FREEDOM BECKONS to a roomful of first graders at Sam Houston Elementary School Friday afternoon as they sprint for the wide open spaces on the last day of school. Teacher Suzanne Gonzalez holds the door wide open and smilingly tries to avoid being trampled. The scene was typical of all schools in the Midland Independent School District, with teachers and students reportedly heaving equally heavy sighs.

Slaying of troopers 'worst single tragedy'

CADDO, Okla. (AP) — Three state troopers and two prison escapees, blamed for at least five "thrill killings," died in gunfights about five miles apart near this southeastern Oklahoma town Friday.

A shocked Gov. David Boren said, "This is the worst single tragedy in the 40 year history of this outstanding law enforcement agency. The heart felt sympathy of all Oklahomans goes out to the families of these brave officers."

Boren declared a week long period of mourning for the slain troopers — Pat Grimes, 36, of Moore, a member of the Oklahoma Highway Patrol's internal affairs division; Houston F. "Pappy" Summers, 62, of Enid, a 32 year patrol veteran, and Billy G. Young, 50, of Woodward, assigned to the motor vehicle division and a 23 year patrol veteran.

Trooper Hoyt Hughes, 53, of Edmond was flown by helicopter to an Oklahoma City hospital for treatment of a shoulder wound. He was not in serious condition.

The dead escapees were Claude Eugene Dennis, 35, and Michael Lancaster, 25. Dennis was serving 35 years for manslaughter and Lancaster 25 years for robbery.

They were listed as suspects in four murders in Texas and one in Alabama since they fled from the Oklahoma State Penitentiary at McAlester on April 23.

Law officers said they also might be connected with other slayings in the Southeast.

A massive search for the escapees had been underway since Wednesday night when officers found an Alabama car, stolen from a slain woman, abandoned in the area.

Events began moving rapidly Friday morning when the Bryan County sheriff's office received a report that a man had been tied up and his pickup truck stolen six miles north of Durant.

Police said the escapees burst into the home of Russell Washington who used to let Dennis hunt on his property, as Washington and a farmhand were drinking coffee.

Washington said said Dennis told him: "We're not going to kill you. You're a family man and you once did me a favor. All we want is your pickup."

Washington's wife was attending college and his two daughters were at their grandmother's home.

The escapees tied up the two men and fled in the pickup. Washington and the farmhand freed themselves and called authorities.

Patrol officials said the pickup truck and a patrol car with Summers and Young were speeding toward each other on a dirt road when each topped a hill and saw the other about 100 yards away. Both slammed to a halt, authorities said, and the escapees opened fire, killing the two troopers.

The escapees continued on back roads toward Caddo, about five miles away, with a patrol helicopter monitoring their movements and directing ground units.

The escapees drove into small town of Caddo, pulled behind some bushes at a house and ambushed the first patrol car on the scene, containing Grimes and Hughes, authorities said.

Grimes was killed instantly in the burst of gunfire. Hughes, wounded in the shoulder, returned the fire and killed one escapee. Almost immediately, more patrol cars arrived and Trooper Mike Williams shot and killed the other escapee.

Dennis and Lancaster had eluded a small army of Alabama and Mississippi officers and made their way back to Oklahoma during their violence ridden month long odyssey.

Alabama authorities had confirmed the two were suspects in the "thrill killing" of Stacie Beavers, 68, of Cuba, Ala., a retired school teacher whose body was found Tuesday in the home where she lived alone.

Police said they believed her throat was slashed Monday night as she returned from a church social.

Police in Texas said they believed Lancaster and Dennis also were responsible for the slaying of a Hamphill, Texas, man, a Denison convenience store operator, a Garland service station attendant and a Garland minister.

Garland police said Lancasger was "positively" identified as an assailant in the May 2 shooting death of Mithal Thanmikal Mathew, 31, the service station attendant. They said the pair also were suspects in the slaying of David Bobo, 26, a Garland minister reported missing six days after the escape. His body was not found until May 16.

On May 10, Bobby Lee Spencer, a Lake Texoma bait shop manager, was shot to death and his wife was abducted.

Mrs. Spencer told police the escapees tried to float down the Red River to elude pursuers, but found the current too slow and stopped. She said they tied her to a tree while they slept, but she got loose, ran to a road and flagged down a car, which took her to safety.

Officers said the escapees also are suspected in the disapearance and feared death of James Dowdy, 57, of Hemphill, Texas, in the first week of May.

Neutron bomb ban urged

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko calling the neutron bomb "vicious and cruel," Friday urged the United States to give an "unambiguous reply" to the Soviet Union's proposal that both nations forgo producing the weapon.

At the same time, he made apparent overtures to the U.S. in the key areas of strategic arms reduction and a general nuclear test ban.

Another speaker to the U.N. General Assembly's special session on disarmament, Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, suggested agreement be reached to ban testing of strategic delivery systems — an apparent reference to the American cruise missile and the Soviet "Backfire" bomber.

In his one-hour speech, Gromyko said the neutron bomb "must be banned once and for all — as a particularly vicious and cruel means of mass destruction, intended specially to annihilate all things living."

The American developed weapon is a high radiation but low blast nuclear warhead for tactical missiles and artillery that would kill troops while sparing buildings. President Carter has deferred its production and deployment against Soviet-led Warsaw Pact forces in Europe in a bid for Soviet concessions on troop and weapons strength.

"This weapon is not directed against one country or two countries, or five or six countries," Gromyko said in an improvisation on his prepared text. "It is directed against mankind."

U.S. officials have said the Soviet offer to forgo neutron bomb production if America will, is meaningless because Soviet bloc superiority in Europe makes the weapon less desirable to the Soviets.

On another subject, Gromyko said there were "grounds to expect a successful completion" of Soviet-U.S.-British talks in Geneva to prohibit nuclear tests underground as they are already banned, by a 1963 U.S.-Soviet agreement, in the air and under the sea. Sources in Washington said Friday that the administration was ready to negotiate a five-year general test ban treaty.

Gromyko also said "possibilities exist for resolving the remaining issues" concerning a new strategic arms limitation treaty — SALT II — on which he will negotiate with Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance in Washington this weekend.

Gromyko declared that immediately after signing SALT II, "the Soviet Union would be ready to enter into negotiations which should lead with all the necessary factors taken into account — to a substantial reduction — I repeat, reduction — of the levels of strategic arms and to a further limitation of their qualitative improvement."

Twister topples microwave tower

PECOS — A tornado about seven miles southeast of Pecos Friday afternoon twisted and toppled to the ground a 300 foot Texas Department of Public Safety microwave tower.

No one was injured in that tornado or by two which reportedly struck the ground 15 miles east of Barstow. A tornado also was sighted eight miles south of Pyote.

Rain with hail ranging from pea up to baseball size accompanied a severe thunderstorm in Reeves, Ward and Winkler counties, said a weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

The top 100 feet of the DPS tower at Pecos was "twisted like a corkscrew," a DPS spokesman in Pecos reported late Friday. Parts of the tower's antenna were carried by the funnel as far away as Interstate 20, about seven miles north of the $17,000 tower, the spokesman said.

Winds in Pecos tore down trees and severed powerlines, the spokesman said.

Although a funnel earlier had been sighted in the general area, no one apparently saw the tornado strike the DPS tower, the spokesman said. The tower was damaged shortly before 4:30 p.m.

A Sharp Drilling Co. oilfield rig south of Pyote in Ward County was shifted 50 feet from the drilling site by a tornado Friday, according to a spokesman for the Monahans Police Department.

The funnel destroyed a trailer house there and ripped a camper off the bed of a pickup truck, but did not injure David Holdman of Kermit who was at the drill site when the funnel struck.

That storm was reported about 4:44 p.m.

Another tornado at Wilson Hill, 15 miles east of Barstow, dipped to the ground but reportedly did no damage.

In mid-April 1977, a tornado cut a swath through Monahans, county seat of Ward County, causing extensive damage but no fatalities.

Baseball-size hail was reported around Barstow and golfball-size hail fell southeast of Wickett, a weatherman said.

Pea-size hail struck Odessa, but none was reported in Midland.

Ector and Midland counties were under severe thunderstorm alerts until around midnight Friday.

Guzman wins in Santo Domingo

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Central election board figures showed Friday that Antonio Guzman has won the presidency of this central Caribbean nation, ending Joaquin Balaguer's 12 year rule.

Guzman, a 67-year-old landowner, said his government will be "politically in the center" and will "maintain the good relations we have had had with the United States."

Guzman had 832,319 votes to 669,112 for Balaguer with ballots from only two of 84 electoral districts still uncounted.

Results of the May 16 election are unofficial until the board makes a formal declaration of the winner.

The count was interrupted twice. Army units occupied the election board office May 17 when Guzman took an early lead and a military coup was feared, but the soldiers withdrew. On Tuesday, the count was suspended awaiting the arrival of results from some outlying districts. It resumed Friday morning.

Guzman's Dominican Revolutionary Party — PRD — was expected to tilt the country toward the left, but Guzman told reporters the party "has been remodeled" since it called for "popular dictatorship" under former President Juan Bosch.

Guzman, who has a 1,300-acre farm where he grows coffee and raises cattle, said he will encourage economic development by "giving all kinds of help to private enterprise."

Balaguer and his Reform Party developed strong relations with the United States and Guzman said these will be maintained. "I don't foresee any difficulties," he said. "We advocate the defense of human rights, as does President Carter."

900 vote absentee

Almost 300 Republicans and Democrats cast absentee votes here Friday to bring the balloting to 900 plus in the June 3 runoff elections, according to figures released Friday by Midland County Clerk Rosenelle Cherry.

To date, 795 have voted in person in the clerk's office in the 19th U.S. Congressional district runoff that pits Midland's George Bush against Odessa's Jim Reese for the Republican Party's nomination. Victor of that race will challenge Democrat Kent Hance of Lubbock for the seat now held by retiring U.S. Rep. George Mahon.

Thirty-five absentee ballots in that GOP race have been mailed out from her office, Ms. Cherry said.

The four-day absentee voting period ends at 5 p.m. Tuesday, she said.

Through Friday, 88 in-person ballots had been cast here in the Democratic Party's runoff election for that party's nomination for a place on the Texas Railroad Commission. In the runoff are the incumbent, John Poerner, and former commissioner Jerry Sadler.

One ballot in that race has been mailed out, Ms. Cherry said.

Grand jury Lozano probe favored

U.S. Attorney Jamie C. Boyd said Friday there should be a grand jury investigation into the January death of Larry Ortega Lozano, who died while an inmate in the Ector County jail, and that the site of the investigation should be Midland, not Odessa.

The case has been a controversial one since Lozano's death on the night of Jan. 22, and continues to be one despite an April 12 inquest jury ruling of accidental death.

Ector County officials called in outside investigators in January to look into Lozano's death, which Ector County Sheriff Elton Faught said was caused by Lozano banging his head against the window of his cell. Representatives of the Brown Beret, a nationwide organization to fight discrimination against Mexican Americans, charged that the death was a result of Lozano being beaten by sheriff's deputies.

"I think it (a grand jury investigation) will help clarify things and bring out information to satisfy people who still have questions," said Boyd. "I don't have any preconceived notions about how the investigation would turn out."

First Assistant U.S. Attorney Fred Rodriguez Friday said "the only person with the power to call a grand jury investigation in any type of case where a civil rights violation occurs, with death from a possible beating involved, is the Assistant Attorney General in Washington."

Justice Department officials are awaiting the transcript of the coroner's inquest before a final decision is made on whether to investigate possible civil rights violations, said spokesman John Wilson.

Smith says he'll retire

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith — symbol of Rhodesia's white minority government for 12½ years — said Friday he will retire from politics at the end of this year when his country adopts black majority rule.

"I have no intention of standing in the next election," Smith, who is vacationing in South Africa, told a news conference. "By then, my task will have been completed and I will hae done all I can to reassure the people of Rhodesia."

He said he expects national elections to be held Dec. 31 as scheduled by the new Executive Council formed in March with Smith and three black nationalist leaders as members.

"The ingredients will be there to assure white Rhodesians they can safely stay on in Rhodesia and that decent standards are going to be maintained." the prime minister said.

Smith, who operates a farm, did not say what his post-election plans are.

Smith has been prime minster of Rhodesia since that country, which was a British colony, unilaterally declaredCits independence in November 1965.

Eastern Airlines may cancel options

By HARRY ANDERSON
The Los Angeles Times

BURBANK, Calif. — Because Eastern Airlines has decided to buy the European built A 300 Airbus, it may cancel up to 13 options to buy L 1011 TriStars built by Lockheed Corp., it was disclosed Friday.

In its first quarter report to shareholders, Lockheed said Eastern could cancel the options this year, but the Burbank based aerospace firm said it has no indication whether the airline actually would decide against buying the additional TriStars.

A Lockheed spokesman said Eastern has until Sept. 1 to exercise its 13 options, although such deadlines are sometimes extended.

Eastern officials could not immediately be reached at the carrier's Miami headquarters late Friday.

Eastern originally placed tentative orders for 50 TriStars in 1968 and will have taken delivery of 37 planes by the end of the year. Because the airline acquired the option to buy the additional 13 aircraft so long ago, the purchase price may be advantageous enough for Eastern to go ahead with the deal even though it has decided to buy the European planes, some observers feel.

Eastern said last March that it would buy 23 Airbuses from the French German Spanish consortium which builds them — the largest order for European planes ever placed by a U.S. airline. The Airbus, with 200 seats, is a smaller craft than the TriStar, which seats up to 272 passengers.

At the time of Eastern's Airbus purchase, Lockheed President Lawrence O. Kitchen had indicated that loss of the business wouldn't be a devastating blow to the TriStar program. He said Lockheed still expects to sell 300 TriStars for more than $7 billion between now and 1987.

The company presently has 185 firm orders for the jumbo jet — with 36 still to be delivered. It also has another 57 option orders, including Eastern's 13.

Last month, Pan American World Airways placed an order for 12 long range TriStars worth $500 million.

Kolwezi death toll 262

KOLWEZI, Zaire, (AP) — Military and civilian search teams have recovered the bodies of 262 persons killed in the fighting for this copper mining city in southern Zaire, Red Cross officials said Friday.

They listed the victims as 95 whites, 56 Zairean soldiers and 111 other blacks, including civilians and rebels.

Among the slain foreigners was Lonnie Glen, 39, of Yerington, Nev., a construtuion worker and the only American known to have been killed during the week-long occupation of Kolwezi by Angola-based rebels.

French and Belgian paratroopers drove the rebels out over the weekend and French officials then estimated at least 200 foreign residents had been killed. Officials in Paris said Friday the French troops were pulling out, but little evidence of a withdrawal could be seen here.

Although the Red Cross death count is subtantially lower, officials said more bodies may be found as searchers go farther into the outlying bush country.

Belgian authorities in Brussels, who earlier announced the bodies of 73 whites had been found, said 289 foreigners were still not accounted for. They said some of those reported missing might have left the area before the invasion, however.

There were conflicting reports about the rebels taking white hostages with them as they pulled back toward Angola. A spokesman in Brussels for the rebels said they had taken seven French military men as hostages but no white civilians.

616 make ceremony

A total of 616 Lee High School seniors received diplomas during commencement exercises Friday night at the Midland Memorial Stadium.

In her speech, 1978 class valedictorian Amy Bechtel told the graduating seniors that, "The darkness of ignorance is the necessary background against which to see the light of knowledge."

She said although life is filled with problems, it is in these problems that people find interest, challenge, success and new ideas. For example, she talked about Galileo, who saw the many problems that needed to be solved on the nature of the universe.

Instead of ignoring them, she said, he challenged himself to solve them, and consequently, invented the telescope, discovered the moons of Jupiter and developed theories on the laws of motion.

"Our problems aren't ever going to just go away. They must be met and matched. This is the only way that we can achieve, learn and become great," she said.

Salutatorian Becky Mouser told the class of 1978 that, of all the "words of wisdom" that she has come across in life, three phrases have really stuck with her — "Know yourself, be yourself and give yourself."

Learning who you are, she said, is "a lifetime search," which involves being able to laugh at yourself and to look at yourself objectively.

She suggested that in learning to be yourself, "Don't try to be somebody else, and don't let anyone else force you into that situation." Trying to be something you aren't, however tempting it is, she said, is "the most hurtful lie possible."

Calling the third phrase, "give yourself," the "most difficult" to meet and the "most rewarding," Miss Mouser said giving everything you've got to some task makes the accomplishment that much sweeter. Giving of yourself to others, she said, results in friendships.

494 get diplomas

High school diplomas were presented to 494 Midland High School seniors during graduation ceremonies Friday night in the Midland Memorial Stadium.

Morgan Kennedy, valedictorian, told the graduating senior class of 1978 that, "True success is merely a matter of fulfilling one's potential," and that, "education is also an opportunity for youths to discover and explore any talents they may possess."

She said most students don't realize this until they have been out of high school for a long time. "Too many (students) think of school as a place to socialize and study, in that order," she said.

Teachers are the ones, she said, who must encourage students to develop themselves, which sometimes can be "an almost hopeless and often thankless task."

However, she said, if teachers think they have contributed to the success of one student, they can forget all the hundreds that have failed.

In his speech, class salutatorian Mark Mear told his fellow graduates that, according to philosophers and literary men, "the true purpose and value (of education) to mankind ... is to cherish and unfold the seed of immortality already sown within us, and to develop, to their fullest extent, the capacities with which we have been endowed."

Education, he said, is the tool with which students are equipped to meet the challenges of the future.

Saying that today's students receive a superior education to any of the past, Mear told his classmates, "I am therefore confident that we, as a group working together, can serve to make our country progress beyond its present state."

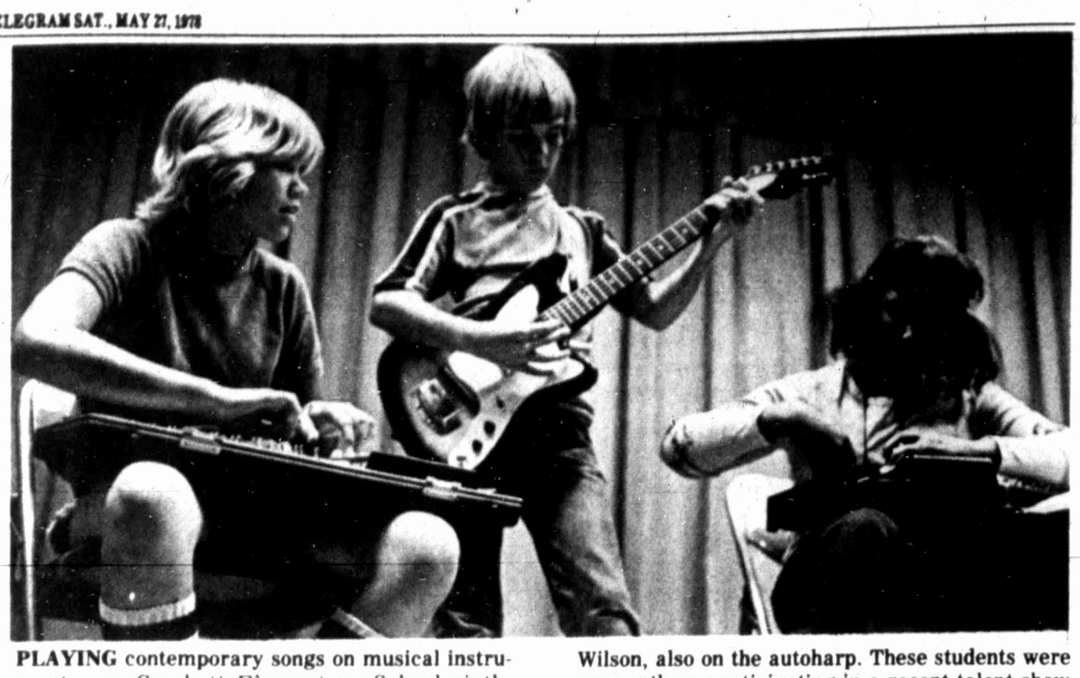

He said the efforts of all students are necessary to assure success for the country and themselves. "The past and present are only our means, the future is always our end," he said.

Heavy rains hit

By The Associated Press

Heavy rain continued in North Dakota this morning, accompanied by thunderstorms. Creeks flooded in the Sterling area and filled to their banks elsewhere.

On Thursday night, a tornado touched down near Mandan, N.D., ripping apart one home, taking the roof off another and destroying a mobile home.

Month-long escape odyssey told

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Here is a chronology of the month-long search for two Oklahoma prison escapees who were killed Friday in a shootout that also left three Oklahoma Highway Patrol troopers dead.

The escapees were Claude Eugene Dennis, 35, and Michael Lancaster, 25. Dennis was serving 35 years for manslaughter and Lancaster 25 years for armed robbery.

—April 23: Dennis and Lancaster escape from the state prison in McAlester, Okla., by getting into an abandoned utility tunnel, working their way into an unguarded industrial adjacent to the main compound and scaling two chain link fences.

That same day they break into the nearby home of a prison guard, steal several weapons and the guard's automobile. They briefly hold the guard's wife at gunpoint, but do not harm her.

—April 29: David Bobo, 26, a Garland, Texas, minister is reported missing. His body is found May 16.

—May 2: Mithal Thanmikal Mathew, 31, a Garland service station attendant is killed. Lancaster is "positively" identified by a witness as the assailant.

—First week of May: James Dowdy, 57, Hemphill, Texas, disappears. His body has not been found.

—May 10: Bobby Lee Spencer, 28, a convenience store operator north of Denison, Texas, near Lake Texoma, is killed during a robbery by two men. Spencer's wife, Loretta, 24, is kidnapped by the two men.

She escapes the next day when the men tie her to a tree near the Red River while they sleep. She frees herself, runs to a nearby road and flags down a motorist. She says the men, whom she identifies as Dennis and Lancaster, were trying to float down the river on a raft.

—May 11: The pair approach a rural farmhouse in Johnston County, Okla., but the woman, whose husband was gone, slams the door in their face and begins screaming. They leave immediately. Later that night, a pickup truck is stolen from another nearby farm. The farmer doesn't discover the missing truck until the next morning. The massive manhunt is called off.

—May 15: A service station near Meridian, Miss., is robbed and an automobile is stolen in Wayne County, Miss., that night.

—May 16: Dean Roberts, a policeman in Butler, Ala., is wounded by a shotgun blast. He recovers.

—May 17: Alabama State Trooper John Christianberry is fired on near Cuba, Ala. He isn't hit, but his car is disabled and he gets a face full of glass.

—May 22: A search begins around York, Ala., after a reported sighting.

—May 23: The body of Stacie Virginia Beavers, 70, of Cuba, Ala., is found in her home; her throat slashed. Her car, a stationwagon, is stolen. Officials believe she was killed late the night of May 22.

—May 24: Mrs. Beavers' stationwagon is found abandoned near Little City in far south central Oklahoma. All available troopers are called into the area and roadblocks are set up.

—May 25: The search continues. A sighting is reported about 9 p.m. within the area ringed by roadblocks. Units are sent to check it out but find nothing.

—May 26: A Bryan County farmer, Russell Washington, telephones the sheriff at 10:30 a.m. and reports that Dennis and Lancaster just left his farm in his pickup truck.

A few minutes later, Patrol Lt. Lloyd Basinger, in a helicopter, spots the suspects and radios for ground units.

Troopers Billy G. Young, 50, Woodward, Okla., and Houston "Pappy" Summers, 62, of Enid, spot the suspects and give chase.

The chase ends at a gravel road where the suspects open fire. Both Young and Summers are killed. Dennis and Lancaster flee on foot to a nearby farmhouse, which is vacant.

Troopers Pat Grimes, 36, of Moore, and Hoyt Hughes, 46, of Edmond, arrive and another shootout ensues. Grimes is killed. Hughes is wounded in the shoulder. Both Dennis and Lancaster are killed.

Soviets claim baby better "shameless lie," father

By DAN FISHER
The Los Angeles Times

MOSCOW — Los Angeles industrialist Armand Hammer revealed Friday that he had met with seven top Soviet doctors who have consulted on the case of tiny Jessica Katz and that he is convinced that "as of now" there is no medical reason the child needs to go to the United States for treatment.

While he did not see the baby, who apparently suffers from a rare intestinal disorder known as malabsorption syndrome, Hammer said he left the two-hour "consultation" reassured that she "is being given the best of treatment by competent doctors and that the baby is on the road to recovery."

Hammer is a 1921 graduate of Columbia University's medical school in New York City, but never practiced medicine.

Later, however, the baby's father told Western newsmen that key assurances given by the Soviet doctors were "a shameless lie." Hammer said he had been told, for example, that young Jessica Katz has now been eating a variety of different foods for "weeks." However, according to Boris Katz, for the last two months his daughter has eaten only a special formula shipped here from the United States.

Katz conceded that Jessica is "a little better," but he said the improvement is entirely the result of the special formula and that he is afraid that without further treatment she could have a relapse.

Her parents want to send the child to the United States for treatment, but Soviet authorities refuse to let her out of the country. She has been dubbed this country's "littlest refusednik."

Now nearly eight months old, Jessica appeared small, but otherwise content Friday. She was smiling and active. She weighed 14 1-2 pounds, according to her mother's daily log, up from under 13 pounds early this month and from less than 11 1-2 pounds when she was discharged from a Moscow children's hospital last April 4. However, her mother said the child should weigh 20 pounds by now.

A large baby at birth, Jessica stopped growing suddenly when she was about two months old. She developed severe diarrhea and a rash on her head. She spent two months in what is reputed to be the best children's hospital in Moscow without showing any improvement until American doctors, alerted to the situation by relatives in the Boston area, sent a shipment of the special, predigested protein formula, her father said.

Some doctors have suggested that the formula is only a stopgap measure.

UW goal approved

A campaign goal of $928,686 was approved by the United Way board of directors at their meeting Thursday.

Joe Pevehouse, board president, said the funds are needed for the 20 Midland United Way agencies to provide their services in 1979.

The goal was set after a citizen's review of proposed agency budgets, keeping in mind Midland's population growth, inflation rate and the increase in the number of services provided to the community.

"The campaign goal represents services," Pevehouse said, "it means that someone in your family or someoneyou know will receive help or benefits from one or more of the 20 United Way agencies.

"I have every confidence that Midland will reach the 1979 goal."

Ray Golden graduates

Gordon Ray Golden of Pecos, formerly of Midland, and a grandson of Joe C. Davis of Midland, will be graduated from The University of Texas Medical School at San Antonio at commencement exercises Sunday afternoon.

Golden is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray M. Golden of Pecos, formerly of Midland.

Davis plans to attend the graduation ceremonies at San Antonio.

CIA confirms in court documentsBunkeroffer

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The CIA has confirmed in court documents something government officials have long denied: that Ellsworth Bunker, while serving as U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam, offered to finance the campaign of an opposition candidate in the Vietnamese presidential election in 1971.

The revelation — based on tape recordings — is contained in a CIA memo quoted from during a pre-trial deposition in the civil suit against former CIA officer Frank Snepp.

Snepp wrote that Bunker offered Gen. Duong Van Minh $3 million as a bribe to keep him in the race as token opposition to incumbent Nguyen Van Thieu "for appearances sake." Minh withdrew from the campaign, however.

The White House "flatly denied" earlier reports of the transaction, and Bunker also has been quoted as denying the reports.

But in the deposition of CIA officer Norman Jones a Justice Department attorney read from a CIA document" "Blank listened to the tapes blank, in which Ambassador Bunker offered to finance, blank, race for the presidency. Blank noted that the amount of $3 million was not mentioned in the conversation, although the basic report by Snepp is true."

Bunker, now ambassador at large at the State Department, and CIA officials declined comment Friday on the agency's confirmation of the financial offer to Minh or the taping of the conversation, which took place in Minh's home.

Snepp, who is being sued because he refused to submit his book for review by the agency, said in a phone interview Friday that "$3 million" probably wasn't mentioned the conversation because "the pitch was made in piasters (Vietnamese currency) not dollars."

Snepp also said he was not surprised to learn the meeting between Bunker and Minh had been taped. "There could have been a bug in his home, or Bunker or his aide might have been carrying a recorder in a briefcase. They tried that once with Ky (Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky) but it didn't work."

It has been disclosed that the United States "bugged" Thieu's presidential palace during the war.

Minh, a retired general who stayed in Vietnam when Thieu's regime was defeated by the North Vietnamese in the spring of 1975, was urged to run against Thieu in the 1971 election,sources said at the time, because the United States wanted to ensure a genuine contest.

Bunker made the offer of aid to Minh after returning from a trip to Washington in August 1971.

Snepp said he first heard rumors of the $3 million offer during an early tour as a CIA officer in Saigon. His book, Decent Interval, is highly critical of the American withdrawal from Vietnam.

Businessman, linked with Park, indicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A New Jersey businessman was indicted by a federal grand jury Friday on charges that he concealed from the government the role of Korean businessman Tongsun Park in certain rice sales.

Grover Connell, president of the Connell Rice and Sugar Co. of Westfield, N.J., was accused of hiding from the Agriculture Department that Park was acting on the company's behalf even though he was agent of the Korean government.

Connell denounced the indictment as "an outrageous miscarriage of justice," and asserted that "the whole business of paying commissions on rice for Korea was forced upon us by the United States government over my vigorous written protest.".

The indictment said Connell paid Park more than $600,000 in commissions from 1972 to 1975 in connection with Connell's rice sales to South Korea under the U.S. Food for Peace program.

The government is not charging that the commissions themselves were illegal, but that Park was ineligible to act as Connell's selling agent because Park was also an agent of the South Korean government.

Controllers may slow down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Travel at some of the nation's airports might be delayed over the Memorial Day weekend by angry air controllers who say three airlines are robbing them of a "fringe benefit."

The furor involves the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization and the three airlines — Pan American World Airways, Trans World Airlines and Northwest Orient Airlines.

The controllers group (PATCO) contends its members are being increasingly denied free rides on overseas flights by the three airlines.

The controllers union said Friday that it would not condone any work slowdown by its members.

The PATCO said, however, it can understand why some controllers might decide to slow down traffic over the holiday by handling takeoffs and landings "by the book."

First Lady, in Texas, speaks on mental illness

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Unfounded fears about mental illness and its stigma hold back progress in aiding the nation's mentally ill, First Lady Rosalynn Carter told an invitation-only audience here Friday.

Mrs. Carter was greeted at the airport by Lady Bird Johnson, and the former first lady later introduced Mrs. Carter.

Although she did not hold a formal meeting with the news media, she nodded and smiled when asked if she felt welcome in Texas despite her husband's declining popularity in recent polls.

While her husband was campaigning for governor in Georgia, Mrs. Carter became very interested in mental health activities.

Mrs. Johnson said in her introductory remarks that one in four Americans is under emotional or psychological stress, and that 10 percent need some kind of mental care. The statistics were included in a study prepared by the presidential commission Mrs. Carter headed

"It is a rare family which has not been touched by mental illness," Mrs. Johnson said. "It is a rare citizen that has not been touched by Rosalynn Carter's concern."

Mrs. Carter said she was glad to be at the first state-wide mental health conference to be held since her commission made its final recommendations.

"We believe that to reach our goals of making high quality mental health care available to all, there must be changes in the ways mental health care is planned, delivered and financed," she said.

"And the changes must come from all levels in the private and public sector and in community, state and federal programs."

A "working partnership" between different levels of government and private and public sources must form the basis for a successful national policy of dealing with the problem, she added.

Brochure gets perfect score

Midland's economic development brochure, published by the Chamber of Commercee, recently was awarded top honor in the Community Promotion category of the American Chamber of Commerce Executives Communications Evaluation Program.

The brochure, which received a perfect score, has 32 pages of full color pictures, information and statistics relating to Midland. The editorial copy includes topics ranging from the city's education and lifestyle to it's labor and utilities.

According to Randy Hicks, public relations director for the Chamber, the brochure is a community promotion that is sent to industrial prospects which are considering locating in Midland.

LOVE NEEDS LIGHT

The afternoon sun was streaming through the altar window the day Ken and Carole spoke their vows. She looked even lovelier with the soft transfusion of light upon her face. But, had it been a cloudy day, there would have been no less promise in it for this couple.

Love needs light. But the light that love needs comes not from the heavens but from Heaven itself. It is the light of divine truth . . . of faith . . . of religious commitment.

That is exactly what our marriage vows mean to Christians. This is why we usually prefer to be married in church. Our promises are given not only to one another but to God. Our love looks up to Him who described himself as the Light of the world.

For Ken and Carole every Sunday in church renews the glow on their faces . . . and in their hearts.

Sunday marks milestone for Methodist Church

A milestone event in the history of Midland's First United Methodist Church will be the Celebration of Dedication to be held Sunday morning.

The special service beginning at 10:35 a.m. will dedicate the church plant and additional church properties. Traditionally, in the United Methodist denomination, such dedication can take place only after all debt on church-owned property has been cleared. The Midland church in recent months has retired all remaining indebtedness on its existing facilities.

Scheduled for dedication in the Sunday ceremony are the sanctuary and Breedlove Memorial Tower, the Mabel Holt Glass Memorial Chapel, the Davis Memorial Organ in the chapel, the education building and the church's three parsonages.

Dr. Alsie H. Carleton of Albuquerque, N.M., presiding bishop of the New Mexico and Northwest Texas conferences of the United Methodist denomination, will participate in the dedicatory event, along with Dr. Lloyd Hughes, Big Spring District superintendent of the denomination.

Dr. Charles E. Lutrick, senior minister of First UMC, will lead the dedication service. Members of the church's board of trustees will present the properties for dedication. Joe Pevehouse is chairman of the board.

Special guests at the service will be a number of former pastors of First in the 100-block of North Main street. The second home of the congregation was a red brick building at the corner of Main and Illinois, constructed in 1907. The third edifice to be erected United Methodist Church, and their wives. They include Dr. Edwin Calhoun of San Antonio, pastor in 1930-31; Dr. Howard Hollowell of Abilene, pastor from 1944 to 1950; Dr. Luther Kirk of Lubbock, pastor from 1950 to 1954; Dr. Marvin Boyd of Austin, who served here from 1954 to 1957, and Dr. Timothy Guthrie of Midland, pastor from 1957 until 1975 and now pastor emeritus of First Church.

First Methodist Church, the oldest church in the city, was organized in August, 1885. The church's first home was a frame structure erected in 1889 was a mission-style structure which was built in the early 1940s and dedicated on May 2, 1943. That structure became the chapel after the church's new sanctuary was erected in the late 1960s, and continued to serve the congregation in that capacity until it was razed in the mid-1970s to permit construction of the Glass Memorial Chapel on the site. Portions of the 1940s structure remaining to this day are the Scharbauer Education Building and the fellowship hall wings.

In the early 1950s, another wing was added to the education building, and still another section which houses church offices and library was erected in 1960. In the mid-1960s, another expansion program was undertaken, this one providing a new sanctuary, tower, church parlor and additional classrooms. These facilities were completed and occupied in 1968. The latest addition to the church plant, the Mabel Holt Glass Memorial Chapel, was completed in early 1976, with services of consecration held on Feb. 29, 1976.

Bishop Carleton's sermon for the dedicatory service will be titled "Why Build Churches?". Joining the ministers and trustees in the ceremony will be the Chancel Choir, the Youth Handbell Choir and children of the elementary Sunday school departments of the church.

The Committee on Dedication and the Boone Bible Class of the church have arranged a reception and fellowship gathering for the congregation following the service. The visiting ministers and their wives will be honor guests at the event.

Guest speakers slated for pulpits at Midland's Methodist Churches

Guest speakers will be in the pulpits of Midland's United Methodist churches Sunday morning.

The guest ministers are district superintendents of the various administrative districts within the Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist denomination and have come to Midland to attend the 69th annual meeting of the conference which opens Tuesday morning in First United Methodist Church here.

The Rev. Jim Pickens, Abilene district superintendent for the last three years, will preach at St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas Ave. He is a former superintedent of the Seymour district and has pastored Methodist churches at Lubbock, Dimmitt and elsewhere. His Sunday sermon is titled "What's Happening?"

St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 1701 N. Main St., will be host to Dr. Walter Browers, Amarillo district superintendent. A former superintendent of the Big Spring district, he has served as pastor of churches in Amarillo and Albuquerque. His sermon here Sunday is titled "Walk Into Your World."

The Rev. Jarrell Sharp, Seymour district superintendent, will be guest preacher at Hollowell United Methodist Church, 400 S. Marshall St. He has been pastor of churches in Stamford and Andrews in the past.

Dr. W. A. Appling, a former pastor of Midland's St. Luke's Methodist Church who now serves as Pampa district superintedent, will speak to the congregation of Asbury United Methodist Church, 106 W. Dakota Ave. Dr. Appling has been superintendent of the Plainview district of the UMC and has held pastorates in several West Texas cities.

The Rev. Carlton Thomson, Plainview district superintendent, will fill the pulpit at St. Paul United Methodist Church, 4501 Thomason Drive. He is a former pastor of churches in Lubbock and Borger.

In addition to the above ministers, the presiding bishop of the Northwest Texas Conference, Dr. Alsie H. Carleton of Albuquerque, N.M., also will speak in the city Sunday. Bishop Carleton will preside at a special service Sunday morning which will dedicate the properties of Midland's First United Methodist Church. The church official's sermon is titled "Why Build Churches?" Joining him in the service will be Dr. Lloyd Hughes, superintendent of the United Methodist Big Spring district, which has jurisdiction over Midland Methodist churches.

All (Sunday services will be open to the public.

Ceremonies for new bishop slated Monday

EL PASO — The Most Rev. Patrick Fernandez Flores will be officially installed as bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of El Paso in ceremonies Monday night in the El Paso Civic Center.

The first Mexican-American to be appointed a bishop of the Catholic church, he will assume leadership of a diocese encompassing 18 counties of New Mexico and far West Texas. He was appointed to the post in early April by His Holiness Pope Paul VI.

The Diocese of El Paso has a membership of almost 265,000.

Bishop Flores will arrive at El Paso International Airport at noon Monday, to be greeted by church and community officials. Following the welcoming reception, he will proceed to St. Patrick's Cathedral where he will present his credentials to the Most Rev. Sidney M. Metzgar who announced his retirement as bishop of the diocese earlier this spring. Bishop Metzgar will present the keys of the cathedral to his successor and both bishops enter the cathedral to lead the assembled faithful in prayer.

The public ceremony of installation of the new bishop will begin at 7 p.m. in El Paso's Civic Center. Leading the rites of installation will be the Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, archbishop of San Antonio, and the Most Rev. Robert Sanchez, archbishop of Santa Fe.

Approximately 40 bishops from the U.S. and Mexico are expected to join Bishop Flores in concelebrating the service of mass which will follow the installation rites. Following mass, Bishop Flores will be honored with a reception in the Civic Center, at which time he will greet all who wish to meet him.

A native of Ganado, Tex., Bishop Flores attended St. Mary's Seminary in Houston and was ordained to the priesthood in the Diocese of Galveston-Houston in 1956. For the last eight years he has served as Titular Bishop of Italica and Auxiliary to the Archbishop of San Antonio.

5th anniversary slated Sunday

The Faith Temple Church, 1605 N. Terrell St., is planning a fifth anniversary celebration Sunday.

The anniversary program will begin at 3 p.m. and will feature a number of guest choirs from churches in the city and surrounding area. Faith Temple's Youth Deliverance Choir also will be performing on the program.

The Rev. W.C. Kenan, pastor of Faith Temple Church, is inviting all members and friends of the church, as well as the general public, to attend the special service.

Rev. Ben Walker

Ben Walker becomes new church pastor

The Rev. Ben Walker has accepted a call to the pastorate of Midland's Fannin Terrace Baptist Church, 2800 Mogford St., and will begin his new ministry Sunday.

He succeeds the Rev. Bill V. Cathey who resigned the pastorate several months ago to accept a position with the Baptist General Convention of Texas, the state Southern Baptist organization. In recent months, Dr. John Rasco of Odessa has served as interim pastor.

Walker comes to Midland from Terrace Drive Baptist Church of Omaha, Neb., and before that he served as pastor of churches in Illinois and Florida and at Stamford.

Walker received a B.A. degree from Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene, in 1956 and later attended Southern Baptist Seminary. He received the master of divinity degree from Southwestern Baptist Seminary at Fort Worth in 1961. During his years in the ministry, he has served on various state and associational boards and committees and has been active in civic organizations. His wife, BarbaraJean, is a former student at Stetson University and Southwestern Baptist Seminary. The couple has three children: Jeff, 16; Stephanie, 10, and Keith, 6. The family has established residence at 2005 Ward St.

Folk group holding concert

"The Revised Standard Version," a folk group from El Paso, will present a concert tonight in Midland's Crestview Baptist Church, 3300 Thomas St., at Midkiff Drive.

The ensemble is made up of high school and college students of the Coronado Baptist Church in El Paso. The group is directed by Charles Kirkpatrick, minister of music for that church. The singers are accompanied by an instrumental ensemble in their presentations.

The special concert at Crestview, scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. is sponsored by the Midland Baptist Association. Young people of the community are given a special invitation to attend the event, and adults will be welcomed as well. There will be no charge for admisssion and no offering will be taken, it was announced.

Nationalist China lodges complaint

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — Nationalist China has lodged a stiff complaint with the United States over Zbigniew Brzezinski's Peking visit, a government official said Friday.

"Our government has indicated its strong complaint to the United States on this matter," Foreign Ministry spokesman King Shu-chi told reporters.

He also said Nationalist China's ambassador to Washington, James Shen, "has contacted the U.S. State Department's high-level officials" about Brzezinksi's talks with Communist leaders.

Senior citizens to be honored

Senior citizens of the congregation of St. Mark's United Methodist Church will be honor guests during a coffee and fellowship hour Sunday morning.

The event, scheduled for 9:45 a.m., has been arranged by the church's Council on Ministries in observance of Senior Citizens Month.

Bob Buess

Minister-author slated for talk

Midland's Church of the Dayspring, North Weatherford street near East Illinois avenue, will be host to Bob Buess, a well-known Southern Baptist minister and speaker, at its 11 a.m. Sunday service.

Buess is author of several books, including "The Pendulum Swings" and "The Laws of the Spirit." The visitor will be speaking at a meeting at 7 p.m. today in Furr's Cafeteria at West Cuthbert street and North Midkiff Drive, and he will speak Sunday night at a service in the Church of the New Life at Monahans. All services and meetings will be open to the public.

Methodist church banned in Transkei

UMTATA, Transkei (AP) — The independent black homeland of Transkei, kicking once more against parent South Africa, Friday banned the Methodist Church of South Africa from operating within its borders.

A proclamation signed by Transkei President Botha Sigcau accused the church of acting in ways "prejudicial to the interests of the state."

Prime Minister Kaiser Matanzima, a Methodist, later issued a statement saying the move was aimed at the South African organization, not at its members in Transkei. He said his co-religionists should continue worship services and other church activities.

Matanzima said he had indicated earlier this year that his government was "seriously perturbed at the meddling in our political independence by the South African-controlled Methodist church which had extensive activities in Transkei," including missions and schools.

Methodist sources said Matanzima apparently plans to establish an independent Transkei Methodist Church. Figures for Methodist membership in Transkei were not available.

South Africa granted independence to Transkei in 1976 under the white-ruled nation's policy of apartheid — racial separation — that gives full political rights to South Africa's 19 million blacks only in tribal homelands that account for about 13 percent of the land area. About 10 million blacks now live in these homelands, including 1.7 million in Transkei, a territory the size of Denmark.

The apartheid blueprint gives control of the rest of South Africa to its 4.4 million whites.

Transkei, the first of nine homelands to gain or which are to gain independence, remains economically dependent on South Africa. The Pretoria government is the only one in the world that extends diplomatic recognition to Transkei.

Matanzima, apparently smarting under allegations that he is a South African puppet, last month broke diplomatic relations with Pretoria and said his government would press a "struggle for liberation" toward black rule in South Africa.

After today's Transkei proclamation, South African church spokesman Theo Coggin said: "It is very difficult to understand how a church, which proclaims the gospel of Christ, can be prejudicial to the interests of a God-fearing nation."

In a statement in Johannesburg, the Rev. Abel Hendricks, president of the Methodist Conference in South Africa, said the church several times had assured Matanzima that it was not "political."

Hendricks said:

"I want to make it clear that the Methodist church has at no stage sought confrontation with the government of Transkei. On the contrary, we have gone out of our way, since Chief Matanzima announced his intention to ban the church in January, to hold ourselves open to negotiation and still do so."

New light shed on early methods

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP) — About 50 rare gun molds found in a barn built by Eli Whitney give new information about some of the world's earliest mass production methods.

The molds had gathered dust in the barn loft for probably more than a century, hidden by equipment stored there by the barn's owner, the New Haven Water Co., according to architect Herbert Noyes.

Whitney, inventor of the cotton gin and considered the father of American manufacturing, set up an armory near the barn in 1789. Only the foundation of some of the armory buildings remains.

Noyes and others made the find Monday while preparing to turn the barn into a museum. The water company recently agreed to give the barn to the Whitney museum to house articles now stored by the museum's president.

One of the first molds uncovered was used to produce a screw for the hammer assembly of a gun that wasn't manufactured until 1840, authorities said.

The historic importance of the molds was confirmed by museum director James Smith and by Leonid Tarassuk, an arms expert who is being consiered as curator for the museum.

Church planning children's musical

The Primary and Junior choirs of Kelview Heights Baptist Church will join in presenting a special musical program during the Sunday morning worship service of the church.

The presentation will be a children's musical titled "Life Just Keeps on Happening." The program is scheduled for 10 a.m.

Approximately 70 voices will be featured in the presentation, accompanied by orchestrated sound track. The pre-school choir also will participate. The performance will be under direction of David Newton, music director for Kelview Heights Church. Pat Fairchild is Junior Choir director, Terry Bullock is Primary Choir director and Christy Smith directs the pre-school choral group.

The choral presentation will be open to the public. Kelview Heights Church is located west of North Big Spring street, near Scharbauer Drive.

Rev. Jack Bledsoe

Missionary slated guest speaker

The Rev. Jack Bledsoe, an Assemblies of God missionary to West Africa, will be guest speaker at 7 p.m. Sunday in Gardens Assembly of God, 2901 W. Kansas Ave.

The Rev. Paul H. Coxe, host pastor, has invited the public to hear him.

Bledsoe and his wife, Carmolita, have been ministering in the West African countries of Togo and Benin since 1969. During their first term they instituted the Assemblies of God work in north-central Togo, where they established churches and conducted evangelistic outreaches. In their last term of service, the Bledsoes served as instructors at the Assemblies of God Bible school in Natitingou, Benin. Bledsoe also was director of the school and held various positions in missionary field fellowship, while his wife worked with the national women's organization and directed a children's church.

The Bledsoes both attended colleges in Oklahoma and eearned B.A. degrees from the Central Bible College of Springfield, Mo. They are the parents of four children.

Bledsoe will be speaking on his missionary ministry in Africa during the Sunday night service, Coxe said.

New minister to join St. Luke's

The Rev. Mike Downing this week will join the staff of Midland's St. Luke's United Methodist Church.

Downing will become youth director of the local church on June 1.

A native of Canyon, Downing is a second-year student at Perkins School of Theology at Southern Methodist University, Dallas, and comes to St. Luke's as a minister-in-training. During the summer months he will serve as full-time youth director and then next fall will divide his time between youth work and other staff responsibilities.

Downing was graduated from West Texas State University, Canyon, with a B.A. degree in English in 1976. At Perkins School of Theology, he is working toward a master of theology degree. He worked as a staff member of his home church, First United Methodist Church of Canyon, for a time before enrolling in Perkins School of Theology. His wife, Dianna, also is a graduate of West Texas State University.

Students show indifference

MILLBRAE, Calif. (AP) — Ben Langella, a World War II veteran who helped liberate the Dachau death camp, says he was not surprised when high school students showed indifference to his personal history lesson on the Holocaust.

"They're 16- and 17-year-old kids. They have it too good," he said.

Langella spoke to 80 juniors at Mills High School, 15 miles south of San Francisco.

First he recreated the days when Kate Smith sang "God Bless America" and Hitler was on the march. Then he asked if any would volunteer to fight the Nazis, knowing they killed 6 million Jews.

"Is anyone so indignant, so mad that they want to do something?" Three times he asked.

One boy said: "No. I'm not Jewish."

Another boy said: "I really don't know. I'm not there."

A 17-year-old girl said: "I would go because I'm Jewish and my family was over there."

Langella, a San Francisco businessman and a veteran of the Seventh Army, was a visitor from another generation — a generation he characterized as growing up with "a war cloud over our heads.

"When I was your age," Langella told the students, who were not even in their teens when the Vietnam War ended, "we didn't know if there was going to be a tomorrow. And there almost wasn't.

"We were kids just like yourselves. I was 17 when I joined the Army."

A few students asked questions. Others chatted idly. Most appeared distracted as Langella spoke, throwing in numorous references to the recent television miniseries "Holocaust."

But the shuffling in the seats and the buzz of chatter stopped suddenly as Langella recounted the April 29, 1945, march into Dachau, where 30,000 people were imprisoned.

"We could smell death from miles away," he said.

"I was 18 years old. I had seen death after a year in combat but I wasn't prepared for what I saw.

"There were 50 box cars, each one containing hundreds of people, many of them dead or dying.

"We marched down this wide boulevard — Dachau Strasse ... Suddenly there was this great mass of humanity ... dirty, filthy, lice-ridden people with their bones protruding. They wanted to hug us but we were afraid to touch them."

Utility overruns hurting hospitals

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Utility overruns at the Big Spring State Hospital have forced the State Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board to transfer $35,000 from the 1979 MHMR utility appropriation to the 1978 fiscal year appropriation.

Underestimates by officials at the Big Spring facility and at five other MHMR institutions of electrical consumption led to the utility cost overruns, the board members were told.

A $140,000 utility overrun was recorded at Rusk State Hospital while excessive bills also were run up at the Fort Worth State School, $20,000; Rio Grande State Center for MHMR, $10,000; Amarillo State Center for HD, $10,000; and Beaumont State Center for HD, $12,000.

Make safety loses your mission in life

By ALFRED SHEIWOLD

If you've looked at the hands this week you've noticed that you can sometimes choose which opponent wins a trick. Make it your mission in life to give tricks to the safe opponent rather than to the dangerous opponent.

Opening lead — ♡ K

You win the first trick with dummy's ace of hearts, intending to develop the clubs by giving up a trick to West. If you can keep East out of the lead, your king of diamonds will be in no danger.

Unfortunately, East gets the club trick and promptly returns the jack of diamonds. Down one.

WAITED TOO LONG

What went wrong? You waited too long to apply the principles we studied all week.

Let West win the first trick with the king of hearts! If West shifts to a club, you take the king of clubs and draw two rounds of trumps with the king and queen. Now lead a club to the ace and discard your last club on dummy's ace of hearts.

You have lost a heart trick needlessly, but now you don't lose a club trick. The advantage is that East never gains the lead.

Ruff a club with a high trump and lead a trump to dummy's ace. Now you can discard two diamonds on the good clubs, making your contract with an overtrick.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player doubles. You hold: S-8; H-J8762; D-J1097; C-QJ9. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid four hearts. This jump bid promises unusually good trump support but poor high-card strength. If you had 10 or more points, counting distribution as well as high cards, you would first redouble and then raise partner's suit.

Riding horseback now helps handicapped learn to walk

By ERIC WAHA

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Usually children learn to walk before they learn to ride. For some children, however, it is the other way around.

They are children handicapped in their movements by brain damage suffered at birth. Riding a horse can help them learn to walk.

Therapists at Vienna's University Children's Clinic began what is called "hippotherapy" in 1975. This technique improves the coordination of handicapped children and their balance, and it relaxes their muscles.

When a healthy person starts taking riding lessons, he notices that his muscles soon react to the movements of the horse. This is because of a reaction to the rotating back of the horse, to maintain balance and to cope with the unusual positioning of the legs around the body of the horse.

Handicapped persons have the same reaction, which helps to reduce their handicaps.

Children selected for hippotherapy must be at least 4 years old, must have a certain measure of control over their bodies, be mentally capable of cooperating with the therapists and must not be fearful.

The "therapy horse" must be smart, reliable and even-tempered and his gait must be rhythmical. Hippotherapy must be ordered and supervised by doctors. It is carried out by qualified therapists only.

Five-year-old Thomas loves a brown horse named Dandy that helped him to take his first steps. He had suffered serious brain damage at birth, which badly hampered movement of both his legs. His arms were affected less. Though he was too weak to stand up, he could sit and move by crawling when he began hippotherapy treatment on Sept. 15, 1977.

"On Nov. 3, he was taking his first steps," said Emmy Tauffkirchen, the chief physiotherapist of the Children's Clinic, where three out of four children like Thomas, treated by hippotherapy, have showed marked improvement.

"When he was able to stand up and walk, he was still a bit unsure of himself," she added. "Dandy lowered his head so that Thomas could hold the horse's ear, for support."

She said hippotherapy not only helps a handicapped child's body, but also his mind.

"There is something such a child can do that many a healthy child cannot do — ride a horse," she said. "It helps his self-confidence and his self-respect."

Hippotherapy began in the Scandinavian countries about 20 years ago. From there it spread to Belgium, West and East Germany, Holland and Switzerland. Mrs. Tauffkirchen brought it to Austria in 1975.

Dandy was given to the clinic by a wealthy woman as a Christmas present in 1974.

The following year, Mrs. Tauffkirchen took him to Fulda, West Germany, for training as a therapy horse. In October 1975, hippotherapy began here.

Mrs. Tauffkirchen is a graduate of the Vienna University, where she enrolled in physical medicine studies. The courses last at least three years and include all forms of rehabilitation — especially after accidents — of adults as well as children.

Bentsen drives to hike penalties on Angel Dust

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recalling more examples of bizarre behavior exhibited by those under the influence of "Angel Dust," Sen. Lloyd Bentsen continues to preach the virtues of a bill that would increase the maximum penalty for trafficking in the devilish drug.

The Texas Democrat quoted from an unpublished report by a Washington doctor that stated PCP — angel dust — "presently remains the major drug of abuse in the Washington metropolitan area."

Bentsen's comments came during a Thursday speech as he tried to rally Senate support for a bill that would increase the maximum penalty for trafficking in PCP from five years in prison and a $15,000 fine for first offenders to 10 years and a $100,000 fine.

Phencyclidine — PCP — is legitimately used to cure rubber and to tranquilize large animals, such as elephants.

Its effects on the human mind are devastating, the report said.

And Bentsen offered his Senate collegues several grotesque examples.

A school teacher observed a student carving initials in his arm during class while under the drug's influence, Bentsen said. Another high school student walked through a plate glass window, falling among the razor-sharp glass splinters and thrashing madly.

"Abuse of this very dangerous drug is increasing to epidemic proportions nationwide and the consequences are staggering," Bentsen said Thursday. "Experts have now established that even short-term use of angel dust can produce treatment-resistant schizophrenic psychosis in certain individuals.

"Dr. Paul Luisada, deputy medical director of St. Elizabeths Hospital in Washington, D.C., reports that a sudden tripling of schizophrenic patients admitted to his institution during 1973 was later traced to PCP abuse," Bentsen continued.

In a report given in February to the National Institute on Drug Abuse conference on phencyclidine, Luisada stated that angel dust epidemics began during 1973. "Similar admissions rose from a trickle to a flood, peaking in February, 1974 at the rate of one-third of the first in-patient admissions," said Luisada. "The epidemic ended even more suddenly...following by several weeks a police raid on a local PCP laboratory."

Since late 1974, however, angel dust abuse has been steadily rising, continued Luisada. "By the beginning of 1976, the Drug Enforcement Administration was calling the Washington area the PCP capital of the country.

"However, despite a proliferation of local laboratories and an in raids on these laboratories, admissions to our center for PCP psychosis began a slow but steady decline. At the same time, experienced drug users presenting themselves for treatment of other drug abuse problems began referring to PCP as a drug to avoid 'because it makes people crazy.' Meanwhile, the suburbs began experiencing noticable increases in the incidence of PCP psychoses."

Luisada also stated in his report that PCP abuse "tends to be under-reported" because PCP abuse is often mistaken for schizophrenia and "this is compounded by the amnesia induced by PCP."

Also, routine laboratory screens for drugs do not detect PCP and "in the absence of a routine toxicologic test for PCP, medical examiners may report (violent or accidental) deaths as accidents rather than as the consequences of drug use."

Angel dust numbs the nerves of its victims, Luisada added. "They feel invulnerable. They don't feel pain so there is nothing to hold them back. They feel they have superhuman strength.

"Often, they pose more of a danger to persons around them. We had one case where a man was caught choking a small boy in an apartment corridor. He told us he thought the boy was his son and needed to be punished, yet the man had never had a son.

"There is something about being naked that seems to appeal to the persons intoxicated by PCP," continued Luisada. "It's not uncommon for persons to be found singing naked in the supermarket or walking down the street."

Fire shuts down mine

WINDHOEK, South-West Africa (AP) — Fire halted production of uranium oxide at the world's largest uranium mine, a spokesman for Rossing Uranium Ltd. said Friday.

He said the fire, which started Wednesday, injured one worker and damaged one of two solvent extraction plants at the Rossing mine.

The spokesman said production of uranium oxide would resume in two or three days but replacement of damaged equipment would take six months.

Amateurs can make wallboard repairs

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Cracks and small holes in walls of plaster and gypsum board are easy to repair with patching plaster, spackling compound or any of the other products made for that purpose.

The difference between the modern patching materials and those used by your grandfather are that those on the market today allow more time for the repair to be made. One of those older products, still being used by some professional painters, is plaster of paris, which sets fairly quickly and therefore must be mixed in small quantities.

The principle for handling small repairs applies to either plaster or gypsum board. If there is just a narrow gap, the mixture is pushed into the previously wet-down area with a putty knife or finger and smoothed down before it sets. When the crack is wider, it usually is necessary to undercut it, especially with plaster. Undercutting consists of making the bottom of the opening wider than the top so that the new material is locked into place. In some cases, when the hole in plaster is even larger, the patching compound should be applied in two layers. It is packed into the opening to within a fraction of an inch from the top and allowed to harden. The rest of the area is filled several hours later, preferably after an overnight wait.

Repairing a large gap in gypsum board calls for a different technique. Cut out a piece of the board somewhat bigger than the opening — about 2 inches on all sides. Using scrap gypsum board, cut a piece that will fit tightly into that space. Usually, it is easier and less noticeable if the patch is square. Use gypsum board cement to set the new board into place.

Most of the time, the problem with gypsum board involves nail popping rather than the types of cracks and openings associated with plaster walls. There are several methods advocated for solving this problem, but the easiest is to hammer the protruding nail back into place, then drive in another nail, threaded or ring-grooved, about an inch away. The area is then covered and smoothed with a patching material.

Some persons never get around to repairing cracks and breaks in walls until the time comes for painting. The filled-in areas should be spot-primed before applying the final coat of paint. Even then, it is better to do the patching a day or two before the painting, although professional painters usually do the patching and painting on the same day.

Remove trap plugs to unclog messy drain

Q. — We have a kitchen sink that gets clogged every few weeks. Sometimes it can be cleared with a suction cup and sometimes with a snake. We seldom use a chemical cleaner. I often see the advice to clean out the plug at the bottom of the trap under the sink. It doesn't seem to apply to our sink, because it does not have such a plug. How can the trap be cleaned?

A. — When you use a suction cup or a snake or even a chemical cleaner, what you are trying to do is to remove whatever stoppage there is in the drainpipe, including the trap. When a trap has a cleanout plug, removing it and dislodging the obstruction is usually more effective than by attacking the problem from the top of the drain. When it does not have a cleanout plug and you wish to get at the stoppage from under the sink, you must remove the trap itself. This is a bit more difficult than removing a cleanout plug, because you must detach the two ends of the trap, working very carefully so as not to damage the pipe or the trap. Whether you take off a cleanout plug or remove a trap, remember to place a large pan under the trap to catch the water that is lodged in it.

Q. — One of the doors in our house keeps binding and sticking. I remember reading some time ago that this is often caused by loose hinges. Sure enough, when I inspected the hinges, I found that both of them were loose, but I have forgotten how to make the repair. When I retighten the screws, they come loose again in a few days. Can you help me?

A. — You didn't say which of the hinge leaves are loose — those on the door or the jamb? If the screws are loose on the jamb leaves, you usually can use longer screws to tighten the hinges. But if they are loose on the door, you must be careful that the screws are not so long that they go through the door. Therefore, the best way is to take out the screws and fill the holes with wood putty, plastic wood or pegs glued into place. When the repair material is dried (it's best to let it remain overnight), you can reuse the same screws or drive in new ones of the same size. There are some other ways of doing this. One is to fill the holes with wood putty or plastic wood and then, before the material has dried, put the screws into place carefully and allow to harden. Another is merely to fill the holes with steel wool. Usually the old screws then can be redriven so that they hold firmly. Use your judgment about which of these methods to use and whether it might be better, when making the repair, to take down the door and rehang it later.

Q. — We had someone put a concrete apron on the driveway in front of our garage. That was about two years ago. It now has developed a crack. Can this be repaired with a concrete mix, the kind that needs to be mixed only with water?

A. — Yes. But be sure the crack has stopped spreading. Mark each end of the crack with something that won't be washed off by rain. Wait a few weeks and examine it again. If the crack hasn't gone beyond the two marks, make the repair. Before doing so, be sure the crack is wide enough to get sufficient mixture into the opening so that it will hold. Roughen the crack so that the bottom is wider than the top.

Ancient Athens facing problems

By PAUL ANASTASIADES

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The Greek premier suggests that half his country's capital city should be demolished and re-planned. Others say it has no hope of salvation and that an entirely new city should be established elsewhere.

Athens, which mythology fabled as the City of the Gods and the ancients as the center of beauty and culture, is dying.

A series of recent meetings on the phenomenon, presided over by Premier Constantine Caramanlis, cited the key problems as over-population, lack of planning, no greenery, the traffic boom, overall pollution, and unbridled construction that has turned the once-known "City of Jasmin" into a concrete jungle.

"One solution would be to demolish half of Athens, but this is impossible," Caramanlis said after the latest meeting, "and since we can't, we have to at least examine how to save what we can."

Caramanlis said Athens was "the only city in the world" built without a plan. He said the original layout for the city was a Greek-German scheme dating from the beginning of this century and catering to a population of 100,000.

At the end of the first World War there were 300,000 Athenians. Following a heavy influx of refugees and a heavy urbanization trend, the Greek capital along with its environs and port city of Piraeus today concentrates three million or one-third of the country's entire population.

"All this became so without any plan," Caramanlis said.

A master plan for the city drawn up in 1976 has been abandoned. Instead, moves to deal with related problems are occasionally announced, such as an ambitious reforestation project on the mountain slopes and hills surrounding the city, moves to discourage car purchases, stricter traffic laws, and plans for new fly-overs, highways and multistoried garages. A recently set up police squad has been assigned the dubious task of cracking down on noise-makers.

A long-planned subway network is seen by the government as the key solution against congestion and was the foremost topic of attention at the last conference with the premier. But while originally scheduled to function next year, it has not yet even started being built due to the high costs and technical difficulties and may eventually be abandoned.

The government committee assigned to examine remedies noted that Athens remains the least green city of Europe with just over 2 percent, while new cars are running on its narrow roads at the rate of 3,000 additional ones per month.

Added to the 410,000 vehicles jamming the Athenian roads and clustering the pavements is the concentration of half the country's industry on the city's outskirts.

The semiofficial environment association has ruled the city-center atmosphere as dangerous to public health, modern-day pollution has been cited as the most damaging threat to the 25-century-old Acropolis temples, and most of the tarred and littered shores of the Saronic gulf near Athens have been banned to swimming.

The government committee also noted that the building spree has left little in the way of parks, children's playgrounds, garages, sports facilities for the public, or traditional architecture.

A group of independent Athenian civil engineers, admitting they had lost all hope of remedying the situation, recently called on the government to stop wasting effort on Athens. In their published memorandum they said the best solution was to build another city, somewhere in central Greece, to absorb a million persons.

Eagles chili cook-off set June 3 near Crane

CRANE — The seventh annual chili cook-off sponsored by the Crane Golden Aerie No. 3359 of the National Fraternal Order of Eagles will be held June 3 on Smokey's Hilltop, six miles south of Crane and off U.S. Hwy. 385.

". . . We at Crane know that there are lots of good chili cooks around this country," said Darrell Williams, chili cook-off chairman.

"We urge all chili cooks to come to Crane . . . to compete in the cook-off," he said.

Each contestant's "bowl of red" is to be concocted on Smokey's Hilltop for judging to begin at 2 p.m. June 3. Williams suggested that approximately five pounds of meat be used in each pot.

First second and third-place trophies will be awarded in these cook-off divisions: Eagles, Eagles' auxiliary, open and showmanship. Brewer of the worst pot of chili will be given a trophy, as will the contestant who traveled the farthest distance to the cook-off.

Points won by the winner and runners-up in the open division will be recorded by Hal John Wimberly, the Houston-based editor of "Goat Gap Gazette," who is keeping tab of those vying to enter the 12th annual Terlingua Chili Cook-off Nov. 4.

A "chili-head" must earn six points before he's eligible to enter the world chili fete there, according to Gaylon Ellison, a veteran of Crane chili cook-offs.

The maximum number of points a "chili chef" can win in any qualifying cook-off is three. And a chili cook must win or place at two or more sanctioned cook-offs before he's eligible to enter the Terlingua contest.

The Terlingua bash will be at Glenn Pepper's Villa de le Mina three miles west of the old ghost town and just west of Big Bend National Park.

Kicking off the Crane cook-off weekend will be a dance on the night of June 2 on Smokey's Hilltop.

Those who wish may camp out there that night, Williams said.

Free beer will be served from noon until 6 p.m. on the day of cook-off. Per-car gate admissions that day will be $1, and proceeds will go to the Jimmy Durante Children's Fund, Williams said.

"Last year we had 20 contestants," he said, "and we sincerely hope we will have even more this year."

A dance will be held at the Eagles Hall in Crane on the night of June 3.

Demand hiking poultry prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer demand is pushing up prices of poultry and broiler chicken will soon join beef and pork in items that will become more expensive, the Agriculture Department says.

A preliminary report by the department predicted that wholesale prices of broiler chicken would be from 47 to 49 cents a pound in the third quarter of the year, up from 42.7 cents during the same period last year.

There were no retail prices given.

The department said that poultry producers are turning out record numbers of broilers and turkeys this year, but that the decline in beef production has caused a greater demand for poultry.

"There's no question that retail broiler prices will be higher than last year," one USDA officials said.

The department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service survey said that turkey prices are expected to be less this fall than last fall.

Last year turkey prices rose from 53.1 cents a pound in the third quarter to 61.3 cents in the fourth. The report said turkey prices may hold steady at from 58 to 60 cents in the fourth quarter this year.

Another postal headache

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — What do you do with 1.6 million 16-cent stamps for which the Postal Service apparently has no plans?

Emmett Russell, director of customer services at the Peoria Post Office, says he intends to send most of them back where they came from — Washington.

The stamps were printed when the Postal Service was considering creation of a citizens' mailing rate of 13 cents and a business rate of 16 cents. Instead, the government decided on a 15-cent rate for all first-class mail.

Post offices were left holding the overpriced stamps, and officials are trying to figure out what to do with them.

The Peoria Post Office has on hand 1.64 million 16-cent stamps worth $262,400, most of them in 16,000 stamp coils and 40,000 of them on sheets of 100 stamps each.

"This item will not be much of a seller," said Russell. "We could never get rid of 16,000 coils of 100 stamps each."

But the stamps on sheets shouldn't be difficult to dispose of because they can be used for parcel post, he said.

Orphan gator headed south

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP) — A stunted, orphaned, 10-year-old alligator is headed from the chilly Pacific Northwest to the more hospitable climes of Florida. The 4-foot-long, 10-pound gator was brought to the Bellevue Humane Society and director Gene Herrman immediately sought ways to get it south.

"It's a displaced alligator," he said Thursday. "He represents all the alligators that people pick up and forceably and unfairly remove from their natural habitat."

Interns fight for right to organize into unions

By LAWRENCE MEYER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — At first glance, Phil Zakowski looks tired. He is tall, thin, fatigued. He had just finished working 36 hours straight on about three hours' sleep. He usually works more than 100 hours a week. He looks tired because he is.

Phil Zakowski is a first-year medical resident, what used to be called an intern, and he is typical of the 60,000 or so residents in training programs across the country. Zakowski doesn't claim to work any harder or longer than anyone else in his position. That's why Zakowski and other residents believe a bill pending in Congress that would allow them to organize unions should be passed.

The bill has gathered an odd alliance of supporters. In addition to the people directly affected, the bill is backed by the AFL-CIO and the American Medical Association. Nobody can remember the last time those two groups were on the same side of an issue.

The principal opponent of the legislation — besides every hospital in the country affiliated with a medical school — is the Association of American Medical Colleges.

Supporters of the bill argue that it will help improve quality of medical care and make working conditions for house staffs of hospitals more reasonable. Opponents of the bill assert that it will increase medical costs and disrupt the process of medical education.

The central issue on which the debate has focused is: are residents to be considered employees rendering a service or students getting an education? Residents say they spend more time working than learning and hospitals say they are students who perform some work.

"It's almost impossible for an individual to set up practice without that additional experience," Dr. John A.D. Cooper, president of the Association of American Medical Colleges, said in an iterview. "The general understanding is that (residency) is part of the general education and training of a physician."

Jay Dobkin, a physician who is president of the Physicians National House Staff Association, emphasized in an interview that residents provide a service and that hospitals charge patients for it. Cooper, however, scoffed at the argument that residents perform a service and should be treated as employees. "So does a third-year student," Cooper said "Are we going to unionize him? . . . They're not working. They're learning."

The training residents receive, according to Dobkin, "is by no stretch of the imagination the kind of . . . academic experience that they would like people to believe, and they know it. The training, if anything, is more like an apprenticeship experience than anything else — learning by doing rather than a classroom experience."

Residency, according to Dobkin, is something other than the "hothouse, controlled type of experience" that opponents of the legislation project. Residents, he said, "don't have a well-rested professor of medicine standing over them at 3 in the morning when they're trying to resurrect a drug overdose victim."

Dobkin and others who support the bill do not rest their case solely on the employment question. They also argue that residents, by working 80 to 100 or more hours a week, are not providing the best quality medical care.

Zakowski described his schedule as seven days a week, beginning at 8 a.m. and lasting until the work is done in the evening, working every third night and sleeping when he can and working through the following day. "Sometimes I think patient care really suffers the day after you're on call," Zakowski said. "Today I was really dragging myself around. I had to think things through slower. I don't say it's a life or death problem, but throughout the year I noticed a number of minor mistakes I made the day after I was on call."

Cooper indicated he did not believe that patient care suffered because of the long hours residents work. "If they moonlight after 110 hours a week, that quality is all right? Is that correct?" he asked.

Supporters argue that hospitals want it both ways — telling insurance companies that residents perform a service for which the hospitals should be compensated and then telling residents that they are students. Opponents say the legislation will inject the National Labor Relations Board into medical education, forcing it to resolve disputes between faculty and students.

The National Labor Relations Board ruled in 1976 that house staffs are "primarily students" and not employees within the terms of law passed by Congress in 1974 allowing private nonprofit hospital employees to organize. Despite statements during the debate that the bill was intended to cover house staffs, the NLRB ruled otherwise. Now Congress is being asked to reverse that decision.

The pay residents receive varies according to their speciality and hospital. First-year residents at George Washington University Hospital receive $13,700 a year and the figure is increased every year so that a sixth-year resident gets $18,300. The national average ranges from $13,145 for the first year to $17,458 for the sixth year.

"That's not a low wage for someone supposedly not ready for independent practice," said Dr. Ronald Kaufman, vice president for medical affairs at George Washington University.

Although Dobkin said pay was not the main issue, Kaufman said he was skepitical about that. Collective bargaining, he said, will "inevitably" lead to demands for higher pay. "The only reason they want to have collective bargaining is to raise pay and benefits." About 12 percent — $5.3 million — of George Washington University Hospital's $45.3 million operating budget pays the hospital's 358 residents.

If the legislation passes, Kaufman said, he foresees bill to patients going up, too. "It's another aggravating factor which we — and by that I mean the country — don't need."

Kaufman said he did not argue that residents should receive the same low pay that he and others got 20, 30 or 40 years ago when they were residents. "They're a new generation with different mindset. I don't criticize them for that," he said. "They deserve a decent living. But I think they have that."

How to cope with garden pests

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Peter Cottontail doesn't seem so cuddly when he decides to chomp on the vegetable garden you've put all those spare hours into cultivating.

Foil his appetite by putting up a fence. Chicken wire is not too expensive, and it is well worth the labor. Or use something stronger and keep out some of the biggies.

Some people smoke woodchucks and raccoons out of their burrows and dens with gases but that method does seem drastic. Well-placed traps may be set, so that the animals may later be released in an unpopulated area.

A raccoon ceases to be a pet animal when it pulls down corn stalks to test the ripeness of the budding corn ears. The raccoon isn't fussy when it comes to food, however. If the corn isn't to its liking it will eat just about anything else, birds eggs are a fast meal that may get your dander up and make you declare war on this masked bandit.

Chipmunks are to be watched right after the ground is seeded. They not only eat seeds, they enjoy bulbs. Trapping them is easy, but planting a berry bush near their hideout may be one way of keeping the little beasts at home. If it has enough berries, it may pass up other good things planted by its human neighbor.

It is difficult enough to keep the garden free of insects without having to worry about animals. If you feed the birds in winter they may stay about to eat the troublesome insects in summer. Beetles, cut worms, tent caterpillars, wasps, spiders may be eaten by brown thrashers. Slugs and snails, garden pests that thrive during damp spells, make tasty meals for robins. Orioles enjoy a feast of gypsy moths, tent caterpillars, weevils. A rosebreasted grosbeak likes potato bugs, butterflies, cucumber beetles, and a flicker is capable of eating thousands of ants each day.

But we should not become anti-bug and give the wrong impression to children who may swat some of nature's beneficial workers.

Some insects are not only beautiful but they perform good garden service — for instance, the praying mantis. They will free the garden of many insect pests —Japanese beetles mites, grubs, caterpillars. Some people buy mantis egg clusters and put them about the garden as future biological bug controllers.

The dragon fly, another beautiful insect, is to be encouraged, and it will reward you by eating mosquitoes and flies. (You can reward it by leaving it alone.) It is a marvelous insect to have around a small pond which might get mosquito-infested.

And there is a big service offered by the lady bug. It likes aphids and mealy worms.

Earthworms in their lowly position in the animal order help the gardener by loosening and aerating the soil. Handle with care, but don't worry too much if a spade or hoe cuts one into two pieces. Earthworms can generate a new end section.

Some herbs also keep pests from the garden. Garlic, chives and parsley often are interplanted for this purpose. Some people use basil to protect tomatoes. One woman claims it will foil flies, and she plants it near her terrace.

Tansy, a plant used by early colonists, may protect cabbage from worms. Some people plant marigolds to keep nematodes away from plants. They also seem to discourage rabbits from nibbling on the more succulent things in the garden.

Yarborough assails cut in Big Thicket funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Texas Democratic Sen. Ralph Yarborough said action by Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, to cut off federal funds to buy the last unpurchased land for a new national preserve in the southeastern part of the state was "outrageous" and "reprehensible."

Yarborough, who is president of the Big Thicket Association and a longtime supporter for a park in the area, told The Houston Post Thursday Wilson's action was "the most reprehensible action a Texas congressman has ever taken with respect to a park."

Wilson convinced a House subcommittee Wednesday to cut $6.38 million from funds to buy land for the park because he feels environmentalists are pressuring the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission to appropriate funds to set up a state park in the area which is part of his 2nd Congressional District.

Wilson said he supported the original 84,550-acre Big Thicket park as approved by Congress in 1974. He said if the state wanted to take more land, "then we'll just have to cut back on the federal portion."

The funds vetoed by Wilson's action were intended to purchase the remaining 6,000 to 10,000 acres of the national preserve. They became necessary as the real estate value of the Big Thicket rose because of inflation.

Yarborough said Wilson's action was motivated by a vested interest he has in the area as a stockholder in Time, Inc. which owns Temple-Eastex Corp., one of the largest timber companies in the area.

Wilson used to work for Temple before the firm merged with the Eastex Corp. His financial records filed with the House ethics committee show he owns over $100,000 in Time, Inc. stock.

Wilson said he was an original cosponsor of the federal preserve and said Temple Industries was one of the few timber companies that support it.

Yarborough said he thought Wilson's action was aimed at stifling any further talk on additional land for state parks.

U.S. imposes tariff on Japanese steel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American steel industry won a victory against Japanese steel imports with a final government ruling that says Japan has been dumping carbon steel plate into this country.

The ruling on Thursday had been expected. It affects about 6 percent of the steel sold in this country.

Under the decision, five Japanese steel companies will have to pay tariffs ranging from 5.4 to 18.5 percent on imports of the product since October, 1977.

Since last October importers have been posting bonds covering the tariffs.

The Treasury ruled in favor of the Oregon Steel Mills Division of the Gilmore Steel Corp., which said Japanese producers were selling steel in this country below the cost of producing it. Such a practice is called dumping and is illegal if it hurts domestic producers.

Both importers and the U.S. steel industry had expected the ruling. The major steps in the case came last October when the Treasury Department decided the Japanese prices were too low, and on April 13 when the U.S. International Trade Commission found that the U.S. industry was injured.

Peruvian woman charged

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A 38-year-old woman who is honorary Peruvian consul to San Antonio tried, but failed, to gain diplomatic immunity and has been charged in connection with the shooting of her estranged husband, police said.

Ena Vergara de Carswell was released late Thursday after posting $5,000 bond on a charge of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon in the shooting Wednesday of William E. Carswell Jr., 46.

Authorities said the woman claimed diplomatic immunity. After a check of Peruvian officials and the State Department in Washington, authorities determined that she was not entitled to immunity.

Mrs. Carswell said her duties as honorary consul includes renewing passports, taking care of Peruvian nationals in South Texas and acting in a public relations capacity for Peru.

Carswell, listed in good condition with gunshot wounds in the left arm and right hand, declined to comment on the case.

Police said Carswell told them he was shot at a car wash by his wife following an argument.

Russians want U.S. sub secrets

By GEORGE C. WILSON
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — There is now hard evidence on the public record that the Soviet Union fears it is so far behind the United States in the art of locating submarines that the Soviets must try to steal American secrets to catch up.

The evidence is contained in the complaint the Justice Department filed May 12 in U.S. District Court in Newark, N.J. Soviet spies, Justice said, offered to pay a U.S. Navy officer thousands of dollars for anti-submarine warfare secrets.

Two Soviet citizens have since been jailed in New York, pending a hearing in Newark Tuesday on spying charges, and a third, who has diplomatic immunity, is expected to be kicked out of the country.

The Justice Department charged that the three Soviets, all emloyed at the United Nations, sought "secret information concerning anti-submarine warfare, including materials involving underwater acoustics, submarine detection systems and their platforms, such as the LAMPS helicopter systems and other classified United States Navy programs."

On top of that evidence of Soviet concern about Moscow's position in the anti-submarine contest between the two superpowers, Navy Secretary W. Graham Claytor said last week that Washington, too, believes the United States is way ahead in this field. "The qualitative edge that we hold over the Soviets in both equipment and personnel is awesome," Claytor said in speech Wednesday.

Behind this unusual "we're-ahead" line from the Pentagon is the conviction of undersea warfare specialists that penetrating the ocean depths is such a complicated science that the Soviets cannot catch up to the Unitd States anytime soon, even if they do manage to steal drawings or dredge up a crashed Navy anti-submarine helicopter from the sea bottom.

The key to winning any battle against a submarine is hearing it. Yet the ocean is such a noisy place — with shrimp clicking, whales sounding and oil companies digging into the sea bottom — that the sound of a submarine is extemely difficult to isolate, especially when it is hundreds of miles away.

But after spending billions of dollars the United States has now learned to sift out the background noises from the distinctive sound a submarine makes as it prowls under the waves at depths never attained during World War II. Miniaturized electronics, computers and years of trial and error have given the United States its lead.

Not only can the United States hear a Soviet submarine without its skipper's knowing it, but the computers have memorized each Soviet sub's "signature" so they can tell Navy hunters which one it is — by name and number. The sound of every submarine propeller, like every fingerprint, is slightly different.

Although it is a secret just how the United States can match a certain submarine with its noise signature, a logical way to do this would e to watch Soviet subs leaving port as they sail on the surface toward the sea, then record the noise each one makes with hidden sensors. Such sensors could be on an American submarine lying in wait near the harbor exit.

The Soviet Union watches U.S. submarines as they leave port. (One place this is done is off Norfolk, Va.) However, the United States has the geograpical advantage of being able to sail its submarines out of many ports, while the location of Soviet sub bases pretty much limits the Russians to sailing out into the Barents Sea.

To reach the United States from there, Soviet subs must either sail through the gap between Greenland and Iceland, or the one between Iceland and Britain. Those gaps are heavily covered by U.S. and allied anti-submarine ships, planes, killer subs and eavesdropping equipment.

The United States has deployed both an area and close-in defense against Soviet submarines. The Soviets have opted for building more submarines than they believe the United States could find. They apparently are resigned to heavy losses, perhaps believing even a few surviving subs could cut the sea lanes between the United States and Europe.

"That's the only explanation I can come up with for them making their submarines so noisy" and thus easy to detect, one undersea warfare specialist said.

But the new espionage case indicates that the Kremlin is now putting a higher priority on making its submarines less vulnerable by learning how to duplicate and counter U.S. detection tactics.

Tris in kids' clothes

By VICTOR COHN
The Washington Post

The caneer-causing flame retardant, Tris, can be absorbed through the skin by thousands of children still wearing old, treated pajamas, even though use of Tris is now banned, scientists reported Friday.

The finding contradicts a 3-to-2 determination in 1977 by the Consumer Product Safety Commission that found, in effect, that repeated washings removed so much Tris that treated sleepwear could generally be safely worn.

On the basis of the new studies, one of the main investigators, Dr. Evan Horning of Baylor College of Mdicine in Houston, said in an interview "I simply would not keep old pajamas that might have been treated. As a parent I'd throw them away."

The five-member federal commission forbade new use of Tris on children's sleepwear in April 1977, but at the same time voted against making manufacturers spend millions of dollars to repurchase laundered sleepwear from consumers.

The commission majority relied on tests indicating that after three washings 95 percent of Tris was removed from two polyester fabric samples. This was disputed by the Environmental Defense Fund, the group that first raised an alarm about Tris in 1976. It said other tests showed that 10 percent of the Tris was left on the fabric surface even after 10 washings.

The new findings were reported in part by Dr. Ralph Dougherty of Florida State University at an American Chemical Society meeting in Indianapolis. He summed up painstaking tests on 11 children by Drs. Bruce Ames and Arlene Blum of the University of California at Berkeley and by Horning, and chemical analyses by Dougherty and Horning.

Another report by Ames and others is scheduled to appear in science magazine. Ames is the respected creator of the widely used "Ames test" for mutagenicity or potential genetic damage by suspect chemicals.

"Our results show what we expected," he said, "but it was something that had to be demnstrated" since the 1977 ban was based solely on tests in which Tris caused kidney cancers in animals. Some clothing makers and retailers have been maintaining in court that there is no human proof that Tris can cause harm.

Blum and Ames first found the Tris metabolite or byproduct, dibromopropanol, in the urine of a California girl after she wore new Tris-treated pajamas just before the ban. Horning found the metabolite in the urine of 10 more children, some of whom had been wearing garments washed many times.

Horning and Dought used a new, difficult chemical method — negative chemical ionization mass spectrometry — to find the chemical in mere parts per billion.

Parts per billion is "the level at which there can be long-term toxicity with chronic exposure," Dougherty said. "It's not just a matter of the chemical getting into the urine," Horning added. "We think some stays in the body fat, though we still must work on showing this.

"This whole problem still needs to be studied extensively, since some children may begin to develop cancers after 15 to 20 years."

Various scientists estimated last year that between 540 and 51,000 affected children might eventually develop a cancer, with the 51,000 estimate coming from Ames. He also warned of possible genetic damage.

Francine Shacter, manager of the Consumer Product Safety Commission's chronic hazard program, said there is no longer any Tris-treated sleepwear being sold, and clothing marketed since April 1977 contains no Tris. She said products labeled as pure cotton or "modocrylic" were not treated with Tris, but those labeled as containing any polyesters, acetates or triacetaes were more often treated than not.

"We have no adverse reports," she added, on any chemicals being used today to make garments fireproof.

CENTO is not working

By GEORGE C. WILSON
The Los Angeles Times

ANKARA, Turkey — In 1955, under the prodding of John Foster Dulles, Iraq and Turkey formed a military alliance designed to protect the Middle East against Communist penetration.

It was called the Bagdad Pact, and Iran, Pakistan and Britain joined later in the year.

Three years later, when revolution swept away the throne in Iraq, Iraq withdrew. The remaining members set up headquarters in Ankara and the Bagdad Pact became the Central Treaty Organization.

The United States, although not a formal member, has been a close associate from the start, contributing money and attending meetings.

Secretary of State Dulles' vision of a "northern tier" of solidly anti-Commmunist states protecting the oil-rich Middle East never really materialized. The Soviet Union, in addition to penetrating Iraq, has at one time or another made its influence felt in Egypt, Syria and elsewhere.

The Russians simply leapfrogged the northern tier, and they have continued to do so — most recently with the airlift of military equipment to Ethiopia.

The members of CENTO, as the treaty is called, never had much in common other than their anticommunism. The Turks have been the most inclined to the democratic way, despite several military coups over the years. Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi of Iran has made an occasional gesture toward representative government, and Pakistan has alternated between military and civilian governments.

Economically, the Middle East members have been more progressive. In 1964 they formed an independent group called Regional Cooperation for Development. This was supposed to coordinate economic develoment; provide joint facilities, and lead eventualy to something like a common market.

Regional Cooperation for Development worked as long as the United States and Britain provided the money for regional communications and other projects. But no one rally took to the idea that the Iranians might make refrigerators for everyone in the organization while the Pakistanis made all the pumps and the Turks made all the tractors.

That all is not well has come out in the organization's general meeting here this week. The coordination council reported that only 5 of 11 joint projects are in a satisfactory condition. One has been canceled altogether.

But CENTO's most important problem is political. The Turks, smarting under an arms embargo imposed by the U.S. Congress, have pulled back from their strategic committments.

In Iran, the shah has faced increasing anti-government riots over the last six months, prompted mostly by religious opposition to his secularization programs but aggravated by elements of the left.

Pakistan is being run by its generals again, and to top it all there has been a Communist-led coup d'etat in Afghanistan, which borders on both Iran and Pakistan.

Alarmists see the Russians taking advantage of all this turmoil to press down from the north and realize an old imperial Russian goal: a warm-water port on the Arabian Sea.

Although the shah and the Turks have warned the Pakistani generals not to execute the ousted prime minister, Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, and make things worse, CENTO appears to have accepted what happened in Afghanistan.

They have ruled out suggestions that they attempt to destabilize Afghanistan's new revolutionary government, but they are said to be hopeful that the natural condition of the country — with its dedication to Islam, its primitive ways and tribal customs — may make it reject the new leaders.

Observers here and in Tehran see little chance of the Russians allowing that to happen.

As sources close to CENTO headquarters see it, the one certain conclusion is that it is no longer possible to tie up Third World regions into neat defense arrangements.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF INTENTION OF THE CITY OF MIDLAND TEXAS, TO RECEIVE BIDS FOR THE SALE OF LOTS 1 AND 2, BLOCK 39, ORIGINAL TOWN OF MIDLAND, MIDLAND COUNTY, TEXAS.

Pursuant to Article 5421e-12, V.A.T.S., sealed bids, addressed to the Mayor and the City Council of the City of Midland, Texas, for the purchase of Lots 1 and 2, Block 39, Original Town, and Addition to the Secretary in his office, Room 206, Midland, Texas, P.O. Box 1152 until 2:00 p.m., on the 13th day of June, 1978, and then publicly opened and read aloud in said office.

Said tract is described as follows: Lots One (1) and Two (2), Block Thirty Nine (39), Original Town of Midland, Midland County, Texas.

A certified check or bank money order, issued by a bank satisfactory to the City, in the full amount of the total bid submitted, payable without recourse to the City of Midland, must accompany the bidder's proposal, as a guaranty that the bidder will accept a conveyance of said land from the City if he is successful. As a condition of sale, bidder must agree to either develop the existing structure on this site consisting of an elevated water reservoir into an office building or remove said structure from the site within a period of (12) twelve months from the date of sale. The successful bidder shall furnish a performance bond as assurance that one of the above requirements will be accomplished within the specified time period. Said performance bond shall be furnished by a satisfactory bonding company authorized to do business in the State of Texas and on a form approved by the City Attorney.

The City of Midland will issue a Special Warranty Deed and the bidder must satisfy himself as to title and acquire all desired abstracts and other title information or insurance solely at his own expense, and all other costs of sale, if any, must be borne solely by the successful bidder. The City does not guarantee the title by general warranty or otherwise. The successful bidder shall be responsible for payment of water and sewer pro-rate, taps, and necessary paving cuts.

The City reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids, to waive technicalities, to negotiate with any of the bidders, and to make any investigation deemed necessary as to a bidder's financial status.

Hall is optimistic

TERRY WILLIAMSON

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. -- If Jim Hall's mood has anything to do with his costworth-powered Chaparral-Lola does in the Indy 500 Sunday, Midland's entry should be in for a fine day.

He reminds you of Gary Cooper, walking down main street in High Noon. He's calm and collected. He acts like swimming in the same water with Jaws is an everyday happening.

Isn't this THE Indy 500? Isn't Hall supposed to be tense and terse at this point and time? After all, this isn't Disneyland. This is where those expert track demons gulp 1.8 miles per gallon for breakfast and then claim Murphy's Law (If anything can go wrong, it will) when you need them the most.

MAKE NO MISTAKE about it, Hall wants to win the Indy 500. But his hopes are realistic and he understands what can happen in this race of 500 miles around a two-and-one-half mile oval.

"This is a long race for this type of car," Hall mildy states. "A lot of things can happen in a race like this. To put a car through these conditionsthree or more hours is a lot to ask. There is a lot of luck in racing, but it is our job to see if we can narrow the gap on luck and I think we've done that."

Hall feels that his team has done all it can do, and he is ready for the race.

"We certainly are a contender, and I think that we can win if everything goes just right. Our chances are as good as anybody," Hall said.

WE WOULD LIKE to be in the first row. Still, we have a good starting slot. (Second row, center) and we are in good shape.

"We possibly could have qualified faster, but we stayed conservative. After we lost our top car at College Station, it took a lot of time to get this car to where it is now. We really are not concerned about our starting spot, but a front position is important to the confidence of the team. Still, we are in great shape."

Hall thinks the major problems are behind him. He thinks now that the race is about all that is left.

"We were concerned that something might happen to our car during the qualifying period. If that happened, we would be in trouble because we had to spend lots of time and effort in getting this car ready. It would have been tough to get another care ready in time. Our worst fears are over."

JIM SAYS that the race strategy developes during the race when you can actually see how the race is going, but there are some key factors to watch for as the race progresses. Hall would like to break clean from the field at the beginning and race at a competitive speed with the first half-dozen cars. He feels they can win if that pattern is followed and that is why the second row berth may be a distinct advantage.

Hall also is in good standing as far as the driver is concerned. Al Unser, aback-to-back Indy winner in 1970-71, knows what it takes to win. The devil-may-care Unser, may even be more confident than Hall.

"If I didn't think I could win, I wouldn't still be here. The car has been handled well, and everything looks good. I'm looking for a good race, " blurted Unser.

Unser could sell radios and cameras to the Japanese. Now, all that is left for him is to price the goods in the United States. He already has -- twice.

Thirty-three drivers set for Indy 500 race

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The 33 drivers who will start Sunday's 62nd Indianapolis 500-mile race are on edge.

The nearly month-long period of prepping for the world's richest auto race always is filled with anxiety. But, this year, it was even worse than usual because of incessant rain that hampered practice, wiped out one complete weekend of qualifying and dampened everyone's spirits.

"It's been rougher than I can ever remember," said Bobby Unser, winner of the Memorial Day Classic in 1968 and 1975.

"We waited to practice, we waited to qualify ... and now we're waiting for the race. We just haven't been able to do the★things we've wantec to."

The wait will be over, weather permitting, at 11 a.m. EST Sunday. The only real problem remaining is that the National Weather Service is forecasting about a 40 percent chance of rain.

In recent years, there have been almost as many eyes, at any given moment, peering skyward as there were watching the colorful, roaring racers wheel over the 2½-mile asphalt Indy oval.

Only five Indianapolis races have been shortened by rain, the first in 1950. But the last three have been in the past five years.

The 1973 race, won by Gordon Johncock, was red-flagged to a halt when rain fell after 332½ miles.

Unser got the benefit of a downpour after 435 miles in 1975, while Johnny Rutherford was in the lead when rain ended the 1976 Indy after 255 miles.

There was a general feeling of relief when last year's race went the distance, with A.J. Foyt becoming the first driver to win here four times.

Rutherford, Al Unser — Bobby's younger brother and also a two-time winner — and Johncock make up the second row.

Bobby Unser qualified on the inside of the seventh row, next to Foyt, who had his problems this month at the Speedway.

Lee, Monterey open series here Tuesday

Robert E. Lee's Rebels will square off with the Lubbock Monterey Plainsmen in the first game in tbe best-of-three baseball playoffs series at the Lee diamond at 4 p.m. Tuesday in a Class AAAA state quarterfinal round battle.

Monterey won its regional series from El Paso Andress' Golden Eagles, 5-2, Friday in Lubbock behind Derek Hatfield as it was chalking up its 20th victory in a row.

Lee takes a 25-9 record into the series while Monterey is now 30-4 and owns three victories over Coach Ernie Johnson's Rebels. The Plainsmen beat Lee in the Tournament of Champions at Cubs Stadium back in March and then took a victory in Lubbock and a 7-6 nine-inning win over the Rebs at the Lee diamomd.

The Rebels downed Arlington Sam Houston, 1-0 and then lost to the Texans, 9-6 in eight innings on Thursday, but bounced back to post a 7-6 win in the deciding game which also went eight innings.

Monterey's last loss was a 5-4 defeat at the hands of the Class AAA Eagles in 11 innings in Pecos and that one was a controversial one in that one of the Plainsmen hit a homer that would have won the game, but the umpire said that he had called time out before the Pecos pitcher delivered the home run pitch.

This will be the third time that Lee and Monterey has squared off against each other in the state playoffs. The Rebels hold a 4-2 edge over the Lubbock team, winning the regional playoff in 1964 and again in 1969 when they went to the state finals before bowing to Houston Lamar, 1-0, in the title game.

Monterey swept two games from Amarillo High in bi-district play by scores of 16-11 and 6-3 while Lee won two straight from the Wichita Falls Coyotes by scores of 12-8 and 5-1 in eight innings.

The winner of the Lee-Monterey quarterfinal series, will advance into the state tourney in Austin in June on the Univiersity of Texas campus.

Eichelberger holds three-stroke lead

ATLANTA (AP) — Dave Eichelberger added a solid, three-under-par 69 to his opening round 62 and stretched his lead to three strokes Friday at the halfway mark of the $200,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

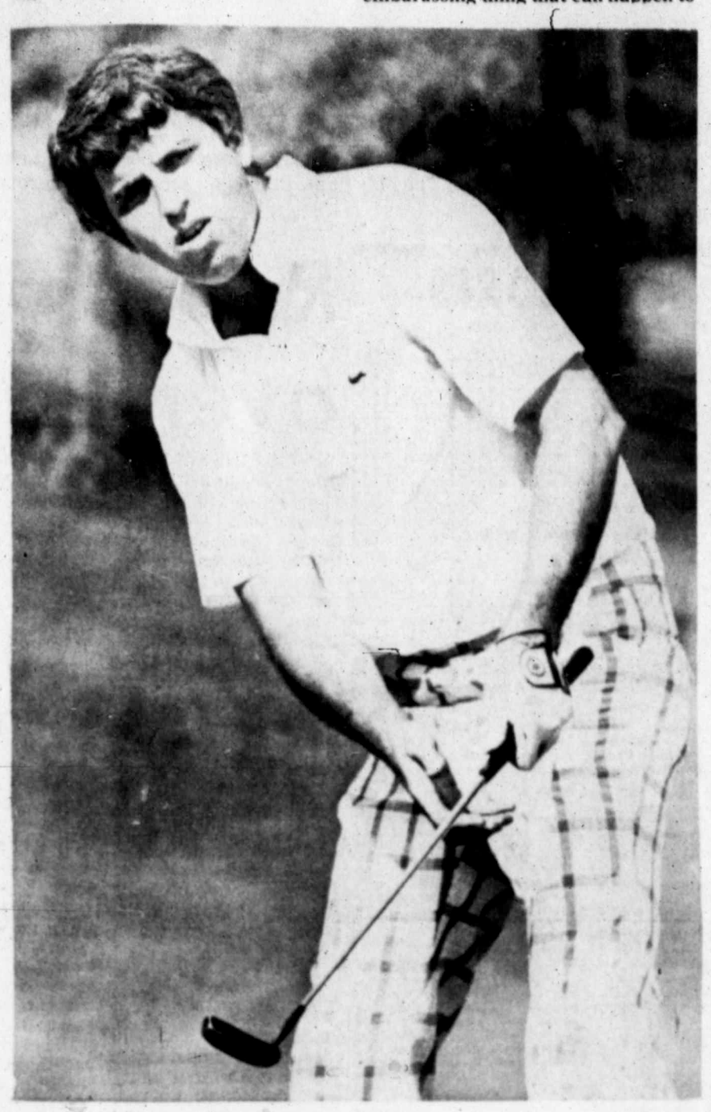

Eichelberger's 36-hole total of 131 was 13 strokes under par on the hilly, 6,883-yard Atlanta Country Club course and matched the best two-round total on the pro tour this season.

Despite Eichelberger's impressive numbers, a flock of golf's great players were poised within striking position of the lead in this chase for a $40,000 first prize.

Jack Nicklaus was not among them, however. He did not make the cut for Saturday's third round. The game's top player never got it going, shooting rounds of 73 and 74.

"This," said Nicklaus, "is the most embarassing thing that can happen to a professional golfer."

It was only the third time in three years he had failed to make the cut.

Leader Dave Eichelberger

Tied for second at 134 were Tom Watson, Bob Murphy and Jerry Heard. Watson, winner of three 1978 titles and the year's leading money-winner, highlighted a 66 with a birdie-birdie-eagle-birdie burst beginning on the sixth hole. Murphy shot a 70 that he called "kind of scratchy," while Heard, a runner-up to Lee Trevino in the Colonial two weeks ago, had a second straight 67.

Don Pooley, with a 68, was at 135.

The group at 136 included Jim Colbert, Alan Tapie, Jeff Hewes and 21-year-old rookie Jack Renner. Colbert and Tapie had 66s in the hot, humid, almost windless weather, while Hewes and Renner fired 68s.

PGA champion Lanny Wadkins and Tom Weiskopf, each with a second-round 67, were in a group at 137. U.S. Open winner Hubert Green shot a 67 for 139. Defending titleholder Hale Irwin was far back at 143 after a 72. South African Gary Player rallied with a 68 and also was at 143.

"It would be a little unrealistic to come out thinking you could shoot another 62," said Eichelberger, whose only previous victories have been in the Milwaukee Open. "All you could really expect are maybe three more reasonably good rounds of 67, 68 or 69.

"I'm fairly well pleased. I figured anything under 70 today would be pretty good. I played pretty well, but I just didn't have the ball quite so close to the hole."

He made his only bogey of the tournament following an erratic drive on the 15th hole. Two of his four birdies came on par five holes which he reached in two. He hit a pitching wedge to within six feet on the 12th and holed a 25-foot putt on the 13th.

"I'm starting to play pretty well," said Watson, the 1977 Player of the Year. "It looks like you're going to have play very well to win. Three shots back and with a lot of us bunched like this, you're not going to be able to afford any mistakes."

His play on the sixth through ninth holes was flawless. He played those four holes five under par and didn't have a putt longer than 10 feet. The eagle-three on No.8 resulted from a two-iron approach that stopped about six feet from the flag.

Midland Cubs blank Jackson Mets, 5-0

JACKSON, Miss. -- The Midland Cubs evened their Texas League series with the Jackson Mets Friday night as they took a 5-0 Texas League victory.

Midland scored four unearned runs as Jackson committed five errors before a crowd of 978 fans.

The Cubs scored all the runs they needed in the first inning when Kurt Siebert was safe on an error by the shortstop and went to second on a throwing error by the catcher. He scored on Jimmy Buckner's single.

Midland added two more runs in the second inning on two errors and base hits by Drury and Randall.

Jackson pitchers settled down and their teammates stopped making errors as the Cubs went hitless until Buckner's leadoff triple in the eighth inning. Neil Allen, the league's top relief pitcher silenced the bats until Buckner's three-bagger.

The win evens the series at two games each as they two go at again at 7:30 p.m.today with the series winding up on Sunday afternoon.

Midland outhit the Mets nine to seven in evening the heated series.

Astros topple Mets

HOUSTON (AP) — Jose Cruz broke a tie with a two-run homer in the sixth inning and Jesus Alou blasted a three-run shot for his first major league homer since 1974 as the Houston Astros snapped a four-game losing streak with a 5-4 victory over the New York Mets Friday night.

Top netters upset during NCAA finals

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Five of the 16 seeded players, including defending singles champion Matt Mitchell of Stanford, fell during the first two rounds of singles play in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tennis championships Friday.

In the doubles first round, only one of the seeded pairs was ousted. Sixth-seeded Kent Crawford and Dave Sherbock of Utah were forced to default to Todd Reed and Bobby Kleinecke of West Texas State because Crawford injured an ankle during a first-round singles match.

Freshmen John McEnroe of Stanford, top-seeded in singles, and Eliot Teltscher of UCLA, No. 2 seed, won both their games.

McEnroe, who hasn't lost a set in the tournament, took Jim Garcia of New Mexico 6-2, 6-0 in the first round. Then McEnroe, last year's Wimbledon sensation, put away Bruce Nichols of UCLA 7-5, 6-2.

Teltscher came from behind to take the first set with Alan Waldman of Arizona State 7-6 and then breezed through the second set 6-1. In the second round, Teltscher beat Gary Plock of Texas 7-5, 5-7, 6-4.

Stanford's doubles pairs of McEnroe and Bill Maze, and Mitchell and Perry Wright, seeded No. 1 and No. 2, respectively, advanced to the second round.

McEnroe and Maze beat John Sadri and Bill Csipkay of North Carolina State 6-3, 7-5. Mitchell and Wright took Mike Gondolfo and David Loder of Clemson 6-3, 6-2.

In the second round of singles play, 10th-seeded Mitchell fell to Larry Gottfried of Trinity 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Sixth-seeded Ben McKown, who was undefeated in dual matches as Trinity's No. 2 singles player, lost to unseeded Jeff Williams of California-Irvine 6-4, 6-3.

Chris Mayotte of South Carolina, No. 14, lost to Glenn Petrovic of Southern California 7-6, 4-6, 6-4. Petrovic was only added to singles play Thursday when Randy Clark of Arizona failed to show up for the tournament.

Eight-seeded Tony Graham, UCLA, lost in the first round of singles play to Steve Denton, Texas, 7-5, 6-3. Nduka Odizar, No. 15, lost to Craig Wittus, Miami of Ohio, 7-6, 6-4.

DANNY FORD of the Minnesota Twins (25), is tagged out trying to steal in gam with the Texas Rangers in Bloomington, Minn. Friday. Texas' Jim Mason applies the tag to the sliding Ford. The play came during an American League game in which Texas won. (AP Laserphoto).

Orioles capture 4-3 win

BALTIMORE (AP) — Billy Smith, who tied the score with an eighth-inning home run, doubled home the winner with two out in the ninth to give the Baltimore Orioles a 4-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians Friday night.

Smith also had an earlier double, giving him nine hits in his last 11 at-bats over three games.

With two out in the ninth, a drive by Doug DeCinces was ruled a trapped ball and Cleveland left fielder Ted Cox protested in vain. Larry Harlow then walked, setting the stage for Smith. Rick Wise, 2-8, was the loser.

Baltimore reliever Tippy Martinez, who entered the game with an 8.20 earned run average, allowed two hits over the final 4 2-3 innings and evened his record at 1-1.

Cleveland took a 3-0 lead against Nelson Briles on run-scoring hits by Jim Norris and Wayne Cage in the fourth inning and a homer by Rick Manning in the fifth.

Mark Belanger and pinch-hitter Terry Crowley drove home Baltimore runs in the fifth and Wise pitched out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam in the sixth.

Spencer guides Yankee victory

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Spencer cracked a pinch grand slam homer in the seventh inning as the streaking New York defeated Toronto 4-3 Friday night despite a pair of homers by the Blue Jays' John Mayberry.

It was the 999th hit of Spencer's career and came off Tom Murphy, who had just relieved starter Jerry Garvin, 2-3. Spencer was batting for designated hitter Cliff Johnson, who hit five home runs last season off Garvin.

Reggie Jackson struck out to start the inning but Lou Piniella and Chris Chambliss singled and Graig Nettles walked. Spencer walloped the third grand slam of his career on an 2-0 pitch, the ball clearing the auxiliary fence in front of the right-center field bleachers.

Sparky Lyle, 3-1, who relieved New York starter Jim Beattie, picked up the victory although he allowed Mayberry's second home run of the game, a solo shot in the eighth inning. Mayberry accounted for the first two Toronto runs in the sixth when he homered off Beattie after Bob Bailor reached on an error by second baseman Willie Randolph.

The victory was the Yankees' fifth in a row and 20th in their last 26 games. They trail first-place Boston by one game in the American League East.

The home run was Spencer's fifth of the season.

Beattie permitted only three hits over the first five innings before Randolph's error put Bailor aboard in the sixth. After Roy Howell flied out, Mayberry followed with his eighth home run of the season, a drive which landed in the first row of the third deck in right field.

Beattie, making only his sixth major league start, was erratic, issuing five walks over the first five innings. He was aided by catcher Thurman Munson, who cut down two runners trying to steal, and a pair of double plays.

Lyle came on after singles by Luis Gomez and Alan Ashby put runners at first and third with one out in the seventh. Rick Bosetti hammered the first pitch into an inning-ending double play and Lyle retired every batter to face him except Mayberry, who belted his second homer with two out in the eighth.

Garvin suffered his second loss in six days against New York although he did not permit more than one hit in any inning until the seventh, scattering four singles over the first six innings.

Rader paces win over Cardinals

ST.LOUIS (AP) — Dave Rader singled home two runs in the fourth inning and tripled home two more in the sixth, powering the Chicago Cubs to their sixth straight victory, a 6-0 decision over the St. Louis Cardinals Friday night.

Cubs left-hander Dave Roberts, 2-0, making only his second start of the season, scattered seven hits for the shutout.

Rader, a veteran catcher whom the Cubs obtained during the off-season in a trade with St. Louis, singled for the key blow in a three-run rally in the fourth off Cards' starter Pete Falcone, 0-3.

Two innings later, after Dave Hamilton relived Falcone, Rader tripled into the right field corner following a single by Bobby Murcer and a walk to Steve Ontiveros.

Roberts, backed by a 10-hit Chicago attack, restricted St. Louis to one-out singles by Jim Dwyer and Ken Reitz in the each of the opening two innings until Tony Scott and Garry Templeton delivered infield singles with one out in the sixth.

Roberts then retired Dwyer on a fly to left field with Scott moving to third. Roberts emerged unscathed when Jerry Morales, an ex-Cub, grounded back to the mound.

Sanguillen sparks Pirates to victory

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Manny Sanguillen hit a two-run, seventh-inning home run to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 2-1 victory over the Montreal Expos Friday night.

Sanguillen's second homer of the season, a drive over the left field wall off losing pitcher Steve Rogers, erased a 1-0 lead that the Expos had taken in the top of the inning on a solo homer by Larry Parrish.

John Candelaria, 4-6, struck out six and gave up six hits before he was relieved after 7 2-3 innings by Kent Tekulve, who got his fourth save. Rogers fell to 5-5 even though he yielded only four hits and walked just one.

Parrish's home run, his third of the season, cleared the left field wall and came on Candelaria's first pitch of the seventh inning.

With two out in the seventh, Rennie Stennett bounced a single up the middle and Sanguillen followed with his homer.

Evans homers

BOSTON (AP) — Dwight Evans hit two home runs and Jim Rice slammed a two-run shot Friday night, powering the Boston Red Sox to a 6-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Rice staked left-hander Bill Lee, 7-1, to a 2-0 lead by drilling his 16th homer — and his 11th this month — into the right field stands off Detroit starter Milt Wilcox, 3-2, in the first inning.

Detroit's Rusty Staub hit his fifth homer with the bases empty in the fourth inning and, after Evans hit a solo shot in the fifth, the Tigers pulled into 3-3 tie an inning later on a double by Staub and Jason Thompson's 12th homer into the screen in left-center.

Niekro wins

ATLANTA (AP) — Knuckleballer Phil Niekro threw a six-hitter and singled in a run Friday night, helping the Atlanta Braves to a 4-2 victory over the struggling Philadelphia Phillies.

It was the eighth setback during a 10-game road trip that has seen Philadelphia fall from the National League East lead.

Niekro, 5-6, struck out five and worked out of a major jam in the fourth inning when he retired Mike Schmidt, Greg Luzinski and Rich Hebner in order with runners on second and third. Niekro gave up a two-run homer in the eighth to pinch-hitter Jerry Martin.

The Braves got two runs off Randy Lerch, 3-4, in the second inning. Dale Murphy beat out an infield single and scored when Biff Pocoroba doubled into the left field corner. Pocoroba scored when Niekro dumped a single down the right field line.

Barry Bonnell walked in the third and scored on Gary Matthews' triple to right, chasing Lerch.

Atlanta added another run in the fifth off reliever Gene Garber when Bonnell walked and scored on a single to center by Jeff Burroughs.

Lopez takes lead

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — Nancy Lopez, the rookie sensation of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour who never before had played at the Wykagyl Country Club, shot a five-under par 67 Friday and took the first-round lead in the $100,000 Golden Lights tournament.

The 21-year old Lopez, who had seven birdies and two bogeys on the par-72, 6,410-yard course, went out in 34 and came back in 33.

Lopez, from Roswell, N.M., and winner of four titles this year, held a one-stroke lead over Amy Alcott.

Alcott, who had a 35-33 for her 68, missed a chance to gain a tie in the opening round of the 72-hole event that ends Monday, by missing an eight-foot birdie putt on the final hole.

Alcott, rookie of the year in 1975 and 12th on this year's money winning list, settled for a par five on the last hole. She was one stroke ahead of Sandra Post of Canada.

Post, who started out with a bogey six on the opening hole, finished with a 69.

Mary Lou Crocker, Betty Burfeindt, Penny Pulz and Vivian Brownlee were tied for fourth at 70.

JoAnne Carner, the defending champion, had a 71 snd was tied with Patty Hayes.

Lopez, who joined the LPGA last July, already has set a rookie record with earnings of $81,448.

"It wasn't until the seventh hole that I got my first birdie," said Lopez. "I had my first bogey on the fifth and I turned to my caddy and said, 'You are doing a good job of leading the blind.' I didn't know where the trouble was. I had never seen the back nine before and I played the front nine in the pro-am yesterday (Thursday)."

Alcott, who played in the afternoon as opposed to Lopez, an early starter, said, "The wind made the course more difficult later in the day."

Post said, "This is a thinking golf course. It's one of the best we play all year. I had taken the last two weeks off and didn't touch a club in 15 days. I'm pretty happy with the way things went."

Reds post win

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Johnny Bench hit a solo homer in the ninth inning and Cincinnati right-hander Tom Seaver scattered six hits in 7 2-3 innings for his third straight victory, a 3-1 triumph Friday night over the San Diego Padres.

Seaver, 4-4, struck out six, walked two and had a shutout going into the eighth inning when he yielded a two-out RBI single to Oscar Gamble. Doug Bair then came on to get his seventh save.

Seaver, who blanked the Padres 1-0 Sunday, allowed just one runner past first base before the eighth while defeating San Diego for the 23rd time in 28 lifetime decisions.

The Reds, who have won six of their last eight outings, scored runs in the first and second innings off losing pitcher Bob Shirley, 2-5. Joe Morgan's first-inning RBI grounder gave the Mets a 1-0 lead

Seattle dumps Texas

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Julio Cruz and Craig Reynolds each drove in two runs, backing the strong relief pitching of Shane Rawley and Enrique Romo and lifting the Seattle Mariners to a 6-4 victory over the Texas Rangers Friday night.

The Mariners knocked out starter Doyle Alexander, 4-3, in a tie-breaking two-run seventh inning and added an insurance run in the eighth.

Bill Stein led off the seventh with a single and was sacrificed to second. Cruz walked and Reynolds singled, breaking a 3-3 deadlock. Ruppert Jones then greeted reliever Paul Lindblad with another RBI single.

Houston ends string

HOUSTON (AP) — Jose Cruz broke a tie with a two-run homer in the sixth inning and Jesus Alou blasted a three-run shot for his first major league homer since 1974 as the Houston Astros snapped a four-game losing streak with a 5-4 victory over the New York Mets Friday night.

Alou, starting for only the second time this season, hit a 3-2 pitch from Mets left-hander Jerry Koosman, 2-5, into the left field seats in the third inning, scoring Terry Puhl and Cesar Cedeno. Puhl had opened with a bunt single, extending his hitting streak to 17 games.

Hunter not too happy with Ellis

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Texas Ranger Manager Billy Hunter and disgruntled player representative Dock Ellis met Friday over differences which occurred during a recent road trip, and both men came away with the impression that nothing had changed.

Ellis had encouraged his teammates to break Hunter's rules, which include no drinking at the hotel bar. He said, "We met and that's about all you can say ... Nothing has changed."

"We had a little session and I hope the problem is resolved, but I don't know if it is," Hunter said.

Ellis stood up on the team bus Sunday night when the Rangers arrived in Bloomington, Minn., and encouraged the players to band together and go to the hotel bar.

"I'm going ... Who is going with me?" Ellis asked.

Hunter told Ellis to "sit down and shut up."

Ellis later said, "He (Hunter) is Hitler but he ain't gonna make no lampshade out of me. I'm going to be the biggest thorn in his neck he has ever had."

Hunter said: "I reiterated the fact that we have certain rules. If violations occur, there will be fines, and I've never fined a player in my life."

Hunter admitted that Ellis' challenging of his authority "poses some morale problems for the team. It makes you wonder why a player is thinking about where he drinks instead of winning the pennant race."

Ellis, who instigated a rule which keeps reporters out of the dressing room until 15 minutes after the game is over, was often in hot water with Pittsburgh over his outspoken ways toward management.

Hunter said: "I had a telephone conversation with Brad Corbett (the Rangers' owner) in Europe and he said he was surprised that Dock had said something like he said. Corbett is backing me on this."

Ranger catcher Jim Sundberg, one of the team's leaders, said: "I would like to stay out of this. It's a personal thing. Sometimes Dock is misunderstood and I've got to believe that he is talking for the players. But I would just as soon win games and not worry about drinking rules. I don't drink anyway. We will win regardless of any rules."

Hunter also barred alcohol on team flights and added: "I think the situation we had on the bus was brought about by alcohol on the airplane. I'm not saying Doc was inebriated, but several of our players were."

"That's being very picky," the Texas manager said. "They should be thinking about baseball instead of those things and maybe we would play better."

Ellis predicted that his confrontation with Hunter would lead to the Rangers trading him.

"I figure I've got to go," said Ellis.

Hunter said: "All I know is that Ellis wasn't this way last year. I wished he would just do the job he did last year."

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The signing of three linebackers chosen in the recent National Football League draft was announced Friday by the Green Bay Packers.

They are second round selection Mike Hunt of Minnesota, fifth round pick Mike Douglass of San Diego State and seventh round choice George Plasketes of Mississippi.

TOKYO (AP) — Adrian Garrett slugged a three-run homer Friday but as his Hiroshima team played a nine-inning 5-5 tie with the Chunichi Dragons.

The former U.S. major leaguer, who tied Japan record of most monthly home runs with his 15th home run in April, batted his 18th homer after an interval of 24 days since his 17th shot on May 2.

Sadaharu Oh of the Yomiuri Giants now has 15 homers this year and 781 in his career.

TEE TIME

Junior College women take over Hogan course

BY REX WORRELL
Hogan Park Golf Pro

The Hogan Park Junior golf program is scheduled for the week of June 19-23. Formal lessons will be given during the week with tournaments and practice sessions scheduled lJune 30, July 7 and 14. This program is for beginning golfers and accomplished players as well. We will covder the entire junior program format in this column next week.

HOGAN PARK will be hosting the fourth Women's National Junior College Athletic Association championships this week with Midland College serving as the host team.

We have asked Susan Holland to give us some information on the event, and here's what she wrote..."On May 30 through June 1, Midland College will have the honor of hosting the National Junior College Athletic Association's Women's Golf Championship at Hogan Park. Two year colleges that will be represented by either team or individual players are: Glendale Community College, Glendale, Ariz., coached by Ken Weiss; Miami Dade College, Miami, Fla., coached by Mary Dagraedt; Scottsdale Community College, Scottsdale, Ariz., coached by Jo Ann Winter; Temple Junior College, coached by Jim Brown; and Midland College, coached by Susan Holland.

"Although this may seem like a small group to be representing the nation's two-year colleges, it is actually a step forward for the tournament since it is the largest field in the tournament's short three-year history.

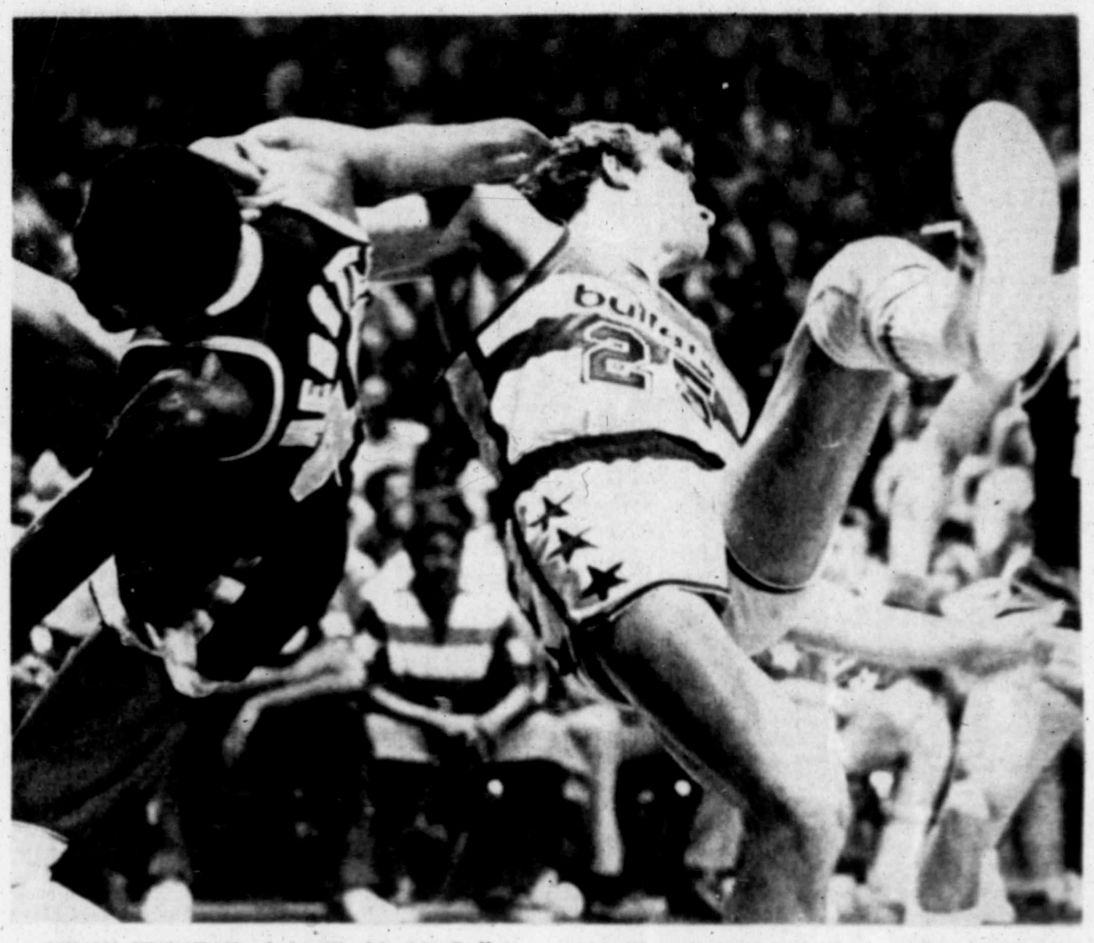

"This growth is very much representative of women's golf and sports participation in general. The increase is a direct result of scholarship availability for women's sports. College golf also draws a vast number of women from the many high school girls' golf programs which continue to grow across the country. This ongoing chain reaction of events will mean more and better women golfers, many of whom will lform the future goals around golf.

"Tee off times will be 10 a.m. Tuesday, 9 a.m. Wednesday and 8 a.m. Thursday. Everyone is welcome to come watch this event and we encourage you all to come out to Hogan Park to watch the players as they put forth their best efforts for thenational title."

Saturday's tee times and pairings for the Hogan Park Men's Golf Association Two-Man Partnership are:

11 a.m.—L. Hernandez-Joe Moreno; Jesse Moreno-B. Moreno; 11:07—B. Harris-R. Freeman; P. Carter-B.Carter. 11:14— M.Combs-F. Nobles; A.Howle-W. Potter. 11:21— C. Montiel-M. Hoodl; T. Standley-D. WEST TEXAS HUNTING AND FISHING

Grandfather had theory

By JON CHASE

MY grandfather had a theory that if you wanted to catch a big fish you had to use a big bait and the years I have seen that theory proved over and over again. It doesn't seem to matter whether you are fishing for crappie or catfish, the big baits will consistantly catch the big fish.

I didn't catch my all time big bass (7 pounds, 14 ounces) on a plug or a plastic worm and regretfully I didn't get to enjoy the fight. I took this fish off a trotline that was baited with 12 inch goldfish meant for big yellow-cat. I didn't know whether to laugh or cry when I took this fish off the line, but he came out of a lake that was not known for big bass and the fact that he went for a huge goldfish made a lasting impression on me.

I have since caught big bass on outsized shiners and 12 inch plastic worms out of waters that were not known to produce big fish. I think that most big bass need something big enough to make it worth the effort before they will pursue a bait.

Another example of this theory was a catfish I caught on a rod and reel out of the Red River at the Cache Creek junction on the Oklahoma side. I had fished this spot for years and never caught a catfish over 10 pounds on conventional sized bait. I decided one

I rigged up, cast out into the junction of the two rivers and sat down to wait. An hour or so later I had a fish slowly moving down river with my bragging size goldfish in his maw. An hour and 15 minutes later I had the biggest fish I have ever caught on rod and reel, laying on the bank.

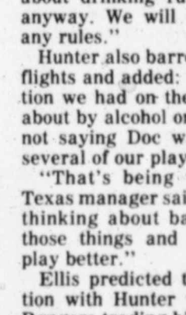

He was a 45 pound blue cat that had to be identified as such by a state game biologist. A local game warden had mistakenly identified the fish as a channel cat and at the time the Oklahoma state rod and reel record for channel cat stood at 39½ pounds. I didn't catch a state record, but I sure had one of the greatest thrills of my live. I am convinced that this was all made possible by the use of a large bait and not the fact that I was in the right place at the right time.

Volumes have been written about the use of huge shiners for trophy largemouth in Florida and I am convinced that this technique would work in Texas waters. How many bass have you cleaned that had perch in their stomachs that were two or three times larger than any lure in your tackle box? I have caught bass with everything from birds to large water snakes in their stomachs and this convinces me that they are definitely interested in a large meal.

I have proved it to myself on more than one occasion that big baits catch big fish and plan on following this philosophy in the future. If you find that the fishing is slow and have tried just about everything in your tackle box to avail, why not give the big baits a try? You might have a real happening.

The spring spawn is over according to the reports I have been getting from area anglers and the fish are beginning to go to the deeper water during the heat of the day. The bass that I have caught the last two weeks have been void of eggs and their tails were still red and worn down from just leaving the nest. The fish are definitely getting harder to find, but can still be caught early or late in the shallows.

I got a report from Zapata on Falcon Lake last Wednesday and a lot of bass are being caught off the points throughout the day.

NAIA picks all-star team

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — Fifteen players were named to the 1978 National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics All-American baseball team Thursday night at St. Joseph, Mo.

The NAIA announced the All-Stars during a kickoff banquet for the NAIA World Series which begins Friday.

Defending champion David Lipscomb College had infielders Bob Parsons and Glen Eddins and outfielder Bob Hamilton on the team.

Lubbock Christian College had infielder Ken Leslie and outfielder Darius Copley.

Others named on the first team were infielders Bob Fitzgerald, Shorter College, and Jim Mugele of High Point College; outfielder Gary Barbone of Azusa Pacific College; catcher Tim Burcette of Laverne College and Brian Moyer of Emporia State, the 10th player chosen.

Others on the first team included designated hitter Bob Bill and outfielder Dale Milton, both of Grand Canyon College and pitchers Newt Box of Phillips University, Bob Olufs, Southeastern Oklahoma, and Mark Parker, Huntington College.

Underdogs have great racing day

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Friday at the Charlotte Motor Speedway was a day for the underdogs — drivers who perennially are at the back of the pack and seldom in the big money at the end of the stock car race.

The underdogs were fighting for a space in the 40-car field for Sunday's $350,000 World 600. The final 10 positions in the starting lineup were decided Friday.

While stock car stars such as Richard Petty and Cale Yarborough took a few practice laps Friday and then let their crews put the finishing touches on their sleek machines, guys like Dick May were sweating out qualifying.

May, a 48-year-old veteran of 89 Grand National races, settled into the 40th position in the starting field by taking a Ford around the 1.5-mile track at 154.052 miles per hour. While that was only six mph slower than pole-winner David Pearson's speed, it was indicative of the quantum distance between the front row and the back row in terms of money and prestige.

"We guys back in the pack race among ourselves for points," said May, referring to the money handed out each season based on Winston Cup series points.

"The only time we see Richard Petty is when he comes by us and we get out of his way. Then we get back to racing each other," said May, whose best finish in his two decades of racing was a sixth place in a race at Asheville seven years ago.

May, a native of Watertown, N.Y., had to settle for the back position, but he fared better than 14 other drivers who did not make the field at all.

The drivers who make up the back of the pack are often independents like May and they drive for different car owners.

"Lots of times on a Sunday morning I don't have a car yet or I don't know what I'll be in," May said. "But I usually find something."

Gary Myers of Walnut Cove led the final 10 qualifiers Friday with a 155.525 mph lap in a Chevolet.

Myers, May and 26 other drivers in the World 600 don't mind being called the underdogs, at least for this one race. The speedway has set up a special "underdog" category for drivers who have never won a Grand National race.

The top seven finishers among that group will divide $13,000. For them, it's good money.

Calamity seems to follow Washington team in NBA

SEATTLE — Two scenes tell us something of the calamity. The Washington Bullets butchered this one, handing over victory to a lesser team, and maybe it began with five minutes left in the third quarter. At that point, the Bullets led by 17 points, 77-60, and coach Dick Motta shouted at his men during a timeout.

"Put 'em to sleep, put 'em to sleep," Motta said.

The coach is a firebrand, an emotional man who loves professional basketball because he loves to win. Never before, not in 10 seasons in the pros, had Motta taken a team to the NBA championship series. And here he was, the first time out, seeing his Bullets run up a 17-point lead on the other guys' homecourt.

"Put 'em to sleep," Motta said, and he made a fist and he shoved it forward strongly, as if knocking out each of the Seattle SuperSonics himself.

No one was listening.

The Bullets sat on the bench impassively. The coach's excitement went unshared. These are old hands, the Bullets. For Elvin Hayes, it's been 10 years in the pros. Wesley Unseld, too. Bobby Dandridge is in his ninth season. For them, a coach's fervent imploring means nothing. This is a job.

Then the Bullets' lead grew to 19 points. So much, everyone thought for Sonicsteria. "A Sonic Boom Is Faster Than a Speeding Bullet," said the sign of a crazy whose love for the Sonics overwhelmed his grasp of physics. These Sonics were flukes, everyone believed, and the Bullets, a real basketball team, were exposing the frauds.

Then the lead was down to nine, at 84-75, and Motta sent in a substitute for Hayes, the Bullets' main man. The Sonics were on a tear, the arena exploding with noise, and the Bullets were no longer speeding. They were crashing and burning, and Hayes, who with Dandridge has carried the Bullets in these playoffs, didn't like what was happening.

As he walked off the court, giving up his job to a substitute, Hayes looked down at Motta, crouching at courtside, and said, "You shouldn't do that, Dick."

Hayes later said he didn't say those words. A reporter seated near the Bullets' bench heard them. In any case, Hayes was correct in his assessment. With the Sonics booming, it was time to have Hayes in the game, not on the bench for two minutes. The Bullets, and Hayes, were never the same after that.

Hayes took only one shot the last 8 1-2 minutes, a layup that gave the Bullets a 91-88 lead. When it mattered most, Hayes and Dandridge did the least. That layup by Hayes was the sum of the stars' scoring contribution in the fourth quarter. They are averaging 44 points a game in these playoffs, but Hayes had only nine and Dandridge two in the second half Sunday.

Why?

Kevin Grevey says it wasn't the big guys' fault. Grevey scored 27 in a magnificent performance, 17 coming in the second half.

"We were executing the offense very well," Grevey said. "We were getting the ball down low to Elvin and Bobby, and they were getting their shots. But later, Seattle started putting more pressure on our guards and we weren't getting the ball inside as well."

Hayes didn't want to talk about that, either. He left the Bullets' locker room in a hurry, moving past reporters, calling back over his shoulder, "See ya later." He was smiling and stopped every few feet to sign autographs for children. On the team bus, sitting in the driver's seat, he said, "I don't really know what happened. We panicked some. I didn't get the ball much and maybe I should have, but that's hindsight."

So the Bullets didn't put 'em to sleep when they should have, and maybe Hayes didn't need his fourth-quarter rest in the middle of a Seattle binge. Those things are open to conjecture. What was painfully clear, even to the Bullets' loyalists, was that Seattle simply ran their socks off while the Bullets stood around being proud of that 19-point lead.

"We went dead and they caught life," Grevey said. "We didn't push the ball up the floor like we had been. We were complacent. When you're up by 19, you have to have killer instinct. I don't think we had a fast break after that big lead. We were too content and we played dumb."

One statistic is telling.

The Sonics had 21 offensive rebounds. The Bullets had eight. To get an offensive rebound, you have to want it. The defender has the avantage, being closer to the basket. A rebound taken by an offensive man is a rebound dearly earned, a reward for hustle and desire. To be beaten, 21-8, in offensive rebounds is shameful for a team with players named Hayes and Unseld and Dandridge.

"They got all the long rebounds," Motta said, speaking of Seattle's success with rebounds that bounced far from the rim. "When you can't get your long rebounds, you can't cry bout anything."

No one cried about anything in the Bullets' locker room. This is a job. This was game one of, possibly, seven. You figure the home team is going to win the first game, anyway. So it's no big deal to blow a 19-point lead.

Chambermaids work during Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Janie Figuers and Hattie Moore attacked the Essex Hotel's second floor with a vengeance, making beds, vacuuming floors and scrubbing sinks.

There were moments Friday when the job was easy; more often, it was hot and tiring. By early afternoon, their feet began to hurt.

For Figuers, Moore and hundreds of other chambermaids throughout the city, Sunday's Indianapolis 500-mile race means something other than fast cars, checkered flags and colorful drivers.

It means hard work.

At the Essex Hotel, where the two women work, this year's race has attracted the usual capacity crowd, doubling their work loads and increasing their pace.

Some of the rooms are easier to face than others. "But some of them mess up their rooms real bad," said Moore. "It doesn't seem necessary. I've seen beer cans under the beds and things like that.

"And the party rooms — Lord! I don't even want to think about them."

When 250,000 fans head for the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Sunday, Figuers will be donning her gold uniform and heading for work on the hotel's newly-renovated second floor.

She knows little about auto racing and doesn't mind missing the Indy 500. What she does mind is inconsiderate guests, messy rooms and sore feet.

Beginning today, she said, the race crowd will converge on the downtown hotel, increasing her work load to 17 rooms.

"If they're left pretty clean, I'll get through a room in about 15 or 20 minutes," she said, wheeling her cleaning cart through the thick pile carpets in the hallway.

"But if they leave 'em real messy, it'll take twice as long."

She paused in front of Room 261, scratched her ankle with one sne
