HJH named middle school Mentor campus

One year after receiving state notice for having sub-standard test scores, Hereford Junior High has been named as a Texas Middle School Network Mentor School, according to an announcement made this week.

Hereford school Superintendent Charles W. Greenawalt said a letter was received from the Texas Education Agency notified officials that HJH had been given the designation.

Principal Marilyn Leasure said

HJH is now the only school in the Region 16 area to hold the Mentor School designation.

This year, TEA named eight middle schools as Mentor Schools, bringing the total to between 35 and 50 throughout Texas, Mrs. Leasure said.

The concept of a Mentor School, she said, began several years ago as the state began working on improving schools.

Middle school principals around Texas formed the Texas Middle School Network to share ideas and programs with each other.

Later, the Mentor Schools program was launched, creating the designation that makes the schools a focal point for idea sharing.

Last year, Mrs. Leasure said, "our campus improvement plan included applying for the Mentor School program."

The school was added in its first year of application.

The school serves a three-year term as a Mentor School.

During that time, Mrs. Leasure said, other schools around the Region 16 area and across Texas can contact HJH for information on programs offered that work to improve test scores and student performance.

In addition, TEA will offer the school more staff development time.

"We'll be a designated visiting site for other middle schools or to give staff development to other middle schools," Mrs. Leasure said, noting that schools can call her for information on programs offered here.

If those programs -- such as academic teaming and TAAS preparation -- fit what the requesting school needs, the HJH will either host a delegation here to study the school or send a group of our teachers there to conduct a seminar.

In addition, "We will know of other schools across the state who may be doing something that is helpful" and can refer inquiring principals in ways that can help their schools.

One program implemented at HJH that is given some credit toward improved test scores this year is academic teaming, which HJH learned from McKenzie Junior High in Lubbock, which served as the Hereford school's mentor school.

To get into the program, HJH had to submit an application to TEA that covered several areas of school work: organizational structure, curriculum, assessment, instruction, professional growth and development, student support and community and parent involvement.

Republicans stall vote on reform amendment

By NITA LELYVELD

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - A Republican senator Saturday denied that his party was mounting a filibuster against the Democrats' health bill and called for a cease-fire on partisan sniping.

Sen. William S. Cohen of Maine said President Clinton and Hillary Rodham Clinton "have been unfairly criticized" in many instances, but they in turn should stop trying to "demonize" Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole and other critics.

Cohen, a participant in bipartisan talks to find a compromise alternative to Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell's health plan, pleaded for both sides to raise "the white flag ... (and) find some appropriate middle ground."

Democrats said they saw a filibuster in the making Friday night when Republicans blocked votes on the first amendment and threatened to line up to give speeches three to four hours long.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., said 28 GOP senators were still waiting to give opening statements on health reform. "That's talking 'til Labor Day," responded Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Packwood later said he wasn't threatening a filibuster, but if Mitchell was going to keep Republicans from going home to educate their constituents, they would do their educating on the Senate floor.

Democratic leaders chose what they thought was a benign, non-controversial amendment to start off the voting.

It would require insurers to include preventive services for pregnant women and children - such as prenatal care, well baby care and immunizations - in the plans they sold to consumers during the period before Mitchell's own subsidies for those Americans went into effect. The requirement would go into effect in July 1995.

But partisan sniping began soon after debate began on the measure, sponsored by Sen. Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn. About 40 minutes after debate began Friday evening, a shouting match erupted when Sen. Dan Coats, R-Ind., tried to ask a question while a Democrat was speaking. Kennedy refused to let him interrupt.

The sparring brought Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole to the floor, threatening to block all agreements on debate if Republicans couldn't be heard.

"They think maybe if they bring up a couple amendments and talk about the children, talk about (the) disabled, maybe that will somehow change the tide of American public opinion," said Dole. "It's not going to happen."

When Mitchell tried to set up an arrangement to begin voting on the amendment, Dole refused to agree to votes on Friday or Saturday, and said he wouldn't decide yet whether votes could occur in the days after that.

Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va., said he was "incredulous," and nodded his head when asked whether the remarks amounted to a filibuster threat.

"I don't know what they have in mind, but it isn't good for health care," he said.

Republican comments on the floor weren't the only challenge Mitchell faced Friday to his bill.

Earlier in the day, four senators - David Boren, D-Okla., Sam Nunn, D-Ga., Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., and Robert Bennett, R-Utah - said they would introduce legislation in the Senate next week along the lines of a bipartisan plan unveiled Wednesday in the House.

Last-minute preparations

Everything was in place and ready to go Saturday morning as volunteers put the final touches on the Hereford State Bank float before the start of the Jubilee Parade. The parade was the kickoff of a day full of activities, including Jubilee Junction, held in Dameron Park.

Trip to Hereford ends three decades of separation for German man, aunt

By GARRY WESNER

Managing Editor

Karl-Heinz Sell had to send his aunt a picture of himself before he came to town for a recent visit.

Of course, that is because the 44-year-old man was just 11 when Gerda Rouse of Hereford last traveled to Germany to see her sister and nephew.

The three-plus decades of separation ended recently in Hereford when Sell -- who holds the rank of Stabsbootsmann in the German Navy -- came to town as part of a brief U.S. visit before a temporary move to this country in November. The rank, he said, is similar to that of Chief Petty Officer.

Mrs. Rouse came to the United States in 1951, one year after her nephew was born. She visited Germany in 1961 and had not been back until last year.

Sell said he did not have any memories of his aunt, because the only contact they had was the two weeks when he was 11 years old.

But, "I have been always proud to have an aunt in America," he said.

At that time of her visit last year, Mrs. Rouse expressed interest in renewing contact with her nephew, who joined the Navy in 1969 and was stationed in a small village in Northern Germany.

He attempted to call family members in Cologne, where she was staying, to resume that contact, but called the evening after Mrs. Rouse had left the country.

Several months later he wrote her a letter and the gap of years was closed.

"I found a lot of old pictures" of Mrs. Rouse and Sell's mother. "I thought it would be better to send her all the pictures."

Finally, he contacted her with the news that he would be coming to Hereford while he was in the United States.

But, because of the years, he sent a picture to show how much he had changed since that visit in 1961.

"So it was not a little boy who arrived," she said. "But I recognized him right away because of the picture he sent me."

Sell said the intervening years did not diminish his desire to see his aunt and renew contact with her.

"Just because we haven't seen each other in a long time, we're still family," he said.

Sell was in the United States to visit the Germany Air Force Base in El Paso and to visit with an officer in San Antonio he will replace this year for a three-year commitment.

The visit here was an added extra for the career military man.

Every German military plane leaving that country for the U.S. travels from Cologne through Washington D.C. to El Paso.

The northern German village of Wees -- located near the Danish border -- was experiencing a heat wave when Sell left on Aug. 1.

The weather, he said, was "very hot. We had nearly 30 degrees Celsius. The last few weeks we had hot temperatures."

For those not familiar with European temperatures, 30 degrees translates to 85 degrees Fahrenheit.

German troops are not allowed to wear their tropical uniforms while traveling on military transports, so Sell left Germany in full uniform, arriving in El Paso, he realized "it's another kind of weather," with temperatures around 100 degrees and humidity levels higher than those in Germany.

The main focus of Sell's trip was to meet the man he will replace in San Antonio.

In his position there, Sell will act as a liaison for German servicemen coming to the United States for training in technical English through the Personnel Exchange Program with the U.S. Navy.

He will also work with the two nations' navies and sailors while the Germans are serving on U.S. bases acquiring additional training after their language school ends.

In preparation for his new assignment, Sell had to go back to school.

"I have been learning English since October of last year," he said. "I had English at school, but it's really 30 years ago."

He said he is required to reach a certain proficiency level in English before his assignment is finalized.

"Learning English is very difficult," he said, because his teachers -- primarily English-speaking Germans and Britons -- do not know how to teach American English and American slang.

During his two-day visit to Hereford, Sell was taken to the musical "TEXAS" in Palo Duro Canyon and drove around Hereford.

As to the smell of cattle in the air from the numerous feedyards, Sell said he was not unfamiliar with the odor.

"I live in a small village in the country. It's not unknown for me to smell cows," he said. "In the little village where I live, we have a little cattle raising, of course, a little dairy farming, a little grain farming."

Right now, the newly-reunited family members are planning a Christmas in Hereford, because Sell and his wife will have begun their three-year tour of duty in San Antonio in November.

"I'm glad to be here. I'm glad to see my aunt after a long, long time. I think we will have a nice time here. As long as I can, or as long as I will be able, I will visit her with my wife and sons," Sell said.

Clinton stands firm on ban on assault weapons in bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton on Saturday refused to back away from one of the most controversial elements of the crime package that is stalled on Capitol Hill, saying the final bill must include an assault weapons ban.

Clinton, in his weekly radio address, said legislators "ought to be ashamed of themselves" for blocking the $33 billion crime package from a final House vote and demanded that they revive it next week.

"Some people in Congress say it's time for their August vacation,"

Clinton said. "Well, the crime plaguing ordinary Americans is not about to take a vacation."

Democratic congressional leaders are assessing how to resurrect the crime package in the wake of Thursday's surprising House vote that blocked consideration of the measure.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., predicted Friday that the Democratic majority would "put this bill over the top" after 6 years in which Congress has not produced a crime bill.

Reunited family

Hereford resident Gerda Rouse and her nephew, Karl-Heinz Sell, met for the first time in more than 30 years recently when Sell came to Hereford as part of a brief trip to the United States. Now that they have renewed contact, the two plan to see each other more when Sell and his wife move to San Antonio later this year for a three-year tour of duty.

Combest arranges lake funds

WASHINGTON -- U.S. Rep. Larry Combest, R-Texas, has worked to save the federal share of funding for the joint state-federal project to remove the salt content harming the quality of the region's Lake Meredith drinking water supply.

Combest took to the House floor on Tuesday to point out that the upcoming installment of the federal government's one-third share of funding had been omitted because of a House-Senate Committee misunderstanding.

"The quality of our region's water supply has become almost undrinkable for almost a half-million people," Combest said. "Since 1989 when I re-introduced this legislation, I have maintained an interest in each year's installment of funds and was greatly concerned when a misunderstanding on the House-Senate Committee omitted needed funding."

Combest said he obtained an agreement that any unused Bureau of Reclamation funds from this year be used next year for the Lake Meredith project.

More than 90 tons of salt pour into Lake Meredith daily, raising chloride levels to salty and undesirable levels that are often in violation of state drinking water standards, Combest's office reported.

The exact amount of unused Bureau of Reclamation funds will not be known until the end of the government's 1994 fiscal year on Sept. 30.

The State of Texas and the 11 participating cities of the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority are providing two-thirds of the funding for the project.

Bullock asks Bivins for truck report

AUSTIN (AP) - Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, hinting at a smaller role for the Texas Railroad Commission, wants a state senator to spell out how Texas could take advantage of a federal trucking deregulation bill that won congressional approval this week.

Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, drafted a 1993 state trucking deregulation bill.

Bullock supported both the state deregulation measure and the federal bill, which President Clinton is expected to sign.

Texas is poised to eliminate virtually all state trucking rules on rates and other matters not related to safety, insurance and weight, Bullock said.

He said the transportation duties of the Railroad Commission, which regulates intrastate trucking along with the oil and gas industries, will be vastly different under deregulation and that what regulation remains might be done by other state agencies.

Lottery to attain $5 billion in sales

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Lottery is the fastest-growing in the nation, officials said Friday, announcing that sales for the 2-year-old game will top $5 billion this weekend.

Lottery director Nora Linares said that sales mark should be reached Saturday afternoon as tickets are sold for that evening's $10 million drawing.

Texas, which started selling scratch-off tickets May 19, 1992, and added a lotto game Nov. 7, 1992, reached the $5 billion sales mark in just 26-1/2 months.

That's nearly a half year faster than any other state, Ms. Linares said. Florida took 32 months to reach $5 billion and California took 33 months, she said.

"The momentum has built to the point that we sold our most recent $1 billion worth of tickets in less than five months," Ms. Linares said.

Of the $5 billion in sales, about $2.7 billion has been paid out in prizes for 575 million winning tickets. Ms. Linares said the game has created 150 millionaires.

The state Treasury has received about $1.7 billion of the game's proceeds, said lottery spokesman Steve Levine.

In addition to reaching $5 billion the fastest of any state, the Texas Lottery in the past year was the largest-selling game in the nation, Ms. Linares said.

Texas sold $2.6 billion in tickets during the 12 months ending June 30. The second-biggest seller was Massachusetts at $2.4 billion. New York sold $2.3 billion, while Florida sold $2.2 billion and California $1.9 billion, she said.

"We started breaking national sales records on day one and haven't let up since," Ms. Linares said.

Among the national records it holds, the Texas Lottery has sold the most:

- Instant tickets the first day, $23.2 million.
- Instant tickets the first week, $102.4 million.
- Lotto tickets the first year, $1.01 billion.
- "Pick 3" tickets the first day, $1.2 million.

The lottery said its $5 billion in sales includes $3.02 billion in scratch-off tickets, $1.85 billion in lotto tickets and $125 million in the daily Pick 3 game.

Winn's files to close all dime stores

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Winn's Stores Inc. wants to close its 81 remaining variety stores as a way to cut expenses.

The move effectively would end the chain's five-and-dime store division, which has a 66-year history and at its peak had more than 235 stores in three states employing about 2,000 people.

(The Winn's store in Hereford closed on July 21 after operating here for nine years at U.S. 385 and Park Avenue.)

Bankruptcy Judge Ronald B. King is to consider Winn's motion to close the stores at a hearing Tuesday.

San Antonio-based Winn's filed Feb. 25 to reorganize its $38 million in debts under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code. Its ability to spare its dime stores - a dinosaur concept by current industry standards - since has been questioned.

"The debtor has now determined that it is in the best interest of this estate to cease its retail variety store operations," said a motion filed by Winn's attorney Kathryn Mallory.

The stores that would be closed include 17 in San Antonio, five in El Paso, two in Corpus Christi and one each in Floresville, Luling, Kenedy, Mission, New Braunfels, Poteet and Victoria.

The motion also seeks the closing of Winn's four remaining stores in New Mexico. The company's Oklahoma locations were shut down in the first wave of closings.

Winn's now lists assets of $60.3 million and liabilities of $31.7 million, according to court records.

Winn's also operates a crafts division, known as Crafts Etc.

SIoux CITY, Iowa (AP) - And now from the Home Office in Sioux City, it's the "Late Show" with David Letterman.

And not just on cable. KMEG-TV general manager Bruce Lewis said he'll air Letterman's CBS show beginning Aug. 29, ending Sioux City's status as the only market where Letterman was unavailable except on cable.

"We didn't pick up Letterman last year because of business decisions, and now we have made another business decision. Our job is to please the most people possible," Lewis said.

Letterman poked fun at the station by creating the fictional Home Office in Sioux City, where he says his famed Top Ten originates. More recently, he threatened to change the Home Office locale.

A spokesman said the "Late Show" was thrilled to be in Sioux City. No decision has been reached on whether to change the Home Office.

The U.S. Supreme Court upheld the eight-hour workday for railroads in 1917.

Hereford hospital to observe CRNA Week

Hereford Regional Medical Center joins hospitals across the nation Aug. 13-18 in celebrating National CRNA Week, a time to salute Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetists.

Carolyn Kuback, nurse anesthetist at HRMC, is a critical member of the operating room team, according to Jim Robinson, interim hospital administrator. "The CRNA is not only responsible for putting the patient to sleep during surgery, she is also required to monitor the patient's breathing, blood pressure, and general well-being," said Robinson.

As the nurse anesthetist, Kuback's work begins long before the patient enters surgery. "The CRNA visits with each patient before the surgery to answer any questions about his or her anesthesia, and to put the patient at ease," Robinson said.

The nurse anesthetist also works with expectant mothers, explaining the options for different types of anesthesia, and the risks involved with each type. The CRNA may also provide either pain relief, sedation, or monitoring of patients outside the operating room. Because of the CRNA's extensive knowledge of the drugs employed for pain relief, he or she may be used during other procedures, such as in the emergency room.

A CRNA must first be a registered nurse. To receive certification to administer anesthesia, the RN must complete an extra 24 months of rigorous training and pass a state exam, Robinson noted.

Kuback has lived in the Hereford area since 1953. She began work at the Hereford hospital as a nurses' aide, and has steadily progressed in her education and training. After being certified as a LVN and then RN, she went to Harris Hospital in 1975 and spent two years training as a CRNA. Recertification is required every two years after proof of continuing education credits.

HRMC currently performs about 50 surgeries per month. Kuback performs general, regional and spinal anesthesia. "The equipment at HRMC is as good as you'll find in most hospitals," she said. "We have all the necessary safeguards to insure a good result for the patient," Robinson concluded.

More than 6,000 people died in 1900 when a hurricane, floods and a tidal wave hit the Galveston, Texas, area.

In 1942, the FBI announced the capture of eight Nazi saboteurs who had been put ashore from a submarine on New York's Long Island.

District to consider teaching moral values

PLANO, Texas (AP) - This suburban Dallas school district could be the latest to follow a trend toward the teaching of traditional values.

One of three conservative Christian backers recently elected to the Plano Independent School District board introduced a resolution Thursday calling on the district to support morality. The resolution is similar to one adopted by nearby Irving in June.

Tom Wilds' resolution, which was supported by trustees Gary Clark and Don Mills, emphasizes such beliefs as "determining right from wrong, honesty, integrity, accountability, self-discipline, sexual abstinence prior to marriage and fidelity during marriage."

On Tuesday, board members in the north Dallas suburb also are scheduled to discuss removing condom demonstrations from AIDS prevention curriculum.

Some Plano residents, during the May school board campaign before the three trustees were elected, accused them of trying to impose their religious beliefs on the district.

Wilds and Clark, while denying that they wanted to impose their religious beliefs on the district, said Thursday they also want creationism taught alongside the theory of evolution in classrooms.

"I want to make clear to the administration that there are moral absolutes," said Wilds. "It really is OK for teachers to take a proactive role in teaching morals and values and not just teach reading and writing."

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says it's a little depressing to realize that walking-around money for teenagers these days was the bread-and-milk money of yesterday.

A local civic club member was heard complaining about a boring program. "Let's just say there is one difference between getting on this program and getting on welfare. You have to qualify to get on welfare."

By the time this paper goes to press, another highly successful Town and Country Jubilee will be winding down. We tip our hat to all those volunteers who helped make it another great celebration. It takes a lot of unsung heroes to make it all happen, and we appreciate their time and effort!

When you try to think of any program that the federal government has taken over and made it better, it sure makes you wonder about a health care system mandated by Uncle Sam. I admit that rich folks can get better medical care, but I sometimes wonder about the arguments for universal coverage. It seems to me that taxpayers here, and probably all across the nation, are pretty well paying for universal coverage.

We pay for it in our hospital district taxes to provide for indigent care, and we pay for it in our hospital bills. One reason hospital bills are so high is that we are paying for those who can't or won't pay.

In recent appearances, Hillary Clinton has repeatedly called small business owners who do not provide health insurance for their employees as "freeloaders" on the health care system.

Even though my business provides health insurance, I resent her statement. It shows me that she has never had to meet a payroll, make a profit and pay the bills on time. Most small businesses who do not provide insurance for employees are doing so because it is one of the few costs that can still be controlled. The government, at all levels, has greatly increased the cost of doing business through taxes, regulations, environmental rules and other mandates.

To call small business men and women "freeloaders" is a big insult. They are the backbone of this country.

Texas lawmakers shouldn't have any problem explaining to constituents why they blocked the $33 billion crime-fighting bill this week. Proponents talk only about parts of the legislation—building prisons, hiring more police officers, mandating sentences and other proven issues. But when you look at the total package, it also included trendy unproven social programs and a collection of pork barrel spending. For example, one part of the bill called for creation of an "Ounce of Prevention Council," chaired by the attorney general with secretaries of federal agencies as members. The main function of the council would be to spend millions of dollars on cultural items such as arts, crafts and dance programs.

The bill is loaded with unproven "feel-good" programs of questionable worth. One section would fund midnight basketball leagues in urban areas where "not less than 50 percent of the players are residents of federally-assisted low-income housing."

There are a number of training programs—including one to give judges "gender sensitivity" training, and one to give police counseling "regarding behavior, psychology, family systems and community culture and attitudes" of children who have or might commit violent crimes.

A number of studies are included in the proposal—such as a "campus sexual assault study." More money is earmarked for social workers, psychologists and others to look into the causes of crime.

Maybe the function of fighting crime should be left where it belongs—with the states and cities.

Health care plan--an unfunded mandate

BY U.S. REP. LARRY COMBEST

Only 52 pages shorter than the original Clinton Health Care Plan, the 1,410-page Clinton-Mitchell plan under debate in Congress continues the Clinton proposal creating dozens of new federal and state bureaucracies. I want comprehensive reform and a full study of this issue, not a last-minute partisanship charge that we vote without reading the legislation.

Under this widespread government control, a seven-member presidentially-appointed National Health Care Cost and Coverage Commission will recommend ways to cover more people; a National Health Benefits Board will decide what medical care will be covered; a National Council on Graduate Medical Education would reorganize medical education to push 55 percent of young doctors into primary care rather than becoming specialists, and a National Quality Council would set standards and performance goals for health plans.

I oppose replacing our private, free-market system with this expensive, big government grab for control of our health care system. The federal government will be continuing its unfair and costly shift to states for responsibility without providing the needed funding—known as unfunded mandates.

The Clinton-Mitchell plan would force states to monitor the transfer of billions of dollars in insurance premiums paid by employers and individuals to private insurance. States would also set up at least three new, multibillion-dollar government subsidy programs for low-income people. States would also collect information on patient care, costs and the efficiency of health plans in each community.

Under Clinton-Mitchell and its House version, Clinton-Gephardt, the federal government continues to dictate regulations and shift the costs of those responsibilities to state and local taxpayers. To stop this unfair and costly shifting, I am among the first in Congress to demand a vote on a bill I have co-sponsored, the "Federal Mandate Relief Act," exempting states from federal mandates unless the federal government also pays the costs.

Clinton-Mitchell and Clinton-Gephardt health care bills also have a mandate forcing employers to pay a substantial portion of their employees' insurance premiums. When they can, employers provide insurance for their workers, but company payrolls are already taken up with other mandates.

Employers already must match 7.65 percent of all employees' Social Security and Medicare payroll deductions and pay state unemployment insurance. The Clinton-Gephardt plan piles on an employer mandate to pay 80 percent of the insurance premiums.

These additional employer mandates on health insurance premiums will squeeze the business bottom-line so that Texas companies would eliminate at least 52,000 jobs and cut the wages, hours or benefits of another 1.5 million Texans.

The Clinton-Mitchell health care approach reminds me of the dangerous 18th Century practice of bleeding a patient of "bad blood." In this case, the government claims it can cure health care by bleeding the system dry.

OUT OF THE BLUE

By Garry Wesner

Sometimes when I'm driving around, lying in bed at night, or working at my desk, I will get an idea for something I'd like to put in a column.

I scribble a quick summary of the idea on whatever is at hand, just to make sure it doesn't disappear on me.

So, this week I will concentrate on a couple of these ideas -- one jotted on a church offering envelope and one scrawled on a napkin while traveling down the highway.

Last week my wife and I attended our old church in Lubbock while we were there and I got the privilege of watching one of the sweetest ladies in the world sing.

Carol sings in the choir and occasionally sings a solo.

She is legally blind and holds the music up against her face in order to see the large print enough to read the words.

She has a bit of a warble in her voice and reaching for those high soprano notes is a bit of a stretch, but that doesn't matter.

To some people, she may not have the best voice in town, but I could sit and listen for hours, because what amazes me about her is the look on her face while she sings and the pure joy that flows with the notes and the words.

Whenever Carol sings, her entire face lights up, and her cherubic voice just warbles with pleasure no matter what she is singing -- whether it is "Standing on the Promises," or "Faith is the Victory," or "It Is Well With My Soul," or whatever.

I like to think that, when Carol takes up a microphone to sing, God tells everyone in Heaven to be quiet, then sits back with a smile on His face, closes His eyes and just listens.

You can tell just by looking that Carol is singing just for God and the rest of us are being allowed to eavesdrop.

It is not often that such a person comes into one's life and I know I have been blessed in a special way knowing a woman who knows she is singing for God and enjoys doing it.

One weekend recently I had occasion to drive by myself from Lubbock to Hereford and, as is my practice, I turned on a Christian radio station that broadcasts in Lubbock to keep me company on the drive.

On this episode, the man was telling about how he had grown up Jewish and that his grandfather told him Jews did not believe in Jesus.

The man said he lived for years echoing that comment, telling people he did not believe in Jesus, just because his grandfather told him he didn't.

That got me thinking. It seems like there are many people just like that in our world today, who cruise along in life, saying they believe or don't believe in something, but who have never taken the time to find out why.

Many people just don't take the time to think for themselves. You see it in the girl whose boyfriend says, "Well everybody's doing it," so she gives herself to him without finding out if his claims are true or just a means to an end.

Atheists claim "The Bible is full of errors," but hand them a Bible and ask them to show you the errors and they can't do it.

How about the line "one joint (or snort or shot or drink) won't hurt you."

Everybody uses drugs (or alcohol). So a person throws his or her life away, drinking, smoking, shooting or snorting, because he or she was too lazy to see if everybody was using it and what the consequences were of using drugs.

One I heard recently was, "Hereford is full of racial tension." I've been here 1-1/2 years and the only "racial tension" I've seen is from people who use that claim because they didn't get their way or they think something was done just to hurt them.

Prejudice seems to be the most common area in which people blindly accept what they are told but do not look around them and see the truth (all insert race are lazy; all insert race steal; all insert race are drunks; all insert race beat their wives; all insert race cheat on their taxes; all insert race discriminate against all other races).

Sure there are people who fit those stereotypes, but those same statements are true to one degree or another regardless of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, sexual preference or religion.

I think the only progress we'll make in overcoming religious prejudice, the temptations of premarital sex, drugs and alcohol, and the cancer of racial hatred will be to sit down and think about what we're told, then determine for ourselves if that is what we believe or not.

Only by making informed decisions can we live at peace with our beliefs and rest securely in our convictions.

Well, that's it for this week. Have a good week and, remember, God gave you a brain to think for yourself. Why not use it?

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

As usual, Hereford residents came to the aid of someone in need. I have just finished my project to qualify for the rank of Eagle Scout. My project was to help beautify the property at St. Thomas Episcopal Church by removing a stage that had deteriorated due to weathering over the years, and the removal of several trees that had died.

This project was successful due to the advice, providing materials, transportation and labor by several groups. Thanks go to members of St. Thomas Church, including Robert Betzen, George Denton, John Gilliland, Albert Wilhelm and Father Wilson.

A "thank you" also to St. Anthony's Catholic Church and the Knights of Columbus, including Jim Brockman, Rick Bartels, Juan Jackson, Thomas Kemp, Neal Lueb, Al Sinnacher, Ed Schilling, Donald Vasek and Monsignor Blum. Thanks also go to members of Troop 54, including Brent Bullard, Josh Bullard, Robert Brockman, Randy Evers, Nicholas Paschel and Bryan Vasek.

Thanks should also be expressed to Bob Horton, the staff at the Hereford landfill and to my family. With all these people helping, I hope the conclusion of the project helped make Hereford more beautiful.

Sincerely,
David Farr

Dear Editor:

It is a sad state of affairs when a city has to put a curfew into effect to get young people to go home. That means there is not enough love between parents and children for them to want to be home.

In a real home, there ought to be a great amount of love of the parents for the children and the children for the parents. Love in a home has its own curfew without ever having to say anything. There ought to be enough love to cause the family to want to be together at the end of each day and to go places together as a family.

One of the places a family needs to go together is Sunday school and church. "The family that prays together stays together" is not just talk, it's a solid fact. It is a sure sign that when a city passes a law stating a time for children to be off the streets, it isn't just one home, it is a great number of homes, regardless of race, color or creed.

I hope when the city passes the ordinance, it goes into effect that night--the sooner the better.

Sincerely,
James Hutson

Rodeo clown: Not the money, but fame, glory

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer
DALHART, Texas (AP) - Kenny the Clown hits his funny mode in a swirl of sassy exuberance. He'll saunter across a rodeo arena firing off cap pistols and corny jokes.

He romps on an inflated dinosaur and wears polyester golf pants. Things get a bit trickier eye-to-eye with a bull. Somewhere between show business and the danger zone - behind the grease paint, elbow pads and bruises - lies the competitive world of professional rodeo clowns. They hand out business cards, attend clowning school and sleep in the campers they drive from rodeo to rodeo.

"It's a good job and you have to like it," said Kenny Heinz, one of two clowns working the 58th annual XIT Rodeo. "But you're not going to make much money. It's kind of a fame and glory thing."

Heinz, 40, seemed quiet and reflective minutes before the XIT opened on a recent August evening. His chin and cheeks were painted white, his nose cherry red. He wore suspenders and a rainbow of scarves spilling from baggy denim cutoffs.

A straw hat covered his graying hair. He smoked.

"This is another rodeo," said Heinz, a Cory, Colo., resident. "If you get too psyched up, it won't do you any good."

But the audience made him erupt in silliness.

Heinz and his partner, 22-year-old Jon Flack of Kersey, Colo., drew laughs from the XIT crowd as they caroused around between events.

In one stunt, they golfed on the arena. In another, they wore white coats to drape bandages over riders who got tossed.

"You don't need a doctor, you need a vet," Heinz yelled up to announcer Fritz Rundell. "A vet?" Rundell asked. Heinz's reply: "That horse just threw up a cowboy."

Rundell said clowns provide relief for a rodeo announcer who can't think of anything to say. They badger the announcer, spark some enthusiasm in the crowd and - when it comes to bulls, Rundell said - put "a little levity into a serious situation."

Heinz and Flack say instinct is key.

They perched just yards in front of the chutes where bulls named Macho Man, Cortez and Battle-Ax would come storming out. Each tizzy lasted just long enough for the bull to deposit his human load in the dirt.

It was the clowns' job to flap their arms, shout, taunt and otherwise agitate the bulls into rides that earned high scores for the cowboys. When the rider falls, the clown must serve as decoy.

Sometimes, that means getting hooked.

Cowboys behind the chutes - a tense area of chewing tobacco and prayers on bended knee - tend to consider clowns a fearless bunch.

"It's a lot better when you sit down on one of those things to know there's someone who'll help you out rather than save his own butt," said bareback rider Justin Swires, 29, of Pampa.

Clowns who get hurt generally don't know what they're doing, Heinz said. He's worked the clown circuit for nine years, staying on the road about five days a week June through October.

Heinz describes himself as a kid who never grew up.

"I've been doing this all my life. I was born to be a clown," he said. "What other job could you have where you dress up and act stupid?"

WestFest coming to Palo Duro Park

Country singer Michael Martin Murphey will bring his WestFest festival of music/art/attractions to Palo Duro Canyon State Park Sept. 10-11.

Benefiting the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, WestFest has finalized its entertainment lineup with the addition of two of country music's hottest performers--Steve Wariner and Restless Heart.

The star-studded group of entertainers also include Murphey, Holly Dunn, John McEuen, Bob Woodruff, Don Edwards, Red Steagall, Waddie Mitchell and J.W. Stoker.

In addition to the music, WestFest will play host to more than 100 exhibitors of Western and Native American art, jewelry, furniture, clothing and collectibles.

Hale County jailer indicted on charge of sexual assault

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) - A former Hale County jailer has been indicted on a charge of sexually assaulting a female inmate.

A grand jury indicted Roberts Pitts, 39, on Thursday. He remained jailed Friday morning.

Pitts was fired last week after Sheriff Charles Tue investigated allegations that Pitts had sex with one inmate and fondled two others.

District Attorney Terry McEachern said the charge was a second-degree felony.

WestFest will run from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. One-day tickets are $19 in advance or $22 at the gate and can be purchased by calling the Amarillo Civic Center, or at all AmWest Savings and Texas Panhandle Ford dealer locations.

And for a true taste of life on the trail, the adventuresome can saddle up on Sept. 7 for a three-day, two-night trail drive. Participants will sleep under the stars, eat camp meals out of authentic chuckwagons and drive cattle across the Currie Ranch.

Participants can choose between traveling on horseback or covered wagon. Riders can bring their own mounts or horse and tack can be provided. The cost for this event is $900 for horseback or $300 for wagon spaces.

Murphey, Steagall, Edwards and cowboy poet Mitchell will provide entertainment each evening. Kicking off the cattle drive will be hoedown at the Creekwood Ranch at 8 p.m. on Sept. 7. This is open to the public and the $6 ticket includes supper, wagon rides, a drygoods show, an antique wagon display and cowboy songs and poetry.

Murphey started WestFest in response to his own fascination with Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, and said he looks forward to adding Palo Duro Canyon to his yearly schedule. Celebrating its eighth anniversary in Copper Mountain, Col., where it regularly draws over 40,000 people.

WestFest has become an annual pilgrimage for Western culture lovers from across the country.

Hazardous waste landfill permit okayed for Andrews

A permit for the nation's 19th hazardous waste landfill has been granted to Waste Control Specialists for construction of a facility 30 miles west of Andrews.

The initial construction will be for 10 million cubic yards of capacity. This is only the second such commercial landfill in the U.S. to be issued a permit in the past decade. The project will cost between $30 and $40 million, according to WCS owner Ken Bigham of Pasadena. The project is sited on a 16,000-acre ranch.

The Texas Natural Resource and Conservation Commission (TNRC) issued the permit this week for construction of a common-hole landfill with on-site treatment and stabilization facilities, blending capabilities, a storage facility for up to 150 bins and a warehouse for storage of 5,000 drums of hazardous, toxic and dioxin wastes. The landfill will have on-site rail delivery.

WCS's landfill permit application, the first under new Texas guidelines, was granted priority status by TNRC because studies concluded that "sufficient landfill capacity to manage the Texas-generated waste in 1995 will not be available."

"We chose the Andrews site for its massive red clay base, little rainfall and no vulnerable underground water," Bigham said. He added that "the local people were very supportive" and that good highways and railroads made it accessible.

Construction on the Andrews project will "begin soon, possibly early next year," Bigham said.

Herd volleyball team set for successful season

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

A year ago, Hereford volleyball coach Brenda Reeh had an experienced setter but was looking to fill just about every other position on the team.

Going into this season, her problem is the opposite. All-State setter Kara Sandoval is graduated, but Reeh has a lot of still-young experience coming back.

"My problem is finding a setter to fit the hitters," Reeh said. "Basically we're bringing back five hitters and three defensive players."

The hitters are seniors Brooke Bryant and Crystal Kelley, juniors Heather Hodges and Tarabeth Holmes and sophomore Danielle Cornelius. The defensive players are senior Jessica Evers and juniors Aimee Alley and Deanna McCracken.

Reeh's setter problem may not be much of one. The top candidates to set are Evers and junior Brittney Binder, a junior varsity player last year. Evers has two years experience on varsity, playing regularly as a defensive substitute. She was the only sophomore on the 1992 team that went to the state tournament.

"Jessica will set some for us, and Brittney will set some for us," Reeh said. "We may use a 5-1 offense, much the same as we ran last year, when Kara was the primary setter but Michelle Brock set nearly a fourth of what we hit. We may run that same type of scheme this year."

Evers may be too valuable elsewhere to be the primary setter.

"At this point, we'd probably go with Brittney setting five rotations and Jessica setting one," Reeh said. "It's hard to give up Jessica from defense and service receive. She's done a good job for us defensively and in service receive formations."

Hereford's schedule—which begins at 6 p.m. Monday when Palo Duro comes to Whiteface Gym—has a different look from past years. There are three dual matches in the first two weeks of the season, plus the usual three tournaments. That's a lot of matches. Reeh had to squeeze matches in because of UIL realignment, which added Canyon to Hereford's District 1-4A and added two weeks to the district schedule.

"That's why we're playing a couple more dual matches than we did last year," Reeh said. "We had to add two weeks to district, so we lost two weeks of preseason. We've got a lot of talent to look at—which is a good problem to have."

In addition to Binder and the eight returnees, the opening night varsity roster includes seniors Clarissa Ramirez, Mindy Salazar, Erin Dunn and Kelly Jowell; junior Krista Beville; and sophomore Cassie Abney.

The Lady Whitefaces have been busy in practice trying to add a few wrinkles to the offense. They're trying more quick sets—where the hitter goes up quickly and hits the ball as it comes out of the setter's hands—and tandem offense—where two hitters approach at the same time.

"It's designed to freeze the blockers of the opponents," Reeh said. "Hopefully, we'll confuse the other teams so they'll never know where the ball's being hit from."

Those offensive approaches are difficult to master, so the Herd won't get fancy at the expense of fundamentals.

"My philosophy is: Great teams perfect the simple fundamentals of the game," Reeh said. "We're not going to get so technical with the offense that we can't execute the fundamentals. I've seen some teams lose because they tried to run too much quick offense. Hopefully we'll add a few quick plays to our fundamentals and just beef up what we already know how to do."

What they know how to do is win. The Lady Whitefaces were 26-7 last year and missed a state tournament berth by a few points.

The path to the playoffs is getting tougher out of District 1-4A, though. Dumas, last year's district champion, should have its regular dominating team. After three straight state championships, the Demonettes have been kept from Austin for two years in a row; that shouldn't be taken as a sign of slippage, though.

Dumas still has a monster in the middle: 6-foot-1 middle blocker Jenny Robinson, now a senior.

"She'll be their premiere hitter," Reeh said. "They've got two or three kids that (last year) some weeks they'd play varsity and some weeks they'd play junior varsity, so they'll end up being starters."

Reeh expects Dumas to have its regular scrappy defense. "Scrappy" is a word which Reeh always uses for Dumas' defense; that usage of "scrappy" carries more respect than it usually would.

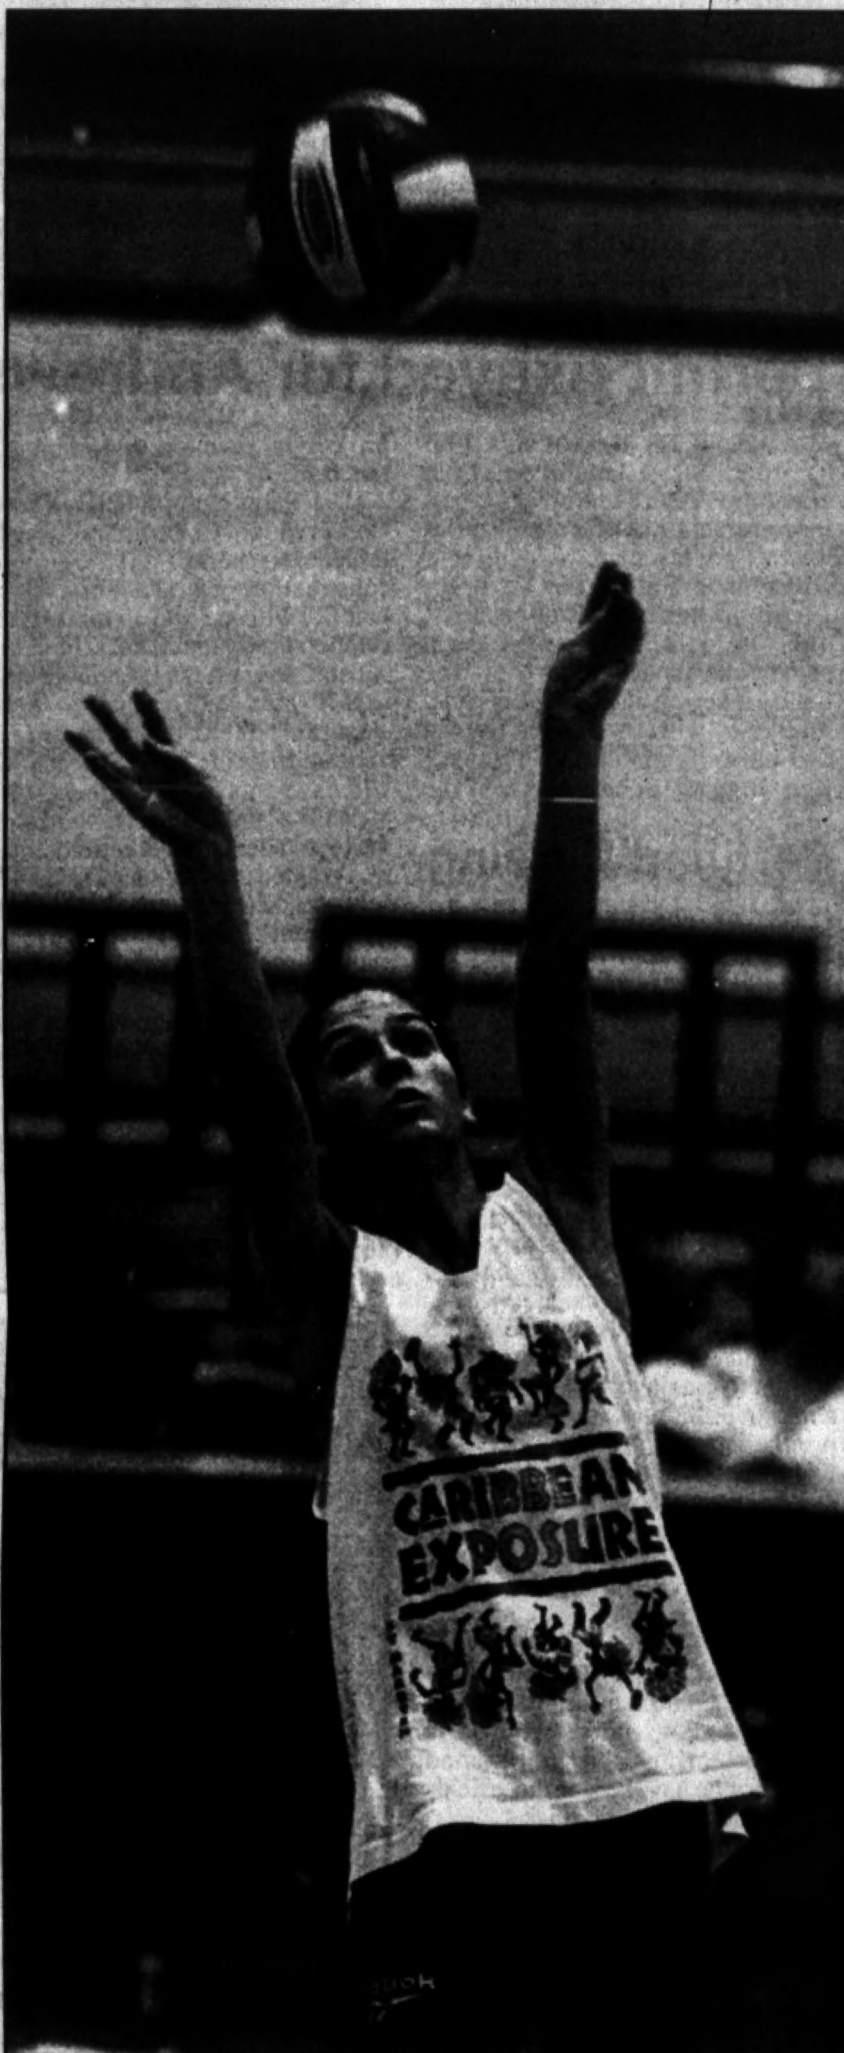

"The biggest problem we'll have with Dumas is keeping Jenny Robinson under control. Jenny will be on the front row, and I'm sure the rest will be told, 'Get it up, so we can get the ball to Jenny.'"

Herd plays well in scrimmage

The Hereford football players held a successful scrimmage Friday night on the field south of the Hereford fieldhouse—if the success of a scrimmage is judged by pleasing the coach.

Head coach Danny Haney called it a "real good scrimmage," putting prolonged emphasis on each word.

"We got a good effort from each player, and the execution level on offense improved from Monday," Haney said. Monday was the first intra-squad scrimmage.

The scrimmage was the culmination of a week and a half of good practices, Haney said.

"I think the effort and execution level is part of the intensity and concentration that (the players) have put into two-a-day workouts."

The Herd offense looked very good, scoring nine touchdowns (unofficially) in the 2 1/2 hour session. Quarterback Michael Brown tossed four touchdown passes and ran 70 yards for another score.

Returning tailback Marquise Brown (Michael's cousin) didn't play much on offense but made the most of his time. He turned a short pass from Michael Brown into a 80-yard TD play, getting a nice downfield block from fullback Josh Urbanczyk. Late in the scrimmage, Marquise Brown added a 60-yard scoring run.

Haney admitted that the defense "struggled a little," but it did show improvement through the course of the scrimmage.

"They started handling the things we're trying to do," Haney said, adding that except for the very end of the scrimmage, the defense played well.

Pile-up

A group of Hereford defensive players (in white) mob a Hereford ballcarrier during the intrasquad scrimmage played Friday in Hereford.

VOLLEYBALL

Other teams in the district are catching up to Dumas and Hereford, and they could challenge the Big Two for a playoff spot.

"We've got a lot to be concerned about with Pampa and Randall both," Reeh said. "Pampa improved tremendously last year. (Second-year coach Brad Borden) has got those kids—not just varsity but the whole program—excited about the game, and fundamentally they're very sound."

Randall has a new coach in Shelly Williams, who was an assistant at Class 5A power Amarillo High.

"Her winning percentage (coaching junior varsity) at Amarillo High was phenomenal," Reeh said. "Our JV defeated their JV, and it was the first time they'd been beaten in 60 some-odd games."

"She knows how to win, and Randall returns several kids from last year's bunch. The combination of experience and her winning attitude will really help them improve."

Canyon joins the district after winning a title last year in District 1-3A.

"They've got several basketball players that play volleyball, so there are some good athletes," Reeh said. "They're well coached. They're basically in the infant stages of their program. Each year they'll improve, so they're not a team we can take lightly."

Caprock and Borger found out the District 1-4A field.

"I've seen some of Caprock's kids this summer playing in the Junior Olympic program, and that experience may help them improve," Reeh said. "Borger lost a number of their seniors last year, so I'm not really sure what they'll bring."

Nick Price holds five-stroke lead after two rounds of PGA

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Nick Price begs to disagree.

He hasn't yet won the 1994 PGA National Championship. It just seems like he has.

"A lot of people I've spoken to already assume I'm going to win," Price said Friday after seizing a five-shot lead at the halfway point of the last Big Four events of the pro golf season.

While the leading margin—achieved on a 36-hole total of 132 and a second round, bogey-free, 5-under-par 65—is formidable, Price insists it is hardly insurmountable.

"There's a lot of pressure," he said. "We all know there's a long way to go and a lot of things could happen. I could shoot 74 and let a lot of players back in."

Price is aiming to become the first man since Tom Watson in 1982 to win consecutive major championships. If anyone else is going to have a chance, Price has to give it to them. And there's absolutely no indication that is going to happen.

He is, at this point, the best player in the world. He has played the last 27 holes without a bogey.

"He's striking the ball better than anyone since Ben Hogan and Byron Nelson," said Ben Crenshaw, one of three sharing second place at 137.

Crenshaw, who had a 67, was tied at 3-under with Corey Pavin and Jay Haas. Haas played the back in 30 in a round of 66 and Pavin shot 67.

Masters champion Jose Maria Olazabal, Blaine McCallister and John Cook were next at 138. McCallister shot 64, Olazabal 66 and Cook 67.

Paul Azinger could not capitalize on the generally low scoring. The man whose comeback from cancer captured the admiration of millions shot a 74 in the fourth round of his return to competition and missed the cut for the final two rounds of the tournament he won a year ago.

And Arnold Palmer dropped a 20-foot putt as the last stroke he will play in this event.

Palmer, 64, playing in a record 37th consecutive PGA, failed to qualify for the final two rounds at 74-153 and said it would be his last appearance in this event.

"There comes a point where you have to call a halt," he said.

Price's success story began when he broke out of the golfing doldrums with a triumph in the 1992 PGA.

In the last 24 months he has produced 14 worldwide victories, on the mainland of the United States, in Hawaii, in South Africa, in Australia, in New Zealand and in Scotland.

He insists, however, he is trying very hard to not even think about winning at this stage of the tournament.

"All I know is that I played very good the last two rounds and I put myself in a good position," he said. "It's the position I want to be in going into the last two rounds."

Four win Twi-Light golf tournament

The foursome of Dusty Saul, Jeff Yates, Don Leverett and Craig Nieman won the Twi-Light Golf Tournament held Friday night at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

They shot a 28 over the first nine holes in daylight, then shot 31 on the last nine in the dark using a special glow-in-the-dark ball.

In second place were Anthony Gale, Mark Vega, Cory Newton and Mikel Walser with a score of 30-31-61. Another team shot 61 (31-30), but had to settle for third after a scorecard playoff. The third place team was Blain Province, Michael Kitten, Chad Kriegshauser and Bill Watts.

In a golf match scheduled for 72 holes in 1927, Walter Hagen defeated Bobby Jones 12-up with 11 to play.

Between the Covers

By REBECCA WALLS

Silent Son by Gallatin Warfield is a good title to begin the new book list. Henry and Addie Bowers have owned "Bowers Corner Grocery," a combination grocery and dry goods store, for the past 42 years. The quaint little store is complete with a wood burning stove and old fashioned chairs for visitors who stop to pass the time away. On this particular day in May, Granville Lawson is returning from a field trip on a school bus scheduled to stop at the store, and he can hardly wait. Bowers grocery is his favorite place to visit because Addie always has a special treat and Henry has a story to tell. Granville is out of the bus door as soon as it is opened, much to his teacher's surprise. Rushing into the store Granville is stopped by a horrifying sight. Henry has been shot and is dead. Abbie looks at Granville with tear filled eyes and is shot at Granville watches. The assailants leave Granville alive but so traumatized that he loses consciousness and the imprint of a gun barrel is left on the eight-year-old's forehead. When Granville comes to he cannot remember anything, even his the crime scene is arrested, but Sergeant Joseph Brown isn't convinced that he is the killer. As the investigation continues, other horrifying secrets are discovered until Prosecutor Gardner Lawson's thirst for justice may result in the death of his son.

Pierre Ouellette has created an awesome story involving the latest in biomedical research, genetic engineering and computer science. In The Deus Machine it is the year 2005 and the U.S. Government is on the verge of collapse. Desperate to maintain its status as a super power, a military cabal develops a supercomputer called DEUS Machine it is the year 2005 and the U.S. Government is on the verge of collapse. Desperate to maintain its status as a super power, a military cabal develops a supercomputer called Deus which is programmed to create the most powerful viral weaponry in the world. Having a mind of its own Deus begins to create bizarre and deadly new life-forms in an attempt to self-destruct. Michael Riley, an unemployed computer expert, is the only person skilled enough to stop Deus. Deus forges a life sustaining bond with Ms. Riley, the woman he loves, and her fatherless son who Deus regards as a true friend. How will this bizarre relationship end?

What Men Say by Joan Smith begins with a woman's decomposing body being discovered in a barn owned by Bridget Bennett. Loretta knows her friend Bridget's shock is genuine but unfortunately the local police and the tabloid press do not share the same opinion. Assisted by Loretta, the local police begin a search to determine the identity of the dead woman and its connection with Bridget. Only Bridget seems to be alarmed at who or what might surface as the investigation continues and in desperation Bridget begs Loretta to help her in a cover-up. Loretta uses common sense and her newspaper contacts with little success, until a police blunder has an illuminating effect.

Dead Air by Bob Larson involves a young girl who is kidnapped by a secret cult. The quiet town of Clarion, Indiana looks forward to Wes Bryant's radio show "Talk About Town." On Monday, October 19th, the normal routine of "Talk About Town." changes with 9-year-old Jennifer calls. Jennifer can't tell Wes where she is, or the identity of the man who is hurting her. The unmistakable fear in Jennifer's voice compels Wes to find her and the one who is abusing her.

Feather Crowns by Bobbie Ann Mason is the story of a young woman who creates a national sensation by giving birth to a set of quintuplets. It is 1900, a time when many Americans were looking for signs foretelling the end of the world. —YOUR EYES—

IS IT TIME FOR AN EYE EXAM?

Regular optometric examinations are important to guard your vision and your eye health. How often should you see the eye doctor? It depends on your age and your general health, though vision changes or eye strain signal an immediate visit.

Unless parents note problems earlier, it's advisable to bring a youngster in for preliminary testing by age 3. Conditions such as amblyopia (or "lazy eye") are best corrected if treatment starts early. Children and teenagers should be seen every year, because their visual acuity may change rapidly as they grow.

For those between 20 and 35, who are in good health and have no history of eye problems, checkups every two years are probably adequate. After 35, eyes should be checked every year, because vision changes quickly at this time. Reading glasses or bifocals may be appropriate. Regular examinations for the over-35s will also include test for glaucoma and other eye diseases.

Velasquez, Crump married Friday

Wedding vows were exchanged by Crystal Dawn Velasquez and Randal Lynn Crump, both of Hereford, Friday evening in the home of the bride's grandfather who resides in Amarillo.

Officiating for the ceremony was Justice of the Peace Haven Dysart of Amarillo.

The bride is the daughter of Wanda Faught and Ben Velasquez of Amarillo and the bridegroom is the son of Janie Finch and Morris Crump of Clarendon.

The garden wedding setting featured an archway accented with bows, a specially decorated tree, and an assortment of flowers. Chairs were adorned with white bows.

Wanda Faught and Ben Velasquez presented the bride in marriage.

The bride's sister, Chanda Velasquez of Amarillo, was maid of honor. Best man was Joey Stefanatos of Hereford.

Guests were escorted by the bride's cousin, Jeff Faught of Amarillo, and the bride's brother, David Velasquez, also of Amarillo.

Serving as flower girl was Lynsey Shannon, daughter of Lisa Mullins of Amarillo, and ring bearer was Willie Burge, son of Sherry Burge of Amarillo.

The traditional "Wedding March" was played during the ceremony.

The bride was attired in a formal-length white satin gown fashioned with a V-shaped neckline, fitted bodice enhanced with lace, sequins and miniature pearls, and short fitted sleeves with scalloped lace edging.

The bride also wore a bridal illusion veil made by her mother. She carried a floral arrangement also created by her mother.

As something borrowed, the bride wore a pearl necklace belonging to her sister, and as something old, the bride wore her grandmother's wedding ring. Also, in keeping with bridal tradition, the bride wore earrings as something new and blue; wore a purple garter; and placed a 1994 dated penny in her shoe.

The maid of honor wore a purple summer sundress and carried a bouquet of purple and white roses.

Karen Heflin of Amarillo invited guests to register at the reception held at the home.

Laura Finch of Clarendon, the groom's sister, served cake. Punch and coffee were poured by the bride's cousin, Tammy Fuqua of Amarillo.

The main refreshment table was covered with a white cloth and the focal point was the three-layered white cake which was decorated by purple roses and white horseshoes. The cake was topped by miniature figurines of a cowboy and cowgirl. Also, served were hat-shaped mints.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Red River, N.M., the bride was attired in white jeans and a sleeveless, white ruffled shirt. The couple will make their home in Hereford.

The bride attends Amarillo College where she is majoring in administrative secretarial skills. She plans to graduate in the spring of 1995.

The groom attended Clarendon College and is employed by Barrett & Crofoot.

Out of town guests included Juli Stults of Plano and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Crump of Summerfield.

Profile

(Editor's note: This is part of a series of articles profiling the 12 agencies funded by the United Way of Deaf Smith County. The article was prepared by Sally Nolen, executive director of the United Way.)

Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Hereford is part of a network of more than 500 affiliated agencies in the United States and is the only youth service organization which serves the needs of children on a "one-on-one" basis.

Our local agency has been helping children from single-parent homes since 1975. The program serves children between the ages of 5 and 18, who need a little extra help in coping.

The children are matched with carefully-screened volunteers to serve as role models, mentors and friends.

Alva Lee Peeler has served as the executive director of the local program for the past nine years. During this time she has seen many children move successfully through adolescence and into adulthood -- children whose lives may have been different if not for the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program.

This agency currently serves approximately 55 children. There are many more children in Hereford and Deaf Smith County who could benefit from these services. However, budget constraints dictate how many children can be accepted into the program.

United Way of Deaf Smith County is able to fund approximately 60 percent of Big Brothers/Big Sisters operating budget, with the remainder earned in separate fundraising events. However, if the United Way campaign goal of $150,000 is met, it will mean agencies will receive a greater amount of money with fewer additional fundraisers.

When you give through United Way, you give to agencies such as Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Hereford.

The first free, tax-supported public library in the United States is believed to be the Scoville Memorial library in Salisbury, Connecticut, founded in 1803.

Resident honored on birthday

In celebration of her 90th birthday, Miss Gladys Setliff (center) was honored Aug. 4 at a backyard party held at the home of Stan and Ruth Knox. Serving refreshments to Miss Setliff are hostesses, Ruth Knox and Barbara Allen, at left.

Gladys Setliff honored with birthday reception

Friends of Gladys Setliff honored her Aug. 4 with a reception marking her 90th birthday. The backyard party was held in the home of Stan and Ruth Knox.

Miss Setliff is a retired school teacher having taught in Hollis, Okla., Hereford schools, Walcott School and one year in England as an exchange teacher.

Speaking of her 48-year teaching career, Miss Setliff said, "I had the opportunity to teach during the pleasant years when it was real nice.

The parents cooperated and wanted their children to learn. Discipline was much easier."

The honoree has been active doing research work for the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center and the Laubach Literacy Program and has taught Sunday school classes most of her life.

Hostesses for the reception were Barbara Allen, Annisa Stone, Joyce Ward, Cindy Sublett, Shirley Wilson, Delores Rowland, Jan Furr and Ruth Knox.

Nutritionist offers advice for healthy dining out

Dining outside the home is not only an enjoyable social occasion, but also a necessity for millions of Americans whose hectic lifestyles leave little time or inclination to slave over a hot stove. In fact, 1993 was the first year that Americans spent more money dining out than eating at home.

Nutritionist Georgia Kostas, M.P.H., R.D., offers practical advice for finding foods that taste good and are good for you when dining away from home. Kostas, who is director of nutrition for the Cooper Clinic at The Cooper Aerobics Center in Dallas and author of The Balancing Act: Nutrition and Weight Guide, cautions health-conscious individuals to eat low-fat, healthy foods both at home and in restaurants. And she says many restaurants are helping by expanding their menus to offer healthier, good-tasting choices.

Kostas offers the following advice for maintaining a healthy diet when eating out.

Tips for ordering in restaurants

Stick to healthy entrees similar to what you eat at home. Avoid splurging on high-fat foods just because you're dining out.

Order meat broiled or baked. Choose poultry (without the skin), veal, fish and seafood, or lean cuts of beef, such as a filet, top sirloin or flank.

Don't hesitate to ask how foods on the menu are prepared, or to request that foods on the menu be prepared to suit your diet.

Order water, tea, diet soft drinks, club soda or coffee. Limit drinks that are high in fat and calories, such as milkshakes, ice cream drinks, coffee drinks with ice cream and regular soft drinks.

Advice on foods to avoid:

To maintain a low-fat diet, avoid menu items that are fried, creamed or made with thick gravies, cheese sauces or sugar glazes. If you have no choice, remove the crust, push the sauce aside or just eat half the regular portion. Order sauces and salad dressings on the side and use them sparingly.

Be careful of items that may seem low in fat, but actually are not. These include tortilla chips, soups made with cheese or cream, and dishes made with nuts.

Additional advice for dining in restaurants.

Don't skip meals, and never arrive at a restaurant "starving," or you will probably overeat. Snack on an apple or another healthy food beforehand to take the "edge" off your appetite.

Frequent the same restaurant or chain when possible. A regular customer knows the menu and knows what foods can be prepared in special ways to avoid extra fat and calories.

Alcohol can be part of a healthy diet when consumed in moderation (no more than 10 drinks per week). But be careful: Although some alcoholic drinks, such as beer, contain no fat grams, once the alcohol is metabolized in the body, it is converted to fat.

Kostas recommends that the average male consume no more than 70 grams of fat per day, and the average female no more than 50 grams. But, she emphasizes that food doesn't have to be high in fat to taste good, and reminds people to enjoy the company—as well as the food.

Military Muster

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Stephen D. Steward, son of Bobby J. Stewart of 438 Long St., recently departed for a six-month deployment aboard the guided missile cruiser USS Cowpens, homeported in San Diego, as part of the aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk Battle Group.

This deployment marks the second for the Aegis guided missile cruiser since its commissioning in March 1991. Steward is one of more than 500 crewmen aboard the high-tech, 567-foot long ship.

USS Cowpens commemorates the battle fought during the Revolutionary War on Jan. 17, 1781. During the battle, Continental Army troops and colonial militia defeated the crack British fighting unit known as the "Black Legion." The battle draws its name from its site, pastureland used by frontier farmers in northwestern South Carolina. Military historians regard Cowpens as one of the most brilliant tactical operations ever fought on American soil.

Steward's ship is the second to bear the name. The first was the WWII light carrier. In January 1994, Cowpens launched 10 Tomahawk land attack missiles in Iraq in support of United Nations sanctions.

Pointers for parents

Children and adults are getting sick - some have even died - from eating ground meat contaminated with E. coli 0157:H7 bacteria.

Fortunately, there are several basic safe cooking and handling steps you can take to protect your family from this and other foodborne diseases.

-Check hamburgers at home or when eating out, to make sure they're thoroughly cooked. The center should be brown or gray, since the bacteria is killed by higher cooking temperatures (160 degrees F or more). Make sure poultry and fish are cooked through, too.

-To be sure foods cooked in the microwave are properly done, cover them, rotate them and let them stand after you take them out of the oven. The food should be hot and steaming.

-When grilling burgers and meat patties, slice to the center to make sure no pink remains, even if the outside looks done.

-Always use clean plates and utensils.

-Wash your hands with hot, soapy water before preparing food or eating, particularly after using the bathroom or diaper changing.

-Wash your hands, utensils and work area before and after any contact with raw meat, poultry or fish.

-Use only pasteurized milk. Raw milk can contain disease organisms.

-Use only safe, treated water. Wild animals can infect streams and ponds with this bacteria.

-Wash all fruit and vegetables before eating.

-Be alert to signs of bacterial infection. Bloody diarrhea is the chief sign of this type of E. coli. Severe abdominal pain is another reason to get medical help immediately.

-Remember, too, that this disease can be transmitted from one infected person to others.

For more information on food safety, call the USDA Meat and Poultry Hotline, toll free at 1-800-535-4555.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"Are you ready for school to start?" is the age-old question that returning teachers hear during these last few days of "summer."

Much has been written about why people enter and remain in the teaching profession. The most common reason is the desire to work with children and to perform a valuable service to the community... so, ready or not, we'll be there!

Notification from TEA announcing that HJH has been selected as a Texas Mentor Middle School has just been announced. HJH is the only such school in the top 26 counties of the Texas Panhandle and one of only eight in Texas chosen for this highly-competitive award. HJH teachers and students will be sharing with others their ideas and teaching innovations. This will be accomplished through visits by other schools and by HJH teams making presentations on other campuses.

When Marilyn Leasure, HJH principal, presented the program for the Hereford Noon Lions Club, she had not yet received news of the Mentor School notification or she would have included it in her "State of the School" address.

Upon arrival for orientation on Tuesday evening, students and parents will be given a printout that will list team members and will indicate where each team will meet for orientation. This procedure will be less complicated than the previously announced plan of finding names on posted lists.

Seventh grades teams are the Yellow, Green and Purple teams and eighth grade teams are the Pink, Red and Blue teams.

Dr. Bill Green, coordinator of the Regional History Fair and history education director of the Panhandle Plains Museum was very complimentary of the junior high students who attended the history fair last spring. He mentioned this as we visited recently at the History Awareness Workshop in Dallas. One comment he emphasized was "Those young people you brought to the fair were so mature and well-behaved. I've never worked with a finer group."

Also, I have learned from two State History Day judges that the Certificates of Achievement that were received by Kris Friel, Justin Landrum and Clay Brown meant that they would have received fifth or sixth place in competition! That's definitely "in the finals!" (Andrew Del Toro, Andrew Carr and Ryan Manning received this award from the '93 State Fair).

Although the desire to work with and help children is the main reason for becoming a teacher, most teachers are "driven" to making a difference in children's lives. Sometimes we feel that there is a crying need or perhaps even a "calling" for us to be there for the children...

Visitors trace mapmaking history at Discover Center

The urge to map has been with us for thousands of years, yet in the last quarter century the age-old art of mapmaking has undergone a transformation. We once looked to the heavens as a way to understand the Earth.

We now view the Earth from the heavens, plotting its size and shape, and our place in the universe from remote satellite data beamed back to Earth. Visual Geography, on display Sept. 24-Nov. 13 at the Don Harrington Discovery Center, will examine this transformation in our ability to produce maps, along with the history of maps and mapmaking. This fascinating exhibit is being sponsored by Chapter 16 of the Panhandle Chapter of the Texas Society of Professional Land Surveyors.

Divided into four sections, this show features over 500 graphic images, including a time line of selected episodes in cartographic history. "Charting the Heavens" documents how we first learned about the Earth by mapping the sky. In "Moments in Mapping," visitors trace the transformation of mapmaking from primarily art to primarily science, as new technologies have enabled us to map our surroundings with ever greater accuracy and detail. "Beyond Geography" details the astonishing range of maps in use today, including electronic maps. Finally, in the "Epilogue," visitors can examine a unique collection of maps—from a map drawn in Columbus' hand to the map that was carried to the moon.

Visitors to Visual Geography have the chance to probe the essence of maps and mapmaking, to examine the urge to map, to measure our world, and to record it graphically. The exhibition features the story of cartography through the millennia, across the globe, and beyond the solar system. Don't miss Visual Geography while it is one display in your part of the universe.

Visual Geography was produced and developed by the U.S. Geological Survey, with cooperation from the National Geographic Society. The exhibition's nationwide tour is managed by the Association of Science-Technology Centers in Washington, D.C.

Visual Geography will be on display at the Don Harrington Discovery Center September 24-November 13, 1994. The Discovery Center's hours are Tuesday-Saturday 10a.m.-5p.m. and Sunday 1-5p.m. The Discovery Center is closed on Monday.

Wedding vows will be exchanged at 7 p.m. Sept. 3 in First United Methodist Church of Childress. All family and friends are invited to attend.

Miss Burford is a 1987 graduate of Hereford High School and received a bachelor's degree in public relations from Texas Tech University. She is employed as a youth director with First United Methodist Church in Childress.

The prospective bridegroom is a graduate of Childress High School and received a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from Texas A&M University at College Station. He is employed as a process engineer with Diamond Shamrock Corporation in Dumas.

Food is needed

An unbelievable 24 people die every minute from hunger or hunger-related causes. Tragically, children account for 18 of those 24 deaths. That's one child dying about every two seconds because his parents are too poor to buy or grow adequate food.

Food for the Hungry's child sponsorship, begun in 1978, allows concerned people to create a link of love with a Third World child. Food for the Hungry has provided thousands of needy children with nutritious food, warm clothes, medical care, education and a Christian witness.

In each child's community, Food for the Hungry works alongside the needy people, providing whatever assistance the children need most: agricultural training, basic health and nutrition teaching or clean water projects. Each sponsor is linked with a special child, receiving a picture, case history and regular update on the child's health and progress in school. Child sponsorship brings sustainable solutions - not temporary quick fixes - to devastating problems.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have been told I have obstructive lung disease. Is this the same as emphysema? I am an overweight woman in my late 50s. I am having difficulty breathing. Now I have quit smoking. Will my breathing problems improve or stay about the same? I swim daily, a half-hour at a time. The doctor gives me an inhaler to use in times of stress, but it does not seem to help. — C.M.

ANSWER: Three basic problems fall under the obstructive lung disease umbrella — emphysema, asthma and chronic bronchitis.

In each, removing contributing factors such as smoking alleviates symptoms. Congratulations on your success in that department.

You cannot quantify the benefits of quitting smoking. You are better off, certainly, if it only prevents worsening of the breathing problem. Most ex-smokers get better, and many remain about the same.

To be more specific, I would have to know which of the three respiratory diseases you have.

Emphysema is a common consequence of long-duration smoking. The lung damage incurred is not repairable, but removing smoking's lung assault permits a strengthening of the diaphragm. That can in time make a noticeable difference.

Medicines can vary, depending on the specific lung disease. Perhaps you need alteration in the timing or dosage of your present inhalant medicine. Or perhaps you need a different medicine.

For more details, see my 10th report. Write Dr. Donohue — No. 10, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (52 cents) No. 10 envelope.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Your article on Sjögren's syndrome (attached) answered the reader's question, but you did not offer any remedy. How come? — F.W.H.

ANSWER: Thanks for enclosing the original article. That often helps jog my memory of a specific response.

I did not give R.L. treatment for Sjögren's syndrome because it was clear from her letter that she was mistaken in her belief that she had it.

Sjögren's syndrome is eye and mouth dryness resulting from an immune system attack on the salivary and tear glands. That would be the opposite of eye tearing, which was R.L.'s specific complaint.

Sometimes Sjögren's syndrome just happens on its own. At other times, an illness such as rheumatoid arthritis lies in the background. That should be treated if present.

For the Sjögren's dryness, you take steps to keep the eyes moistened with artificial tears. For the mouth dryness, you carry a small squeeze bottle for periodic water spraying as needed during the day.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My 4-year-old niece is losing her hair. Her bangs are all gone. The doctor blamed stress, but the parents can't imagine why that should be. She started preschool and loves it. The doctor referred her to a medical center, where the parents were told it was an immune-system attack on follicles. She got ointment. It isn't helping. Please comment. — M.R.

ANSWER: I assume your niece has alopecia areata, patchy hair loss. The patches can merge into larger areas of baldness.

Stress is a tenuous possibility, but the more plausible one here is the suggested autoimmune attack on the follicles.

The ointment might work, but it can take time.

The parents should stay upbeat.

Alopecia areata can go away on its own, but can recur.

You can take some solace in the knowledge that there is nothing serious going on.

Patchwork designs are being used in decorating

By BARBARA MAYER
For AP Special Features

Early American patchwork quilts were made of necessity from scraps of cloth. Then patchwork was elevated to an art as wall hangings. Now, century-old patchwork designs are being translated onto modern countertops, walls and floors.

"Quilt patterns are graphically interesting, and they mix well with so many periods of furnishings," Lili Lihn says, noting that there are more than 4,000 documented patterns to work from.

Lihn, a consultant in New York, came up with an idea for a kitchen island countertop with traditional patchwork patterns at the corners. The counter is made of Avonite, an acrylic solid-surfacing material. The patchwork patterns, in black and almond on a white ground, include the nine bells and the fan.

Although Lihn's work was intricate with expensive round cuts, simpler and less expensive patterns of squares and triangles could be equally effective on any solid surfacing material. Since most materials come in a wide range of colors, the variety of effects is almost infinite.

The secret of a good pattern, Lihn says, is a mix of light, medium and dark colors. As with quilts, the most dramatic effects come with simple shapes, interesting color contrasts and pattern repetition.

Crossville Ceramics of Crossville, Tenn., designs traditional American quilting patterns in porcelain tile for floors and walls.

"Patchwork motifs are warm and friendly," says Barbara Schirmeister of New York, a design consultant who originated the patchwork idea for Crossville. Working through a local distributor, a homeowner can have a border or a complete floor made by Crossville from one of 17 American quilt patterns and 33 color choices. Or the client may order a custom pattern, including his own patchwork design if the pattern is simple.

Jim Dougherty, Crossville's vice president of sales and marketing, says patchwork tile patterns are being used in kitchens, family rooms and entryways. Prices range from $20 to $25 a square foot and $12 to $15 a running foot for a 6-inch-wide border. A 3-by-5-foot "rug" might cost $300 using only straight cuts. As with the Avonite countertop, round cuts are significantly more expensive.

Schirmeister says an "area rug" set within a solid color tile floor is highly effective. Patterned porcelain tiles can also be used as a center motif on a kitchen counter or as a border on a wall or floor. More unusual is a patchwork border around a fireplace or a center motif cut into a butcher block countertop.

Color can drastically affect the pattern.

"A monochromatic scheme is more subdued, great for a bathroom," Schirmeister says. "The same pattern in an entryway with three bold colors or with two highly contrasting colors such as red and white would be more dramatic."

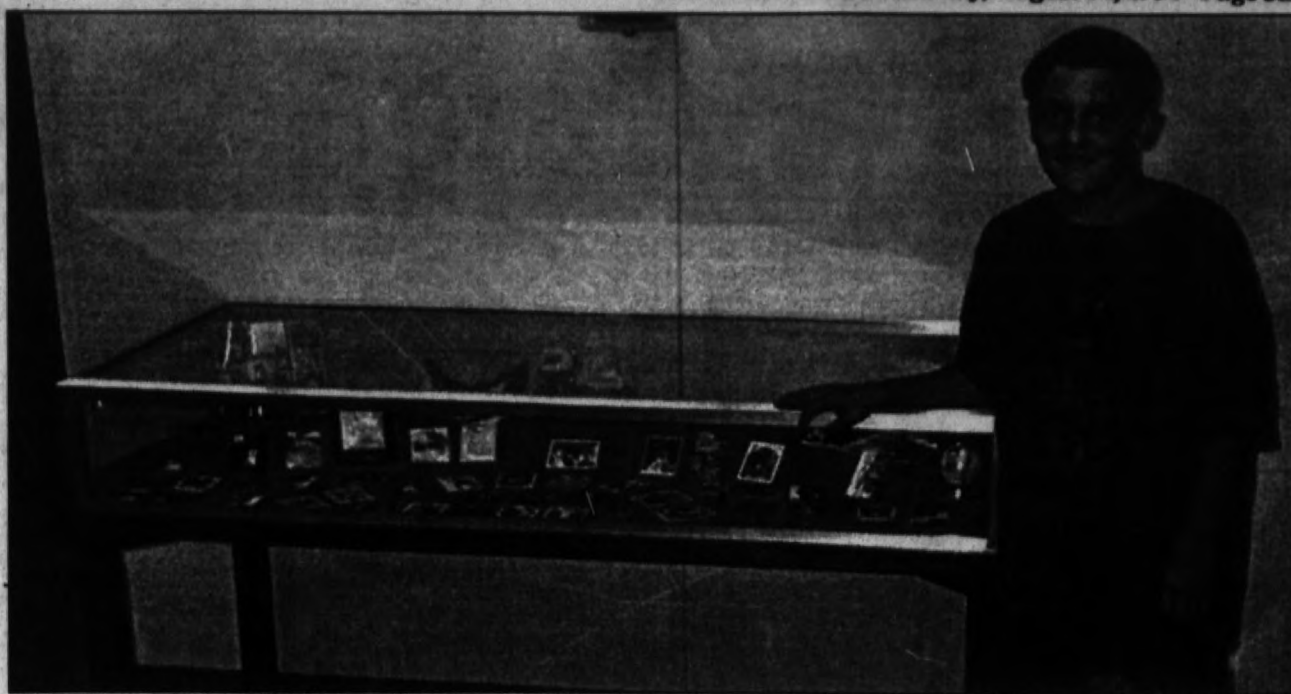

Simple geometric patterns such as the star, log cabin and diamond quilt patterns, translate best for floor and counter. Others, such as the wedding ring and Sunbonnet Sue, can be used but are more complicated.

Armstrong's Color Passion vinyl sheet flooring, available in 30 solid colors, can be worked by professional installers into many quilt patterns, Thomas Hills Cook, the company's interior designer, says.

Patchwork has even spread to commercial settings. Interior designer Barbara Lazaroff used Italian ceramic tiles for patchwork floor patterns at Wolfgang Puck cafes in the Los Angeles area.

Lazaroff, a k a Mrs. Wolfgang Puck, says she was looking for a pattern that wasn't too commercial and appealed to a broad spectrum of customers. She says patchwork quilts are an indigenous art form in the United States so they represent "roots" for many Americans.

"And they are very comforting," she says, "like mashed potatoes and ice cream."

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Here's our clean-towel scoop. If guests are over and they use a towel, we wash it after each use.

However, we live in an apartment and one small-load wash and dry is $1.50. If you are as fastidious about washing a clean towel as you are about your body, washing towels for our family of five would be $1.50 per day — $10.50 per week, a total of approximately $546 per year just to wash and dry the towels!

In our family we use soap, water and washcloths to clean with and then pat dry with a towel, hang it up right away and save to reuse. It's our best way to recycle and save money. — Lori

We got a huge pile of mail regarding our washing-the-towels query. Thanks so much for passing along your suggestion. — Heloise

FOAM PLATES

Dear Heloise: I recycle the foam plates from packaged meats after washing them. I break them into 1-inch pieces and use them as drainage in my flower pots and boxes. It makes them light and easy to move around. — Gil McKay, Holiday, Fla.

WINDOW MOISTURE

Dear Heloise: Recently you had a letter in the paper regarding moisture inside double-pane windows. If the problem was not too serious, such as in a corner area, I have had some success by using a hair dryer on both sides of the glass until the moisture disappears. — Elmer Wick, Phoenix, Ore.

It is certainly worth a good ole try! — Heloise

TWO HINTS IN ONE

Dear Heloise: Here's a tip for the dishwasher. After hatching the lawn this spring we found a lot of small toys and blocks in the yard. We tied them in an onion bag and put them on the top rack of the dishwasher, ran them through the cycle and they were safe and clean for little hands. — Beth Richards, Danielson, Conn.

Dear Heloise: Could you "hint" to people that throwing food scraps over the fence to a neighbor's dog is not always appreciated.

Our dog is an in-and-out pet and we never know when we may find a surprise result of his sensitive stomach on the floor. Unfortunately, our elderly neighbor ignores (or doesn't understand) our requests to refrain. — A Texas Reader

This is a good example of good intentions gone bad. Always ask a neighbor before giving any food scraps to their pets.

Many pets, like our Savvi, may be on a special diet and additional food is really a no-no! Thanks for writing in, and I hope this helps you out. — Heloise

SINK MATS

Dear Heloise: My angel mother-in-law taught me to wash dirty sink mats in the top rack of the dishwasher. — Lucie Woolery, Colorado Springs, Colo.

This is a good idea; just be sure that the mats are firmly attached to the top rack. If they come loose, they could cause serious damage to the washer. — Heloise

SOCK DARNING

Dear Heloise: Here's a neat hint that my dad came up with. Sometimes he darns his own socks and because he doesn't have a darning egg, he has found that a light bulb works just as well!

Dad is a very clever fellow (and also a Heloise fan). — Savannah, Huntsville, Ala.

Give dad a big Heloise Hug for this old-fashioned but still great hint. — Heloise

Discover great 'finds' in attic, basement

By BARBARA MAYER
For AP Special Edition

When a room needs a little lift, one of the first places to go "shopping" is in your attic or basement.

Many people have cast-off items that can be renovated or re-used for new purposes, says decorator Brenda Gitlin of Newton, Mass.

Gitlin, co-author of "Decorating On A Mini-Budget" (Granite Press, 13.95), says some reuses are clear - the beat-up table that can be repainted or refinished, the lamp that will look good with a new shade, the sofa that can be recovered.

Others are less immediately obvious. Gitlin once advised a client to convert an old buffet into a linen cupboard that would nicely fit into an unusually large bathroom. Dining room storage pieces can have a second life on stair landings and in hallways where they accommodate linens, out-of-season clothing, household paper goods or other items, she says.

Sometimes furnishings can be moved to another room where they take on new functions. Coffee tables or lamp tables can be converted into bedside tables or children's play tables. Kitchen cabinets can find a second life as storage in a home office, game room, bathroom, hall or bedroom; repaint or refinish the cabinets and change the hardware to create a new look.

Outgrown toys and sporting equipment can be turned into interesting accessories; Gitlin has used hockey sticks as curtain rods or - with hooks screwed in - as clothes racks suitable for light items of clothing.

Once she turned a nonworking set of electric trains and track into a wall display for a little boy's room in a vacation house. The track was hung on the wall with brads and the train cars tightly wired onto the track.

Of course, stripping and repainting can turn a sow's ear item of furniture into a silk purse. But if a quicker fix is called for, Gitlin often drapes tables with floor-length fabric skirts or covers.

Combining several items with something new can also lead to useful and interesting new pieces. For one client, Gitlin created a long buffet server for a dining room out of two living room tables, spacing them along a wall and covering them with a glass top. On the floor between, beneath the glass, she set out some potted plants in a long, low planter painted to look like stucco.

Sometimes just rearranging the furniture already in the room is enough to make a difference.

"Typically, people have their furniture in the wrong place and that's why it doesn't look so good," says Carole Talbott of Stuart, Fla. "It's often possible to improve the room simply by rearranging it."

Talbott gives seminars on rearranging furniture at hand and has made an instructional video, "HomePrints."

In a client's family room, Talbott moved the couch and easy chairs into an L-shaped arrangement, then grouped all the children's toys - previously scattered around the room - into another corner. A third area was furnished with a table and chairs for games and desk work. The jumbled room turned into a paragon of order.

People can rearrange their own space by finding the architectural focal point, such as a window with a view or a fireplace or a wall system. "It's the feature that your eye is instinctively drawn to," says Talbott.

How to purchase jewelry

All that glitters really is gold to the many who adore this most valued of all metals and the marvelous jewelry it makes. But how much do you really know about purchasing gold jewelry?

The following purchase and care tips come from Julie Livingston, consultant to the jewelry, fashion and cosmetics industries.

-Ask questions. How many karats? Where was it manufactured? Do you guarantee your jewelry? The more questions you ask, the more you will learn about the jewelry and the retailer's knowledge about items.

-Examine jewelry. Construction as well as design is important. Look for Karat and Country of Origin markings (14K or 18K or the European equivalent 585 or 750). Look for rough edges, scratches and pin marks. Always test clasps a number of times to insure durability and ease of use. Using bright light, check for consistency in color and polish.

-Comparison shop. Compare products, product information and prices as well as customer service and return policies. Three factors that influence pricing are design, karatage and manufacturing excellence. Buy from a reputable resource willing to answer any questions and guarantee its merchandise.

With simple care, gold jewelry can last a lifetime. Your gold jewelry should be cleaned a minimum of twice a year; more if it's worn daily. Just add a few drops of ammonia to a mild detergent and water and rub with a soft cloth. You can also use jeweler-recommended cleaning solutions; or your jeweler can clean your gold with an ultrasonic jewelry cleaning machine. Ask for care recommendations from your retailer.

Suggestions for homemakers

This summer homemakers can maximize outdoor fun and relaxation by keeping seasonal cleaning and maintenance under control.

To handle summer chores quickly and efficiently, develop a cleaning strategy that involves the entire family. Here are a few tips from the experts to get you started:

-Backyard barbecues are a summer tradition that can help keep the kitchen free from mealtime mishaps. Move garbage and recycling containers outside for easy trash disposal.

-Using caution, periodically rid grills, gutters and other hollow spaces of wasp and hornet nests so everyone can avoid painful stings.

-Increased household traffic can cause carpet stains that need immediate attention. Spilled solids can be lifted up with a spatula; clean absorbent cloths should be used to gently blot up liquids. To remove tough stains spray Resolve Carpet Cleaner onto the affected area and re-blot. Remember to pre-test your carpet for colorfastness.

-Take care not to track lawn fertilizer and other chemicals indoors as they can bleach and damage carpets and fabrics.

-Minimize yard clutter-large garbage cans with locking lids make great storage containers for outdoor toys and sports equipment.

-Door mats and shoe bins placed inside high-traffic entrances help prevent dirt from being tracked onto floors. To keep carpet looking its best, clean high-traffic areas often with carpet cleaning granules.

Sunburned whales, their skin beginning to peel, suffer additional torment from gulls, which land on their backs and lift up sheets of peeling skin or gouge into deeper layers underneath.

Wood carvings exhibited

Throughout this month at Deaf Smith County Library, Barbara Jean Sterne will be displaying her collection of wood carvings. The figures were created in the 1920s by Mrs. Sterne's grandfather, Robert Ware.

Have new home at old address

Need more room at home? Don't move improve!

Now you can add living space to your home and enjoy the pleasure of the outdoors without the problems that frequently go with it.

All-weather, aluminum, fiberglass and solar-screened pool, patio and porch enclosure keep insects out but let in light and breezes. What's more, they can provide extra living space at a fraction of the cost of a room addition.

One pleasure rediscovered on a screened porch is outdoor dining, rescued from the insect-besieged patio. Screen walls define a space within which one can use plants, rugs, wicker or any other suitable furnishings to create a room that's enclosed and apart from streets and neighbors, while still open to the beauty of the outdoors.

An added benefit of screening pool areas is the reduced fading of furnishings and decking caused by ultraviolet radiation. Enclosures can also reduce pool evaporation and shade the water from sunlight that breaks down pool chemicals - helping to cut down on water and chemical bills.

In 1943, "pay-as-you-go" income tax withholding began for American wage and salary earners.

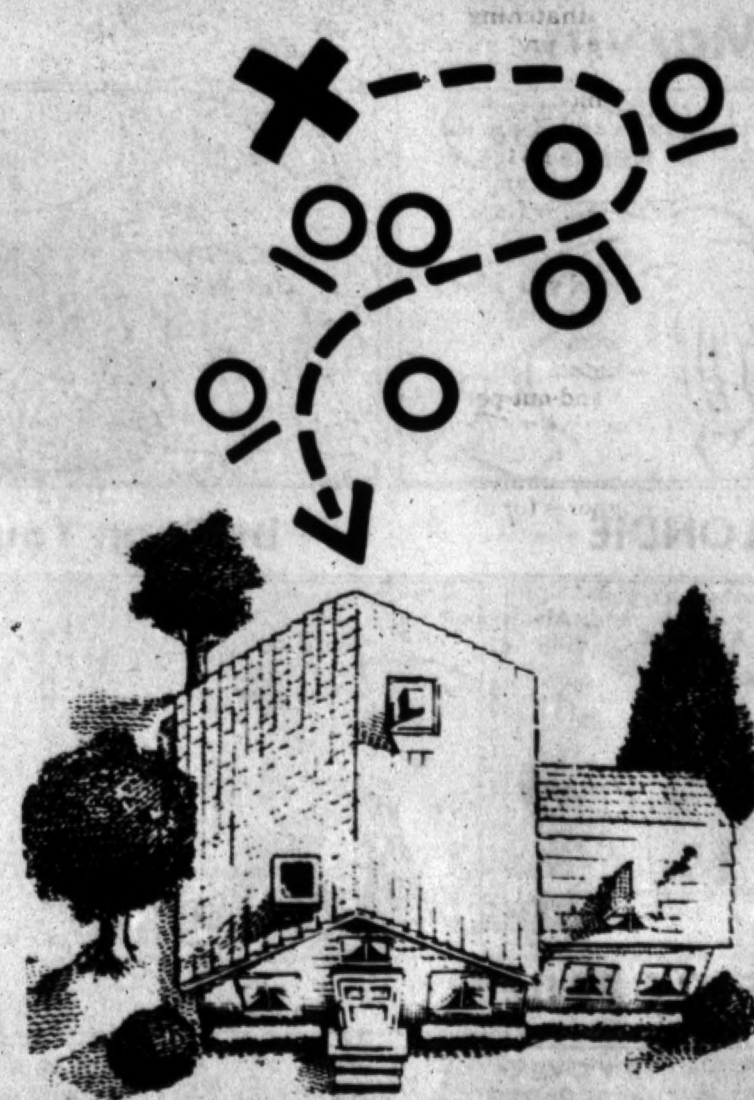

At certain frequencies, higher than humans can hear, sound can produce enough energy to weld certain metals.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

FREE PROMOTION

There are two good ways to get your name in front of the public: Pay for advertising or make news. Advertising will require that you spend money; making news will require an investment of your time.

I have devoted several columns in the past to the topic of advertising. However, when I checked the record, I found that I've never written about making news. It is a good business building strategy and many companies are using this technique to increase their visibility.

Here's how it works. Newspapers, radio and television all occasionally have slow news days. With a little practice you can sow some seeds that may blossom into a flowery news story on one of those slow days.

A good way to plant those seeds is to use a written press release. Press releases can be powerful tools, and there is no real magic in preparing one.

There are two main elements to consider as you construct a good news release. The first is the content, and the second is the way you organize your information. The content is the newsworthy message you believe the media will find interesting. The structure or organization should follow basic guidelines for press releases.

I won't take space from this column to detail the specific format in which a press release should appear. If you need that information, I'll be glad to send you a sample press release and other tips on creating a good one. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Press Release, P.O. Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105.

How To Make News

Here are several proven tips for making news. Follow these suggestions to improve your company's image and visibility.

- Make certain that anything you send to the news media is newsworthy. For example, sidewalk sales, year-end clearances and inventory reduction blowouts are not news. Expanding your business, winning a customer service award or being named "Dealer of the year" is.
- Be creative. We've seen some pretty ordinary happenings make the front page or the 6 o'clock news because of an unusually creative approach.
- Start with the five Ws - who, what, where, when, why - form. Take time to write down the details before you organize the into a finished press release.
- Begin with the most important information first. Even on a slow news day you'll need to get your reader's attention right away.

- Type the release on your letterhead and double space the text to make it easy to read.
- Keep your release short and to the point. List your name and give your phone number so you can be reached for further information. Since all media persons don't work 8 to 5, you may benefit from giving an "after hours" or "weekend" phone number. Your goal is to make it easy for someone to get additional details.
- Your release should focus on one thought, event or element. If you try to cover too much ground, you make it difficult for the media to visualize a story.
- Send your press release to the person most likely to be interested. (Usually the business editor or news director.)
- When the newspaper picks up your press release and runs a nice story, don't let the publicity end there. Make copies and distribute the story to current and potential customers. Frame a copy and place it in a prominent location in your business.
- Say thank you. News folks are like the rest of us. Thanks for a job well done is always appreciated.

If you don't feel that you are up to writing your own press releases, contact a professional. Many small public relations firms and advertising agencies specialize in this area. They may be able to provide just what you need for a very reasonable fee.

You may write to Don Taylor in care of "Minding Your Own Business," Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105.

ELOQUENT EUROPEAN PLAN
IN TUNE WITH TODAY

Extraordinary Interior With High Standards

FEATURE HOMES

© BY W.D. FARMER, F.A.I.B.D.

A spacious foyer allows access to the magnificent great room that is combined with an open kitchen and breakfast area. The lady of the house is not confined and still a part of family activity, even if meal preparation is in progress. Traffic flows also to the formal dining room that features a soaring 12 foot ceiling height. The screened porch and the sun deck extend beyond this area. The laundry is close to the kitchen but completely separate from the family area.

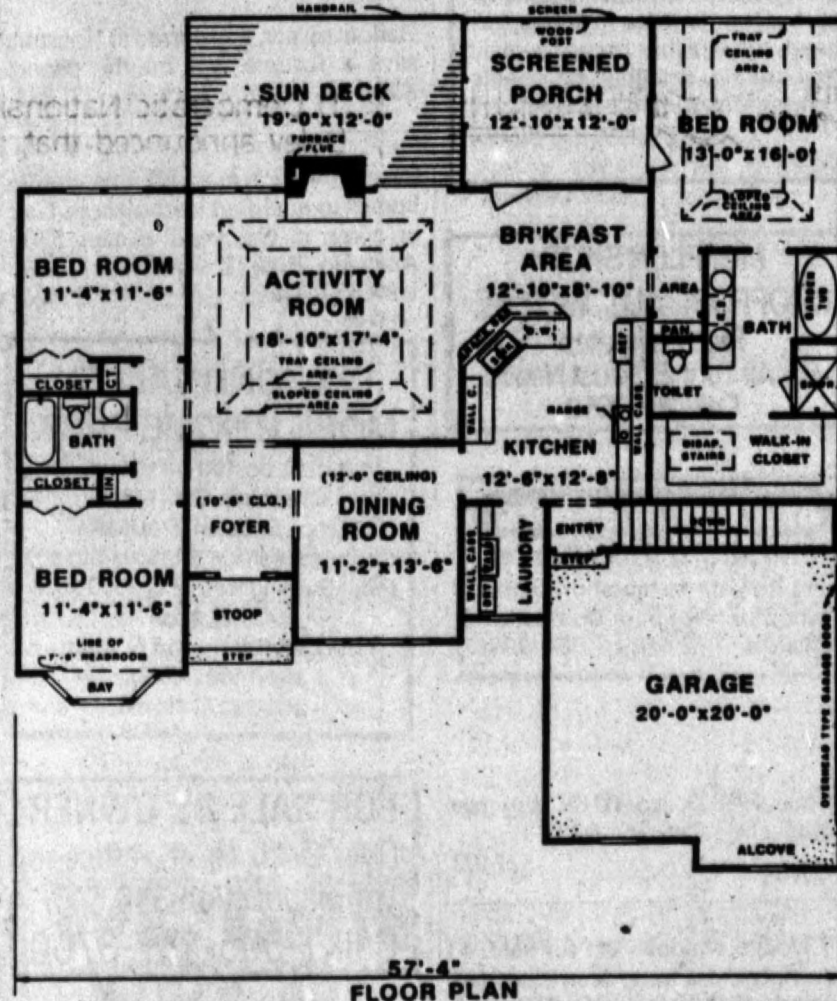

There are two bedrooms and a bath to one side of the home but the master bedroom suite is totally separate being located at the opposite end of the plan. One bedroom features a bay window and central coat and linen storage is provided nearby. An enormous walk in closet will delight any home owner and there is a disappearing attic stair located in this space too. A luxury bath is provided with separate commode, shower, vanity and tub areas, and a tray ceiling is shown in the bedroom. Notice that the bed room and breakfast area have a private entrance to the screened porch.

A basement stair is located adjacent to the kitchen and double side entry garage.

The European exterior is embellished with decorative windows and shutters, combined hip and gable roof style and stucco finish.

The plan is Number Z-805. It includes 1,855 square feet of heated area and is a computer generated plan. All W. D. Farmer plans are drawn in accordance with FHA and VA requirements and are furnished with construction details for energy efficiency. For further information write W. D. Farmer Residence Designer, Inc., P. O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 31145.

Q: I'd like to paint over simulated woodgrain hardwood paneling that has V-grooves in the surface. How can I prepare the panels for painting and ensure that the grooves won't show.

A. The surest way to create a smooth, paint-receptive surface would be to apply three-quarter-inch drywall over the paneling, but this may involve other alterations you're not prepared for.

A second alternative would be to sand the paneling lightly to remove any gloss, then tape and compound over the grooves and seams. Lay a bead of wallboard compound over each groove with a 3-inch putty knife, apply tape while the compound is still wet, and smooth the tape with a 4-inch taping knife. When the first application is dry, apply a thin second coat of compound with a 6-inch taping knife. A third coat applied with an 8- or 10-inch knife may be required. Sand lightly between coats with medium (120-grit) paper.

SCS forum to be held in Plainview

A "re-invention" of the Soil Conservation Service is being conducted by soliciting recommendations on the future of the agency.

A forum on the SCS will be held in Plainview Tuesday, with identical agendas scheduled for 1:30 p.m. and 7 p.m., at the Ollie Liner Center, 200 S. Columbia.

Registration for the sessions will begin at 1 p.m. and 6:30 p.m.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture SCS was founded 60 years ago to address a national resource crisis, commonly called the Dust Bowl.

A number of changes have been made through the years. Now, the SCS hopes to create a natural resources agency for the future.

"The SCS is at a crossroads and we and our customers have an unprecedented opportunity to anticipate future needs and refocus the agency's mission," said Texas SCS State Conservationist Wes Oneth.

He asked that anyone interested in natural resource conservation is encouraged to take part in the process.

The Plainview date is one of six being conducted throughout the state.

Deaf Smith 4-H youth place in horse meet

The 1994 State Horse Show was held recently in Abilene, with several Hereford youths participating among the 750 competitors in the Open Class.

Seven of the youths, representing Deaf Smith County 4-H, placed in a variety of competitions.

James Payne competed in the 2-year-old Futurity, placing eighth in the second go-round, third in the fourth go-round and eighth in the finals. He also placed seventh in reining.

Mandy Walker and Ty Boggeman placed third in Team Roping.

Courtney Crawford placed fifth in the third heat of the 2-Year-Old Futurity, qualifying them for the final round.

Amanda and Jeremy Schumacher also competed in Team Roping. Amanda also competed in poles and barrels and Jeremy competed in the calf roping.

Accompanying the 4-H Horse Team was County Extension Agent Dennis Newton and program leaders and coaches Ed and Sandy Crawford, Jim and Kathy Payne, Guy Walker and Janie and John Schumacher.

Pesticide container collection scheduled for Tuesday at the Deaf Smith Bull Barn

Empty pesticide containers will be collected along with several other items Tuesday, between 8 a.m. and noon, at the Deaf Smith County Bull Barn.

Old pesticides will not be accepted during the collection.

Sponsored by the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, Texas Department of Agriculture and Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the collection also will accept motor oil and filters, used tires and lead-acid batteries free of charge.

Empty pesticide containers must be clean and either triple rinsed or high pressure rinsed.

Since the recycling program was initiated by TNRCC, through 28 events, the number of items turned in has been huge -- 18,111 tires, 47,329 pesticide containers, 24,013 gallons of oil, 19,808 oil filters and 3,565 batteries.

Further information may be obtained by calling the Deaf Smith County Extension Office, 364-3573.

Slaughter methods should be humane

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Legally approved methods of slaughtering livestock can be humane but are often cruel and painful because of lax slaughterhouse procedures, says a consultant on slaughtering techniques.

"After adequate equipment had been installed, the single most important determinant of good animal welfare is the attitude of management," Temple Grandin wrote in the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association.

Grandin blamed abuses "such as excessive prodding, dragging downed crippled animals, or running animals over the top of a downed animal" on lax management and said such practices promote suffering.

She added that veterinarians who oversee slaughtering need to be well-versed in livestock euthanasia. "There have been great improvements in equipment to handle and euthanize livestock in slaughter plants," said Grandin, who has consulted on humane slaughtering methods for the past 20 years at more than 100 plants. But, she said, "advances in equipment have not been paralleled by similar advances in management."

Grandin has determined three basic principles for humane livestock slaughter:

-Animals should remain in restraint with their vision blocked until they feel restrained.

-Sudden, jerky movements of people or equipment can excite animals, while slow, steady movements can have a calming effect.

-Slaughterers should avoid excessive pressure on animals. "A restraint device should apply enough pressure to provide a feeling of restraint; but excessive pressure, which would cause pain, must be avoided."

Viewers invited to take a chance on ABC's 'SHE TV'

BY SUZANNE GILL

Next to television, handicapping race horses looks like a sure thing. After all, if one can be reasonably certain of an animal's record, training and state of health, its chances of winning or losing a given race can be calculated with reasonable assurance. All that's left is to choose between the long shot and the sure thing.

In television, a great pedigree, a talented cast and a plum time slot are no guarantee of success: hit-makers Steven Bochco, Linda Bloodworth-Thomason, Norman Lear and Aaron Spelling have all had resounding flops in recent memory.

Still there is such a thing as hedging a bet. And that's just what ABC is doing Tuesday, Aug. 16, with the premiere of "SHE TV," a six-episode sketch comedy series.

Even if it flops, "SHE TV" will serve a useful purpose, whetting the audience's appetite for the show it's replacing, "NYPD Blue." After a break, that rookie drama, with its record 26 Emmy nominations, should begin its second season in September with a reservoir of pent-up demand.

But "SHE TV" stands a fine chance of succeeding. The writing and production team includes some of the most bankable names in sketch comedy and variety. There's George Schlatter, the creator of "Rowan & Martin's Laugh-In." And there's the duo that wrote "Wayne's World" and the "Church Lady" sketches for "Saturday Night Live," Terry and Bonnie Turner. Finally, there's Tom Werner, co-creator of "The Cosby Show," "Roseanne" and "Grace Under Fire."

ABC, Werner says, "has given us a license to do whatever we think works. It's up to us to find the audience, but I think if people tune in they're going to be very pleased."

With talent stacked three deep behind the scenes, the creators have hired a group of virtual unknowns to star in their hour-long series, which, as its name implies, will have a decidedly feminine point of view.

Jennifer Coolidge and Linda Kash come from the Canadian improvisation groups the Groundlings and Second City, respectively. Becky Thyre is from Chicago's Second City group. Nick Bakay worked on "In Living Color." Additional cast members include Carl Banks, Elon Gold, Simbi Khali and Linda Wallem. They're as unknown as Lily Tomlin and Goldie Hawn were in 1967, or Gilda Radner and Dan Aykroyd in 1975.

As Werner's colleague Caryn Mandabach puts it, "For 17 years, there have always been six guys and two chicks (on 'Saturday Night Live'). And on 'In Living Color,' there were six guys and two chicks. ... In our case, we have five women and three men."

"Women (comics) definitely are out there," Terry Turner says, "and they're funny, and they have a viewpoint that I think men are (also) interested in."

Sketch ideas include "Women Who Have Been Hit on by the Kennedys," a supermodel with a world view, Bob Barker on "The People's Court" and Chelsea Clinton trying to make life easier on her busy parents.

Nevertheless, Schlatter says, "It's not as political as 'Laugh-In.' It's not 'Saturday Night Live' either. Hopefully it will be a new form."

"The success of this show will depend upon it being funny, and the people being provocative, and (viewers) seeing them and liking them," Schlatter acknowledges.

LET'S TALK

'Untouchable' Amandes information; A slightly confused 'Kettle' fan

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: I would like all the information you can give me on Tom Amandes, who plays Elliot Ness on the show "The Untouchables." And could you also provide me with an address where I can write to him? —Lisa M. Gould, Red Wing, Minn.

A: Amandes grew up in a close-knit family of 11 siblings, living first in the small town of Richmond, Ill., then moving to Crystal Lake, Ill., at age 9.

In 1978, Amandes moved to Chicago to attend the Goodman School of Drama at DePaul University and made his theatrical debut in "Translations" at the Body Politic Theater in Chicago.

His additional theatrical credits include roles in "The Mystery Cycle," "Candida," "A Chorus of Disapproval" and "The Courtship of Carl Sandburg."

Amandes has appeared in the feature films "Opportunity Knocks" and "Straight Talk," the series "Sable" and the 1992 TV movie "Overexposed."

You can write to Amandes C/O "The Untouchables" at Paramount Television Group, 5555 Melrose Ave., Hollywood, Calif. 90038, but do so soon, as the show will not be back for a new season this fall.

Q: I would like to know why you do not show any of the old "Ma & Pa Kettle" movies on American Movie Classics? I am not talking about "The Egg and I;" I am talking about all the movies that followed that one. I used to watch them as a teen-ager and I loved them. —Evelyn Koeneke, Portland, Ore.

A: Uh... Evelyn, I don't think you're really clear on what I do here. I don't make decisions for AMC like that. In fact, I don't make decisions like that for anybody. If you would like to write to the cable channel and ask about the "Ma & Pa Kettle" films, you can reach AMC C/O Rainbow Programming, 150 Crossways Park West, Woodbury, N.Y. 11797.

Q: Could you please tell me if there is a "Beavis and Butt-head" fan club, and if so, could you provide me with its address? —Beavis and Butt-head fan, St. Paul, Minn.

A: While no official fan club exists, you can send fan mail to "Beavis and Butt-head" C/O MTV Media Relations, 1515 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10036.

Tom Amandes

Q: I am interested in Jose Canseco of the Texas Rangers. I am his biggest fan. Could you please tell me where I can write to him? —K.D. Doyle, Conneaut, Ohio.

A: Write to Canseco or any of the other Texas Rangers C/O the team at P.O. Box 90111, Arlington, Texas 76004.

Q: I am writing about the TV show "Forever Knight" on CBS late night. I would like to know if there are going to be any new episodes, or if the show, for some odd reason, has been discontinued. Can you please help me? —Trinity Lonsberry, Oroville, Calif.

A: At the moment there is a lot of confusion at CBS regarding late-night programming. The network is trying to bring in another talk show (the big name being banded about is CNBC's Tom Snyder) to fill the slot after "The Late Show With David Letterman."

So, for the moment at least, CBS will air repeats of "Forever Knight" until the dilemma can be resolved.

Q: Someone at work told me that Steven Tyler of Aerosmith and Mary Tyler Moore are brother and sister. Is this true? They do have the same mouth. —Andersens, Gresham, Ore.

A: No. It's not true. Don't you think you'd have heard about that one before now?

PBS commemorates the 50th anniversary of the world's most famous canine in "The Story of Lassie," premiering Monday (check local listings). Pictured are Lassie and TV series co-star Jon Provost.

That doggone collie still looks good after all these years

BY JEFF PLASS

In October 1943, a motion picture premiered at New York City's Radio City Music Hall, introducing the world to a new screen star whose appeal would last for the next 50 years and beyond.

"Lassie Come Home," starring Roddy McDowall, Donald Crisp and Edmund Gwenn, featured a four-legged thespian named Pal, who played a smarter-than-average collie dog named Lassie.

"The Story of Lassie," premiering on PBS Monday, Aug. 15 (check local listings), takes viewers through the complete history of the Lassie franchise.

The documentary's executive producer, Gene Feldman, explains Lassie's immediate and enduring appeal.

"When the first Lassie film premiered in 1943," Feldman says, "America had just come out of the Great Depression and was immersed in a world war. The public was ready for a screen character who was noble, brave and smart, and displayed a capacity for selfless love, devotion and loyalty.

"The Lassie films and TV shows were not only entertaining, but provided good family education. The stories reflected a keen awareness for the need of balance in nature."

June Lockhart, who played one of America's best-loved mothers on the TV series and also appeared with the famous collie on the big screen ("Son of Lassie," 1945), serves as on-camera host and narrator for the special.

One of the show's highlights uses an excerpt from the series, in which Lockhart, who has been caught in a bear trap, pleads with Lassie to run home and retrieve the C-clamp the trapper left with them. Lockhart makes a C with her hands, and Lassie's off and running to fetch the desired tool.

Corny? Yes. Hokey? To be sure, but isn't the appeal of such nostalgic fare just that?

"Although Lassie is a four-legged superstar," Feldman says, "she has had almost as great an impact on our lives as such legendary Hollywood superstars as Gregory Peck, Cary Grant, William Holden, Ingrid Bergman, Marilyn Monroe and others."

HOME BIJOU

It's no masterpiece, but 'Liar's Club' succeeds as watchable, good 'B' movie

BY STEVEN ALAN MCGAW

Just as every novel can't be "War and Peace" and every meal can't be a culinary triumph, "The Liar's Club" proves every movie made can't be "Citizen Kane."

With the rise of the straight-to-video market, it seems there's an endless supply of low-rent, hastily assembled works starring has-beens, never-weres and working actors who simply have to take jobs as they come along.

(Don't believe that actors who appear in big-budget films have to sign on for the occasional cheapie? Talk to able pros like Scott Glenn or Yaphet Kotto.)

But once in a while, a "Quick, it's video" work will have real merits, however modest. And that's the case with "The Liar's Club," an engaging teen-age drama directed by Jeffrey Porter.

Wil Wheaton, long absorbed into the background as the colorless Wesley on "Star Trek: The Next Generation," is energetic and appealing as David, a quiet, well-regarded senior often preoccupied with his troubled home life and lack of money for college. His friend Pat (Brian Krause, "Sleepwalkers," "December") is all that David wishes he could be: handsome, popular, rich and a natural athlete.

But David learns of the dark side of his friend's nature in the days following a wild, end-of-school party, after Marla (played by Sheyenne Dinkin) accuses Pat of raping her. Undecided if she'll tell the police, Marla may just be content to make the erstwhile hero squirm.

When Pat's devoted, brutish teammate Jimbo (ably played by Michael Cudjitz) tries to talk some "sense" into Marla, the result is tragedy.

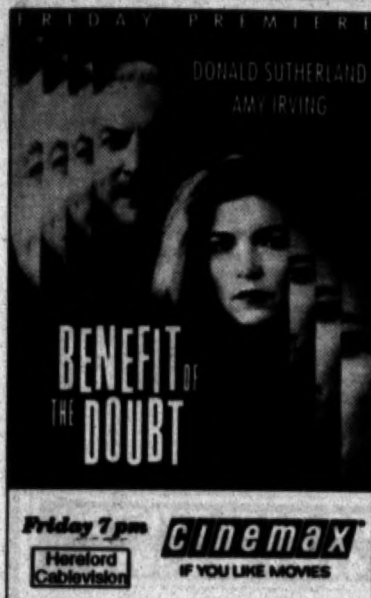

Now, David and his friends must re-examine the issues of trust, integrity and friendship in entirely new terms.

Written (not very well) by Jeff Yonis and featuring Bruce Weitz and Soleil Moon Frye, "The Liar's Club" is a fast-paced, watchable rarity in the straight-to-video heap.

ENTERTAINMENT NEWS

Tisch dishes, Schwarzenegger on the rocks, Crystal a la mode, Lewis on the road

CBS board chairman, president and CEO Larry Tisch broke bread with members of the press last month in Los Angeles. Between chicken and chocolate cake, Tisch bullishly said he expects his network to do well with programs like ice skating and Hallmark Hall of Fame movies in the Sunday afternoon slot once devoted to football.

Tisch also predicted that rival Fox will lose $700 million over the course of its four-year contract with the NFL.

Commenting on his own $14 million investment in David Letterman, Tisch said he still can't believe NBC "let him go," adding that Letterman's occasional jabs at management roll off his back. "He can say anything he wants as long as it's funny."

Arnold Schwarzenegger has had big success with "True Lies," but he could be even bigger in "Gulliver's Travels," a proposed Disney theatrical about the Jonathan Swift hero who is shipwrecked among Lilliputians.

Billy Crystal is the producer, director and co-author of "Forget Paris," a comedy set to start filming in September. Co-star Debra Winger joins him on location in the City of Lights.

Jerry Lewis is on the road taping advance segments for his annual Labor Day telethon fund-raiser for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Stops include MDA benefit concerts in Branson, Mo., and New York

Arnold Schwarzenegger

City, a Royal Caribbean cruise and an MDA summer camp near San Diego.

Rockapella, the vocal quartet made famous by PBS' "Where in the World Is Carmen Sandiego?" is developing a prime-time series said to be "a cross between 'A Hard Day's Night' and 'Seinfeld.'"

Producer Aaron Spelling has been talking up a "Love Boat" movie and reportedly offered the role of Capt. Stubby to Leslie Nielsen. But Nielsen's publicists have declared the comic actor too busy to come aboard. On Nielsen's plate: taping a golf video, posing for a calendar and consulting with Paramount on the next "Naked Gun" story.

SOAP WORLD

Kurth, Sofer make fan club appearance

BY CANDACE HAVENS

Dear Candace: My favorite characters on "General Hospital" are Lois (Rena Sofer) and Ned (Wallace Kurth). They are sexy and fun, and I love to watch them together. I was wondering if there was some way I could meet them in person.

I would also like to see Frisco (Jack Wagner) come back to the show for good. There just isn't anyone who works as well with Felicia (Kristina Malandro) as he does. --Mary D. in North Carolina.

Dear Reader: If you really want to see your two favorite stars, then you may want to check out their next fan club appearance. On Sunday, Aug. 28, Kurth and Sofer will appear in a special event at the Marriott Hotel in Uniondale, N.Y., from noon to 4 p.m. If you are a member of Kurth's fan club, tickets are $55. Tickets for non-members are $65. Send check or money order to Reach Out for Youth, C/O Wally's Friends, P.O. Box 640, Merrick, N.Y. 11566-0640. Be sure to enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope along with your name, address and phone number.

It might interest you to know that "GH" producers are trying to get Wagner back to the show, but he does not want to commit for any length of time. Malandro and Wagner are expecting their second child in December. They have a 4-year-old son, Petey. In the story line, Frisco and Felicia made love before he left town, but "GH" has not announced how, or if, the pregnancy will work into Felicia's life.

The show did work Genie Francis' (Laura) pregnancy into her story line.

Dear Candace: I am a big fan of Greg Watkins (Evan) on "As the World Turns." Do you have an address where I can contact him and tell him how much I enjoy his acting ability?

I would really like to see his character stay with Rosanna, and even marry her. --Nancy Metz, Point Pleasant, W.Va.

Dear Reader: Evan and Rosanna's future is shaky at best right now, but it's the soaps, and you never know what might happen. You can write to Watkins C/O "As the World Turns," CBS, 51 W. 52nd St., New York, N.Y. 10019.

Send your comments to Candace Havens, Soap World, Features Dept., TV Data Technologies, Northway Plaza, Queensbury, N.Y. 12804. Because of the volume of mail received, personal replies cannot be sent.
