Chung, CBS poll

Thursday night, CBS broadcast a taped interview between journalist Connie Chung and Kathleen Gingrich, mother of new Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich. During the interview, Ms. Chung attempted to get Mrs. Gingrich to tell her what her son had said about first lady Hillary Clinton. Ms. Chung told Mrs. Gingrich that the response — "She's a bitch" — would be "just between you and me," but CBS later broadcast the remark. Did CBS and Ms. Chung overstep the bounds in airing a statement that Ms. Chung had implied would not be broadcast? Or should Mrs. Gingrich have known that anything she told Ms. Chung likely would be heard on the air and thus she should at least share the blame? Call Cityline's Community Pulse Poll at 560-2400, Category 7655. If you think CBS and Ms. Chung overstepped their bounds, press 1. If you think Mrs. Gingrich should share in the blame, press 2. You also will be invited to leave your comments. We ask that you leave your name, but that is optional. The nonscientific sampling will remain open until noon Tuesday. Midland, Odessa residents to be exempt from emissions testing

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The Midland-Odessa area is to be exempt from the tailpipe-emissions testing mandated by the state beginning this year for polluted metropolitan areas.

"You folks at Midland and Odessa appear to be in very good shape," said Terry Hadley, spokesman for the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission (TNRCC).

And this niche of West Texas likely "won't have to (be subjected to vehicle-emissions testing) as long as the level" of air pollution is acceptable by Environmental Protection Agency standards.

"Midland-Odessa is pretty much in the clear — a benefit of that West Texas wind, I guess," Hadley said.

Testing is required for vehicles made in 1968 or after in the Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston-Galveston, Beaumont-Port Arthur, and El Paso areas where the level of air pollution has been deemed serious by the EPA and in violation of the Clean Air Act.

Man opens fire, kills 1, self at Ford

■ Plant employee kills his estranged wife's boyfriend, wounds wife in early morning shooting.

Associated Press

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP, Mich. — In the third shooting at a Michigan auto factory since September, an employee opened fire in a Ford Motor Co. plant Saturday, wounding his estranged wife, then killing her boyfriend and himself.

"I just heard shooting, just shooting. Most women started hitting the floor. The bosses said, 'Get out of here!'" Maureen Webster said. "This is like family 12 hours a day, and we never thought it would happen here."

About half an hour after the early shift began work at the plant west of Detroit, 43-year-old Michael Brattin found his wife of 16 years and shot her in the legs and stomach, officials said.

When Sandra Brattin's boyfriend, 41-year-old Michael O'Brien, came to her aid, Brattin shot him, too — three times in the chest with a handgun he'd bought just three days earlier.

"He saw the shooting taking place and he ran over to the woman and Mr. Brattin turned the gun on him," police Chief Carl Berry said.

When Brattin turned the gun on other approaching workers, they backed off. Then he shot himself in the head. Brattin and O'Brien died about an hour later.

Sandra Brattin, 39, was in fair condition. She and her husband were getting a divorce.

It wasn't immediately clear if Brattin was working when the shooting began or if he came to the plant with mayhem

Texas' proposed handgun bill stirs mixed feelings

Statistics support both sides of debate

By John Powers
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Much of the debate on whether citizens should be allowed to carry handguns involves crime statistics and, not surprisingly, each side uses the statistics to support their position.

A proposed bill to allow qualified and trained Texans to carry a concealed gun is similar to a law approved by Florida voters in 1987.

The National Rifle Association argues that the homicide rate has dropped 21 percent in Florida since the law went into effect.

AUSTIN — It is almost a foregone conclusion that Texas legislators will approve a bill in the next session allowing individuals to carry a concealed handgun, according to most political observers.

In the 1993 session, lawmakers backed off approving a full right-to-carry bill because Gov. Ann Richards threatened to veto the measure, and proponents did not have the two-thirds majority needed to override a veto.

Instead, the Legislature approved a bill that would have allowed a non-binding statewide referendum on the issue, but Ms. Richards vetoed the bill. Her action came because the Texas Police Chiefs Association adamantly opposed the bill.

Proponents of the gun law, however, contend that police chiefs do not necessarily represent the view of the average police officer.

Combined high school band seeks to march in Bush's inaugural parade

By Gary Shanks

About 300 Midland high school students are preparing to represent the city in a marching band composed of band members from both Lee and Midland high schools.

Invited to participate in the inaugural parade for incoming Gov. George W. Bush, members of both bands are learning new music for the event and are practicing marching as a unit, according to LHS Band Director Randy Storie.

"This is where we have a big job to do," Storie said. "We have to learn all this music. We have to learn the new (drum) cadence," he said.

A percussion cadence for the drum section has been professionally written just for the event, according to Brenda Sorrells of the LHS booster-club board.

U.N. cancels Sarajevo airlift after planes shot

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — The U.N. airlift to Sarajevo was canceled Saturday after bullet holes were found in two planes, while fighting in northern Bosnia and a standoff around Sarajevo threatened to destroy a shaky four-month truce.

U.N. officials accused the Muslim-led government and its Serb enemies of "foot-dragging" in carrying out the cease-fire, wrangling over access for aid convoys to Sarajevo and control of strategic territory near the city.

It wasn't clear whether the shots that hit the U.N. planes were a deliberate attack. But the airport, which lies on the front line between government and Serb troops, was closed for the first time since the truce began a week ago.

Bullet holes were found in two Ilyushin-76s after they returned to Zagreb, Croatia, from Sarajevo. One plane was hit near its front wheel, the other near an engine. There were no injuries.

U.N. spokesman Michael Williams in Zagreb said there would be no U.N. flights today. The U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees said it was reviewing the situation.

Williams suggested the incident might be the result of Serb celebratory fire marking the Orthodox Christmas, which was Saturday.

Bosnian Serbs, who surround the city, say they won't allow access to Sarajevo, as required by the truce, until government forces withdraw from a demilitarized zone on Mount Igman south of the city.

But U.N. sources said Serbs expanded that demand during U.N.-mediated talks Friday, insisting government troops also give up positions gained in an offensive last fall.

Government soldiers gave up two of the three promised areas on Mount Igman, and U.N. soldiers planned to check the third once landmines have been cleared, said Lt. Col. Patrick Declety, a U.N. spokesman.

Lt. Gen. Sir Michael Rose, the U.N. commander, planned to meet Gen. Ratko Mladic today at Bosnian Serb headquarters in nearby Pale. A U.N. source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Rose would try to talk Mladic out of insisting on additional government withdrawals.

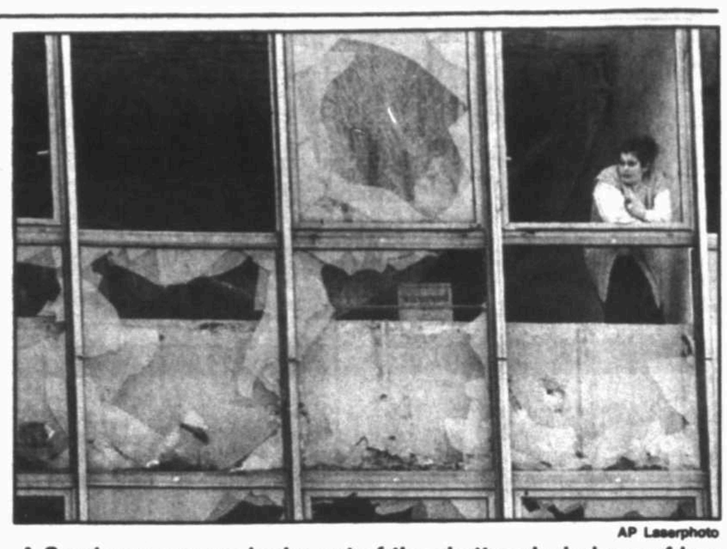

"It seems that we are seeing some foot-dragging by the Bosnian Serb side concerning the opening of routes ... and some foot-dragging by the Bosnian government side concerning the withdrawal from the DMZ (demilitarized zone)," said Alexander Ivanko, a U.N. spokesman.

He conceded the momentum for achieving peace "might be losing some steam."

On the battlefield, the truce appeared just as shaky.

Overnight Friday, more than 100 artillery and mortar rounds, along with rifle and machine-gunfire, rattled the Velika Kladusa area of northwestern Bosnia, said Maj. Herve Gourmelon, a U.N. military spokesman.

Heavy fighting was reported Saturday near Serb-held Doboj, in north-central Bosnia, where nearly 200 shells landed, and along the Serbs' northern supply corridor.

Violence in refugee camp leaves at least 12 dead

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Shooting broke out Saturday in a Rwandan refugee camp, killing at least 12 people and wounding 36 others, a U.N. source said.

It was the worst single case of violence in either the camp in southern Rwanda or in camps in Zaire, Burundi and Tanzania for the millions of Rwandans fled their homes last year to escape ethnic killings.

There were reports of as many as 50 deaths in the shooting Saturday, with hundreds wounded, said the U.N. source. The United Nations could not confirm the higher figures.

The source said it was unclear who did the shooting or how it began, but a U.N. team was investigating. The source spoke by telephone from Rwanda's capital, Kigali.

The shooting took place at a camp two miles southeast of Remera near Rwanda's border with Burundi.

The United Nations sent medics, an infantry unit and a civil affairs officer to the camp after hearing of the shooting. Six seriously wouded Rwandans were flown to a hospital run by the Australian military in Kigali.

Random violence is rampant in the refugee camps inhabited mostly by members of the Hutu ethnic group. It is mostly directed at the refugees wishing to return home or individuals suspected of spying for the Tutsi-dominated government in Rwanda.

Hutu militias, also known as intarahamwe, are blamed for the violence. They also are accused of killing many of the 500,000 people slain in ethnic violence last April through July. The killings began after President Juvenal Habyarimana was killed in an unexplained plane crash April 6.

Wolves return to wilderness of Yellowstone, Idaho

By David Foster
Associated Press

HINTON, Alberta — Biologists raced against time and the weather this weekend to round up Canadian wolves for a historic migration south to Yellowstone National Park and central Idaho.

Five wolves had been snared by Saturday afternoon and checked by veterinarians, and helicopters buzzed Alberta's forest in search of more animals for a wolf-restoration program that has been planned for years.

The $7 million U.S. program is an ambitious attempt to return a top predator to a region of the Rockies where wolves were wiped out by the 1930s for the benefit of ranchers.

It's notable enough just for ecological reasons, and expected to enhance Yellowstone's reputation as a premier natural laboratory. But there's even more riding on these wolves.

Supporters and opponents alike say the program signals great changes in how the United States views its Western public lands, and the people and animals trying to coexist there.

Environmentalists say the wolves' return reflects a new charity toward a predator once trapped, shot, poisoned and even dynamited to extinction across most of its U.S. range.

"The wolf is the embodiment of wildness, and Yellowstone is the symbol of wild places," said Renee Askins, director of the Wolf Fund in Jackson, Wyo. "It's like returning the heartbeat to the heart."

But ranchers, fearing that their livestock will become a wolf's dinner, call the restoration program an example of big government and urban environmentalists pulling the economic rug out from under rural Americans.

"The issue is not wolves," said Karen Henry, fifth-generation cattle rancher and president of the Wyoming Farm Bureau, which is part of a lawsuit challenging the restoration project.

"The issue is control of the land," Henry said. "This is part of a bigger agenda from the Interior Department to control the West. If they control the land and if they control the water, then they control the people."

Wolf restoration has been debated since 1973, when the Endangered Species Act was enacted, requiring federal agencies to develop recovery plans for wolves and other imperiled wildlife.

The current plan evolved from hundreds of hours of public hearings, more than 160,000 written comments and years of scientific study and political wrangling.

Its goal is to establish two breeding populations of 100 wolves each in the Yellowstone area and central Idaho by the year 2002.

A team of 15 U.S. and Canadian wolf experts and veterinarians got the go-ahead for the capture program Tuesday, when a federal judge refused to stop it pending the outcome of the ranchers' lawsuit. The lawsuit continues, as does the ranchers' effort to have an appeals court undo the judge's decision.

By Saturday, trappers had caught five wolves, which were given tranquilizer shots and moved to holding pens at Switzer Provincial Park near Hinton, in west-central Alberta.

The helicopter crews combed a 100-by-200-mile area of forest south of Hinton, seeking wolves that previously had been released after being fitted with radio collars for easy tracking.

Soldiers fight for their homeland

■ The focus of war with Russia has moved away from Chechnya's leader for many.

By Chris Bird
Associated Press

GROZNY, Russia — Chechen fighters used to hail the name of rebel President Dzhokhar Dudayev like a battle cry. But now many say they are fighting only for their homeland — not Dudayev.

The Chechens have buried their political differences to unite against the centuries-old foe Russia, with Dudayev all but forgotten in the battle raging around the capital of Grozny.

"We have many vendettas among our people, but we are all now united against Russia," said 24-year-old fighter Akhmed Terlon, wearing a baseball cap with a New York Police Department patch and a white label on his flak jacket with his name. "In case I die," he said impassively.

An oil engineer, Terlon returned three months ago from his new home in Germany to fight against Russia. "It won't be like Afghanistan, we have no help coming from Pakistan or America," he said.

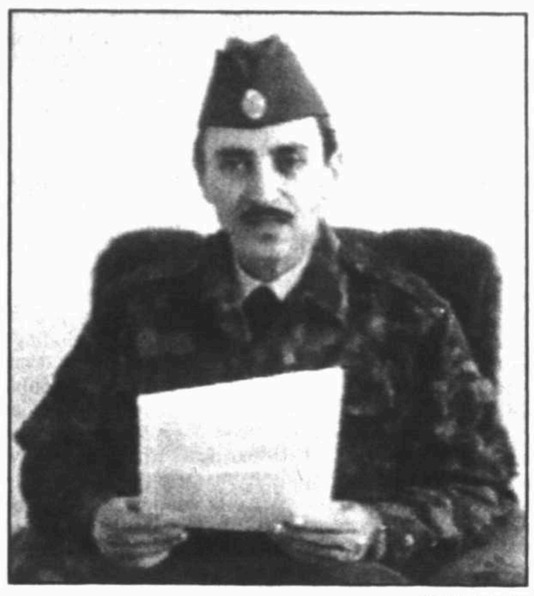

But, he added, "It will take Russia a long time to defeat us, we will stand to the last. It would be better to learn to live as good neighbors."

Russia's bloody assault on Grozny continued Saturday, with aircraft flying overhead and artillery shells slamming into the city.

It has united fractious Chechens — there are over 150 clans — in a "gazavat," or holy war against Russia.

In the months building up to the entry of Russian troops into Chechnya last month, Russia bankrolled Chechen opposition forces, such as former Russian parliamentary leader Ruslan Khasbulatov, to topple Dudayev from power.

But the former Soviet air force general held out against the poorly motivated Russian-backed opposition, thumbing his nose at Moscow with colorful events such as last September's Independence Day celebrations, with parades and gunfire in Grozny's Freedom Square.

AP Laserphoto

Dkhokhar Dudayev, president of the breakaway republic of Chechnya, speaks in a television address from a secret location, Monday, January 2.

In recent days, however, Dudayev has disappeared. He has not been seen in the presidential palace or anywhere else for days, although Chechen officials insist he is still in Grozny and in charge of the city's defense.

Many Chechen's were divided because of the breakaway republic's disastrous economy and isolation from Russia following Dudayev's self-proclaimed independence in 1991, leaving some workers unpaid for more than a year.

Clashes continue between Russians, rebels

GROZNY, Russia (AP) — Chechen rebels, some wearing green headbands inscribed with an oath of martyrdom, fought furiously Saturday under a hailstorm of shells and killed a top Russian commander.

But some fighters clearly were growing nervous as Russia intensified its offensive on the breakaway republic.

They ran furtively through the deserted streets of the mud-spattered capital, far more cautious than in previous days when they strolled with confidence past bodies and charred armor.

"Better stay back! A tank round just landed here and killed two innocent people!" Chechen fighter Ruslan Mirzhuyev shouted down a street in a part of the city once considered securely in rebel hands.

An incessant barrage of Russian tank and artillery fire hit Grozny. Smoke streamed out of apartment blocks, and fires blazed all around the city, including on several upper floors of Chechen President Dzhokhar Dudayev's palace, still in rebel control.

Battles raged around the city's railway station and in villages west of Grozny, where Russian ground forces reportedly mounting new attacks.

President Boris Yeltsin sent tens of thousands of troops into Chechnya, a mostly Muslim region of 1.2 million people, on Dec. 11 to quell its independence drive and set an example for other independence-minded regions.

The Russian government announced Saturday that its troops had killed about 2,500 Chechen fighters in the monthlong offensive. Russian military officials put the Russian death toll at 256 as of Friday.

The weekly Moscow News, however, said approximately 2,000 Chechens and 1,800 Russian soldiers had died in the conflict. And the Red Cross estimates 350,000 refugees have fled the fighting.

In Moscow, officials confirmed that Maj. Gen. Viktor Vorobyov, the head of the Interior Ministry's task force in Chechnya, was killed by a mortar shell as Russians advanced on Grozny. He was the seniormost Russian officer to be killed so far in the conflict.

Two other officers were seriously wounded, said Interior Ministry spokesman Vladimir Vorozhtsov. Interior Ministry troops are fighting alongside regular army soldiers.

Russian fighter jets buzzed Grozny on Saturday, but it was unclear whether some of the heavy explosions were from bombs or long-range Grad rockets, which have been fired into the city for days.

The Russian government said its soldiers were successfully blocking the streets.

Today to be warm, low 70s

Staff Report

A winter's day almost as warm as a cool summer day is a possible offering for Midlanders today.

The forecaster at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport is calling for sunny skies today and a high in the low 70s.

Winds are to be southwesterly to westerly at 10 to 20 mph.

Tonight should be fair with a low in the upper 30s.

Monday calls for sunny skies and a high in the lower 70s.

After an overnight low of 31, Saturday's high reached 64, compared to the record high for that date of 75 set in 1965. The record low was 11 set in 1970.

STATE

Skies were sunny and temperatures crisp across most of Texas on Saturday as a high-pressure system kept moisture away from the state.

The zone, centered in southeastern Texas, kept high temperatures mainly in the 60s and 70s except for northern and western parts of the state with readings in the 40s. The state's cold spot was Sherman with 39 degrees, with 74 at McAllen.

A weak surface trough extending from Southeast Colorado into the Northwest Texas Panhandle and into the Edwards Plateau had little effect because of the high pressure surrounding it.

Winds were mostly southerly at less than 10 mph, except for light and variable southwesterly breezes in South Texas and southerly to westerly at 10 to 20 mph in the west, the National Weather Service said.

NATION

A cold front pushing off the East Coast battered the Southeast on Saturday with a tornado and deadly wind, and a new Pacific storm poured heavy rain on already-sodden California.

Intense thunderstorms broke out over parts of the Southeast along a cold front, generating a tornado that cut a swath through rural central Florida and damaged or destroyed about 150 mobile homes. Dozens of people were injured.

BILL: Officials predict passage of gun law

(From 1A)

The proposed bill got its biggest boost from Gov.-elect George W. Bush, who supports such a bill and said he would sign it.

The almost-sure passage of the proposed bill meets with mixed feelings among law-enforcement officials in Midland.

"I basically have no problem with good citizens having guns to protect themselves," said Midland Police Chief Richard Czech. "However, I think there needs to be a very good process in place that people will have to go through in order to carry a concealed weapon."

Czech said he does worry about the safety of his officers, who will not know if someone they have stopped in a vehicle or on the street has a gun.

"It can make a situation a lot more dangerous for the officer," Czech said. "You have these situations, say, between a husband and wife who are in an argument. They may pick up whatever is within reach to strike at each other and what if that is a gun? And, what if an officer is there trying to stop the argument? It (the proposed bill) will definitely make weapons more easily accessible for violence."

Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter said he supports letting citizens carry guns if safeguards are in place, including stiff penalities for criminals who use the concealed-handgun bill to more easily commit crimes.

"Some people who have a legitimate reason already carry guns to protect themselves or their business," Painter said. "I think it should be legal for law-abiding citizens to carry a gun if they feel it is necessary.

I don't think that this law is going to make our jobs necessarily more dangerous," he continued. "The crooked people out there already illegally have guns. I agree that good citizens should have the right to carry them."

But indicative of the difference of opinion, members of the Sheriffs' Association of Texas split down the middle in a recent survey, with 74 members voting in favor of licensing private citizens to carry handguns and 73 voting against.

Sen. Royce West, D-Dallas, will be the biggest obstacle. Royce has promised to use whatever legal maneuvers are necessary to kill the bill, including a filibuster.

The Texas Congress of PTAs, representing public school teachers and parents, also has vowed to oppose the bill.

Rhonda Forbes, a spokeswoman for the Texas PTA, said a clear relationship exists between the availability of handguns and the number of accidental handgun deaths.

The Texas Department of Health reported 80 children younger than 15 die each year in Texas from firearm accidents.

Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, is sponsoring the bill. Lawmakers have introduced similar legislation in each session for the past 10 years.

To qualify to carry a gun, a person would have to be at least 21 years old, have no history of chemical dependency or mental problems, and have no previous felony convictions and no misdemeanor convictions within the past five years.

Applicants would have to pay a $140 fee, show proof of completion of a 15-hour firearms education course by a certified instructor, and take a four-hour refresher course each time the license is renewed.

The bill would require citizens who carry guns to display a sticker on their car windshield and on their driver's license, and would prohibit carrying a gun into schools, bars, sporting events, airports, polling places or government meetings.

DEBATE: Statistics support both sides

da, including murder and aggravated assault, has soared 17.8 percent and is now the highest in the nation.

In its August 1994 issue, U.S. News & World Report carried an extensive article on gun ownership.

Gary Kleck, a Florida State University criminologist, said his studies show guns are used significantly more times to defend people and property than they are in committing crimes.

But Arthur Kellermann, director of the Center for Injury Control at Emory University in Atlanta, said for every case of guns used for self-protection, there are 43 instances where they are used in suicides, homicides and accidental deaths.

Kleck said guns are used as often as 2.4 million times a year for protection. He said this figure is much higher than government statistics, in part, because respondents are more truthful to his private polls than to the government.

Kellermann said Kleck's definition of "self-protection" is so unclear it draws more responses than appropriate, and a U.S. Justice Department survey indicates guns are used in self-defense no more than 80,000 times a year.

Kellermann said a gun kept at home is 43 times more likely to kill a family member or friend than an intruder.

Kleck also said criminals rarely take a gun away from a defender, but Kellermann said almost 20 percent of police officers who are fatally shot are killed with their own gun.

In a poll, U.S. News & World Report said 71 percent of respondents disagreed that it was OK for citizens to carry a concealed weapon, while 22 percent said it was OK.

In contrast, 74 percent agreed it was OK for citizens to have a gun in their home, and 21 percent disagreed.

The poll split evenly, 47 percent to 47 percent, on the statement that ordinary people having guns creates more problems than it solves.

The magazine article also cited the case of Suzanna Gratia, who was eating lunch with her parents at Luby's cafeteria in Killeen in 1991 when George Hennard drove his pickup through the front window and began shooting people.

Ms. Gratia said she reached into her purse for her .38 revolver, only to remember she had left it in her car. Hennard killed 23 people, including Ms. Gratia's parents.

"If I had my weapon, I could have made a difference," she said.

TEST: Midland-Odessa residents to be exempt

(From 1A)

Emission problems are to be corrected before motorists will be issued vehicle-registration windshield stickers or license plates.

Motorcycles and antique-licensed cars and trucks are exempt from the testing.

Cost of the biennial testing — to be done at Tejas Testing Technology and Matra Technologies contract stations — ranges from $15 to $23, Hadley said.

Corrective action could cost as little as the cost of a minor tune-up or as much as the cost of repairing or installing a new catalytic converter or overhauling an engine.

While the Midland-Odessa area is free of tailpipe emissions testing, motorists will still be required to show proof of residency when they apply for motor-vehicle registration.

That will add an additional 25 cents to the registration fee, which in Midland County ranges from $50.80 to $68.80, including the $10 road-and-bridge tax authorized by the Midland County Commissioners' Court.

Midland County Tax Assessor-Collector Kathy Reeves noted that proof of residency is being required since some metropolitan motorists, seeking to escape the emissions testing, are driving to nearby counties where testing is not required and illegally claiming residency there.

"Those people are fleeing the 'non-attainment' counties and are going to other counties to get their car tags," Ms. Reeves said.

The term non-attainment is applied to those metropolitan areas that do not meet the EPA clean-air standards. Midland and Odessa are in attainment counties.

Acceptable proof of residency includes voter-registration card, driver's license, utility or telephone bill, property-tax statement or receipt, school-tuition receipt, or valid proof of liability insurance.

While Midland County is not affected by the emissions testing, Ms. Reeves said she supports efforts to clean up the environment.

" . . . I think we need to take care of our planet for future generations. I prefer voluntary cooperation."

To encourage state governments to mandate emissions testing, the federal government is threatening the states with the possible loss of millions of federal highway dollars.

John Hall, TNRCC chairman, is concerned about getting "gross-emitting vehicles off the roads" and ensuring that used cars with pollution problems are not resold before emissions problems are corrected.

"Citizens and the leadership of the state want not only reasonable convenience in emissions testing, but also increased efforts for addressing vehicles responsible for a disproportionate percentage of the emissions problems."

TNRCC Executive Director Dan Pearson said emissions testing "is one of the least expensive ways to reduce pollution."

marching in one combined formation, Storie explained. The comparably sized bands will be interspersed, with every musician in line being from a different organization from those on either side, he said.

The combined band will be practicing this formation and the specially selected music on Thursday, Ms. Sorrells said.

Practice begins at 4:30 p.m., with the combined band practice marching along closed-off portions of Texas Avenue between A and N streets, Storie said.

Midland Mayor Bobby Burns will present the bands with a proclamation honoring their selection to participate in the Austin inaugural event.

The bands have been invited singly to participate in the Rose Bowl Parade and have been selected for other high-profile appearances, including parades in Washington, D.C., in 1985 and 1989 for LHS, Storie explained.

"These two high school bands are the best goodwill ambassadors that this city has," Storie said.

Although the bands were invited partially because of the good relationship between Bush and the city of Midland — the fact that both bands have received state and national acclaim figured largely in the decision to extend the invitations, Storie said.

One final hurdle remains for the bands, however, Ms. Sorrells said. They don't have all of the $30,000 needed for travel and accommodations, she said.

There is one account for both bands, she said. Businesses and individuals have contributed much of the needed funds, but the organizations still need to raise $7,000 before the Friday deadline, she said.

"We came up with $23,000, but we need another $7,000 or we're not going to be able to pull it off," Storie said. "Things are getting kind of urgent."

To help out the bands, the Reporter Telegram has been running a daily ad for those wishing to contribute to the effort.

Tax-deductible donations may be made payable to: March on Austin, 410 N. Main St., Midland, 79701.

Survivor's note leads police to six bodies in apartment

NEW YORK (AP) — Six people were found slain in an apartment Saturday after a woman who escaped the attack scribbled police a note from her hospital bed on where to find the bodies.

The survivor, who had been stabbed in the throat and shot, was unable to talk. She escaped by jumping out the second-floor window of a condominium apartment building and was found by police on the front lawn about 3 a.m.

Police were unsure where she had come from and did not go back into the building until after she wrote the note hours later in the hospital, police spokesman John Miller said. The woman, whose name was not released, was in critical condition.

The dead, four women and two men ranging in age from their late teens to early 30s, were found throughout the apartment, in a quiet residential section of the borough of Queens. They had all been shot or stabbed.

The slayings took place between midnight and 3 a.m. Saturday, Miller said. Their identities and the motive for the killings were not immediately known.

Neighbors told police they had not heard any unusual noises coming from the apartment.

There was no sign of forced entry and the door was open when police arrived, Police Commissioner William Bratton said. The apartment had not been ransacked.

No drugs or drug paraphernalia were found, but neighbors told police a lot of people had recently been going in and out of the apartment. Detectives were investigating whether drugs were sold there, Miller said.

The bodies were discovered as Mayor Rudolph Giuliani and Bratton held a news conference announcing a major decline in overall crime in the city in 1994, including a nearly 19 percent drop in the number of murders.

SHOOT: Man opens fire, kills 1, self in mind.

"We have good security," Ford spokesman Bill Carroll said. "We can't police every single person every single time. These incidents do happen."

On Sept. 10, a Ford worker opened fire with a handgun as a union meeting broke up at a factory in Dearborn. Two workers were killed and two others injured. On Dec. 9, an autoworker apparently upset about his work assignment allegedly killed his supervisor and wounded a co-worker at a Chrysler Corp. plant in Sterling Heights. Suspects are awaiting trial in both cases.

Police didn't know if Brattin bought the gun to shoot his wife, but Berry said the .40-caliber semiautomatic handgun he used "is made for one thing, and that's to kill."

Factory worker Richard Priebe said he heard shots and a lot of screaming.

"You wouldn't expect it from him," Priebe said of the gunman.

Everyone at the Plymouth Township plant was sent home, but Ford planned to reopen all of the factory, except the area where the shooting occurred, for the afternoon shift. Workers were receiving counseling, Carroll said.

The 1,600 employees make heating and air-conditioning units for Ford's assembly plants in the United States and Mexico.

Lotto winners

Two tickets bought in the northern half of the state correctly matched all six numbers drawn Saturday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, lottery officials said. One ticket holder was from Northeast Texas while the other was from the Dallas area, said lottery spokesman Steven Levine.

World in brief

■ Earthquakes rock northern Japan

TOKYO — Two earthquakes and an aftershock shook Japan on Saturday, injuring at least 30 people with falling debris or small fires less than two weeks after another powerful tremor.

The first quake, with a preliminary 6.9 magnitude, hit northern Japan at 7:38 a.m. Buildings rattled and shook, and eight major train lines in the region were halted, railway officials said. At least eight buildings were damaged in Aomori state, about 360 miles northeast of Tokyo.

An aftershock with a preliminary magnitude of 6.2 hit four hours later, but neither injuries nor damage was reported.

At 9:34 p.m., another quake with a preliminary magnitude of 5.2 hit 60 miles north of Tokyo, shaking the capital region. One child was injured.

■ Book claims Rabin had election help

JERUSALEM — Right-wing leaders on Saturday accused Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin of fraud after a new book claimed his Labor Party won the 1992 election with help from PLO officials who stalled peace talks.

In a bizarre twist, the Palestine Liberation Organization official who wrote the book denied its claim that Rabin asked for help. The controversial sections were written by his aide, said another PLO official.

An aide to Rabin also denied he asked for PLO help.

Yitzhak Shamir, the Likud prime minister defeated in the 1992 election, said such a request would have "bordered on treason."

The Palestine Liberation Organization, which signed a peace treaty with Israel last year, was an outlawed guerrilla group at the time of the 1992 election. Contact with it by private Israeli citizens was illegal.

■ Sri Lankans begin truce today

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — Sri Lanka's government and Tamil rebels began a two-week truce early today, their guns silent for the first time in five years in a war that has killed more than 34,000 people.

The rebels have been fighting for a separate homeland in northern Sri Lanka for 11 years. Tamils say the ethnic Sinhalese-dominated government denies them jobs, education and a fair share of the Indian Ocean island nation's wealth.

"I pray that this will be the dawn of a new era of peace for our long-suffering nation," President Chandrika Kumaratunga said in a speech to Parliament Friday.

Boat people come home from Guantanamo base

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — A U.S. Coast Guard cutter dropped off 289 glum-looking Haitians on the capital pier Saturday, the second group to be forcibly returned from a U.S. refugee camp in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Two young men had to be handcuffed and removed from the Boutwell after they caused an uproar on board, shouting "President (Jean-Bertrand) Aristide sent for us. Let him come and get us!"

One of the men was carried down the gangplank, moaning and weeping, and placed in a U.S. Army Humvee.

"I don't want to come back to a country like this and die in the streets," the returnee said, tears streaming down his cheeks.

The Humvee was driven to the end of the pier, where the man was to be released after "cooling off," U.S. Coast Guard liaison officer Cmdr. David Breuninger said. The heavily armed U.S. soldiers overseeing the unloading wouldn't allow journalists to talk to him.

"I ran away from a hail of bullets. They burned my house down. I have nothing here, that's why I don't want to come back," shouted another man, 32-year-old Fritzman Delusma, from the cutter's deck.

He was led between rows of heavily-armed Bangladeshi soldiers to the Haitian immigration processing center.

"I'd be better off killing myself," he sobbed.

Delusma's house was burned down in Raboteau, a slum section of the western coastal city of Gonaives, when Haitian soldiers massacred dozens of people during a dawn raid on April 22.

The Red Cross gave the returnees the equivalent of $16.50 in pocket money. They were then dropped off at a bus stop.

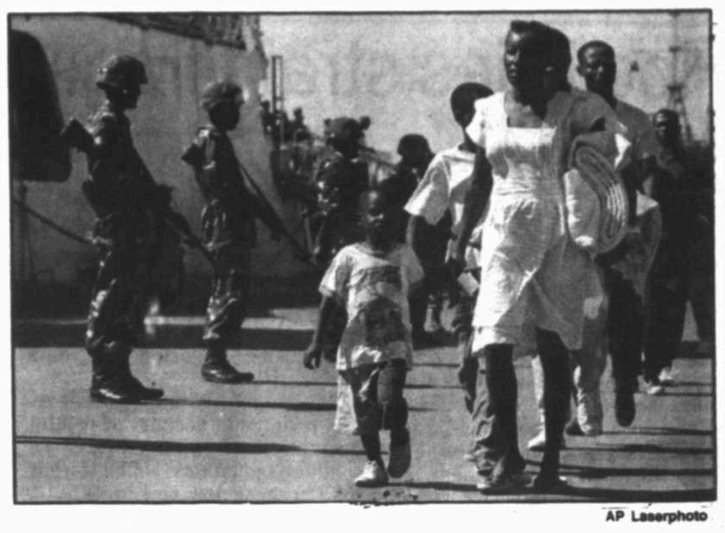

Fifty-four involuntary returnees arrived on Friday. Beginning Monday, about 400 will be returned each day until all 3,500 remaining in Guantanamo Bay are repatriated, U.S. Embassy spokesman Stan Schrager said.

Tens of thousands of Haitians fled economic hardship and political repression after the army ousted Aristide in September 1991. The number of Haitians at the Guantanamo Bay camp peaked last July at more than 20,000.

About 6,000 Haitians remained at Guantanamo last September, when a U.S.-led multinational force intervened to pave the way for Aristide's return on Oct. 15.

U.S. officials say the restoration of democracy and the renewal of international economic assistance has left refugees without valid grounds for requesting asylum.

"With the return of President Aristide, with the improving economic situation, with the unarguably better security situation, there is no reason for these people to stay in Guantanamo any longer," Schrager told The Associated Press.

Facelifts give Moscow new brighter look

MOSCOW (AP) — The hammer-and-sickle ruled supreme when Moscow was capital of the Communist world. Now a capitalist building boom is transforming this shabby, gray city, and the hammer and nail are king.

In Soviet times, Moscow was an unsettling mixture of hulking, Stalin-era skyscrapers, decaying 19th century architectural gems, anonymous office buildings and immense, drab housing blocks. The mood was gloomy, color and gaiety were scarce.

Mayor Yuri Luzhkov recently promised to completely remake his town into a "civilized world capital" by 1997, in time for its 850th birthday. The real estate entrepreneurs are way ahead of him.

They are cobbling communal apartments together into luxury flats that rent for thousands of dollars a month, turning historic but neglected old buildings into sleek, chic offices, banks and shops. They are erecting glossy new projects that are changing the face of central Moscow.

Moscow's building boom is fueled by the old-fashioned capitalist pursuit of profit. The demand for commercial and residential space up to Western standards far outstrips the supply, and that means potentially huge profits for investors.

"I wouldn't pay the kind of rents I'm charging," American developer John Reuther said with a laugh. "I can't afford it!"

A two- or three-bedroom apartment in the city center can cost the equivalent of $4,000 to $5,000 a month — rents almost dreamlike for the average Russian worker whose monthly pay is about $80.

The real estate frenzy started with foreign companies. But it took off this past year with Russian investors jumping in, something many economists call a healthy vote of confidence in the economy comparable to the Russian money now flowing into the fledging stock market.

"The people I'm looking to do business with are Russians and Russian banks," Reuther said. "I'm very excited they're now investing in Russian real estate instead of property in Switzerland or California."

The law is murky, the bureaucracy is maddening, the taxes on imported construction materials are sky-high. Deals gone sour can end with car bombs or machine guns and police have thick dossiers on elderly people killed for their apartments.

Hostilities strain fragile stability of Caucasus

By Sergei Shargorodsky
Associated Press

The fighting is straining the fragile stability of the Caucasus, giving a fresh boost to separatist groups and inflaming anti-Russian feelings and Muslim passions among the 3.5 million people who live in the various ethnic enclaves.

MINERALNYE VODY, Russia — Driving from this Russian town southeast into Chechnya is a lesson in history and ethnic conflict — badly learned by the Kremlin.

Punctuated by military and police checkpoints, the roads crisscross the tiny republics of the Caucasus Mountains, often at odds or at war with one another and wary of a Russia that conquered some of them less than 200 years ago.

It was into this intricate web of shifting loyalties and borders, tribal legends, religions, cultures and feuds that President Boris Yeltsin sent his soldiers.

Nearly a month later, the attempt to pacify secessionist Chechnya, an ill-defined region roughly 120 miles by 120 miles, is bogged down.

The fighting is straining the fragile stability of the Caucasus, giving a fresh boost to separatist groups and inflaming anti-Russian feelings and Muslim passions among the 3.5 million people who live in the various ethnic enclaves.

Though fears of another Caucasian War, as the 1817-64 Czarist conquest is known, so far appear unfounded, the Chechen conflict will make it harder for Moscow to divide and rule the region.

Yeltsin's disastrous military campaign starkly shows that lessons of history apparently have been forgotten by the Kremlin leadership.

The invasion's officially stated goal of disarming Chechen bandits is precisely what produced a major uprising in Chechnya and neighboring Dagestan 155 years ago.

Russian efforts to crush that revolt resulted in decades of painful guerrilla warfare waged from the southern mountains, which is what the Chechens now vow to do.

History is as alive as ever on the Caucasus roads.

Just beyond the resort area of Mineralnye Vody, there is Pyatigorsk, where Mikhail Lermontov, one of Russia's greatest poets, was killed in a duel in 1841.

A cavalry officer who fought the Caucasian highlanders, he wrote of love and battle. His poem about an "evil Chechen" is still required reading in many Russian schools — a reminder of the age-old enmity between the two peoples.

Farther south, there is Kabardino-Balkaria with a mixed Muslim and Slav population, its once-quiet capital of Nalchik now tensely watching the war. To the east is a string of 19th century Cossack villages, founded to keep the highlanders under control and still hostile toward the Chechens.

East of Chechnya lies Dagestan, a mostly Muslim region whose people reportedly allowed Islamic fighters and weapons to cross into the conflict zone but tried to stop Russian army convoys, taking some soldiers hostage.

Vladikavkaz, 120 miles southwest of Mineralnye Vody, is perhaps the most solid Russian foothold in the region, the capital of Christian North Ossetia, a traditional Russian ally.

Many Ossetians quietly hope the Russian action against Chechnya will eventually help them deal with their old enemies, the neighboring Muslim Ingush, ethnic brethren of the Chechens.

Russian troops had to intervene here after a brief but deadly Ossetian-Ingush conflict in 1992. There still is no resolution of that feud, and tensions and violence lurk behind every corner.

No Ossetian would wander beyond the military's border post at Chermen, an hour's drive from Vladikavkaz. No Ingush car would cross into Ossetia. Nobody would drive after dark through the devastated Prigorodny district, where the ruins of Ingush and Ossetian houses dot the roadside.

At night, Russian armored vehicles patrol deserted highways and soldiers huddle next to fires burning amid concrete boulders at the outposts.

Inside their wooden cabins, Ossetian and Ingush policemen build up hatred by exchanging insults over the radio, mentioning mothers and sisters, Allah and Christ.

In tiny Ingushetia, swarming with refugees, the 1992 eviction from Prigorodny reminds of the repression of 1944, when Josef Stalin exiled the Ingush and Chechens to Kazakhstan for allegedly helping the Nazis.

They returned in the 1950s to a Chechen-Ingush autonomous region and to Ossetia, where they often found their homes had been taken by Russians and Ossetians, sowing the seeds of new conflicts.

Ingushetia's leaders fear Russian reprisals after Ingush civilians, acting as the Muslims in Dagestan did, tried to block Russia army columns headed for Chechnya. About two dozen people were killed or wounded.

"I expect sanctions against the republic," including the deployment of Russian troops, Ingush President Ruslan Aushev said in an interview.

Many Ingush say they are ready to take up arms to help the Chechens. Some claim they already have, attacking the back lines of the Russian army.

"During the day, we work in government offices," one self-styled Ingush fighter said in a border village, keeping his name secret. "At night, we do what we have to do. The Russians won't have quiet here, be sure of it."

■ Memphis expects Elvis fans for party

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Somehow, the picture won't come into focus: A pompadoured but graying Elvis, in sensible shoes, sipping warm milk in Graceland's Jungle Room.

Sixty years old? Not the King.

But yes, Elvis Presley would be 60 today.

And though he died nearly 18 years ago, that doesn't stop the faithful from celebrating the day. Nor does it soften the rub of passing time for those who sought as teen-agers to affect his youthful swagger.

Thousands of fans were expected in Memphis this weekend for commemorative activities that include a dance party, a cake-cutting on the Graceland lawn and a symphony concert.

■ Storms batter east, west coasts

A tornado cut a 12-mile-long swath through rural northern Florida early Saturday, injuring dozens of people and damaging or destroying scores of mobile homes.

"There are pieces of trailers in trees," said Marion County Sheriff's Lt. Joe Cobb. "Pieces of torn and twisted aluminum are all over the place. There are lawn chairs in trees. There's a little bit of everything in trees."

Farther north along the line of stormy weather that hit Florida, wind gusted as high as 145 mph in North Carolina, killing two people and causing dozens of injuries and extensive damage.

On the West Coast, more than 200,000 customers lost power early Saturday as a storm blasted California with heavy rain, wind and snow.

■ Rhino bullets receive federal approval

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. — Federal regulators have decided to approve the sale of the Rhino-Ammo fragmenting bullet after tests showed the notorious ammunition is no different than other hollow-point bullets.

The U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in Washington test-fired less than a dozen of the new bullets and will license them within 60 days, bureau spokesman Tom Hill said Friday.

Congress begins with changes

By Mike Feinsilber
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — It wasn't just a shift from Democrats to Republicans that America was witness to last week.

The Republicans took over Congress and reopened a debate as old as the Constitution over the role of government in the lives of the citizens. Against that backdrop:

■ The power to initiate shifted — at least for the moment — from White House to Congress.

Since New Deal days, it has become accepted that presidents lay programs before Congress and Congress acts, or refuses to act, on them. This Congress came to office with its own Republican agenda, indifferent to whatever President Clinton may have in mind.

■ A generational shift is under way that gives relative newcomers a substantive role in deciding what government should be up to.

Fully 40 percent of the House is composed of freshmen or sophomores. Speaker Newt Gingrich, who himself leapfrogged to get to the top, gave freshmen the visible task of managing parts of his Contract With America in Wednesday's marathon opening House debate. He also put new members into positions of responsibility and waived seniority in handing out some committee chairmanships.

■ A shift in power from Washington to the states is at least getting lip service.

The Republicans are talking about getting Washington to withdraw from many areas, giving states the responsibility for dealing with housing, homelessness, education, nutrition, job training, child care and foster care.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., now a committee chairwoman, wants to turn over the entire welfare problem to the states, and take over Medicaid funding from them so they would have the wherewithal to deal with welfare.

The Senate already has started debating a resolution under which Congress would swear off handing "unfunded mandates" to the states. They're federal instructions to states, municipalities or private businesses that are unaccompanied by money to pay for them, such as last year's motor voter law requiring states to register voters at government offices, such as motor vehicle bureaus. New Mexico Sen. Pete Domenici, chairman of the Budget Committee, called the attempt to curb such mandates "the start of a fundamental redefinition of the federalism system."

■ A change in focus, shifting Congress' attention away from curing the problems of the country to reforming the workings of the government, whose ability to do much right has little standing with the public.

That preoccupation with internal reform is behind the term limits debate and the balanced budget dialogue, and the flat tax idea, which House Majority Leader Richard Armey says could pass before this Congress ends in two years.

The preoccupation with reforming government undergirds attempts to shrink the government's size and reach, to close down some agencies, to force the government to take into consideration the dollar impact on industry and individuals of the regulations it imposes.

No crash in future, economists say, but advise caution for rising rates

By James H. Rubin
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — It's becoming easier to borrow money, as anyone with a credit card knows after having the lending limit raised without even asking.

Despite a credit boom, economists say there is little immediate danger of an economic crash that could cause personal bankruptcies to mushroom. But they caution that down the road, rising interest rates, leading to a slower economy and more unemployment, could mean trouble if Americans continue to pile up debt.

Government figures show that credit cards are being used to pay for an increasing percentage of consumer spending.

All consumer debt not secured by real estate rose at an annual rate of 15.8 percent in October after climbing 14.3 percent in September and 21.3 percent in August.

Government figures will be announced Monday for November, and analysts expect another big increase.

Still, analysts say so far there is little cause for alarm. They said millions of Americans are using credit cards primarily as a convenient substitute for cash and predicted they will lower their outstanding balances quickly.

Bank figures on delinquent accounts bear out the optimism. The American Bankers Association said in December that the percentage of consumers behind on loan payments dropped to a 20-year low in the three-month period ending Sept. 30.

Lenders have been offering all manner of incentives to encourage shoppers to reach for credit cards instead of cash or checkbooks. Frequent flyer miles, free gasoline and discounts on new cars are among the popular promotions tied to credit card use.

Through the first nine months of 1994, consumers spent 16 percent of their after-tax income paying off consumer installment and mortgage debt. That is about average for the past 25 years and compares favorably to the peak debt service burden of 18 percent in late 1989.

"Debt service has been relatively flat as a portion of disposable income," said Kevin SigRist, an economist with Norwest Corp., a Minneapolis bank. "That's because right now we're seeing very strong job growth and pretty strong income growth."

"If we can assume the economy is not going to run aground, then most people will be in a position to pay it off," added Sandra Shaber of the WEFA Group, a forecasting service in Bala Cynwyd, Pa. "But by spring or summer, if we run into a recession, then we're in trouble. A lot of people will be caught short."

The question is whether the interest rate increases engineered by the Federal Reserve will slow consumer spending before debt service reaches dangerous levels.

It has been nearly a year since the central bank began reversing its five-year course of lower or stable short-term interest rates.

Banks have moved practically in lock-step, raising the prime rate to 8.5 percent and sending the cost of borrowing upward. Fixed-rate 30-year mortgages, for example, stood at 9.22 percent this week — the highest level in more than three years.

But aside from slower growth for the housing industry, the credit squeeze has had little impact on an economy propelled by consumer spending. Analysts expect another rate increase by the Fed at the end of January.

New York death penalty debate shifts focus

By Kevin Sack
N.Y. Times News Service

ALBANY, N.Y. — With the inauguration of Gov. George Pataki virtually insuring the enactment of the death penalty in New York, the focus of the debate over capital punishment has shifted to the mechanics of drafting a bill that will survive a challenge in the state courts.

Many of those who have led the battle against capital punishment over the years, including the New York Civil Liberties Union and the Roman Catholic Church, refuse to give up the fight. Other opponents acknowledge that New York will become the 38th state to enact the death penalty, and believe their energy is better spent trying to make New York's bill more fair.

Less than 24 hours after Pataki delivered his inaugural address, where his pledge to sign the death penalty drew the loudest cheers, one of his top aides convened a meeting with legislative officials to begin revising the state's death penalty bill.

That legislation has passed both the Democratic-majority Assembly and the Republican-majority Senate by comfortable margins every year since 1977, only to be vetoed by Democratic governors.

The predictability of those vetoes insured that the legislation received more oratorical support than constitutional analysis over the years.

But the election of a Republican governor has led to closer scrutiny, starting with a move to specify lethal injection as the method of execution, rather than electrocution.

That change from previous legislation, accepted in principle by the governor and the leaders of both houses, is intended to help persuade New York's top court, the Court of Appeals, that capital punishment does not violate the state Constitution's ban on cruel and unusual punishment.

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that the death penalty does not defy the U.S. Constitution's prohibition against cruel and unusual punishment. But opponents of capital punishment in New York are hoping that the Court of Appeals, with all seven members appointed by Gov. Mario Cuomo, will find that the state Constitution affords greater protections.

It has found as much in a number of recent cases involving due process, search and seizure, and freedom of speech, but it has produced few precedents on cruel and unusual punishment.

Women tell of fight for acceptance during wars

By Martha Bryson Hodel
Associated Press

It was 1943, and the world was at war. But Marie Telford Gartner's first battle, and the hardest, was with herself.

A second-year teacher in Connecticut, Gartner had never ventured very far from the small coastal town of Madison where she grew up. Two brothers were in the Army, one of them posted overseas. War news was everywhere.

For months, Gartner wondered if the war had a place for her. Then one day, dragging her younger sister along for moral support, she visited a Marine recruiter in Boston.

"I thought to myself, 'You'd better do it or you're never going to do anything,'" she recalled recently. "If I left, I knew I wouldn't come back. So I signed up and then all the way home I worried about how I was going to tell my mother."

That personal watershed for Gartner mirrored a turning point for an entire generation of women.

About 11,000 American women served during World War I, virtually all of them nurses. But it took World War II, and the 350,000 women who volunteered, to establish a permanent place for them in the U.S. armed forces.

Most women remained on the homefront, although Army and Navy nurses went all over the world. Eighty nurses serving in the Philippines, Guam and Bataan, for example, were captured by the Japanese and spent most of the war in prison camps.

"About 60 percent to 70 percent of all women in all the branches of service were doing administrative, clerical kinds of things," said D'Ann Campbell, a history professor at Austin Peay State University in Clarksville, Tenn., who has made women's role in the military her field of study.

"They wanted women for these necessary chores to release more men for the battlefield," Campbell said.

European Allies needed women early. Great Britain began drafting women for military and civilian duty in 1939. By 1942, virtually every British woman between the ages of 18 and 60 was serving, including Princess Elizabeth, who later became Queen Elizabeth II, and the daughter of Prime Minister Winston Churchill. Both were assigned to anti-aircraft units.

In the French underground, as many as 40 percent of resisters were women, Campbell said.

"You cannot fight a total war, the kind of war that Britain and France were fighting, without every man, woman and child," she said. "How easily women were accepted was a matter of how much they were needed."

But except for nurses, women had no permanent role in the U.S. military before 1942.

Prior to that, nurses who served received "appointments" to the Army or Navy Nurse Corps. Considered neither enlisted nor commissioned personnel, they had no rank and their pay was only slightly better than that of an enlisted man.

Author Mary Lee Settle, now living in Charlottesville, Va., tried repeatedly to enlist. Twenty pounds underweight and nearly blind in one eye, she was even turned down by the civilian women's branch of the U.S. Merchant Marines, where she hoped to put her knowledge of Morse Code to use.

"I was a premature anti-fascist," Settle said. "I tried to join up before America got into the war."

In 1942, Settle finally went to England, where she enlisted in the Women's Auxiliary Air Force, a branch of the Royal Air Force. She spent much of her enlistment working as a radio-telephone operator.

"War isn't all noble fighting in the hedgerows. A lot of it is just sitting around," said Settle, who recounted her experiences as an Aircraft Woman 2nd Class in the book "All The Brave Promises."

In March 1942, Congress created the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps, giving women temporary military status that was to last as long as the war.

'You cannot fight a total war, the kind of war that Britain and France were fighting, without every man, woman and child.'

— D'Ann Campbell, history professor
Austin Peay State University, Clarksville, Tenn.

By the end of July 1942, the Navy began accepting women into the WAVES, short for Women Accepted for Volunteer Emergency Service. The Coast Guard and the Marines soon followed and, by June 1943, the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps had become the Women's Army Corps.

But acceptance took a little longer, and many a woman endured male jokes about khaki underwear. And it wasn't until after the war was over, in 1948, that Congress made women a permanent part of the military.

"Many of the men didn't like us invading their male chauvinist organization," recalled Gartner, who now lives in Jessup, Md. "They had a not-very-nice nickname for us that they used when they thought we couldn't overhear. They called us 'BAMs' for 'Broad-Assed Marines.'"

Some blame the slow acceptance on the government's publicity campaign, which emphasized that each woman who enlisted would free up a man to fight. Some male soldiers viewed women as a threat to a safe billet.

By the end of 1943, just as the government was gearing up its campaign to enlist women, the number of female enlistees began to fall. According to Campbell, the decline was at least partly the result of a nationwide smear campaign that portrayed female soldiers as sexually promiscuous.

The government finally enlisted the FBI to determine if the rumors were being planted by Nazi agents. Instead, the FBI found that most originated with American servicemen.

An Army survey in June 1945 indicated that nearly half of male soldiers felt women could do more working as civilians in a defense industry. It also found a third believed joining the Army was "pretty bad" for a girl's reputation and 20 percent thought it was very bad.

Asked if they would advise their girlfriends to join the Women's Army Corps, 64 percent said they definitely would not and another 20 percent said they probably would not, according to the survey.

Audrey Foley Zeisler enlisted in the Marines in Brooklyn, N.Y., in February 1945 at the age of 23, after an adored older brother was killed in the Marshall Islands in 1944.

"There was a fellow I'd gone out with before I enlisted," recalled Zeisler, who now lives in Reno, Nev. "I wrote and told him I'd joined the Marines. And oh, he was just highly indignant. He said, 'Why under the sun would you do such a thing?'"

Zeisler thought that even her older brother might not have approved.

"He was what they call 'macho' now and he probably would have frowned on it, because women were supposed to stay in their place," she said.

At the peak, 271,600 women served in the U.S. military, 170,000 of them in the Army. About 350,000 American women volunteered for service during the war.

The most obvious need was for nurses. By the end of the war, the American Journal of Nursing reported that 43 percent of all active registered nurses in the country had volunteered for military service.

As a result, Campbell said, nurses quickly came to be seen "as saviors and heroines."

Economy boosts most major cities to best financial shape in years, analysts say

By Steven A. Holmes
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Flush with growing tax receipts from an improved economy and reaping the benefits of years of belt-tightening, the country's major cities are in their best financial shape in years, city officials and analysts say.

There are a few notable exceptions, including the nation's two largest cities, New York and Los Angeles, where weak local economies have contributed to continuing budget woes.

The roster of cities that have made stunning comebacks from the hard times of the recession include municipalities as diverse as Chicago, Miami, Denver, Detroit, San Francisco and Cleveland. Even Bridgeport, Conn., which was forced into bankruptcy in 1991, has returned to fiscal stability.

Many cities are even running surpluses for the first time in years, say students of municipal finances and chief financial officers of a number of large cities.

Analysts of municipal finances say that in recent years more and more cities based budgets on conservative estimates of revenues and then used these estimates as a rationale to trim costs. As a result, as the economy bounced back, revenues exceeded expectations, leaving many cities with balanced budgets or even large surpluses.

"We've found that even the cities that were sort of just hanging in there and not doing terrifically well, even they are reporting that the underlying economic base was better in '94 than it was in the prior two or three years," said Michael A. Pagano, a political science professor at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, who tracks municipal finances for the National League of Cities.

Beyond increased tax revenues, many cities have, in recent years, reduced expenses. They have instituted hiring freezes, kept wages down and in some cases, introduced new work rules to increase productivity.

As a result, according to Pagano, spending by large cities grew by one-half of one percent in 1993, a sharp decline over the years of 3 percent spending growth that occurred in the late 1980s and the 2 percent to 2.5 percent of the early years of this decade.

Analysts caution that the heady return to fiscal health of cities could unravel this year.

For one thing, urban problems like poverty, crime and AIDS have not gone away as cities made sharp cuts in their social spending to cope with the recession. And unions, after accepting years of wage freezes, may start agitating for pay increases.

In addition, city revenues could face threats both from a slowdown in the economy, which many experts predict, and from proposals from would-be tax cutters in Congress and many state legislatures to scale back aid to cities.

"It's too early to declare victory," said Hy Grossman, managing director of Standard & Poors' Public Finance Department.

Still, in an annual survey of city fiscal administrators last July, the National League of Cities reported that 54.5 percent of more than 550 chief financial officers felt their cities "were better able to meet their fiscal needs in 1994, compared to 1993."

That was a substantial increase in the level of optimism compared to the 33.7 percent who felt that way a year before.

And a report last year by Moody's Investor Service indicated that in 1993 — the latest year for which complete data are available — it upgraded the ratings for the general obligation bonds for 83 cities and downgraded the ratings for 39 others.

That was a marked improvement in the fiscal health of cities from only a year before when Moody's upgraded the ratings for 61 cities and downgraded those for 59.

Doctors don guns, bulletproof vests for protection in abortion war

By Dan Sewell
Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Instead of a little black bag, the slight, white-haired doctor usually reaches each morning for a recent addition to his standard medical garb — a bulletproof vest.

But rising before dawn for his first appointment on this day, Dr. Ralph Robinson forgot his vest. As he approached the clinic where he performs abortions two days a week, Robinson saw a solitary protester — a familiar face who's "been coming here for years." The doctor smiled.

The man began shouting, something about killings and insurance, while the doctor was escorted from the car and into the clinic by a security officer.

Once inside, Robinson noted that a vest hardly guaranteed his safety.

"I've had protesters say, 'Well, we'll just have to shoot you through the head,'" he said.

The 81-year-old doctor recounted the threat calmly. It's one of many he's had, like the message he would hear on his answering machine every night, until he finally disconnected it.

Always the same: "Tomorrow's going to be your last day."

For Robinson and others on the front lines, the abortion battle is not just a matter of debate. It is, says clinic director Diane Derzis, "an all-out war," and death threats aren't considered idle.

In less than two years, two abortion doctors, two clinic receptionists and and a volunteer clinic escort have been slain, and two other abortion doctors and five other clinic employees or volunteers have been shot and wounded.

How often does Derzis feel her life may be in danger?

"Every day," she says, without pause.

She says she will buy a semiautomatic gun to replace her small handgun, and vows: "If I'm going, I'm going to take some of them with me."

Other doctors, administrators and nurses at clinics here and around the Alabama-northwest Florida area, where the first slayings occurred, say they, too, are arming and protecting themselves — with guns, flak jackets and alarm systems.

"We all have a heightened sense of awareness," said Sandy Sheldon, director of a Pensacola clinic. "We don't think they're finished."

"I think anyone who tells you he doesn't feel fear is lying," said Derzis, whose Summit Medical Center was visited this day — less than a month before two clinic receptionists were killed in Brookline, Mass. — by a security salesman who took orders for small "body alarms" and door alarms.

"There's going to be more murders. I would not be surprised if I heard there was one today," she said. "As soon as David was killed, I knew there would be more."

On March 10, 1993, Dr. David Gunn, 47, of Eufaula, Ala., was shot in the back three times as he walked from his car at the Pensacola Women's Medical Services clinic, which Sheldon directs.

Most anti-abortion activists and veteran organizations, such as Operation Rescue, condemned Gunn's fatal shooting by Michael Griffin.

But Gunn's slaying signaled the emergence of an extreme segment of the anti-abortion movement — those who use terms such as "justifiable homicide" and "the execution of mass murderers" in support of killing abortionists.

Often offering interpretations of Scripture to support their beliefs, they contend that they are justified in protecting the lives of fetuses that would be aborted, just as they would be morally correct to take action to prevent the killing of a "born" child.

"We proclaim that whatever force is legitimate to defend the life of a born child is legitimate to defend the life of an unborn child," said a letter signed by 30 anti-abortion activists after Gunn's slaying and circulated by Paul Hill of Pensacola, a former minister.

Hill bypassed Britton's bulletproof vest by firing his shotgun at Britton's head. He blasted Barrett in the face.

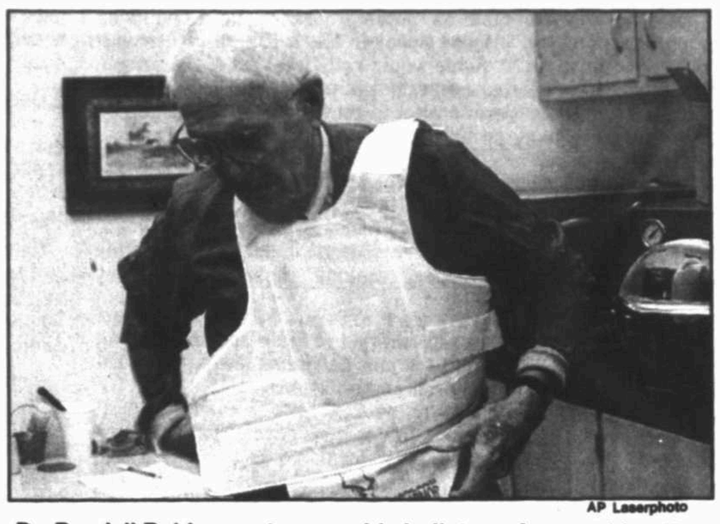

Convicted of two counts of first-degree murder and sentenced Dec. 6 to die in Florida's electric chair, Hill was remorseless. He acted honorably, he said, to "defend the unborn."

Hill's death penalty — Griffin is serving a life imprisonment sentence — was seen by leaders of both sides as unlikely to deter future violence.

"I believe that there will be more," said Rev. David Trosch, a Roman Catholic priest in Mobile who's been suspended from official church duties because he supports killing abortionists. "Of course, we don't have any details on this, but I believe we will see increased violence not only against the clinic buildings but those who work out of them.

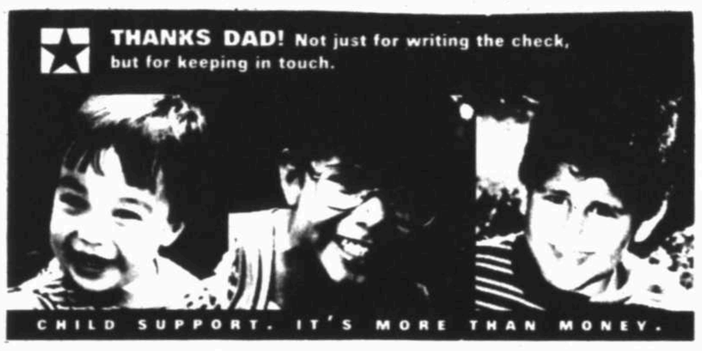

"This will gradually escalate," Trosch added, "until it becomes a fairly common occurrence."

The unsolved sniper wounding in November of a doctor who performed abortions, shot as he ate breakfast in his kitchen in Vancouver, Canada, raised fears among some abortion workers about home attacks. And the Dec. 30 slayings of receptionists at two Brookline, Mass., clinics confirmed fears that anyone involved in clinic work is a potential target.

State legislators echo national agenda with individual contracts

By Arlene Levinson
Associated Press

Cut taxes! Shrink government! Put work into welfare! The same trumpet calls sounded by the new crowd in Congress echo under statehouse domes.

Besides the Contract With America, there was the Contract With Indiana, the Contract With North Carolina, the Contract With South Carolina. As most legislatures convene this month, or plan to in coming months, lawmakers find themselves, like Congress, under the influence of the Republican sweep.

"The states seem to be playing, one way or another, what's going on at the national level," said professor Alan Rosenthal of Rutgers University's Eagleton Institute of Politics, "with an emphasis on down-sizing government, giving money back to the people ... and dealing with welfare and crime.

"Where have we heard that before?"

Watch those Newt Gingrich soundalikes, quipped Rosenthal, referring to the frosty-haired U.S. House speaker. "I think you'll find too, that many Republican speakers in the (state) houses have dyed their hair white."

Along with the 30 Republican governors running states, Republicans now control 19 state legislatures, Democrats 18 and party control is split in 12. (Nebraska lawmakers don't run under party banners.) The GOP hasn't had such statehouse clout since the 1960s.

This is not all about Republicans, however, as Associated Press statehouse reporters learned, asking legislative leaders and governors what tops their '95 agendas.

Surviving Democrats know the new tune, as well.

"A lot of new members would like to see the state cut back on some things, and so would I," said Alabama state Rep. Mike Box, a Democrat.

Much on the states' new agendas isn't new at all, whether the problem is crime, improving education, making government more efficient or cutting property taxes, noted William Pound, executive director of the National Conference of State Legislatures in Denver.

And, he said, "unlike our national government, which has been running a deficit, most states have to balance a budget. And a majority of states are in pretty good fiscal condition. And that enables them to talk about a tax cut."

Some will even enjoy the problem of spending expected surpluses, like the the $3 billion in Texas. In Montana, anticipating up to $25 million extra, they're talking refunds of $10 to $74 per taxpayer.

Eager to cut taxes, some engage in bidding wars. To paraphrase Irving Berlin's Annie Oakley, "Any tax you can cut, I can cut better."

Pick a tax to cut, any tax: income, corporate, property, sales. About half the legislatures can look forward to that job.

"There are some people very deeply committed to getting rid of the property tax on homeowners," said Republican House Speaker Mark Killian of Arizona. "Some would rather get rid of the personal property tax paid by businesses. And some want to get rid of the income tax, or at least go to a flat tax."

With tax cuts come government cuts, in both spending and the bureaucracy. South Carolina's new House Ways and Means Chairman Henry Brown, a Republican, wants zero-based budgeting for state agencies, making them justify every penny.

Virginia lawmakers will entertain slashing $403 million in state spending, along with 1,100 jobs and items like agricultural research and museum grants.

Cutting back welfare is a priority in at least 15 states considering find-your-own bootstraps reform.

A Massachusetts proposal would tell able-bodied parents to get a job while the state pays their child care and doctor bills. A Texas idea would stop benefits after two years, require recipients to get jobs, training or schooling, and bar extra benefits for children added while on welfare.

One expense that may be spared the ax is education. Eager to improve education, and sometimes under court order as in Arizona, Texas and New Jersey, lawmakers will seek ways to equitably distribute money among rich and poor districts.

California lawmakers, celebrating the end of a recession, will weigh pressure to cut business and personal income taxes against pressure to restore social services and education spending lost in lean times.

Crime continues to claim a spot on lawmakers' must-do list. The death penalty may get restored in Alaska, Iowa, Minnesota, New York, North Dakota, Rhode Island and Wisconsin, where another proposal would outlaw feticide — the death of a fetus during a felony. Maryland and Tennessee proposals would hasten executions by speeding appeals.

Organization stops charity baby burials

N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — It remains unclear who brought Baby John Doe No. 237 into this world.

What is known is that he was found the day after Christmas in a brown plastic bag, buried in the backyard of a sleepy suburban Sun Valley neighborhood.

Baby John Doe No. 237 was the last unidentified baby of 1994 in Los Angeles County, one of more than 10 newborns found abandoned every year.

He will be buried like all the other unclaimed, unidentified people and paupers: Cremated and interred in a mass grave in East Los Angeles with about 2,000 other adults, children and infants.

For Rose Horton, the mystery of Baby John Doe No. 237 is a familiar one; she and her husband created the Child Rest In Peace expressly to provide dignified funeral services and burials for infants when no one else would.

"It is a really hard thing to do. I have two little girls. They are babies — and I am burying babies. It is heartbreaking," she said.

"They were humans. They were not refuse, and the babies we took care of were generally found in trash cans," said the 38-year-old mother of two.

"That was the very last thing you could do for this child, was a service — some words said, some sort of acknowledgement," Horton said.

Since the charity opened in 1991, Horton has buried 13 children.

Baby John Doe No. 237 will not be Child Rest in Peace's 14th burial, however, because Horton is closing the foundation, another victim of the economy.

The demands of Child Rest in Peace became too much for Rose and Ellis Horton to continue after their suburban Sante Fe Springs carpet installation business hit hard times and eventually closed.

Child Rest in Peace is still in the process of dissolving itself, having just transferred its last assets — about $5,000 — to another charity.

"We thought it would be part of our lives — for the rest of our lives," she said. "But it didn't pan out."

'That was the very last thing you could do for this child, was a service — some words said, some sort of acknowledgement.'
— Rose Horton

Los Angeles County officials bemoan the loss.

"I hope someone does decide they will carry on with this important work," said Deanne Tilton, executive director of the county Interagency Council on Child Abuse and Neglect.

"Every child deserves to be honored, no matter under what circumstances they are conceived and born," Tilton said.

But many are not, as Rose Horton learned.

In a series of common graves next to the county crematory, the ashes of literally thousands of bodies are deposited. Each grave is marked with a single sign, indicating the year of the cremation.

The yearly mass burial for 1994 was held three weeks ago: 1,400 adults and 600 children.

"Most of them were probably babies," said the Rev. Phil Manly, who has presided over these pauper services for the past 22 years.

"It always overwhelms me personally," the 53-year-old chaplain said. "You'd have to have no heart at all not to be — to see all of these little boxes, each that represent human life."

Manly believes that without Child Rest in Peace or another group like it, more babies will certainly end up in the county's mass graves.

As is county policy, the ashes of Baby John Doe No. 237 will be held for three years before burial, just in case someone surfaces to claim them.

And sometimes someone does.

Of the 209 male adults, children and infants that the coroner logged initially as John Does, all but 21 were ultimately claimed or accounted for, coroner records show.

By comparison, there were only 71 unidentified female adults, children and infants, of which six went unclaimed.

In 1994, the abandoned, unidentified babies included John Doe No. 156, found Sept. 11 in a Hollywood dumpster. He had been strangled with a plastic wrapper.

They included Jane Doe No. 36, who was found June 6 in a shed in Baldwin Park, a city east of Los Angeles. Her identity and the cause of her death also remain a mystery.

And there wasBaby John Doe No. 237, whose county-provided name marks him as the 237th unidentified male body of any age.

Los Angeles police investigators do not know whether Baby John Doe No. 237 ever took a breath or whether he had been murdered. They say they probably never will unless the mother or a witness comes forward.

"That sadly is not going to be able to be proven," said Detective Woody Beardsley, of the Los Angeles Police Department's Child Abuse Unit.

Businessman moves up to top

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

At the end of his workday — like many others employed downtown in the Tall City — Mark Kimball heads for the elevator. But instead of going down, he goes up.

The president and owner of Executone of the Permian Basin operates the manual elevator to the twenty-sixth floor of the 112 Loraine South Building, Midland's oldest office tower, which was completed in 1926.

The top floor of the structure — originally the Thomas Medical Building and later the site of the First National Bank — is home to Kimball, 39, and his dog, Tuesday August XXVII.

His home's main room — about 100 feet long and lined with windows — is painted a crisp dark blue. No walls separate the living room area, the dining table, a bar and kitchen, and a pool table.

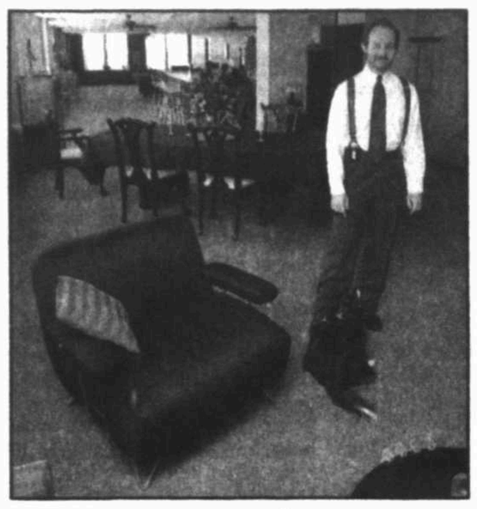

"Everything you see in here was built by my father or purchased in Midland. I'm very proud of that," Kimball said.

Behind a vault door in what was once the trust department of the bank is a spacious walk-in closet. The 4,000-square-foot apartment also includes a bedroom, guest room and bathroom.

"It's got a great view of the Hilton pool," Kimball said looking out one of his twenty-sixth floor windows.

The sunrises between the Hilton towers are also noteworthy, he said.

The 1,260-pound grand-champion black steer, affectionately named Houdini, brought exhibitor Allison Worley of Greenwood $2,540 in prize money Saturday at the Midland County Livestock Show's premium auction.

All told, more than 250 4-H Club boys and girls and FFA (Future Farmers of America) youths exhibited 443 calves, swine, sheep, goats and pens of rabbits and chickens in the 43rd annual show in the Midland County Exhibit Building.

More than 250 4-H Club, FFA youths showed livestock at 43rd annual show; 136 exhibitors qualified for the auction.

But only 140 head of livestock and 136 exhibitors qualified for the auction.

"It was an exciting sale," said Earnest Kiker, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service (TAEX) agricultural agent for Midland County.

"And on behalf of all of the youths and instructors, we appreciate their continued support of our program in the development of youth."

The sale of 140 head of livestock brought $91,666.50 to the 136 FFA and 4-H Club exhibitors. The auction included 18 steers, 66 swine, 48 lambs, four goats and two pens of rabbits and two pens of chickens. The 1995 auction was about $10,000 more than the 1994 sale, which did not include meat goats.

The 1995 livestock show was dedicated to Ted and Rita McVey for their family's years of support of the 4-H Club and FFA livestock program.

"I was shocked; I was very surprised," Allison said of Houdini's top showing. The 18-month-old blue-ribbon steer — an exotic Chianina breed that originated in Italy — was from the Newman Ranch in Martin County.

Pooling their resources to donate the $2,540 to Allison for her work in raising and showing the steer were Agri-Empresa Inc., Midland American Bank and Birkhead Feed Store.

Minister denies harassment allegations

FORT WORTH (AP) — An embattled minister, who has been accused by 26 women of sexual harassment and misconduct, has denied publicly the allegations and said he plans to continue preaching.

The Rev. Barry Bailey, who resigned Aug. 31 as senior minister at First United Methodist Church in Fort Worth amid allegations of sexual misconduct, spoke at length for the first time Friday.

"I will tell you I have never harassed a woman or a man in my life, period," said Bailey, who could be stripped of his credentials as a United Methodist minister.

At least 26 women have filed written complaints with the United Methodist Church's regional office over incidents dating to the early 1970s, and more have come forward informally, according to church officials, the women and their lawyers.

Many of the women said he seemed obsessed with discussing their sex lives and one said he had sex with her in his church office.

The 68-year-old Bailey, who said he plans to continue his preaching career no matter what the outcome of church disciplinary proceedings, categorically rejected the accusations.

"I wouldn't be going to court to make a confession," he said of church court hearings. "I don't go around propositioning women."

'I will tell you I have never harassed a woman or a man in my life, period.'

GARY OTT

As Connie Chung proved, telling secrets is American way

Connie Chung, Connie Chung, Connie Chung, how could you do it? You promised you wouldn't tell, but you did. A secret is supposed to be a secret. Yet, the first chance you got, you blabbed to an entire nation what Mrs. Gingrich told you.

Ott

Shame on you.

Even David Letterman, who worships the ground you walk on, should be disappointed in you. And let me add this: Professionally, you certainly didn't do those of us who call ourselves journalists any favors. We already rate down there with lawyers, and now you pull this stunt? Thanks a lot.

Still, having expressed my outrage, let's be honest here. We all know how difficult it is to keep a secret, especially when it is REALLY juicy like this one. After all, we have the mother of a highly controversial man on the rise calling the equally controversial first lady a, well, you know, a not-so-nice name. It would take a tremendous amount of self-discipline to keep that baby under wraps regardless of your profession. I mean, this is hot stuff we're talking about here.

Indeed, being in possession of a juicy bit of information can be a most uncomfortable experience. You promised the person in question you would keep quiet about it, yet, at the same time, the knowledge is about to burn a hole in your throat. You're just dying to tell somebody something, even if it involves playing that old childhood game of, "I know something you don't know. I'll give you three guesses to figure out what it is."

If you are like most "normal" human beings you probably compromise somewhat when it comes to keeping a secret. You don't pull a Connie Chung and tell the whole world; instead, you take aside one person, a really good friend who — unlike you — can be trusted, and make that person "swear up and down" that he "won't tell a soul," and then you spill your guts.

And, man, does it ever feel good. In your excitement, you expose every last detail you know, even adding a bit of your own personal touch from time to time. If that additional information isn't quite accurate, so what? It won't go any further. After all, your friend promised not to tell a soul. And, as we all know, a person who swears to keep a secret would rather die than go back on his word. Right?

Wrong.

Your friend will experience the exact same temptation that rushed through your body earlier in the day. And like what happened to you, your friend will succumb. He won't take an advertisement out in the newspaper, of course, but he will corner one friend, swear that person to secrecy, and then let it all hang out. Piece by piece, he will tell everything he knows.

It is the American way.

Indeed, that's where Connie Chung made her big mistake. Instead of telling the whole world, she should have just whispered what she knew to Dan Rather, who, in turn, would have whispered it to Tom Brokaw, who then would have told Peter Jennings.

And so on and so forth.

It would have taken longer for all of us to know what Mrs. Gingrich actually said, but eventually we would have heard.

And, better yet, Connie Chung would have saved her reputation. Instead of being known as a "blabbermouth," she would just be a normal human being who, when confronted, could exclaim, "Honest, I didn't tell a soul. Besides, Dan promised he wouldn't tell."

Services for Manuela M. Vasquez, 64, of Presidio are pending with Martinez-Grace Funeral Home.

She died Friday in San Antonio.

Border Patrol agent dies in accident

DEL RIO (AP) — A U.S. Border Patrol agent was killed when his vehicle overturned while he was on duty about 40 miles east of Del Rio, authorities said Saturday.

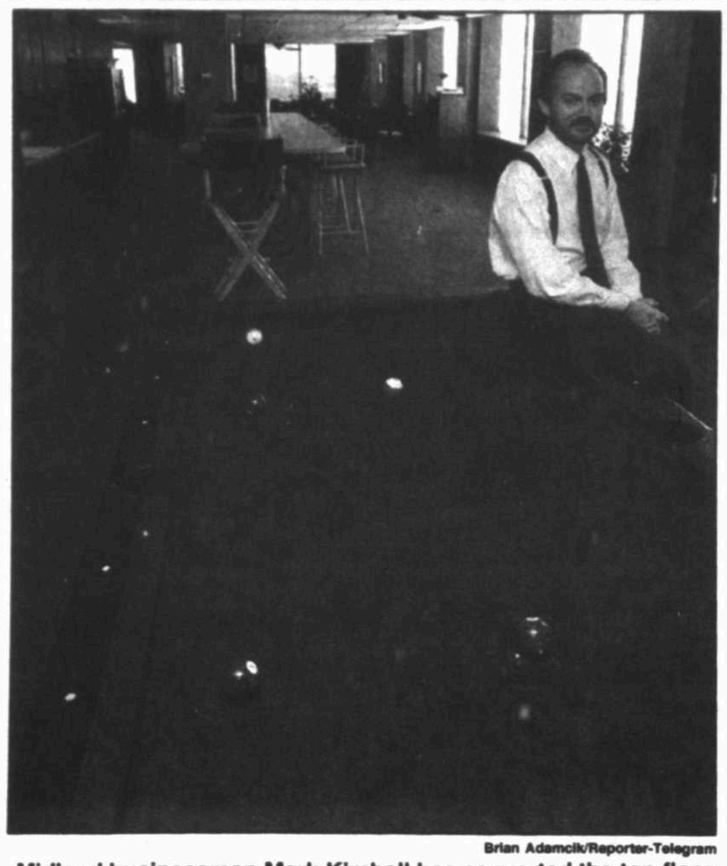

"The initial indications are that he hit a deer," said Mario Ortiz, spokesman for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, which oversees the Border Patrol.

The victim was identified as Jose Nava, an eight-year patrol veteran with a wife and son in Del Rio. The agent was driving to a train check operation when the accident occurred late Friday.

"Agent Nava was among those who perform a valiant job against many challenges and I am deeply saddened to learn of his death," Attorney General Janet Reno said in Brownsville during a tour of the border.

Midland businessman Mark Kimball has converted the top floor of 112 Loraine South Building to a 4,000-square-foot apartment.

(From 1B)

At night, the view is "like being up in a balloon with all the lights below," he said.

Looking south, Kimball can watch as trains pass. "I can barely hear it," he said.

The home has the feel of a big-city high-rise apartment.

"I love to watch people's faces when they first walk in . . . and realize we've done something a little bold with it," Kimball said.

"The girl that I'm dating said it was a make-believe world. Her mother said it was fabulous," he said.

Amenities of the set-up include a secure building and neighborhood, escape from lawn care and noises of suburbia and room service from the Hilton, Kimball said.

"This is a great neighborhood to be in," he said.

There are a few setbacks though. Metered parking is an inconvenience to daytime visitors and regular cable television would cost $16,600, he said. But Kimball does have a small garage and was able to get wireless cable.

Kimball created the apartment 16 months ago after buying the building to house his business. "I saw the building and saw the potential," he said.

'I love to watch people's faces when they first walk in . . . and realize we've done something a little bold with it.'

— Mark Kimball
Midland businessman

In addition to his home and business, Kimball rents the second floor for storage, and space to several businesses on the third, fourth and fifth floors. He also rents a smaller apartment on the fourth floor.

Kimball — who supports the move to revitalize downtown but without tax dollars — said he has been contacted by two companies considering converting vacant downtown offices to apartments.

As far as he knows, Kimball has the only apartments in a downtown Midland office building.

PRIZE: More than 250 youths show livestock

(From 1B)

Allison's calf was the judge's prime choice due to his "thickness of muscling, evenness on the top and balance of length and height," said Allison's father, Mike Worley.

The steer's next stop is the Fort Worth Livestock Show in February.

"If he wins there, he stays," Worley said.

Her steer, named after the American escape artist, "can get out of his halter; that's why we named him Houdini," said Allison, who also showed the reserve champion swine, which grossed her $715.

The Reporter-Telegram and Birkhead Feed Store donated funds for the swine.

"I prefer steers over swine," Allison said. "They are much gentler than hogs, and you can put a halter on them."

Christa Ralston, who showed the reserve champion steer, gained $1,550 from two donors, Permian Basin Waste Management and Yarborough Ranches.

Bradley Paulk's 113-pound grand champion lamb, "Lamb Chop," made him $1,300. Donor was Tommy White Supply Co.

Bradley's lamb has "good quality" all around, "plenty of muscling," a "good top," length and height, Bradley recalled of the judge's comments.

The lamb was "the lightest of the heavyweights," said Bradley, who is a member of the Greenwood 4-H Club and FFA chapter.

He plans to take the lamb and his other prized sheep to stock shows in Houston, San Antonio and San Angelo.

Zane Pittman, 11, of Greenwood exhibited the grand champion and reserve champion meat goats — Angora-Nubian crossbreeds named "Jumpy" and "Shorthorn." He plans to take them to the El Paso Livestock Show.

The $900 top bidding on "Jumpy," the grand champion goat, was by Permian Basin Waste Management, Claire's Air Conditioning and Refrigeration and Twin Cities Communications.

The $350 peak bid on "Shorthorn" was by Community National Bank and EDCO Safety.

"They are a lot of fun to show and to work with," Zane said of his bucks, which came off of Wesley Hodges' goat ranch at Sterling City. Hodges is his uncle.

And of cabrito — kid meat — for a meal, "It tastes good," Zane said. "I had it barbecued, and I like anything barbecued."

Zane's father, Randall Pittman, said "Jumpy" got the judge's top choice due to his "large, long, meaty" frame.

Zane also showed the reserve champion pen of rabbits. Top bidders at $225 were Edwards Feed Store and Kevin Shoemaker.

Nine-year-old Jered Addy's Spanish buck goat, "Boots," won first place in his meat-goat class but was bumped out of the grand championship.

"In my book, he should be (the champion)," Jered figured.

Donors were Lone Star Abstract & Title Co. and Birkhead Feed Store.

"I was excited and kind of shocked," Cara said of her win. "I was pretty happy."

The pig enjoys "a lot of muscling in his rump" and a "pretty nice top," Cara said of the judge's remarks. The barrow is bound for the San Antonio Livestock Show.

For Cara, raising livestock as a 4-H project is a "family deal for us. We all work together."

Crystal Glass, 15, of Midland High School's FFA chapter showed the champion pen of poultry — all layers.

"I was really surprised," she said. "There was a whole bunch of good ones."

Crystal's $650 in prize money came from Midland 66 Oil Co., Transit Mix Concrete & Materials Co., Susie's South 40, Jim Hill and J.D. Crawford Insurance Co.

Crystal figured that it is harder working with chickens than it is with lambs; chickens require "a lot of attention. Their payoff is better."

Donors were Commercial Electronics, Badgett Construction Co., Cowboy's Cafe and Town & Country Food Stores.

"I was really surprised," Tara said of her championship win. "I didn't think I'd do that good" in the competition."

Rabbits, Tara said, "are really fun to work with. If you get them real young, you can train them." They become "my babies," and she cuddles them. "You can teach them all sorts of tricks," including handshaking.

Tara showed her pen of reserve-champion layers, which brought her $325 from Edwards Feed Store and Kevin Shoemaker.

The work and discipline that are required of the boys and girls in carrying out their livestock projects will serve them well into their future endeavors, said Charlotte Hold, TAEX 4-H Club agent for Midland County.

"Most of these children will do well once they get out in the real world," Ms. Hold said. "We want the children to learn about agriculture, because it is so important to life."

Ms. Hold said she has met city-raised children who were unaware of the sources of much of their food. "I have heard (inner-city) kids say that 'eggs come from pigs.'" ances that are the basis of disciplinary proceedings against Bailey within the church.

The first church panel to hear the complaints has recommended that Bailey be asked to surrender his credentials and that actions against him be pursued if he declined to do so voluntarily.

Bailey's attorney Jim Lane said his client has no immediate plans to surrender his credentials, but added "at some point, that might be the easiest thing to do . . . the road of least resistance."

Candis White, the First Methodist director of food service who is one of Bailey's accusers, said she expects the matter will take a while to be resolved.

Bailey will appear Jan. 17 before the Central Texas Conference's Board of Ordained Ministry, in proceedings that could result in a church trial.

■ Louisiana GOP activists rate dozen Republican presidential prospects.

Associated Press

BATON ROUGE, La. — Sen. Phil Gramm waltzed to a lopsided victory Saturday as Louisiana GOP activists rated a dozen 1996 Republican presidential prospects, cementing the feisty Texan as the race's early pacesetter.

Gramm won a whopping 72 percent of the vote as nearly 1,300 delegates to the Louisiana state Republican convention staged the first of what is likely to be a half-dozen or more presidential straw polls this year.

Coming in second with only 12 percent was Patrick J. Buchanan, the conservative commentator who challenged President Bush in the 1992 GOP primaries and may run again. Third, with 5 percent, was Lamar Alexander, the former Tennessee governor and education secretary.

The presumed GOP front-runner, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, did not attend and tried to get his name taken off the ballot at the last minute. He finished in sixth place, with just 28 votes, or 2 percent.

In a tie for fourth, with 3 percent each, were former Housing Secretary Jack Kemp, who did not attend, and former Reagan administration State Department official Alan Keyes, now a radio talk show host, who gave a rousing speech to the delegates. Former Vice President Dan Quayle was seventh with 17 votes — 1 percent. Five other GOP prospects got less than 1 percent.

Saturday's event has no impact on who gets the support of Louisiana's delegates to the GOP nominating convention; that will be determined by the state's March 1996 primary. But Gramm mounted a double-barreled effort nonetheless, hoping the victory and his early fund-raising lead would force other potential candidates to rush their timetables for deciding whether to run — and establish him as a force in the important Southern primaries.

He had a handful of aides on hand, sent mailings and Christmas cards to delegates, called 100 or so himself and rushed from reception to reception. Gramm also was endorsed by Louisiana's three Republican House members.

Speaking to the convention, Gramm opened a bare-knuckled assault on President Clinton and said the 1994 Republican rout left half the job undone. "We rejected Clinton's Congress, we rejected Clinton's programs but in 1996 we are going to reject Bill Clinton," Gramm said.

As for his victory, Gramm said in an interview: "It's just one early skirmish in a long war. But I'm a big believer that winning the first battle is a big help in winning the war."

While shrugging off Gramm's showing to his aggressive effort here, his rivals are clearly skittish about letting Gramm dominate the early stages while they decide whether to run.

"He is giving us the pace of this campaign," said Angela "Bay" Buchanan, who is running her brother's exploratory committee. "You can't have Gramm moving ahead in state after state like this and expect to get into the race eight months from now and have success."

Sister of executed inmate Jacobs claims he did commit 1986 murder

DALLAS (AP) — The sister of a man whose execution last week sparked an international outcry says her brother really did commit the murder, even though he claimed she was the one who pulled the trigger.

Bobbie Jean Hogan, who was convicted of a lesser charge in the 1986 fatal shooting of Etta Ann Urdiales, said her brother changed his story to finger her because he was "trying to beat the system."

"I did not shed a tear when they executed Jesse Jacobs," Ms. Hogan told The Dallas Morning News in an interview Friday at the Lockhart Correctional Facility where she is serving a 10-year sentence for involuntary manslaughter.

"I never laid eyes on Etta in my life. I've had nine years of suffering for something I didn't do," she said. "I wasn't put to death, but he still robbed me of all these years of my life, my happiness."

Jacobs, who was executed Wednesday, confessed on videotape and in writing to killing Mrs. Urdiales, a 25-year-old paramedic and mother of two. In those confessions, he said he did it at the request of her estranged husband, James Michael Urdiales, who was Ms. Hogan's boyfriend at the time.

But he changed his story twice after that, saying first he beat, abducted and killed Mrs. Urdiales at the request of his sister, and second, that his sister killed her and he only buried the body.

Jacobs told authorities he intially took the blame "for the love of a sister."

Prosecutors in Jacobs' and Ms. Hogan's trials contended she enlisted her brother to help her kidnap Mrs. Urdiales to try and scare her into giving up custody of her children, and that Ms. Hogan shot her.

At Jacobs' trial, jurors were told that under Texas law, they could convict him of capital murder under two theories: that he was the triggerman or a co-conspirator.

"The issue is not who pulled the trigger," said Montgomery County District Attorney Dan Rice. "The issue is who killed her."

Rice believes both are equally responsible.

Officials advise Conroe's schools halt handcuff use on some students

CONROE (AP) — A panel investigating the handcuffing of a hyperactive 6-year-old boy has recommended that Conroe school district officials abandon the restraint method on elementary students.

The child, a special education student at Sam Houston Elementary School, was handcuffed Dec. 20 by a district police officer after he refused to move from underneath a table, officials said.

A report by a district team investigating the incident determined the officer didn't violate any existing policy.

"The student's safety was a primary concern when it was determined that physical restraint was necessary," the report said.

However, the panel recommended the district "discontinue the use of handcuffs as a means of restraining elementary students."

School officials said the child, Adam Troxell, was "kicking, hitting and screaming and was told he would have to be restrained for his own safety if he did not bring himself under control."

The report confirmed the incident occurred shortly after the child was to take a daily dosage of Ritalin, which is prescribed for anxiety, hyperactivity and attention-deficit disorder.

Ron Evans, the boy's stepfather, said the incident could have been avoided if officials had let the child calm down after taking his medicine.

Instead, Evans said, "they treated him like a criminal."

The officer and three other officials took the boy to his home, but returned to school when no one was there.

Judge rules DPS doesn't have to sell criminal convictions list

AUSTIN (AP) — A state judge, in a lawsuit over access to state records, has ruled that the Texas Department of Public Safety doesn't have to sell its computerized list of people who have criminal convictions.

District Judge John Dietz of Travis County also said Friday that the DPS had charged too much for other records provided to Tenant Tracker, a Lubbock company that does background checks on prospective tenants for apartment owners.

In addition, the judge said the state agency should make available to Tenant Tracker a list showing all the types of information that the DPS has in its computers.

Company president Keith Clifton said the release of the criminal records is "vital to the welfare of all Texans."

"Consider the consequences of allowing a convicted child molester or drug dealer to slip past the background employment check of a child day-care center," he said.

David Helmcamp, an assistant state attorney general representing the DPS, said forcing the release of some records could harm individuals.

"Every moving (traffic) violation, conviction or arrest would be releasable," he said. "That would be an unwarranted invasion of privacy."

Dietz said state law allows the DPS to refuse to issue conviction lists even though they are available to the public from county courthouses.

"Records otherwise public in each of the state's 254 counties are made confidential once DPS gets them," he said.

LEGAL HELP FOR CEREBRAL PALSY VICTIMS
Many parents wonder if medical negligence caused their child's cerebral palsy. The majority of cerebral palsy is not caused by medical negligence, but medical and nursing mistakes around the time of birth do cause cerebral palsy. We can help with the answers to your questions and if there is medical negligence we may be able to obtain a settlement or verdict for you or your child.*
Some of the many factors we consider are:
1. Did your baby have seizures or "jitteriness" within 48 hours after birth;
2. Did your baby get enough oxygen during labor, delivery and in the nursery;
3. Was your baby taken to the intensive care nursery;
4. Was there fetal distress detected by the electronic fetal monitor or stethoscope;
5. Was your baby born depressed, very blue, floppy or in need of resuscitation;
6. Was there a delay in performing an emergency C-Section;
7. Were there umbilical cord problems, including knots, wrapped around neck, etc.;
8. Were there placental problems such as abruption or insufficiency;
9. Was there an extremely traumatic delivery, difficult forceps, vacuum extraction, baby bruises, etc.;
10. Did your baby have low blood sugar,
11. Did the pregnancy go past 42 weeks?

ARMED FORCES NEWS

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Joe Galan, son of Chon and Mary Galan of Midland, has been serving off the coast of Bosnia-Herzegovina with the amphibious assault ship USS Nassau — the lead ship of the USS Nassau Amphibious Ready Group (ARG).

Galan is one of nearly 1,600 sailors and 2,000 Marines who were ordered off the coast of Bosnia as a prudent measure in light of recent developments. U.S. naval forces have maintained a continuous presence in the Adriatic Sea in support of U.N. operations there since July 1992.

He left the United States in late October for a six-month overseas deployment with the ARG that includes USS Nassau, USS Gunston Hall, USS Ponce and the 22nd Marine Expeditionary Unit. Departing from Norfolk, Va., Galan traveled to the Mediterranean Sea where the ARG was scheduled to take part in several multinational landing exercises.

The 1985 graduate of Midland High School joined the Navy in April 1989.

Navy Airman Apprentice Lanny Vines, son of Jody Vines of Midland, recently departed for a six-month overseas deployment to the Western Pacific Ocean with the aircraft carrier USS Constellation — the lead ship of the USS Constellation Battle Group.

Vines is one of 5,630 crew members aboard the 1,062-foot-long ship that departed San Diego in early November with seven other ships and submarines. The eight-ship USS Constellation Battle Group is a formidable and mobile force capable of moving 700 miles a day and is equipped with jet fighters and attack aircraft, helicopters, and ships with Tomahawk cruise missiles.

He joined the Navy in December, 1988.

Navy Airman Santiago Oviedo, son of Mario and Maria Oviedo of Seminole, recently returned from a six-month deployment to the Mediterranean and Adriatic seas and Persian Gulf with Attack Squadron 34 (VA-34), embarked aboard the aircraft carrier USS George Washington.

Oviedo's ship spent the last weeks of its deployment in the Persian Gulf deterring Iraqi aggression on the Arabian Peninsula. While the ship spent more than 120 days at sea, he also visited Greece, Israel, Turkey and the United Arab Emirates during the deployment.

Alica Holbrock Dickey, a 1993 graduate of Lee High School, has joined the U.S. Army.

She is scheduled to report Thursday to begin basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C. and has committed to four years' service and asked for advanced individual training as a Mobile Subscriber Network Switching System Operator.

Kiley Bruton, son of Bonnie and Peggy Bruton of Midland, has joined the U.S. Army.

He is scheduled to report Jan. 31 to begin basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., and has committed to three years' service and asked for advanced individual training as a M 1 Armor Crewman.

Tolerance needed in abortion fight

Violence unleashed at Massachusetts abortion clinics on Dec. 30th that left two people dead and five others wounded has once again raised the debate on abortion to a fever pitch. That's understandable; the abortion debate has always divided people into two vocal camps, but in the past couple of years employees at abortion clinics and physicians who perform abortions have become the targets of anti-abortion zealots.

In fact, the Massachusetts killings brought to five the number killed in shootings at abortion clinics in 1994 by people who chose to take the law into their own hands.

That is a tragedy not only because of the deaths of those slain, but also because it is vigilante "justice" and that is wrong.

Under our system of government, those who object to a particular law are not granted the right to simply break the objectionable law or to direct their vengeance against those who are taking advantage of the law. Rather, we must work within the framework of government to change the law, or in the event that proves impossible, to learn tolerance. Taking the law into our own hands, as some opponents of abortion have done in recent years, constitutes vigilante action. That is not an acceptable option in a civilized society.

The abortion debate is one that tears at the emotions. It strikes at some our most personal and deeply held convictions — on both sides of the issue. Americans must come to realize, however, that in a society based on law, tolerance must be practiced. Vigilante action such as we've seen recently at abortion clinics is not justice but bloody vengeance.

With tolerance, the abortion debate can be resolved peacefully in the best interests of all Americans. However it will have to be resolved within the framework of government.

For now abortion is legal — whether we oppose it, approve of it or have no opinion whatsoever.

OTHER VIEWS

Gingrich should lead, Dems be loyal opponents

Ten years ago, Ronald Reagan was president, the speaker of the House was Tip O'Neill and Newt Gingrich was a back-bench minority congressman who vowed to use "guerrilla warfare" to break the Democrats' hold on the House.

Now Reagan has Alzheimer's disease, O'Neill is dead and Gingrich is the man of the House, ... the first Republican speaker since 1955. A decade ago who would have thought it possible? ...

Gingrich may find what worked for him as a guerrilla fighter will be seen as bullying when he is speaker.

And will Democrats switch to guerrilla tactics, with truth squads and theme teams and packs of hungry Gingrich Jrs. seeking to become C-SPAN heroes?

While there is fodder for that ... we urge both sides to keep the debate civil. ...

If Gingrich tries to do a legislative version of the end zone boogie-woogie dances popular now in football, "normal Americans" won't like it.

Instead, we hope he will lead as though he's been doing it all his life — and Democrats will act like loyal opponents, not Keystone Kops.

— San Antonio Express-News

Zedillo's actions showing he can take Mexico's 'heat'

Radical steps are needed to avert an economic collapse in Mexico, and President Ernesto Zedillo seems prepared to take them. That is the good news contained in statements from his government and in the president's own three-minute speech.

By firing Finance Minister Jaime Serra Puche, who precipitated a dramatic decline in the dollar value of the peso, President Zedillo acknowledged his government had made a major mistake. Serra Puche's botched devaluation of the peso was, said The Wall Street Journal, "a classic financial blunder."

Earlier ..., the government announced that land stolen from Indians in the poor southern province of Chiapas by cattle ranchers and corrupt government officials would be returned to them.

Those two steps hold out the promise of a peaceful settlement to the Indian uprising, which is the root cause of anxiety about Mexico's stability.

The abrupt fall in the value of the peso reflected fears, primarily of foreign investment, that the rebellion would spread. Fears that social unrest would undo Mexico's economic achievements were, and are, justified.

For someone who was thrust into the presidency when the ruling party's candidate was assassinated and who has been in office for barely a month, Zedillo is not doing badly. He is being tested by fire, and he is demonstrating that he can stand the heat.

In 1965, the Star of India and other stolen gems were returned to the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

JACK ANDERSON

Candidates knock heads in early race

WASHINGTON — There may not be an officially declared candidate yet for the 1996 Republican presidential nomination, but the two top contenders have already broken a campaign pledge.

Anderson

During a private meeting last year, Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., and Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, reached an informal truce to prevent sniping between their two camps. Both men knew they would be squaring off as presidential rivals, and worried that their staffs and the media would try to stoke hostilities. But they agreed to keep the Senate a demilitarized zone in their nomination battle.

That peace held until last month when Dole maneuvered behind the scenes to deprive Gramm of a seat on the powerful Senate Finance Committee. In this case, it wasn't so much the position on the Finance Committee as the forum it provides: Since committee members will take the lead on welfare reform, Dole wanted to keep Gramm grounded on this politically potent topic. Dole denies actively trying to thwart Gramm. "I didn't call anybody," he told us. "I don't know who was fanning that story, whether it was Gramm's people — I don't think so."

Gramm will crash the welfare party, however, as he has many others in the past. Former House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, booted then-Democrat Gramm off the Budget Committee in 1983 for his turncoat fiscal conservatism, only to see Gramm resign from Congress and come back to haunt the House as a Republican. A decade later, Sen. Gramm served as the conservative standard-bearer in the health care reform debate without ever holding a seat on any relevant committee.

The Finance flap may underscore Dole's fear of getting upstaged again by the more conservative and combative Gramm. Though it's too early to handicap the 1996 campaign, the battle of Gramm vs. Dole will give GOP voters a stark choice between a revolutionary and a repairman, between a crusader and a consensus-seeker. While Dole has a more compelling personal story to tell — of Midwest virtue and World War II heroism — Gramm has a more coherent message of smaller government and individual freedom.

"I think (Gramm) will be the dominant conservative candidate in the Republican field," says political analyst Charles Cook, who believes the Republicans are best served by nominating a moderate. "People are too quick to completely dismiss his chances.... He plays the outside game and I don't think he has ever curried favor with the insiders."

The "insider" indictment is one that dogs Dole and was best captured during a breakfast strategy meeting in Dole's office shortly after President Clinton unveiled his health care plan in the fall of 1993. GOP pollsters in attendance glumly reported that Republicans had to make their peace with Clinton-style health care reform.

GEORGE WILL

Federal policy endangers some agencies

WASHINGTON — "Our job," says Everett Albers, "is to get the people of North Dakota busy writing to Congress." In defense of agriculture subsidies? No. Albers, quoted in The Chronicle of Higher Education, is executive director of the North Dakota Humanities Council and wants North Dakotans to rally in defense of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Will

Extinction may be the fate of the NEH and its Great Society siblings, the National Endowment for the Arts and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. Extinction will be their fate if Republicans mean a syllable of what they say about rethinking federal functions.

Because government breeds more government, and develops a lobbying infrastructure to defend itself, every state now has a humanities council. By these, and the travels of peripatetic culture bureaucrats, and by the spreading of subsidies across the continent, culture agencies build constituencies of articulate letter-writers.

Jane Alexander, head of the NEA, is proud as punch of having visited all 50 states in her less than two years tenure. Dante Ramos reports in The New Republic that Alexander considers this travel "her best achievement." Alexander believably reports that wherever she goes disbursing money, she is warmly received. Headlines generated by her campaigning for her agency ("Alexander Brings Message of Arts' Balm for Society," Arizona Daily Star; "Arts Touted as Solution to Violence, Racial Strife," Fort Worth Star-Telegram) cause Ramos to conclude that in her utilitarianism — art as social improvement — "there's a point where art gives way to social work."

And it becomes just another jobs program. Directing Ramos' attention to a pot, Alexander says its maker "is already a professional and he intends to make a career as a ceramicist." Absent the NEA, would the pot not have been made? If so, just how very interested is that fellow in becoming a ceramicist? Ramos says Alexander has "improved the mood of the agency and the artists who depend upon it." What sort of "artist" develops such dependency?

The current head of the NEH, Sheldon Hackney, is organizing a "national conversation," the implicit supposition being that Americans converse too little, or too clumsily, or come to incorrect conclusions, and need government guidance. Thanks to NEH funding, guidance galore has come for teachers of history, in the form of new "standards." Writing in the same issue of the Chronicle, Arnita Jones, executive secretary of the Organization of American Historians, exults that the teaching standards "offer nothing less than an escape from the rote learning of factual matter." Now there's a problem for government to tackle — American students knowing too many historical facts.

Jones warns that the standards will be "expensive." She says they will be "meaningless" unless lots of money is spent on the appropriate training of teachers and the writing of appropriate texts. This money that must be spent because of the money already spent will promote the predictable — "history" as ethnic boosterism, and as reparations for various victimizations, past and present.

The standards for American and world history miniaturize great men (because they were men, and because it is democratic to celebrate common people) and marginalize Western civilization. Students are asked to study, for example, "the achievements and grandeur" of the 14th century West African Monarch Mansa Musa. Note that in this "inclusive history" certain "grandeur" is stipulated, not questioned.

Defenders of public television in this era of abundant cable choices cloak themselves in "concern" for "the children," arguing, with antic illogic, that Sesame Street and Barney serve huge audiences but could not find alternative broadcast venues.

Shopping trips to marts trigger culture shock

Almost everything Americans buy is now made outside America. You knew that long ago. I knew it too, but I hadn't really believed it until various women took me shopping in December.

Baker

This meant killing time in women's wear divisions of assorted marts. What a learning experience these marts afforded. I'd heard that marts were taking over the world, but I had never thought enough about marts to ask, "What is a mart anyhow?"

Nothing beats on-site inspection. As a result I now know that a mart is a store selling goods made almost exclusively in Asia and Central America.

During the hours women friends were shopping for perfection in female apparel I studied labels on women's clothing. Almost all of it, I was stupidly shocked to note, was made in China, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Korea, Singapore, the Philippines, Thailand, Sri Lanka, Indonesia, Bangladesh, Honduras, Brazil and Mexico.

One mart was selling women's wear "Made in the United Arab Emirates." Something of a shock, that one. The idea of poor Arab women toiling for sweat-tent wages to produce clothes for American women clashed with my most ignorant and firmly held stereotypes of life in the Arab emirates.

Camel saddles, yes, yes. Had I wandered into that great mart's Gifts for the Guy Who's Got It All department and noticed a camel saddle for sale, I would probably have thought, "I'll bet that's made in the United Arab Emirates." But women's wear?

I, with my Western male white despicable arrogance, have ranted for years about American schoolchildren being dumb about geography. Yet all that time I'd been the true geography ignoramus, a dolt who didn't even know that the United Arab Emirates produced women's ready-to-wear.

Even more astounding was a label saying "Made in the Northern Mariana Islands," because that's where the B-29s that carried the Hiroshima and Nagasaki bombs were based in 1945.

How stiff and stuffy a mind can become with a little age on it. I confess it: I recoiled from the idea of filmy women's apparel being produced in such nasty atomic ambiance.

This is unfair to the Mariana Islands, of course, which are populated by Chamorros, Carolinians and Micronesians who had nothing whatever to do with atomic bombings. In fact, since the Marianas comprise a commonwealth of the United States and its residents are American citizens, its produce was one of the few examples of mart-quality women's wear that could truthfully be labeled "Made in U.S.A."

We are talking here of how easy it is to shock a smugly uninformed mind that has a high opinion of its quality. Doubtless you, reader, have always known that those sturdy he-man outdoors garments advertised in that swell catalog of rugged stuff for rugged outdoors guys is all made in Asia.

Not I. I had always assumed it was laboriously hand-stitched by aged Indian craftsmen working with ancient tribal tools passed down to them from long-dead generations of caribou trackers and laborious hand-stitchers.

What a blow to this romantic vision of American commerce when I wandered into mountains of this very stuff piled high in one of those all-under-one-roof-mall marts. Every bit had been made in Asia, probably by the same hard-worked nickel-an-hour laborers who turned out the women's ready-to-wear.

Thanks to long exposure to journalism, mine is a mind that does not bruise easily, no matter how grave the insult. My friend Clark's is made of nobler stuff.

He just telephoned angrily about a pot he bought at an outlet mart. Clark was not enticed by the Asian threads in which the mart specialized, but he couldn't resist the pot because it bore the "Revere" label, suggesting an old Boston tradition of workmanship. Back home, inspecting it, he found "Made in Korea."

"I feel insulted," he tells me, swearing to return to the mart and do something rude. Poor fellow. Soon we will all here be Made in Korea, Taiwan, China, Indonesia, Sri Lanka ...

Gump shows sense of honor, commitment

I have just concluded a review of the '94 movies as seen by Janet Maslin, who is affiliated with the New York Times News Service. The article, headed "Gump (and other stuff)" caught my eye because I saw "Gump" twice this year and was very fond of it.

Ms. Maslin was decidedly anti-Gump, though. She says that Forrest was "self-congratulatory in his blissful ignorance, warmly embraced as the embodiment of absolutely nothing. We shouldn't settle for movie heroes who don't do more than show up...."

Well, I beg to differ with Ms. Maslin. For starters, did you notice that Forrest had a sense of honor, principle, commitment, and love as shown toward his girlfriend, his best friend, who was black, and his mother? Did you see the movie? Of course you did. Why do you not acknowledge positive virtues, you the owner of a brain so large that Forrest could probably go shrimping in it? How can you say that he is the embodiment of absolutely nothing?

So is it because idiots like Forrest don't need bores like you — that all they need is a moral compass? Or is it because the movie exposed the '60s radicals for the obsessed slobs that they were, who I might add had far less sense than Forrest Gump, a fictitious moron from Benbow, Ala.? I think the latter...but it could be both.

Parents should pay for children's actions

Vandalism! I do not believe any one person has seen and experienced as much vandalism as we have. It will take time, but I believe these suggestions will help.

We bought a lot to build our dream house on in College Heights' restricted area. After we had too much invested the city lifted all restrictions. Four families on this one block moved north of here. People say where you live has something to do with vandalism, but I do not know as we still live here. The city should not be allowed to lift restrictions without paying owners for all they have invested. I have seen parents defend their children when they did wrong and even lie for them. We cannot do anything about the parents except make them pay the amount of vandalism the kids do.

During Christmas shopping I saw parents leave little children in the toy section of stores and the children opened things, played with them, tore them, threw them around and when the parents came back for the children they left all the mess their kids did. Customers have to pay for all that because it is the expense of the store. That is vandalism at an early age. Make the parents pay, not all the customers. I believe this will help, but it will take years.

Readers' views on: Abortion, clinics

Radical right must take responsibility

Well, the radical right anti-choice fanatics have done it again: two women are now dead and others wounded for simply doing their jobs and supporting women's legal right to reproductive freedom. And regardless of what Operation Rescue, the National Right-to-Life Movement, and even the so-called "caring" organizations right here in our hometown say, it is high time they take responsibility for these terrorist acts of murder, mayhem, and vandalism.

No matter how often and vehemently they deny that these sick individuals such as Paul Hill, John Salvi, and other mass-murderers are affiliated with or are acting on behalf of their organizations, they must be held accountable for inciting these acts of violence. By displaying inflammatory photographs (which are more likely pictures of late-term miscarriages and stillbirths rather than legal abortions) and using propagandistic phrases such as "baby killers," "baby murderers" and "innocent victims," these "protesters" are simply enticing the fringe elements of their group to perform what they deem "justifiable homicide." In other words, the more outwardly mainstream members are allowing the weirdos to do their dirty work, while they stand behind and cheer them on.

The fact remains: In 1973, under the Ninth and 14th Amendments to the Constitution, the Supreme Court ruled in Roe v. Wade that I or any woman is entitled to obtain an abortion if she desires one. Nowhere and at no time did the Supreme Court (or the Constitution, for that matter) say that I or anyone else has the legal right to murder someone because I disagree with their morality or because the Bible says an act they have committed is morally wrong.

Two men succeeded with passive tactics

I was deeply troubled after reading the letter written by Terry Cherryhomes in the Jan. 1 paper. It truly frightens me that there are individuals in our community with so much hate that they would make the statement that anyone disagreeing with their opinion should have been aborted! Are these the words of a Christian? It sounds more like a far-right wing fanatic, i.e. Hitler, Stalin, Ayatolleh Khomeini, etc.

I read these words and I think of two great men who fought and won their battles with passive tactics, Gandhi and Martin Luther King. Both men detested violence but yet they were successful in their crusades. Physical violence is the lowest form of communication known to mankind.

Freedom of speech, press unquestioned

I was appalled that the letter from Terry Cherryhomes was printed in our newspaper.

The freedom of speech and press we enjoy under the First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States of America are unquestioned. Printing that letter, however, was not unlike shouting "fire" in a crowded theater.

Suggestion in use is ethnic cleansing view

I was saddened to learn that someone of Terry Cherryhomes' mindset is on the loose in Midland (Letters, Jan. 1). I had thought people with beliefs as rabid as his were only active in Florida and Massachusetts.

Cherryhomes' suggestion that anyone who disagreed with him should have been aborted is currently in modified usage in Europe; they call it ethnic cleansing. Besides, if all of us who disagree with Cherryhomes had been aborted who would he have left to hate?

What will Christ's judgment be of Cherryhomes?

Men can't experience abortion, childbirth

Let me first say that I am not for or against legalized abortion. Abortion, like childbirth, is something that a man cannot experience, physically or emotionally, and I do not feel worthy to judge women on their decision about it.

Regardless of your position on this subject, I think every American should be shocked and appalled at the opinion expressed by Terry Cherryhomes..."We need many, many more Paul Hills." The rationale that Terry uses invites everyone who disagrees with someone else to murder that other person and feel justified "In the name of God." Isn't it ironic that abortion clinic murders are being carried out by "good Christians" who support an organization called "The Right To Life." How convenient that "good Christians" have been able to use "God" as justification for murder/genocide. The Crusades, the Inquisitions, Hitler, Belfast, Bosnia, the KKK and now the "Right To Life," "good Christians" using the name of God to justify murder. Even Jesus Christ himself was murdered "In the name of God." I do not believe that God condones murder, but I do believe that Paul Hill, and all the murderers before him who used the name of God as justification, are surely going to spend eternity in Hell.

To condone the cold-blooded murder of others simply because they have different opinions about the social issues of the day is...sick. Terry Cherryhomes, and anyone that agrees with Cherryhomes, is in serious need of immediate professional mental counseling. There can be no justification for murder among civilized people.

Ignorance is alive, resides in Midland

After reading the letter by Terry Cherryhomes concerning Paul Hill, abortions, murder, and the actual praising of the murders that Paul Hill committed, I have been reassured once again that ignorance is alive and well — and it resides here in Midland.

To condone a murder and call yourself a Christian at the same time, shows me what we have to deal with with pro-lifers! What happened to "Thou shalt not kill." Oh, I'm sorry I did not know that did not include abortion doctors or their staff, silly me.

Man shows he is fool in three paragraphs

Terry Cherryhomes must be in the Guinness Book of World Records. In three short paragraphs he showed everyone that he is not only a fool, but an idiot, too. He says he is against abortion, but anyone who disagrees should have been aborted. Wish he'd make up his mind.

Minister has no right to kill man for child

I cannot understand June Dotson's remark in the Sunday, Dec. 18, paper saying "Paul Hill laid his life down for others," when he was the one who did the killing. He was a minister and my Bible says "Thou shall not kill."

It does not give Hill the right to kill a man to save a child just because he doesn't believe in abortion. I will answer for my sins and don't need a preacher Hill to be my judge, nor the government or anyone else telling me what to do. If I needed such it would be between me, my hubby and my doctor. Thank God for the sanitary clinics and doctors that care for people in need of such. Women's lives will be saved much more than if they used hat pins and got infected as they did in olden days.

Also Terry Cherryhomes in the Jan. 1 paper agreed with June, saying abortion doctors are murderers. What does he think Hill was? It's no bigger sin to murder a baby than a man.

Our policy on letters

The Reporter-Telegram recognizes the "Letters to the Editor" format as an important forum for citizen opinion and encourages participation of all readers. To that end, we have set as few rules as possible. However, we must have some, and they are:

- Letters must be signed and include a street address and daytime phone number for verification. Letters not including this information will not be considered for publication.
- They should be no more than 350 words in length. While some lengthy letters are published, we reserve the right to edit when necessary due to space limitations. The briefer the letter, the better its chance of publication.
- Only one letter per month per writer can be published.
- Letters will be edited for length, taste and legal reasons and are accepted only on that basis. Letters which are difficult to reduce in length will be returned to the writer to be edited before being re-submitted.
- We do not publish 'open' letters, copies of letters sent to others or multiple signatures.

Because we cannot research and verify all information in letters, by publishing them we neither imply nor guarantee the accuracy of information stated by writers.

Snowplow hockey is new winter sport

The problem with winter sports is that — follow me closely here — they generally take place in winter. Winter is both cold AND slippery, which means that if you engage in a typical winter sport such as skiing, you could easily wind up freezing in some God-forsaken snowbank, unable to move because one or more of your knees have been converted into ligament gumbo.

Barry

FACT: Last year, 17 percent of all recreational skiers were eaten by wolves.

This is why leading health experts recommend that you spend the entire winter in a heated, TV-equipped environment eating Cheez-Its directly from the box. But for those of you who insist on leading an active lifestyle year-round, I'm pleased to report that there is a new winter sport on the scene — a winter sport that lets you stay warm, yet at the same time enables you to potentially get arrested.

I found out about this sport from Judy Schneck, an alert reader who lives in a Wisconsin city called "Oconomowoc" (a Native American word meaning "Word that even Native Americans cannot pronounce"). Judy wrote to me in response to a column I'd written about a sport called "car bowling," in which guys try to hit junk cars with bowling balls dropped from airplanes. She said this reminded her of a sport invented by her husband, Mark, and a buddy of his named Bob Thelen.

It seems that some winters ago, Mark and Bob were sitting around a gas station with not much to do. I certainly do not wish to make gender-based generalizations, but if Mark and Bob had been women, they probably would have passed the time in some nonproductive manner, such as nurturing their friendship, exploring their innermost feelings or helping each other gain significant insights into the important relationships in their lives. But fortunately for humanity in general, Mark and Bob are not women. Mark and Bob are guys, and what they did is invent snowplow hockey.

According to Mark, three factors led to this invention:

1. Mark and Bob each had a vehicle equipped with a snowplow.
2. Both sides of the street were lined by steep, hard snowbanks.
3. Mark's vehicle also contained (no motorist should ever be without one) a bowling ball.

As Mark recalls the moment, he and Bob realized that if they shoved the bowling ball with a snowplow, it would be prevented by the snowbanks from leaving the street; it would just bounce off and keep going.

"We realized that it would basically roll forever," Mark says.

Which is why you need the other snowplow to play defense. And that's how snowplow hockey works. You have your two opposing snowplows facing each other. The player on offense drives forward and gives the bowling ball a hearty shove with his plow; the player on defense then tries to block the ball. The trick on offense is to angle the ball ("It's just like pool," says Mark) so that it caroms off a snowbank and rockets past the defender into the intersection behind him, where it knocks over an elderly woman.

No, seriously, Mark says they play this sport only on deserted streets, and nobody has been injured so far, although there obviously is a certain amount of hazard involved in having guy-operated snowplows lunging toward each other in a competitive manner.

"How close do you come to hitting each other?" I asked.

"Too close," replied Mark. He said there are rules about how far forward each snowplow is supposed to go, but "we can't get anybody to come out and referee."

Mark, who in real life is a restaurant manager, says that he and some other guys still play snowplow hockey on a semi-regular basis.

"Fortunately, the police have never seen us," he said. "They would probably take our bowling ball away."

I don't know about you, but I think this sounds like a WAY more entertaining brand of hockey than the kind where you have a bunch of stick-waving Canadians skittering frantically around trying to hit a semi-invisible puck roughly the size of a breath mint. Just think, as a sports fan, what it would mean if we had a National Snowplow Hockey League with franchises in all major U.S. cities! It would mean hundreds of pedestrian deaths. So we probably should limit the franchises to places that are the size of Oconomowoc or (if this is possible) smaller.

Nevertheless, this is clearly a major "ground-floor" opportunity for the type of wealthy stupid businessman who likes to own sports teams. Also you large corporations should be aware that Mark Schneck told me that, as one of the top three or four snowplow-hockey players in the world, he is available for lucrative product endorsements. For example, you could have a commercial wherein Mark snowplows into McDonald's for a hearty meal, taking down most of the building in the process.

My point is that there's plenty of opportunity for everyone who sincerely cares about sports as a way to get rich. But if you're interested, you'd better act fast. Because if this thing gets any more popular, there will definitely be a strike.

$50,000 grant supports Vet Tech

Program progresses with new lab

A $50,000 grant from the Dora Roberts Foundation, new facilities and the donation of additional equipment signals the broad support for the Midland College Veterinary Technology program, according to Kerry Coombs, Vet Tech director.

The foundation was established by Big Spring resident Dora Roberts in 1948. It supports arts, humanities, civic and public affairs, health, religion, social services and other charities throughout West Texas.

The grant and the continued input from the local advisory board "are important because they are an indication of the grass roots support for this program," Coombs said.

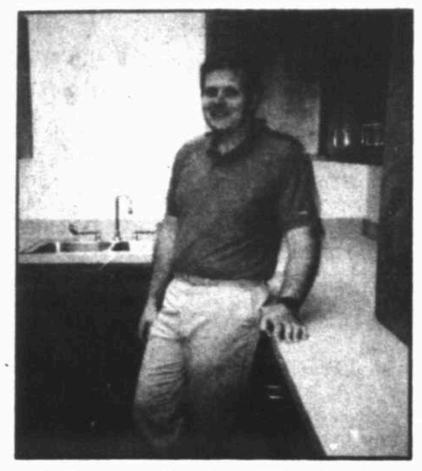

"As I look at the future, we aniticipate more enrollment and graduates who will be better and better prepared as the program evolves," he said.

Vet Tech is a two-year certificate program.

"Having our own facilities is one of the biggest steps in the right direction for our program," Coombes said.

Local supporters of the program recently donated a Waste Gas Scavenging System, a safety system for animals undergoing surgery. Local vet Bobby Boyd has donated an anesthesia machine. And, Hill's Pet Foods has donated two computers.

Spring registration

'Open door' policy is student friendly

A new student-friendly registration process that will allow students to get schedule preparation and advising at the same time should help them move through the registration process more effectively, according to MC administrators.

General or arena registration is scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 10 in the Midland College Student Center. Late registration will continue through Jan. 26.

Students with time permits may register Tuesday between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. and after 4 p.m. Students without time permits may register 5-7:45 p.m.

Changes in the registration process mean instead of signing up for each class individually, schedule preparation and advising will occur at the same time and in one place.

Students will select and reserve classes with advisers and then proceed to complete the registration process.

Faculty will be available at tables in one large area to help students plan a schedule and enroll in classes.

"The advantage to students is that it will be a friendlier, more in-depth approach to planning their academic career," said Camille Duchesne, director of Continuing Education.

College officials are anticipating the new process will eventually eliminate many of the longer lines at registration.

And, students who do not need advising can select courses quickly and complete the registration process.

Reading class improves skills

For students who want to be more successful at reading college textbooks and increasing their vocabulary, a Developmental Reading course is being offered.

The course, READ 0392, uses computer and print materials to help students improve reading skills.

Also, a flexible entry lab is now available that focuses on Anatomy and Physiology materials. Students who enroll in the lab, READ 0190, receive one semester hour of credit for spending 16 hours in the reading lab. The lab is content specific and is offered at various times during the semester.

Contact Reading instructor Peggy Wood for more information.

'Little' sister helps student discover joy of volunteerism

■ The following is an excerpt from one of the winning entries in the Abell-Hanger Essay contest about the value of volunteer work for MC students.

Helping another person is its own reward. I learned this as I fulfilled my Abell-Hanger community service requirements through volunteering as a Big Sister. "Guiding hands for growing lives," is the Big Brother/Big Sisters Organization motto and now I know why.

Brady

I was a volunteer Big Sister even before I was awarded a prestigious Abell-Hanger Scholarship.

I have been matched with Julene, my Little Sister, since high school (January of 1993) and have enjoyed every minute we have spent together.

This year, Julene and I were awarded the Match of the Month for May. This is an acknowledgment of a match that has been successful in showing outstanding growth through cultivating friendship. It was a wonderful honor for me and equally exciting for Julene.

What I like most about Julene is that she is not trying to grow up too fast. I'm flattered when she asks me for advice, even if it's just about clothes but especially when it concerns more personal matters. I love being able to help her work things out.

During the time we have been matched, I have noticed her grow in so many ways.

When I first met Julene she was rather shy and soft spoken. Now she's very outgoing and friendly instead of shy and timid.

I see that she is interested in making friends and succeeding in school. She has also become responsible and I can always count on her.

Seeing her mature in these ways is just as rewarding for me as it is for Julene. She will always have my support and encouragement in whatever she wants to achieve.

I know now that I am able to make a difference in someone's life. Everyone should try to find the time to volunteer for a cause whether or not it's for the Big Brothers/Big Sisters Organization.

No good deed is too small or too large. All it takes is a little encouragement and advice now and then and you can help someone in ways you never though possible.

Chicago quarterback Steve Walsh (4) prepares to fall on a first-quarter fumble against San Francisco.

49ers wrestle Bears, 44-15

■ San Francisco celebrates by halftime as revamped team is anxious for another crack at Dallas, which plays Green Bay today.

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — By the end of the second quarter, there were sideline celebrations. By the end of the third, Steve Young and some other stars were already pulled.

By the end of the game, the score was 44-15 and the San Francisco 49ers were headed to their fourth NFC championship game in five years with a revamped team anxious for another crack at Dallas.

Even though the Chicago Bears scored first Saturday, the outcome was never in doubt.

"It tells me we're playing into the postseason the way we finished the season," Young said. "We're playing our best ball. I didn't want to leave our best ball in December."

After spotting the Bears a 3-0 lead, the 49ers reeled off 30 straight points in the first half to put the game away, and Chicago's improbable playoff run came to an end on Candlestick Park's soggy, shredded turf.

San Francisco (14-3) will be at home next Sunday against either Green Bay or Dallas, who meet Sunday in another divisional playoff. The Cowboys beat the 49ers in the last two NFC title games and went on to win the Super Bowl both years; San Francisco, which defeated Dallas 21-14 on Nov. 13, hasn't been to the Super Bowl since winning it in 1989.

Chicago, an upset winner at Minnesota in a wild-card game last week, finished 10-8 in Dave Wannstedt's second season as coach.

With Young passing effectively and also joining Ricky Watters and William Floyd on a power running game, the league's top-scoring team surpassed 30 points for the ninth time in the last 11 games de-

'Pokes hope to trip Pack's upset attempt

■ Legendary for causing Cowboys grief, Green Bay will try to end Dallas' bid for a record third consecutive Super Bowl title.

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — The Green Bay Packers are legend for causing the Dallas Cowboys grief. Knocking them out of their bid for a record third consecutive Super Bowl title could be the harshest blow of all.

It could happen today in Texas Stadium where the 10-point underdogs, fresh off a 16-12 upset of Detroit, try to finish off the defending champions.

"We can't let it happen," Dallas wide receiver Michael Irvin said. "I don't want to look back 10 years from now and see the chance we missed. We'll be playing with a lot of fear Sunday (today). We play best when we have fear."

The Packers beat Dallas in two of the most memorable NFL title games in league history in 1966 and 1967. Dallas suffered close, agonizing losses both times, including the "Ice Bowl" game when Bart Starr scored on a quarterback sneak with 13 seconds left.

Under coach Jimmy Johnson, the Cowboys got rid of their Green Bay phobia. Dallas beat the Packers 27-17 last year in the division playoffs after having defeated them 36-14 during the regular season.

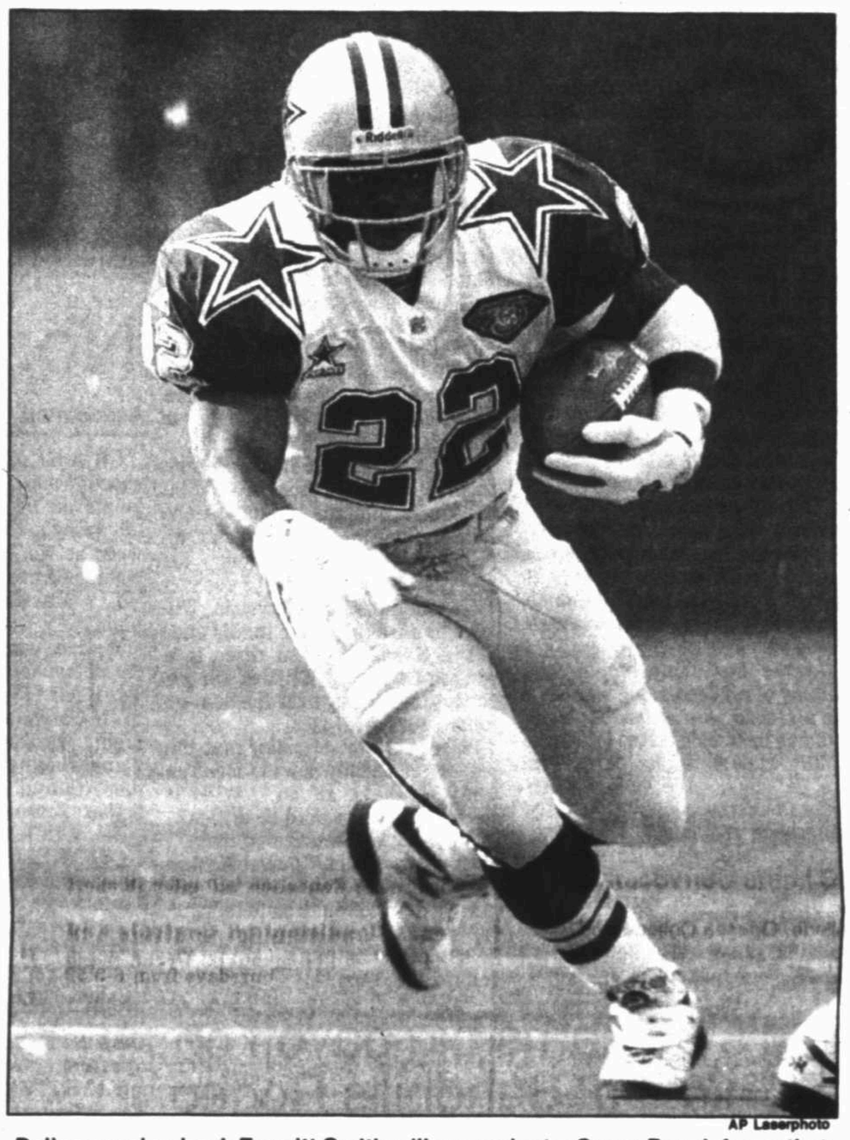

This year, the Cowboys rallied from a 17-6 halftime deficit on Thanksgiving Day to beat the Packers 42-31 in Texas Stadium.

Dallas, which had a 12-4 regular season, wants to succeed under rookie coach Barry Switzer where other teams have failed. Green Bay, Miami, Pittsburgh twice, and San Francisco have lost bids for three consecutive Super Bowl rings.

Also, Dallas wants to become the first franchise to win five Super Bowls. The 49ers and Steelers, both still alive in the playoffs, also are in the running for a fifth Super Bowl title.

"We want to win the Super Bowl so we can be high up there when fans look back and judge the greatest organizations in sports," owner Jerry Jones

Towel-twirling Steelers bash Browns

■ Pittsburgh returns to "Terrible" days with a 29-9 Rust Belt victory over Cleveland in the AFC Divisional playoffs.

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — The road to the Super Bowl again runs through Pittsburgh.

The Steelers returned to what they do best with a relentless running game, and Vinny Testaverde reverted to his old form with costly interceptions as Pittsburgh stormed into the AFC title game by beating the Browns 29-9 Saturday.

The Steelers fed off Barry Foster's running, a towel-twirling crowd and a defense that pressured Testaverde — hurt early by several dropped passes — into bad throws and a safety for their first home playoff victory since 1979, the season when they won the last of their four Super Bowls.

Pittsburgh, a one-game-and-out playoffs loser under coach Bill Cowher the last two seasons, will play either the Dolphins or Chargers in the AFC title game in Three Rivers Stadium on Jan. 15. The Steelers last reached the conference finals 10 years ago, losing to Dan Marino-led Miami.

Not only did the Steelers beat the Browns three times in a season for the first time in the Rust Belt rivalry's 45-year history, they did it thoroughly and convincingly, bolting to a 17-0 first-half lead by scoring on their first three possessions.

The two regular-season games were physical defensive duels decided mostly by the Browns' eight turnovers, but this was a Dawg pounding that continued Cleveland's growing playoff frustration. The Browns are one of only nine NFL teams to never reach the Super Bowl; Cleveland is 0-8 in road playoff games since a 38-14 win at Dallas in 1969.

Foster, running better than he has since his 1,690-yard season in 1992, rushed for 133 yards, allowing a mistake-free Neil O'Donnell to pick apart a frustrated, helmet-slamming Browns' defense that was the NFL's stingiest during the season.

O'Donnell, tagged as the weak link on a team loaded with All-Pros, completed 16-of-23 passes for 186 yards and touchdowns of 2 yards to Eric Green and 9 to Browns-killer Yancey Thigpen, both in a decisive 21-point second quarter.

When the Steelers weren't keeping the ball away from Cleveland with long, turnover-free drives, Testaverde was throwing it away.

Testaverde, barely resembling the quarterback who was so efficient in beating the Patriots in the wild-card playoffs, was 13-of-31 for 144 yards. More importantly, he had eight interceptions in the three Steelers' losses — four of them by

Wilkens puffs along with win No. 939

By Ed Shearer
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA — Lenny Wilkens stepped out of character for a few minutes and no one could blame him.

A non-smoker, he lit a huge Cuban cigar, but took only a few puffs.

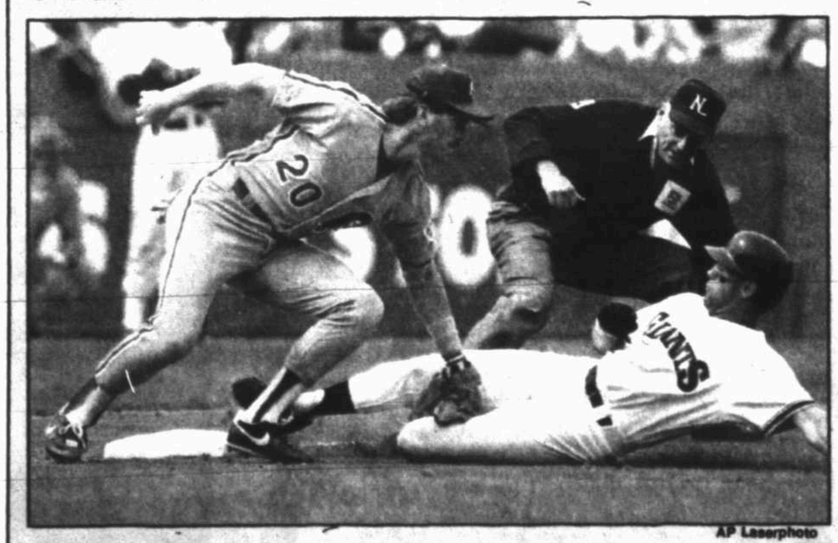

The man who seldom smiles on the job had one on his face for a long time, starting in the final minute of Atlanta's 112-90 victory over the Washington Bullets Friday night, when he became the winningest coach in NBA history.

The pursuit of Red Auerbach's record of 938 victories had finally ended with No. 939. It came in the 32nd game of his 22nd season with the fourth team that the Brooklyn-born Wilkens has coached.

He said the cigar was a tribute to Auerbach, who lit stogies in celebration of

Hall of Fame no worries for Schmidt

AP Laserphoto

Former Philadelphia third baseman Mike Schmidt puts the tag on San Francisco's Will Clark during the 1987 season. Schmidt, considered one of the best third basemen in history, is expected to be elected overwhelmingly into the Baseball Hall of Fame on his first try Monday night.

By Ben Walker
AP Baseball Writer

No need to wonder or worry whether Mike Schmidt will be elected to the Hall of Fame.

By Monday night, when this year's voting is announced, they're certain to be at work in Cooperstown, chiseling his rugged profile into one of those bronze plaques they'll hang inside the shrine this summer.

Instead, consider two other made-for-debate questions, one that will be answered in a day or so and one that may be argued for as long as they play baseball (or, at least, remember when they played):

— Will Schmidt receive the highest vote total in history?

— Was Schmidt the greatest all-around third baseman ever?

It takes 75 percent of the vote by members of the Baseball Writers victory during his glory years at Boston where he built the Celtics into the greatest dynasty in NBA history.

"A lot of people say I'm laid back," Wilkens said after the game. "I'm not really laid back. I just don't scream a lot. Perception is not always reality."

He was pleased to have the record chase end so that his team could begin concentrating on the business at hand, not pressing to attain the 13th triumph he needed when the season began.

"This has been the hardest 13 victories he's had," said swingman Craig Ehlo, who spent seven seasons with Wilkens when he was coaching Cleveland and came to Atlanta with his coach for the 1993-94 season.

"In the last moments, I was thinking of all the people who said Red's record was unreachable. It would've been nice if Red had been healthy enough to be here. I'm sure he would have smiled when Lenny lit up the cigar."

Auerbach, 77, had a 938-479 record in 20 seasons — three with Washington, one with Tri-Cities and the last 16 with Boston where he won nine NBA championships, including eight in a row before leaving coaching for the front office.

Wilkens, 57, took a 939-793 record into Saturday night's game against the New Jersey Nets. He compiled that mark during two stints with Seattle — a team he led to the NBA title in 1979 — and stops in Portland and Cleveland before arriving in Atlanta.

"I'm happy it's over," said center Jon Koncak, who poured a bucket of confetti over Wilkens' head as the final seconds ticked off Friday night. "It's been a strain on Lenny. This is a night to cherish.

"I never thought it would take this long. I never thought we'd be 32 games into the season before this happened. But it doesn't diminish the achievement for Lenny."

No one was happier than Wilkens to have the chase finally end.

The Hawks had lost three in a row since giving Wilkens the record-tying victory over the San Antonio Spurs Dec. 29.

"There's a lot of relief that the players can really start to focus on what we have to do," Wilkens said. "I knew it would be difficult. It was a lot of pressure on them."

"It's very sweet," guard Mookie Blaylock said. "The load's off and now we need to make something of the season. I'm happy for him. He's a beautiful human being, on and off the court."

Pacers sneak past Rockets

Associated Press

■ NBA Roundup

HOUSTON — Reggie Miller and Dale Davis each converted 3-point plays in the final 35 seconds to spark the Indiana Pacers to an 88-83 victory over the Houston Rockets Saturday night.

Miller led the Pacers with 23 points followed by Derrick McKey with 16, Rik Smits with 12 and Davis and Mark Jackson with 11 each. Davis had 12 rebounds for the Pacers.

Hakeem Olajuwon led Houston with 27 points and 15 rebounds. Robert Horry had 15 and Vernon Maxwell 13 for the Rockets.

Neither team led by more than four points until the final basket. The lead changed hands nine times in the fourth quarter.

Trail Blazers 114, Bullets 105

LANDOVER, Md. — Rod Strickland scored a career-high 31 points and added 11 assists as Portland handed Bullets its seventh straight loss.

Strickland, coming off a 26-point performance Friday night in Boston, made 12 of 16 field goal attempts and was 6 of 7 at the foul line. He scored 10 points in the third quarter, helping the Trail Blazers increase a 10-point halftime lead to 92-76.

Cavaliers 92, Bulls 78

Brandon, starting in place of injured Mark Price, also had seven rebounds and six assists as the Cavaliers snapped a two-game losing streak that followed a team-record tying 11-game winning streak.

Price, listed as day-to-day, did not play because of a sprained right ankle, sustained on the final play of Cleveland's 103-93 loss to the New York Knicks on Friday night.

Hornets 106, Celtics 98

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Alonzo Mourning scored 33 points and Charlotte tied a franchise record with its fifth straight victory as the Hornets defeated Boston.

The Hornets' 200th franchise win also put them seven games above .500 (19-12) for the first time in team history.

After losing 15 of their first 17 games against the Celtics, the Hornets have won six of their last seven meetings.

Hawks 102, Nets 85

ATLANTA — Ken Norman scored 13 of his 22 points in the third quarter, helping rally Atlanta to a victory over New Jersey.

Reserves Tyrone Corbin and Grant Long scored six points and four points respectively as the Hawks started the fourth quarter with a 14-2 run. Atlanta held the Nets to one field goal for the first six minutes of the final period and blew to an 82-67 lead.

The Atlanta rally started with 3:42 left in the third quarter, when the Hawks wiped out a 57-53 Nets lead.

The Hawks went on an 8-0 run that started with Ken Norman's jumper. Mookie Blaylock's 3-pointer made it 60-57, a lead which Atlanta never lost.

Jazz 111, 76ers 90

SALT LAKE CITY — Jeff Hornacek scored 21 points, Karl Malone added 20 and John Stockton had 20 assists in three quarters as Utah defeated Philadelphia.

Dana Barros scored 32 for Philadelphia, which lost its fifth straight.

The 76ers led the game until early in the third quarter when the Jazz went on a 33-4 run to take an 80-57 lead with 2:35 left in the period.

The Jazz finished the quarter leading 85-66. Stockton had 10 assists in the period, and the Jazz made 16 of 22 field goal attempts and 4 of 6 3-pointers.

Suns 109, Nuggets 100

DENVER — Reserves Danny Manning and Danny Ainge scored 11 and eight points, respectively, in the fourth quarter, helping Phoenix hold off Denver.

Phoenix, which has won 13 of its last 15 games, ran off six straight points early in the final period, including four by Manning, to take an 86-79 lead. Timely baskets by Manning and Ainge the remainder of the quarter kept the Nuggets from getting any closer than five points.

Charles Barkley scored 22 points and had seven rebounds and five assists, while Manning finished with 20 points.

Spurs 103, Clippers 88

LOS ANGELES — David Robinson scored 27 points and Chuck Person added 18 of his 20 points in the fourth quarter, leading San Antonio to a victory over the Los Angeles Clippers.

Sean Elliott shrugged off a dislocated right index finger to score 21 for the Spurs, who ended a five-game road trip with their fourth consecutive victory and 11th in 12 games. Dennis Rodman had 22 rebounds, giving him 59 in his last three outings and helping the Spurs improve to 10-1 since his return from a suspension and leave of absence.

The Clippers lost for the eighth time in 10 games and the fourth time in a row to the Spurs, despite 29 points and 13 rebounds from Loy Vaught.

Robinson shot 10-for-14 in his first visit to the Sports Arena since April 24, when he clinched his first NBA scoring title with a career-high 71 points in the Spurs' regular-season finale.

No. 1 Tar Heels survive No. 7 Maryland

Associated Press

■ Top 25 Roundup

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Rasheed Wallace scored 15 of his 21 points in the second half, taking advantage of Joe Smith's foul woes as No. 1 North Carolina rebounded from its first loss to down No. 7 Maryland 100-90 Saturday night.

Wallace won the high-profile battle of sophomore centers as the Tar Heels (10-1, 1-1 ACC), who lost to N.C. State 80-70 Wednesday night, broke Maryland's five-game winning streak in a battle of the Atlantic Coast Conference's highest scoring teams.

No. 2 UCLA 87, Oregon St. 78

CORVALLIS, Ore. — Tyus Edney scored 23 points and triggered a late surge as UCLA pulled away to beat Oregon State.

The Bruins (7-1 overall, 1-1 Pac-10) flirted with their second straight road loss before outscoring Oregon State (4-7, 1-1) 12-5 in the final two minutes.

No. 3 Arkansas 97, Tennessee 79

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — Corliss Williamson scored seven of his 25 points late in the first half and Arkansas went on to a victory over Tennessee.

Williamson's points came during a 12-4 spurt that helped Arkansas (12-2, 1-1 Southeastern Conference) to a 14-point halftime lead.

No. 4 Massachusetts 87, La Salle 64

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Derek Kellogg scored 18 points as Massachusetts survived a lackluster homecoming performance by Lou Roe in a victory over La Salle.

The Minutemen (8-1) staked a claim to the No. 1 ranking in the college basketball poll. No. 1 North Carolina, No. 2 UCLA and No. 3 Arkansas each lost games this week.

No. 8 Kentucky 80, S. Carolina 55

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Tony Delk scored 18 points and Kentucky hit 17 3-pointers — its highest total in four years — in a victory over South Carolina.

The long-range shooting by the Wildcats (8-2, 2-0 Southeastern Conference) tied an SEC mark for most 3-pointers in a game.

No. 9 Arizona 82, Rhode Island 67

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Damon Stoudamire scored 20 points and Ray Owes had 18, leading Arizona to a victory over Rhode Island.

Arizona (10-3) led by 11 at halftime, but Rhode Island (4-6) moved within 46-41 with 11:33 to go. Corey Williams then hit a 3-pointer to start a 14-4 run and Stoudamire made a 3-pointer that ended it, putting the Wildcats ahead 60-45.

No. 10 Syracuse 89, Seton Hall 77

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — John Wallace had 21 points and Syracuse shot nearly 70 percent in the opening half before using an 18-4 run in the second half to pull away from Seton Hall for a Big East victory.

It was the 10th consecutive victory for Syracuse (10-1 overall, 3-0 Big East), which stopped Seton Hall's nine-game winning streak.

No. 24 Georgia Tech 75, No. 11 Duke 68

ATLANTA — Travis Best scored 22 points and James Forrest had 18 as Georgia Tech handed Duke its second loss in a row.

The Yellow Jackets (9-4 overall, 1-1 Atlantic Coast Conference) never trailed and never lost the lead after Forrest broke a 6-6 tie on a layup with 15:49 left in the opening half.

No. 12 Georgetown 71, Miami 64

LANDOVER, Md. — Freshman Allen Iverson's tie-breaking field goal with 2:39 remaining keyed Georgetown to a victory over Miami in a Big East Conference game.

The Hoyas (9-1 overall, 3-0 in the Big East) have won nine in a row since an opening game loss to defending national champion Arkansas.

No. 13 Florida 72, Vanderbilt 62

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Andrew DeClercq scored 21 points and led a 19-0 mid-game surge that sent Florida over Vanderbilt.

DeClercq scored 10 points during the burst that helped Florida (7-3, 1-1) rebound from losing its Southeastern Conference opener to Louisiana State on Tuesday.

No. 14 Mich. St. 69, No. 22 Iowa 68

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Eric Snow's jumper from the free-throw line as time expired gave Michigan State a victory over Iowa.

Michigan State (9-1, 2-0 Big Ten) was helped when Iowa (11-3, 1-1) missed all four of its free throws in the final two minutes, including the front end of two one-and-ones.

No. 15 Arizona St. 71, Old Dominion 52

TEMPE, Ariz. — Mario Bennett had 16 points and career-highs with seven assists and eight blocked shots to lead Arizona State to a victory over Old Dominion.

Bennett had 10 points and four assists in the first half when Arizona State had runs of 16-0, 12-0 and 8-0 to send Old Dominion (5-8) to its fifth straight loss.

Colorado 71, No. 16 Iowa St. 57

BOULDER, Colo. — Donnie Boyce scored 21 points to lead Colorado to a victory over Iowa State in the Big Eight Conference.

Colorado (8-2, 1-0 Big Eight) built a 29-18 halftime lead as the Cyclones (11-2, 0-1) hit only four of 19 shots.

No. 17 California 84, Washington 76

SEATTLE — Monty Buckley scored 26 points, including 12 on free throws, as California broke a two-game losing streak by beating Washington.

Trailing 17-14 midway through the first half, the Bears (8-2, 1-1 Pac-10) took control of the game with a 17-4 run, paced by seven points from Buckley, all on free throws.

No. 18 W. Forest 72, Florida St. 64

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. — Tim Duncan had career highs of 26 points and 20 rebounds as Wake Forest held its sixth straight opponent under 40 percent shooting in beating Florida State.

The Demon Deacons (8-1, 1-0 Atlantic Coast Conference) have won six straight.

Missouri 82, No. 19 Nebraska 74

LINCOLN, Neb. — Paul O'Liney scored 22 of his 31 points in the second half as Missouri used a 3-point barrage to defeat Nebraska in the Big Eight.

Eight of the 10 second-half baskets by Missouri (10-1) were 3-pointers.

No. 21 Indiana 73, Wisconsin 70

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Brian Evans, benched for the second half while going scoreless in his last game, responded with 26 points as Indiana beat Wisconsin after blowing a 15-point lead.

Cowboy receiver fights accusation of assault

DALLAS (AP) — A woman has accused Dallas Cowboy star receiver Michael Irvin of assaulting her in a nightclub parking lot.

Heidi Marie Thomas, 19, of Plano, filed a complaint with Dallas police Friday, accusing Irvin of fondling her outside the Iguana Mirage about 13 months ago.

The north Dallas nightclub is popular with Cowboys players.

Ms. Thomas has also filed a lawsuit against Irvin on Wednesday, seeking $5 million in damages over the alleged Dec. 12, 1993, incident.

"How else do you get Michael Irvin not to do this again?" said her attorney, Kenneth Carroll of Dallas.

"She is the victim, OK? And because she doesn't have a bruise on her arm or a lost arm doesn't mean that she hasn't been injured," the attorney said.

Carroll alleges the attack began when his client accepted the offer of a ride home from another Cowboys player.

As she sat in the front passenger seat of the player's sport utility vehicle, Irvin reached through the window, kissed Ms. Thomas and fondled her while she tried to fend him off, the attorney said.

As Irvin climbed into the back seat and continued the assault, a third person whom Ms. Thomas did not recognize also fondled her and prevented her escape, Carroll said.

HALL: Schmidt shoo-in

(From 1C)

Association of America to be elected, and Schmidt is sure to top that by a big margin.

Schmidt hit 548 home runs, seventh on the career list; won three NL MVP awards and earned 10 Gold Gloves. He even stole 174 bases.

"I'm always going to be known as a home-run hitter," he said recently. "I'd rather be known as a complete player."

Whether other first-time nominees such as Jim Rice (.298, 382 home runs, 1,451 RBIs) and Tommy John (288-231, 3.34 ERA) or carryover candidates Don Sutton (324-256), Phil Niekro (318-274) and Tony Perez (379 HR, 1,652 RBIs) will get enough support is uncertain.

This also is the 15th and final year of eligibility for Thurman Munson, the game New York Yankees captain who died in a plane crash during the 1979 season. Munson (.292, 701 RBIs) has been a sentimental choice since the accident, although his statistics likely will leave him short for selection.

Tom Seaver holds the record for the highest vote total, getting 98.84 percent in 1992. Last year, Steve Carlton, Schmidt's longtime teammate on the Philadelphia Phillies, topped 90 percent.

"The last thing I want to do is affect the voting by a quote I might make," Schmidt said. "I would just like my career and my records to stand on what I stand for and let the voting go its own way."

Usually, a couple of the 400-plus BBWAA members make it a practice not to vote for a candidate in his first year of eligibility.

Schmidt, never one to brag about his accomplishments, knows that the likes of Hank Aaron and Willie Mays were not named on every ballot, and brushed aside suggestions that he might get 100 percent.

"How can I be unanimous if those players weren't?" he said.

More sensitive to baseball fans, meanwhile, is the debate about who's the best third baseman ever.

Eddie Mathews, before Schmidt played from 1972-89, was regarded as the best combination of offense (512 HR, 1,453 RBIs) and defense.

Pie Traynor, the Pittsburgh star in the 1920s and 1930s, was perceived as the best before World War II, especially because of his hitting (.320, 1,273 RBIs).

Schmidt batted .267, the same as Robinson and four points below Mathews, but holds the major league record for career home runs and RBIs (1,595) by a third baseman.

He set a record by leading the NL in home runs eight times, and holds the league record for most career assists and total chances by a third baseman.

Schmidt was a 12-time All-Star and MVP of the 1980 World Series. He hit four home runs in a 10-inning game in 1976 at Wrigley Field, and recently was named by Ted Williams as one of the 20 greatest hitters ever.

Think of Robinson, and you see a montage of diving stops and back hand catches. Think of Schmidt, and it's cold, hard numbers.

His career fielding percentage (.961) was not as high as Robinson (.971), but he supplied more offense than Brooks (268 HR, 1,357 RBIs).

Purists say Brooks, because of his fielding, particularly with him playing on harder-to-handle grass all those years in Baltimore.

Others, such as Whitey Herzog, side with Schmidt because of his power and the whole package he brought to the ballpark.

"I'm talking about all-around," said Herzog, who managed against both players. "Not the best fielder, but one of the best. The best home-run hitter that ever played third base, but not the highest average.

"I mean, when you put every phase of the game together, he's the No. 1 guy."

Huston builds lead to four

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Playing in a drizzle much of the day, John Huston shot a par-72 Saturday to build his lead in the Mercedes Championships to four shots.

Despite the soggy conditions at the La Costa Resort course this week, Huston was 11-under through three rounds of the PGA's opening tournament of 1995.

Fred Couples moved into contention with a 68 that left him in a second-place tie with Craig Stadler, who shot a 73 to drop back to 7-under.

Lee Janzen, who struggled to a 76 after shooting a course-record 63 on Friday, and Bob Estes, with a 74, were in a group six shots off the lead. Also at 5-under were Bruce Lietzke and Steve Elkington, both with 71s.

postponed when heavy rain left pools of water on some fairways.

The rain Saturday made the waterlogged course play even longer than its 7,022 yards since the ball didn't roll far in the fairways.

Huston was three shots ahead of Stadler beginning the day.

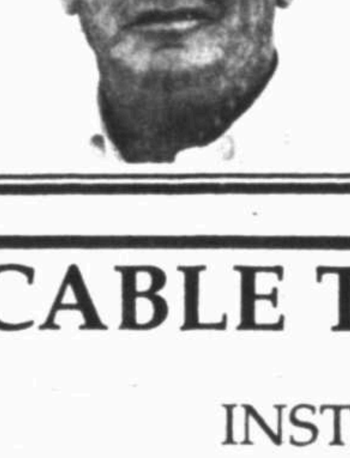

Couples finished second in the tournament last year, losing in a playoff with Phil Mickelson.

Stadler, penalized two shots on Friday for showing up late for his tee time, said he could have pulled closer to the lead on Saturday if he could have just made a couple of short putts.

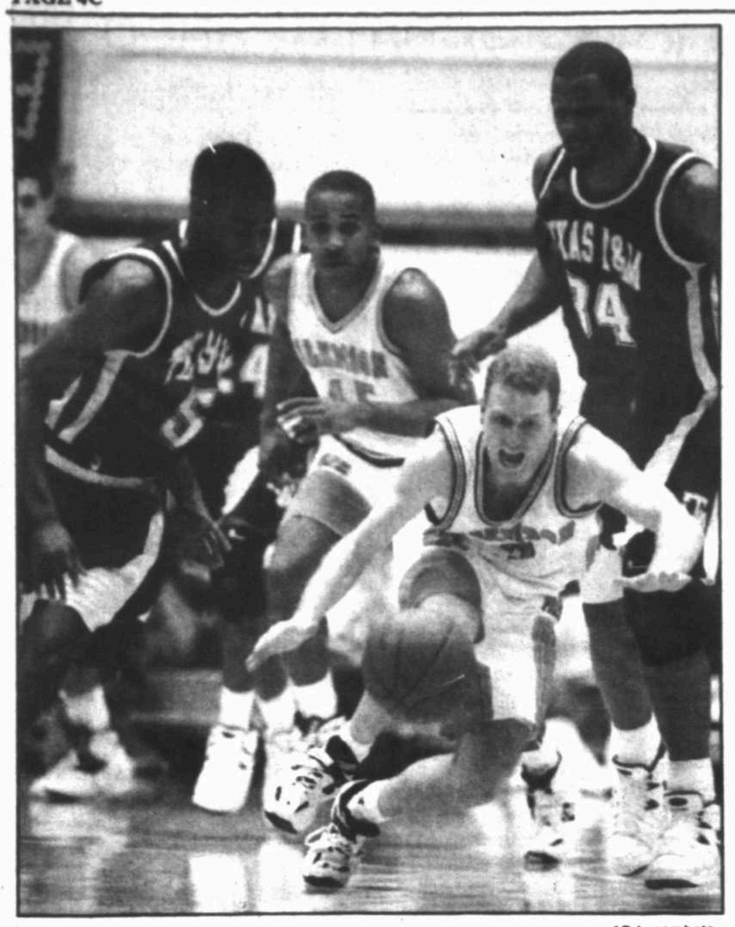

John Daly, back on the tour after a five-month absence, shot a 72 Saturday after having scores of 75 and 74 the first day. Mickelson shot a third-round 71 to move to even par in defense of his title.

1995 will bring hard SWC funeral

By Denne H. Freeman

■ Analysis

DALLAS — Mark the big day down on your 1995 calendar: Dec. 2, Kyle Field, College Station, Texas. Kickoff time to be determined by ABC-TV.

That's when the two old rivals, Texas A&M and Texas, will play in the last game in Southwest Conference history.

When the final gun sounds, the SWC will be dead at the age of 81. It will be a hard funeral.

It was a grand old league that produced national champions at Texas Christian, Texas A&M, Texas and Arkansas when the Razorbacks were around. Southern Methodist came close, finishing second to Penn State one year. Baylor, Texas Tech, Rice and Houston never made it that far, but got to the Cotton Bowl a few times.

It had grand coaches like D.X. Bible, Darrell Royal, Bear Bryant, Grant Teaff and others.

It had great games and classic moments like the 1969 Texas-Arkansas game and others.

It had the greatest announcer in the history of college football in the late Kern Tips.

It had a big-time conference inside just one state, something nobody else could claim from sea to shining sea.

Think about it too hard and the old eyeball orbs well up.

But now that the league has lost its seventh consecutive Cotton Bowl, maybe we can all agree time had come for a breakup. Too many good players were leaving the state for perceived greener pastures.

Take Southern California's 55-14 flogging of Texas Tech. The starting tailback and a defensive back who scored touchdowns were from Texas.

Many of the top players on national champion Nebraska were from Texas; Lone Star kids were on teams at Colorado and Miami.

With Texas A&M, Texas, Baylor and Texas Tech joining the Big Eight Conference, maybe a lot of players will decide to stay closer to home where relatives can come see them play in person instead of on television.

Ditto for TCU, Rice and SMU in their affiliation with the Western Athletic Conference, and for Houston as it joins other independents in a conference.

Of course, it will be sad to see the SWC relationship with the Cotton Bowl die. It worked great for a long, long time. But money and television call the shots now.

The Cotton Bowl ratings for the The Fiesta Bowl gets the meeting between the No. 1 and No. 2 ranked teams next year, then it's the Sugar Bowl's turn, followed by the Orange Bowl.

The Cotton couldn't knock out the Fiesta Bowl in the Tier One scrimmage. Maybe if the Cotton Bowl had gone to Texas Stadium several years ago it could have competed. It didn't. The Cotton Bowl lost to fun and sun Arizona.

Next December will be a sad day. Where will all the records go? Who will house artifacts from the SWC office? Who will get all the old Tips tapes and films?

Fifty years from now will anybody remember or care?

Tech-USC game were poor. Only South Carolina and West Virginia in the Carquest Bowl were lower.

Next year the Cotton bowl will be in the coalition pool. However, it won't be hosting a game that has any national title implications.

Courier in Australian Hardcourt finals

Associated Press

■ Tennis Roundup

ADELAIDE, Australia — Jim Courier advanced to the final of the Australian Hardcourt tournament with a 6-3, 6-4 victory over Australian Mark Woodforde on Saturday.

Arnaud Boetsch of France upset fourth-seeded Richard Krajicek of the Netherlands 7-6 (7-4), 6-2 in the other semifinal.

Courier will be seeking his his first ATP tour title since August 1993 in Sunday's final.

Indonesia Open

JAKARTA, Indonesia — Top-seeded Sabine Hack of Germany and Romanian Irene Spirlea won semifinal matches in the Indonesian Women's Open on Saturday.

Hack outclassed Maria Strandlund of Sweden 6-0, 6-1 in the first semifinal on the hardcourt surface of the Jakarta's Tennis Center.

Spirlea won the other match when defending champion and second-seeded Yayuk Basuki of Indonesia had to retire after 90 minutes because of an intestinal distress.

Basuki won the first set, and Spirlea the second before the crowd favorite had to withdraw.

Hopman Cup

PERTH, Australia — Boris Becker and Anke Huber battled to three-set singles victories over opponents from Ukraine on Saturday and Germany won the Hopman Cup tournament.

Becker defeated Andrei Medvedev 6-3, 6-7 (3-7), 6-3 after Anke Huber had given Germany a 1-0 lead with a 6-4, 3-6, 6-4 victory over Natalia Medvedeva, Andrei's sister.

The meaningless mixed doubles match was called off because Medvedev pulled a hamstring during the second set of his loss to Becker and was advised not to play. Ukraine defaulted, giving Germany a 3-0 victory.

The victory was the second Hopman Cup victory for Germany. Michael Stich and Steffi Graf gave the country its previous title.

Becker will play in an exhibition tournament in Melbourne prior to the Jan. 16 start of the Australian Open.

Becker and Huber received a total of $150,000 and two diamond-studded tennis balls worth $25,000 each.

Qatar Open

DOHA, Qatar — Defending champion Stefan Edberg ended Henri Leconte's surprising surge by beating the Frenchman 6-2, 7-6 (7-5) in their semifinal match at the Qatar Open on Saturday.

Magnus Larsson then demolished Michael Stich 6-3, 6-2 in just 63 minutes .

Clemens wants to try for Olympics

WARWICK, R.I. (AP) — If the strike ends his major league career prematurely, Roger Clemens might not be through with baseball — he wants to play for the U.S. Olympic team.

Clemens, in Rhode Island to promote a franchised restaurant named after him, told The Providence Journal-Bulletin that the uncertainty of his future with the Boston Red Sox has him eyeing amateur competition, although Olympic rules bar professional players.

"I don't know how it's going to work out," Clemens said. "But if it doesn't happen in Atlanta (in 1996), I want to play in the Olympics someday. ... If that (means) giving up some contract, if I have to give up the money part of it, I'll be glad to do that. ...

'Horns extend home winning streak to 17

Associated Press

■ SWC Roundup

AUSTIN — Roderick Anderson scored 21 and Terrence Rencher added 20 as Texas rallied in the second half behind a frenzied defense and defeated Louisiana State 80-71 Saturday night.

The Longhorns (7-2), who extended their home winning streak to 17 games, used swarming pressing and trapping to force 32 turnovers by the Tigers (7-4) and hit well-timed 3-pointers down the stretch to put the game out of reach.

Clarence Ceasar and Misha Mutavdzic each scored 16 points and Landers Nolley added 14 to lead the Tigers, who were coming off a 70-66 victory against No. 13 Florida earlier in the week.

LSU led 42-35 before Texas turned up the defensive pressure and reeled off a 9-0 run that gave the Longhorns their first lead, 44-42, with 15 minutes left.

Texas Christian 115, Alabama St. 88

OKLAHOMA CITY — Kurt Thomas scored 34 points and grabbed 14 rebounds in leading Texas Christian to a victory over Alabama State in the consolation game of the All-College Tournament.

The Horned Frogs (8-4) took a 14-4 lead in the first 4½ minutes and were not threatened after that. They led by 19 at halftime and Alabama State (0-9) got no closer than 17 in the second half.

Clemson 66, Texas A&M 41

CLEMSON, S.C. — Unbeaten Clemson, leading by a scant two points, put together a run in the final dozen minutes against Texas A&M to bury the Aggies in non-conference play.

The Tigers (10-0) are off to the third best start in school history. The loss dropped Texas A&M to 6-8.

Clemson's Bill Harder led all scorers with 15 points, 10 in the second half. Rayfield Ragland and Iker Iturbe scored 14 points apiece and Merl Code added 11.

Boise St. 87, Rice 74

BOISE, Idaho — Center John Coker scored 22 points and 4 other Boise State players reached double figures as the Broncos defeated Rice.

Guard Damon Archibald scored 14 points, guard Darnell Woods added 11 and forwards Sherman Morris and Scott Tharp added 10 each to lead Boise State (9-2) to the victory.

Baylor 80, Southern 62

WACO — Doug Brandt scored 18 points and grabbed 13 rebounds while Aundre Branch netted 17 as Baylor defeated Southern of New Orleans.

Brandt scored eight of his points in the game's first seven minutes as the Bears (5-7) opened the contest with a 21-5 scoring run before taking a 51-27 halftime lead.

Trailing 71-47 with seven minutes remaining, the Knights (5-4) posted a 15-9 scoring run to end the game at the Ferrell Center.

Roddrick Miller made four of seven three-point shots for Baylor, while Alan Burton scored a game high 19.

Montana St. 90, Texas Tech 77

BOZEMAN, Mont. — Kwesi Coleman came off the bench to score 25 points to lead Montana State to its 12th straight victory.

Montana State (12-1) led by as much as 20-8 in the first half, but Texas Tech closed within 46-44 at halftime.

The Red Raiders took their first lead 48-46 with 19:15 remaining. There were seven more lead changes over the next ten minutes.

No. 5 Kansas 97, SMU 58

DALLAS — Freshman Raef LaFrentz scored 18 points and sophomore Jarod Haase added 17 as Kansas defeated Southern Methodist.

Kansas (10-1) raced to a 23-point halftime lead, using the height advantage of 6-foot-11 LaFrentz and 7-2 Greg Ostertag to outmuscle the smaller Mustangs.

With his family and friends from nearby Duncanville in attendance, Ostertag supplied 10 points, eight rebounds and three blocks.

(Women)
No. 25 Texas A&M 75, Manhattan 56

COLLEGE STATION — Marianne Miller had 16 points and nine rebounds as No. 25 Texas A&M defeated Manhattan.

The game was marred by sloppy ball handling as the teams combined for 68 turnovers. Texas A&M (9-3) committed 29 and forced 39, both season highs.

The Aggies led 31-19 at halftime, then put the game away by opening the second half with a 12-2 run.

Former Odessa, Baylor star Ingram dies

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — James E. Ingram, a former Baylor football star who appeared in two bowl games before beginning a prominent legal career, is dead at age 53.

Ingram, who was good enough on both offense and defense to catch 11 passes for 163 yards and plaudits as one of the most outstanding players in the 1963 Bluebonnet Bowl, died Thursday of Crohn's disease and cancer.

The Odessa native played quarterback at Odessa High for Hayden Fry, now head coach at Iowa State.

Aside from his distinction during the Bluebonnet Bowl, where Baylor beat LSU 14-7, Ingram was also named co-captain of the South Squad in the 1964 Hula Bowl.

Ingram was drafted by the Houston Oilers, where the Crohn's disease, a chronic inflammation of the small intestine, was first diagnosed and cut short his professional football career.

He then entered the Southern Baptist ministry and worked with congregations in the Fort Worth area. But he returned to Baylor in the late 1960s, serving as an assistant coach while he studied law.

Afterward, he set up practice in San Antonio and became a corporate law specialist. He served on numerous community, professional and corporate boards in the San Antonio area.

He is survived by his wife Kay and two daughters, Julie Ingram and Shannon Ingram, all of San Antonio; two sons, Kal Ingram of Columbus, Ga., and Cameron Ingram of San Antonio; and his mother, Florene Ingram, and sister, Flo Nell Ingram, both of Odessa.

The funeral will be Monday at 11 a.m. at Trinity Baptist Church in San Antonio. Burial will be at Mission Burial Park North in San Antonio.

49ERS: Young gets two TDs

spite the wet conditions.

Young threw for 143 yards and a touchdown, completing 16-of-22 passes. He also ran five times for 32 yards, including a touchdown that set off a brawl. Floyd had scoring runs of 1, 2 and 4 yards.

San Francisco took advantage of two interceptions against Steve Walsh and a botched fake punt during their scoring burst. The 49ers made it 37-3 in the third quarter and Young and most of the other regulars were lifted with 5:48 left in the period.

Chicago, 0-3 in its playoff history against the 49ers, proved to be no match despite forcing a turnover on San Francisco's first series. Brent Jones fumbled after catching a pass and Alonzo Spellman recovered at San Francisco's 36, but Chicago had to settle for a 36-yard Kevin Butler field goal.

From there, it was all San Francisco.

Young directed a 13-play, 68-yard drive capped by Floyd's 2-yard scoring run for a 7-3 first-quarter lead, then the 49ers pulled away with a 23-point second period.

Eric Davis' interception set up San Francisco's next score, an 8-yard pass from Young to Brent Jones, and Floyd's 4-yard touchdown run made it 20-3.

Walsh was intercepted a second time, with Merton Hanks bringing it back 31 yards to set up Doug Brien's 36-yard field goal.

Down 23-3 and struggling to move the ball, the Bears tried a fake punt with 2:15 left in the half. The ball was snapped to the upback, Tony Carter but he dropped it as he began to run and Dedrick Dodge swooped in to stop him.

The 49ers took over at the Chicago 32, and Young capped the drive with a 6-yard scrmable for the touchdown, putting San Francisco ahead 30-3 at the half.

Young was hit late by Shaun Gayle after he crossed the goal line, prompting a end-zone brawl that included an in-your-face spike by Young and a shoving match between Gayle and Jerry Rice.

"It was a pretty good hit, just a little late," Young said. "I'm glad my teammates backed me up."

Floyd went 1-yard for his last touchdown in the third quarter and Erik Kramer, who relieved Walsh to start the third quarter, hit Jim Flanigan with a 2-yard scoring pass.

Adam Walker went in from 1-yard out following a 44-yard pass from Elvis Grbac to Dexter Carter for the 49ers.

AFC: Steelers dominate Browns

Darren Perry.

The Steelers have played both of their potential AFC championship game opponents. They beat Miami 16-13 in overtime on Nov. 20 in Pittsburgh and lost at San Diego 37-34 while resting several injured starters in their final regular-season game.

Coincidentally, Perry played at Penn State, which saddled Testaverde with his reputation of being bad in big games by intercepting him five times in the 1987 Fiesta Bowl.

The Steelers may have set the tone for their biggest victory in 15 years in, of all places, the pregame introductions as rookie defensive end Brentson Buckner ran defiantly through a crowd of Browns twirling two Steeler-trademark Terrible Towels.

The Steelers promptly fed off the crowd's jackhammer-loud response, driving 65 yards on a momentum-seizing drive that ate up nearly 7½ minutes of the first-quarter clock and ended with Gary Anderson's 39-yard field goal.

It was a bad sign for the Browns, who fell behind Pittsburgh 14-0 in their 17-7 regular-season loss on Dec. 18 and never caught up.

With receivers Derrick Alexander and Earnest Byner combining to drop four Testaverde passes on the Browns' first three possessions, Pittsburgh turned all three ineffective drives into points.

O'Donnell found Ernie Mills, who made pivotal first-quarter touchdown catch against Cleveland last month, for 21 yards, before Foster ran for 18 yards on four carries to set up O'Donnell's third-and-2 scoring pass to Green with 14:12 left in the second quarter.

After a punt, Foster, playing with two broken bones in his lower back, ran off gains of 9, 3 and 28 yards to set up Williams' 26-yard touchdown run — again on third-and-2 — just over five minutes later.

The Browns were in big trouble, down 17-0, and they knew it. Linebacker Carl Banks, one of only four Browns with Super Bowl rings, slammed his helmet into the turf, sending it skidding 20 yards toward the bench.

Coach Bill Belichick's conservatism may have cost the Browns any chance to get back in it. He refused to gamble on fourth-and-inches at the Steelers' 5 late in the second quarter, opting instead for Matt Stover's chip-shot field goal.

Big mistake.

The Browns probably should have been down only 17-3 — or 17-10 at the half — but Testaverde persisted in trying to make something of nothing after Mills' fumble gave Cleveland the ball back. With his receivers blanketed, his sideline throw intended for Alexander was picked off by Tim McKyer in the final minute of the second quarter.

That allowed O'Donnell, booed by Pittsburgh fans only a month ago, to hit Thigpen — once cut by the Chargers — for his third touchdown catch against Cleveland this season, and it was 24-3 at the half. And it was over.

Thigpen, emulating Buckner, immediately pulled a Terrible Towel out of his uniform pants and twirled it toward the crowd.

NFC: Cowboys have urgency for third

(From 1C)

said. "We have an urgency in that direction."

Jones has even prepared himself a fallback position should the Packers win.

"However it falls, we'll challenge again in 1995 and 1996," he said. "We'll have all the tools in place."

Brett Favre threw four touchdown passes against the Cowboys on Thanksgiving Day, all to Sterling Sharpe, who won't play today because of a season-ending neck injury. Robert Brooks replaced Sharpe and caught seven passes against the Lions for 88 yards.

"It definitely hurts not having Sterling, but Robert does a good job and has a lot more speed than Sterling," Favre said. "We found out we couldn't outscore Dallas the last time. So, we have to play good defense and have a solid running game.

"If you had told me Dallas was going to win after we led 17-6 at halftime, I wouldn't have believed it. Now we know. We may pull a Princeton (in college basketball) and go to the four corners with a control game. The only way we can beat them is to run the ball."

Can the Cowboys run is another question? The Packers held Barry Sanders, the NFL's leading rusher, to minus-1 yard last week.

Emmitt Smith gained 132 yards against the Packers on Thanksgiving. But he has been bothered by pulled hamstring muscles since.

"They'll have a lot of confidence now after stopping Sanders like they did," Smith said. "I'm sure they'll try to make it hard on me."

Switzer said the Cowboys will have to find a way to contain Favre.

"He's very dangerous," Switzer said. "He has a lot of skills and athletic talent and he can run. He's like a sophomore quarterback in college with the attitude he has about running around."

Favre said he can't change his style.

"Barry can say what he wants, but my job is to win," Favre said. "If it means I have to take extra hits, fine. A lot of guys are a lot tougher than some other guys in this league. That's my style of play."

Both quarterbacks are banged up. Dallas' Troy Aikman will wear a brace on his left leg to protect a sprained knee. Favre, who has thrown a career-high 33 touchdown passes this season, has felt intense abdominal pain and plans an operation during the off-season.

MHS soccer team wins practice tilt

Midland High, a Final Four soccer team a year ago, took a 4-1 victory over Lubbock Coronado Saturday in a pre-season scrimmage that will not count on the team's season record.

Sean Parnell, Kiley Miller, Jason Paredes and Tyson Yarbrough all scored goals for the MHS team against Coronado.

MHS will play another pre-season match Monday at 4:30 p.m. at Midland High against Lubbock Monterey.

Lady Reb soccer wins scrimmage

Midland Lee's Lady Rebels, who got into the state playoffs for the first time last year, took a 3-1 victory over Lubbock Coronado at the Lee Field Saturday in a pre-season soccer match that won't count on the season record.

Jamie Welch scored two goals and Stephanie Smith added another. Rochell Roberts had two assists and Kelly Sowell another.

The Lady Rebels travel to Brenham Friday and Saturday to open regular season play in a tournament.

Lee, MHS JVs post victories

ODESSA — Midland High and Midland Lee junior varsity teams both took victories Saturday.

Lee took a narrow 53-52 win over the Odessa High JV in Odessa to move to 12-8 for the year and 3-0 in 4-5A play. John Norman led the way with 16 points while Matt Johnson had 10 points. The Lee JV will host San Angelo at 6:15 p.m. Tuesday at Chaparral Center.

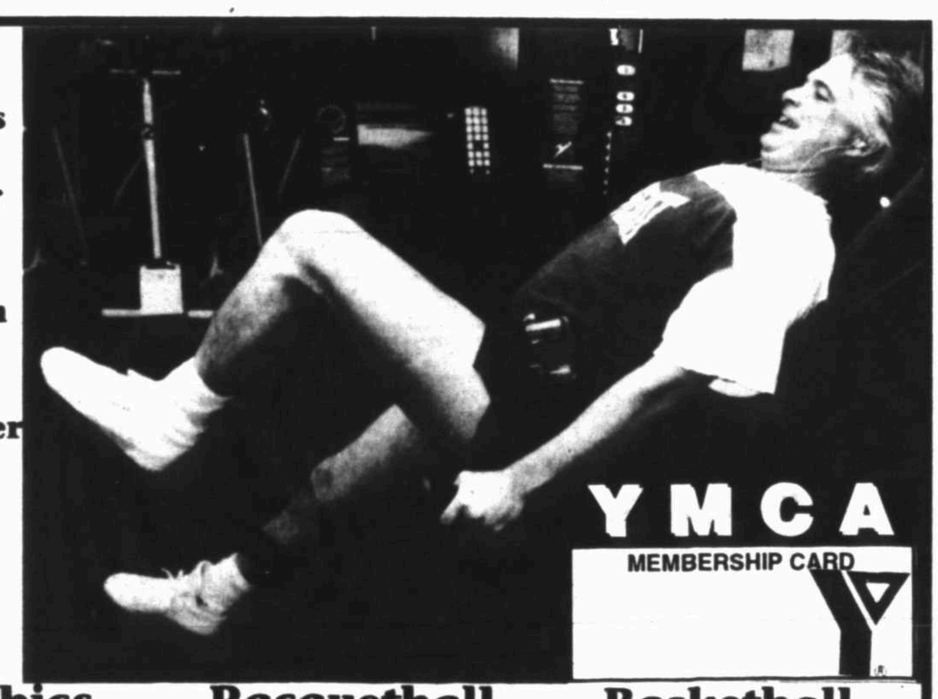

Midland High defeated Odessa Permian 81-57 to climb to 15-3 and 2-1 for the season as Sammy Jurado scored 18 points, Alex Hernandez 12 and Jason Rogers 10. The MHS JV will host Lamesa at 6:15 Monday at the MHS gym.

MHS sophs win

The Midland High girls sophomore basketball team climbed to 9-4 for the year with a 53-42 win over Odessa Permian Saturday at the MHS gym.

Jamie Nicholson led the way with 21 points while Brie Bodecker had 10 points. The MHS sophs are 3-0 in games against District 4-5A teams. They play next against San Angelo on Jan. 20.

THENCE N. 15° 00' W. 689.1 feet along said East line of Tarleton Street to a 1/2" reinf. bar set for the NW corner of this tract in the South line of West Wadley Avenue;

THENCE N. 75° 05' 10" E., 450.16 feet along the south line of W. Wadley Ave. to the place of beginning;

(the Project), will be sold at public auction the the highest bidder.

Additional information about this sale, including the terms under which the sale is being conducted, is provided in a bid package which is available from:

U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development
1600 Throckmorton Street
P.O. Box 2905
Fort Worth, Texas 76113-2905
Telephone Number: 817-885-6221

All parties who are interested in bidding at the sale must obtain a bid package. The bid package contains sample copies of documents that the purchaser must deliver at the sale and copies of documents that the purchaser must execute at closing. The bid package also describes, among other things, the procedure for prorating real estate taxes, and the purchaser's obligations after the sale. In addition, the bid package describes the level of Section 8 subsidy assistance that will be provided for each type of unit (1 bedroom, 2 bedroom, etc.) at the Project, and the specific repairs that the purchaser must perform.

When making their bid, all bidders except The Secretary must submit a deposit totalling $75,000 in the form of a certified check or cashier's check made out to the Secretary of HUD. Each oral bid need not be accompanied by a deposit. If the successful bid is oral, a deposit of $75,000 must be presented before the bidding is closed. The deposit is nonrefundable. The remainder of the purchase price must be delivered within 30 days of the sale or at such other time as the Secretary may determine for good cause shown, time being of the essence. This amount, like the bid deposits, must be delivered in the form of a certified or cashier's check. If the Secretary is the high bidder, he need not pay the bid amount in cash. The successful bidder will pay all conveyancing fees, all real estate and other taxes that are due on or after the date of closing and all other costs associated with transfer of title.

Before being accepted as the purchaser, the high bidder must deliver to the Commissioner, at the time of sale, an executed Acknowledgment by Bidder form. In this form, the high bidder acknowledges that he understands the terms of the sale and the obligations to which he will be bound after the sale. A copy of this form is contained in the bid package described above.

January 6,1995

On or about January 27, 1995, the City of Midland (City), Midland County, Texas will request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to release Federal funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (P.L. 93-383) for the following projects:

Street paving on Cherry Lane 1500-1800 blocks and North Madison 900 and 1000 blocks ($105,000); Walcott 100 block, Walnut 600 block, and Loraine 1300, 1500-1600 blocks ($136,000); East Pennsylvania 400 Block and South Fort Worth 800 block ($54,000); and North Tyler 300 block ($25,000).

Support toward development of a family recreational aquatic center for east Midland ($90,000).

FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT

It has been determined that such a request of release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and accordingly the City has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (P.L. 91-190). The reason for such decision not to prepare such a Statement is based upon the fact that all environmental concerns could either be minimized or mitigated.

The City has prepared an Environmental Review Record (ERR) on the above projects which documents the environmental review of the projects and set forth the reasons why an EIS is not required. The ERR is on file in the Community Development Office, City Hall, at the address below and is available during regular business hours for public examination and copying upon request.

No further environmental review of the projects is proposed to be conducted prior to the request for release of Federal funds.

PUBLIC COMMENTS ON FINDINGS

All interested agencies, groups and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration to the City at the address set forth below. Written comments should be received at the addressed specified on or before January 23, 1995. All comments received will be considered and the City will not request the release of funds or take administrative action on the project prior to the date specified above.

RELEASE OF FUNDS

The City will undertake the projects described above with Community Development Block Grant fund under Title I form grants numbered B-93-MC-48-0023 and B-94-MC-48-0023 from the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The City is certifying to HUD that the City and Mr. Robt. E. Burns, in his official capacity as Mayor, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Court if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision-making and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certifications is that upon its approval the City may use the Block Grant funds and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act. HUD will accept an objection to its approval only on one of the following bases: (a) that the certifications were not in fact executed by the certifying officer or other officer of the City approved by HUD; (b) that the ERR for this project indicates omission of a required decision, finding or step applicable to the projects in the environmental review process. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 58) and should be addressed to HUD, P.O. Box 2905, Fort Worth, Texas 76113-2905. Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objections received after February 13,1995, will be considered by HUD.

Robt. E. Burns, Mayor
City of Midland, Texas

CALLING ALL WORLD WAR II VETERANS

If you were in the Second World War, in the Armed Forces or lived in Midland at that time, or live in Midland now, and would like to share some memories please read on...

I am preparing a book of memories to be ready on the 50th Anniversary of the end of World War II in August 1995.

I would like to include personal memoirs from people of any age - schoolchildren, college students, homemakers, civilians, or members of the U.S. Services - anyone with special memories. Also close relatives of deceased Midlanders and former Midlanders. If you don't like writing, tell your story to me and I'll write it with you.

I was born in London in 1941 and came here 10 years ago. My earliest memories are seeing the 1000 bomber daylight raids flying over London and the tanks and trucks going to the South Coast of England for D-Day.

OFFICIAL GAME RULES

It's fun and easy! Anyone 18 or older can play the Welcome to the Oil Patch Game, except employees (and family members of employees) of the Midland Reporter-Telegram, Associated Publishing Company, Brite Systems, Inc. and their advertising and promotion agencies. The Welcome to the Oil Patch Game is designed for people in Andrews, Crane, Ector, Glasscock, Howard, Martin, Midland, Upton, Ward and Winkler counties. No purchase is required to play or win prizes, but you must have a Permian Basin Area Wide Book lucky number to enter and win a prize. Long distance charges may apply in some areas. If you live in the above counties and do not have a Permian Basin Area Wide Phone Book, call 687-1756, 563-5440 or 800-588-1756 to find out where to pick one up without charge.

Here's How to Play

Turn to The Game Page in the Midland Reporter-Telegram or in other area publications and look for this week's question. Then call CityLine, 560-2400. enter category 1111 for the correct answer and to find out if the number on the card following page 256 in your phone book has made you a winner of one of this week's three prizes of a tank full of gasoline (valued at up to $25) and $75 in cash or the grand prize, gasoline for a year (valued up to $1,300) and $1,000 in cash.

Each week three numbers will be selected to win a prize valued at $100 or more. If the number in your phone book is a winner, keep listening. CityLine will tell you how to claim your prize. Keep calling.....new lucky numbers will be added many times in the same week promotion.

You could win one of the unclaimed weekly prizes and enter the drawing for the grand prize. Here's how: Complete the official entry form and mail it so that it arrives before the deadline or hand print your name, address and daytime phone number on a plain 3"x5" piece of paper. Be sure to include your Permian Basin Area Wide Phone Book lucky number and the correct answer to this week's question. The more often you enter, the better your chance of winning. Mail entries - one per envelope to: Welcome to the Oil Patch Game, Associated Publishing Company, 4400 N. Big Spring, Suite 201, Midland, TX 79705. All entries become the property of the sponsors. None will be returned.

Each week for six weeks ending January 15, 1995, the winning numbers will be selected at random and will win one of that weeks prizes. If the winners are not identified by CityLine, they will be drawn from mailed entries. The grand prize,gasoline for a year and $1,000 in cash, will be drawn from weekly winner and all qualified mailed entries. The total value of all prizes to be awarded in the Welcome to the Oil Patch Game is valued at $3,650 or more.

Each game begins at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday and ends at 11:59 p.m. the following Monday. No substitutions of prizes is permitted. Only one weekly prize will be awarded to each winner.

By entering, winners authorize the use of their names, cities or photos for publicity purposes. Winners may be required to sign an affidavit of eligibility and release. Taxes are the responsibility of winners. Void where prohibited.

CONVENIENCE STORES

SIGNING BONUS!

SALARY
Our minimum starting salary is $5 hour. Manager trainees can start at $300 a week or more (depending on experience). We also give you one week s salary as a SIGNING BONUS -- PART-TIMERS TOO!

SECURITY
Both of our companies offer stable employment year-round. If you aren t getting enough hours (at least 40) at your current job, WE CAN GIVE THEM TO YOU! If you want to work part-time, we can work with you to tailor-make a schedule that meets your needs!

FLEXIBILITY
Our stores are open 7 days a week, with many open 24 hours a day. We have some hours available for all shifts. Full-timers work a five day week!

BENEFITS
We offer medical, dental and life insurance to our full-time Team Members. We also have paid vacations, a sick pay plan, college tuition reimbursement, and a profit sharing and retirement plan!

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES
95% of our Managers started at the entry-level and received the training necessary to become successful at running a small business. We offer continual classroom education in customer service and personal leadership skills. You can tell the difference high-quality training makes when you come into one of our Kent Kwiks or Avis Lubes!

SO HOW DO WE MEASURE UP?
Where will you be one year from now if you stay with your present company? With Kent, the chances are very high that you could be running one of our locations, making in the mid to upper $20 s, plus bonuses! The first step is to take several tests and questionaires which help us determine if you have the customer service attitudes, math skills and work ethics required to be successful in our business. You can come by our Midland area office (3314 No. Loop 250) Monday through Friday, from 9 to 5. If you live in Odessa, our office is on 809 So. Crane, and gives the tests on Tuesdays only at 9 a.m. For more information, please call Andy Salcedo at 520-4000.

Amazing Grace!

Full of graceful, classical touches, this 5-bedroom home in North Midland is sure to please even the most jaded of house hunters.

Aspects of the property, such as the parquet flooring, marble fireplaces and ceiling treatments add a feeling of Georgian elegance, while contemporary features like the plantation shutters add a certain modern flair to the home.

With 5 bedrooms, 3 bathrooms and two living areas, there is a tremendous amount of living space; which makes the home perfectly suited to a large family and/or easy entertaining.

Built in 1991, this is a modern house that offers a tremendous amount for the list price of $169,500.

The kitchen is a good example of how well the house has been designed and constructed. Built with aesthetics as well as practicality in mind, it offers al of the modern conveniences one would expect. A built-in double oven, double sink and large pantry are balanced by the beautiful tiled counters and double doors that lead into the formal dining room.

A large skylight, coupled with good directional lighting ensures that the kitchen is flooded with pleasant, practical light: an important part of a functional kitchen. The breakfast area, which is part of the kitchen, opens out onto the patio via double French doors that add a great deal to the classical feel of the room.

The formal living room contributes a great deal to the stylish tone of the house. With its large marble fireplace and graceful mantlepiece, it is a bright room, full of the diffused light that floods in through the plantation shutters.

The main hall, which boasts the parquet floor, divides the formal living and the formal dining areas and provides a practical approach to wear in the high traffic areas. It also acts as a division between the relatively open plan formal rooms.

Flanking the double doors that lead from the formal living room to the family room are a pair of large, built-in bookcases and a set of closets (which form a short hallway). The bookcases provide a welcome amount of display and storage space to the room, as well as an elegant touch.

There are many wonderful aspects to the house, which will be open for viewing this afternoon between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m.

Billie Sherman of RE/MAX of Midland will be showing the house.

To arrange an alternative appointment to view the property, contact her at 682-8820.

U.S. Chamber of Commerce

MEMBERSHIP SALES REPRESENTATIVE

Opportunity As Limitless As American Business

Across the country the U.S. Chamber of Commerce is recognized as the voice of American business. Since 1912 we've been on a mission to protect and promote the entrepreneurial spirit of tiny stores and large corporations alike.

In this long-term career opportunity, you will only talk to top decision makers in MIDLAND AND VICINITY. You'll explain the Chamber's Role, the benefits of Membership, and work hard to convince managers, presidents and CEO's to join the over 215,000 businesses who are already members of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

In return for your skill and dedication we provide:

- ★ Complete training, both in the classroom and in the field;
- ★ Promotions from within, based on contribution;
- ★ Great benefits package, including: paid vacation, retirement plan, medical and life insurance, and a 401k plan;
- ★ Excellent earnings potential. Many experienced representatives can earn $50,000 and more, based on commissions, effort and sales ability.

If you're ready for a position where the only limits are the ones you set for yourself, please send your resume/letter to: U.S. Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Randy King, District Manager, 8128 E. Cortez Drive, Scottsdale, AZ 85260.

PERMIAN BASIN
OIL REPORT

SUNDAY, JANUARY 8, 1995 SERVING 54 COUNTIES IN WEST TEXAS AND NEW MEXICO

BRIEFING

The crude in this storage tank at the Midland Tank Farm gained a little more in value this past week.

Prices up

Crude futures traded in a narrow 30-cent range during the holiday-shortened week on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Contracts for February delivery of West Texas Intermediate gained 24 cents to close at $17.72 late in the week, due to a report from the American Petroleum Institute of a sharp drop in the nation's crude supply. The posted price was at $16 a barrel.

Natural gas futures weakened, closing at $1.55 per thousand cubic feet on the NYMEX late in the week.

Canyon discoveries

H P C Operating Inc. recorded two Canyon Reef discoveries in Dawson County, three miles north of Ackerly.

The first, the No. 1 M.E. Dyer, flowed 166 barrels of crude and 75 Mcfd from perforations 9,094 to 9,128 ft.

The second, the No. 1 Shortes, is an offset to an earlier Pennsylvanian discovery and tested to pump 99 barrels of crude, 20 Mcfd and 55 barrels of water from perforations 9,212 to 9,259 ft.

Drilling steady

In the Permian Basin, the rig count inched down one rig to 103 for the week and is above the year-ago count of 99 rigs.

Lea County, N.M. was the most active in the Basin with 12 rigs, followed by Midland County with 11 rigs and Eddy County, N.M. with 10 rigs.

The national rig count fell below the 800 mark for the week, dropping 22 rigs to 791. A year ago the count was 814.

Among major producing states, Oklahoma and Colorado showed the sharpest decrease, five rigs each, while North Dakota had the biggest gain, one rig.

Firms merge

Mapco Petroleum and Lexas Oil Co. have announced the formation of Lexas Oil, L.L.C., a jointly-owned crude oil gathering and marketing venture company. The new entity will focus on selectively acquired lease crude oil and the segregation of such streams to achieve greatest value for lease owners and the partners. The Lexas personnel in Mandeville, La. and Houston will operate the venture.

Mapco will provide its refiner perspective and financial status as well as a commitment of management and trade personnel time to the venture. Lexas will utilize its expertise in crude oil acquisitions and marketing, its network of relationships and contacts and the skills of key personnel.

Robert O. Anderson bets all on single well

N.Y. Times News Service

In an age when the oil and gas business means the avoidance of risk — balancing production with refining and marketing, forming elaborate partnerships, hedging in the futures markets — Robert O. Anderson's gamble was a rarity.

As the chairman and founder of Hondo Oil & Gas Co., Anderson sold off or closed the company's refineries and all its producing properties to bet everything on one Colombian well.

Anderson, understand, is not some wild-eyed wildcatter. As the former chief executive of ARCO, he turned that company into one of the nation's largest energy producers by discovering oil in Alaska's Prudhoe Bay.

In September, Hondo reported that its Colombian well, more than two miles deep into the Andes foothills, had indeed struck a great deal of natural gas. The company has cautiously cited published estimates that the field contains about 4 trillion cubic feet of gas, worth about $2 billion in the view of some analysts.

Petroleum liquids from the same well were worth almost as much as the gas itself, although the company won't project those results to the whole field. The stock, which had become a favorite of short-sellers, reached $19.875 after the September announcement, more than double the price just two months before.

But since then, Hondo has drifted back down, closing Wednesday at $11.50, down 25 cents. As the year ended, some investors were betting on further declines. Short sales amounted to 900,000 shares, with more than a third of the number not owned by insiders and available for trading.

The initial euphoria over the Colombian discovery has cooled for some logical reasons. The market value of Hondo's stock plus its debts currently comes to about $230 million.

The entire Colombian project, therefore, would have to be worth at least $2 billion to have the potential of generating the earnings to justify Hondo's current stock price. So in this cautious age, holding Hondo stock might be too great a risk for anyone not named Anderson.

Estimating the size of the reserves will require a second deep well, to be drilled beginning in about February, with completion and testing likely to take four or five months.

Even then, Hondo would end up with only a slice of the profits. To finance the Colombian project, Hondo had to give Amoco a 60 percent interest, leaving 30 percent with Hondo and 10 percent with another investor.

In addition, Ecopetrol, the Colombian petroleum company, can claim half of all earnings and the Colombian government gets a 20 percent royalty on all the remaining profits. Hondo's ultimate share would be just 12 percent.

Worse still, Hondo so far has no market for its gas. The nearest, earliest possible customer is a government oil refinery 30 miles away. Colombia wants to promote the industrial use of natural gas, but has not yet agreed to any purchases. Completing a pipeline could easily take two years.

In looking for broader Colombian markets, Hondo and Amoco will have to go up against large natural gas discoveries elsewhere. For the time being, the Hondo well has been closed.

Hondo, based in Roswell, N.M., has prepared to get by with greatly reduced costs. The company now has only five employees, compared with 175 before its property sales in 1992. Anderson's two sons, who had been executive vice presidents, have both left the company.

Anderson, now 77, turned the job of chief executive over to John J. Hoey, a former oil company executive, a year ago while remaining chairman.

Beach named top landman

■ Midland native Carl Beach named first recipient of AAPL's Landman of the Year.

By Linda Thorsen Bond

Carl Beach was born in Midland, lives in Austin and works in Corpus Christi. He's a landman, a family man, a traveling man – and now he has been named the 1994 Landman of the Year by the American Association of Professional Landmen (AAPL).

Beach was nominated for the honor by the Permian Basin Landmen's Association (PBLA) which he served as director, first and second vice president and 1987 president. He received the award at the AAPL convention in Calgary in June.

"I was real surprised and humbled to receive this honor," Beach said. "This was the first time the award was given, and being the first recipient made it even more unusual. It is a tremendous honor because there are a lot of qualified people active in our association, but I'm the lucky one to be the first to receive it."

Mark Wheeler, district landman for Maralo, was president when Beach was nominated by the local chapter.

"Even though Carl had moved out of the Permian Basin when we nominated him, he is still active and attends meetings here. He's done a lot for our association as well as for the national association of landmen," Wheeler said. "He was instrumental in the start-up of the North American Prospect Expo, which is held in Houston every year. The AAPL has made it into a first class presentation of prospects that has helped us immensely. Carl's ethics are extremely high, he's honest and down to earth. If Carl says he's going to do something you know he will do it."

Beach laughed when he explained, "Our industry is basically very small and your reputation is very important. Everybody knows everything you ever did."

There are approximately 750 members in the PBLA. Wheeler said although members live anywhere from Houston to Oklahoma and Denver, 75 to 80 percent live here in Midland and Odessa. The local chapter is the third largest in the country behind Houston and Denver.

Non-OPEC production gains limits cartel's impact

■ Gains in production by non-OPEC producers limit cartel's ability to impact prices, demand.

New technology, improved corporate efficiency and the opening to exploration of vast foreign tracts, energy experts say, promise to increase non-OPEC production 6.5 percent by 2000.

N.Y. Times News Service

DALLAS — The oil production of non-OPEC nations, declining since 1988, has begun an unexpected revival this year that will continue into the next century, tempering price increases and limiting the world's dependence on the oil cartel.

Already, higher supplies from oilfields beyond OPEC's domain have helped to keep prices low despite booming demand and OPEC production quotas.

New technology, improved corporate efficiency and the opening to exploration of vast foreign tracts, energy experts say, promise to increase non-OPEC production 6.5 percent by 2000.

On Alaska's North Slope, new discoveries and modern techniques for sucking more from existing wells have kept oil flowing at rates nearly two-thirds higher than the state predicted.

In China, Vietnam and Russia, Western exploration and production crews are swarming to areas that were long closed to foreign investment.

In the North Sea, fields thought to be entering their dotage after 25 years of pumping are producing 20 percent more oil than last year, helped by lower production costs and new discoveries.

For the first time since 1988, output from non-OPEC nations will increase this year, to about 39.1 million barrels, up 600,000 barrels from last year, according to Cambridge Energy Research Associates, a leading consulting firm. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries itself has recently confirmed this turnaround and predicted its continuation.

"The non-OPEC production increase,' Dr. Subroto, OPEC's former secretary-general, said in a recent speech, "changes the rules of the game."

Although more oil comes from outside the cartel, OPEC's coordination, vast reserves and spare capacity, especially in Saudi Arabia, have given its member nations disproportionate influence.

In the late 1980s, nonmembers rebuffed OPEC's suggestions to cooperate on pricing. By 2007, however, the cartel expects to be producing a majority of the world's oil.

There are no guarantees that higher production will keep prices stable. At home, new oil tanker insurance standards and reformulated gasoline mandates might roil the energy markets early next year.

More Russian or Middle East turmoil, or especially rapid growth in global demand, could still create shortages. In the long run, the largest portion of the world's increasing thirst for oil can only be met by OPEC.

But for next year, the International Energy Agency of oil consuming nations predicts that more than half the world's increased demand of 1.1 million barrels a day will be met by producers who do not belong to OPEC.

"All this non-OPEC oil is postponing the day when OPEC will be required to fill the gap," said Robert W. Esser, a Cambridge Energy senior consultant.

The latest supply figures and prices contrast remarkably with the outlook a few years ago. The consensus of industry executives and analysts in 1990 was that oil, then $20 a barrel, would go to $30 by 1995. They cited rising worldwide demand and lagging production.

The demand has materialized, especially among developing nations. But so has new capacity. Oil prices, which rose above $36 a 42-gallon barrel in 1981, have recently been less than half that because of increased supplies.

Oil companies have more than accommodated themselves to high production at low prices.

"I don't think there's any question that the industry is learning to do things, like deepwater drilling, at $17 a barrel and $2 a cubic foot, that couldn't be done two or three years ago," said H. Laurance Fuller, Amoco's chief executive, referring to today's low oil and natural gas prices. "When life is tough you find ways to do things better."

Although most of the technological advances and foreign ventures are known, their combined impact is only now becoming clear. Even the production declines in the United States are slowing, due to new sources ranging from the Gulf of Mexico to Alaska's North Slope.

New technology is rendering the rig count, long the most trusted guide to the domestic oil industry's health, less useful. Faster drilling and pinpoint targeting result in more discoveries and production for each drilling rig.

Twelve years ago, drilling 8,000 feet deep took 17 or 18 days. More durable drill bits have greatly reduced time spent pulling long strings of tubing to the surface, so the same depth now takes just five days.

"If we extend this trend,' joked Forrest E. Hoglund, chief executive of Enron Oil & Gas Co., in a recent speech, "by 1997 we shouldn't need a rig."

Others, however, are truly drilling without rigs. On Alaska's North Slope, Atlantic Richfield is using motorized drill bits at the end of flexible tubing to drill sidetracks to existing holes.

Newly developed North Slope fields and new drilling techniques have greatly slowed the decline in Alaska's flow.

BEACH: Respected

(From 1E)

'Carl is considered highly by the members of the AAPL," Wheeler said. "He's very well respected throughout the industry particularly in the hierarchy of the AAPL. His work has been unequaled in recent years by landmen trying to help the national association."

Beach cites the North American Prospect Expo and his work as chair of the AAPL's education committee as his most significant.

"Our national conventions used to be the only places to network but the education committee transformed the conventions to the format of educational conferences," he explained. "Now there are opportunities to learn from the educational seminars at those meetings."

After graduating from West Texas State University in 1974, Beach came back to Midland and went to work for his father, geological engineer William Beach. He worked for Beach and Snoddy until 1978, when he became a vice president of their new family company, Beach Exploration. In 1984, Carl expanded the company to south Texas, and in 1991 he formed New West Fuels. Midland's Caprock Electric owned a majority interest in New West Fuels, and provided capital for two major acquisitions which gave Beach proved producing reserves as well as undrilled proved reserves to develop cash flow without much risk.

In 1992, Beach dissolved New West Fuels and formed Southstar Corporation with three partners. The Midland-born landman is the president, supervising business development, locating investors and capital acquisition, managing and coordinating overhead funding and prospect development drilling. He also manages drilling and prospect acquisition funds. In 1993, Carl packed up his wife and children and moved to Austin.

"All of our work at the time we moved was in south Texas," Beach said. "Austin is centrally located so I can do business in Houston, Corpus, or Austin. It's not too bad traveling back and forth between our Austin and Corpus offices. It takes me about three hours to drive and I can get most of my business done by spending one night and two full days in Corpus."

"The Permian Basin is a basic place to learn the oil and gas business," Beach said. "It's a mature basin with all the players in it. You can learn everything you need to know about oil and gas in Midland."

According to longtime Midland landman Frank Wolfe, there are certain characteristics that are important in their profession.

"A landman has to be real ethical because of the leasing he does," Wolfe said. "He has to follow through on contracts and agreements and he has to be able to meet a lot of people. Carl meets all of those criteria. He's real outgoing and meets people everywhere. In fact, Carl knows more people than I'll ever know! I've been at conventions with him in Dallas, Houston, Corpus, and there'll be maybe 250 people and I know 35 and Carl knows 249 of them. Every time I go somewhere people ask me how's Carl doing!"

Wolfe added, "He's a first class individual. Carl's very learned. He wants to know what's going on in anything related to our profession or other aspects of the oil industry. I consider it a real honor to know him."

The Landman of the Year award is not based just on participation in the local landman's association but national and community involvement.

Beach has been active in the AAPL, serving as a speaker at the 1993 AAPL Texas Energy Conference and at a seminar for the West Houston Association of Petroleum Landmen. He has been a regional AAPL director and has chaired or been a member of national committees such as the Issues Management Council, education, annual meeting and the North American Prospect Expo committees. He serves on two committees for the Independent Petroleum Association of America. The Capital Markets committee tries to "reacquaint Wall Street with the oil and gas business and lets them know we have quality investments for them," and the Community Voices Program trains members to handle media responses, providing a united industry voice on new laws, situations and issues.

In Midland, Beach has been on the Board of High Sky Children's Ranch and involved in the American Business Club, Midland Little League Association and the First Christian Church.

Beach's children are Christi, age 18, and Brian, who is 15 years old. His wife Margie is his "ten-year college student," a senior at South West Texas State University majoring in accounting.

BETS: Anderson gambles all on well

(From 1E)

Hondo remains heavily in debt to Lonrho, the British conglomerate, from years of losses, with about $35 million personally guaranteed by Anderson.

Lonrho owns 39 percent of the company, Anderson 31 percent and his sons 8 percent; Lonrho could increase its stake to satisfy debts.

Hondo's major detractor has been Hanifen Imhoff, a small Denver investment firm, that recommended shorting the stock at $18 a share in 1992. By the next year, Hondo was worth a third as much. The firm's clients are still short more than 300,000 shares.

Anderson has been vindicated before, but so has Hanifen Imhoff. "Robert O. Anderson has quite a reputation in the industry," said Jeffrey Robertson, an analyst at Rauscher Pierce Refsnes, a Dallas brokerage firm. "But anytime you're looking at international exploration you're looking at a lot of risk."

CARTEL: OPEC production has competition

(From 1E)

In 1988 the state predicted that daily production would fall from 2 million barrels then to 1 million by now. Current production: 1.6 million barrels a day.

Fields thought to be played out in other countries, including Venezuela, an OPEC member distant from the jittery Persian Gulf, are coming back to life with horizontal drilling and enhanced recovery techniques.

Methods for mapping underground reservoirs have improved the odds of a strike, promoting new production. What geologists call 3D-seismic technology bounces sound waves off underground formations, then uses computers to create three-dimensional pictures.

These techniques help give oil companies the confidence to build billion-dollar platforms in the Gulf of Mexico.

The Gulf of Mexico is the leading site for deep-water production, which has been extended to 2,860 feet from 1,351 feet in the last six years. Oil companies are laying plans to bring the same technology to West Africa and South China.

Using what they call directional drilling, they can sink wells miles from a platform, in much deeper water, without the cost of separate platforms.

Oil companies have also cut costs by reducing staff, making new projects more economical. Employment in the domestic oil industry has fallen by more than half in 12 years, from 920,000 to 450,000 today. Amoco's new data processing center in Tulsa, Okla., will do with 1,000 people next year what 1,800 did last year.

Oil companies are also learning to contract for services that others can perform more economically. "Our industry has tended to view suppliers as the enemy," said Fuller of Amoco. "Our company and other companies are now involved in partnerships."

If Amoco guarantees to keep a drilling company's rigs chugging, he said, the drillers can fix their own costs, avoid layoffs and pass on the savings. Often, oil-field service companies receive incentives to keep their costs down.

Lower costs and newer discoveries have allowed the North Sea to sharply increase its daily output by about 900,000 barrels, to 4.7 million, this year.

In 1990, Britain predicted that its share of North Sea production would go from 1.9 million barrels then to 2.1 million now — far short of the current rate of 2.5 million.

Other countries are giving the oil companies' capital and know-how an increasingly warm welcome. China, Vietnam, Venezuela and the former Soviet republics are only some that in recent years have been opened to foreign oil investment.

The rules governing these investments, often imposed by officials new to capitalist notions of a fair return, can be murky and changeable. Some oil companies are already disappointed by their earnings.

Still, an energy conference in Houston earlier this month, sponsored by the Arthur Andersen accounting and consulting firm, seemed like a global investment bazaar. Chinese and Vietnamese officials vied with OPEC leaders in appealing for oil company executives to help plumb their supplies.

In a speech there, even Subroto, the former OPEC leader, cited the advances of OPEC rivals while insisting that the West had to invest much more in OPEC nations to satisfy its future oil demand.

In 1990, Subroto forecasted that world demand for OPEC crude oil would reach 29 million barrels a day by next year. But OPEC is now pumping only about 25 million barrels a day and plans to maintain that level in 1995.

Daily non-OPEC production of crude oil and associated liquids fell from a peak of more than 41 million barrels in 1988 to 38.5 million barrels last year, according to Cambridge Energy. Esser sees the rate returning to about 41 million barrels in 2000, then leveling off. OPEC has recently adopted almost exactly the same outlook.

Others are more optimistic. John H. Lichtblau, chairman of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, sees output by OPEC rivals continuing to rise through the year 2005 for a total daily gain of about 5 million barrels from this year.

In the United States, the world's largest oil user and importer, increased technology and efficiency are slowing the declines in output. Since 1985, production has fallen from 10.6 million barrels a day to an estimated 8.3 million this year. Cambridge Energy predicts 7.5 million barrels a day in 2000.

Esser's challenge in predicting supplies is estimating how much more expenses will fall. "Costs are coming down so much that the minute you put a dot on a graphic," he said, "it could be wrong."

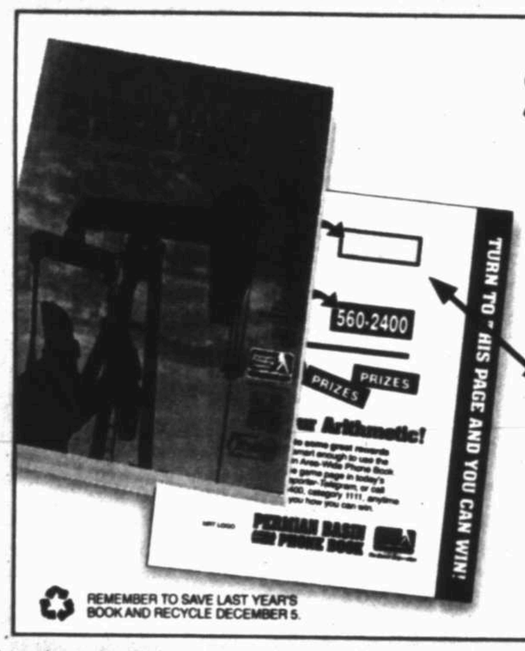

New Pemex director appointed

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Adrian Lajous Vargas has been named new director general of Mexican oil monopoly Petroleos Mexicanos, or Pemex, as part of the cabinet shuffle resulting from Mexico's two-week old currency crisis.

Lajous Vargas succeeds Carlos Ruiz Sacristan, who has been appointed secretary of transport and communication, a statement from President Ernesto Zedillo's office said.

Riuz Sacristan moved over to replace Guillermo Ortiz Martinez, who became treasury secretary after Jaime Serra Puche was forced to resign following a 30-percent devaluation of the Mexican peso.

ACTIVITY HIGHLIGHTS

Dawson yields two Canyon Reef finds

Staff Report

H P C OPERATING INC. has completed two Canyon Reef discoveries in Dawson County, three miles north of Ackerly.

On potential test, the No. 1 M.E. Dyer flowed 166 barrels of 37.2 gravity crude and 75 Mcfd on a 13/64 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 230 psi. The well flowed from perforations 9,094 to 9,128 ft., which had been acidized with 2,000 gallons of 15 percent NeFe acid.

Permitted as a 9,500 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 9,400 ft. where 5 1/2 inch casing was set.

The well topped the Dean at 8,150 ft. and Pennsylvanian Limestone at 9,085 ft. on ground elevation of 2,812 ft.

H P C's second discovery is a southerly offset to the company's earlier Pennsylvanian discovery, the No. 1 W.G. Reed, three miles north of Ackerly.

The No. 1 Shortes was finaled to pump 99 barrels of 32.9 gravity crude, 20 Mcfd and 55 barrels of water from perforations 9,212 to 9,259 ft. The interval was acidized with 2,500 gallons of 15 percent NeFe acid.

Permitted as an 11,000 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 10,404 ft. and plugged back to 9,460 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set.

HPC potentialed the No. 1 W.G. Reed to pump 86 barrels of crude, 19,500 Mcfd and 123 barrels of water from open hole interval 9,211 to 9,216 ft.

Strawn discovery pumps 104 barrels

Lea County, N.M. has gained a Strawn discovery, a mile south of 8,900 ft. Abo production in the Midway field, four miles northwest of Humble City.

DALEN RESOURCES OIL & GAS CO. — changed from PG&E Resources — potentialed the No. 1 Shipp "20" to pump 104 barrels of 36.5 gravity crude and 154 Mcfd from perforations 10,858 to 10,902 ft. The interval was acidized with 8,000 gallons of NeFe acid.

Drilled to 11,105 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, the well was plugged back to 11,026 ft.

On kelly bushing elevation of 3,786 ft., formation tops include the San Andres at 5,026 ft., Glorieta at 6,856, Abo at 8,350, Wolfcamp at 9,695, Canyon at 10,590, Strawn at 10,855 and Atoka at 10,986 ft.

Fusselman strike tested in Glasscock

A Fusselman discovery has been recorded in Glasscock County, two miles from Strawn production in the Garden City Southeast field, eight miles southeast of Garden City.

GROVER McKINNEY OIL CO. finaled the No. 1 Currie to flow 144 barrels of crude and 235 Mcfd on a 10/64 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 848 psi. The well flowed from perforations 9,693 to 9,738 ft., which had been acidized with 1,000 gallons of 15 percent NeFeHCL acid.

Scheduled as a 10,000 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 9,844 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 2,560 ft., include the San Andres at 2,610 ft., Clearfork at 3,410, Wolfcamp at 6,650, Strawn at 9,050 and Fusselman at 9,660 ft.

Cooper names subsidiary CEO

HOUSTON (AP) — Sheldon Erikson, now chairman, president and chief executive officer of the Western Company of North America, has been named to head a new billion-dollar company being formed by Cooper Industries.

Cooper Cameron Corp. is an independent subsidiary based on what had been Cooper Industries' petroleum and industrial equipment businesses. Those businesses had more than 8,000 employees at last count.

The new Houston-based firm is expected to become publicly owned during the second quarter of this year, when shares are offered to holders of Cooper Industries common stock.

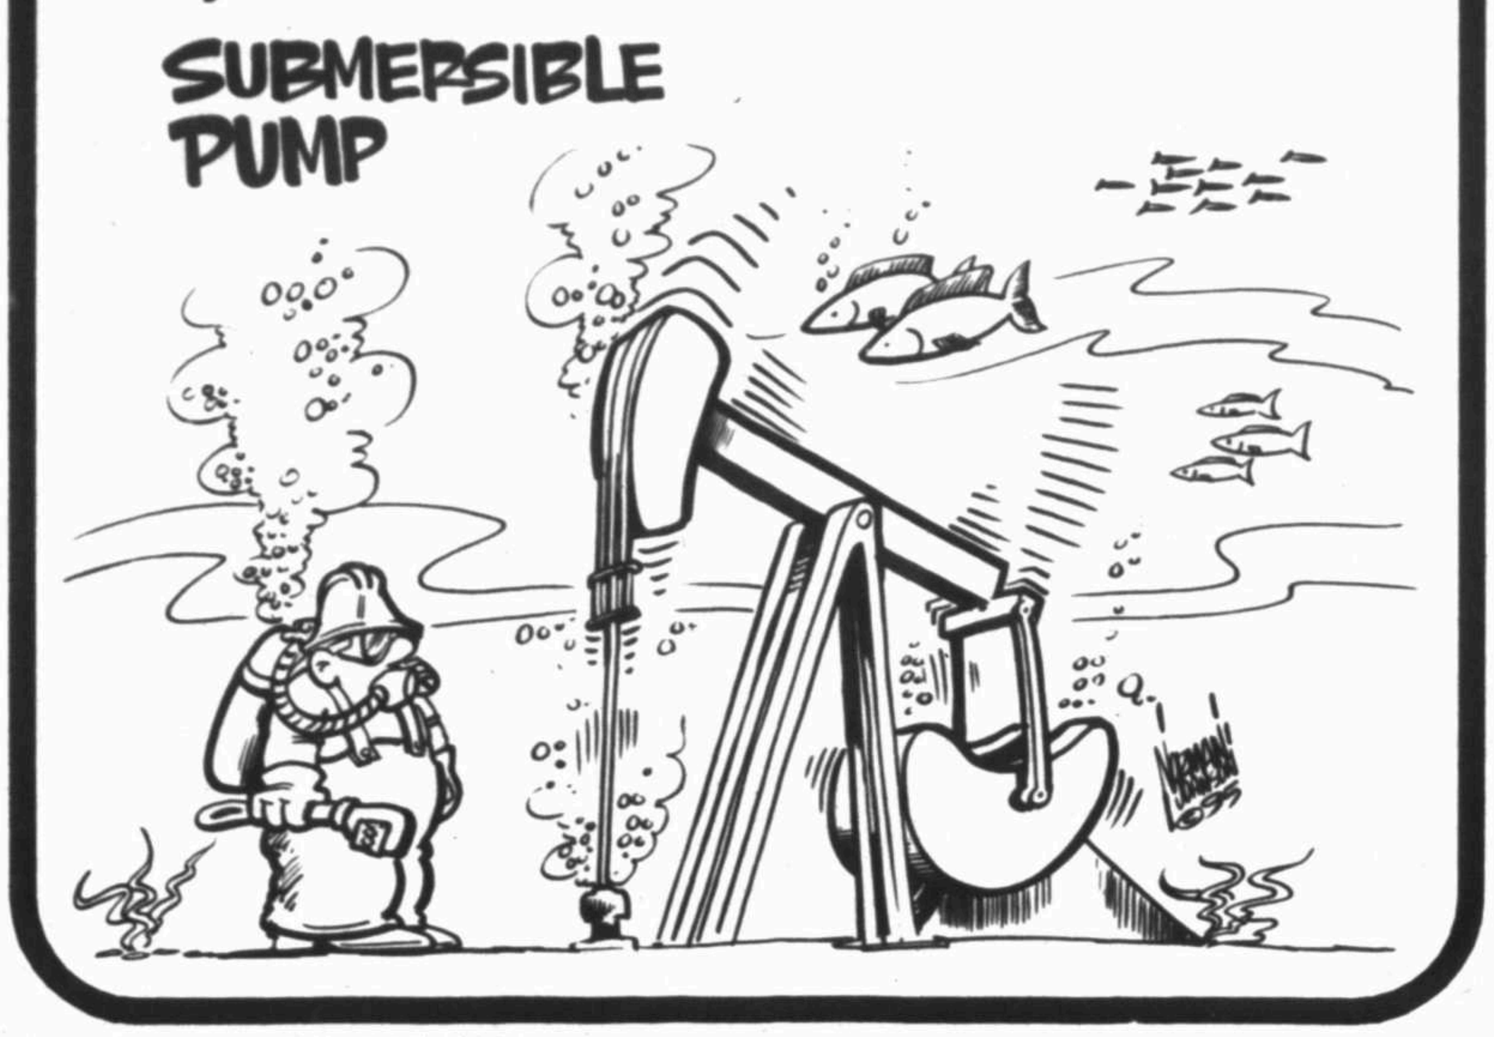

Cooper Cameron officially began operations January 1 as a wholly owned subsidiary of Cooper Industries.

The segment being split off had 1993 revenues of $1.3 billion. Cooper had $6.3 billion in revenues during that year.

Erikson, named Cooper Cameron's president and chief executive officer, said the company still must recruit a corporate staff, select a headquarters location and pick an outside board of directors.

Northwest Passage

TEXT AND PHOTOS BY TED BATTLES

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a two-part series traveling from Salt Lake City through the Northwest passage to Vancouver, B.C. The last part will be published Jan. 15 on the Lifestyle cover.

On this day, Shoshone Falls, which is on the Snake River and higher than Niagara Falls, is a trickle of its normal self. Two weeks earlier the raging waters that cascaded over the rocks were diverted for agricultural purposes.

NORTHWEST PASSAGE — You've seen the television advertisement with the fellow sitting in a just rented car in Monument Valley, Utah — a rental agency in the desert, a little far-fetched, eh — and he remarks, "I think I'll go see mama. She lives just up the road.....in NEW JERsey." More far-fetched, right?

I think the ad has been lifted and I'm just waiting for notification that my credit card has been lifted along with it.

My tour of the Northwwest passage all began with the desire to see if Vancouver really looked like the picture postcards. You know how it is: You see an imagination-stimulating scene from some place like Salzburg, St. Stephen's church roof in Vienna, Bergen from Mount Floyen, Stockholm's Gamla Stan — sights that demand eye-proof of their veracity.

That's the way it has been for me with Vancouver, the impressive skyline with a backdrop of majestic snow capped mountains across Burrard Inlet. Could it really look like that?

Vancouver has been waiting there, just out of reach. Every planned trip aborted for one reason or another. But this time, with no long range plans begging to be scuttled, just get up and go.

As an after thought, I decided I should explore four of the 12 states that I had yet to visit. Awaiting me were five state capitols and one of those rain-forest football stadiums with the roof, and I could capture a glimpse of the 14,411 foot Mount Rainier, the Northwest's most regal peak, looming snow capped, even in mid-summer, providing a majestic backdrop for Seattle's skyline. That scene could be more dramatic than the Vancouver vista.

At the same time, while touring Montana's Glacier National Park, perhaps I could discover the secret of why my long time friend Bill Ahders had fled his native state for a lifetime in West Texas. There must be a clue somewhere in Montana.

St. Mary's Lake is a compelling sight into the late afternoon sun when descending from the heights on the eastern edge of Glacier National Park.

It might also provide an opportunity to check out a few ski destinations and, maybe, a day of summer skiing on the glacier at Mt. Hood.

In the evening, there would be endless nights of minor league ball games.

As may trip materialized, the journey revealed the rain-nurtured beauty of the Northwest and exposed devastation from utter to atomic in scope. Forest fires forced detours in crossing misting, smoking Washington. The road I planned to take from Wenatchee to Seattle over the Cascades was closed because of the fires and the one I took 60 miles south back to the Interstate had just been reopened that morning. The fires had burned right up to the edge of the highway, leaving a large junk yard of blackened, smoking wrecks.

When I left Boise for Sun Valley, forest fires outside the city cut visibility to a quarter of a mile. The sun shone at Sun Valley, but shyly and as one approached the mountains, from a distance they were shrouded in a filmy gray negligee.

In one state capitol, a column was

The streak of sound and silver known as Amtrak still carries the romance and magic of passenger trains of long ago.

Trekking on Amtrak

"My heart is warm with friends I make and better friends I'll not be knowing.
But there isn't a train I wouldn't take,
No matter where it's going."

— Edna St. Vincent Millay

By Mary Frances Beverley

The romance is still there. Only a train, whoo-whooing through the night, can evoke the feeling that at any moment, something rare and wonderful may happen. Outside, the train is a rush of movement; a streak of sound and silver. Inside it's a snug, separate world, and, on a recent journey, I hoped I would find the magic that so captivated me in my youth when passenger trains were commonplace.

HAVE YOU HEARD?

Midlanders visit 'The Big Apple'

By Marilyn McKnight Harrison

The holidays are over, but the memories linger on. Those who traveled to New York City on the Midland Symphony Guild's annual pre-Christmas tour are still reminiscing about their travels. The trip was memorable for a number of reasons, but particularly so because of the number of mothers and daughters and other family members who traveled together.

McKnight-Harrison

Staying at the Ritz-Carlton on Central Park South, the travelers attended two events as a group, the Broadway revival of "Damn Yankees" and the Radio City Music Hall "Christmas Spectacular." They then had the opportunity to select their other entertainment during their five-day stay. They met in between at the hotel's Club Room, where food appropriate for the time of day was always available, to chat and compare notes on their experiences.

Among the many highlights were the Metropolitan Opera's production of "Madama Butterfly," the New York Pops at Carnegie Hall, both on and off-Broadway shows, Christmas shopping, and dining at some of the city's most noted restaurants, including Manhattan's new "in" place, Gramercy Tavern. In addition, there were those who enjoyed the piano music of Bobby Short at Cafe Carlyle and a performance by Judy Garland's daughter, Lorna Luft, at Rainbow and Stars.

"YA'LL COME for dessert and welcome Richard and Carole Jackson, Heather Kirk's mum and dad, and Patricia Crack and Freda Stabler, Heather's aunties." So began the invitations to a party on Dec. 29 at the home of Frances and Larry Stapp to honor the visitors from England.

Assisting with the party were Frances and L.E. Newton of Midland, Stacey and Addie Gutschke of Canyon and Brandy and Jim Tirey of Happy.

Tom, who is the chief United States attorney in Midland, introduced Mark Roomberg, new assistant U.S. attorney in Midland, to the guests. Mark recently moved here from Washington, D.C.

THE HOME of Mary Ann McRae was a beehive of activity during the month of December. Three of the five Saturday nights were devoted to parties.

Beginning on Dec. 17, Mary Ann hosted an open house for friends, who enjoyed a lovely cocktail buffet.

Guests included Leslie and the Rev. Stockton Williams, Frances and Jack Matthews and daughter, Judith, Carol and Jim Brown, Naomi and Henry Tillett, Bennie Sue Thomas, and Chris (Mrs. John) Setzer and son, Sam Hinz.

On Christmas Eve, Mary Ann entertained in honor of her son, Thomas McRae Sloan, and his wife, Tonya, who were visiting here from Houston. Tom got to see a number of longtime friends.

On New Year's Eve, Mary Ann and John Meyer hosted a party for the Confederate Air Force B-24/B-29 Squadron. Among the guests were Charlotte Davis, Mike Looney and son, Russell, of Iraan, Bill Joyce, Carolyn and Jim Fitzgerald, Nancy and Chuck Henderson and Melanie and Neil Harrison.

TO CELEBRATE the season, Midland attorney Bill Patterson and his wife, Maria, hosted their annual Christmas party on the 17th of December for friends and clients.

A clever poem invited guests to come for beans and rice, instead of the usual holiday fare. In addition, they were served green chili grits, various dips, a cheese log with raspberry topping and a variety of sweets.

Approximately 150 persons attended the event, the couple's first Christmas party in their new home. Although the food was nontraditional, the decor was not. It featured holly wreaths and evergreen boughs, with festive accents.

TRIP: Excursion turns to adventure

written about my visit; a mystery I'll leave to tantalize a while. However, I didn't feel snubbed in the other four state capitols since I didn't tell them I was there.

As for the ball games, Vancouver was out of the country, Salt Lake City had just left town, while in Bend, a desperate need for a laundromat took precedence over a ball game. The only game witnessed was the gang fight (someone homered and the next batter was hit) between Class A Northwest League division leaders Yakima and Boise (the Angels' Class A short season farm) before the standard 4,000 in Boise.

My general admission ticket put me next to the right field foul pole, almost on top of Andy Dembowski's outfield fence sign, which I found humorous, the one about the funeral home with the mountain view.

I did sneak into Salt Lake's new triple-A home on a Sunday morning. Double-decked, it's more like the old Eastern ball parks than the modern day replicas in the Baltimore, Arlington (Texas) or Cleveland. What's more, beyond the outfield fences looms the Wasatch range and with it a reminder of Brigham Young's famed never-completed quote. Standing in Immigration Canyon and gazing out over the valley of the Great Salt Lake, he declared, "This is the place," and then instinctively, "with the greatest snow on earth."

It was a spring and summer of travels that took me from being a lunch for feasting mosquitoes in the Everglades of Florida in June, to getting caught in Montgomery, Ala., lunch hour traffic and fleeing before finding the Cradle of the Confederacy. That led to another failure in Selma, Ala., when a five-and-dime with a lunch counter couldn't be found and a less historic fast food drive through served as a hasty substitution.

As for getting lost in Mississippi and winding up in Hot Coffee, Soso and Magee, that's another story and it's something that couldn't happen to just anybody.

It was a time in which familiar faces were discovered in unfamiliar places.

MY SUMMER EXCURSIONS took me from the Everglades to Victoria, Vancouver, B.C., an adventure in which, roaming the Expos minor league spring training complex in Lantana, Fla., with a camera around my neck, another onlooker asked who I was covering for. I said, "No one, I'm retired."

Just as nosey, I inquired, "Where are you from?"

"Midland, Texas."

I was stunned. A joke? But who would know I was here?

"I've got a son, Jason, over there working out with the Rookie League team. My name is Bill Baker," quickly recognized as permanent lessee of second place in whatever Midland golf tournament he entered. He once went so far as to hit a ball out of a tree in his fanatical pursuit of second place.

But I digress, which is just what I did after flying to Salt Lake City and renting my car for what was a 2,500 mile round trip journey to Vancouver, not that physically taxing for three weeks. Only trouble was, every thing was further and took longer than I estimated. When I turned the car in at 6 a.m. and dashed for the airport ticket counter, I had logged 5,000 miles.

I decided to skip the Interstate to Missoula, Mont., and drive up the east edge of Idaho from Idaho Falls. The falls are in the heart of the beautiful little town and, if I'd pushed on from Pocatello the night before, I could have seen Idaho Falls post its first Thursday night win of the season in the Pioneer League.

State roads are more interesting than Interstates, and less traveled, but I never counted on Route 28 to Salmon, Idaho, on the Salmon River, better known as the River Of No Return, Whitewater Capitol of the World. It made travel in West Texas seem like rush hour in the Metroplex.

In the 106 miles from Mud Lake to Leadore, I didn't pass a car and no car passed me; still, to a West Texan, the country was stimulating as I drove up the ranching valley, where the streams ran bank-to-bank full, toward Salmon, marshaling center for whitewater trips, fishing, camping, hiking and back country tramping.

One got an uneasy feeling at Mud Lake. Just south was located a DOE range. Just as disturbing to someone coming from an area where 50 acres supports one steer, the DOE was on range land that looked like a conservative 50 steers to one acre country.

When I remarked at the route I'd taken, two different people in Salmon told me, "You just came through the ugliest part of Idaho." My "but" got me nowhere.

ON THE CONTINENTAL Divide at the border of Idaho and Montana, during a detour stop, the flag girl confirmed the opinion of the two people in Salmon. I persisted I thought it was interesting country, "but I was glad when I got beyond that DOE range around Mud Lake and began to see cattle, horses and ranch buildings in the distance."

She said, "You should have driven through at night. The cattle light up."

Nothing in Missoula, home of the University of Montana, would cause anyone to seek solace in Texas and the mystery of my friend Ahders now living in West Texas deepened in the drive along a scenic fisherman's delight called Flathead Lake. The drive through Glacier National Park with its clear, fiord-deep lakes on the Going to the Sun Road and the serpentine climb to Logan Pass, rife with hiking trails, failed to provide any clue.

One of those Logan trails was a rewarding 1.5 mile climb to overlook Hidden Lake. Along the way, mountain goats prowl in the brush a few feet off the trail, but the one-mile hike down to the lake's edge was closed in deference to the presence of bears.

A winding, twisting, descent on the east side of Glacier offered an evening shot of St. Mary's Lake. Then, suddenly and unexpectedly, the terrain changed from steep and deep to treeless rolling, buff colored wheat prairies, tinted golden by the setting sun, stretching to the distant horizon.

All at once came the realization that while the country is beautiful in its way, there was no place to stay.

Arriving at Cut Bank, Mont., a tiny village on the Blackfeet Reservation 100 miles from anywhere, the first impulse was to spend the night, except for the fear that maybe not enough heavy clothing had been packed. After all, Cut Bank: Frazier, Colo., and Caribou, Maine, frequently vie as the coldest place in the contiguous U.S. It was here I think I recognized the equation: Cut Bank plus winter minus Ahders equals West Texas.

Beyond was Shelby, Mont., where a one-time Midlander and a good friend broke four banks and had to beat a hasty retreat on a conveniently waiting train to escape an angry citizenry.

That, of course, was the late Teddy Hayes, trainer of heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey, as well as middleweight champion Mickey Walker and lightweight champion Benny Leonard. Shelby put up the family jewels for the July 4, 1923, title fight between Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons, but the financial bonanza failed to materialize and the Hayes entourage, demanding their money in advance, just beat the pursuit to the train after the fight.

THE NEXT MORNING'S drive between Great Falls and Helena provided a shock. This was a trip when the Snake River was crossed so many times I automatically began to hiss and strike with a split tongue every time it was approached. I crossed or traveled on the edge of the Columbia, the Salmon, the Lemhi, the Boise, Flathead, BitterRoot — more than 25 rivers — but the biggest surprise came on the drive through picturesque rocky canyons from Great Falls to Helena.

Vacationers frolicked, fished and boated in a wide expanse of water, which of course had to be the Snake, again. That is, it was until a bridge identified the Missouri, a river with a reputation for running away, but this was preposterous.

Later that day, off the Continental Divide, back in Idaho, in Nez Perce country, Route 12 pursued the old Lewis and Clark trail, along the rushing Clearwater River for 77 twisting, turning, corkscrewing, body English miles. The drive required so many shoulder calisthenics that that night in the Idaho town of Orofino...I haven't been on the deck so often since my navy hammock days.

Idaho is a state full of surprises. Hell's Canyon, for example, is deeper than the Grand Canyon. Shoshone Falls on the Snake outside of Twin Falls is higher than Niagara Falls. The only trouble is that when I arrived, it was just a trickle. Two weeks earlier they diverted the water elsewhere for irrigation purposes. And, this one will knock your breath out — Idaho is the second fastest growing state in the country.

Want your breath back? On a tour of the state capitol in Boise, the guide informed me that Idaho's population was 1.1 million. "Last year alone 100,000 people moved here," an impressive percentage.

After crossing Washington, it took two hours to clear customs at Blaine. My luggage was one of those they decided to frisk. Like the suspect in the Lizzie Borden investigation, I suppose it was the fact that I was clean shaven that aroused suspicions. I wondered what it would have been like before NAFTA. Still, the exchange rate, ($266 Canadian for $200 U.S.) offered some consolation.

I looked forward to being in Vancouver now.

TRAIN: Trip still has romance, magic

(From 1F)

The magic is still there.

Amtrak has restored and upgraded the trains of the national passenger rail company so that many people are choosing to travel by train rather than by plane. On my trip from Houston to New Orleans to Washington, D.C., I was a little surprised at how full the train was.

The Sunset Limited of the Southern Transcontinental Superliner Route runs from Los Angeles to Miami via Houston. The Crescent, from New Orleans to Washington to New York City, travels the eastern rails of the Southern Railway, built in 1894 by J.P. Morgan. The trip from New Orleans to Washington takes approximately 24 hours with a third of that time in darkness.

To ride Amtrak from Houston to Washington or New York City, you have to go to Houston or Alpine where the Sunset Limited stops, then pick up the Crescent in New Orleans. It is necessary to spend the night in New Orleans to board the early morning train.

LIKE ALL nostalgia buffs, I wanted the experience to duplicate exactly my train experiences from long ago. Of course it couldn't, and I missed the acrid smell of the old steam engine exhaust back when trains lined up like heavy-breathing race horses before the starting gun. Train wheels no longer "clackety-clack," but "chooga-chooga-chooga-ch-ch-ch," much like the sound of the steam engine.

I regretted that the vestibules between cars have been re-designed so snugly that they take away the old adventure of quick-stepping from car to car as the track raced beneath my feet. But memory jostled the old excitement of a possible slip.

Once inside, I instantly recalled the mysterious smell of upholstered seated and heavy, green-curtained berths. The narrow aisle alongside the bedrooms is still just wide enough to imagine the marshal sidling through, gun held high, the outlaw apt to appear around the corner at any moment.

Sleeping Car, not Pullman, is the correct name now. George M. Pullman didn't invent the sleeping car, but the company he founded made his name synonymous with the cars it ran. In the glory days, passage required payment of an extra fare for amenities, which included a valet and a lady's maid. My Sleeping Car contained six bedrooms and 10 roomettes.

THE CRESCENT is a segment of Amtrak's Heritage Fleet, 441 cars from the '40s and '50s, restored to peak condition. The roomette design was inspired. Its high ceiling and large windows enhance the approximately 4x6-foot space. From my upholstered seat or from the folded-down bed, I could touch most of the switches for the lights, fan, air-conditioner, heater, electrical outlet and call button. The roomette also contains a high rack for luggage, a little wastebasket attached to the wall,

Too-hot water is hazard at home

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Hot water on tap, a household convenience often taken for granted, can also be a household hazard.

Water at 125 degrees F can cause scalding and severe burns, say plumbing experts at the Roto-Rooter Corp., who offer these home-safety guidelines:

- Maintain hot water heater temperatures at or below 120 degrees F. Check with your plumber if you have questions about adjusting temperature setting.
- When filling a bathtub, always run cold water first, then hot. Test the temperature by running your hand back and forth to check for hot spots.
- Young children have sensitive skin. Wait until the bathtub is full and tested for warmth before putting in a child. Never leave a child unattended in the tub.

AMTRAK: Travel by train is more relaxed

a small closet, door mirror and large makeup mirror with lights on each side. A stainless steel sink drops down alongside the toilet with a padded seat cover, which serves as a foot cushion. Above the sink, a small cabinet contains cups and ice water and above it, a remnant of the old days, a compartment "For Shoes Only Do Not Store Valuables Here." If you wish, you can still have your shoes shined while you sleep. Roomettes are well-designed for security. A double curtain with zippers on both sides covers a heavy, sliding door.

At night, through the large window, I watched the inky world slip by — a sweep of shadow trees, small town street lamps, someone's porch light winking at me. The moon glinted off the silver cars as the train curved through the darkness.

Daytimes, the scenery slid by in vignettes of American life — a yellow school bus on a dusty road, children alongside the tracks, waving and pretending to throw a football at the train, a claw-foot bathtub by an old fence, a general store with old men sitting on the porch, watching the train go by...

MUCH OF THE trip, dense, green woodlands pushed in on the track. And I learned about kudzu. Kudzu is a vine that was brought to this country from Japan in the early 1900s as a means of controlling erosion. It succeeded beyond anyone's wildest imagination, turning out to be a voracious monster that can grow 32 inches a day and cover everything within its path. Along the tracks I could see that it had swallowed whole trees, telephone poles, embankments, woodland floors; near Clemson, S.C., a whole house was devoured. It is said that if you stand still long enough, it will even cover you. For speed of movement, it makes the tumbleweed seem a laggard.

People on trains appear more relaxed than on planes, enjoying themselves more. You don't see bored passengers poring over crossword puzzles or young businessmen intensely studying papers from their briefcases. The lounge and diner have a festive air and encourage conversation between strangers. A man told his seatmate, "The Yankees came by on horseback and drove right up to my grandfather's house."

ON THE OTHER hand, travel with children is as hard on the train as anywhere. I observed a young mother of two little boys try to cope. For two and a half hours she shuttled the youngsters between Grandma down the aisle and her own seat, while they chirped their observations and desires in high, loud voices. Grandma apparently wasn't much help, and when the train pulled to a stop at their station, the mother gasped to no one in particular, "I need a drink!" Unfortunately, she hadn't heard a woman leaving the train earlier: "Remember, the race is not to the swift and the strong but to him who stays to the end." Close enough.

The PA system has almost completely replaced the conductor walking through the train, making announcements. Early in my journey, a "Now-hear-this" voice advised, "We ask you not to flush the toilet in the stations, and we remind you to please keep your shoes on while the on the train at all times. This is four your own good."

The food was marvelous at all three meals. A dining car attendant announced over the PA, "Come on back and have breakfast, no waiting, no reservation needed, and hearty, hearty good morning to you!"

THE DINING CAR is managed with all the finesse of a fine restaurant. Attendants seat diners at tables where tablecloths and heavy china have returned, if not the heavy flatware. A fresh flower appears each day, Kathryn, my pleasant server, spoke in a husky, no-nonsense voice when she took orders. "All right, now who wants coffee? Who wants water?" When she arrived with my plate, she made a wide, Frisbee-like sweep to set it down; nothing spilled.

The best part: at breakfast, they still serve grits.In addition, the breakfast selections also offered a wide variety of regular breakfast fare.

For lunch, the menu included fettuchini, a grilled chicken sandwich, a beef burger, pizza or a grilled chicken salad. In the evening, the entrees included patrons choices of chicken, seafood, the chef's special, a New York Strip steak and vegetable pasta. Dessert looked too good to pass up, so I tried the cheese cake, which was marvelous. Each meal also featured fruit and cheese and your choice of beverage, including sodas, coffee, tea, domestic and premium beer and wine.

Not only was the food good, but the service surperb.

"Lake Cholls! Lake Cholls!" the conductor called out at the first stop in Louisiana. Lake Charles was settled by the French Acadians exiled from Nova Scotia by the British in the 1700s. Their descendants, the Cajuns, give the region its unique culture.

Near New Iberia, I caught a glimpse of a classic example of a Louisiana "City of the Dead," the above-ground cemetery necessitated by the high water table.

THE CLOSER you get to the Mississippi River, the wetter the landscape becomes. Bayous and swamps were once prowled by the pirate Jean Lafitte. Tongue-twisting names identify the Atchafalya River, the Chacahoula Swamp and the Bayou Des Allemands.

The train roared on toward the Big River and the lofty Huey P. Long Bridge. At 4.4 miles long, the bridge was not my favorite part of the trip. The Mississippi looked like liquid stainless steel, and to the right the river curved to the south, giving New Orleans its name, the Crescent City.

Outside New Orleans, Lake Ponchatrain lay immediately ahead, the largest body of fresh water in Louisiana. The six-mile causeway was built in 1886, and I'll wager some people then felt as I did as the train seemed to skim the very surface of the water with no land or support in sight.

Chooga-chooga-chooga, on through Hattiesburg, Laurel and Meridian, Miss. Just before Tuscaloosa, Ala., the train passes Moundville, and a few of the 20 Indian mounds constructed nearly 900 years ago were visible from the train.

Through the lower South the alliterative stations names flash past the window: Toomsuba, Tuscaloosa and Talapoosa and streams like Tellahatchie and Chicasaway.

Right outside Birmingham, the impressive, 55-foot, 60-ton, cast iron statue of Vulcan, the Roman god of fire and forges, stands on Red Mountain, a tribute to the iron workers who have made Birmingham what it is.

NORTH OF Atlanta, two large brick chimneys stand on a house's foundation as if Sherman's army had just passed through.

The Blue Ridge mountains in the distance follow the tracks through North Carolina, and then I was in Virginia's rolling hills and horse farm country. Past Culpeper, Brady, Manassas, it was hard to imagine those quiet fields as raging, bloody Civil War battlegrounds. Sixty percent of the clashes took place in Virginia.

Washington's Beaux Arts-style Union Station, built in 1907, has been exquisitely restored. The white granite and classic lines set the mode for Washington monumental architecture for the next 40 years. Until this time, granite had only been used for tombstones. In the early '80s, the station underwent a $160 million restoration. It opened again in 1988, housing more than 130 stores, snack bars, a nine-screen cinema and six restaurants. But its centerpiece is the Main Hall with its high, vaulted ceiling, gold trim and Roman statues above the black and white marble floor.

Describing the Crescent's run from New Orleans to Washington, a 1942 railroad timetable crooned, "A route of History, Scenery and Romance." It still is.

Candles are decorative mood-setters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Candles, which date back to pre-Christian times, now come in more shapes, styles, scents and colors than ever for mood-setting home and table decoration.

These household tips are offered by the National Candle Association:

■ Before a party, light and extinguish candles for easier lighting later. Use proper candleholders and keep wicks trimmed to ½ inch, to stop uneven burning.

■ Try three or more different size tapers down the center of the dining table, perhaps surrounded by loose cut flowers. Space candles at least 3 inches apart, and keep them out of drafts.

■ Here's the best way to extinguish a candle. Put your finger in front of the flame and blow. Your breath reaches the candle from both sides and prevents any drips.

There are some marriages that shouldn't be saved

Associated Press

How many times have you read an article about domestic abuse in which friends, relatives or coworkers were quoted as saying, "I knew, but I didn't know how to help"? Trying to get through to someone you know is being abused, especially when they don't want to hear what you have to say, is frustrating, often impossible. But you must try.

Ladies' Home Journal magazine spoke with domestic violence experts across the country. The experts suggest that you approach the subject gently. Make sure the person you're concerned about understands that what she says to you will go no further — and don't let it.

When she does talk, let her know that you believe her. Take her comments and fears seriously. Don't deny that they are happening or minimize their impact. Talk to her family and let them know of your fear and concern. Make sure they get involved.

Give her time to let your advice sink in. For reasons you may never know, she may not be able or ready to make any changes just yet. Don't give up. Be there.

Once she does confide in you, help her get the legal and other support she needs. With her permission, help her find community groups, women's shelters or other agencies. Go with her to see a counselor, lawyer or a shelter. Continue to remind her of her strengths; tell her that no woman, no matter what she has or hasn't done in a marriage, deserves any kind of abuse.

ENGAGEMENTS

SEEDS FOR THOUGHT

Time of pruning depends on kind of plant

By Deborah A. Benge

There's always something going on in the home lawn and garden, even in January. Here's a couple of timely questions that came to the Extension office during the winter.

Benge-Frost

Question: When's the best time to prune?

Answer: Well, it depends on the plant. There are some rules of thumb to follow:

■ Trees: Most trees are best pruned just before bud break in late February or March. Pruning cuts made in January will not "heal" until the tree resumes growth in spring. Meanwhile, the trees are exposed to the harsh, dry conditions of winter. Waiting until just before bud break will reduce the time the cut is exposed to drying and adverse weather conditions.

A few exceptions to that rule are Siberian elms, mulberries and walnuts. These trees tend to get a disease called wetwood if pruned during or close to the growing season. One other exception is oak trees that are growing in the vicinity of oak wilt disease centers. There are no known disease centers in Odessa, but there are several in Midland and pruning valuable oaks during winter will help provide some protection from spread of the fatal disease.

■ Shrubs: Shrubs that are grown for their showy bloom need pruning time consideration. If they bloom early in the spring (often before they leaf out), these shrubs should be pruned soon after their big bloom is over. Examples include quince, lilac and forsythia. Shrubs that have their showy bloom in the summer should be pruned late in winter or early in spring. This includes crape myrtles, altheas, albelias and most roses.

■ Vines: Like shrubs, it depends on bloom time. If they bloom in early spring, wait to prune after their big floral display. Wisteria and Carolina yellow jessamine fall into this group. Summer blooming or foliage vines can be pruned in late winter or early spring.

■ Other pruning times: Most woody plants can be pruned at other times of the year too. After woody plants stop growing (putting on new growth), generally in mid- to late summer, you can prune. This is an excellent time to make selective and maintenance pruning cuts. The times to avoid pruning include leaf out and new growth in spring and early summer and in late summer or early fall.

Be thoughtful about heavy pruning in late summer and early fall if the plant blooms in early spring, because this is the time of year flower buds are being formed.

These are rather simple and generalized statements about pruning times, but good guidelines.

Q: Is it time to spray all of my trees with dormant oil?

A: Dormant oils are often misused and overused. While oil is one of the oldest natural pesticides known to man — and has its place — they should be used carefully. Remember many oils are used as herbicides (plant killers).

Oils can be used in the summer or winter, but at drastically different rates. Higher rates of oils are used during the dormant season. Oils kill insects by cutting off oxygen to the different stages — eggs, larva (immature forms) and adults. Insect activity (respiration rates) influences the effectiveness of dormant oils. Insect eggs, larva and adult oxygen needs drop during winter. During the dormant season these insect stages could go a week or so with oxygen cut off without harm, and overcome the presence of oil.

Dormant oils (applied when leaves are off) are most effective on scale and phyloxera insects. Scale insects can often be seen on euonymus, oak, redbud and ash. Phylloxera insects are not a problem in our immediate area, so unless you have a scale insect problem, I would discourage the use of dormant oils.

Oils need to be used with care. Environmental conditions such as soil moisture, relative humidity and wind speed are of major importance when applying an oil. Any plant suffering from moisture stress is a candidate for severe foliage injury if it is sprayed with an oil. Oils can also remove the protective waxy covering on flower and foliage buds, making them more susceptible to winter/freeze damage.

There are specific minimum and maximum temperature ranges that need to be observed during spraying times. Be sure to read the label carefully before using.

AT WIT'S END

Fancy clothes, cars no substitute for love

By Erma Bombeck

All of our lives we have been taught that success is the acquisition of expensive material things. You obtain a good education, get married, have a family and move into a nice, big White House at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue in a nice neighborhood in Washington, D.C., with security at the gate and a Marine at the front door, and you've got it made.

Bombeck

You believe that until someone starts shooting at you.

Crime has caused Americans to reconsider what is important in this world and what isn't.

Few people are bent on owning a watch anymore that is so expensive, someone would mug them to get it off their wrists.

They think twice about buying fountain pens that cost three figures and, if stolen, make them want to kill themselves.

Women no longer chance wearing a fur coat that will not only get snatched, but will also get them ugly footage on the 6 o'clock news.

Shoppers ask themselves if they really need a car so expensive that they have to have The Club locked around the steering wheel and an alarm system that sounds like a breakout at Attica when it goes off. Do they need the worry that if they leave their car unattended for five minutes, the hood ornament, stereo and all four tires will be gone when they return?

Women have mixed emotions about buying jewelry that rarely leaves the safe-deposit boxes. They wear paste imitations when they go out.

Traveling used to be a sign of "making it big." Now there is apprehension when you have to go through a security system to weed out the nuts with guns and bombs in their hand luggage.

A rental car might just as well have a lighted dog in the rear window that blinks, "Rob me — I'm a tourist."

Getting your name in a society column used to be a status thing. Now it is read by crooks who take advantage of your skiing trip to Aspen by robbing your house while you're gone.

If a robber knocks over a convenience store for $17 and a six-pack, think what he would do for the boat stored at the side of your garage.

Dressing expensively is no longer a badge of success. It's an invitation to relieve you of your Dooney & Bourke handbag.

Maybe the premise of material things symbolizing success was wrong in the first place, but these were things that brought people pleasure to own.

It certainly makes people reassess what it takes to make them prosperous: loving a person who loves you back. Healthy children. A roof over their heads. Doing something productive. Loyal friends. The promise of a new day.

Ready-made frames easy to use

By Lynn Bulmahn

N.Y. Times News Service

Those wonderful family photos you took of your loved ones during the holidays shouldn't be relegated to a dusty photo album.

Instead, why not display them?

After all, family snapshots and informal portraits make one-of-a-kind, unique and personal home decor items. They are records of how much your children have grown and the happy times your family has shared. And besides, your grandchildren, children, spouse, sweetheart, relatives and/or friends are bound to be the most precious and adorable people anywhere. Why not show 'em off?

You can dot framed photos around anywhere in your home. On top of a mantle or piano, on the coffee table or side table, on a desk or bookshelf are some obvious places for groups of framed photos. Also try wall arrangements. Some families have a "portrait gallery" in hallways or master bedrooms.

It's not necessary to go to the expense of having all your pictures professionally framed. Some of the more informal snapshots may look just fine in a ready-made frame purchased inexpensively.

Amber Pryor, frame manager for Amber's in Waco, has some suggestions for easy, effective framing:

■ Choose the frame to fit the picture. For example, an antique photo would be best displayed in an antique-looking frame. A snapshot of a little one may be most effectively shown in a frame that features childhood motifs, such as circus clowns or Mother Goose characters.

"Why should you have all the same kind of frames around?" Pryor asked. "Personally, I like the pictures to match the frame."

AARP

American Association of Retired Persons, Midland chapter #256, met at Midland Senior Center with 50 members attending. Board of directors met beforehand. Leta Brown presided over both meetings. Hazel Cole gave the invocation and Frank Mills led the Pledge of Allegiance. Margaret Vaughan read the minutes. Virginia Lawrence reported on community service projects and Dress-A-Live-Doll participation. Ms. Brown installed new officers: Art Shaw, president; Claudene Franks, second vice president; Lora Duke, secretary; Aileen Oakes, treasurer; John Atchison, new board member; Marie Knight and Gaylord Worley, carry-over board members; and Bonny Bradley, Mills, Buddy Ray, Fern Thorn and Elizabeth Rush, nominating committee. Ms. Bradley led the birthday and anniversary songs. Fellowship and table games followed.

PRECEPTOR EPSILON DELTA CHAPTER, BSP

Preceptor Epsilon Delta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met in the home of Suzy Arnold. Jan Acker presided. Diana Henderson read the minutes and Pauline Heidel gave the treasurer's report. Guests were Joyce Low and Alice Sawyer. Dinner was followed by an ornament and secret sister gift exchange. Also attending were Judy Jehring, Nancy White, Nan Sublett, Jean McGilvray, Barbara Adams and Donna Fulgham.

BETA PI CONCLAVE, KAPPA KAPPA IOTA

Beta Pi conclave of Kappa Kappa Iota met at the home of Martha Lewis for a holiday dinner. Hostesses were Linda Sherman, Virginia Pollard, Mary Ann Bartus, Emily Van Stavern and Ms. Lewis. Pat Southerland presided. Sharon Morgan called roll and read the minutes. Committee reports were given. Patty Kunz of Odessa, assisted by Dixie Burns, Patricia Hopkins and Ms. Southerland, initiated new members Lisa Salmon, Susan Lillard, Helen Lackey and Martee Stuart. After dinner Ms. Lewis, Ms. Pollard and Ms. Southerland led the members in a choral presentation of the Christmas story, followed by holiday musical selections.

PRECEPTOR NU PHI, BSP

Preceptor Nu Phi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met in the home of Mary Lou Hennessey with Paula Millhollon presiding. Margo Hill read the minutes and Glenda Dover gave the treasurer's report. Ms. Millhollon gave the City Council report from the City Wide meeting. Ms. Hennessey asked members to bring items for the Battered Women's and Children's Shelter. Beverly Rothwell took gift and jewelry orders for the ways and means project. A donation will be made to "A Story Book Christmas" for part of the chapter's service project.

The Thanksgiving social was in the home of Joe and Paula Millhollon with Jo Ann Cambron, Ms. Dover, Dick and Diane Grenvik, Larry and Margo Hill and Charlie and Beverly Rothwell attending.

Other members attending the meeting were Mrs. Grenvik, Kathy Hopkins, Ms. Cambron and Jane Weldon.

Start day with hot breakfast

Somehow a steaming bowlful of cereal takes the edge off a chilly morning, but too often we think that it will take too long to cook. Not so when you have a homemade mix on hand and your microwave oven. Making your own mix lets you control what goes into your bowl and let's you save a few pennies, too.

RAISIN-AND-SPICE OATMEAL MIX

2 cups quick-cooking rolled oats
½ cup nonfat dry milk powder
½ cup raisins
⅓ cup packed brown sugar
1½ teaspoons ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg

In a storage container stir together all ingredients. Cover tightly and store for up to two months. Stir before using. Makes about 3 cups (6 servings).

For each serving, in a microwave-safe cereal bowl combine ¼ cup water and ½ cup mix. Cook, uncovered, on 70 percent power (medium-high) for 2 to 3 minutes or until bubbly. Let stand for 1 minute. Stir.

DEAR ABBY

Reach out to others now, before you lose your chance

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I live in a large apartment building. Most of the tenants are upper middle class.

The gentleman who lived across the hall from me was a widower whose wife had passed away about eight or nine years ago. He had told me that he had many nieces, nephews and grandchildren, most of whom lived in this city, but he heard from them only when they sent postcards from their vacations in Hawaii, the Caribbean or the south of France.

Van Buren

This lovely gentleman passed away two weeks ago, following a brief bout with pneumonia. I attended his funeral and was surprised to see so many people there. Also, the number of elaborate floral arrangements was unbelievable.

Abby, I felt like screaming at these people, "Where were you when this dear man sat alone in his apartment? He doesn't need you now. The flowers are beautiful, but he can't smell them!"

Abby, if each of those relatives had taken him to their home for one weekend, his life would have been brightened considerably, and his gratitude would have been boundless.

Please print this. It just might wake up a few people. — A CARING NEIGHBOR

DEAR CARING NEIGHBOR: Thank you for a meaningful letter. Several years ago, I published a poem that might have brightened your neighbor's final years had someone in his family read it and taken it to heart:

BRING ME ALL YOUR FLOWERS NOW

I would rather have a single rose
From the garden of a friend,
Than have the choicest flowers,
When my stay on earth must end.
I would rather have the kindest words
Which may now be said to me,
Than flattered when my heart is still —
And this life has ceased to be.
I would rather have a loving smile
From the friends I know are true,
Than tears shed 'round my casket,
When this world I've bade adieu!
Bring me all your flowers,
Whether pink, or white, or red.
I'd rather have one blossom now
THAN A TRUCKLOAD WHEN I'M DEAD!
— R.D. Richards

DEAR ABBY: Regarding listening to the tapes of a deceased loved one: Shortly after my husband died 26 years ago, his secretary thoughtfully sent his last dictation tape to me.

I curled up on the sofa and turned on my portable tape recorder. Koppy, our little dog, immediately came dashing down the stairs looking for her "Daddy." She pawed at the small black box and cocked her head quizzically. Then she jumped up beside me and covered my face with wet kisses and rested her head on my knee. It was an emotional, but comforting, experience for both of us.

I played that tape often during the first few years after my husband's death, and Koppy came running to join me each time.

God bless you, Abby. Your columns are invaluable. — LIBBY HARRIS, TAMAQUA, PA.

DEAR ABBY: I find collecting money for gifts in the workplace a huge pain. I think that practice should be outlawed — especially in places where six or more people are employed.

I work in a large office — there are 52 people here. Many of them I hardly know because we meet only during the breaks — or in the bathroom.

Why should I be expected to chip in for gifts for people who are practically strangers to me? I finally got up the nerve to voice my opinion; then others followed suit. Until I spoke out, everyone had followed like sheep.

I suggested that we hold one party a month for newlyweds, babies, birthdays, etc. No dice. Like lemmings, they continue to give, then complain about it. I think it's high time we put an end to such foolishness. What do you — and your readers — have to say about these never-ending "collections"? — SANE IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR SANE: When a co-worker collects money for gifts, employees feel pressured to contribute. It's my opinion that all "collections" should be voluntary. In fact, a vote should be taken, and the majority should rule.

To receive a collection of Abby's most memorable — and most frequently requested — poems and essays, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's "Keepers," P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

Former Midlander Shelby Bond will be exhibiting his photography at a show at Pages & Prints, Garfield Street at Wadley Avenue, between Jan. 14 and Feb. 12. The photographs were selected from his travels around the world. His photography — as well as the commercials and plays he's appeared in — are characterized by his willingness to climb, jump, skateboard, trampoline, ride horses and engage in other physical endeavors, left. Bond appears on a Japanese poster, above, for OKI cellular phones. Bond, who is seen in three different poses, was photographed last year in Tokyo.

Passion for photography

Several years ago, a national advertiser was looking for the right person for a commercial. Former Midlander Shelby Bond hoped he'd be lucky this time. After all, he'd spent a year auditioning for commercials, but to no avail.

"The director said, 'Do you know how to jump on a trampoline?'

"And I said, 'Yeah. I dated a cheerleader in high school, and she taught me how to do back flips and front springs.'

"Then I paused and said, 'Actually, she taught me a lot on that trampoline.'

"I made them laugh and I made them feel like I wasn't just another one of the 4,000 people they had seen that were just cowering for this commercial," said the 25-year-old actor and photographer.

Those conducting the audition didn't ask to see Bond's expertise on a trampoline.

"They didn't have to see anything. The way I'd kind of put myself out was that I knew how to do it. I knew what was going on."

That same day, he received a call notifying him he'd gotten the Coca Cola commercial. He arrived at 8 a.m. and was through by 10:45 a.m. He was paid $30,000.

"Maybe this is true for any kind of interview, but you have to feel comfortable or at least look like you feel really comfortable."

"I don't think of my photography and my acting as separate. I think of them as the same thing — all my world view. It's expressing and having people directly relate to these mediums that should be a mirror of our reality and the times we're in. So, what I do with photography and my acting and the film, I plan to make something that people can relate to and feel and not just look at.

— Shelby Bond

He also was creative when CLI Talent Agency sent him to audition for a Blockbuster commercial.

"We were supposed to be skateboarding, which was something I could do. I parked my car really close to where the audition was happening out in the street. Everyone was doing little skateboard tricks.

"When it got to be my turn, I ran off the front of my car and jumped off the top and landed on my skateboard and got their attention," said Bond, who was cast in the commercial.

"The whole thing about Los Angeles is getting their attention, but not seeming like you will be too much of an ego maniac for them to work with," said Bond, who is en route to Bali, Indonesia, via Midland and Los Angeles.

It's been six years since Bond has spent any length of time in West Texas. He's here visiting family and assembling his work for a Jan. 14-Feb. 12 showing at Pages & Prints bookstore, Wadley Avenue at Garfield Street.

Included in the show will be color, black and white and sepia photographs — many of the Midland area — that demonstrate his view of the world. His work also has been shown in California, Colorado and other locations around Texas.

When he lived in Boulder, Colo., in 1993-94, he formed a photography association called The Interpretive. The group had its first show in August.

"I like organizing things, getting people to share their work. I think everyone needs" the support of "people who share an interest in the same things."

Bond lived in California for five years before seeking a change.

"Los Angeles is a very intense place, and if you don't have a very set direction going in and a lot of patience, it can really eat you alive. I think I got distracted because so many people wanted the same things."

When he was quite young, Bond and his mother, Midlander Linda Bond, lived in New York for six years. Bond first looked at the Big Apple as a prospective new home.

"At the time, I was realizing Los Angeles wasn't doing for me what I wanted it to do, or I wasn't doing what I wanted to do. After a day in New York, I knew I did not want to live there."

He moved instead to Boulder where he was an honor-roll student at the Naropa Institute. His major is elementary education and communications.

"The opportunity to go to Boulder and be in nature, and now to go to Bali is an incredible way to really find my focus on how I am going to express my work and my life," Bond said.

He will spend 2½ months continuing his studies through the Narobi Institute at Bali, before conducting independent study in photography in Southeast Asia.

"Los Angeles is just so ego-oriented. People are just always putting on faces. That's why the school I'm going to is a contemplative-based education. Sixty percent of the students at my school are sophomore majors, so it's a good place to really get to know yourself. Every class is therapy."

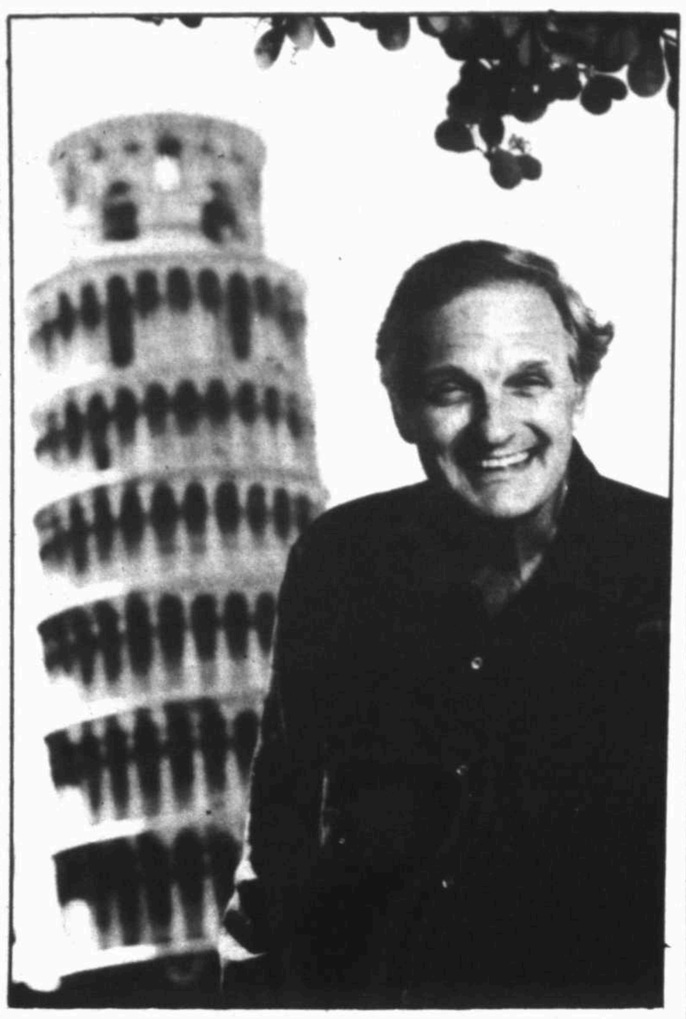

The school's contemplative environment helped Bond work through several recent losses in his family, including the death of his father, Rick Bond, and his grandfather, Howard Bond.

"And my mother has had this cancer, and my other grandfather has had a lot of strokes . . . Boulder has really been good in helping me have time to deal with the inevitable health problems that happen in any family."

Bond attended Sam Houston Elementary, San Jacinto Junior High,

At the tower

Host Alan Alda studies efforts to halt the tilt of the famed Leaning Tower of Pisa, one of the many locales he visits in Italy during the "Scientific American Frontiers" special, "Science Italian Style." The program will be presented at 7 p.m. Wednesday on PBS. This series of science specials, now in its fifth season, is underwritten by the GTE Corp. and is produced by Chedd-Angler Production Co.

BOND: Actor 'grew up' in MCT

(From 1G)

Midland Freshman, Midland High and Midland College in 1988. He is the stepson of Midlander Bruce Partain. His 13-year-old stepbrother, Danny Partain, and grandparents Peggy and Bill Thorsen also live in Midland.

Following the death of his grandfather, his grandmother, Edna Bond, moved away.

The deaths of his father and grandfather made Bond, "stop and look" at his life. "It gets tiring being a body — tilt your head this way. Stand here."

But, he's not through with acting or commercials.

"I'm definitely not giving up on pursuing a career in Los Angeles, and now I know I can do it more than ever by this time I've spent away, which is the advice I'd give to anybody who goes to a large city and finds it's too difficult for them. Really decide what you want, but also how you express it that makes you happiest.

"I'm not going back and hopping right into the huge Hollywood industry. This time, I'm working on my own films and doing my own things without feeling like I have to give the people what they want. So, if you're going into a big city, just realize what you want to say in your life."

For Bond — who was a member of Midland Community Theatre's Pickwick Players — acting and photography compliment one another.

"I don't think of my photography and my acting as separate. I think of them as the same thing — all my world view. It's expressing and having people directly relate to these mediums that should be a mirror of our reality and the times we're in. So, what I do with photography and my acting and the film, I plan to make something that people can relate to and feel and not just look at."

Part of his passion for photography he traces to his stepfather, who has worked professionally as a photographer. More recently, he found inspiration as a lab technician for a photography store in Boulder.

"I've been going through people's photos and have been two-dimensionally traveling around the world in everyone's lives. I saw a lot of pets and babies. It's interesting being a tourist in other people's lives. So I'm more inspired now than ever to get my photos out there and let them be seen, too."

When he lived here, Bond was in Pickwick productions of, to name only a few, "Snoopy," "Winnie the Pooh" and "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow." He also played the young Simon in MCT's production of "Brighton Beach Memoirs."

"People here are so supportive of the theater," said Bond, remembering his association with MCT. "Everywhere I go in the world, I always think back on how lucky we were to have the theater we have here.

"Basically, I feel like that's where I grew up. It (MCT) was there that I learned that theater has the most relevance when it's a mirror and an expression for people's lives and not something separate from them. That's what I try to do through all my art."

He has more appreciation for Midland now than he did when he moved away six years ago.

"The more I've traveled, the more I really love Midland because it's always a home for me to come back to. And I realize it's always going to be in me. It's something I'm sharing with other people. It's where I come from."

And he's certainly done some traveling. He spent 1989 on a world tour with Up With People. The summer of 1993, he was in Japan teaching English and posing for print advertisements and posters, which are now hanging throughout Southeast Asia.

"Basically, everywhere I've gone in the world even in the poorest places or richest — it doesn't matter — I've found that people are always really open to you if you open yourself up to their culture and their way of life. They are excited about sharing it with you and learning about yours."

Someday, he hopes to teach.

"I've been studying theater and early childhood education because I feel like the main part of my education came from Midland Community Theatre from the youth theater classes and from the Pickwick Players. So I've decided to teach youth theater groups when I finally settle down."

'People here are so supportive of the theater. Everywhere I go in the world, I always think back on how lucky we were to have the theater we have here.

— Shelby Bond

ABC rates in first place

NEW YORK (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings' upset of the San Francisco 49ers lifted "NFL Monday Night Football" and ABC to first place in holiday week ratings competition.

The Vikings' 21-14 victory clinched their NFC Central Division title and helped give ABC an 11.4 rating and 20 percent share of the audience for the week of Dec. 26-Jan. 1. It was ABC's 12th victory in the first 15 weeks of the 1994-95 TV season.

Nebraska's 24-17 victory over Miami on New Year's Day put college football's Orange Bowl — and NBC, which broadcast it — in second place for the week.

NBC earned a 10.9 rating and 19 share, while CBS slipped into third place with a 10.0 rating, 17 share. For the season to date, ABC led with a 12.0 rating, followed by CBS with an 11.6 and NBC at 11.3.

Fox Broadcasting Co., which remains exempt from network regulation by programming only 15 of 22 prime time hours, had a 6.4 rating and 11 share.

One ratings point equals 954,000 households, or 1 percent of the estimated 95.4 million TV homes in Nielsen's statistical universe. Share is the percentage of sets tuned to a show or network during a specific time period.

Among the nightly newscasts, ABC's "World News Tonight" won with an 10.7 rating, 21 share; NBC's "Nightly News" was second with a 9.3 rating, 18 share; and CBS' "Evening News" was third with a 9.0 rating, 17 share.

Here are the Top 10 shows, their networks and ratings for the week:

"NFL Monday Night Football," ABC, 20.4; "Orange Bowl," NBC, 18.9; "Seinfeld," NBC, 16.3; "60 Minutes," CBS, 15.5; "Home Improvement," ABC, 15.4; "Turning Point," ABC, 15.3; "ER," NBC, 15.1; "CBS Sunday Movie — A Father for Charlie," CBS, 14.8; "Grace Under Fire," ABC, 14.6; "Chicago Hope-Sunday," CBS, 14.1.

HOROSCOPE

SUNDAY, JANUARY 8, 1995

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A strong desire to acquire specialized knowledge means lots of hours spent on reading and research. Working conditions will be more agreeable than in the past. Your chances for a promotion or raise are excellent. Financial worries will disappear if you keep a tight rein on spending. Less experienced people are relying on your good judgment. Avoid endorsing any group or project with which you are not totally familiar.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: rock 'n' roll legend Elvis Presley, actress Yvette Mimieux, singer Shirley Bassey, actor Jose Ferrer.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are better off at home today if the alternative is driving on slick roads. Give a wide berth to people who rub you the wrong way. Dine in front of a roaring fire.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Neighborhood activities or a family get-together puts you in a positive frame of mind. Spend time with loved ones or work alone on a favorite project.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A friendly overture wins you new admiration. Showing your special talents will score a home run with someone influential. Affairs of the heart begin to heat up.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Reaching an agreement may be difficult today due to widely differing opinions. Wait for another time and place. Meanwhile, your wit is the spark that ignites good times tonight. Dress up if going out.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your creativity is at a peak today. A loving message will be well-received. Do not try to mix business with pleasure. Others will be bored by shop talk. Lighthearted sharings get the nod this evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Changing circumstances may compel you to alter plans you have kept under wraps. Study a problem from different angles to find a workable solution. Stop eating junk food and tone up your body.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You are entering a period of transition. Forget your fear of failure and concentrate on activities that will let you realize a dream. Be flexible. Welcome suggestions from those who have been in your shoes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Original ideas and unexpected opportunities are featured prominently in your plan. Love is the dominating force in your life. A friendship could suddenly turn romantic.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A romantic tie grows stronger. Suddenly, settling down holds tremendous appeal. A financial situation will soon improve. Keep in touch with aging parents and longtime friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Not a good time to take financial risks. Devote the day to quiet pursuits. Newspapers could provide attractive job leads. A voice from your past could set your heart racing! Arrange to meet very soon.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Although the idea of forming a secret personal or business alliance is intriguing, you should analyze the risks involved. Financial repercussions are possible. Move more cautiously than usual in romance. Your reputation may be at stake,

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be cautious. Friends or relatives could steer you in the wrong direction without even realizing it. Stick to your own timetable and verify any information you are given. A good evening for entertaining.

Opening lead: King of ♠

When most declarers encounter a bad trump break, they head for the hills. On many occasions, however, the evil split can be overcome by careful play. Here's an example.

The North-South auction was straightforward, except that South chose to respond in the four-card major rather than the minor. North made an invitational jump raise and South, with a balanced hand and soft values, had no interest beyond game.

West started off with three rounds of spades, declarer's queen winning the last. The contract was cold as long as trumps were no worse than 4-1, but declarer received a shock when, on the ace of hearts, East discarded a spade. We know of some who would now simply concede down one, but South was made of sterner stuff. If West started with three clubs and two diamonds, the contract could still be brought home.

After clearing the ace of diamonds, declarer cashed the ace and king of clubs and ruffed a club. A club was discarded on the king of diamonds, leaving this position:

Declarer led a diamond, forcing West to ruff high as dummy's club was discarded. Now West was forced to return a high trump, won in hand with the queen, and a finesse of dummy's trump eight allowed South to hold West to just one trump trick. Magic.

Director of London gallery eyes old power plant with expansion hopes

By Alan Riding
N.Y. Times News Service

LONDON — Empire builder? Nicholas Serota hardly looks the part. His soft-spoken manner, rimless glasses and slim frame suggest an esthete rather than a power broker. He even grows edgy at the suggestion that as director of the Tate Gallery of London, he is displaying inordinate imperial ambitions. "Well, we're not doing anything abroad yet," he said with a nervous laugh.

Still, in the six years since he took over Britain's foremost museum of British and modern art, the Tate has opened two popular out-of-town branches, one in Liverpool, the other at St. Ives, on the Cornish coast.

Now, in its most daring expansion since it was founded in 1897, the Tate plans to turn an abandoned power station on the south side of the Thames into Bankside, a museum for modern art that will be even larger than its Millbank headquarters on the north bank. The branch is expected to open by the year 2000.

So, for all his self-effacing Englishness, Serota is much in the news these days. He has enemies who mock his taste in avant-garde art and accuse him of self-aggrandizement. He has admirers who applaud the way he has run the Tate and are excited at the prospect of a "new" Tate. But, either way, Serota, 48, an art historian, has the museum's future in his hands.

That is not how he would put it. He bows dutifully to the Tate's trustees as the real decision makers. He has only one vote on the five-member jury for the prestigious annual Turner Prize for contemporary art, which is awarded by the Tate.

He is just one of 10 jurors who later this month will pick the architect for Bankside from among six finalists in a competition that began last fall. But, in London art circles at least, no one doubts his influence.

He will need it in the coming months. He is confident of squeezing the private sector for a third of the $120 million cost of transforming the old Bankside Power Station, a monolithic red-brick building opposite St. Paul's Cathedral.

For $80 million, the Tate is counting on a grant from the Millennium Fund, which is being fed by profits from Britain's new National Lottery. And if the money from the fund doesn't come through? "It will be a long haul," Serota said glumly.

It would also be the first setback in a charmed career. Born in London of Russian parents, Serota studied economics at Cambridge but soon switched to art history. After a stint at the Courtauld Institute, he worked for the Arts Council until, in 1973, at the age of 27, he became director of the Museum of Modern Art in Oxford. Three years later he took over as director of the Whitechapel Art Gallery in London, as good a training as any for his position at the Tate.

Serota's new visibility will, he hopes, sway public opinion to the view that the Tate should be more than a poor cousin of the Museum of Modern Art in New York and the Pompidou Center in Paris. And for those more interested in real estate than art, he has the additional argument that the new museum branch will revitalize the rundown borough of Southwark and even enhance the City, the financial center across the water.

The moment may be right. In the 1980s, while Paris was showing off I.M. Pei's glass pyramid at the Louvre, the Opera Bastille and the Grande Arche de la Defense, London was spoiling its skyline with mediocre high-rise office towers.

Now, it seems, even the Tory government favors marking the year 2000 with a few prestigious architectural projects.
