Interest Rates Defended

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — High interest rates actually have bolstered the nation's economy because the resulting credit scarcity has slowed the increase of inflation, a federal reserve bank officer said.

Joe E. Burns, senior vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank in Dallas, told 200 ranchers and members of the livestock industry Friday that the Federal Reserve Board has attempted to dry up available money credit as one defense against inflation.

"We are seeing some improvement," he said, adding that the inflation rate this year was substantially below that of 1980.

Burns said current interest rates remain high because the public does not have faith in the Reagan administration's ability to reduce the federal deficit, balance the budget or control the flow of money into the economy.

FAA To Hire 200 Pilots

DALLAS (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration has offered jobs to 206 laid-off pilots in the Southwest region as part of a nationwide program developed since thousand of traffic controllers went on strike last month.

The airline pilots are among 1,500 across the country to be hired as temporary aides to working air traffic controllers, FAA officials said.

The pilots, many of whom were laid off after members of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization walked off their jobs, will be "flight data specialists" with annual starting salaries of $15,193.

Whittington Sworn In

DALLAS (AP) — An engineer with broad experience in environmental affairs at the state government level has been sworn in as administrator of the five-state Environmental Protection Agency's Region VI.

Dick Whittington, 53, will oversee EPA operations in Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

Precinct Changes Being Considered

Scurry County Commissioners, who have been working on a precinct realignment plan for several weeks, have announced that they will have a proposed layout available for public inspection at 7 p. m. Monday in the county courtroom.

They are seeking public input into the redistricting process, which is required by the Constitution following the federal census every 10 years.

The plan under consideration allots each commissioner's precinct slightly more than 4,500 people. The biggest change involves Precinct 2, which had the smallest population. Under the proposal, it would dip south in Snyder to 30th St. from Ave. T west, and then farther south on El Paso Ave. and Denison to 45th St. before turning west to the city limits. It would then follow the city limit line back to the north to 37th St. and proceed west to the Union-Ira Road before veering back to the north.

Any plan approved locally will require federal approval before it can be put into effect. However, commissioners said they felt that their proposal is logical from the standpoint of population and various other factors that require consideration in redistricting.

Announcement that the Fort Griffin Fandangle sampler will be presented at the Scurry County Fair has created some additional interest in the annual event. And it reminded Delbert Downing of an incident in the early days of the Fandangle that sent an insurance company's people into a tizzy.

It happened long before the presentation of "Texas" began in Palo Duro Canyon. The people at Canyon asked the people at Albany to bring their show up there and the Albany people arranged for a "sample." Since it was held outside, they could use more of their equipment than they can for an inside show. So, a stagecoach and other big props were taken to Canyon for the show.

The late Bob Nail, the erudite Princetonian who wrote the original script for the Fandagle in 1938 and was identified with the production until his death, went up to Canyon in his new Dodge automobile to help prepare for the show. While work on the set was underway, rain was falling, and during the course of events, Nail's new Dodge banged into the stagecoach, or vice versa.

The fun really began when Nail submitted a claim to his insurance company for damages inflicted in a collision between a car and a stagecoach. Naturally, the insurance people back East were a bit dubious over the probability that stagecoaches were still in use in Texas, and they were not quite certain that Nail was not pulling their leg. Still, they thought it could be so in the wilds of Texas.

A sign of the times: The Adolphus Hotel in Dallas, once a show place among hostelries of the Southwest, has been rejuvenited and reopened after being closed for 18 months. The reconditioning project at 1980-81 prices cost $45 million. The hotel was built in 1912 at a cost of $2 million. Most of the guest facilities have been doubled in size, reducing the total number of rooms to about half the original 900-plus. If you want to stop overnight there, be prepared to do your part toward amortizing the $45 million remodeling project. They say most of the rooms go for around $500 per night. But it was booked to more than 70 percent of capacity for the Texas-Oklahoma football game weekend before it reopened the past week.

Big Event Is Sept. 26...

Chili Cooks Challenge Each Other

By Shirley A. Gorman

Would-be chili cooks are picking partners, perusing cookbooks, and gathering cooking paraphernalia for the Chili Cook-Off to be held September 26 in conjunction with the annual Scurry County Fair. The event, sponsored by the Tejas CowBelles, is thought to be a first for Snyder.

Two groups of budding western style chefs have already squared off and challenged each other to a cooking duel to be decided by the palates of impartial judges.

The cooking duelists are The Dukes of Borden, veteran chili-cook-off participants, and Scurry County's own fledgling cooks, The Chili Kings.

Ralph Miller, Don Wills and Brent Murphy comprise the Dukes of Borden while Charles Church, Jess Everett and possibly Kinney Hart are The Chili Kings However, since Hart has indicated that he might be out-of-town on the 26th, an alternate will be selected by that date, according to Church.

The rules of the contest are simple. Beef must be the basic ingredient, and cooks must provide their own cooking ingredients and cooking apparatus.

Cooking will be done between the coliseum and the annex. There is a $5 entry fee. Judging will take place at 4 p.m. on the 26th.

The CowBelles will serve their own chili at 5 p.m.

Prizes will be awarded to the best chefs including first place, showmanship, and most unusual.

Anyone can enter even as late as the day of the competition.

To enter contact Sandra Hart, 573-3109; Jean Bullard, 573-2957; or Jerry Baird, 573-8511, extension 240.

The Dukes of Borden and The Chili Kings have quite a rivalry going. Blood is said to be thicker than water, but apparently not when it comes to chili cook-offs. This year's competition will pit brother-in-law against brother-in-law.

Wills and Church are brothers-in-law as are Jess Everett and Ralph Miller.

Miller, Murphy, and Wills have been entering chili cook-offs for years as The Dukes of Borden and have even won several competitions; but even so, Church says he and his fellow teammates are not intimidated and intend to try for their share of the winning pie.

After listening to Miller and his cohorts extoll their virtues as chili cooks (all in fun of course); Church said (with his tongue firmly planted in his cheek) "I'll concede one thing, you fellas have more bull than we do."

Since original recipes must be used, each team is keeping their recipe a closely guarded secret.

Miller did say though that they use herbs and spices from Spain.

Church said, "We know the taste we are striving for and we will add ingredients until we arrive at it."

Everything must be prepared from scratch and will be cooked either over gas stoves or wood fires.

Miller said the Dukes sometimes cook one of their chili recipes in a hollowed out WWII bomb shell. It takes about 3½ hours to cook chili right and "the secret is to cook it real slow".

Church said they are going to use "just a big pot," adding, "we don't need any fancy cooking utensils."

The Dukes of Borden are often called upon for their culinary expertise when dignitaries visit Borden County, Miller said.

Even though Church and his partners seem to be outmatched, he good naturedly quipped, "We haven't lost a chili cook-off yet. They aren't scaring us off. We haven't heard anything we can't handle."

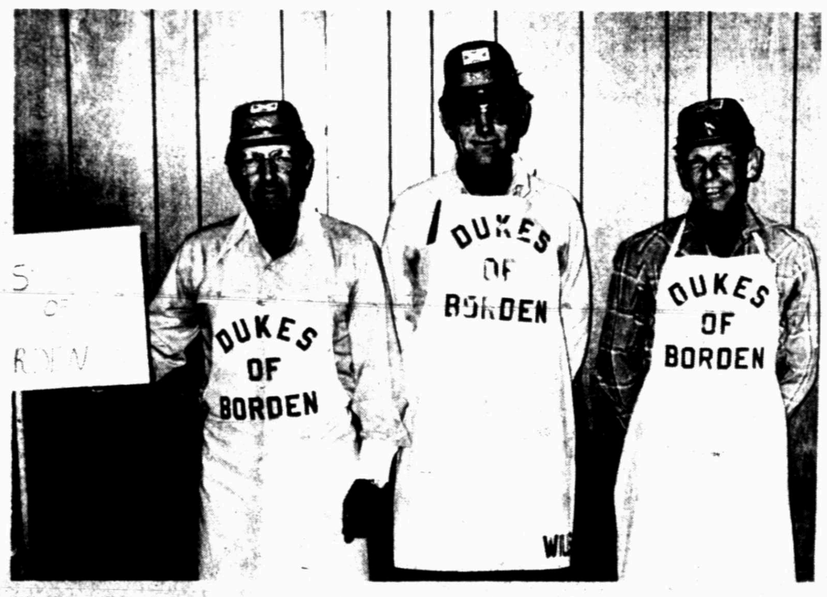

The Dukes also published a cookbook of rare recipes, including Smothered Armadillo, about four years ago. Murphy is descended from a long line of gourmet cooks, according to Miller.

Church said he decided to enter the chili cook-off because when he returned home from a trip he discovered that someone had already volunteered him anyway.

Miller said the Dukes came into being because people liked the chili they cooked so well that they decided to enter contests.

THE CHILI KINGS—Are actually a team of three would-be chili cook-off winners even though Charles Church was the only one available for the photo. Church's compadres in the September 26 Chili Cook-Off sponsored by the Tejas CowBelles are Jess Everett and either Kinny Hart or a substitute. The aprons the men will wear, courtesy of Mrs. Church, spell out the name, The Chili Kings. Even though none of the men have cooked chili before they are confident they can place in the competition. They and The Chili Kings have challenged each other to determine who is "top dog." Other chili cooks will also be vying for the three prizes: first place, showmanship and most unusual. To Grant Amnesty To Illegal Mexicans...

Clements No Longer Objects To Reagan Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Gov. Bill Clements emerged from a one-hour meeting with Attorney General William French Smith Friday and said he no longer objects to President Reagan's proposal for granting amnesty and legalization to Mexican workers who have crossed illegally into Texas.

His previous outbursts against the program were because he misunderstood a key element of the plan. The misunderstanding became quickly obvious and was hastily cleared up in their meeting, the governor added.

"I'm encouraged we can reach a mutually acceptable and supportable accommodation," Clements told newsmen outside Smith's office.

Government officials had said when the program goes into effect on Jan. 1, 1982, that up to 50,000 Mexicans would be allowed into Texas each year to work on a temporary basis.

Another part of the program provides for allowing all illegal aliens now in Texas, for whatever reason as long as they were in the state before Jan. 1, 1980, to surface and become legal.

Clements had protested that Texas had far more than 50,000 illegal Mexican aliens and that legalizing that many wouldn't touch the problem. After meeting with Smith on Friday, the governor said he became aware his conception was wrong.

"There has been a great misunderstanding on the 50,000 figure, and I want to clear it up. The 50,000 figure in the guest worker program envisions 50,000 aliens not now in the United States being issued guest worker visas," Clements said.

"The 50,000 has no relation to those already in the United States. Those in the United States already, whatever the number may be — and there's been a wide discrepancy on the figure — they will surface, come out from cover and be identified. They would not be illegal any more and, through some type of paper given them, they would be legal."

Under the proposals being studied, an alien could gain permanent status by living and working in Texas for 10 years and then meeting an additional 5-year residence requirement on a flexible basis.

The aliens being given legal status would, perhaps, be allowed to move back and forth between Texas and Mexico each year for some period of time not yet determined, Clements said, with time spent in Texas counting toward the time they would be required to accumulate.

The idea of renewable temporary work visas "is new to me, and not the way I understood it before," Clements said.

"I am certainly pleased with the result of our discussion. It's a constructive step forward. We will no longer have this subculture of people who are illegal," the governor added.

He called the meeting a good one, involving an open exchange of ideas.

"There was an agreement by all that exchanges will continue, that the next move in sequence is to start drafting legislation. Hearings are already underway on the illegal alien issue," Clements said.

The Justice Department has intervened in a suit involving the condition of Texas prisons, but Clements said that did not come up in the meeting.

"That's before the Fifth Court of Appeals, and it's my understanding that will be decided shortly," he said.

The government recently announced it would step out of suits concerning bilingual education in Texas.

"I told him I totally agreed with his position and that pushing such an issue downstream to Texas is exactly the way he should have handled it," the governor said about his conversation with Smith on that topic.

Clements left after about five minutes of questions, after which an assistant attorney general, David D. Hiller, told newsmen the differences between Clements and Smith quickly melted away.

"We put the governor's understanding on one side and the president's on the other side to see where any overlap lay," Hiller said.

"We were all pleased to discover our positions were much closer than it had appeared. There was a general misunderstanding about the mechanics of the program. Having that cleared up, we think everything will run smoothly now," Hiller added.

"But we aren't attributing the misunderstanding just to the governor's staff. Maybe we didn't make it as clear as we should have."

Polish Students Want Asylum

BERLIN (AP) — A dozen Polish students seeking political asylum in the West face arraignment today on air piracy charges after hijacking a Polish airliner to West Berlin by brandishing knives and broken bottles.

Six Polish and two Hungarian passengers on the hijacked flight decided to seek asylum too, West Berlin police said. Three Swedish and one American passenger, Josephine Sevada of St. Cloud, Minn., also decided not to return to Poland.

The hijackers — nine men and three women ranging from 17 to 2[illegible] old — were the l[illegible] group of air pirates ever involved in a single Polish hijacking, authorities said.

They forced a twin-turboprop LOT Polish Airlines plane carrying 45 passengers and four crew to land at Tempelhof military airfield at 12:33 p.m. Friday, U.S. officials said.

The Polish news agency PAP said the hijackers had threatened to kill a stewardess if the flight originating in Katowice, southern Poland, was not diverted from its Warsaw destination to West Berlin.

Witnesses said three Soviet-built MiG jets followed the plane to West Berlin airspace but withdrew when a pair of U.S. helicopters appeared and escorted the plane to a landing. The choppers were ferrying personnel to the base and had not been sent out because of the MiGs, a U.S. Army spokesman said.

No injuries were reported. The LOT AN-24 plane left Templehof 10 hours after landing to return to Warsaw with 29 people aboard, including a new crew, authorities said.

It was the third successful hijacking this year from Poland to West Berlin. Two other attempts were foiled by the airplanes' crews, according to Polish news accounts at the time.

The latest hijackers were not identified. PAP said Polish military officials in Berlin were demanding their extradition.

In past incidents, U.S. and West Berlin authorities usually prosecuted Polish hijackers rather than return them to Poland.

The most recent defendant, Anrzej Perka, 39, was sentenced to four years in prison for forcing a plane to land here in December. Two other Poles accused of hijacking LOT flights on July 21 and Aug. 22 are imprisoned in West Berlin awaiting trial.

Compared to its East Bloc neighbors, Poland has a relatively open emigration policy.

VA Changes To Reduce Budget

By ending or reducing four Veterans Administration programs that failed to achieve their original objectives, VA estimates that $110 million will be saved toward carrying out the pledge of Congress and the president that important veterans benefits will not be curtailed, E. H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer, said,

Congressional legislation signed into law by the president in August ended most subsidized flight training, reduced payments for correspondence training, put severe restrictions on education loans to veterans receiving education payments, and changed dental and burial benefits for some veterans.

The change in the burial benefit may prove to be the most widely protested of the list, Dever said. Under the new arrangement, a burial allowance of $300, previously available to all war veterans, will be limited to veterans eligible for VA pension or compensation and to those who died in VA medical facilities. The estimated savings under the new regulations is $72.5 million.

VA regulations governing the administration of these changes is being written and will be forwarded to VA regional offices as soon as possible. Veterans and their dependents in Scurry County may contact Dever's office in the Western Texas College Administration Building for information about veterans benefits.

Farm Bill Action Will Shift To U.S. House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed new four-year farm bill — which one critic says should be called "The Farm Bankruptcy Act" — will be taken up by the House following passage in the Senate by a 49-32 vote.

Senate approval came Friday after a bid to scrap target prices for farm crops and a new attack on tobacco price supports were defeated.

The government supports farm prices through complex programs of loans, purchases and direct payments in an effort to insure an adequate supply of agricultural products while providing farmers some income security.

In other congressional action, House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said President Reagan's expected proposal to defer cost-of-living raises for Social Security recipients and other pensioners probably won't get through the House.

"It is important that we restore the integrity of the House — that it (the postponement) not be lumped together in some huge, nebulous package put together at the last minute," Wright, D-Texas, said at a news conference.

Elsewhere in Congress:

—Five nominees for ambassadorial posts in Arab countries urged the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to approve the controversial $8.5 billion sale of advanced radar warning planes and other weapons to Saudi Arabia.

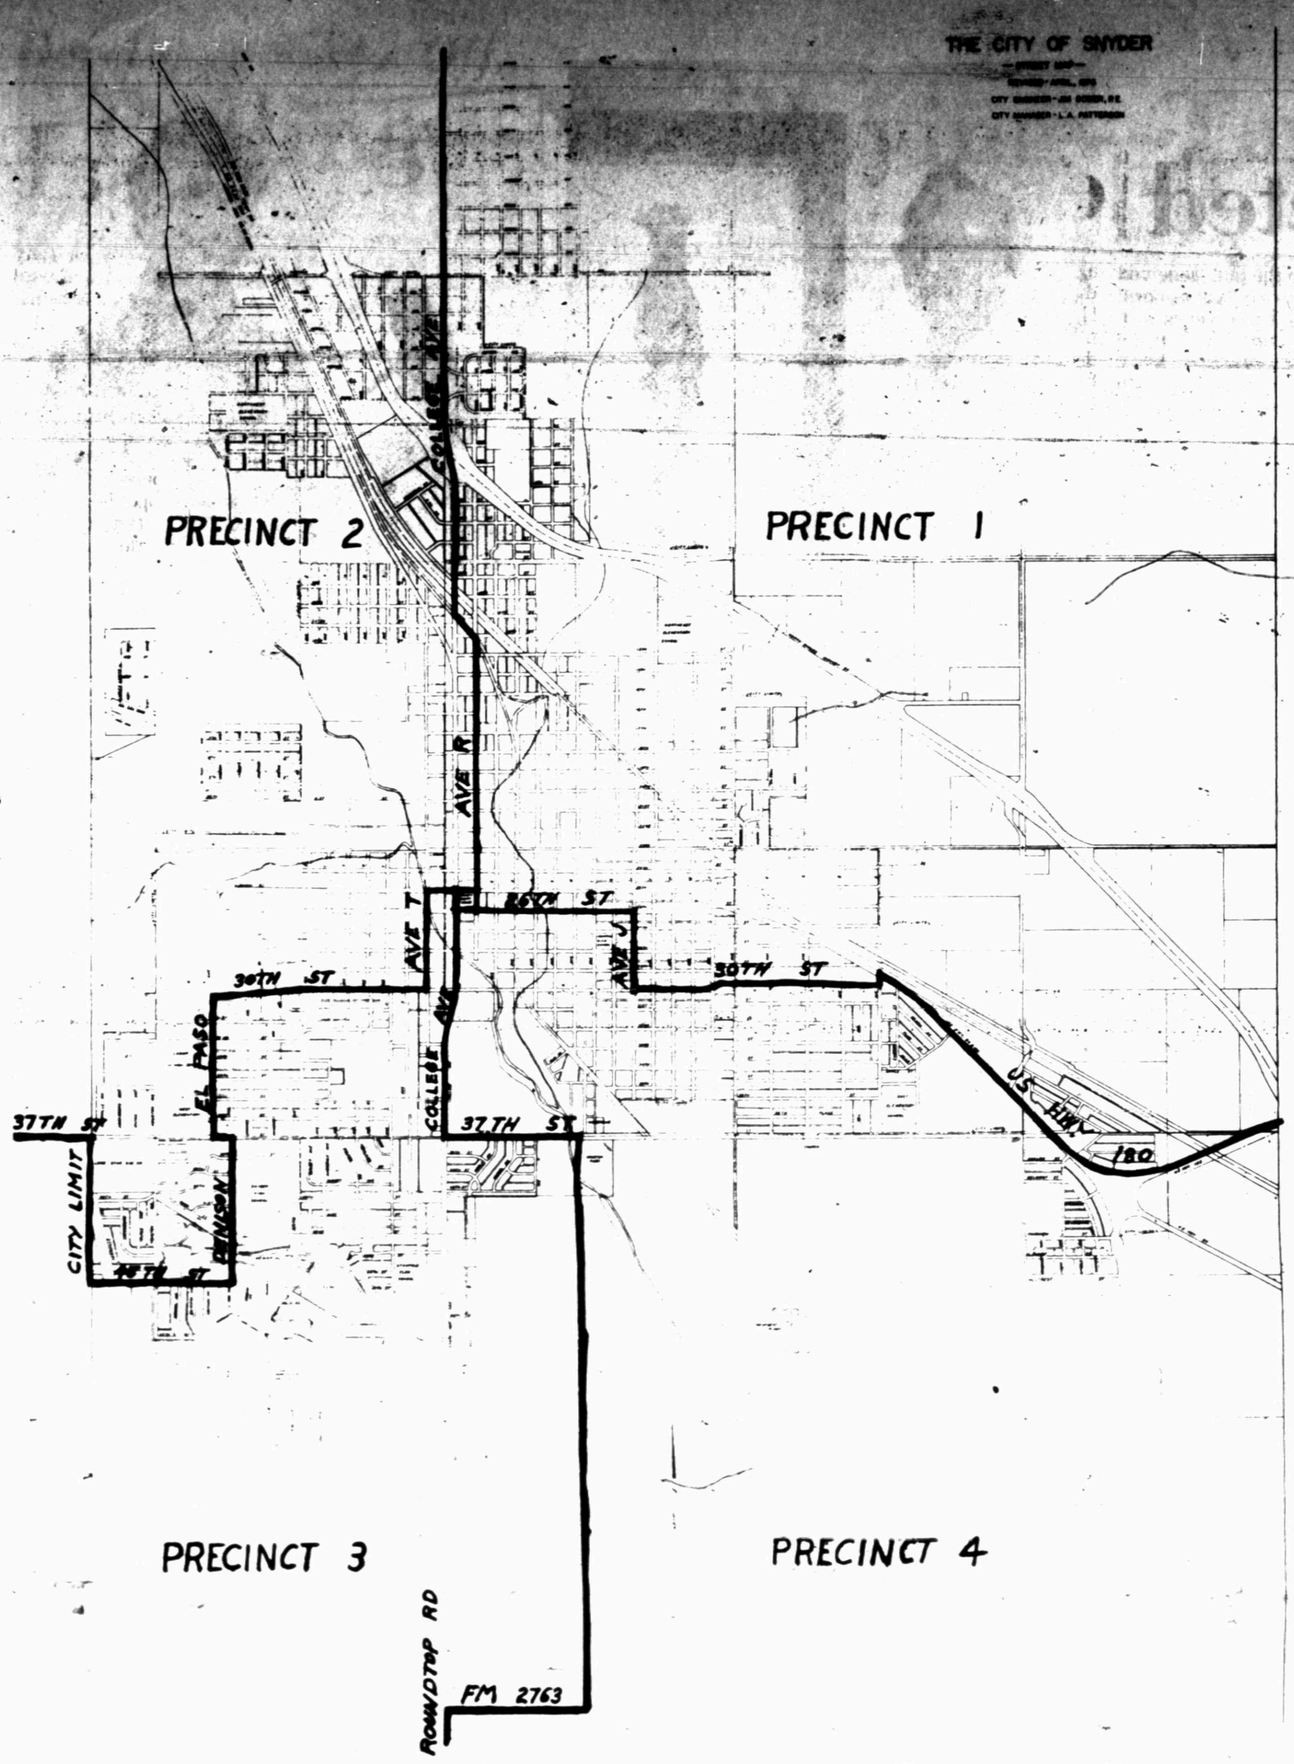

"There is an amazing congruence of interests between Riyadh and Washington," said Richard Murphy, the designated new envoy to Saudi Arabia.

Joining Murphy in supporting the sale were Joseph V. Reed, ambassador-designate to Morocco; Michael H. Newlin, Algeria; Robert Paganelli, Syria, and David E. Zweifel, North Yemen.

—Though some nutrition experts are concerned that proposed changes in the school lunch program will short-change children, some of the local officials who prepare the school meals told a House Labor and Education subcommittee they can make do.

Solidarity Leaders To Consider Response To Kremlin Warning

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leaders meet today to respond to a dire Kremlin letter warning Poland's Communist leaders to crack down on the independent union.

A Solidarity spokesman said the union leaders are to "assess the general situation, not just the Soviet letter."

There was speculation among some Solidarity sources in Warsaw that the Soviet warning might indicate a crackdown on "extremists" is imminent, or that it might be intended to force a postponement of the union's second congress meeting scheduled to start next Friday.

The Kremlin letter, published Friday by the official Polish news agency PAP, said the first session of the Solidarity congress last week had "become in effect a permanent tribune from which slanders and insults (are) sounded against our state."

The statement called for an immediate crackdown and criticized the leaders of Poland's government for not acting sooner. It said the Soviets could not understand "why the Polish authorities have not taken any resolute steps so far to cut short the hostile campaign against the U.S.S.R."

In Moscow, some Western diplomats speculated that the warning might signal Soviet military intervention in Poland. Fears of military intervention to halt the social and political unrest in the Soviets' Warsaw Pact neighbor have been raised repeatedly throughout the year of labor turmoil in Poland.

In Washington, the State Department said the Soviet statement repsented "interference in Poland's internal affairs" and was intended to "intimidate the Polish people."

Solidarity did not have any immediate reaction to the Soviet statement, which was given prominent attention in the Polish and Soviet media.

Union printers, however, churned out sharp rebukes of a statement by the Polish Politburo, which warned Solidarity on Wednesday that it was heading toward bloody confrontation and a "national tragedy."

Solidarity workers in western Pomerania were quoted as saying, "The nation knows the truth and...will not succumb to intimidation and even threats emanating from the (Politburo) statement."

The Polish Cabinet issued a statement Thursday echoing the Politburo's warning to the union. The actions by the Communist Party and government appeared to have been prompted by the delivery of the Kremlin letter, apparently late in the week, by Soviet Ambassador Boris Aristov.

His previous outbursts against the program were because he misunderstood a key element of the plan. The misunderstanding became quickly obvious and was hastily cleared up in their meeting, the governor added.

"I'm encouraged we can reach a mutually acceptable and supportable accommodation," Clements told newsmen outside Smith's office.

Government officials had said when the program goes into effect on Jan. 1, 1982, that up to 50,000 Mexicans would be allowed into Texas each year to work on a temporary basis.

Another part of the program provides for allowing all illegal aliens now in Texas, for whatever reason as long as they were in the state before Jan. 1, 1980, to surface and become legal.

Clements had protested that Texas had far more than 50,000 illegal Mexican aliens and that legalizing that many wouldn't touch the problem. After meeting with Smith on Friday, the governor said he became aware his conception was wrong.

"There has been a great misunderstanding on the 50,000 figure, and I want to clear it up. The 50,000 figure in the guest worker program envisions 50,000 aliens not now in the United States being issued guest worker visas," Clements said.

"The 50,000 has no relation to those already in the United States. Those in the United States already, whatever the number may be — and there's been a wide discrepancy on the figure — they will surface, come out from cover and be identified. They would not be illegal any more and, through some type of paper given them, they would be legal."

Under the proposals being studied, an alien could gain permanent status by living and working in Texas for 10 years and then meeting an additional 5-year residence requirement on a flexible basis.

The aliens being given legal status would, perhaps, be allowed to move back and forth between Texas and Mexico each year for some period of time not yet determined, Clements said, with time spent in Texas counting toward the time they would be required to accumulate.

The idea of renewable temporary work visas "is new to me, and not the way I understood it before," Clements said.

"I am certainly pleased with the result of our discussion. It's a constructive step forward. We will no longer have this subculture of people who are illegal," the governor added.

He called the meeting a good one, involving an open exchange of ideas.

"There was an agreement by all that exchanges will continue, that the next move in sequence is to start drafting legislation. Hearings are already underway on the illegal alien issue," Clements said.

The Justice Department has intervened in a suit involving the condition of Texas prisons, but Clements said that did not come up in the meeting.

"That's before the Fifth Court of Appeals, and it's my understanding that will be decided shortly," he said.

The government recently announced it would step out of suits concerning bilingual education in Texas.

"I told him I totally agreed with his position and that pushing such an issue downstream to Texas is exactly the way he should have handled it," the governor said about his conversation with Smith on that topic.

Clements left after about five minutes of questions, after which an assistant attorney general, David D. Hiller, told newsmen the differences between Clements and Smith quickly melted away.

"We put the governor's understanding on one side and the president's on the other side to see where any overlap lay," Hiller said.

"We were all pleased to discover our positions were much closer than it had appeared. There was a general misunderstanding about the mechanics of the program. Having that cleared up, we think everything will run smoothly now," Hiller added.

"But we aren't attributing the misunderstanding just to the governor's staff. Maybe we didn't make it as clear as we should have."

Polish Students Want Asylum

BERLIN (AP) — A dozen Polish students seeking political asylum in the West face arraignment today on air piracy charges after hijacking a Polish airliner to West Berlin by brandishing knives and broken bottles.

Six Polish and two Hungarian passengers on the hijacked flight decided to seek asylum too, West Berlin police said. Three Swedish and one American passenger, Josephine Sevada of St. Cloud, Minn., also decided not to return to Poland.

The hijackers — nine men and three women ranging from 17 to 2[illegible] old — were the l[illegible] group of air pirates ever involved in a single Polish hijacking, authorities said.

They forced a twin-turboprop LOT Polish Airlines plane carrying 45 passengers and four crew to land at Tempelhof military airfield at 12:33 p.m. Friday, U.S. officials said.

The Polish news agency PAP said the hijackers had threatened to kill a stewardess if the flight originating in Katowice, southern Poland, was not diverted from its Warsaw destination to West Berlin.

Witnesses said three Soviet-built MiG jets followed the plane to West Berlin airspace but withdrew when a pair of U.S. helicopters appeared and escorted the plane to a landing. The choppers were ferrying personnel to the base and had not been sent out because of the MiGs, a U.S. Army spokesman said.

No injuries were reported. The LOT AN-24 plane left Templehof 10 hours after landing to return to Warsaw with 29 people aboard, including a new crew, authorities said.

It was the third successful hijacking this year from Poland to West Berlin. Two other attempts were foiled by the airplanes' crews, according to Polish news accounts at the time.

The latest hijackers were not identified. PAP said Polish military officials in Berlin were demanding their extradition.

In past incidents, U.S. and West Berlin authorities usually prosecuted Polish hijackers rather than return them to Poland.

The most recent defendant, Anrzej Perka, 39, was sentenced to four years in prison for forcing a plane to land here in December. Two other Poles accused of hijacking LOT flights on July 21 and Aug. 22 are imprisoned in West Berlin awaiting trial.

Compared to its East Bloc neighbors, Poland has a relatively open emigration policy.

VA Changes To Reduce Budget

By ending or reducing four Veterans Administration programs that failed to achieve their original objectives, VA estimates that $110 million will be saved toward carrying out the pledge of Congress and the president that important veterans benefits will not be curtailed, E. H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer, said,

Congressional legislation signed into law by the president in August ended most subsidized flight training, reduced payments for correspondence training, put severe restrictions on education loans to veterans receiving education payments, and changed dental and burial benefits for some veterans.

The change in the burial benefit may prove to be the most widely protested of the list, Dever said. Under the new arrangement, a burial allowance of $300, previously available to all war veterans, will be limited to veterans eligible for VA pension or compensation and to those who died in VA medical facilities. The estimated savings under the new regulations is $72.5 million.

VA regulations governing the administration of these changes is being written and will be forwarded to VA regional offices as soon as possible. Veterans and their dependents in Scurry County may contact Dever's office in the Western Texas College Administration Building for information about veterans benefits.

Solidarity Leaders To Consider Response To Kremlin Warning

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leaders meet today to respond to a dire Kremlin letter warning Poland's Communist leaders to crack down on the independent union.

A Solidarity spokesman said the union leaders are to "assess the general situation, not just the Soviet letter."

There was speculation among some Solidarity sources in Warsaw that the Soviet warning might indicate a crackdown on "extremists" is imminent, or that it might be intended to force a postponement of the union's second congress meeting scheduled to start next Friday.

The Kremlin letter, published Friday by the official Polish news agency PAP, said the first session of the Solidarity congress last week had "become in effect a permanent tribune from which slanders and insults (are) sounded against our state."

The statement called for an immediate crackdown and criticized the leaders of Poland's government for not acting sooner. It said the Soviets could not understand "why the Polish authorities have not taken any resolute steps so far to cut short the hostile campaign against the U.S.S.R."

In Moscow, some Western diplomats speculated that the warning might signal Soviet military intervention in Poland. Fears of military intervention to halt the social and political unrest in the Soviets' Warsaw Pact neighbor have been raised repeatedly throughout the year of labor turmoil in Poland.

In Washington, the State Department said the Soviet statement represented "interference in Poland's internal affairs" and was intended to "intimidate the Polish people."

Solidarity did not have any immediate reaction to the Soviet statement, which was given prominent attention in the Polish and Soviet media.

Union printers, however, churned out sharp rebukes of a statement by the Polish Politburo, which warned Solidarity on Wednesday that it was heading toward bloody confrontation and a "national tragedy."

Solidarity workers in western Pomerania were quoted as saying, "The nation knows the truth and...will not succumb to intimidation and even threats emanating from the (Politburo) statement."

The Polish Cabinet issued a statement Thursday echoing the Politburo's warning to the union. The actions by the Communist Party and government appeared to have been prompted by the delivery of the Kremlin letter, apparently late in the week, by Soviet Ambassador Boris Aristov.

Farm Bill Action Will Shift To U.S. House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed new four-year farm bill — which one critic says should be called "The Farm Bankruptcy Act" — will be taken up by the House following passage in the Senate by a 52-32 vote.

Senate approval came Friday after a bid to scrap target prices for farm crops and a new attack on tobacco price supports were defeated.

The government supports farm prices through complex programs of loans, purchases and direct payments in an effort to insure an adequate supply of agricultural products while providing farmers some income security.

In other congressional action, House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said President Reagan's expected proposal to defer cost-of-living raises for Social Security recipients and other pensioners probably won't get through the House.

"It is important that we restore the integrity of the House — that it (the postponement) not be lumped together in some huge, nebulous package put together at the last minute," Wright, D-Texas, said at a news conference.

Elsewhere in Congress:

—Five nominees for ambassadorial posts in Arab countries urged the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to approve the controversial $8.5 billion sale of advanced radar warning planes and other weapons to Saudi Arabia.

"There is an amazing congruence of interests between Riyadh and Washington," said Richard Murphy, the designated new envoy to Saudi Arabia.

Joining Murphy in supporting the sale were Joseph V. Reed, ambassador-designate to Morocco; Michael H. Newlin, Algeria; Robert Paganelli, Syria, and David E. Zweifel, North Yemen.

—Though some nutrition experts are concerned that proposed changes in the school lunch program will short-change children, some of the local officials who prepare the school meals told a House Labor and Education subcommittee they can make do.

In Bombing Conspiracy...

Six Nazi Are Convicted

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Six avowed Nazis have been given sentences ranging from probation to five years in prison for plotting a series of vengeance bombings in Greensboro.

The six men convicted Friday had been tried on the charges once before, but the first jury was unable to reach a verdict.

The government said the defendants conspired to blow up a shopping center, a gasoline depot, a fertilizer plant and the Guilford County Courthouse in November if six Nazis and Ku Klux Klan members were convicted of killing five Communist Workers Party members in a 1979 shootout.

The six accused in the 1979 shootout were acquitted and the bombings never took place.

After guilty verdicts were returned Friday, Judge Woodrow Jones told the defendants he could not understand what their views were or "what you stand for."

"You refer to Hitler as one of your patron saints but you also say you fight communism. I don't see the difference between Nazism and communism because both operate under a dictatorship with totalitarian beliefs," the judge said. He sentenced them immediately after the trial.

In the defendants' first trial in July, a jury failed to reach a unanimous verdict and voted 10-2 for conviction. A new trial was ordered.

This time, jurors reached their verdict after three hours and 40 minutes of deliberation.

Jones gave five-year sentences to Joseph Gorrell Pierce, 29, of Belews Creek; Frank Braswell, 48, of Penland, and Raeford Milano Caudle, 38, of Winston-Salem, and fined them $10,000 each.

Jones said the three deserved maximum sentences because they were the apparent leaders of the group.

Jones sentenced Braswell's wife, Patsy, 31, to a two-year suspended sentence and three years probation and fined her $1,000. Jones sentenced Roger Allen Pierce, 25, of Belews Creek to probation for three years and fined him $1,000 under the federal Young Adult Offenders Act. Roger Pierce is the brother of Joseph Pierce.

James C. Talbert, 30, of Winston-Salem, whom Jones called the least involved in the plot, received a two-year suspended sentence, three years probation and was fined $1,000.

The three who received prison sentences may remain free on bond until appeals are exhausted, Jones ruled. Their lawyers said they would appeal the verdicts to the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va.

Most of the government's evidence consisted of hours of tape-recorded conversations between federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms undercover agent Michael Sweat and the six Nazis.

Works Of Two Local Artists On Display At Scurry Museum

Works by two Snyder artists, Dr. Robert Taylor and Jay Huckabee, will be featured in the Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College in a new exhibit opening this afternoon.

Taylor will be showing bronze sculptures, while Huckabee will show paintings. A reception honoring the artists is planned from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m.

Visitors can also see an exhibit of photographs by amateur photographers from this area and historical exhibits in the permanent display gallery.

Taylor expects to have 12 or 13 sculptures for the exhibit and said this will be probably the largest show he has had. Most of the pieces were borrowed from local owners for the show since most of his editions are sold and he has very few in his possession.

A graduate of Sweetwater High School, Taylor attended Tarleton State University and was graduated from Texas A&M University. He has practiced veterinry medicine in Snyder for about six years and also operates the Hidetown Bronze Works where he casts his own pieces and handles casting for 14 other artists.

Taylor's first sculpture was a bull rider, which is not surprising when you learn that he was the AJRA bull riding champion in 1968. He was also the AJRA bareback champ that year, and he continued to participate in rodeo during his college years.

His newest piece, titled "King of the Carnivora," will be included in the exhibit at the Scurry County Museum. Many of his pieces reflect his interest in animals and wildlife as this one does.

Huckabee, a native of Snyder, has been painting about 25 years. He owns and operates his own engineering firm, Jay Huckabee Co. Like Taylor, he has also borrowed several pieces from local owners for this exhibit, including an oil titled "Joe Yara" from the Diamond M Museum collection. Yara was a cowboy on C. T. McLaughlin's Circle Ranch at Las vegas, N. M., when Huckabee did the painting. It was selected for exhibition at an eight-state regional art show in Shreveport, La.

Area residents who have seen two historical publications put out by the Snyder area unit of the Ranching Heritage Association several years ago will recognize two of Huckabee-s watercolors as illustrations in those books. Another watercolor on display was sold at auction to benefit the Ranching Heritage Museum.

The new exhibit will remain in the museum through mid-October. The museum is open each weekday and from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. on Sundays without admission charge.

China Needs Huge Loans

HONG KONG (AP) — China will seek more than $10 billion in foreign loans to launch its new five-year development plan, a Hong Kong communist newspaper reported today.

The Chinese-language Ta Kung Pao quoted Chinese Vice Premier Gu Mu as saying Peking will only take the loans if interest rates are "appropriate." He did not elaborate.

CRMWD Backing Water Amendment

The Colorado Rier Municipal Water District has thrown its support for the adoption of the state water development fund constitutional amendment.

Directors of CRMWD adopted a resolution Wednesday in which they urged approval of the amendment in Nov. 3 balloting.

"While some people think there are better and more efficient ways to finance the development of the state's water than the one proposed," observed O. H. Ivie, general manager of CMRWD, "The fact is that this, on the whole, is a beneficial plan and is the one on which we will vote Nov. 3."

He noted that "on two previous occasions, the citizens of Texas defeated amendments to the state constitution having to do with statewide water development financing. If we turn down this opportunity, we will be shutting the door for a long, long time on an orderly plan for state assistance in the development of our vital water resources."

The proposed amendment would set up a Water Assistance Fund, with a nest egg general fund appropriation and the subsequent diversion of half of any surplus state revenues in the future, unless decided biennially otherwise by the legislature.

The fund could provide direct state debt service payments for local, district or regional water development projects, to be reimbursed by the entity involved; loan guarantees up to $500,000,000 on a 2-1 basis for water projects of political subdivisions; permit the state to acquire a share in certain water projects for future sale to cities or others; and to provide funds for water research and development and for flood control planning.

Developer Backs Off...

Pulling—Not Playing—Taps At Saved Saloon

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — The joyous patrons stood three deep at the bar and hoisted a few to the tilting but standing walls of the saloon owned by Matthew Ryan, the apparent victor in a year-long fight to save his bar from urban renewal.

The toasts followed the announcement Friday by developer Raymond Becker that his "war with Matthew Ryan is over." Becker wanted the bar razed to make way for a $40 million apartment building planned to conform to the new, gleaming landscape of Peoria's downtown.

But Ryan, a 55-year-old Boston native, questioned whether Becker's announcement was a ploy.

"The man is like a weathervane," Ryan said Friday. "Ten days ago he was going full-steam to condemn me. Two days ago he had all the votes he required in the City Council for condemnation. Today he withdraws his request and says he has no intention to develop on the block. With the charades that have gone on in the past, I'm suspicious."

In a letter to the city manager, Becker said he was tired of dickering with the saloonkeeper and distressed by national attention the fight has drawn. He sought the condemnation vote Tuesday night, but it was delayed and he withdrew the petition in his letter.

"Mr. Ryan has brought vaudeville back to Peoria," the builder said. "But I don't want to go into show business, and I certainly don't want to subject the City Council and this community to any embarrassment or publicity which will make Peoria an object of national ridicule."

Becker said new plans are either to build his luxury complex around the aging tavern or try at a different location.

He had bought up most of the surrounding property and razed it and the bar stands alone on the site.

The old tavern, its red-brick walls bowed by age, stands in the shadow of City Hall, across the street from the nearly completed $60 million civic center and a short walk from the site of a planned shopping mall.

Gorman's Tap was purchased by Ryan and partner Russell McKinnie in 1977 in anticipation of business from construction workers and eventually the sports fans and conventioneers who would be drawn to the civic center.

As a taunt at Becker, Ryan recently renamed the bar Gorman's Twin Towers Tap.

In such a setting, some city officials say, the saloon is an eyesore in the center of Peoria's planned $300 million urban renewal project.

The City Council still could condemn the place, but it is unclear whether it will now that Becker has withdrawn his request.

Ryan said Friday he has rejected what the builder called his last offer — reportedly about $325,000 or nearly twice the purchase price. Ryan contends his investment in the building, including lawyer's fees and repairs, is nearly $500,000.

Becker's lawyer, John Parkhurst, conceded his client got tired of the battle and the attendant publicity. He shrugged and said, "The ballgame is over."

Classes in stained glass design for beginning students will be offered at Western Texas College starting Oct. 13 or Oct. 15.

Students may attend Section I classes meeting from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m. on Tuesdays from Oct. 13 through Nov. 17, or Section II classes meeting from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m. on Thursdays from Oct. 15 through Nov. 15.

Fees are $25 per person plus supplies. Classes will meet in the Glassworks shop at 2405 College Ave. Mike McCormack, who owns and operates the Glassworks, will be the instructor.

Students will be introduced to the types of glass used, lead cones, copper foil, and tools in the first class meeting. Design and cutting of templates will be taught in the second session and students will start cutting glass in the third class. Details on stained glass window construction will be stressed at the fourth meeting, and students will start construction of a project in the fifth class. The final session will be used to complete student projects.

Minimum enrollment for each section is 10, with enrollment limited to 12 persons in each class.

Space in the course may be reserved by calling the continuing education office at WTC, 573-8511, extension 240.

Recession Clues Being Recorded

NEW YORK (AP) — Evidence is growing that the nation has slipped into its second recession in as many years and its eighth since the end of World War II.

New construction of single-family homes has plunged to a new low, inventories of unsold goods are piling up, auto sales, remain sluggish, industrial production is falling and factories are operating at their lowest capacity levels in almost a year.

Commerce Department sources say a preliminary estimate of economic activity in the July-September period showed a decline at an annual rate of 0.5 percent, following a revised 1.6 percent decline in the nation's gross national product in the second quarter.

If the third-quarter decline holds up in later revisions of GNP, the inflation-adjusted output of the nation's goods and services, the slide of two straight quarters would meet the general definition of a recession, although there was a recession last year with just one quarter of steep decline.

San Jose Has Become Known As Feminist Capital

EDITOR'S NOTE-San Jose has become known as the "feminist capital of the world," with an unusually high proportion of women in its government. Now it's carrying that feminist fight to the pocketbook, with a moye to equalize men's and women's pay for "comparable" jobs.

By LISA LEVITT
Associated Press Writer

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — In 1968, a tune topping the charts told the story of a disillusioned kid who wanted to leave life in the Los Angeles fast lane to find some peace of mind in San Jose.

It's anyone's guess whether you can find peace now in this boom town, which has gone in the last decade from a sleepy little sister to bustling San Francisco 60 miles up the peninsula to the 17th largest city in America, and getting bigger by the minute.

What you will find, however, are more women in power per square mile than any other spot in the country.

"The feminist capital of the world," Mayor Janet Gray Hayes has called the thriving city of 628,000 she was elected to head in 1974, making her the first woman to hold the reins of power in a major American city. "I opened the door."

Today, Mayor Hayes is one of six female mayors in the county's 15 cities, and she works with a female-dominated City Council — seven of 11 members. At one time, she had a female vice-mayor and a woman heading the San Jose Chamber of Commerce.

So it was strangely appropriate — and peculiarly ironic — that San Jose recently was the site of the nation's first strike for pay parity, the issue of equal pay for women in jobs different than but comparable to many jobs being done by men.

"How could it be that in the feminist capital of the world, people were on strike over pay parity?" asks William Callahan, chief negotiator and business agent for Local 101 of the American Federation of State, City and Municipal Employees, which represents 2,000 workers.

The answer: "It is presumptuous to say that a predominantly female city council backs the issue of ERA, pay parity, or any other predominantly female issue," he says. "Gender doesn't determine a position on women's rights."

After a nine-day strike in July, the city agreed to spend $1.5 million to correct pay disparities over two years. It was the culmination of an effort that began four years ago, Callahan says, when complaints by women about pay inequities came to a head.

The union demanded and won a $93,000 city-financed study by an independent San Francisco consulting firm, Hays Associates, to detail disparities in pay.

The findings showed how people with jobs mainly held by women — including librarians, clerk-typists and recreation center supervisors — earned thousands of dollars less each year than employees in maledominated fields, such as engineering, plumbing and gardening.

The issue united men and women, turned the national eye on San Jose and ultimately "broke the shackles the marketplace has held on women, shackles that maintain depressed wages for predominantly female occupations," Callahan says. "We broke in San Jose — and for the country, we believe — that hold in the marketplace."

Yet, the question remains: Why did the discussion start here? Why in San Jose, a basically middle-class, conservative community with a large Hispanic population?

It may be because feminism is more than than office-deep here, as exemplified by policies such as the one that precludes county-paid travel to any state that hasn't ratified the Equal Rights Amendment.

Then there are agencies like Rina Rosenberg's 7-year-old county Commission on the Status of Women, one of the few offices of its kind in the country and probably the only one with enough money to take care of 1,500 complaints a year from area women.

Instances of sexual harassment, job discrimination, denial of promotions, pay inequities — they've heard it and handled it all here, says Ms. Rosenberg, who has directed the commission since its inception in 1974.

Chemical Warfare Charges May Hinder Missile Limits Talks

By DAVID MINTHORN
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — U.S.-Soviet talks on limiting nuclear missiles in Europe may be doomed by Washington's tough stance toward Moscow, particularly allegations of possible Soviet involvement in chemical warfare, Soviet newspapers say.

"The latest barrage of false and absurd charges...are not conducive to paving the way to future negotiations on arms reductions," the Novosti news agency said in a commentary Friday. It referred to the chemical warfare charge raised last weekend by Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.

Haig and other U.S. officials hinted the Soviets and their allies might be using chemical warfare agents called myotoxins in Cambodia, Laos and Afghanistan. The Kremlin denied the charge, calling it "slander."

With the charge and denial looming in the background, Haig and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko are to meet at the United Nations Wednesday to set a date for the long-awaited missile negotiations.

Haig says he does not expect the chemical warfare issue to figure highly in the talks with Gromyko, but the Novosti commentary disagreed, saying the timing of the charge appeared to be an attempt "to aggravate these talks and make any agreement even on the time and place of future arms negotiations that much more difficult."

In a related attack, New Times, a Soviet world affairs weekly, accused Washington of using tactics of "delay and procrastination" to stall the start of the missile talks, after agreeing only grudgingly to hold them.

"Talks have not yet begun but the Americans are already beginning to hedge them with preliminary conditions," the magazine claimed in its latest issue

It said U.S. conditions include a demand that the Soviet Union "change its conduct in the international arena" and agree beforehand "to all forms of control that might be suggested by lovers of other people's secrets."

The Reagan administration has failed to "prove the seriousness of its intentions" to conduct arms limitation talks "on the principles of equality and equal security," the magazine said.

If Haig and Gromyko can reach agreement, U.S.-Soviet missile negotiations are expected to get under way in late November or early December, Western sources said here this week.

The talks will focus on plans by the NATO allies to deploy 572 new U.S.-made Pershing-2 and cruise missiles in Western Europe starting in late 1983 to counter a reported buildup of scores of new Soviet SS-20 missiles aimed at the West from Eastern Europe.

San Jose Jobs Study Finished

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The study of "comparability" between jobs held by men and women workers in San Jose was done by Hay Associates, a San Francisco consulting firm, which rated 225 non-management positions in city government.

The jobs were analyzed in terms of the know-how, accountability and problem-solving involved, as well as working conditions.

The consultants made judgments about the difficulty in each area and assigned points. The jobs were then ranked in terms of points. Those jobs receiving the same, or nearly the same score, were considered comparable and grouped together.

Jobs that were rated comparable in difficulty but which differed significantly in salary included:

Associate architect (mainly held by men), $27,872; acquisition librarian (mainly done by women), $24,752.

Senior electrician (male), $28,964; mayor's secretary (female), $18,096.

Plumber (male), $26,260; recreation center supervisor (female), $13,936.

The Hay report did not compare city salaries to those in private industry.

Alan Riordan, a partner in Hay Associates, said the consultants have done "thousands" of jobs evaluation studies across the nation. The employer, either public or private, usually want to fix pay scales based on the kind of work required.

But the San Jose request was unusual. "The city asked us to look specifically at men versus women," Riordan said. "This is a pioneering thing. San Jose has lit the fuse."

WTC Rodeo Girls Are Getting Ready

Coach Bob Doty will start at square one with the Western Texas College girls rodeo team at Eastern New Mexico University September 24-26 as the team makes its first appearance in NIRA competition.

But Doty is not lacking in confidence. He feels that he has won the recruiting game by getting the "cream of the crop" of the 1981 class. Included on the team will be a Snyder girl, Katrina York, who is an experienced barrel racer and has taken up goat tying and roping.

Other team members include Angie Casbeer of Midland, Gayla Newton of Gail, and Deborah Lewis of Dell City.

According to Doty, this bunch of girls has a lot of ability and are "winners", and if they work hard enough they will find themselves at the college finals in Bozeman, Mont., next summer along with the guys team. They were his first choice in recruiting, and he didn't have to take any second choices.

WTC has never qualified a girls' team for the finals, Doty said, but he is confident that these girls can get the jpb done or they wouldn't be at WTC.

Rodeo Films Set Tuesday

The Western Texas College rodeo teams would like to invite their supporters out to the Scurry County Rodeo Association arena Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. to view the College National Finals Rodeo and get acquainted with the team members.

The meeting will be held at the dance pavilion.

Bob Doty, WTC rodeo coach, will make the introductions and would like to see if there is enough interest to organize a group to oversee the operation of a booster club for the rodeo program at WTC.

"We would like to invite anybody to come out," Doty said. "Refreshments will be served and the meeting will be very informal."

If the weather is too cold to hold the meeting outdoors, it will be rescheduled for the following Tuesday, Doty said.

The rodeo arena is located on West 30th.

Coyotes Outlast Wellman

WELLMAN -- Borden County's Coyotes stiffened in the second half here Friday night to surprise Wellman in a non-district class A six-man tilt, 34-19.

Wellman scored first as Tony Serbantez crossed over from three yards out, 6-0. Borden tied the tally later in the opening quarter when Darrell Green hit Jr. Benavidez on a 9-yard toss. Neither extra-points try was successful.

Wellman took the halftime lead as Serbantez scored on a 7-yard jaunt in the second quarter. Craig Wellman's conversion run crossed the goal for a 13-6 advantage.

The second half was a turnaround however. Borden County clearly dominated.

"We got some good breaks and we scored when we needed too," said Coyote Coach Randy Roemisch. "All but about 60 of our yards came in the first half and almost all of our yards were in the second half. We were down by only seven points at halftime and our kids weren't going to let this one get away from us," added the coach, whose team was nipped 20-16 by Dawson a week ago.

Borden county went in front in the third period when Jym Rinehart scored the first of his three second-half touchdowns from six yards out. Benavidez's two-point PAT kick was good for a 14-13 Coyote led.

Rinehart late scored on a 12-yard scamper to nake it 20-13.

Wellman rallied to within a point again as Craig Wellman ran over from six yards out, 20-19.

But the Coyotes ceded the game in the fourth quarter when Rinehart made TD runs of 8 and 16 yards. Benavidez kicked one conversion attempt good for the 34-19 victory.

"They would drive the ball down on us, but we'd hold them or they'd turn it over," said Roemisch, who noted his team made good use of Wellman's three fumbles and a pass interception.

"The kids showed a lot of confidence last night (Friday). We played like we are capable of playing."

Borden also scored on the pass interception by Green, but officials whistled a clipping penalty which brought the run back.

The Coyotes, 1-2, return home next week, hosting Blackwell at 8 p.m. on Friday.

'Dogs Edged By Loop, 30-29

IRA -- Oh, for the lack of a point.

Loop and Ira tied touchdown for touchdown here last night but it was the extra-point game that told the story as the Longhorns edged the hosts by a digit, 30-29.

"It was disheartening for us to lose by one point," said Ira Coach Tom Pierson. "Of course, I guess it was just as exciting for them, winning by a point."

James Crowder was the offensive key for the Bulldogs as he rushed for 185 yards and three touchdowns, passed for 90 yards and one score, and accounted for five extra points.

Crowder got the 'Dogs rolling in the first period as he scored on a 48-yard run. The point-after failed. He made it 14-0 in the second stanza when he scored on a 76-yard scamper. This time he nailed the two-point conversion kick.

Loop retaliated with eight points before halftime as Allen Freeman scored on a 59 yard run. A two-point conversion kick was successful.

Crowder then returned the second half kickoff 60 yards to score. The conversion attempt failed.

Ali Back In The Ring...

Play It Again, Muhammad

NEW YORK (AP) - A press conference announcing another Muhammad Ali comeback was over, but the three-time heavyweight champion stood at the podium, savoring the moment and contemplating the future.

"I shook the world," Ali said, telling his enraptured audience what he would say after beating Trevor Berbick in their 12-rounder early in December in Nassau, Bahamas. "They said I was washed up.

"I messed them up again," he said, with both hands clasped over his head.

He enjoyed what he was saying so much that he repeated it several times.

Earlier, the 39-year-old Ali was up to his usual show business antics. He glared lengthily at Berbick. He posed for pictures with him, letting Berbick hold his left hand on Ali's jaw, but making certain the native-born Jamaican wouldn't do any more damage than that.

He made jokes. He waxed poetical. He clowned. He lectured. And he was serious at times.

It was vintage Ali.

"I've always been a man of positive thinking," he said. "It's only fitting that I come back. Now, I'm gonna make all of you old men feel old."

At 39, Ali is the one who should feel old.

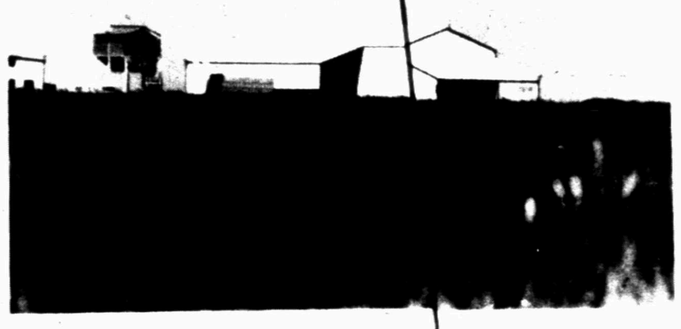

Many observers thought he looked old in his last fight - Oct. 2, 1980, when World Boxing Council heavyweight champion Larry Holmes made him appear helpless before stopping him after 10 rounds at Las Vegas, Nev.

BROOKS BREAKS OPEN – Brent Roemisch (12) attempts to cut off Andrews quarterback Keith Brooks while teammates Darrell Robertson (72), and Steve Gressett are in pursuit. Andrews Blitzes Tigers; Brooks Leads 47-0 Win

ANDREWS – In Andrews, they call it "The Keith Brooks Show". The supporting cast alone could fill a variety hour and it did here Friday night as the Mustangs tallied points in every quarter to zip past Snyder High School, 47-0.

Brooks had his hand in 245 steps of Andrews' 401 total yards, and accounted for five of the seven touchdowns as the Mustangs kept Snyder off balance all night long.

The outcome leaves Andrews at 3-0 for the season and 1-0 in 2-AAAA action, while Snyder falls to 0-3 and 0-1. Andrews entertains Lamesa, a 37-0 victim of Monahans, next week, while Snyder hosts Sweetwater in its first home date of the season.

Snyder's offense was to never get tracked from the first play as Andrews' quickness and better execution kept the visitors confused all the way. The Tigers managed only two yards on their first two carries, then were dropped for a 10-yard loss on third down.

A break came when Brooks fumbled the fourth-down punt and gave possession back to Snyder. The Tigers were unable to take advantage however, and had to boot it away again. This time Brooks made sure of his catch, then raced 65 yards to the Snyder goal and an apparent score before officials backed Andrews up to the its 36-yard line for an illegal block.

The Mustangs made up for the penalty on their first play from scrimmage. On a bootleg which caught the Snyder secondary cold, Brooks hit runningback Brent Petross on a 46-yard pass play to the Tiger 20. Three plays later Brooks followed his blockers into the end zone, scoring from 10 yards out with 6:49 left in the quarter. Brad Boynton's PAT kick was good.

Snyder continued to find no room offensively, and in fact, came up with only one yard gained in nine rushes for the first quarter.

A series of turnovers hit both teams next. A 25-yard touchdown run by Petross was called back by penalty, and one play later, Ross Bawcum fell on a Mustang fumble at the Tiger 29. Snyder moved six yards in two plays, but on third down Brooks intercepted a tipped pass from his safety spot and Andrews started up again on the 35.

It took seven plays for the Mustangs to go the distance. Brooks carried it over from five yards out with only eight seconds gone in the second quarter. Boynton's kick-after was good for a 14-0 score.

Snyder got its initial first down of the game on the next series, as back Raymond Jeffrey picked up 14 yards before the Tigers were forced to give up the ball again.

This time Andrews trudged 65-yards in 14 plays. Petross crossed the paystripe on a seven-yard run with 3:34 left in the half. Boynton's PAT made it 21-0.

Andrews' final touchdown of the half was set up by an interception and 33-yard runback by Jamie Gonzales. Gonzales' scamper put the Mustangs on the Snyder 18-yard line, but a delay penalty pushed it back to the 23. Brooks went to work without a pause, however, and hit Gonzales on a 21-yard pass play to the 2. Another five-yard penalty for illegal proceedure put the ball at the 7, but Brooks - under a heavy rush this time - calmly hit tight end Jeff Ashabranner for the distance. The PAT try went awry this time, but Andrews led 27-0 going into the half.

The final 24 minutes was not dissimilar from the first two quarters. Snyder broke the midstripes only twice in the game; both times in the fourth quarter. The Tigers had problems even with Andrews' second team, which came on late in the game - an indication that the visitors were not executing well.

Andrews notched its only touchdown of the third quarter with 6:05 remaining when Brooks scored from 19 yards out. The 53-yard, six-play drive gave the hosts a 33-0 lead as Boynton's kick was no good.

Brooks then scored on a 14-yard, fourth-down play with 9:35 to go in the contest. Boynton converted this time, capping the 52-yard, seven play march.

Andrews' final TD came with quarterback Mike Gonzales at the helm. Jamie Gonzales scored on a 24-yard run to lock up a drive of 38 yards and four plays. Boynton's kick was good.

Brooks' final figures were 152 yards rushing and four touchdowns on 14 carries. He was five of six for 93 yards and another TD in the passing department. Teammate Petross had 47 yards on 13 carries and at least four other backs had 25 yards apiece.

Snyder was led by Jeffrey's 66 yards on 13 carries.

'Dogs Are Edged

version kick was thwarted, but Crowder picked up the football and passed to Jeff Kellner for one point, making it 21-8.

Freeman answered the challenge again however, scoring on a 56-yard run in the third. Again the point after was good; 21-16.

Loop then got two fourth-quarter TDs to take the lead. Scotty Scott scored on a 16-yard run and Phil Jones passed to Alez Guzman for a 12-yard strike. Both conversion kicks were good for a 30-21 Longhorn lead.

Ira also scored again as Crowder hit Kellner on a 23-yard toss. Crowder's kick-after was good, but the 'Dogs came up a point short, 30-29.

"James was our outstanding player offensively, but we made some bad defensive mistakes," said Pierson. "Most of the touchdowns scored in the game were long runs. We'd do a good job holding them and then bang, away they'd go. And they'd hold us for a while and bang, away we'd go. It was a good ballgame, but both teams were mistake prone defensively."

Ira was playing without its fastest teammember, Danny Denson, who was out with an illness. He is expected back when the Dogs travel to Christoval for an 8 p.m. game next Friday.

Also of note, Ira junior high defeated Blackwell on Thursday night, 64-32.

Kansas City Faces San Diego...

Are The Chiefs Real?

by The Associated Press

Are the Kansas City Chiefs for real?

The Chiefs, off to their best start since 1969 when they won their first two games and went on to victory in Super Bowl IV, meet the high-powered San Diego Chargers Sunday in a battle of undefeated American Football Conference West teams.

"It's an experience nobody on this team has ever felt except for (center) Jack Rudnay," said Chiefs cornerback Gary Green. "And I mean nobody.

"We are learning to win, and that lets your confidence grow like a snowball," added Green.

"In the past three years, we played a lot of games that were very close, that we could have won. We didn't.

"Now, we are learning how to win."

The Chiefs opened their season by rallying to beat the Pittsburgh Steelers 37-33, then downed the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 19-10.

But in the Chargers, who have beaten Cleveland 44-14 and Detroit 28-23, the Chiefs will be facing the National Football League's highest scoring team.

San Diego's offense is so explosive that it has frightened Kansas City Coach Marv Levy.

Tuesday, he said he had watched films only of the Chargers' defense. "I haven't looked at them on offense," he said. "I'm almost afraid to."

"If anything, their attack is better than a year ago, because they've got more balance to it," added Levy, recalling that San Diego averaged over 400 yards per game - an NFL record - in 1980.

"They are running better. (Chuck) Muncie is a great runner - very hard to bring down...I think they are willing to run more, and the success they've had means they're willing to come back to it more."

In other NFL games Sunday, it will be Miami at Houston, San Francisco at Atlanta, Cleveland at Cincinnati, Tampa Bay at Chicago, Baltimore at Denver, New Orleans at the New York Giants, Detroit at Minnesota, Seattle at Oakland, the New York Jets at Pittsburgh, Green Bay at Los Angeles and Washington at St. Louis.

Monday night, Dallas will be at New England.

In a Thursday night game, Philadelphia defeated Buffalo 20-14.

While San Diego's running game is improved with Muncie and rookie James Brooks, the Chargers' passing attack still is very dangerous.

Quarterback Dan Fouts went over the 20,000-yard career mark in passing last week by throwing for 316 yards against the Lions. Fouts tied his NFL record with his fourth straight regular-season 300-yard game. He has six consecutive 300-yard games, including the 1980 playoffs.

San Diego Coach Don Coryell knows the quick striking power of his offense, but he is concerned about the Chiefs' defense.

He has called Kansas City's secondary "the best we play against," and said he is wary of the Chiefs' linebacking crew.

Compromise Urged In Suit Involving CFA

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - A federal judge has put the Oklahoma-Georgia suit against the NCAA on hold, urging the College Football Association and the NCAA to reach a compromise at a special convention in December.

U.S. District Judge Luther Eubanks issued a temporary restraining order on Friday, preventing the National Collegiate Athletic Association from starting disciplinary proceedings against the universities of Oklahoma and Georgia.

NCAA spokesman David Cawood at NCAA headquarters in Mission, Kan., said, "Although the exact content of the modified restraining order is not yet clear, our legal counsel was pleased with the manner in which the hearing was conducted and the expression of the court that it would be preferrble for the parties to resolve the matter out of court. The special convention affords us an opportunity to do so."

Oklahoma faculty representative Dan Gibbens and the school's chief legal counsel Stanley Ward announced Eubanks' decision Friday night.

Ward said the order also restrains the NCAA from implementing any football television contract purporting to bind the two universities.

The order is to continue until a final hearing on the merits of a class action suit filed by the University of Oklahoma and the University of Georgia Athletic Association regarding the 61-member CFA schools' property rights to televised football games.

That hearing is scheduled the week after the NCAA special convention on Dec. 3-4, assuming the key issues are not resolved by then.

Meanwhile the University of Texas has agreed to hold off on its civil suit against the NCAA over football telecasts until after a special Dec. 6 meeting of the NCAA.

District Judge Charles Mathews signed an order in Austin Friday that continues the temporary restraining order against the NCAA until Jan. 4, after UT agreed to limit its civil suit only to UT-Austin concerning a television contract with NBC.

Ward said the order will be refined further by attorneys for presentation to the judge on Monday and may contain additional provisions.

A lawyer's conference also is scheduled before Eubanks on Oct. 1 to assist the lawyers in preparing for the December hearing. The order vindicates the schools' decision to challenge the claim on their property rights and freedom to contract.

Witnesses testified Friday that one of the CFA's primary concerns is how the NCAA votes on television rights.

CFA spokesman Chuck Neinas, executive director of the organization of major college football powers, told Eubanks, "Our position is that the schools which are affected by the television plan are those which should vote on it."

If One Option Is Adopted...

Ross Perot Might Be The Only Medicaid Bidder

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — H. Ross Perot might be the only bidder for Texas' $400 million-a-year Medicaid business if the Board of Human Resources adopts one of two options recommended by a consultant for dispensing medical treatment to the needy.

Touche Ross & Co. said it is "imperative" to scrap Texas' present existing system, which it said costs $6 million more each year than the alternatives recommended Friday.

Board members plan to decide Sept. 24 how Medicaid should be operated, then call for competitive bids.

They hired Touche Ross after deciding last year against giving the 1981-85 contract to Perot or his lone competitor, Bradford National Corp. of New York City.

Medicaid is financed by state and federal funds. Texas uses an insurance mechanism with a large reserve that covers unexpected losses and provides money for the contractor to invest. Perot's National Heritage Insurance Co. has held the contract since 1977.

Robert Campbell of Touche Ross disclosed that the U.S. Health Care Financing Administration has threatened to veto continuation of the present Texas method of Medicaid operation.

"The (Reagan) administration's budget reduction initiatives have raised serious questions over the current structure in Texas which allows over $160 million in federal and state funds not currently needed to pay claims to be held and invested by the contractor. The Health Care Financing Administration regional office plans to recommend disapproval of the current or any alternative structure which would allow such large fund balances to build up," Campbell said.

Campbell laid out two Medicaid options:

— A "quota share" insurance system under which the insurer would pay no more than 10 percent of any excess of claims over premiums, with the state absorbing the rest. The contractor could keep 10 percent of any excess of premiums over claims. The contractor's maximum gain or loss would be limited, however, to 0.9 percent of total premiums, or $4.8 million in 1983.

— A "contract program administrator" system in which the Medicaid contractor would get only an administrative fee but also would receive a bonus for controlling costs.

Campbell said Touche Ross had surveyed other states' Medicaid contractors and more than 600 insurance companies, but only four firms indicated a possible interest in bidding for Texas' business.

No response was received from Bradford National, which the board paid a $3 million settlement last year for reneging on a July decision to grant Bradford the 1981-85 contract.

Only Perot said he would be willing to bid under the present system.

If the pure "contract program administrator" system is used, four companies indicated an interest — Perot's NHIC, Computer Sciences Corp. of California, The Computer Co. of Richmond, Va., and Systems Development Corp. of McLean, Va.

Campbell said if the "quota share" insurance system is adopted, only Perot definitely would bid. Systems Development Corp. said "no." Computer Sciences Corp. and The Computer Co. said "maybe."

The Department of Human Resources said if bids are excessive or unacceptable it could administer Medicaid efficiently on its own and able to start up by March 1, 1983, if the board instructed it by Aug. 1, 1982.

Bellringer, Priest Differ On Tunes

ST. HELENS, England (AP) — The bells of St. Mary's started a ding-dong fight here between bellringer Eva Garner and her parish priest, the Rev. Vincent Hughes.

Mrs. Garner, a pop-loving pensioner, made Sundays swing with foot-tapping versions of "The Teddy Bears' Picnic," "Danny Boy," and other upbeat tunes in addition to the usual Beethoven and Mendelssohn.

Her light touch on the complicated keyboard of the 47-bell carillon at the Roman Catholic Church in this glassmaking town won praise from the Jesuits who ran the church. But they moved out last April and a new team of "renewal" priests moved in, led by Hughes.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

South's bidding of today's hand, as reported by Fred Karpin, could stand a lot if improvement.

The only excuse for it was that the game was rubber bridge, the hour was late and South wanted to get the rubber over with and score his 100 honors.

There is a well-known principle of play that if you want to be declarer you should be able to play the dummy well.

There are lots of ways to play the hand. South could probably just play out a lot of trumps and watch the defenders squirm to guard against dummy's almost useless spade suit.

Or South could lead a club to dummy's jack at trick two. If West held the king of clubs, South would make an overtrick. As the cards lie that low club lead might leave South one trick short. East could return a trump and South would be one down.

Now, how did South actually play the hand? At trick two he led his queen of clubs. East took his king and led back a trump but South was in complete control. He drew trumps, entered dummy with the jack of clubs to wind up with six trumps, two clubs and the two other aces.

"How I Won at the Losing Game!"

2612 COLLEGE • ANOTHER DIET CENTER SUCCESS STORY • 573-8583

Tawnya Huntsman had never had a weight problem. When she and Varcel married, her petite, 5'2" frame weighed an ideal 112 pounds. It wasn't until she became pregnant with their first child that Tawnya knew what it was to fight the "battle of the bulge."

Upon taking their beautiful, new daughter, Nicoya, home from the hospital, Tawnya was 20 pounds over her regular weight. This was a new experience for her and not a welcomed one. She called her doctor with the hope that he would be able to help. But because she was breast-feeding, he would not allow diet pills. Instead, he encouraged her to just stabilize her weight. This she managed to do.

Five months later, while still breast-feeding, she weighed the same as the day she came home from the hospital, yet liked herself less as each day went by. Tawnya wanted to breast-feed longer but just couldn't stand the awkward size of her body. She decided it was time for Nicoya to go on formula so that she could start taking diet pills. It was terrific; she was hardly hungry, which enabled her to skip both breakfast and lunch. At last, the pounds were coming off—and she was so happy being a new mother. But she couldn't understand why the baby's crying got on her nerves. (She had heard of the "postpartum baby blues"—but why had it taken so long to hit?) She was so pleased with herself—why weren't things going too well on the home front?

As the baby blues subsided, she found that she had reached her ideal weight; and once she was off the diet pills, life started returning to normal.

Two years later, another baby was due. Tawnya was re-experiencing the weight problem she had had the first time around. The only difference now was 25 pounds upon returning home from the hospital . . . and the bundle of joy was a boy, Oliver.

Second verse, same as the first . . . Her weight didn't fluctuate at all while breast-feeding, but Tawnya was totally disgusted with herself and decided that four and a half months of breast-feeding would have to do for Oliver . . . because she was going back on diet pills. Until then, she hadn't realized how much harder it was to raise two children instead of one. By the end of the day, she was totally devoid of energy. She just couldn't understand it. During the day she was so energetic that she was able to skip breakfast and lunch. Why didn't her evening meal provide the lift she needed by that time of day? By nearly starving herself, she at last lost the unwanted pounds.

Another two years, another baby, a girl Kattie and . . . another 25 pounds. Five months of breast-feeding, then back to the diet pills, and the one-meal-a-day diet she followed while on them. This time, though, it was a bit tougher to take the weight off. She felt worse than ever, but what else could she do?

Two years passed without another grand event. But now, even not pregnant, Tawnya was still fighting a weight problem. While talking with some friends, Tawnya should have never made the comment: "Guess I ought to be pregnant. At least I would have an excuse to look the way I do." Before long, she had the excuse; she was pregnant. This time, the new arrival (another girl), Tyia Jo, was born on August 28, 1980. How could Tawnya breast-feed with the holidays just around the corner, and now heavier than ever before in her life. It was time to change strategies.

Her mother had been losing weight on a new program in town called Diet Center. Tawnya mentioned it to her doctor. After reviewing information sent from the local Diet Center Counselor and seeing that it was well-balanced and nutritionally sound (even for a nursing mother), he gave her permission to go on the program while breast-feeding.

It was now two weeks before Thanksgiving—was this really the time to start any diet? Why not? She could at least give it a try; and besides, there were no contracts to sign.

Perhaps it was the excitement of the 8½ pounds quickly lost the first two weeks, along with the anticipation of a skinny body, that helped Tawnya make it through Thanksgiving. And her mother was such a gracious hostess. She prepared baked chicken breast with Diet Center dressing, green beans, and diet jello salad just for Tawnya. Not only was her meal satisfying but also appetizing. She wasn't in the least tempted to eat what the rest of the family were having. Needless to say, she was the only one the next day who actually lost weight (another ½ pound).

The days passed quickly. Christmas and New Years both came and went with the same fabulous results as Thanksgiving. Tawnya was certain that the daily weigh-ins and the concern of her Diet Center Counselor were partially responsible for how well she was doing. Someone was always there to lean on. By eating nutritious meals and taking the Diet Center Food Supplement, Tawnya always had a good energy level, felt calm; and the baby was thriving.

In eight weeks Tawnya lost 38¾ pounds, returning to 115. With the Diet Center Program, she not only felt better and lost faster, but the inches came off in all the right places. Now she was a dress-size smaller than at her previous weight.

Tawnya was not the only one to benefit. Because she had altered the way she had been cooking for her family—preparing more fresh foods, baking and broiling meats, providing fresh fruits and vegetables for in-between snacks—Varcel lost 20 pounds . . . and Tyia was breast-fed for 9½ months. Now Tawnya says: "If I become pregnant again, it won't be to hide my fat. I will never be overweight again."

OCTOBER WEDDING—Johnnie Lou McCright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McCright, 3011 Avenue V, and Barry Wayne Preston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Preston, announce their engagement and forthcoming marriage. They will be married October 10 at 7 in the evening at Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

Vows Exchanged In Double Ring Ceremony

Su-Zan Francis and Donald R. Sellars were united in marriage on September 12 at Brookhollow Christian Church in Abilene at five in the afternoon. Reverend Robert L. Bratcher officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Francis III of Abilene and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve M. Cox of Snyder.

The altar was centered with an ivory silk arrangement flowing from the baptistry window and flanked by myriads of candles in arched, spiral and tree candelabra. Large fern ties banked the altar with stands of gypsophilia and lemon leaf. The mother's pews were each marked by a single candelabrum with garlands of greenery and gypsophilia and lace bows. The other pews were marked with satin and lace bows.

Mrs. Gary Meinzer of Odessa was organist. Kyle Cox of Fort Worth played the guitar and sang "What a Difference You've Made in My Life" and "You Needed Me." Mrs. Larry Morriss of Sherman sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "Never My Love."

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown of ribbon lace and chiffon featured Juliet sleeves, a jewel neckline, camisole bodice, a full gathered skirt, and a chapel train. A fingertip veil trimmed in Chantilly lace fell from a Juliet cap. She carried a cluster bouquet of silk roses, freesia, stephanotis, pixie carnations, and needlepoint ivy accented with gypsophilia.

Mrs. Doug Hayes, sister of the bride, of Singapore served as matron of honor. She wore an ivory gown and carried a cluster bouquet of mauve silk flowers. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Dee Flamming of Wichita Falls, Ms. Sheri Wright of Tyler and Mrs. Gary Anderson of Denison. Their gowns were of mauve silk and they each carried an ivory and mauve silk bouquet accented with starlight gypsophilia. Matching circlets of gypsophilia adorned their hair.

MRS. DONALD R. SELLARS
(Lloyd Jones Studio)

Kirby Sterling of Ira served as best man. Groomsmen were Wesley Key of Ira, Eddie Bane, and Rick Berry. They wore gray tuxedos with ivory shirts.

Guests were seated by Alton Sutter, brother-in-law of the groom, Doug Hayes, brother-in-law of the bride, of Singapore, and Lee Power, the bride's cousin, of Midland.

Jerad Hayes, the bride's nephew, of Singapore was ring bearer. He also wore a gray tuxedo and ivory shirt.

A reception was held following the ceremony at Robert's Recreation Center.

The bride's table was covered with an ivory satin cloth and an ivory underlay. It was centered with an arrangement of silk roses, freesia, stephanotis, and needlepoint ivy accented with gypsophilia in ivory and mauve. The three-tiered cake was topped with silk roses, freesia, stephanotis, pixie carnations, and needlepoint ivy accented with gypsophilia in mauve and ivory. Crystal and gold appointments were used. Mrs. Jerry Brooks of Odessa, Ms. Pam McBride of Midland, Mrs. Vance Gibson of Abilene, Ms. Kelly North of Abilene, Ms. Shannon North of Abilene, Ms. Donna Moore of Dallas, Mrs. Dan Scott of Davis, Oklahoma, and Mrs. Randy Panter of Wichita Falls presided at the table.

The groom's table was covered with a burgundy cloth and held a chocolate cake with a Texas A&M monogram. Appointments were in crystal and gold.

Mrs. Alton Sutter, sister of the groom, registered guests as they arrived.

Following a wedding trip to Possum Kingdom, the couple will reside at 6537 Dunbar in Odessa.

The bride is a graduate of Sherman High School and Grayson Junior College. She is employed by Alex G. Sullivan, D.D.S. in Odessa.

The groom graduated from Ira High School and Texas A&M University. He is employed by Champion Chemicals in Odessa.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Briarstone Manor.

Out of town guests were from Colorado City, Sherman, Odessa, Conroe, Monahans, and Singapore.

The bride was honored with gift showers in Odessa, Abilene and Sherman and a coffee in Snyder.

Millions Of Colors Distinguishable

WASHINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — In 23 years, specialists here have matched some 45,000 colors, yet they have a long way to go before touching the 8 to 10 million colors distinguishable to the human eye.

To meet customer requirements for colored plastics used in telephones, kitchen appliances, power tools and interior and exterior automobile parts, Borg-Warner Chemicals employs some 55 persons to match colors used to manufacture its thermoplastics.

Couple Wed In Afternoon Rites

Tamela Sharon Bruns became the bride of James Dale Swigert at Trinity United Methodist Church on August 29 at three in the afternoon.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Roland Burns, Route 1, Box 10B. Parents of the groom are Mr.and Mrs. Dale Swigert of 403 33rd Street.

The altar was centered with a heart-shaped candelabrum, flanked by two spiral candelabra and two 15-branch candelabra. All contained burning tapers and were entwined with greenery.

The musical program was presented by Van Hayes, instrumentalist, and vocalists Don and Mary Babcock, the bride's aunt and uncle, from Denver, Colorado. They presented "1st Corinthians 13," "The Lord's Prayer," and "Surround Me with Love." "Tammy" was sung during the cutting of the cake at the reception.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white tulle over taffeta with a bodice of Chantilly lace. It featured a Queen Anne neckline trimmed in pearls and a chapel length train. The Chantilly edged tulle veil was attached to a headpiece of Chantilly lace and pearls. Pearl trimmed butterflies were scattered on the veil and on the front of the skirt.

She carried a cascade bouquet of white silk roses, English ivy, silk stephanotis, and trailing streamers atop a white Bible.

(Ted Bigham Photography)

In keeping with tradition, she carried a Bible belonging to her mother for something old. Something new was her dress and she borrowed a rose diamond necklace from her maternal grandmother, Leona Babcock. Her garter was blue and she wore pennies minted in the years of their birth in her shoes. They were given to her by her paternal grandmother, Fay Bruns.

Mrs. Carla Sanchez served as matron of honor. She wore a long dress of peach taffeta and organza with a ruffled front and back neckline. The capelet sleeves were bow trimmed and the ruffled skirt was hooked at the waist with a rose. A silk peach rose adorned her hair. Bridesmaids were Misses Marsha Burrus, Lana Bruns, cousin of the bride, Debi Bruns, the bride's sister, Debbie Vernon of Odessa, Shannon Browning, Debbie Stone, and Karen Ballard. Sara Babcock of Denver, Colorado, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Their dresses were identical to that of the matron of honor and the attendants carried long stemmed carnations and baby's breath.

David Zajicek was best man and groomsmen were Mike Lapoint of Houston, Kenny Harbin, Jeff Terry, Bobby Jones, Perry Robertson, Ronnie Myers, and Larry Freeman, cousin of the groom.

Guests were seated by Victor Bruns, the bride's brother, and David Babcock, cousin of the bride.

Scott Stout, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer and Matt Babcock of Denver, Colorado, and Randall Babcock were candlelighters.

All the male attendants wore burgundy tuxedos and the groom wore a white tuxedo.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church.

The bride's table was laid with a white lace cloth over a peach underlay and centered with a bronzed horse, a gift to the bride from Debbie Vernon. It was surrounded by peach and burgundy flowers. The white cake was three-tiered with a fountain and peach and burgundy flowers. It was topped with two white doves of love in front of a bell entwined with lilies of the valley. Ms. Kim Byrom and Ms. Belinda Loveall served the cake and punch.

The groom's table was covered with a burgundy cloth. It held a copper coffee service and a chocolate cake decorated in burgundy and peach. Sherry Derrick, the groom's cousin, presided at this table.

Guest were registed by Lori Swigert, sister of the groom.

The bride wore a peach colored dress with burgundy flowers, spaghetti straps and handkechief skirt with burgundy accessories for going away. After a wedding trip to the Kiva Inn in Abilene, the couple will reside in Snyder.

The bride is a 1981 graduate of Snyder High School and is secretary-bookkeeper for Ken Babcock Inc.

The groom graduated from Snyder High School in 1978 and is an electrician at Action Electric.

Tunable Laser Hard To Detect

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — A man-made mineral has made possible a tunable laser — one whose wavelength can be changed, according to research scientists here.

Two things have been done in this country with solid state lasers that no one else has done — synthesized the mineral alexandrite in production level quantities and discovered that the wavelength of light projected through the mineral could be changed, according to Allied Corp., which holds patents on the technology.

The tunable laser is difficult to detect because of its wavelength agility and can thwart most existing anti-laser techniques, company officials say. Until these advancements, all solid state lasers operated at a fixed frequency.

BEEF TURNOVERS

They have a Jamaican filling.

Pastry, see recipe
¾ pound ground beef
Medium onion, finely chopped
¾ teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon curry powder
½ teaspoon dried thyme
Pepper to taste, preferably generous
1-3rd cup fine saltine cracker crumbs
½ cup water

Make up Pastry. In a 10-inch skillet over moderate heat cook together the remaining ingredients, except the crumbs and water, crumbling with a fork until beef loses its red color. Stir in the crumbs and water; cool. On a pastry cloth with a stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out one portion of the pastry to an 8-inch square; cut into four 4-inch squares. Divide ¼ of the meat filling into 4 equal portions; place a portion toward the center of each pastry square; fold over edges to meet; seal with fork tines; prick tops. Place slightly apart on an ungreased jellyroll pan. Treat remaining pastry and filling the same way. Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven until browned — 15 minutes. Serve hot. Makes 16.

Pastry: Cream 1 cup (two ¼-pound sticks) butter with two 3-ounce packages cream cheese and ½ teaspoon turmeric; gradually work in 2 cups allpurpose flour until blended. Shape into a flat square, wrap in saran and chill. Divide into 4 equal portions; work with one at a time, keeping the others chilled.

lesson in migration

Something profound but quite natural is happening to patterns of economic growth and population in America. People are moving to places they prefer to live and wealth is shifting to industries and states that promise the gratest return on investment.

Accordingly, the nation's center of gravity---whether measured by population, wealth, culture or technology---is moving away from Northern and Eastern cities built largley to accommodate the industrial and commercial needs of half a century ago.

The shift is mostly South and West, but also includes considerable movement into suburban and rural areas of the Northeast and Upper Midwest.

It isn't so much Sunbelt vs. Frostbelt as it is America II emerging from the diminished promise of America I.

Just over half of all Americans now live in the South and West, reversing a population tilt that prevailed for most of the nation's history. But what the new majority is doing is more important than where it lives.

The citizens of America II, whether natives or transplants, tend to be innovators. They are building new kinds of cities less centralized and more livable than the congested urban centers of the North and East.

They are hard at work in new, high technology industries that represent the nation's best chance to regain its traditional competitive edge in world markets.

And the pioneers of America II are remaking the nation's economic and demographic landscape with a zest and self-reliance that augurs well for their success.

But what of America I? Is it doomed to irreversible decline? Hardly, provided it profits from its own past mistakes.

Outmoded technology, inhospitable cities, intrusive government, and a fading interpreneurship are more precise descriptions of America I than any of the regional boundaries so frequently cited. Snow is no barrier to profitable industries, livable environments or the wit and will to nurture both.

Even now, for example, there are pockets of economic revival in New England, a region supposedly suffering an incurable case of industrial decline.

Meanwhile, America II should profit from the experience of America I as it copes with migrating populations, congestion and other side effects of growth. How it handles this task will determine its role in America III.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Show us a man who looks you right in the eye and we'll lay odds he's an ophthalmologist."

Stories in various publications lately have indicated that the long-term migration from rural and small community areas has not only slowed but is being reversed.

A national publication recently had a story about the difficulities large companies are having in moving their executives into large cities these days, and how a great many companies are moving to the suburbs because people are happier and work better there rather than large cities.

One example was given of a Spencer Beef Co. executive who turned down a promotion to Chicago from Spencer, an Iowa city of 12,000. He finally quit the company rather than move to Chicago, and he citied a number of reasons for the decision.

Foremost was the feeling of belonging that he had in a small town where people knew him and he knew them. He felt more like a person than a faceless statistic in a big city, and that is important.

A Wall Street Journal article recently points out the shift by major retail chains away from the big cities into smaller communities because they have found that sales are generated as well, if not better, in small towns.

There is more to life than making money, and the contentment with one's home town has to outweight many monetary matters. After all, you can't take it with you, and you may as well enjoy it while you're here.

The disadvantages of big cities were vividly illustrated to us several years ago when a delegation traveled to Houston to visit an industrial prospect.

We arrived at International Airport and then drove more than an hour, fighting rush-hour freeway traffic, to reach the corporate headquarters.

The meeting got underway about 10 a.m. and about 11:15 it was announced that we had better head to a restaurant for lunch in order to beat the rush.

Lunch lasted until well past 1 p.m. Back at the office by 2 p.m., the session continued until 3 when the executives announced they had to get ready to go home to beat the traffic.

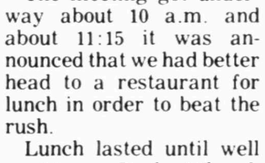

No more than four hours of actual work had taken place that day. It occurred to me at that time that a large company would get much more productivity if it would locate outside major population markets.

commentary

There is a more or less classic pattern for descent into revolutionary terror that was cut in France almost 300 years ago.

First the relatively moderate leadership, those who would temper revolutionary fervor with reason, are swept away by the fanatics. the Mirabeaus and Dantons give way to the Robespierres and Marats.

Factional differences erupt into factional warfare and rule by institutions is replaced by the merciless tyranny of the mob, or those able to dominate the mob. The executioner becomes for a time the supreme authority as the revolution devours its children by the hundreds and thousands.

It is a pattern that is being followed with precision so far in Iran.

The Bakhtiars and Bani-Sadrs are gone. The foreign war against the Iraqi invader and quarrels with the Kurds and other rebellious minorities have been pushed to the background by the escalating internal conflict. The fundamentalist mullahs have triumphed over the moderate political opposition only to face what is proving itself as an even more formidable foe in the Mujahedeen, young leftists who share the Islamic zeal but not the commitment to a dead past of the mullahs and are, if anything, even more ruthless.

The mullahs are responding to the Mujahedeen's wholesale assassinations of the religious leadership with repression that increasingly not only resembles but exceeds that of the reviled shah.

Savak, the dreaded secret police, has been reconsituted with a thinly cosmetic name change. Family members are instructed to inform upon each other. Suspected dissidents are being arrested wholesale. Firing squads, already working overtime, are exhorted to greater efforts. There have been an acknowledged 500 executions and very likely many more in the few months since the ouster of former President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr.

The terror is here and the Iranian revolution devours its children.

So far, so true to the pattern. But there is one important respect in which this revolution does not resemble the French—or the Russian, Mexican or Chinese among the great social upheavals of recent centuries.

Each and every one of the above examples was characterized by a similar goal—to sweep away an unjust, decayed old order and replace it with a new and better social organization responsive to the realities and requirements of the future. Despite the excesses in its pursuit and in some cases failures in achievement, revolutions essential motivation remained constant.

In the case of the French, achievement was impressive if short of total. The revolution that reupted in France rapidly became an international conflict between the old and the new. Its impact has been universal, a fundamental restructuring of all of civilized society that continues to this day.

The French Revolution was the seminal event of the modern world, its ideals surviving the Terror, Napoleonic imperialism and repeated resurgences of the reactionary past. Its legacies—modern democracy and nationals—have through three centuries transformed society after society, nation after nation. If not always without heavy cost, in the case of nationalism, nevertheless irresistibly and irrevocably.

This has not, however, been the motivaton of the Iranian revolution—or at least of those fanatics in increasingly shaky control. It is, in fact, in part the consequences of the French revolution that they have rebelled against. Rather than sweeping away the old and building for the future, they would restore an old order long moribund and turn their people's backs to the future. They would not open the way to a new freedom responding to the needs of Iran today and tomorrow, but resurrect an old authoritarianism.

In the respect, the Iranian revolution is something new, an updating of a classic, and may have something to teach us.

Which could be another way of saying that the worst may be yet to come.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

A lot of mothers I know are downright meddling when it comes to their children's selection of a boyfriend or a girlfriend.

They want to know how old, how tall, what their father does, where they live, the scope of their education, what their plans are for the future, and how they feel about children.

I don't care about any of those things. All I want to know is, "is he or she a local call or a toll?"

I don't remember names or faces of old flames. All I remember is their area code. One of my sons once dated an area code 513 for six months. It was marriage by Ma Bell. I figured we were spending $35 a month to share such insights as:

"What are you doing?"

"Nothing, what are you doing?"

"I don't want to interrupt you if you're doing something."

"I told you I wasn't doing anything."

"You sure?"

"I'm sure."

"So what's new?"

Another one of my kids showed an interest in a lovely girl who lived just a few miles from us. It was great. I didn't have to worry about a deep involvement because they were never off the phone. He set his alarm to call her in the morning. At night I used to go in and remove the phone from his ear as he slept. It was like hanging up an umbilical cord. As soon as they left one another at school in the afternoon they would shout, "I'll call you when I get home." I offered to feed him intravenously.

The suggestion by my husband to put a timer by the phone with sand running through was ridiculous. However, I did slip a calendar under his door and circle the month.

Panic didn't set in until one day when I was standing near and saw him dial "1."

"Who are you calling?" I asked.

"You know," he said, "The same person I've been talking with for the last month."

"But I thought she was a local call."

"Don't worry," he said. "It only costs about eight cents a minute. Besides, this isn't just some sillykid infatuation. This is a person I genuinely care for and want to spend the rest of my life with. She's important to me. She's special and there isn't anything I wouldn't do for her."

"I'm glad to hear you say that," I said, "because according to the phone bill you owed us $38.86 in long distance charges."

I learned something that day. When toll charges enter the room...love goes right out the window.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't try to mix friends who have differing points of view today. You could wind up playing referee to a couple of hotheads.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Schedule your day so you can give all the time necessary to your most important priorities. Otherwise, you could become distracted and waste valuable time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're an excellent organizer today, and a catalyst for your friends. Don't ruin things for the group by stepping back and letting a bungler take charge.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You have excellent imaginative abilities today, yet for some reason you may have a difficult time believing your ideas are any good.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Have fun and enjoy yourself today, but don't put such a strain on your wallet that you end up broke. Pay close attention to what you are spending.

September 21, 1981

More opportunities than usual could come your way through friends this coming year. Don't take them for granted. If you fail to make the most of them, you'll regret it later.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Before laying out any hard-earned cash today, check everything out carefully to see if the situation or item is worth it, even if it's offered by a well-intentioned person. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Continue to work diligently toward a goal, but don't become pushy or bossy over your project. You could upset the applecart.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your worthwhile, creative ideas may never get off the ground today. You may opt to believe that inner voice that is bellowing out all types of apprehensions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's not stingy to turn down a loan to a friend that you really can't afford in the first place. Follow your common sense, not your emotions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might not be able to please everyone today, so if you run into a few people who don't think you're too hot, chalk it up to their lack of vision.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Doors will be opened for you today, but once you walk through them you had better be able to produce. This is not a time to cover up inexperience.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You mingle well even in unfamiliar circles today, but your judgment concerning strangers may not be too keen. Take care with whom you get involved.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Some opportunity you deem special and exciting may be offered you today. However, your spouse may not view this in the same light. A choice may have to be made.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might not be realistic today about something you want. You may expect to have it handed to you without any effort on your part.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's quite possible that your generous nature will be taken advantage of today. You may even know you're being had, but you'll still ante up.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Several friends may seek out your company for fun and games today, but it's doubtful you'll be able to participate. Family responsibilities will interfere.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Those who won't give you the time of day are the ones you're trying to cater to today, while you'll ignore individuals who offer friendship.

Bowman Accused Of Embezzlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barbara Bowman, an in-law of Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., has been accused of embezzling $12,136 from the Senate post office, where she was chief clerk until directed to resign Sept. 1.

The 44-year-old Fairfax, Va., resident was charged in an "information" filed in U.S. District Court by the U.S. attorney's office. Informations are frequently used in cases where a defendant has agreed to plead guilty.

The document said Mrs. Bowman replaced some of the money before an audit was conducted by the General Accounting Office. It added that the shortage was uncovered by a second, surprise audit.

Mrs. Bowman is the niece of the senator's wife, Erma. She had been at the post office since September 1980 and was paid more than $24,000 per year.

Conviction could bring a maximum sentence of 15 years and a $20,000 fine.

Pepper Price Is Dropping

KUCHING, Malaysia (AP) — Malaysia is the world's largest producer and exporter of pepper, but the price is falling and farmers are abandoning the spice for more lucrative crops, the Pepper Marketing Board said today.

Leonard Linggi Jugah, chairman of the board, said the government has set aside $1.7 million to buy surplus stocks this year from farmers at "reasonable prices." He did not specify a figure.

Malaysia produces about 30,000 tons of pepper a year, about 30 percent of the world production. The United States, Japan, and the 10 nations of the European Common Market are the major importers of Malaysian pepper.

Congress, Military Debate Benefits

EDITOR'S NOTE — The GI Bill of Rights was a successful wartime-draft era benefit for the military. But it expired at the end of 1976 and the program replacing it hasn't been working. Now, Congress and the military are debating how to provide new benefits, to lure enlistments and help veterans adjust to civilian life.

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon's civilian leaders, the armed services and many in Congress agree that major new educational incentives are essential to make the all-volunteer force work over the long haul.

Their common goal is to improve quality and assure adequate numbers in the services, especially with the Reagan administration preparing to ask for a bigger force at a time when the military-age population is shrinking.

Congress and the services believe educational credits should be transferable from service men or women to their children. Civilian manpower officials doubt this feature, something entirely new, would be worth the money.

Congress appears ready to move quickly with legislation. So do the services. But Pentagon leaders have asked Congress to wait until next year, after certain options are tested. These officials also have appealed to Congress to await the findings of a Military Manpower Task Force created by President Reagan.

Whatever plan is adopted eventually, the new program will not be a revival of the GI Bill of Rights that expired at the end of 1976. That old program, enacted in the wartimedraft era, was intended to reward men for compulsory military service and to help them readjust to civilian life.

The new purpose, in the absence of conscription, is to use educational benefits to entice high-quality young men and women to enlist and to persuade the best of them to remain in uniform after their first enlistments run out.

Pentagon manpower chief Lawrence J. Korb says this presents a dilemma:

"How can we encourage our young persons to perform military service to earn special educational benefits and then, only a few years later, discourage them from leaving the service in order to use these benefits?"

Army Secretary John O. Marsh and Gen. Edward C. Meyer, the Army's chief of staff, are urging that educational benefits be made transferable to children.

But Defense Department civilian officials contend that "transferability" should be weighed against other approaches, such as increased enlistment and re-enlistment bonuses, in deciding whether it is worth the extra expense.

"It seems to me that it's not a cost-effective way to attract and retain the necessary people," says Korb.

The old GI Bill was replaced with a program called the Veteran's Educational Assistance Program (VEAP), under which a man or woman in the service receives $2 in benefits for each $1 they contribute.

A new, non-contributory education aid package appears to be about the only major tool left to try after more than eight years of experimenting with all sorts of blandishments in efforts by a series of administrations to avoid returning to the draft.

There are enlistment bonuses of up to $5,000 and re-enlistment bonuses of up to $16,000 for military persons with vital skills. Congress has jacked up allowances for sea duty and other special service, and has provided "variable housing allowances" to help service men and women beat the high cost of renting in many areas of the country.

The services have rebounded from their worst recruiting year, 1979, when none of them met their goals.

Credit for this is given by Pentagon civilian officials and service leaders alike to the variety of improved bonuses and benefits and, most particularly, to an 11.7 percent pay increase enacted by Congress last year after it was reluctantly accepted by the Carter administration. The tough economic condition also is a factor, officials say.

The Reagan administration is pressing hard for an across the board 14.3 percent additional pay raise to become effective next Oct. 1, something which Korb and other senior officials say should finally restore reasonable comparability of military pay with salaries in the private sector.

In its most recent quarterly report, the Pentagon said that all the services "essentially achieved or exceeded their strength objectives" in the first nine months of this fiscal year.

Partly under the prodding of Congress, the services also have reported significant gains in various quality indices, particularly the percentage of high school graduates entering the forces.

Although there is debate in some quarters about how to measure quality, the standard most widely accepted in the Defense Department is geared to the degree to which the services can attract and retain high school graduates.

The Pentagon's latest manpower report showed that 74 percent of the male recruits taken into the services between last October and June held high school diplomas while 90 percent of the women recruits were high school graduates.

The Army chronically has suffered problems in signing up high school grads and has endured criticism stemming from those problems. But the recent manpower report reflected a dramatic rise in the Army's performance, with 59 percent of its fiscal 1981 male recruits holding high school diplomas compared to 40 percent in the comparable nine months last year.

Some critics of the all-volunteer concept have voiced concern that the services would become heavily black and poor.

Korb says that, from his standpoint, the services as a whole "are as representative as we have ever been all through conscription," in both racial content and economic background.

A Pentagon study finished last March indicated that 20 percent of the more than 2 million men and women in uniform were black. Blacks make up about 13 percent of the total national population of military age, between 17 and 24, the study said.

ChurchConcerned Over MX Missiles

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Concern expressed by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints over the MX missile boosted the number of Utah residents opposing deployment of the missile in their state, pollster Dan Jones says.

A copyright Deseret News poll, conducted the week before Labor Day by Dan Jones & Associates and published Monday, said 65 percent of Utah's residents oppose deployment of the missile in Nevada and Utah.

But the poll, based on interviews with 600 people, said 69 percent reported they would either definitely or probably support President Reagan if he decides to go head with deployment.

Coffee withdrawal

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column about people having a headache because of coffee withdrawal. I want to tell you that stopping coffee suddenly causes lots more than a headache in me. In the '30s I thought I would quit coffee for a while. One morning I ate my usual breakfast and went to work without any coffee. As the morning progressed my head developed a throbbing headache and by 11 o'clock I was vomiting on the floor. I didn't make it to the toilet soon enough.

In 1965 I had a hernia operation. The week before I tapered off coffee for four or five days. Still on one of those days I vomited. Of course, I did this because I knew that on the morning of the operation I wouldn't get any breakfast and no coffee. The reason I have tried to stop coffee at times is it seems I play sharper handball and sleep better if I don't use it but I always go back, having drunk it since I was a baby.

I am writing to you so you could enlighten lots of people due for an operation to taper off and get away from coffee or any other caffeine-containing drink before surgery. I have had two operations since I did this without any headache or vomiting.

DEAR READER — Thank you for your suggestion. While I have not seen people vomit from caffeine withdrawal, I have seen a lot of headaches and other symptoms when people who use a moderate amount of coffee stop it suddenly. The effects of caffeine are discussed in more detail in the Health Letter number 14-4, Controversial Beverages: Coffee, Tea, Colas and Chocolate, which I am sending you.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

People are becoming more aware of the health aspects of these beverages as they read about caffeine and lumps in the breast, about warning labels on coffee for pregnant women and there is a recent report of the association of coffee with cancer of the pancreas (New England Journal of Medicine, March 12, 1981). It certainly does increase the level of anxiety in tense people.

It is a good idea to taper off these beverages if you are going to have to stop them for any reason, as you have suggested. It is also a good idea to avoid them before stressful procedures, such as dental work.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I need another opinion about having a hysterectomy. Will a hysterectomy cause a woman to lose her mind or cause any mental conditions? I've heard it would all my life. I'm 73 years old and need an operation.

DEAR READER — There is no way anyone can promise you that you will not have any complications, including mental ones, after an operation. I can tell you that a small number of people do have some emotional problems after major surgery. We never know which patients will. And it is not only a hysterectomy but any major operation including open heart surgery. Usually such reactions, if they do occur, are temporary.

Millions of women have had a hysterectomy without such a rare complication. There is no reason to expect a person to have such a problem after surgery. Some women do have emotional reactions after a hysterectomy, even if they are relatively young, because of their mistaken idea that it means the end of being feminine or being sexually attractive. That is an individual mental response not caused by the surgery and is based on a lack of understanding.

Plans To Give Up Inquiry

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Because of the expense and time involved, a county prosecutor is giving up an inquiry into charges that former United Mine Workers President W.A. "Tony" Boyle was convicted of murder on false testimony.

Deputy Attorney General Robert Keuch said Monday that the attorney general's office was taking over the investigation at the request of Washington County District Attorney Herman Bigi.

Singer Jackson Browne Demonstrates At Diablo

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — Police arrested a dozen anti-nuclear protesters today, including singer Jackson Browne, bringing total arrests to 941 in four days of demonstrations at the Diablo Canyon atomic power plant.

"I hope they don't break my hands," Browne said just before being led away. Demonstrators have claimed that rough treatment by police has resulted in two broken wrists.

Browne, the first celebrity to be arrested during the protests around the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. facility 12 miles south of here, has been a long-time opponent of nuclear power.

"I don't want to go to jail but I want to make a statement," Browne told reporters gathered in the chilly dawn. "My wife's pregnant and we want to have children without genetic defects."

The demonstrators appeared to have altered their tactics today, forming a line to block individual cars from entering the plant. In the past three days, protesters have tried to block busloads of workers from entering but the arrests have thinned their ranks considerably.

"THE WORLD ACCORDING TO GARP"

$2 OFF LIST PRICE

by JOHN IRVING

Rarely in recent times has a voice so captured the imagination of critics and readers everywhere as John Irving in his internationally acclaimed novel The World According to Garp. The narrator of his newest novel explains: "The first of my father's illusions was that bears could survive a life led by human beings, and the second was that human beings could survive a life led in hotels." What happens to Father's dreams (and to the children upon whom those dreams are visited) is the subject of this fall's most eagerly awaited novel. A BOOK-OF-THE-MONTH CLUB MAIN SELECTION.

Veterans Land Bonds Come To Vote Again

The future of the Texas Veterans Land Program will be put in the hands of the voters again Nov. 3 when the fate of Proposition 7 is decided, E. M. (Dan) Dever Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer, said.

Proposition 7 would authorize the issuance of $250 million in bonds to continue funding the land program. Proponents point out that the bonds are repaid as loans by the veterans who use the funds to puchase land, and not by taxpayers. Repayment rates have been so outstanding that the veterans have always enjoyed the valuable tiple A bond rating.

The Veterans Land Program was established by the constitution on Nov. 7, 1946, designed to make long-term, low-interest loans available to Texas veterans. The first bonds were sold in 1949, Since that time, the voters of Texas have indicated their approval of the program by voting for five separate constitutional amendments authorizing a total of $700 million to continue it.

Over 75,000 veterans have purchased more than $4 million acres of Texas land since the inception of the program. Over 42 percent of the purchases have paid their loans in full and statistics indicate that 50 percent of the purchasers will pay their loans in full within 20 years after purchase, although contracts are for a term of 40 years.

Texas has 165,000 Vietnam veterans, 316,000 Korean veterans, and 740,000 World War II veterans. These figures do not include reservists and National Guard members who had four to six months of active duty training and are also eligible for the land program.

Veterans wishing information are invited to contact Dever's office in the Western Texas College Administration Building.

The Treaty of Ghent, signed Dec. 24, 1814, ended the War of 1812 between Britain and the United States. The Americans declared war in June of 1812, accusing British vessels of violating American neutrality and territorial waters during the First Napoleonic War. After Napoleon's defeat, Britain took the offensive in the American campaign, but neither country was anxious to continue hostilities and peace was signed.

RECORDING METER FIGURES—A field representative uses Texas Electric Service Company's new portable microcomputer to record a meter reading.

TESCO Streamlines Meter Reading Task

Texas Electric Service Co. has conceived and put to use a new meter reading system that saves two important elements---time and money.

TESCO is the first electric utility to give its meter readers "microcomputers" to carry instead of computer cards which require pencil-marked entries.

The company estimates the system will save about $109,000 on equipment and $241,000 on manpower hours in the first year alone. It will pay for itself in less than two years.

"This new system is one more way we've found to make our operation more efficient and help offset some of the effects of inflation and higher fuel costs," said H. F. Clark, Snyder manager.

Now, meter readers can punch meter readings into their portable terminals and the terminals, in turn, provide them with data on each residence on their route---everything from whether there is a bad dog to an unusual meter location.

TESCO worked with MSI Data Corp. of Costa Mesa, Calif., and DATAMATIC of Dallas to develop the system, which includes 150 of the hand-held terminals.

The portable terminals were tested early this year and are now used throughout TESCO's service area. Other utilities soon may be using the portable units since many have shown interest in the new concept.

"I have no doubt in my mind that this is going to be a revolutionary system," Clark said. "We've been looking for better ways to record meter readings for several years, but today's technology has finally made it possible."

Meter readers used to mark readings on a computer card. Approximately two days later the cards were read into and audited by the computer. If unusual readings were discovered, it was necessary to make a special trip to re-read the meter. Such trips were expensive and time consuming.

Now, when the meter reader enters the reading into the terminal, it is compared with normal usage for the customer and, if it is unusually high or low, an alarm sounds, signaling the meter reader to check again. This on-site recheck eliminates many special re-read trips

Meter readers also save time at the day's end when they simply hook their terminal to a telephone attachment which carries their meter readings through phone lines to the central computer in Fort Worth. This eliminates the readers rechecking the computers cards to make sure they are properly marked for computer entry.

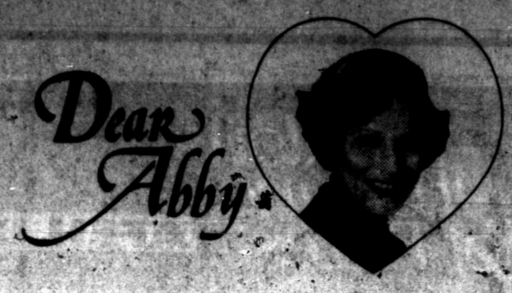

The telephone line transmittal also elimintes shipping computer cards back and forth between the central data systems in Fort Worth and other cities in the company's service area.

Dear Abby

Maturity, Not Just Age, Counts in Dating Game

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My parents are divorced and my father is dating a 30-year-old woman. He is 45. Meanwhile, my mother, who is 42, is going with a 55-year-old man. I'm 14, so why can't I go with a 22-year-old guy?

How can both my parents say he is too old for me when my dad is 15 years older than his girlfriend, and my mom's boyfriend is 13 years older than she is?

OLD ENOUGH TO COUNT

DEAR OLD ENOUGH: It's not the "age difference" your parents are concerned about. They probably feel that at 14, you're not sufficiently mature to handle a relationship with a 22-year-old man. (Few 14-year-olds are.) Count to 10 and simmer down, dear. Your parents want the best for you.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem talking to people. If I look someone in the eyes while speaking, my face turns red and I get all choked up inside — especially if I'm talking to a man. If I'm paid some sort of compliment, I can feel my face turn red and I have to look the other way. When I'm with a group of people talking, I never say anything because my voice is so soft, no one ever hears me anyway. At work I have heard several comments on how "stuck up" I am because I don't talk to anybody. This makes me angry because there's no way I can defend myself and let people know I'm not stuck up, I'm just shy.

I saw a psychiatrist and couldn't even look her in the eye. She told me she couldn't help me unless we communicated, but I couldn't get the words out even though I knew exactly what I wanted to say.

I tried group therapy. It cost me $75, and I didn't say two words during the whole session. I have no trouble writing my feelings, but I just can't express them verbally to anyone. It's driving me insane.

I'm 21, blonde hair, blue eyes, 5-foot-9 and 135 pounds, and everyone tells me how great-looking I am, but I am beginning to despise myself because of my hang-up. Abby, please help me.

DESPERATE IN DENVER

DEAR DESPERATE: For openers, please read the book, "Shyness: What It Is and What to Do About It." It's by Philip G. Zimbardo, a Stanford University psychologist. It's one of the most helpful books I've yet to see about shyness, and is written in language that everyone is able to understand. If that doesn't help, write again. I have other ideas.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are having an argument, and we can't find anyone who can settle it, so please ask one of your consultants. He says there is just as much nutritional value in the vitamins you buy in a store as in the vitamins you get in food.

I say he is wrong — there is no way you can imitate nature, that the vitamins you get in food are far superior to the synthetic vitamins manufactured in some laboratory. If I'm wrong I'll eat this newspaper. Thank you.

FRAN IN FAYETTEVILLE, ARK.

DEAR FRAN: Start nibbling. The United States Public Health Service's Food and Drug Administration spokesperson says, "Synthetic vitamins, manufactured in a laboratory, are identical to the natural vitamins found in foods. The body cannot tell the difference, and derives the same amount of benefit from either source."

The government also sold about $4.5 billion in three-month bills at an average yield of 14.412 percent, compared with 15.611 percent on Sept. 4 and 14.4 percent on July 6.
