ALUMINUM PROBE DEMANDED BY WALSH

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5. (AP) — Inquiry into the delays in instituting contempt proceedings against the Aluminum company of America for violating the federal court decrees was proposed today in the Senate by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana.

Some months ago, the federal trade commission charged that the court's decrees had been violated by the corporation in which Secretary Mellon is interested as a stockholder. The justice department announced last Saturday, however, that thus far its investigations had disclosed no wrongdoing.

Senator Walsh presented two resolutions. One would direct the Senate judiciary committee to inquire whether due diligence had been taken by the department of justice in prosecuting the inquiry.

The second would direct the attorney general to advise the Senate whether the refusal of the federal trade commission to turn over evidence obtained from the Aluminum company was well founded in law and what steps had been taken by the department of justice in prosecuting the inquiry.

WITNESS IN INDIAN MYSTERY BEATEN

PONCA OFFICERS DISCOVER OSAGE MAN BADLY HURT

FEDERAL JURY IS READY TO HEAR THRILLING CASE AT GUTHRIE

PONCA CITY, Okla., Jan. 5. (AP) — Henry Cornett, believed to be an important witness in the investigation of the Osage murders by a federal grand jury at Guthrie, Okla., was found by officers last night severely injured on a roadway fifteen miles from Fairfax, Cornett's home in Osage county.

(By Associated Press.)
GUTHRIE, Okla., Jan. 5. — Shifted with the speed of a tale of fiction, the story of the investigation of the Osage murder mystery opened a new chapter here today.

Three men named in murder warrants issued yesterday at Pawhuska, capital of the Osage Nation, were here ready to appear before a federal grand jury that is to begin its investigation of nearly twenty mysterious deaths probably this afternoon.

They are W. K. Hale, "King of the Osage Hills," Ernest Burkhart, his nephew, and Bert Lawson, prisoner at the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, whose confession opened the way for the prosecution of murder charges by Oklahoma state authorities and the investigation by the federal grand jury of a reputed conspiracy by a murder gang to obtain the fortune of an Indian family, said to amount to about $2,000,000.

State officers arrived in the early morning from Pawhuska with the three. Lawson's presence in the party was not learned for some time after the federal automobile had pulled up in front of the Logan County jail and when the fact became known he had been secreted away as a precaution for his life.

Prisoners Are Summoned
At the same time Federal officers reached Guthrie with six men from the federal prison at Leavenworth and the Kansas state penitentiary at Lansing. It is understood that other prisoners are to arrive today from the Oklahoma penitentiary.

In addition more than 150 witnesses most of them from Osage country are in town. Hotels are filled to overflowing, and the streets are crowded with strangers. An air of marked expectancy pervades the city. Although officers do not expect trouble, the culmination of more than two years of speculation is reacting in a nervous tension that is everywhere apparent.

DALLAS WOMAN IS TO RUN FOR GOVERNOR

HOUSTON, Jan. 5. (AP) — Newspapers here today carry a statement from Mrs. Edith Wilkins, Dallas attorney, and an announced candidate for governor, who was in Houston Monday.

Her campaign, she said, had already been opened by her friends. She would not, she said make a formal announcement.

"I am different from most candidates," she said. "I am not organizing a campaign. I am merely speaking at as many places as possible where I am called. I am depending largely upon my friends to help me and to campaign for me. My last speech, however, I have planned to make in my home city, Dallas."

"My campaign has been opened for me in forty-five counties, where friends there are working for me, and where women's clubs have endorsed me."

'ALL ALONE' IS PAST PERIOD IN LIFE OF BERLIN

IRVING BERLIN, KING OF JAZZ, IS WED NOW TO ELLIN MACKAY

(By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, Jan. 5. — Irving Berlin, Broadway's Prince of Jazz, once a singing waiter in Nigger Mike's Chinatown saloon, and his society bride of a day, the former Ellin Mackay, are on their honeymoon today.

They slipped away from Berlin's apartment in the west Forties late yesterday for some undisclosed destination, on which a presidential suite has been reserved at a cost of $5,000. They will spend some time abroad.

Disappeared in Limousine
They disappeared in the composer's limousine—bought with royalties from the melodies that have made Berlin a millionaire—after brief telephone announcements to their friends that they had been married at city hall and a hasty note to the bride's millionaire father, Clarence H. Mackay, president of the Postal Telegraph company.

The romance and marriage of Broadway's melody genius, who started life as Izzy Baline, Russian immigrant, contains all the thrills of many of his own sentimental songs.

Wrote "All Alone."
"All alone by the telephone," Mr. Berlin once wrote in one of his many hits, and "I will be by the telephone" was the cause of the hasty marriage yesterday. At nine o'clock in the morning he called Miss Mackay. In the afternoon they were married in the municipal building.

Mr. Mackay was opposed to the marriage. Yesterday he issued this statement:

"The marriage comes as a complete surprise to me, and was done without my knowledge or approval."

Berlin Once Newsboy
Berlin's early life was spent selling newspapers in the Bowery. His bride is 37, and a Jew. His father was a rabbi. His bride, 22, years old, is a Roman Catholic. Her father is one of the most prominent Catholic laymen.

Berlin was asked about the religious question. "There is really nothing to be said about that—now," he answered. The wedding party went to the municipal building by subway, one of the few subway trips the bride had ever taken, and a deputy city clerk performed the ceremony.

Lubbock Man Given Bond On Charge In Court On Tuesday

H. L. (Shorty) Scarbrough, former owner and manager of a local lunch parlor, was granted bond in the sum of $500 at a preliminary hearing here Tuesday before Justice Johnson on a charge of operating an automobile while intoxicated.

Scarbrough was arrested at about 2 o'clock Monday morning on a highway south of the city. He was charged with driving a 1925 Ford sedan and was taken to the city jail.

Just prior to the time he was overhauled by the officers, he had thrown out and smashed against the ground several bottles of intoxicating beverage, according to Deputy Ford, who made an examination of the broken bottles.

The accused man was bound over subject to action of the grand jury, which will convene here next Monday at the regular January term of district court.

4 NEW TEACHERS TO BE ADDED TO SCHOOLS SYSTEM

MORE NEW STUDENTS ARE IN SCHOOL TODAY; 225 LATEST INCREASE

Four or five new teachers will be added to the public school system of the Lubbock Independent school district within the next few days in an effort to handle the increase in enrollment that has surpassed all expectations of authorities, following Tuesday. The addition of these teachers will bring the total number employed to 122, exclusive of music and other special courses, with the probability that the number will be increased to 125 before the present term closes, the Superintendent said.

A total of 449 new pupils had been classified into the ten schools that constitute the independent district at noon Tuesday, records in the office of Supt. Duncan showed, with the number divided almost equally in the city schools proper and in the four outlying wards. The number enrolled in the city includes 15 negroes and seven Mexicans.

Enrollment is 3,850.
This brings the total enrollment to date to 3,850, and it is estimated by Supt. Duncan that the number will reach the 4,000 mark by February 1, for it is known that there are yet many who will apply for entry, and that there are others who will move to this city in the meantime to put their children in the public schools.

It is the expressed hope of Supt. Duncan that construction work on at least one of the new buildings provided for under the recent bond election, may be started at once, in the hope that it may possibly be completed for use toward the latter part of this term, but it has been explained by the Board of Trustees that no money will be available from this source before the first of February, on account of certain routine matters and technicalities that must be observed in disposing of the bonds.

Selection of the new teachers that will be added to the already exceptionally efficient corps, has not yet been made by Mr. Duncan. Neither has he made any definite announcements as to the particular school in which they will be employed.

BOY IS LOCATED BURIED IN SNOW COVERED WASTES

EDGAR BRASH WILL LIVE SAY REPORTS FROM N. M. HOSPITAL

(Special to Daily Journal)
LAMESA, Jan. 5.—Edgar Brash, prominent local young man, who has been lost in the Guadalupe Mountains of New Mexico, west of Carlsbad, since last Wednesday at noon, was found Monday afternoon about 3:30, a telegram received today by relatives of the youth here from members of searching party stated.

The young man was alive, but was barely conscious when discovered almost buried in the deep snow that had fallen over the entire mountainous region. A messenger of information reaching here said, he was found by the north side of the mountain several miles from the cabin where he and two other men, one of whom is his uncle, were camped for a hunting trip.

In Carlsbad Hospital
Brash is in a serious condition, but will live. Reports have it that he was found by the sheriff of the county in which the cabin was located.

The young hunter left the cabin of his uncle, H. E. Williams, of the Williams Hardware company of this city, alone last Wednesday shortly before noon in an effort to bag a deer to match the record of his uncle and one other member of the party, who had killed one each.

Soon after he left, a heavy snow storm broke over the mountains, blurring all traces of the hunter, since which time he was not seen again until found almost frozen to death. Hundreds of searchers have combed the rocky crags of the Guadalupe mountain since late last Wednesday afternoon, when last members of the party with Brash became uneasy over his continued absence.

THREE PLAINVIEW RUNAWAYS ARE HELD HERE

Three boys, between the ages of fourteen and sixteen, are being held in the city hall here after being taken in by the protecting arm of the law early Tuesday morning, and the trio will be returned to their homes in Plainview probably late today.

Lewis Thomas, Wallace McCallan, and Loath Pierce, all admittedly "jellies" of the first order, constitute the trio. The boys left home only a day or two ago, they said, and when asked where they were going, replied, "just rambling around." They were picked up here shortly past midnight Monday night and lodged in the city hall for protection. The Hale county sheriff at Plainview was notified by Tuesday morning and someone is expected to arrive here late today for the lads.

Dire consequences are in store for me, one of the youths wailed, when he was advised that he would be returned home, and the other two, the somewhat restless, but not to the extent of the first. This apparently is the first jail experience of either of the trio, desk sergeant Metcalf told the Daily Journal, in commenting on their many requests for what to a prisoner is considered luxuries.

Funny Names Hooked On Carol, Rumania's Reigning Valentino

MILAN, Italy, Jan. 5. (AP) — Former Crown Prince Carol, of Rumania, who renounced his right of succession to the throne apparently at the call of love, is to be known in the future as Scarlat Mondrisseanu. At least that is the name taken from one of his estates in Rumania, appearing on the passport he has just received from Bucharest.

Carol is still at the hotel where Mrs. Magda Lupescu, his auburn-haired, blue-eyed innamorata, is staying. Although having separate apartments they are almost constantly in each other's company, taking their meals together and slipping out thru the servant's entrance for motor rides.

"Sunburn" Comes In At Dear Old London In Spite Of Weather

LONDON, Jan. 5. (AP)—"Sunburn" as a popular shade in dress and complexion has arrived in London simultaneously with the foggy season.

Some of the finer shades of "sunburn" silk stockings, which cost $15 to $20 a pair are so light in weight that they will not turn the balance of an ordinary scale.

"Sunburn" complexions are easily obtained by those who have not the time or inclination to visit the Riviera merely by taking violet ray treatments once or twice a week at about $2 the sitting.

College Sorority Women Praised In Meeting In Dallas

DALLAS, Jan. 5. (AP)—College women organized in sororities are spending many hundreds of thousands of dollars yearly on philanthropic work, reports at the Pan-Hellenic congress here indicated.

The social activities of the sororities for which they are most noted were submerged in the narrative of philanthropy unfolded before the congress which opened a four-day convention today.

Mountain children of Tennessee and Kentucky, the poor of Georgia, the fisherfolk of the Maine coast islands, and under privileged students in many parts of the country are beneficiaries of the funds established by the sororities according to the reports.

MRS. E. R. CHERRY, HOUSTON, TO BE EXHIBITOR AT THE DELPHIAN SHOW

Mrs. E. R. Cherry, Texas artist of note, who has had exhibits in Paris, Woman's Art Club and Academy of Design in New York; Art Institute, Chicago; Museum of Fine Arts, St. Louis and many other places, will be one of the main exhibitors in the Delphian Art Show to be held here on Jan. 14, 15 and 16 of this month in the building recently vacated by Yarbrow Grocery company.

DELPHIAN CLUB NAMES 14, 15, 16 AS DATE FOR ART EXHIBIT

The Delphian club decided yesterday at a called meeting of the club, that Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the 14, 15 and 16 of this month, to be the date of the art exhibit to be shown by this club in the building that the Yarbrow grocery company has recently vacated.

The exhibit, as has been announced several times, is attracting much attention and interest, insofar as the paintings shown are "productions" of native Texas artists. The pottery exhibits will be the most complete ever shown here, and represents a period from early to present day productions. The music department of the Barrier Brothers store is placing a fine Baldwin piano and a radio, at the disposal of the Delphians, that insure music and a special entertaining feature during the entire exhibit. Ladies who are members of the club and other local talent will provide music for the visitors during the three days exhibition, and Delphian ladies will be in charge at all times.

The small admission price decided upon (ten cents for adults) will be found to be quite small considering the value received.

Menu for the Family

By SISTER MARY

Breakfast—Stewed lima, cereal, thin cream, crisp rye toast, French pancakes, syrup, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Mashed spinach with creamed oysters, brown bread, pear and rice pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner—Cream of lima bean soup, chicken and pineapple salad, whole wheat bread, chocolate soufflé, milk, coffee.

In this dinner menu each dish adds many calories of various nutrients. In order to make a well-balanced meal plenty of lettuce must be served and eaten with the salad. Otherwise the dinner will be lacking in bulk or toughness.

Pear and Rice Pudding

One pint can pears, 4 tablespoons rice, 4 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 cups milk, 1 egg, 1/4 lemon, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 4 tablespoons powdered sugar.

Wash rice well through several waters and let stand in cold water to cover for one hour. Drain. Heat milk in top of double boiler. Add rice, sugar, grated rind and juice of lemon, butter and salt. Cook over boiling water until tender. Stir in yolk of egg and cook, stirring constantly about 1 minute longer. Press into a shallow mold. When cold and firm, remove from mold onto a large plate. Strain syrup from pears. If syrup is not sweet add 1/2 cup sugar to 1 cup juice and boil rapidly until reduced to one-half cup. Add pears and vanilla and let stand until fruit is thoroughly heated. Arrange pears on top of mold and pour over syrup. Beat whites of egg until stiff and drp and fold in powdered sugar. Spread over top and sides of mold. Put into a moderate oven for eight minutes to brown the meringue.

CANDIDATE URGES THAT ALL PAY POLL TAX

Every man and woman, unless exempt by law, who votes in the elections this summer must pay his or her poll tax not later than the 31st day of January (this month) 1926. If your poll tax is not paid on or before that date you will be disqualified as a voter in this year's elections and necessarily prevented from exercising your constitutional right to take part in determining who shall administer your laws and how they shall be administered.

I especially urge that you qualify yourselves to vote, because, as candidate for the office of County Attorney, of Lubbock county, I do now and will during the next few months, solicit your vote and influence in behalf of my candidacy. And I hope that every man and woman in Lubbock county who is qualified, will pay his or her poll tax and place themselves in position to go to the polls at the proper time and cast that vote according to the dictates of their own conscience and good judgment.

I want to thank my many friends for their very encouraging response to my informal announcement and respectfully request that every voter reserve the pledging of his or her vote until I have had an opportunity either publicly or privately to present my platform. For several years I have studied and sought to qualify myself to make this request of the public and believing that I am now qualified I

SKIPPER SLED ALLEN OFFERED POST AS ASSISTANT MANAGER AND COACH WITH WICHITA FALLS

The Wichita Falls Spudders, strong bidders last season for Texas league baseball honors, will have a new addition to the managerial and coaching staff in the person of Skipper Sled Allen, local man, who has meant so much to baseball on the South Plains, if an offer made the skipper by Fred Brainard, manager of the Spudders on a recent visit here is accepted. It was announced here Tuesday.

Allen would act in the capacity of assistant manager and coach of young pitchers, the announcement said, and would report to the Spudders next spring when they open training in Wichita Falls.

Offer Not Yet Accepted.
The veteran skipper would make no definite statement in regard to the proposition, except to say that he had not yet accepted. He admitted, however, that Manager Brainard made him a rather flattering offer, but refused to make known the terms with the remark that these terms had not yet been brought into figures.

The announcement is the outgrowth of the visit of Manager Brainard here last Saturday night, when he went into a long conference with the local staff. At this time, it was presumed that the conference had to do with the future of pitcher Underhill, the husky Plains product that is conceded as one of the best for "big show" material that has ever performed before Plains fans. Even yet, however, these rumors have not been denied, and there is a bare possibility that the young sensation may yet have a try in class A company the coming year.

Good Combination.
Manager Brainard is taking over the management of the Spudders next spring, coming from the Baltimore Orioles, in the International league. He is a recognized authority in his field of endeavor, and with the addition of skipper Sled to his staff, should bring the once lowly Spudders into the limelight of baseball in Dixie.

Allen's record as a coach for young pitchers is one that is rarely ever equaled. This job has been his lot during the greater part of his long career on the diamond, and he even yet retains inference to his performance with the Houston Buffs several years ago when catchers of his calibre were being battered to the Majors, but he was never even given a look-in. At the time, he very much resented the action of his superiors, but the matter was later explained satisfactorily. He had been retained by the Buffs management for his recognized ability as a coach for young pitchers.

Much Experience Here

This record is borne out and brought vividly to the minds of South Plains fans when they rehearse his long experience with rookies since he was connected with baseball in West Texas. It is a matter of common knowledge that his ability in this direction kept the Lubbock club to the forefront in all professional performances, as well as in amateur. And bringing the matter closer home, last year's record of the local amateurs, when they took the highest honors conferred in amateur ball west of the Mississippi by winning the Denver Post tournament, his ability with youth was again disclosed as his pitchers, wholly untried and unskilled in the class of ball they met there, drove through to victory against the best that the west afforded. Local fans will watch with much interest the developments as the veteran skipper begins his comeback in professional baseball. Definite announcements are expected within a few days.

FAST QUINTET TO CARRY COLORS FOR BAYLOR

WACO, Texas, Jan. 5. (AP)—A fast quintet of sophomores will represent the Baylor university Bears in the 1926 Southwest conference basketball chase. Despite the inexperience of the players, indications are Coach Frank Bridges' combination will make the best showing of any Baylor five of the past three or four years. Coach Bridges, who has had splendid success with his football and basketball teams, has not done so well with the basketball teams he has coached here, though when he came to Baylor university he had a more imposing record as a basketball coach than in any other sport.

The Bruin first string quintet will lineup about as follows: forwards, Keifer Strickland, a brother of "Steinie" and Benny famous Baylor athletes, and Jim Walker; center, Louis Slade; guards, Dillow and either Hannah or Winchester.

Strickland is a former Kentucky all-state high school performer, and probably is the most brilliant player of the squad. Walker was an outstanding star for Gatesville high school; Slade a former Waco high school star, and Dillow a former outstanding performer for Fort Worth Polytechnic high school.

On a tour taken before the Christmas holidays through Texas and Louisiana, the Bears won seven out of 10 games. Coach Bridges was well pleased with the showing made by his youngsters. Several games were won by long shots from near the center of the court.

Two of the most capable basketball players in the conference, Jack Slaco and Benny Strickland, are not out for the team. Slaco, picked as All-Southwestern guard last season by some basketball critics, suffered a leg injury in the football game against Notre Dame university last fall that kept him out of the rest of the football games and will keep him out of basketball play. Addition of Slaco to the squad would materially brighten prospects of the Bears, as he is without a doubt a splendid standing guard.

Strickland, brilliant four-letter performer, is captain of the 1926 basketball nine, and will devote his attention to the diamond game throughout the winter months. During the 1924 and 1925 basketball seasons Strickland was rated one of the most brilliant forwards in the conference. His speedy spectacular dribbling added thrills to every game in which he played.

Walker's Toe Is Hurt So He Will Not Battle Soon

NEW YORK, Jan. 5. (AP)—The world's welterweight championship fight scheduled at Madison Square Garden January 22 between Mickey Walker, of Elizabeth, N. J., the titleholder, and Tommy Milligan, of England, was called off today because of the condition of Walker's toe, which recently was operated on as a result of infection.

SUPERSTITION PLAYS HAVOC WITH MANY SPORT STARS

Golfers and ball players are perhaps the most superstitious athletes in the world.

The golfer cherishes his put club just as much as the ball player does his favorite bat.

Every big league player, regardless of whether he is a .250 or a .400 batter, has one particular bat which he believes has more base hits in it than any other bat he has used.

Babe Ruth has perhaps three bats out of 50 that belong to him which are his favorites. Woe to any other individual who tries to use them.

I have known of golfers who after breaking some choice club, to quit the links for several weeks, sore at the world.

The recent stunt pulled by Jim Barnes brings to mind the limit to which many athletes are swayed by superstition.

CASE OF BARNES

Barnes, while playing in a four-some recently at Pinehurst, accidentally broke his pet driver. This club played a big part in the sensational victory scored by him in the British open this season.

Now Barnes is not inclined to be emotional, but the story is that when he learned the driver was damaged beyond repair, he boarded the first train for New York, didn't even finish the game.

Possibly the story is just a press agent stunt for the British open champion. Even if it is, it's a good one. There is a probability that Jim really intended to return to New York to spend his Christmas vacation.

However, I am inclined to believe that Barnes was so upset by the loss of the club that he sought to forget golf for a time by getting north to where the game couldn't be played.

Incidentally New York is the best spot in the world for Jim to have a new club turned out according to his pet specifications.

BABE RUTH'S BAT

In this connection I recall what was at the time an unpleasant situation but is now rather humorous, due to my ruling out a certain bat with which Babe Ruth had been hitting them a mile.

Sam Crawford, in his day an American League star and one of the game's greatest hitters, conceived the idea of making a laminated bat of four pieces.

The thought was to have the bat made of four pieces of perfect wood. Every bat made from one piece of wood always has one or more flaws in it. The laminated bat was perfect, practically unbreakable.

Crawford sent one of them to Ruth to experiment with. The Babe immediately started on a batting rampage. While the bat may have helped some, it was really just one of Ruth's regular stunts.

Objection was made to the bat on the ground that it was not made out of one piece as called for by the rules, also that a foreign substance was used in putting the bat together which is not permissible.

President Johnson ruled the bat out. At the time Ruth and Hellmann were tied for the batting leadership. Detroit was playing New York at the time. Ruth went hitless in 10 times at bat in a double header.

From a batting rampage he went into a terrific slump which lasted several weeks. Being superstitious he blamed it on the loss of his favorite bat.

NEW YORK—"Buck" Buchanan, who seems appropriately nicknamed, for he's a bull, led cheers for rising prices at a snake dance and a lion hunt marked the close of the year on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

The makin's of a man

PRINCE ALBERT makes the kind of cigarette any regular, two-fisted man likes. A satisfying, full-bodied smoke. A cool, long-burning smoke. Because, it's that kind of tobacco! You'll notice what we mean the minute you roll one with P. A. and light up.

Prince Albert is crimp-cut and stays put. The tobacco goes into the cigarette — not all over the floor. You don't need a carpet-sweeper when you roll 'em with P. A. We mentioned "cool." P. A. can't bite your tongue or parch your throat. The Prince Albert-process fixes that.

Just try rolling 'em with P. A. Fill your system with its fragrant, friendly smoke. Convince yourself that no cigarette ever tasted just like that. Get yourself a tidy red tin or toppy red bag of Prince Albert today. Join that happy bunch of men who have found their cigarette makin's.

Yes, Sir! And here's another hunch: If you have often wanted to smoke a pipe, but felt you "never could," just try Prince Albert. Here's the old joy-jar with the lid off for fair. Connect with P. A. and a jimmy-pipe today.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tin and toppy red bag, and always with every tin of him and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

GOOD OLD, BAD OLD, TIMES

Tomorrow is usually a little further off than yesterday. Both, however, are removed from current discussion and both have a perspective which in some ways shows them up in more nearly their true relations and in some other ways distorts the view and makes them look grotesque.
And yet the yesterdays were once the present pulsing and important and imperative in demand. Tomorrow, too, will be just the plain present of one of these days. And they are all alike more or less in the essential elements that compose the conditions of any period.

There are dreamers who continually are visioning the brighter day ahead, crystallizing it in not the millennium
that is to be the acme of perfect conditions—certainly in a moral way and probably in a physical and economic and industrial way. And the dreamers have always to announce from advancing time to time a postponement, more or less indefinite, of the glad and perfect day when all the wrongs will be righted. So too, there are retrospective dreamers, forever living in the past and investing the sacred departed days with a glamour and glory that was never quite justified by the facts in the time when these past times were promiscuous and practical present. These reminiscent experts harp grandiloquently upon the "good old days" were not a bit better than the todays we live through and wrestle with and glory in. Manners were not any better in the time of G. Washington than they are now—
for the first gentleman of the land in writing some aphorisms upon the subject of common etiquette, advised his supposedly cavalierish readers to refrain from spitting upon the floors and into the corners of the rooms of polite homes.

Manners of the people as a whole
are better, gentler, more courteous, more unselfish than they were in those "hazy, daisy, hazy good old days." And if there are crime waves that spread over the front pages of the papers these days now and then the general moral conditions in this land in practically every other country are better today, in the main, than in those graciously correct days to which the grouches and growlers are harking back forever by comparison and contrast. There are more people now than in the less populous days of the century ago and there are more papers and quicker communication and more thorough publicity of the remissions and delinquencies of the more people now than when Ben Franklin started his little gazette in the eight-teen hundred and something year. If you will back some old timer squarely up against the facts as his serious and honest memory recalls them you will find that Lubbock was as bad
a quarter of a century ago as now—and worse in many respects; so was the country at large. The moral standard has been raised with the passing years and the world is better than it was anywhere and anyhow in those "halcyon times of the 'good old days'."

The situation probably would greatly
entertain the colonel, if he could be here to see it, but it enrages his admirers.

Journal Sabs

In order to understand people we must live on the same spiritual and intellectual plane. There is the inward and the outward man. We judge people mainly by the outside, which gives us a very poor insight into the genuine personality. Coarse and illiterate people judge the qualities of others by the commonplace things they themselves admire. They have no other way. Hence, a high class individual is seldom considered such
by low class individuals.

Decay and death are the natural antipodes, the opposite poles, of growth and development. We cannot have one without the other.

A man's friends belong to him only as long as he belongs to them. You can only keep the affection of another by returning it.

The silliest sounding thing of all
silly things is a silly laugh.

STEWART'S
WASHINGTON LETTERPARTY LINES DRAWN IN PRO-POSED MEMORIALS

By CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—A lot of politics is mixed up in the controversy over the relative greatness of the late Col. Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson.
It doesn't seem as if the validity of a dead man's claim to the honor of a national memorial ought to be regarded as depending on whether he was a Republican or Democrat, but apparently that's the way congress looks at it.

At any rate, congress members are divided mainly along party lines on the Roosevelt-Wilson memorial proposition.

If it were a question of the memorial alone, two memorials would settle the matter.

But, as was pointed out recently,
both groups want the same site.

As Washington is planned, just one unoccupied spot remains, in Potomac Park, where an imposing monument
will show to the very best advantage.
The Rooseveltians thought they had this spot pre-empted and had their plans all drawn, but now the Wil-sonites are making a strong drive to upset the arrangement.

A surprising degree of bitterness is developing out of the wrangle.

The Republican majority at the capitol is in a position to decide in the Rooseveltian's favor and that's their inclination, but it isn't easy to go ahead with a pretentious memorial to their hero's greatness in the face of a formidable, though a minority, protest that he wasn't as great as they think he was.

The situation probably would greatly
entertain the colonel, if he could
be here to see it, but it enrages his
admirers.

SPINSTERHOOD

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BARBARA HAWLEY is 25, selfwilled and talented. Wanting to live, she breaks with her fiancé, BRUCE REYNOLDS, an architect, and gets a job on the Telegraph.

She sees plenty of it at a roadhouse dinner, where BOB JEF-FRIES, police reporter, introduces her to JEROME BALL, man about town. A prominent man kills himself at the dinner and Barbara picks up a red scarf dropped by his unknown woman companion.

Bruce enters the real estate
firm of Manners, Stone and Reynolds, which launches an ambitious development. Vale acres.
LYDIA STACY, rich widow, is interested in him, but he rebuffs
her and she tells ANDREW Mc-DERMOTT, managing editor of the Telegraph, that she suspects
crookedness in the firm.

Barbara, meanwhile, edits a love Larn column and gives much advice to a correspondent who signs herself "Violetta" and asks how she can land a "socially superior young man." Suddenly she learns that Bruce has married a factory girl, VIOLETTA CRAN-
BY—the same one she has been advising.

At this point Manners decamps
with the bank deposits and Vale Acres goes to smash. Bruce is bitter against Barbara for the newspaper publicity that follows.

Barbara's mother dies and Barbara moves to an in-town apartment, sharing it with McDermott's daughter, FANCY. Fancy is in love with Jerome Ball, and Barbara,
unable to argue her out of it, calls for Ball, and Fancy walks in as the two are talking. She accuses Barbara of trying to steal Jerome for herself to keep from being an old maid, but after a short spat
there is a reconciliation.

McDermott asks Barbara if she wants to cover the convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, in a hotel lobby at the convention city she spies Manners. Bruce's absconding partner.
She wires McDermott at once.

was walking very fast, Barbara and the detective saw him go straight to the clerk.

The clerk handed him a slip of paper and he took it to the cashier.
"He's paying his bill," whispered Barbara. "That means he's checking out. Perhaps he's seen me."

They waited without revealing themselves until the man had received his change and caught an elevator. They took the next one up.

Manners was just unlocking his door when the detective touched him on the shoulder. The man started fearfully and turned about, his eyes falling on Barbara. His shoulders drooped and he stood still.

"Probably don't need to tell you what for," drawled the officer. "You know all about that little affair back in your home city."

"Yes," said Manners, and then lifting his eyes to Barbara's face:
"Damn you!"

She shrank back against the wall.
"You can go along, Miss Hawley,"
said the detective. "We'll run down to headquarters, and I'll let you know
the plans about this fellow."

Barbara turned and fled. When she reached her room, she was shaking.

The call from headquarters came half an hour later. "We're taking him back to his home town tomorrow afternoon. He's waived extradition."

Barbara hung up the receiver. She rushed to the desk in her room, wrote
the story of Manners' capture for her paper and hurried down to the telegraph office. It was nearly two o'clock when she went to bed.

She was awakened at eight o'clock
by the telephone. Mollie Perkins' querulous voice came over the wire.
"Why, what became of you, my dear?
You said you'd go down to the cashier and come right back. I waited and waited, but you didn't come. Couldn't get you by phone either. Do you think that's a nice way to play?"

The petulance of the question angered Barbara. "I'm very sorry, Miss Perkins, but I forgot all about it.
Something more important happened.
I'm leaving for home this afternoon."
"Oh!" the exclamation was sharp.
Barbara did not wait to hear more.
Neither did she speak of the ten dollar advance Miss Perkins had ex-

may have to stand it outside, but the Telegraph office ought to stand by me."

"Sure, we'll stand by you," answered Byers, "even though your champion, Bob Jeffries, is here no more. They've got an awkward kid named Morrison doing his work."

As if in each to his world, Jimmy jumped up from the dictation telephone and called to Wells, "Morrison wants to talk to you in a hurry!"
Every head in the office went up,
and eyes fastened on Wells' face as he talked.

"New banner for the final," he said to his assistant, as he hung up. "Manners has decided to talk. Told police this afternoon that young Reynolds knew the whole scheme and meant to meet him in Chicago to split the loot. Said the hue and cry scared him off."

Barbara leaned against the desk.
Byers put a hand on her arm. "Why
Miss Hawley, what's the matter?
You aren't going to faint, are you?"
His words trailed off into silence.
Barbara wondered what they meant,
as she slipped from his grasp to the floor.

When she awoke, the entire staff was gathered around her. "Fine new headline," said somebody. "Girl reporter, feat accomplished, faints on reaching home office."

Barbara sat up. "Don't you dare,"
she said in a tremulous voice. Then she began to cry.

Someone ordered a taxicab and put her in it. When she reached home Fancy ran down the steps to meet her and flung her arms about her. "Gosh
it's been so lonely here, Barbara—but what's the matter?"

Barbara walked into the living room. "I've got something to do just now, Fancy. And if I don't do it, I'm going to be blamed for a great injury to someone I used to be very fond of."

The girl backed away, staring. She asked no question.

Barbara went to her own room. A half hour later she emerged dressed for outdoors. Fancy looked at her inquiringly, but received no reply. Barbara went out.

When she rang the bell at Lydia
Stacy's door, the same white-capped Della answered the ring. She greeted

"Do you remember a red party dress—and a red scarf?" asked Barbara. She laid a piece of red silk in Lydia's hand and went out.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVIII
The trip back home was very different from the one Barbara had taken two days before. Gave for a brief message from McDermott regarding her arrival at home she had no further word.

The deputy stayed with is prisoner in a stateroom the whole way. Only once did Barbara catch Manners' eye in passing through the car. He glared with hatred.

The station was crowded with curious people when the trio alighted from the train. Barbara looked about her, at the staring men and women on the platform.

She left Manners and his guard and ran for a taxi.

McDermott was waiting for her at the Telegraph office. "Great stuff, Barbara," he said, holding out his hand. "Sorry it happened just in time to spoil the convention for you. But the city is wild. We're going to need everything you know about the Manners case."

He went to the files and pulled out an extra. "Girl Reporter Captures Missing Realtor," said the bonner headline. "Miss Barbara Hawley of the Telegraph Finds Jonathan Manners, On Way Home With Prisoner."

"Now you see why we had to send for you," smiled McDermott. "Made the story twice as big."

Barbara was reading the story.
"Miss Hawley's adroitness," "Resourceful young newspaper woman,"
"Girl bravery"—the phrases ran on.

She covered her face for a moment. "I'll never be able to hold up my head again. Mr. McDermott, after this grandstand play."

McDermott laughed. "Oh, yes, you will. You'll be a town heroine, and you'll be surprised to find how much you like it. It's a darn picturesque story, and you should make the most of it."

In the news room, Byers, the dramatic critic, gave her a slow smile.
"How does it feel to be a heroine, Miss Hawley?"

Barbara flushed. "Please drop that,

Barbara with a broad smile and called her by name. "I never forget those I like, miss," she explained, leading the way to the drawing room.

It was some time before Lydia Stacy appeared. She was wearing saphire blue and her hair was carefully done, but her face had haggard lines that Barbara had not seen before.

"How do you do, Miss Hawley?"
The greeting was perfunctory. "What is it now?" Her manner suggested that this was the last of a series of annoyances for which Barbara had been responsible.

Barbara took a step nearer. "I'm not here for the Telegraph this time, Mrs. Stacy."

The woman's eyebrows went up.
"No?" she remarked uninterestingly.
"No," repeated Barbara crisply. "I'm here to talk to you about Bruce Reynolds."

Lydia Stacy's shoulders straightened. "What can we possibly have to say about him?"

"This is the situation," Barbara talked rapidly. "I've come back with Manners, and Manners has implicated Bruce in the scandal. I know he isn't guilty. You know it too, even better than I do, for you were involved in the project. I want you to testify for Bruce."

TODAY'S MARKETS

NEW YORK STOCKS
MOVE HIGHER
TODAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 3. (AP)—Stock prices moved irregularly higher at the opening of today's market. Ralls displayed a firm undertone with Atchafalaya and Pittsburgh and West Virginia showing initial gains of a point. International Nickel and Woolworth also opened a point or so higher.

Motors were mixed, Hudson falling back 1 1/2, while General Motors, Studebaker and Chrysler opened fractionally higher.

Chief interest in the early trading centered in the new National Cash Register stock, which opened at 52 1/2 and quickly advanced to 54, or four points above the subscription price. Heavy profit taking, however, quickly developed in other parts of the list, with the motors and rubbers among the first to feel the weight of this selling. General Motors, Hudson, Du Pont, and S. S. Kresge sold down two to three points below yesterday's final quotations before the end of the first half hour. Standard Industrials also began to sell off when the first batch of overnight buying orders had been disposed of, among the early strong spots being National Lead, Central Leather preferred, Houston Oil, Chrysler, General Railway Signal, and Federal Mining and Smelting, all of which sold a point or two higher.

Foreign exchanges were slightly reactionary. Demand sterling yielded slightly to $4.84 11-16, and French francs dropped about four points to $3.78 1/2.

NEW ORLEANS HAS EASY OPENING
IN COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 3. (AP)—The cotton market opened quiet and easy. Liverpool cables were lower than due and first trades here showed losses of 5 to 10 points. Prices continued to ease off after the call, until January traded down to 19.1, March to 19.38, and May to 18.97, or 13 to 14 points under yesterday's close. The market showed less stimulus than prevailed yesterday due largely to the diminished demand of spots and a lack of speculative reports. The main sustaining influence continued to be the strength of the near positions.

The market continued to ease off during the morning owing to some weakness which developed in January and March and also because of the absence of a good spot demand. January traded down to 19.15, March to 19.22, and May to 18.92, or 28 to 30 points under yesterday's close. Towards noon the selling appeared to have subsided and prices gradually rallied 4 to 5 points from the low afternoon being supported by reports of a better spot demand in the local market, buyers being reported here from Texas after desirable trade. Prices continued within the earlier range and fluctuated narrowly within a point or two.

WHEAT PRICES IN CHICAGO GO
DOWN

CHICAGO, Jan. 3. (By The Associated Press).—Wheat prices underwent an early setback today, influenced by downturns in quotations at Liverpool and Buenos Aires.

Chicago opening prices 1/4 to 1 1/2 cent lower, new style. May $1.81 1/2 to $1.82 and July $1.55 7-8 to $1.56, were followed by a material further drop and then something of a rally.

Corn and oats were relatively firm. After opening 1/4 cent to 5-8 cent off, May $1.75 to $1.76, corn eased a little more and then began to recover. Oats started a shade to 1/4 cent lower. May 46, and held to initial figures.

Higher prices on pigs tended to lift the provision market.

Rousing Meeting Of Ex-Service Men Monday Night Presages Much Legion Enthusiasm During 1926

The local post of the American Legion is off to the best year in its history here. If the tenor of the smoker-banquet held Monday night in the basement of the Leader building is any indication of the enthusiasm that is to hold sway. Approximately 35 ex-service men gathered at the banquet, and with one accord pledged themselves to do all in their power to see that the post is brought to the forefront, not only in actual Legion affairs, but in matters of civic improvement.

Headed by Harley D. Woods as post commander, who was elected along with other officers to lead the work during 1926, the local post has a great program ahead for the year, including representation befitting the occasion when the annual state convention is held in Amarillo this summer. Plans are already under way to have a rousing delegation invade the North Plains metropolises at the annual meeting.

New Officers.

Officers who will assist Mr. Woods in leading the work are: Dr. W. V. Clark, first vice commander; M. B. Hilburn, second vice commander; Martin Hart, local attorney, adjutant; Freeland W. Groce, finance officer; A. B. Slagle, post historian; Rev. W. A. Bowen, post chaplain; K. L. Riggs, sergeant at arms; Clyde L. Blackenstoss, mess sergeant.

Several pep talks were enjoyed by those present, including introductions and "expositions" of encouragement from several visitors. The past activities, the trials and tribulations of former officers in their efforts to keep life in the post, and a brief outline of the bright future that is facing the local Legion, were related by Hubert L. Allen, local manager of the Texas Utilities company, who was a charter member of the local organization, and who has been a tireless worker in post activities.

Mr. Allen told of the approximately 300 members that were on the Legion rolls the first year, of the gradual waning of interest in the work until 1923, when the membership went down as low as 20, and of the apparent reaction that ex-service men have taken toward the Legion and its work, explaining that membership in the Legion not only is a privilege that cannot be enjoyed by anyone who did not see actual service with the army of Uncle Sam during the World War, but should be considered as a duty by all ex-service men for the preservation of the ideals that have been set by the organization.

Auxiliary Great Aid.

He expressed the belief that with the organization of the Ladies Auxiliary unit here, renewed interest will be taken, and that already there is an altogether different atmosphere surrounding the work of the organization. He urged extreme care on the part of officials in giving approval and lending their name to various and sundry cheap shows that every so often make their appearance with the plea for holding their performances under auspices of the Legion, explaining that not only has the Legion been "kyped" several times in this manner, but that it works a hardship on officials and the post membership in general. "Let's keep our good name clear of all such degradation," was the urge of Mr. Allen.

Other Legionnaires and visiting ex-service men expressed various opinions in regard to the work in general but all were with one accord behind the program for the coming year, and pledged unstinted support of the organization and its undertakings.

A very interesting part of the program, and a part that was enjoyed to the fullest by all, was the banquet, served a la Dutch under directions of Alex McDonald, well known local banquet specialist.

The next meeting will be held at the same place next Monday night, when light refreshments will be served, and the problems facing the local post will be further discussed.

'AIR HAWK' WILL FURNISH MANY THRILLS

Fighting tooth and nail in gruelling hand to hand conflict on the wings of an airplane hundreds of feet in the air, missing his step and almost plunging to a ghastly death on the rocks below, is but one of the thrills developed with amazing skill in "The Air Hawk," the first of the entertaining Al Wilson aviation stunt melodramas which comes to the Lyric theatre on Wednesday and Thursday.

Wilson, called by critics the "Horseman of the Heavens," has established himself as one of the most popular of the cinema stars by his daring exploits in the clouds. He first won honors as an Ace in the French Flying corps during the World War and later in the ranks of the Yankee aviators. Then came his jump to the movies where he intends to remain for some time to come. In addition to being the best stunt man in pictures, Wilson is also a fine actor. His leading woman in "The Air Hawk" is beautiful Virginia Brown Faire.

Life is strenuous these days for Virginia Brown Faire, the movie actress. Recently she agreed to play the leading role opposite Al Wilson, the daredevil of the skies, noted stunt aviator now starring in a series of motion pictures.

The first production, "The Air Hawk," in which Miss Faire will appear, comes to the Lyric theatre on Wednesday and Thursday.

TEXAS ROAD MESS FACTS MOVING RAPIDLY

how far-reaching the decision might be.

Much Money Affected

Reports from Washington indicated that probably $100,000,000 in special road improvement bonds voted by Texas districts might be affected. Inasmuch as in improvement district 2 Archer County, which was reported held unconstitutional on the ground that the district was not formed by the legislature, it is doubted in official circles here whether the decision will affect those districts authorized by the legislature.

Judge C. H. Wheeler, assistant attorney general, who has charge of investigating and approving bond issues, said "I will not approve any more road district improvement bonds until I have received, studied and passed on a certified copy of the supreme court's decision, for which I asked today."

Search Hazardous. Temperatures on the top of the mountain coming well under zero, coupled with the heavy snow, which fell for two days in great fury and a driving wind, made the search a very hazardous undertaking, and many of the searchers were forced to abandon the hunt. In some instances, even the native mountaineers of the region refused to join in the search on account of the hazardous surroundings, reports from the scene said.

Hundreds of those who went from here to aid in the search returned immediately, and several score more of the braver hearts who dared to face the dangers of the hunt, are expected to return here late today.

Lawson is Hiding. Roy Lewis, United States district attorney, conferred with Lawson more than an hour in his secret hiding place. Later he said Lawson had requested him the confessions quoted by Edwin Dabney and J. Berry King, assistant state's attorneys general, who yesterday filed the murder charges in Pawhuska.

Lewis said Lawson told him he dynamited the home of W. E. Smith at Fairfax about 10 o'clock on the night of March 16, 1922, and that at 2 a. m. he returned to the Osage County jail at Pawhuska from which he had been released to do the deed.

Murder Warrant Issued. M. A. Boyd, now an Osage County deputy sheriff, who was the jailer at the time the Smith home was destroyed, is sought on a murder warrant issued yesterday, charging him with complicity in the crime through his alleged action in releasing Lawson from the jail.

"What did you do after returning to jail?" Lewis said he asked Lawson.

"I went to sleep," Lawson was quoted in reply. Three persons lost their lives in the explosion.
