent cigar. . . In St. Paul Aunt Laura said: . . . "The trouble with my daughters is that they never had to go barefooted. I guess that's why they waste their money on these silly sandals with not enough leather in 'em to cover the toes."

* * *

And to the Morrison hotel and its ingenious direction must be credited the solution of that old and urgent problem: . . . "When is it time for the house to buy a drink?" . . . It's done mechanically. When a red star shows on the cash register you get your money back. With a mechanical smile. . . We are in Hungary now, discovering paprika, the pusta, parboiled politics, and cockroaches in the apartment.

This Would Be a Nice, Neighborly Suggestion

Sharing the Comforts Of Life . . .

By R. C. HOILES

Defining the Competitive System

One of the reasons we continue to attempt to lift ourselves by our bootstraps is that we are confused as to what we mean when we use the expression, "the competitive system."

When we properly understand the expression, it will be realized that a free competitive system has actually never existed. All we, or any people, have ever done is to attempt to approach the free competitive system. In this country, until a quarter of a century ago, the free competitive system had been farther removed from Socialism, or Imperialism, than in any other country.

The free competitive system is not commercial warfare, as the Parlor Pinks and theorists contend it is. Competition and war are really opposite concepts. In warfare, an attempt is made to over-power the enemy by superior force; on the other hand, an essential element of FREE competition is that no one of the competitors has power to coerce his fellows, and each is left to do only that which he chooses to do with the ability he has in the light of the circumstances, which are substantially the same for all concerned.

In short, free competition is not warfare, as claimed by "pseudo-economists," but exactly the reverse. "It is nothing more or less than voluntary cooperation with emphasis on the word 'voluntary'," as E. C. Harwood points out in his new book, "Current Economic Delusions". Harwood further wisely explains, "Now, it is obvious, I think, that free competition, or voluntary cooperation, cannot exist in a society which tolerates slavery. People can be said to cooperate voluntarily only when they are wholly free (as far as the circumstances of life permit) to cooperate in the manner and to the extent that they consider desirable.

"This raises the question, when is an individual free, in the sense that we are using the word? We can begin to answer this question by observing that the first essential of freedom is that the individual has a right to himself, at least to the extent that this right does not conflict with the equal right of others. In passing, it should perhaps be noted, although this right is generally conceded, it does not rest on an indisputable foundation. . . .

"Chattel slavery has long been considered a violation of the principle of personal liberty and the right to self. It happens, however, that the connecting link which justifies this viewpoint toward chattel slavery is more frequently overlooked than remembered. Slavery may, and frequently has, involved physical restrictions upon the movements of the individual concerned. This has been the more spectacular aspect of slavery, but as a matter of fact it is only incidental to the vital issue. In many places and times, physical restraint has been entirely unnecessary. The slave was satisfied with his lot, and would not have run away, even if circumstances had made it easy for him to do so. Chattel slavery is therefore not a violation of the principle of liberty because of physical restraint, because that is not always present, nor because of forced labor, because the circumstances of life itself force most people to labor. The vital factor which makes chattel slavery a violation of the principle of liberty is that some of the fruits of the slave's labor are permanently taken from his control and used for the benefit of others than himself. In other words, his self, to the extent that it has been incorporated in wealth, his congealed labor, as it were, is taken from him, thereby denying his right to himself.

"It is clear that whenever one individual or group is placed in a preferred position, in other words when special privileges are created and maintained by custom in the social group, or by statutory law, there is inevitably an interference with free competition. One man or group can enjoy a special privilege only at the expense of others, and that of course means depriving the others, whoever they may be of some portion of themselves. For a part of the time that they labor, they are really performing an act of involuntary cooperation for the benefit of someone else."

The competitive system then is one that attempts to prevent all special privileges and permits each individual to trade his services without interference by laws or customs to the highest bidder for them. In other words, under conditions approximating freedom, the competitive system permits each individual to receive a part of the national product of wealth, not in proportion to his needs, but in proportion to the effectiveness of his efforts.

UNCLE SAM OPENS QUIZ OF COLORADO FLOODS

AUSTIN, Aug. 2 (AP)—H. W. Bashore, U. S. reclamation bureau engineer, today began an investigation of the Colorado river flood.

The study was ordered by Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes at request of lower Colorado valley farmers whose crops were seriously damaged by overflows.

Around Hollywood

By HERTRAM MILLHAUSER

HOLLYWOOD.—I never go back to Paramount on a new picture, and see old friends, and hear old voices, but I think of Hattie. Hattie did hair on the lot, in the days when Gloria Swanson's coiffure was "fearfully and wonderfully made." She was colored, and an artist in her line. So much an artist that Cecil de Mille wanted to put her under contract.

I was in O. B.'s office when Hattie bundled in, with a legal blue document in her hands. She was an ample woman, all smile and chunk; but Cecil's office stopped everybody, it was so deep and dark and wide.

"'Mis' de Mille, 'bout dis yere contrac'," she hesitated.

"What about it?"

"'Mis' de Mille, Ah don' un'erstan' it."

"What don't you understand about it, Hattie?"

She shrugged, an apology and a plea. "Dis yere 'pahty ob de firs' paht,' an' 'pahty ob de secon' paht—'"

"Oh, that." He smiled. "That's easy. I'll explain it to you. Party of the first part, that's me. See? And party of the second part, that's you. Understand?"

She grinned through an attentive gravity. "Say no mo', Mis' de Mille," she beamed. "Cos all Ah got to say is, if de pahty ob de firs' paht ain gonna be good to de pahty ob de secon' paht—dere ain' gonna be no pahty!"

We were working on "Feet of Clay" then. We went on location to Catalina for the opening shots of the picture. Scrambling out of the bus at the St. Catherine, everybody piled into the lobby, to snatch up the best rooms. I saw Hattie, left behind, and hopelessly trying to negotiate four suitcases with two hands. I helped her in.

That night I met her in a corridor of the hotel. I think she was waiting for me. "Boy," she said, in a kind of solemn voice, "you ain't nevah gonna have t' wish fo' luck: you's got luck!" The way she said it made my scalp tingle.

That was back in '24. More than a year later, C. B. parted company with Paramount, and sent for me to join him in New York. Mrs. Millhauser and I packed hurriedly, gathered up our children, and started east. Our trip across the continent—including a train change—clear into New York was regal. Actually, Royalty was never more pampered, more cockered up than we were. Somebody had sent on word to look out for us. We were important people. Boy! It was grand, being important. A whole train crew dancing attendance.

When my wife could stand it no longer, she asked: "Who told you our name was Millhauser?" and the hovering waiter just smiled and said: "Hattie tol' us yo' was comin'."

Good old Hattie. Beautiful Hattie. She knew all the Pullman porters in town, and she'd sent out word about us.

She's gone, now, to a better world. And probably suborning celestial porters for favored angels.

Book A Day

By BRUCE CATTON

"It's the truest book that was ever written.",

This, from the widow of one of those old-time "country doctors," is about the finest praise one could find for 'Dr. Arthur E. Hertzler's "The Horse and Buggy Doctor" (Harper and Brothers: $2.75), a saga of the rural practioner.

That "the same account might have been written by countless thousands of old country doctors," Hertzler admits willingly. His book is not so much an autobiography as it is a history of medicine as practiced at the turn of the century, and on to today. It is a far cry from the days when the physician's pistol, wireclippers, shovel, and lantern were as important accessories as his instrument and medicine case, to this age of elaborately equipped offices and hospitals, but Hertzler encompasses it with the same ease he has shown performing operations in farmhouse kitchens.

It is the "human touch", however, which the "horse and buggy doctor" gives his story that provides its greatest appeal—the little anecdotes of patients and cures, of patients and failures

All in all, it is a worthy tribute to those doctors who worked withought thought of pay, without thought of self, so that a little of the world's suffering, both mental and physical, might be eased.—T. J. H.

How's Your Health?

By IAGO GALDSTON, M. D.

Peptic ulcer is a quite common and frequently disabling disease. The condition is always painful, and at times leads to the serious complications of hemorrhage, performation (the wall of the stomach or small intestine is broken through) and peritonitis.

The origin of peptic ulcer still remains undefined. However, there are a number of interesting and significant indications as to its possible and probable causes.

It appears that under peculiar circumstances certain portions of the lining membrane of the stomach and duodenum may become so affected that the gastric juices exercise a destructive digestive effect upon them.

In other words, some sections of the lining membrane do become susceptible to the digestive effects of the juices.

But what is the nature and the origin of the "peculiar circumstances" that render the mucous membrane susceptible?

In 1931 Harvey Cushing reported that persons suffering from cerebral tumors may develop acute and perforating ulcers of the stomach. This related disturbances in the central nervous system to the morbid condition of peptic ulcer.

Much effort since has been devoted to investigating this tie between the brain and the upper digestive tract. The field has not as yet been thoroughly explored nor are all its problems resolved.

A substantial number of experimental findings, however, point to the hypothalamus, a specific structure of the brain called "the seat of the emotions," as the important nerve center involved in the ulcer morbidity.

Intimately connected with the hypothalamus is the important gland of internal secretion, the pituitary.

The joint functioning of these two may bring about those changes in the mucosa of the stomach and intestine which render it susceptible to the digestive action of gastric juices and lead ultimately to the formation if peptic ulcers.

This hypothetical mechanism accounting for the development of peptic ulcer is particularly interesting because it suggests the way in which emotional strain so often associated with peptic ulcer may operate to produce this morbid condition.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Pampa Daily News Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, August 2—The Roosevelt "purge"—or the effort to keep reactionaries from "stealing" the Democratic party from the people, as New Dealers call it—is going sour.

Defeat of Congressmen Maury Maverick and W. D. McFarlane of Texas has tipped the balance sheet of the party primaries against the President.

McFarlane may win in a runoff, but Maverick is licked and becomes the first of "my friends" to be turned down by voters. His defeat is the worst primary blow to the administration to date. He was leader of the House Democratic bloc and hero of the whole New Deal group.

SOME WINS—
SOME LOSSES

Here's the rest of score: New Deal Senators Claude Pepper of Florida and Lister Hill of Alabama were renominated. Roosevelt's endorsement is widely credited with saving Senator Thomas in Oklahoma. Henry Hess, with administration support, was renominated against anti-New Deal incumbent in Oregon. Gov. Floyd Benson, Farmer-Laborite and New Deal pet, was narrowly renominated in Minnesota. Montana's Congressman Jerry O'Connell won as a New Dealer attacking Senator Wheeler. Pro-administration Senator Bob Reynolds won again in North Carolina without administration help.

But Senator Guy Gillette won in Iowa against bungled administration effort to beat him. The McNutt machine in Indiana, to bolster its strength and attract conservative support for McNutt, renominated Senator Van Nuys, anti-administration leader in the Court plan fight.

Illinois Democrats nominated Congressman Scott Lucas, wage-hour bill foe and no New Dealer, over Jim Farley's choice. Pennsylvanians turned down Farley's last-minute choice, Tom Kennedy, in the important gubernatorial primary. South Dakota Democrats nominated Tom Berry over the somewhat more New Dealish Senator Hitchcock.

BARKLEY VICTORY
VITAL TO NEW DEAL

No senator endorsed by Roosevelt has been beaten, but so far F. D. R. hasn't asked any senator's defeat. With pro-New Deal Senator McGill of Kansas and anti-New Deal Senator Clark of Missouri about to be renominated, renomination of Senator Barkley in Kentucky seems vital to the New Deal. The Aug. 9 primaries line up as follows:

ARKANSAS: Quiet, unobtrusive Senator Hattie Caraway, first woman ever to serve a full Senate term, is opposed by Congressman John L. McClellan. Mrs. Caraway voted for the President's reorganization bill and McClellan against it. Roosevelt recently made a rear platform appearance with the senator and patted her on the back. Gov. Carl Bailey seeks re-election, opposed by Judge R. A. Cook of Little Rock.

POPE FACES
TEST IN IDAHO

IDAHO: Completely New Dealish Senator James P. Pope, whom the President wants returned—according to Farley's public statement—is opposed by sitting Congressman D. Worth Clark, who voted against reorganization. Pope's foes charge him with "rubber stamping". Don Callahan, popular mine operator and probable Republican nominee, may give the Democratic victor trouble in November.

NEBRASKA: Gov. Roy L. Cochran, seeking renomination, probably will be opposed in November by Speaker Charles J. Warner and perhaps by former Gov. Charles W. Bryan running as an independent.

BULKLEY AHEAD
IN OHIO POLLS ....

OHIO: Scripps-Howard Newspaper polls, usually reliable, indicate renomination of Senator Robert M. Bulkley, who has Roosevelt's blessing, labor support, and opposition from former Gov. George White, who has condemned C. I. O. More exciting is the Democratic gubernatorial race between Gov. Martin Davey and National Committeeman Charles Sawyer, well-to-do corporation lawyer, supported by labor.

The Roosevelt administration hopes Davey loses—polls indicate he will—but Davey seeks to fasten Roosevelt coat-tails to himself. Sawyer charges graft.

Former Attorney General John W. Bricker will get the G. O. P. nomination unopposed while Supreme Court Judge Arthur H. Day and Robert A. Taft seek the Republican senatorial nomination.

Thermometer, Ballyhoo, Valves, and Steam

BY BRUCE CATTON

A useful thermometer to test the temperature of the voting public would seem to be the amount and the nature of the ballyhoo used by candidates in their campaigns for office. When the ballyhoo is wild, woozy and effective, the public's temperature is up; when it becomes semi-respectable, or fails to register with the electorate, you can assume that John Citizen has nothing in particular on his mind.

Judging by recent primaries, the voter's temperature right now is up—and, maybe, going higher.

Hillbilly bands, wholesale pension promises, appeals to every crackpot ism and cureall in the politician's lexicon—all of these things have characterized the ballyhoo of this summer's campaigns. In some states they have worked, too. As a result, we are due to have a sprinkling of more than ordinarily untamed demagogues in Congress and in divers gubernatorial mansions next year.

Now it should not be in the least surprising that the electorate is suffering from a slight fever. After what the American people have been through in the past decade, an above-normal temperature is only to be expected. The point to bear in mind is that the attack of fever is, after all, relatively mild.

For although the summer's campaigns are tossing some queer fish to the surface, they are not bringing up anything really dangerous. There is no slightest sign of the formation of one of those unthinking mass movements on the European pattern which might sweep across the country and put our institutions in peril. Widespread discontent does exist, but it is not hardening into a deadly, indigestible lump.

The reason for this is obvious. The free-and-easy democratic processes which permit demagogues and crackpots to have a field day every so often are the very things which act as safety valves for discontent. They permit people to blow off steam. They bring the self-appointed Messiahs out into the open early and force them to expose themselves in action.

So there is never enough steam generated to blow off the cylinder head. Before the pressure gets too high there is an outlet. And while we do get saddled with some rather weird public officials, we don't develop these fanatical bands of do-or-die extremists who want to tear down the whole works.

Democracy is inefficient, as its critics complain. Its inefficiency is clearly visible in some of this summer's campaigns. Yet that inefficiency is in some ways the best thing democracy has to offer. It is the "play" which keeps the machinery from getting too tight and burning out a bearing.

YOU AND YOUR Nation's Affairs

Real and Bogus Income

By GUS W. DYER

Professor of Economics and Sociology, Vanderbilt University

The President in a recent fireside "dissertation" read a comparison between the national income in 1932—the worst year of the 1929 depression—and the probable national income of 1938—the first year of the present depression.

"In 1932," said the President, "the total national income of all the people in the country had reached the low point of 38 billion dollars in that year. This year 1938, while it is too early to give more than an estimate, we hope that the national income will not fall below 60 billion dollars." The inference is that if the national income reaches the President's hopes in 1938, it will be 22 billion dollars greater than the national income of 1932.

In comparing the national income of 1932 with the national income of 1938, the President overlooks two things vital to such a comparison. The depressed condition of business in 1932 was probably as much due to the fear created by a change in national administration as it was to the economic depression of 1929. The fear of radicalism is more deadly to business in this country than an economic depression. Business has demonstrated the fact over and over again that it can lift itself out of any type of economic depression under constitutional industrial freedom. But American business is always helpless under radical political domination and control. Hence the depression continues.

The second vital consideration ignored by the President in comparing the national incomes of 1932 and 1938 is the fact that the 38 billion dollars income of 1932 was measured by 100 cents gold dollars. The national income of 1938 is measured by a 59 cent (and a fraction) dollars, based on faith alone. In making a comparison of values, the length of the yardsticks used is a vital matter. The President seems to forget this.

In 1932 every dollar held by anyone had a market value, independent of the government, of 100 cents in gold, because every dollar was redeemable in gold. The New Deal dollar designated as having a value of 59 cents plus a fractior is not redeemable in anything. National income measured by such an ethereal dollar as this, at best must be accepted with extreme caution.

But suppose we give this 59 cent dollar full credit for its value as declared by the administration, what do we get in comparing the national income of 1932 with that of 1938? Since the New Deal dollar has a value of less than 60 cents as compared with the gold dollar of 1932, 40 per cent of the estimated national income of 1938 must be subtracted in order to make the comparison intelligible. When this essential subtraction is made, the 60 billion dollars income of 1938 is brought down to 36 billion dollars, or two billion dollars less than the low income of 1932.

Since the administration has increased the national debt more than 15 billion dollars in order to get the country out of the depression, this must now be recorded as a national liability. If we add the 15 billion dollars' loss to the two billion dollars' loss in national income in 1938 as compared with 1932, we find that we are moving back instead of forward at a hazardous rate of speed.

In using national income as a measure of industrial progress and prosperity, it is well to remember that it is only the income that represents goods of value produced or services of value rendered that can be counted properly. A very large part of the New Deal income is made up of the income of the great array of public officials whose services are of very questionable value. A large part of this income counted is made up of money borrowed and spent on government works that will bring no return whatsoever in material values. How much of our income is real and how much is bogus is difficult to determine.

FLOOD WATERS SWEEP THROUGH MATAGORDA

MATAGORDA, Aug. 2 (AP)—The town of Matagorda, at the mouth of the Colorado river, was flooded today in the worst overflow in history. Water stood from eight inches to several feet.

"Water is about three inches higher than in 1899 when the dam broke above Austin, flooding towns all along the Colorado," said G. T. Kilbride, manager of the Bay City and Matagorda Telephone company. He added that the crest had not been reached here and that two more inches of water is expected.

Motorboats and skiffs were used to take groceries and other supplies to homes. It was virtually impossible for cars to operate.

Meanwhile points upstream reported conditions improving, except at Bay City where the Colorado rose several inches during the night. It was reported virtually at a standstill there today.

At Wharton, water was receding but most of the town still was under water. Work of clearing the streets was started by about 50 WPA workers, who moved forward as the water fell.

Indians Drop 2½ Games Behind Leading Yankees

Unranked, but No Longer Unsung

Elwood T. Cooke, left, of Portland, Ore., turned in a tremendous surprise by defeating Frankie Parker, right, 7-5, 6-2, to enter the semi-finals of the Seabright, N. J., Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club invitation tournament. Cooke, unranked nationally and unseeded, is one of nine who will spend the balance of the season under the supervision of Walter L. Pate, American Davis Cup captain. Parker, second seeded and No. 3 nationalist, starred in sharing the cup singles burden with Don Budge a year ago.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Since early this season, one of the big questions concerning the American league race had to do with the staying qualities of the Cleveland Indians, the team that always had cracked up before.

Would the Indians "have it" in the clutch? asked the fans.

So far Oscar Vitt and his men have picked up their fair share of the chips, but there's another of those important clutches at hand.

The Indians, now 2 1-2 games behind the leading New York Yankees as a result of yesterday's ten inning, 11-8 defeat by Washington, face their toughest rivals in the next seven games. The third-place Boston Red Sox, who trail the tribe by only three games, open a four-game series at Cleveland today and after them the Yanks move in for three games.

If Cleveland can walk off with a good share of these games, it has a fine chance to take the lead. For after these clubs, the Indians will be tackling such rivals as St. Louis and Detroit while those tough easterners will be fighting among themselves.

Detroit's Tigers were threatening to become dangerous, winning eight games in a row to climb to fourth place. But they were checked abruptly by the Athletics in yesterday's only other game, going down 4-0 and slipping to fifth place, a half game behind Washington.

The National league also comes in for its share of action in the next few days when the New York Giants and Chicago Cubs, second and third respectively, and only 2 1-2 games apart, tangle in a three-game series. The Giants made a last-minute effort to plug the biggest gap in their lineup yesterday when they bought Chalmer (Bill) Cissell, veteran second sacker, from Baltimore. A smart fielder and fair hitter, they hope he'll fill Burgess Whitehead's shoes. Lou Chiozza and Alex Kampouris, who tried unsuccessfully, both are on the injury list.

BILL TERRY BUYS CISSELL FOR SECOND BASE STRENGTH

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP)—Bill Terry, charming boss of the New York Giants, took the news very lightly last spring that Burgess Whitehead, crack second baseman of Bill's championship clubs of 1937 and 1937, had undergone an operation for appendicitis.

Bill thought Whitehead probably would recover in plenty of time to start the season, and, anyway, the Giants had too much pitching and other things to need to worry about one man.

Today as he watched his lads stagger along five games behind the Pittsburgh Pirates, Bill knows better. Whitehead reported too soon, pulled something loose and has been lost to the team since the first of the month.

Lou Chiozza proved so erratic and weak-hitting as a replacement that Terry sent the slugging Wally Berger and a chunk of cash to Cincinnati in exchange for the renowned Greek, Alex Kampouris. Alex also proved something of a bust at the keystone, and now comes 34-year-old Chalmer Cissell to the polo grounds in a last despairing effort to pull the champions' infield together.

The Giants bought Cissell from Baltimore yesterlay for an unannounced sum, but probably in the neighborhood of $35,000. Cissell first saw the big leagues 10 years ago and whether he will be an improvement upon Chiozza and Kampouris is strictly a gamble.

Cissell never could hit. In 1928, the year after the Chicago White Sox purchased him for $123,000 in cash and players from Portland, he hit an extravagant .260, which by 1931 had dropped to .220. Right after that the Sox finally admitted they had been stung and traded him to Clevealnd. Later he saw service with Boston and the Athletics.

His fielding, though brilliant at times, was spotty.

All Stars Sign Eight Players

DALLAS, Aug. 2 (AP)—Eight players are on the roster of the Southwestern collegiate All-Stars for a clash here Labor Day night with the Washington Redskins, National professional champions and Game Director James Stewart hopes to have at least two All-Americans before he finishes lining them up.

He has Joe Routt of Texas A. & M., who made the All-American at guard, and now he's seeking Whizzer White, Colorado University's great back. Stewart says White probably will play if he gains permission from the Pittsburgh professional team with which he signed yesterday.

Stewart yesterday secured Virgil Jones, Texas A. & M.; Lewis Jones, Texas Tech; Glynn Rogers and Mason Mayne, Texas Christian, are guards. He previously had signed Hugh Wolfe, Texas University back, and Quarterback Jack Robbins and End Jim Benton of Arkansas.

A crowd of between 10,000 and 12,000 was forecast.

DUNCAN WINS DENVER POST TOURNAMENT

DENVER, Aug. 2 (AP)—Those hard-hitting Cementers from Duncan, Okla., doffed their red uniforms today and collected fist money awarded in the Denver Post baseball tournament.

The Sooners, runnersup last year and winners of six games at this year's meet without a defeat, captured the title by shellacking the Denver Lakesiders, 13 to 2, last night behind four-hit pitching by Leslie Munns, big righthander who once toiled for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Oklahomans scored three runs in the four, two in the fifth and three in the eighth. Their only close games in the tournament were an 3-7 victory over Ogallala, Neb., and a 10-9 victory over the Borger, Texas, Hubers.

Wind Handicaps Tennis Greats At Southampton

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 2. (AP)—If that strong wind keeps blowing off the ocean, almost anything may happen before the end of the 48th annual invitation tournament at the Meadow club.

The wind was blamed for most of the strange things that occurred in yesterday's opening round, but occupied with the inability of many of the favorites to adjust their games to the unusual conditions was the fact that almost anyone in the starting field of 66 is good enough to create an upset now and then.

To start the ball rolling, two of the ten seeded players were eliminated in the first half hour of play. Bobby Herman of Oakland, Calif., No. 6 on the list, took a crushing love set from Archie Henderson, he Chapel Hill, N. C., newcomer who had scored one notable previous victory in beating Wilmer Allison at Spring Lake, N. J., a couple of weeks ago.

Then the fourth seeded player, Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., conquerer of Allison and Frankie Parker and runner-up to Bobby Riggs in last week's Sea Bright, N. J., tourney, took a 6-3, 8-10, 6-2 beating from Robert Kamrath of of Austin, Tex. Cooke's sound ground strokes figured to be just the thing on a windy day, but he couldn't control them against Kamrath's dashing net game.

Heving, Harris Go To Red Sox

CLEVELAND, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox have purchased Pitcher Joe Heving and Jim Harris from the Milwaukee Brewers and Buffalo Bisons and, says Manager Joe Cronin, "We aren't ready to concede a thing to the New York Yankees."

The hustling shortstop announced the deals last night. The newcomers are to report here.

Heving, a former Cleveland righthander, has enjoyed fair success with Milwaukee in the American association, having won eight and lost the same number.

Harris has won 10 and lost three games for Buffalo in the International circuit.

"While we waited," Louis said, "a call came that someone was speeding down the highway and the arresting officer told us to wait while he chased the other 'victim'."

Joe paid a fine of $5 and costs, then came to suburban Lakewood where his Bombers last an intercity tilt, 2 to 1.

Teams Down to Finals In JCC Softball Playoffs

The playoff series in Pampa's two softball leagues can end tonight or play can be carried over another night, depending on the outcome of the two battles at Recreation park, beginning at 8:15 p. m. When each league has declared a champion, the two will meet in a series with the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce cup at stake.

Tonight's schedule will be:

8:15 p. m.—King vs. Cities Service.

9:30 p. m.—Mack & Paul Barbers vs. Diamond Shop.

King and Mack & Paul are undefeated and wins for them tonight will clinch them places in the playoff which will begin tomorrow night. Should one of the unbeaten teams lose tonight, another game will be required to decide a winner, double elimination play being featured all the way. A loss for both teams would necessitate both playing tomorrow night.

Cities Service rode into the finals in the Industrial league last night with a 14 to 6 win over Danciger while the Diamond Shop eked out a 4 to 3 win over Gray County Creamery in the City league section.

Gray County Creamery jumped into a three run lead in the first inning and held it until the fifth when the Diamond Shop ran three runs across the plate after putting one score on the book in the fourth. Misjudged fly balls and a couple of juicy errors mixed with a brace of base hits put the jewelers in front where they stayed.

Gowen went the route for the jewelers and after the first inning allowed only four runners on base. O. Stephens was behind the plate. Barfield hurled nice ball for the creamerymen with Dickinson behind the plate until the fifth when he retired with a badly sprained ankle. McAnally finished the game.

Score by innings:

Creamery	3	0	0	0	—	3	5	3
Diamond Shop	0	0	0	1	3	x	—	4	6	3

Batteries: Gray County Creamery, Barfield and Dickenson, McAnally, Diamond Shop; Gowen and O. Stephens.

Cities Service made their 14 runs on 11 hits off Patrick while Muncy and Campbell yielded eight. Muncy, starting pitcher, was wild and had to be relieved by Campbell who hurled nice ball.

The winners scored three runs in the first but saw the score tied and passed before they were able to chalk up four more in the fifth. J. Mitchell, playing centerfield for Danciger, came up with the prize play of the series when he came in fast to make a shoestring catch of Halbig's line drive over the infield with men on every base.

Timely hitting by Morgan and Grover Lee Heiskell put Cities Service in front in the fifth and they were never headed.

Score by innings:

Cities Service	3	0	0	4	3	—	14	11	3
Danciger	0	2	2	0	—	6	8	4

How Ambers Would Like to See Him

MISSIONS AND OILERS STILL BATTLING FOR LEAGUE LEAD

(By The Associated Press)

Pitching worries put San Antonio's Harry Kimberlin in the limbo of the missing last night but two other Texas league hurlers surveyed the scene with mingled satisfaction.

Kimberlin, who has the lowest earned run average in the loop and whose record shows eleven wins and nine losses, departed for parts unknown yesterday. Club officials expressed belief he left for his Missouri home because he was discouraged after losing to Dallas Sunday night when his mates didn't give him what he considered proper backing.

Meanwhile, San Antonio's Bill Trotter closed in on leading Max Thomas of Tulsa in the hurling race, chalking up his seventeenth win of the season. Thomas has eighteen, failing to make it nineteen by losing to Shreveport, 3-2, last night.

At Houston Morton Cooper, right-handed fire-ball artist, held a modern league record for consecutive scoreless innings. He ran his string to 34 before Oklahoma City broke the ice. Cooper had 28 one-third innings before he started the game and stretched the streak by 5 two-thirds. However, he didn't win the game, the Indians downing Houston in both games of a double bill, 4-1, in 12 innings and 5-0 in seven.

League-leading Beaumont beat Dallas, 4-1, scoring all their runs by the unearned route. Dixie Parsons had a field night, with a double, a homer and a single.

The Missions spotted Trotter five runs in the first inning as they downed Fort Worth 10-3. He gave up but six hits, four of them coming in the ninth.

Baugh and White May Oppose Each Other on Oct. 2

PITTSBURGH Aug. 2 —This sports-conscious city, already broken out in a rash of baseball "pennantitis," buzzed today with talk of another championship—in football.

While Pie Traynor and his bustling Bucs held their five-game lead in the National league baseball race, Byron (Whizzer) White agreed to put off his Rhodes-Scholarship career long enough to score a few touchdowns for Pittsburgh's National football league Pirate—and accept $15,000 for the season.

Results of White's acceptance of the fabulous offer were these:

1—Art Rooney head of the Pirates, and Coach Johnny Blood predicted at once the Buccaneers would be the team to beat in the National football league race

2—The Philadelphia Eagles had postponed their opening game with the Pirates, scheduled for early September, but word came yesterday they might be reconsidered because of the crowd White would be expected to draw.

George Marshall, owner of the champion Washington Redskins, wired Rooney:

"Congratulations. Now how about hiring the Pitt stadium on October 2 for the battle between the Whizzer and the Slinger (Sam Baugh). That should fill the state of Pennsylvania."

WINS HARD WAY.

SAN JOSE, Calif., Aug. 2 (AP)—Robert Jensen, 22, San Francisco racing driver, wins his races the hard way. In a 10-lap event Jensen's auto skidded at the finish line and tossed him out and over the line and then bounced over the recumbent driver. Neither car nor driver suffered serious damage.

SERIAL STORY

MYSTERY AT THE LAZY R

BY CLARKE NEWLON

COPYRIGHT, 1938 NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

NIKKI JEROME, heroine; blond, popular, is engaged to six-foot, black-haired

STEVE MALLORY, hero; who is accompanying her on a trip to Nikki's aunt and uncle on a Wyoming dude ranch. Nikki's father, PETER JEROME, is a wealthy New York jewel merchant.

* * *

Yesterday: Nikki and Steve see Sarto in the valley and then they recall the shot they had heard earlier.

CHAPTER XI

THEY waited, hidden on the hilltop, and watched the man below as he picked his way across the valley and started to climb the mountain opposite them.

"We can't be vary far from camp," reasoned Steve. "Sarto wouldn't take a chance on getting back to the camp alone if he wasn't very sure he could find his way."

"We can follow him," said Nikki.

"As long as we keep him in sight," said Steve. "But I don't think much following will be necessary. I have a feeling we won't have to go farther than over that hill."

They waited a moment until they were hidden from Sarto's view by his own progress, and then they began their descent into the valley. Steve led the way to the spot where they had first seen him.

There was a sharp declivity into a short ravine that had been gouged out by some prehistoric glacier. Sheltered by the brush, it wasn't visible from the hilltop, and they were almost upon it before they saw it. It's rocky course ran possibly 50 yards.

"Nikki," said Steve as they approached the edge. "It's barely possible our friend Sarto might come back. Suppose you wait behind this clump of bushes and keep watch while I explore this ravine. Maybe we can find out what he was doing here."

Nikki waited, feeling that Steve was much more afraid of what he might find in that ravine than of Sarto's return.

Steve walked cautiously down the incline, his eyes searching the surface of the depression below him. As he reached the bottom he turned to his right and followed the ravine to that end but found nothing. It was scarcely ten feet across at the bottom, irregularly rocky and pitted where rains had dipped into formations softer than the rest.

He turned and started for the other end of the gully. He stepped on a dead limb and the sharp crackle startled him. A buzzard circled slowly overhead, wheeled in the cloudless sky and was joined by two of his black fellows. The sun glinted brightly on something ahead and the sharp reflection caught Steve's eye.

He stepped around a thorn-limbed bush and stopped abruptly as he came upon the body of Wade Bancroft.

* * *

HE was lying face downward, his arms flung forward, one almost a pillow for his head. His legs were twisted oddly under him, as though he had made a supreme effort to turn when the bullet had struck him—in the back.

After the first shock of surprise, Steve examined the still form carefully. Bancroft had evidently died almost instantly. The bullet had struck him in the left side of the back and if it had not penetrated the heart, it must have been very close, Steve decided. There was no sign of a struggle and the rocks left no story that he could read, but it didn't seem to Steve that much deduction was necessary.

"But why Bancroft?" he thought, and then his instincts told him to waste no more time there.

His eye caught the shadow of the impatient vultures sailing with the wind currents overhead, and he stripped off his own jacket to cover Bancroft's head and shoulders, weighing the edges down with rocks. The he hurriedly cut brush and made a rude shelter that he thought would last for several hours.

Nikki greeted him with obvious relief and questions unspoken.

"Bancroft," he said briefly. "Shot through the back."

Nikki gasped. She had been prepared for other things but hardly that.

"Bancroft," she repeated. "But Steve, why?"

Steve shook his head.

"Don't know. I was afraid it would be Fiske." Nikki nodded. The same fear had possessed her, but now a companioning dread drove out every other emotion, every other thought. What had happened while they were away? Oh, she was such a fool. Why had she done it?

"Steve," she said. Her mouth was dry. Words were hard to form. "Uncle Jim and Rance—" Her eyes were questions enough.

Steve shook his head. "I don't know. But I wouldn't worry about them yet. They're not babes in the wood."

* * *

DEAR God. And she had let them all come on this trip without a warning. Bancroft was dead. The shock of that discovery almost made her forget his menacing—to her—part in this strange drama. Her mind went back to her father and to the meeting on the train. The soft words of Bancroft with their metallic, dangerous undertone. Sarto the bodyguard. Bodyguard. Her own thoughts startled her. Of course.

"Steve," she cried. "That money must be locked in the cabin at the ranch."

"Men have been murdered for less," he said. "That's why we'd better get back to the camp." What might happen to anyone trying to stop Sarto, Steve didn't like to think, let alone mention it to Nikki, but she was thinking too.

"Won't he try to get back to the ranch and get away with that money?"

"I expect so." Steve was sure of it. Sarto had killed one man. And that "accident" on the trail, Steve was sure now, wasn't an accident. Even to an inexperienced horseman like Sarto, it must have been obvious that a sharp kick would send his horse surging forward and that gravity would do the rest.

"Steve, let's be careful."

"We will be." He glanced at her reassuringly.

* * *

THEY were walking on now, following the unmarked path that Sarto had taken to the top of the hill. It was still early. Nikki wondered what time yesterday Woody had reached camp with word of the landslide. He couldn't have known for sure that they were safe and had not been buried under the slide. She knew they would start searching immediately. Uncle Jim and Rance must be nearly crazy, she thought.

They reached the top of the hill and the camp spread out below them, an eighth of a mile away. Smoke arose from the fire in front of the cabin, but there was no sign of life.

"Sarto is there somewhere," said Steve. "We'd better circle a little and come up from the left. There's more cover that way."

They made their way down the hillside and toward the camp, picking their path carefully and trying to keep the trees and brush between them and the clearing, but there were many open spaces where there was no cover. Still there was no sign of life. The camp looked deserted.

Then as they came cautiously from the last fringe of trees, Sarto stepped from behind the cabin. His right hand held a stubby, wicked automatic.

"I thought you'd be coming along," he said. "Move on over near the fire. Don't try any funny business. We're playing right up my alley now."

He patted the pistol.

"This is a baby I know something about. I don't miss with it."

ADMINISTRATION HOPES FOR M'GILL IN KANSAS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2—(AP) The Roosevelt administration hoped today to balance the expected renomination of Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri with an overwhelming primary victory for Senator George McGill of Kansas.

These were the only two Democratic senatorial contests in four statewide primary elections, which provided few out-and-out tests of the President's policies.

Clark opposed the court bill and various other White House measures, but administration advisers took for granted his defeat of two New Deal supporters because he had the backing of both Democratic factions in his state.

J. P. MORGAN, THIRD, IS RECOVERING IN INDIANA

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 2 (AP) — John Pierpont Morgan III, 21-year-old scion of one of America's most famous banking families, was convalescing today from an appendectomy which cut short his study of middle western agricultural conditions as a farm laborer.

Stricken while working incognito on the 100-acre Omer Addison farm near Knightstown, Morgan was brought here last night for an emergency operation. Hospital (St. Vincent's physicians) described his condition today as "still good."

The name "volcano" was applied first to Mount Etna and some of the Lipari Islands, which were regarded as seats of Vulcan, the god of fire.

STATE ISSUES FIRST IN VIRGINIA PRIMARY

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 2 (AP)—State issues overshadowed national today in West Virginia's primary election in which voters nominate six candidates for seats in Congress, members of the House of Delegates, the state Senate and scores of county and local offices.

The six incumbent congressmen, all candidates for re-nomination, are Democrats. Three are unopposed.

Highlighting the campaigns of those with opposition was that in the heavily industrialized first district of the northern panhandle, where Attorney Frank Haymond of Fairmount sought the seat of Rep. Robert L. Ramsay.

Haymond, like the other candidates, did not make the New Deal an issue, but Ramsay said in a speech in Haymond's home city that the issue was whether a representative supporting the President would be returned to Congress. All six representatives have been supporters, in the main, of Mr. Roosevelt.

'SEEING-EYE' DOG HITS SNAG AT LONDON DOCK

LONDON, Aug. 2. (AP)—The British government refused today to admit without quarantine the dog which blind Hazel Hurst, 22, of Aneonta, New York uses as a guide.

The American arrived yesterday aboard the liner American merchant and stated she would refuse to leave the vessel without "Babe," her German shepherd dog.

"I am ready to go back to America if I can't take my dog ashore," she said.

"We have every sympathy with Miss Hurst," a ministry official said, "but we cannot deviate from the regulations. If we made an exception in her case, it would be a loophole for others."

MANY THINGS OF INTEREST IN News For Farmers

WORLD WHEAT RECORD

The greatest world wheat crop in history is predicted this week for 1938-39 by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

The bureau announced that prospective world wheat supplies, excluding Soviet Russia and China, are estimated at 4,850 million bushels this year or about 475 million bushels above those of last year.

The 1938-39 world production is tentatively placed at about 4,200 million bushels which is 375 million bushels above that of last year. If present prospects materialize this will be an all-time record for world wheat production.

The largest previous world wheat crop was in 1928 when 3,996 million bushels were produced.

RAILROADS MOVE WHEAT

Railroads of the nation are establishing records in the transportation of winter wheat to the market, according to an announcement by the Association of American Railroads.

'In one week 9,714 cars were handled at Kansas City, a new record," the statement says.

The huge volume of grain received at this central point in the winter wheat movement forced mills and elevators to work overtime in the unloading of cars.

Western roads began two months ago to store cars to move the wheat crop. Fifty thousand cars were moved into the winter wheat territory.

FLOUR FOR RELIEF

Plans to purchase a million barrels of wheat flour for relief distribution as part of the program to help move surplus wheat into consumption has been announced by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

This is the equivalent of about 4,500,000 bushels of wheat.

The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation reports that $54,000,000 was spent in the fiscal year just closed to divert price-depressing crop surpluses from regular commercial channels.

More than one billion pounds of foodstuffs were given to relief clients and an average of more than two million families a month received such aid.

CO-OP SALES GAIN

Sixteen thousand farmer's cooperative associations are doing $2,750,000,000 worth of business annually, the Farm Credit Administration reports.

This is an estimated increase of $1,400,000,000 since 1932.

Everything from bee cattle to spinach is being sold through 7,500 marketing associations.

And through 2,600 buying organizations farmers are purchasing gasoline, oil, machinery, fertilizers, food, clothing and other supplies.

MEAT INSPECTION

Extension of Federal inspection over interstate meat shipments by farmers, retail butchers, and retail dealers is announced.

Authority is provided in a recent amendment to the Meat Inspection Act. The chief immediate effect will be to bring under Federal control a considerable traffic in veal which heretofore escaped any form of inspection.

AVERAGE FRUIT CROP

Fruit prospects indicate an average corn crop this year it is reported by the government.

The relatively low buying power of consumers suggests that prices to growers may not be much improved over prices received for the large production last year.

KING TAKEN OFF HIS YACHT IN ROW BOAT

SOUTHWOLD, Eng., Aug. 2 (AP)—For the first time in many years the King of England landed in his domain today in a rowboat.

George VI landed in this humble fashion from the yacht Victoria and Albert, aboard which he on a holiday cruise, in order to visit his boys' camp here.

The boys, 400 of them, mobbed him in their enthusiastic reception. The monarch wore gray shorts, tennis shoes and an open-necked shirt when he jumped from the rowboat manned by two local seamen.

SCOUT TROOP ENDS VACATION

Thirteen members of Boy Scout troop 18, Phillips camp, Scoutmaster Laverne Courson, Edward Bloomer of troop 19, Walter Parker, troop 16 committeeman, Ferrel Heard, Bill Abernathy Sr., and W. J. Dewey, driver of the bus used in transporting the party, returned Sunday from a one-week outing in Colorado and New Mexico.

Visits to historic spots, mountain climbing, swimming, and fishing were events on the trip. The party arrived in Trinidad on July 24, stopped at Glenbrae lodge where they caught several trout.

Hills along historic Stonewall Gap, and to the crest of Mt. Culebra, elevation 14,039 feet, where the boys had a snowball fight, were among the next day's activities.

The party fished at Bear and Blue lakes, hiked up La Veta peak, elevation 14,100, climbed Mt. Blue, 13,000 feet, visited San Luis, oldest town in Colorado, and drove to Lake San Pablo. At the lake the boys caught 150 small perch between noon and night. The boys swam in the lake. Swimming on the trip was in charge of Ferrel Heard.

On Saturday the party broke camp and drove through Carson National Forest, then on into Taos, N. M., Santa Fe, where they saw the palace of governors and old churches, then saw cliff dwellings and drove to Las Vegas where they camped for the night.

Santa Rosa, Conchas dam, Tucumcari, and Amarillo were places visited by the group on the return trip into Pampa Sunday.

Members of troop 18 making the trip were Karl Rippel, Robert Modrell, George Earle, and Jim Edwards, Bill Abernathy Jr., Ray Enochs, Everett Sparks, Stanley Huckaby, Murray McPherson, Bob Delver, Melvin Howe, and Rex Lee Jones.

CRITICS LUKE-WARM AT SHAW'S LATEST VEHICLE

LONDON, Eng., Aug. 2 (AP)—The critics weren't much impressed today with George Bernard Shaw's newest play, in which he places fanciful caricatures of Hitler, Mussolini and the Spanish Insurgent, Franco, on trial before a court of international justice.

"The jokes are familiar," and the play was a "remarkable combination of high spirits and long windedness," said the Daily Mail.

"No discernible story," and "Shaw all over," the Express thought of the 82-year-old dramatist's offering, entitled "Geneva" and presented at Malvern for the opening of a four-week dramatic festival.

Signor Bombardone, in a toga and the imperial purple of Rome, is the Italian premier in Mr. Shaw's presentation; the German leader is one Herr Hitler, garbed as Lohengrin; and the Spanish general is named "Franco," dressed in white military uniform.

HARLAN LABOR JURY FAILS TO SETTLE ISSUE

LONDON, Ky., Aug. 2. (AP)—The federal government and the defense in the eleven weeks Harlan anti-labor conspiracy mistrial spent an estimated $350,000 without a decision whether a conviction is possible on a criminal violation under the Wagner labor act.

Court attaches made the estimate after Federal Judge H. Church Ford late yesterday discharged the hopelessly deadlocked jury which had deliberated 9 hours and 53 minutes.

Brien McMahon, chief of the government counsel, announced today that Federal Bureau of Investigation men would go back into Harlan County immediately to stay until the next trial. He said the number was uncertain but that it would not be the same crew that conducted the pre-trial investigation.

When the jury was discharged McMahon moved for an immediate retrial. Judge Ford set September 17 at Lexington as the time he will hear the government motion.

Thirty-nine individuals, many of them former peace officers and 16 corporations were tried on charges unionization of the Harlan coal that they conspired to prevent fields under the labor act.

STATE'S RIGHTS TEST WELCOMED IN IOWA

NEWTON, Ia., Aug. 2 (AP)—Gov. Nelson G. Karschel today welcomed a test of state's rights in a controversy between him and federal officials over his order closing the National Labor Relations Board hearing into CIO union charges of "unfair labor practices" against the Maytag Washing Machine Company here.

The governor declared in Des Moines "I was fully aware of the rights of all parties. There will be no labor board hearings in the military district of Iowa without our permission.

"If they (Labor Board officials) want to test out the principle of states' rights, here is a damned good place for them to do it."

The governor, acting under martial law ordered the hearing closed Saturday because he said its continuance might tend to delay a settlement of the Maytag company labor controversy.

The dispute developed three months ago when CIO workers refused a 10 per cent wage cut.

GERMANY PUTS OUT CAR FOR WORKING MAN

LEVERKUSEN, Germany, Aug. 2. (AP)—Dr. Robert Ley, German labor leder, announced today that beginleader, announced today that beginworker could save for a so-called "people's car," or volkswagen.

Special savings accounts, he said, would be opened on the basis of a minimum deposit of five marks (about $2 weekly). Announcement will be made later as to how much each prospective buyer must save before a volkswagen will be turned over to him on the installment plan, Dr. Ley said.

"In ten years from now there won't be any working man in Germany who doesn't have or can't have his car," he said.

Ley said the car would cost 950 marks (about $380), would have a speed of 62½ miles per hour, "On the super highways," and would operate about 40 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

MISSOURI VOTERS END BITTER CONTEST TODAY

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 2—(AP) Missourians stepped into voting booths today to select senatorial, congressional and state office nominees after the state's most bitter Democratic primary campaign in years.

While charges and denials of WPA political coercion reverberated United States District Attorney Maurice Milligan at Kansas City assured Gov. Lloyd C. Stark the full cooperation of his office and the federal bureau of investigation to prevent any WPA activity.

The charges were injected into the heated Democratic fight by Gov. Stark in his battle with T. J. Pendergast, Kansas City organization "boss" over a state supreme court place. Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator, investigated and announced he had found no evidence to spport the accusations.

KENTUCKY GETS ELECTION HEAT

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 2 (AP)—Approximately 200,000 Kentucky Democrats are eligible to give the ballot test to President Roosevelt's influence on behalf of Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley.

Governor A. B. "Happy" Chandler, the Senator's opponent for the party nomination, was back in the thick of the battle today after his illness from a stomach ailment, diagnosed by two physicians as "poisoning" from drinking water, with claims of gains in supporters.

Saturday is primary day with the voters doing the deciding.

All nine of the state's congressional seats are up for refilling and the Republicans will nominate too—but no one would know there was anything on the ballot except the names of Barkley and Chandler.

The campaign is one of the most hotly contested in the long history of sweltering Kentucky campaigns. Both candidates have spared no adjectives in denouncing the records of the other.

So hot were remarks about the use of federal and state monies from both Chandler and Barkley that a federal investigation was ordered. Barkley said Chandler had "intimidated and coerced" persons on the old age pension lists. Chandler reported Barkley had been doing the same thing to WPA workers.

HILO PUT UNDER GUARD IN WATER FRONT RIOT

HILO, Hawaii, Aug 2—(AP) More than 130 officers armed with riot guns and tear gas today patrolled the streets of Hilo, left tense by a water front riot in which 36 persons were injured.

Prominent business men were among 56 men sworn in as special deputies and assigned to guard strategic points, particularly territorial property, after the fiercest clash in Hilo's recent labor history.

The steamer Waialeale sailed after unloading her cargo, cause of the riot which reached its height when police fired on longshore pickets. Members of the national guard who were among the demonstrators showed their military training by picking up tear gas bombs and hurling them back at police.

One longshoreman was stabbed in the side with a bayonet, several persons were peppered about the head with buckshot and many received head injuries yesterday in a blood encounter betwen police and some 500 waterfront strikers and sympathizers.

WILL FDR NOT ELECT TO RUN?

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—Eleven years ago today Calvin Coolidge uttered one of the most famous sentences of modern politics:

"I do not choose to run for President in 1928."

The reverberations caused by the cryptic announcement have died with the passing years, but on the anniversary there is argument once more over the issue behind the statement—a presidential third term.

Some politicians predict Franklin D. Roosevelt will seek a third term in the White House in 1940. Others declare he wil not. Some say they will support him if he does. Others contend he could not win.

Only last night Senator Lewis, Democrat, Ill., a Roosevelt follower, said a bid from the President for renomination would destroy the Democratic party. He added, however, that he believed Mr. Roosevelt was "not such a man as to present himself for a continuous third term."

Senator Smathers, Democrat, N. J., on the other hand, said his one remaining political ambition was to help re-elect Mr. Roosevelt because "there is no one big enough or strong enough to carry on for him."

"Conservative and reactionary forces" of both parties, Smathers said, are backing Vice President Garner, but he expressed the belief Garner would not let his name be used "in a scheme to scrap the humane progress of the New Deal."

Senator Holt, Democrat, W. Va., and some other anti-Roosevelt Senators expect to present a resolution next winter voicing disapproval of a third term. A similar resolution was adopted by the Senate in 1928, a few months after Coolidge had issued his "I do not choose" statement.
