Mondale calls for debates

The Associated Press

Walter F. Mondale, preparing to select a running mate for the Democratic presidential ticket he expects to head, returned to his Minnesota home Friday and said he will challenge President Reagan to a series of debates before the fall election.

"Such debates would serve the American people," he told a meeting of his Texas delegates before flying to his home state and reiterating his determination to challenge Reagan — particularly on arms control.

Mondale said Reagan has "taken a pretty hostile attitude toward arms negotiation."

"There is a 20-year record by this president, first in private life, in which he opposed every effort of every president of both political parties to control nuclear armaments for over 20 years," he said.

"Whatever divides us along partisan lines, certainly survival is not on that list," Mondale said.

Calling the selection of a running mate the "most important decision a presidential nominee makes," Mondale said he will interview Mayor Dianne Feinstein of San Francisco and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas for the No. 2 spot.

He said the two meetings are the first in a series he plans with prospective vice presidential candidates.

The apparent Democratic nominee told the Minnesota State Democratic Farm Labor Convention in St. Paul: "This is the end of a rough and tough campaign for the nomination and I'm glad to be home before I start another one."

While Mondale was talking about plans for November, the Rev. Jesse Jackson was in Anderson, S.C., reiterating his complaint that party rules have resulted in him being shortchanged on delegates and Gary Hart was in Texas reasserting his position that Mondale is premature in claiming victory.

"I don't quit," Hart told shouting supporters before the opening of the Texas Democratic Party's state convention.

"I intend to see this fight all the way through because I believe I have the best chance to defeat Ronald Reagan," the Colorado senator said.

"This campaign has added more new people to the Democratic Party than any other. And that is crucial because that's what it's going to take to win the White House in 1984," he said.

Wholesale prices remain same, government says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation stayed cool in May, with food costs plunging at the steepest rate in nearly two years and overall wholesale prices frozen in place for a second straight month, the government reported Friday.

In fact, overall prices actually declined very slightly, Labor Department officials said. But the change was too small to show up in the rounded-off official figures released in the department's Producer Price Index for finished goods.

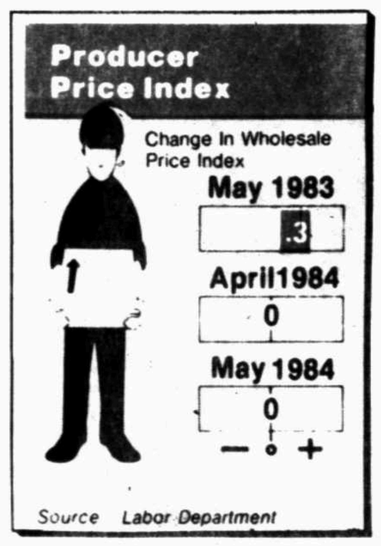
The figures showing no change in May, coupled with another new government report showing only a modest increase in industrial production, were quickly hailed by the Reagan administration and private analysts as signs the once-feverish economic recovery was cooling to a pace at which it was less likely to burn itself out.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said inflation is remaining low "and industrial production is moderating to sustainable levels." Taken together, he said, the reports "provide a double shot of confidence that the economy is not overheating."

Some economists and Wall Street investors have worried that the rapid business expansion of the past year might actually be too fast, driving up interest rates and inflation and bringing a new recession rather than long-term growth.

But brokers say traders now might be growing increasingly fearful of a developing economic slump that could help the bond market, by reducing demand for credit, but leave the stock market depressed because of disappointing corporate earnings prospects.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 10.71 Friday to 1,086.90, its lowest close since it finished at 1,080.40 on Feb. 22 of last year.



For the week the average was down 44.35 points — its biggest weekly loss since it took a 58.62-point drop Oct. 8-12, 1979.

In addition, the Federal Reserve Board reported on Friday that industrial production rose just 0.4 percent in May, the smallest gain since last November.

Aside from that obvious easing, slow or no inflation would also be a sign of an economic slowing since producers find it difficult to raise prices when demand for goods slackens.

"The PPI is the temperature gauge" for the economy, said Donald Ratajczak, director of Georgia State University's Economic Forecasting Project in a reference to the Producer Price Index. "The reports show the economy is moving forward but not overheating."

Iran will halt tanker attacks if Iraq does

TheAssociated Press

Iran announced Friday that it would not attack oil tankers in the Persian Gulf if Iraq stops its raids and that it would welcome a U.N. effort to halt all attacks on commercial shipping in the gulf.

In Baghdad, Iraq's air force commander warned against "any foolish adventure by the Iranian regime" and said his pilots could crush any aggression.

Iranian Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani declared in a Friday prayer sermon in Tehran that, "We will not fire a single bullet in the gulf if Iraq stops attacking oil tankers in the area."

He said his government would welcome an appeal by U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar for an end to attacks on commercial shipping.

Rafsanjani said such a U.N. move could be patterned after the U.N. leader's successful bid last weekend for a halt to attacks on Iranian and Iraqi civilian targets.

Rafsanjani said the same thing could happen in the gulf, where the threat to shipping during the past few months has caused concern in oil markets around the world.

Iran denies its planes have attacked ships, despite repeated accusations by Iraq and the Arab countries that support Iraq in its 3½-year-old war with non-Arab Iran.

"...I'm finding there is a great hunger, a great response in these regional cities that I don't think the churches suspected. I've seen clergy on the platform wiping tears from their eyes. They didn't believe it could happen."

— Billy Graham

Britons rally to hear Graham

NORWICH, England (AP) — American evangelist the Rev. Billy Graham, on his first major British crusade in almost 20 years, says "You're in a country here that some people say is burned-over territory, has had its day as a Christian country."

"But I'm finding there is a great hunger, a great response in these regional cities that I don't think the churches suspected," the 65-year-old Southern Baptist said in an interview on the grounds of the 11th century Norwich Cathedral.

"I've seen clergy on the platform wiping tears from their eyes. They didn't believe it could happen," Graham said.

The evangelist's 1954 crusade was not taken seriously by the Church of England. Now when Graham mounts platforms in chilly English soccer stadiums. he is flanked by purple-vested Anglican bishops.

Graham was here again in 1966 and 1967, and despite the seal of approval from Britain's established church, Graham says he returned "hesitant and very doubtful" for his 10-week crusade called Mission England in six major English cities.

The Rt. Rev. Maurice Wood, the 93rd Bishop of Norwich, said only one Anglican prelate endorsed Graham's first big British mission in London in 1954.

"The general feeling was that this was emotional, American, and something that wouldn't last," said the bishop. "Now they know this isn't so."

England has a long history of Christianity but only 10 percent of its 54 million people go to church weekly.

Graham's rallies have attracted audiences that managers of the soccer stadiums only dream about.

Mission England organizers say nearly 400,000 people attended the first 20 rallies — in the northwest port of Bristol, in tough, dour Sunderland in the northeast where unemployment runs at nearly 20 percent, and in Norwich.

Of those thousands, about 9 percent have come forward at the traditional climax of rallies by the world's best-known preacher — to stand in the middle of the stadium and publicly declare themselves committed to Christ.

It is, say the organizers, double the average response at previous Graham rallies around the world.

Eighty-five percent of Britons have heard of the silver-haired preacher from North Carolina, a Gallup poll of 1,036 people showed two weeks after the mission began.

It's a recognition rating that all but the country's top half-dozen politicians could envy.

Gallup estimated from the survey that 1.25 million people will have attended by the time the mission ends July 27 in Ipswich, near here, after week-long rallies in the central England industrial city of Birmingham and the depressed northwest port of Liverpool.

Woman to be reunited with siblings after 50 years

OELWEIN, Iowa (AP) — An Oelwein woman who was orphaned at the age of 5 and then adopted will be reunited Sunday with eight brothers and sisters she hasn't seen for nearly 50 years.

"I'm sure it's going to be emotional," Shirley Ziegler said Friday, as she prepared to head for Toulon, Ill., where the reunion will be held at the home of a brother, Kenneth Dison.

It was Dison's daughter, Connie, who finally located Mrs. Ziegler. She began the search after years of hearing her father talk about his long-lost sister.

Mrs. Ziegler, then known as Louise, was 5 years old when her mother, Lucy, died of a stroke at the family's home of Wyoming, Ill., in 1934. Three years earlier, Mrs. Ziegler's father, Moses Dison, had died of cancer.

There were 10 children in the family. The five oldest found jobs and remained in Wyoming until they became adults.

The other five, including 8-year-old twins, were declared wards of the state and were placed in orphanages in Champaign and Potomac, Ill.

"I was adopted when I was about 6 and the twins went to a foster home," Mrs. Ziegler recalled.

"I had a beautiful girlhood in my new home in Chicago.

"Sure, I often wondered about my family, but when you're content, you just let things go.

"During World War II, I would wonder if my brothers were in the war and when someone would say 'You look like someone I met at blank,' I would wonder if it could have been a sister.' "

Kenneth Dison, then age 15, found a job when the family broke up and remained in Wyoming. He kept in touch with his brothers and sisters, but lost track of Mrs. Ziegler when she was placed in the orphanage.

"He was working in town and heard people say that someone was going to pick up the three youngest children and take them to the home," Mrs. Ziegler recalled. "He ran all the way home and when he got there, we were gone. He always regretted that he had never said goodbye to us."

Months later, she was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Myles Cannaven and moved to Chicago. Her name was changed from Louise Dison to Shirley Cannaven. She grew up, married an insurance broker named William Ziegler and settled in Oelwein where she is owner and operator of Oelwein Tour and travel. She never again heard from her brothers and sisters.

Over the next half century, the nine other Dison children kept in contact with each other and searched for their missing sister.

"I prayed and prayed and prayed we'd find her," said her sister, Ruth, 57, who now lives in Moline, Ill.

"She was a mighty sweet little girl," said her sister, Minnie, 63, of Villa Grove, Ill. Kenneth Dison, 65, added: "She was a little blue-eyed blonde."

Another brother, Mac, enlisted in the Navy. During layovers in Chicago he would check for signs of the missing sister.

The family could find no trace of her, however, and the only break came after Kenneth was elected sheriff in Stark County, Ill. In that position, he was able to obtain the adoption papers which listed Mrs. Ziegler's new name.

The documents gave no hint, though, where she could be found.

Kenneth's daughter, Connie, "heard the story for so long that she began looking for me," Mrs. Ziegler said. During her travels, Connie looked for the name Cannaven in telephone directories.

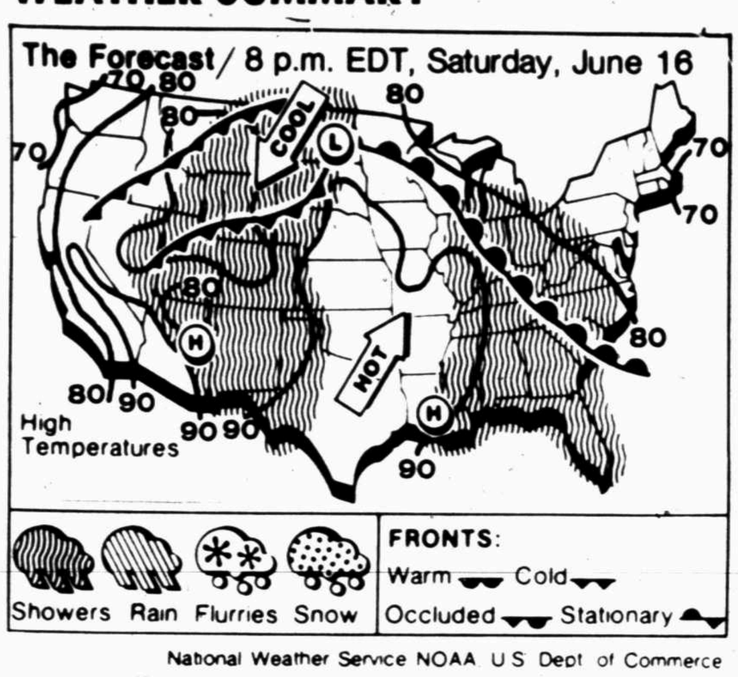
WEATHER SUMMARY



National Weather Service NOAA U.S. Dept. of Commerce

AP Laserphoto Map

The National Weather Service forecasts showers for today from Illinois to Florida and throughout the Rocky Mountain region south to Texas.

Thunderstorms may drive Midlanders back indoors

Warm temperatures may drive many Midlanders out to the nearest pool this weekend, but there's a slim chance that thunderstorms may drive them back indoors.

Today will be partly cloudy with a high near 90 and winds from the south at 10-20 mph and gusting. Tonight's low will be in the upper 60s and Sunday's high will be in the low 90s. There's a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms today and tonight, and a slight chance on Sunday, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Yesterday's high of 87 was 19 degrees below the record of 106 set in 1960, while the overnight low of 68 was 20 degrees warmer than the 1981 record of 48.

STATE

Thunderstorms rumbled over scattered parts of Texas late Friday, as the National Weather Service predicted a hot and mostly fair weekend for the state.

Isolated storms were reported Friday evening in the Panhandle, High Plains and Far West Texas, with some heavier storms developing in East Texas and the coastal bend. Some heavy storms were reported in Southeast Texas between Wharton and Victoria, and in Northeast Texas south of Longview.

The weather service said the shower and thunderstorm activity developed because moist unstable air was heated by the afternoon sun, and similar conditions were expected through today.

Skies were partly cloudy over most of the state, with south to southeast winds of 10 to 20 mph bringing the moist air from the Gulf of Mexico.

Afternoon highs Friday were in the 80s and 90s over most of the state, with a few 70s in West Texas.

The weather service predicted mostly partly cloudy skies with a few scattered thunderstorms through today.

NATION

Heavy rains drenched the nation's midsection on Friday as rising waters forced evacuations in Missouri and Kansas. Flash flood watches were posted from Missouri to South Dakota.

About 1,000 people left their homes along Missouri River bottomlands in northwest Missouri, where more than 5½ inches of rain fell in 30 minutes.

Streams throughout the area were at or near flood stage, and the Missouri River below Omaha, Neb., was at the highest level since the record floods of 1952.

Missouri Gov. Christopher Bond called out the National Guard, while authorities in Buchanan County estimated flood damage at over $11 million and 20,000 to 30,000 acres were flooded in Holt County.

In western Iowa, a half foot of rain fell near Erling during the night, and a flash flood watch was issued for the western two-thirds of the state.

Widespread lowland flooding developed in southeast Nebraska, where a flash flood watch was posted.

Severe thunderstorms produced golf ball-size hail in south central South Dakota and dumped 1-to-2 inches of rain. The entire state was under a flash flood watch.

In the Northeast, cool weather broke a punishing heat wave blamed for the deaths of at least 14 people over the last week.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 p.m. EDT ranged from 38 degrees in Sault Ste Marie, Mich. to 98 degrees in Gila Bend, Ariz.

Today's forecast calls for thunderstorms widely scattered through the Great Basin in Nevada through the Rockies, the Plains, the Mississippi Valley, the Gulf Coast and the southern Atlantic coast. It will be partly cloudy in the Northeast, and sunny over the West Coast.

TANKERS

The Iraqis, attempting to cut off Iranian oil revenues, have attacked tankers approaching Iran's main oil terminal at Kharg Island. The Iranians have vowed never to allow their oil flow to be cut off.

In his speech Friday, Rafsanjani said Iran would resume its attacks on civilian targets in Iraq if Iraq ever attacks Iranian non-military areas.

His sermon was broadcast in Persian by the Iranian state radio, which carried a summary of it in Arabic in a later commentary. An account of the sermon was distributed by te official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Cyprus.

The news agency also carried an Iranian military communique charging that Iraqi forces shelled the Khosrowabad section of the southern Iranian city of Abadan on Thursday, damaging a hospital and wounding seven people.

It did not claim the shelling was a violation of the agreement to cease attacks on civilian areas.

An Iraqi war communique made no mention of shelling in the Abadan sector, but said its artillery fired at targets east of the southern Iraqi city of Basra.

Basra is about 30 miles northwest of Abadan, and the disputed Shatt-al-Arab waterway runs between the two districts.

Iraq, meanwhile, warned that it will crush any new Iranian aggression.

The unidentified commander of the air force told a group of Iraqi journalists in Baghdad that the blockade on Kharg Island was "but the harbinger of a broader operation against Iran, should the Tehran regime persist in pursuing the war and threaten Iraqi and gulf interests."

He said Iraqi air force pilots were "perfectly capable of defending the security of the whole gulf region against any foolish adventure by the Iranian regime" of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, and that "Iranian forces will suffer a massive defeat if they tried to mount a new adventurous aggression."

Largely because of Iran's control of the Shatt-al-Arab estuary, Iraq has been unable to ship its oil through gulf sea lanes. It has been using a pipeline from northern Iraqi oilfields to the Turkish Dortyol terminal.

Syria, which supports Iran, has prevented the Iraqis from using their own oil pipeline, which runs across Syrian territory to Mediterranean terminals.

Iraq is asking Saudi Arabia for help to build a new pipeline that would take Iraqi crude to the Jordanian Red Sea port of Aqaba.

The Gulf Cooperation Council member countries — Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, Qatar and Oman — have been considering the feasibility of building a pipeline that would pump their crude through Oman to the Arabian Sea and bypass the threatened Strait of Hormuz.

Iranian leaders have stressed that the moratorium on attacking civilians was by no means applicable to the battlefront, where Iran reportedly has massed an estimated 400,000 troops for a major offensive into the southern Iraqi Basra region.

The offensive had been expected June 5, the 21st anniversary of the peasant upheaval against the late Shah of Iran that triggered the revolution.

Arab diplomatic sources here said that one factor accounting for the delay of the Basra offensive was Iraq's recent acquisition of two new types of Soviet-made air-to-surface missiles — the AS-6 and the AS-4.

Laxalt: Texas vital to GOP victory

FORT WORTH (AP) — President Reagan's national campaign director told Texas Republicans on Friday that their state "is absolutely indispensable" to a GOP victory in the November presidential election.

"The guts of this campaign is additional registration," Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada told the opening session of the Texas Republican Party's convention. "We have learned there is no substitute for precinct workers out there ringing doorbells."

Vice President George Bush, who calls himself an adopted Texan, is expected to make a similar plea to the 6,000 delegates and visitors in a speech today.

After Laxalt's keynote speech, Rep. Steve Barlett of Dallas asked him to take a message back to Reagan.

"Tell him he can count on Texas' 29 electoral votes. It's in the bag," Barlett said as the convention delegates applauded wildly.

DEBATES

To cheers from his supporters, Hart took issue with what he called "some political insighters and pundits, mostly in Washington" who say the race is over.

"They're the same people who said this race was over in August of 1983, who said it was over in January of 1984, who said it was over in April of 1984. They were wrong then and they're wrong now," Hart said.

Jackson said the party must give justice to those "locked out" of the nominating process before unifying behind a candidate.

"A remedy can be found now, and a remedy must be found now," he said. "We cannot stand idly by and allow our people to be disenfranchised."

He restated his plan to push for rule changes at the convention, saying it is not too late to change the rules or to consider Hart's suggestion that Mondale is counting some "tainted" delegates among his majority.

"There is no statute of limitations on injustice," Jackson said.

Jackson said Mondale's announced list of vice presidential choices "could be a public relations hype" and indicated that he's not interested in being included.

"I'm not looking for a job, I'm looking for justice," he told reporters outside Welfare Baptist Church.

Jackson, who flew into his native South Carolina on Thursday night to visit his mother, spoke with reporters after delivering a sermon inside the black Baptist church.

Mondale took note that Reagan said at his news conference Thursday night that he welcomed a debate with the Democratic nominee and said, "OK. That's one." But Mondale called for separate debates with Reagan on foreign policy, national security and defense, economics, justice and equal rights, the environment and how to prepare for the future.

He said the first should address "the most important issue of our time — how are we going to get arms control?"

Mondale said he has not yet formally proposed debates with Reagan, but will press for several. He said debate between the two vice presidential candidates also would be beneficial.

"I have already begun broad consultations with party leaders and others about potential running mates, and that will continue for a number of weeks," Mondale said in a statement. "It is also my intention to meet personally with a number of possible candidates before making my decision."

Mondale spoke Thursday night at a Texas Democratic fund-raiser that was a tribute to Bentsen.

Mondale said the interviews with Ms. Feinstein and Bentsen would be held in his North Oaks, Minn., home — with Bentsen on Thursday and with Ms. Feinstein on June 23, a week from Saturday.

Rep. Geraldine Ferraro of New York, also mentioned as a possible vice presidential candidate, will be meeting with Mondale today to discuss the Democratic Party platform. Mondale spokesman Dayton Duncan said the No. 2 spot on the ticket would not be discussed at the meeting.

The former vice president also will meet with Gov. Martha Layne Collins of Kentucky on Sunday to discuss the Democratic Convention and with Rep. Barbara Mikulski of Maryland to discuss the general election campaign.

Mrs. Collins, chairwoman of next month's convention in San Francisco, also has been mentioned as a possible running mate to Mondale.

Before leaving Texas, the former vice president, who is often charged with being too closely tied with organized labor, told the Amalgated Clothing and Textile Union convention via satellite he was was proud of his labor backing.

"A president is not supposed to govern and judge what is happening in America by the condition of the Rose Garden," he told the group, which was meeting in Miami.

"I'm in touch," he said. "I know what's happening to the average American in this country. I know what our future requires."

Mondale has said his eventual running mate must be "prepared to be president...to support my policies for the future."

He said his running mate also "must be in the position to help me to implement the heavy responsibility of the presidency."

"As I have said before," he said, "I consider the selection of a vice president the most important decision a presidential nominee makes."

In Washington, Democratic officials selected Mayor Richard Arrington of Birmingham, Ala., an active Mondale supporter, to head the party's platform drafting committee.

ECONOMY

So far this year, the inflation report said, wholesale prices are rising at an annual rate of 3.5 percent, a bit better than economists' predictions for the year. Last year's increase, the best in 20 years, was only 0.6 percent.

The back-to-back reports of flat overall prices provided the lowest two-month figures since prices declined 0.1 percent and then were unchanged in March and April 1983.

Analysts expect higher numbers later this summer, perhaps in the range of one-half percent per month as food prices again begin rising. However, no one is expecting any major inflation surge.

In other details for May, Friday's report said:

—Food prices declined 1.2 percent, the sharpest drop since the 1.4 percent of July 1982 during the recession. The new decline, following a decrease of 0.6 percent in April, included drops of 14.7 percent for vegetables, 14.3 percent for eggs, 7.8 percent for beef and veal, 4.9 percent for poultry and 2.0 percent for pork. Fruit prices rose 10.6 percent; dairy prices edged up 0.2 percent, and fish costs gained 0.3 percent.

—Energy prices, which actually cover April rather than May costs because of reporting lags, rose strongly to balance the food decline. The 1.5 percent energy rise, following 0.7 percent in April, included increases of 5.2 percent for fuel oil, 2 percent for gasoline and 0.7 percent for natural gas.

—New car costs fell 0.7 percent after declining 0.3 percent in April. Light truck prices held steady.

—Capital equipment prices rose 0.2 percent after gaining 0.3 percent in each of the previous two months.

If May's overall rate were repeated for 12 straight months, it would result in a 0.4 percent decline for that year. The actual increase for the past 12 months was 2.6 percent.

In May, the department's index stood at 291.5, meaning that goods costing $10 in 1967 would have cost $29.15 last month.

All of the figures were adjusted to discount for normal seasonal variations.

The wholesale price index measures month-to-month changes in prices paid to producers for food, energy products and other items.

The prices American consumers actually pay — usually to retailers — are measured by the Consumer Price Index. The producer price measure often gives a good idea the direction those consumer prices will move.

REUNION

(Contiuned from Page 1A)

On a business trip to the Chicago suburb of St. Charles two weeks ago, Connie found the name Cannaven in the phone book. She called, and learned from Eugenia Cannaven that, indeed, her adopted daughter could be the long-lost sister.

Mrs. Cannaven called Shirley Ziegler that night. The next day, Mrs. Ziegler called Kenneth.

"To say the least, I was shocked and surprised," Mrs. Ziegler said. "It was a very emotional call and it has been a very emotional week. We all cried.

"His words to me were, 'I ran all the way home that day I knew you were going to the orphanage. When I got there you were gone. I never got to say goodbye.' "

The nine remaining members of the Dison family are expected to gather for Sunday's reunion, as well as many of their children and grandchildren. The 10th child in the family, William, died in 1972.

The reunion has generated plenty of excitement in the family, and their story is scheduled to be told Monday on the ABC television show "Good Morning America," Mrs. Ziegler said.

"It's better than winning a million dollars in the lottery," said Mrs. Ziegler's brother, Mac, who now lives in Pekin, Ill.

"I feel wonderful, a little shaky, though," added one of the twins, Doris Jean, 57, of Urbana, Ill. "The last time I saw her I was 8 years old. She kissed me goodbye."

Added Gary Dean Dison, 58, of Mineral Wells, Texas, the other twin: "I always said that if the Lord wanted this to happen, it would. Now it has."

The other members of the family include: Henson Dison, 69; Ninah, 68, of Cambridge, Ill.; and Minnie, 63, of Villa Grove, Ill.

GRAHAM

There is no way to know how much of the response is due to stirrings of a "spiritual regeneration" that Graham says he senses in a nation worried about nuclear bombs and unemployment; and how much is due to superb organization.

Britain has none of the U.S.-style electronic church — no television and radio stations devoted to religious programs, no broadcast time bought by preachers and no Moral Majority.

But the Graham appearances are the highpoint of a three-year evangelical program called Mission England and organized by senior churchmen and laity from Britain's major Protestant churches.

Some 30,000 lay people have been trained as counselors and formed into "Christian nurture" groups. They take the names of people who come forward at rallies and later guide them to join neighborhood churches.

The publicity has been widespread. National newspapers and television networks carried stories when the mission began. Britain's top-selling Sunday newspaper, the News of the World, ran a half-page article by Graham.

When he spoke on the third of four evenings in Norwich's Carrow Park stadium to 12,500 people, the British Broadcasting Corp.'s local station, Radio Norfolk, carried the entire rally live.

"A meeting like this comes once in a generation, perhaps once in a life time...Tonight you stand at the crossroads," Graham drawled. And several hundred people clambered down from the grandstands to pledge themselves to God.

Graham's style has mellowed, the tone is low key, scarcely a trace of hellfire revivalism.

His message to Britons in 1984 is simple, mingled with news about how his wife, Ruth, recently out of hospital, is getting along back home, and with jokes about the unpredictable English summer — "was it yesterday?"

Convicted murderer Richard Tuck, 47, center, is arrested in Caldwell for failure to appear for sentencing in the death of his daughter's roommate.

Man arrested who fled before sentencing

CALDWELL (AP) — A man who fled rather than face sentencing on a murder conviction was arrested as he walked to his motel room to meet with a reporter who was the bait in a trap.

Richard Tuck, 47, was unarmed and surrendered to Texas Rangers and other law officers Thursday night.

"We couldn't let you hurt yourself," reporter Jerry White of the Austin American-Statesman told Tuck.

Tuck was convicted of murder in Georgetown on Wednesday in the slaying of Debra Inman, who was identified in court testimony as the lesbian lover of Tuck's daughter. The daughter, Debbie Tuck, who was a witness in the trial, also testified that Tuck shot her but she recovered.

Ms. Inman, 29, was shot in July 1983 in the house in Williamson County where she and Ms. Tuck lived.

Sentencing on the murder conviction was scheduled for Thursday but Tuck, who was free on $25,000 bond, failed to appear.

Tuck telephoned the Austin American-Statesman, saying he did not show up in court for his sentencing because he had been falsely convicted.

Tuck said he intended to kill himself because he could not face a prison term.

"I'm checking out. I'm killing myself," Tuck said. "I'm not the kind of person who can survive in a prison...I can't go to prison and I can't live as a fugitive."

The American-Statesman said it notified the Department of Public Safety of Tuck's whereabouts.

"We felt we had a responsibility to notify the police because of our concern for Richard Tuck's life and the safety of others," said Editor Ray Mariotti.

Mariotti and White, riding in former Austin Mayor Roy Butler's helicopter, accompanied officers to the Best Western Motel in Caldwell. A note from Tuck said he would call White at the motel office at 8 p.m.

Tuck called promptly and, after being assured that he was not going to be turned in, said he would return to the motel. He was arrested as he walked to his room.

"This was between me and Jesus Christ," Tuck said. "You had no right to interfere with that."

In Tuck's absence, the Georgetown jury Thursday sentenced him to 25 years in prison in Ms. Inman's death.

The jury was not told the reason for Tuck's absence until after they set the punishment.

"All we knew was that he wasn't there," said Luther Richardson Jr., the jury foreman. "We didn't even know whether he should be.

Creepy, crawly creatures caught

GRAPEVINE (AP) — Thirteen crates of slithering, crawling creatures — from scorpions to salamanders — were seized in an illegal shipment at the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport.

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service agent Jorge Picon said Thursday that federal officials have seized 2,000 hungry, dehydrated tarantulas, iguanas, frogs, lizards, scorpions, salamanders, snakes and mud turtles.

Picon said the animals — all apparently Mexico natives and shipped here illegally — were aboard a Lufthansa flight from Mexico City.

"We opened the crates and saw all these creatures crawling, or stacked up on top of each other or just lying in there packed up tight," he said. "It was awesome."

Several of the animals — mainly salamanders — expired on the way to Texas, officials said. Most of those that survived have been farmed out to area zoos and schools.

The flight was on a lay-over on its way to Frankfurt when the crates of exotic creatures were confiscated, Picon said.

Mexico has banned the commercial export of such animals, but the shipment — worth an estimated $50,000 — was headed for animal dealers in Sweden, Denmark, Austria, the Netherlands, Switzerland and England, according to papers filed with the shipper.

Burned fireboat can't save home

FORT WORTH (AP) — James McKibben's home burned one day too late.

Had his lakeside home caught fire Wednesday, the Eagle Mountain Lake fireboat could have come to the rescue and "we could have saved something for those people," says Eagle Mountain Volunteer Fire Chief B.G. "Red" Barton.

But the fireboat lay miles away in drydock Thursday, wounded by a fire and explosion of its own the day before.

Without the boat's high-capacity pumps, fire trucks quickly ran dry Thursday afternoon. McKibben's two-story redwood home was leveled within 15 minutes.

"No doubt we could have saved some of the structure (with the boat)," Bart on said. "The way it turned out, the lost everything they had. They don't even have a change of clothes."

Barton estimates damages at $100,000 and said the fire leaves James and Sandy McKibben and their 2-year-old daughter Allie homeless.

Barton says his department can't afford the $40,000 to replace the fireboat it bought 12 years ago. He says he plans to ask Tarrant County officials if they will donate an old lake patrol boat so his department can re-fit it as a fireboat.

Lucas pleads innocent to Lubbock murders

LUBBOCK (AP) — Henry Lee Lucas, the drifter who claims he was involved in 360 murders during a decade of cross-country drifting, pleaded innocent Friday to three Lubbock murder charges, including the case of a woman stabbed to death 13 years ago.

State Judge William Shaver appointed attorney Marvin Williams Jr. to represent Lucas in the three cases, two of which are capital murder charges.

Williams said Lucas pleaded innocent on his advice. The attorney said he had not had time to thoroughly investigate the allegations against Lucas, who reportedly gave statements to authorities implicating himself in the three cases.

Lucas, 48, pleaded innocent to the slayings of Naomi Miller Martin, 54, who was stabbed in 1971; Deborah Sue Williamson, 18, killed in 1975, and Elizabeth Price, 44, stabbed 20 times in 1976.

By an unofficial count, the drifter has been charged with at least 22 murders around the country and law enforcement officials studying his case believe he may actually be responsible for as many as 100 deaths.

He has been convicted of or has pleaded guilty to four Texas killings and faces death by injection in the Halloween 1979 slaying of an unidentified female hitchhiker killed near Georgetown.

Police divers recover cars from waterways

HOUSTON (AP) — Police divers say they have recovered 42 stolen or abandoned cars from city waterways in the past four months and their job is far from being finished.

Daryl Carlton, master of the Houston Police Department diving team, said dumping cars in waterways has become popular.

And since February, divers have frequently searched the murky depths of bayous, rivers and lakes for vehicles that have been run off roads. Carlton said searches have become routine practice.

Cars usually are dumped if they are stolen or if the owners are trying to collect insurance money, Carlton said. Many have been stripped of parts before being pushed into the water.

The diving team on Thursday pulled three cars from Lake Houston on the city's northeast side.

Earlier, he said, divers found 15 automobiles resting on the lake's bottom. Four vehicles still must be removed.

Divers also have found 20 cars this year in Brays Bayou, he said. They also have just begun searching area sandpits for abandoned vehicles.

The cars often are buried in mud and a diver will have to dig under the vehicle before attaching a cable, Carlton said.

"There's about zero visibility under the water," he said. "A diver's got to find the car by feeling his way with his hand. A lot of times I'll be swimming along and find the car with my head."

Mayors ask for Reagan's backing of youth jobs bill

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors sent a telegram to President Reagan Friday asking his support in freeing up a $100 million summer youth jobs appropriation that has become entangled with a controversial measure that would send aid to Nicaraguan rebels.

Nashville, Tenn., Mayor Richard H. Fulton, sent the telegram a day before the mayors' group was scheduled to begin formal sessions of a four-day annual convention here.

The subject of the summer jobs measure currently before Congress came up in Thursday night's presidential news conference. Reagan indicated that he did not want to separate the measure from a bill asking for aid to Nicaraguan rebels because he wanted both.

Fulton said in an interview that he sent the telegram Friday on behalf of the conference because "we're already well into the summer months," and summer jobs programs are desperately short of needed funds.

The telegram said, in part, that "funds to provide jobs to disadvantaged youths are being delayed and denied by a disagreement between you and the Congress on Nicaragua." Fulton, a Democrat, urged Reagan "to support separation of the two appropriations..."

Hunger and jobs were the dominant themes emerging in preliminary discussions held Friday in advance of the regular sessions.

The mayors' Task Force on Joblessness and Hunger, chaired by New Orleans mayor Ernest N. Morial, heard mayors from several cities complain of worsening housing conditions for the poor, and several speakers accused the Reagan administration of neglecting the problems of the urban poor.

"There are too many soup kitchens serving too many thousands of people every day. And we have to put pressure to make sure these issues aren't left behind in the coming crucial (presidential) campaign," said Boston Mayor Raymond L. Flynn.

Philadelphia mayor Wilson Goode said cities could only provide stopgap, temporary solutions to the housing problems of the poor and homeless.

"We have to have some help from Washington in terms of long-term housing," he said.

On the subject of hunger, J. Larry Brown, of the Harvard School of Public Health, challenged the Reagan administration to "use his considerable persuasive powers" to lead an attack on hunger.

He said there have been ten recent studies of hunger in America, and "every single one leads to the inescapable conclusion that hunger is a serious problem across our nation."

He said the improving economy was having no impact on the problem, and that direct programs aimed at hunger were necessary.

In another preliminary session, police chiefs and mayors discussed the problems of domestic violence, crimes against children and drunk driving.

The gathering heard from John Walsh of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., whose six-year-old son was kidnapped and murdered in 1981.

Hansen sentenced up to 15 months in prison

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. George V. Hansen, R-Idaho, was sentenced to up to 15 months and fined the maximum $40,000 Friday for failing to report $333,978 in loans and other transactions on four consecutive financial disclosure statements.

"...We don't intend to pay it," said Hansen after his sentencing. "We don't intend to go to jail. We plan to appeal and we intend to win."

A short time earlier, the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct announced it would hold a hearing June 20 to determine what punishment it will recommend that the House impose on Hansen, 53, a conservative seven-term congressman.

The possible penalties range from a simple reprimand to formal censure to expulsion, the harshest step the House could take.

Hansen is the first elected public official to be charged under the 1978 Ethics in Government Act, which requires virtually all major government officials to make annual disclosures of their financial holdings, liabilities and transactions, including gifts, loans and profits for themselves and members of their immediate family.

Several Republican National Committee members from Hansen's home state said his sentencing — and especially the House ethics committee's plans to recommend punishment — may seriously jeopardize Hansen's re-election chances.

U.S. District Judge Joyce Hens Green sentenced Hansen to five to 15 months in prison, to run concurrently, on each of the four counts of filing false financial disclosure statements to the House for 1978 through 1981.

Hansen may be paroled after at least five months in prison.

Hansen was convicted April 2 of omitting mention of loans, profits from the sale of silver contracts and other transactions, some of which involved Texas billionaire Nelson Bunker Hunt.

Hansen was convicted of omitting from his disclosure forms an $87,475 profit that his wife, Connie, made trading silver futures with Hunt's help, a $50,000 bank loan to Mrs. Hansen that was guaranteed by Hunt; a $61,503 personal loan from Hunt to Mrs. Hansen; and $135,000 in personal loans to the congressman from three Virginia men — John Meade Jr., Carl McAfee and Odell Rogers.

The case was not Hansen's first brush with the law. He pleaded guilty in 1975 to two misdemeanor charges of filing false campaign finance reports. A federal judge in that case sentenced him to prison, but later reduced the punishment to a $2,000 fine.

Treasurer: Women's businesses growing fast

Katherine D. Ortega

DALLAS (AP) — Firms owned by women are the fastest-growing segment of the small business community in the country, U.S. Treasurer Katherine D. Ortega told a group of businesswomen Friday.

"Women are here to stay," Ms. Ortega said during the two-day Dallas Women's Business Ownership Conference.

Between 1972 and 1982, the number of self-employed women in the country has increased 69 percent, while self-employed men increased 13 percent, Ms. Ortega said.

Women were responsible for 62 percent of the increase in the civilian labor force between 1973 and 1983, and businesses owned by women have brought in more than $40 billion in gross annual receipts, she said.

Ms. Ortega encouraged women to use creativity and to lend a helping hand to other women starting new businesses.

"Our approach, which if John Naisbitt, author of 'Megatrends' is correct, may go far to transform our concept of 'business as usual,'" Ms. Ortega said during the conference, which is part of a series of National Initiatives for Women Business Owners.

The treasurer said she was aware of the problems and heartaches experienced by small business owners. Her father started his own business in 1928, she said, and today her brother and sister each own their own business.

Ms. Ortega's sister is chairman of the board and chief executive officer of a savings and loan in New Mexico, she said.

Before being named treasurer by President Reagan in 1983, Ms. Ortega served on his advisory committee for small and minority business ownership.

"We discovered that many business failures were not caused by inadequate capital investment, but rather by the lack of management experience," she said.

Ms. Ortega also touted the Reagan economics program.

"In less than three years, the economic recovery program has been beneficial for American businesses," she said. "Inflation has been reduced to almost 4 percent and the prime interest rate down to 11 percent."

As treasurer, Ms. Ortega handles a $280 billion budget and oversees about 5,000 employees. She also signs U.S. currency.

Medicaid payments may be withheld from nursing home

SAVOY (AP) — The Savoy Nursing Home, where a patient died last week after being spoon-fed cleaning solvent, will know by Monday whether its Medicaid payments will be withheld until it takes steps to avoid another accident, state officials said Friday.

The Texas Department of Health has recommended that more than $22,000 in monthly payments be withheld until precautions are taken to prevent another accident, officials said.

The health deparment delivered its recommendation Friday to the Department of Human Resources, which oversees the Medicaid payments and has final say over whether they're to be withheld.

If the payments are stopped the home has up to 60 days to correct any code violations, he said.

Savoy Nursing Home spokeswoman Joan Pierce said Friday that the home has already corrected any problem that would cause the payments to be withheld.

"Despite the innocent nature of this situation, we still need to follow health department guidelines," she said.

Ms. Pierce said the 46-patient home has taken steps to make sure a similar accident doesn't happen again.

Dorie Emerson, 83, died last Saturday, 24 hours after she was fed the industrial-strength cleaning solvent with her dinner. But an autopsy later found that she died of kidney failure and heart disease, not from the solvent.

Another patient, 57-year-old Emma Zuver, was still hospitalized Friday in serious condition at the Texoma Medical Center. She is suffering from second-degree burns to her throat.

None of the other five residents who drank the liquid were hospitalized.

Great Smoky Mountains park turns 50

GATLINBURG, Tenn. (AP) — The Great Smoky Mountains National Park turned 50 on Friday, the legacy of children who donated their nickels during the Depression and unemployed men who labored to transform the timberland into the country's most popular national park.

Some 208 million people have been drawn to the hazy, blue-green ridges straddling the Tennessee-North Carolina border since the park opened.

It is the country's most-visited national park, according to the National Park Service. In 1983 alone, more than 8 million traveled through its roadways along the Appalachian Trail. The governement authorized the construction of park roads and facilities on June 15, 1934.

Beginning in 1925, Tennessee and North Carolina began purchasing the land and donating it to the federal government.

Much of the money for the land was privately raised. During the Great Depression, even schoolchildren contributed to a pot that reached $10 million.

"The affluent gave a quarter. I gave a dime," said Ted Davenport, a retired park employee who remembers the early days.

By 1940, the park covered 512,225 acres, much of it once the domain of lumber companies.

Davenport recalled that the biggest controversy arose over "these lumbering people here with large land holdings."

But the states prevailed, buying 85 percent of the land from 18 lumber companies and the rest from several hundred families, some of them anguished at leaving homesteads their ancestors pioneered.

According to park lore, the idea for a Smoky Mountains park was first suggested in 1923 by the wife of Knoxville businessman Willis Davis. He worked with civic leaders to interest the government.

In April 1925, the Tennessee Legislature authorized the purchase of the first land — a 76,507-acre tract from Col. W. Townsend's Little River Lumber Co.

"Col. Townsend couldn't bear the thought of seeing all this virgin timber, this good 'merchantable' timber, as he would put it, 'go to waste,'" Davenport said.

Today, the park has well-paved roads and solid stone restrooms, bridges and other structures which were begun by 4,600 workers who signed up for one of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt's first social programs designed to alleviate Depression unemployment.

Civilian Conservation Corps camps, each with 200 men between the ages of 18 and 25, were sprinkled throughout the park from 1933 to 1940. The workers lived in portable Army barracks and drew wages of about $30 a month.

Violence erupts on riots' anniversary

Explosion rips through car lot

WORLD

SOWETO, South Africa (AP) — A car bomb explosion tore through a used-car lot on a crowded Johannesburg street Friday, the eve of the anniversary of 1976 race riots in which hundreds of blacks died.

A man on the sidewalk was seriously wounded and four others suffered bruises in the blast that went off under a car.

Police Lt. Pierre Louw said about three hours after the blast that it was caused by explosives. No one claimed responsibility.

"It's the June 16th weekend, and that means terrorism," said Hilton Kaplan, 25, a merchant who was first on the scene.

There was no apparent political target in the neighborhood of retail shops, dry goods wholesalers and offices. Most bombings in South Africa are the work of the outlawed African National Congress, the main black-nationalist group trying to end white rule.

ANC saboteurs usually target economic, police or military facilities. The ANC took responsibility for a bomb that exploded outside a military office in Pretoria, killing 19 people and wounding more than 200.

During the months of riots and unrest that began June 16, 1976 in Soweto, about 575 people, all but five of them black, died, according to a government report. Newspapers put the death toll at more than 700.

This year's memorial events included an all-night vigil starting Friday night in this ghetto of about 1.5 million blacks seven miles from Johannesburg. Church services were planned in black townships around the country today and the mainly black National Professional Soccer League refused to schedule games today.

Blacks, denied political rights except in 10 tribal homelands under the government's system of apartheid, or racial separation, often stay home from work on June 16 to mark the anniversary. Buses and trains carrying blacks who ignore the boycott are sometimes stoned.

Friction often erupts between mourners and police riot squads posted outside churches. Last year, police fired tear gas on stone-throwing youngsters outside the Regina Mundi Roman Catholic Church, where Soweto's leaders mark the day with four hours of prayer and sermons.

The rioting began in 1976 over the government's plan to make Afrikaans and not English the language of learning. Afrikaans evolved from the Dutch spoken by white settlers who arrived in 1652.

The government eventually revised the plan, but by then the riots had spread to other areas. At the same time, the issue had broadened to include inadequate black schooling — an issue that continues to cause protests by blacks and occasional clashes with police.

Lebamang Sebidi, a spokesman for the ministers who will preach at Regina Mundi Church, said 100 civilian marshals were named to maintain order at the services.

German counter-intelligence officers will be replaced

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Defense Minister Manfred Woerner announced a personnel shake-up in West Germany's military counter-intelligence unit Friday as a result of a scandal over a NATO general's firing for alleged homosexuality.

Woerner told a news conference that the head of the counter-intelligence service, Helmuth Behrendt, and other top officers in the service would be replaced.

He also promised "far reaching changes" in the service, which was the source of allegations against Gen. Guenter Kiessling.

Woerner fired Kiessling, 58, last Dec. 31 after seeing an intelligence report that said the general had homosexual contacts made him a security risk.

Kiessling denied the allegations, and he was reinstated in the West German army in February after defense officials acknowledged they could not prove the charges.

However, Kiessling never returned to his job as the No. 2 general at NATO headquarters in Brussels, Belgium, and he retired in March.

Woerner refused to say how many other officials would be replaced or to name any of them.

He said he would appoint a new defense ministry official to handle high-level security complaints, such as the Kiessling affair. This official would be an "added security" that the right decisions are made, Woerner said.

He added that he was preparing legislation to tighten control of the counter-intelligence service by putting it directly under the auspices of the state secretary.

Olympians could be entertainers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If any show business stars emerge from this summer's Olympic Games, chances are they'll be gold medal winners in the decathalon or swimming.

Those two competitions, plus ice skating, have produced the largest number of Olympic athletes to go on to careers in the entertainment world.

Glenn Morris, the Colorado auto salesman who won the decathalon in 1936, had a brief film career, starring in the 1938 "Tarzan's Revenge."

Bob Mathias, winner of the decathalon in 1948 and 1952, came to Hollywood to star in "The Bob Mathias Story," then was placed under contract to John Wayne. Mathias appeared in "China Doll," "It Started in Athens" "The Minotaur" and a short-lived TV series, "The Troubleshooters," with Keenan Wynn.

Rafer Johnson, gold medalist in 1960, played a few roles in movies and television before turning to business and politics.

BRUCE JENNER, who brought home the gold in 1976, appeared in the movie, "Can't Stop the Music," the TV movie, "Grambling's White Tiger," did commercials, sportscasting and some stage work.

But the great Jim Thorpe ended up in movies as an extra. The 1912 decathalon winner, once voted America's greatest athlete in an Associated Press poll, lost his medals (he also won the pentathalon) over claims he was a professional. Broke and disheartened, he spent his last years as an extra in such films as "White Heat."

Swimming gold medalists have often found fortune in Hollywood. Johnny Weissmuller, who won a total of five gold medals in 1924 and 1928, had a long film career, starting with "Tarzan of the Apes" in 1932. When he no longer could fit into his loincloth, he switched to khaki as "Jungle Jim."

Buster Crabbe, fifth place in the 400-meters freestyle in 1928 and first in 1932, followed in Weissmuller's wake as Tarzan, making "Tarzan the Fearless" in 1933. He also starred in the "Flash Gordon" serials and Westerns.

Hollywood's most famous swimmer, Esther Williams, should have won a gold medal but didn't. A champion in the freestyle and butterfly, she had won three posts on the 1940 games, which were canceled because of World War II.

Mark Spitz, winner of an astounding seven gold medals in swimming in 1972, wound up with commercial deals for swimwear, an electric shaver, water toys, milk and diving gear. He was also a sportscaster.

SONJA Henie was the greatest Olympic champion to achieve film stardom. The figure skating winner in 1928, 1932 and 1936, she became a big favorite in her first movie, "One in a Million" in 1936. She made several more hits, then ended her film career with "The Countess of Monte Cristo" in 1948. She continued skating in her own ice shows.

Carol Heiss, 1960 figure skating winner, starred in "Snow White and the Three Stooges" and ice shows. Barbara Ann Scott (1948), Peggy Fleming (1968) and Dorothy Hamill (1976) have also starred in ice shows and TV specials.

The dashing looks of Jean-Claude Killy, 1968 giant slalom and downhill ski winner, brought him film roles and TV commercials. Muhammad Ali, light-heavyweight medalist in 1960, played himself in the movie "The Greatest" and appeared in a TV miniseries.

Many gold medalists have found niches as TV sports commentators, notably Dick Button (figure skating 1948-52) and Donna DeVarona (400-meter individual medley, relay, 1964).

Brokaw will be studying the Los Angeles Olympics with an experienced eye. "I'll be looking for the heroic quality," he said. "That's what these Olympic champions have."

DENNIS THE MENACE

"THE NEXT TIME WE HAVE A THUNDERSTORM, COULD YA PUT A SMALLER BULB IN THE LIGHTNING AN' TAKE SOME OF THE BOOM OUT OF IT?"

West Africans listen as inmates recall horror

CONAKRY, Guinea (AP) — Almost every evening, in the gathering darkness of the West African coast, Guineans huddle around their radios, listening to stories of horror and inhumanity.

Since the military seized power here more than two months ago, state-run Radio Conakry has invited former political prisoners to recount their treatment at Camp Boiro, the dreaded prison of the deposed civilian regime.

There are accounts of electric-shock torture to extract confessions, of long stretches of malnourishment, of prolonged confinement in dank, crowded cells scarcely larger than closets.

Untold hundreds, perhaps thousands, of Guineans were imprisoned at Camp Boiro during the rule of President Ahmed Sekou Toure, one of the first generation of revolutionary leaders who led African nations to independence.

Toure, one of the earliest and most vigorous opponents of French rule in black Africa, ruled from 1958 until he died March 26 after emergency heart surgery in Cleveland, Ohio. Once an ally of the Soviet Union, Sekou Toure later sought closer relations with the United States and was warmly received at the White House in 1982.

Sekou Toure was frequently accused of abuses by such human rights organizations as Amnesty International, but the degree of his regime's harshness has only emerged since the April 3 military coup.

The evening radio program, called "The Floor is Yours" ("La Parole Est a Vous"), has forced Guineans to re-evaluate their old leader.

"We didn't know who he was or what he was until after his death," said Mohamed Kaba Bangoura, a Foreign Ministry official who was a bureaucrat during Sekou Toure's reign. "I didn't know what happened at Camp Boiro. And when I heard how they treated men, I said, 'No — we were in the dark.' It was a regime of intolerance."

While Sekou Toure was alive, former inmates at Camp Boiro generally kept silent.

"Leaving Boiro, you said nothing. You knew that if you didn't keep quiet, you would go back. And if you went back, it was certain death," said Dr. Ibrahima K. Barry, who spent seven years at the prison.

Camp Boiro is a ramshackle, walled military compound not far from where Sekou Toure's body was buried in Conakry, Guinea's decaying capital.

The tight rows of dank, tin-roofed cells, some of them no larger than 6½ feet by 11½ feet, are empty now. But the walls bear traces of suffering.

In cell number 52, someone etched "God save me" in blood and dated the inscription June 1978.

The most dreaded part of Camp Boiro was the "head of death," high-walled chambers where, visitors are told, no prisoner came out alive. The walls are grotesquely adorned with small, neatly stenciled skulls, and the rooms open onto a common courtyard. During the summer rainy season, the courtyard would fill with water which spilled into the cells.

"As many as four, five or six prisoners died here a day," said Lt. Lansana Maen, who serves as a guide.

Former inmates said they suffered excruciating electric-shock torture upon arriving at the prison. A hand-cranked generator was wired to prisoners' feet, genitals and other sensitive areas.

Rene Gomez, former director general of Guinea's civil aviation authority who spent eight years at Camp Boiro, said some prisoners were suspended headfirst into a pit filled with excrement.

The torture was meant to extract confessions. Former inmates said it invariably succeeded.

"Whoever was subjected to the torture at Camp Boiro," Dr. Barry said, "would be ready to denounce his own mother. It was that intense."

Hundreds are believed to have died at Camp Boiro, and those who survived were often left with physical and psychological disabilities.

Foul play suspected in death of Peace Corps volunteer in Togo

ONEONTA, N.Y. (AP) — Foul play is suspected in the death of a Peace Corps volunteer in the West African nation of Togo, a Peace Corps official said Friday.

Jennifer Lynn Rubin, 24, of Oneonta, apparently "died in her village residence, presumably as the result of foul play," said James Champagne, public affairs officer for the Peace Corps in Washington. He said the death was being investigated.

"I say presumably because I have not seen any authoritative report which would allow me to say definitely," he said. He gave no details.

The body of Miss Rubin was found Wednesday in the village of Defale by William Piatt, the Peace Corps director in Togo, Champagne said.

Doctors cooperate with fee freeze

CHICAGO (AP) — Nearly three out of every four doctors are cooperating with the American Medical Association's call for a freeze on fees, according to a survey conducted by the organization.

Seventy-three percent of the doctors responding to a telephone survey done for the AMA indicated an intention to freeze fees. Nineteen percent of the 775 physicians surveyed said they would reject the freeze and 8 percent declined comment.

The AMA estimates the self-imposed freeze will save patients $1.41 billion, but the figure assumes the demand and supply of doctors' services would remain the same during the year.

Board must pay for desegregation

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A federal judge has given participants in the city's voluntary school desegregation program until June 29 to come up with ways to help the school board pay for the program.

U.S. District Judge William L. Hungate said Thursday he was reluctant to order tax increases or take other steps to raise the money needed by the state, city, suburbs and school board.

On the same date, his order said, the school board must submit a report of its own resources and its ability to meet its share of costs of the program, which trades students between city and suburbs.

MX missile has fifth successful test

WASHINGTON (AP) — The controversial MX missile scored its fifth successful test flight in a row Friday, sending six unarmed warheads into a target area in the mid-Pacific from the California coast, the Air Force announced.

The test came one day after the Senate narrowly approved continued production of the new, multiple-warhead intercontinental ballistic missile, which is to be installed at fixed launch bases in Wyoming and Nebraska starting in 1986.

Maj. Ron Rand said the Air Force considered four previous test flights successes, despite what was described as a "short fuel burn" on the third test. Even with that short burn, he said, all the re-entry vehicles landed in the target area at the Kwajalein missile test range.

The MX traveled more than 4,100 miles. The test flight Friday involved for the first time, a new warhead, the Mark 21.

Alert declared at nuclear plant

Radioactive probe pops loose

VERNON, Vt. (AP) — A tiny radioactive probe used to monitor the reactor core at the Vermont Yankee nuclear reactor plant popped out of its protective room Friday, prompting officials to declare a four-hour alert.

Nine workers were near the probe when it was reeled out of the shielded room into the plant building, but "there was no overexposure," said plant spokesman Stephen Bravar. "No individual received overexposure."

No radioactive material was released into the air and there was no danger to the public in the alert, declared at 9:20 a.m. and ended at 1:20 p.m., said Vermont Yankee spokeswoman Mary Schneider.

It was the first alert ever issued at the 12-year-old reactor, according to officials. An alert is the second of four levels of federal emergency designations at nuclear power plants.

"It's a danger to anybody who is right there, but it's not a danger to people away from the immediate area," said Vermont Public Service Commissioner Richard Saudek.

The plant continued to operate at 92 percent of full power, said Brian Norris, a federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission spokesman at the agency's regional headquarters in King of Prussia, Pa. He said plant operators planned to shut the reactor down later in the day, as previously scheduled, for eight weeks of regular maintenance.

Saudek said the probe, the size of a pencil eraser, was being pulled up from inside the reactor on a cable into an isolated area when the cable failed to stop.

"When they reeled it back, the probe kept coming and didn't stop in its isolation area," said Saudek. "The probe came back into the regular plant building and it was in an area where employees would be exposed."

He said the probe, used to measure certain characteristics of radiation in the reactor core, was giving off radiation at 1,000 times the normal background radiation.

The alert was ended after radiation levels had rapidly dropped and protective barriers were erected around the radioactive area, plant officials said.

The probe will be checked and repaired during the regular maintenance period, Bravar said.

The 514-megawatt unit began commercial operation in 1972 and is owned by the Vermont Yankee Nuclear Power Corp., a consortium of New England utilities.

Vermont Yankee is located near the Massachusetts and New Hampshire borders. Authorities in those states were notified, but there were no plans for evacuations.

North Dakota Sen. Mark Andrews pushes his wife Mary in a wheelchair into the Cass County Courthouse to hear the verdict in their medical malpractice suit.

Doctors found to be negligent

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — A jury found three defendants negligent but awarded no damages Friday in a medical malpractice suit over a bout with meningitis that left Sen. Mark Andrews' wife confined to a wheelchair.

The North Dakota Republican and his wife, Mary, had sought $10.2 million in damages.

"I think it's quite odd that the jury didn't award damages, but it has spoken," said Andrews, serving his first term in the Senate. "We weren't trying to victimize the doctors."

"We were told by many doctors that we should investigate the idea of a malpractice suit and we did."

No decision has been made on whether to appeal, Andrews said.

The Cass County District Court jury deliberated 23½ hours over three days before finding Drs. Jerome W. O'Hearn, and Ryan B. Harrington, along with St. Luke's Hospitals, negligent in their care and treatment of Mrs. Andrews during her hospitalization for meningitis four years ago.

The jury found Drs. Stanley Thompson, Dale Shook and Roger Gilbertson innocent of negligence.

Other defendants in the suit, Neurologic Associates, Radiologists Ltd., the Fargo Clinic and 50 other unspecified employees of the institutions, were not mentioned in the jury's verdict.

The nine-week trial included more than 210 pieces of evidence and testimony from nearly 100 witnesses.

The suit alleged the defendants failed to diagnose Mrs. Andrews' constant runny nose as spinal fluid seeping from her brain through a disease-caused hole in a sinus cavity. They claim the drip, which started in mid-1977, should have tipped doctors off to a more serious ailment.

The Andrews contended that opening eventually led to meningitis in December 1979 and the formation of a brain abscess. Surgery to remove the abscess in February 1980 left Mrs. Andrews, 57, confined to a wheelchair.

The defendants contended that during a flight from Washington to Fargo in 1979, Mrs. Andrews suffered a barotrauma — a sudden rupturing of the blood vessels in the sinus. That rupture allowed bacteria into her brain and resulted in meningitis, they claimed.

The defendants also denied a contention that Mrs. Andrews repeatedly complained of the drippy nose prior to her bout with meningitis.

Cemetery worker killed by train

WHEAT RIDGE, Colo. (AP) — A cemetery caretaker riding a sweeping machine was struck by a Burlington Northern freight train and pinned under the engine for about an hour Friday morning, and died later at a hospital, officials said.

The victim, Michael Sillstrop of Denver, was pulled alive from the wreckage, said Jefferson County Deputy Coroner Triena Harper.

A crane had to be brought in to help extricate the victim.

The victim, about 17, was alive when he reached St. Anthony Central Hospital and died about 25 minutes later, said Art Peterson of the hospital staff.

Inkster leads in Mayflower

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Juli Inkster, needing only a fifth place finish here to set a Ladies Professional Golf Association record for rookie earnings, held a one-stroke lead after Friday's second round of the $250,000 Mayflower Classic.

Inkster, 23, followed her opening round 67 with a 1-under 71 for a 138 after 36 holes at the Country Club of Indianapolis.

Donna H. White, who began the day tied with Inkster and Jo Ann Washam, was second at 139 after leading earlier in the day.

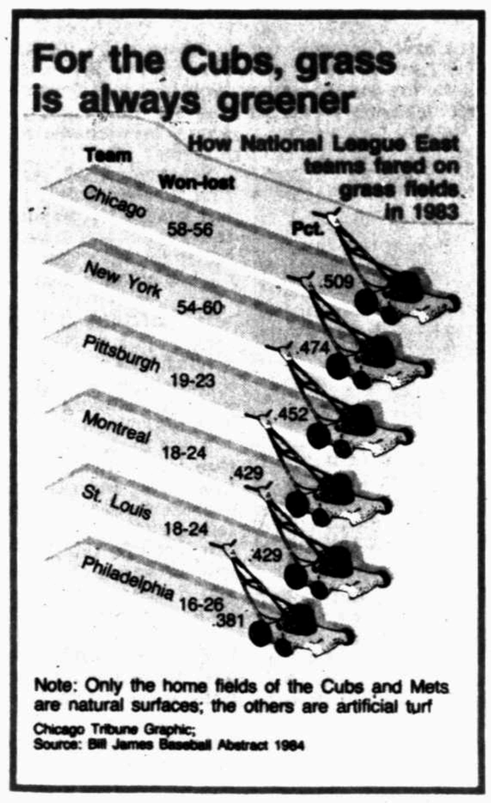
Japan's Ayako Okamoto had the day's best round at 67 to move into third with a 4-under 140. She was tied with rookie Mary Beth Zimmerman, who shot her second consecutive 70.

Zimmerman, who joined the tour at the same time as Inkster last August, was tied for the lead with five holes to go. But, she had two consecutive bogeys.

"I got a litle too excited," she said, "and made a couple of stupid bogeys."

Two pros who won Indiana amateur championships, moved into contention with impressive second rounds.

Lori Garbacz, who won the Indiana women's amateur championship in 1978 while living in South Bend, shot a 68 and was one of five players at 141.



Hartsell saves Diablos

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Newly acquired Ron Kaufman gave the Cubs two good scoreless innings, pitching out of trouble with runners at third base and less than two outs twice. But the Cubs could never cut the margin as Hartzell's drama killing entrance in the ninth saved the Diablos.

Please See CUBS, Page 3B

The Midland Cubs had runners at the corners with two outs and down by a 6-5 margin at Cubs Stadium Friday night when the El Paso Diablos called on 30-year-old Paul Hartzell to bail them out.

Hartzell quickly took the drama out of the situation by striking out Shawon Dunston to end the game. Dunston had hit safely in his three previous trips to the plate.

Hartzell, a former major league star with the California Angels who is making a comeback bid, should be no stranger to baseball fans, but even he admitted Friday that it has been a while since he has been in a situation like that. He even had trouble getting his story straight.

"I have to go back and search the memory for a time like this," Hartzell said. "I think my last save was in 1978 with the Angels. No, I take that back. I had one save at Stockton in the California League before coming to El Paso. But it is a situation I like. I've pitched four straight days and I have an arm that can do that."

JUST A month ago, Hartzell was serving life happily in California as a stockbroker. "This whole comeback thing is purely by accident. My last game in the big leagues was in July of 1981. I pitched some practice ball for Vancouver this summer while visiting a friend whom I was doing business with. They said I was throwing better than I did when I left baseball."

One thing led to another and Hartzell is with El Paso while Dunston and the Cubs are still wishing he was back selling stocks.

The Cubs fell behind by a 5-0 score in the fourth inning when Stan Davis hit his first Texas League fence buster to start the carnage off of Cub starter Larry Hrynko, who had pitched three scoreless innings to start the game. Three of the Diablo runs in the fourth were unearned, but Dave Klipstein drove in two runs in the inning and Steve Michael another.

The Cubs came back with three in the fourth as Antonio Cordova knocked in two runs with a double and Don Hyman plated another with a single.

The eventual winning run, however, came in the eighth when El Paso's Juan Castillo connected off of Jeff Moscaret for his third homer of the year.

Irwin birdies into lead

Zoeller, Norman in hot pursuit

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP) — Hale Irwin carded "amazing birdies" on the last three holes for another 68 and a one-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the 84th United States Open Golf Championship.

"Patience was very much a virtue today," said Irwin, who three-putted for bogey on his first two holes, said he was "sweating bullets," and then bided his time until the putts began to fall on those last three, difficult holes at the Winged Foot Golf Club.

"After a start like that, there is a tendency to get too aggressive. But the key to Winged Foot is patience. You want to be somewhat agressive, but at the same time be realistic, keep in mind that at the end of the round a total score of par will be a very good score."

At the end of his round, it was even better than that — two under par for the day and, at 136, four under for the championship he has won twice. The first one came 10 years ago on this same tough layout in the northern New York suburbs.

But, at the halfway point of the American national championship, his lead was far from secure.

The chief challengers were two of the game's longest hitters, former Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller and Greg Norman, the Australian import known as "the Great White Shark."

THE HAPPY-go-lucky Zoeller did not make a bogey in his late-afternoon round of 66, by two strokes the best of the tournament. It was the lowest round ever shot in this tournament on this course.

An approach to within two feet of the flag on the 16th, his fourth and last birdie of the mild, sunny day, lifted him into second alone at 137, three under par.

Norman, too, got around the difficult course without a bogey. He had a 68 that included a brilliant save from the trees on the 18th — "the best shot I've hit in a long time," he said — and a 30-foot birdie putt on the 17th.

His playing partners, Jack Nicklaus and Ray Floyd, also birdied the 17th and the three veterans delighted their huge gallery by performing a leaping, "high-five" mutually-congratulatory hand-slap as they walked off the green.

Norman was tied at 138 with long-shot David Canipe, a refugee from the Florida mini-tours who attempted — and failed — three times to play the PGA Tour. He had a second consecutive 69.

"My goal was to make the cut," Canipe said. "I've made it. Now my goal is to make as much money as I can. The thought of winning hasn't crossed my mind."

Jim Thorpe and Curtis Strange were at 139. Thorpe holed a 30-yard bunker shot for an eagle-3 on his way to a 71. Strange holed out two shots from the fairway — a 97-yard wedge for birdie and a 159-yard 5-iron shot for eagle-2 — in his round of 70.

FRED COUPLES, winner of the important Tournament Players Championship earlier this season, was next at 71-140.

Nicklaus, the 44-year-old Golden Bear, had to rally from a bogey-bogey start to salvage another 71. He finished 36 holes at 142, two over par and six off the pace in his quest for a record fifth Open crown.

Seve Ballesteros, twice a Masters champion, and Johnny Miller, former holder of both the U.S. and British Open titles, were in the group at 142. Ballesteros, of Spain, had a second-round 73 and Miller shot 68 despite a bogey-bogey finish.

PGA title-holder Hal Sutton and five-time British Open champion Tom Watson each had another 72 and were four over par. Sutton was making a run at the leaders until he bogeyed the last three. Watson included an eagle-3 in his effort.

Lee Trevino was 72-143.

Mike Donald and former Open champion Hubert Green, who were involved in a four-way tie for the first-round lead, drifted back in the pack. Green lost three shots to par over the last three holes and was 75-143. Donald went 10 shots higher than his opening round in 78-146.

Defending title-holder Larry Nelson and Masters champ Ben Crenshaw could not recover from poor first-round scores and were victims of the cut. Crenshaw was 71-151 and Nelson 76-158.

Craig Stadler, after a 42 on the front side, whiffed his tee shot on the 16th, kicked the ball down the fairway and walked in.

IRWIN, 38, winner of 16 titles — including two U.S. Opens — in a 17-year tour career, put on a remarkable exhibition of shot-making over the course he said "will always have a special place in my heart."

He missed only one green and two fairways.

But he found himself two over par after two holes.

He had to make a 5-footer for his third putt on the opening hole "and I was sweating bullets. It looked like I could be there all day," he said. "I kept remembering Jack Nicklaus four-putting that hole in '74."

Irwin also three-putted the second, then missed the green on the third but managed to save par.

"Sometimes," he said, "it is very difficult to be patient.

Mel may not rejoice at swap

For Darryl Banks and Don Schulze, the trade to the Cleveland Indians may not be all that bad.

Cleveland's Municipal Stadium is a bigger stadium than Chicago's Wrigley Field and is less exposed to the elements, namely the wind, than Wrigley, although anyone watching the Browns in November might heatedly dispute that assertion. The double-deck almost encirles the playing area and, thus offers, some protection.

For a pitcher that's something to consider. However, chances are that neither will have to consider it for a while. Both were plucked off Chicago Cub farm clubs and it will be a while before they reach Municipal Stadium.

MEL HALL'S endorsement of the swap may be less enthusiastic. The best thing about it for the one-time Midland Cub is that it probably means he will play every day. But it will be in a bigger park and what may be paradise for a pitcher could be a nightmare for a hitter. And going from Chicago, which is behaving like a contender, to an American League also-ran has to be a letdown.

Last season when Mel was in Midland for rehabilitation after an early season injury in Chicago, he proclaimed, "I love to hit in Wrigley Field. It was made for me."

When he went back and changed that outlandish stance, it was just that. He gave Darryl Strawberry a run for his money as NL Rookie of the Year.

FOR JOE Carter, the other ex-Midland Cub involved in the trade, it has to be good news. Carter hadn't played enough in Wrigley Field to become attached and his prospects of moving up in the near future weren't all that good. Bob Dernier's success and the surplus of outfielders who have proven they can hit major league pitching assured that.

So with Cleveland, perhaps Carter will get a chance in a less pressurized atmosphere.

Still, it's a sad end to a saga that saw Carter plucked No. 2 in the 1981 June draft...that's No. 2 of all the picks made that year...off the campus of Wichita State where he was named College Player of the Year.

Carter batted .269 for Midland that year, but blossomed in 1982 with 25 homers, 98 rbi and a .319 average.

At Iowa last year, he batted .307 with 22 homers and 83 rbi, good enough figures to bring him a late-season look from Chicago. In the 23-game trial, he never got untracked, batting .176. This spring in Mesa, it was more of the same and, perhaps, the Chicago management became disenchanted. Although Carter was drafted No. 2, it was under the old regime and the current Chicago probably felt no obligation. Then, too, Dallas Green seems to prefer going with the talent his people have scouted, witness the many transactions with the Phils.

Carter, however, still retained sufficient market value and potential to bring Chicago much needed pitching-catching help in their pursuit of the NL East flag.

For Carter, the trade represents opportunity.

Mets acquire Reds' hurler

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The New York Mets announced Friday night the acquisition of right-handed pitcher Bruce Berenyi from the Cincinnati Reds in exchange for three minor-league players.

For the 29-year-old Berenyi, Cincinnati received New York farmhands Eddie Williams, a third baseman, and pitchers Jay Tibbs and Matt Bullinger. Williams was the Mets' top choice in last summer's major-league draft.

Berenyi had a 3-7 record and a 6.00 earned run average this year in 51 innings for the Reds. He was 9-14 with a 3.86 ERA in 1983 and has a 32-47 lifetime record.

Williams has been playing for Columbia, S.C., in the South Atlantic League. Tibbs was on the roster of Tidewater in the International League and Bullinger of Jackson in the Texas League.

The Reds assigned Tibbs and Bullinger to their Wichita farm club of the American Association and sent Williams to Tampa in the Florida State League.

To replace Berenyi on the major-league roster, the Reds recalled pitcher Charlie Puleo from their Wichita farm club. The Reds announced Puleo will start Sunday's game against the Braves.

Hearns stops Duran in second

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Thomas Hearns called Roberto Duran "the greatest fighter I ever faced in the ring" after putting one of boxing's brightest stars into eclipse Friday night.

Hearns smashed Duran to the canvas three times and stopped him at 1:07 of the second round to retain the World Boxing Council super welterweight championship.

"I wanted to win by a knockout because I was fighting a legend," said Hearns.

Duran, who will be 33 Saturday, was a badly beaten legend. As the Panamanian left the ring, possibly for the last time in his 18-year career, he asked someone, "What did I do wrong?"

Asked if he would retire, Duran replied, "No decision yet."

It was not what Duran did wrong, it was that Hearns was devastating.

"I think 'Hit Man' is appropriate for this fight because I planned to use my ability to punch," said the man who had always disliked being called "Hit Man" and who in his last three fights had scored decisions.

He proved quickly on this hot desert night that he was the "Hit Man" again with the kind of performance that should lead him to a major match with Marvelous Marvin Hagler, the undisputed middleweight champion who kept his title on a 15-round title on a decision here over Duran last Nov. 10.

"Hagler gave Duran too much respect," said Hearns. "He's going to give me the same respect and it's going to be over in no time."

With about a minute to go in the first round, Hearns, who weighed 153¼, hurt Duran, 154, with a barrage of head shots, and then put him down for the third time in his career with a left hook to the head. Duran got up at four and took a mandatory eight count.

The 6-foot-1 Hearns, who enjoyed an 11-inch reach advantage over the 5-7½ Duran, charged to the attack and another onslaught of head blows put Duran down again with seven seconds left in the round. Duran, who was also cut about the right eye, got up immediately and the bell rang moments later.

Duran came out on shaky legs for the second round, and Hearns wasted no time in going after him. He trapped Duran in a corner and worked him over with head shots before the challenger escaped.

Then Hearns pinned Duran against the ropes and landed another barrage. As Duran was about to go down, Hearns threw a crushing right hand that dropped him flat on his face. Luis Spada, Duran's manager, jumped into the ring as referee Carlos Padilla stopped the bout.

Duran — the triple world champion with "Hands of Stone" who had knocked out 57 opponents — had been knocked out. Padilla didn't start to count 10. He didn't need to.

"The right in the second round was probably the best right of my career," said Hearns.

"I jumped into the ring because I think it's very important to protect the fighter," said Spada.

"I don't have any excuses," said Duran. "I was surprised by Thomas Hearns. I congratulate Thomas Hearns for the victory."

Before the fight, Duran had said, "I'll beat Thomas Hearns. I'm much better than he is."

He wasn't even close to Hearns Friday night.

Phils win second in row over Cubs

From Wire Reports

CHICAGO — Ivan DeJesus' two-run single in the fourth inning snapped a tie and carried the Philadelphia Phillies to a 5-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Charles Hudson, 7-4, gave up four hits in eight innings and Al Holland came on to pitch the ninth and gained his 14th save.

In the fourth, John Wockenfuss walked with the bases loaded for one run, DeJesus then delivered his single off Chicago starter Chuck Rainey, 5-5, to score two runs and bring in reliever Tim Stoddard. Juan Samuel doubled one out later to score the fourth run of the inning.

The Phillies scored in the first inning on Mike Schmidt's RBI single which scored Von Hayes who had doubled.

The Cubs tied it in the second when Larry Bowa hit a sacrifice fly to score Ron Cey from third. Ryne Sandberg hit his sixth home run into the left-center field bleachers in the third to give the Cubs a 2-1 lead.

Astros 3, Dodgers 2

HOUSTON — Pinch-hitter Phil Garner's one-out single to left brought home Terry Puhl with the winning run in the bottom of the ninth as the Houston Astros defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 for their fifth win in six outings Friday night.

Bill Dawley, 4-4, picked up the win in relief after pitching the eighth and ninth innings. Oral Hershiser, 2-3, was responsible for Puhl although the winning hit came off Pat Zachry, the third Dodger pitcher to work the ninth inning.

Puhl opened the ninth with a single to right. After an out, Carlos Diaz came in to pitch for Los Angeles and walked pinch-hitter Denny Walling. Dodger Manager Tom LaSorda then brought in the righthanded Zachry to face the righthanded Garner.

The Dodgers took a 2-0 lead in the first inning off starter Mike Madden, who retired only two batters. Steve Sax singled on the first pitch of the game.

Pedro Guerrero then singled to left and Mike Marshall walked to load the bases. Candy Maldonado's sacrifice fly to shallow right field scored Sax.

The bottom fell out for Madden as he walked Steve Yeager and Ken Landreaux in succession to force in Guerrero. Vern Ruhle came in to erase R.J. Reynolds on a liner to second base and retired 16 straight Dodgers until Yeager opened the seventh with a single.

Dodger starter Alejandro Pena put down 12 of 13 Astros before a sixth-inning outbreak. Craig Reynolds extended his hitting streak to 13 games with a lead off triple to right and Enos Cabell drove him in with the tying run on a single to center.

Mets 5, Cards 0

ST. LOUIS — Keith Hernandez blasted a two-run homer and Hubie Brooks added a solo shot to power the New York Mets to their 10th triumph in 12 games and third shutout in a row, a 5-0 conquest Friday night over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Walt Terrell, 5-6, and Jesse Orosco teamed up on a four-hitter. The Mets have allowed only 11 hits in their last three games. The team last strung together three straight shutouts in May of 1970.

Hernandez, with his fourth homer of the year, and Brooks, with his seventh, teed off in the fourth inning on St. Louis right-hander Joaquin Andujar, 10-6.

Mookie Wilson opened the fourth with a bunt single and Hernandez stroked his homer into the right-field seats off Andujar, who pitched six innings. Brooks followed with his shot two outs later.

Wilson made it 5-0 in the fifth, singling home Wally Backman, who had doubled. Jose Oquendo singled home Brooks an inning later.

Terrell, who had lost five of his six previous starts, walked six while handing St. Louis its fourth shutout loss in seven games. It marked the tenth time St. Louis has been shut out this year, most in the National League.

National League

The Cardinals have been shut out in their last four home games.

Terrell left in the eighth after yielding a pinch-single to Steve Braun and a walk to Lonnie Smith. Orosco then induced Tommy Herr to hit into a double play and allowed one hit over two innings to preserve the victory.

Both benches emptied after a home-plate collision between Darryl Strawberry of New York and St. Louis catcher Darrell Porter in the sixth, but no blows were thrown and no players ejected.

Expos 1, Pirates 0

MONTREAL — Dan Schatzeder, making his first start in almost a year, held Pittsburgh to five hits over seven innings and singled home the game's only run as the Montreal Expos held on for a 1-0 victory.

Tim Wallach opened the second against Jose DeLeon, 3-4, with a double down the left-field line and Jim Wohlford followed with a walk. One out later, Schatzeder blooped a single into left field to score Wallach.

An error by Pirate left fielder Brian Harper on the play moved Wohlford and Schatzeder to third and second respectively, but the Expos were unable to add to their margin.

Schatzeder, 2-2, starting for the first time since July 28, 1983 — the last time a left-hander started for the Expos — allowed the leadoff batter to reach base four times but pitched out of trouble each time.

Braves 6, Reds 1

ATLANTA — Rick Mahler hurled a three-hitter and had three hits of his own, including a two-run double, as the Atlanta beat Cincinnati, 6-1.

It was the Braves' eighth consecutive triumph over the Reds and lifted their advantage to 10-1 in the season series between the two teams.

It was also the fifth victory in a row for Mahler, 5-1, who walked one and struck out four. He also raised his batting average to .450 — 9 for 20 — on the season.

Mahler slapped his two-run double over right fielder Dave Parker's head in the fourth following a double by Glenn Hubbard and a walk to Bruce Benedict to make the score 4-0. He also doubled to right in the seventh and scored on Randy Johnson's third single of the game.

After Eddie Milner opened the game with a single for the Reds, Mahler retired 13 batters in a row.

The Braves took the lead off Frank Pastore, 3-5, on Benedict's two-run double into the left-field corner in the second. The hit scored Rafael Ramirez, who had singled, and Hubbard, who walked.

Padres 3, Giants 2

SAN DIEGO — Graig Nettles slammed a two-run homer and Ed Whitson pitched seven innings for his fifth consecutive win as the San Diego Padres defeated the San Francisco Giants 3-2 Friday night.

Nettles' homer, his ninth, came off rookie right-hander Jeff Robinson, 3-7, and was his fourth in his last five games. Nettles has driven in 11 runs during that span.

Whitson, 7-3, alloed seven hits, struck out four and did not walk a batter. Rich Gossage worked the final two innings and picked up his 13th save.

The Padres, winners of 16 of their last 20 games, remained 2 1-2 games ahead of the Atlanta Braves in the National League West.

Fusina sparks Stars over futile Federals

USFL

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Chuck Fusina passed for two touchdowns and rookie Bryan Thomas ran for two more as the Philadelphia Stars rolled over the Washington Federals 31-8 Friday night, setting a USFL record with their 16th regular-season victory.

Washington made its mark at the other end of the scale with its 15th loss against two victories.

The Stars, 16-1, who clinched the Atlantic Division title and a playoff spot last weekend, led 17-0 at halftime after Fusina threw for 152 yards while Washington quarterbacks Mike Hohensee and Reggie Collier combined for just 6 yards passing.

The Federals' Mike Guess intercepted Fusina's pass in the end zone with 9:35 left in the first quarter to spoil Philadelphia's first touchdown drive.

It was Fusina's first interception in 112 throws.

But the Stars got the ball back when Jonathan Sutton intercepted Hohensee two minutes and 27 seconds later.

The Stars took over on the Federals' 39 yard line and Bryan Thomas capped the drive on a 4-yard touchdown run with 4:19 left in the period.

An onside kick by David Trout set up the second Stars touchdown. Mark McCants recovered the ball at the Washington 39 and Fusina threw a 22-yard touchdown pass to Steve Folsom with 1:49 left in the half.

Trout's 29-yard field goal made it 17-0 with 48 seconds left in the half and Fusina threw 21 yards to Scott Fitzkee to make it 24-0 with 9:13 left in the third quarter.

Thomas scored another touchdown for the Stars on a 10-yard run with 2:31 remaining in the game after Scott Woerner hauled down a Collier pass for the Stars' fourth interception of the evening.

ing Western Conference wild-card spots to qualify for this year's playoffs.

The Wranglers wasted no time, scoring their first touchdown on only the second play of the game when running back Tim Spencer caught a 72-yard pass from Landry.

Wranglers 36, Blitz 0

CHICAGO — Wrangler quarterback Greg Landry completed 12 of 22 passes for 231 yards and two touchdowns, while Frank Corral added two field goals, as Arizona romped over the Chicago Blitz 36-0 Friday night at Soldier Field.

The win kept the Wranglers, 9-8, in the race for one of three remain-

Braves get Oberkfell

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals beefed up their hobbled pitching staff Friday by trading third baseman Ken Oberkfell to the Atlanta Braves for left-handed pitcher Ken Dayley and veteran first baseman Mike Jorgensen.

At the same time, the Cardinals placed left-handed pitcher Dave LaPoint on the 15-day disabled list because of tenderness on his left side and moved right-handed pitcher Bob Forsch from the 15-day to the 21-day disabled list.

Oberkfell, 28, is hitting .309 this year with 11 RBI. He has been St. Louis' regular third baseman for the past five years and started for the 1982 world championship team.

Starling loses

NEW YORK (AP) — Unbeaten Pedro Vilella of New York upset champion Marlon Starling in a 12-round decision Friday night to win the North American Boxing Federation welterweight title at Madison Square Garden.

Tigers edge Brewers, 3-2

MILWAUKEE — Johnny Grubb's sacrifice fly was dropped for an error by center fielder Rick Manning and Larry Herndon followed with an RBI infield single as the Detroit Tigers rallied for two runs in the eighth inning Friday night to trim the Milwaukee Brewers 3-2.

The Tigers loaded the bases in the eighth against Jaime Cocanower, 5-6, on an error by shortstop Robin Yount, a single by Kirk Gibson and a walk to Darrell Evans. Grubb then hit his sacrifice fly that Manning dropped, leaving the bases loaded. Herndon beat out a hit to deep short to make it 3-2.

Dan Petry, 10-3, gave up seven hits in seven innings for the victory and Willie Hernandez went the final two innings for his 11th save.

The Tigers took a 1-0 lead in the second on Lance Parrish's 10th home run of the season, a drive into the left-field stands.

Rookie Dion James and Jim Gantner, who had three hits apiece, smacked successive doubles in the third inning to tie it.

In the sixth, James led off with a triple and Gantner followed with a line single to left to put Milwaukee ahead 2-1.

Twins butcher Royals, 3-0

KANSAS CITY — John Butcher blanked Kansas City on three hits Friday night as the Minnesota Twins beat the Royals 3-0.

Butcher, 5-4, gave up only one-out singles in the first, fourth and fifth innings. The 27-year-old right-hander struck out three while walking one.

Royal starter Mark Gubicza, 3-6, was shut out for the second straight game and for the third time this season. He gave up four hits before being relieved in the eighth.

Minnesota scored in the second when Dave Engle led off with a double and Mickey Hatcher cracked a two-out double.

The Twins added another run in the eighth on Randy Bush's bases-loaded sacrifice fly and scored again in the ninth when Gary Gaetti walked and Ron Washington tripled.

Mulliniks hit beats Red Sox

TORONTO — Rance Mulliniks ripped a bases-loaded single with two outs in the bottom of the 11th inning, driving in two runs that rallied the Toronto Blue Jays past the Boston Red Sox 4-3 Friday night.

Trailing 3-2, leadoff batter Dave Collins reached first after he struck out on a wild pitch by Mark Clear, 5-1, and Willie Upshaw drew a one-out walk. After Jesse Barfield struck out, George Bell walked to load the bases to set the stage for Mulliniks, who lined his hit left. Dennis Lamp, the fourth Toronto pitcher, got the victory to improve to 4-2.

Boston had taken a 3-2 lead in the top of the 11th when Mike Easler and pinch hitter Reid Nichols singled off Jimmy Key, 2-4, and Rick Miller's bunt was mishandled by Key for an error, loading the bases.

Lamp then took over, but threw four straight balls to walk Bill Buckner and force in the go-ahead run.

The Blue Jays scored once in the ninth to tie it 2-2 as Collins doubled with two outs and raced home on Lloyd Moseby's single, which chased reliever Steve Crawford.

Doubles by Jim Rice and Easler, who extended his hitting streak to 20 games, longest in the American League this season, gave the Red Sox a 2-1 lead in the third against starter Doyle Alexander.

Boston scored in the top of the first on Tony Armas' RBI single before the Jays tied it in the bottom half of the inning on a walk to Collins, a balk by Al Nipper and Upshaw's double.

UIL considers Super 5A grid playoffs

AUSTIN (AP) — A committee of the University Interscholastic League is considering a plan that would split the Class 5A football playoffs into two divisions in 1986 with the larger schools competing in their own "Super 5A" playoffs.

UIL Athletic Director Bill Farney said the plan was devised "to give those schools at the lower (enrollment) level of 5A an opportunity to compete."

The enrollment cutoff for 5A under the district alignment that goes into effect this fall is 1,305, and the playoffs have been dominated in recent years by schools with much larger enrollments.

Farney said he believes the plan will be sent to the UIL Legislative Council, which could send it to the schools for a vote, change it or kill it.

The committee proposal, which is not yet in final form, calls for a two-year experiment with the "Super 5A" playoffs.

Indians put Easterly back on active list

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians activated veteran left-handed pitcher Jamie Easterly on Friday, giving the American League team 24 players on its roster.

Easterly has not thrown a pitch for the Indians in either spring training or the regular season this year. He injured his back while running at his home in Crockett, Texas, during the offseason, and has been on the disabled or injured list since March 25.

The Indians remain one man shy of the regular-season roster limit of 25 players while they await word on when they will be getting outfielders Mel Hall and Joe Carter from the Chicago Cubs.

Hall and Carter were supposed to have been obtained Wednesday by Cleveland in a trade that sent veterans Rick Sutcliffe, George Frazier and Ron Hassey to the Cubs.

NBA acts against shift

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association said Friday it has filed suit to replace or terminate the San Diego Clippers franchise because the club moved to Los Angeles without league approval.

However, the league said that because of uncertainties created by the ruling in past cases involving the movement of professional sports franchises, the Clippers will be scheduled to play their home games in Los Angeles and "any further steps to terminate the Clippers franchise will await the outcome of the litigation."

NBA spokesman Alex Sachare said that under the suit, filed in U.S. District Court in San Diego, another franchise could be created by the NBA board of governors to replace the Clippers either in San Diego or in another city.

Commissioner David Stern said the suit "also seeks to confirm the NBA's right to evaluate the move under NBA franchise relocation procedures — and to approve or disapprove it after such evaluation."

The NBA is seeking damages of more than $25 million "as result of the financial impact of the Clippers' move."

"While we regret that the NBA has made a tragic error by suing us, we are delighted that they have made no attempt whatsoever to block the club's relocation," Clippers president Alan Rothenberg said in Los Angeles Friday. "We are the Los Angeles Clippers. We are here to stay.

"We have followed faithfully the NBA constitution and the laws of this jurisdiction. As of June 15, 1984, there is absolutely nothing in the NBA constitution requiring league approval of our relocation. We will prevail in this litigation as surely, as decisively, and as expensively, as did the Raiders in their suit against the NFL. We are convinced that the court will follow the precedent established by the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit in the Raiders' case."

The suit also names the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum Commission, which operates the Sports Arena, as a defendant.

If Denne buys Rangers...

Cliff Gustafson will be manager

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN

The year I buy the Texas Rangers, I'm going to hire Cliff Gustafson as manager.

However, by the time I can afford it, there's no telling how many skippers the annual American League losers will have gone through.

Gus can name his price because he doesn't have to persuade me that he can turn bologna into sirloin. As coach of the Texas Longhorns, Gustafson has worked wonders once again.

Gustafson nursed a team into the College World Series championship game with 16 freshmen and 15 sophomores on a 42-man roster.

Texas had only five seniors and one starter returning from its championship club a year ago. Yet, the Longhorns lasted until the title game, losing 3-1 to Cal State-Fullerton, a veteran outfit that had 13 players drafted by big-league teams.

How does Gustafson do it? Can someone please bottle his secret and serve daily to occupants of the manager's office in the Rangers' Arlington Stadium?

More Sports on Page 8B

Second baseman Bill Bates was the only starter from last year's talented Texas team. But the 'Horns hustled and played "Gus-ball" and there they were again back in Omaha, playing the Arizona States of the NCAA elite.

What's your secret, Gus?

"Players on our team feel they are supposed to win," Gustafson says. "We have a ton of tradition."

Fine, Gus, but you pulled all the right strings, didn't you?

"Not really, I didn't have to prod this team on this year like I did last year. That's all," Gustafson says.

The modest Gustafson did make some subtle changes.

He let the Longhorns become more of a free swinging team. He also worked and worked and worked with young pitchers like Greg Swindell to replace last year's staff, which sent four pitchers to the pros in 1983.

In the end, the Longhorns were not as fundamentally sound as they were last year, but few young teams are. Which made Gustafson's job even more amazing.

"Oh, tradition helps a lot," Gustafson repeats.

Perhaps, but tradition never hit a bases-loaded homer or fielded a hot grounder in the hole at shortstop.

As Houston football Coach Bill Yeoman said once before the Cougars played the Longhorns in Memorial Stadium, "tradition can't block and tackle."

Let's see now, Texas has had 12 trips to Omaha and won the Series twice, finished second once, and placed third five times.

Texas has been in the NCAA playoffs 15 times in 17 years under Gustafson. His winning percentage is over 80 percent at 851-176.

By comparison, the Texas Rangers had an all-time record of 888 victories going into this season.

AND 988 LOSSES!

Remember Gus, the job is yours when my oil wells hit.

NCAA rules against UNLV, Shark

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The NCAA upheld charges against the University of Nevada-Las Vegas and basketball Coach Jerry Tarkanian despite having only the recollections of its investigators as evidence, a former university attorney testified Friday.

K. Michael Leavitt, who was hired by UNLV to answer allegations in 1976, said the NCAA Infractions Committee ruled against the school despite the fact the institution had a preponderance of evidence refuting the charges.

"We asked why the (NCAA) staff was able to present this recollectible information as opposed to documents," Leavitt said. "They said those were the policies they had and that's the way they did things."

Leavitt's testimony came at the end of the first week of Tarkanian's district court civil suit — a suit that could have an impact on the NCAA's enforcement procedures. Tarkanian is claiming the NCAA violated due process in demanding he be suspended for two years in 1977 after his UNLV basketball program was slapped with a two-year probation for 38 alleged recruiting violations.

Tarkanian obtained a court injunction prohibiting the suspension and the case has been snagged in the courts for seven years while he compiled one of the best records in college basketball.

Leavitt, responding to questioning by attorneys for Tarkanian, cited two allegations the NCAA upheld against the university in backing up his contention.

One of those, Leavitt said, was an allegation that Tarkanian arranged for former player Robert "Jeep" Kelly to fly free on a charter plane back to his hometown of Pittsburgh and that Tarkanian also reimbursed Kelly for a return flight to Las Vegas.

Leavitt said the only evidence the NCAA presented to back up the charge was a statement from investigator David Berst that recalled a talk he had with Kelly.

The university challenged the accusation with a deposition from Kelly denying Tarkanian paid for his flight. The university submitted depositions from Kelly's former high school principal, coach and athletic director — all saying the principal paid for the flight.

Still, Leavitt said, the Infractions Committee upheld the charge against Tarkanian and the university.

In another incident, Leavitt said the NCAA relied on the recollections of its investigator in a charge that a player was given a B grade in a black studies class without ever attending the class.

UNLV countered with affidavits from the instructor denying the charge along with affidavits from five students that the student, David Vaughn, attended class.

Middle-man Craig Lefferts welcome relief to Padres

By WAYNE LOCKWOOD
Copley News Service

A pitcher's job is simple: stop the other guys from scoring.

You would assume, therefore, that the San Diego Padre pitcher who has been most successful at this basic task also would be the club's most successful pitcher.

You would assume it until you studied the statistics sheet, that is.

There you would discover that Craig Lefferts is 1-2 with two saves — not exactly figures to send anyone scurrying for a Cy Young Award ballot. People have been sent to the minor leagues with better credentials.

The former Midland Cub pitcher need not rush to pack, however. Record or no record, Craig's employers are eminently satisfied with his work to date, as well they might be. "He's been amazing," says Manager Dick Williams.

This is what Lefferts has accomplished since coming over from the Chicago Cubs in an off-season trade: He has pitched 36 innings, struck out 22 and allowed only four earned runs — a mileage average of one every nine innings.

WHAT'S MORE, the man keeps getting better. In Lefferts' last 10 appearances spanning 21 innings he has allowed only three earned runs — an ERA of 1.29.

"I'm really pleased with the way things have been going," says Lefferts. "Except that second inning."

Except that second inning.

"I've tried to forget it happened," says Lefferts, adding with a ready laugh, "but it hasn't."

"Of course, I'm a little disappointed that I'm the only pitcher on the club who has a losing record. I'm also the only pitcher on the staff without a win."

But Lefferts knows, as does anyone else who has been paying attention, that those circumstances have more to do with his role than with his skill in performing it.

LEFFERTS IS the Padres' interim relief pitcher, the man whose job it is to bridge the gap between starters and Gossage Time.

"I've just got to hold 'em," Lefferts says. "I knew coming into the season that with Rich Gossage in the bullpen my job was going to be the 'hold' job.

"I wasn't going to win many games and I wasn't going to save many games. But if I did my job well, the team was going to win a lot of games."

The fact that the Padres are leading the National League West gives you some indication of how well Lefferts is doing his job.

"I've pitched 36 innings and in only three of them have I given up an earned run," Lefferts notes. "That's 33 innings I've held them without an earned run and given us a chance to get back into the game. If I don't get the win, that's fine, as long as the team gets the win."

More often than not, it has.

MEANWHILE, Lefferts is content to take the long view. "I'm young (26)," he says. "As my career advances, I may get a chance to get a short job, or maybe a starting job. I've just got to work towards that."

Craig's patience may seem unusual in a professional athlete, but he learned the virtue early and it has served him well over the years.

While his contemporaries were playing Little League baseball, Lefferts was suffering from asthma. He was cut from his first Pony League team, his first American Legion team (twice), his first high school team and his first college team.

"Each time," he notes with a touch of justifiable pride, "I came back to make the same team with the same coach and wound up being the No. 1 pitcher.

"My problem is I just don't LOOK impressive. I always knew I was good. I could throw the ball where I wanted to and I had a good curveball. I could get people out. But it didn't look like it.

"When I would throw to a catcher on the side, people would look at me and say, 'This guy's got to be kidding.'"

Lefferts made it to the big leagues with the Cubs three seasons after pitching the University of Arizona to the College World Series championship, but even that feat left those about him underwhelmed.

"I had a specific role in Chicago," he remembers. "They brought me in to get a left-handed hitter out.

Craig Lefferts back in his days as a Midland Cub pitcher.

Stallions, Bandits can't lose in USFL

By The Associated Press

The Birmingham Stallions and the Tampa Bay Bandits are in a "can't lose" situation as far as the United States Football League playoffs are concerned.

Both teams are assured of a playoff berth, but the Southern Division title is at stake in tonight's games. Birmingham, the division leader at 13-3, visits Memphis and Tampa Bay, the runner-up at 12-4, is at Pittsburgh.

This afternoon, Denver, 8-8, will be trying to keep its hopes alive for a playoff spot when the Gold visits the New Jersey Generals, already assured of a wild-card playoff spot.

No games are scheduled for Sunday, but Oklahoma vists Michigan and San Antonio journeys to Houston Monday night.

Memphis, 7-9 but 6-2 at home, is trying to avenge an earlier 54-6 loss to Birmingham. The contest is expected to draw 50,000.

Pepper Rodgers, coach of the Showboats, thinks he'll need more than a partisan crowd and said he thinks Birmingham is the best team in the USFL.

"They've got one of the best runners in the league in Joe Cribbs," Rodgers said. "They have an offensive line that looks like a Mack truck coming down the road and they've got a quarterback who is experienced and poised in Cliff Stoudt."

Pittsburgh, with a 3-13 record, faces a potent Tampa Bay attack, headed by quarterback John Reeves and one of his [illegible] ning back Gary Anderson. [illegible] back Mike Rozier, the All-American rookie from Nebraska, is the key to the Maulers' ground game.

Denver was knocked out of first place in the Pacific Division for the first time this season after losing to Philadelphia last Friday night, while New Jersey, 12-4, clinched its wild-card berth last Sunday.

Man takes out ad to relieve conscience

By TOM ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

TRENTON, N.J. — Arthur H. Dauer says he has finally ended 46 years of guilt by apologizing in a newspaper ad for "the worst thing I've ever done" — falsely accusing a 6-year-old classmate of stealing a penny's worth of peanut butter and crackers in 1938.

Dauer

"Viola, I am sorry," begins the $70 advertisement placed by Dauer, 51, who still remembers how his "very quiet, very meek" classmate didn't return to school for several days after he wrongly named her as the thief.

"I've carried a guilt feeling about this for many years," said Dauer, who left Trenton after graduating from high school in 1950 and now lives in Jupiter, Fla.

"I've thought about it many times since then," the stockbroker said. "I just wanted to get something off my mind and my conscience."

Viola's vindication came in an ad printed in Friday's editions of The Trenton Times. It reads: "In the McClellan School in East Trenton in the school year 1937-38, we were in Miss Cunningham's first-grade class. I was forced to accuse you of stealing a 1-cent peanut butter and saltine sandwich. I did not think you were guilty — and I have always been sorry. Arthur H. Dauer."

Dauer said he was "pressured" into accusing Viola, although he was certain the dark-haired girl had not eaten the sandwich. He refused to say who pressured him into accusing the girl, and he refused to provide Viola's full name, although he still remembers it.

"I remember the incident because she was a little girl and her feelings were hurt," Dauer said Thursday. "I can see her face in front of my eyes like it was yesterday."

Dauer's mother, Gertrude, who owned a grocery store near the school at the time, said Thursday that she had given her son the crackers and peanut butter and he had given them to the teacher.

After they were found to be missing, her son was asked by the teacher to smell the breath of each of his classmates to see if he could determine if they had been eaten, said Mrs. Dauer, who still lives in Trenton.

Dauer said he couldn't remember the teacher's first name, and he didn't know whether Viola was still in the Trenton area or even still living.

The brief incident as a 6-year-old was "the worst thing I've ever done," Dauer said. And he added that the experience affected his life because he tried never to repeat it.

"I always went out of my way to do the right thing," he said. "I can go anywhere in the world, and no one can say I cheated them or did anything wrong to them."

HOW THE WEST WAS WON...

Folks who talk about "a family resemblance" are just scratching the surface. Qualities deeper than "looks" are passed from generation to generation.

This is my father. Dad came from strong, hardy stock. Believing people who lived their beliefs—while they carved frontiers.... They spent their evenings building churches on the prairie.

It is my lot to be a father in today's world. That means I must put my heritage to work intelligently! I must be firm about what's important—flexible about the rest. And I've got to know the difference!

Obviously I need—and seek—God's help. Like my folks in the old days, I find it in the worship and teaching activities of my church.

Christian actors 'inspired'

RELIGION

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, Iowa — A few underpaid but divinely inspired actors set out several times a year from this rural county seat to perform the Lord's works in prisons, military bases and churches from Florida to New York.

They call themselves the Iowa Christian Theater, and in the four years since several local theater enthusiasts founded the troupe, they've gotten some good reviews.

"...stimulating, entertaining, thought-provoking and inspiring..." — Oral Roberts University, Tulsa.

"...professional quality performance..." — Blackhawk Area Y.F.C., Freeport, Ill.

"...powerful, lively performances..." — Dekalb Christian Academy, Atlanta.

Not bad for a group of college-age amateurs who grind out several hundred performances a year for room and board plus $10 a week.

"We just got back from seven and a half weeks on the road with an average of one or two performances a day," said Bruce Reagan, 22, who is about to become acting director of the six-member group. "I'm exhausted."

Each performance consists of six or seven short skits, each with a gospel theme and some written by group members. Sometimes there's music as well.

One scene that works well with prison audiences features a space visitor called "Zulu from Nunu," who asks questions about life on Earth and reveals that Jesus once visited his planet where there is now perfect peace.

"What did you Earthlings do for the son of the living God?" he asks.

"Well, we killed him," comes the reply.

Zulu stares at the audience in stunned silence as the lights go out.

In another skit, a man begins to recite the Lord's Prayer without giving it much thought, and a voice from the heavens points out that each word has important meaning.

"We like to be versatile," Reagan said. "We've done everything from senior citizens' banquets to little childrens' gatherings with clowning. Each piece is sometimes humorous, sometimes serious, sometimes both, each with its own message."

The troupe formed in 1980, when the acting buffs decided they wanted to perform religious drama but didn't know where to start. They approached Anita Swartzendruber of Washington.

"They had the vision, and I had a stack of religious plays I had collected," she said. "We started talking and praying together."

The others have since gone on to other things, but Mrs. Swartzendruber still handles the bookings and helps recruit new talent through religious colleges around the Midwest.

"I didn't know anything about this when we started," she said. "I was just a mother and a housewife. Now we send out hundreds and hundreds of brochures, and I make an awful lot of phone calls."

The group suffers from a chronic lack of funds. Many performances are free or bring in only voluntary contributions.

The theater provides a small frame house and meals for the actors and pays living expenses for its full-time director, Richard L. Watters, and his family. Watters will leave soon, and the group will seek a replacement who's single and easier to support.

The actors come from varied religious backgrounds. They generally stay about a year before moving on, many to enter the ministry or other church-related work.

"I would eventually like to go into a single ministry out on my own," Reagan said. "I'd sing, and I'd do something like a Christian stand-up comic. The humorous roles are the ones I like best."

Sikhism sees intolerance it was meant to overcome

By SEEMA SIROHI
Associated Press Writer

NEW DELHI, India — The religious intolerance and violence that slain Sikh militant Jarnail Singh Bhindranwale preached was precisely what Sikhism was created to overcome.

Sikhism, derived from Hinduism and Islam about 500 years ago, was a reformist movement intended to lead its followers out of Hindu polytheism and away from a society divided rigidly along caste lines.

Guru Nanak, the 15th century founder of Sikhism, led a non-violent crusade against the Hindu caste system.

"There is no Hindu, there is no Mussulman (Moslem)," was the credo of his peaceful mission. The guru's message was sung in simple verses to the peasantry of the Punjab, the northern state now reeling under an extremist agitation of Sikhs who consider Hindus their enemies and are demanding political and religious concessions for the state.

The Sikhs, who number 13 million, are a religious minority in predominantly Hindu India, but hold a slight majority in Punjab. Eleven percent of the country's estimated 672 million people are Moslems, and 83 percent are Hindu. Sikh beliefs are much closer to Islam than to Hinduism. Sikhs believe in one god, and condemn worship of idols and graven images. They revere a holy book similar to the Koran. The deities of Hinduism are represented in pictures and in enshrined statues.

But there are links between Sikhism and Hinduism.

Like Hindus, Sikhs oppose the slaughter of cows and consumption of beef in any form. They accept the Hindu theory of karma and transmigration of the soul from one life to another until it merges with God.

There are presently no official religious leaders of the Sikh community and all adults, male or female, can perform religious ceremonies.

When Guru Nanak died in 1539, he had a following of both Hindus and Moslems, but under the 17 century guru Arjun Dev, the Sikhs were molded into a distinct community, with a separate ethnic identity and culture.

Arjun Dev compiled the Guru Granth Sahib, the Sikh Bible, of more than 6,000 verses, by collecting the writings of earlier gurus and adding his own.

The militarization of the Sikhs began when Arjun Dev was executed by the Moghul Emperor Jahangir. The moghuls were Moslems.

But the complete transformation of Sikhs into warriors came 200 years ago with the guru Gobind Singh, who added the suffix "Singh" or "lion" to the names of newly initiated members. It also was during this time that the distinguishing feature of unshorn hair and beard became traditional among the Sikhs.

Gobind Singh's teachings, called the "Khalsa Panth," the pure religion, encouraged believers to strive for asceticism, and to raise an army of soldier-saints.

Under him, the policy of turning the other cheek, which Nanak the first guru taught, changed to returning blow for blow.

"When all other means have failed," Gobind Singh declared, "It is righteous to draw the sword."

Today, the Sikhs are carrying on Gobind Singh's militant tradition.

Minister touring U.S.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The minister of Wesley's Chapel in England, the parent church of Methodism, is touring the United States seeking support for his church and helping some congregations celebrate the American Methodist Bicentennial.

The Rev. Ronald C. Gibbins has been pastor of the historic church since its restoration was completed in 1979. The church was established in 1778 by John Wesley, founder of the Methodist movement. Gibbins is the 65th minister of Wesley's Chapel, located on the northeast edge of London.

American Methodists contributed 52 percent of the $1.4 million cost to restore the chapel building. John Wesley House was restored in 1981 at a cost of $203,000. And the Chapel Keeper's house was restored this year for $72,800. The Benson Building, which houses a Methodist religious order, was restored for $28,000.

The final renovation is the Crypt which will house the Museum of Methodism. it will cost $112,000 and reopen in September.

POSITIVE THINKING

Difficulties can lead to successes

By DR. NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

A salesman paid on a commmission basis had sold his company's products so successfully that his earnings rose to a level never before achieved in the sales end of that business. This started a curious chain of events.

The big-wigs of the company decided that this man was making too much money — so they reduced his commission rate. Meanwhile, his sales exploits had inspired other members of the sales force, so that they likewise increased their production. But as soon as they reached a certain level, management cut their commission rates, too.

My friend, for his part, cheerfully accepted his rate cut as a challenge and started selling even more. But most of the other men reacted quite differently. They got the impression there was nothing to be gained from selling so much. Some quit. Others stayed on, but no longer worked so hard.

Now of course, the heads of that company by their ill-considered policy on commission rates were actually violating a law of supply. The only way to make a business succeed — or make your life a success — is according to this law of supply. Give all you can, do all you can, help all you can, and benefits will flow back to you. But when you start cutting off the outflow, deciding you are not going to do so much, then pretty soon this law of supply stops working for you. Well, in short, the company failed.

Thus my friend, after many years with this one company, found himself out of a job at age fifty-four, and with a wife and two teenage children to support. And, as everybody knows, for a man to find himself unemployed in his middle fifties can be tough, because so many companies take the position that he is too old to hire. Either it would complicate their pension systems or they just think younger men are better risks.

This is one of the most unfortunate, most wasteful things about our present-day economy. Many men I have known have only just been coming into the best, most productive years of their maturity as they reached the middle fifties. Indeed, a man of sixty or sixty-two, or even sixty-five, ages at which many companies begin retiring personnel, is oftentimes at the height of his powers.

Well, anyway, here was this friend of mine, age fifty-four and suddenly out of a job. And the irony was that he had been such a successful producer. When I heard what had happened I was concerned on his account and went to see him. Do you know what he said? You will perhaps find this as surprising as I did. "What has happened to me is that God is trying to say something to me. So I am practicing being inwardly quiet. I am listening and waiting for Him to show me the next step." You see, to this man prayer is not a religious but a practical procedure.

He had to wait a fairly long time, as it turned out. A year and a half went by with his job problem still unsolved, while savings gradually dwindled. Then one day an official of one of the country's great service organizations came to him and said "We have a vacancy and we think you are a natural for the position." And within a matter of days he had been engaged to occupy the organization's number four position at a satisfactory salary and with the prospect of continuous employment up to their retirement age of seventy.

When next I saw him after this happy development, he said what seemed a pretty wise thing. "This opportunity would not have come to me if the difficulty had not come first."

Difficulty can be the means of opening up new opportunities. But if you react to it resentfully or give way to discouragement, you tend to miss the opportunities, and close off possibilities. Much hinges on maintaining a cheerful, receptive, hopeful state of mind.

The person who has faith usually finds that difficulty becomes a passageway to better things. By such sound philosophy you can actually change the course of your life.

Texan native writes what may be U.S. Olympic song

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — Hit songs usually come and go like sunsets, but Texas native Larry Henley wrote a love song that is still glowing three years later.

"The Wind Beneath My Wings" has captivated music fans and singers all over the world, and now the U.S. Olympic Committee is listening closely. Last Monday, Gary Morris' version of Henley's song was voted Song of the Year at the 19th annual Academy of Country Music Awards.

Henley, who lived about four years in Longview in the early '60s, was in town last month to attend his son's graduation from Pine Tree High School. He sat on the edge of the couch in his former wife's home, wearing faded blue jeans, a dark blue sports shirt and tennis shoes. A 46-year-old former pop star of the '60s, Henley's soft eyes, light-colored hair and full, graying beard resemble the features of several singers who record his songs.

In April, Henley was voted Songwriter of the Year by Nashville Songwriters Association International. His songs have been recorded by an extraordinary variety of artists, including Willie Nelson, Dolly Parton, Kenny Rogers, Lee Greenwood, Barbra Streisand, Sheena Easton and Gladys Knight & the Pips. Over 30 artists have recorded Henley's "The Wind Beneath My Wings."

The appeal of "The Wind Beneath My Wings" hasn't stopped at jukeboxes and record stores. The song was performed in front of U.S. troops in Lebanon during a Bob Hope special, and an astronaut recently took a recording of the song into space. But the next usage of "The Wing Beneath My Wings" could be the biggest.

"It looks like it might be the U.S. Olympic song, if they decide on an official song," he said.

DEAR ABBY

Woman gets strength to be a parent from prayer

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Will you please reprint something I cut out of your column about 15 years ago? I was a single parent, and it helped me to be a better mother. I think a lot of your readers would also benefit from it. — J.B. IN DANVILLE, KY.

DEAR J.B.: I've repeated it once (about three years ago), but I'll run it again. It was written by Garry C. Myers, founder of Highlights for Children, a fine, wholesome and educational monthly magazine that I highly recommend:

"Oh heavenly Father, make me a better parent. Help me to understand my children, to listen patiently to what they have to say and to answer all their questions kindly. Keep me from interrupting them, talking back to them and contradicting them. Make me as courteous to them as I would have them be to me. Give me the courage to confess my sins against my children and ask them forgiveness, when I know that I have done wrong.

"May I not vainly hurt the feelings of my children. Forbid that I should laugh at their mistakes, or resort to shame and ridicule as punishment. Let me not tempt a child to lie and steal. So guide me hour by hour that I may demonstrate by all I say and do that honesty produces happiness.

"Reduce, I pray, the meanness in me. May I cease to nag, and when I am out of sorts, help me, O Lord, to hold my tongue. Blind me to the little errors of my children and help me to see the good things that they do. Give me a ready word for honest praise.

"Help me to treat my children as those of their own age, but let me not exact of them the judgments and conventions of adults. Allow me not to rob them of the opportunity to wait upon themselves, to think, to choose and to make their own decisions.

"Forbid that I should ever punish them for my selfish satisfaction. May I grant them all their wishes that are reasonable and have the courage always to withhold a privilege which I know will do them harm.

"Make me so fair and just, so considerate and companionable to my children that they will have genuine esteem for me. Fit me to be loved and imitated by my children. Oh God, do give me calm and poise and self-control."

DEAR ABBY: I heard there's a club for redheads. How can I get in touch with it?

I may as well add a few comments on the trials of being a redhead. For years people have made assumptions about my sister and me based only on our hair color. Some are nice, most are negative and all are prejudiced. These are the most common:

1. You must have a violent temper.
2. You must be a firecracker in bed.
3. You're psychic or into witchcraft, aren't you? — SEEING RED

DEAR SEEING: The organization you want is:

Feathers fly over anti-duck bill

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Feathers are flying in Wheeling, where the City Council has approved an ordinance banning duck feedings and the local "pro duck" faction has promised to challenge the law in court.

The council, after hearing from Ohio County Health Commissioner Thomas L. Thomas that "ducks and pigeons constitute a health hazard," approved a law that carries a maximum $500 fine or 30-day jail sentence for duck feeders.

"A violation of this section shall not preclude prosecution for littering," the ordinance adds.

The law was prompted by some residents of Wheeling's Elm Grove section who complained that a covey of several dozen ducks has grown to a full-fledged flock.

Anti-dumping law adopted

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — Taiwan has adopted an anti-dumping law to prevent foreign countries from selling goods in Taiwan cheaper than in their own domestic markets, the government announced Friday.

The new law, they said, was intended to protect local industries that might be threatened by imports resulting from Taiwan's move to lower import taxes and relax domestic market restrictions.

Officials said Taiwan would impose dumping duties and countervailing taxes on goods sold here cheaper than in their country of origin.

Farm animals found slain

LA BAULE, France (AP) — Nearly 200 farm animals have been killed mysteriously around La Baule since the beginning of the week in what local farmers said could be a sign of "witchcraft," police said Friday.

All the animals — including 60 rabbits, chickes, a sheep, a goat, a lamb and three ducks — were found with their throats slit, and farmers started to speak of "witchcraft" because many of the 50 adult rabbits killed also were missing one eye, police said.

Police say they initially thought dogs were responsible, but farmers later told them the doors to the various pens and coops had been unlatched and opened from the outside.

Soviet dissident released

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet dissident whose arrest and confinement to a mental hospital drew a letter of protest from France was released after nearly a month, dissident sources said Friday.

Natalya Khmelnitskaya, 53, was arrested May 17 at the doors of the French Embassy after trying to deliver a letter to President Francois Mitterrand. In the letter, she requested that she and her husband, Mark Volchonok, and their son be allowed to emigrate to France, dissident sources said.

Her arrest prompted a protest from the French Foreign Ministry to the Soviet Embassy in Paris. The letter of protest said the action violated the Helsinki human rights accords of 1975.

Upon her release, Mrs. Khmelnitskaya said she had been given psychotropic drugs in the hospital, resulting in side effects that included insomnia, high blood pressure and vision problems, according to the dissident sources.

Louvre reopens to tourists

PARIS (AP) — The Louvre museum, the most visited collection of art in the world, began admitting visitors again Friday following the end of a two-day walkout by 200 museum guards.

The guards periodically use the height of the tourist season to press various demands with brief strikes. This year, the employees who guard the 198 exposition halls were demanding that the government speed up payment of salary differentials for those who live outside Paris.

For two days, and a three-day holiday immediately preceding the strike, thousands of frustrated tourists were prevented from viewing the Mona Lisa, Winged Victory and the thousands of other art treasures at the museum. The Louvre is seen by an average of 3 million people a year.

Paris opens pyramid sports palace

Paris recently opened a $100 million sports palace, a pyramid-shaped arena with grass growing on its eight 100-foot-high outer walls. The Bercy, Paris' costliest public construction project ever, can seat 17,000 fans. Concrete steps built into the outer walls are surfaced with 196,000 cubic feet of earth secured by wire.

Eight Iranian defectors commandeer Iraninan navy plane

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Eight Iranian defectors commandeered an Iranian navy plane, took it to Bahrain and then to Egypt Friday, a Cairo airport official reported.

He said the Iranians sought political asylum here, but but the official Middle East News Agency denied there was a request for asylum.

The agency did not reveal what demands the Iranians made, and said an investigation into "the circumstances of the landing" was under way.

The official who reported the asylum request was on duty at the Cairo airport control tower when the plane landed in the southern city of Luxor and was privy to radio contacts and negotiations with the defectors. He declined to be identified by name.

The Cairo airport official told The Associated Press the Iranians, five military men and three civilians, were taken into custody following talks with Egyptian officials in Luxor.

He said the Iranians would spend the night at a military base near Luxor airport and would be kept there pending a decision on their request for asylum.

It has long been government policy not to accept hijacked aircraft on Egyptian soil. But the Cairo airport official said the plane was allowed to land in Luxor because its pilot reported he was running out of fuel.

"The Iranians are seeking political asylum," said the official. "The pilot and co-pilot are having talks with senior (Egyptian) officials at the Luxor airport terminal building."

Adly Khalil, an officer at the Luxor airport control tower, said by telephone that the Iranian military men were all officers and they carried no weapons.

The regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini denounced Egypt's government for signing a peace treaty with Israel in 1979, and shortly afterward, Iran broke diplomatic relations with Egypt.

Recently, Iran has spurned efforts by President Hosni Mubarak to advance through the non-aligned group of nations a peace plan for ending the Iran-Iraq war. Iran said Egyptian military aid to Iraq disqualified it as peacemaker.

MENA reported the plane was hijacked in Bahrain.

However, airport officials in Bahrain's capital, Manama, said the plane landed there after it had been hijacked during a routine flight somewhere over southern Iran. Authorities in Bahrain said those aboard the plane were denied asylum, and the plane left Manama after being refueled.

There was no word on where the flight originated.

MENA and the Cairo airport official said the plane headed for Egypt after Saudi Arabian authorities denied it permission to land. Sources in Bahrain said it was also denied permission to land in Dubai, the United Arab Emirates.

Army troops push into area held by guerrillas

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — About 3,000 government troops spearheaded by a special U.S.-trained battalion have launched a major offensive into Morazan province, where leftist guerrillas have been entrenched for years, a high-ranking military officer said Friday.

The officer, who asked not to be identified for security reasons, said the anti-rebel sweep began late Thursday when government troops crossed the Torola River, 120 miles northeast of the capital, meeting little resistance.

Army patrols entered the towns of Torola and Meanguera just north of the river Friday and encountered virtually no opposition.

One rebel tactic in the 4½-year-old civil war has been to force the army to mobilize as many troops as possible, put up a minimum of resistance, fade away, and hit targets elsewhere unexpectedly.

The officer said the operation also was aimed at establishing a permanent government presence in the rugged 100-square-mile area of Morazan north of the Torola where guerrilla strongholds have existed for many years.

The 1,200-man Atonal Rapid Deployment Battalion, leading the Morazan sweep, had been specially trained for such an operation by U.S. Army Special Forces members.

Another 3,000 troops have been engaged in a similar sweep for the past four days in northern Cabanas province.

Friday, guerrillas set two gasoline trucks afire and used the wrecks to block traffic on the Pan American Highway outside El Triunfo, a town 75 miles east of the capital, witnesses said. There were no reports of injuries.

Meantime, an official in charge of displaced persons said Friday that 2,000 refugees who fled Morazan because of guerrilla attacks and kidnappings were in neighboring Honduras but wanted to return to El Salvador.

Poor city struggling with school woes

LYNN, Mass. (AP) — Weeds push up through cracks in the concrete steps outside the aged Classical High School where two teachers are joking ruefully about their "volunteer" jobs with the Lynn school system.

It's been more than a week since 1,200 school employees got their last paychecks, and some are beginning to feel as broke as their employer.

On Thursday, more than two weeks before its school year was scheduled to end, this poor coastal city of 79,000 north of Boston hit the bottom of its $24.2 million school budget.

School administrators say they ran into unexpected costs for substitute teachers, maternity leave and special education. Mayor Antonio Marino says the school committee plain and simply overspent.

State school officials say there's probably truth to both versions. But Lynn's financial situation, they say, also points up a larger problem faced by older industrial Massachusetts cities, which lack an adequate tax base to provide quality services.

"Lynn is the worst of the communities that are having financial problems," said Terry Zoulas, a spokesman for the state Department of Education. "But other communities like it are facing problems, too."

Long a money-tight community, Lynn's fiscal struggles worsened after 1980 when Massachusetts voters approved the tax-limiting Proposition 2½.

The measure prohibits cities and towns from levying property taxes in excess of 2½ percent of their assessed valuation. In the first year after it went into effect, municipal revenues statewide declined by $465 million and school spending dropped $136 million, according to Department of Education figures.

In Lynn, 220 school jobs were eliminated the first year after Proposition 2½.

Marino believes Lynn's current school problems began last fall when the school committee decided to rehire 73 employees who had been laid off, implement a costly new curriculum and grant pay raises for teachers. The school committee knew — or should have known — the added expenses would drive its budget into the red, he said.

"You can't spend money you don't have," said Marino. "If something isn't working, you don't fix it by defying the law and going out and overspending. You try to change the law."

But Deputy School Suerintendent Fred Cole said the additional staff and payroll were taken into account when the budget was set last year, and that the schools were socked by a lot of unforeseen expenses.

"I suppose we could have done nothing and lived within our budget. It makes sense, but it provides a lousy education for our children," he said.

This school year, Lynn spent an average of $1,822 to educate each student. New Bedford, another working class seaport, was the only large city in Massachusetts to spend less, Cole said. The city was also well below the state average in spending for bilingual and special education, he said.

"No matter what figure you use," said Cole, "we're in bad shape."

Two weeks ago, administrators of the 12,440-pupil school system threatened to shut down schools a month early, claiming they couldn't afford to finish the school year. The closure was halted when a Superior Court judge ruled that Lynn was legally bound to keep schools open until June 22 to comply with a state law that requires students to be in school 180 days a year.

The Lynn City Council voted 11-0 to approve a state bailout plan that would let the education department borrow $2.6 million against next year's state aid to keep school doors open two more weeks.

Illegal immigration: A problem without solution

An Analysis

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saying so goes counter to the American grain, but some problems just don't have solutions that will satisfy most people. One of those problems — and two proposed solutions — are about to come before a reluctant House of Representatives.

The problem is illegal immigration, or, specifically, the flood of Mexicans and other people from Latin America who sneak across the country's 2,000-mile southern border in search of work.

Almost everyone agrees that something ought to be done about that. A country that can't control its borders lacks sovereignty. And it is simply unfair to force some foreigners who seek a place for themselves in America to wait years while other foreigners achieve the same thing by a nearly painless, almost riskless rush across the Rio Grande.

How many come?

The Immigration and Naturalization Service makes about a million seizures a year near the border, and assumes that for every one caught, three get by undetected.

How many are here, more or less permanently?

INS says 6 million. The 1980 census counted 2 million, and guessed there were another 2 million. No one knows.

In addition to those who have come north from Central and South America, INS is well aware that there are many thousands of Asians, Africans and Middle Easterners living and working in America without legal status.

The bill that's supposed to come up for debate and a vote in the House this week offers a carrot-and-stick approach. It offers legitimacy to millions of people.

These are illegal aliens who have lived and made homes, raised families and held jobs in America while leading an underground existence, in danger of exposure and deportation at any moment — and reluctant to do business with the government at any level, in the schools, the police station or the courts, and therefore subject to exploitation.

Legalization is the carrot. Hispanic groups welcome it. Anyone who has lived in the United States since 1982, under the House version of the bill, could apply for legalization and, ultimately, for citizenship.

The stick is a provision making it illegal for most employers knowingly to hire illegal immigrants. There is no penalty now.

Three presidential commissions have studied the problem over seven years and concluded that penalizing employers for hiring illegal workers is essential to closing down the magnet of employment that brings aliens streaming over the border.

Many Hispanic groups, such as the League of United Latin American Citizens, oppose such penalties. They say employers will tend to discriminate against anyone with an Hispanic name or appearance.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States also opposes fines for employers who hire illegals. The chamber says businessmen should not be forced to become law enforcement agents.

The American Civil Liberties Union is opposed. It says that, while the pending legislation does not provide for a universal work permit or identification card, the pressure for such a system would inevitably rise if the bill passes. Employers would demand a means of weeding illegal applicants from legal applicants, the ACLU believes.

Thus the ACLU raises the spectre of something that is commonplace in many other societies but unacceptable to Americans — required ID, to be carried at all times and produced upon demand of the authorities.

If the opponents are strange bedfellows, the supporters of the bill are unusual allies, too. The Business Roundtable, representing big business, favors the bill. So does the AFL-CIO, which feels that illegal labor drives down wages. And so does President Reagan. All three contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination oppose it.

The bill is known as Simpson-Mazzoli, for its chief sponsors, Sen. Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., and Rep. Romano Mazzoli, D-Ky. The measure has twice passed the Senate, but until now opponents kept it from passing the House.

Rep. Edward Roybal, D-Calif., a leader of the House Hispanic Caucus and the leading opponent, has offered a competing bill. It retains legalization, but drops employer sanctions and stresses strengthening border patrols to inhibit illegal crossings and beefing up enforcement of labor laws to take much of the incentive out of hiring illegal immigrants.

Roybal's critics scoff. Experience has shown that the border cannot be sealed short of the erection of an un-American-like Berlin Wall, they say. Roybal's solution, they say, will preserve an unacceptable status quo.

Roybal replies that Simpson-Mazzoli will lead to hardship and discrimination against millions of Hispanics.

Immigration control may be a problem whose solution has not yet come.

Board of Regents approve UTPB budget

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The University of Texas System Board of Regents has approved a budget of more than $8.8 million for the University of Texas of the Permian Basin at Odessa for the 1984-85 fiscal year.

The budget includes $7,848,534 in educational and general funds, $850,202 in auxiliary enterprise funds and $108,298 in gifts, grants, designated and other funds. The total budget for the fiscal year, which begins Sept. 1, is $8,807,034, the UT System reports.

In addition, regents approved initial funding of $500,000 for a research proposal developed by the UT Austin Bureau of Economic Geology which is aimed at enhancing oil recovery from reservoirs on university lands in West Texas.

The program of reservoir characterization will be conducted in cooperation with the university lands office in Midland and with area operators and lease holders. The total amount of funding for the project is expected to be $2 million over a period of four to six years, according to the UT System.

About 128 oil reservoirs are currently being produced on university lands in West Texas. Those reservoirs originally contained an estimated 5.5 billion barrels of oil in place.

Under development plans are recovery strategies now in existence, an estimated 1.6 billion barrels of the in-place oil, or about 29 percent, will be recovered. The balance, or about 3.9 billion barrels, is now classed as conventionally unrecoverable.

While the volume of so-called unrecoverable oil in university lands reservoirs constitutes a major source, additional recovery is complex, said Dr. William L. Fisher, bureau director.

It will depend on the future price of oil and how well the geologic composition and fluid behavior of the reservoirs can be defined, characterized and exploited, he said.

House bill would give schools more funds

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Midland County schools would receive less additional funding for equalization under the House education reform package compared to a plan proposed by the Texas Education Agency, but more extra funding than a plan suggested by the governor's Select Committee on Public Education.

Under House Bill 72, filed by Rep. Bill Haley, D-Center, schools in the county would receive $1,235,000 in additional state revenues for education reform. TEA's latest proposal would give the county $2,977,100 and a Senate version of the education bill — which implements the SCOPE proposals — would take away $3.7 million from the county, though one district would gain funds.

In Midland County, the two school districts and the amounts to be received under each plan are:

—Midland ISD, $589,100 (HB 72); $2,766,200 (TEA); and less $4,129,000 (SB4).

—Greenwood ISD, $646,100 (HB 72); $200,900 (TEA); and $378,900 (SB 4).

Funding figures from Haley's bill were released Thursday. Haley is chairman of the House Committee on Education.

House Speaker Gib Lewis indicated his support for Haley's HB 72 after House member adjourned Thursday, saying it provides plenty of equalization funding for poorer school districts.

Craig Foster, executive director of the Equity Center, an Austin-based education group whose members are the state's poorest school districts, noted districts funded the least in equalization aid are "going to be (funded) right in the middle" under HB 72, compared to the TEA and the Senate Bill 4 proposals.

"It's just about splitting the difference," he commented, adding he is not displeased with the Haley measure.

Mattox: Supreme Court action will help settle suit

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Attorney General Jim Mattox said Friday the U.S. Supreme Court has taken action that will help settle a 14-year-old lawsuit between Texas and New Mexico over terms of the Pecos River Compact.

The court has overruled New Mexico's objections to a recommendation from Special Master Jean S. Breitenstein which established New Mexico's water delivery obligations under the compact. The ruling, issued in January, provides that a condition agreed on in 1947 be used in determining the amount of water to be delivered — and that the amount requested by Texas be awarded.

Mattox's office had supported Breitenstein's recommendation, which will require New Mexico to deliver a greater amount of water to Texas than New Mexico claimed the compact required.

"This week's ruling by the Supreme Court will allow us to get back to the courtroom and finish this lawsuit," Mattox said. "We now will be able to determine the reasons why New Mexico has under-delivered the water and set about ending this dispute."

A spokeswoman for the attorney general's office noted the case has been complicated by the resignation of Breitenstein, who was appointed by the U.S. Supreme Court to handle the case.

Board OKs permit for acid plant

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Air Control Board Friday approved an amended permit for a hydrochloric acid plant operated by Permian Chemical Co., Odessa.

The plant has been the subject of complaints and violation notices from ACB in the past.

A hearing on the amended permit application was continued in August and September 1983, with the parties agreeing to resolve the dispute by having Permian hire a "qualified environmental consultant" to provide recommendations for controlling emissions.

ACB attorney Jose Camacho told the board the amended permit will result in emissions from the plant being reduced from 25 to 30 parts per million (PPM) in the plant building and 250-300 ppm at the plant's stack to five ppm.

Insurance board has toll-free line

AUSTIN (AP) — People can now call the State Board of Insurance free of charge to get answers to questions about insurance.

The toll-free number is 1-800 252-3439.

The new line offers faster information, the board said, but formal complaints about insurance matters still must be submitted in writing.
