Fina ready to move forward on oil seepage clean-up

Fina officials indicated that abatement measures costing as much as $272,000 could begin as soon as the agreed order by the Texas Water Commission (TWC) is finalized and executed. The abatement measures would be aimed at stopping the seepage of oil into the Colorado River from the site of the Col-Tex refinery, west of Colorado City at the Highway 80 bridge. The 'immediate removal order' which is expected to be finalized soon will permit Fina to take the necessary abatement measures on the property which Fina no longer owns. 'We do not own the property,' said Jeff Morris, manager of Fina's Big Spring refinery. 'We did from 1958 to 1978, but at that time we sold the property.' 'Fina operated the site for 20 years, but Chevron operated the site for approximately 30 years,' said Morris. 'We feel that all who contributed to the pollution should come forward to help.' The TWC agreement would be a mechanism which would provide Fina with the authority to start with the abatement procedures on the property. Another reason Fina needs the order, said Morris, is so that other potentially responsible parties can be brought to the table. 'Fina has expended several hundred thousand dollars already,' he said, 'without any assurances.' Fina has fenced the area off, placed netting over open pits and maintains booms designed to collect the seepage from the river. 'We need the protection and legal assurances that the TWC order will provide to Fina,' said Morris. Diane Perkins of Dallas, senior environmental specialist for Fina, told of what she would propose to the TWC once the order is received. The abatement plan must be approved by the Commission.

She indicated that from the studies which Fina has made thus far, that a trench could be dug near the waterline and a wall placed perpendicular to the flow of the water. The wall would be made of a substance similar to PVC pipe. A series of 6 wells would then be installed on the up-gradient side of the wall to recover the contaminated fluids. The mixture would be pumped to a oil/water separator which would be installed on the property. The oil that would be separated, out would be held in a tank, then sent to the refinery in Big Spring. Water from the mixture would move to an evaporation pond. She noted that an engineering design of this plan would require TWC approval. The team of Fina representatives also included Ross Westbrook of Big Spring, employee relations. See FINA, page 2

Filing deadline Friday for March primaries

Friday, Jan. 10, is the deadline for persons interested in filing for a spot on the upcoming March Party's primary elections. The sign-up period had been scheduled to run through Jan. 2, but was extended by a court order. As of Tuesday, the Department of Justice has yet to issue a ruling on the Mitchell County re-districting plan which has added to the confusion of the filing period. Those planning to run for election to the offices affected by the re-districting plans are encouraged to file for the offices according to the recently adopted county districts, said County Clerk Joan Beach. Though the procedural rules concerning the re-districting approval have not been completely defined, there is a possibility that a ruling from the Justice Department may come after the filing deadline has passed. If this were to occur, there is a possibility that only those who had filed during the period would have their names on the ballot, said Beach. County offices which will appear on the March primary include the offices of Mitchell County Sheriff, Mitchell County Tax Assessor-Collector, Mitchell County Constables (Precincts 1 and 2), Mitchell County Attorney and Mitchell County Commissioners (Precincts 1 and 3). Persons interested in running as a Democrat in the upcoming local election should contact Mitchell County Democratic Chairman Tom Rees and those desiring to run as a Republican candidate should contact Mitchell County Republican Chairman Frank Brownfield. See FILING, page 4

She served as the Hospital Administrator's secretary at the Mitchell County Hospital District for 7 years. 'I plan to learn as much as I can and do all that I can to serve the people of this county as an elected official,' she said. 'I have an excellent work record and am very meticulous and efficient.' Her education includes receiving an associates degree in business administration from San Antonio College. She has taken 39 additional college semester hours of graduate study which were accumulated at Western Texas College, Angelo State University and Leeward Community College of Hawaii. C-Court okays options on building purchase

The Mitchell County Commissioners' Court met for a called meeting on Tuesday morning and took action concerning a property purchase and passed a resolution in reference to a performance reward program. Commissioners' approved a motion to offer $5000 earnest money towards an option on the purchase of the Sequoia site, located on Interstate 20. The money will provide for a 75-day inspection period of the industrial building site property. Board of Economic Development members including Woody Anderson, Bobby Lemons and Nancy Sullivan, executive director of the Economic Development Board; Fleta Lewis of Fleta Lewis Real Estate and local attorney Mark Piland met with the commissioners' court to discuss the transaction and offer their support for the effort. The commissioners' court then approved a resolution to participate in a performance reward program offered by the state. Donna Starr, Adult Probation Officer, noted that the program would allow Mitchell County to receive $50,000 if approved for funding under the project guidelines. The requirements for the state funds require that 25 percent of the grant be used to benefit substance abuse offenders and the other 75 percent could be used to benefit other needs related to probation violators. The resolution approved by the commissioners' states: --Whereas the commissioners' court of this county has been made aware our county is eligible to participate in and receive performance reward funds from the Texas Department of Criminal Justice. See C-COURT, page 2

Burt files for re-election as Tax Assessor/Collector

Incumbent Mitchell County Tax Assessor-Collector Clarence 'Mike' Burt has filed and will seek re-election to the office in the upcoming Democratic primaries. Burt has served as the Tax Assessor-Collector since August of 1977, when he was appointed to the post to fill an unexpired term. He has won three elections to the post since that time. 'It is my intent in filing as a candidate,' said Burt, 'that I would like to continue the professional attitudes and policies of helping our taxpayers and the customers wanting to register automobiles.' He has attained State of Texas certifications including Registered Professional Appraiser and Registered Professional Assessor-Collector, which he maintains. 'The tax code and the requirements for certification are continually changing," said Burt, "and it will continue to change." See BURT, page 2

Cable Co. rate adjustment challenged by mayor

A proposed 'rate adjustment' by the Tele-Media Company has been viewed as a threat aimed at the local cable-consumers, by officials with the City of Colorado City. City officials have asked Tele-Media that instead of forcing the increase onto the citizens of Mitchell County, to consider returning to the original service and offer the American Movie Classic channel option to those interested for $1.85 per month. 'When you threaten to withdraw 12 channels which we have previously been getting unless subscribers agree to pay an additional $1.85 to get one more channel, I believe 'rate adjustment' is a poor choice of words; coercion would be more accurate," said Mayor Jim Baum. "As I once heard, 'If it looks like a skunk, walks like a skunk and smells like a skunk, it must be a skunk,'" said Baum. "The rate adjustment looks like an increase, sounds like an increase and feels like an increase to me." "This increase means our citizens are now paying 43 percent more for essentially the same service as when Tele-Media bought the company in 1989," said Baum. "Coupled with a $3 late charge for those struggling to pay their bills in this depressed time, a subscriber is now paying a staggering 64 percent more than just 24 months ago."

administrator; and Rick Hagar of Dallas, media relations coordinator. The group of Fina officials came to Colorado City, on Monday evening to meet with the executive board of the local Texans' Against Pollution (TAP) organization and with interested citizens concerning the Col-TEX sites.

Morris discussed three areas relating to the Col-TEX tank farm, property which Fina currently owns. The tank farm is located south of the property that the TWC order will affect.

Fina reported that they sent a site assessment plan of the property that they own to the Hazardous Solid Waste Division of the TWC on Sept. 30 for their approval. To this point they have not received an indication of the status of the plan.

The Fina official noted that he wanted to: first, review the history of the site; second, review the tank farm assessment; and third, review the results of the analysis.

HISTORY OF THE SITE:
Fina representatives brought aerial photographs of the site from various periods of time to aid in describing the activity that was conducted at the site, of which the products produced include gasolines, diesel, aviation fuels and asphalt.

--In 1924, construction of the refinery was begun by Col-TEX Refining Company, which was majority-owned by Standard Oil Company and minority-owned by the Anderson Pritchard Company, said Fina officials.

--By 1940, an aerial photograph showed that the refinery was fully constructed; wastewater ponds were partially developed; 8 large tanks and several smaller tanks were on the location and an area used for asphalt disposal was full at this time.

From conversations with previous employees of the site, Perkins said she had found that 'in the 1940's, Col-TEX was considered to be one of the most environmentally correct refineries, but the processes being used at that time are no longer used, we wouldn't touch them with a pole.'

The aerial photographs indicated that waste water ponds had been established so that the refinery was not discharging products directly into the river.

--An aerial photograph taken in 1951, showed that expansion had taken place. More ponds could be seen at the site, but the levels in these ponds were lower by comparing it to the 1940 sample.

--In 1957, a photograph showed the site at the period when it was at its peak, a time when the site was more fully developed than at any other time.

During this period, more evaporative ponds were in use. The construction of all the tanks on the site were completed at this time.

Cosden Petroleum Company purchased the refinery in November of 1956.

--In May, 1963, Fina purchased control of the site from Cosden.

An aerial photograph taken in 1964, shows that several waste water ponds had been taken out of use and that a reduction of material was in the ponds at the location site.

The plant was still in operation, but the site was described as being at a point of 'drying up.'

--Fina began phasing out the refinery operations at the site in 1968.

--On Jan. 30, 1969, Fina officially closed the refinery and began the process of dismantling the facilities and selling the property in parcels.

--A 1971 photograph showed that not a lot of change had occurred at the site. The process of the waste-water ponds drying up was continuing. The plant was shut down at this time.

--A 1980 photograph showed that the refinery had been dismantled and the process of dismantling the tank farm had begun. The waste water ponds were gradually drying up.

--By 1991, a photograph shows that only 1 tank remains in service.

FINA'S ASSESSMENT OF THE SITE:

Several types of possible contamination are suspected at the tank farm area, said Morris, from results of an assessment made by Fina.

--Hydrocarbon contamination was indicated near an area where unlined pits had been used to contain asphalt and other oil types of oil service, in an area at the southwest corner of the property.

--Hydrocarbon contamination is also suspected at a run-off collection tank at the northwest corner of the property.

--Salt contamination was indicated in the southeast corner of the property from an area where waste water that was used in the boilers of the steam generated process was allowed to evaporate.

--Chrome-type contamination was indicated in an area where water from the cooling towers was collected.

--Lead contamination is suspected, but has not been tested for, at an area where a Lead House was located, at the northern border of the site.

WHAT WAS FOUND:
Several types of samples were taken at the tank farm site including soil borings, surface samples, collections from ponds, seep samples and from monitoring wells.

--Soil borings: 6 samples were taken by extracting soil samples by the use of a hand auger. The deepest of these samples was characterized as being approximately 20 feet in depth.

Fina officials indicated that evidence from these borings eliminated several sites on the property, as being contaminated. It also showed that potential sources could be found around the older waste water ponds (at the center of the site) and a run-off pond (at the northeast corner of the site).

--samples from water-containing impoundments: the analysis of 11 samples of water was made, comparing it to guidelines of the Safe Water Drinking Act. Two of the ponds were found to exceed levels in the mineral salt category, one was found to have a level of arsenic exceeding the standards and two had levels exceeding the standards of silver and lead.

--sludge samples: potential problem areas were indicated near the asphalt pit and in several ponds where sludge was found.

Lead was found in these locations, a residual by-product from the crude oil process.

--seep samples: water or hydrocarbons found to be seeping from the ground were compared against health standards. A total of 7 seeps were tested.

One seep showed to contain levels exceeding in cyanide, two contained levels of lead and one contained a level of chrome that exceeded health standards, the officials reported.

Only one of the seeps was shown to not have hydrocarbon levels in the seep fluid.

--monitoring wells: A total of 6 monitoring wells which outline the property were installed at a depth of approximately 20 feet.

Four of the wells were described as having water that was relatively clear.

Three wells showed water with high chloride levels and the same three showed levels of benzene in the samples.

--impact on the river: Fina officials took 104 samples of the river over a 4 month period and have determined that the impact on the river is in the salt category, said Morris.

The level of salts is raised when water passes the refinery site, but no other indication of affect on the water has been indicated by the test results.

"We don't have an analysis of the river that scares us," said Morris. "If we did, we would do something about it."

Pipe thief confesses

Officers of the Mitchell County Sheriff's Office have solved a criminal case dealing with aluminum irrigation pipe which was taken from the county for the purpose of being sold.

Greg Merritt, 29, a former resident of Hermleigh, has confessed the crime to Sheriff Patrick Toombs of the actions which were estimated to have occurred in April.

The thefts took place between a set of points approximately 5 miles northeast of Colorado City to a site 3 miles north of Loraine.

The initial reports from the Sheriff's Department indicate that $2950 worth of the pipe and a trailer had been stolen.

To this point, officers have tracked approximately $1100 worth of the pipe which has been sold.

Merritt is currently serving a sentence in the Scurry County Jail.

The Mitchell County Sheriff's Office is waiting for a bench warrant to be issued by the District Judge so that he might be brought to Mitchell County where he has already been indicted for the theft of the aluminum pipe.

Several criminal cases remain under investigation at the Mitchell County Sheriff's Office.

--8 guns have been reported stolen by Cliff Hale of Big Spring, from a hunting lease located approximately 4 miles east of the Hyman Community in the southwest corner of the county.

The reported value of the guns is $4300 and includes three .270 rifles, two .20 gauge shotguns and three .22 rifles.

The theft from the lease occurred between December 14 and 30, according to the Sheriff's Department reports.

--Reported criminal mischief involving three vehicles, each of which had one of their tires slashed, is being conducted by officers of the department.

The incident reportedly occurred as the vehicles were parked outside the Loraine gym. The owners of the vehicles were watching a basketball game at the time.

--A 300 gallon fiberglass chemical tank and a tractor shade belonging to were reported stolen on Dec. 7. The incident occurred south of Westbrook on County Road 252.

--An investigation continues into a report of approximately $600 worth of damage to a building and the theft of approximately 50 pounds of copper wire.

A radar tracking house, abandoned by the FAA, that is located near the Hyman Community in southwest Mitchell County, approximately 23 miles from Colorado City, was broke into.

Officers from Mitchell County are investigating the incident along with departments in Howard and Yoakum County's.

--An investigation into the theft of a welder which was stolen from a ranch on the Airport Highway, north of Colorado City, is also being investigated by the Sheriff's Department.

CHIEF LONE WOLF

Remember our story recently about James J. Byrne, the man who wrote the poignant letter/will to his wife, Lilly, just days before he was killed by Indians near El Paso? That was in 1880 and in our story, we conceded we really didn't know much about Mr. Byrne. Now, thanks to the Tarrant County Clerk's office, we have learned considerably more about this frontier soldier.

Some of it is admirable.

After his death, Byrne's will was delivered to his wife while she was in Minnesota. The courier was Major C.M. Fairfax. How thrilled she must have been to read her deceased husband's adoring farewell. ("Goodbye, my darling, my wife. My heart is breaking with the thought that I may see you no more").

Mrs. Byrne waited almost six years to have her husband's will probated. The interrogatory provided to us by the Tarrant County Clerk show clearly that by then the will was being contested. By whom?

A daughter named Mary, who incidentally, was from a former marriage, or so she claimed. And Byrne's wife, Lilly, didn't know such a child existed.

Lilly Byrne re-married three years after her husband was killed. Her new husband was Max Elser of Ft. Worth. When the will of James Byrne was probated, attorneys sought to prove the letter written by her late husband was in fact his handwriting.

Among the witnesses was 24 year old Charles D. West. He was employed as a stage coach driver by the Yuma, San Antonio and El Paso Stage Company. West was with Byrne when he died.

"He was shot by Indians on the 10th day of August, 1880," West testified, "I nursed him from the time he was wounded until he died at Ft. Quitman, Texas.

"He lived three days after he was shot. During that time he was as cool as a cucumber. I never saw a man die braver in my life. He knew he was going to die and told me he was going to die."

Then the stage coach driver verified the will delivered to Byrne's widow was legitimate.

"I asked him if he had any family and he said he had a wife in Fort Worth and that before he started out on this cussed trip he expected something like this would take place on account of the poor protection that the government gave and that he made his will before he started," West testified.

He then identified the will written by Byrne.

"He called for his work clothes which we had taken off and we got the letter out of his coat pocket," West recalled.

"I remember it well. He said that (it) contained his will. On the envelope it said not to be delivered to Mrs. Byrne only in case of his death. I asked him if he had any children. He said he only had his wife, in Ft. Worth and that in the letter he told her what to do with his property."

West added that he had sent for a doctor in El Paso, but Byrne died two hours before the physician arrived.

The only other person to testify at the probate hearing was Byrne's widow. Now 33 years old, she identified the will she had received from Major Fairfax, which had the words, "this letter is only to be delivered to Mrs. Byrne in the event of my death, J.J. Byrne," written on it.

Mrs. Elser testified that she had "carefully kept and preserved" the letter and it had not been "tampered with." She added that she knew her husband "wrote every word of the letter" because she was "perfectly familiar with his handwriting."

Then Mrs. Elser dropped a few bombshells.

"I thought that he had died without any children and think so yet, but I never heard anyone claiming to be his child until the claim of the party calling herself Mary V. Byrne."

Mrs. Elser also had never heard that her husband had been married twice before she married him.

Sound interesting? There's more. Much more. And we'll pass that along to you in a future column.

...BY LOIS PHILLIPS

I still have some Christmas news to pass on to you. Because of the holidays the paper was printed early two weeks in a row, so I'll tell you where people went and who came.

On Monday before Christmas Eve, Tommy Doyle and his family came to Loraine to visit his parents, Jap & Nell Doyle. They live in Arlington, also visiting was the Doyles daughter & husband, Beverly and Chester Collier of Roscoe along with their grandson and wife Jim and Jody.

Their granddaughters stayed a few days longer to visit a little long.

Sarah Zetman of Dallas was in town the first of this week.

I understand that Syble Walker is out of the hospital and visiting Troy & Jean Keagans. Hope she is soon able to be home again.

Well it is now stock show time in West Texas. I understand a number of Mitchell County kids showed in Odessa. Our Loraine show will be Sat. the 11th. Let's go and support our kids.

Gladys Payne was in Midland for the holidays and to visit with her son-in-laws family since his mother was buried during that time.

Janessa Lee of Wilson is real sick again. She needs a bone marrow transplant. Her dad, James, and brother, Josh, have been checked to see if they can match with her. I'm sure hope something shows up for her soon. She is such a sweet little girl.

Lauren Hackfeld has been sick also, but she seems to be much better and is back in school. I have been told. We are happy you are better.

Aubrey & Dorothy Phillips of Odessa, & grandkids, Brad & Holly from California visited with their Aunt Nannie last week.

Dale Yarbrough of Nolan visited Mrs. Nannie Hallmark at the Loraine Manor last week.

Peggy Scarbrough of Silver also visited friends at the Manor last week. She comes often and the residents enjoy her.

Nanny Hallmark told me that she got lots of gifts for Christmas. She wants to thank each & everyone of you.

Inez Webb celebrated with Linton Ray, Maz & girls. They ate lots and had a good time.

Big John & Betty had a black-eye peas midnight supper for their family to celebrate New Year's.

While visiting the Jimmie Halls in Scottsboro Chrystene and Barbara made their annual trip to Atlanta, GA., Birmingham and Huntsville, Ala.

Wednesday of this week Mrs. D.C. Fowler & Chrystene Hall will accompany some members of the Economic Development Group to Houston. The group will represent Mitchell County, trying to bring new industry to our county.

Did the earthquake wake you up on New Years early morning? I did not hear it and didn't know it until later in the day. I wonder if this is the only one we have ever had in our County.

I have another good citizen story to go with Dwight Aston story of last week. A young fellow who was born and raised here, married a Loraine girl and got into the coaching profession and they have lived several places. They are Clovis and Jean Hale of Austin.

You know about the flood waters they had and the damage it did. Clovis didn't get a lot compared to his neighbors. When he got in from work he could tell some of his neighbors, who were gone for the holidays were going to lose a lot. He went out and found a 16 year old boy and they moved everything out of the boat houses around, cars out of yards, furniture out of houses, yard tools and everything they could move up in Clovis and Jean's yard. In the two story houses they moved all the furniture upstairs.

Jean told her mother that their place looked like a junk yard and on top of that they had to cut locks off of doors to get in some of those places. They said they took the chances of breaking in hoping their neighbors wouldn't be angry with them. They worked all night trying to save their neighbors household. No one expected all the water because some of them had been in that area over 50 years and this was the first it has happened in that neighborhood. Isn't that a beautiful human interest story?

Clovis and Jean, let me say I am glad to have known you all of your life.

Richburgs gathered for greetings and feasting in the home of Effie Wheeler on January 1st. It was a pot luck meal.

Those present were Mr. & Mrs. Homer Richburg and Mr. & Mrs. Lester Richburg of Loraine; Mr. & Mrs. J.C. Richburg of Tuscola; Mr. & Mrs. Virgil Richburg of Sweetwater & Mr. & Mrs. O.W. Richburg of Hermleigh. The sisters attending were Mr. & Mrs. Donald Adrian of Petersburg, Mr. & Mrs. Edgar Herm of Ackerly, Mrs. Roy Taylor of Sweetwater and Effie Wheeler of Loraine.

Other presents were Juanice Wilkinson of Sweetwater, Gene Richburg of Waxahachi, and Jimmie Jacks of Loraine. This has been a tradition for several years when the weather permits.

Magic Show slated

The VFW Post 9178 have made arrangements to present "The Elegant Magic of Fred Story" for the 1st year in Colorado City. The performance will be presented on Thursday, January 30th at 7:00 p.m. in the High School Auditorium.

"The Elegant Magic of Fred Story" is a 90 minute program featuring traditional feats of magic. During the performance you will see a lady float in mid-air, birds, rabbits, and ducks will appear and disappear before your very eyes. Illusions where the impossible becomes possible. Members of the audience will be invited to participate in various magical effects during the performance. One highlight of the program is where a local person participates in the famous "French Guillotine Illusion". Comedy, special lighting, costuming and stage sets help to make this an evening of enchantment for the entire family. This show has been labeled as the cleanest and best family show on the road today.

The VFW Post 9178 has a two-fold purpose in sponsoring "The Elegant Magic of Fred Story".

First, is to provide good clean family entertainment in Colorado City, and second, to raise funds for Patriotic Events. Local businesses and individuals will be contacted by telephone to ask for their support of this worthy VFW Post 9178 project by purchasing children's and senior citizens-tickets. Tickets can be used for children or senior citizens of your choice or returned for the VFW Post 9178 to distribute to those who otherwise would be unable to attend. VFW Post 9178 Project Chairman, Frelon Huff, urges everyone contacted to support this worthwhile project. If you are not contacted, contributions can be mailed to P.O. Box 174, Colorado City or you may call 728-2362 for further information about the show or the advance sale of children's and senior citizens tickets. Adult tickets, senior citizens tickets, and student tickets may be purchased at the door the night of the performance.

Don't miss this unique opportunity for an evening of Magical Entertainment. This is the show that "Children take their parents to see!!!"
