FRENCH ATTITUDE CAUSES A STIR

BELIEVE J. J. KNIGHT WANDERED AND WAS LOST IN THE DESERT

PHOENIX, ARIZ., July 28.—That J. J. Knight, missing Dallas business man, whose automobile was found in the desert several days ago, wandered away from his machine and became lost in the desert, was the opinion expressed today by Sheriff John Montgomery, who has been conducting a search for Knight.

The sheriff said he had developed some important clues but would not say what they were. He has bandoned the murder theory.

The automobile was found on the desert 60 miles northwest of here a week ago Sunday. Yesterday searchers found Knight's suit case, stolen from the car after it was found, eight miles from the place where the car was found.

ILLINOIS GOVERNOR WILL NOT DISCUSS PLANS FOR FUTURE

HOLDS CONFERENCE WITH A NUMBER OF FRIENDS AT CONGRESS HOTEL.

REPORTED BUSY AND NO CONCLUSION REACHED

May Have Announcement Late In Day His Son Explains To Inquirers.

CHICAGO, July 28.—Neither Governor Len Small nor any member of his party would discuss today his plans in connection with the warrant issued in Springfield on the indictment charging him with embezzlement while he was state treasurer. The governor, his son, Leslie, and several attorneys were found at the Congress hotel, where they had been in secluded conference for several hours.

One of the attorneys at the conference was Albert Fink of Chicago. The identity of the others was not revealed but it was thought that they were from Springfield or some other downstate city.

"We are very busy and have come to no conclusions," explained Leslie Small. "We may have some announcement to give out this evening but even that is uncertain."

REPORT GOVERNOR HAS A CONFERENCE WITH FRIENDS

CHICAGO, July 28.—Governor Len Small, after changing hotels last night to avoid newspaper men, resumed his conferences today with lawyers and associates "somewhere in Chicago."

The governor's whereabouts continued to be a mystery, although it was reported today's conference was being held at the home of a friend, Albert Fink, his chief counsel, disclaimed all knowledge of the governor's whereabouts.

GOVERNOR HAS APPARENTLY DISAPPEARED FROM VIEW

CHICAGO, July 28.—Governor Len Small apparently had disappeared from public view here today and efforts were being made to get in touch with him in Springfield, his home at Kankakee and among his friends in Chicago, in connection with the "fireworks" promised in political circles when an attempt is made to serve warrants upon him charging him with embezzlement of state funds.

Mrs. Small, at her home, told inquirers by telephone she thought the governor was still in Chicago, where he was last seen at midnight.

With Sheriff Mester of Sangamon county waiting at Springfield to serve the warrants upon the governor there, and Governor Small insisting upon service in Chicago, an impasse seemed to have been reached.

It was generally reported that the governor would insist upon arrest in Cook county and that arrangements had been made for a writ of habeas corpus here which would be made the groundwork for a fight to dispose of the indictments altogether.

Some attorneys discussing the case express belief that Governor Small cannot escape trial of the charges if he desires to do so, even though he is not docketed, for the reason that a conspiracy indictment covers the governor, Lieutenant Governor Fred Sterling and Vernon Curtis, and proceedings against Sterling and Curtis would, to all intents and purposes, be strued as proceedings against Governor Small as well.

SENATE COMMITTEE FAVORS MELLON BILL

Endorses Proposal to Give Secretary Of Treasury Blanket Authority On Foreign Debts.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Favorable report on the administration bill giving the treasury blanket authority to conduct negotiations for the funding of the allied debt was ordered today by the senate finance committee. It carries a committee amendment requiring that the funding be completed within five years.

SECRETARY MELLON GIVES HIS VIEWS TO COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Secretary Mellon formally advised the senate finance committee today in reply to a committee inquiry a to his views regarding the extent to which the United States had been committed under the Wilson administration on deferment of payments of allied war loans and interest.

The government was committed, he said, to postponement of interest payments for two or three years and subsequent spreading out of postponed payments "contingent upon such foreign governments carrying out with reasonable promptness, after this government is ready to proceed, a satisfactory funding of its existing short time obligations to this country."

Mr. Mellon added that he did not think any obligation had been imposed on the government through negotiations in London between Mr. Rathbone of the treasury and a British official, frequently discussed in finance committee hearings.

SIX TOURISTS IN AUSTRIA DISAPPEAR FROM RESORTS; SEARCH FOR ROBBER BAND

VIENNA, July 28.—Five women and one man, all tourists, have disappeared from summer resorts in Salyzburg province within two weeks, it was learned today. The police are scouring the nearby country for a robber band believed to prey upon travelers. It is believed the band murders and buries its victims.

U. S. SHIPPING BOARD ISSUES ULTIMATUM TO BRITISH SHIP LINES

By Associated Press.

LONDON, July 28.—The United States shipping board, it was learned here today, has delivered an ultimatum to the British shipping line that unless its ships are accepted for treatment in contracts for the transport of cotton from Alexandria, Egypt, to the United Kingdom and the United States, the shipping board will "declare an open market" and haul anything anywhere at any rate.

The following Central News dispatch was received in London last night from Alexandria:

"Representatives of the United States shipping board in Alexandria have decided to break off negotiations with Liverpool shipping interests regarding shipment of Egyptian cotton."

The dispatch adds that the Americans intend to adopt protective measures, declaring that intimidation has been used in competition for freight. It is alleged that discrimination in favor of British bidders has been exercised even when the American bids were materially lower.

The board also will invoke the retaliatory meaasures embodied in the Jones shipping act, under which vessels owned by unfair competitors may be excluded from the United States ports, the ultimatum declared.

FOLLOWS A CONTROVERSY WHICH BEGAN LAST MAY

NEW YORK, July 28.—The ultimatum on cotton shipments delivered by European representatives of the United States shipping board to British shipping lines follows a controversy which began last May over shipment to the United States of Egyptian long staple cotton.

At that time, according to advices received here from the American chamber of commerce of Egypt, bids were invited by the Alexandria produce association from Liverpool conference steamship lines and the United States shipping board for handling shipments of the staple to American and United Kingdom ports.

The bid of the shipping board, it was reported, was 25 shillings a ton to the United Kingdom and 40 shillings to the United States.

Liverpool conference lines on the other hand, it was said, bid 40 shillings to the United Kingdom and 60 to the United States.

The Alexandria produce association comprises 95 Egyptian shippers. Its cotton business is handled by a board of 16. When the bids for handling the cotton came up for consideration, it was said that 15 of the 16 were in favor of awarding the contract to the shipping board, but as it was not unanimous, no contract could be made.

The shipping board offered to compromise the matter, agreeing if it was given the American business, the bids for the United Kingdom would be withdrawn. This offer, the American chamber was informed, was refused by the Liverpool conference lines and threats of reprisals were made to obtain the business.

Indicating the volume of the business during the cotton season of 1919-20, Egyptian cotton to the amount of 270,000 bales was shipped to this country, the greater part of which went to New England spinners.

It was announced here recently by Winthrop L. Marvin, general manager of the American Steamship Ownership association, that Manchester spinners were insisting that American cotton should be shipped to them in British bottoms, insured by British insurance companies. This was made known, he asserted, when he was informed by Galveston members of his organization that they had been compelled to cancel charters for American ships on which they were to load Manchester shipments, and engage in their place British tonnage.

SHIPPING BOARD OFFICIALS IGNORANT OF ULTIMATUM

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Shipping board officials said today they did not know of the ultimatum, reported in London dispatches as being presented to the British shipping lines. The board, however, has representatives in the London conference and officials declined to discuss it. The negotiations were described as very delicate.

HARDIN OF KAUFMAN DEFENDS PATMAN IN A SPEECH IN HOUSE

REBUKES MEMBERS WHO MAKE COMPARISON OF NEINAST CASE.

AMERICAN LEGION IS INVOLVED IN PETITIONS

Faction of Organization Wants An Investigation of Kerrville Hospital.

AUSTIN, July 28.—On a point of personal privilege in the house of representatives this morning, Representative Hardin of Kaufman rebuked the members who sought to compare Representative Patman's stand on the Neinast case with his move against the Ku Klux Klan, which took place in the house yesterday.

Patman did not vote on the unseating of Neinast during the regular session, saying that evidence was insufficient. Various members asked him pointed questions during his argument yesterday seeking to show that his stand against the klan did not compare favorably with his stand on the Neinast case. Neinast was unseated on account of charges of conspiring against the United States during the war.

Representative Thompson of Harris on a point of personal privilege in the house exhibited a petition signed by the twenty-four American legion members of the house requesting the governor not to submit the Kerrville hospital bill until the legion had had time to investigate thoroughly the exact conditions of the hospital.

A petition signed by seventy-four members has been presented to the governor requesting the bill to be submitted in order that part of the $1,500,000 appropriation may be cut off if it is found that all of it was not needed.

Representative Thompson said every member of the house would be given an opportunity to sign his petition. He pointed out "that if there is dirty linen in the legion ranks, let us clean it."

The house then resumed consideration of the university appropriation in the educational appropriation.

EDUCATIONAL APPROPRIATION BILL IS PASSED IN SENATE

AUSTIN, July 28.—The senate passed finally today the senate educational appropriation bill carrying $4,649,951 for the first, and $4,185,149 for the second fiscal year. There was also passed finally the house judiciary appropriation measure carrying $1,480,815 for the first, and $1,472,970 for the second fiscal years.

Senator Dudley of El Paso introduced a concurrent resolution authorizing the land commissioner to postpone the forfeiture of state lands for failure to pay interest for 1922. The resolution was referred to senate committee on state affairs.

Bills introduced: By Senator Page of Eastrop, by request—authorizing life insurance companies organized under the laws of Texas to act as executor or administrator of the estate of a deceased person; by Senator Baugh of Runnels—to abolish the board consisting of the lieutenant-governor and three members to be appointed by the governor, to govern and conduct experiments in state experiment stations.

Senator Burkett of Eastland had read a petition signed by Mrs. W. E. Spell and others of Waco protesting against the repeal of the suspended sentence law. The petition also enclosed a communication from Thomas Mott Osborne, former warden of Sing Sing, in which he declared it would be a serious mistake to repeal the suspended sentence law.

The senate adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The senate committee on criminal jurisprudence reported unfavorably today the senate bill by Senator Burkett of Eastland providing for methods of removing officers. A favorable minority report was given. The original Burkett bill which he introduced at the request of Atticus Webb, president of the Anti-Saloon League, was substituted by another bill by Senator Burkett, which was reported out. The original bill was sponsored by Governor Neff.

COLONEL GOFF WILL BE ASSIGNED TO INVESTIGATE THE WAR-TIME CONTRACTS

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Colonel Guy D. Goff, the assistant of the attorney general, will be assigned as head of the justice department's special bureau for the investigation of government war-time contracts, Attorney General Daugherty announced today.

The general scope of the investigation, which has already begun, Mr. Daugherty added, would determine the fairness with which indiviuals dealt with the government during the years of the war and the justice department would be as glad to give a clean bill of health as to obtain enforcement of a settlement upon an unjust contract but it was the department's intention to bring all offenders to punishment.

Some evidence has already been gathered, Mr. Daugherty said, which may lead to action by the department, but as yet no cases have been completed.

PLAN FOR PRELIMINARY DISARMAMENT MEETING OUTSIDE OF WASHINGTON

LONDON, July 28.—It was stated in official circles here today that a meeting preliminary to the Washington conference on disarmament and far eastern problems, to be held within six weeks at some Canadian city or a city in the United States other than Washington, was virtually a certainty, although it was admitted that the attitude of Washington on such an arrangement was as yet unknown in London.

JOINT COMMITTEE IS INVESTIGATING CHARGES OF GRAFT

BEGIN WORK THURSDAY MORNING BY ORGANIZING COMMITTEE.

WILL REQUEST GOVERNOR TO FURNISH INFORMATION

Meeting Thursday Afternoon to Go Over Evidence Submitted to Satterwhite.

AUSTIN, July 28.—Governor Pat M. Neff has been summoned to appear before the legislative joint committee probing graft charges to tell what he knows of graft in state departments, Saturday morning at 9:00 o'clock.

AUSTIN, July 28.—The joint legislative investigating committee authorized by a concurrent resolution adopted yesterday to investigate the graft and extravagance in the capitol as charged by Governor Neff, started its work this morning. The concensus of opinion among the members is to co-operate with the governor, to request him to appear before the committee and relate to them specific instances he refers to.

Representative Cox of Taylor was elected chairman of the committee; Senator Page of Bastrop, vice chairman, and Representative Quaid of El Paso, secretary.

The committee will meet again at 2 p. m. today, at which time the evidence submitted by the governor to Representative Satterwhite, chairman of the house appropriations committee, will be gone over in order that the members can get acquainted with the charges.

After the members are fully in touch with the evidence it is then planned to have Governor Neff appear before the committee.

RELATIONS OF HERRICK WITH OTHER DIPLOMATS ALMOST ENTIRELY SOCIAL

PARIS, July 28.—The relations of Myron T. Herrick, the American ambassador, with the other diplomats in Paris thus far have been almost entirely social, and as yet he has not had anything to do with either the Silesian question or the forthcoming conference on disarmaments, in the absence of instructions one way or the other.

A Paris dispatch received Wednesday quoted the Journal as saying that Mr. Herrick had an interview with Premier Briand during the afternoon which was largely taken up with the question of Upper Silesia.

MAXIM GORKY REPLIES TO MESSAGE OF HOOVER

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Secretary Hoover made public today the text of a brief reply received by radio from Maxim Gorky at Petrograd to Mr. Hoover's recent message as head of the American Relief Association, saying American relief in Russia must be preceded by release of Americans detained by soviet authorities.

"Your message gratefully received," the radiogram said. "Detailed reply will be sent from Moscow by president Russian famine relief committee."

PECULIAR TURNS IN SPECULATIONS OVER THE IRISH SITUATION

LONDON, July 28.—Speculations and predictions regarding the Irish situation have taken many peculiar turns as the result of developments featuring the negotiations during the past 24 hours.

Of these developments perhaps the most talked of is a speech made in the house of lords yesterday by Lord Birkenhead, lord high chancellor, in which he invited perliament and the country to have patience with the trouble Eamonn de Valera, Irish republican leader, and his colleagues may be having in Dublin to reach a decision on the British proposals. He also intimated that the negotiations may continue for several weeks.

Other outstanding features of the day were prolonged discussions of the proposals by the Irish republican cabinet; a communication Premier Lloyd George is reported to have received from Mr. de Valera, and the postponement by General J. C. Smuts of his departure for South Africa until August 8. The communication from De Valera is reported to have asked for further action of General Smuts in remaining here, is taken to mean that he feels his services as mediator may again be needed here.

RIDGWAY ASKS REMOVAL OF LIGHT COMMISSIONER

FORT WORTH, July 28.—R. Bonna Ridgway, former corporation counsel, today asked District Attorney Brown to join in filing quo warranto proceedings asking the removal from office of R. A. Hunter, light commissioner on charges of alleged financial interest in a moving picture contract at Lake Worth, to which the city was a party. Brown took under advisement the request, which was an outgrowth of Ridgway's dismissal for alleged incompetency.

PRELIMINARY HEARING OF JUDGE WRIGHT OF SENSATIONAL NATURE

CHARGES AND COUNTER CHARGES ARE BROUGHT OUT IN EVIDENCE.

WOMAN TESTIFIES AND LETTER IS INTRODUCED

Justice Asked Not to Consider Remarks Regarding Mann Law Action.

SAPULPA, OKLA., July 28.—Testimony adduced by the state today, the second of the preliminary hearings of Judge Lucien B. Wright, charged with having accepted a $10,000 bribe to decide the $2,000,000 Tommy Atkins oil land case against the Charles Page interests, bordered closely on the sensational. At one point evidence was brought out of an alleged intention of Charles McCloud, one of the endorsers of the present information against Judge Wright, to bring a white slave charge, and the judge's alleged statement that he intended to kill Charles Page.

S. P. Freeling, state attorney general, in charge of the prosecution of Judge Wright, quickly interposed an objection, asking that nothing that did not touch directly on the charge being heard be brought in, and requested Justice of the Peace Piltz, in whose court the case is being heard, not to consider the remarks regarding the possible Mann law action.

W. S. McCray, a Tulsa oil man, testified that he had talked with Judge Wright in March this year regarding the Tommy Atkins case, and that the judge had told him the case was a frame-up so far as Sallie Atkins, one of the women who claimed to be the mother of Tommy Atkins, was concerned.

Mr. McCray said that he had talked with the judge on June 21 and 22, the first time at the judge's invitation. He said he told the judge he had "come to him as a friend as I feared he was going to be in trouble."

"I knew some letters were out, and the judge asked me if possible to secure them," the witness said. "I made such an effort, going to Page, whom I knew was doing the work. On my return I told the judge I had been promised the letters and they were where I could get my hands on them.

"Judge Wright asked me to obtain various documents which he said he would come to my office to look over. He wanted photographic copies of letters and the plates that made them. The judge told me to secure the documents regardless of cost as he was in serious trouble, but had a way figured out to get out of trouble if I could get these letters."

In another meeting, Mr. McCrary said that he and the judge left two other men and went into a private room at Tulsa and that the judge was armed.

"Did you disarm him?" Mr. Freeling asked.

"Not then," was the reply.

"What did Judge Wright say?" the attorney general asked.

"Judge Wright said he expected to find Page in my office, he was going to have it out with him, and that he was going to kill him," he said.

Mrs. T. T. Boarman of Oklahoma City, who had previously testified Judge Wright had written her "after July 1, I will have plenty of money, after which I can go away," denied that she had ever received or had been promised any money from the Page interests. She admitted receiving $1,500 from Judge Wright and said it was to be used in paying for her home.

WOMAN TESTIFIES AND LETTER IS INTRODUCED

SAPULPA, OKLA., July 28.—The preliminary hearing of Judge Lucien B. Wright, accused in an information filed by S. P. Freeling, state attorney general, of having accepted a bribe of $10,000 for a decision he rendered in the Tommy Atkins oil land case, entered its second day of testimony here at 9 a. m. today.

Mrs. T. T. Boarman of Oklahoma City, who was on the stand when court adjourned yesterday, was called back today.

A torn letter which Mrs. Boarman was alleged to have received from Judge Wright was introduced. The defense objected on the ground that the letter was mutilated, but the objection was overruled. Mrs. Boarman testified that in the letter which was torn off Judge Wright had said: "After July 1, I will have plenty of money, after which I can go away."

Judge Ben Thompson, head of defense counsel, cross-questioned Mrs. Boarman as to money she testified yesterday she saw Judge Wright have in Oklahoma. He inquired its denominations, its amount and if she saw it at close range. The witness replied that she did not know the amount and was not near him when he showed the money.

The defense introduced a check dated February 15, 1921, for $15, which Judge Thompson charged Mrs. Boarman cashed for Judge Wright to "pay his way home." The witness said she had cashed numerous checks for Judge Wright, but did not remember this particular one which the defense alleged was to supply funds for the judge to return home after the state had declared he displayed the alleged money to Mrs. Boarman.

DISCOVER A $450,000 LEATHER SPECULATION BY WARREN C. SPURGIN

CHICAGO, July 28.—Discovery of a $450,000 leather speculation of Warren C. Spurgin missing president of the closed Michigan Avenue Trust company, was found today by the state attorney's office. The leather, it was stated, was found in a warehouse.

With indictments out and a search for Spurgin from Canada to Mexico, a second discovery was announced today by the state attorney's office, whose operatives found an apparent attempt to tunnel into the building of the defunct bank. A hole six feet square and four feet deep had been dug just outside the wall of the vault, it was stated.

SUBJECT OF IMPORTANT MEETING AT RESIDENCE OF LLOYD GEORGE; ANXIETY FELT IN BRITISH CIRCLES

By Associated Press.

LONDON, July 28.—The latest French communication insisting that more troops be sent into Upper Silesia immediately, which came as something of a surprise to official circles in London, is understood to have been the subject of an important conference in the official residence of Prime Minister Lloyd George in which Mr. Lloyd George, the dominion premiers and several members of the cabinet were present. It was stated in political quarters that the insistence of France had caused some anxiety in Downing street.

After the meeting it was announced that Lord Curzon, the foreign minister, would see M. de St. Aulaire, the French ambassador, this afternoon, and that the meeting of the allied supreme council might again be somewhat delayed.

As a result of Lord Curzon's meeting with M. de St. Aulaire, it is understood Lord Curzon will send a reply to Premier Briand, reaffirming the view that the situation in Upper Silesia does not justify the sending of more troops at the moment.

PARIS, July 28.—France informed the British government late yesterday that the question of sending reinforcements to Upper Silesia must be disposed of satisfactorily before French representatives can attend a meeting of the allied supreme council August 4, at which it is planned to discuss the entire Silesian situation.

Shortly after this information reached London Marquis Curaon promised Colonel de St. Aulaire, French minister to Great Britain, that the matter would be placed before the British cabinet this morning.

HEARING TESTIMONY IN DEFENSE OF ZORK IN BASEBALL TRIAL

CHICAGO, July 28.—Testimony in defense of Carl Zork of St. Louis was taken up in the baseball trial today with witnesses contradicting much of the state's evidence against him and others testifying to his good character.

Zork's attorneys presented E. P. Melrose, who said he was with Zork the evening after the fourth game of the 1919 world series. It was this evening, according to Harry Redmon's testimony several days ago, that Zork was supposed to have said:

"I am the little red head from St. Louis who started the whole deal," referring to the alleged game throwing.

"Zork and I had dinner together and Redmon just dropped in," said Melrose. "Zork never made a remark about starting any deal and never said he bet $2,000 to $8,000 on the White Sox after the fourth game as an alibi or for any other reason.

"At 7:30 p. m. we met Sid Keener, a St. Louis newspaper man, and he and Zork played billiards until about 8:45 p. m. Zork and I went to his hotel and I took him to the train. He left at 9:20 p. m. for St. Louis."

Keener corroborated Melrose's testimony concerning the billiard game.

J. C. Gunch, Judge John A. Talty, Fred Rosenfield and J. Loebenhard appeared as character witnesses for Zork.

Under cross-examination, Melrose was asked repeatedly if he knew Henry Becker, a St. Louis gambler killed some time ago.

"Did Becker's name come up at the dinner with Zork or did any one say anything about Becker previously having fixed regular season games?" asked George Gorman, assistant state's attorney.

"He was never mentioned and I know nothing about him," replied Melrose.

Asked how he could remember every detail of a conversation two years ago, Melrose said he frequently thought of it because of the publicity given the alleged game throwing.

DEFENSE BOMBARDING THE EVIDENCE OF PROSECUTION

CHICAGO, July 28.—The defense today resumed its bombardment of evidence presented by the state in the baseball trial which resulted yesterday in the freeing of two defendants, a tentative promise from the court to free three others unless moreevidence was presented, and a well supported alibi for a sixth of the eleven men on trial for an alleged conspiracy to throw the 1919 world's series.

REPORT ON DEBS RELEASE AWAITS PRESIDENT'S VISIT

WASHINGTON, july 28.—Attorney General Daugherty's report to President Harding in the matter of a pardon for Eugene V. Debs, socialist leader, imprisoned at Atlanta penitentiary for violation of the espionage laws, will be deferred until after the president returns from his ten days' visit to New England, Mr. Daugherty said today.

AUSTRALIAN GOVERNMENT NOT TO INTERFERE WITH LANDING OF ARCHBISHOP

NORTH DAKOTA BANKER IS PLACED UNDER ARREST

FARGO, N. D., July 28.—T. L. Beiseker, of Fessenden, N. D., widely known North Dakota banker, head of a string of banks and heavily interested in other business activities submitted to arrest in Chicago today on a charge of violating the federal bank laws.

5 JURORS ACCEPTED IN TOUSSAINT TRIAL, VENIRE EXHAUSTED

ANOTHER 200 MEN ORDERED TO REPORT FRIDAY MORNING FOR NEW PANEL.

MANY DECLARE THEY HAVE FORMED OPINIONS

Defense Declines to Accept Regular Jurors For Week and Delay in Trial Results.

With only five jurors sworn out of the special venire of 200, selection of the jury in the case of Henry J. Toussaint, charged with murder, came to a halt in the 30th district court Thursday morning when the venire was exhausted.

Sheriff Smith was directed to summon another special venire of 200 to report by 9:00 a. m. Friday morning.

Counsel for the defense refused to accept as veniremen the members of the regular jury for the week, exercising the right allowed them in capital cases.

E. B. Gorsline, well known realty dealer, chosen late Wednesday, and J. W. Mix, truck farmer, chosen at 10:00 a. m. Thursday, were the fourth and fifth jurors acceptable to both sides.

Previously formed opinions, mostly on the insanity plea, and scruples against the death penalty, caused juror after juror to be challenged for cause Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning, and it became increasingly evident that the task of filling the jury box would be an exceptionally difficult one.

Late Wednesday, W. H. Daniels and F. T. Mitchell were challenged by the state, R. Frazier was challenged for cause by the defense, F. J. McCullough disqualified because of an opinion; L. L. Thompson was accepted by the state, but the defense, after a vain effort to disqualify him, challenged.

E. C. Dameral, a native of England, was challenged for cause by the defense, after he had expressed a rather uncompromising attitude in favor of punishing all persons charged with homicide.

E. B. Gorsline, the next talesman, was accepted by both sides.

L. C. Tanner, M. Reis and E. V. Halton were challenged for cause, F. H. Harris was disqualified for an opinion, H. J. Fenton and C. W. Coffey were excused on account of scruples against the death penalty.

The first six veniremen to be examined Thursday morning were found to possess fixed opinions regarding the case, and were challenged for cause. They were E. B. Stewart, W. G. Miller, A. R. Bleakley, T. B. Smock, B. F. Van Pelt and J. O. Stroud. Ben Echols was excused for opposition to the death penalty. R. G. Scheurer was challenged by the state. Dave Thomas was challenged for cause.

The next venireman, J. W. Mix, was accepted, and sworn. He is 45 years old, and resides a mile east of the business district, being a truck gardener, is unmarried, without church or lodge affiliations.

Lewis King and J. A. Deakins were challenged for cause. Ed Guthrie, J. A. Smith, W. J. Berry, A. L. Gentry, A. C. Hollingsworth and J. P. Morrison were excused for conscientious scruples. That exhausted the panel.

GARNER OUTLINES TAXATION PROGRAM

Forecasts Provisions That Will Be Offered By Ways and Means Committee.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Repeal of the excess profits tax, a reduction in the surtax to 35 or forty per cent, and an increas in the income tax on corporations is all the ways and means committee will offer by way of tax revision, Representative Garner, Texas, ranking democrat of that committee, predicted today in the house. Mr. Garner attacked the republican majority for what he said was a program to rush the tax bill through the house and leave its perfection to the senate.

The Texas member said he saw by the newspapers that President Harding would entertain tonight "Dr. Mondell, Dr. Fess and several other doctors from the house."

"Only a dozen of you republicans will be there," he declared, "but they will fix the program and bring it back to a secret conference and you will be asked to accept it."

Representative Mondell, of Wyoming, the republican leader, replied to Mr. Garner, saying the "dignity and prestige of the house" was being preserved despite fears of the minority that the senate was wielding a dictatorial hand in fiscal legislation.

The ways and means committee, he added, was "carefully considering the question of revenue," and "in due time" would report a tax bill. That would be the best possible product of republican judgment.

BETHLEHEM STEEL COMPANY DECLARES REGULAR DIVIDEND

NEW YORK, July 28.—The Bethlehem Steel company today declared its regular dividend of 1¼ per cent on both classes of common stock.

READY TO CONSIDER A DATE AND PLACE FOR A CONFERENCE

WAY REGARDED OPEN FOLLOWING ACCEPTANCE OF JAPAN.

LITTLE DIFFICULTY IS EXPECTED BY OFFICIALS

American Government Has Suggested Armistice Day Because of Appropriateness.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The way was regarded as open today for the beginning of negotiations between the United States and the other principal allied and associated powers as to the date and meeting place of the proposed conference on limitation of armaments.

Definite acceptance by Japan of a seat in the conference, announced in a note from Tokio, made public yesterday by the state department, completed the second step in the movement to secure limitation of national armaments by agreement, the first step having been President Harding's informal overtures on the question.

Little difficulty is expected by officials here in reaching an agreement on the place for the meeting, no decided opposition having developed to the suggestion that the conference be held in Washington. Differences of opinion as to the time of convening the conference are known to exist, however, among the interested nations. The American government has mentioned November 11—Armistice day—because of its appropriateness to the occasion. Officials of the British dominions, however, are understood to urged their governments to suggest a later date as many of the dominion legislative bodies meet during the fall months.

DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE IS INVITED TO HONOLULU

HONOLULU, July 28.—An invitation to hold the forthcoming disarmament conference in Honolulu was cabled to President Harding today from the headquarters of the Pan-Pacific Union here. The message declared Honolulu is "the cross roads of the Pacific where all Pacific races meet together in harmony and without prejudice," and that the heads of all the Pacific governments are officers of the Pan-Pacific Union.

SAN FRANCISCO MAYOR AFTER THE CONFERENCE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 28.—Mayor James A. Rolph has issued an appeal to foreign born residents of San Francisco to send recommendations to their respective embassies at Washington asking that this city be selected as the meeting place of the world disarmament conference.

FAVORABLE REPORT ON JOHNSON BILL

House Committee Approves Measure To Eliminate The Mileage Tax On Motor Trucks.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, July 28.—The bill by Johnson of Wichita to eliminate the mileage tax on motor trucks was given a favorable report last night by the house committee on roads, bridges and ferries following a joint hearing with the senate committee on criminal jurisprudence. The vote was 6 to 2 and Baker of Milan gave notice of a minority report. On account of the absence of several of its members the senate commitee deferred action on an identical bill introduced in that branch.

The amendment to the vehicle license law passed at the regular session of the legislature, introduced by Representative Johnson of Wichita county in the house and by Senator Hertzberg in the senate, would eliminate the mileage tax entirely and also eliminate the portion of the existing law which requires the installation of a mechcanical governor on motor trucks.

Mr. Johnson states that every safeguard is thrown about the improved highways of Texas in his bill by the provisions which increase the annual tax on commercial motor vehicles using hard rubber tires, by requiring that no vehicle be operated upon the highways when one or more pneumatic tires are less than one inch thick at any point; and by permitting county road engineers or county road supervisors by issuing proclamations in the newspapers and posting notices on the highways to prohibit the use of such highways or any portion thereof to loads of excessive weight in wet weather. Mr. Johnson declared that all of the damage to the improved highways by motor trucks resulted from the use of heavy trucks on graveled or graded roads in wet weather and that this provision of his bill would correct this abuse.

A provision in the bill provides that each motor truck be equipped with a rear-view mirror to enable truck drivers to see vehicles approaching from the rear. According to information gathered by Mr. Johnson much complaint has arisen against motor trucks because of the fact that trucks will not give the right of way to more rapidly moving vehicles.

The speed limits provided for commercial vehicles have also been increased in favor of pneumatic tire equipped vehicles or those equipped with cushion wheels as it is maintained that such equipment will not damage the highways where those equipped with solid rubber tires when moving at a rapid rate of speed are the ones that cause the great damage.

Are Your Footprints Like These

Every one of these footprints tells a story of inconvenience, discomfort or actual suffering. The woman with the high arch or narrow heel finds it difficult to get fitted correctly with ordinary types of shoe. The one with contracted toes will suffer until she finds a shoe that will let them spread out. The sufferer with weakened arches must have support that will not only relieve the foot but exercise it and restore its strength. These foot troubles are not uncommon. Scientifilcally trained shoe fitters find dozens of them every day.

Why don't women who suffer with their feet wear "comfort" or orthopedic shoes? The answer is that such shoes are usually very ugly. They not only hide the naturally graceful lines of the foot but they lack those qualities of distinction and refinement which the carefully dressed woman demands in everything she wears.

EXPECT RUSSIANS TO MEET DEMANDS MADE BY HOOVER

WASHINGTON BELIEVES AMERICAN PRISONERS WILL BE RELEASED.

ANXIOUS TO SECURE RECOGNITION OF U. S.

Condition of That Country Such as Will Influence Any Reasonable Demand.

By MARK SULLIVAN
National Political Correspondent of the New York Evening Post and Wichita Daily Times.
(Copyright 1921 by the New York Evening Post.)

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The best judgment in Washington is that the Russians will comply with the conditions laid down by Mr. Hoover, and will release the American prisoners and will let the American relief administration function in Russia on its own terms.

It is apparent that there is a bad economic condition in parts of Russia, especially the north. This bad economic condition rests chiefly on the breakdown of transportation and the failure of the soviet theory of managing the railroads and other instruments of transportation.

This relief is borne out by news received privately in Washington from Russia, as well as by the mere fact of Russia's soliciting the aid of the American relief administration at this time. Ordinarily, the present, which is a period of ripening crops, should not be a period of economic distress, and Russia should be less likely now to make concessions, in exchange for relief from American than she would some months ago, when the same tender was made by the American relief administration and was turned down by the soviet government.

Politically, the heart of this episode lies in Mr. Hoover's demand that the American prisoners be released. That is the issue which has always stood between the soviet government and the American government. There are only about ten of these prisoners. They include two Red Cross captains, a newspaper woman, two moving picture men and a few others. Five or ten prisoners, more or less, ought not to mean much to the soviet government, but the theory held here is that the soviet government has hitherto wanted to use these prisoners as a pawn. It wanted the American government to make an official request to the soviet government for the release of these prisoners. That would have constituted an act of recognition by the American government. This, however, is precisely what the American government will not do. The position of the American government is that the soviet government must first release the prisoners and then ask for recognition.

Of course, the recent communication to the soviet government from Mr. Hoover as head of the American relief administration has nothing to do with the American government. Mr. Hoover was acting in his capacity of private citizen as head of the American relief administration, and not in his capacity as a member of Mr. Harding's cabinet.

Probably, however, the soviet guesses, as well as most people in Washington, guess that Mr. Hoover as a member of President Harding's cabinet has naturally been called upon because of his unusual knowledge of Russian conditions, to supply most of the information and advice which have guided the attitude of the American government on this question.

Mr. Hoover's present action, however, is wholly unofficial. In response to calls of distress sent out by a prominent literary man in Russia, Mr. Hoover has offered to supply and conduct relief in that country on exactly the same conditions under which his organization is already supplying relief in Poland, Esthonia, Bulgaria and other countries on the border of Russia. The only condition Mr. Hoover has added in the case of Russia is that the American prisoners held by the soviet government shall be released.

Probably it can fairly be assured that Mr. Hoover has been able to make a shrewd guess that the soviet leaders are more eager to pay the price of relief now than they were six months ago when he first made the offer. The young men whom Mr. Hoover has already working as agents of his organization in the countries along the borders of Russia are exceptionally able observers of conditions and doubtless they have accurate knowledge of economic and political conditions in the interior of Russia.

The present episode provides a good occasion for correcting a misunderstanding about the American government's attitude towards the Russian government. It is commonly believed that the attitude of the American government prevents trade with Russia on the part of American business men. This is not true. American business men can trade with the Russian government, and do trade with it.

The meeting ground for such trade in Riga, and very recently some American business men have sold a large stock of shoes to the Russian government. Other similar transactions have taken place.

The American government does not interdict this trade. The American government has merely refused the request of the soviet government to make a treaty of commerce with Russia. Such a treaty of commerce would of course include recognition of the soviet government, and the American government is unwilling to give this recognition so long as the American prisoners are not released.

MANY PEOPLE INVITE APPENDICITIS ATTACK

Appendicitis is often due to infection from old, retained waste matter. Even though bowels move daily, poisons may accumulate in the system for months. The intestinal antiseptic, Adler-i-ka, acts on both upper and lower bowels, removing all foul, decaying matter which might start infection. Excellent for gas on the stomach or chronic constipation. YOUNG MUSGRAVE SERIOUSLY INJURED

Thrown Under a Disc Harrow on Musgrave Farm Six Miles From City.

Jimmy Musgrave, 17 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Musgrave, received injuries which may prove fatal when he was thrown beneath a disc harrow on the Musgrave farm, six miles from town on the Thornberry road, about 10 o'clock Thursday morning. He is now lying in the Wichita General hospital with but a fighting chance for recovery.

The accident was caused by the boy's team becoming frightened and bolting, according to reports to physicians. He had been working a field since early in themorning and was by himself when the team broke and ran. It is said. Unable to leap from the harrow, he was hurled directly into the paths of the keen edged discs and was terribly cut and mangled, especially about the head and shoulders.

A fractured skull, a compound fracture of the jaw, broken shoulder blade and severe cuts about the body were included in his injuries. One ear was completely severed from the head, according to his physician.

An ambulance from the Merkle and Lunn Undertaking company was summoned and the injured lad rushed to the local medical institutions where efforts are now being made to save his life. Dr. A. J. McNeece, the attending physician, stated Thursday afternoon that Musgrave's condition was critical in the extreme, but that it was impossible to tell yet whether they were necessarily fatal.

Mrs Mattie Law will open up a music class at 308 Lee street beginning August 1. 74-5tp

Business Women's Club Planning Big Program for Year

With nine of the twelve members present during the busiest and longest session it has held this summer, the executive board of the Business Women's club adopted plans Wednesday evening for the most ambitious year's program it has yet attempted.

The program incorporates plans for work and play both, which are to be set forth in detail in the club year book now being arranged. Fifteen twenty-minute talks by interesting speakers during the year are scheduled; four full musical programs, ten business meetings, two big social gatherings and eight "stunt" evenings, in some one of which every member of the club will take part. The year book, which is being got together for the printers under the direction of Misses Carrie Webster, Ethel MacDowell, Era Dawson and Mina Sievers, will be a nicely bound booklet containing, beside the year's program, the constitution, officers executive board and committees of the clubs.

After reports from the committees appointed to report on the year book, investigate membership and visitors buttons and plans for the club talent play in October, the president, Miss Jackson, made several important committee chairman appointments. Miss Era Dawson was named chairman of the music department, Miss Ethel MacDowell of the decorations committee, Miss Nina Mae Durham of the service committee, Miss Frances Brooks of the social committee, and Miss Sievers of the membership committee.

First Meeting September 20.

September 20 was selected as the date for the first meeting of the club in the fall, meetings to be held each Tuesday evening thereafter in the club room at the Y. W. C. A. Personal invitations are to be mailed to each member on the roll and to other young business women in the city to attend the opening meeting, at which there is expected to be a large attendance.

FAREWELL PARTY TUESDAY HONORS MRS. C. B. MELTON

A most attractive informal party at the home of Mrs. W. O. Beeman Tuesday afternoon, at which Mrs. Beeman, assisted by Mrs. W. F. Thurman, entertained the women of the Church of Christ, was given in special honor of Mrs. C. B. Melton of that church. Mrs. Melton is leaving soon for Tennessee.

The guest book, with a painted cover, the work of Mrs. Mochel, attracted many compliments and was presented to the guests of honor during the afternoon. A color scheme of pink, blue and white was suggested throughout the decorations and refreshments, and in the score cards for "42." There were many expressions of regret at theintended departure of Mrs. Melton, who has made many friends during her stay in the city, especially among the membership of the church.

Those who were present included Mesdames Moore, Dobson, Short, Carter, Blanton, Hallmark, Ricks, Enloe, Bentley, Schoolfield, Kenley, McCulloch, Sowell, Boyd, Vann, Hull, Yowell, Rice, Hill, Melton, Roy Short and Kelly, and Misses Chenault and Courtsey.

LATEST STYLE

By LENORE

A note from Paris says that American buyers in the French markets are favoring models with beaded effects, which serves to indicate to some extent which way the wind blows in the matter of trimming. Still, it is a bit early to tell. It is said that Parisians are tired of beads, but in a number of exclusive shops on Fifth avenue I saw attractive dresses in which beads were prominent. In fringe, however, rather than in embroidery.

One designer showed me a stunning gray evening frock, sleeveless and built on chemise lines, with only an apron of smokly blue tubular beads which reached to the hem. Another conservative evening dress, which they built for a well-known actress in saffron yellow, but which in their showroom is featured in black satin, is the model in the sketch. Splendid lines, these, for the matronly figure. The trimming is of royal blue and jet bugle banding, and beneath the deep fringe of jet beads is a lacy underhem.

PATTERN No. 219.

A pattern for the above model (No. 219) can be obtained in sizes 34, 36 or 38 by sending to Lenore, 8 West Fortieth street, New York City, your name, address, the number of this pattern and the size required, and 50 cents in postage stamps. Be sure to keep this newspaper clipping of the sketch and description of the garment to use as a working model when the pattern reaches you—which will be within two weeks' time.—The Editor.

LITTLE MISS KING CELEBRATES SEVENTH BIRTHDAY WEDNESDAY

Little Miss Katherine King celebrated her seventh birthday Wednesday afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. King, 2307 Eighth street. The home was prettily decorated with flowers and bright colored toy balloons, which were given the children, and the little folks were very delightfully entertained with music and games for several hours. Late in the afternoon they were invited into the dining room, where the birthday cake, frosted and topped with seven lighted candles held the place of honor on the dining table.

The cake was cut and served with ice cream to the following little guests: Ernest, L. G. and Marie Wood, Billie and Onnette Beeman, Genevieve Parsons, Lorez Tinsley, Rose Mae Cole, Mary Louise and Margaret Morrison and Dorothy Dobbs.

LITTLE MISS ROONE HAS PRETTY BIRTHDAY PARTY

The electric-lighted lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Boone was a pretty sight early Wednesday evening, when a double score of little folks gathered to help Miss Mary C., young daughter of the house, celebrate her sixth birthday.

The young gentlemen among the guests were given toy balloons on arrival, and pretty colored crepe paper hats were slipped over the little girls' curls and braids and bobbed hair, and before the sun slipped down and the lights were on a number of kodok pictures were taken. A most attractive feature of the party to the children was the rides in the little pony cart, which is a much more treasured possession of the Boone children than the family car. After the rides they enjoyed the swings and slide and various games, and a little later, the delightful birthday feast of cake and ice cream. The birthday cake was served on the lawn, with its six pretty candles, and all of the children cut for the lucky charms.

Mrs. Boone was assisted in entertaining the little folks by Mesdames John Pruitt, Nat Chenault, Marvin Smith, Glen Berry and W. C. Chapman. The little honorees received a whole tableful of pretty birthday remembrances, with which she was very much delighted.

The guest list included: Irving Humphrey, Weldon and Jimmy Guest, Betsy Lee and James Lee, Rose Marion and Pauline Jane Art, Nathan and Phoebe Jane Chenault, Jack Murchison, Gene Strong, Paul Jones, Oral Jones Jr., Helen Berry, Ruth Paul, W. BAKER LABORATORIES INC.

It has been so long that we have not had any school that Jubilee and me has almost forgot what a school is like. We laid and looked at each other when we woke up this morning, and he kinda lifted his lip and grinned at me and I grinned at him.

I have got a good mind to take him to the engine house here they have got an electric dog clipping machine and have him clipped to look like a young lion, but I bet when the fireman laid him on the floor and held him down he would think something offal was going to happen to him and he would think that I had went back on him. I would like to have him clipped, but I would not want him to ever think for a minute that I had went back on him. I am not that kind of a fella and he knows it.

When we had took the cows out and went in the crick which is not deep enough for a fella to swim in we got some green apples and goose-berries to eat and then we went out to the slippery slicks back of the poor house and I tried to get Jubilee to slice them but he wouldn't do it. He would let me hold him in my arms and slide down with him but he would not do it by himself.

After that we went down to the beach by the lake and got nekked and greesed ourselves and our dogs with blue clay and made out like we was cannibals on a island with nothing to eat but each other and we was playing hop scotch in the sand and the loser was to be et, and a man come to the top of the cliff and hollered: "Hey, what are you little niggers doing on our beach?" And I could have liked to of told him that it was not his beach, but there is only one path up between the cliffs and he would of caught us so none of us said anything.

But we went in and washed off the clay so that we was white again.

Errick said he was kinda mad at first, but he said he never staid mad long. He said he could have the worst kind of a fuss with me today and tomorrow he would not think anything about it. I told him he would have to think something about it when he seen his two black eyes and felt his swole nose. Then he said he meant only a talking fight. I told him I do not fight that way. I would make a hairy kind of a pirut if I only fit with my mouth.

We were going to get some more

He would let me hold him in my arms and slide down with him but he would not do it by himself.

green apples on the way to the pasture after the cows but the man seen us and we had to scatter and skin out. I might be too stingy when I grow up to give a fella some ripe apples but the fella that will chase a kid for eating green apples is a titer wad than I will ever be.

When I had et my mother sed that I must not eat any green apples because there is lots of cholera morbus around and I might get it and die. I did not say I wouldn't eat any but I said I did not want to get no holera morbus. I don't. Nobody had come at nine so my father said I might go to bed because I had been a good boy.

LITTLE MISS DORIS PERRY CELEBRATES FIFTH BIRTHDAY

Little Miss Doris Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Porter Perry of 500 Adams street, celebrated her fifth birthday Tuesday afternoon with the delighted assistance of about a dozen of her litle friends.

The little folks remembered Doris' anniversary with many pretty gifts, presented on arrival, and during the afternoon they were entertained at music and games on the lawn. The dining room, into which they were invited later, was prettily decorated with pink and white roses, with the same color scheme carried out in the dainty refreshments of ice cream, cake and punch. The following children enjoyed the party: Jenny Gertrude Russell, Lillian and Elizabeth Steele, Erleen Talley, P. L. Draper, Vera Faught, Thelma Folsome, Bernard and Loree Eggink, Pearl Garner, C. L. King, Gerend Rousy, Joe Perry and Spencer Steele. Favors of paper cups of candies were given each little guest.

The Adventure of the Beryl Coronet

By A. CONAN DOYLE

Copyright, 1921, by Harper & Bros. Published by special arrangement with The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The story thus far:

Alexander Holder of the banking firm of Holder & Stevenson, second largest private banking concern in the City of London, called on Holmes for assistance. He said that the morning before a man of high position had come to him to ask for a loan of $50,000 pounds, which he would repay the following Monday. As security he left the Beryl coronet, one of the most precious possessions of the Empire, priceless in value. Mr. Holder protested against accepting such a valuable security, but the great man reassured him.

So he left with his loan and Mr. Holder, worried over the safety of the coronet, took it home with him and locked it in a bureau drawer. His household consisted of his orphaned niece, Mary, who was as a daughter to him, his son, Arthur, a rather wild young man, always in debt, and much under the influence of Sir George Burnwell, a charming but unscrupulous friend, and servants who, with the exception of one young and pretty girl, Lucy Parr, had been with him for a long time. As Mr. Holder was locking up the night before, Mary remarked that she had seen Lucy just come in, though she had not had permission to go out. Arthur asked his father for money for a debt of honor, but was refused. In the night Mr. Holder was horrified to be awakened by a noise in his dressing-room where the coronet was locked. He ran to see who was there.

He discovered his son Arthur. Holder snatched the coronet from the young man, and found a corner containing three of the beryls missing. The son was extremely indignant when his father called him a thief, and refused to talk. The police could find nothing of the missing beryls, though they arrested the son.

PART FOUR.

Fairbank was a good-sized square house of white stone, standing back a little from the road. A double carriage-sweep, with a snow-clad lawn, stretched down in front of two large iron gates which closed the entrance. On the right side was a small wooden thicket, which led into a narrow path between two neat hedges stretching from the road to the kitchen door, and forming the tradesmen's entrance. On the left ran a lane which led to the stables, and was not itself within the grounds at all, being a public, though little used, thoroughfare. Holmes left us standing at the door, and walked slowly all round the house, across the front, down the tradesmen's path, and so round by the garden behind into the stable lane. So long was he that Mr. Holder and I went into the dining room and waited by the fire until he should return. We were sitting there in silence when the door opened and a young lady came in. She was rather above the middle height, slim with dark hair and eyes, which seemed the darker against the absolute pallor of her skin. I do not think that I have ever seen such deadly paleness in a woman's face. Her lips, too, were bloodless, but her eyes were flushed with crying. As she swept silently into the room, she impressed me with a greater sense of grief than the banker had done in the morning, and it was the more striking in her as she was evidently a woman of strong character, with immense capacity for self-restraint. Disregarding my presence, she went straight to her uncle, and passed her hand over his head with a sweet womanly caress.

"You have given orders that Arthur should be liberated, have you not, dad?" she asked.

"No, no, my girl, the matter must be probed to the bottom."

"But I am so sure that he is innocent. You know what a woman's instincts are. I know that he has done no harm and that you will be sorry for having acted so harshly."

"Why is he silent, then, if he is innocent?"

"Who knows? Perhaps because he was so angry that you should suspect him."

"How could I help suspecting him, when I actually saw him with the coronet in his hand?"

"Oh, but he had only picked it up to look at it. Oh do, do take my word for it that he is innocent. Let the matter drop and say no more. It is so dreadful to think of our dear Arthur in prison!"

"I shall never let it drop until the gems are found—never, Mary! Your affection for Arthur blinds you as to the awful consequences to me. Far from hushing the thing up, I have brought a gentleman down from London to inquire more deeply into it."

"This gentleman?" she asked, facing round to me.

"No, his friend. He wished us to leave him alone. He is round in the stable lane now."

"The stable lane?" She raised her dark eyebrows. "What can he hope to find there? Ah! this, I suppose is her. I trust, sir, that you will succeed in proving, what I fell sure is the truth, that my cousin Arthur is innocent of this crime."

"I fully share your opinion, and I trust, with you, that we may prove it," returned Holmes, going back to the mat to knock the snow from his shoes. "I believe I have the honor of addressing Miss Mary Holder. Might I ask you a question or two?"

"Pray do, sir, if it may help to clear this horrible affair up."

"You heard nothing yourself last night?"

"Nothing, until my uncle here began to speak loudly. I heard that, and I came down."

"You shut up the windows and doors the night before. Did you fasten all the windows?"

"Yes."

"Were they all fastened this morning?"

"Yes."

"You have a maid who has a sweetheart? I think that you remarked to your uncle last night that she had been out to see him?"

"Yes, and she was the girl who waited in the drawing-room, and who may have heard uncle's remarks about the coronet."

"I see. You infer that she may have gone out to tell her sweetheart, and that the two may have planned the robbery."

"But what is the good of all these vague theories," cried the banker impatiently, "when I have told you that I saw Arthur with the coronet in his hands?"

"Wait a little, Mr. Holder. We must come back to that. About this girl, Miss Holder. You saw her return by the kitchen door, I presume?"

"Yes; when I went to see if the door was fastened for the night I met her slipping in. I saw the man too, in the gloom."

"Oh, yes; he is the green-grocer who brings our vegetables round. His name is Francis Prosper."

"He stood," said Holmes, "to the left of the door—that is to say, farther up the path than is necessary to reach the door?"

"Yes, he did."

"And he is a man with a wooden leg?"

Something like fear sprang up in the young lady's expressive black eyes. "Why, you are like a magician," said she. "How do you know that?" She smiled, but there was no answering smile in Holmes' thin eager face.

"I should be very glad now to go upstairs" said he. "I shall probably wish to go over the inside of the house again. Perhaps I had better take a look at the lower windows before I go up."

He walked swiftly round from one to the other, pausing only at the large one which looked from the hall onto the stable lane. This he opened, and made a very careful examination of the sill with his powerful magnifying lens. "Now we shall go upstairs," said he, at last.

The bankers dressing room was a plainly furnished little chamber, with a gray carpet, a large bureau, and a long mirror. Holmes went to the bureau first and looked hard at the lock.

"Which key was used to open it?" he asked.

"That which my son himself indicated—that of the cupboard of the lumber room."

"Have you it here?"

"That is it on the dressing table."

Sherlock Holmes took it up and opened the bureau.

"It is a noiseless lock," said he. "It is no wonder that it did not wake you. This case, I presume contains the coronet. We must have a look at it." He opened the case, and, taking out the diadem, he laid it upon the table. It was a magnificant specimen of the jeweler's art, and the thirty-six stones were the finest that I have ever seen. At one side of the coronet was a cracked edge, where a corner holding three gems had been torn away.

"Now, Mr. Holder," said Holmes, "here is the corner which corresponds to that which has been so unfortunately lost. Might I beg that you will break it off."

The banker recoiled in horror. "I should not dream of trying," said he.

"Then I will," Holmes suddenly bent his strength upon it, but without result. "I feel it give a little," said he; "but, though I am exceptionally strong in the fingers, it would take me all my time to break it. An ordinary man could not do it. Now, what do you think would happen if I did break it, Mr. Holder? There would be a noise like a pistol shot. Do you tell me that all this happened within a few yards of your bed, and that you heard nothing of it?"

"I do not know what to think. It is all dark to me."

"But perhaps it may grow lighter as we go. What do you think, Miss Holder?"

"I confess that I still share my uncle's perplexity."

"Your son had no shoes or slippers on when you saw him?"

"He had nothing on save only his trousers and shirt."

"Thank you. We have certainly been favored with extraordinary luck during this inquiry, and it will be entirely our own fault if we do not succeed in clearing the matter up. With your permission Mr. Holder, I shall now continue my investigations outside."

He went alone, at his own request, for he explained that any unnecessary footmarks might make his task more difficult. For an hour or more he was at work, returning at last with his feet heavy with snow and his features as inscrutable as ever.

"I think that I have seen now all that there is to see, Mr. Holder," said he, "I can serve you best by returning to my rooms."

"But the gems, Mr. Holmes. Where are they?"

"I cannot tell."

The banker wrung his hands. "I shall never see them again" he cried. "And my son? You give me hopes?"

"My opinion is in no way altered."

"Then, for God's sake, what was this dark business which was acted in my house last night?"

"If you can call upon me at my Baker street rooms tomorrow morning between nine and ten I shall be happy to do what I can to make it clearer. I understand that you give me carte blanche to act for you, provided only that I get back the gems, and that you place no limit on the sum I may draw."

"I would give my fortune to have them back."

"Very good. I shall look into the matter between this and then. Goodbye; it is just possible that I may have to come over here again before evening."

URGENT NEED FOR DEVELOPMENT OF IRRIGATION IN TEXAS SAYS CONSULTING ENGINEER OF BOARD

AUSTIN, July 28.—There is an urgent need for development of irrigation in Texas, according to William L. Rockwell, consulting engineer of the state board of water engineers, formerly of the United States geological survey. The board of water engineers has just announced its operations in investigating and developing the state's water resources.

Sixty-two permits have been granted by means of which the storage of 456,518 acre-feet of water will be secured and eleven permits are pending.

The board has on file petitions for the investigation of two west Texas projects which contemplate the reclamation by irrigation of approximately 175,000 acres.

In co-operation with the United States geological survey, water resources branch, daily observations of the flow of streams at 39 guaging stations are being made and a record kept of the discharge at each station. One-third of the expense of this investigation is met by the federal government. There is urgent need of the expansion of this activity to other streams of the state, Mr. Rockwell said.

In co-operation with the United States geological survey, topographic branch, a survey of a reservoir site in Coke and Runnels counties is being made, the proposed reservoir to impound water for 100,000 acres. Forty per cent of the cost of this work is being met by the federal government. This survey includes the determination of the feasibility of the project only.

In co-operation with the United States department of agriculture, irrigation division, losses in canal transmission are being studied and determined. Work is now proceeding on the Medina irrigation system. The federal government meets 37½ per cent of this expense.

Results of Investigation.

The board has compiled the results of an investigation of the duty of water in irrigation in southwest Texas. This data in the hands of irrigators will render possible the saving of hundreds of thousands of dollars in fuel expense and labor, beside increasing the usefulness of the water supply to the extent of serving in many instances three times the area now served per unit of water used, according to Mr. Rockwell. Larger returns will be obtained and it will assist in maintaining the fertility of the soil and very materially reduce the cost of under drainage, he said.

The board is now engaged in valuation of an irrigation project in the Rio Grande valley whose assets exceed $3,000,000, and is supplying water to more than 1,000 farmers. The purpose of the work is the determination of just and equitable water rates. The board has on file for valuation and rate adjustment, petitions from three large irrigation companies operating in east Texas.

The grants for water storage during the past nine months is one and one-half times the total storage granted during the preceding six years, Engineer Rockwell said.

"Water is the chief agricultural asset in semi-arid Texas, or over two-thirds of the state," the engineer said. "Without an irrigation supply it has comparatively small value. With a supply, beneficially used, it will produce equally with any district of the United States. However, there is no royal road to success in irrigation farming and for success a higher grade of intelligence is required than where nature supplies the moisture. But the effort has its compensations, if wisely directed, and now in Texas there is urgent need for trained judgment in the direction of development and a reasonable support of this very important activity is more than justified.

Large Semi-Arid Area.

"Texas comprises an area of 170,000,000 acres, 100,000,000 of which lie in the semi-arid portion and several million more in the rice district subject to irrigation," Mr. Rockwell continued. "Millions of acres of good soil lie tributary to our streams, many more acres than for which there is a water supply. From the records gathered in Texas the annual discharge of its streams exceeds 30,000,000 acre-feet, sufficient to cover one-sixth of the area of the state to a depth of one foot. If one-half of this supply can be utilized for irrigation and four acre-feet are allowed per acre, 3,750,000 acres may be served. Fifty acres allotted to a home, which is fully ample under irrigated agriculture, permits the production of 75,000 homes and a property value of $750,000,000, an amount nearly equal to 25 per cent of the taxable value of Texas for 1920. At the present tax rate these values would bring in tax revenues to the state near $1,000,000 per annum.

"The United States geological survey, water resources branch, estimated Texas streams to have a flow and gradient sufficient to develop one-half million horsepower during six months of the year. Wherever storage is possible this flow may be utilized continuously. The development of 250,000 horsepower would mean an economy of $15,000,000 in fuel alone.

"The storage of flood water will largely aid in equalizing the run-off, thus decreasing flood hazard, destruction of property by overflow and will reduce to a minimum the cost of reclamation work.

"To develop the state's water resources in largest degree requires the determination of the extent of the supply from each source. It must be learned how much is available by direct diversion from the stream. Since the flow of streams at any particular point is variable throughout the year and decreases as the source is approached, the volume of discharge at a number of points must be known. To obtain this data requires a regularly conducted system of stream guaging, only possible as a state or government undertaking.

"Texas statutes have provided an agency whose duty it is to regulate the use of the waters of the state, such having been declared public property of the state and therefore necessarily subject to state regulation. The right of use is granted only after an advertised public hearing, which hearing any person may attend and testify for or against the granting of the requested privileges."

REFUSE TO CHANGE THE FREIGHT DIVISION LINE

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The interstate commerce commission today issued a decision refusing to prescribe divisions of joint freight rates to go to New England roads from their western connections. The division is made at the Hudson river, and protracted hearings were held last winter on the appeal of the New England roads for a greater share of the revenues. While admitting that fair divisions could not "flow from existing arrangements," the commission agreed with the western lines that certain of the New England roads were seeking greater shares without regard to reasonableness and solely to increase their own revenues, while a minority of the roads were not taken into consideration.

SHIP CONTROVERSY SENT TO THE FEDERAL COURTS

NEW YORK, July 28.—Injunction proceedings brought by the United States Mail Steamship company against the shipping board because of the seizure by the board of nine steamships that had been allocated to the company, were transferred to the federal courts today by State Supreme Court Justice Burr on application of the board. Meanwhile the ships continue in the company's possession under a temporary injunction granted by Justice Burr.

Justice Burr said the temporary injunction would stand until it should be vacated or until the case should be sent back to the state supreme court for adjudication.

OFFER WILL BE TREATED IN AN ORDERLY MANNER

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The shipping board issued a statement today saying that the offer of the United States Mail Steamship company to purchase nine steamers allocated to the company for operation, but seized by board agents Friday for alleged arrears in rent, would be treated "in an orderly manner." It added that the purpose of the board in the case had been "to protect the government's interest and keep the boats sailing."

PRELIMINARY HEARING IN GALVESTON MURDER CASE

GALVESTON, July 28.—Presentation of testimony by the state in the preliminary hearing of Perry McFadden, J. E. Hayes and J. H. Ross, charged with killing Marcus E. Benson in League City last Monday, was completed just before 1 o'clock this afternoon. Court was then adjourned until 2:30 o'clock. State's witnesses told of the actual shooting in League City Monday, and one of them, G. C. Benson, brother of the slain man, who was flogged several days before the killing by masked men, related the incidents of the attack upon himself. Sheriff Thomas testified that both McFadden and Hayes were deputy sheriffs at the time of the shooting.

FACING THE WORST WINTER INDUSTRIALLY KNOWN IN 15 YEARS

LONDON, July 28.—Commander Evangeline Booth, head of the Salvation Army in the United States, says that the country is facing the worst winter industrially it has known in 15 years.

"In New York City alone," she declared yesterday, "we are receiving an average of 700 registered applications a week for regular employment. That is less than one-third of the actual number applying, because we do not register the transient or unskilled men; nor does it include the hundreds who come to us daily for food and lodging. Of the applicants for work today, 34 were really professional men whose credentials entitled them to good paying positions.

"Judging from the applications made to us, more than 60 per cent of the applicants come from outside New York. Every time there is a business depression outside of New York, many of those out of work come to New York. New York cannot take car of her own. Therefore, how can she take care of the thousands who flock here?

"Most of the men who apply to us for relief are young men under 40, who are willing to work but there are no jobs for them. Last week we had 34 families to care for, with little children actually starving. Eviction because the rent money was lacking was imminent for most of them."

NEW YORK, July 28.—The Cuban sugar commission at a meeting here today fixed the new price of its raw sugar at 3½ cents cost and freight, an advance of ½ cents.

MAJOR OWSLEY TO SUCCEED RYAN AS LEGION DIRECTOR

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., July 28.—Henry J. Bryan, nations director and chairman of the Americanism commission of the American Legion, has been granted an extended leave by John G. Emery, national commander, upon advice from physicians, and Alvin M. Owsley of Dallas, Texas, assistant director of the Americanism commission, will become acting director, it was announced today at the legion's national headquarters.

Mr. Ryan suffered a nervous breakdown following the automobile accident here last June in which he was injured and F. W. Galbraith Jr., then national commander of the legion, was killed.

LONDON, July 28.—The date for the official termination of the war, except as regards Turkey, will be September 1, Prime Minister Lloyd George announced in the house of commons today.

FORECASTS $1 GAS IF THE LONE STAR RATE IS ENFORCED

SUCH IS OPINION GIVEN BY ATTORNEY FOR NORTH TEXAS COMPANY.

OKLAHOMA SITUATION IS CITED IN EVIDENCE

Gate Rate of 25 Cents in That State Necessitated Charge of 88 Cents.

DALLAS, TEXAS, July 28.—If the Lone Star Gas company succeeds in fastening a rate of 38½ cents per 1,000 feet on the North Texas Gas company the latter company will have to charge consumers a rate of not less than $1 per 1,000 feet, according to a statement made yesterday by Charles L. Harty, attorney for that company.

"The Oklahoma commission, by its order, established a city gate rate of 25c per thousand cubic feet to be paid to the Oklahoma Natural Gas company by the distributing companies in lieu of the former percentage basis fixed by their contracts, and the distributing companies were immediately forced to file applications with the corporation commission for increases in the rate to consumers," Mr. Harty said. "An instance is that in Enid, a rate of 80c per thousand, and in Muskogee 88c per thousand cubic feet is being asked, while in Oklahoma City the rate requested is 65c per thousand cubic feet. The rate in force under the percentage contracts in all of these cities was 40c net to the consumer.

"These instances illustrate two striking facts: First, the burden of demanding increased rates from the consumers rests upon the distributing companies; second, the rates requested in the smaller towns are decidedly higher than those requested in the larger cities, due to the increased cost of distribution.

"If the city gate rate of 25c as fixed by the corporation commission of the state of Oklahoma, necessitated, upon the part of the distributing companies, an increase in the rates to consumers from 40c net to as high as 88c net, it can readily be seen that the city gate rates of 38½c demanded by the Lone Star Gas company, would necessitate an increase in the consumers' rate to at least $1 per thousand cubic feet, and this is the condition which the North Texas Gas company is seeking to prevent, and the condition which, in our opinion, will be brought about if the present managers of the Lone Star Gas company are successful in their effort to break the percentage contracts.

"We call the attention of the consuming public to these facts in order that they may know that it is not the purpose or intention of the North Texas Gas company to ask an increase in the present rate unless it is forced to do so by the cancellation of its present contracts with the Lone Star Gas company, and the discontinuance, or threatened discontinuance, of the supply of gas, in the event the injunction obtained by the North Texas Gas company should be dissolved."

ELECTRIC LIGHT FIXTURES FIGURE IN CONTESTED SUIT

Title and possession to some electric fixtures was awarded to Mark Walker, plaintiff in his suit against the Eveready Electric company by Judge Guy Rogers Thursday.

It was alleged that the defendant purchased some light fixtures from a party named Pappas but that in reality they were the property of the plaintiff who owned the building from which the fixtures were taken. It appeared from the testimony that Pappas had taken over a certain business here that had closed and sold out all the assets including the light fixtures.

LAYING OF BIG WATER MAIN NOW NEARLY COMPLETED

The big water main which is under construction from the pumping station to the western part of Floral Heights has reached Kemp boulevard and will soon be completed to Hays street, its terminus.

It has been tied into the smaller pipes on the cross streets in Floral Heights and is already resulting in improved water service for a large part of that addition.

ROBBERY REPORTED FROM 1600 BLOCK ON TWELFTH

City Detectives Humphries and Embry were searching Thursday afternoon for the perpetrators of a reported robbery in the 1600 block on Twelfth street Wednesday night. An excited woman called the city hall Thursday morning and declared that she had "been robbed of everything," but an investigation revealed only the loss of a revolver and a small amount of cash which had been taken from a negro servant.

Clues given the officers pointed to other negroes as the guilty parties and a hunt was being conducted for them.

Seeks Position as Night Watchman To Pay His Taxes

William Newman, who has been a citizen of Wichita Falls for more than 30 years, has made application for appointment to the position of night watchman. Mr. Newman has been a tax payer of Wichita Falls for the past 25 years.

He says that he is asking for the place only long enough to enable him to pay up his taxes and then he is willing to turn the office over to some other citizen who is also a tax payer.

Mr. Newman has obtained the endorsement of a large number of the leading business men of the city to his application.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Announcement that it had undertaken to aid negro freight handlers in the south in organizing and in presentation of their grievances to railroad managements, was made today by the American federation of labor. The promise of assistance was given, it was said, as the result of recent conferences between representatives of the brotherhoods and the interested negroes.

ROW OVER WAY IN WHICH BOYS WERE TREATED IS AVOIDED

The court room of the county court at law was crowded Thursday afternoon ready to take part in what promised to be a regular neighborhood row. A case was to be tried in probate court wherein two boys aged nine and eleven years were to be taken from their father and step-mother provided the facts in the case warranted.

The complaint alleged that the father and step-mother treated the two youngsters in a most cruel and neglectful manner, administering many unnecessary beatings, done with pieces of wire, boards, sticks and other means and that the parents required them to do the work of grown persons and deprived them of all recreation.

A confessed judgment was taken, however, before the case went to trial, and the father and step-mother agreed to have the children sent to their uncle, the brother of their mother, at Jefferson, Texas.

The case came to the attention of local authorities several weeks ago when it was reported the two boys had run away from home.

GERMANY OWES THE U. S. $240,744,511 EXPENSES KEEPING ARMY ON RHINE

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Germany owed the United States up to April 30, last, $240,744,511 for maintenance of American troops on the Rhine, Secretary Weeks informed the senate today.

There are now 500 officers, 13,241 enlisted men and 54 nurses in German territory, Secretary Weeks stated.

Painful cuts and bruises were sustained by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Shaw, 1622 Tenth street, when they were hurled into the windshield of their automobile as it skidded on a rough railroad crossing three miles east of Lake Wichita at midnight Wednesday. Both were cut to some extent, but were not seriously hurt.

URGES ROTARIANS TO ASK GOVERNMENTS TO STOP SPENDING

"Stop spending until you pay up" is the message which B. J. Bean Thursday urged Rotarians to send to the government at Washington, the legislature at Austin and the city council in Wichita Falls.

Mr. Bean spoke briefly but emphatically on the subject of governmental extravagance, and indicated that he considered the situation one demanding the united efforts of Rotary clubs.

"I was brought up on the principle of 'If you can't afford a thing, do without it,'" said Mr. Bean, "and it seems to me to be time that our national, following the same rule."

A request that the club endorse the steps taken by the American club for Sunday movies here was met with a refusal to take any action. Several members availed themselves of the opportunity to present their views on Sunday amusements.

Homer H. Martin of Clinton, Mo., a visiting Rotarian, addressed the club briefly. President Robbins announced appointment of a new program committee, to serve three months, consisting of John Gould, Harry Gray and George Gutsman.

MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL OVERRULED IN CHECK CASE

Motion for new trial filed by the defendant in the case of Lillie Farrington vs. the City National Bank of Commerce was overruled by Judge Guy Rogers of the county court at law Thursday afternoon.

This is the fourth time that the matter has been in court in each of the three succeeding trials judgment having been rendered for the plaintiff.

The plaintiff sued the bank for $500 alleging that a check to which her name had been forged had been cashed by them.

THE EXAMPLE OF HENRY FORD.

A year ago the financial difficulties of Henry Ford were the talk of Wall street and were whispered throughout the country. Ford owed the government millions in taxes. He owed millions on notes given for the purchase of other interests in the Ford company. His great automobile plant was closed. Things looked hard for Ford. Emissaries came from Wall street and offered him money and told him the terms. They wanted to tell him how he should expend it. This "riled" Henry. He showed the Wall street emissaries the door. He sent telegrams to Ford dealers throughout the country telling them how many cars they must take and how they must pay. He opened his plant and started shipments. There was consternation among Ford dealers. Some of them quit. But practically all of them dug up the money or the credit for handling the cars and got busy selling them. Even in the midst of hard times the cars sold. Ford sales made new records. The Ford plants made new records in production. Today the Ford plant is at the peak of production with 45,000 men where formerly 60,000 were required. Today Henry Ford is out of his financial difficulties, and he never borrowed a dollar from Wall street, and even the financiers of that district are pointing to him as an example in these days of depression.

Ford is doing something else that is causing Wall street to sit up and take notice. He owns a railroad 420 miles long. It is called the Toledo, Detroit & Ironton railroad. It runs from Detroit to the southeastern part of Ohio. He has asked the public utilities commission of Ohio for permission to reduce freight rates 20 per cent, the new rates to become effective on August 20th and to cover all classes of freight.

Long ago business men and others quit being skeptical about the success of Ford's undertakings. There is belief now that he will succeed in the operation of his railroad with reduced freight rates. The interest now is in watching how he does it. Railroad men want to see how it's done so that they can do it themselves. As a big Wall street man said the other day, "Ford is a genius in organization and in production."

DELAY WILL BE DANGEROUS.

Three senatorial redistricting bills have been introduced in the house and senate. Two of them are senate bills, one by Senator Bledsoe and the other by Senator Burkett. The third is the house bill by Representative Hill. In the senate these three bills have been referred to a sub-committee comprising Senators Bledsoe, Darwin, Floyd, Page and Richards. This committee will attempt to weld the three bills into an acceptable bill. Much depends upon this committee. If it works earnestly and harmoniously there is little doubt but that an acceptable bill can be framed. If this bill is reported soon there is reason to believe that it will be passed at the present session. Delay in the committee or elsewhere will be dangerous for a redistricting measure at this session.

The people of West Texas are watching the legislature on this matter. If redistricting fails again the people will likely know where to place the blame.

A FINE APPOINTMENT.

The newspapers of the country have been generous in their praise over the appointment of Mr. Lasker as head of the shipping board. This caused the administration to wear a smug smile, much the same as that of the cat while licking away the traces of the cream jar.

But even the president did not realize what a find he had made—what a ten-strike the appointment was. It was only after Mr. Lasker's recent pointing out of the hopeless mess the affairs of the shipping board are in and request for an appropriation of a few hundred million dollars from his congress that his value was learned.

There has come from those in power none of the criticism of the former board for its shortcomings that one might think would appear by this time. The first audible remarks from that center of many remarks, were to the effect: "With all this sort of thing going on we just can't save any money for the government this year." This was not said with regret but with soul-satisfying relief.

Instead of reducing taxes, instead of cutting down the expenses of government as promised in the party platform of last year and on the platforms of the country last fall, the present administration found that the expenses would remain near the old high marks and the taxes would be practically unchanged. This failure to carry out platform and campaign pledges was causing considerable embarrassment until Mr. Lasker comes along with his request for more money. This saves the day.

How can we, they ask, with pleading voices, cut down expenses and reduce taxes with that sort of thing going on all the time. Now, how can we? We wanted to and hoped to and said we would, but never really expected to. We were in a terrible hole until this comes up. Now we have an alibi. Ike, himself, the original alibier, never had a better one. "These wasteful dimmycrats, just look what they done! Well, there's no use trying to save anything this year."

And next year it will be something else and so it will be for several succeeding years. We are paying our share of the cost of a great war. Great wars are expensive and wasteful.

QUIETLY, MR. MELLON, QUIETLY!

Secretary of Treasury Mellon appears, to the average man, to be asking for and insisting upon having too much power for one man rightly to have, regardless of his personal worth. In contending with congress for the right to have complete, free, unhampered and unlimited authority in funding the debt which our late allies owe us Mellon is asking for authority which no one man on earth should have. Mellon may be a superman and he may be a super patriot but he is not the only man in this country endowed with financial ability and integrity. His insistence that he be given the sole authority in handling the collection of these debts cast a doubt of the propriety of the thing itself. The collection of that ten billion dollars is not a one man job and no one man on earth is qualified to take it over, no matter how loud and long his protestations be that he is. No one can blame him for not wanting congress hanging on his coat tails with its chatter of questions and its lack of ability to keep the family secrets in the family. Undoubtedly the negotiations with some of the debtor nations will cause our financial wizard of treasury secretary to mouth a well rounded damn—if he were required to negotiate with congress around, congress would be sure to tell on him and spoil things, or else try using the word on its own. Either would be bad.

But congress can be kept out of it without the entire responsibility being placed on Mr. Mellon's shoulders. There are other patriots and financial wizards in the service of the government. Surely Harding did not catch the only one. But even though he did, there are men in this country who could be of assistance in this undertaking. The services of some pretty high-priced men could well be used in the work of collecting ten billions of dollars.

Should Mr. Mellon die, the country would be terribly bereft, if as he intimates, he is the only man really qualified to handle the collection. But though he should live to be as old as Methuselah the temptation to any one man would be too great for him to have sole and unlimited authority.

Please ask something reasonable of us Mr. Mellon. We cannot go that high.

HUMAN BEEINGS.

1
Human beelngs are peeple
Of every age and se:
Who reckonize each other
By the parts above their necks.

2
They sometimes get to be 6 feet tall.
Tho they start by being a baby.
And wen they lay in their cradle they seldom sispect
They'll end with long wiskers, maybe.

3
Some are yello like Chineez or Japs,
Or wite like Caucasians and me,
Depending on ware they was born at
And who their parents happened to be.

4
So never snear at a Chinaman
As if you could hardly stand the view,
Because if your ancestors had ony go twisted
You mite of bin him and him you.

5
O its better to be a human beeing than a animal,
Because animals have no soles,
Being too bad in dogs and horses
But jest wat you'd ixpect in pigs and moles.

HUMANISMS Inner Lights on Lives and Whims of Personages in the Public Eye

By WILLIAM ATHERTON DU PUY.

Opie Read, author of "The Jucklins," "The Carpetbagger" and many other romances which, two decades ago, delighted the reading public, having now reached the age of 69, is living quietly in Chicago, revolving mostly around the Press club of that city.

Not long ago he and a group of friends were discussing the fine art of faring well when one is seated with his feet under the table. They had all heard of meals that cost $25, but none of them had personally experienced one of them. Some held that there was no such thing—that no man could order sufficiently delicate and costly morsels and make a fair pretense at eating them to run the bill up to such a figure.

Opie Read thought it could be done. Whereupon some profligate offered to lead the novelist to the most expensive restaurant in the city and pay for such a meal.

They went out. Read studied the bill of fare for a while, figured with the waiter's pencil. Then he dashed off an order.

"Ham and eggs," it read.

The price was seventy cents. The order came and was consumed. The menu was again presented. Read studied it for a while and asked for another order of the same. He ate the second plate and went out satisfied.

"The humor of the south," says Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, "is of a variety quite quaint and distinctive. Its best exemplifier was Abraham Lincoln. All the stories that he ever told were of the southern school.

"During all my years in congress I have known but two men who were true humorists, whose stories sprung forth without effort or artifice. These men were Zeb Vance of South Carolina, and Private John Allen of Tupelo, Mississippi.

"They were not of those who store in their memories the anecdotes that they hear and pull them forth when an occasion presents. These masters evolved their own situations as they went along and brought stories forth pristine and virgin."

Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, personal friend of President Harding, is the fourth man of his family to hold a seat in the upper house of congress. General Frederick Frelinghuysen, whose term began in 1739, was the first.

Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, who invented the telephone, is a Scotchman by birth, but came to the United States when a young man. He was professor of vocal physiology in a Boston school. He is now seventy-four years old and spends much of his time at his farm in Nova Scotia.

Dr. John James Tigert, recently appointed chief of the federal bureau of education, is a youngish man, not yet forty. He used to be the all-Southern fullback, flung a wicked basket ball and, after going over to England as a Rhodes scholar, rowed with the crew of his college, played for it in tennis, cricket and baseball. A quite athletic youngster, one would say, has succeeded Dr. Claxton.

KNOWING HOW.

Some men there are can talk of dates
And tell what old-time sages said,
And some can prate of traffic rates
And spout the chemistry of bread;
In education's varied lore
Is much to fill the minds of men,
But when a task we stand before,
It's "knowing how" that's needed then.

There are wise tongues that can expound
The deep philosophies of life;
Some know the laws which govern sound,
But it's an art to whet a knife.
Our printed pages all are rich
With wisdom from the gifted pen,
But when the world must dig a ditch
It's "knowing how" that's needed then.

The high diploma nicely framed
Is good to own and fair to see,
And no man here need be ashamed
To boast or treasure his degree,
But lost is learning if it finds
No outlet in accomplished deeds,
And vain becomes the polished mind
Unless to "knowing how" it leads.

He is an educated man
Who knows his work and does it well,
Who builds exactly to the plan
Or welds a joint or digs a well.
And though of him we little boast
Nor wreathe much laurel for his brow,
The man we need and use the most
Is he who serves by "knowing how."

The History of Your Name

By PHILIP FRANCIS NOWLAN

OGDEN.

Variations — Hogg, Hogue, Hogarth, Hogshaw, Hogman, Hoggart.
Racial Origin—Middle English.
Source—An animal.

Ogden and the foregoing variations of this family name developed probably through several different processes, but in all cases from the same source, the name of an animal, which unfortunately has a savory name with us today only when we think of it in connection with eating—namely, the hog.

But if proof were necessary to establish that this ancient friend of man held an honored position in the language of the middle ages, it would be only necessary to call attention to the great number of family names which have developed from him. Indeed, King Richard III was widely and willingly known as "Richard le Hog," and there's many a family among the nobility of Europe which proudly bears the boar upon its crest. A boar, of course, is nothing but a hog, and though in modern times it has taken on the meaning of "wild hog," no such distinction was made in the olden days.

Ogden was originally spelled "de la Hogedene." The "dene" of those days was a sheltered depression in the woods. The modern word is "den."

Hoggart, and in some cases Hogarth, comes from "le Hogeherde," "the herder of hogs;" though in other cases Hogarth traces back to "de la Hoge-Garth," the word "garth" being the progenitor of the modern word "yard," through a usual changing of the "g" to "y," and the "th," which was then pronounced "t," to a "d."

Tomorrow—Watkins.

BANKS COME TO ASSISTANCE OF ELECTRA SCHOOL BOARD

ELECTRA, TEXAS, July 28.—Local banks came to the assistance of the school board this week and advanced $10,000 to keep the construction work going on the ward school in the Southland addition, which is now under construction. Due to the large number of bond issues being handled by the state the proportionate share for this district was cut below the amounts expected.

LEOPARD CANNOT CHANGE SPOTS

Mr. Dodson, the "Liver Tone" Man, Tells the Treachery of Calomel.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for a few cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It can not be trusted any more than a leopard or a wild-cat. Take Dodson's Liver Tone which straightens you right up and makes you feel fine. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.—adv.

An O. HENRY Story

Sociology in Serge and Straw

By O. HENRY

THE town of Fishampton, on the south shore of Long Island, is noted for its clam fritters and the summer residence of the Van Plushvelts.

The Van Plushvelts have a hundred million dollars, and their name is a household word with tradesmen and photographers.

On the fifteenth of June the Van Plushvelts boarded up the front door of their city house, and whizzed away in a 40-horse-power to Fishampton. Our business is with young Haywood Van Plushvelt, sixteen years old, heir to the century of millions, darling of the financial gods and great grandson of Peter Van Plushvelt, former owner of a particularly fine cabbage patch that was been ruined by an intrusive lot of downtown skyscrapers.

One afternoon young Haywood Van Plushvelt walked down into the village. He was human, after all, and his prospective millions weighed upon him. Wealth had wreaked upon him its direfullest. He was the product of private tutors. Even under his first hobby-horse had tan bark been strewn.

Young Fortunatus was dressed in a neat suit of dark blue serge, a neat, white straw hat, neat low-cut tan shoes, linen of the well-known "immaculate" trade mark, a neat, narrow four-in-hand tie, and carried a slender, neat, bamboo cane.

Down Persimmon street came from the village "Smoky" Dodson, fifteen and a half, worst boy in Fishampton. "Smoky" was dressed in a ragged red sweater, wrecked and weather-worn golf cap, run-over shoes, and trousers of the "serviceable" brand. Dust, clinging to the moisture induced by free exercise, darkened wide areas of his face. "Smoky" carried a baseball bat, and a league ball that advertised itself in the rotundity of his trousers pocket. Haywood stopped and passed the time of day.

"Going to play ball?" he asked.

"Smoky's" eyes and countenance confronted him with a frank blue-and-freckled scrutiny.

"He?" he said, with deadly mildness; "sure not. Can't you see I've got a divin' suit on? I'm goin' up in a submarine balloon to catch butterflies with a two-inch auger."

"Excuse me," said Haywood, with the insulting politeness of his caste, "for mistaking you for a gentleman. I might have known better."

"How might you have known better if you thought I was one?" said "Smoky," unconsciously a logician.

"By your appearance," said Haywood. "No gentleman is dirty, ragged and a liar."

"Smoky" hooted once like a ferry-boat, spat on his hand, got a firm grip on his baseball bat and then dropped it against the fence.

"Say," said he, "I knows you. You're the pup that belongs in that swell private summer sanitarium-for city guys over there. I seen you come out of the gate. You can't bluff nobody because you're rich. And because you got on swell clothes. Arabella! Yah!"

"Ragamuffin!" said Haywood.

"Smoky" picked up a fence-rail splinter and laid it on his shoulder.

"Dare you to knock it off," he challenged.

"I wouldn't soil my hands with you," said the aristocrat.

"Fraid," said "Smoky" concisely. "Yousе city ducks aint got the sand. I kin lick you with one hand."

"I don't wish to have any trouble with you," said Haywood. "I asked you a civil question; and you replied like a—like a—a cad."

"Wot's a cad!" asked "Smoky."

"A cad is a disagreeable person," answered Haywood, "who lacks manners and doesn't know his place. They sometimes play baseball."

"I can tell you what a mollycoddle is," said "Smoky." "It's a monkey dressed up by its mother and sent out to pick daisies on the lawn."

"When you have the honor to refer to the members of my family," said Haywood, with some dim ideas of a code in his mind, "you'd better leave the ladies out of your remarks."

"Ho! ladies!" mocked the rude one. "I say ladies! I know what them rich women in the city does. They drink cocktails and swear and give parties to gorillas. The papers say so."

Then Haywood knew that it must be. He took off his coat, folded it neatly and laid it on the roadside grass, placed his hat upon it and began to unknot his blue silk tie.

"Hadn't yer better ring fer yer maid, Arabella?" taunted "Smoky." "Wot yer going to do—go to bed?"

"I'm going to give you a good trouncing," said the hero. He did not hesitate, although the enemy was far beneath him socially.

"Wot's trouncing?" asked "Smoky," suspiciously; "I don't want your old clothes. I'm no—oh, you mean to scrap! My, my! I wont do a thing to mamma's pet. Criminy! I'd hate to be a hand-laundered thing like you."

"Smoky" waited with some awkwardness for his adversary to prepare for battle. His own decks were always clear for action. When he should spit upon the palm of his terrible right it was equivalent to "You may fire now, Gridley."

The hated patrician advanced, with his shirt sleeves neatly rolled up. "Smoky" waited, in an attitude of ease, expecting the affair to be conducted according to Fishampton's rules of war. These allowed combat to be prefaced by stigma, recrimination, epithet, abuse and insult gradually increasing in emphasis and degree. After a round of these "you're anothers" would come the chip knocked from the shoulder, or the advance across the "dare" line drawn with a toe on the ground. Next light taps given and taken, these also increasing in force until finally the blood was up and fists going at their best.

But Haywood did not know Fishampton's rules. Noblesse oblige kept a faint smile on his face as he walked slowly up to "Smoky" and said:

"Going to play ball?"

"Smoky" quickly understood this to be a putting of the previous question, giving him the chance to make a practical apology by answering it with civility and relevance.

"Listen this time," said he. "I'm goin' skatin' on the river. Don't you see me automobile with Chinese lanterns on it standin' and waitin' for me?"

Haywood knocked him down.

"Smoky" felt wronged. But he scrambled up and fell upon his foe, head, feet and fists.

The fight lasted one round of an hour and ten minutes. Haywood had learned some of the science of boxing and wrestling from his tutors, but these he discarded for the more instinctive methods of battle handed down by the cave-dwelling Van Plushvelts.

Of course, the strike was not incessantly active. There were seasons when one sat upon the other, holding him down while each blew like a grampus, spat out the more inconveniently large sections of gravel and earth, and strove to subdue the spirit of his opponent with a frightful and soul-paralyzing glare.

At last, it seemed that in the language of the ring, their efforts lacked steam. They broke away, and each disappeared in a cloud as he brushed away the dust of the conflict. As soon as his breath permitted, Haywood walked close to "Smoky" and said:

"Going to play ball?"

"Smoky" looked pensively at the sky, at his bat lying on the ground, and at the "leaguer" rounding his pocket.

"Sure," he said, off-handedly. "The 'Yellowjackets' play the 'Long Islands.' I'm cap'n of the 'Long Islands.'"

It was conceded that the millennium of democracy had come.

"I guess I didn't mean to say you were ragged," said Haywood. "But you are dirty, you know."

"Sure," said "Smoky." "Yer get that way knockin' around. Say, I don't believe them New York papers about ladies drinkin' and havin' monkeys dinin' at the table with 'em. I guess they're lies, like they print about people eatin' out of silver plates, and ownin' dogs that cost $100."

"Certainly," said Haywood. "What do you play on your team?"

"Ketcher. Ever play any?"

"Never in my life," said Haywood. "I've never known any fellows except one or two of my cousins."

"Jer like to learn? We're goin' to have a practice game before the match. Wanter come along? I'll put yer in left-field, and yer won't be long ketchin' on."

"I'd like it bully," said Haywood. "I've always wanted to play baseball."

The ladies' maids of New York and the families of Western mine owners with social ambitions will remember well the sensation that was created by the report that the young multi-millionaire, Haywood Van Pushvelt, was playing ball with the village youths of Fishampton. It was conceded that the millennium of democracy had come.

One afternoon I was reclining under the trees near the shore at Fishampton in the esteemed company of an eminent, bald-headed young sociologist.

The sociologist was citing the Van Plushvelt case as the most important "uplift" symptom of a generation.

Immediately before us were the village baseball grounds. And now came the sportive youth of Fishampton and distributed themselves, shouting, about the diamond.

"There," said the sociologist, pointing, "there is young Van Plushvelt."

Young Van Plushvelt sat upon the ground. He was dressed in a ragged red sweater, wrecked and weather-worn golf cap, run-over shoes, and trousers of the "serviceable" brand. Dust clining to the moisture induced by free exercise, darkened wide areas of his face.

"That is he," repeated the sociologist. If he had said "him" I could not have been less vindictive.

On a bench, with an air, sat the young millionaire's chum.

He was dressed in a neat suit of dark blue serge, a neat white straw hat, neat low-cut tan shoes, linen of the well-known, "immaculate" trade mark, a neat, narrow four-in-hand tie, and carried a slender, neat bamboo cane.

I laughed loudly and vulgarly.

"What you want to do," said I to the sociologist, "is to establish a reformatory for the Logical Vicious Circle. Or else I've got wheels. It looks to me as though things are running round and round in circles instead of getting anywhere."

"What do you mean?" asked the man of progress.

"Why, look what he has done to 'Smoky,'" I replied.

"You will always be a fool," said my friend the sociologist, getting up and walking away.

HAMBONE'S MEDITATIONS

LAST NIGHT'S DREAMS WHAT THEY MEAN

DID YOU DREAM OF CRAPE?

THOUGH crape is a sign of mourning in the real world, in the world of dreams it appears to be rather an emblem of success and pleasure, according to the mystics. They say that if you dream that you are wearing crape it is an omen of prosperity coming your way very soon. If you are prosperous now you will be still more so, and if you are now out of luck, luck will soon be yours. Should one dream of cleaning or brightening up crape the oracles declare it to be a sure sign that the dreamer will soon meet prominent and influential people whose acquaintance will be of benefit to him.

The dream of wearing crape is declared to be an especially favorable omen for farmers and for all who are in any way interested in agriculture or agricultural products. Some say that to dream of seeing crape on the door of another is a sign that a marriage will soon take place in the family of the occupants of the house to which the crape is attached. If you dream of seeing crape on your own door it is a sign of a birth in your family. To dream of picking up a piece of crape in the street is an omen of some unexpected piece of good fortune which will come to you before long. Some say it means a legacy. Altogether a dream of crape would seem to be one of the dreams which "go by contraries."

DRESS

: : By ANNE RITTENHOUSE : :

As the Summer Deepens the Dressmakers Exploit Mauve in Frocks and Wraps and the Milliners Follow Suit With Hats, Flowers, and Scarfs.

Because the Queen of Roumania went to Paris last summer to be present at the premiere of her own play, and decided to wear mauve, the color became the fashion.

This season it is revived and accentuated. Not only are the French women wearing it, but what is more important to us, we are wearing it. It is a delightful color for summer. Like lettuce green and mist gray it belongs to hot weather. It is too chilling for cold days which need warmth to fire the brain, to please the eye and to offset Nature.

Few people proclaimed the incoming of mauve. They thought, and rightly, that last summer's popularity sounded the knell of this faded shade of violet. But the dressmakers, evidently, had the color up their sleeves to present as soon as the hot weather started. Through their concerted action we now have mauve gowns, capes, roses, hats, stockings and girdles.

If one spends an afternoon in leisurely shopping through the big department stores, it is interesting to see that only a slight amount of mauve is offered in such things as sweaters, muslin frocks, hats and flowers.

Another afternoon spent in the same way among the small exclusive shops and high-priced dressmakers gives an entirely different impression, for at these mauve and lettuce green are freely offered. Possibly this condition may be translated thus: that the idea of exploiting these two summer tones came late in the season after the wholesale houses, the jobbers and manufacturers had produced their stocks for the season.

The same thing is true over in Paris. Mauve in its richest orchid shade is shown in the smart productions on the stage and on the women in the audience, also on those who flock to the places where dancing continues the fashion shows itself in costumes of mauve crepe, taffeta, and chiffon. Rarely do these attempt the addition of another color. They use violet, which is the mother of mauve, or pink, which sinks into it.

The sketch shows one of the smart frocks worn in Paris the first of this month. It does not present an especially new idea in silhouette, but it exploits an unusual neckline. The material is mauve crepe de chine with a wrinkled blouse extending over the top of the skirt, a feature, by the way which it is well for every woman to regard as important. There are sash ends at one side which begin in a loose bouquet of small pink roses; when pink is used as a contrast, it is in the form of flowers, and also put as a lining or a facing to panels and sleeves.

The peculiarity of the neckline lies in the bows of ribbon at each shoulder. These finish a scarf placed at the edge of the decolletage, and also top the sleeves. This trick is not good on a middle-aged woman, but it is a fashion for youth during this epoch when youth governs the fashion.

DOROTHY DIX'S TALKS

By DOROTHY DIX
THE WORLD'S HIGHEST PAID WOMAN WRITER

Reviving the Dead

A MAN asks me if I can tell him how to work the greatest of all miracles, and that is to bring a dead love to life again.

He says that he married a beautiful and charming woman with whom he was much in love, and who loved him with all her heart. The woman was everything a wife should be. They had children, and a happy home, and for ten years lived an ideal domestic life.

Then the man met a gay adventuress, who captured his fickle fancy. For a while he was completely fascinated by the woman. He neglected his wife for her. He spent upon her the money that should have gone to his family. He was surly, and grouchy at home, and never happy except when he was with the woman and the gay crowd she drew about her.

The wife bore everything with dignity and patience. She never nagged. She never threatened divorce. She kept her home intact, and, at least, warded off open scandal from her children's name. Finally, the man got tired of feeding on the husks of sins. Suddenly, one day he saw the woman as she was, coarse, vulgar, greedy, and grasping, and vile. Her spell over him was broken, her charm gone and he returned in sack cloth and ashes to his wife.

She forbore to reproach him. She drew the mantle of a decent silence over the past, and it is never referred to between them. She is kind to him, helpful, friendly, but that is all. The old love, the old tenderness is gone, and the man would give everything he has in the world to bring them back again, and he asks what he can do to win back again the heart he threw away so carelessly.

No one can tell him how to accomplish this marvel. It is very easy for a man to light the fires of love on the altar of a young girl's soul, but when the fire has burned itself out it is an almost impossible thing to rekindle the ashes.

No woman can really love a man whom she doesn't respect and honor, whom she does not believe to be strong and faithful, and loyal, whom she cannot trust. No woman can feel anything but contempt for the philanderer who chases every petticoat, who can be taken in and made a fool of by any designing woman, who is so weak that he cannot do a man's part in bearing the responsibilities he has taken upon himself, and who is so poor a creature he cannot be loyal even to his own flesh and blood.

Every woman who loves her husband visions him as a hero, and clothes him with a tthousand perfections that make him godlike to her. The tears that a woman sheds over an unfaithful husband wash her eyes clear, and she sees him exactly as he is, without even a shred of illusion with which to clothe the nakedness of his imperfections.

Men have always held to the comfortable theory that woman's love was indestructible, and that no matter how much they trampled upon it, and abused it, that it would always be waiting ready for use again, as good as new whenever they happened to need or want it. Nothing could be farther from the truth. A woman's love is as perishable a thing as the bloom on a peach. Once brush it off with a careless hand, and it is gone past all magic to restore.

It is true that women forgive erring husbands and take them back far oftener than men forgive and take back erring wives. They do this for many reasons besides the one that a man's vanity attributed to them. They do it because it is often the way to make the best of a bad bargain. They do it because it is better for their children. They do it because even when love is gone from the hearthstone, her home and a settled position in society are still a consolation prize to a woman. They do it because after many a woman has ceased to love her husband as a husband, she still has for him a maternal affection that makes her feel the sort of protecting pity toward his weaknesses that she would feel toward a bad child's.

But no woman ever trusts again the man who has once deceived her. No woman ever looks up again to the man who has weakly succumbed to temptation. No woman ever loves blindly, passionately, romantically, unquestioningly, but once, and the man who throws that love away can never regain it. It is the very flower of a woman's spirit, and soul, and body, and when it vanishes it is gone forever. The woman can no more recall it herself than the man can.

When you break an alabaster vase you may patch the pieces together so it will once again hold water and be a receptacle in which you can put flowers, and you may make shift to do it. But tthe crack will always be there, ugly and disfiguring. Nothing can make a broken thing whole and beautiful again.

So it is with love. So it is with all human relationships. Perhaps if men and women remembered that there is no undoing of what they have done, no blotting out of the past, and that they can no more regain a lost love than they can make a shattered vase whole again, they would be more careful of the hearts they hold in their hands.

The Housewife's Economy Calendar

OUT OF TRIFLES.

Now comes the fad for making something worth making out of a trifle—to rob the rag bag and gain thereby an apron, a slip, a child's pinafore, a sweater set, a traveling kit or what not.

Women seem to find the greatest satisfaction out of using their husband's discarded shirts, doubtless because there is always so much of the shirt that is not worn when the shirt has to be discarded because of the worn parts about the collar. The back of the shirt is usually not worn and not faded. One trick is to make little house aprons from the backs. Simply cut up the side seams and continue the hem from the bottom up the sides, making the apron curved at the bottom. Cut off the top on a line from armhole to armhole, full this slightly, and put on a belt taken from the front.

Little girls' pinafores may be made from old shirts. It is well to have a pattern. Lay the front on the back off the shirt, bringing the neck line somewhat below the neck line of the shirt. If there is a yoke in the shirt it usually may be used to make a yoke in the pinafore. The backs of the pinafore may be made from unworn parts of the side of the fronts.

Warm-weather play suits for little boys may be made from discarded shirts. The pattern selected should be a one-piece suit opening with a drop at the back and buttoning up the front. The two fronts are placed together at the front and the front is cut out, bringing the neck below the worn part in the shirt. There will still be room to get the little leg sections out of the shirt without piecing. The front hems of the shirt form the front opening of the play suit. From the back you need just the back sections and the sleeves.

The woman who makes her clothes at home is tempted to buy linings already made to use to slip under the frocks she makes. Really these are a convenience, but often you will find enough good material in a discarded cotton frock to make one or two of these linings. Then you need slips to wear under your sweaters or sports coats on which to fasten your ruffles or vestees. Often you will find enough for these slips from old frocks you are about to discard.

"What's In a Name?"

Facts About Your Name; Its History; Its Meaning; Whence It Was Derived; Its Significance; Your Lucky Day and Lucky Jewel.

By MILDRED MARSHALL.

ELLA.

ELLA is an elfin name. Its source lies in Fairyland, where the elves, or white spirits, were supposed to be gifted shadowy beings given to influencing strangely the lives of mortals. Ella means "elf friend."

The elf king was called Elberich. His fairy kindred and their popularity in England and Ireland established the use of elf names early in history. Everyone remembers Aelfgifu, the unfortunate Elgiva whose beauty was like the fairy gift which her name signifies, and brought ruin upon herself and her husband.

Aelfwine (elf darling), daughter of the Earl of Southampton, was Knut's first wife. A bishop of Lichfield was called Aelfwine, but he preferred to be addressed as Aella. This is the first appearance of Ella, and it seems curious that it should have been of a masculine name.

Aella, as it was then spelled, named the sponsor for the execution of Ragnar Lodbrog, and it was Aelle of Deira, whose name caused Gregory the Great to say that "Alleluja" should e sung in those regions.

Ella is much used in this country, but her significance is so little known that her popularity must be attributed to harmony of sound.

The opal is Ella's talismanic gem, but the fairy, which popular superstition declares is imprisoned within the stone, must be a good fairy, for Ella is promised many friendr, success and much happiness. Friday is her lucky day and 2 her lucky number.

Lyrics of Life

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

YOU MEET A FRIEND.

Yes, life is a struggle to all of us—
A life of labor, a life of care;
The road is rocky and hazardous,
And many there are who stumble there.
We never come to the vision fair
Or find the gold at the rainbow's end,
And life seems only a load to bear—
But once in a while you meet a friend.

And that is the glory of human life
That makes the weariness worth the while—
The friendly hand in the hour of strife,
The hand to help in the hardest mile.
There is still a song, there is still a smile,
Though disappointment or grief attend,
There still is something to reconcile—
For once in a while you meet a friend.

To have a friend is a glimpse of God,
To be a friend is a Godlike thing;
The rocky road is a velvet sod
If we have a brother to whom we cling.
It matters not what our fate may bring
If fortune only a comrade send—
You can have your trouble and still can sing,
If once in a while you meet a friend.

To-Day's Lucky Jewel Color-Flower

By MILDRED MARSHALL

CHRYSOLIPE.

AN ancient superstition credits the chrysolipe, the talismanic stone for today, with the power to drive away bad fortune and dispel all useless fears.

Today's natal stone is the diamond, to which ancient legends contribute somewhat the same powers. For those whose birthday this is it is said to banish fears and vain regrets, replacing them with good judgment and clear thinking.

Green is today's color; it is symbolic of change and of the transformation of melancholy into happiness.

The flower for today is the field daisy.

Something To Think About

The Modern Chemist As An Alchemist

By F. A. WALKER

IN the middle ages the alchemists were always thinking about the possibility of transmuting the baser metals into gold. They failed. But the discoveries made by the chemists of the present surpass all the dreams of the wise men of the past.

So there is no exaggeration involved when Robert E. Rose of the Department of the Interior talks about the work that is being done in the laboratories of America as the "treasure hunting" of the period.

They have come upon silk hidden in the fiber of cotton; vivid dyes and oriental perfumes in a pot of tar; bright metals in dull, common clay; silver hidden in lead; deadly poisons and medicines in one lump of coal, and have drawn food out of the air.

All the discoveries from radium to modern explosives have been made by men and women who wanted to find out what things were made of.

The chemists are always trying to discover if there is anything in the world that cannot be made simpler.

They have found that there are millions of different substances, millions of different kinds of molecules. But there are only ninety-two different kinds of atoms and about twenty of them form the majority of molecules.

There are seldom more than three or four kinds of atoms in one kind of molecule.

Each substance is composed of characteristic molecules. But the only things in molecules are atoms. It follows that the difference in the molecules must depend on the number, arrangement of kihd of the afoms.

So here, according to Dr. Rose, is the whole secret. Once we have learned to rearrange atoms we have learned how to transform matter.

Here is an example that covers the whole subject.

It was in 1843 that by a long process of boiling and redistilling coal tar, a substance called analine was finally discovered.

A quarter of a century later a boy of the name Perekin, who was interested in chemistry, tried to make quinine artificially. He put oxygen into the aniline. This resulted in his obtaining a brightly colored substance. When tested it was found to be a bright violet-mauve dye.

This caused a stir, for it meant that dyes could be made, instead of taking them from plants. It was also found that the manufactured colors were more vivid than the natural ones.

The first striking success of Perkin was in making Turkey Red from coal tar. Then he tried for indigo. This was more difficult. It took twenty years of experimenting before he succeeded.

It was the same story with regard to medicine. For instance, Salicylic acid was found originally only in the wintergreen plant. Hence it was scarce and expensive. It is now extracted from coal tar, that inexhaustible source of things, plentiful and cheap.

So there is no knowing what needs of humanity the chemists may be able to supply through new combinations of elementary material.

Spudders Swell Their Batting Averages by Defeating Buffs 19-6

Salm's sluggers battered one bona fide Buff hurler and three infielders yesterday at Athletic park for the most overwhelming defeat accorded George Whiteman's crowd of athletes this season. The figures of the slaughter were 19 to 6. The local outfit ran around the paths until each member's tongue was hanging out and had they not taken pity on Whiteman's last selection there is no telling when they would have stopped.

Signor Pierotti, one of the four hurlers brought here by Whiteman, had nothing but the proverbial prayer and the glove. He used both in the first chapter and held his opponents to three tallies, but must have thrown both away in the second. He tossed them down the alley in this canto until the Spudders had batted around and then Blades was called in from second base to stem the onslaught. He fared little better than his predecessor and took the air at the beginning of the fourth. Darringer, a shortstop by birth, assumed the burden at this point and he was hit unmercifully until he gave way to third baseman Doyle in the seventh. The latter finished the game.

It was a great day for Spudder batting averages. Tex McDonald continued his merciless assault on the old apple and walloped out two circuit smashes, a double and brace of singles on his five official trips to the plate. Jake Miller contributed an excursion wallop and four singles as his share while Bob Bescher pounded out two doubles and as many singles before voluntarily retiring. Tanner also knocked one out of the lot while Griggs and Works biffed out three safeties each. The base hits totaled 25.

Salm sent his newest hurling recruit, Al Miller, to the mound. The young southpaw did not have to extend himself, though he showed a barrel of stuff. In fact, he had so much on the ball that he found it difficult to control at times, but when everything is taken into consideration he gave a good account of himself.

The fielding feature of the matinee was contributed by Clyde Barfoot in center field. He went out to the pasture when Whiteman came to the infield to relieve Blades at second base and he robbed Kitchens of a triple when he speared his line drive with one hand.

If anybody cares to know just how the Spudders rolled up their grand total the following detailed score will explain everything:

First Inning.

HOUSTON: Two lucky hits and a brace of excusable errors on Tex McDonald's part netted the Buffs one lone tally in the first. Baggan bunted one that eluded the whole infield and went to center field for a hit. Darringer hit one over second for a single and Baggan was pegged out trying to reach third. J. Miller to McDonald. Bailey grounded to McDonald, who threw low to first. Darringer going to third. Whiteman drove another torrid liner down the third base line, McDonald stopping it and diving for the bag to get Darringer. He scored the putout but bumped his head on the bag and dropped the ball. With the bases full Doyle sent a long fly to Griggs, Darringer scoring after the catch. Tanner and Works got rid of C. Miller for the third out. 1 run, 2 hits, 2 errors.

WICHITA FALLS: The Spudders came back with interest in their half and chased three over. Bescher singled to center and took second when Whiteman juggled the ball. Tanner put him on third with a sacrifice, Perotti to Blades, who covered first, and he scored on Clark's single after McDonald had walked. Tex went to third on the hit. Jake Miller singled to center, scoring McDonald. He took second while Whiteman was throwing out Clark at third. Griggs hit one to rightfor a single, Jake crossing the pan. Works ended the frame by rolling to Perotti. 3 runs, 4 hits, 1 error.

Second Inning.

HOUSTON: Blades walked and was out trying to steal second, Kitchens to Tanner. Eiffert walked. Perotti fanned. Baggan bunted a third, strike which rolled foul and he was out. No runs, no hits, no hits.

WICHITA FALLS: The Spudders committed various and sundry assaults on the luckless Buffs in their part of the inning ann when the smoke cleared away seven runs were over. They batter around for one thing, knocked Perotti out of the box for another and completely changed the Houston lineup to end it. Kitchens went out, Doyle to Bailey. A. Miller singled to center and went to second when Bescher followed with a safe drive to left. Tanner flew out to Baggan, no advance being made. Tex McDonald then hoisted one out of the lot via right field driving Miller and Bescher in ahead of him. Clark walked, went to third on Jake Miller's single and scored when Griggs dropped a Texas leaguer into short center. Jake had previously stolen second and also scored on the play. Works doubled to the center field fence, Griggs romping home. Perotti was yanked at this point, Blades, the second baseman, replacing him in the box. Whiteman came in from center field to take Blades' position and Barfoot went to the outer garden. Pop Kitchens hit Blades first offering against the Fisher sign in left for two bases, scoring Works. A. Miller coming up for the second time, struck out. 7 runs, 7 hits, no errors.

Third Inning.

HOUSTON: McDonald threw out Darringer. Bailey fanned. Whiteman singled to right, Doyle singled to left and C. Miller singled to center, filling the bases. Blades then hit the left field fence for two sacks, driving his three team mates across. Eiffert walked and Barfoot fanned. 3 runs, 4 hits no errors.

WICHITA FALLS: Bescher led off by stopping a ball with his ribs. Tanner flew out to Baggan. Bescher went to second on a balk and took third a moment later on another balk. McDonald doubled to right, scoring Bescher. Clark went out, Whiteman to Bailey, McDonald making third. Jake Miller then poled one over the left field fence, scoring Tex ahead of him. Griggs was hit by a pitched ball, stole second and scored on Works single to center. Cadby was given an advance when Blades balked again. Kitchens walked and A. Miller fouled to Eiffert. 4 runs, 3 hits, no errors.

Fourth Inning.

HOUSTON: Baggan fanned. Darringer flew out to Tanner. Bailey and Whiteman walked, Doyle fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors.

WICHITA FALLS: Darringer went to the box in this session and Blades filled his place at short. Bescher doubled to right and scored ahead of Tanner when Buddy lost another one over the left field wall. McDonald singled through Bailey, went to second when Clark was hit by a pitched ball and took third on Miller's infield hit to Blades. With the bases full Griggs hit into a double play, Darringer to Eiffert to Bailey. 2 runs, 4 hits, no errors.

Fifth Inning.

HOUSTON: C. Miller singled to center. Blades fouled to Kitchens. Eiffert walked, Barfoot flew out to Jake Miller. Baggan went out, Works to A. Miller, who covered first. No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

WICHITA FALLS: Kitchens lined out to Barfoot. Blades threw out A. Miller. Bescher doubled to center. Tanner walked and Bescher was thrown out trying to steal third. No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

Sixth Inning.

HOUSTON: Darringer went out at first, Clark to Works. Bailey popped to McDonald. Whiteman walked and Doyle lined to Jake Miller. No runs, no hits, no errors.

WICHITA FALLS: McDonald put another pill over the right field fence as a starter. Clark was safe when Whiteman kicked his grounder. Miller flew out to Baggan. Griggs singled to left and Clark scored when the ball got away from Baggan. Cecil went on to third and scored when Works doubled down the right field foul line. Bischoff hit to Doyle and was safe while the latter was tagging Works. A Miller lifted a high foul to Baggan, who dropped the ball, Bischoff taking third. Bescher walked but Buddy Tanner took compassion on the Buffs and fanned. 3 runs 3 hits, 3 errors.

Seventh Inning.

HOUSTON: C. Miller walked. Blades flew to Jake Miller and C. Miller took second on a passed ball. Tanner threw out Eiffert. Barfoot walked. Baggan fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors.

WICHITA FALLS: Doyle went into the box and Whiteman to third. McDonald singled to center and was forced at second on Clark's roller to Darringer. Jake Miller singled to center, putting Clark on third. Griggs forced Miller at second, Blades to Darringer. Works fouled out to Eiffert. No runs, 2 hits, no errors.

Eighth Inning.

HOUSTON: Darringer flied to Gross, playing left field in place of Bescher. Bailey went out, McDonald to Works. McDonald flied to Gross. No runs, no hits, no errors.

WICHITA FALLS: Bischoff singled to left, but went out stealing. A. Miller flied to right. Gross walked and Tanner forced him at second. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Ninth Inning.

HOUSTON: Doyle went out, Tanner to Works. C. Miller singled to center, Blades singled to left, Miller going to second. Eiffert fanned. Barfoot walked, filling the bases. Baggan singled to center, scoring Miller and Blades. Darringer flew out to Gross. 2 runs, 2 hits, no errors.

NEWARK, N. J., July 28.—The ancient and honorable game of golf is "co-respondent" in a divorce suit filed by Mrs. Rachael B. Hayward of Montclair, against Sterling P. Hayward.

In affidavits filed with Vice-Chancellor Fielder yesterday, Mrs. Hayward declared the game took so much of her husband's leisure that she scarcely ever saw him; that her lack of interest in golf caused him to be cruel to her and that he spent money in pursuit of his hobby that he should have spent maintaining her and their two children.

SPORT SHOTS by Paul W. Barkin

We looked through records and statistics last night and today until we were blue in the face, trying to see whether or not Tex McDonald should be credited with a record, and if so, what sort of record. To the best of our limited knowledge he now has one in his possession which will bear challenging. In his last 13 trips to the plate, Tex has hit safely 11 times and has walked twice. In other words, he has batted for an even .1000 out of 13 times at bat. There are recorded records for number of hits in one game, hits in consecutive games, etc., but there are none (at least we couldn't find any) for consecutive number of base hits.

Included in these 11 hits are two home runs, two doubles and seven singles. Beginning Monday, Tex started off by flying out to "Dutch" Schliebner. He then got to Perryman for two singles and a walk. On Tuesday he walloped Bill Bolden for three singles and a double. Yesterday he drew a pass off Pierotti the first time he faced him and then he knocked the apple out of the orchard. He then belted out a double off Blades and crashed a single and circuit clout off Darringer. The last time up he faced Doyle, and connected for a single.

Incidentally, it might be mentioned that not one of his drives have been of the scratch variety. Every hit was a clean cut drive. They were clouts which no fielder could possibly handle, and only two were driven through infielders. It is a record worthy of note and one of which any ball player should be proud.

Tex has been longing for the hot weather. He came to Wichita Falls touted as a man who could hit .300 in any league in the country. In the early days of the season he did not hit as well as was expected. Fans were inclined to give him the razz. Tex simply smiled and said to us, "I never did hit in the spring and am not a bit worried. Just wait awhile. When some of these young spring hitterg are hitting the downward trail you'll find Tex climbing." Guess he spoke volumes.

Not so long ago every sport writer around the circuit wrote a few paragraphs at least about the airtight baseball that was played in the Texas league the day before. Only a few runs (about five or six) were made by the eight clubs while the errors could have been counted on one hand. Wonder what they'll have to say following yesterday's games. No less than 70 runs, 105 hits and 24 errors were made. Yea, verily, the national pastim called "baseball" is a funny one.

No fair criticism can be offered on Al Miller's work in the box yesterday, but he showed that he has pitched ball before and knows how to handle himself in the box. He did not have to try to pitch ball, neither did the Buffs try to extend themselves with the willow. It wasn't a fair test.

"Froggy" Rothfuss has gone home to recuperate from the effects of the blow in the head received several weeks ago in Beaumont. It was thought for a while that the Spudders would be in a terrible fix without him. But he'll never be missed as long as Griggs continues at his present clip.

George Whiteman is having a tough time trying to win ball games with only four hurlers. Three of his winners are out of the game. "Lefty" Potts is under the weather, Pearson has a bad ankle and Dick Robertson is on the suspended list. Barfoot, Donalds, Pierotti and Bolden are doing their best to keep the club in the race but it's almost a superhuman task. It's a good thing for George that Walter did not win that toss and order an extra game to be played here this trip.

Everything for QUALITY—
nothing for show

THAT'S OUR IDEA in making CAMELS—the Quality Cigarette.

Why, just buy Camels and look at the package! It's the best packing science has devised to keep cigarettes fresh and full flavored for your taste. Heavy paper outside—secure foil wrapping inside and the revenue stamp over the end to seal the package and keep it air-tight.

And note this! There's nothing flashy about the Camel package. No extra wrappings that do not improve the smoke. Not a cent of needless expense that must come out of the quality of the tobacco.

Camels wonderful and exclusive Quality wins on merit alone.

Because, men smoke Camels who want the taste and fragrance of the finest tobaccos, expertly blended. Men smoke Camels for Camels smooth, refreshing mildness and their freedom from cigaretty aftertaste.

Camels are made for men who think for themselves.

MIDDLEWEIGHT TITLE IS NOW IN DISPUTE

Bryan Downey Kayoes Wilson But Referee Claims Latter Was Fouled.

CLEVELAND, July 28.—The middleweight boxing championship of the world is in dispute today.

According to the Cleveland boxing commission and sport writers who were a the ringside, the title belongs to Bryan Downey of Cleveland, he having acquired it by a knockout of Johnny Wilson of Boston in the seventh round of a scheduled 12-round no-decision contest here last night.

But Jimmy Gardner of Lowell, Mass., who refereed the match, declared Wilson retains the championship because Downey fouled Wilson.

Wilson was knocked down three times in the final round.

The round was just one minute and six seconds old when Downey sent Wilson down with a right to the jaw and a left to the chin. Wilson was on his knee when Gardner slowly counted nine. Whether he counted ten is disputed.

Official Timekeeper Artie Foote of the boxing commission said he heard Gardner count the fatal second, and that his watch showed Wilson had been down 13 4-5 seconds.

After Wilson regained his feet Downey hammered him to the floor again and Gardner counted nine. According to Foote, eleven seconds elapsed before Wilson staggered to his feet, and almost helpless, grabbed the ropes.

Downey again showered him with rights and lefts, and Martin Killilea, manager of Wilson, jumped to the platform and placed his hands on Wilson, who was sagging to the mat for the third time. After counting seven Gardner stopped the bout, saying Downey had hit Wilson while he was down.

Near Riot Follows.

Holders of ringside tickets did not see the blow struck. The majority of spectators thought the contest had been stopped because Wilson had been counted out.

A near riot followed.

A local referee had been named by the boxing commission to act as a third man, but Wilson declared he would not enter the ring unless Gardner officiated.

Although the men boxed at catchweights, Downey weighed 164 pounds in the afternoon in the presence of an official of the boxing commission, according to his manager, Jimmy Dunn.

He entered the ring weighing not mort than 155 pounds, Dunn said. Wilson's weight was said to be about 172 pounds.

Bryan Downey was born in Columbus, Ohio, September 7, 1896, and began his ring career February 2, 1914, as a featherweight. He has been in about 110 contests, twenty of which he won by a knockout, and only twice has a referee's decision been against him. One was in Boston in 1918 when he lost to Jack Britton, while Ted Lewis was champion welterweight, and Jock Malone gained a decision over him in Columbus.

TRIPLE PLAY BY CARDS.

NEW YORK, July 28.—A triple play was performed by the St. Louis Nationals against Philadelphia yesterday and snuffed out a Quaker rally with the bases full. Rapp of Philadelphia sent a line drive to Shortstop Hornsby who threw to the bespectacled Torporcer, who touched second base, doubling Peters. A quick throw to First Baseman Fournier beat Winters' return dash for the bag.

A substitute player figured largely in the defeat of the New York Americans. McManus, who replaced Sisler at first base, hit a home run, triple and two singles, sending in four of the St. Louis runs.

GETS IN HIMSELF WHEN HE FAILS TO GET FRIEND RELEASED FROM CITY JAIL

CHICAGO, July 28.—When he could not get John Spencer out of jail, C. H. Egan, his friend, decided to go to jail with him and said some very uncomplimentary things about the police department in order to get there.

Both will be given a hearing today.

Spencer visited Egan in the latter's room and Egan later missed $60. He ' Spencer arrested but upon returning to his room he found the money in a dresser drawer where he then remembered it.

He tried to get Spencer out of jail but learned that a bond of several hundred dollars would be necessary. So he made remarks about the police department until officers locked him up for disorderly conduct.

COTTON MARKET.

NEW YORK, July 28.—Easier cables, favorable weather and southern wire house selling caused moderate weakness in cotton early today and after opening eight to 13 points lower, the market sold 23 to 24 points under yesterday's close. October declined to 11.88 and December to 12.32 in the first hour notwithstanding moderate trade demand and further support from Wall street interests. New Orleans houses were free sellers here shortly after the opning.

The early afternoon market was quiet but steady with prices about 10 points up from the lowest or around 11.86 for October. All the private condition figures thus far issued have shown less than the average deterioration for the month.

Cotton closed steady.

New Orleans Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, July 28.—Dry weather over the belt generally, the poor showing of the Liverpool market and a private bureau report on the conditoin of the growing crop of 70.3, indicating a loss for the month ly only 1.4 points, put the price of cotton lower today. In the first hour of the session the most active months lost 30 to 31 points, October dropping to 11.33.

A fair demand for covers by realizing shorts checked the downward movement. Since new buying was encouraged by the large exports for the day, early clearance amounting to 41,066 bales, against total clearance this day last year of but 100 bales. At 11:00 o'clock prices were at net declines of 16 to 19 points.

Price changes were small in the late trading. A steady tone was preserved and toward the close the trading months were 16 to 20 points under yesterday's final prices.

Cotton closed steady at a net decline of 16 to 22 points.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

CHICAGO, July 28.—Bulls had an advantage in the wheat market today owing to continued smallness of rural offerings. Opening prices which varied from ½c to ¾c higher, with September $1.27½ to $1.27¾, and December $1.29½ to $1.29¾, were followed by a slight reaction, and then by material gains all around.

Subsequently, the market declined as a result of an apparent halt in export demand. The close was heavy, 1c to 1¼c net lower, with September $1.25½ @1.25¾ and December $1.27½@1.27¾.

Dry weather hoisted corn. After opening ½c to ¾c up, including September at 61½ to 62c, prices scored a decided general gain.

Rains in Iowa and Nebraska eased the market later. Prices closed weak at 1@1½c net decline to ½c advance, with September 61¾@61¾c.

Oats started ½c to ¾c higher, September 39½ to 39¾c, and then continued to ascend.

Higher hogs gave strength to provisions.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

NEW YORK, July 28.—A five point rally in United Drug, and an eight point decline in Pressed Steel Car on overnight announcement that dividend action on the latter had been deferred, featured the conflicting movement of active shares at the opening of today's stock market. The rally in United Drug was short-lived, however, that stock soon reacting seven points. Other issues, particularly equipments, oils, rubbers and motion picture shares became unsettled at reactions of one to two points. Texas & Pacific was among the steady rails, and General asphalt, Baldwin locomotive and Retail Stores registered moderate gains.

Some improvement was noted in the market at midday, mainly on local covering and less pressure from New Orleans, and October after selling as low as 11.86, rallied to 11.92.

Railway Steel Springs extended its loss to 12 points at midday but soon made halfway recovery. Pullman reflected pressure with General Electric and Pierce-Arrow, common and preferred. Rails were firm to strong under lead of Northern Pacific.

DECLARE RED TAPE AND POLITICS RESPONSIBLE FOR DEPLORABLE CONDITION OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS

NEW YORK, July 28.—Two prime causes of the present "deplorable" condition of American public schools are red tape and the handicapping of boards of education by politicians, according to a survey of public school boards and their receipts and expenditures, directed by the national committee for chamber of commerce cooperation with the public schools and the American city bureau made public here today.

The survey which covered conditions in 377 cities showed, it was said, that in 47 per cent of cases where boards of education were "independent" or free from political manipulation or control, that the most efficient administrative and educational results are obtained.

"The best interests of the public schools," says the report, "cannot be served in a city where the budget of the board of education may be reduced and remodeled by city officials who have not made a definite study of the needs of the schools."

Boards which are really a sub-division of the municipal government and whose budget may be changed by municipal authorities are classified as "dependent" and undesirable from the standpoint of the public good.

It is thus pointed out that in the case of cities in New Jersey, the budget must be passed upon by a special board of school estimate; in Oklahoma cities the school trustees are dependent upon an excise board; in Ohio cities, school budgets may be reduced by a special county commission; in New England, school budgets must be submitted direct to a town meeting and in many western cities the budget is determined by some county authority.

The survey shows that the school receipts in the 377 cities for the past fiscal year were $353,260,000 and that the expenditures of these same cities during this period were about $2,000,000 less than income. The funds are from five sources and are supplied in the following proportions. From the states 11.6 per cent; the federal government 0.3 per cent; the county 5.7 per cent; local taxes 65.4 per cent; nonrevenue or miscellaneous sources, including income from sale of bonds or short-time loans, 17 per cent. The survey shows that of all cities reporting, 70 per cent do not receive a dollar from the federal government. Teachers' salaries aggregation $180,000,000 or 64 per cent of the total of the current expense of the schools.

The total expenditure for debt service, varies from four-tenths of one per cent in the eastern cities, one and one-third per cent in the southern cities and up to 9½ per cent in the Great Lakes group. In one-fifth of the Great Lakes cities the expenditure for this item is more than 20 per cent of the total expenditure for all purposes. In a number of Ohio cities it is between 30 and 35 per cent.

The relation of capital outlay, aggregating $51,727,554, to the total expenditures, showed that nearly 85 per cent was utilized on sites and new buildings. A total of $1,341,000 was expended for medical inspection and dental and nurse service in the 377 cities named. The part of the total expenditure spent for the alteration and equipment of old buildings was only 1.8 per cent. Commenting on this the committee said:

"The smallness of this amount is of particular interest in connection with the findings of this committee in their report on school housing conditions in American cities. This report shows that a large percentage of the children in the public schools are continually menaced by the insanitary conditions and fire hazards in many old school buildings now in use. In eastern cities the conditions are particularly bad."

An intermediate class of school boards, designated as "special," which are neither dependent nor independent, are also discussed in the report and held to be contrary to the best educational policy.

The basis for the committee's survey was an inquiry sent to the superintendents of shools in cities with populations in excess of 8,000. The present survey is the third of a series. The first report, published last October, presented the facts concerning salaries, training and experience of teachers. A second report, published last March, dealt with school housing conditions.

Declare Stock Dividend.

NEW YORK, July 28.—The directors of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad company today declared a stock dividend of 100 per cent payable August 20 to stockholders of record on August 8.

LLOYD GEORGE HAS AROUSED THE IRE OF LEADING CHURCHMEN

LONDON, July 28.—Prime Minister Lloyd GGeorge has aroused the ire of leading churchmen by telling them that they ought to keep out of politics.

The occasion was the general assembly of Welsh Calvinistic Methodists at Portmadoc, Wales, when the premier delivered an address, in the course of which he complained of public utterances by highly placed divines at church conferences and elsewhere on questions of the day such as Ireland and the industrial unrest, which, he asserted, "they were not in the least competent to discuss." He stigmatized their observations as "interferences in the task of government, which if followed, are replete with mischief both to the church and to the state."

The indictment has aroused a storm of protest and rebuke among Mr. Lloyd George's former colleagues in the Free churches, and resolutions have been passed at various evangelical council meetings strongly dissenting from the prime minister's attitude.

Dr. John Clifford, the veteran Baptist leader, asserts that the premier's doctrine is contrary to his own, which is that "the churches should take such action as to secure the application of the principles of the gospel of Christ to the political conditions of the world."

More outspoken is the Rev. H. J. Taylor, a Primitive Methodist leader, who says: "The premier declares that the business of the church and his ministers is to mind their own job. Their job is to demand that the premier should practice religion in the law of the land."

From the pulpit of St. Paul's Covent Garden, the bishop of Chelmsford flatly told the premier that he wouldn't accep this rulings.

"If he had said the church must not interfere in party politics, we might be agreed, but that is very different to politics," the bishop said. "The government touches human life at every point, and the church cannot agree to refrain from expressing her opinion upon that which touches all her members.

"We are going to make continuous war upon all that poisons the atmosphere," continued the bishop. "We intend to have our politics impregnated with the right spirit—that of Christianity."

SOMEBODY MAY GET SICK AFTER DRINKING CONTRABAND WHISKEY

OFFICERS HAD DOPED BOTTLES WITH CROTON OIL AND IPECAC.

TOTAL OF 300 QUARTS TAKEN FROM COURT HOUSE

Enter Cell Through Ventilator Shaft; Warning Is Issued Against Partaking Too Liberally.

Beware of any Sunnybrook whiskey that may be on the market. This is the warning issued by U. S. Deputy Marshal J. M. Allen from whose custody 300 quarts of whiskey were stolen during the past month.

Four weeks ago burglars entered the cell in the court house where the famous 1,400 quarts of whiskey taken from a residence in this city was stored and got away with approximately 150 bottles of the Sunnybrook brand. Mr. Allen was out of the county at the time the burglary was committed.

Upon his return to the city Mr. Allen discovered the loss. Entrance to the cell was gained through the ventilator at the top of the cell. The man or men gained this point through the grand jury room.

Two weeks later Mr. Allen made a trip out of the state and upon his return 150 more quarts had been stolen. The burglars this time, however, encountered more difficulty, as the ventilator had been repaired and the men were forced to use grab hooks in bringing the bottles into their hands.

After the first robbery Mr. Allen laid several traps to capture the men. One of his plans which he carried into execution was to dope a large number of bottles with croton oil and ipecac. These bottles were taken along with the others.

Suspicion of federal officers were aroused immediately after the first burglary but insufficient evidence could not be had to warrant an arrest.

Following the second robbery federal officers found cold chisels, hack saw, a hammer, some grab hooks and a blanket which were identified as being the property of some "nearby neighbors."

Announcement of the robberies had been kept quiet by the federal officers and newspaper men in hopes that the guilty party or parties could be captured.

Mr. Allen, U. S. Commissioner J. A. Lantz and H. D. Bishop left Wednesday evening to attend court at Dallas.

ANOTHER OF DEFENDANTS IN EAST WICHITA CASE IS ARRESTED LATE WEDNESDAY

J. B. McKey, another defendant named in the indictment with reference to the East Wichita well, surrendered himself at the sheriff's office late Wednesday evening. He stated that he had been employed in the oil fields at Duncan and only learned of the indictment upon his return to Electra, his home, Wednesday morning.

McKey was accompanied to the sheriff's office by W. P. Honaker, also indicted, where he perfected bond in the amount of $2,500 and was released. He was the fourth man to be placed under arrest in connection with the affair.

ENFORCEMENT OF SIGN ORDINANCE TO BE STARTED SOON

An inspection of all electric signs in the city is to be made within a short time with the view of condemning those which do not comply with the new city ordinance recently enacted to regulate the maintainance of signs and awnings, according to word from the elegtrical inspector's office Thursday morning.

A number of signs now being used will have to be removed, Inspector Montgomery declared.

The new ordinance was designed to protect the citizens from danger of injury in case a heavy wind storm should arise and blow down some of the existing electrical attractions. A number have been put up in such fashion that a strong wind could very easily strip them from their fastenings, with attending danger to any one passing on the streets below.

The same provisions apply to wooden, metal or glass awnings that may be erected along store fronts as a protection from the weather.

SWIMMING IS GROWING IN POPULARITY AT ELECTRA

ELECTRA, TEXAS, July 28.—Swimming is growing in popularity here due to the hot weather. One industrious farmer, 10 miles from town, has built a bath house near a large pond which attracts hundreds of people daily. Another small lake near the city has been named "Ocean Waves" and a few snapshots taken by an alert kodacker would lead one to believe that it rivals Palm Beach and Atlantic City. The municipal swimming pool will be completed in the park within two weeks.

WOMAN STRUCK BY TRAIN SUCCUMBS AT LOCAL HOSPITAL

Injuries sustained by Mrs. M. Ledbetter when she was run down on the Fort Worth & Denver passing tracks near Michigan street last Tuesday afternoon proved fatal Wednesday. She died in the Methodist hospital at Call Field at 4:00 after physicians had waged a losing fight in an effort to save her life.

No hope was held out for her recovery, as her advanced age was unable to withstand the shock of the injuries.

Funeral services will be held at 5:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon from the home of Mrs. Ledbetter's daughter, Mrs. George Harrison, 406 Fifth street, with Rev. T. S. Pettinger of the First Methodist Church, North, officiating. Burial will be in Riverside cemetery.

GIRLS BRIGHTER THAN BOYS IN THEIR YOUNGER YEARS

CHICAGO, July 28.—Girls apparently are brighter than boys, at least in their younger years. Later boys know more, according to Superintendent of Schools Peter Mortenson.

"If you don't think so," he said, "check over the honor students of the Chicago high schools. Girls are better adapted to study than boys during the period of adolescence.

"But in college things are different. There the men usually have to help the girls with their lessons," he added.
