Oil Cartel Meets

TAIF, Saudi Arabia (AP) - The world oil cartel meets today to discuss long-range price goals but is not expected to make any decisions affecting consumers in the West.

Though it is clear from chats with some representatives from the members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries that such long-range goals must be set, there is no common view on how they should be met, or on what schedule.

Carter Warns Soviets

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) - President Carter, calling the Soviet Union a racist regime, says he has warned the Russians many times that to "maintain peace throughout the world" they must watch their step in Africa.

But Carter did not say what he would do if the Soviets do not heed the warning.

"The Soviets know very clearly how deeply I feel about this. I have communicated directly with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev through private sealed messages," Carter said.

Little Things Add Up

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - A man who held seven people hostage with a mail-order submachine gun during a 13-hour siege surrendered today after complaining to authorities about "the little things that are driving me up the wall."

Police said Robert Gibson, 33, a computer programmer, turned over the .45-caliber semiautomatic Thompson submachine gun he had purchased from a catalogue and left the clubhouse of an east side computer complex with officers late this morning.

No one was injured, but police said several bursts from the weapon were fired inside the clubhouse, shattering doors and windows.

The SDN Column

Public lands have disappeared, despite those advertisements you see occasionally which promise to clue you in on bargains.

"The blunt truth is that the days of homesteading are over," says the Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration.

According to the U.S. Department of the Interior's Bureau of Land Management, by 1976, Americans had been granted or sole 287,500,000 acres of public land under the Homestead Act of 1862. This Act has been repealed for all states, except Alaska.

The Homestead Act will continue in Alaska until 1986, but not until after the land has been divided among Alaskan natives, the state and various federal agencies. So, it will be several years before any land up there opens up, if there is any left and it ever does.

They say that some public lands are sold occasionally but most of it goes at prices higher than comparable private land in the same area, and none is sold for less than fair market value.

So, the days of cheap, or free federal land are gone. But what about the free lunch?

Here's another modern fable.

A welfare beneficiary "borrowed" a large smoked ham from a farmer's smokehouse without telling the farmer. In town, he sold the ham to a local grocer for $27 cash.

Then he went to the post office and with $20 was able to "buy" $80 worth of USDA food stamps.

Back at the grocer's, he bought the ham back for $30 worth of stamps, and also $50 worth of groceries and snacks.

Being honest, he returned the "borrowed" ham to the farmer, still had $7 cash in his pocket and a pantry full of food and snacks.

This could be a funny story, until you start trying to figure out who finally paid for this scheme. And you must start thinking about who dreams up such schemes which take from the haves so that the have-nots may have, too. One trouble we see, and perhaps you do also, is keeping this year's haves from becoming next year's have-nots.

Stenholm Takes A Narrow Lead

Charles Stenholm, Stamford farmer, bolted out to a surprising lead for Omar Burleson's seat in Congress as the 17th District headed for a runoff.

Unofficial returns from all 33 counties in the district, including seven incomplete, had Stenholm with 33,763 votes to give him a narrow lead over Abilene attorney Dusty Rhodes, who had 31,033 votes.

Jim Baum, Big Spring radio man, was third on the field of seven candidates with 15,660. Four other candidates trailed.

Stenholm battled Rhodes on virtually even terms in Abilene and Taylor County, Rhodes' home, and picked up considerable strength in many of the rural counties in the sprawling district which extends nearly all the way to the Red River North of Dallas.

The top two candidates will battle it out in a June runoff for the Democratic Party nomination to succeed Omar Burleson who decided to retire at the end of his present term. Burleson had declined to endorse a candidate in the race.

A spokesman in Rhodes' Abilene headquarters said at 1:30 a.m. that Rhodes still expected to take the lead when all returns are in. At that time, two large boxes in Snyder were still out and the Rhodes forces expected to pick up some ground in them. Also, it was reported that Rhodes had carried Wise County, which the spokesman said was unexpected.

Play Second In State UIL Competition

Snyder High School's one-act play came close but didn't quite capture its third state championship in a row.

Newman Smith High School of Carrollton placed first in Class AAA with its presentation of "Alice in Wonderland."

The Snyder cast's presentation of "The Corn Is Green" placed second in the state University Interscholastic League contests Friday in Austin.

Marca Parham of Snyder was named best actress in the state contest, while Robby Moore was named to the all-star cast and Nell Sears received honorable mention.

Homefolks will have an opportunity to see the play Tuesday night in the SHS auditorium, with curtain time set for 8 p.m.

Parimutuel Proposal Goes Down

DALLAS (AP) - Apparently fearful of organized crime influence, early vote returns Saturday night indicated that Texans were turning down a proposal to legalize parimutuel betting at racetracks.

Tabulations at 10:30 p.m. showed Democrats opposing parimutuel wagering by a vote of 127,190 to 82,524, while Republicans were a little closer with 11,613 against and 10,566 for parimutuel wagering.

Vote counting was slow because of a long and complex Democratic ballot, but the trend against parimutuel betting was quickly established.

Proposal Defeated

WASHINGTON (AP) - Only four senators were on the floor when Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., introduced a proposal to require that at least 25 be present for the Senate to conduct business. But there were 64 present Friday when the proposal was voted on.

The proposal was defeated, 48 to 16.

Thompson, Wilson Holding To Leads

Returns at 2:30 a.m. today (Sunday) from Scurry County's Democratic Primary election indicated that County Treasurer Billy Wayne Thompson had been renominated and that County Judge Preston Wilson was on his way to re-election.

Runoffs were set up for both county commissioners posts up for election this year. Incumbent Hassie Sneed led the field of three in Precinct No. 2, but faced a runoff against Buck Woolever. Sneed received 252 votes and Woolever got 169, according to the unofficial returns from all boxes in that precinct. A third candidate, Ernest Shifflett, had a total of 68 votes.

In commissioner's Precinct No. 4, where incumbent Jess Everett did not seek re-election, Ted Billingsley led the field with 571 votes, but faced a runoff with Hollis Ward who garnered 342 votes. Roy Cole polled 133 and Rudolph Norwood collected 106 votes.

Boxes 15 and 18 in Snyder, two of the larger precincts were still incomplete at 2:30 a.m.

The vote in those two boxes will determine whether Dan Callaway will win without a runoff in the race for justice of the peace in Precinct No. 1. Callaway had 1,126 votes, while Janet Hall had 583 and Lesley B. Shelburne had 474 in the incomplete returns.

Thompson had 1,956 votes to win over Mrs. Florine Merritt with 817 votes in the county treasurer's race.

Wilson's margin was smaller in the county judge's race. He had 1,541 votes, compared to 1,233 for Bobby Goodwin. The two outstanding boxes could change those figures, but the trend toward a narrow margin for Wilson endured throughout the early ballot-counting.

The incomplete Scurry County returns gave Charles Stenholm a narrow lead over Dusty Rhodes in the race for Congressman for the 17th District. Stenhold had 981 votes, while Rhodes had 924. Others in the race included Jim Baum with 474, Fike Godfrey with 144, Crews McCulloch with 82, Jim Sharp with 64 and Jim Snowden with 36.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe had the lead in Scurry County over John Hill. Briscoe had a total of 1,421 in the partial returns, while Hill had 1,078.

Mark White led in the attorney general's race, with 1,549 votes and Price Daniel Jr. had 1,059.

Reagan Brown was far out front in Scurry County in the race for commissioner of agriculture. Brown got 1,620 votes in the partial count, while Joe Hubenak got 472 and Don G. Sewell had 394.

Scurry County voters also were opposing both proposals submitted on referendums. The interest rate referendum got only 84 favorable votes and 1,244 votes in opposition in the first 10 boxes tabulated in the county. The 10-box total for the parimutuel wagering referendum showed 529 votes for and 872 votes against.

African Raids To Be Avenged

UNITED NATIONS (AP)-Namibian guerillas will avenge South Africa's raid on their bases in Angola in which "hundreds of women, children and elderly" civilians were killed, their leader warns.

"This barbaric act will not go unpunished and let me assure you we know where South African women and children live," Sam Nujoma of the South-West African People's Organization said Friday.

Liquor Proposal Up For Voter Decision Monday

Voters in the City of Snyder will go back to the polls Monday for their second round of voting in two days.

Up for a decision is a proposal to legalize the sale of alcoholic beverages for off-premises consumption within the city limits.

Polling places will be in the five county voting boxes within the city.

Voters in Box 1, Northeast Snyder, will vote in the north side of the coliseum; Box 15, South Snyder, in the school administration building; Box 17, Northwest Snyder, in the city hall; Box 18, Southwest Snyder, in the El Paso Avenue fire station; and Box 20, Southeast Snyder, in the south side of the coliseum.

All of the polling places were used in Saturday's Democratic Primary, except Box 18, which used the junior high school Saturday. It will return to the fire station across the street for the liquor election.

Both proponents and opponents of the proposal to legalize the sale of liquor have carried on active campaigns, and a heavy voter turnout is expected. The polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 7 p.m.

It will be the 17th time the wet-dry issue has been presented to voters in the county since it was created in 1886.

Clements Is Easy Winner

By JOHN HOTARD
Associated Press Writer

State Attorney General John Hill pulled slowly ahead of incumbent Dolph Briscoe in their fight for the Texas Democratic gubernatorial nomination as late but inconclusive returns came in Saturday night. On the Republican side Dallas businessmen Bill Clements won going away over former state party chairman Ray Hutchison.

Hill's lead was substantial enough at one point to avoid a runoff

U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger piled up a lead over Joe Christie in the Democratic race for U.S. Senate. The winner will meet incumbent Republican John Tower, unopposed in his primary.

Former Secretary of State Mark White, running for his first statewide elective office, forged well ahead of former House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. in the Democratic nominating race for attorney general. The victor goes against Republican candidate Jim Baker, who was unopposed.

Former Gov. Preston Smith ran far behind Hill and Briscoe in his bid for a comeback. Ray Allen Mayo led Donald Beagle for the fourth and fifth spots.

On the question of parimutuel betting, in the form of a non-binding referendum, Democrats defeated it while Republicans approved it.

The counting went very slow at the Texas Election Bureau throughout the night due to a very long ballot.

Hill told happy supporters shortly after 11 p.m.:

"It looks very much like we have enough votes to go over the top. I feel like we have it won. We are pleased that in many counties we ran ahead of our projections."

Krueger would not claim victory but said the vote "looked terribly good."

Clements got 39 votes for governor, while Ray Hutchison and Clarence Thompson received three votes each, according to complete, unofficial returns.

The vote on the parimutuel betting referendum was 24 for and 27 against. Two other referendums carried. Scurry Republicans favored naming national nominating convention delegates in their primary election by a vote of 33-15, and they approved a proposal to limit the amount of taxes that can be levied by state and local governments, 41-8.

Republican candidates running without opposition included Sen. John Tower who received 47 votes; Gaylord Marshall for lieutenant governor, 45 votes; Jim Baker for attorney general, 38 votes, and James Lacy for railroad commissioner, 38 votes.

In Congressional Races...

Candidates Kept On Edge By Slow Count

DALLAS (AP) — Candidates racing for the right to carry the Texas banner in the U.S. House of Representatives were kept on edge Saturday night as primary election results trickled in without much impact.

At stake were seats belonging to some old and new state power brokers who chose to quit the House because of old age, ill health or ambition.

Some 152 years of experience, two committee chairmanships and three subcommittee top spots were lost with retirement announcements by Reps. W.R. "Bob" Poage, Omar Burleson, George Mahon and Olin "Tiger" Teague.

Former Rep. Bob Krueger ran successfully for the Democratic nomination to take on Republican Sen. John Tower in November, and Rep. Barbara Jordan decided to end her House career because of "personal" reasons.

Those vacancies created spotlight congressional battles, and Democratic contenders to those offices flocked in to file.

In those races, the only one that showed much disparity in numbers was in the District 19 contest for the office of Mahon, the dean of the Texas delegation and the House. Kent Hance led evangelist Morris Sheets by more than 2-1. Republicans targeted this race as one of their "best bets," but GOP ballots were also being tallied slowly.

Teague backed former aide Chet Edwards in his District 6 contest, and Edwards held a slight lead over co-favorite Phil Gramm.

Poage's 11th District seemed between former state Rep. Lane Denton and banker Marvin Leath, who trailed Denton by about 2,000 votes with only two counties reporting complete results.

Burleson's big 17th District saw a horse race, with Stamford farmer Charles Stenholm leading A.L. "Dusty" Rhodes by a scant 400 votes.

Another mammoth district, the 21st that used to belong to Krueger, saw favorite Nelson Wolff leading Hondo Mayor Woodrow Glasscock by less than 2,000 ballots, but only eight of the 32 counties involved were reporting complete figures.

With only 21 of 498 precincts reporting in Miss Jordan's 18th District, State Rep. Mickey Leland of Houston held an inconclusive 90-vote lead over his closest opponent.

In the Corpus Christi District 14, troubled Rep. John Young had a mere 300-vote lead over Joe Wyatt.

Rep. Bob Gammage was ahead comfortably in District 22 and appeared headed for another duel with Ron Paul, who waited in the wings without opposition.

Kiker Jr., 311 to 219 for commissioner in Precinct No. 2, and Aubrey Chandler won over Jeff Simmons, the incumbent, by 573 to 436 in the race for justice of the peace in Precinct No. 1.

Geneva Perkins, the incumbent, received 969 votes for county clerk, but will be in a runoff with Lunette Goforth, who received 675 votes. Patsy Neeper, the third candidate in that race received 349 votes.

Inez Pullig Stephens, the incumbent, won over Tom Collins, 1,035 to 928 for county treasurer.

In the congressional race, Stenholm received 827 votes, Jim Baum 684, Dusty Rhodes 375, Fike Godfrey 76, Jim Snowden 27, Jim Sharp 22 and Crews McCulloch 14. Bob Krueger got 1,042 votes for U.S. Senator to lead Joe Christie with 555. John Hill led the Fisher voting for governor with 1,116 votes, compared to 828 for Dolph Briscoe, and Mark White, with 1,118 votes, led Price Daniel Jr. for Attorney General, with Daniel getting 708.

Fisher voters were opposed to the interest rate proposal by 1,413 to 125 and the parimutel betting proposal by 908 to 853.

Brown Wins Clerk Race In Borden

GAIL — Borden County Democrats nominated a new clerk and a new county commissioner in Saturday's primary election.

Dorothy Brown defeated Doris Rudd, the incumbent, in the county and district clerk's race by 206 to 191, while Commissioner Van York in Precinct No. 4, was defeated by Ed Rinehart, 70-59, based on complete, unofficial returns.

These were the only two contested local races.

Borden voters favored Bob Krueger over Joe Christie for the U.S. Senate, by 201 to 136, and gave Gov. Dolph Briscoe a 182 to 164 edge over John Hill in the governor's race.

In the 18th Congressional District, Dusty Rhodes got 178 votes, Charles Stenholm 75, Jim Baum 67, Jim Sharp 12, Jim Snowden 6 and Crews McCulloch 4.

White Collar Crime Cost Soars

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a House subcommittee says the government doesn't devote enough of its time and resources to the problem of white collar crime. Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., says while collar crime cost the public $44 billion last year and therefore will be the target of an extensive congressional investigation starting next month.

Mary Ann Mobley of Brandon, Miss., was named Miss America in 1959.

Krueger Captures Demo Nomination For Senate

DALLAS (AP) — U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger used his well-financed and well-organized campaign to roll over Joe Christie in the Democratic primary Saturday night and emerge as his party's November challenger to Republican incumbent Sen. John Tower.

The 11 p.m. tabulation of the Texas Election Bureau gave Krueger 205,222 votes and Christie 155,738.

Tower, 52, the first Republican since Reconstruction to be elected to a statewide office, had no opposition in his party's primary.

The 17-year incumbent has spent most of his time in Washington, building a hefty, multi-million dollar campaign war chest of his own and watching a campaign slugfest between Krueger and Christie.

A Shakespearean scholar, former college dean and two-term congressman, Krueger, 42, rode the crest of an expensive, last-minute media blitz to victory over Christie, former chairman of the State Insurance Board.

With 106 of 254 counties reporting, nine complete, Krueger had 75,092 votes to 58,627 for Christie.

Krueger, scion of a rich New Braunfels family, was elected to Congress in 1974. He quickly became recognized as the champion of the oil and gas industry, particularly for natural gas deregulation.

Christie, a former state senator from El Paso, struggled through the campaign with money problems. He charged that Krueger was the tool of the major oil companies and pumped gasoline in service stations across Texas to dramatize his sympathy for consumers.

Labor groups and liberal Democrat organizations endorsed Christie, 46, a lawyer.

Both men have opposed repeal of so-called right-to-work laws but sharply differed over the controversial Panama Canal treaties.

Beach Wins Clerk Post In Mitchell

COLORADO CITY — Joan Beach defeated Incumbent Marie Bassham by 1,369 to 605 in the Mitchell County Clerk's race and Mitchell County Democrats gave front-runners Bob Krueger and Charles Stenholm leads in the races for U.S. Senate and Congress in Saturday's primary election.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe was favored by Mitchell County Democrats, receiving 986 votes to 839 for John Hill. Krueger got 1,108 votes, while Joe Christie received 649 in the Senate race. Stenholm polled 710 votes in the race for Congress, with Jim Baum receiving 598 and Dusty Rhodes 389.

Mark White got 1,256 votes for Attorney General, to more than double Price Daniel Jr., who got 617.

In the interest rate referendum, the vote was 105 for and 1,510 against, and the parimutuel betting proposal was opposed by a vote of 1,091 to 677.

Incumbent Robert Bruce and Bill Preston will be in a runoff for commissioner in Precinct No. 4. Preston received 200 votes, Bruce 198 and George Lee, the third candidate in the race, got 76 votes.

The comedian claims he never authorized the biography.

A stipulated settlement signed by Judge William Conner was filed Friday in U.S. District Court at Manhattan.

Under its terms, the publishers will mail letters recalling copies of "Woody Allen-A Biography," which Drake started marketing April 1.

Suspect Is Arrested In Exposure Case

A 17-year-old suspect has been arrested after allegedly exposing himself to a 7-year-old girl.

Police investigators Lt. Jim Saunders and Johnny Hedges said the suspect allegedly stepped from the door of his residence while the girl was walking by and exposed himself to her.

The incident is alleged to have taken place between April 17 and April 21 at a residence in South Snyder, police said, but it was not reported to them until Thursday.

The suspect was arrested early Friday afternoon and booked on a charge alleging indecency with a child. He was released after posting a $1,500 bond.

In other police investigations, officers reported they took into custody a suspect in connection with the alleged April 14 theft of a stereo from Western Texas College student Mario Gonzales.

The suspect, they said, was taken into custody and questioned, but not formally arrested. The stereo was recovered, officers reported, but no charges are expected to be filed in the case.

Police also reported questioning three children under 10 years of age about an April 15 window breaking on 40th St.

The youngsters are alleged to have broken six windows at the 2107 40th St. house, officers said. The parents of the children were also contacted, the officers added, and, again, no charges will be filed.

The geographic area of Andora is 180 square miles, half the size of New York City.

Flood Damage At $210 Million

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Preliminary estimates of damage by flash floods this week in Orleans, Jefferson and St. Bernard parishes total a minimum of $210 million, city and suburban officials say.

Four persons died in the floods caused by 10½ inches of rain Wednesday in New Orleans and 4 to 8 inches in surrounding areas.

Mayor Ernest N. Morial of New Orleans estimated flood damage inside the city at $129.4 million.

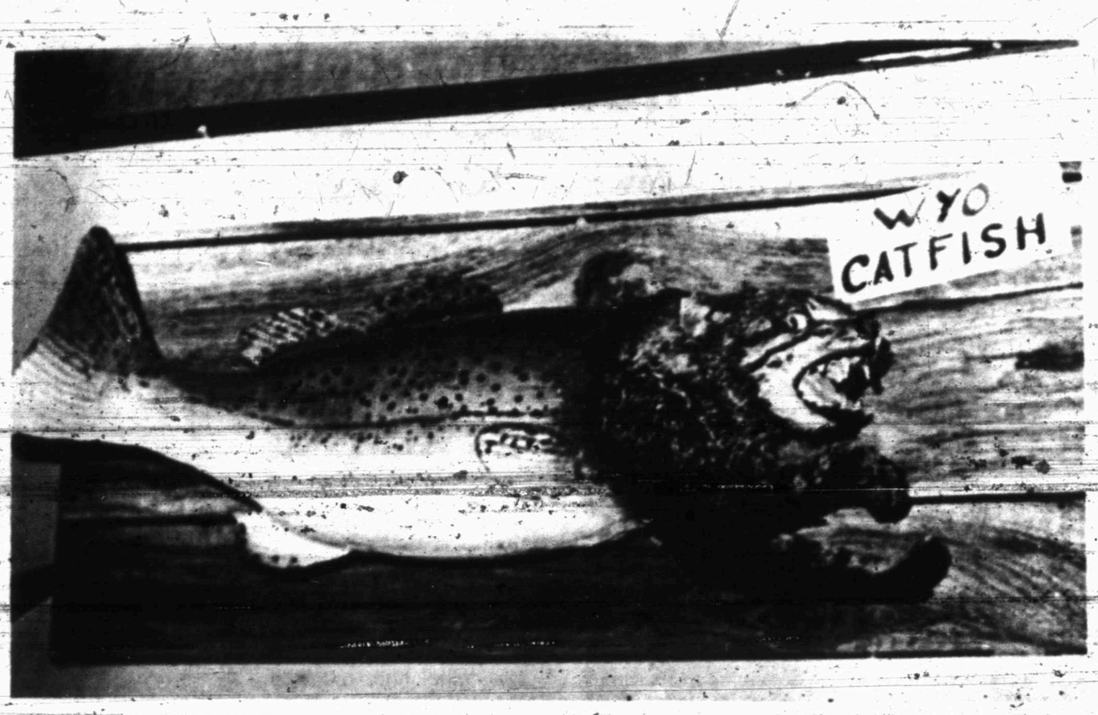

Jefferson Parish officials put a $68 million figure on their damages.

In St. Bernard Parish the estimate was $10 million to $12 million.

Morial figured $71.5 million damage to homes $10,000 each to 71,500 homes, $10,000 in damages to 100 trailer houses, $38 million to 7,600 business, $4.4 million to public schools, $15 million to medical facilities, $1.3 million to utilities, and $50,000 to streets.

In Jefferson, nearly all of the damage estimates covered homes about 30,000 of which suffered some kind of flood damage.

In St. Bernard Parish, an estimated 1,500 to 2,000 homes were damaged.

Deadlock Ends Waddill Trial

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) - The abortion-related baby murder trial of Dr. William Waddill ended in a 7-5 deadlock with jurors torn by doubts over the meaning of brain death.

A majority of the jurors favored acquitting Waddill, and even those who voted for conviction conceded that they never believed the doctor had strangled the baby as the prosecution contended.

"I didn't give any consideration to that," the jury foreman John Thomas, told reporters after a mistrial was declared late Friday.

Instead, the jury deadlocked on the question of whether Waddill, 42, a prominent obstetrician, was guilty of murder "by omission" - the failure to try hard enough to save a baby who briefly survived a saline abortion attempt.

There was never any question over the legality of the March 2, 1977, abortion itself.

As the deadlock was announced in the hushed courtroom of Superior Court Judge James K. Turner, Waddill's wife, Janet, wept.

Waddill, whose $500,000-a-year practice was the largest in populous Orange County before his arrest, said he hoped he would have a second trial.

"I'm going to clear my name one way or the other in this case," he said.

Turner set a hearing for May 15 on whether a new trial would be sought. Deputy District Attorney Robert Chatterton said a decision had not been made on the question of re-prosecuting Waddill.

The doctor's attorneys, Charles Weedman and Dr. Malbour Watson, saw the deadlock as a victory and indicated that they would oppose a second trial.

"We feel he has been exonerated," said Weedma. "This was originally a case of manual strangulation, and the jury rejected that."

The jury foreman said that, at first, the panel was divided 9-3 for conviction.

Then, the issue of brain death was interjected, and the voting flip-flopped to 9-3 for acquittal.

The seventh and last vote, taken moments before the mistrial, was 7-5 for acquittal.

"The final definition of death given to us in jury deliberation was important," said Thomas. Had it come earlier, he said, "I think it would have changed the entire case."

Voluntary Restraint Ideas In Spotlight

By KRISTIN GOFF
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - The White House "voluntary" wage and price restraint program, aimed at controlling inflation by persuading business and labor to do their part, has come up with some interesting ideas lately on who should be taking the wage bite.

Barry Bosworth, who as director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability is the president's chief anti-inflation jawboner, has suggested, for instance, that top corporate officers should be asked to make sacrifices along with unions.

If they followed the suggested guideline of holding to a 5 percent increase in compensation this year, that would mean that Henry Ford II, chairman to Ford Motor Co., would have to toe the line at just $1,041,600 in 1978.

Steven J. Ross, the chairman of Warner Communications, would be limited to $,1039,500 if his salary and bonus increases were limited to just 5 percent of this year's compensation. And Harold S. Geneen, chairman of International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. would have to squeeze by on $1,035,300.

While Bosworth promised to seek wage restraint from corporate executives and such professionals as doctors and dentists, where fees have been going up about 9 percent a year, he made it clear that the real success of failure of the administration's voluntary anti-inflation plan would depend on labor unions that represent millions of workers.

Among the most crucial, he said, would be the "high visibility" unions representing truckers, steel and auto workers and railroad employees. They would have to cut back on the 9 percent annual increases that have been in some contracts in recent years, he said.

In other business developments this past week:

-The unemployment rate dropped to 6 percent in April for the first time in 3½ years, the government reported. The Labor Department said the number of people who had jobs rose by 535,000, bringing the workforce to 93.8 million. But the government said about one quarter of the increase represented striking coal miners returning to work.

-Food prices continued to climb at a sharp pace at the wholesale level, and that is likely to mean increases at the grocery store within a fairly short time. The consumer goods sector of the wholesale price index climbed at a seasonally adjusted rate of 1.9 percent, up sharply from 0.8 percent the previous month. Over-all wholesale prices of finished goods rose 1.3 percent, the largest jump in more than three years.

Hunt Says Nixon Should Share Profits

MIAMI (AP) - Richard M. Nixon should donate any profits from his memoirs to the people who suffered shame and financial loss because of the Watergate scandal, says convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt.

But Hunt admitted Friday that he doesn't really expect the former president to share the money that he will earn from his book, "RN: the Memoirs of Richard Nixon."

"I think it would be very well received by the American public were Mr. Nixon to use his enormous book and TV profits to alleviate the financial distress of those who suffered shame, imprisonment and loss of employment because of him," Hunt said. "At the same time, I think it would be unrealistic to expect him to do so."

Hunt said he thought Nixon's "windfall profits" should go to the four Miami men who were captured inside the Democratic National Committee offices in the Watergate complex.

Major Problems Unsolved...

Vance Says Mexico Trip Valuable

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

PUERTO VALLARTA, Mexico (AP) - Secretary of State Cyrus Vance leaves Mexico today with the major problems in U.S.-Mexican relations unsolved after two days of talks. But Vance says his trip to Mexico was valuable nonetheless.

"Even though there exist differences, the general state of relations is excellent," Vance said Friday in a joint statement with Mexican Foreign Minister Santiago Roel.

Roel played host to Vance and his wife Grace at a seaside villa here, but the diplomats reported little progress after their discussion of energy problems, illegal aliens and drug traffic.

Differences over natural gas pricing didn't even come up. Mexico has a growing surplus of gas that it would like to sell to the United States through a $1.4 billion pipeline now under construction from southern Mexico to the Texas border.

But Mexico insists on a price of $2.70 per thousand cubic feet, a price pegged to the world price of domestic producers and the State Department made it clear it would not discuss a higher price while the battle in Congress continues.

The Vance-Roel statement called the flow of illegal Mexican workers across the border a "grave problem." Carter proposals are aimed at keeping new illegal aliens from coming to the United States. Mexico, on the other hand, would like to see migrants employed temporarily in the U.S., but Carter has promised organized labor in the U.S. that he will not allow it.

So the negotiators agreed only to share the results of surveys and studies of migrant workers being conducted on both sides of the border.

Mexico did have something new to offer in the area of drug control. Under the agreement, Mexico will provide helicopters to help eradicate marijuana and opium poppy fields.

Area Wrestlers In New Movie

West Texas wrestling fans can see some of their favorite faces flash across the silver screen with that of film star Sylvester Stallone of "Rocky" fame in a four million dollar movie to be released in December, according to Don Slatton.

Slatton, known to his fans as the "Lawman" is a wrestle. and wrestling promoter who returned from Hollywood recently where he had a small part in Stallone's latest production "Paradise Alley".

Stallone rose to stardom in his Oscar winning movie, "Rocky," which he wrote and starred in as a small time boxer who got a shot at the world's title.

West Texas regulars Terry Funk and Dick Murdock also perform their sport in Stallone's latest effort which Slatton says is the "best movie ever made about wrestling."

The movie is about the wrestling game as it takes place in a sleazy bar called Paradise Alley in an infamous section of New York City known as Hell's Kitchen in the 1940's. Stallone plays one of three brothers who are trying to make the big time. He and a crippled brother manage the third brother through a series of grueling matches in a dingy smoke filled back room arena. They finally work their way up to a match with "Franky the Thumper" played by Terry Funk, former world heavyweight champion.

Slatton says the wrestling footage is the best he has ever seen. "It captures the gruesome struggles an aspiring wrestler must make in what is undoubtably the roughest sport in the world."

Slatton was also impressed with the movie making process. "Those make up men took a clean cut looking young man (Lee Catalito) and in five minutes made him look like a beat up old wrestler complete with cauliflower ears."

Slatton said he enjoyed working with Stallone and was amazed at his instant acceptance. "For the three days I was there filming my wrestling scenes, Sly (Stallone) treated me like he had known me all his life. We and all the other wrestlers were always clowning around between takes and sometimes during takes."

He recalls one scene where Murdock, who plays a wrestler called "The Death Threat", was supposed to hit Catalito in the side of the head with a real smasher. "Of course he was supposed to simulate the punch so he only hit him with a forearm on the top of the shoulder. He clobbered him so hard that it sent him and Stallone, who was standing beside him, sprawling. Stallone jumped up screaming don't hit the stars, don't hit the stars, I have a million dollars worth of equipment to take care of the special effects so please don't hit the stars!"

Slatton said he was surprised to find that in real life Stallone is much smaller than he appears on the screen. "Of course I'm in a profession with giants but Stallone sure looked small beside Terry Funk and Dirty Dick (Murdock).

Stallone, according to People Magazine, is 5'10" and weighs 185. He is still heavier than normal. He is in the process of losing the 35 pounds he gained for a part in his current movie "F.I.S.T."

Slatton related his story while in Snyder promoting the wrestling matches Monday night when Harley Race will defend his world heavy weight title against Ricky Romero in the Scurry County Coliseum.

To conserve water, avoid buying clothing that must be laundered separately, advises Marlene Odle-Kemp, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

HEALTH TIP from DEAN

A 16 year study of 3000 longshoremen found the death rate from coronary heart attacks was 1-3 higher among sedentary workers than among those who handled the cargo. Heavy cigarette smoking created even higher risk of premature heart attacks than the sedentary life. The sendentary longshoremen expended 925 fewer calories per day than the cargo handlers, which suggests a reduced diet in calories for the sedentary workers.

Powder Puff Game Slated Wednesday

The annual senior girls Powder Puff Football Game will be held 5:30 p.m. Wednesday. The game, designed to raise funds for the high school senior class, was changed from last week when wind and rains swept the Snyder area.

Tickets for the contest, held at Tiger Stadium, may be purchased from players or at the gate, and sell for $1 each.

The game reverses the male-female roles of player and cheerleader, and has been one of the most successful fund raising projects of past years for the class.

Womack Falls In Semi-Finals

...Despite Good Effort

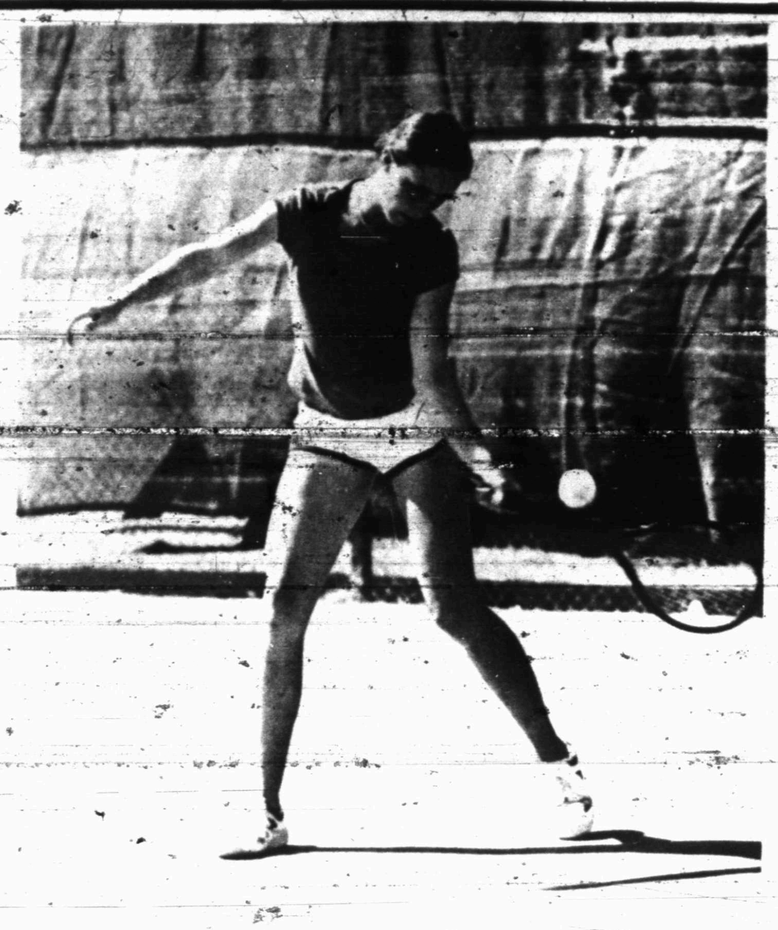

AUSTIN - Margaret Womack, the first girl from Snyder to ever reach the state tennis finals, ripped her first round opponent 6-0, 6-0 here Friday but was unable to overcome New Braunfels' Pam Septree in semi-final action.

Miss Womack, champion of District 3-AAA and Region I, rolled past Jean Hoover of College Station in straight sets early Friday morning. She then posted a good effort in the semi-final match but came up short against Septree.

Miss Septree, who recently moved to the states from Australia and reportedly works out six hours each day, defeated the Snyder star 6-4, 7-6; winning the last set on a 5-1 tie breaker.

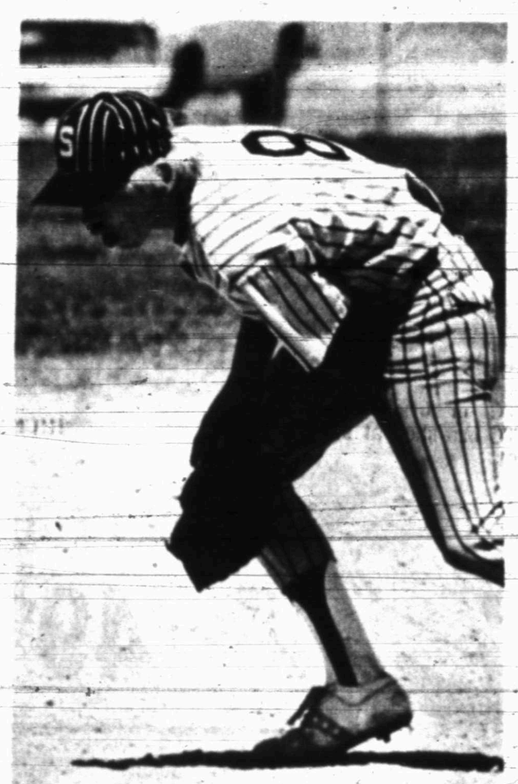

Saturday's action promised to be an exciting event, pitting Miss Septree against Pam Hill of Beaumont, who will be searching for a third consecutive girls singles crown.

Snyder will have a second shot at bringing home a championship trophy next weekend when its boys doubles team of Zane Sterling and Jay Wesson appear here. The duo managed the runner-up spot at district, but knocked off the top seed in later action to grab the regional crown.

Brownfield Edges Snyder, 4-3

EVERTON SNARES IT - Sid Everton, Tiger infielder-sometimes outfielder (not to mention pitcher) grabs a grounder, steps on second and hurls it towards first base as Snyder battled the Cubs in Brownfield Saturday. Despite some good fielding by the Cats, Brownfield came away with a 4-3 victory. See related story, this page. (SDN Staff Photos By Bill McClellan)

BROWNFIELD - An extra-innings run off of Duane Sales' fly into deep center kept Brownfield's title hopes alive here Saturday in District 3-AAA baseball competition.

The blast, after Kelly Reid had walked and David Harrell singled, gave the Cubs a 4-3 eighth-inning victory and put their round-two district record at 2-2. Snyder stands at 3-1, and could have clinched the title with a win, but it was not to be.

Should Brownfield win its final two ball games and Snyder lose as many, the Cubs will sport a second-round effort of 4-2; good enough for a share of the title. Snyder won the first round, and needs only a tie in the second round to take the league crown overall. The Tigers could do that with a victory over Lamesa Monday.

Snyder had its chances here Saturday. The last year's champs counted nine men left on the bases when the game was over, but never managed to get the right hits to bring them in.

Brownfield opened up the scoring in the second inning as David Harrell singled off of starting pitcher Sid Everton. An error at first base secured Ricky Romero on base moments later and Mark Dodson walked to set up the barage of scores. Cub pitcher Roy Lee Tealer walked next, and Raul Romero slapped a single as Brownfield opened with three runs.

Snyder countered in the third inning when David Lee, shortstop, received a free walk on a wild pitch by Tealer. Richard Crayton and Alvin Ollison both singled, and Tracy Witherspoon - continuing his string of safe-hit games - drilled a hard double to light up the Tiger's scoreboard. Witherspoon, all-district catcher, has now hit safely in 19 straight games.

The game stayed deadlocked through the seventh inning until Sales' sacrifice scored the winning run.

Snyder got men to third base in the fourth and sixth innings and to second in the fifth stanza but was never able to push a runner in.

Snyder fielding was highlighted by Everton's display at second base. The blonde-haired junior started on the mound for Snyder, but was relieved after the third inning by Mike Hicks. Hicks stood in for two innings then gave the hill to Mackey, who chalked only his second loss amidst nine wins.

Everton at one time during the contest snared a line drive, moving from his spot to the right of second base to an almost equal distance to the left of the bag to grab the streaker. He also accounted for one double play for the Tigers when he tagged a first-to-second base runner and then threw to first-bagger Crenwelge for the second out. Still another time, he combined with Witherspoon to catch an unaware Tealer off of second base for a clutch seventh-inning out.

The Tigers will play the Golden Tornadoes in Lamesa Monday at 2:30 p.m. and finish the season by hosting Brownfield at 4 p.m. Friday.

Denver 'Jumps' Past Seattle In Playoffs

DENVER (AP)-David Thompson hit three crucial jump shots in the final three minutes and the Denver Nuggets overcame foul problems to defeat the Seattle SuperSonies 116-107 Friday night in the opener of their National Basketball Association playoff series.

Game 2 in the Western Conference finals will be played here Sunday, with the next two contests scheduled for Seattle.

The Sonics, who fell behind by as much as 13 points early in the second half, kept things close by hitting 47 of 62 shots from the free throw line.

After Seattle guard Gus Williams connected on a pair of free throws with 3:37 left to cut Denver's lead to 102-98, Thompson scored high for a 16-foot jumper.

Thompson was called for goal tending at the opposite end of the court, but then hit two straight field goals and tacked on a free throw to give the Nuggets a 109-100 edge with 1:34 left.

Denver center Dan Issel, who scored eight of the Nuggets first 12 points in opening up the big third-quarter lead, paced Denver with 25 points despite picking up his fourth foul midway through the quarter and his fifth foul with six minutes to play.

Seattle center Marvin Webster, a former Nugget, took game honors with 28 points and forward John Johnson had 21.

76ers-Bullets

Meanwhile in Landover, Md., the Philadelphia 76-ers wowed the fans with a pregame dunk show and then flexed their awesome muscles when play began.

But the underdog Washington Bullets, playing a team game which even the 76ers recognized, scored a 123-108 victory Friday night and took a 2-1 lead in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference finals.

The 76ers shot only 37.8 percent while being outscored 48-34 in field goals.

Golf Camp Set Here In June

Registration is still open for the first annual Boys Golf Camp to be held at Western Texas College June 18-25.

Boys ages 11-18 will receive instruction in all phases of the game, including tee shot, fairway woods, iron play, short game and putting. Teaching will emphasize the simplified fundamentals of the golf swing.

Campers will have playing lessons of the recently opened WTC course, and will have access to the driving range and putting green. In addition, instructors will use films and study golfing rules and etiquette in the classroom.

Director of the camp will be Coach Bob O'Day. Since O'Day has been with the college WTC has sent a team or individual to the National Finals in golfing competition each year.

Assisting Coach O'Day will be Maxie Boles of Alexander City, Ala., Jerry Fairley of Lubbock, Jim Harlow of Abilene, Jerry Taylor of Phoenix, Ariz., A.B. Keith of Kerrville, Bob Young of Midland and Keith McCutchin of San Angelo.

Recreational facilities will be made available to the campers, and a tournament will be played at the end of the session with students competing in their own ability groups.

Tuition is $225, and includes housing in an air-conditioned dormitory, meals in the college cafeteria, insurance and awards.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Coach O'Day at WTC, or by calling the WTC pro shop at 915-573-9291.

Rose Slaps 3000th Hit!

CINCINNATI (AP)-Pete Rose wasn't ready for Hall of Fame talk.

"I'm not through yet," said the Cincinnati Reds' star after his latest milestone-a testimony to his toughmindedness.

With two singles off Montreal's Steve Rogers, baseball's all-time switch-hitter reached the 3,000 hit mark, a feat achieved by only 12 other major leaguers. Nine of them are already in the Hall of Fame and the other three-Henry Aaron, Willie Mays and Al Kaline - are surefire selections.

But Rose, 37, preferred talking about more seasons and more hits after 37,823 fans rocked Riverfront Stadium with standing ovations.

His most immediate goal?

"Another divisional title and a world championship. Winning the World Series two years in a row is still the greatest satisfaction," said the 11-time All-Star.

One golden milestone burns inside him: Stan Musial's National League record of 3,630.

"With a couple of strong seasons in the next 2-3 years, I can do it," said Rose, who has nine 200-hit seasons in his last 15 seasons. He and Musial both reached the 3,000 hit plateau in their 16th years.

The evening ended on a low note for Rose, who was plainly embarrassed to be interviewed on radio at home plate after the 4-3 loss to Montreal.

"Here at Cincinnati, we don't want to be on 'Star of the Game' if we lose," he said.

A day earlier, Rose predicted he would get the historic hit Friday night so he "wouldn't upstage the Kentucky Derby." Then, after getting his first hit-a high chopper back to the mound in the third inning-he called his shot in the fifth.

"The man knew he was going to get it," said Rogers, who scattered six hits while striking out 10.

Approaching the plate, he asked home plate umpire Jerry Dale to inspect the baseball.

"I knew it was going to be in the Hall of Fame and I wanted it to be clean. I wanted to be able to read Chub Feeney's name on it," he said, referring to the National League president, whose name is stamped on game balls.

Wrestling Set Monday Night

Wrestling returns to Scurry County Coliseum Monday night at 8 o'clock, featuring a main event for the World's Heavyweight Wrestling Championship.

The championship match will feature 260-pound Harley Race against Ricky Romero, billed as the "most popular wrestler ever to appear in Snyder."

Race "will be making his first appearance here Monday," a spokesman noted. "He is mean and rugged and will do anything to win a match. He took the title away from Terry Funk about a year ago in Canada and Romero has been waiting a long time for his chance at it."

The semi-final will pit Scott Casey against Mr. Pogo of Japan. Lord Jonathan Boyd and Roger Kirley will be going against Larry Kane and Teddy Di Biase in the third match, while the fourth series pits Hans Schroder against Rip Hawk.

The opening match will be Terry Garwin going against Berry Orton.

Tickets are on sale at the coliseum box office, and are $4 ringside, $3 adults, and $2 for children ages 3-11.

AN OPEN LETTER

TO SNYDER UPWARD,

"WET" PETITION SIGNEES,

AND CITIZENS WHO VOTE "WET."

AT THIS TIME, BEFORE THE ELECTION RESULTS ARE KNOWN, WE WISH TO EXPRESS OURSELVES ON SEVERAL ISSUES CONCERNING THE WET/DRY ELECTION.

FIRST, WE RECOGNIZE AND RESPECT YOUR RIGHT TO CALL THE ELECTION AND TO VOTE YOUR CONVICTIONS ON THE ISSUE. IT WILL BE A VERY SAD DAY, INDEED, IF WE EVER LOSE THE RIGHT TO EMPLOY THE DEMOCRATIC PROCESS IN OUR COMMUNITY.

SECOND, WE KNOW THAT SOME OF YOU, JUST AS SOME OF US, HAVE SUFFERED PERSONALLY AT THE HANDS OF A SMALL, IRRESPONSIBLE ELEMENT. WE WHO HAVE TAKEN THE PUBLIC LEAD IN THIS ELECTION HAVE RECEIVED "POISON PEN" LETTERS, HEATED PHONE CALLS, ETC... WE WISH TO PUBLICALLY APOLIZE FOR ANY OF OUR BACKERS WHO HAVE BEHAVED IN THAT WAY TOWARD ANY OF YOU. WE HAVE MADE DILIGENT EFFORTS TO KEEP THE INFLAMMATORY STATEMENTS, WHICH WOULD AROUSE THE "HATE" ELEMENT, OUT OF OUR ADVERTISEMENTS, AND WE APPRECIATE YOUR EFFORTS TO DO THE SAME.

FINALLY, WE BELIEVE IN COUNTING "HANDS," NOT "FACES," WHEN THE VOTE IS TAKEN ON MONDAY. IT TOOK ALL OF US TO MAKE SNYDER WHAT IT IS, AND IT WILL TAKE ALL OF US TO KEEP IT GOING AND GROWING, REGARDLESS OF THE OUTCOME OF THIS ELECTION.

SETTING THE ELECTION ITSELF ASIDE, WE WISH EACH OF YOU EVERY SUCCESS AND PROSPERITY.

Mrs. Jerry Nell Davis who has not completed her program has lost 20¾ pounds and 26 1/2 inches.

"The main thing about the program is that I have so much more energy than before. I feel so much better all over. I feel good when I wake up in the morning and when I go to bed whereas before I felt real draggy. I feel like when a woman looks good, she feels good, with weight off I do feel good. As for the nutritional program it is good for anyone - fat or skinny.

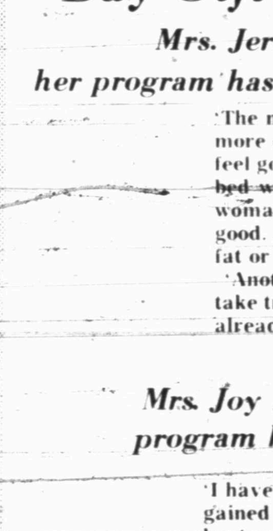

"Another thing is I don't dread going down to the salon to take treatments. I look forward to it because of what it has already done for me and will be doing for me.

Mrs. Joy Howell who is halfway thru her program has lost 36 pounds and 52 1/2 inches.

"I have been on a lot of diets before, got tired of them and gained the weight right back but with Pat Walker's I've kept my weight off. As for the nutritional program, it has been real easy for me to follow yet I know I probably could not have lost this weight on my own. Also, I feel better from the circulation and excersise. With a positive attitude and a determination that the program is going to work, it will work for you."

Mrs. Joan Halbert who has not completed her program has lost 25¼ pounds and 40¾ inches.

"I like the nutritional program because I have not had to buy special foods for myself but what I fix for myself, I can fix for my family too. The basic thing is not to expect the machine to do everything. It is a combination of the food program and the machine."

Mrs. Ford Returns Home

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP)-Former first lady Betty Ford was back home with her family today after nearly four weeks of hospitalization for addiction to alcohol and medicine.

A smiling Mrs. Ford left the Long Beach Naval Hospital near Los Angeles Friday afternoon for the two-hour drive to the Fords' home in this suburb of Palm Springs.

Former President Gerald Ford, who returned from a speaking tour Thursday, greeted his wife Friday, and the couple's four children were expected home during the weekend, said family spokesman Bob Barrett.

"She's back home and she's happy as can be," Barrett said.

Dr. Joseph Pursch, who heads the hospital's alcohol and drug rehabilitation center, said Mrs. Ford had done extremely well in the program. He said any medication she needed in the future would be prescribed in a tightly controlled manner.

For several years Mrs. Ford has suffered from painful arthritis and a pinched nerve. She was taking several prescription drugs, Barrett has said. The drugs were not identified.

Mrs. Ford entered the hospital April 10, and a few days later issued a statement saying: "I have found I am not only addicted to the medication I have been taking for my arthritis but also to alcohol."

Barrett has said Mrs. Ford will have to continue to deal with the addiction problem and is considering weekly or monthly group activities "to maintain that awareness."

Mrs. Ford, 60, was smiling broadly as she walked to a car waiting in front of the Navy hospital shortly before 4:30 p.m.

She did not talk to the more than three dozen reporters and photographers clumped behind rope barricades. But when asked how she felt, Mrs. Ford replied, "Just fine."

Wearing a tan dress and carrying a gold-wrapped package, Mrs. Ford paused briefly to wave and smile. A handful of spectators applauded softly.

Team Probes Disasters In Interest Of Safety

EDITOR'S NOTE–They're disaster experts, plowing through wreckage of every major airline crash, railroad derailment. Their job is to find the cause and from that, help prevent similar mishaps in the future. They're weak in number but their record is strong, this 200-man National Transportation Safety Board.

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Nothing stems the flow of the nation. Americans on the move. Not ticket lines, security frisks, costly gasoline, toll booths, blowouts, insurance. Not even death.

The log records 220 million airline passengers a year, 2.5 billion aircraft miles, 100 million cars traveling more than a trillion miles, seven million motorcycles for some of five Americans over 16 licensed to drive, 325,000 miles of railroad track, 28,000 locomotives, 1.7 million railroad cars.

The cost was more than 10,000 railroad accidents a year, more than 4,500 private airplane crashes, more than 44,000 dead on streets and highways, more than the mind can tolerate, and a potential for a lot more.

In the blur of coming and going with the detachment of a tennis pro who isolates the stroke from the game a crew of some 200 experts dissects the failure of metal and men in microscopic detail and examines the pathology of disaster, the autopsy of blame.

This is the staff of the National Transportation Safety Board, a creature of Congress. Its "Go-Teams" jet to the scene of crashes, explosions, derailments in hours.

They pick through the remains, the twisted metal, the human debris. They reconstruct what they can of the accident from aircraft tapes, skid marks, broken rails and ruptured pipe.

They plumb the horror in the eyes of witnesses, the dark sounds heard in the night; the jumbled events in the disorder of shock and memory. From this they patch together a high-speed vehicle from its trail of wreckage. They do this in the interest of safety, and the hope that the dead have a message for the living.

The dramatic improvement in domestic airline safety over the years is credited to investigations by this group that has earned the reputation of the world's best accident probers.

1976 was the safest year in airline history for U.S. airlines, only 28 accidents, four of them fatal. The death toll of 45 was the lowest since 1954 when 42 persons died in three fatal accidents. In 1977, the record was marred by the worst airline tragedy in history, the take-off collision of two 747s in the Canary Islands that killed 582. Board experts rushed to the scene and recreated the weird events that involved fog and misunderstood tower instructions.

Many of the dead, the board's experts found, would have lived if they had moved promptly to emergency exits. Instead they sat tight and burned in their seats.

It irks James King, board chairman, that people should accept the inevitability of accidental death and injury. He and other board members point to airplane safety as an example of what can be done. "I think now in safety it's second only to the intercity bus," King says.

King likens the fatalistic notion that accidents will happen with similar notions about proverty or disease. "That's nonsense. Nobody has to die of smallpox today. My father had diphtheria. I never had it. I had scarlet fever, mumps, whooping cough. Not one of my children did. We are not condemned to certain things."

The board is approaching new horizons, new hazards to test its capability. Prime among them are railroad derailments involving hazardous chemicals and highway deaths.

The railroads bring perils to smalltown America. Every day railroad cars full of dangerous cargo roll through a thousand downtowns. The potential for disaster in enormous.

In one February weekend, one of 24 derailed cars exploded in Waverly, Tenn., killing 12 and setting downtown afire; near Cades, Tenn., 24 cars and leaked lethal sodium hydroxide, forcing 100 people from their homes; and near Youngstown, Fla., another train derailed, spewing poisonous chlorine gas into the air, killing eight and sickening 67 others.

In the first two months of 1977, 10 derailments involving dangerous materials forced people from their homes from West Virginia to Michigan. There are some 7,000 derailments a year.

Board experts estimate that one-third of all U.S. railroad accidents are preventable by the use of current regulations and know-how.

King expects rails to have a renaissance, but that will mean whosesale repair of decaying road beds and track.

The solution might be to have the federal government take over maintenance of the right-of-way which railroads have ignored because of their financial condition. The railroads would be responsible for maintenance of their rolling stock.

In one rail accident in Florida, the release of dangerous materials could have been prevented, the board found, by installing extra metal shields on the front of tank cars, so that when coupling devices slip, the tank would not be punctured.

That could prevent 85 percent of the punctures at the cost of a few thousand dollars per tank car, King says. "No that isn't cheap I know, but looking at the Louisville & Nashville railroad accident in Pensacola, the cost was $800,000. They had to rebuild 12 miles of track... They haven't even settled the legal suits yet. By the time they finish, it's going to be astronomical."

King thinks the board can convince railroads that safety is more profitable than living with accidents.

Same thing for truckers. To meet overall length regulations, truck cabs are getting smaller and trailers longer. The cramped cabs add to driver fatigue. At the same time truck schedules argue against the 55 mph speed limit, and trucks are going faster.

"For every truck driver you hear killed, they kill 4 people in cars," King says with outrage. "The automobiles are getting smaller and the death toll is going to get higher."

The responsible federal agency is the Bureau of Motor Vehicle Safety, Department of Transportation. The board has oversight responsibility for the bureau, which has only 128 people to monitor the nation's vehicles.

"We started to issue a report saying you're not doing your job," King says. "Then we stopped. It wasn't fair. It's like me sending you down with a bucket into the hold of the Titanic and then telling you the ship sank because you didn't bail out fast enough."

Instead the board sent a supporting letter, promising to back a bureau request for more people.

The inequities of the road that lead to death aggravate King and other board members. King wonders if the board shouldn't pressure the Interstate Commerce Commission to get after trucking firms.

"Here's a corporation," he explains. "They put a truck on the road, a lease job. But they knew the truck. They never kept maintenance records because that would show primafacie evidence of neglect...The truck driver came over a hill and killed eight people, injured 27. His brakes failed. He's now in jail for 20 years on negligent homicide.

"But the guys who put him on the road, in the corporation, are all sitting back in the board room. That's wrong."

The ICC, King says, could keep track of trucking firms "and make sure they never pull that sort of business again."

He points to the pipeline construction in Alaska as a remarkable safety record under difficult weather and terrain situations. They hired bush pilots but they made them live by the safety book or get out.

"They flew more people, more dangerous materials in difficult weather, met their schedules and had an incredible safety record," King says. "Why. It was profitable to be safe."

When you're only 200-strong, King explains, you have to be selective. The board's experts, ranging from meteorologists to metallurgists, from old railroad men to pilots, investigate some 800 civil aviation accidents a year, some 400 railway accidents and various other catastropic surface events including highway, pipeline and marine incidents. It also reviews nearly 4,000 accident investigations by the Federal Aviation Administration.

The board can only recommend action, but with the weight of Congress behind it, its recommendations are generally followed by the agencies over which it has review-the FAA, the Coast Guard, the Federal Highway Administration, the Federal Railway Administration among them.

Prior Service Records Broken By TEC Office

The Sweetwater office of the Texas Employment Commission, which services a six-county area, has broken all previous records for services in a 60-day period and Snyder accounted for about a fourth of the activity, Anna K. Carman, office manager, has announced.

A total of 552 new work applications were taken, 405 work applications were renewed, and 300 were already active, which made a total of 1,257 applicants available for referral to jobs. Job referrals totaled 1,228, and 492 were hired by employers in the area.

The Northern Electric Company's new plant in Snyder and staffing of this plant has helped increase the total activity of the TEC office, said Ms. Carman. A total of 644 Specific Aptitude Tests were given for applicants for Northern Electric production jobs. Tests are still being scheduled weekly for this company as they plan to add another shift this month.

Holiday Rambler in Sweetwater also has accounted for much of the activity. It is in the process of expanding and will continue to add workers as they are available.

The Sweetwater TEC office has been contacted by a number of persons moving into the area from northern states and it continues to receive inquiries by telephone and by mail from families wishing to relocate in this area. The shortage of available housing is a factor in many instances which decides new applicants from coming to the area.

Ms. Carman said it becomes more difficult each month to locate available workers for employers who list jobs that require special skills. In most cases, workers are eventually located through clearance to other areas or public service announcements through local news media.

"At this point in time, it would be safe to say TEC can refer you to a job if you are willing to work and have a good work history," said Ms. Carman. There is no charge to applicants or employers for TEC services.

The Sweetwater TEC office serves Scurry, Mitchell, Nolan, Kent, Fisher and Stonewall Counties.

Early Weevil Control Program Moving Along

Scurry County cotton farmers will find yellow phermoone traps nailed to fence posts around their fields as the Scurry County Producers Association moves into a new system to control boll weevils.

The new approach depends on locating primary boll weevil over-wintering areas in the county. As soon as these areas are defined, early-season control measures can be applied, thus reducing the numbers and movement of the boll weevils.

An effective early season control program in combination with a fall diapause program is expected to reduce the number of weevils present the following year.

The yellow traps, which were being distributed the past week, will be checked weekly and the information gathered will indicate areas with high over-wintered weevil population.

During early June, a field scouting program will begin. Approximately eight scouts will be employed to check about 200 cotton fields throughout the county. The selection of the fields to be checked will be based on the data collected earlier from the traps.

Also, Extension Service personnel will inspect the various habitats surrounding each field to determine suitability for harboring over-wintered weevils. This information, together with data from other methods, is expected to help in locating the preferred over-wintering areas of the county.

4-H Youths In Regional Competition

Scurry County 4-H'ers competed with 500 area 4-H'ers throughout the District 2 area on Saturday. Scurry County had forty two residents on the Texas Tech Campus in Lubbock for competition.

Thirteen demonstrations were presented and two first place ribbons were brought home by Alex Castillo, poultry, of Hermleigh, and Rhonda Proctor in cooperatives of Snyder. Three red ribbon demonstrations were presented by Kelly Tolbert and Jeffery Gilbert, companion animals, Margaret Anderson and Jean Anderson, family life, and Dolly Riggins in public speaking, all of Snyder.

Three demonstrations receiving white ribbons in this tough competition included the share-the-fun group from Stanfield 4-H Club, Carrie Lynn Lieb, Bonnie Campbell, Kelli Hitchcock, Becky Natividad, Missy Trull, Melinda Overhulser, Kim Burton and Stacie Sellars, family resource management team, Janna Tate and Jayna Gilbert, and the poultry team of Snyder Junior 4-H Club, Cassandra Harrison and Letha Baldwin.

Those who received participant awards are Melinda Castillo, Kim Baldwin, Monica Becerra, Martha Beavers, Carmen Rios, Mary Garza, Belia Rocha and Elizabeth Medina.

Todman Is Not Being Eased Out

WASHINGTON (AP) - The State Department says Terence Todman, an assistant secretary of state, will soon be nominated as U.S. ambassador to Spain and is not in trouble with President Carter.

There had been reports that Todman was being eased out of his job because of opposition to Carter's human rights policy. But a State Department spokesman said Friday that Todman had agreed to take his current post for only a limited period.

Warm Days Bring Shoppers Out

WASHINGTON (AP) - Spring weather apparently did more than bring flowers into bloom. The Federal Reserve says warmer temperatures helped increase the number of people who went shopping in March, and that increased their installment debts by the largest amount in history.

Consumer installment debt outstanding rose by $4.07 billion in March, surpassing the average $2.54 billion gain in the first two months, the government said. The increase was the biggest since a record $2.97 billion increase in March 1977 after another severe winter.

'BRIGHT TO LIGHT - Flower arrangements of all types and in all colors were prepared by students in a Western Texas College Community Services flower-arranging course as a final project. Displaying their arrangements are (left to right) Kay Hensley, Sherry Kidd, Frances Billingsley and Billie Cannon. Mrs. Cannon's arrangement has a special sentimental value since it was planned around the ornament from a wedding cake.

UNDER GLASS - Fern Beard, left, and Kathy Wellborn show their arrangements to the class instructor, Cindy McAnally. Mrs. Beard arranged petite blue and yellow silk blossoms around a ceramic bluebird and will cover the arrangement with a glass dome. Miss Wellborn framed miniature arrangements of dried materials and butterflies for wall hanging. Community Services courses are offered throughout the year by WTC and persons wishing to arrange a course or to receive information about courses may call the Community Services office at 573-8511, extension 240.

Sailplanes Head For Odessa

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP)-Sailplanes grounded by bad weather took off from Las Cruces to continue their transcontinental flight from Los Angeles, Calif., to Washington D.C.

Greg Smith, a spokesman for the derby promoter, said Friday the planes were headed for Odessa, Texas.

The race began Tuesday in Los Angeles and is expected to conclude May 16 at Dulles International Airport in Washington.

Wally Scott of Odessa, a two-time winner of the race, was the leader Friday.

The planes were grounded Thursday in this southern New Mexico city by gusty winds and unfavorable thermal conditions between Las Cruces and Odessa.

The sailplanes had landed in Las Cruces Wednesday.

Million Filters

LOMBARD, Ill. (AP)-In 1977, the production of filters for household water filtration systems passed the one million mark, according to the Water Quality Association, but wasn't enough to meet demand.

Cannon Heads New Photographic Firm

Snyder photographer Mike Cannon will be the manager of a new photographic studio located in Cogdell Center. The Studio Royal is owned by Eelon and Odelle Harrell, and will be open for business Monday with hours 10 to 5:30 weekdays.

A resident of Snyder since 1976 Cannon said he was pleased to be able to continue working in Snyder. "My family and I have enjoyed living in Snyder and are happy to continue to live among our friends" said Cannon.

Cannon actually began working in photography in 1955 while still a student in the 9th grade as a summer employee in Dodge City, Kan. He has owned and managed studio's in Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado and Texas. He is also a licensed minister with the Assemblies of God.

Cannon's training includes working under a former Gittings of Nieman Marcus photographer, and his style is reminiscent of the Gittings tradition.

His first recognitions were 1959 national awards from both Eastman Kodak and Ansco. He won an award in competition among servicemen stationed in Europe while with the United States Air Force in 1965.

While a professional he has won awards with the Kansas Professional Photographers Association and the Professional Photographers of Oklahoma.

Cannon hopes that his new position will allow him to do more of the home and three-quarter length style of Portraiture which are his favorites. These two styles in particular lend a naturalness to portriature which he prefers to traditional portrait photography.

Services of the new Studio Royal will include home, outdoor, and studio portraits as well as weddings, commercial and industrial photography. Also included in the services will be wedding consultation by hostess, Mrs. Odelle Harrell.

Phone Rush Looms For Mother's Day

Many women will be expecting on May 14 this year, but most will be expecting telephone calls.

That's why Southwestern Bell is gearing up to handle calling on Mother's Day, the busiest single day of the year, and offering these tips:

"The heaviest calling periods on Mother's Day are between 9 and 11 a.m. and 7 and 11 p.m.," Bill Gilliland, Southwestern Bell manager for Snyder, said. "Because telephone people and equipment are busiest then, some slight delays may result. To make sure those special calls go through, we are advising customers to call at off-peak times."

Gilliland said that extra operators will be on duty to handle the expected calling load. "But people should remember that customer dialed calls cost less than operator-assisted calls regardless of the hour."

The manager said the lowest long distance rates will apply all day Sunday until 5 p.m., when evening rates go into effect.

"Nearly 1.7 million long distance calls will be placed in Texas this Mother's Day," Gilliland said, "and 15.4 million interstate calls are expected nationwide. Last year 1.5 million calls were made in Texas, up six percent from 1976."

Heart Surgeon Buys Restaurant

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP)-Famed heart surgeon Christiaan Barnard has quietly purchased an Italian restaurant in Cape Town.

Reliable sources said the heart-transplant pioneer bought "La Perla" last week from millionaire restauranteur Emilio Sandri for an undisclosed price. Barnard declined to discuss details.

Sources said he bought the restaurant in the names of his two sons, Frederick, 7, and Christiaan Jr., 4.

Barnard's career as a surgeon is thought to be drawing to an end because of arthritis in his fingers. He recently started writing a regular newspaper column.

Actor Ray Milland won an Oscar in 1945 for his work in "The Lost Weekend."

IN DIESEL SHOP - Duane Smith, a lab assistant in the Diesel Mechanics department at WTC, is shown beside a diesel-powered truck belonging to Farah of El Paso. Students at WTC are overhauling an engine which will replace the one now in the truck.

Students Overhaul Big Truck Engine

Diesel Mechanics students at Western Texas College are getting valuable experience in diesel engine overhaul and repair this semester thanks to the Farah company of El Paso.

Duane Smith, lab assistant in the WTC DM program, is a former resident of El Paso. His father, Henry Smith, has been employed by Farah for about 14 years and he helped make arrangements for the Peter Bilt truck owned by Farah to be brought to WTC for an engine exchange.

The engine now in the truck is a Cummins NTC 335, Duane said. This is one of the bigger engines Cummins makes in six-cylinder models. It is turbo-charged with a 13-speed transmission. Stickers on the truck show that it has been in many states and the engine has about 500,000 miles on it. The engine will be replaced with another engine recently overhauled by the WTC students and it will then go in for an overhaul.

Smith was employed to assist Jerry Dennis, Diesel Mechanics instructor, after he completed the WTC program last December. He was enrolled at WTC following graduation from an El Paso high school.

Ashworth Speaker For WTC's Rites

Dr. Kenneth H. Ashworth, Commissioner of Higher Education for the Texas College and University System, will be the speaker for commencement exercises at Western Texas College on Thursday.

The exercises are to begin at 8 o'clock in the central courtyard. The program will be moved to the college gymnasium in the event of unfavorable weather.

Dr. Ashworth was a Phi Beta Kappa graduate in economics at the University of Texas at Austin in 1958 and received the master's degree in public administration at Syracuse University the following year. He was awarded the Ph.D in History and Philosophy of Education at the University of Texas at Austin in 1969.

He served as Executive Vice President and Professor of Education at the University of Texas at San Antonio before accepting his present position in 1976. Prior to that, he was

Cotton Acreage Expanded

WASHINGTON (AP) - Improved cotton prices recently have altered a previous outlook that many cotton-producing countries would reduce their crop acreages this year, according to the International Cotton Advisory Committee.

"But developments during the past several weeks may have altered the situation," the committee said Friday.

The strength in cotton prices has improved the crop's "Competitive position" in relation to other crops such as soybeans and feed grains, it said.

"Indeed, a number of countries now are likely to expand cotton acreage," the committee said. "All things considered, the prospective net decline in global plantings of the 1978-79 crop is likely to be less than anticipated earlier."

The committee represents cotton producing and consuming countries and issues reports periodically on world cotton supplies and use.

Looking at the current 1977-78 situations, the committee said that world production still is estimated at around 65.2 million bales, up from 58.2 million in 1976-77.

With global production well above anticipated use, world cotton reserves by Aug. 1 are expected to be about 23.6 million bales, up from "the unusually low level" of 19.6 million bales last Aug. 1, the committee said. This will be the first increase in three years.

Jones, Chatman Wed In Baptist Chapel

Kathy Lyn Jones and Rick Chatman were united in marriage April 14, at 7:30 p.m. in a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Ken Andress in the First Baptist Church Chapel.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Jones of Snyder. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Roach, and Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Chatman of Ft. Worth.

The front of the chapel was decorated with a brass heart shaped candelabrum holding 17 tall burning tapers entwined with live greenery and accented with cushion yellow poms and daisies. On each side of the heart were matching brass tree candelabra holding 40 burning tapers complimented by two spiral candelabrums holding 30 burning tapers. Each candelabrum was accented with large yellow satin bows with streamers. Satin bows of yellow marked the pews.

Organist Judy Neill provided music during the lighting of the candles and the seating of the guests. Jerry Neill accompanied Kay Hopper on a classical guitar as she sang "The Wedding Song," "Annie's Song" and at the closing of the ceremony "The Lord's Prayer."

MR. AND MRS. RICK CHATMAN

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a Satapeau gown of Devon Creme', designed by Murry Hembruger. The moulded bodice featured a portrait neckline with a self-fabric ruffle edged in Venise lace trim. Straight candlestick sleeves were accented by wedding bell ruffled cuffs, also edged in the matching lace. The natural waisteline was accentuated with a satin sash which tied to a bow in back. The natural waisteline swept to back fullness, forming a chapel-length train. The entire hemline and train was completely encircled in the wide self-fabric ruffle edged in the matching lace. Her veiling was caught to a camelot capulet and was edged in Venise lace forget-me-nots. It fell to fingertip length.

To complete her bridal ensemble, the bride carried a nosegay of yellow roses and white daisies with baby's breath tied with white satin ribbon and lace streamers.

Carring out tradition, for something old the bride wore a bridal garter belonging to her grandmother. For something new, she chose her wedding gown. For something borrowed, she wore diamond stud earrings belonging to Carla Franks. Something blue was her garter.

Serving the bride as maid of honor was Miss Marcy Franks. Bridesmaids were Miss Kelly Jones, sister of the bride, Miss Sheila Tate and Miss Daina Healy of San Angelo. They wore matching floor length dresses in yellow satin crepe, complimented by a large ruffle across the shoulders and at the bottom of the dress and tied at the waist with a sash. They wore picture hats accented with live yellow and white daisies with yellow satin streamers. They carried nosegays of yellow cushion poms, white daisies and baby's breath tied with yellow and white satin ribbon.

Cheyenne Tubb served as flower girl. She wore a floor length dress and picture hat matching the bridesmaids attire. She carried a white wicker basket with satin streamers. She strewed yellow and white carnation petals as she walked down the aisle.

Dubb Tubb served as best man. Groomsmen were Tim Watson, Barry Tubb, and Don Dyke, brother-in-law of the groom of Ft. Worth. They wore black tuxedos with yellow shirts. Ushers were Garry Greenlee and Neil Kessler.

The groom was attired in a black and white tuxedo with a white shirt and a yellow rose boutonniere.

Miss Kim Nicholson of San Marcos attended the bride's guest book.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Jones wore a formal length, ice blue chiffon dress and a corsage of carnations and baby's breath. The groom's mother, Mrs. Roach, wore a formal length, beige knit dress with matching jacket and a corsage of carnations and baby's breath.

A reception given by the bride's parents, following the wedding was held in the chapel patio. The bride's table was laid with a floor length cloth with a lace overlay and silver appointments. The three tiered wedding cake was white with decorations of yellow roses and topped with a bride and groom kissing in a Gazebo. It was complimented by matching crystal candelabrums containing four tall white tapers. Punch was served from a crystal punch bowl. Serving the bride's cake was Miss Pam Burrus and Miss Mandy Tubb.

A dark brown cloth covered the groom's table which coffee and German chocolate cake was served from copper appointments. The centerpiece was a "Warrior of the Plains" bronze sculpture by Dubb Tubb, surrounded by live greenery. Serving the groom's table was Miss Cam Hartson and Miss Robin Gresham, both of San Angelo.

Individual tables were decorated with crystal votive cups containing yellow candles and surrounded with live greenery.

A rehearsal dinner, given by the groom's parents, was held at The Shack.

The bride, a 1977 graduate of Snyder High Schol attended ASU and is presently employed by Pat Walker Figure Salon. The groom, a 1974 graduate of Trinity High School, Ft. Worth, is employed by Haliburton Services.

After a short wedding trip to Dallas, the couple will return home to 324½ 29th Street.

Out of town guests were from Fort Worth, San Angelo, Lubbock, Abilene, San Marcos and Kermit.

Consumer Food News

COLLEGE STATION--Best food values at Texas grocery markets this week include several fresh vegetables, dairy products, eggs and grapefruit, according to Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt.

Mrs. Clyatt is a consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

FRESH VEGETABLES--Potatoes are an excellent choice, pricewise. Other price-quality values include collards, mustard and turnip tops, carrots, cabbage and broccoli. Onion prices are lower as supplies increase. Fresh asparagus has best quality and lowest prices during April and May.

DAIRY--Cheese, a high-protein food, is a feature. Other advertised specials are on sour cream, yogurt and milk.

POULTRY--Egg prices remain attractive.

FRESH FRUITS--Grapefruit has attractive prices and good supplies. Fresh pineapple has reasonable prices and good quality. Apples show good quality, but prices are rising slightly. Strawberry supplies are somewhat limited due to cooler-than-usual weather.

BEEF--Prices will be higher this year than earlier forecast because of a shorter beef supply. Less nonfed beef (lean) and more fed beef will appear on the market. Most economical choices are chuck roasts and steaks, round steaks and liver.

CONSUMER WATCHWORDS: For economical, efficient shopping, practice four habits: Make a shopping list.

Build menus around "specials" or seasonal foods in plentiful supply at economical prices.

Allow room on the list for in-store substitutions that offer a better buy than items on the list.

Watch for unadvertised specials.

GS Involved In Activities

Junior Girl Scout Troop No. 239 members are working on personal grooming. Karen Hildebrand, operator for Art Style Beauty Salon presented a program covering care of the skin, nails and hair. Much attention should be given to proper cleaning, diet and application of makeup, she told the girls. A good hair cut adds to the luster and manageability of one's hair. A girl should consider the shape of her face in selecting her hair style, she added.

Another activity was an inter-troop meeting held with visiting Brownie Troop No. 223. In completing a badge requirement the girls of Troop No. 239 taught their sister scouts some singing games. Leaders of the Brownie troop are Debra Rogers and Linda Parks. Working with the Junior Troop are Sandy Norris and Bobbie Donelson.

Mother's Day 70 Years Old

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)-This year marks the 70th anniversary of Mother's Day in the United States. But its predecessor, "Mothering Sunday," has been celebrated in England for over 300 years.

In the 17th century, young apprentices would return home on the fourth Sunday in Lent with gifts of specially baked cake for their mothers, says Hallmark researcher Sally Hopkins.

Nowadays, Mother's Day is celebrated worldwide, but not always on the same date. In Israel, Mother's Day is Feb. 18. Costa Rica celebrated it Aug. 15, and Panama Dec. 8. Here, Mother's Day is always the second Sunday in May.

Here is another hand where the standard expert play in rubber bridge is going to produce fewer tricks than the ordinary play.

South ruffs the second heart and sees that he will have no trouble winning the rest of the tricks if spades behave properly. So at trick three he leads a diamond to dummy, leads the nine of trumps and lets it ride. That is, he lets it ride if East doesn't play the queen. Either way he is going to make the rest of the tricks.

The expert sees that if West holds four spades to the queen and he takes the finesse, West will be able to lead a second heart and South will have to ruff. West will hold the long trump and the contract will be gone, but not forgotten.

So expert South simply cashes his ace and king of trumps and plays diamonds, clubs or both suits. It doesn't make much difference. West will collect a trick with his small trump and East will make his queen, but the contract will be safe since trumps didn't break 5-1.

What does the expert do in match point duplicate? He probably goes after the maximum — takes the finesse and makes six. In match point games, overtricks are almost as important as making your contract. In rubber bridge the contract is what counts.

Ask the Experts

A Canadian reader wants to know if bridge has borrowed the term "Love" from tennis.

Some players do use it to describe a score of zero below the line and they certainly have borrowed it from tennis.

Meetings Scheduled On Conservation Programs

Two statewide meetings will be held in Texas to give groups and individuals a chance to state their views concerning present soil and water conservation programs and to propose needed changes or additions to present approaches.

The meetings will be held May 16, in Stephenville and May 18 in San Antonio.

The Stephenville meeting will be held in the Humanities and Business Building on the campus of Tarleton State University. The San Antonio meeting will be held in the Fiesta Room of the Convention Center. Both meetings will start at 9 a.m. with registration beginning at 8:30 a.m.

"These meetings will be held to comply with provisions of the Resource Conservation Act of 1977," according to George C. Marks, State Conservationist of the USDA Soil Conservation Service.

The meetings are called by the USDA Soil Conservation Service and the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board. Both meetings will be co-chaired by Marks and Carl Spencer, Executive Director of the TSS&WCB.

Local meetings relative to the Act are being planned in each of Texas' 198 soil and water conservation districts.

"Soil and Water conservation programs - from their beginning - have sought public participation and input," Spencer said.

"The RCA Act further insures that conservation programs will continue to be responsive to public needs and re-affirms the need for public leadership. We hope to receive public input so a meaningful appraisal of grass roots conservation program will provide the means for their improvement."

However, Spencer said that the right to private ownership and management of land is one of the most cherished privileges of American citizenship. As the general public becomes more involved with the growing shortage of soil and water resources, we see more proposals in legislative form concerning what land-owners ought to do in the way of erosion control, flood prevention, protection of wildlife habitat and providing public access to private property.

"Any approach to soil and water conservation problems or issues must consider that a high percentage of farm and ranch land is privately owned, and that the interests and the welfare of the owner must be served. Programs must be acceptable to them," added Spencer.

"Individuals or groups with an interest in conservation should attend one of the statewide meetings or a meeting in a local soil and water conservation district," Marks said. "Interested persons are being encouraged to bring written or oral statements reflecting the direction they think conservation think conservation programs should take in the future. Such statements will be accepted, made a part of the record and considered fully."

From information and suggestions received at public meetings as well as data collected from surveys and inventories, RCA calls for determining: quality and quantity of soil, water and related resources, ability of these resources to meet current and future demands, changes in resource condition from past uses, costs and benefits of alternative soil and water conservation, practices, and alternative irrigation techniques and their effects on conservation and the environment.

Based on inventories, survey data and public input, the Soil Conservation Service will work together with conservation district state soil and water conservation agencies, local governments, and individual land users to enhance present conservation programs and set multiyear objectives.

Cache Of Rare Wine Discovered

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)-Several cases of Albany's cache of rare 19th-century French wine were opened, and the initial findings were "very good."

The cache was discovered in an abandoned wine cellar of a historic mansion more than a year ago, but it was only recently that efforts were made to determine its value.

After opening several cases, Alexander McNally, a wine expert, called the discovery, "Better than I expected. The coloring is good, the body is good and the wine is up to the shoulder of many bottles."

The cache could be worth $125,000 at auction if the Albany County Historical Association, owners of TenBroeck Mansion, are willing to sell the bottles, he said.

McNally termed the cache "the largest and most important collection of 19th-century golden age vintages ever discovered."

More Primary Care Physicians Trained

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)-For the first time in recent years, more primary care physicians than specialist are being trained in California.

The figures, compiled by the California Medical Association, suggest there will be a turnaround in the declining percentage of primary care physicians in practice.

In fact, a "cautionary note should be sounded so that the production of primary care physicians does not create an imbalance in future years," said Michael Jones, association director of research.

Primary care physicians are general and family practitioners, internists, pediatricians and obstetrics-gynecology specialists.

In 1970, there were 3,401 physicians in training in the state, and 1,331 39.1 percent were in primary care. In 1976, there were 5,282 physicians in training, and 2,743 52.9 percent were in primary care.

Saul Bellow of the United States won the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1976.

Equal but separate

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

Marriages end in a variety of ways.

Some couples drift slowly apart. Others wrench themselves away from the involvement with physical abuse. In this excerpt from a hot-line call, a counselor handles a potentially-violent couple in a way that enables them to talk rationally about their mutual need to separate.

HOT LINE

HUSBAND: My wife is on the extension. Things are pretty bad here and we need to talk to someone other than the police. They have already been here.

WIFE: Yes. I called them. What do you expect when you knock me clear across the room?

HUSBAND: Well, what did you think would happen when you said all those rotten things about me? Do you want me to teach you another lesson right now?

COUNSELOR: Let me stop you right there for a minute. You say you are on two different phones. Can you see each other while you talk to me?

WIFE: Yes, I'm watching him through the bedroom door. But why?

COUNSELOR: Close that door.

WIFE: Close the door?

COUNSELOR: Yes. I think things will cool down faster if you cannot see each other. You both sound so angry.

WIFE: Okay. I hope it helps because I am burning mad.

COUNSELOR: Now, what happened?

HUSBAND: I came home late again tonight. That always gets her crazy because she thinks I'm with another woman.

WIFE: Why should I care. At least you'll have some company when I get a divorce.

HUSBAND: Oh, no. You're not divorcing me. If anyone in this house is going to get a divorce, it'll be me. If you try to divorce me, I'll.

COUNSELOR: Wait a minute. Maybe I missed something. Have you two already decided to get a divorce?

HUSBAND: Yes. We've made that decision many times but we can never decide who will leave. All we do is fight and lately there have been some close calls.

COUNSELOR: What do you mean?

HUSBAND: Times when I have come close to really hurting her.

COUNSELOR: Like tonight?

WIFE: Yes. Tonight I was scared. I think we should live apart. This is insane.

COUNSELOR: You seem to agree on the need to separate — but neither person wants to be left. Is that right?

WIFE: That's right.

COUNSELOR: What about a joint decision to separate. It would be like splitting up a partnership. Nobody would be left; nobody would lose face.

HUSBAND and WIFE: (Silence)

COUNSELOR: Do you have children?

WIFE: Yes. That is certainly part of the problem. Come of think of it, that is why we can't separate without feelings of rejection. Crissy, our daughter, can only go with one parent. The one who loses her. . . well, that's the one who feels rejected. One person ends up feeling alone.

HUSBAND: Maybe we can figure out a way to share Crissy, then we could separate.

As the hot-line conversation ended, the wife remembered reading an article in [illegible] about joint custody of children. She suggested sharing Crissy for equal amounts of time. They hung up in order to talk more about that option.

SNYDER UPWARD

Dear Snyder Voter:

Monday you will decide the fate of off-premises purchase of alcoholic beverages in Snyder. The issue has been hotly debated the past three weeks, and your vote will be the final judge.

Facts, statistics and quotations have been presented by both sides. You must now decide the merits of the information. We, at Snyder Upward, would like to present our side.

First, let's define "Off-Premises Consumption" as stated by law:
1. An individual cannot drink or open a beverage where he buys it.
2. Beverages must be sold by taxpaying, licensed merchants under strict local and state control.

Second, let's look at what legal sales will do:

1. Help keep local money at home while bringing in new trade to be shared by all local merchants.
2. Reduce needless, expensive and dangerous driving to Big Spring, Sweetwater, Post and Lubbock.
3. Increase tax revenues to the city, reduce spiraling ad valorem tax increases, provide new jobs and create a better atmosphere for increased tourism and convention spending.
4. Put unscrupulous, non-taxpaying bootleggers out of business.

Third, let's look at what legal sales won't do:
1. It won't make Snyder "wet". With eight (8) private clubs presently in operation, Snyder is already "wet."
2. It won't legalize consumption. Repeal of Prohibition did that.
3. It won't force consumption. Personal preferance dictates that.
4. It won't open "bars" and "honky tonks."

Fourth, let's look at the issues:
1. Will taxes increase if Snyder votes wet? Taxes will increase whether Snyder is wet or dry. Last year, you paid more taxes than anytime in history. As the oil production declines, you are going to be paying even more. Voting wet will ease the burden.
2. Are wet areas really declining in population? No. In 1975, over 96 per cent of all Texans lived in wet areas. In 1974, 85 per cent of all Texans lived in wet areas. During a one-year period, 11 per cent of all Texans decided wet was better than dry. (Source: U.S. Census)
3. Will voting wet keep us from recruiting industry? No. In 1977, about 98 per cent of all new industrial plants located in wet areas. Industry locates where the people are; and the people live in wet areas. (Source: Texas Industrial Commission)
4. Will crime increase if we vote wet? There is no proven correlation between wet and dry areas. There is correlation between population and crime. No one is advocating "No Growth" because of that correlation. Dry Snyder presently has a higher crime rate than wet Sweetwater. (Source: District Court)
5. Will auto insurance rates increase if we vote wet? Dry Snyder presently ranks 10th in the state's 40 regions. Wet Sweetwater is ranked 40th, having the lowest insurance cost in the state. (Source: Texas Insurance Commission)
6. Are the fastest-growing cities in Texas wet or dry? The five fastest-growing cities and projected per cent increases between 1970-81 are Odessa (20 percent), Houston (15.2 percent), Bryan-College Station (11.8 percent), McAllen-Pharr-Edinburg (10.4 percent) and Austin (10.2 percent). All are wet areas. (Source: Texas Business)
7. Will welfare costs and unemployment rates increase? No correlation between wet and dry areas. Correlation based on population. Odessa's unemployment rate is lower than Snyder's. (Source: Texas Department of Human Resources)
8. Will voting wet enable young people easier access to alcohol? No. Merchants in wet areas must be licensed. If caught selling to a minor, the license will automatically be revoked and the establishment closed. No merchant would be foolish enough to risk his investment by selling to a minor. A bootlegger is operating illegally to begin with and would not hesitate to sell to a minor. If a bootlegger gets caught, his punishment is a small fine. (Source: Texas Law)

You be the judge. Is dry really better than wet? We want and need your vote for a better Snyder. Look at the issue realistically. If Snyder is to continue its progress, we have to provide new jobs and greater tax revenues. The future of our community is at stake. If you need a ride to the polls Monday, please call 573-5881. A driver will be sent immediately. Snyder needs your vote.

Very truly yours

Says John Newton...

Other States Wasting Gas Texas Conserving

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) A Texas official says the state cannot allow Texas consumers to make economic sacrifices to conserve natural gas only to see the gas wasted in other states.

Jon Newton, a member of the Texas Railroad Commission, the state's oil and gas regulatory authority, said it seems, at times, at least, that Texas is alone in its conservation efforts.

Newton says some states apparently want to take advantage of the commission's statewide rule to phaseout natural gas as boiler fuel in Texas.

"This order alone will release 500 billion cubic feet of gas to higher and better use," he said.

That, Newton added, is enough gas to supply the current residential needs of Houston, the nation's fifth largest city, more than 15 years.

"But Texas utilities are going to do even better than that," he said.

"We estimate that by 1985, only 15 percent of our electricity in Texas will be generated by natural gas. That's a 74 percent reduction from 1977 use."

But he said California already is making plans to use the gas Texans are saving under their boilers.

"The Air Resources Board of California has proposed a rule which would prohibit the burning of liquid or solid fuel if natural gas were available," Newton said.

"After a study of the gas supply situation in Texas, the California agency predicted our coal and nuclear conversion programs, spurred by our order, would create a continuing surplus of gas in Texas which would be available to California."

Such a rule as proposed in California, he said, obviously would be a step backward into a wasteful use of a precious natural resource.

"Obviously it is unfair to the people of Texas for the Railroad Commission to mandate a costly change-over to coal or nuclear if the gas is going to be wasted," he said.

"We cannot allow Texas consumers to make the economic sacrifice necessary to replace existing facilities and then watch the freed gas be piped to California or any other state to be burned in their boilers."

"We cannot allow the State of Texas to be put at a disadvantage because our own conservation measures are more stringent than those mandated by Washington," Newton added.

If that does in fact occur, Newton said, the commission may have to think about reexamining its statewide rule to phaseout natural gas as boiler fuel.

Newton said it was in the context of gas shortages that the commission issued its order.

"Just a few years ago we had severe shortages here in Texas and curtailments throughout the United States," he said.

"At one time the University of Texas at Austin had to close its doors because there was no natural gas available to fuel its boilers and street lights in Austin were turned off to save fuel."

Luckily, he said, Texas still had a free market system and it worked.

"We paid more but the additional price incentives brought forth more gas supplies," he said.

"We experienced a dramatic change from a condition of curtailment to our present condition of surplus deliverability. This is a lesson every government regulator ought to study, sometimes the best thing government can do is leave us alone."

California, Alaska To Chart Oil Surplus Plan

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)- Alaska and California officials have climaxed weeks of private talks with an accord to meet formally on forging a unified national campaign to relieve the costly West Coast oil surplus.

The unique liason effort disclosed this week by high-ranking officials from both states will be aimed at diagnosing potential oil glut cures for presentation to President Carter and Congress.

Representatives from the administrations of California Gov. Jerry Brown and Alaska Gov. Jay Hammond as well as legislative leaders from both states have scheduled a meeting in Sacramento Monday to begin exploratory negotiations on developing a common strategy.

Officials said they hope the formal talks will lead to a joint hearing by a committee of Alaska and California legislators culminating in an agreement on both short-term and long-term solutions to the surplus.

William Northrup, executive director of the California Land Commission, described the bi-state effort as "the last best hope for resolving what can only be described as a crisis."

Sterling Gallagher, commissioner of the Alaska Department of Revenue, said Alaska and California are natural allies because "the surplus has hit us both where it hurts-in the pocketbook."

Officials from both states said they should have little trouble demonstrating the extent of adverse economic and national security crisequences arising from the West Coast surplus.

But they agree they will face a severe test in winning approval for the most logical short-term cure for the problem-the export of Alaska oil to Japan in exchange for the trans-shipment of Japanese-owned foreign oil to the East Coast.

At issue is the domino-like fallout from the 1.2 million barrels of Prudhoe Bay crude oil that is pouring out the end of the trans-Alaska pipeline into West Coast-bound tankers every day of the year.

Because of an unexpected reduction in the rate of West Coast energy demand and the complex vagaries of oil industry economics and federal regulations, the realities of Alaska oil production has been in stark contrast to expectations.

When the new production from Prudhoe Bay combined with foreign imports and California production, the amount of crude oil flowing into the West Coast quickly exceeded the capacity of refineries to process it.

The surplus has grown to a current level of 650,000 barrels a day. And assuming that all potential reserves in California and Alaska are developed, some economists have predicted that the glut could grow to as much as 1.6 million barrels a day by 1980 and 2.2 million barrels a day by 1985 if something isn't done.

The economic impact of the surplus on the treasuries of both states has been severe.

For Alaska, the surplus is forcing the trans-shipment of 600,000 barrels a day of Prudehoe Bay oil through the Panama Canal to Gulf Coast refineries, signifi-cantly increasing the cost of transportation and reducing the well head value of the crude by a like amount.

Alaska's one-eighth royalty share of Prudehoe Bay oil and severance taxes are based on the well head price, and the current reduction in value is costing the state about $100 million a year.

In California, the flood of Alaska production and the importation of about 700,000 barrels a day of high-quality foreign crude is forcing heavy California-produced oil out of the market because refineries there are not equipped to produce anything but residual fuel from the low-quality feedstock.

With a total production capacity of up to 900,000 barrels of oil a day, California currently is choked with a 90-day oversupply of residual, a fuel normally burned in tankers and power plants.

The surplus in California also has been seriously compounded by the federal government's so-called entitlements program, which is designed to impose financial penalties and rewards on refiners to equalize the cost of price-controlled U.S. oil and the uncontrolled price of foreign oil.

The complex formula, however, is based on the higher quality oil produced east of the Rockies and has forced the market value of California oil to way below ceiling prices.

Special church service blesses pets

Ralph, the hermit crab, went to church.

So did a dog named Julie and a cat named Kitten Little.

They were among the dogs, cats, goldfish, crabs, mice and gerbils that went to a church courtyard.

They went for a special "Blessing of the Pets."

Animals and their owners waited in line.

When each pets time came, the minister sprinkled some water on the pet and said:

"Bless this creature of God and fill our hearts with thankfulness for its being."

This special service is held in memory of St. Francis of Assisi (ah-SEE-zee), the patron saint of small animals.

St. Francis lived over 700 years ago.

He was born in Assisi, Italy. His family was rich.

When he was young, he was handsome and fun loving.

He later became very religious and gave up all his wealth.

He dedicated his life to the poor.

He dressed in a loose-fitting robe and went barefoot.

St. Francis loved animals and called them his brothers and sisters. He talked to the flowers and birds.

Many followers joined him.

All things great and small, even Ralph, the tiny hermit crab got a blessing. One minister looks on as his assistant gives Ralph a hand. October 4 is St. Francis' feast day and the day that the "Blessing of the Pets" is held each year.

It's Be Kind To Animals Week

Dan Haggerty gives Ben the bear a tickle under the chin. Dan and Ben star in "The Life and Times of Grizzly Adams." Dan and his family have raised many pets. They have a tiger and a lion at home.

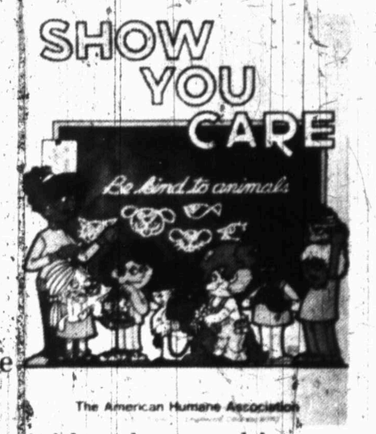

Dan Haggerty loves animals. That's why he is chairman of this year's Be Kind to Animals Week.

Dan especially likes his co-star, Ben the bear.

Dan was an animal trainer and stuntman before he became an actor.

He trained eagles, elephants, chimps, hawks, tigers and other animals.

He started doing TV commercials with animals. Then he landed the job as Grizzly Adams.

Be Kind To Animals Week is always held the first full week in May. It is sponsored by the American Humane Association.

Maybe you can't tickle a bear or kiss a cockatoo.

But there are other things you can do to celebrate Be Kind to Animals Week.

You can take your dog out on a leash so it won't get run over or cause trouble.

You can have your cat or dog operated on so it can't have tiny babies. The large number of unwared for pets is a big problem.

You can take your pets to a vet when they need shots or care.

You can give them the attention and love they need.

You can be kind to your animal every day . . . not just the first full week in May.

Actress Betty White gets a kiss from Fred the cockatoo. Fred has just won the Grand PATSY award for the second straight year. The American Humane Society gives this award to honor outstanding show business animals.

PATSY stands for Performing Animal Top Star of the Year. Fred is on a TV show. He won the PATSY in 1976 and 1977.

Her mom

Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia started Mother's Day in this country.

She gave a lot of time and money to the Mother's Day idea.

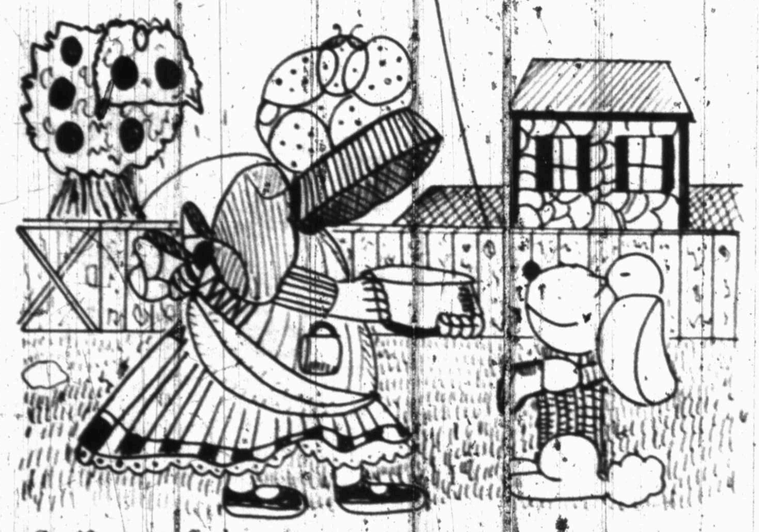

She never married. She always felt that her mother was her best friend.

In 1914, President Wilson named the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day.

Miss Jarvis was the first to ask people to wear red or white carnations on Mother's Day.

Science Mystery?

Mystery: What makes a jet airplane fly?

Finding out: Blow up a balloon and tape a soda straw to it. Pass a string through the straw. Now tie the ends of the string to two chairs. Release the balloon near one end of the string.

What do you observe? How is this like a jet?

Clue: As the balloon pushes the air molecules out one end of the balloon, there is an equal push in the opposite direction. Sir Isaac Newton discovered this. The push in the opposite direction causes the balloon to move.

speculation on 1980

According to top level news analysts something new and highly interesting is about to develop on the national political scene. For lack of something more plausible to think about, a departure from routine in years between Presidential elections should be welcome. This year voters in 35 states will be electing Governors. U.S. Senators will be chosen in 33 states. And, of course, all 435 seats in the National House of Representatives are up for grabs.

But now, as always interest is focused on the Presidency. Outcome in races for governorships, as well as those for Representative and U.S. Senator, will be scrutinized for possible indications of popular sentiment on the 1980 Presidential race.

Chief interest, quite logically, will be centered on Republican candidates for Governor and U.S. Senator. It has been a long, long time since a member of the House of Representatives was seriously considered as a presidential possibility. Part of the reason for this situation is that there are 435 members of the lower house of the national legislative body, which makes it difficult for one of such a large group to command national attention.

It has happened but only in rare situations. For some years the best chance of winning a Presidential nomination was to be elected Governor of a politically doubtful state. But for quite some time Senators have received most attention from professional forecasters.

This year, however, there is at least one conspicuous exception. Curiously public interest in this situation is heightened by a rumor which is being accorded some credibility. The exception is the obvious seriousness with which former Texas Governor John Connally views his role in Republican party affairs. He insists he is not a candidate for the Presidential nomination. Probably not in the technical sense. But he is awfully busy at the job of remaining highly visible.

Even more interesting than that line of speculation, however, is a word that comes from the area of San Clemente, Calif., that the author of a widely publicized new book has two objectives in mind. Disproving practically all of the generally accepted versions of the Watergate affair and announcing that his personal choice to head the Republican ticket in 1980 is none other than a long-time favorite, the former Governor of Texas who served in two different capacities of Cabinet level in the next to last Republican administration.

Not included in rumors, however, is how his possibility is being viewed by the individual most concerned.

dust power harnessed

After hearing for decades of the different kinds of "power" being used politically for the benefit of one group at the expense of another, it is refreshing to hear of a new kind of power which will:

a. Threaten no one.
b. Help to solve the energy problem.
c. Enhance the environment.

Plaudits go to a plywood plant in Eugene, Oregon, which has successfully harnessed the high combustion power of dust to replace fossil fuel and electricity as industrial power sources.

The "pilot plant," a large Georgia-Pacific Corporation plywood mill that makes factory finished wall paneling, is already converting the dust from its sanders, formerly a problem, into 40 million BTUs an hour. The heat is used to dry plywood veneers and the coating applied to finished panels. Prior to harnessing "dust power," the plant had used natural gas and electrically powered infrared heat lamps for these functions, routine in the industry.

Power now produced in one hour from dust combustion is equal to electrical requirements of the average American home for 16 months, according to Vincent Tretter, G-P's chief engineer for energy and the environment. The idea is working so well, he tells us, that the company now plans to begin using it at its other plants, as part of its nationwide energy and environmental program.

In fact, says L.M. "Mitche" Steffensen, G-P engineer who helped perfect the new system, "dust power" is so efficient it has created a shortage of dust, a problem the company solved with a machine called a "hammer mill" which pulverizes plywood trimmings and other waste into more dust.

And, finally, according to chief engineer Tretter, "The system also has potential of burning any combustible dust waste, even grain dust, to conserve other energy sources."

Congratulations, Georgia-Pacific! That's problem-solving in keeping with the traditional American free market way of getting things done when artificial roadblocks are not thrown up in the paths of progress.

Old Cars In NY Exhibit

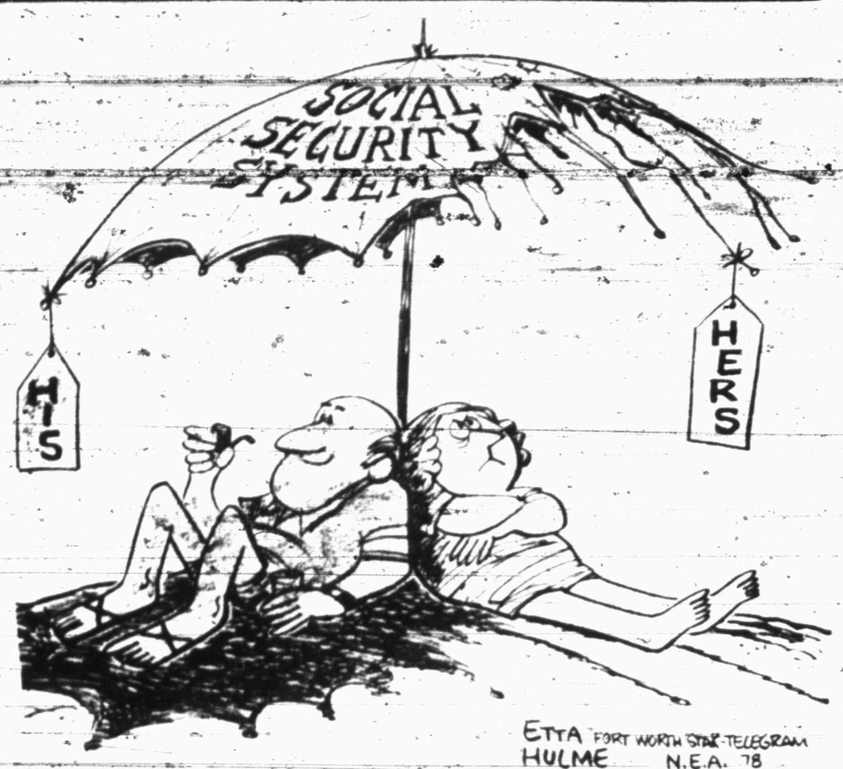

NEW YORK (AP)-A car buff's paradise has opened temporarily here in mid-Manhattan.

Almost every conceivable type of vehicle-from the bulky cumbersome automobiles of the early 1900s, to a one-seat futuristic car driven by wind power-is drawing crowds to the Kodak Photo Gallery. The free exhibit, entitled "Auto Exotica," also includes more than 175 of the world's finest automobile photographs - both European and American slide shows, movies and artifacts.

One part of the exhibit is devoted to "replicars," a fastgrowing trend of taking an assembly-line car and transforming it into a higher-priced, classier one by installing new hoods, ornaments and grilles.

Church Split Said Sad, Unfortunate

ST. LOUIS (AP) - "Sad and unfortunate, certainly but minimal compared to the dire predictions made a few years back," the Rev. Dr. J.A.O. Preus, president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, said in assessing a report on the recent split in the church.

regulations ignored

One big business ignores government regulations and gets away with it.

This particular business is operated as all businesses used to be: hiring, firing, paying, discriminating at the whim of the bosses.

No government agency dares try to tell this business how to run its business.

Most of us in business are regulated by a host of government agencies. Since the National Labor Relations Act of 1935 through the Equal Pay Act of 1963, the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 and the Equal Employment Opportunity Act of 1972--bureaucrats have come to decree whom we must hire, how much we must pay and what we must do to protect the health, welfare and safety of our employees.

Yet there remains one big business in the United States which thumbs its nose at all government controls.

It may refuse to allow employees to unionize.

It discriminated in employment however its directors choose.

The President of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Richard Lesher, says, "It's flat out wrong."

He has been trying to get this renegade employer to abide by the laws of the land but without success.

The bosses in this outfit frequently require workers to work long hours for less than the national minimum wage.

They may ignore any and all job safety regulations.

Safety inspectors are not even allowed on the premises uninvited.

In hiring and pay and promotions white males get preference and there is nothing the civil rights enforcers can do about it.

The employers do not pay Social Security taxes which the rest of us are required to pay.

This one business--and I believe this is the only one-can ignore government regulations with arrogant impunity, it can and does ignore minimum pay, worker safety, unions and equal employment opportunity.

What is the one big business in the U.S.A. which considers itself above the law?

The one business which rejects government regulation--is government.

The members of the Senate and House, who legislate those laws which restrict the rest of us, do not abide by any of those laws themselves.

In all those 43 years of social welfare legislation, the members of Congress carefully excluded themselves, their offices and their employees.

They can dish it out, but they can't take it.

One more time..... Despite going to the polls in good numbers Saturday, residents in the city of Snyder are asked to return Monday to determine the issue of legalized sale of off-premis consumption.

Because of the emotional aspects of the issue on the ballot, we think the majority in Snyder can agree on one thing -- relief that it's over on Monday.

Because it is an emotional issue, few if any, opinions are swayed during an local option election. What does result, unfortunately, is community strife and division.

Snyder is a growing, wide-awake community and Snyder will still be a positive, growing community regardless of the outcome of Monday's election.

But the important thing Monday is to be sure and vote. If you think one vote, your vote, is not important you might consider some of these facts:

In 1645, one vote gave Oliver Cromwell control over England.

In 1649, one vote caused Charles I of England to be executed.

In 1776, one vote gave America the English language instead of German.

In 1839, one vote elected Marcus Morton governor of Massachuesetts.

In 1845, one vote brought Texas into the Union.

In 1868, one vote saved President Andrew Johnson from impeachment.

In 1876, one vote changed France from a Monarchy to a Republic.

In 1876, one vote gave Rutherford B. Hays the Presidency.

In 1923, one vote gave Adolph Hitler leadership in the Nazi Party.

And in 1941, one voted saved Selective Service just 12 weeks before Pearl Harbor.

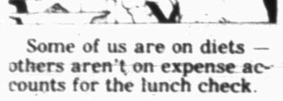

A wise man once said, "Liberty means responsibility - this is why men dread it."

To The Daily News:

I have been in "payroll" for an oilfield industry for twenty seven years. Three and one half of these years were in a wet territory. Let me pass on to you a few facts concerning the paycheck in the wet area. Where were they cashed? Most of them at a liquor store. Where are most of those cashed in the dry area? Either at a supermarket or deposited in a savings or bank account.

Let me ask those of you who say you are for "Snyder Upward" this question. Have you ever had a mother come to your office and ask you, as a result of all the paycheck being spent on liquor, "Is there anyway that I can get some money to buy groceries and some shoes for my little girl, so she can go to school?" The little child cried for the piece of toast that my baby was eating. Is that upward? That child was just one of quiet a few that I could give you testimony about.

You say, "Let's keep the highway to Post, Lubbock, Sweetwater and Big Spring safe." Have you ever thought about the action of the average person who will buy from the package store? He could not drink at his place of employment. On his way home, he stops to buy his merchandise. Chances are very great, because he is so eager for that drink that he will "pop a top" before he ever turns the key in the ignition. I would think that we as citizens of Snyder should be more interested in the safety on our streets, in our beautiful "Sparkle City" than anywhere else.

One more question I would like to ask, "How many who do not drink now, will buy something to drink," because of the convenience of its being here," and become another alcoholic?

One last question for the "Snyder Upward" group. What about the youth of our community? Don't you care? Money is not the root of all evil, but greed, and the wrong use of it is.

No I know that we are only voting for package stores. This is Phase 1 -- Phase 2 -- honky tonks and all the works will come later.

To The Daily News:

Having been a resident and businessman in Snyder for the past 22 years, I feel that I must speak out at this time about the liquor election.

First, there have been three or four ads in the Snyder Daily News by the Snyder Upward Committee saying the legalized sales of alcoholic beverages would do away with the bootleggers that we have in our community. This is hogwash.

I grew up on a ranch south of Big Spring. During this time Big Spring was a wet city that voted dry for a period of time, and later voted wet again. The same bootleggers operated in all three phases. Later, I moved to Pampa, Texas, a wet city that also had bootleggers who sold to minors, those who needed drinks after hours, or for various other reasons. For anyone to say, including the mayor of Sweetwater, that legalizing the sale of alcoholic beverages will do away with the bootlegger traffic in a community has to be an uniformed person.

We have experienced an unusual increase in our business for the past eleven years, even with the addition of several new eating establishments. The economy of our community is very good in general. I realize that there is always room for improvement, and that we need to continue to work together to keep the wheels of progress in motion. However, why would anyone, resident or non-resident, want to take the natural "Sparkle" out of a city who has worked hard and pulled together to help make it a good, wholesome and clean community in which to live and raise our families, except for selfish purposes?

When I lived near Big Spring during the days of my youth, there were three boys and myself who ran around together. Out of these three men, one of them I have lost contact, but another is drinking more and more as he grows older, and the third has become a hopeless alcoholic who has lost all he had-accumulated in a very successful business, including his wife and four children. I realize that this could have happened to me had it not been for a wonderful wife and the Grace of God. Alcohol has taken its destructive toll on a possible 50 percent of this group.

I urge you to please vote dry on May 8 for the sake of you and your family, me and my family, and for our community.

To The Editor:

One of the many assets that our community boasts is the Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College.

It's still a young museum, but it is already gaining a reputation for excellence, and it will mark another milestone on Sunday when a new oil exhibit and a revised community section are opened officially for the first time.

The oil exhibit is really outstanding, and many oilfield industries have contributed generously to the museum to make the exhibit possible. Their assistance to the museum is another example of the ways in which people of the community are working together to provide benefits for all of us.

The museum will be open from 1-5 Sunday afternoon, and everyone is invited to see the exhibits along with the public schools art show and have refreshments provided by the Scurry County Historical Commission.

The Snyder Daily News rates a big "Thank You" for giving publicity to the community activities and organizations. We appreciate your help.

See you at the museum.

it's possible

A little ant was struggling with a heavy burden. This tiny creature was attempting to carry a big piece of straw. I watched him as he tried to maneuver the heavy load. And then he came to a crack in the sidewalk.

After several unsuccessful attempts to cross the crack, the ant swung that piece of straw around until it went right across the obstacle. He was able to walk over the makeshift bridge to the other side. The ant turned his burden into a bridge!

You will never grow unless you struggle! God never promised that he would protect us from difficulty in life. But he does specialize in making every problem significant with possibilities for growth!

One evening my 10-year-old daughter, Gretchen, misbehaved and I gave her a spanking. She ran off crying to her room and closed the door behind her. I longed to follow her and comfort her in my arms but I thought it best to wait until she stopped crying.

After a few minutes I walked down the hall and stood listening in front of the door. She had stopped crying so I turned the doorknob ever so slowly and peeked my head through the opening. There was her small figure hidden beneath the blankets. .....As I walked over to the bed, I noticed her treasured toys were scattered across the bed and cuddled next to her cheek was her favorite doll. She was hugging her dolly but what my daughter really wanted was to hug her daddy. The dolly was a substitute for her daddy.

I leaned over and whispered in her ear, "Gretchen, are you asleep?" Her eyes, swollen and red from crying, slowly opened. "You know you deserved that punishment," I lovingly said. "I love you, Gretchen, that's why I spanked you!"

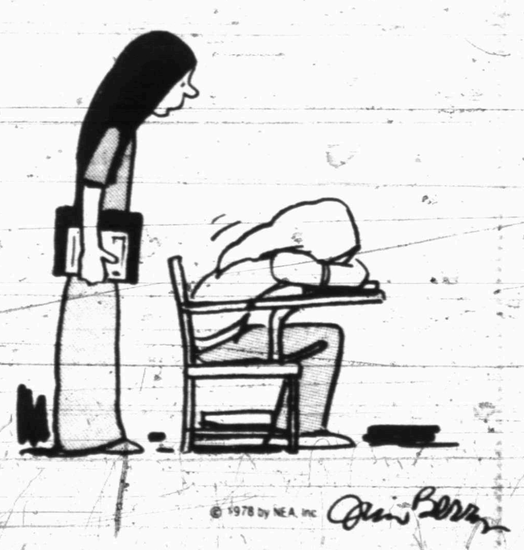

Suddenly she let go of her dolly and threw her arms around my neck. I could feel her wet slippery cheek against mine as I took her into my arms and held her tightly. "Dear God, thank you for my little girl Gretchen," I whispered in prayer. It was a very special moment for both of us!

Some of you are hanging onto your own special doll which is your substitute for the love you really seek from your Heavenly Father. It may be a new car, a hobby or a new club membership. A dolly is never a substitute for a daddy! Your Heavenly Father is waiting to embrace you — to take you into His arms, comfort you and tell you how much He loves you. Welcome Him into your life today!

Texas Farm Prices Hit '73 Levels

AUSTIN (AP)-Prices for Texas farm products rose an average of 9 percent during the 12 months that ended May 1 but reached only 1973 levels, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said Friday.

Brown said some prices-notably grain sorghum, wheat, calves and soybeans-remain less than they were in 1973.

"Under these circumstances, there is no justification for blaming farm prices for the food price increases headlined by the national press this week. Wheat is still cheaper than five years ago, yet the cost of bread has certainly not gone down," Brown said in a statement.

He added that farmers and ranchers are paying 6 percent more than a year ago for such things as seed, fuel, fertilizer, wages, taxes and services.

"We estimate this cost-price squeeze has driven almost 10,000 Texas farmers and ranchers out of business in the last four years," Brown said.

Slide Training Course Is Praised

NEW YORK (AP)-A slide and cassette training program titled "The Fire Fighter and Plastics in a Changing Environment" has become a best seller for its producer, the National Fire Protection Association.

Funded by a grant from the Society of the Plastics Industry, the program teaches volunteer and professional firemen to recognize the hazards including those caused by plastics of fires in a modern environment, and how to avoid them.

Within weeks, the NFPA says it sold 2,000 sets of the training program, at $35 a set.

The NFPA says it has received letters from fire departments describing how the course has prevented injuries to firemen.

ASTRO-GRAPH College Family Plan Is Success

By CAROLE FELDMAN
Associated Press Writer

RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP)-Education is a family affair at Fairleigh Dickinson University.

A child, his parents, grandparents can attend undergraduate classes at any of the private college's campuses - all for the price of tuition for one. If more than one child attends, the first pays full tuition, the others half.

Robert Chonko, coordinator of financial aid, says the program was developed in 1974 to help families cope with the high cost of a college education, but other benefits are by-products.

"It seems to bridge a lot of communication gaps," he said. "Parents are able to understand their children a lot better, and the children feel proud that their parents are able to do the work. It brings families closer together."

Barbara Fishbein, daughter Linda and son Jonathan all attended Fairleigh Dickinson's Madison campus last semester. Mrs. Fishbein, who was graduated in December with a degree in psychology, and Jonathan commuted from their Westfield, N.J., home. Linda lived on campus.

Both Jonathan, a junior in accounting, and Linda, a senior majoring in political science, liked having their mother on campus.

"It was rather neat," says Jonathan. "It was an experience not too many people had...I thought it was really good because it was one more common interest we had to share."

Says Linda: "We didn't see each other every day, but we would make plans to meet and I would see her a lot more."

Mrs. Fishbein says there was no academic competition among the three. "Professors were aware of the family relationship, but I don't think anyone ever abused it."

Under the plan, what would have cost the Fishbein family $255 a credit hour, actually cost $127.50-one full tuition, one half tuition and one free.

The plan was the idea of Dr. Jerome Pollack, school president, who sought a financially feasible way "to get parents to begin thinking about the educational needs of the entire family."

Parents who attend classes with their children are required to meet all university entrance requirements and may enroll in any course so long as space is available.

Chonko says there were 268 dual enrollments in 1974-75, the first year of the plan. The number grew to 369 the following year and to 396 in 1976-77.

"For the present," he said, "we're projecting 400 each year. We realize that after about a four-year period there will be a leveling off of participation. There is just a limited number of eligible families attending college at the same time."

Chonko says while parents are taking advantage of the program, he knows of no grandparents who have enrolled.

Taking part in the family plan doesn't exclude students from other forms of financial aid, Chonko says. "Many students do get other forms of aid to pay for dormitory costs and the difference in tuition."

He says university trustees are considering expanding the program to the graduate division. But for now, "we're going to stick with a good thing."

Do You Need 'Gam-Anon'?

By Abigail Van Buren

1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR READERS: Gambling is not simply a "weakness"—it's an illness for which treatment is available in Gamblers Anonymous. And for the family and close friends of the compulsive gambler there is a group called "Gam-Anon."

The following questions may help you to decide whether you are involved with someone who is a compulsive gambler:

1. Are you haunted by bill collectors?
2. Is the person in question often away from home for long, unexplained periods of time?
3. Do you feel that he or she cannot be trusted with money?
4. Does he or she promise faithfully to stop gambling; beg, plead for another chance, yet gamble again and again?
5. Does he or she borrow money to gamble with or to pay gambling debts?
6. Have you noticed a personality change in the gambler as his or her gambling has progressed?
7. Have you come to the point of hiding money needed for living expenses, knowing that you and the rest of the family may go without food and clothing if you do not?
8. Do you search the gambler's clothing or go through his wallet when the opportunity presents itself, or otherwise check on his or her activities?
9. Does the gambler hide his or her money?
10. Does the gambler lie sometimes compulsively, avoid any discussion of his or her debts, or refuse to face the realities of the situation?
11. Does the gambler shift the responsibility for his or her gambling upon you, or try to make you feel guilty?
12. Do you attempt to anticipate the gambler's moods, or try to control his or her life?
13. Do you feel that your life together is a nightmare?

If you have answered "yes" to six or more of these questions, I urge you to contact Gam-Anon. It's free, and there is nothing to "join." It's simply a fellowship of men and women who are relatives and close friends of compulsive gamblers. There you will learn effective ways of coping with the gambling problem from those who have lived through it.

For more information about this wonderfully supportive group, write to: Gamblers Anonymous, P.O. Box 17173, Los Angeles, Calif. 90017.

It is a non-profit group, so please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for their reply.

WAIT JUST A DOGGONE MINUTE!

The Snyder Upward (the wets) tell us that Sweetwater is BEATING THE SOCKS OFF SNYDER in aggressiveness toward attracting retail sales and payrolls. Snyder Upward also "challenges" us to go to Sweetwater and see the new buildings...notice the hustle and bustle...

WE ACCEPT THE CHALLENGE TO COMPARE SNYDER AND SWEETWATER, ESPECIALLY SINCE SNYDER UPWARD HAS DRAWN PARALLELS WHICH SEEM DESIGNED TO PORTRAY SNYDER AS A DOOMED, DYING, SECOND-RATE CITY COMPARED TO SWEETWATER. SO LET'S COMPARE:

TAX REBATES

-an indication of the amount of local retail sales in the city

In spite of the fact that Sweetwater is supposedly siphoning off "millions" of dollars from Snyderites who buy liquor and other commodities in Sweetwater, Snyder tax rebates continue to run 30 percent to 40 percent HIGHER than Sweetwater's. So while Sweetwater is getting all of Snyder's business, and while Snyder is losing millions to oil decreases each year, Snyder continues to run far ahead. IF YOU HAVE TO GET THE SOCKS BEAT OFF OF YOU, THIS IS THE MOST PAINLESS WAY TO DO IT.

(And by-the-way, in 1974, the last full year Sweetwater was DRY, Snyder ran only 21 percent ahead in tax rebates. WHILE SWEETWATER WAS DRY IT COMPARED MORE FAVORABLY WITH SNYDER THAN IT HAS SINCE GOING WET....)

BANK DEPOSITS

-an indication of relative economic strength

During the fiscal year just past -- 1977 -- Sweetwater bank deposits gained some SIX MILLION DOLLARS. During the same year, Snyder banks gained some TEN MILLION DOLLARS. Dry Snyder netted some 60 percent more new money than wet Sweetwater. GOT OUR SOCKS BEAT OFF AGAIN, BUT LOSING NEVER FELT SO GOOD.

BUILDING PERMITS

-an indication of physical growth activities

Snyder Upward presented the following Building Permit figures in their ad on Thursday, April 27th.

	1974	1975	1976	1977
SWEETWATER	$1,179,630	$5,877,385	$6,878,979	$9,352,184
SNYDER	2,243,860	3,419,383	5,483,517	7,692,413

Now we don't know where those figures came from, and they do make it appear that Sparkle City is losing out, but wait just a doggone minute! Let's look at the official building permit statistics, as issued by the respective City Halls, then let's look at what is being built and where the money is coming from.

	1974	1975	1976	1977
SWEETWATER	$1,266,330	$5,277,475	$5,455,925	$7,852,974
SNYDER	2,069,410	3,357,883	5,483,517	7,687,013

Sweetwater's figures reflect two multi-million dollar public buildings -- Courthouse and Hospital -- which will be paid for with tax bonds (Courthouse) and revenue bonds (hospital). Consider how next year's Snyder figures will be inflated by the $4 million dollar hospital addition.

Sweetwater has been receiving a substantial amount of Federal money which Snyder does not qualify for, since the money is provided to improve certain "substandard" conditions. Snyder does not have the substandard buildings, etc. to qualify for the Federal money which Sweetwater is receiving.

The following building comparisons seem more relevant, since they do not involve public buildings such as courthouses, schools, hospitals, and Federally funded projects.

NEW HOMES	1975	1976	1977
SWEETWATER	21 ($599,910)	40 ($1,423,055)	41 ($1,499,210)
SNYDER	42 (1,424,775)	47 (1,841,685)	63 (2,543,933)

3-YEAR TOTALS
Sweetwater: 102 new homes valued at $3,522,175
Snyder: 152 new homes valued at 5,810,393

THESE FIGURES JUST DON'T MAKE US FEEL LIKE LOSERS

AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE RATES

-an indication of "pure losses" to insurance companies in the area

After Snyder Upward stated in their ad that Sndyer has the "10th highest insurance rate in Texas" while Sweetwater has the "lowest," we placed a call to the Texas State Insurance Commission in Austin to inquire about this. As honestly as we can, here is our word-for-word report of the explanations for our insurance rates.

First, the Commissioner with whom we spoke said, "Comprehensive Coverage is the only area where you are so high, and I can tell you offhand that your problems is in what we call 'Act of God' areas--hail, floods, wind storms, etc..." He then asked to be excused while he pulled some files and reported the following, "in the area of Liability Coverage, it looks like you compare favorably with other areas of Texas, and in Collison, you seem to be on the lower end..."

Now we don't know what Snyder Upward was trying to prove with insurance rates, except to make Snyder look bad compared with Sweetwater, but we fail to see how we can connect the Wet-Dry issue with hail and floods...

CRIME RATES

"Wet Sweetwater has a lower crime rate than Dry Snyder" says the same ad by Snyder Upward. The source cited is District Court Records. We made a trip to Sweetwater for a visit with the District Judge and District Clerk to check this out after the ad came out, and were told that no such records had been given out by that office to either "wet" or "dry" forces. Snyder Upwards earlier stats on DWI had come from the Wholesale Beer Distributors of Texas, so maybe their information came from that source.

The Court in Sweetwater has no annual report, only scores of individual case reports, so there was no time before the election to run detailed comparisons, but we do know of recent armed robberies of grocery stores in Sweetwater, the last of which involved a shooting, and resulted in 3 new deputies being added to the Sheriff's Department.

We cannot believe that Sweetwater has a lower crime rate than Snyder, but even so we would like to point out that District Court records show only suspects formally charged, which is a function of the aggressiveness and effectiveness of the law enforcement agencies. We cannot speak for Sweetwater, but Snyder's Police and Sheriff's Department are well funded, well staffed, aggressive and effective - as we all want them to be.

TAXES

-an indication of the burden placed on the people of the area.

TAX	SNYDER	SWEETWATER
*CITY tax on $25,000 House	$1.85 on 40 percent assessed value $185	$1.65 on 60 percent assessed value $247.50
COUNTY tax on $25,000 House	$.45 on 25 percent assessed value $28.12	$.97 on 32 percent assessed value $77.60
SCHOOL tax on $25,000 House	$1.10 on 30 percent assessed value $82.50	$1.83 on 70 percent assessed value $274.50

TOTAL SNYDER TAX ON $25,000 House $295.62
TOTAL SWEETWATER TAX ON $25,000 House $599.60

WE CAN'T FEEL LIKE LOSERS ON THIS SCORE, EITHER

* Oil tax revenues amount to only 7 percent of City tax revenues

Finally, let's all rejoice that there is an economic upswing in many parts of Texas, wet and dry. But we continue to point out that there is even more progress and "hustle and bustle" in dry Snyder than in wet Sweetwater. And we are doing it without many of the problems which wet towns always seem to experience.

Bonus of the iron kettle

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I saw an article in the paper that said that the old iron kettle was a nutritional bonus and it tripled the content of iron in food cooked in it. I have always passed this off as nonsense but is there any truth to it?

DEAR READER — Yes. The switch to other forms of kitchen utensils did eliminate one of the major sources of iron in the diet. As the iron dissolved in the food being cooked it served a real nutritional purpose. Of course you don't get that effect from glassware, stoneware or aluminum utensils.

DEAR DR. LAMB — About a year ago my husband broke out in tiny red bumps. They looked like measles. A couple of days later these bumps turned into little blisters. The itching was unbearable, and it spread all over his body in a week or so.

A dermatologist took a biopsy and diagnosed it as "lichen planus." He told us that there was no known cause or cure for this, that all he could do was give my husband something for the itching. He also said this was neither contagious nor hereditary. My husband took everything possible, we used many different kinds of creams and even wrapped him in Saran Wrap after applying the cream. Nothing worked.

Then he went to more dermatologists and they all agreed with the diagnosis. Finally after six months he quit going to the doctors and quit taking the medicine. Little spots over his body began to go under the skin. They never went away.

Now it's nearly a full year and my husband is breaking out again. We haven't been able to find any information whatsoever on this disease. If you have any information, suggestions or some kind of material on this will you please answer my letter?

DEAR READER — There are certain disagreeable illnesses that medical science really has no miracle for and lichen planus can be one of them. This generalized skin eruption is as you have described it and it does itch. Your doctors have told you the truth, the cause is not known and as you have discovered, the treatment is often unsatisfactory. The disease is not always generalized and may involve the wrists, lower legs or even the mouth. Treatment commonly consists of a long list of different salves that may be used to control the itching and hopefully to control the rash. These are not as effective as one might hope.

However, I can offer one good thought. Most of these will clear up anyway in a matter of a few months to at most a few years. A common time frame is one year to 18 months. Since it has been over a year since your husband started having problems it may not last too much longer. This spontaneous remission also makes it difficult for the doctors to evaluate treatment as they never know whether the medicine did it or if the patient got well in spite of the medicine — just one of the little problems doctors have in dealing with such complex variables as human beings and what happens to them.

For information about the skin, readers can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for The Health Letter number 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots and Cancer. Send your request to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a large plantar wart on the sole of my foot, located just under the ball of the foot. I'm 55 years old and I've had it about 15 years. When it was small the physician suggested I use wart removal medicine. I did and it soon enlarged. Then a radiologist gave it a good dosage of X rays. It hardened, dropped off after awhile, but soon grew back in, bigger than ever.

A chiropodist cut and treated it weekly with a scalpel for some months, with no permanent effect. My family physician says an operation and skin graft might succeed but the skin might grown back as a sensitive callous and therefore I should just live with it. It is sometimes uncomfortable. Is there any other recommended treatment?

DEAR READER — The only difference between a plantar wart and other warts is its location. It is true that doctors are reluctant to cut them out because of the danger of causing a permanent painful scar. In recent times though some dermatologists — skin specialists — report better results. A technique called cryosurgery — destruction with extreme cold — has been used with some success.

Also some dermatologists advise a technique of blunt dissection, taking care to separate out all the tissue involved.

Another method is to apply salicylic acid plaster the size of the wart and tape it into place. Every 48 hours the patient trims away the excess tissue. The doctor does it every three weeks. This is a slow procedure but works for some people. I would suggest that you ask your family doctor to refer you to a dermatologist and see if he can give you some help, as 15 years is a long time. Usually the body becomes relatively immune to warts in about 7 to 8 years and they disappear at that time with or without treatment.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A month ago I went to join the army. I took the physical and everything turned out O.K. except they found out I had a condition called albuminuria. Since then I have been going to a urologist. He hospitalized me and ran a 24-hour urine test. I was also circumcised. What causes this condition? Is it serious?

DEAR READER — Albumin is one of our important blood proteins. Since our blood is filtered by our kidneys we all lose a little albumin in the urine (albuminuria). If it is a trace it is not important. In large amounts it can be caused by kidney damage. The first step is to find out how much albumin you are losing and that is why your doctor measured the amount in the urine for a 24-hour period.

Some people have increased amounts of albumin in the urine associated with standing. Your urologist probably studied this by measuring the amount of albumin in your urine when you were up and about as opposed to lying down. When being upright is the sole cause for increased albuminuria it is not medically important. A complete study which you have undoubtedly had is the only way to determine if it is important to your health or just an interesting finding.

Circumcision is completely unrelated to this and I presume you were circumcised for other reasons.

Should you avoid calcium if you have kidney stones? Those interested can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for The Health Letter number 11-2, Kidney Stones: Treatment has Changed. Send your request to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

Treaties Will Help Missionaries

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) - Several Southern Baptist leaders say that ratification of the new Panama Canal treaties will make for a better atmosphere for work for foreign missionaires there.

"I think they'll give us a better hearing now," says the Rev. Jackie B. Cooper, a missionary in Arrijan, Panama. He says that while Panamanians generally are open to the gospel, U.S. control of the canal has had a "somewhat cooling effect" on missionary work.

The Rev. Jimmy Allen, president of the Southern Baptist Convention, says ratification of the treaties "brings a new mutuality of respect to our relations" with the Central American country.
