The topic of beginning a girls' track program was brought before the board and after a lengthy discussion, the issue was tabled.

The board gave the go-ahead to Supt. Ray Schultz as to seeking approval for a junior high level co-ordinated academic vocational training program.

This would offer seventh and eighth grade students with an IQ of 70 to 95 a vocational program, in which the girls would study sewing and cooking, while the boys would study small engine repair, woodworking, etc.

Meeting with the board was principal of junior high, Carl McClure, who said that approximately 15 boys and 15 girls would be eligible for this program.

Schultz reported to the board that the Attorney General had ruled on the issue of whether children should be compelled to attend kindergarten, or if it would be on a voluntary basis. He said that the kindergarten would be a compulsory thing and that beginning September 1971, all children who are age 5 years and 5 months would have to attend kindergarten if they fall in the category of "educationally handicapped".

An "educationally handicapped" child is one who cannot speak, comprehend or read English language words that are necessary for normal progress in the first grade, or a child whose family income is $3000 or less.

Those children who are not "educationally handicapped" shall be eligible for enrollment in accordance with the qualifying age limits table.

Children ages 5 years 7 months will be eligible to enroll in the school years 1973-74 and 1974-75, while in 1975-76 and 1976-77, those who are 5 years and 4 months will be eligible to enroll.

The kindergarten pupils would be counted as part of the school's average daily attendance, Schultz said, which is at a critical point at this time.

He told the board that the ADA must be kept up for the rest of this school term or that the district stands a chance of being allowed 39 teachers instead of 42, one less counselor, 1 less special service teacher and losing $22,000 in local fund assignment from the state.

Attendance report this month was up seven from last month, with 1013 total, high school reporting 253, junior high, 279, and elementary 481.

In other action, the board approved the textbook committee's recommendation of textbooks for the school, heard a financial outlook for 1970-71 and a report on the lunchroom which showed a profit this month.

Positions on the ballot for the election of two school board members were drawn this week and the first name to appear on the ballot will be Dan Gregory, followed by Jackie Johns, Dewey Parkey, O. J. Neeley and James Cowart.

City Purchases 54 Acre Tract For Dump Ground, Water Rights

In a regularly scheduled meeting Tuesday night, city councilmen agreed to purchase from J. F. Cole, et al, 54 acres of land, located about 5 miles south of the city for the purpose of a dump ground.

The city entered a contract with Cole estate for the land and agreed that the dump grounds would be fenced by the city.

It was also stated that the trash would not be burned, instead it would be covered with dirt and left to decompose.

Councilmen had discussed the purchase of the land in earlier meetings, agreeing that the city needed the land for the purpose of meeting the necessary provisions of dumping trash, but also as a possible sight for new water wells, providing the city wells cease to provide enough water for the townspeople.

In other action, Leon Noack, chairman of the parks committee asked the approval of the council to seek the completion of only the northwest corner of the proposed park this year, so that the park might be maintained properly.

The city had earlier agreed to invest up to $3,500 in Phase I and II of the park construction, that being the dirt work and water system.

Council agreed that it "Would be better to complete one part of the park rather than get the entire thing under construction and not be able to finish it."

David Maxey, fire marshall, asked that the city adopt a building code concerning the location of dwelling houses on lots in the city.

City attorney, Andy Stroebel was instructed to draw up an ordinance concerning this problem and the council will act upon its completion.

Drawing for position on ballots was held this week and Jimmie Jenkins drew the number one spot. Second is Joe Hall; third, Vernon Nixon, fourth, James Martin and fifth Leon Noack.

Three councilmen's terms expire, those of Jenkins, Noack and Charles Sullivan. Sullivan did not choose to run again.

Deadline Nears For Inspection

"With the April 15 motor vehicle inspection deadline five weeks away, only about 50 per cent of the registered vehicles have been inspected," stated Captain Alan Johnson, Motor Vehicle Inspection Supervisor of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

"Unless there is a rapid increase of inspections, it appears that many vehicles will not be inspected before the April 15 deadline. Any driver operating a vehicle displaying an inspection sticker on the right-hand side of the windshield after April 15 will be operating in violation of the inspection law," Johnson added.

Johnson noted that this will be the last April 15 inspection deadline, because on September 1, 1969 the Texas Legislature adopted a year-around inspection program. Inspections will come due one year after the current month of inspection. This will establish an anniversary month for each vehicle to be inspected and prevent the log-jam of over six million vehicles to be inspected at one time.

The new inspection sticker will be placed on the left-hand side of the windshield. The number of the current month of inspection will appear on the sticker.

SENSING THE NEWS

By Thurman Sensing

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

Even as Prohibition was termed the "noble experiment"--while it lasted, we have now reached the point in our experience when forced integration may be termed the "ignoble experiment." Almost 16 years after the U. S. Supreme Court rulings in the school cases, it is clear that the judicial policies set by the court are not working and actually are damaging to all Americans regardless of race, creed or color.

The social theorists who developed the notion of compulsory association did not take account of what is practical in human affairs. The fact is that, today, black Americans increasingly insist on freedom to associate with their own group.

The nation should have known from the beginning that forced association would not work and would prove unacceptable to both major racial groups in the country. The Presidents of this country, from Thomas Jefferson to Harry Truman, especially including Abraham Lincoln, have made strong statements to this effect over the years.

The net result of the crusade for forced association has been to worsen race relations in many areas, to disrupt or breakdown the educational process, and to slowdown the progress of the people most in need of it. In the 1960s, the federal government demonstrated its power to compel the states to alter their laws and educational systems. But the government failed miserably at constructive efforts involving education. Had forced association not been placed ahead of educational values, real learning would have been advanced at a rapid rate among people with a low level of educational attainment.

The error of forced association was not recognized while court orders requiring it were confined to the Southern States. But once the problem of forced association became national in scope, then the public began to recognize the folly of court decisions requiring racial balancing and similar measures.

So now, at long last, the nation begins to take a new look at the whole question of association in a free country. In the North and the West, for example, there is a fresh awareness of the importance of preserving or restoring the neighborhood school and the error of transporting students hither and yon in order that classrooms have a precise racial composition. Before long, the U. S. Supreme Court may be compelled to reexamine its central thesis on the psychological effects of racial separation in education, if for no other reason than that many black Americans want their children to attend schools in their home neighborhood where surroundings are familiar and fellow students have the same background.

Indeed it seems clear that if the nation seriously wants to improve educational opportunity and upgrade unskilled people for better employment it will have to dispense with the concepts of compulsion that only irritate and upset people and don't add to their real knowledge or capabilities.

Forced association, of course, is derived from the general socialistic philopsophy of compulsion -- the idea that people must be made to do what social theorists think is good for them. The idea of government selecting a person's associates, of course, is ridiculous and should have been so regarded years ago. Had compulsion been seen as the greatest social evil, the country would have been spared the internal agonies and high costs that have resulted from the 1954 Supreme Court decisions.

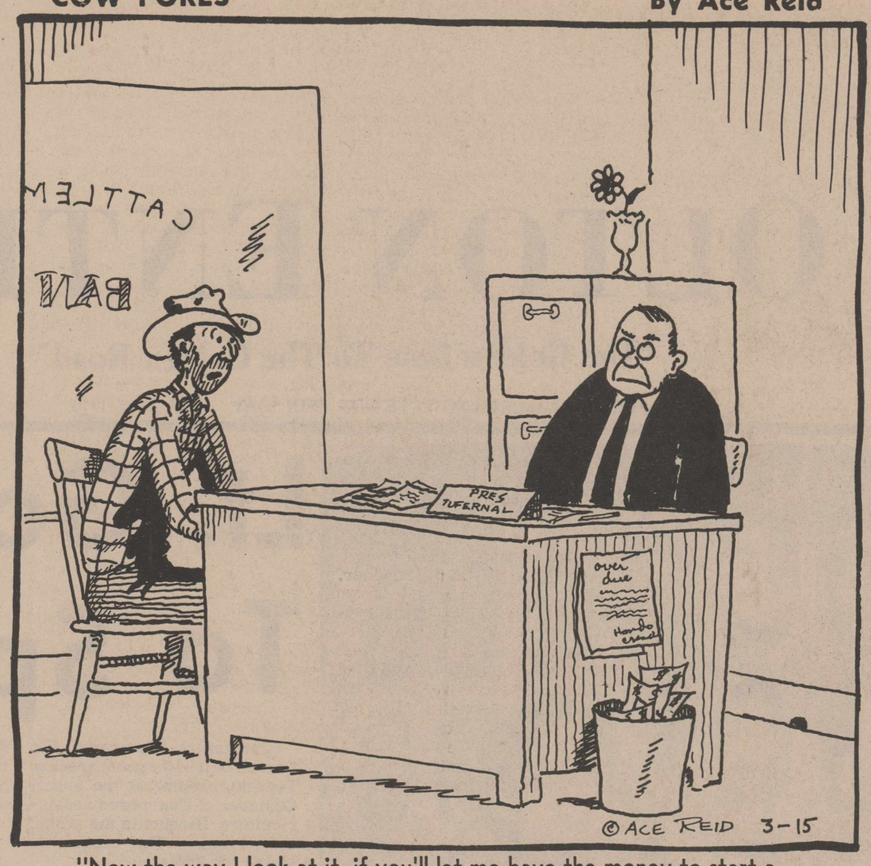

Progress in a republic should come through voluntary association and through partnership, Progress cannot come from edicts regarding association. Certainly, public education has not been improved by the fact that the Supreme Court has acted as the ultimate school board superintendent for the nation.

Both white and black Americans want a happier era than the country has had in the last 15 years. They want a calmer atmosphere in the public schools and better instruction in the elementals that lead to higher education and saleable skills. They want peaceful neighborhoods. And they want the federal government to stop writing the rules for association and other personal aspects of community life.

Hopefully, the country willacknowledge the failure of the "ignoble experiment" and move on to more sensible and constructive ways of helping everybody get ahead in an enterprise society.

Girl Scouts Adult Uniforms Fashionable After 20 Years

Girl Scout history is marked by the changing designs and lines of uniforms. In 1912, it was the blue middy sailor dress: in 1916, the captain's suit and Teddy Roosevelt hat. The uniform dress with the Garrison cap came along in the 40's.

Of dark blue duck with a light blue tie, the first Girl Scout uniform was copied from English Guide uniforms. In those days, adults and girls often wore the same uniform.

The captain's uniform later was almost synonymous with the Suffragette's. In 1948, famed couture designer Mainbocher created a classically designed adult uniform which carried over 20 years to 1968.

The latest design for adult leaders was about a year in the making, from approval by the National Board of Directors of Girl Scouts of the United States of America to the actual appearance of the uniform.

For clothes-conscious ladies twenty years is a long time between new outfits, but Girl Scout adults understand why. The adult uniform is believed to be the largest single-design and color garment manufactured for women outside the military, and any change calls for long, thoughtful consideration. The uniform must cover an age span from 20 to 70 and look "right" in sizes 6 through 46 1/2. Sixty thousand of them, give or take a few, are sold each year.

The new style now in use emphasizes uniformity of appearance rather than a military look. In fact, the simply tailored green dress, conceived by Stella Sloat, sportswear designer, becomes a uniform only when Girl Scout insignia are pinned on.

In two fabrics, easy-care for summer and a dacron-and-worsted for cooler weather, the dress is a comfortable one-piece, a-line style with walking pleats. There is a matching green beret designed by Miss Emmie of New York.

In keeping with the vagaries of fashion, the uniform has a three-inch hem and can be worn midi or mini depending on the wearer's preference.

Sue's Views

Weather!!

BY SUE CANNON

Wouldn't you just know it?

I just wonder what that dog-gone weatherman has against Olton Stock Shows?

Somehow he never seems to think that we need decent weather for it. It's either rain, dirt, wind or snow. And brother, is it snow this year....and cold!

Remember last year when it snowed so much that a lot of us couldn't get out to attend the barbecue supper held the week after the show?

Oh, but that was fun! Snow-mobiles and all.

I heard that they had snow-mobiles down at north Olton Tuesday, but we were so busy trying to get out this week's papers that we didn't take time out to go down and take a ride.

Man, this has been one more week! And it doesn't show any signs of getting any better until next week about this time.

The school board and city council had meetings this Monday and Tuesday, which I always try to attend. We worked late Tuesday and Wednesday night because of the big issue, not only here, but Hart and Kress too.

Then tonight is the Hart Livestock Show and as editor of that paper, I'll be at Dimmitt taking pictures and notes.

Tomorrow, our show gets under way and runs through Saturday.

I just might be able to snitch a nap Sunday afternoon. Then the whole thing begins again.

Guess we'll have to work late Monday night in order to take off Tuesday night and attend the Chamber of Commerce banquet. Just really don't see how we can miss that! After all, it's not every day that the lieutenant governor comes to town.

By that time it's Wednesday night again!

And then Thursday with it's deadlines for getting the paper mailed and then I can just go all to pieces!

And I may just very well do that!

Apply Terraclor Super-X and only the first time you plant cotton.

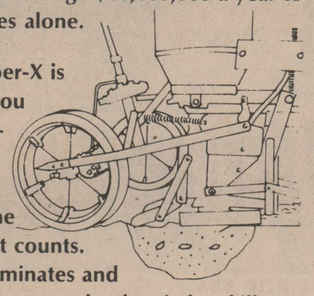

Think for a minute what it costs to replant an acre of cotton that doesn't make a stand. There's the cost of seed, fertilizer, herbicides, insecticides, equipment, operators and the precious time. Multiply that by the number of acres you could lose to seed and seedling disease.

Now think about Terraclor Super-X Soil Fungicide. It could very well eliminate replanting. Here's why: Terraclor Super-X is a combination of two Olin discoveries that effectively control the fungi that cause cotton seedling disease.

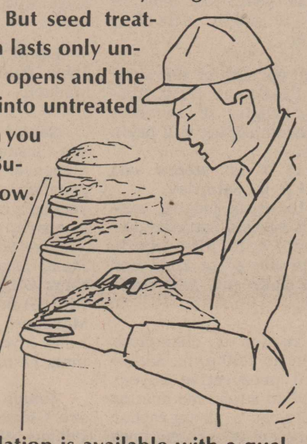

How important is this to you? The regional Cotton Disease Council reports that losses average $60,000,000 a year to seedling diseases alone.

Terraclor Super-X is applied while you plant. Your cotton seed is surrounded by protection in the furrow, where it counts. As the seed germinates and the seedling emerges, the fungi that kill unprotected plants are held off by Terraclor Super-X. You get a healthy, vigorous stand from only one planting.

About seed treatments: They are great . . . as far as they go. But seed treatment protection lasts only until the seed coat opens and the seedling grows into untreated soil. That's when you need Terraclor Super-X in the furrow.

Terraclor Super-X is available from your Olin dealer in three formulations: granular, liquid and dust. A special formulation is available with a quality soil systemic insecticide impregnated in the granules for combination fungus and insect control.

If you don't know your local Olin dealer, write to Terraclor Super-X, P. O. Box 991, Little Rock, Ark. 72203 for his name.

You ought to get to know him. He can help you get a good stand from only one planting. That's one good reason he is known as the rare bird in the business. Olin

Lubbock Theatre Centre Slates Comedy Production

Now deep in rehearsals under the sharp eye of managing director G. W. Bailey, the Lubbock Theatre Centre is preparing its fifth production of the current season, "Invitation to a March", by Arthur Laurents, slated to open March 20 and run for five performances.

The play is a delightful high-style comedy, the kind of literate, graceful, imaginative and sharp-witted comedy American dramatists have neglected to write in recent years.

"Invitation to a March" was first presented by the Theatre Guild at the Music Box Theatre, New York City, Oct. 29, 1960, with an outstanding cast including Celeste Holm, Madeleine Sherwood and Eileen Heckart.

The setting is the South Shore of Long Island, where the wealthy spend the summer. An impending marriage of two socially desirable persons is to take place on the weekend. The players have assembled; the music starts to play; but the bride-to-be keeps falling asleep. It seems that the prospect of social prominence and stability are more sedative than stimulating. Sleeping Beauty is awakened by Prince Charming, really a Prince Plumber, and is now faced with a decision; choice between conformity with the aristocracy, which she thought she always wanted, or forsake all for "love".

The cast includes Dorris Jeanne Smith, Pam Brown, Gene Chandler, Jane Ratliff, Jay Brown, Doriss Horton, Joe Smalley and Bill Lyall.

The playwrite Arthur Laurents is remembered for "West Side Story" and "Gypsy".

The box office opens Monday, March 16th. Performances are at 8:15 p. m. and on Sunday, two shows, one a matinee at 2:30 and again at 8:15. The Theatre is located at 2801 Ave. P, Lubbock, 79405. Phone SH 4 3681.

Good Food Buys Are Available

Food markets this week offer liberal amounts of Texas carrots and the prices are low, according to Gwendolyne Clyatt, Extension consumer marketing specialist.

To save on the food bill, Mrs. Clyatt has some other food buying suggestions.

Collard and mustard greens, cabbage, dry yellow onions, red and russet potatoes, tomatoes, head lettuce, turnips and sweet potatoes are among the more economical vegetables.

Good quality cauliflower is moderately priced, the specialist for Texas A&M University says.

Fruits in good supply include apples, oranges, grapefruit and bananas.

At meat counters look for best beef values on round steaks and roasts, ground beef, stew meat and arm and blade pot roasts and steaks.

Pork values include picnics, end cut loin roasts and chops, shoulder roasts and steaks and pork liver. Fryers remain a bargain in most retail meat departments and grade A large size eggs offer the best value.

At the frozen food department, look for good values in frozen orange juice, whole kernel corn and other frozen vegetables.

MRS. ERA MAYE WALTHALL

Cook Of The Week

Original recipes, plus a favorite from each of her daughters, are shared this week by Mrs. Era Maye Walthall.

Era Maye loves to cook. She also loves Olton and its people and has since that day in 1928 when she and her husband, Albert, arrived in their little Model-T coupe. Their move from Kerns, with a little daughter and a dog, had taken two and one-half days.

Happiest when she's fixing dinner for someone, Era Maye is always calling up a friend with an invitation to lunch or at least with a "Stop by and have a cup of coffee."

And she has such a reputation as a cook that she's seldom given the opportunity to give rain checks.

When Era Maye married Albert Walthall, she married his entire family. Her own mother died when she was only three and Era Maye gathered to her heart Albert, his parents and eight brothers.

Era Maye and Albert reared two daughters, Mrs. James (Jean) Bledsoe of Odessa and Mrs. Jack (Betty) Coleman of Hereford. Grandmother of five, Era Maye also proudly claims one little great-grandson.

After Albert's death in 1957, Era Maye moved into town and a year later opened "Era Maye's Dining Room". Although it was hard work preparing her family style buffet, she enjoyed every minute of it. She closed her dining room in 1966.

An active member of Eastern Star, Era Maye is Past Worthy Matron. Her husband was a 32-degree Mason. She is also a member of the First Baptist Church.

Era Maye also enjoys crocheting afghans and making patchwork coverlets. She has recently taken up a new hobby-p 'nting. Studying with Jean Green, Era Maye will be one of several local artists whose paintings will be displayed next week in the school cafetorium.

PERFORMANCE DATA

Automobile manufacturers now are required to provide a booklet of performance data in each new car, according to Doris Myers, Extension home management specialist at Texas A&M University. Transportation Secretary John Volpe says it is the nation's first consumer booklet that compares performance characteristics of all new cars sold in the United States. The booklet, "Performance Data for New Passenger cars and Motorcycles", is available from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402, for $2.25.

PRODUCTS AND SERVICES--

Farmers received an average of 40 cents of each dollar consumers spent at retail for U. S. farm produced food in Jan.-March 1969, nearly the same as in 1957-59, but 10 cents less than in 1947-49. The farmer's share depends both on the prices he receives for his products and the costs of marketing them. The more marketing services, the greater the cost. When the consumer spends a dollar on food at the grocery store, he is buying 40 cents worth of products and 60 cents worth of marketing service.

WOOD PRESERVING

Texas has 37 wood treating plants and is one of the leading states in the wood preserving industry. Properly treated poles, posts, and timbers will last 30 years or more even though exposed to moisture, soil, and insects.

FOREST FIRES

February and March are the two months with the greatest number of forest fires. Remember, even little fires kill little trees! Lend nature a hand. Prevent Forest Fires!

EASTER SEALS

Twenty facilities and programs in Texas financed by Easter Seal contributions are giving help where needed by providing medical diagnosis; physical, occupational and speech therapies; special education; recreation; psychological and social services; sheltered employment, and other care and treatment crippled children and adults require to walk, talk and live like others.

Everything But The Kitchen Sink

BY MOZELLE TROTTER

Another milestone!

It's happened to many of you before - I know that. But this year it's happening to me!

You know that old bit of wisdom that says "Other people's troubles are never as bad as your own - but their children are a whole lot worse".

Well, I went to my last Public Schools Open House AS A PARENT. Next year I'll have to go as an OUTSIDER!

(I have had an offer, made jokingly, that I could have some other Mama's kids. They'd better be careful how they make their offers, tho, I'm going to take them seriously!)

Did you go to Open House?

Gee, I'm glad I got out of school when I did! I'd never make it nowadays!

Did you see those math papers - from the beginning up? Looked like calculus or trigonometry or hierogplyphics!

As much trouble as I had with the old "arithmetic" - - I probably would fail first grade math!

But, back to school. Weren't the displays good? And weren't the bulletin boards clever? If it weren't for the aforesaid obstacle, school would be an exciting place to return to!

If you made your way down the elementary halls, did you notice the Viking ships? And the Egyptian villages? (There's a picture of some in the paper). We've got some architects and engineers in that building!

Of course, I had to stop by my third grade teacher's room. I wish I had the words to pay tribute to a teacher who's influenced so many little eight year olds - - a teacher whose former pupils now eagerly look forward to having their children have her for their teacher.

Time's wrecking havoc with those aspirations now, though. Ethel Hulsey Gordon is retiring!

I heard more than one parent say "Mary and John wanted Junior to be in your room next year" in the few minutes I stood there, wistfully comparing the then and now.

One of the most entertaining stops was in the music room where Ida Mae Powers' young musicians were displaying their hand-created instruments. (There's a picture of them, too, look for it).

Now before we leave the elementary building, I'd better comment on the subjects of the Enterprise camera.

Oh, to be young and eager and unafraid of a camera! I got several cute pictures with people in them but that old bugaboo - lack of space!

Then as you progress along, people begin to shy away from the camera. Over in junior high, I'd almost get set for a good picture when one of my subjects would spot the camera and everyone would scatter like mice!

Why is it so much more fun to be back of the camera shutter? (I must confess I'm as guilty as any. If I'm back of the camera, everyone should be anxious and eager to say "cheese". If I'm in front - well, that's just plain meddling! Let's change the subject!)

I stopped briefly in high school - a pretty neglected level, I noted. Then I got out, real quick, before one of those teachers got a chance to find out I should never have been let out!

High Plains Research Conducts Irrigation-Fertilizer Study

The importance of irrigation and fertilizer to corn production was emphasized in a test conducted by High Plains Research Foundation scientists on the George Sides farm near Dimmitt.

Although the value of fertilizer has been pointed out, this 1969 corn irrigation-fertilizer study showed that irrigation, specifically the timing of irrigation, influenced yields more than different fertilizer rates.

An early irrigation at one week after tassel initiation appeared to cause vegetative growth, resulting in taller plants and lower yields.

The corn irrigated at this time produced an average yield of 91 bushels per acre while corn irrigated two weeks later produced 107.2 bushels per acre, an increase of 16.2 bushels per acre.

The addition of 30 pounds of sulfur gave indications of economic increases. When sulfur was added along with 180 pounds of nitrogen, the yield was increased 2.3 bushels per acre with the early irrigation and 5.3 bushels per acre with the later irrigation. Both areas also were irrigated at tassel, silk and milk stages of plant development.

A soil test indicated the study area was very low in both nitrogen and phosphate and also low in organic matter. However, yield data indicated that the addition of phosphate reduced yields in the early irrigation and was not profitable on the later irrigation plot.

In other corn research conducted by Foundation scientists, 14 corn hybrids were evaluated for ensilage production and 13 late maturity and 28 early maturing hybrids were studied in the corn variety performance tests.

Results of these studies and detailed information on the test plot on the Sides' farm will be available in the 1969 annual Research Report to be ready for Foundation members in March.

A Program For The Nation

The great, the overriding issue of our time is that of individual freedom versus government regulation and control. By a curious twist of semantics, those who favor freedom have come to be known as Conservatives, while those who believe in maximum government intervention and control call themselves "Liberals." Upon the outcome of the struggle between these two points of view ride the hopes of free men everywhere - now and for the indefinite future.

The Southern States Industrial Council, which has been in the forefront of the fight for Conservative principles since it was established 37 years ago, is greatly encouraged by the resurgence of Conservatism now evident in the country. We believe, however, that the Conservatives of both parties could be even more effective if they would unite on a definite program of action. It is with this thought in mind that the SSIC respectfully submits its Program for the Nation:

DOMESTIC AFFAIRS

Stop inflation by reducing government spending and creating a federal budget surplus. Federal deficits in the traditional "administrative" budget have occurred in 33 of the last 39 years, causing the dollar to lose 64% of its value since 1939. Inflation is caused by government and can only be halted by government.

Start regular, systematic payments on the national debt. This debt now amounts to more than $371 billion, up $10 billion from last year. It is a crime to pass this debt on to our children.

Limit federal welfare payments to the aged and those physically unable to support themselves. Oppose any welfare plan which would provide a federally guaranteed annual income under any name or in any guise to any portion of the population. A guaranteed annual income would create a class of totally dependent drones and would eventually bankrupt the federal treasury.

Eliminate the Office of Economic Opportunity. OEO programs have proven to be a shameful waste of the taxpayers' money. The most successful instrument in history for fighting poverty and providing economic opportunity is the private enterprise system.

Reform Congressional procedures for enactment of spending legislation. One general expenditure authorization for each fiscal year would restore lost control over federal spending by Congress.

Strengthen law enforcement to decrease crime on all levels. The U. S. Attorney General down to the local police should vigorously enforce the law and should receive the enthusiastic support of the Congress and the people in general.

Prohibit labor unions from using union funds, facilities or staff time to support political candidates, engage in political campaigns, or conduct voter registration drives. The same standards which apply to business should also apply to unions.

Assure parents' freedom of choice as to the public schools to which they send their children. Stop the use of federal funds to destroy neighborhood schools and to bus school children to force racial "balance".

Clean up the environment through voluntary community action, private enterprise cooperation and development of reasonable environmental standards. Pollution of the environment threatens the health of our citizens and the destruction of priceless natural resources.

Take labor management disputes from the National Labor Relations Board and place them in the federal courts. The NLRB has completely lost any inclination to act as an impartial judicial body. Instead, it has become a policy making tribunal which is blatantly pro-union, anti-employer and anti-free enterprise.

Ban strikes by public employees. Oppose unionization of government employees, whether federal, state or local.

Abolish compulsory unionism. Retain the Right-to-Work section of the Taft-Hartley Act unchanged. Unions should gain members on merit, not by force.

Make the anti-trust laws applicable to labor unions as they now are to industry and business, and prohibit industry-wide bargaining. Only by doing so can we stop forced wage increases, made without regard to increased productivity.

Return agriculture to a supply and demand market. We have tried all kinds of subsidies and price props and they have not worked and cannot succeed.

Get the Federal Government out of competition with private enterprise. All business enterprises owned and operated by the government should be sold and the proceeds applied to payment on the national debt. It is the function of government to assist, encourage and, in some cases, regulate business, but not to compete with it.

Limit federal income tax rates by constitutional amendment except in time of war. Excessive taxation historically leads to the socialism of the welfare state.

Place exclusive control of the public schools in the states and their political subdivisions. Only by a constitutional amendment to this effect can we avoid federal dictation over our schools, and restore the principle of States Rights, the cornerstone of our constitutional republican form of government.

Return Prayer and Bible reading to the public schools. The Supreme Court's action toward outlawing God in our public life must be reversed by a constitutional amendment to this effect.

Control internal subversion by deporting alien subversives and making it a felony to belong to the Communist Party or do its work. The entire purpose of the Communist Party is to overthrow our form of government and destroy our way of life.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Declare officially that our hot and cold war aim and purpose is total victory over Communism. Then implement that policy. We have tried the soft "no-win" approach. It hasn't worked and won't - in Vietnam or elsewhere.

Reassert and firmly support the Monroe Doctrine. It is the surest safeguard against further Communist penetration of this hemisphere. A good place to begin in Cuba.

Discontinue any further support of the United Nations financial burden beyond our regular dues and assessments. If the UN's members won't support it, it should be permitted to die.

Discontinue foreign aid to and trade with all Communist nations. We cannot buy friends and trading with our enemies is self-defeating. Foreign aid accounts for a considerable part of the imbalance of payments which is draining our gold reserves and endangering our currency.

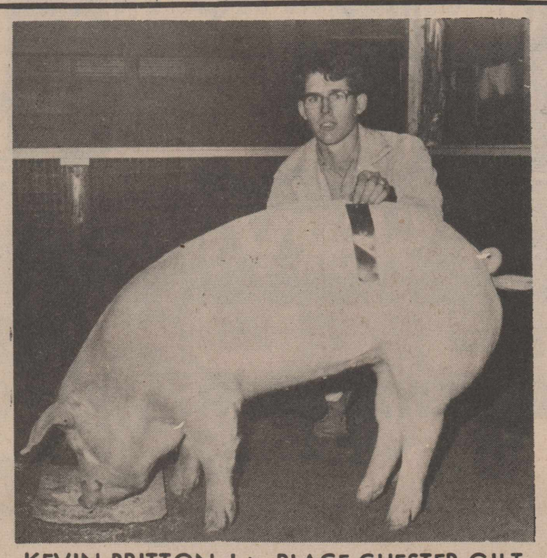

Place all aid to allies on a realistic share-the-cost basis. Allies who are able to do so should be willing to pay a fair share of the cost of their own defense.

In our dealings with foreign nations, be guided by what is best for the United States, and not by what is believed to be agreeable to "world opinion" - whatever that is. A good way to begin would be to recognize our friend Rhodesia as a free and independent nation.

The SSIC hopes that all those who believe in the basic principles on which this nation was founded -individual freedom and local self-government, all those who want a sound economy, all those who want a strong America will support this program.

GOOD LUCK...

Keys Left In Cars Boost Thefts To One Million Mark

Would you place a thousand dollars at the curb of a busy thoroughfare and walk away, leaving it unprotected? Not likely. Yet, in effect, that is what scores of automobile owners do every day. Thoughtlessly and in a hurry, they pull into a parking space, jump from their cars, and leave them unlocked and often with the keys in the ignitions. In many instances when they return, their cars are gone. The average value of stolen automobiles at the time of theft is approximately one thousand dollars.

Complete figures for 1969 are not available, but projected auto theft totals for the year reflect a sizable increase over 1968. In 1968, some 777,800 motor vehicles were reported stolen. This was approximately a 19-percent jump over 1967. There is a definite possibility, of course, that car thefts will climb to the one million mark in 1970.

Aside from the tangible value of the stolen car, there are other serious cost factors. The owner's carelessness may also cause him a loss in earnings or business. Some motorists rationalize their carelessness by explaining, "That's why I have insurance. Such reasoning amounts to a delayed boomerang. When insurance companies pay more claims, their customers necessarily pay higher premium rates. In addition, law enforcement agencies absorb untold expense in handling complaints, investigating charges, and processing recovered vehicles. Thus, car thefts-in spite of the theorists and apologists who try to minimize them-are not petty cash losses. When we consider the actual value of the stolen vehicle plus other miscellaneous expenses and the number of cars taken, we are talking about a crime problem which costs well over a billion dollars annually.

A violation related to auto theft also plaguing car owners is the theft of accessories. Modern automobiles can be bought or equipped with numerous expensive accessories. Most of these items are highly coveted by auto thieves, and, of course, a ready market can be found for stereo equipment, radios, wheel discs, rearview mirrors, etc. When given the opportunity, thieves are also quick to take more essential equipment such as wheels, batteries, and even transmissions. It is almost impossible to place a cost figure on the theft of auto accessories; however, it is enormous and is still growing.

Auto theft is called the crime of opportunity, particularly where young people are concerned. In 1968, 79 percent of all auto thefts were committed by persons under 21 years of age. For a teenager, his first automobile theft is often considered a status symbol among his associates. In many instances, this is his first major criminal act. Under such circumstances, he is apt to be irrational, unpredictable, and easily excited. Thus, a stolen vehicle becomes a dangerous, if not lethal, weapon in his hands. Further, with an easy car theft behind him, a young person becomes more brazen and moves on to more serious crimes.

In recent years, automobile manufacturers have equipped cars with additional security devices to hold down theft. Law enforcement authorities have initiated campaigns against auto theft, encouraged car owners to take preventive action, publicized steps to deter car thieves, and worked hard to keep the spiraling violation under control. While some progress has been made, auto thefts keep climbing.

The professional car thief or hardened criminal will find ways to steal an automobile when he needs one. However, even he can be made to work at it, if theft opportunities are reduced. Easy car-theft opportunities will exist until car owners make a determined effort to protect their valuable property.

While American motorists do not drive about in solid gold limousines, aside from their purchases of homes, investments in automobiles represent the greatest single property expense of a family. Let the driver remember, therefore, when he parks and walks away from his motor vehicle that, in effect and depending on the age and condition of his car, he is entrusting passers-by with a Federal Reserve note bearing the likeness of Grover Cleveland-$1,000.

Accent on Health

Statistics may seem like a bore to a lot of people, but to the Texas State Department of Health its Records and Statistics Section is an active--and very necessary--part of its services to the people of Texas and a tool to plan and evaluate health programs.

The Bureau of Vital Statistics is the one place for storing the vast numbers of records of Texas births, deaths, marriages, divorces, adoptions and other matters.

In the old days the fact that you were on the earth and breathing was enough to satisfy any inquiry about your birth. Most schools require a birth certificate for children entering the first grade. A birth certificate is the best proof of citizenship for your passport. You may need it to satisfy military requirements, to satisfy the Internal Revenue as to your dependents, to satisfy Veteran Administration or other claims against the government, or to apply for Social Security.

The big three today, according to W. D. Carroll, chief of the Records and Statistics Section and state registrar, are schools, passports and Social Security.

Last fall more than a quarter-million children entered school for the first time, and most needed a certified copy of his or her birth certificate. These were obtained in the counties or cities of birth, or from the Austin office of the State Health Department for a $1.50 fee.

The records on file of births, deaths and fetal deaths come in from some 1,000 registrars throughout the state. In many cases the registrar is the city or county health officer. Each of the 254 counties of Texas has one or more local registrars. In rural areas it might be a justice of the peace. In towns of 2,500 or more it may be the city secretary, city clerk or some other person designated as the city registrar. In some counties the county clerk is the registrar. In larger health departments in Texas, the person in charge of vital statistics normally is the registrar.

Reports of marriages are forwarded into the central office at Austin by the county clerks of each county. Divorces and adoptions come from the district clerks. The reporting network fans out into every nook and cranny of the state.

Just having records on file isn't enough. They must be indexed and stored with easy access in order to be useful; therefore, the records are placed on microfilm and now are being placed on magnetic tape for adaption to computer reference and recall.

As an example of the numbers involved, by the end of 1970 total vital records on file will reach the 17 million mark. Last year more than half a million current records went into the files-- deaths, fetal deaths, births, marriages and divorces.

resounding reasons why you should buy a new Chevrolet instead of a new something else:

1 Higher resale value. Year after year. No other car in Chevrolet's field gives you as much back on your initial investment.

2 Deep down value. Exclusives like flush-and-dry rocker panels and an extra set of fenders keep Chevrolet looking good longer.

3 Smooth, smooth ride. Because of Chevrolet's computer selected springs, Full Coil suspension and advanced body mounting system.

4 Impressive styling. The impression is that it's an expensive car, if you want to make an impression.

5 Massive interiors. Result? Room to stretch out or to sit tall. Chevrolet has more front leg room than any other car in its field.

6 Side-guard beams. Chevrolet puts more between you and the outside. Steel beams built into every door.

7 A finish that lasts. It's unfortunate other cars in Chevy's field don't have a Magic-Mirror finish because it sure keeps its shine.

8 Exceptional engines. Chevrolet's standard 350-cubic-inch V8 runs on regular fuel. Plus there are five more engines available.

9 Tremendous selection. Of colors. Of accessories. Of engines. Of transmissions. Of fabrics. And of models. There are nine big Chevrolets alone.

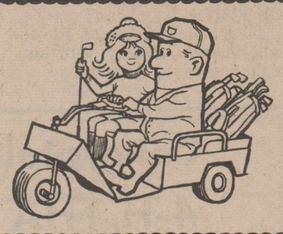

10 America's favorite. Something a new "something else" can't claim. If actions speak louder than words, doesn't this say something to you?

RADIATION CONTROLS

Color television sets, micro-wave ovens, sun lamps and other electronic products emitting radiation came under the control of federal regulations on January 22. According to Doris Myers, Extension home management specialist at Texas A&M University, the regulations cover only those electronic products manufactured after Oct. 18, 1968, the effective date of the regulations.

HAIR STYLES

What is the difference between a man's haircut and hair-styling? Proper hair-styling can do as much for a man's looks as for a woman's, according to Hazel Roberts, Extension clothing specialist at Texas A&M University. The male head, with proper hair cutting and shaping, can be made to look shorter, longer or wider. A slanting forehead can be made to look straight, or a thick neck made to look slim with a properly-cut neckline.

NATIONWIDE PROGRAM

A group of students from The University of Texas is cooperating with the federal government in a nationwide program to interest people in the fight against environmental pollution.

The Student Committee on Pollution in the Environment (SCOPE) is responsible for initiating and coordinating campus-wide efforts to involve students in pollution abatement.

American Heritage Essays

2nd Place 7th Grade

BY KIM BARNETT

Lucky me, I'm an American. Can one say that with pride, or is it just one of those slogans on the bumper of a car that sounds good?

In these days when the world sits upon the great powder keg of the Space Age, one wonders if peace for the world can ever be a reality.

We, as Americans have no hunger for land or power; we need and want freedom.

I, Kim Barnett am one of those Americans who love liberty, justice, and peace.

Liberty is the thing all people want. Freedom of speech, religion, press and assembly - just to name a few.

Justice! The right of trial by jury; the right to have an attorney present when policemen question people; these are examples of justice.

Last is peace. This very moment the leaders of our world are battling in words for the right of peace in the world. The men in Vietnam are fighting so that South Vietnam will not have to become a part of North Vietnam. Peace is purchased with a great price- sometimes too great for men to bear.

"People everywhere look to the splendor of our ideals," John F. Kennedy once said. Most countries respect my country's ideals and way of life. Many countries have copied our form of government.

It is a striking coincidence that "American" ends with "I Can", therefore, I say often we are bumped and tossed and twirled; however, we have a wonderful world. God gave it to you and He gave it to me, so, as a lucky American, I CAN help to make it the world that He wants it to be. I should like to quote an unknown poet.

Last night I had the strangest dream
And hoped it wouldn't cease...
I dreamed I was a soldier in
A great world war of peace!
Men instead of rattling arms
Were gaily shaking hands!
Our first shot was a trusting smile
That won friends from the start...
We used our secret weapon then-
An understanding heart!
T'was such a strange and wondrous dream
And yet it could come true-
This world is big enough for all
If mortals only knew.

BY RUTH GLORIA

I am one of many people who live in America. I feel that I am lucky to live in this country. Most people just take all the freedom that we have for granted. They do not realize that had it not been for those who have fought and are fighting for us to have freedom in this country, we would not have all the privileges that we have now.

In America we have a representative government. It is through this form of government that helps keep peace in America. The people can choose and elect their representatives and officers. Should the officers and representatives prove that they can not handle the job that they were elected to do, then, the people have the right to elect another person to take his place.

We call countries that govern themselves self-governing countries. America is independent and has a self-governing government. In America the people have the right to do as they please as long as what they are doing will not hurt or damage another's property. If America had a dictator to rule her then I would not feel lucky to live in America.

I sometimes wonder what America would be like if a dictator did rule here. Well, we can try to imagine that America is a country with a dictator. We can call the dictator, "Mr. Terrible," since it would be terrible if America were ruled by a dictator.

We live on Main Street. It is eight o'clock in the morning. We will have to hurry if we are to reach the town square of Santa Fe. Santa Fe is a town in which we live in. At the town square we will be told what to do. When everybody has been told what to do, we hurry to our work, lest the dictator's helper report to him that we were lazy and did not get our jobs finished. We cannot stop our work until noon. Then we can't sit down and eat for about fifteen minutes, then back to work until sundown. We report back to the town square to return the tools that we used. At nine o'clock we must go to bed. Three hours after we are in bed five soldiers come to the house. We are told to pack our things because we are moving to another house. We must hurry lest the soldiers get angry and make us leave all our valuable things behind.

Just think, aren't we lucky? I mean to live in a country where we have the kind of freedom that we have here in America. If it weren't for our brave ancestors we would not have a representative government in America.

It took lots of courage, faith, and fighting until death for some to get what we have in America today. If most people would only realize this, then there would probably be less violence in America. We would have a better world.

"America" is not only a name of a country. It is also a name that means freedom for the people. I feel real sorry for those people who have dictators to rule them. Maybe if people realized this they would try harder to keep America really beautiful. Our country sure is a great one to live in. If it had not been for those brave leaders of America in the 1700's then our government and country would surely have destroyed itself.

I believe we are very lucky to live in America. What about you? As I have mentioned earlier, America is a GREAT country to live in.

American Heritage Essays

1st Place 7th Grade

BY JENNY LYNN GUNTER

In a free country, like America, many things come by choice. One thing I did not and could not choose was my place of birth and my parents. I was lucky. I was born an American.

Recently, on television, we have seen many small children naked, starving, with disease ridden bodies. Thes children are not so lucky. They were born in an overpopulated country too poor to meet the need of their people.

In America we have: (1) Freedom of religion, (2) Freedom of speech, (3) Freedom of press, (4) Right to assemble, and (5) Right to petition.

All this was made possible when our ancestors worked so unselfishly forming our Constitution which was adopted in 1787. This was a product of many years work, of planning, discussing, consulting, debating and arbitrating and finally agreeing of many wise and brilliant men.

Where but in America can we get up on Sunday morning and make a choice whether we will or will not go to church, to worship God as we please, or just not to worship him at all. A person can declare himself an atheist say God is dead, fight to take prayer out of our schools; also we can worship God as we please, on our knees, in public or in private, without fear of any person.

Where but in the United States of America can a person stand up and voice his opinion about any person, whether it is his family, his neighbor, his school teacher, the pastor of his church or the President of the United States of America. His opinions may be praise or slanderous but he has a right to speak in public or on television.

Also in our country one has a right to print anything he pleases for public reading. We all know that much of the time the press is badly used but usually it gets all angles of a problem to the reading public. It sometimes takes a brilliant mind to sift out the bad and ugly, but we all agree that freedom of speech and press are our best sources of information. In the United States of America a person is considered innocent until he is proven guilty.

In the United States of America, we are privileged to assemble in small or in large groups anywhere, for social or business or religious purposes without having a spy sit in on our meetings. Most other countries are not this fortunate.

Where but in the United States of America could a person get a petition and carry it from house to house for signers to unseat a public official or to demand a public called election. Also where else could one carry placards and picket colleges, public places and march on Washington D. C. Most other countries would call this treason, punishable by death.

Our country is not free from error but it is a great free country where I call my home.

May I never be guilty of slandering my country or its great flag, the stars and stripes of the United States of America.

Yes! I am lucky. I am an American

BY CHESNA DICKENSON

My Country tis of thee
Sweet land of liberty
Of thee I sing.

Land where my fathers died
Land of the pilgrims pride
From every mountain side
Let Freedom ring.

Yes, I am lucky to be an American. This IS my country and I am very proud to be able to claim it, as was the author of the above poem.

It is a country of liberty. Liberty defined as 1."An exemption from slavery". Men of great wisdom, of dreams for a better America fought a Civil War to free the bonds of the enslaved. Lincoln was one of the great leaders who believed in having no slaves. Also there was the Emancipation Proclamation in 1863 that freed the slaves. Therefore, there are no slaves. 2. "The sum of rights and immunities of all the citizens in an organized group" - through the years, men have fought and died to make America a land of freedom. Freedom of speech; we are able to speak our own opinions of our government and it's policies without fear. Many citizens of other countries are not allowed this right. Freedom of Press; In this country we are able to print and express our views. We can print books expressing our feelings toward government, religion, and matters as we see fit. Freedom of religion; We have the privilege to worship as we please. In some countries people are looked down on for not worshiping and belonging to a certain denomination. 3. "A certain amount of freedom." Let us compare a country with a city, village, community and a home. After all, this is what makes America. Our laws were made to protect the people in the cities, villages and country. In our home, we all have a responsibility to love, care for, and depend on our families. The same applies as citizens of our great country. Each of us must share the responsibility of voting. We must study the laws that are being passed and know what the leaders of our country stand for. We also have the responsibility of not harming the rights or property of others.

Land "Where my fathers died." Freedom is not something that has just been given to America. It took the brave, adventurous, courageous, bold men our fore-fathers were to fight for, to pray for, to mold and shape the great country we now live in.

And yes, this is a land of the pilgrims pride. I am sure that if we went through the hardships and sufferings as they did, we would be even prouder of our country. Today, we make even a greater America, our generation must contribute our part just as the past generations have done. We have accomplished many advances in science, medicines and space. It will one day very soon, be yours and my task to go forth with America's future, for "we are the future."

From every mountain side" - Oh, all the beauties of America. God has blessed our earth with a beauty beyond compare, with sky-reaching mountains, lovely blue lakes, deep devering oceans, deserts, and forests. He has also provided us with an abundant amount of fertile soil that none should hunger.

Let Freedom Ring - I pray that it always will. Yes, there are the riots, the mobs, and many things we cannot be proud of. It is sad that we have these, but there is a way to solve this. We must care a little more and dedicate ourselves to the tasks before us. Every country has their problems and in time, with a dedication of every American to put God and country ahead of self, we can conquer our problems.

I am proud of America, proud to have been blessed by being born in this land. My heart beats with pride and a feeling of deep gratitude every time I see our flag being raised, for I know America is truly the land of the brave, the land of the free.

America; Sweet land of liberty.

LEWIS LLEWELLYN

Is Pollution Our Major Concern?

In his "State of the Union" message, President Nixon proposed that the nation should spend $10 billion in the next five years to control pollution, which he said "may well become the major concern of the American people in the decade of the '70s."

"Between now and the year 2000, over 100 million children will be born in the United States," the president said. "Where they grow up — and how — will, more than any one thing, measure the quality of American life in these years ahead. This should be a warning to us."

"A Fresh Climate"

Toward the close of his message, he quoted Thomas Jefferson, who said in 1802, "We act not for ourselves alone, but for the whole human race." President Nixon added, "We had a spiritual quality then which caught the imagination of millions of people in the world. Today, when we are the richest and strongest nation in the world, let it not be recorded that we lack the moral and spiritual idealism which made us the hope of the world at the time of our birth. . . . We need a fresh climate in America."

Without in any way minimizing the importance of the campaign to improve the quality of our physical environment, there are many who believe that the quality of the moral environment in which our young people are growing up should be of much more urgent and immediate concern.

The pollution of our moral environment is everywhere evident in the contamination of our films, our magazines, our late-night television programs, so that our entire society is affected by this moral and spiritual decline.

If we do not succeed in improving our moral and spiritual environment, it may make little difference what we do about our physical environment.

The prophet Zephaniah warned the people of his day that moral pollution would lead to their destruction. "Woe to her that is filthy and polluted — to the oppressing city," he cried out. "She obeyed not the voice. She received not correction. She trusted not in the Lord. She drew not near to her God."

In spite of repeated invitations presented to the people, urging them to turn to God for salvation and help in all of their troubles, the people continued in their evil ways — and their nation was destroyed.

Will We Learn?

Will we learn from the experience of others?

Will our nation's leaders put first things first — or will we in this most crucial hour fail to hear the warning voice of God?

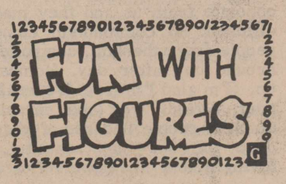

What are you doing, individually, to produce the "fresh climate in America" which is so vitally important?

Have you, personally, asked God to cleanse you of your own moral and spiritual pollution, so that you can be a force for righteousness in our society?

We must not leave it to our political and spiritual leaders to make these decisions. This is a matter which can be decided only on an individual basis.

This cleansing from our moral and spiritual pollution is what we and our nation need most urgently now.

The longest loaf of bread ever baked measured 20 feet 5 inches —not nearly long enough for the longest sausage. which measured 2,000 feet in length. It took 103 butchers to carry the sausage through the streets of Germany during the coronation of Frederick I.

Our economy is producing a thousand new corporate "millionaires" each year! The Dun & Bradstreet Million Dollar Directory now lists more than 31,000 companies in the United States having a net worth of more than a million dollars each. The first issue of the same Directory just a decade ago listed only 21,000 such companies.

Most people think that the higher you go the colder it gets, but this isn't so. It's actually warmer 30 miles above the earth than it is 15 miles up. At the height of 300 miles, the temperature may reach the incredible heat of 2,800 degrees F.

Lamps For The Seventies Are Geometric, Sculptured

Modern geometric and sculptured lamps are an integral part of today's new metal-look in all home furnishings.

Lamps are made from a variety of materials, according to Bonny Lay, Extension housing and home furnishings specialist at Texas A&M University.

Chrome is the most dominant metal used but in many lamps, material is mixed; chrome with see-through acrylics, brass with bronze and other colored acrylics.

Plastic is popular for lamps of the '70's. Plastics are clear or tineted with red, blue and purple glows.

The current trend is toward geometric shapes, such as circles, squares and rectangles, and sculptured lamps that blend lighting and form.

Form is very important, the specialist says, and it ranges from lamps that are pure, unfunctional lighted sculpture to lamps to read by.

Many new lamps look mechanical, designers let construction such as nuts and bolts show decoratively.

Another big item in lighting is the illuminated tables. They range from simple cubes to pedestals and cylinders that glow to see-through tops that give needed light for reading, Miss Lay says.

Living plants in red clay pots do double decorative duty indoors and out.

Container gardening in clay pots is the easiest way to achieve this portable beauty all year round. Californians, tops in pot plant gardening, achieve their decorative success with clay pots.

House plants that can do double duty indoors and out include such foliage plants as potted ferns, philodendron, many types of ivy, and such popular flowering plants as azaleas, geraniums, begonias and fuschias.

Your plants will be better off in porous clay pots than in other containers, because the red clay pots automatically safeguard the plants against overwatering, the commonest cause of most house plant failures. The tiny pores in the clay pots permit excess moisture and harmful salts to leach out so roots don't become waterlogged. Also, the porosity supplies necessary cooling and air-conditioning to roots.

It's wise to select your plants from nearly professional growers who can advise you on what plants will do best in this area.

And if you want a reputation for a green thumb that will make others green with envy, ask what kinds of light and temperatures individual plants like best. In general, flowering plants like the sun and foliage (green) plants prefer shade.

Price Commends Water Study Provisions

Congressman Bob Price has commended President Nixon for making provisions in the fiscal 1971 budget to continue funding the feasibility study of importing Mississippi water into West Texas. The President requested $700,000 in the 1971 budget.

Army Corps of Engineers officials said $1,065,000 has been spent on the study which is projected to cost $2.6 million by completion in 1973. Most of the funds will be spent in determining what the quantity of excess water is that would be available for export to West Texas.

The Corps officials said the last part of the study will determine what it will cost to pump the water to West Texas if there is sufficient excess to Mississippi Valley needs to make the export feasible.

"I feel confident that the funds for the study will be approved since they were requested by the President and Appropriation Committee Chairman, George Mahon of Lubbock, is well acquainted with the needs for importation of water into West Texas," Price said.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

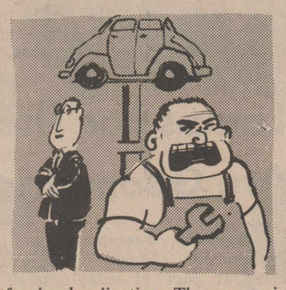

Talking Back to the Boss

Fred, a toolmaker, saw red when the foreman told him he was doing something wrong.

"Step outside," Fred cried angrily. "We'll fight it out."

But instead of accepting Fred's challenge, the foreman informed him that he was fired. In due course, Fred put in a claim for unemployment compensation. However, in a court test, his claim was turned down. The court pointed out that he had lost his job solely because of his own bad temper.

Unemployment compensation laws usually do disqualify, in varying degree, the man who is fired for insubordination. The reason is that these laws are intended to help the workman who is the innocent victim of economic forces, not the workman who makes his own trouble.

But it is also true that, in keeping with the beneficent purpose of unemployment compensation, the workman usually gets the benefit of the doubt. That is, he will not be disqualified if his misconduct was nothing serious.

For example, a court refused to disqualify a workman who had been fired just for remarking to his supervisor:

"You don't do much of anything."

The court said this offhand comment was simply too insignificant to deprive the man of his right to compensation.

Furthermore, the courts will take into account any provocation that might have brought on the workman's outburst. In another case, a mechanic paused in his work to wait for further instructions. His employer, passing by, began to swear at him for being idle, refusing to listen to any explanations.

Finally the mechanic said:

"Don't you cuss me. Fire me."

The employer did fire him for his "insolent" attitude. But when the matter was taken to court, the judge ruled that the man was still entitled to full unemployment benefits.

"We believe in elementary justice," said the judge, "that an employee possesses the inherent right to resent verbal abuse on the part of his employer."

There's lots of things which are exciting and adventurous, entertaining, scholastic achievements, and really most anything is here in the United States and America. Its pleasant to live in and to be a part of. There are also many different languages spoken by many different races of people. The younger men of America keep our nation, peaceful, brave and powerful. The proudful things of the United States are mostly its faculties, businesses, schools, governments, and many other business fundamentals. The U. S. is very largely populated and the climate, soil and air in some places is fine for crops, plantations and citrus production.

The United States has been a free country for many a year and has been in World War I and World War II. (but they've always come out peaceful). They are most prompt and well organized in political sense. We never really think about all those boys over in Vietnam fighting and risking their lives for us to have a free and beautiful country.

The communism people really don't know how wonderful it is to live free, with a free religion, free talking and conversation with people. (free living) A communism country is NOT free at all, they make their laws opposite from us and they make everything different so communism comes in. Their people are unthankful, controlled and ordered around day after day. Homes are broken up. (I'm glad I'm free) It's really an unclean poor nation. We (and myself) are very thankful people because of what our God has done for our big, beautiful, prosperous, loving strong and powerful nation and home.

Money is abundant in the United States and jobs are open and food is plenty. Population increases everyday and every hour and the industries increase every week. Homes are being built every minute and finished every month. There are so many beautiful cities, and there are beautiful fresh countrysides, too. There are car factories, oil industries, manufacturing exhibits, airlines, railroad stations, and then on down to snow skiing, golfing, camping, baseball, football, hiking, discovery and almost anything you can name is here, in our big beautiful (home) America, and there's something waiting for someone to take or run each moment of the day. They make movies in Hollywood, California, mostly which each day are presented on television. They have schools where they need teachers. They have homes which need carpenters. They have pianos, where they need pianists. They have cars, in which they need money, people, keys and a free country, and America has all and even more!

Our country never fails and never will we hope, it always lives up to its promise when once made. There may be many hardships but most of all there is peace, joy and a promising free and clean life.

Living in a free, beautiful, well officiated country that I love and appreciate and am very proud of and I will always as long as it stands unitedly majestic and free, I thank our God (and our maker) for such a wonderful, wonderful, beautiful, free home like America!!

BY DONNA HODGES

Freedom is the condition of being free. Few persons have ever been completely free. Nearly everyone has always been restrained from doing what he likes by the rights of other people, by laws and customs, and by his own physical and mental limitations.

Freedom can be either a benefit or a curse, depending on how it is used and controlled. In private life, freedom must be balanced by temperance, prudence, and a respect for wise authority.

Moral Freedom means the ability to choose between right and wrong, and to tell the difference between good and evil. The most important decisions in life concern good and evil in our private lives and in our actions effecting others.

Freedom without respect for wise authority is dangerous to the free man and to his neighbors. A person who recognizes no authority but his own wishes , tends to abuse his freedom, and may lose it altogether.

Many people have trouble understanding that to have freedom, we must give up some freedom.

A person who thinks only of his own freedom and does not worry about the freedom of others often finds that other people are highly "unreasonable." To obtain freedom in one direction, he may have to give it up in another. No one is entitled to more than his fair share of the possible general freedom.

Christianity gave new importance to the individual and his freedom.

It seems probable that in one case of the decay of freedom is that people do not understand the sources from which true freedom comes. They perhaps do not understand or appreciate its religion, moral, and historical roots. Lack of its respect from order, justice, and sound authority have also had their part in diminishing the gift of freedom that has been handed down by many generations of men and women.

Freedom of religion means the right of each person to worship according to his own convictions. This means that a man may practice whatever religious rites he chooses, as long as these do not directly injure other people or threaten to destroy society. Freedom of religion also includes the right of an individual not to worship at all, if he so chooses.

Freedom of speech is the ability to say, privately or publicly, what one believes.

Every right has some duty attached to it. People who enjoy the right of free speech have the duty of trying to speak sensible and decently.

Free speech, like other rights, has definite limits.

In the freedom of press the printed word can be a great power of good or for evil because books, magazines, and newspapers strongly influence many people. Most publishers, printers, and authors have tried to obtain and keep a high degree of freedom to print what they like.

Lucky me I'm an American, sometimes we take that phrase for granted. Lucky? Why do you consider yourself lucky, someone might ask? Riots, protest, poverty, war! Those are just some of the problems we face today. Have you ever looked at the bright side of it? We have freedom of speech, press, religion, and to meet any time we choose. So what, that's what most people would say. That doesn't solve any of our problems. It can make them seem smaller if we look at the people of Asia, the Soviet Union, East Germany and the other smaller countries controled by the communist.

Those people can't even speak to each other on the street without fear of being shot for plotting against the government. It would be a great shock to find your children being taken to a work camp or community farm.

Today poverty in the United States is bad, but how would you like to wake up hungry and go to bed still feeling hungry. The children living in Asia do. These children's parents would rather they died than to live in hunger or under communist terrorism. Most Asiatic children die before they are six years old.

It may not do any good to look at these people's problems, but it certainly does make ours look tiny.

If everyone would stop for just one minute and think how lucky we are to be living in America, or try to obey the law, or maybe even support our chosen leaders, America would be a much better place to live, and we might not have quite so many problems. It only takes about a minute of everyone's time to appreciate America better.

Highway Department Urges Motorists To 'Buy Now'

The deadline is passed to order 1970 Texas motor vehicle registration plates by mail, but there still is time for motorists to register their vehicles without a lot of the bother of former years.

The cutoff date for mail orders was March 1. But the three-part computerized form which all Texas vehicle owners received just after January 1 still will save time -- if motorists act quickly.

All one needs to do is to take the registration application to his county tax collector's office or sub-station with the fee.

The process is greatly simplified and the lines -- if any -- are fast-moving.

That's still no guarantee there won't be long lines facing those who wait until the last few days before the midnight April 1 deadline. Each year, thousands of motorists put off registering their vehicles until the last minute.

And, each year, the final days of the registration season find tax collector's offices and sub-stations jammed with procrastinating drivers.

The Texas Highway Department has these tips for quick and easy registration:

Don't throw away your registration application; don't write on it or mar it. However, if the address is incorrect, you should show your correct residence address in accordance with instructions on the form.

Don't separate the three parts of the form. Take it to the county tax office or substation in one piece.

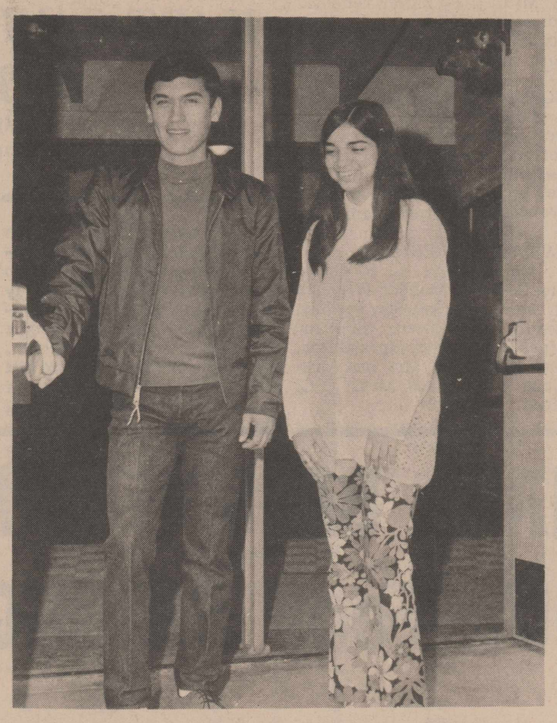

Don't send your application to the Highway Department in Austin; and, remember, the deadline is passed for ordering license plates by mail from your county tax office.

If you did not receive a three-part registration form by mail, or if you have lost it, take last year's motor vehicle registration receipt and your car title to the county tax collector's office or sub-station. Your vehicle registration will be processed as before, and you'll receive a time-saving computerized form next year.

Chronic Lung Diseases Are Hazards Of Smoking

Did you ever hear of emphysema or chronic bronchitis? Chances are you have since it is one of the hazards of cigarette smoking.

The problem of chronic obstructive lung disease isn't new, but its prominence in the field of health is making itself known by the rapidity with which it is disabling people from one part of the state to the other.

Pulmonary diseases are the second most common cause of disability in the state and the number of cases is rising rapidly, according to Dr. Albert G. Randall, deputy commissioner for Tuberculosis Control Services with the Texas State Department of Health.

And here's another fact given by Dr. Randall: In the past 10 years the gross mortality from emphysema and chronic bronchitis has more than quadrupled in the United States and continues to grow faster than for any other disease. Put another way, deaths from emphysema and chronic bronchitis in this country have just about doubled every five years since 1952.

Why should this be of importance to you? You may be a candidate for a pulmonary disease even though you think you have no problem. Statistics gathered during a National Health Survey indicate that some three million Americans have limited activities due to emphysema and chronic bronchitis. And.... the number is growing annually.

It has been estimated that some 25 per cent of those over age 40 have abnormal lung function. Although women and younger people suffer from emphysema, there are 10 men victims for every woman. Most of the more than 10 million victims are men past 40. And here's another shocker for you who haven't concerned yourself before with emphysema: There are more sufferers from emphysema in the United States than from lung cancer and tuberculosis combined, according to one estimate.

What marks you as a candidate for diagnosis as a sufferer with emphysema or chronic bronchitis? Frequent colds . . . a lingering cough . . . increasing shortness of breath with normal activities . . . frequent respiratory infections . . . general weakness and a tendency to tire easily . . . a feeling of tightness in the chest. These are signs which shouldn't be ignored but all too often are ignored until serious problems develop.

Bureau Of Census Will Show Population Continues Westward

Late in Oct. 1970, when population totals from the 19th decennial census are firm, the Bureau of the Census and the Coast and Geodetic Survey--sister agencies of the U. S. Department of Commerce--will get together over complicated mathematics with terms like "ground triangulations" and "map coordinates" and come up with a new U. S. center of population.

The 1970 center of population will continue its westward march, but its pace is uncertain because migration rates won't be known until the census is complete. In the previous 18 decades the center moved 701 miles west and 47 miles south of the first center established after the 1790 Census near Chestertown, Md., 23 miles east of Baltimore. The average move west each decade thereafter was about 39 miles.

The center of population as defined by the Census Bureau is that point upon which the United States would balance, if it were a rigid plane and its inhabitants were distributed where they live with each individual assumed to have equal weight. This should not be confused with the geographical center. The geographical center, the point on which the surface of the United States would balance if it were a plane or uniform weight per unit of area, is located in Butte County, S. D.

On July 1, 1969, Bureau demographers issued estimates of the current population for each State. Based on these estimates, the center of population as of July 1, 1969, would be located in Looking Glass Township, Clinton County, Ill. about two and one-half miles southeast of the community of New Memphis and approximately 30 miles east southeast of St. Louis, Mo. This point is about 35 miles west and 10 miles south of Centralia, Ill. 1960 center of population.

If the current estimates hold true, it would mean the 1970 Census Center of population would be somewhere near the July 1 computed center in Looking Glass Township.

Estimates of the population however are subject to error, so firm results from the 1970 county must be in before the exact location is announced. There have been wide deviations from the average westward movement of the center during the 18 decades. Between 1950 and 1960, for example, the center took a 57-mile leap. In 1910-1920, it moved west only 10 miles -- its shortest move in census history. Earlier, in 1850-1860 it took an 80.6 mile giant step, the longest movement westward yet registered.

The 1890 census found the center of population in Indiana where it was to remain for six decennial censuses. The 1890 location was near Westport, 20 miles east of Columbus. A granite boulder on the Columbus-Versailles highway marks the location. In 1910, the center reached Bloomington, Ind., and by 1920, it had shifted the 10 miles noted above, to a point on a beech-covered hillside near Whitehall in the western suburbs of Bloomington.

The year 1930 found the center located three miles northeast of Linton, Ind., and in 1940, for the last stop in Indiana, the center was two miles southeast of Carlisle, in Sullivan County. During World War II, the center crossed the Wabash River, marking the Indiana-Illinois boundary.

The north-south movement has been slight. During the 18 decades, the point farthest north was the 1790 location, and the point farthest south, the 1960 location, a difference of about 47 miles or 2.6 miles per decade.

NOWHERE IS THIS MORE TRUE THAN IN OLTON, WHICH THIS YEAR BEGINS ITS 55th YEAR ON THE BRIGHT NOTE OF LAMB COUNTY'S BECOMING TEXAS' SECOND LARGEST AGRICULTURAL COMMUNITY. PROGRESS AND THE EXPERIENCE OF THE YEARS JOIN HANDS IN A PROGRAM OF BETTER SERVICE.

WITHIN THE PROGRESSIVE OLTON BUSINESS COMMUNITY ARE THE GOODS AND SERVICES TO MATCH AN EVER-DEVELOPING CITY AND COUNTY AREA.

FROM 1927 TO 1963, 36 FULL YEARS OF BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT--THROUGH GOOD YEARS AND BAD. IT IS A PROUD GROUP, AND A HEALTHY ONE, THAT LOOKS TO 1963 AS A NEW OPPORTUNITY TO GROW AND DEVELOP. THIS IS THE PARADE OF PROGRESS...LARGE TODAY, EVEN LARGER TOMORROW !
