Legion To Fete Ex-Service Men

That the American Legion will sponsor a mass meeting of all ex-service men at the Legion Hall Tuesday night, March 16, at 8 o'clock was announced today.

The Legion plans to have as its guests every ex-service man in the county who will attend and the object of the meeting will be to bring over old times and getting acquainted. Dinner will be served to the members and a short program will be included in the affair.

An effort will be made to get every ex-service man in this section to attend," Riley Dunson, commander, said. "We hereby extend an invitation to everyone of them to come to an evening of entertainment."

April 1 Last Day To Register Cars

April 1, 1933, is the final date for registration of motor vehicles. Registrations made by April 1, will not carry penalties," Mr. Anderson said, "but after that date a penalty will be added to all licenses issued on vehicles which have not been driven prior to April 1 of this year.

This does not mean that those who have not used their cars at this time before the date they ask to register will have any penalties, as there is no change in the law, and a car can be registered for the balance of the year pro-rata part of the license fee if it has not been driven during the current year before the registration."

Government Equipment Is Received By Rifle Club

Churches Not Hindered By Moratorium

Church donations for Sunday, March 5, held up to their usual amounts, despite the fact that cash funds were limited throughout the county, according to announcements today. One Church reported that their donations last Sunday exceeded those of past weeks and all of the churches were of the opinion that donations were not off. None of the churches reported the discovery of I. O. U.'s in the collection plates, but several said that checks were received as donations.

Two Men Forced To Pay Fines On Truck Operation

Two truck drivers were fined $73.50 here Tuesday afternoon following their arrest by Ed Pryor, constable and W. B. Renfro, State Railroad Commission official. The two drivers were charged with operating trucks over the public highways of the state without displaying license tags for the current year in the regular places on the front and rear of their trucks. Several other cases were investigated by the two officers.

Experiments Of Past Week Indicate Prisoners Will Be Employed To Work Roads Of This County

County prisoners were disturbed from the restful solitude of the local jail and placed to work on the county roads this week in accordance with a plan now being considered by the commissioners court, according to the announcement of County Judge Luther Gribble today. "Since the prisoners are allotted $1 a day by the county for their board and room, the commissioners decided to hire them from the jail at the rate of $1 a day to work on the county roads. Through this method we hope to cut the jail expenses by about 50 per cent. During the past year $3,800 was spent on prisoners and jail funds by the county. The dollar which the prisoners earn from the road fund will be used in payment of their keep at the jail." This new method can be applied only to prisoners held on misdemeanor crimes and necessitates the hiring of a guard to watch over the prisoners, who work under the supervision of the county commis-

Following the receipt of government equipment this week, Lee C. O'Neil, secretary of the Rex Rifle Club, announced today that work would go forward immediately upon completion of plans for the club. This week two .30 calibre rifles, two .22 calibre rifles, ammunition, gallery targets and Hollifield outfits were received by the local club, which has had a requisition in for these items for the past nine months. The delay in the arrival of the equipment was due to a cut in the government allotments for such items and to the fact that there are 1600 rifle clubs in the U. S. and the Wellington club was forced to wait their turn before the equipment was issued. At present there are 37 members of the club, including: George T. Corry, Austin O'Neil, Lee O'Neil, Riley Dunson, W. Y. Burden, A. B. Smith, R. L. Tension, J. L. Hopkins, John F. Bevers, S. E. Larson, Ed Pryor, W. C. Seaberry, W. H. Braswell, Bob Moon, J. G. Highway Work Shows Increases

Despite weather conditions and general business drops during the past week work on the highway under construction across this county continued with several additions made on the pay rolls of the contractors. Eighty-six men received checks from this source last week and as the work progresses, it was indicated that men will be gradually increased from week to week. The greater portion of the work is taking place on the north project of the road and the highway leading north is blocked off past the northeast town section. Work is also progressing nicely on the south project and it is expected that this project will reach a higher peak of progress this week as the grading and drainage construction gets underway.

Junior Play Scores Hit As Outstanding School Drama

Before a crowd of 200 persons the junior class of the Wellington High School presented their annual class play Tuesday night. The play was possibly the most outstanding dramatic presentation of the Wellington schools for the past year and was accepted at 100 per cent value by the audience. There is no denying that there have been better actors than appeared in the play, "A Peach of a Family," but there certainly never was a group of amateur actors that felt more at home on the stage than those appearing in the junior presentation, which probably accounts for the enthusiasm shown by the audience for the play. Hugo Hauter as the ne'er-do-well nephew of a rich uncle, played his part well. He assumed just the correct air of nonchalance—and carried it throughout the play. Possibly the outstanding scene of the entire play, a portion which never entered the author's mind, was created at the hands of Hugo, who entered the stage in a short dressing gown. In accordance with his part, Hugo started to sit down in a chair—and the bottom of the dressing gown flared up a little too much. Hugo made a desperate grab for the garment and his action, which was almost frantic, set the audience in an uproar of laughter. That one incident put the entire audience and cast at ease, and after that the group would have laughed no matter what the cast did. Freeman Moore, as one of Hugo's friends, was also well played. Council Calls City Election

An election for the purpose of selecting a mayor and two aldermen will be held in Wellington, April 4, according to an election notice issued by the City Council. Officials whose terms expire on this date are W. W. Neely, mayor, E. C. Scott, alderman and J. S. Dorn, alderman. The election will be held in the county court room at the courthouse. The Council also voted to transfer $1,500 from the general fund to the bond and warrant fund and to transfer $500 from the general fund to the meter deposit fund. As an explanation it might be stated that the general fund is the fund out of which running expenses are paid, and that a transfer from this fund to the bond and warrant fund means that much money has been applied to take care of indebtedness. In other words $2,000 has been set aside as a reserve out of the earnings of the water department. Other routine business was the appointment of the Collingsworth Standard as the official paper of the city for the next fiscal year, and the payment of bills.

Members Of Snell Bible Program At Class

Members of the B. F. Snell Bible Class met Tuesday evening for an oyster fry, which was preceded by a class program in which leading church workers of the city were invited to participate. Rev. D. W. Simpson, pastor of the Nazarene Church, gave a studied and eloquent address on the necessity of a remedied church problem as a remedy for the

People Spend Hoarded Money As Banks Close

Wade Arnold, postmaster, has received an old fashioned, large size $5 bill, the type was called in by the government upon the issuance of small size bills three years ago. The post office has also received a $20 gold piece that dates back to 1881. Ralph Ball was also flashing two $2 bills, a variety that has been out of circulation in this section for ten years. If the moratoria were to hold out long enough financial heads say that money which has not circulated here in years will be fished out of the old socks and put in circulation.

Mr. Walker and Hugh Hairgroves were felling an unusually large cottonwood tree on the W. L. Browning place, when the tree fell unexpectedly and a limb knocked Mr. Walker into the canyon, where he was injured by sharp pointed rocks. He suffered a broken nose, his wrist was broken and three ribs were torn from his spine; he was also badly injured. (Continued on Page Ten)

Applications For C. M. T. C. Work Available Here

Clark B. Anderson, C. M. T. C. chairman for this county, announced this week that he had received blanks for entrance into Texas training camps this summer. Mr. Anderson also stated that if any boys in this county planned to attend the camps that they should make their applications as soon as possible due to the fact that the number might be cut short this year because of less appropriation than in past years. The camps offer a one-month course in military training to boys between the ages of 15 and 20 years without cost. The camp at Fort Sill will be held from July 3 to August 2. All transportation charges are paid by the government for boys who are accepted and attend camps within their area.

VERSATILE MR. REVERE

Paul Revere is known to fame chiefly because of his historic ride from Boston to arouse the "minute men" on the night of April 18, 1775, before the engagement with the British at Lexington and Concord. But, aside from this notable exploit, he was an uncommonly active and versatile citizen.

He had taken part in the Boston Tea Party, and became a lieutenant-colonel during the Revolution, after serving as lieutenant of the Crown Point expedition of 1756, during the French and Indian War.

In civil life he displayed a variety of talents which a recent biographer thinks entitles him to be known as America's first "jack of all trades." He was a goldsmith, a copper roller, a dentist, an engraver, a powder manufacturer, a maker of picture frames, a hardware merchant and, deplorable as it may seem, a seller of hard liquor.

Documents recently made public by his great-grandson include bills of lading showing Paul Revere would a consignment of rum at 60 cents a gallon, also gin at a proportionately low figure. This same great-grandson now heads a copper business founded by his distinguished ancestor, which still bears the name of Revere, in Boston.

But Revere's chief pride seems to have been in his dental skill, and he once sent a circular to prospective clients, which would be considered highly unethical today, in which he said, referring to his teeth: "He fixes them in a manner that they are not only out of real use in speaking and

NEGRO CAN'T BE FIRED

Present tendency to refuse employment beyond middle age has no terrors for John Hyland, a Harlem negro, who has his life job as "superintendent" of the theatre in New York.

John has been an attendant of the Empire State building for many years, but the memory of man runneth not to the contrary. He was on duty opening doors of carriages for prominent playgoers before John Drew, Maude Adams and Ethel Barrymore became stars.

When limousines took the place of carriages, old John opened limousine doors. Through the years he was the soul of politeness and obliging service. But finally advancing age made it necessary to replace him with a more active man as door opener. And started manager let was not thrown into the contrary, he was promoted to the position of "superintendent," which is ordinarily, and none at all, a job that would feel like working.

Furthermore, it was provided that each new lease of the theatre contain a clause that John shall retain his job, whether he is able to work or not.

And old John is still as obliging and polite as of yore. To each new manager he explains: "Ah goes wid de lease."

SOME LONG WORDS

What is the longest word in the English language? That is a hard question to answer, as writers have from time to time coined words of extraordinary length which have never gotten into general use.

The longest in Webster's International dictionary is honorificabilitudinitatibus, defined as "Honorableness," a pedantic nonsense word, used by Shakespeare in "Love's Labor Lost," and containing 27 letters.

But in chemical treatises may be found even longer words more wonderfully compounded than the chemical products which they describe. For example, tetrahydro-paramethoxyquinoline, with 31 letters; also paraoxymetamethozallybenzine of 30 letters, and others.

English must yield the plan to some foreign languages, however, when long words are considered. In German, schutzenfrabenvernichuangautomobile, with 35 letters, is as formidable as the war engine it describes. In English this machine is commonly designated by the four-letter word "tank," a saving of 31 letters going to the credit of our mother tongue.

Longest of all so far discovered is a Greek word of 181 letters, which appropriately enough is the name of a dish containing many ingredients. We call it simply "hash."

Out of consideration for the linotyper we do not spell out the Greek word here. We have already given him and the proof-reader worry enough for one day.

EXPERT LAUDS WEEKLIES

One of the highest compliments ever paid the weekly newspapers of the country comes from James O'Shaughnessay, formerly executive secretary of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, who declared in a Boston address that "country weeklies are the cornerstone of American journalism."

"The weekly in a small town talks to its readers more intimately and confidentially than any other medium," Mr. O'Shaughnessay said.

Such a tribute from one of America's leading advertising authorities is gratifying to the thousands of country publishers, many of whom are struggling under adverse conditions to faithfully serve their communities.

It should also impress town and small city merchants with the fact that the weekly newspaper offers the most effective medium for placing his store message before the people upon whom he must depend for his business existence.

The Best Story of this week "almost" happened to Jim Smith, football coach.

Best Story Of the Week

Jim had been planning all during the past week to spend the weekend at his home in Decatur Saturday and Sunday. Friday afternoon he came to town to get a check cashed—and because the banks were "taking a holiday" he was unable to secure any cash with which to make the trip. A little worried, he returned to school and told Mr. Decker, "How about cashing my check for $5.00."

"Alright," replied Mr. Decker, "why?" "Because you can't get any money up town," Jim answered. "Well," said Mr. Decker, "in a case like that, I guess I had better keep mine."

Which he did until just before school turned out. Then he let Jim have the five—and Jim went to Decatur.

Saturday a fellow asked Henry Wischkaemper if this bank moratorium was the moratorium for which the Citizen's Advisory Council petitioned Ma Ferguson. He said "No, just the bankers'."

combination of the same numbers in dates has appeared. All of this is within itself a little peculiar—and then it has been accepted through custom that three is a lucky number—from whence came the saying, "The third time is the charm."

Ernest Lewis, as a member of the Grand Old Party, is having more fun than anyone else from the situation. Friday morning, he was telling a bunch of Democrats—"Well, you wanted a new deal, and you sure got one."

Real Friends In Need

The people of this county and over the entire state are certainly to be congratulated upon the way they have taken the situation. Maybe, it is because most of the banks are in A-1 condition and then perhaps it is because they are real Texans. This week a traveling salesman from Missouri came into the office. He did not have one cent in cash—and he had travelled over 1,000 miles without a dime. He owed hotels, filling stations and other business houses. That just goes to show you the confidence that a Texan has in his fellowman, and by George, we Texans have a lot of things to be thankful for, especially if we happen to live in small towns and communities where we have some real honest-to-goodness friends that are willing to credit us. After a trial like this any person who orders something he get for a reasonable price at from a mail order house just has something wrong with him to appreciate a favor.

It says that words are dear things in the eyes of his assumption on the fact that the more you use them, the more you have—which is certainly unlike money and other things.

What Happened On Your Birthday?

Do you know of any outstanding historical event that happened on your birthday? For instance, today, March 9, the Merrimac and the Monitor, first ironclad ships battled in 1862. Yesterday, March 8, the suspension bridge was opened back in 1855. Next Saturday, March 11, marks the anniversary of the authorization by Congress for the United States to build its first war ships back in 1794. If anyone is interested in knowing of the outstanding event of his or her birthday and will drop a card to The Leader it will be answered giving the event.

This Jig-Saw puzzle business is getting more and more complicated. V. A. Porter has been saving out his own puzzles—and if you don't think they are hard just ask Steamboat Graham and Robert Templeton, who worked over two hours on one and were just getting started.

NEW BRONZE HIGH-TEST GASOLINE

(Worthy Companion of Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil)

"Step-on-It Customer! . . . You Have Wings on Your Car"

At thousands of Conoco stations and dealers, old cars are being re-born. Presto! They start at a spark. Z-oo-oom! They're away like a flash. The new, bronze, high-test gas does it. It's the talk of the nation today.

Volatility has been jumped way up. This gasoline is almost self-vaporizing. In the cylinder its vapor floats lightly; so dry, so sensitive that one spark sets it aflame. Higher octane rating gives it improved anti-knock quality; makes the motor fire evenly; makes power flow like the deep, swift current of a stream.

All this, plus long mileage, costs not a penny more. Why not put "wings" on YOU the tank; step out in a great

Deck's DIDACTICS

By H. D. W.

Folks this it IT. In the first place the actual reality isn't nearly as bad as the nameless fear we have been experiencing in the months, and in the second place I am as proud as I can be to live in a community where the people have the spirit that they have here. Their courage has been excellent—they have remained cheerful and confident. In fact I have heard less grumbling since the banks closed than I have heard in months. At last the country has faith in a leader. The confidence that is being shown in Roosevelt—his honesty, his vision and his intentions is the most inspiring thing I have witnessed during all the dismal months and years of the depression. Today the United States stands as a united people. They have turned their faces to the sun. Courage, which has been lacking for three years is returning, and they are setting out to build back on a new foundation. Their faith in their government has returned, their confidence in the resources of this country has been renewed, and their belief in the destiny of this people has been born anew, and all because, I believe, we have a leader who is brave, who is bold and who is true.

For the benefit of those readers who do not take a daily paper, I am reprinting in this issue the full text of Roosevelt's speech. If you have not read it, do so now. It will give you a new faith and a new purpose. When Roosevelt made that speech he knew then what others have found out later—the bank holiday was not caused by the condition of any of what we would call little banks—it was caused by a raid on the gold of the nation. The greedy short sighted men who have done more than any other single factor to bring us to our present plight were trying to take the gold out of big central banks, and some of them were trying to take it to foreign countries. What did Roosevelt do? He dug up an old act, passed in 1917 which had never been repealed giving the president equal powers, and he clamped it on the money changers so that it made their heads spin. He didn't wait to ask what should be done, and he didn't appoint a commission to try to find out. Instead he acted, and as a result practically all of the gold was kept in this country and it is going to stay here.

The bank holiday slowed up business to some extent in Wellington, but it brought forth a wonderful co-operation among the merchants and the people. Merchants continued to cash checks for merchandise, but few gave out change above the amount of the purchase. However a number went ahead and cashed payroll checks whenever they were able. Another feature is that it is surprising how much non-circulating money has been dug up since the banks closed. Many stores which have gone ahead cashing checks have been able to acquire more cash than they had when the holiday started. It must have taken this amount of the old sock, for it is coming from the banks.

I will publish a story in my next issue for you to do me a favor. It seems to me that the most important thing I have found in the way of getting out the next issue. So he ran a line over the last issue saying: "Reprinted by request of 500 subscribers" and printed the paper from last week's forms. That information may enable me to take a vacation this summer.

The banks closing didn't inconvenience me. Cecil Coe brought me a big sack of sausage, and I have been eating sausage and biscuit ever since.

—Russ Brinkley in Clarion (Pa.) Republican.

Rev. T. M. Johnston brought me the following clipping of an article written by Prof. Joe Humphrey of McMurry College. While the substance of this article has been published in The Leader before, it is something that I am glad to reprint.

Did you know that there is a community in the United States where no city taxes are paid? where no city taxes have been paid for three years?

How is it possible, Especially when most of our cities find themselves caught in a world-wide depression? The answer is simple. They own their utilities—gas, electricity and water.

Chanute has a population of 10,277. The city has the commission form of government.

The utilities have paid for themselves and many other improvements have been made. In 1924 the city built the memorial building at a cost of $376,200, voting $1,000,000 in bonds, the balance being paid out of the earnings of the utility plants. The building houses the city offices, the mayor's and commissioners' offices, the fire department, police department, Chamber of Commerce, American Legion, G. A. R., the district office of the Kansas Highway Commission, and various civic organizations and auditorium seating facilities for two thousand people.

About a year ago the city purchased 160 acres as an airport. The airport has been improved and is rated as one of the best equipped airports in the country. The equipment consists of a brick hangar, 80 x 100 feet, with concrete floor and aprons, and a brick administration building. The field is lighted with a 20KW flood light, and in fact all the equipment necessary to make a class A field was installed. The port, together with the equipment, cost the city $75,000 which was paid without bonds being issued, being paid for entirely out of the earnings of the utility plants.

The gas and electric plants are debt free. The water plant has a bond debt of $142,000, which is being retired annually out of the earnings of the plant.

What are the rates charged in this little city? The gas rate to the consumer is 50 cents for the first ten thousand cubic feet and is furnished on a graduated scale, down to as low as 42½ cents per thousand cubic feet. Electricity and water sell at low rates.

Renowned Texas Flyer at San Angelo

Here's Jimmie Mattern, intrepid Ft. Worth flyer, stepping from his plane at San Angelo, Texas, last week after a flight from New York in 13 hours. Mattern, who started around the world with Bennett Griffin, to bog down in a peat moat in Russia after breaking all records that far, plans another round the world flight, in this plane, named "The Spirit of Progress."

RITZ THEATRE REDUCES PRICES

The New Deal, Adults 25 Cents Any Performance, Children A Dime

Along with an unusually interesting line up of pictures during the next week, the Ritz management announces the lowering of admission prices. The policy went into effect last Sunday, placing the top admission at 25 cents. This price for adults will prevail during both matinee and night performances, Sundays and Holidays included. The merchants' discount tickets on the calendars will be maintained as in the past. Manager John Bonner has had the matter of price revisions under consideration since coming to Wellington. He stated to a representative of this paper that he believed the reduction would be extremely appreciated by local patrons, and at this particular time would reflect a patriotic service in keeping with the theatre's policy of recognizing its place in the community and its willingness to at all times cooperate in behalf of the city's best interest.

Joan Blondell Gets "Copied"; Lion Runs Amuck In Central Park

Could you imagine falling in love at nine, being indiscreet at twelve, getting in bad at three and being locked up in jail at six? What a day it must have been. And that's only a wee bit of the excitement in "Central Park," the thrill packed comedy-drama featuring Joan Blondell, scheduled for showing at the Ritz Thursday and Friday of this week. Wallace Ford and Guy Kibbee are the main lead supports in this Blondell tornado. It is said to be more thrilling and bigger than "Union Depot," which will be favorably remembered by hundreds who saw it months ago.

Special Prices for Saturday

Adults 10c, Children 5c

The biggest bargain of the week is offered Saturday patrons. With adults admitted at a dime and the kiddies a nickel each, it makes one recall the early days of the "Flickers" when such prices were the regular diet. But this time you have the best in talking pictures, and a Western of whirlwind thrills entitled, "Scarlet River," featuring Tom Keene. But that isn't the most important thing; what is said to be the most thrilling serial to have graced the Ritz screen in many a month is scheduled to open this date. It is "The Lost Special," from the famous story by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. It is played by an excellent cast.

"Karloff, the Uncanny in Most Fantastic Mystery of the Year" Opening with the Saturday night preview and running through Sunday and Monday, patrons are invited to see what the critics term Boris Karloff's master make-up mystery thriller. The noted creator of sinister roles is said to fairly startle his patrons in his strange transformation as a 3,700 year-old mummy. The story reaches back into the mists of antiquity and uncovers a love which existed in the days of the Egyptian Pharaohs, but in the main it is modern, both in theme and background. The strangely fascinating reincarnation will intrigue and thrill you as few pictures have according to advance reports. David Manners and Zita Johann, famous stage stars, appear in the large cast.

Spencer Tracy, Marion Nixon, Stuart Erwin, Robantic Three

On Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, Spencer Tracy, Marion Nixon and Stuart Erwin preside over the entertainment destiny in "Face in the Sky." It is said to be one of those particularly human sort of romances with a sparkling concoction of comedy. The Merchants Discount Tickets from the calendars will be good, as usual on these days.

Today party and partnership are abandoned and a deep sense of Americanism arises in readiness to lend whole-hearted cooperation to him who we have entrusted with the momentous task and grave responsibilities that leadership must assume.

It is with faith in your sound judgment, Mr. Roosevelt; in your sterling patriotism and your intensity of purpose that we face the future with courage and with confidence. Insull's Pension To Be Continued

CHICAGO.—Samuel Insull, Sr., at his hideout in Athens, Greece, where he has successfully defeated attempts so far to extradite him on indictments growing out of the collapse of his utility empire, recently was promised $12,000 annual pension from two of his former companies for at least another year.

Yesterday while a Federal grand jury was indicting the former utilities wizard and 18 of his associates on charges of fraud, stockholders of the Commonwealth Edison Company and of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois raised no objection when the present chairman, James Simpson, said each concern's pension of $16,000 would be continued to Insull.

Simpson told stockholders of the latter firm that the company would be "legally liable" if the pension, granted after Insull resigned the chairmanship and left the United States last summer, was stopped.

Roosevelt Pledges His Effort Toward Relief Of Country

Will Ask Broad Power If Help In Work Delayed

Believes Primary Task In Relief Is Putting People Of Nation To Work

The text of President Roosevelt's inaugural address is as follows:

"I am certain that my fellow Americans expect that on my entry into the presidency I will speak to them with a candor and a frankness which will be characteristic of the present situation of our Nation. It is pre-eminently the time for us to speak the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, and to shrink from no honest fact. In this great Nation which has endured, will endure, and will prosper. So first of all I assert my firm belief that the only thing we have to fear is itself—nameless, unreasoning, unjustified terror which paralyzes efforts to convert defeat into advance.

Face General Difficulties

"In every dark hour of our national life a leadership of frankness and vigor has met with that understanding and support of the people themselves, which is essential to victory. I am convinced that you will again give that support and leadership in these critical days. Such a spirit on my part will give you the courage to face our common difficulties. They concern, thank God, material things. Values have sunk to fantastic levels; prices have risen; our ability to produce has fallen; government of all kinds is faced by serious curtailment of income; the means of exchange are frozen in the currents of the withered leaves of an enterprise lie on every street; farmers find no market for their produce; the savings of years in thousands of families are gone.

"It is important, a host of unimportant citizens face the grim specter of existence, and an equal number toil with little hope. Only a foolish optimist can envision the dark realities of the present.

Eliminate Fear

"Our distress comes from a lack of substance. We are prey to no plague of locusts. We are not with the perils which others have conquered because we are not afraid, and we are not afraid, still much to be thankful for. Nature still offers her bountiful gifts. Human efforts have not failed. Plenty is at our disposal. A generous use of it will bring us back to the very sight of the sun.

"It is because the exchange of man's hands have failed through stubbornness and their obstinacy, have admitted defeat and abdicated. Practice the unscrupulous money lender indicted in the public opinion, rejected by the sober minds of men.

"I have tried, but their eyes have been cast in the past, toward tradition. Face of credit, they have placed the lending of more money upon the lure of which to induce our people to their false leadership. They have resorted to exhortations, pleading tearfully for patience. They know only of a generation of men who have no vision, who have no vision, who have no vision.

Leaders Have Fled

"Our leaders have fled from their seats in the temple of our ancestors. We may now turn to the ancient teachings of the fathers to measure the extent to which our values have more noble than they. They lie not in the mere possession of money; it lies in the character of the man. The joy and moral of work no longer exist in the mad chase of transient profits. These things will be worth all they can teach us that our duty is not to be ministered to, but to minister to our fellow men.

"I am of the falsity of the standard of living in the hand of the false belief of the office and high position are to be valued as standards of pride of personal profit; and I believe that the larger purposes of the Nation are all as a sacred in banking and in business which too often has given to a sacred trust the likeness of callous and selfish wrongdoing. Small wonder that confidence languishes, for it thrives only on honesty, on honor, on the sacredness of obligations, on faithful protection, on unselfish performance; without them it can not live.

Nation Wants Action

"Restoration calls, however, not for changes in ethics alone. This Nation asks for action, and action now. Our greatest primary task is to put people to work. This is no unsolvable problem if we face it wisely and courageously. It can be accomplished in part by direct recruiting by the Government itself, treating the task as we would treat the emergency of a war, but at the same time through this employment accomplishing greatly needed projects to stimulate and reorganize the use of our national resources.

"Hand in hand with this we must frankly recognize the overbalance of population in our industrial centers and by engaging on a national scale in a redistribution, endeavor to provide a better use of the land for those best fitted for the land. The task can be helped by definite efforts to raise the values of agricultural products and with this the power of purchase the output of our cities. It can be helped by preventing realistically the tragedy of the growing loss through foreclosure, of our small homes and our farms.

"It can be helped by insistence that the Federal, State and local Governments act forthwith on the demand that their cost be drastically reduced. It can be helped by the unifying or relief activities which today are often scattered, uneconomical and unequal. It can be helped by national planning for and supervision of all forms of transportation, and of communications and other utilities which have a definitely public character. There are many ways in which it can be helped, but it can never be helped merely by talking about it. We must act and act quickly.

Banking Supervision

"Finally, in our progress toward a resumption of work we require two safeguards against a return of the evils of the old order; there must be strict supervision of all banking and credits and investments; there must be an end to speculation with other people's money, and there must be provision for an adequate but sound currency.

"There are the lines of attack. I shall presently urge upon a new Congress in special session detailed measures for their fulfillment, and I shall seek the immediate assistance of the several States.

"Through this program of action we address ourselves to putting our own national house in order and making income balance outgo. Our international trade relations though vastly important, are in point of time and necessity secondary to the establishment of a sound national economy. I favor as a practical policy the putting of first things first. I shall spare no effort to restore world trade by international economic readjustment, but the emergency at home can not wait on that accomplishment.

"The basic thought that guides these specific means of national recovery is not narrowly nationalistic. It is the insistence, as a first consideration, upon the interdependence of the various elements in the parts of the United States—a recognition of the old and permanently important manifestation of the American spirit of the pioneer. It is the way to recovery. It is the immediate way. It is the strongest assurance that the recovery will endure.

Will Be Neighborly

"In the field of world policy I would dedicate this nation to the policy of the good neighbor—the neighbor who respectfully respects himself and because he does so, respects the rights of others—the neighbor who respects his obligations and respects the sanctity of his agreements in and with a world of neighbors.

"If I read the temper of our people correctly we now realize as we have never realized before our interdependence on each other; that we can not merely take but we must give as well, that if we are to go forward we must give as well, that if we are to go forward we must move as a trained and loyal army willing to sacrifice for the good of a common discipline, because without such discipline no progress is made, no leadership becomes effective. We are, I know, ready and willing to submit our lives and property to such discipline because it makes possible a leadership which aims at a larger good. This I propose to offer, and I believe that the larger purposes of the Nation are all as a sacred

Monstrosity

This lamb, born in Kimble county, near Junction, Texas, had two well-developed rear-ends, but only one pair of shoulders and forelegs. It had two ears, three eyes, two nostrils. The lamb lived for several weeks. Scientists believe mutated births such as this are caused by incomplete separation of chromosomes in the germ cell of the mother. With complete separation, she would have twins.

obligation with a unity of duty hitherto evoked only in time of armed strife.

"With this pledge taken, I assume unhesitatingly the leadership of this great army of our people dedicated to a disciplined attack upon our common problems.

Constitution Praised

"Action in this image and to this end is feasible under the form of government which we have inherited from our ancestors. Our Constitution is so simple and practical that it is possible always to meet extraordinary needs by changes in emphasis and arrangement without loss of essential form. That is why our constitutional system has proved itself the most superbly enduring political mechanism the modern world has produced. It has met every stress of vast expansion of territory, of foreign wars, of bitter internal strife, of world relations.

"It is to be hoped that the normal balance of executive and legislative authority may be wholly adequate to meet the unprecedented task before us. But it may be that an unprecedented demand and need for undelayed action may call for temporary departure from that normal balance of public procedure.

"I am prepared under my constitutional duty to recommend the measures that a stricken Nation in the midst of a stricken world may require. These measures, or such other measures as the Congress may build out of its experience and wisdom, I shall seek, within my constitutional authority, to bring to speedy adoption.

Not To Evade Duty

"But in the event that the Congress shall fail to take one of these two courses, and in the event that the national emergency is still critical, I shall not evade the clear course of duty that will then confront me. I shall ask the Congress for the one remaining instrument to meet the crisis—broad executive power to wage a war against the emergency, as great as the power that would be given to me if we were in fact invaded by a foreign foe.

"For the trust reposed in me I will return the courage and the devotion that befit the time. I can do no less.

"We face the arduous days that lie before us in the warm courage of national unity; with the clear consciousness of seeking old and precious moral values; with the clean satisfaction that comes from the stern performance of duty by old and young alike. We aim at the assurance of a rounded and permanent national life.

"We do not distrust the future of essential democracy. The people of the United States have not failed. In their need they have registered a mandate that they want direct vigorous action. They have asked for discipline and direction under leadership. They have made me the present instrument of their wishes. In the spirit of the gift I take it.

"In this dedication of a nation we humbly ask the blessings of God. May he protect each and every one of us. May he guide me in the days to come."

East Ward P. T. A. Report Shows Excellent Progress During Year

The East Ward P. T. A. in two months will close a successful year and the records show that the services extended during the year of 1932-33 gained over that of last year. The achievements demonstrate the unfailing interest with which these teachers and mothers have worked. They realize that child conservation and aid is an American problem which should have the aid of every intelligent teacher and mother in its solution.

Efficient Officers
This year's work has been under the leadership of Mrs. J. M. Stowell, who has proved to be a very efficient, judicious and congenial president.

Mrs. John C. Harper is vice president and chairman of the program committee. Mrs. Bill Henderson is secretary. Mrs. L. A. Manzer is membership chairman and Miss Leah Smith reporter.

Promote Child Welfare
The general theme of the year's work has been Child Welfare. The following are a few subjects that were discussed: Health, Promoting Good Reading, Thrift and Education.

Forty-Four Members
The organization has a paid membership of forty-four members. The work of the room mothers has been one underlying factor in the success of this P. T. A. The room mothers made personal contact with each mother either by telephone or personal calls. The following ladies have served as room mothers:

- Mrs. Coleman for Miss Childers' room.
- Mrs. E. E. Roberts for Miss Pigg's room.
- Mrs. John Bevers for Miss Dukeminier's room.
- Mrs. R. S. Montague for Miss Richards' room.
- Mrs. Chester Fires for Mrs. Leggett's room.
- Mrs. A. B. Clark for Miss Simpson's room.
- Mrs. G. E. Clay for Miss Castleberry's room.
- Mrs. O. L. Glasgow for Mrs. Henderson's room.
- Mrs. L. A. Manzer for Miss Smith's room.

Furnish Equipment
A summer round-up was held before school last summer to examine the children for physical defects. The organization presented one dollar each month to the room having the largest county of mothers present at each meeting.

As a money-making scheme the P. T. A. joined the West Ward P. T. A. in sponsoring a Halloween Carnival last October.

In October they observed the state birthday and sent offerings to the state headquarters. The organization bought baseballs and bats for the school children.

On February 16 the organization observed Founder's Day and sent an offering to the National Congress.

Teachers Co-Operate
The part played by the teachers in the success of the East Ward P. T. A. has been very important. They have always responded graciously and willingly to anything asked of them by those in charge of the different activities. On each program a teacher has had charge of a special number put on by her pupils which takes time and work on the part of the teacher to present. Those special numbers have always proved to be entertaining and instructive.

The officers of the P. T. A. are proud of this year's record and are thoroughly cognizant of the fact that this splendid work could not be carried out without the aid of the mothers and teachers of the East Ward P. T. A.

Airplane Murder and Suicide After Fantastic Plot

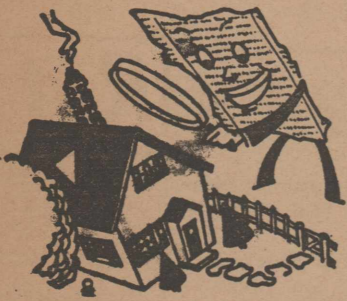

A weird plan of five San Benito, Texas, boys to steal an airplane and fly to Yucatan, in southern Mexico, has resulted in the airplane murder of Lehman Nelson, flying instructor, and the suicide of Erin McCail. Confidence given a San Benito girl regarding the proposed Mexican junket by the boys resulted in quick solution of the mystery by Valley investigators. The blood-drenched plane is pictured above. At left is Nelson, the ill-fated instructor. Right is McCail, murdered and suicide. None of the boys was more than 21. McCail shot Nelson in the back of the head, and attempted to land. On finding that he had damaged the plane beyond repair, he shot himself, too.

Seed Production--

ing limits any person from receiving more than $300 through this source. All loans must be secured by a first lien on the crop.

"I am almost sure that the county will be able to secure the extra $10,000 loan appropriation due to the fact that this section has paid their loans every year."

The local committee, consisting of Dick Wiley, Gene Lewis, and W. W. Neeley, will meet Wednesday to consider the individual possibilities of each loan and after loans have passed this committee, they will be forwarded to the regional headquarters at Dallas.

Loans from this source vary from $30 to $300 and applications will be taken to and including April 30. These loans require an interest rate of five and one-half per cent.

The Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation of Fort Worth, Texas, reports having made 50 applications for loans during the past few weeks.

These loans vary from the Seed Production loans in that they are secured by live stock, farm implements and other items. No limitation is placed upon the amount that a farmer may borrow from this source provided he places security and his loan passes the approval of the committee.

All loans coming from this source may be applied for through S. R. Pinkston and C. C. Bishop. The applications are then filled out and turned over to a committee consisting of Bill Lynn, A. Y. Bell, Dick Wiley, Pink Sullivan and Dick Martin. After this application passes the committee the security is inspected by J. D. Thomas, who has been appointed inspector for this county and a report of the inspection is turned into the Fort Worth office.

Whereas, the seed loan is provided more for the tenant farmer, this regional loan was evidently created for the land owning farmers and no limitation is placed upon the amount that he may borrow. Neither is a limitation placed upon the articles which this money is used to buy; in fact, borrowers are allowed to apply this type of loan upon bills that are past due and for new purchases.

This type loan is more like that which would be made from local banks. The interest rate on regional credit loans is six and one-half per cent.

Tom McNally, who as a 12-year-old drummer boy with Grant was a hero of the battle of the Wilderness in 1864, died in Chicago recently at the age of 82. Despite his fine war record as a mere child, McNally went pretty bad later on, and served a long term in Joliet penitentiary for murder.

go's friends, also played his part of a cynical nineteenth century business man after the best of fashion and more than once established himself as outstanding with sudden volleys of advice such as modern nephews hear from friends that are forced to work. Between acts Freeman also rendered a tap dance—and knocked off his steps like an old trouper. This specialty number was well received by the audience.

More than once it seemed as if Marshall Wells, an uncle who tires of seeing his nephew waste his time and money, were going to steal the play. Marshall had possibly the most difficult part of the entire cast due to the fact that he was forced to limp across the stage—and at all times be sarcastic and crabid. This role would be difficult for any youngster to portray, but Marshall did it well. In fact he did it so well that he might have been the star if he had been on the stage long enough. He fumed just when he was supposed to fume and finally came across with monetary reimbursement just like the big hearted uncle, who spends his time covering up his real generosity with forced ill-temper.

Pauline Coe, Hugo's aunt, was also well fitted for her part in pampering the worthless nephew—and almost anyone in the whole audience would certainly have liked to have an aunt like Pauline turned out to be. The more worthless her nephew became, the more she stuck by him until things turned out in a "lived happily ever after" situation. "Bertha," the storming phrase of the irate uncle, and the expression of Pauline as these words were uttered, will no doubt become a high school campus expression.

Harold Hardy, the young lawyer, really instituted the whole plot by adopting a family for the young nephew to support. Harold maintained an air of independence such as lawyers, with a motive in mind usually establish, and carried out his part like a veteran.

Ruth Smart, who played the part of the young man's housekeeper, was neatly correct and loving—just as such a type housekeeper should have been and just to prove her faith in the nephew, lent him the money to pay her own salary when he was in need. Although Ruth had no exceptionally dramatic scenes to portray, she did play her part well—as well as any member of the cast.

John H. Baumgardner, a shrewd business man, was everything that he was supposed to be and finally completed the plot by adopting the family from the young nephew after he found himself—and through his supreme power over women—successfully managed a department of the elder man's department store.

Virginia Curry, the heroine and governess for the family, started out hating the hero and gradually came to like him as he established himself through the plot of the play. Virginia was such a spiteful young lady at first that it really seemed as if she might not come around to the rest of the plot—but she did in a noble way and saved the situation. Virginia also carried a difficult role, bursting into unknown apartments and the like.

Then there was the family—which really was a peach of a family. Four orphan girls at the romantic age of 16—and everyone of them head of heels in love with the hero. This quartet billed and cooed their way right into the hearts of the audience and more than once set the house in an uproar with expressions fitting to such age girls. The family included Marie Fulmer, Imogene Wynn, Bliss Miller and Nellie Sims. If you ever decided to adopt a family just try and get one like that family.

To Mrs. W. F. Decker, coach, goes unlimited credit. Not one single time did any member of the cast apparently forget lines. The play showed evidence of more practice than home talent plays usually portray—and the cast was certainly suited to the individual parts. Mrs. Decker has a knack of selecting suitable characters and the junior play carried out her ability. The whole play was an immense success. The statement is based upon the reaction of the audience, which is an index to any play or program, and the audience left Tuesday in a mood of glowing praise for the play—an unusual accomplishment for any local talent production.

Leta Mae Chastain rendered two vocal solos between acts and was also well received. Naomi Slay was presented in a violin solo and these two special numbers were well received by an appreciative audience.

Music was furnished by the "Blues Chasers," an exceptional orchestra for any high school and one that Wellington has cause to hold with pride.

ditions in Texas do not warrant the cessation of business such as we have, still the national scope of the financial distress makes it necessary that we obey implicitly all orders of the president and the secretary of the treasury of the United States in order that the whole financial structure may be returned to normal as quickly as possible," Shaw's proclamation said.

Script Authorized
It was believed that a number of banks would start business under a broad rule promulgated by secretary Woodin that they can pay out money for food, medicine, other necessities, relief work, salaries and necessary current expenses for maintaining employment and for the essential purposes.

In a second proclamation by Shaw clearing houses were conditionally authorized to issue certificates against sound assets of banking institutions, but not before next Friday. The authorization of these are revokable at discretion of the secretary of the treasury.

New deposits made in special "trust fund accounts" may be paid out without restriction on condition that no gold or gold certificates shall be paid out.

Cautious Bankers

In operating under the rule providing for payments for food, medicine, wages, and other necessities, it was pointed out this function must be "exercised with due care, the officers and directors of banks to be held accountable for faithful compliance with the spirit and purpose, as well as the letter" of this regulation.

It was pointed out that "every precaution must be taken to prevent hoarding or unnecessary withdrawing of currency."

Federal rules incorporated in the Shaw proclamation included:

Acceptance of new deposits subject to withdrawal without restriction the accounts to be kept separately in cash or deposited in the federal reserve bank or invested in United States obligations.

Drafts for Food

Handling of drafts for shipment, transportation and delivery of foodstuff.

Free access of customers to safety deposit vaults.

Making change, but without paying out either gold or gold certificates.

Cashing checks drawn on the treasurer of the United States, but not in gold or gold certificates.

In their bylaws the club states that their object shall be the encouragement of organized rifle and pistol shooting among residents of this community, with a view toward a better knowledge on the part of such citizens of the safe handling and proper care of firearms, as well as improved marksmanship.

The local club has already made arrangements for erecting a range on the Ed Howell farm, one mile north of the Salt Fork River bridge and in the near future expect to erect their targets and equipment for practice shooting.

As soon as the club has held several practice sessions they expect to compete with surrounding towns in shooting tournaments. Membership in the club is open to the public and any person desiring to join the club is encouraged to place their application with Mr. O'Neil, secretary.

Roosevelt Took Oath On Bible Used Since 1670

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—Franklin D. Roosevelt took the oath of office on the old tattered Dutch Bible that has been in the possession of his family since 1670, he revealed Monday.

For generations, the Bible was used to chronicle the births, marriages and deaths in the Roosevelt family. It was packed for shipment to Washington during the day for use Saturday afternoon.

"I took my oath of office twice as Governor of the State of New York on that same Bible," he said. "When the Washington ceremony is over it will be transferred from the temporary keeping of the clerk of the United States Supreme Court and the Chief Justice, to the White House."

"And here is another bit of news," he added. "I will be sworn in by Chief Charles Evans Hughes. That means a former Governor of New York State, swearing in a former Governor of New York State."

Mr. Roosevelt selected the thirteenth chapter of Paul's first epistle to the Corinthians as the place where he will lay his hand when he takes the oath.

New Mexico Man Says Community Getting Crowded

SANTA FE.—Jeff Moore came to town with the observation: "It's getting a little crowded out our way."

"Gee neighbors only twelve miles away now," he explained. "Used to be seventeen."

But life out Catron County way, he said, is not all hardship, because—

"You don't get broker's phone calls telling you you're sold out, telegraph companies don't send you wires about poor prices, banks don't close. Why? There are no phone or telegraph lines, or banks."

The ranges are fine and the soil is good, Moore adds.

A garden rake was discovered imbedded at the center of a tree which was recently felled at the home of James Detrich of Steelton, Pa.

Friends and neighbors, both in Wellington and the Plymouth community, were upset over the accident and have been assisting the family as much as possible in continuance of his work and by nursing Mr. Walker.

In a divorce suit Mrs. Goldie Deane of Madison, Wis., was awarded the family car and her husband the canary.
