52-48: Thomas is 'in'

Vote closes emotional, draining Senate fight

Judge Clarence Thomas

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The Senate voted 52-48 to confirm Judge Clarence Thomas to the Supreme Court on Tuesday with key senators giving the troubled nominee the benefit of lingering doubts about charges of sexual harassment.

Eleven Democrats, most of them from the South, joined 41 Republicans to provide the margin of approval for Thomas to succeed retired Justice Thurgood Marshall and become only the second African American to sit on the high court.

In justifying their votes for confirmation, wavering senators said they watched the televised Judiciary Committee hearings but could not determine the truth in the dramatic "he said-she said" confrontation between Thomas and University of Oklahoma law professor Anita Hill. Unproven charges of sexual harassment — despite their gravity — should not keep Thomas

Judge's tears on television 'won the day'

By Maureen Dowd
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — After the vote, the gloomy feminist contingent on Capitol Hill concluded that Clarence Thomas triumphed because he came across as more of a victim than Anita F. Hill did.

Many senators told disappointed lobbyists for the coalition of civil rights groups and women's groups opposing Judge Thomas that it was not so much Professor Hill's credibility that determined the outcome as a range of other issues. Everyone knew what "other issues" meant.

Anger at Senate could imperil incumbents

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The turbulent process of confirming Clarence Thomas to the Supreme Court appalled and transfixed the country and is now adding fuel to a growing anti-incumbent mood among Americans.

In an era of distaste for Washington politicians, the Senate hearings infuriated both Thomas supporters and foes, sparking outrage among women and resentment in many men. And much of their collective anger has been aimed not at the principals, either the nominee or his accuser Anita Hill, who charged him with sexual harassment. It is aimed at the Senate.

"There's a feeling of rage about the whole institution," said Democratic political consultant Raymond Strother. "If I were an incumbent senator, I would feel no security whatsoever."

Strother conceded that even the Democratic majority in the Senate could be endangered in the 1992 elections: "Who knows? What we have is a very volatile electorate out there."

The television spectacle of the Thomas hearings apparently added momentum to the movement to impose term limitations on members of Congress.

"It shows the ineffectiveness and unfair-

Bush: Soviets in need of U.S. oil know-how

By Charles J. Lewis
Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — The new economic union treaty being considered by the Soviet republics should enable the American oil industry to "invest and make a profit and, in the process, do more for the Soviet Union, short run as well as long run, than any other business," President Bush said Tuesday.

Bush, in an interview with corporate executives and editors of the Hearst Newspapers, said, "We have the know-how, they've have the prospects, they've got wells that need to be worked over. You've got a lot of work-over capability in Midland, Texas, sitting idle there. And there's all kinds of ways that the Soviet (oil) industry could gain by effectively cooperating with the United States.

"I think they want to, but I think they just haven't sorted out the mechanism for making a deal. Can't go make a deal with one guy and then have some other entity say, 'Hey wait a minute, you forgot to pay us this

Baker nears finalizing Mideast peace talks

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Secretary of State James A. Baker was on the verge Tuesday of sealing arrangements for a Mideast peace conference to open in Lausanne, Switzerland, on Oct. 29, U.S. and other diplomatic sources said.

Even as Baker was holding extended talks with Syria's president Hafez Assad, the sources said the Swiss city would be the site barring last-minute hitches in Baker's diplomacy. The open questions rested primarily on the issue of Palestinian participation — and there was progress on that score in neighboring Jordan.

The sources, declining to be identified, said the opening negotiations would be in Lausanne, and the parties — Israel, the Arab States and Palestinians — would then decide whether to continue there.

Dream come true

Tuesday was a dream come true for Odessa's Brandon Strother, 5, thanks to the Permian Basin Make-A-Wish Foundation. The group, which helps fulfill wishes for terminally ill youngsters, arranged with Tony's Pizza Co. for Brandon to ride in a World War I-era biplane and watch the Red Barron flight team perform. Tony's is donating a portion of its proceeds to help the foundation grant the second portion of Brandon's wish — a trip to San Antonio and Sea World.

State closes convalescence home due to code violations

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff Writer

Convalescent homes operating in Midland residential neighborhoods can present an inexpensive alternative to nursing-home care, but may violate both city and state laws, officials said.

Because of the interest of local citizens, one such facility — targeted at the elderly and infirm — has been closed after a recent investigation by the Texas Department of Health.

"It's a matter of education," said Glen Barker, long-term care administrator at the Midland branch of the state health department. "It's education not only for the operators but for the family who is going to put an elderly person in this type of home."

City Building Official David Wayland said a convalescent home was operating illegally in a northwest Midland residential neighborhood after it had been ordered to move from another illegal location. When neighbors became suspicious, they alerted the code enforcement office

CIA chief takes offensive on Gates

John P. Wallach
Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — Richard Kerr, the acting director of the Central Intelligence Agency, said Tuesday Senate hearings on the nomination of Robert Gates to be CIA chief were a "circus" that had sapped morale among the agency's employees.

The unusual on-the-record interview took place hours before the Senate confirmed another Bush nominee, Clarence Thomas, to a seat on the Supreme Court and only three days before the Senate Intelligence Committee is scheduled to vote on Gates.

In the interview with the editors of The Hearst Newspapers, Kerr said the controversial Gates hearings, which began on Sept. 19, "have already affected

College costs rise

NEW YORK — Fall tuitions at public colleges and universities climbed by double digits for the first time in eight years as higher education fell victim to state budget cuts, the College Board reported Tuesday. Average in-state tuitions and fees at four-year public universities rose by 12 percent to $2,137, from $1,908 in 1990-91. Room and board charges increased by 6 percent to $3,351, bringing total average fixed charges at public institutions to $5,488. This fall's increase marked the first double-digit jump in such rates since 1983-84, when the average also went up by 12 percent. Tuitions and fees were up an even sharper 13 percent at two-year public universities./8A

Leland memorial

HOUSTON — City officials Tuesday dedicated a $42,000 bronze bust of U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland in an airline terminal named after the lawmaker, who was killed two years ago in a plane crash in Africa. The 52-inch-tall sculpture, mounted atop a 4-foot-high black marble base, depicts a smiling Leland with his one hand outstretched and the other holding a rolled up piece of paper. The base is fronted by a bronze relief that shows Leland holding a child while others are gathered around./3B

Swaggart to 'heal'

BATON ROUGE, La. — Television evangelist Jimmy Swaggart, who allegedly picked up a prostitute last week in California, is temporarily relinquishing leadership of his ministry, his son said Tuesday. Donnie Swaggart told ministry employees at the Swaggart Family Worship Center that he will temporarily be head administrator of Jimmy Swaggart Ministries while his father undergoes professional counseling and medical care. After "a time of healing and counseling . . . Dad will once again assume the pulpit at Family Worship Center," he said in a statement a ministry spokesman later gave to reporters kept outside the 7,000-seat assembly center. He said all crusades would be canceled and that his father and mother, Frances, were near exhaustion./7A

WEATHER SUMMARY

Look for sunny skies, 80s

Today's forecast calls for mostly sunny skies with a high in the upper 80s and south to southwest winds at 10 to 15 mph. Tonight should be fair with a low in the low 50s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Thursday should be mostly sunny with a high in the upper 80s.

After an overnight low of 47, Tuesday's high was 82 compared with the record high for that date of 94 set in 1962. The record low for that date was 40 set in 1967.

STATE

Texas weather was partly cloudy and warm Tuesday.

Surface high pressure and northwesterly winds at the surface kept conditions fairly dry. Breezes were mostly light.

The forecast for North Texas was for continued fair skies with highs today in the upper 70s to mid-80s and lows tonight in the 50s. Highs Thursday were expected to be in the 80s.

The South Texas forecast was for sunny and warm days with fair and cool nights through Thursday. Highs will be mostly in the 80s, forecasters said, with lows to range from the 40s in the Hill Country to the 60s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Forecasters said West Texas would be mostly sunny during the day and fair at night through Thursday. Highs today were expected to be from the middle 80s in the Panhandle to the lower 90s in the Big Bend valleys and only the middle 70s in the southwest mountains. Lows tonight were to be mostly in the 50s except for near 40 in the southwest mountains.

NATION

Snow fell Tuesday in Upper Michigan and rain stretched from the Ohio Valley to the central Appalachians.

The sixth tropical storm of the Atlantic hurricane season formed south of Cuba, but forecasters said it was not expected to grow into a hurricane.

The first heavy snow of the season in Alaska's Tanana and upper Yukon valleys dwindled. Snowfall ranged from one-half inch at Birch Lake to 18 inches at Denali National Park.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

THOMAS: Confirmation ends bitter Senate battle off the court, the swing senators decided.

(From 1A)

"I found nothing in the testimony to disprove Anita Hill's allegations," explained Sen. Wyche Fowler, D-Ga. "However, there was nothing to prove the charges. ... The weekend hearings were inconclusive in my opinion and will not change my earlier decision to vote for confirmation."

Meanwhile, Thomas said it was time to put an end to the acrimony and accusations that have dominated the long battle to have him confirmed as the nation's 106th justice and bolster the six-to-two conservative majority on today's Supreme Court.

"This is more a time for healing, not a time for anger or for animus or animosity," Thomas said, standing with his wife, Virginia, outside their house in suburban Alexandria, Va.

"I guess in so many ways, as I say to my wife so many times, I'd like to thank America," said Thomas, whose confirmation climaxed a dramatic rise from segregated poverty in Pin Point, Ga.

After phoning congratulations to Thomas from the Oval Office, President Bush issued a written statement saying "Judge Thomas has demonstrated to the Congress and to the nation that he is a man of honesty, dedication and commitment to the constitution and the rule of law."

Outside her home in Norman, Okla., Ms. Hill declined to comment directly on the Senate vote but said she hoped the outcome would not deter other women from coming forward with charges of sexual harrassment in the workplace.

"I cannot tell you how many letters and cards I have received from people throughout the country who are concerned about this," she told reporters. "Women, men, women who have experienced the same thing have written and said now for the first time they could talk about it. And that's important. What I hope is that none of this will deter others from coming forward. This is an important issue and the dialogue should not stop here."

Capitol Hill switchboards were jammed again Tuesday as constituents lobbied their senators up until time for the vote. The number of calls in the Washington area was five times the normal load, the phone company reported.

The confirmation vote was the closest of the 20th century and capped a day of emotional and sometimes bitter debate in the Senate floor.

Both sides conceded that the weekend's riveting hearings did not establish certainty on Ms. Hill's vivid charges that Thomas made unwelcome advances, bragged about his sexual prowess, and described pornographic movies to her .

TEARS: Hill seemed 'too controlled, unemotional' body, after all, where Richard C. Shelby, the Democratic senator from Alabama who had been getting calls running nine to one in favor of Thomas, decided to vote his conscience live Tuesday morning with Katie Couric on the NBC program "Today." (He decided to vote in favor of confirmation.)

While the Oklahoma Law School professor was poised and likeable, these senators confided, she has seemed too controlled and unemotional to really tug at the heartstrings of the heartland, especially when compared to Thomas' hot and emotional television appearances in which he cast himself as a martyr of the process and of racial discrimination. He was the one with tears in his eyes as he faced the Senate Judiciary Committee, after all, not she.

Many senators had also found Professor Hill an unsympathetic figure because, even if her story was true, she seemed too calculating and careerist in staying with Thomas at the Education Department and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission rather than "storming out in a huff," as one lobbyist explained it. Her career had not been hurt by Thomas, these senators argued.

"The senators felt that it was not honorable or virtuous that she was getting something out of the relationship and looking the other way on any harassment that might have been going on," said one lobbyist for a women's group and who asked to remain anonymous. "She was not a heroine or a martyr. But she was entirely believable as a normal woman in that situation."

Some senators privately told reporters that, even if the charges were true, it was impossible to calculate if there was, as one sympathetic senator on the Judiciary Committee put it, "a missing piece, some elements in her that we don't really know."

Had there been more of a social relationship between the two than Professor Hill and Thomas had admitted to? And even if her assertions were true, they wondered, if the harassment had not been serious enough for her to leave immediately, was it serious enough to outweigh all the other aspects about the nominee that they regarded as positive and to outweigh the ordeal he had gone through this week by having such a last-minute accusation from long ago nearly derail his nomination?

INTERVIEW: 'You've got work-over capability' tax.' ... You simply cannot have these various jurisdictions competing."

Bush also said the Emir of Bahrain, Sheik Isa Bin Salman Al-Khalifa, told him earlier Tuesday that most Middle East oil producers believe oil prices will stabilize at between $20 and $30 a barrel.

"If I had to bet, and without putting figures on anything — a president ought not to do that — I would say, given worldwide supply and demand, that there ought to a pretty firm market for oil at existing levels. Some would argue that the supply and demand curve might argue for increased prices. But I can't say that. I just don't know enough about it."

On other issues, Bush said he will recommend changes in the way the Senate confirms presidential nominees in the wake of the furor over allegations that Clarence Thomas sexually harassed a young woman subordinate in the 1980s

He cited a leak of an FBI report to the Senate Judiciary Committee on law professor Anita Hill's allegations that Thomas had repeatedly asked her to date him and embarrassed her by graphic descriptions of pornographic movies and his sexual prowess when she worked for him at the Department of Education and at the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. Thomas has denied the allegations.

Bush said the second round of confirmation hearings that explored Hill's allegations for three days "were unfortunate."

"I think we ought to work cooperatively with Congress to (improve the process) ... because, frankly, a lot of that testimony was fundamentally offensive to children and to others," Bush said.

The 35-minute interview took place in the Roosevelt Room next to the Oval Office shortly before the Senate voted 52-48 to confirm Thomas for the U.S. Supreme Court. The president expressed confidence that Thomas would be confirmed but avoided any specific predictions about what the final tally would be.

Joining Bush at the meeting were White House Chief of Staff John Sununu, National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft; Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater and Roger Porter, his chief domestic affairs aide,.

Sitting with the newspapermen at a long table, Bush exchanged friendly banter with editors of some of the Texas newspapers on some of their mutual acquaintances from the days when he was a West Texas oil man and a member of Congress from Houston.

On the economy, Bush conceded that despite predictions by many economists that a recovery from the recession is under way, "There's a gap between the economists and the order books ."

GATES: Hearings 'sap' morale, acting chief says morale adversely" at the agency.

"In my view it's been kind of a circus and not a lot of light has been shed on the nominee in the process," Kerr said.

He suggested the hearings, which included a public airing of CIA internal disputes and a debate about the balance and credibility of the intelligence assessment process, had compromised the agency's intelligence-gathering capabilities. The hearings, he said, have "had an impact on us and not only among those who are considered 'wimps' or 'Commie' sympathizers."

Kerr rejected charges that Gates, during a CIA career that began in 1980 and ended in January 1989 when President Bush chose him to be White House deputy national security adviser, had deliberately "politicized" intelligence analyses to suit the Reagan administration's anti-Soviet views.

"Intelligence is more complicated. What we produce is not the product of a single analyst. It is a CIA product," Kerr insisted.

The acting CIA chief also criticized Sen. Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y. for suggesting that the intelligence agency be abolished and its functions folded into the appropriate agencies at the State Department.

"The idea of transferring our responsibilities to the State Department is laughable. I don't take it (the Moynihan proposal) seriously. I think he is floating it as a controversial idea just to see how people react to it," Kerr said.

He said that merging the CIA into the State Department would deprive the government and the American people of an agency whose sole function is to collect and analyze information about overseas developments without having to bow to political whims.

The State Department "gets a lot of pressure from their bosses. We don't. No one tells us how to write our product including the president of the United States. We are very direct about that and this president often is very unhappy about what he gets from us," Kerr said, without elaborating.

The interview, which took place in the CIA director's private conference room, is part of a new policy of "openness" to the press and the public, Kerr said.

"We are going to be out much more aggressively in this debate about what is the role of intelligence," Kerr vowed.

ANGER: Hearings infuriate supporters and foes alike

(From 1A)

ness of the present system," said Colorado State Sen. Bill Owens, who helped push a successful term limit initiative in his state. "I think new blood would handle this sort of allegation differently and that Congress definitely needs new blood."

Although Owens is a Republican, he said, "The anger is directed at Congress — not just the Democrats."

Those who lambaste the Senate Judiciary Committee hearings add their complaints to the recently publicized sins of the House of Representatives, where members were allowed to bounce checks at a tax-subsidized bank and run up huge unpaid tabs at the restaurant.

Owens doubted that the public sentiment would actually remove many lawmakers. "Unfortunately, it's exceedingly hard to turn out incumbents," he said. "Some incumbents may be defeated, but the system is so rigged in their favor that I would not expect significant change."

Even so, the effect could be felt, especially in the Senate where incumbents are more visible and more easily turned out of office. The public eye especially turned on them during the Thomas controversy. More than half a million calls got through to the U.S. Capitol during the hours proceeding the voting, and uncounted hundreds of thousands of other callers failed to connect.

The one clear winner in the grueling fight appeared to be President Bush, the man who ignited the controversy from the first by naming for the High Court a staunch black conservative with little judicial experience whose choice was sure to infuriate the civil rights establishment. Then, Bush stood mainly in the background as the mudslinging escalated.

"It is President Bush who created this painful, ugly and divisive episode," charged Kate Michelman, executive director of the National Abortion Rights Action League."It is President Bush who made this cynical appointment."

She added that many women will focus their anger at both parties: at the Republicans for grilling Thomas's accuser Anita Hill "like she was on trial" and at the Democrats for handling Thomas "with kid gloves."

Ruth Mandel, director of the Center for the American Woman and Politics at Rutgers University, agreed that Democrats fumbled the issue of sexual harassment. "They seemed scared of it," she said, adding that Republicans will have an "uphill battle" to show they are sensitive to the issue after backing Thomas.

"I don't think the men — either Democrat or the Republicans — did anything to counter the notion that men don't understand this issue," she said. But she predicted that at the least, the issue of sexual harassment will be brought into the next election campaigns at all levels.

Men were no less unhappy with the proceedings.

"I feel that what they've done is they've talked about the most terrible stereotypical males," said Strother, echoing the words of many men. "And I think it degrades us all."

Bush was the only person to come out ahead, he said, "And he had better not be too smug."

BAKER: Opening talks would be in Lausanne

(From 1A)

In Jerusalem, Israeli Foreign Minister David Levy confirmed Israel had reached preliminary agreement with the United States on terms for convening the peace conference. Another Israeli official, requesting anonymity, said the terms included an assurance that the Palestinian delegation would be represented by residents of the West Bank and Gaza — and that the United States would not support the establishment of an independent Palestinian state.

Baker and Assad met twice Tuesday for a total of seven and a half hours. They scheduled another, unplanned session for this morning before the secretary of state's scheduled departure for Israel and meetings with officials there later in the day.

Baker said nothing to reporters as he returned to his hotel, but the spillover into today indicated that details remained to be ironed out.

Switzerland was an acceptable choice because of its long history of neutrality, officials said.

Initially, Israel preferred Washington, while Egypt and other sites were under consideration. Argentina had even offered Buenos Aires for the peace talks.

After more than seven hours of talks with Assad, a key player in the Arab-Israeli dispute, there was no word on whether Baker had been able to take seal final details for Syrian participation. He already had the Syrian leader's tentative approval for negotiations with Israel.

Assad seeks to recover the Golan Heights, which Syria lost in the 1967 Six-Day War.

Meanwhile, three-way diplomacy across the border held out the promise of a green light from the Palestinian hierarchy — the most critical component of Arab support for talking peace with Israel.

VIOLATIONS: Neighbors became suspicious and, after Wayland discovered the facility was violating zoning ordinances, he called the health department to check for other possible violations.

(From 1A)

Such an operation may be in violation of state health laws if it does not have a license.

"What concerns me is that people should check with these places before leaving relatives with them," Wayland said. "I know there's a real need for a middle price-range care facility like this, but it has to operate within the correct zoning or it won't be allowed to stay there."

Convalescent care operations are prohibited in areas zoned for single family homes. In some less-restrictive zones, the operators may secure a specific-use permit from the city council. In retail and office-zoned areas, such a facility would be allowed.

Assistant City Attorney Sharon Ryan said a convalescent care facility operating in a residential neighborhood would be subject to a $2,000 fine each day of the violation.

"We need to let people know we're not going to tolerate this and they will be prosecuted," Ms. Ryan said. Zoning violations, class C misdemeanors, are under the jurisdiction of Municipal Court.

In the recent case, the facility was found in violation of several state health regulations.

An operation that cares for more than four non-related persons, providing services that extend beyond room, board and laundry, must be licensed by the state. Barker said the licensing process includes regular inspections for health and safety standards, including cleanliness and fire protection.

"A place like this may be used as a less-expensive alternative," Barker said. "But many times they advertise to provide nursing care and don't say if it's licensed or not. If nobody thinks to check, that could be a problem."

Jeanoyce Wilson, a Texas Department of Health public information officer, encouraged people to check the license of any convalescent facility before placing a relative there. Interested people can call 1-800-252-9106, toll free, for information about long-term care facilities.

"We can tell them if a certain facility is licensed or not, and if we've received complaints about it," she said. "These facilities are required to abide by certain health and safety regulations. If they call about a place, we will send an inspector out there to check it out. We need to get them to come into compliance."

Once a convalescent care facility has been found in violation of state laws, information about it is referred to the office of the Texas Attorney General, where an order of closure will be made.

Ryan said in the recent case, still pending with both municipal court and the state, neighbors deserve the credit for getting action.

"They were very alert to what was going on, very attentive," Ryan said. The residents had videotapes and other documentation to support their complaint.

Wayland said city ordinances do not restrict persons caring for their own relatives, nor are they designed to eliminate adult day care in residential areas.

"We want to advise people if you're going to run one of these type of care facilities, check the zoning first," Wayland said.

Another republic declares sovereignty from Yugoslavia

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — The central republic of Bosnia-Hercegovina declared its sovereignty Tuesday, a move that further splintered Yugoslavia and threatened more bloodshed.

The decision by the republic, a combustible mixture of ethnic Moslems, Serbs and Croats, was intended to serve notice to Croatia and especially Serbia that they cannot settle their dispute by carving up Bosnia-Hercegovina.

At the same time, it threatened to plunge the republic, site of the assassination that started World War I, into the orgy of bloodletting that has claimed more than 1,000 lives in Croatia, where Croats are pitted against ethnic Serbs and the Serbian-dominated federal army.

There were new hopes for peace, however, when the presidents of Serbia and Croatia called for a cease-fire and negotiations after meeting in Moscow with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev. So far eight cease-fires brokered by the European Community have failed.

Early Tuesday, Serb deputies stormed out of the parliament in Sarajevo, the Bosnia-Hercegovina capital. Of the remaining lawmakers, 133 voted for sovereignty, with 15 abstentions.

Moslems account for 44 percent of the republic's residents; Serbs, who are mostly Eastern Orthodox believers, for 31 percent; and Roman Catholic Croats for 17 percent.

Iraq warns it may shoot U.N. inspection helicopters

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Iraq has warned that U.N. helicopter inspection flights are in danger of being shot down because they are using the same airspace as that violated by Israeli warplanes this month.

The letter was written by Iraqi Foreign Minister Ahmad Hussein to Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar. It was dated Oct. 13 and obtained Tuesday by The Associated Press.

"In the event of renewed Israeli aggression against our airspace, when U.N. aircraft are present in the same area, we shall not be responsible for the safety of those aircraft and of any U.N. inspectors on board," it read.

Iraq lodged a protest last week that Israeli F-15s violated its airspace on Oct. 4, on what was apparently a reconnaissance misssion.

Israel has not confirmed the flights, which were protested by the U.S. State Department.

Coase wins Nobel economic prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The seed of British-born Ronald Coase's Nobel economics prize, awarded Tuesday, was a tour he made of American factories 50 years ago, a colleague says.

Coase, 80, became the 14th economist from the University of Chicago to win the Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Science since the award was established in 1968 by the Bank of Sweden.

He worked at the University of Chicago until 1981, when he retired as director of the university's law school's Program in Law and Economics. Now a professor emeritus, he still lectures at the Law School and has an office there.

Coase developed the concept of transaction costs, "those costs anyone faces whenever they try to enter into a transaction in the marketplace," said his successor at the law school, Douglas Baird.

Before Coase's work, theories on how the economy worked only included production and transport costs. But the expense of signing and completing a deal, making phone calls, hiring lawyers and administering an organization were neglected.

A Muscovite picks carrots after tractors had already plowed the field. Hundreds of Muscovites are stocking up for what Soviet officials have predicted to be a bleak economic winter. Officials predict an 11 percent decrease in farm production.

Soviet officials offer bleak economic status

BANGKOK, Thailand (NYT) — Soviet officials offered a startlingly bleak assessment of their economy to Western financial leaders here this week, saying that the failed coup in August had caused a crippling withdrawal of foreign credit from Soviet banks, setting off a debt crisis and accelerating the economy's precipitous fall.

A top Soviet economic planner, Grigory A. Yavlinsky, explained the painful slide during a wide-ranging, two-hour interview on Tuesday. Yavlinsky had offered the assessment earlier in a confidential report to Western financial leaders in the hope of winning their support for his program of radical economic reform.

Those leaders in the Group of Seven industrial nations agreed on Sunday to unprecedented support to help rebuild the Soviet economy on a free-market basis but have not yet committed themselves firmly to monetary support.

A copy of the report on the Soviet economy was obtained from Western officials, and it paints a devastating picture.

A section of the report labeled "Situation" said the Soviet economy is expected to shrink by 13 percent this year, industrial production by 9 percent and farm production by about 11 percent, suggesting that the onetime Communist superpower is suffering a severe recession.

But fiscal and monetary conditions appear even worse. Retail price inflation has reached a 96 percent annual rate and is accelerating, the report says. The central government is expected to post a budget deficit this year of more than 120 billion rubles, and to suffer a deficit of at least 80 billion rubles more on expenditures that do not show up on the budget. Together, the Soviet republics are expected to have budget deficits that total 120 billion rubles.

There is no longer any understandable way to translate ruble deficit into dollars or other Western currencies because stable exchange markets can no longer be sustained by Soviet authorities. But some sense of the magnitude of the deficits can be gained in the fact that few Soviet workers are paid more than 500 rubles a month.

Gorbachev announces Yugoslav cease-fire

MOSCOW (NYT) — Prompted by President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, the leaders of Serbia and Croatia met here Tuesday and agreed to attempt another cease-fire in the Yugoslav civil war and to hold more peace talks within the next month.

Gorbachev, who invited the two sides to the Kremlin, announced an agreement for an immediate cease-fire and issued a communique in which the combatants called for help from Soviet, American and European officials to help get the peace talks under way.

There was no immediate indication of how President Bush might respond to Gorbachev's initiative nor whether the cease-fire would prove at all effective in stopping the Yugoslav war. Hundreds of people have died and a half-dozen cease-fires have collapsed in the four-month war.

In opening the Soviet diplomatic initiative on Yugoslavia, Gorbachev said he sympathized with the "misfortune of Yugoslavia" and the need to protect the nation from "guerrilla war."

"The Soviet Union has to deal with similar problems," Gorbachev said before the joint meeting with President Franjo Tudjman of Croatia and President Slobodan Milosevic of Serbia, the leaders of the principal combatants in the war.

"This explains why recent events in Yugoslavia arouse anxiety and concern in our country," the Soviet leader declared, according to the Soviet news agency Tass.

Japanese may rescue supercollider

TOKYO (NYT) — Trying to save one of the most expensive science experiments in American history, the Bush administration Tuesday offered Japan an expanded role in managing the giant superconducting supercollider in Texas in return for an investment in excess of $1 billion.

The new proposal seemed to underscore the increasingly complex politics surrounding "big science" projects that the United States has originated, but now fears it cannot afford.

Without Japanese support, many scientists in America say, the huge supercollider project may die on the drawing boards.

But Japanese officials have made it clear in private conversations that the price of their participation will be high, including a bigger voice in a number of joint projects, something that the Bush administration seemed reluctant to offer at first.

President Bush's science adviser, Dr. Allan Bromley, who met Tuesday with Japanese scientists and policy makers, was the latest in a parade of administration officials who have come to Tokyo in recent weeks to plead for funds.

Redistricting cites computer 'error'

Call it computer "error." Computers, after all, don't make mistakes.

The Texas redistricting plan now in the courts certainly could be termed a computer error, in a sense. Here's how:

Redistricting always is a, well, interesting process. It's necessary in some cases, however, to ensure that the people of a particular political subdivision are adequately represented, but it does not have to be a necessary evil. When it becomes that, it is counterproductive to its stated purpose.

Carving the state into districts is an inherently political undertaking, but it does not have to be a partisan maneuver. Regrettably, the redistricting plan worked out in the Texas Legislature this summer appears drawn specifically to achieve a partisan result and, thus, should not meet the requirements of a review now taking place in the courts.

Midland County Commissioners at their meeting earlier this week bemoaned the congressional redistricting plan with good reason. For one thing, the plan splits "every city in West Texas, except Abilene," according to County Judge Charles "Bro" Seltzer. In Midland County's case, the city of Midland was divided three ways.

In fact, the redistricting plan — designed by a computer rather than in the old-fashioned way by pencil-wielding representatives of the people — makes a strong statement in favor of hard-fought political compromises worked out in a smoke-filled room.

Commissioner Louisa Valencia noted, "They (Texas legislators) are just letting the computer take over what they should be doing." We couldn't agree more, on the basis of the redistricting plan brought forward.

Computers, you see, are marvelous tools that give man the ability to do a better job. But if man turns his decision-making ability over to the computer, then the human quality is lost from our statehouses and the term "representative government" takes on a new and frightening twist.

No computer, regardless how advanced, can take over the essential human role in mapping political districts. Where will it lead, to an Apple Macintosh running for U.S. Congress?

It's time to give others chance in government

I noticed with interest your article in the Oct. 9 Midland Reporter-Telegram concerning the rate increase on water, sewer, and garbage. What was especially interesting is that the city council implied that there were no complaints from the public regarding the rate increases so they went ahead and passed them. I think the council is sadly mistaken. The public has finally figured out that complaining does absolutely no good, so why bother.

I will use two prime examples to make my point. Last year the Midland Hospital District voted to raise our property taxes to fund indigent care. We complained and they raised our taxes anyway. The county commissioners voted to raise our property taxes and cut the sheriff's budget anyway. It does not take long for the average person to figure out that if you beat your head against a brick wall long enough, you are not going to accomplish much except to develop a giant headache. That is where we are currently with our elected officials. They do not care one bit what we, the citizens, think.

I find it hard to believe that those on the city council are so naive that they believe there was no opposition to the rate increase proposal. And what if we had gone to the meeting and complained? We would have been told how crucial the increase was to the Ivey project and they would have adopted the increase anyway. It was a no-win situation.

Folks, if you really want to complain about higher taxes, fees, and our government officials turning a deaf ear, then complain at the ballot box. Vote for anyone but the incumbents. The new people that we elect may not be any different than the ones we have now, but the current officials have a proven track record in not listening to their constituents. Maybe it is time to give someone else a chance.

Councilmen push airport expansion for own egos

It is interesting to watch the feeble explanations of Mayor Carroll Thomas attempting to justify an airport expansion against advice of the airlines and many taxpayers.

As a frequent traveler in and out of our current facility, I have never felt it inadequate for my purposes. Having been in service 30 years is poor reason to obligate the taxpayers of this community to additional debt. Vacant gates, ticket counters, and half-full parking lots attest to facility adequacy.

The user fee "tax" on airline travelers, plus charges the airlines may refuse to pay under threat of service reduction or cessation will not guarantee payment of the obligations. The rhetoric of "no taxpayer liability" is more political untruths dumped upon the citizens. Ask your councilman who will pay if the tax and airlines fees do not.

One more time, egocentric officials, failing significant accomplishment strive to have their name added to a brass plate on some overpriced and unnecessary monument.

Perhaps reducing, not increasing community liability might be a more desirable if not as visible legacy.

JACK ANDERSON

Elena Ceausescu showed absolute evil

WASHINGTON — It's a toss-up who was more of a shopaholic, Imelda Marcos of the Philippines or Elena Ceausescu of Romania. But when it comes to unmitigated evil and unrelenting shrewishness, Elena wins the contest, shoes down.

Anderson

During a visit we made to Romania, the only good thing anyone could say about the late dictator Nicolae Ceausescu, who froze and starved his people to death, was that he was better than his wife. Some in Romania are rewriting history to say that of the two Ceausescus who were executed on Christmas Day 1989, Elena was the diabolical force behind the throne.

Dozens of times she urged her husband to murder or maim some of his closest colleagues and friends, often after she manufactured insults that they allegedly had said about her husband.

Elena nagged Nicolae into making her his first deputy prime minister, and then appointed herself head of the counter-intelligence section of the Romanian secret service so she could listen to wiretaps. She particularly liked tapes of love-making by top Romanian leaders, or even passionate encounters of her own daughter Zoia or her son Nicu.

Elena spewed insults on subordinates, but she expected everyone to praise her for her beauty and intelligence, both of which were marginal. Mother Nature had not been kind to Elena, so she sought solace in clothes and jewelry. Her closet put Imelda's to shame.

Diamonds were Elena's best friend. A Romanian girl, on instructions from Elena, wooed and wed Central African Republic dictator Jean-Bedel Bokassa in the mid-1970s so Elena could have access to Bokassa's diamond mines. The girl acted as an intermediary arranging for the Ceausescus to invest in diamond mines and put the profits in Swiss bank accounts.

When imported diamonds were not enough for Elena, she pestered Nicolae into making synthetic diamonds for her. Romanian intelligence agents stole synthetic diamond technology from the United States and set up a factory outside of Bucharest to supply the Ceausescus.

Elena's inferiority caused her to compensate. She decided to pose as a gifted scientist and had Nicolae name her the head of the Bucharest Institute of Chemical Research. Real Romanian scientists were forced to write papers and books and put her name on them. Elena, who flunked out of school at 10, "wrote" so much that there was a noticeable decline in the published output of top Romanian scientists for a decade, at least under their own names.

As the "author" of the research, Elena was ignorant of basic chemistry. When she refused to approve purchases for the Institute for Chemical Research, the scientists would get around her by listing the chemical supplies they needed by their technical names. Rather than admit she didn't know what they were buying, Elena would approve the purchases.

When she went on state visits, she would needle foreign universities into giving her honorary doctorate degrees. She was even toasted at the Carter White House for her scientific prowess. Yet she was unhappy. Elena wanted the Nobel Prize for chemistry. She once prattled to a friend, "So many people all over the world are so grateful for my scientific effort. I feel that the scientific mind I was blessed with shouldn't be used just for the well-being of my own country but for all mankind. I should invent something that will last forever, like fire or nuclear energy."

Her greatest sin was not plagiarism, posturing or even overspending. It was her lack of humanity. Many believe she loved only Nicolae and her dogs. When her people complained that they were starving and freezing, she would belittle them: "The worms! They never have enough."

Gulf between governors, governed widens

Rubber checks written by members of the House, unpaid bills at the congressional dining room, Capitol Hill parking tickets "fixed," the mess the Senate made of the Clarence Thomas nomination — all have fed public disquiet and contributed to the growing movement for term limitation.

Wicker

That disquiet, however, is neither recent nor momentary, and even some of the most discontented citizens do not consider term limitation the best answer to their concerns.

Last July, six intensive "focus group" discussions, conducted in Illinois, Florida and Massachusetts, reflected what the organizers saw as "a dangerously broad gulf between the governors and the governed" in U.S. society.

Those organizers were Peter Hart, a well-known poll taker for Democrats and an opinion researcher for private concerns, and Doug Bailey, who heads a Republican political consulting firm.

The 68 participants in the three locations were "city dwellers and suburbanites, professionals and blue collar workers, voters and non-voters" — a mix whose outspoken views convinced Hart and Bailey that "Americans desperately want to believe that theirs is a government of, by, and for the people."

But they concluded also that "deep down ... very few think we have that today." The public's "frustration with politics is real and their mistrust of the political process runs very deep ... it is a corrosive cynicism that threatens to undermine American politics."

Here are some of the specific attitudes of the three groups:

— Americans' feelings of pride following the desert war have been largely dissipated in frustration and concern for the future.

— Positive developments in the Soviet Union are not removing Americans' domestic concerns — "health care, crime, education: these should be our priorities," said one participant, "instead of loaning the Soviet Union millions of dollars."

— Most thought fewer than half the members of Congress were "sincerely motivated to serve the people" and that the longer they stayed in office the less motivated they became.

— Politicians were widely considered too partisan, too subservient to moneyed interests — particularly for campaign funds — and too afraid to "level with the public" about tough issues. But the system was seen as dominated by powerful interests, so that "little men" without big money had no hope of winning office; and incumbents were believed to have rigged things to favor their own re-election.

— Participants were frustrated and angry at their inability to get "straight information" from politicians — who "talk past the issues" and usually rely on "attack and counterattack" on each other. Participants also saw the news media as "trivializing" political debate.

— Numerous reforms were considered vital; most often demanded was a reduction in the amount of money candidates can raise and spend in campaigns. Next in order: helping voters to get more and better information about candidates; reducing the influence of "special interest" funds on campaigns; encouraging "issues-oriented" rather than negative advertising; and cutting back incumbents' advantages, such as free mailings to voters.

— There was no "significant enthusiasm" for public financing of political campaigns; more strongly supported was the idea of free TV time blocks for candidates to speak directly to the camera, and requiring their participation in debates.

— Term limitation was seen as a good way to shake up the system, but participants expressed reservations about taking away the voters' right to keep good legislators in office.

One striking conclusion Hart and Bailey drew was that declining participation in politics "flows as much from informed frustration as from lack of interest."

They fear that this could result in even fewer citizens voting, improve opportunities for "extreme and demagogic candidates," and make it harder to find political solutions to pressing problems.

ART BUCHWALD

Emperor dresses in Teflon, remains unscathed

The Emperor received a report from his chief tester that no children in his empire could read or write.

He asked his Royal Image Maker what he should do about it.

Buchwald

The sage said, "This gives us a chance for a photo opportunity. We will go to a school near the palace and talk to the children about learning their ABCs."

So the next day, led by the Royal Flack, the entire court and all the Emperor's scribes went to a school.

They entered Miss Boomboom's class, and the children stood up and bowed and then cheered at a signal from the Emperor's Master of Arms, The Royal Sununu.

The Emperor started to read a scroll proclaiming that he wanted all his subjects to read and write as long as it didn't cost any money or raise courtiers' taxes.

Suddenly from the back of the room Dorcan McBridge jumped up and cried, "The Emperor has no clothes."

"Arrest that child," said the Emperor's Chief Image Maker.

"Feed him to the lions," cried the Emperor's Chief Speech Writer.

The palace guards formed a circle around Dorcan.

"Wait," said the Emperor. "He must be reasoned with. Dorcan, the truth of the matter is that I do have clothes on. But they are made of Teflon, and that's why you cannot see them. Do you know what Teflon is?"

Dorcan shook his head.

"It is the finest cloth that money can buy. It is so thin that nobody can see it. A child might think that I have no clothes on, but an adult knows that I'm well covered. Do you know why I have a Teflon cloak?"

Dorcan shook his head in the negative.

"Because there is so much discontent in the land. People have no jobs, some have no place to sleep, others put all their savings in banks and went broke, and I sent 500,000 royal soldiers to Gog, and I have nothing to show for it. But this cape protects me from anyone blaming me for everything that has gone wrong. You don't believe me?"

Dorcan didn't say anything.

"This garment was given to me by Ronald the Good. He wore it as long as he ruled, and no one ever laid a glove on him. He gave it to me and said it would protect me from my domestic enemies and any malcontents in my Empire. So you see, I do have clothes on after all."

Dorcan's teacher said, "Tell the Emperor you are sorry for the outburst, Dorcan."

"I don't believe him," Dorcan protested.

The Royal Sununu was about to box the boy's ears when the Emperor said, "Wait, we don't want to spoil this photo opportunity. Dorcan, I will prove to you that I am wearing Teflon. Say anything you want to me — anything at all."

"You're not an education Emperor, and you never planned to be one," Dorcan blurted out.

The Emperor smiled. "You see, you can't get to me. Your statement, while provocative, had no effect."

"You don't care about the subjects of your Empire who cannot find work, and your whole court is against equal rights."

The Emperor said, "I couldn't even feel it. Dorcan, the most important thing you can learn in school is that if a person has Teflon, he has everything."

The teacher wrote the word Teflon on her blackboard.

The Royal Image Maker put away his camera and announced, "OK, Your Majesty, it's a wrap."

Swaggart steps down from ministry, temporarily

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Television evangelist Jimmy Swaggart, who allegedly picked up a prostitute last week in California, is temporarily relinquishing leadership of his ministry, his son said Tuesday.

Donnie Swaggart told ministry employees at the Swaggart Family Worship Center that he will temporarily be head administrator of Jimmy Swaggart Ministries while his father undergoes professional counseling and medical care.

After "a time of healing and counseling.... Dad will once again assume the pulpit at Family Worship Center," he said in a statement a ministry spokesman later gave to reporters kept outside the 7,000-seat assembly center.

He said all crusades would be cancelled and that his father and mother, Frances, were near exhaustion.

The statement said the evangelical empire's board of directors will be restructured and a business board will be established, but Jimmy and Frances Swaggart won't be on it. "They will serve in an advisory role," Donnie Swaggart said.

Donnie Swaggart met with ministry employees for 20 minutes. He asked them to pray for his father's "speedy recovery that Dad may continue to do what the Lord called him to do and to not give any information to the media." Reporters didn't see his parents at the worship center.

The elder Swaggart's latest troubles began when he was stopped by police in Indio, Calif., on Friday for traffic violations. Rosemary Garcia, 31, of Indio, said she was with Swaggart. She said she's a prostitute and Swaggart asked for sex.

Swaggart wasn't charged with any sex-related offenses.

The scandal is the latest in a series of setbacks for the once-powerful Swaggart organization.

In 1988, Swaggart resigned from the Assemblies of God, the nation's largest Pentecostal denomination, after a rival minister released photos of him with a New Orleans prostitute. Swaggart tearfully admitted to an unspecified sin.

Swaggart faces a series of lawsuits by his creditors and a $10 million jury verdict against him and others for defaming rival preacher Marvin Gorman.

Also, Arbitron ratings for July, the most recent period surveyed, indicate Swaggart's weekly show was being seen in 403,000 households — down from 455,000 households in May.

Before the 1988 scandal, Swaggart had the top program among televangelists, reaching 2.1 million households. In July, Robert Schuller held the top spot with 1.3 million households. Swaggart ranked No. 7.

Lawyers question woman about alleged rape

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — Attorneys for William Kennedy Smith met the woman who said Smith raped her and questioned her for 5 and a half hours Tuesday about the alleged attack.

The woman arrived at 10:30 a.m. in a gray sedan with darkened windows at the Palm Beach Police Department. Her attorney, David Roth, sat with his arm around the woman in the back seat of the car.

The car drove through a group of photographers and reporters and entered an off-limits, underground police garage. Doors at the police department were locked all day to keep out the media.

The woman was questioned by Smith's defense team of Roy Black, Mark Seiden and Mark Schnapp. Also present was Assistant State Attorney Moira Lasch.

"Everything is going well," Black said when he arrived at the station. "We're happy to be here."

The woman's deposition resumes at 9 a.m. Wednesday and might continue Thursday. Her statement will not be released until it is reviewed by Circuit Judge Mary Lupo.

Smith's attorneys also subpoenaed the Jupiter woman's mother and stepfather and the father of the woman's only child to give sworn statements this week.

The woman's mother and stepfather filed court papers Tuesday saying they could not give sworn statements Tuesday. The woman's mother said she had to babysit her preschool granddaughter during the woman's depositon.

Her stepfather, a wealthy industrialist, was recently discharged from a hospital and is now in Ohio. The father of the woman's child is scheduled to give a sworn statement Wednesday at 4 p.m.

The woman's attorneys on Tuesday also denied claims by Smith's attorneys that the woman was diagnosed as having a "mass in her head."

In a letter to Judge Lupo in August, Black said the woman had been diagnosed as having a "mass in her head." Black did not name the physician or detail the diagnosis.

"A 'CAT scan' procedure had been done and it revealed that the victim did not have a mass in her head," her attorneys wrote in a request to sanction Smith's attorneys. "The unfortunate, unfair and deliberate one-sided disclosure made by the defense ... compels the victim to reveal this fact."

PBS ratings soar during hearings

NEW YORK (AP) — Sunday's closing day of Senate confirmation hearings for Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas caused ratings to soar for a number of PBS stations airing the hearings live, preliminary estimates showed Tuesday.

But not all public TV stations in the 25-city A.C. Nielsen Co. sample aired the Public Broadcasting Service's live prime-time coverage on Sunday.

Only 11 did, PBS said. Those stations got an average rating of 12.2, compared with what PBS' usual Sunday fare averages in national ratings — a 2.3. Each national ratings point represents 921,000 homes.

College rates climb 12 percent

More national news/ 1D

NEW YORK (AP) — Fall tuitions at public colleges and universities climbed by double digits for the first time in eight years as higher education fell victim to state budget cuts, the College Board reported Tuesday.

Average in-state tuitions and fees at four-year public universities rose by 12 percent to $2,137, from $1,908 in 1990-91. Room and board charges increased by 6 percent to $3,351, bringing total average fixed charges at public institutions to $5,488.

This fall's increase marked the first double-digit jump in such rates since 1983-84, when the average also went up by 12 percent.

Tuitions and fees were up an even sharper 13 percent at two-year public universities, by far the fastest growing sector of higher education with some 4.7 million full-time students. Fall tuitions there averaged $1,022, compared with $906 a year ago.

College Board President Donald M. Stewart said the big jump in tuitions wasn't surprising given recession-related budget problems affecting more than 30 states.

"The current recession has had an impact on all sectors of education, public and private," he said.

A recent Associated Press survey found that 17 states cut spending for higher education this fiscal year. Twenty-one others raised spending by less than 5 percent.

And public campuses in at least 21 states have increased tuitions by at least 10 percent.

Among the steepest in the AP survey: the University of Oregon, up nearly one-third to $2,598; the University of California system, up 40 percent to $2,274; and the 64-campus State University of New York increased tuition by $500 to $2,150 a year, following a $300 rise last December.

Some believe that the tuition surge also may reflect a fundamental change in attitude toward public higher education.

Lawmakers and voters increasingly view colleges as a private, rather than public good. Under that view, legislators are likely to continue to shift more of the cost of public colleges to students and away from taxpayers.

"I would not be surprised if that happens," said Arthur Hauptman, a Washington-based higher education economist. "States face more competing demands on increasingly limited resources. Items like prisons and public elementary and secondary education are taking a bigger bite out of state budgets."

Rates at private four-year colleges, meanwhile, went up a more modest 7 percent this fall. But because such schools are generally far costlier than public colleges, that percentage still translated to a sizable dollar jump: $10,017, compared with $9,340 in fall 1990. Average room and board charges of $4,386 brought the average fixed costs of a year at private college to $14,403.

Among price leaders: Bennington College, $23,200; Sarah Lawrence College, $23,150; Massachusetts Institute of Technology, $22,230; Yale University, $22,200; Wellesley College, $21,928; Smith College, $21,870; Brandeis University, 21,280; and Harvard and Radcliffe Colleges, $20,655.

Tropical storm forms near Cuba

MIAMI (AP) — The sixth tropical storm of the Atlantic hurricane season formed south of Cuba on Tuesday morning, but forecasters said it was not expected to grow into a hurricane.

"Conditions are favorable for only some slow strengthening," said Jack Beven of the National Hurricane Center in suburban Coral Gable. "The environment is not really very good."

At 3 p.m., storm Fabian was centered near latitude 21.3 north, longitude 82.7 west, just off the eastern edge of Cuba's Isle of Youth. The storm was moving northeast at about 12 mph, a motion it was expected to maintain for the next day or two.

Fabian's maximum sustained winds were about 45 mph and some slight increase in strength was possible through Wednesday.

They did not immediately anticipate that it would strike the United States mainland.

New road may lead to college campus

■ MC and city staffers are planning new entrance to alleviate traffic problems during peak hours.

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff Writer

Midland College and city staffers are working to design and construct a new entrance to the campus, hoping to alleviate severe traffic problems during peak hours there.

College officials told the City Council increased traffic has created a dangerous situation at campus entrances.

"There are several periods during the day that it's a real problem," said Bob Phillips, college vice president. "It seems concentrated in the area going toward and coming from the north. The loop seems to draw a lot of traffic down there."

Traffic is heavy at campus entrances on Garfield early in the morning, at noon and late in the evening, as well as after major events held at Chaparral Center.

At Midland College's Tuesday afternoon board meeting, MC President David E. Daniel noted that 5,300 people attended Saturday night's Reba McEntire concert.

"There is really only one way in and out of the college that everyone uses," Daniel said. "The south entrance is under water some seasons."

With only two lanes going into the campus on the west side, waiting cars in the North Garfield turn lanes build up, blocking the exit and causing problems for drivers on Garfield, officials said.

City planners proposed an entrance and exit road to be constructed north of the current entrances to Garfield, from the college circle stretching north and west toward Siesta Lane.

The proposed road would meet Garfield north of Haynes to avoid already extreme congestion on that street.

Motorists would be encouraged to turn right (heading north) at the new exit, officials said. Those who needed to proceed south would likely be encouraged to use the current exit.

Phillips said the plan successfully avoids disruption of the college's future expansion area, about 48 acres to the north.

"We don't have any firm plans, but we didn't want to go indiscriminately putting roads through there," Phillips said.

City Engineering Director Harvey Hansen said the city has proposed designing the road, with most construction to be financed by the college. With approval of the college trustees, the city would begin design work on the new road immediately, he said.

At Tuesday's board meeting MC trustees approved the plan. Daniel said the estimated cost to the college would be approximately $50-55,000 for curbing and paving.

"The city has tentatively agreed to provide all the planning, engineering and signage," Daniel said. "We are looking at something that will be more than a Band-Aid approach to ease congestion."

YMCA provides affordable child care

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of articles highlighting some of the 17 United Way-funded agencies which will benefit from the agency's current fund-raising campaign.

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff Writer

Child care in the United States has become a hot topic in recent years. As the number of two-income households in America continues to rise, the demand for childcare has correspondingly increased.

Locally, the YMCA provides afterschool child care at three locations. And, according to one YMCA official, nearly every possible measure has been taken to make the service affordable to anyone.

"With the United Way's help and the programs we have in place, hopefully there is no one who can't afford our services," said Gail Harmon, vice president of Financial Development and Community Relations at the YMCA.

Last year, the YMCA spent $103,000 on its childcare program. An additional $148,000 was provided by the United Way of Midland.

These funds have reduced the cost of child care at the YMCA to $120 a month. A further reduction is available for qualified applicants.

"We try never to turn anyone away for lack of financial responsibility," said Ms. Harmon. "Because of the United Way's help and the subsidy we have in place, we hope that affordability is not a problem."

The program is available to children in kindergarten through sixth grade and is open between 2:30 p.m. and 6 p.m. five days a week. An additional program providing day care for infants to 12-year-old children is available at the Day Care Center facility.

"Our goal is to provide a good, secure place for kids to go after school. We want to get rid of the latch key problem. We simply want to offer affordable child care," said Ms. Harmon.

Supervisors at each location are in charge of planning activities for the children.

"We give them a nutritional snack, promote environmental awareness and give them swimming lessons," Ms. Harmon added. "Right now, they're finishing their community awareness posters."

According to Ms. Harmon, the YMCA has jumped on the 'Think Globally, Act Locally' bandwagon.

Susan McHughes, Child-care Director at the Central facility, has coordinated several activities to help stress environmental awareness to the children.

"Susan makes sure the kids know how important the environment is. Besides recycling work, she recently had them plant a tree," said Ms. Harmon. "They hear a lot of that at school but we hope if they didn't get it there, they will here."

Although 180 children participate in the program citywide, only 30 attend the Central YMCA location. The program is licensed for 170.

While people may disagree about what is considered affordable, Ms. Harmon says the YMCA rates are at the bottom of the scale.

"Our monthly rate equals one dollar an hour. So the service is there but it's up to the parents to decide whether they want to pay for it," she said. "Basically, the parents have to ask themselves whether they would prefer having their children supervised and participating in learning activities or babysat by a television."

United Way's 2nd briefing set

Staff Report

United Way of Midland will conduct its second "battlefield briefing" in its 1991-92 campaign at 11:30 a.m. Thursday at Centennial Plaza.

At that meeting, a new money total will be announced.

At last week's briefing it was reported that $1,082,463 — or about 40 percent — of the overall goal had been raised. The goal is $2,753,000.

The money raised will help fund 17 local agencies.

Lunch at Thursday's meeting is free and the public is invited.

MC president has plans for regional center

■ David E. Daniel wants to lease a building on the southeast part of the city to attract more students.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

It's just in the planning stages, but southeast Midland may eventually be the site of Midland College's Regional Training and Development Center.

"I would like see us establish some Midland College presence in the southeast quadrant of the city," said David E. Daniel, MC president.

Daniel said he recently attended one of the college-sponsored breakfasts designed to help the small business owner stay in business.

He said the college offers training and retraining programs to "provide people with an opportunity to start out and to stay in business."

Many of the business training programs have been organized by Jerry Jones, MC chairman of business studies.

"Jerry Jones wears several hats, including working with entrepreneurs," Daniel said. "Jerry is looking into finding some donated property (for the center) which the college could lease for a $1 a year."

With donated land and a building, the college could establish a center which could offer a variety of courses responsive to the needs of persons in surrounding residential areas.

"Some people have transportation problems in getting to the campus," Daniel said. "Some just aren't attracted to the campus for one reason or another, and we need these people in our workforce."

"I think it's an exciting idea," said MC board trustee Parker Humes. "It's like (the film) 'Field of Dreams.' If you build it, they will come ... well, we won't actually build it, but it would be significant for the community."

Deana Lusk, dean of community services, said GED (General Equivalency Diploma) and literacy programs which are offered by the college at various churches in southeast Midland seem to be limited in their appeal.

"The programs appeal to older adults," she said. "We have trouble attracting young adults."

Ms. Lusk said a regional training center might appeal to young adults.

"We have an obligation to reach out to everyone in the community," Daniel said. "With your (board) approval, I will continue to investigate the possibility of having a Regional Training and Development Center."

MC board trustees voted unanimously to pursue the venture.

In other reports, Daniel said that the college's newly implemented aviation technology program was "moving along on schedule."

"The renovations began on the Abell-Hanger facility today (Tuesday)," he said. "We anticipate ren-

Murder suspect tells officers victim beat her, testimony shows

Following her arrest on charges of killing her ex-husband last year, an intoxicated and emotional Celia Garcia Perez, then 41, told police she had been beaten by the former spouse, testimony at her trial revealed Tuesday.

Ms. Perez pleaded not guilty in 238th District Court for the Aug. 23, 1990, murder of 46-year-old Jesus Aguilar Perez. Defense attorney Glen Aaron said he intends to show that Ms. Perez acted in self-defense.

Perez was shot with a .38-caliber revolver — twice in the right side of the neck, once in the upper left back and once in the left middle back — at about 1:35 a.m. apparently while in his car in front of his ex-wife's home at 925 N. Weatherford St., police reports indicated.

A 12-person jury, selected on Monday, listened to testimony Tuesday from the Perezes' 16-year-old son, neighbors who heard the fatal gunshots, police who were at the murder scene, and a hospital emergency room paramedic.

Testimony began with three women who resided at different locations on Weatherford Street at the time of the shooting. Two shots were heard, then a pause of 10 to 15 seconds, then one or two more shots, testimony indicated.

"I heard some arguing outside ... I heard only one (person), a lady's voice. For a while I didn't hear anything, then I heard gunshots," said Nancy Gomez, 17. The other two women did not hear any arguing, according to testimony.

Doctor-pilot to leave hospital

Staff Report

The pilot who was forced to land his 1976 Bellanca airplane in a field near the Big Spring Municipal Airport Monday is expected to be discharged from the Scenic Mountain Medical Center this morning.

Dr. Thomas Miller, Stanton, had just taken off from the airport when engine failure forced the emergency landing. The incident occurred at 5:55 p.m. Monday.

It was incorrectly reported in a headline in Tuesday's Reporter-Telegram that he had died in the accident.

The aircraft was declared a total loss.

Services for Troy Pinkerton, 76, of Snyder, father of Troy Omer Pinkerton Jr. of Midland, will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home in Snyder with the Rev. Wayne Maxwell of Fair Park New Testament Church in San Angelo officiating. Burial will be in Snyder Cemetery.

He died Monday at a medical center in San Angelo.

He was born on Oct. 7, 1915, in Snyder to James Riley and Mae Pinkerton.

He married Velma L. Permenter on Sept. 15, 1945, in Lovington, N.M. He was an Army veteran of World War II and served in the Coast Guard. He worked as a tool pusher for Tri-State Construction and Lease Equipment Company for several years. He attended the United Pentecostal Church in Snyder.

Other survivors include his wife; two daughters, Betty Pinkerton of Nashville, Tenn., and Karen Clement of San Angelo; two sisters, Vada Holman of Andrews and Lorance Wilburn of Abilene; two brothers, L.W. 'Red' Pinkerton of Snyder and James Pinkerton of Newton, N.H.; 10 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

He was preceded in death by a son, Billy Dwain Pinkerton on May 26, 1987, and a great-grandson.

Reyes Rangel

A vigil prayer service for Reyes Rangel of Midland will be at 8 p.m. today at the Ellis Chapel. Mass will be said at 10 a.m. Thursday at Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church. Interment will follow at Fairview Cemetery with Ellis Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

She died Tuesday.

Billy Holland

Services for Billy Dean Holland of Midland have been set for 11 a.m. Thursday at the Ellis Chapel. Interment will follow at Fairview Cemetery with Ellis Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

He died Monday at his residence.

Students flock to NEST to study

■ Facility created at Dallas-area elementary school to encourage study of math and science.

By Marice Richter
Associated Press

RICHARDSON — A new enrichment center of Northwood Hills Elementary School is challenging students to unravel the scientific mysteries of why some people can roll their tongues and others have a widow's peak.

Genetics is just one of the subject areas students can explore at the Falcon's NEST, the facility created to help stir student enthusiasm for math and science.

"We have students from all backgrounds at this school — some who come from North Dallas' most expensive neighborhoods, and others who are socially and economically deprived," said Maria Conroy, a kindergarten teacher who led the effort to establish the center.

"We wanted to set up something that would challenge all our students. So we came up with the idea of setting up a special room where children could go and work at their own pace on hands-on experiments."

The idea for Falcon's NEST — Northwood Enrichment for Scientific Thinking — was developed by a committee of parents and teachers who determine the school's needs and develop programs to meet them. Part of the center's name comes from the school's mascot. In academic parlance, the committee is called a site-based management team.

"We started talking about it a couple of years ago, but we really got it started in September 1990," Mrs. Conroy said. "The PTA started baking cookies to raise money, and we started ordering supplies."

The center opened on a pilot basis in February in a converted storage room. It was equipped with computers, stethoscopes, earthworms, snails, and a variety of other materials to keep 40 experiments — 20 in math and 20 in science — going at all times.

All students in first through third grades got to visit the center once a week for 30 minutes. Students could earn extra visits through good citizenship, turning in their homework on time and finishing their work early.

Teachers changed the experiments every two weeks to keep the students coming back.

"It was such a success," Mrs. Conroy said. "The kids just loved it."

The center will be in full operation this year, offering experiments for students in grades one through six. With the expansion, the center has been moved into a classroom.

Teachers are still putting together experiments and setting up stations, so the center won't officially open until Nov. 1.

The school spent about $4,000 to create the center last year. All the money came from PTA fundraising projects and other contributions, Mrs. Conroy said.

The PTA has donated an additional $3,000, and the school recently received a $1,180 grant from the Richardson school district's RISE Foundation, which supports educational projects.

Falcon's NEST was staffed only by parent volunteers last year, but this year a part-time aide has been hired to help. In addition, Dr. Vincent Cirrillo, a retired biochemistry professor from the State University of New York, will serve as the center's adviser and consultant. He has two grandchildren at Northwood Hills.

"He will be our Mr. Wizard and will come in regularly and do experiments with the youngsters," Mrs. Conroy said.

In its expanded operation, teachers hope to have 50 to 70 experiments set up at all times. Experiments will cover life, physical and earth sciences and a full range of math topics.

Students will have the chance to discover everything from how principles of physics make a machine operate to what type of home an earthworm likes.

The center is so full of supplies and equipment that it is like a mini-museum, Mrs. Conroy said.

Teachers plan to continue changing the experiments every two weeks — science experiments on the first day of each month and math experiments on the 15th day.

All students in the first through third grades will get to visit for at least 30 minutes and older students for at least 45 minutes.

School principal Everett Williams said Falcon's NEST is one of the best projects the school has undertaken.

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

Traffic death

Staff Reports

GARDEN CITY — A 45-year-old Austin man died as a result of injuries sustained in a two-vehicle accident in Glasscock County Monday afternoon.

Charles Elwood Ferguson Jr. was westbound on Highway 158 when he crossed the center and struck an eastbound truck driven by Steve Royce Hooper, age unknown, of Midland, according to police reports. Hooper was not injured.

Hooper was entering the ditch when Ferguson hit him in the left rear drive axle, the reports stated. Ferguson's car rolled half-way over and slid on its top before resting in the center of the road.

The accident occurred at 2:41 p.m. about two miles west of Garden City.

Glasscock County Justice of the Peace Marilee Jost pronounced Ferguson dead at 3:52 p.m. He had been wearing a seatbelt, the report stated.

Officers from the Stanton and Big Spring Police Department's investigated the accident.

Arson charge

ODESSA — An Odessa man was charged with arson Monday night in connection with a trailer fire at 412 Carolyn Drive, police said. No one was injured.

Curtis Wooten, 47, was arrested at the scene at 9:30 p.m. after he admitted setting the blaze, police said. He is in the Odessa city jail with a bond of $15,000.

Wooten told officials he set the fire because he was mad at his wife, police said. She was not in the trailer at the time.

Wooten poured gasoline under the trailer, dropped the can and lit the gasoline, police said.

His grandson suffered minor burns, while trying to extinguish the fire, police said.

Female A&M cadet alleges second assault

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Texas A&M University officials said Tuesday they were "vigorously pursuing" an investigation after a female member of the school's Corps of Cadets said she had been attacked by male cadets a second time.

Robert Wiatt, the school's police chief, said the woman allegedly was attacked about 2:30 a.m. Sunday as she walked through a campus parking lot toward her car.

The woman said she was knocked to the pavement when struck by a door opened by a passenger in another car, Wiatt said. The car's occupants "wrapped her head in a large plastic garbage sack, and then put her in the car and drove around with her" for an estimated 15 to 45 minutes, Wiatt said. He declined to give further details of the incident or the name of the victim.

The victim suffered an abrasion on her cheek and a scratched elbow, Wiatt said. She was treated at the emergency room of St. Joseph Hospital in Bryan and released, faculty members who talked to her said.

A $10,000 reward is being offered to people with information about the case, Wiatt said.

"This (the new attack) is appalling and further evidence that substantial change in the structure and management of the Corps of Cadets needs to occur," Wendy Stock, faculty senate member and president of A&M's branch of the National Organization for Women, told the Houston Chronicle.

The Corps has been under fire since the female cadet told A&M police that three members of the Corps' cavalry troop attacked her on Sept. 17 and threatened her with further harm unless she withdrew her application to the unit.

In the aftermath, the cavalry unit was disbanded by the commandant of the cadets.

Businessman wins Evans' seat

HOUSTON (AP) — Minority business counselor Garnet Coleman edged out the Rev. Jew Don Boney on Tuesday in a special runoff election to fill the Texas House seat left vacant by last summer's death of a southeast Houston legislator.

Coleman, 29, had 2,654 votes, or 53 percent of the balloting, to beat Boney, 39, who had 2,341 votes, or 47 percent.

Coleman and Boney, a civil rights advocate, were the top vote-getters in a field of 11 candidates vying in last month's special election to fill the unexpired term of the late Rep. Larry Evans, D-Houston.

Evans, a four-term legislator, died Aug. 7 in Austin during a special legislative session from an adverse reaction to cocaine intoxication.

Even though about 15 months remain in Evans' term, Coleman probably will not cast a single ballot for his constituents before running for re-election next year.

Evans' term expires in December 1992, and the Legislature is not expected to convene again until January 1993. The Democratic primary for that seat is scheduled for March 10. The special election was expected to give the winner an advantage against contenders for the post next spring, political analysts said.

Coleman, the son of southeast Houston powerbroker, Dr. John B. Coleman, is a businessman who owns part of an ice cream franchise at Hobby Airport. He recently worked as an adviser to the city of Austin on minority business issues.

ovations will be completed in four to six weeks."

The college president said MC representatives were "scouring the country" for aviation equipment classified as surplus.

He noted that more than 100 students had signed up to enroll in the aviation program's 50 slots.

"We will continue to be involved with the Midland chamber to put forth this area's interest in being an aviation center," Daniel said.

Other board reports included a presentation on the college's police academy.

The community college was granted status as a full police academy by the state March 13, according to Bob Peetz, MC criminal justice instructor.

Peetz said the college had 69 students enrolled in six classes in 1989.

"Now we average about 150 students," he said.

Peetz said Odessa College offers a six-month basic training course for law officers. "We will leave basic training to Odessa College," he said. "We will offer 17 courses to provide inservice training for police officers."

Peace officers are required to earn 40 inservice hours each year, Peetz said.

MC's police academy will offer inservice hours in courses including sex crime investigation, basic communications, fingerprinting, use of force, first line supervision, crime scene search, basic reserve officer, intermediate reserve, basic intoxilyzer, occupant protection, and arrest, search and seizure.

TRIAL: Son testifies in mom's trial dant and victim, testified he had been sleeping in his mother's bed on the night of the incident, and awoke momentarily when Ms. Perez entered the room and took something from the dresser. Ms. Perez kept a gun, acquired about two months earlier, in the dresser, testimony showed.

The younger Perez also testified that his parents argued a lot, that his father on one occasion hit his mother, and he had seen bruises on his mother in the past.

After the shooting, police arrived on the scene within a few minutes of being notified by a neighbor, testimony showed.

Perez was found dead with his feet in his car and his body on the ground near the curb, testimony indicated.

A Smith & Wesson snubnose revolver was given to police by Ms. Perez's mother at the scene, according to testimony.

When she was arrested, Mrs. Perez, crying and upset, said "No, he was beating me up," testified arresting officer B. Williams of the Midland Police Department.

Another officer, Sgt. B.K. Land, testified that a short time later, Ms. Perez repeated to him that she was being beaten.

Further testimony indicated that Ms. Perez was transported to the hospital emergency room because of injuries to her knees.

A female police officer said Ms. Perez acted and smelled intoxicated at the hospital.

A blood/alcohol test showed Ms. Perez was "very intoxicated," according to a hospital paramedic.

The defense is expected to present testimony today after the state rests its case.

If convicted, Ms. Perez could be sentenced to life imprisonment.

County taxes not 'due on receipt,' Shuffield says

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The notice "due on receipt" on Midland County taxpayers' tax bills from Midland County Tax Assessor-Collector Frances Shuffield is not necessarily so, Mrs. Shuffield said Tuesday.

"That is not correct," she said of the printed notation.

The tax notices are being mailed this week.

Rather than being "due on receipt," county taxes are due no later than Jan. 31, 1992, Mrs. Shuffield said.

Though taxes may be paid earlier, incentive for early payment was removed this year when the Midland County Commissioners' Court decided not to grant discounts for early payment of taxes.

Discontinuation of the discounts, which were 3 percent for payments in October, 2 percent in November, and 1 percent in December, converts to approximately $140,000 in additional revenue for the county's general fund, Mrs. Shuffield estimated. She won't know until end of each of those months how much, if any, discontinuation of the discounts will affect flow of revenue to the county.

Taxes may be paid as late as Jan. 31 without accruing any penalty and interest. But beginning in February, the penalty for late payment of taxes is 7 percent interest on the principal. Afterward, the penalty increases 2 percent per month.

Mrs. Shuffield noted that taxpayers may pay one-half of their total tax bill by Nov. 30 and may pay the remainder by June 30 without incurring any penalty.

This month, the county tax office is mailing out approximately 113,000 tax notices to Midland County and Greenwood Independent School District taxpayers.

Amendments to be explained

Staff Report

ODESSA — "The State of Texas", a statewide forum to explain and debate some of the 13 proposed amendments to the state constitution, will be broadcast at 9 p.m. Thursday on KOCV-TV Channel 36. Most cable viewers in Midland and Odessa receive KOCV-TV on Channel 13.

Texans will vote on the amendments Nov. 5.

Reporters from the Houston Chronicle and the Fort Worth Star-Telegram will be featured during the first half of the forum, which has been produced by Austin PBS station KLRU. The reporters will explain several of the major amendments and give arguments for and against ratification of each.

The second half of the program will center on whether or not Texans should approve a constitutional amendment allowing a state lottery. Rep. Ron Wilson of Houston, sponsor of the lottery legislation, and Rep. Glen Repp, an opponent of the lottery from Duncanville, will debate the issue.

Leland airport memorial unveiled

The State

HOUSTON (AP) — City officials Tuesday dedicated a $42,000 bronze bust of U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland in an airline terminal named after the lawmaker, who was killed two years ago in a plane crash in Africa.

"I think he would be proud and happy," Alison Leland, the congressman's widow, said at brief ceremonies unveiling the bust by Denver-based sculptor Ed Dwight. "It's something both local and international travelers will be able to see."

The 52-inch-tall sculpture, mounted atop a 4-foot-high black marble base, depicts a smiling Leland with his one hand outstretched and the other holding a rolled up piece of paper. The base in fronted by a bronze relief that shows Leland holding a child while others are gathered around him.

"What I tried to do was show his energy," Dwight said. "He was on the move all the time. He was constantly moving his hands. That's what I remember about him."

"I'm very pleased," Alice Rains, Leland's mother, said. "I didn't think anyone could capture him."

The artwork, more than six months in the making, is in the ticket lobby of the International Arrivals Building at Houston Intercontinental Airport. The $95 million building, named after Leland, opened 17 months ago and handles more than 1 million travelers annually.

"We were proud to name the international terminal for Mickey Leland," Mayor Kathy Whitmire said. "Mickey was truly a citizen of the world."

"The building is named after him, but we also wanted travelers and visitors using this international facility to know exactly who he was."

Leland was among 16 people killed Aug. 7, 1989, when their twin-engine plane slammed into the side of a mountain while flying from the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa to a refugee camp on the Sudanese border to inspect relief efforts. The Ethiopian Civil Aviation Authority, in a report released last year, blamed bad weather and improper flight preparation for contributing to the accident.

Leland was making a second trip to the border region to focus attention on the hunger needs of the Sudanese, whose homes had been ruined by civil war.

Attending the dedication were from left, brother, Gaston Leland; widow, Alison; Texas State Sen. Rodney Ellis; son, Jarrett; and Houston Mayor Kathy Whitmire.

Police officer, bank employee arrested in robbery

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A police officer and a bank employee were arrested Tuesday in connection with a September robbery in which more than $237,000 was taken from a Texas Commerce Bank, authorities said.

Police officer Jack Weldon Nealy Jr., 28, and Lisa Michelle Silvas, 19, were charged by federal officials with bank robbery, said Victor Gonzalez, assistant agent in charge of the FBI office in San Antonio.

The two appeared before U.S. Magistrate John Primomo for an initial court appearance Tuesday afternoon. A bond hearing was set for Friday, a court official said.

The defendants were accused of robbing a Texas Commerce Bank motor bank in northeast San Antonio on Sept. 21. Ms. Silvas was working at the bank at the time, and Nealy later was hired as a bank security officer, police said.

Ms. Silvas was one of the two "victims" of the male robber, Police Chief William Gibson said, adding that Ms. Silvas and Nealy had a "personal relationship."

The robbery occurred on a Saturday morning. The bandit forced two bank employees at gunpoint to hand over money from a safe and two cash drawers, then left them inside the safe and fled, police records show.

Nealy, who joined the San Antonio police force in March 1990, was not on duty with the department when the holdup occurred, Gibson said. There was nothing in Nealy's background to indicate trouble with the law, the chief added.

"The young man excelled in the early stages of his police career," Gibson said. Nealy graduated sixth of the 38 in his police academy class.

Gibson declined to explain how Nealy and Ms. Silvas were identified as suspects in the case.

Lite ice cream novelty bars have nice 'lite' ice milk taste

By Linda Anderson

Want to have your ice cream and eat it too, without suffering any guilt? (OK, maybe a little guilt) Check the frozen foods section in the supermarket — lots of ice cream makers are attempting to help you out.

Anderson

For example, Klondike ice cream bars (from Isaly's) are now available in Klondike Lite Frozen Dessert Bars with Chocolate Flavored Coating. Of course you realize that "frozen dessert bars" is a classic way of saying that the product is not real ice cream, and "chocolate flavored coating" means the coating is not real chocolate. Still, we had to check out these "lite" sort-of-ice-cream bars for taste, price and advertising accuracy.

A 15-ounce box of Klondike Lite bars, containing six 2½-ounce bars, cost $3.09. That's just over 50 cents each and struck me as being a little expensive.

Label advertising claims the bars have "⅓ less fat" (though it doesn't specify less fat than what) and have "no sugar added." And since the NutraSweet logo appears on the label, I guess that means the bars are sweetened with NutraSweet.

On the back of the box, the advertising claims go like this: "The days of sacrificing taste to enjoy a Lite Frozen Novelty are over. The Isaly Klondike company has combined our true dedication to quality with over 60 years of frozen novelty experience to create the taste and creaminess of rich, old fashioned ice cream in our Klondike Lite Bar.

"Klondike Lite Bars have ⅓ less fat than traditional ice cream bars (now they tell what the bars have less fat than), and there is no sucrose sugar added to either the frozen dessert portion or the the chocolate flavored coating. Each Lite Bar contains only 110 calories.

"You will just have to try Klondike Lite to discover how great it really tastes." Do you ever get the feeling that some advertising claims have been translated from another language?

In the taste test, I don't think the young taste-tester knew that what she was tasting was actually "lite." At least, she didn't seem to think the bars tasted lite. They taste like ice cream bars — well, a little lighter than that, more like ice milk bars. In any case, they taste good. They are the right size, too, not too small and not too big. And the fact that the bars contain NutraSweet wasn't even noticeable.

If you're after a big, rich, true ice cream taste, you won't find it here. If you want a tasty, ice cream-like flavor that won't be too much for your stomach or your calorie count, try Klondike Lite.

I still think they're too expensive, though.

Price listed is from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.

A collection of easy yet impressive main dish, bread and dessert recipes using new Hearty Grains Biscuits and Twists has been compiled in an eight-page booklet that is now available free of charge from Pillsbury.

The booklet, which includes recipes for treats such as Maples Cinnamon Coffee Cake and Baked Spinich and Cheese Lattice, shows just how versatile these new biscuits and twists can be in lower fat, lower cholesterol meals. All the recipes promise terrific fresh baked whole grain flavor and texture and come complete with nutrition information per serving.

A recipe for Honey Orange Wheat Rolls is one of the headline stars of the collection. Wonderful any time of the day, these rolls are as easy as coiling Hearty Grains Cracked Wheat and Honey Twists into muffin cups and coating them with a mixture of powdered sugar, honey, orange rind, margarine and egg white. Quickly baked, the twists have an interesting knotted look that makes the presentation as special as the fragrant whole grain taste itself.

Recipes perfect for dedicated chocolate lovers

Associated Press

Chocolate was once called "theobroma" or food of the gods. It has been considered by some as a health food (pure chocolate, after all, is free of cholesterol and salt), and by others as a junk food, aphrodisiac and a "balm of the mouth," because it was thought to produce sweet breath.

Whatever the reason, Americans love chocolate, consuming an estimated 11 pounds of the sweet stuff each year. The United States is one of the world's largest consumer markets for chocolate — 2.6 billion pounds a year.

Chocolate can be used in a variety of desserts including cheesecakes, brownies and cookies. The following recipes are designed for the dedicated choco-holic.

EASY CHOCOLATE CHEESECAKE

FOR THE CRUST:
1¾ cups chocolate cookie or graham cracker crumbs
2 tablespoons sugar
⅓ cup margarine or butter, melted
FOR THE FILLING:
2 four-ounce packages sweet cooking chocolate
2 eggs
⅔ cup corn syrup
⅔ cup heavy cream
1½ teaspoons vanilla extract
2 eight-ounce packages cream cheese, cubed and softened

Heat oven to 325 degrees F. Combine cookie crumbs, sugar and margarine in a 9-inch pie plate or springform pan until well mixed. Press into pie plate or onto bottom and 1¼ inches up sides of pan.

For the filling, in a microwave-safe bowl, cook the squares of 1½ packages of the chocolate on 100 percent power (high) 1½ to 2 minutes or until almost melted, stirring after 1 minute. Stir until completely melted.

Blend eggs, corn syrup, cream and vanilla in an electric blender until smooth. With blender running, gradually add cream cheese, blending until smooth. Blend in melted chocolate. Pour into crust. Bake in a 325-degree F oven for 50 to 55 minutes or until firm. Cool on wire rack. Cover; refrigerate.

Just before serving, melt the squares from the remaining one-half package of the chocolatein a small microwave-safe bowl on high 1½ to 2½ minutes or until almost melted, stirring after each minute. Remove from microwave. Stir until completely melted. Drizzle the melted chocolate over the top of the cheesecake. Makes 8 servings.

DOUBLE CHOCOLATE CHUNK COOKIES

4 squares semisweet chocolate
½ cup (1 stick) margarine or butter, slightly softened
½ cup granulated sugar
¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup chopped walnuts (optional)
4 squares semisweet chocolate

In a small microwave-safe bowl, melt 1 square chocolate on 100 percent power (high) 1 to 2 minutes or until almost melted, stirring after each minute. Remove from microwave. Stir until completely melted. Set aside. Cut remaining three squares of the chocolate into large, ½-inch chunks; set aside.

Beat margarine, sugars, egg and vanilla until light and fluffy. Stir in the melted chocolate. Mix in flour, baking powder and salt. Stir in chocolate chunks and walnuts. Refrigerate 30 minutes.

Heat oven to 375 degrees F. Drop dough by heaping tablespoonfuls, about 2 inches apart, onto greased cookie sheets. Bake in a 375-degree F oven for 8 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool 5 minutes on cookie sheets. Remove and finish cooling on wire racks.

In a small microwave-safe bowl, melt the remaining 4 squares of semisweet chocolate on high 1½ to 2½ minutes or until almost melted, stirring after each minute. Remove from microwave. Stir until completely melted. Dip one-half of each cookie into the melted chocolate. Let stand on waxed paper until chocolate is firm. Makes about 2 dozen cookies.

PEANUT-LAYERED BROWNIES

FOR THE BROWNIE LAYER:
4 squares unsweetened chocolate
¾ cup (1½ sticks) margarine or butter
2 cups granulated sugar
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 cup chopped peanuts
FOR THE PEANUT BUTTER LAYER:
1 cup peanut butter
½ cup powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
FOR THE GLAZE:
4 squares semisweet chocolate
¼ cup (½ stick) margarine or butter

Heat oven to 350 F degrees. In a large microwave-safe bowl, cook unsweetened chocolate and ¾ cup margarine on 100 percent power (high) for 2 minutes or until margarine is melted. Stir until chocolate is completely melted.

Stir granulated sugar into melted chocolate mixture. Mix in eggs and 1 teaspoon vanilla until well blended. Stir in flour and peanuts. Spread in a greased 13x9-inch pan. Bake in a 350-degree F oven for 30 to 35 minutes or until toothpick inserted into center comes out with fudgy crumbs. Do not overbake. Cool in pan.

For the peanut butter layer, mix peanut butter, powdered sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla extract in separate bowl until well blended and smooth. Spread over brownies. In a small microwave-safe bowl, cook semisweet chocolate and ¼ cup margarine on high for 2 minutes until margarine is melted. Stir until chocolate is completely melted. Spread over peanut butter layer. Cool until set. Cut into squares. Makes about 24 brownies.

Chocolate available in many forms

By Nancy Byal
Associated Press

When you're cooking with chocolate, it's best to use the type of chocolate that's specified in the recipe. However, if you find that you have a different type than what is called for, check this handy list to see if your chocolate will make a good substitute.

■ Unsweetened Chocolate Squares, Melted: For each ounce or square, substitute one 1-ounce envelope pre-melted unsweetened chocolate product or 3 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa powder plus 1 tablespoon shortening or cooking oil.

■ Unsweetened Cocoa Powder: Use an equal amount of Dutch process cocoa powder.

■ Semisweet Chocolate Squares: Reach for semisweet chocolate pieces as follows:

One square (1 ounce) equals 3 tablespoons pieces or 1 square (1 ounce) unsweetened chocolate plus 1 tablespoon sugar;

Two squares (2 ounces) equals 1-3rd cup pieces;

Three squares (3 ounces) equals ½ cup pieces;

Four squares (4 ounces) equals 2-3rds cup pieces;

Six squares (6 ounces) equals 1 cup pieces.

■ Semisweet Chocolate: For every 6 ounces of semisweet chocolate, substitute 6 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa powder plus ¼ cup sugar and ¼ cup shortening.

■ Sweet Baking Chocolate (also called German Sweet Chocolate): For every 4 ounces, substitute ¼ cup unsweetened cocoa powder plus ⅓ cup sugar and 3 tablespoons shortening.

Recipe combines coffee, dessert

By Nancy Byal
Associated Press

If, like me, you like to be easy on yourself when you have friends over, take note. Instead of hunting for a show-stopping dessert that takes hours to make, serve a dessert coffee you can serve in moments. This glamorous chocolate-topped coffee has a rich mocha flavor that tastes just as good when made with decaffeinated coffee.

CHOCOLATE CAFE AU LAIT

½ cup whipping cream
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 ounce sweet baking chocolate, grated (about ¼ cup)
2 cups hot brewed coffee
Pieces of milk chocolate lace candy or chocolate curls (optional)

In a small mixer bowl beat whipping cream, sugar and vanilla extract with an electric mixer on low speed until soft peaks form. Fold in the grated baking sweet chocolate.

Pour the hot brewed coffee into four coffee cups. Pipe or spoon one-fourth of the whipped cream mixture onto the coffee in each cup. Top with milk chocolate lace candy or chocolate curls. Serve at once. Makes four 6-ounce servings.

Cooking lessons available on video cassette

NEW YORK (AP) — "Cooking at the Academy," a 13-part public television cooking series, is now available in a series of video cassettes that can be purchased individually or as a collection. Each 30-minute cassette focuses on a special cooking technique, such as poaching or sauteing, or a food topic, such as desserts or low-calorie cooking. The series was produced by public television station KQED in San Francisco and filmed at the California Culinary Academy, a professional training school for chefs in San Francisco.

DEAR ABBY

Cost of Vietnam War high in lives, dollars

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: While cleaning out my garage, I found a P.O.W. bracelet in a small box. On the bracelet was engraved "LCDR JOHN McKAMEY: 6-2-65" — and then a tiny white star.

Van Buren

If you can locate this man's family, I would be happy to send this bracelet to them. I was very young when the Vietnam War took place and know very little about it. Why was it started? And exactly what was accomplished? They don't teach much about it in school, and those who served in Vietnam seem reluctant to talk about it. — KAREN A. TAMURA, CERRITOS, CALIF.

DEAR KAREN: The Vietnam War was the longest war in which the United States took part. It began in 1957 and ended in 1975.

About 58,000 American men and women died in that war, and approximately 365,000 were wounded. South Vietnamese deaths topped 1 million, and North Vietnamese losses ranged between 500,000 and 1 million men, women and children.

In terms of money, the war cost the United States more than $150 billion. According to the World Book Encyclopedia:

On Aug. 4, 1964, President Lyndon Johnson announced that the U.S. destroyers Maddox and C. Turner Joy had been attacked in the Gulf of Tonkin, off the coast of North Vietnam. (Some Americans doubted that the attack had even occurred — it has never been confirmed.) President Johnson then asked Congress for power to take all necessary measures to repel an armed attack against the forces of the United States and to prevent further aggression. The war soon became an international conflict. Joining the U.S.A. were Australia, South Korea, New Zealand, Thailand and the Philippines.

On May 4, 1970, U.S. National Guard units fired into a group of peaceful anti-war demonstrators at Kent State University in Kent, Ohio — killing four students and wounding nine others. Small wonder nobody wants to talk about it; it was not our proudest hour. Soon afterward, the Senate voted to repeal the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution.

The war ended when South Vietnam surrendered to North Vietnam in Saigon (now called Ho Chi Minh City) on April 30, 1975.

Those who are interested in locating other former prisoners of war may write to: The Assistant Secretary of Defense of Internal Security Affairs; Attn: Principal Adviser POW/MIA Affairs, Washington, D.C. 20301-3407.

DEAR ABBY: About that lady in Levittown who told her husband to take a cold shower to take off weight: Maybe she's onto something revolutionary! Somewhere in the dim past, I got it into my head that when the body gets too cold, the hypothalamus kicks in, and in order to maintain a normal body temperature, it starts the body into a fat-burning program. I also think that people living in the Arctic eat a diet that is high in calories for the same reason.

Wow! Let your imagination go. Why not build a five-acre fat farm that is nothing more than a gigantic walk-in refrigerator? Holy smoke ... shiver yourself skinny! — R.M. MORELL, M.D., SUN CITY, ARIZ.

DEAR DOCTOR: If you are right, more than half of America will love you, but a five-acre refrigerator would not be big enough to accommodate the grateful masses. So, it's back to exercise — aerobics and pushing away from the table.

DEAR ABBY: What's all the fuss about teen-agers keeping their rooms clean? I'm 50 now, but when I was a kid, my best friend Joe and his brother John shared a bedroom. Abby, that room was a disaster! You couldn't even find their beds. Their mother insisted on only one thing: They keep their door closed! Today, 35 years later, Joe is a highly successful businessman (his income is more than $1 million a year), and his brother is also earning big bucks as a research scientist.

I believe all these strict rules and regulations are ridiculous when they dominate one's life to the point of stifling one's creativity. — PHOOEY ON CLEAN ROOMS

DEAR PHOOEY: The job of a parent is to be a consistent and loving teacher of those lessons their children need in order to survive and thrive. There are just so many things a parent can nag the kids about before they are either resented or tuned out. So the heavy artillery should be saved for the important battles.

However, let's define our terms. There is a big difference between neatness and cleanliness. Neatness involves tidiness and orderliness. Cleanliness involves sanitation and hygiene. Cleanliness and sanitation are not ridiculous, nor do they stifle creativity.

DEAR ABBY: Please, please, PLEASE put an end to what I have come to know as "elevator rudeness!"

It seems every morning for years I have been bowled over by rude people pushing to get on an elevator — before I can even get off! To make matters worse, I usually have an armload of something — hot coffee, files, a briefcase or sack lunch.

Let me outline the scenario: The car stops, the door opens, and before I or my fellow passengers can exit, some rude person barges right in, and throws me off balance due to my high heels and an armload of stuff.

Abby, don't people know the unwritten law of elevator etiquette? When the car stops, polite people stand to one side and wait for the car to empty before charging into the elevator and pushing their floor buttons.

So simple, yet my shin is still healing from the other day; A delivery man wheeled his bread cart into me. Please comment. — I'LL TAKE THE STAIRS IN EVANSVILLE, IND!

DEAR I'LL: I think you said it very well. Courteous people allow elevator passengers to get out before they barge in. And people with delivery carts should use the service elevators.

Most teen-agers do not know the facts about drugs, AIDS, and how to prevent unwanted pregnancy. It's all in Abby's updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

At The OPTIFAST® Program, You'd Be Surprised How We Measure Up.

It's a rare weight management program that measures up in both inches and dollars. Yet, that is what's surprising people about The OPTIFAST Program.

CALCULATE YOUR POTENTIAL WEIGHT LOSS
(Your current weight) X .20 = (Your potential weight loss after six months)*

A recent study shows that half of all people who completed 26 weeks of the Program maintained, on average, over 70% of their initial weight loss one year after completing the active weight loss phase of the Program. Our special maintenance program is recommended for helping you maintain your goal.

When it comes to dollars, our weight management Program can cost less than many commercial diets, if you have 50 lbs. or more to lose. Ask us about insurance coverage and flexible financing, too.

Police shoot teen holding bat, knife, authentic-looking pistol

AUSTIN (AP) — A 14-year-old was shot twice by police Tuesday as he approached them with a baseball bat, knife, and an authentic looking fake gun tucked in his belt, police said.

The Austin youth was in fair condition at Brackenridge Hospital with wounds to his right thigh and right side, officials said.

Three officers responded to an emergency call from a person who told authorities that a masked man was shooting out windows of an Austin middle school around 7:20 a.m., police said.

The officers saw a suspect point what turned out to be a non-functional replica of a German Luger pistol at a student. Police said the student ran for safety, and then the suspect pointed the weapon at them.

The officers ordered him to drop his weapons, police said.

"He put the pistol in his front belt, and started toward the officers swinging the bat and waving the knife," Sgt. Mike Huckabay said.

When the suspect was about 20 feet away from them, two of the officers fired three shots, police said. Two of the shots hit the suspect, but police said they did not know where the third shot landed.

Huckabay said the gun looked authentic, and that the officers believed it was real when they fired.

Jeff Prescott, a spokesman for the Austin Independent School District, said classes at Mendez Middle School went on after the shooting, but that some parents had taken their children home.

Huckabay said the high school student had a grudge against the school's principal, but Deputy Chief Ken Williams said police had not determined a motive.

Williams said the officers were justified by their action. "They showed a great deal of restraint," in firing only three shots, he said.

"You have a lot of kids out there trying to get to school. You got an individual out there with a baseball bat, a knife, and what they believe to be a functioning gun ... they have got to take some action, and they took what they believed to be the best course of action to end this situation," he said.

Youth shot in back outside school

PASADENA (AP) — A second grader returning to class from recess was shot in the back Tuesday, apparently by a stray bullet fired during a disagreement among several people in a nearby park.

John Barnett, 7, was in line to file back inside his Sparks Elementary classroom about 1 p.m. when students heard the gunshot.

Barnett was flown by Life Flight helicopter to Herman Hospital where he was listed in stable condition late Tuesday with a gunshot wound to his upper right chest.

Police said he was shot with a .22-caliber weapon, which had not been found.

"He was behind me," classmate John Cumbie said. "He was like halfway in the door, then I saw some blood coming from his back."

Police arrested one man, but have not said he is a suspect in the shooting. School officials told police three adults had been quarreling near the playground and one may have fired the shot.

The boy's mother, Susan Barnett, said she does not blame the school for the shooting.

"My child was transferred to that school because I believe in that school," she said.

Supervisors recommend officer involved in taped beating be fired

FORT WORTH (AP) — Supervisors of a police officer are recommending he be fired in the wake of a handcuffed prisoner's videotaped beating here.

Edward J. Parnell III was named by the board of supervisors in connection with six improprieties ranging from use of excessive force to creating unfavorable publicity for their department.

Parnell said Monday he had received a letter from Police Chief Thomas Windham notifying him of the recommendation. He has been on restricted duty since he was videotaped July 3 using his baton to repeatedly strike the prisoner.

A Tarrant County grand jury had cleared Parnell of any criminal wrongdoing.

"I hurt," Parnell told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "But when this is finished, I believe I'll come out looking real good and vindicated."

The next step for Parnell is to help choose a pre-disciplinary review panel made up of five police officers and then argue his case before it, said Lt. Ralph Swearingin, administrative assistant to Windham.

The supervisors' board stated in its letter that it had studied the findings of a police internal investigation in naming Parnell in the improprieties.

Under department policy, Parnell will choose the panel members who will make their recommendation to Windham. He has authority over whether to fire, discipline or exonerate Parnell.

Deputy Police Chief David Dees, one of the four supervisors who made the so-called "chain of command" recommendation, said the hearing will be completed in about 10 days.

Man dies for $9 worth of gasoline

DALLAS (AP) — A man who police said had stolen gasoline from a service station died of massive burns and injuries in a crash as he tried to flee the store's manager.

Police said the 50-year-old man had stolen $9 worth of gasoline Monday. His car, with a full tank of gasoline, exploded when it went out control and hit a tree.

"I just can't believe that he died this way," said Vince Sullivan, a witness who tried to douse the flames with a fire extinguisher. "He died a very painful death for $9 (worth) of gas."

The victim was identified as Louis Vaughn Hooper of Dallas, said Charles Gaylor, a field agent for the Dallas County medical examiner's office.

Richard George, another field agent, said the man died of thermal burns, hot gas inhalation and blunt force injuries to his chest.

Police Cpl. John McLain said the man had filled up his tank without paying at a gas station in Dallas.

Witnesses and police said the fleeing driver collided with another car after running a stop sign. A 24-year-old woman driving the other car escaped injury.

Feathers fly when Audubon Society changes its logo

NEW YORK (AP) — When the leadership of the National Audubon Society decided last year that the organization had outgrown its old logo — the beloved egret — and chose a plain blue flag as its new symbol, the feathers flew.

Members feared the flag, described by one as "that weird blue thing," meant Audubon was abandoning its birding roots and wildlife focus to become yet another do-it-all green group run by fund-raising bureaucrats.

Peter Berle, society president of six years, struggled to convince Audubon's 516 chapters that the egret was alive and well. He repeatedly proclaimed that the blue flag would fly next to it, not alone.

Finally, Berle backed down. Last month, he announced that the society had dropped the blue flag and reinstated the egret as its sole symbol.

"You have reminded us how important the egret is as a part of our heritage," he said in a letter to the chapters, reaffirming Audubon's traditional mission of protecting birds, other wildlife and their habitats.

But Berle did not renounce the controversial idea behind the blue flag — that Audubon is more than birds, that it must also focus on "human-centered" environmental issues like population control and energy use.

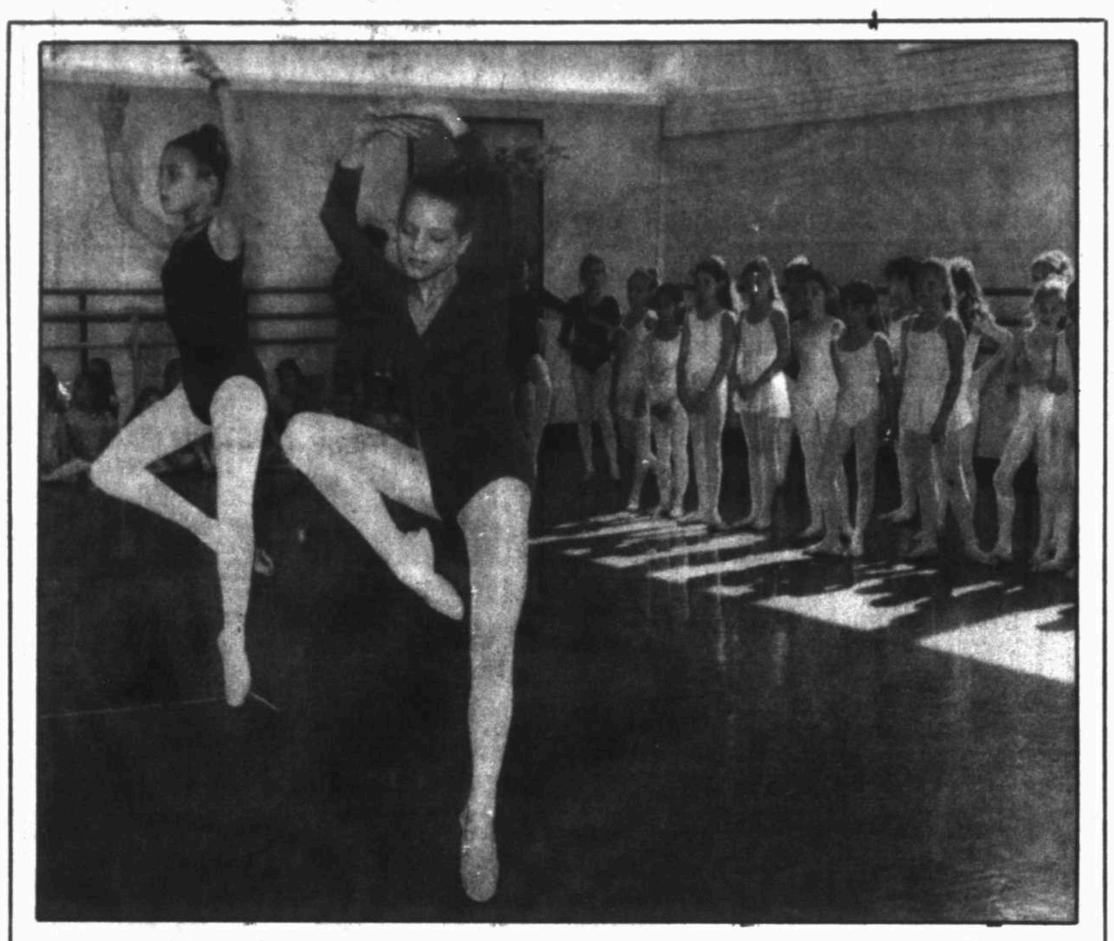

And the war for Audubon's soul continues.

"I think Audubon may have made a tactical mistake giving up something they were good at," said Whitney Tilt, project director of the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation and an Audubon member. "They had a first-class reputation in the wildlife field and now they have joined the muddled masses (of environmental groups)."

In response, Berle cites the controversy over a proposed power plant in Ontario: "You are not going to save the birds that nest in James Bay, and there are a lot of them, by putting up a bird feeder in Connecticut."

"The only way you are going to deal with this massive threat is to come to grips with the James Bay project," he added. "And you can't come to grips with the James Bay project without having something to say about energy use."

Edward Woodsum, chairman of the society's board of directors, said Audubon has a long tradition of just that kind of broad political activism.

Computer predicts babies' faces

TOKYO (AP) — For couples who worry how their unborn child will look, or how they themselves will appear after 40 years of marriage, an electronics company says it has the answer.

Matsushita Electric Industrial Co. says it has developed a computer program that can use photographs of faces to predict the aging process, or turn the clock back to produce a more youthful image.

By combining the facial characteristics of the prospective parents, it can produce a portrait of a likely offspring, the company says.

"We've had lots of contacts from wedding halls that are interested in using the system at receptions to show the newlyweds' future children," says Matsushita's Masahiro Hamada.

The system, which Matsushita hopes to market soon, consists of a personal computer with a special program and an added circuit board.

Initially, it is likely to be sold as a package for about the same price as a regular home computer, Hamada says. Later, the program and board may be sold separately.

The computer analyzes facial characteristics from a photograph based on shading and color differences, and then creates a three-dimensional model in its memory that can be altered in a variety of ways.

The face can be turned for a view from another angle. Or, using processing rules for facial expressions, a sad expression can be changed into a smile, or the mouth made to move as if it were speaking, Matsushita says.

Particular facial areas can be changed, allowing a plastic surgeon to show patients the effects of proposed surgery, or a police artist to put together an image of a suspect.

The program can even predict what it would be like to have a child with a movie star, Hamada says.

"One of our engineers tried combining his picture with one of Marilyn Monroe. He was very proud of how beautiful the child was."

AP Laserphoto

A computer program developed by the Matsushita Electric Co. can show what a couple's offspring will look like.

Cellular car phones drive motorists to distractions

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It's the stuff of black comedy — the luxury automobile that is retrieved from a ravine, its unfortunate driver still clutching the car phone to his lifeless mouth.

The tale is told by people — most of them phoneless — who suspect it is unsafe to cruise at high speed with one hand on the wheel and the other on the phone. And many authorities agree.

Car phones are plainly a "strong distraction" that take "the person's mind off the driving task," according to the National Safety Council's director of transportation safety, Dick Tippie.

Construction workers with the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation include car phoners on their list of drivers to watch.

"Anybody that is using a car phone, a part of them isn't doing the driving anymore," said Ed McCann, PennDOT assistant district engineer for maintenance.

State police Sgt. Michael Marcantino says troopers see many drivers with car phones involved in accidents on the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

But as state police don't track the device as a factor in accidents, officers keep suspicions to themselves. "Many times people said that a deer or dog ran across the road and caused the accident" rather than admit they weren't concentrating on the road, Marcantino said.

That's the rub. No government or private agencies keep statistics on car phones and accidents, and the evidence is anecdotal.

"We know there are accidents," said Harvey Seymour, a spokesman for the Insurance Information Institute, a trade association based in New York. "With 34 million accidents a year, there have to be."

But insurance companies so far do not consider car phones a risk worth a coverage surcharge, according to Seymour.

Mascot pig may need new home

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kato the potbellied pig may need new digs because of a city ordinance that could force him out as mascot of a fire station.

The 4-month-old pig lives at Fire Station 19, but the law prevents pigs from living in a building for humans within 200 feet of other buildings for humans.

"We're just trying to enforce the law and do it equally across the board," said Jerry Mellon, supervisor of the city's Animal Control Division.

So many people have stopped by the fire station to visit the 10-pound pig that firefighters have started a guest register.

"The neighborhood loves him. He's a star," firefighter Danny Bell said.

"He's the best thing that ever happened around here," Capt. Anthony Mange said.

Kemp waived

KIRKLAND, Wash. (AP) — The Seattle Seahawks released Jeff Kemp on Tuesday, two days after he threw a critical interception in a 23-20 overtime loss to the Los Angeles Raiders.

Kemp started five of six games while Seahawk starter Dave Krieg was injured. Kemp had the NFL's lowest quarterback rating of 52.9 and a league-high 12 interceptions.

He became the odd quarterback out in Seattle when Krieg returned from injured reserve this week. Krieg will start when the Seahawks (3-4) play in Pittsburgh (3-3) Sunday.

The Seahawks decided to place Kemp on waivers and keep Kelly Stouffer, 27, as their backup. Top draft choice Dan McGwire, who started one game in Krieg's absence, will be Seattle's third quarterback.

Kemp, 32, entered the NFL with the Los Angeles Rams in 1981 as a free agent from Dartmouth.

Case gets start

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — Freshman quarterback Stoney Case gets his first start of the season Saturday when New Mexico tries to snap a nine-game Western Athletic Conference losing streak against Wyoming.

It will be the first collegiate start for Case, who was recruited by New Mexico from Odessa Permian High School. Case has not started a game since the 1989 5A championship game, in which he led Permian to a 28-14 win over Houston Aldine.

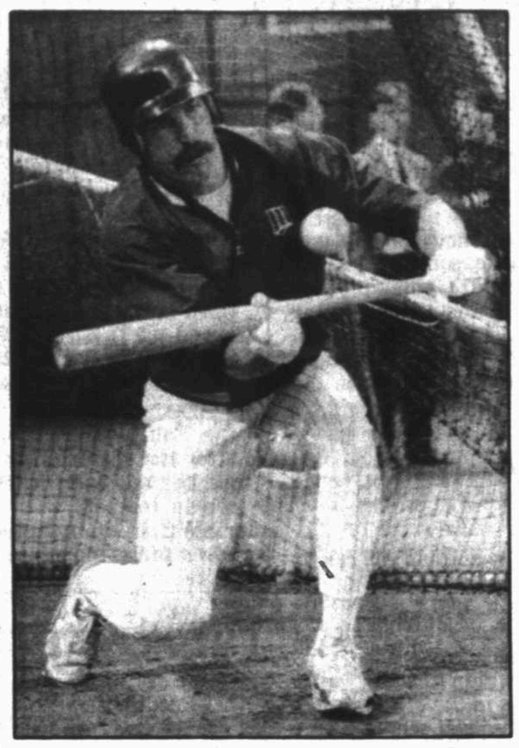

New Mexico is 1-6 overall and 0-3 in the WAC this season. The Lobos have not won a conference game since Oct. 6, 1990, when they beat Texas-El Paso, 48-28 in Albuquerque. Wyoming is 2-4-1 and 0-3-1 in the WAC.

Morris gets call

Minnesota's Jack Morris works on his bunting technique in preparation for the 1991 World Series, which begins Saturday in Minneapolis.

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — At 36, dreams are still coming true for Jack Morris.

Minnesota Twins manager Tom Kelly has selected Morris to open Game 1 of the World Series on Saturday night in the Metrodome against either Pittsburgh or Atlanta.

Morris won two games against Toronto in the AL playoffs, including Game 1. He gave up six runs in 13 1-3 innings.

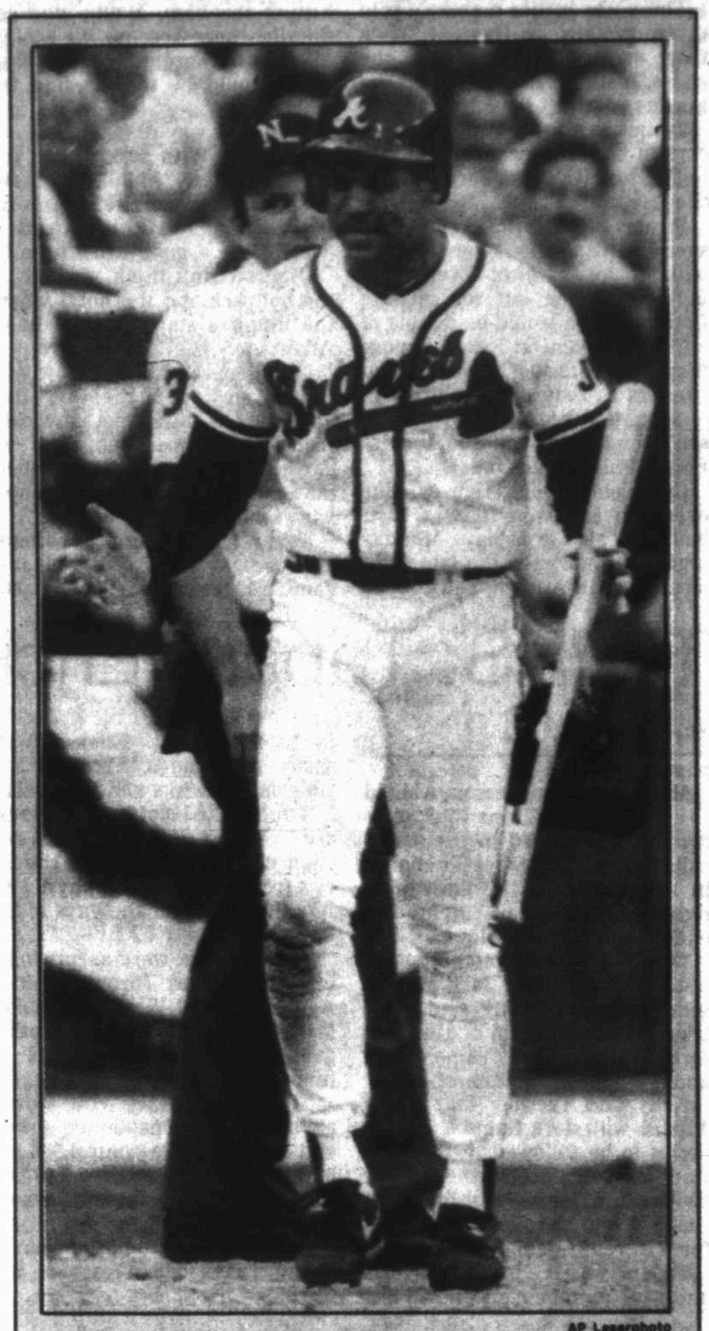

"I always thought about pitching for the Twins when I was a kid," said Morris, a native of St. Paul. "Winning the pennant in my first year is what the game is all about. To start the first game of the World Series in your hometown will definitely be one of the highlights of my career."

Morris' career has plenty of highlights, too.

He was the winningest pitcher in the 1980s while playing for Detroit and won two games in the 1984 World Series as the Tigers beat the San Diego Padres in five games. The right-hander has also pitched a no-hitter and has 216 lifetime victories.

"You know when Jack is out there that you will usually be in the game," Kirby Puckett said. "Even when he doesn't have his good stuff he hangs in there and gets out of jams. He's a

Eagles swarm MHS

Abilene High spikers roll to 8-0

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant Sports Editor

They came, they saw, and, quite frankly, they conquered.

Abilene High put on a volleyball clinic Tuesday night, defeating Midland High 15-2, 15-9. So impressive was their display that it prompted Midland High head coach Sonja Pittman to call the Lady Eagles "state championship level material."

Abilene High's bunch did not exactly play like the Lady Eagles as they are billed. Instead, they more resembled those pesky little killer birds in the classic Hitchcock movie. And at times, Midland High resembled Tippy Hedrin, trapped in a phone booth or a car.

Elsewhere, Abilene Cooper defeated Midland Lee, 16-14, 15-13; San Angelo Central gained its first district win of the season with a 14-16, 15-12, 15-13 win over Odessa High, and in non-district action, Odessa Permian defeated Grandfalls-Royalty 15-1, 15-11.

After a 1-1 tie, the Lady Bulldogs were never a factor in the first game, but in the second game, MHS showed it was determined to at least try and pull off the upset of the season. Even when AHS was two points from victory, Midland High played with as much spunk and drive as when the match first began.

Unfortunately for the Lady 'Dawgs, Thelma McDow and Tamara Jones played as well as they have all season. Everytime AHS would find itself in a predicament, the Lady Eagles would feed the ball to Michelle Torres who would then set it for Jones and her vicious, virtually non-returnable kill.

"She has a 30 inch vertical leap, she hangs in the air and she has a roundhouse hit," Pittman said of Jones. "It's virtually impossible to defense that.

"She's Division I college material."

Jones, McDow and Regina Huddleston combined for 14 of Abilene High's 15 team kills on the night, including a picture perfect left-handed fake dink and follow-up kill by Jones which put AHS up 9-6 in the second game.

A handful of unforced errors, Pittman said, also led to the abbreviated match, but it was primarily the play of the dominating Lady Eagles.

"That's the classiest team this district has had in a long time," she said. "They play the game beautifully. I'm more impressed with that team than any 4-5A team since I've been here. They'll represent our district well in the playoffs.

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Midland High spiker Ruth York digs one out during the Lady Bulldogs' District 4-5A match Tuesday against Abilene High. AHS swept the match at MHS.

"I mean, we didn't play terrible and lose. We had a lot of unforced errors and didn't really get into it until the second game. And we gave them a good game in the second game. I think we made them take notice."

The win upped Abilene High's record to 8-0 in district, 19-3 overall. Midland High fell to 5-3, 11-6.

"They enjoy playing, they love it," understated AHS head coach Debbie Yeager. "They play intense and practice intense. We have 12 confident, solid players."

On the subject of confidence, Yeager, who coached four San Marcos teams to state titles before coming to Abilene, puts on no airs regard-

Braves look for way out of NLCS hole

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — The Atlanta Braves should've won the NL playoffs by now, and they know it.

Somehow, though, the outs and the innings and the games slipped away. So instead of relaxing Tuesday, they spent their off-day on a plane to Pittsburgh.

"With a couple of breaks, it could've been very easy for us," catcher Greg Olson said. "We could've been celebrating right now."

Instead, the Braves go into Wednesday night's Game 6 facing a 3-2 deficit. Plus, they'll be facing Pirates ace Doug Drabek.

Three Rivers Stadium has another surprise in store for the Braves. The Pittsburgh fans have stolen the chop-and-chant cheer from the Atlanta crowd, and practiced Monday night in the fourth quarter of the NFL game between the Steelers and New York Giants.

Steve Avery will start for Atlanta, hoping to again fuel one of the most improbable rides in baseball history. If it goes to Game 7, the Braves, trying to become the first team to go from the worst record in the majors to World Series winners, will send John Smoltz against John Smiley.

Still, the Braves believe — no, they're sure — it shouldn't have gone even this far. That was before they started an 18-inning scoreless streak by missing a base, a bunt sign and a bunch opportunities.

"I know I'm going to look back at a few things and say, 'I wish I hadn't done that,'" David Justice said. "And I'm sure there are a lot of other gus in here who feel the same way."

TERRY WILLIAMSON

The good, the bad, the unbelievable

Odessa Permian has re-captured its District 4-5A football palace and no one is going to deny that this week after old Mojo gave Midland Lee a 33-0 humbling last Friday night at Ratliff Stadium.

Williamson

Lee had gone 27 games without being shutout, last hitting zero in a game in a 35-0 loss to Killeen in 1989 to open the season. Prior to that, Lee can go back to a 14-0 bi-district loss to Amarillo High in 1986 to find its next shutout.

But I don't have records that go back far enough to find out when Lee last had less than 100 yards of total offense in a game. You may have to go back to the dawn of time to find that. Even in Lee's crawling years of the '60s, the Rebels usually had yardage, even when they were a passing team.

It appears here that Permian is the team that should be playing in the league with a university. Instead, Lee will face the University of Chihuahua in a matchup with international flavor Friday. At least, this game gives Lee a fun game to follow on the heels of that Friday night nightmare on the carpet.

Midland High also lost Friday, 42-21, to Odessa High, but the Bulldogs did shake one big monkey. After five games, Midland High had not scored a touchdown, but the Pack got three against OHS. And they did it with the passing game for the most part.

Quarterback Geoff Simmons passed for 291 yards, more than twice his total for the entire year. Simmons also rushed for a touchdown and threw for one.

However, receiver Dewayne Culpepper caught 10 of Simmons' 14 completions for 252 yards and a touchdown. Culpepper now has caught 22 passes for nearly 400 yards. The rest of the Bulldog team has caught only 17 passes.

Even in a losing cause, the performances of Simmons and Culpepper were among the best in the state over the weekend.

MHS also shook off the potential role of being the league's worst scoring team in history. Abilene Cooper scored only 24 points in 1961, but the Bulldogs now have scored 27 points with three games to play. Abilene High is now on the hot seat. The Eagles have tied Cooper with 24 points, but will have to score against either Odessa High, Lee or Permian down the stretch.

Speaking of passing, take a look at Class 5A Alice. The 3-3 Coyotes had over 1,000 yards passing in their first five games, averaging well over 200 yards per game in the air behind quarterback Javier Leal and receiver Robert Rodriquez.

Who's coaching these phenoms? None other than Van Tom Whatley, the former Midland Lee offensive coordinator who got sick to his stomach every time the ball went into the air. The Lee offense may have 1,000 yards passing about every three years.

Says Whatley, "The first week I had the kids here we put in the Wishbone and was hit with a total wave of shock. We didn't have the linemen or the backs for it. But I had a quarterback who could throw and a receiver who could catch — so we're passing.

"I can see why the fans like the passing game. It's exciting when you complete them."

And that, folks, is quotes from the "I Never, Ever, Thought I Would Hear" department. Air Whatley? Somehow, it just doesn't roll off the tongue naturally.

Terry Williamson is sports editor of the Reporter-Telegram.

NLCS: Avery takes on Drabek in Game 6

(From 1C)

Because every time Justice and the Braves have tried to turn the corner, they've stumbled.

There was Mark Lemke getting thrown out at third base in Game 1. There was Justice making a wild throw to third in Game 4. Then there was the biggest play of the series, Justice missing — or maybe grazing — third base in Game 5.

Justice is the only one who is certain he hit the canvas. He said he felt his cleats awkwardly brush the bag.

Pirates shortstop Jay Bell was sure Justice tripped over the base without touching it. Ever since Bell was called out for missing first base on a would-be double in a Class AA game at Reading more than five years ago, he has studied runners as they round third.

No matter, because the only person's opinion that counted, umpire Frank Pulli, said "Out!"

Crew chief Doug Harvey, like everyone else who follows baseball, saw all the replays Monday night. The story led the late-night local news in Atlanta, and topped every other highlights show.

"Yeah, I saw the film and saw the dirt coming over the bag, but what's it mean?" Harvey said Tuesday in Pittsburgh. "Some cleats drag dirt with them, so I don't know if it came from him hitting the base. Maybe you see the dirt there because it's against a white background of the base, but it could be trailing him the whole way.

"The only way to make that call is to see it. With 50,000 fans, you can't hear any sound," he said. "We had an excellent umpire right there watching, and it looked like a good call to me."

Others didn't think so, both at the ballpark and the hotel where the umpires stayed overnight in Atlanta.

"We generally keep a low profile and stay out of the way," Harvey said. "I didn't get any calls from upset fans. But after we came back from dinner, the bellman said there were some people who said they disagreed."

As is often said, and as is almost always right, umpires do not lose games for teams. In Atlanta's case, the top of their order did not produce in the Braves' last two losses.

Justice, Ron Gant and NL batting champion Terry Pendleton went a combined 4-for-26 in those double defeats. That's almost enough to make someone like Barry Bonds, who has managed only three singles in 20 at-bats with zero RBIs for Pittsburgh, feel better.

"You know what I can do," Bonds said. "Terry Pendleton, what's he doing?"

At least Bonds has made a few nice catches and has not made any bad throws. Justice, batting .278 in the series, hasn't been so fortunate.

"David's an aggressive player and he's made some aggressive mistakes," said teammate Tom Glavine, a 20-game winner during the season and a two-time loser in the last week. "But you can't fault him for that. We've all done the same thing."

Braves sendoff not what it was

ATLANTA (AP) — Last week, more than 1,500 chanting and tomahawk-chopping fans sent the Braves off to Pittsburgh. On Tuesday, with Atlanta trailing 3-2 in the NL playoffs, fewer than 150 fans showed up to say goodbye.

"We're still alive and we're still confident," said Steve Avery, scheduled to pitch Game 6 on Wednesday night.

Last week, there was an army band playing "Rocky" and "Take Me Out To The Ballgame" at Hartsfield Atlanta International Airport. Dozens of security guards held fans, some 20 rows deep, back from their heroes.

On Tuesday, there was a brief outburst of the Indian war chant and little security, other than airport officials.

TWINS: Tapani, Erickson to follow Morris

winner."

Morris, 18-12 this season, wanted to sign with the Twins four years ago but was denied in the era of collusion. He finally got his chance in 1991 and made the most of it, signing with a last-place club but ending up in the Series.

"We had a young pitching staff last year and signing Jack gave us some stability," Kelly said. "We tried to develop them and we suffered. This year they came of age and we added a couple of guys."

Kelly said Tuesday that Kevin Tapani will start Game 2 of the Series to be followed in the rotation by 20-game winner Scott Erickson. Morris would pitch Game 4 and perhaps come back for a seventh game.

Tapani was 0-1 in the playoffs and gave up nine runs and 16 hits in 10 1-3 innings. Erickson was shaky in Game 3, allowing two runs on three hits and five walks.

"I think the layoff is to our benefit," Tapani said. "We have a chance to rest and go into the Series fresh mentally and physically. It will be good for the guys in the bullpen."

The relievers were surprisingly effective against Toronto as Rick Aguilera, David West, Carl Willis, Mark Guthrie and Steve Bedrosian gave up only two runs in 18 1-3 innings.

"The only thing you worry about is getting maybe too strong and losing a little control," Aguilera said. "But I'd rather be in this situation than go into the Series overworked."

On Tuesday, it didn't appear as if the Twins had a care in the world.

The pitchers arrived first and took some bunting drills in case needed during the Series games at the NL park. Later, they jogged in the outfield and played catch. Then the hitters arrived and chased the pitchers out of the batting cage back into the outfield.

"This is boring," first baseman Kent Hrbek said. "I like to play baseball but not watch it."

Hrbek said he planned to spend his afternoon doing some hunting in nearby Rochester.

"I think it will help our pitchers to get a little rest," Hrbek said. "For the hitters, it doesn't really matter."

Kelly said the Twins would intensify their workouts during the week, but he would not conduct simulated games for fear of injury.

"We'll be ready," Kelly said. "There's really nothing you can do about it, anyway. Playing in the World Series in 1987 has given me and the coaches a better idea of what to expect."

What most didn't expect was to see the Twins in the World Series. Even the city itself seems a little shocked that it happened.

"In 1987 we had a team that came up together and it had been a long time since the Twins won anything," Kelly said. "This is just as special but it a different way."

That's how Morris feels about things, too.

"I thought I had experienced just about everything you could in baseball," he said. "When I came to the Twins I didn't think they were a last-place team, but no one can say in spring training you're going to end up pitching in the World Series."

Cougars voted best hoop squad by SWC coaches

Associated Press

DALLAS — The Houston Cougars, with three returning starters from last season's 18-11 team, have been voted by the league's head coaches as the team most likely to win the 1991-92 Southwest Conference basketball championship.

Coach Pat Foster's Cougars, looking for their first SWC regular-season title since UH's Phi Slama Jama team of 1984, received five of the eight first-place votes for 58 points, edging second-place Rice, which got 51 points but no first-place votes.

Texas Christian, which returns all five starters from last season's 18-10 squad, received two first-place votes and Texas received one.

Texas (48 points) finished third in the poll of coaches, followed by TCU (47), Baylor (34), Southern Methodist (25), Texas Tech (14) and Texas A&M (11).

Arkansas left the SWC for the Southeastern Conference after last season, although it is playing out one final SWC season in football.

SWC head coaches were asked to list their first- and second-team All-SWC teams, select a Player of the Year, Newcomer of the Year and Freshman of the Year and predict the outcome of the 1992 SWC regular-season race.

Texas' Benford Williams, the lone returning starter from last year's 23-9 NCAA tournament team, was the pre-season choice for Player of the Year honors.

Houston's Sam Mack, a junior college transfer from Tyler Junior College, was a near unanimous selection to walk away with Newcomer of the Year. Texas' Terrence Rencher, New York's Mr. Basketball last year at St. Raymond's High School, was the choice for Freshman of the Year.

Others on the coaches' preseason all-conference team are Craig Upchurch of Houston, Reggie Smith of TCU, Brent Scott of Rice and Mike Wilson of SMU. wilson was the 1991 SWC newcomer of the year.

On the coaches' preseason all-conference second-team are Dexter Cambridge of Texas, Tim Mason of SMU, Michael Strickland of TCU, Will Flemons of Texas Tech and David Wesley of Baylor.

Tarpley tested by NBA drug unit

DALLAS (AP) — Troubled Dallas Mavericks forward Roy Tarpley was given a drug test Tuesday by ASAP, the administrative arm of the NBA's anti-drug and alcohol program, team officials said.

Tarpley has taken and passed numerous drug tests over the past two years after slips in his aftercare program.

A positive test for cocaine or heroin would result in his suspension from the league for at least two years. There was no immediate word on when the results of the tests, which are not made public, would be known.

Tarpley, who refused to practice with the team on Sunday and walked out of a practice on Monday, was in Houston Tuesday to talk with counselors at John Lucas' drug and alcohol rehabilitation clinic, where he is an outpatient.

"They gave me no indication as to how long Roy would be there," said Rick Sund, the team's vice president of basketball operations, who spoke with members of ASAP and the clinic.

"We don't want a situation where they say they're going to hold him out for eight days and then he comes back. That's not good for the team."

Lisa Sanchez, Mich Neatherlin, Sally Gibson and Stephanie Saxon all chipped in for Midland High in the effort.

Jorga O'Neal, Jodie Strain and Shana Salsido led the Midland High JV in its 15-8, 15-12 win over the AHS JV.

Midland High travels to Odessa High Saturday. The JV is scheduled for a 1:15 p.m. start. Varsity follows at approximately 2:30 p.m.

'Ironhead' Heyward accused of head-butting woman in bar

Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — New Orleans Saints fullback Craig "Ironhead" Heyward cursed two women who sought his autograph at a suburban bar, forcefully grabbed one of them, head-butted the other and menaced both with an iron police barricade, according to a police report.

The incident happened Friday night, but the police report was not available until Tuesday.

Heyward was sent home from Philadelphia on Saturday where he was scheduled to play against the Eagles on Sunday, but coach Jim Mora said that should not be viewed as a prejudgment of guilt.

Mora would not say whether Heyward had been fined or disciplined in any way.

General manager Jim Finks said he has received telephone calls from a number of people claiming to have witnessed the incident and saying they were willing to testify on Heyward's behalf.

Jefferson Parish Deputy Keith I. Bourque's report said Heyward denied any part in the incident, and the running back has refused to talk about it since then. When Bourque tracked him down at his apartment, he issued a misdemeanor summons to Heyward, instead of arresting him on allegations of simple and aggravated assualt.

Bourque said he answered a call from Champions restaurant, owned in part by Saints kicker Morten Andersen, reporting a disturbance in the restaurant's parking lot at about 11 p.m. Friday night.

"Upon arrival, (Bourque) met with Richard J. Keene, the general manager of Champions, who advised that Craig "Ironhead" Heyward, a Saints football player, was highly intoxicated causing a disturbance in front of Champions restaurant," the report read.

Gina C. Taylor and Katie P. Lala complained that they approached Heyward and asked him to autograph a T-shirt that Taylor had brought with her to a pep rally-fund raiser at Champions, the report said.

Heyward stepped out of the car, cursed Taylor and "grabbed her forcefully."

Klingler may miss SMU game

HOUSTON (AP) — An inner ear infection may keep Houston quarterback David Klingler out of this week's game and he would be replaced by a quarterback depth chart coach John Jenkins referred to Tuesday as "The Three Amigos."

When Klingler could not play in the second half of Saturday's 29-17 loss to Arkansas, Jenkins went with a quarterback rotation of Donald Douglas, Jimmy Klingler and Chandler Evans.

All three quarterbacks-in-waiting or the one who shines the most in practice this week could be in the lineup Saturday, when the Cougars play host to Southern Methodist in the Astrodome.

"David's status is questionable for this game," Jenkins said. "The infection affects your equilibrium. For some people it lasts a couple of days. For others its longer."

Klingler completed nine of 20 passes for 52 yards in the first half but a halftime decision by Jenkins and team doctors put him on the sidelines.

BEETLE BAILEY

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Make "service to others" your motto. Your efforts to improve a community will bring rich rewards. Business alliances enjoy highly favorable influences this coming winter. Listen to the advice of experts but trust your instincts. The year 1992 will bring new career honors. Travel looks promising in early spring. A long-planned social event will make next June a very special time. Investigate an unusual financial proposal in midsummer. August could feature a hasty wedding or elopement.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: playwright Eugene O'Neill, actresses Angela Lansbury and Suzanne Somers, sportscaster Tim McCarver.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Observe all security rules at home and work. Do not despair if a project is derailed. Seek advice from more experienced co-workers. Your plans for a trip bring you great satisfaction.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Home and family life are accented today. Do-it-yourself projects can reduce household costs. Delegate a few simple chores to small fry but be patient. Do not expect perfection.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Although an urge to travel is strong, you will accomplish more if you stay put. Make maximum use of the telephone and fax. A timely compromise will help you avoid an ugly confrontation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): If a desire for power is all that motivates you, you will not get very far. Avoid issuing ultimatums. A platonic relationship could turn romantic. Welcome a second chance for domestic bliss.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Get in touch with people who share your interests and concerns. A child presents an idea that deserves serious consideration. Think about it. You cannot afford to ignore a loved one's needs.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Put on your thinking cap and you will be able to overcome any opposition you encounter. Creative ideas abound! A member of the opposite sex is helpful but distracting.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Pull yourself together and make better use of your time. Contact important people early in the day. An investment does better than you anticipated. Dividends arrive to improve your cash flow.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Something that happens today could take you by surprise. A person you thought a permanent fixture moves on. Be open to innovative ideas. Higher-ups admire and reward flexibility.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You feel a strong attraction to someone new. Follow the dictates of your heart. A work project should not be postponed. Keep your mind on business.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be firm about cutting your ties to negative people. A depressing companion has been dragging you down for too long. You will be deeply moved when someone shows affection for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Pay more attention to the way you look. A polished appearance could mean the difference between getting a better job or standing still. Wear something glamorous this evening

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Continue to follow your present conservative course. You take real delight in doing things for those you love. Your high spirits prove contagious! Maintain a positive attitude toward your work.

TEST YOUR PLAY

Both vulnerable. North deals.

	NORTH ♠ Q 10 9 ♡ K 9 ◇ A J 6 4 ♣ A K 7 3
WEST ♠ 8 5 4 3 2 ♡ 7 ◇ Q 10 7 5 3 ♣ 10 2		EAST ♠ A 7 ♡ J 8 5 2 ◇ K 9 2 ♣ 8 6 5 4
	SOUTH ♠ K J 6 ♡ A Q 10 6 4 3 ◇ 8 ♣ Q J 9

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 NT	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
3 NT	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
5 ♣	Pass	6 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Three of ♠

There are many facets of declarer play that are automatic to the good technician. Study the combined North-South holding and decide how you would play six hearts after the lead of a low spade.

The bidding is interesting. South's auction shows a hand with slam interest but no side-suit ace to cue-bid—had South been interested only in game, there would have been no reason to first jump to three hearts instead of straight to four. With 17 high-card points and the king of trumps, North cooperated by cue-bidding five clubs. Since North knew South had no side-suit ace, North could not be accepting the slam try without holding at least two aces, so South went directly to six hearts on the strength of the second-round controls in both unbid suits.

When we saw this hand played, East won the ace of spades and returned the suit to the king. Declarer cashed the king and ace of trumps to learn of the bad break. A trump coup would be needed to neutralize East's trump length.

Declarer crossed to the ace of diamonds and ruffed a diamond. The queen of clubs was cashed, the nine of clubs went to the king and another diamond was ruffed. Declarer now entered dummy with the ace of clubs, and all would have been well if clubs had split evenly or had East started with three spades. As it was, declarer had to try to cash the queen of spades, but East ruffed for down one.

Declarer's timing was off just a little. After winning the king of spades at trick two, declarer should immediately have cashed the ace of diamonds and ruffed a diamond. When the ace and king reveals the break, declarer is on the board to ruff another diamond. Now declarer cashes the queen and jack of clubs before crossing to the king of clubs, and the contract is secure. Declarer simply discards a spade on the ace of clubs and is left with Q 10 of hearts poised over East's J 8. Any card from dummy allows declarer to score the last two tricks and the slam.

Elevator traps Turner, Fonda before Game 5

ATLANTA — Maybe it was an omen. Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner and his fiancee, actress Jane Fonda, were stuck on an elevator for 10 minutes before the Braves' loss to Pittsburgh in Game 5 of the National League baseball playoffs.

The two were stuck with 12 other people Monday after they squeezed into the crowded press elevator at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium about 30 minutes before the game.

"Don't let so many people on. Take charge," Turner snapped at elevator operator James Walker.

Walker didn't tell Turner that he and his fiancee were responsible for putting the elevator over its dozen-person limit.

Because of the extra load, the elevator couldn't climb the last 5 feet to the third level.

When Turner suggested someone go through the ceiling, Kamon Simpson, a reporter for The Macon Telegraph, climbed through the elevator roof and pounded on the door for help.

Finally, the doors were opened and the trapped passengers released.

"It's like opening night in the theater," Ms. Fonda said. "When you have a bad dress rehearsal, that means the show's going to be good."

Maybe in the theater, but not in baseball. The Braves lost to the Pirates 1-0 to fall behind 3-2 in the best-of-seven series.

NEW YORK — Was Donald Trump simply being nostalgic when he took his exfiancee Marla Maples pumpkin picking one afternoon and then breakfasted with exwife Ivana Trump the next morning?

Trump

Or did the mega-developer take Marla to the pumpkin patch on Long Island to patch things up after their highly publicized split last month?

The two were spotted Friday at a roadside farm stand called Pumpkintown in the Hamptons, according to Tuesday's New York Post.

Maples

Just hours earlier, they were seen playing golf nearby as a plane flew overhead pulling a banner proclaiming, "Marla, I Love You," the Post said.

On Saturday, they were back in Manhattan shopping at the Napoleon boutique in Trump Tower and then dining at the Plaza.

But the next morning, Trump had breakfast with Ivana, the Post reported.

There was no comment from Trump's publicists about what it all means.

LOS ANGELES — John Forsythe, television's "Dynasty" patriarch Blake Carrington, dismisses rumors of an acrimonious relationship with co-star Joan Collins.

"Those stories were a crock," the 73-year-old Forsythe said. "There are some people you connect with, and some people you half-connect with. I'm afraid that may have been the case with Joan."

In an interview published in this week's Entertainment Weekly, Forsythe continued: "But I will work with a ringtail monkey if the monkey has talent. And that lady is very talented."

"Dynasty" left the air two years ago after an eight-year run on ABC. The cast is preparing a special "Dynasty: The Reunion" miniseries airing Oct. 20 and Oct. 22 on the network.

SANTA FE, N.M. — A disagreement over a labor contract prompted workers to walk off the film "White Sands," but they returned a few hours later after an agreement was negotiated.

One of the stars, Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio, had refused to cross the picket line during the dispute.

Picket lines went up Monday evening at two sites where the movie is being filmed. Filming resumed Tuesday morning, said Charlie O'Dowd, production manager for the movie. He refused further comment.

Negotiations had been going on for some time between the crafts union and White Sands Production, said Steve Flint, a representative of the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees and Motion Picture Machine Operators.

An agreement had been reached on most matters except for health care insurance, and that led to the walkout, Flint said.

VIENNA, Austria — Claudio Abbado, the Italian conductor who's stepping down as music director of the Vienna Opera after this season, has agreed to an encore.

Abbado will conduct "The Marriage of Figaro" in Vienna during the 1993-94 season, and will conduct that opera and "Boris Godunov" when the opera company tours Japan in the fall of 1994, officials said Tuesday.

Abbado, a 58-year-old native of Milan, announced last week that he was stepping down for health reasons before his contract expired in 1997.

However, there have been rumors of disagreement between opera director Eberhard Waechter and Abbado.

Prices climb

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices shot up Tuesday, entering territory unseen for nearly two years except during the aberrational market convulsions of the Persian Gulf crisis.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in November settled at $23.86 per barrel, up 40 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

The move prompted local crude purchasers such as Scurlock Permian Corp. and Texaco Trading and Transportation to raise their posted price 25 cents to $22.50.

Oil's rally, now into a third week, stems from continued concerns of supply disruptions in the Soviet Union, the world's largest oil producer and a major exporter, and the prolonged absence of Iraqi crude from the world market.

The move has stirred concerns that if prices hold at that level, any momentum the economy develops to escape the recession will be hampered.

Though oil prices are shooting to highs that have caught many traders off guard, retail prices for gasoline are at a six-month low, a survey released Tuesday by the American Automobile Association showed.

The nationwide average price for a gallon of self-serve regular unleaded dropped 1.3 cents this week, to $1.122, the lowest since April 23, when gasoline was $1.119 a gallon in the auto club's survey.

Natural gas for delivery in November settled at $1.986 per 1,000 cubic feet, up .4 cent.

Dollar rises

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar rose against major currencies Tuesday as traders re-evaluated their earlier speculation that the Federal Reserve might push interest rates lower.

The dollar rose to 1.71275 German marks in New York trading, up from 1.70175 late Monday.

The dollar also rose against the Japanese yen, advancing to 130.10 in New York from 129.90 on Monday.

The British pound fell against the dollar, dropping to $1.7005 in New York from $1.71225 late Monday.

Market advances

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted another solid advance Tuesday as investors looked beyond a stream of relatively poor corporate earnings to the prospect that improvements lie ahead.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 21.92 to 3,041.37.

Williams to take energy firm public

Midland rancher files for public offering of 6 million shares of stock

MIDLAND (AP) — Clayton Williams, the outspoken Midland rancher and 1990 Republican gubernatorial nominee, announced plans Tuesday to take his energy company public.

Clayton Williams Energy Inc. filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission for an initial public offering of 6 million shares of common stock at an expected price of $12 to $14 each.

The stock has been approved for trading by the American Stock Exchange with the trading symbol "CWI."

After losing the governor's race to Democrat Ann Richards last year, Williams returned to his Midland ranch and began rebuilding the oil and gas empire that had taken a back seat in the mid-1980s to his telecommunications company.

He recently stepped back into the public arena by starting a radio debate series with former Attorney General Jim Mattox, who opposed Richards for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination last year.

Williams got started in the oil and gas business with $2,000 in savings. He branched out to real estate and banking in the early 1980s and sold off much of his energy holdings before the 1986 collapse in prices.

His holdings include ClayDesta National Bank in Midland and large ranches in Texas and Wyoming.

The stock offering is a first for Williams, said his spokesman, Buddy Barfield.

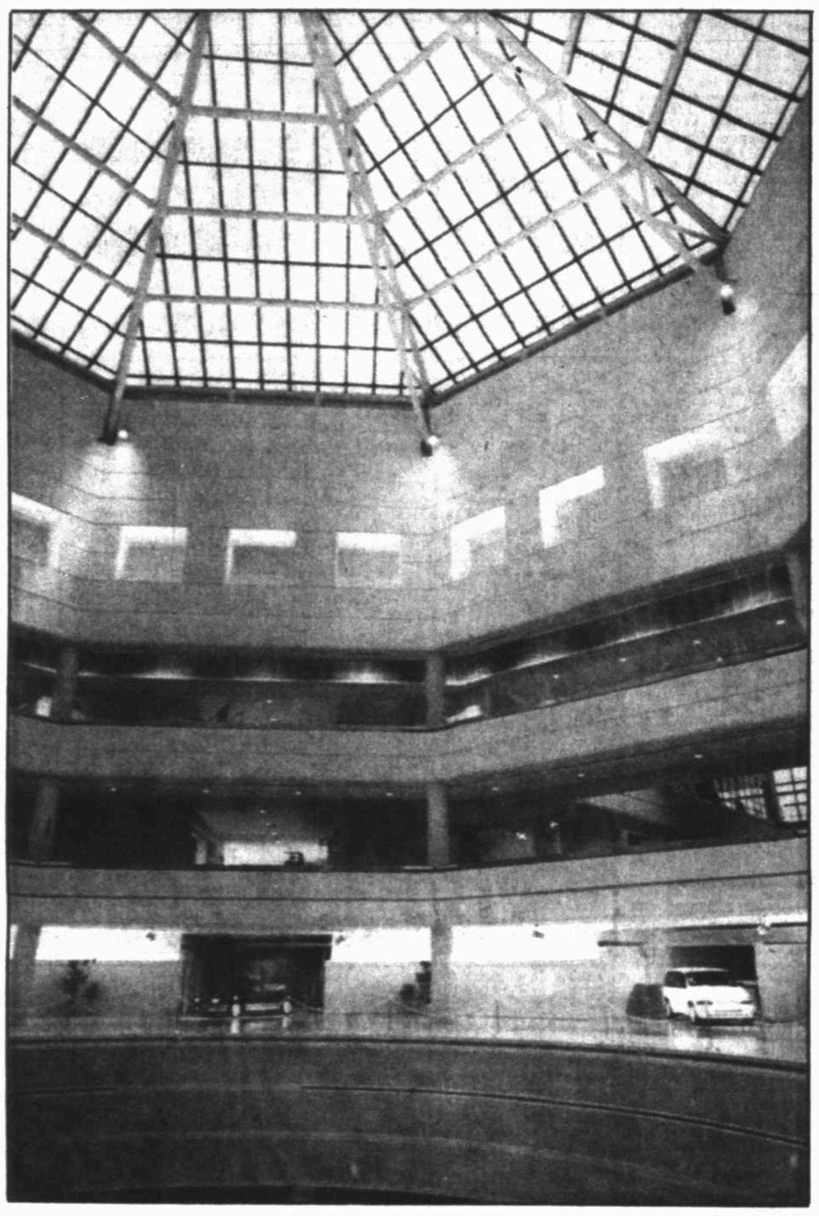

Williams will be chief executive officer and president of the company.

Williams Energy has assets on 323,000 acres in Texas, Louisiana and several other states, including more than 90 horizontal wells.

The company said it has 47 proved undeveloped locations, has identified 240 others suitable for drilling and has other undeveloped acreage to explore.

Money raised from the stock offering will help repay some of the debt Williams Energy has under an existing revolving credit facility, the company said.

Paine Webber Inc. and First Boston Corp. are assisting Williams in the stock offering.

Amoco to shift operations from Colorado to Houston

■ Consolidation move to result in 155 layoffs.

Associated Press

DENVER — Amoco Corp. plans to shift its Denver explorations division to Houston, cutting 155 jobs as part of a move toward a consolidated exploration effort.

It was the second time in 10 days that Amoco trimmed its Rocky Mountain operations. The company announced plans Oct. 4 to close its Casper, Wyo., refinery in December.

Robert Blanton, group vice president for worldwide exploration, said Monday the Chicago-based Amoco decided to move the division after studying the proposal for several months as part of a companywide cost-cutting proposal.

"A smaller, more focused exploration effort in the United States doesn't justify the need for separate domestic exploration organizations," he said.

About 90 of the employees will be offered a chance to move to the Houston division and 65 will be laid off, he said.

Amoco will have about 850 employees in the Denver area after the consolidation is completed early next year, a spokesman said.

"We have no plans to close operations in Denver," said spokesman Dick Brewster. "We're still going to have a significant pressure in the Rockies."

Amoco earlier this month said it will close its 210-employee Casper refinery in December rather than spend $150 million to bring the plant into compliance with environmental regulations.

The Amoco announcements come on the heels of a decision by Apache Corp. to relocate its headquarters to Houston next year, taking more than 400 jobs out of Colorado. Apache officials said they wanted to be closer to other major energy firms and their investment bankers.

Texaco Inc. now is the only major energy company with a big exploration division in Denver. Only a handful of large independent companies will remain after Apache leaves.

Richards seeks to meet bankers

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards, voicing fears that Texas' economic recovery might be stalled by recession in other regions, Tuesday called for a meeting with bankers to discuss getting more loans for small businesses.

"We cannot forget that the first seven letters in capitalism are c-a-p-i-t-a-l," Richards told the Texas Conference on Small Business.

"I think it is important to have Texas bankers come and visit with us about how we can get more loans made to small businesses in Texas. We have got to get capital circulating in this state," she said.

Richards said she has told several major banks she is ready to see them "start loaning money."

Many Texas small business owners have complained in recent months about the difficulty of obtaining credit.

In one case, the Mr. Gatti's Inc. pizza chain filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy reorganization with its president saying the operation was profitable but blaming the action on inability to renegotiate a real estate loan with NCNB Texas, the state's largest bank.

NCNB responded to that and similar criticism in recent days with full-page newspaper advertisements saying the bank has "already made loans that a few years ago no bank in the region could make. ... We're constantly looking for ways we can say 'yes.' "

In an interview after her speech, Richards said she knows many of the state's bankers from her two terms as state treasurer and wants the summit meeting to head off any problems that might stall the state's economic upturn.

Slowing inventory shrinkage suggests anticipation of sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — Businesses cut their inventories by just 0.1 percent in August, the government said Tuesday in a report analysts said signaled companies may be anticipating stronger consumer demand.

"While it isn't an improvement, it no longer is deteriorating," said Jean Sundrla of Evans Economics, a Washington forecasting company. "If the economy gets going, it could bode well for the fourth quarter."

Businesses have not restocked their shelves for seven months, the longest stretch since the eight-month period between August 1982 and March 1983.

With inventories so low, any burst of consumer demand could result in increased production and new jobs. That, in turn, could spur further spending.

"The slower pace of stockpile liquidation suggests businesses probably are anticipating a pickup in demand in the final quarter and don't want to get caught short if there is an improvement," said Gilbert Benz, an economist with the Swiss Bank Corp. of New York.

The Commerce Department said inventories totaled a seasonally adjusted $806.2 billion, down from $806.8 billion a month earlier.

Inventories were unchanged in July, compared with an earlier estimate of a 0.3 percent decline. They fell 0.6 percent in both May and June.

The department also reported that business sales totaled a seasonally adjusted $540.9 billion in August, virtually unchanged from the previous month. Until August, sales had risen for four consecutive months.

The combination of falling stocks and flat sales resulted in a 1.49 inventory-to-sales ratio, meaning it would take 1.49 months to exhaust the backlog at the August sales pace. The ratio also was 1.49 in July, the lowest since it hit 1.48 in August 1990.

Court sends disappointing smoke signal to inmates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court on Tuesday turned another cold shoulder to inmates seeking better prison conditions, this time rejecting a non-smoker's claim that his exposure to the cigarette smoke of others is "cruel and unusual" punishment.

The court, by a 6-2 vote, set aside a ruling that would have cleared the way for a trial in a Nevada prisoner's lawsuit over his exposure to secondary tobacco smoke.

The justices told the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to restudy its ruling in light of a decision last June in which the Supreme Court made it more difficult for prison inmates to force improvements in their living conditions.

The June ruling said inmates cannot sue successfully over even inhumane living conditions unless they prove the conditions were caused by officials' "deliberate indifference."

Tuesday's action was a setback for William McKinney, who says secondary cigarette smoke inside the state prison at Carson City, Nev., is affecting his health.

Justices Harry A. Blackmun and John Paul Stevens voted to reject the appeal by Nevada officials and thus allow McKinney's claim that his constitutional rights are being violated to proceed to trial.

In other cases, the court:

—Let stand a Connecticut court's ruling that police need a warrant to search closed containers that homeless people leave under bridges or in other public places where they live.

—Rejected an appeal seeking far greater monetary awards stemming from air disasters such as a 1988 terrorist bombing of a Pan American jet over Scotland and the 1986 hijacking of a Pan Am flight in Pakistan.

—Agreed to decide whether an Oklahoma businessman's indictment may be thrown out because prosecutors withheld evidence suggesting he is innocent.

—Weighed victims' rights against freedom of speech as it heard arguments over a New York law that, like laws in many other states, lets authorities seize the profits criminals make from publicizing their misdeeds. A decision is expected by July.

—Left intact a ruling that forces California courts generally to make public all questionnaires completed by prospective jurors in criminal cases.

—Refused to order the federal Food and Drug Administration to approve or reject the marketing of generic drugs under deadlines imposed by Congress.

In the secondary smoke case from Nevada, McKinney's 1987 lawsuit said prison authorities were responsible for the harm done to his health because they put him in a cell with a heavy smoker and placed no restrictions on smoking by inmates.

A federal magistrate ruled that he had no constitutional right to be free of secondary cigarette smoke. But the 9th Circuit court reinstated his suit and sent it back to the magistrate for a trial if necessary.

McKinney raised a valid constitutional claim, the appeals court said, by arguing "that compelled exposure to levels of environmental tobacco smoke that pose an unreasonable risk of harm to human health constitutes cruel and unusual punishment."

The justices set aside that ruling Tuesday.

The court also rejected, without comment, the appeal of a federal prison inmate who said the smoke he's forced to inhale poses unreasonable health risks.

Judge calls star witness back to stand

MIAMI (AP) — A judge called the government's star witness against Manuel Noriega back to the stand Tuesday to ask if he was coerced into refusing to cooperate with defense attorneys.

Drug pilot Floyd Carlton told U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler no one had pressured him to stop talking with the defense, and said he was willing to talk with attorneys for the ousted Panamanian leader at any time.

"Did anyone tell you it would hurt your position with the government?" the judge asked.

"No sir," Carlton replied firmly.

The hearing, held outside the presence of the jury, raised the question of how the government discovered Carlton was speaking with defense attorneys.

Carlton denied he told anyone in the government about his initial approach to Noriega's lawyers.

Noriega attorney Jon May said he was pleased that the witness was willing to talk with them again.

Carlton, whose grand jury evidence was largely responsible for Noriega's indictment, testified at length in the trial two weeks ago, accusing his former friend of taking bribes to protect cocaine flights.

But last week, Noriega's attorneys complained Carlton had suddenly ceased cooperating with them after approaching the defense and saying he was willing to talk.

May said Carlton's attorney reported prosecutor Guy Lewis had warned that the witness "was not going to help himself" by cooperating with the defense.

Instructor encourages cutting class

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — At Maarten de Witte's school, cutting class is the only class. And the subject is the very hardest — diamonds.

With the American School of Diamond Cutting, de Witte wants to break open the craft passed from father and son, or done in assembly-line fashion to prevent workers from learning all the steps.

"We need to get rid of the secrecy and centralization in this trade," he said.

De Witte, a 1975 graduate of the school, took it over from his mentor, Dutch immigrant Leonard Ludel, and moved it from Nevada to Illinois earlier this year.

Though diamonds come mostly from Africa and the Soviet Union, most cutters are based in New York, Tel Aviv and Antwerp. Ludel opened the school in 1967 in Gardnerville, Nev., to give more people a chance to learn the trade.

"Blacks in Africa where the diamonds came from never had the opportunity to learn to cut them," said Ludel, 78. "And there were a lot of Americans who wanted to get into cutting but had no place to study."

De Witte has been working with two students since moving the school to Champaign and expects the formal opening around the first of the year when he receives state accreditation.

He plans a total enrollment of about 18 for three, 30-week sessions. Tuition is $4,500 per session. De Witte said his school is one of only two in the United States devoted to diamond cutting.

"This is really nose-to-the-grindstone work, and what I look for are people with a strong desire to do it," said de Witte. "If they think diamonds will make them a ton of money and they won't work hard, I discourage them."

De Witte, who grew up here and later worked as a diamond cutter in Phoenix and New Orleans, said diamond cutters can earn $40,000 a year.

Fashion gadfly Mr. Blackwell announced his choices for the 10 worst-dressed women of the past three decades. Cher and Roseanne Arnold hold the top two places on the list respectively.

Cher tops Blackwell's list of worst-dressed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fashion gadfly Mr. Blackwell on Tuesday inducted 10 celebrities into a dubious hall of fame — the worst-dressed women of the past three decades.

His "winners" range from a head of state — Britain's Queen Elizabeth II, to a bald head — pop star Sinead O'Connor. New bride Elizabeth Taylor gets no wedding gift: She's on the list at No. 3.

There's even a curious ninth-place tie between one of today's hottest stars, Madonna, and a long-deceased one, Jayne Mansfield.

Mr. Blackwell, whose real name is Richard Sylvan Selzer, releases scathing celebrity wardrobe reviews every year. He details the all-time top offenders in his new book out next month, "Mr. Blackwell's Worst: 30 Years of Fashion Fiascos."

The unlucky 10, along with the designer's traditional pun-laden comments, are:

1. Cher: "From toes to nose, she's the tacky tatoo'd terror of the 20th century. A Bono-fide fashion fiasco of the legendary kind."

2. Roseanne Arnold: "Barr the jokes — Ramblin' Rosey looks like an over-the-hill bowling ball in search of an alley."

3. Elizabeth Taylor: "The Cleopatra of Camp in schizophrenic fashions Taylor-made for the Titanic. Today she looks great as Mrs. Fortensky ... but for the past 30 years she's been a reject from Minsky's."

4. Queen Elizabeth: "God may save the queen — but that prehistoric wardrobe is fit for the Tower."

5. Barbra Streisand: "From Brooklyn to Broadway to Beverly Hills, this schmaltzy Secondhand Rose is simply an evergreen atrocity."

6. Shelley Winters: "Stuffed in a wacky wardrobe that's more madness than method, Shelley's a colorblind gypsy who's definitely lost her fashion fortune."

7. Dolly Parton: "Please pardon Miss Parton — the Queen of Cleavage is a country-western catastrophe. Looks like the Smoky Mountains — in sequins."

8. Mia Farrow: "Mama Mia. Farrow dresses like a suicidal sparrow in a depressing cyclone of bargain basement bombs."

9. Jayne Mansfield and Madonna (tie): "Mansfield and Madonna: the patron saints of peroxide and pretense are two peas in a petrifying pod."

10. Sinead O'Connor: "A monastic monstrosity. In baggy rags, combat boots and buzz-cut coiffure, Sinead's a creepy cross between Joan of Arc and Kojak."

Researchers design method to direct daylight into room

N.Y. Times News Service

For anyone who has ever wanted the desk near the window, researchers in California are developing a technique for directing daylight deep into a room.

The invention, a coating for glass that uses the same light-wave principles employed in three-dimensional holograms, can redirect the sun's light to a designated spot on the ceiling, from which it will bounce and diffuse into areas that do not receive much natural light. Besides cheering up employees, the technology could help save money on lighting bills, says one of the system's designers, Richard Ian-Frese.

Ian-Frese is the manager of the project at Advanced Environmental Research Group, a company in Davis, Calif., that specializes in optical technologies. He describes the coating as a microscopic venetian blind, directing light much as a blind does when its slats are turned.

The coating's job is a little trickier, though, because it must reflect the sunlight to the same spot, whether on a December morning or a July afternoon. Using proprietary technology, the coating can reflect light to roughly the same spot on the ceiling while the sun moves through 50 degrees of altitude, and across 100 degrees of azimuth (left-to-right direction) without adjustments, always sending the light to the back of the room.

The main application is expected to be in large multistory buildings, but the coating could be customized for other business or residential spaces, Ian-Frese said.

The material is a plastic, with the "slats" formed by microscopic lines. The lines can be applied several ways; one is to guide two laser beams to make a light-wave interference pattern on a photographic emulsion, and then use the emulsion to make a master form, which can then be used to emboss the coating itself.

In a room with these specially coated windows, the electric lights would be controlled by a photosensor, similar to the ones used in many offices with windows to dim the electric lights when the sun is shining brightly.

Advanced Environmental, which has received nearly $900,000 in federal and California state research money for the system, hopes to begin mass-producing window-treatment products in the next two or three years.

Study finds aerobic exercise cannot cure mild hypertension

N.Y. Times News Service

Aerobic exercise by itself does not appear to be an effective treatment for mild high blood pressure, according to the results of a carefully designed new study.

But the director of the study, Dr. James A. Blumenthal, a psychologist at Duke University Medical Center, emphasized that physical activity still has potential value in helping people to lower their blood pressure.

The study, conducted among 99 sedentary men and women with moderately elevated blood pressure levels, sought to determine whether exercise, apart from any effect of diet and weight loss, would help to lower the blood pressure.

The study found no difference in blood pressure reduction among those who participated in aerobic exercise, those who did strength and flexibility exercises or those who did no exercise at all. Pressure dropped somewhat in all three groups in a phenomenon that is attributed to participation in a study.

Previous studies had shown conflicting results and their conclusions were tempered by such limitations as small numbers of study subjects and failure to control for changes in body weight.

Dr. Marvin Moser, an expert on hypertension, said in an interview on Tuesday that "of all the nonpharmacological treatments for lowering blood pressure, weight reduction has consistently been the most potent — far more effective than reducing salt."

MOONLIGHTING!
The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with responsible individuals.
OFTEN ASKED QUESTIONS:
Is it worthwhile for adults also? Yes! Our current distributor force is already 90% adult and 10% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:
• ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
• MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a distributor, you do not need daycare!
• COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
• SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends.
How much money can I make as a distributor?
Depending on the size of the distributorship from $300 to $700 monthly! Some make even more!
How long does it take?
The actually delivery takes 1 - 2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2 - 3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!
When do papers have to be delivered by?
6 a.m. Monday - Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.
Do I ever get a day off?
The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, distributors do take days off by finding a friend or family member to substitute for them!
RESERVE YOUR DISTRIBUTORSHIP NOW!
