QUICK ON DRAW

Wilbarger Sheriff Gets Drop on Choctaw Armed With Shotgun and Takes Liquor, Officers Say

Special Dispatch to Record News

VERNON, June 14.—Sheriff Frank Edmondson of Wilbarger county owes his life to the fact that he was quick enough on the draw to get the drop on a half breed Choctaw Indian yesterday, when the latter is alleged to have tried to shoot the sheriff with a shotgun.

Edmondson received word that the Indian had passed in an automobile loaded with liquor. He overtook the car in the southern part of the county. When the sheriff started to search the Indian's car, the latter pulled a shotgun and using his wife as a protector, started to pull the gun on the officer.

Edmondson saw the gun coming, and instantly had the man and woman covered and told the Indian he would have to shoot unless he dropped the gun. The woman grabbed the shotgun and helped disarm her husband.

Several gallons of liquor were found in the automobile, according to officers. The Indian was placed in jail here.

Leviathan Trip Attacks Charged As Party Politics

Associated Press Dispatch

WASHINGTON, June 14—Attacks on the forthcoming trial trip of the Leviathan were characterized as party politics by Chairman Lasker tonight in the first formal statement issued from the shipping board since criticism of the liner's voyage to Cuban waters began to find its way into the press. Provision for the trial was made by the board under a democratic administration, Lasker pointed out, when John Barton Payne was chairman and incidental expenses were approved by congress as necessary to the proper reconditioning of the ship.

"If the critics had only taken the trouble to look up the records, they would have found that the plans and specification for the reconditioning of the Leviathan were not made by the present board, but that every detail including the testing of the great ship in the proposed trial trip, was worked out long in advance, even to the last dollar that would be spent.

Captain Escapes With Money After He Fails To Land Foreigners.

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, June 14.—A story or horror on the sea within the shadow of the Sandy Hook rum fleet's rendezvous, reminiscent of the days of buccaneering on the Spanish Main, were drawn piecemeal today from 15 Chinese survivors of the man-smuggling schooner, Mary Beatrice, picked up adrift last night at the entrance of the harbor.

They unfolded a story of a hand-to-hand encounter between 20 Chinese passengers and the crew of four. In the fight the crew and five Chinese were slaughtered and thrown overboard after the unidentified captain had deserted the craft with $5,000 passage money. When their story was concluded, the authorities were as mystified as they were when the trim little schooner slipped into the harbor with her strange passengers.

Provisions Run Short.

The stories of the 15 survivors, pieced together, indicated that the schooner had arrived off the coast about June 6 and stood off for several days awaiting launches to smuggle the Chinese ashore. Provisions and drinking water ran short and the mysterious captain, to whom each had paid $250, quit the ship and has not been seen since.

The suspicions of the Chinese, who showed restlessness through the delay in landing, were aggravated when the mate demanded an additional $250. Two white men and two negroes comprised the crew. Resistance to the demand for more money was said to have started a general battle at dusk Tuesday, implements of every kind being brought into play.

Knives and Axes Used.

Interpreters gathered from accounts given by the excited Chinese that the attack was first made on one of their number, then all joined in the struggle for self-preservation, using knives, axes, razors, marlin spikes or anything that could be used as a weapon.

The outnumbered crew was overwhelmed and killed, and with of their opponents who fell in the fray, their bodies were cast into the sea.

The mystery was intensified by the absence of ships papers or navigation instruments.

Wife Says Scott Knew She Drank But Never To Excess

FORT WORTH, Tex., June 14.—Located at a local hotel, where they were registered under the signatures of "Mrs. Russell and daughter, Kansas City," Mrs. Winfield Scott, Jr., against whom divorce proceedings were started in district court here yesterday by her young millionaire husband, and her mother, Mrs. Halen Kane of Kansas City, expressed their intention of fighting to the last ditch the efforts at a separation started by the husband.

"I have not received a copy of the petition, but from what I have heard since arriving this afternoon, that he charges that I was cruel, often intoxicated, and extravagant, all of these charges are untrue. He knew I drank ... married me, but never to excess. As to my extravagance, I purchased $35 dresses when he wanted me to buy dresses costing $200, and to my being cruel, he is wrong.

"My first idea of the divorce suit was given me by reporters in Kansas City, and then I didn't believe it. I didn't believe it when I landed in Fort Worth this afternoon, believing that there must be some mistake. But when the deputy sheriff met me at the station when my train arrived I knew then that it was true.

Woman Nearly Collapses When Judge Awards Disputed Child Against Supreme Mother Instinct

Associated Press Dispatch

CHICAGO, June 14.—Leone Felicia, five years old, cause of contention between two women, each claiming to be her rightful mother, today was awarded by Superior Judge David to Mrs. Julia Frybylski. The other woman, Mrs. Violet Lenz, nearly collapsed when she heard the decision.

Judge David declared the case was without precedent, that both science and law had failed to guide him and that only facts were left as a basis for his decision. He said it had been suggested that the case of King Solomon as recorded in the Bible could be a precedent, but said the court could not air a threat as did King Solomon.

The judge said he was convinced Mrs. Lenz was not the child's mother, "but was only inspired by a supreme mother instinct to attempt to keep the child."

The resolution was defeated by a vote of 30 to 50.

The lower branch spent most of the last day of the session in adopting committee reports. A strong denunciation of the legislature's action in reducing the state ranger force from 75 to 50 and reducing other items in the departmental bill was entered by Representative Baker of Milam when the conference report on it was brought in. Baker moved that the report be rejected and a new committee be appointed, but his motion was tabled by a vote of 71 to 32 and the report adopted by a vote of 77 to 35.

12-MILE LIMIT COLDLY RECEIVED

Foreign Powers Not Likely To Oblige U. S. In Dilemna

International News Dispatch

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Secretary of State Hughes' proposal to solve the dry ships dilemma by extending the three mile limit to 12 miles has been accorded a distinctly cold reception by the foreign powers concerned, it became known today.

While, officially speaking, the proposition is now being "carefully considered" by the foreig offices in London, Paris, Tokio, and other world capitals, actually there is very little likelihood that the treaties ever will be undertaken, according to high diplomatic opinion.

The attitude of the powers, as gleaned from diplomatic sources, apparently may be summed up as follows:

"Why should we 'scrap' an important part of international law that has existed for ages simply to help the United States enforce a domestic law which we do not approve and never had any sympathy for?"

Cline Tells Rotary Club About His Washington Trip

The high lights of his recent trip to Washington, where, among many other things, he heard and observed President Harding and listened to a talk on the immigration question by Secretary of Labor Jim Davis, were interestingly told the Rotary club by President W. D. Cline at the regular weekly meeting Thursday noon at the Kemp.

"The last 30 days I have had occasion to make some very careful and intimate observations regarding our government and the economic situation of the country in general, and I am convinced that we as a nation are on our feet and America is in fine shape," Mr. Cline said. He also was of the opinion that in the executive chair the United States had an official who was broad-minded, conscientious and filling his position in a manner that gave assurance of increasing prosperity.

Speaking of the youth in our colleges who are soon to assume business and professional responsibilities, Mr. Cline said he had recently observed the A. and M. cadets and had been a guest at local Y. M. C. A. affairs, and he was convinced that these were going to make citizens equal to the present.

C. U. Daniel, in charge of the program, introduced E. A. Nelson, who accompanied by Mrs. Lucille Brooks Huff gave three violin selections that met with appreciation. The singing, led by R. F. Shepherd, was better this time, the leader resorting to near physical force in a few instances to compel some of the vocalcitrant Rotarians to exercise their vocal organs, re-gardless of harmony.

Boy Whipped By Masked Men, Marks Car and Tells It To Grand Jury

ALTUS, Okla., June 14.—At a meeting of the grand jury for this county, called especially for the purpose of investigating ku klux klan activities, indictments were returned against several alleged members of the local klan, and two arrests have been made, that of R. B. Perkins, a local contractor, and D. J. Tays, a local railroad man. Each were placed under $2,000 bond, which were made.

For some time past it has been known that whipping of local citizens was going on in this county, but none of those receiving the whippings would relate the same to the officers or others, and it is currently reported that approximately 25 persons have been whipped in this county during the past few months, alleged to have been administered by members of the ki klux klan.

Recently the son of a local business man was caught on the public road near town with two young ladies in the car with him, and he was taken from the car and whipped. He marked the car used by the klan in such manner that he could identify it later, and he found the car and related his experience to the officers, with the result that a grand jury was called and an indictment returned.

It is known that a number of others were indicted by the grand jury, but owing to the fact that they cannot be apprehended at this time their names have not yet been disclosed.

The ku klux klan is said to be 500 strong in this county.

BURNETT FIGHTS---

Mrs. Burnett and that his affection for his own wife and children subsequently faded.

It was charged that Jack Cobb frequently spent nights away from his own home and at the Burnett house where, it was alleged, improper relations existed between the man and Mrs. Burnett. This testimony was given despite the fact that Burnett's former wife is not named in a supplemental petition filed by the plaintiff. Lucille Mulhall Burnett was originally a co-defendant in the suit.

Tom Burnett, the defendant, was questioned at length regarding actions of he and his wife at the time of the 1922 round-up and rodeo in Wichita Falls. In this connection the names of Buck Garret, former sheriff of Carter county, Oklahoma, and Bud Ballew, picturesque deputy who was shot and killed here during the rodeo by J. W. McCormick, then chief of police, were mentioned. Burnett was asked if it was not a fact that at one time during the rodeo he, his wife, Buck Garrett and Bud Ballew were in Burnett's room at the Kemp hotel and that Buck Garrett kissed Mrs. Burnett in the presence of the entire crowd.

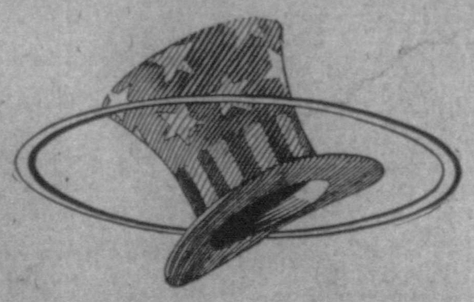

The defendant stated it might have been true but he wasn't sure. He said cowboys at the ranch frequently kissed his wife and he thought nothing of it.

Fight Discussed.

Details of a fight at the Burnett ranch one day when Tom Burnett is alleged to have found his wife and Jack Cobb alone in a room together were also brought out.

Taking of testimony in the suit started after a general demurrer to the charges had been filed by the defendant and overruled by the court. It was charged that the complaints were too general to admit of being refuted.

The law firm of Davenport, Cummings and Thornton of this city is representing Mrs. Cobb, while Burnett is defended by W. P. McLean of Scott, McLean and Scott, Fort Worth, T. R. Boone of Bullington, Boone, Humphrey and Hoffman, Wichita Falls, and J. C. Murphree, of Iowa Park.

Fashionable Apartment House Raided, Door Smashed, 2 Couples Arrested And They Plead Guilty Over Phone

"When is a wild party wilder?"

Somebody asked that question just before the long, muscular arm of the law reached out and rapped on the door of a fashionable apartment house after midnight last night.

"When they're all married—but not together."

And then that long arm of the law—state law at that—rapped again.

"Let me in in the name of the law."

It was Ranger Koonsman speaking. Officer Charley Bebout was with him. A moment passed. There was an excited stirring inside the room. But the door was not opened.

Bang and crash and other noises that indicate the smashing in of a door.

And the ranger and Bebout entered the room.

There were two couples. All were married, Ranger Koonsman said, but the wives of the husbands were not present, neither were the husbands of the wives.

Officer Charley Bebout and Ranger Koonsman preferred charges against the four.

Justice "Red" Gibbs was called on the telephone and all plead guilty over the wires. A fine of $25 each was assessed against each man and woman.

The World's End

Millions Now Living Will Never Die

More than 40 years ago Bible students began to proclaim that 1914 was the year specifically marked when the "time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation," prophisied in the Scriptures, would commence. Until the catastrophe of August, 1914, broke upon the world, they were ridiculed. In the brief span of nine years, the human race has been torn by war, famine, disease and social upheavals the like of which has never been known. And the end is not yet, for the conflagration which commenced with the World War is raging with increasing severity and reaching out to every corner of the earth. The prophetic words of Jesus, uttered nearly two thousand years ago, are being fulfilled with terrible accuracy. Will His words concerning events happen within the next few years come true? You should know the truth.

In this thrilling and reassuring lecture, the speaker will bring positive proof, by linking Bible prophesies with present day events, that the kingdom of Messiah will soon completely supplant the existing rulership of earth, and because of this fact, there are millions of people who will actually never go into the grave. The lecture is not a dry discussion of theology; nor an attempt to convert you to some fanatical religion, of "this Gospel of the Kingdom," but is a glorious proclamation which Jesus said must be preached in all the world for a witness before the end comes.

CLAY PICNIC IS POSTPONED

Rains Put Farmers Behind With Work So Outing Is Delayed

Special Dispatch to Record News

HENRIETTA, Texas, June 14.—The big picnic which was to be given at Blue Grove tomorrow by the Texas farm bureau organization of Clay county, has been postponed for 30 days.

Owing to the fact that bountiful rains have fallen over Clay county within the past few days and farmers are very much behind with their work, it was decided by the executive committee to postpone the big gathering of farmers at Blue Grove.

Clay county has received copious rains regularly for the past two or three weeks, to such an extent that farm work is much delayed and many fields of ripe grain are standing that require binders being run over heavy ground with extra teams. Cotton and corn are growing rapidly, but need more sunshine to dry out the fields so that the weeds and vegetation can be retarded.

PRISCILLA DEAN IN PICTURE AT EMPRESS—

In 1870, the class lines of society were a wall of steel between coal miners in North England and the gentry. So strict were they that passage from one social class to another was virtually impossible.

Joan Lowrie was only one of a thousand women who did not look or act like women, but served as human beasts of burden in the mines, toiling piteously by day, eating, sleeping, and cursing fate by night.

"Why, you talk nonsense," laughed a rich baron, when his over-man wanted to inaugurate better conditions for the workers, "these people are little better than beasts!"

The new young over-man in one of the mines believed in human nature, even though sunk in this low scale. He looked for the best in everyone. Always cheery, he was eager to extend a helping hand to his fellowmen.

"You are a noble, unselfish character," he said to Joan Lowrie, one of the women who drudged in the slate pits.

That was the beginning of the upward climb for her.

Humbly, timidly, not for a moment with even a faint hope of his love for her reward, she struggled in silence. She would learn to read, to write; she would become a real "lady."

This wonderful character of Joan Lowrie's in one of Frances Hodgson Burnett's most popular books has been adapted for the screen under the title "The Flame of Life," starring Priscilla Dean. The picture is playing the rest of the week at the Empress.

WELL, WELL, THAT FEATURE "LUCK" IS HERE—

"Luck" has come to this town at last!

Last night we saw Johnnie Hines perform in his latest picture at the Olympic, and he certainly is king in his line, among comedians.

"Luck" is a melodramatic comedy, or a comedy melodrama if you choose to say it the other way. His work is probably described best by the word "melocomedy," a happy medium hit upon by one of the New York critics who reviewed the film. Hines has created a type of comedy and a style of acting as distinctive and individual as Chaplin or Lloyd or Buster Keaton.

The story deals with a rich young man who, taunted with being absolutely useless to the world, wagers a hat he can make ten thousand dollars in a year, starting with nothing in the world but the racing togs on his back, and an old raincoat.

Obstacles mean nothing to him, and he hurdles them all in real breezy style with no end of uproarious situations as the inevitable result. His characterization of the go-getting American youth who knows no barriers and makes you believe that there's nothing you can't accomplish if you go after it hard enough is appealingly real.

For this interpretation we all owe Johnny a debt of gratitude, for he preaches a sermon that is far-reaching in its effect—and the beauty of it all is that he does it all in fun!

TERRIFIC FIST FIGHT IN "TENTS OF ALLAH"—

On the desert sands under the flaming sky of Morocco men fought to the death for the woman they wanted. In "The Tents of Allah," at the Strand Monte Blue and Martin Faust have a terrific fight with knives, on horseback, for Mary Thurman. Which one should be victorious—the man who stole her for ransom, and to gain favor with the Sultan—or the man who would fight to win her for love?

Could, and would an American girl return the love of the feared and fearless chief of a tribe of desert robbers, himself a plunderer of caravans—a daring devil-may-care hot-blooded young bandit?

Monte Blue is certainly giving Rudy Valentino a run for his money in the shiek role, and Mary Thurman is bewitching as the courageous, headstrong, young thing who insists on seeing everything that is going on.

Producer E. A. MacManus took the entire company to Porto Rico where the picture was filmed in a real desert setting. The story is founded on a historic incident that happened during the presidency of Theodore Roosevelt.

RICHARD CROKER

Richard Croker began life without a penny in the city of New York and became the greatest political boss that Gotham had ever known. He is said to have accumulated a fortune of twelve million dollars during his active career. He married early in life and became the father of five children. When he had grown rich and powerful the political boss and Mrs. Croker separated. They were not divorced; they lived apart for years until she died.

Then he married an Oklahoma girl, known as the Indian Princess. He had large possessions at Palm Beach and he purchased a magnificent estate in Ireland. Now the children of Croker and their Indian Princess step mother are washing soiled family linen in the courts of America and Ireland. They say the bulk of the Croker fortune fell into the hands of the second Mrs. Croker.

She admits that she received more than two million dollars from her husband but the children had been given millions of dollars before she had known the erstwhile political boss of Manhattan Island. Croker, as a financier, must have been a wonderful man. He had no trade, he had no profession. He was born to be a leader of men and he went up from the ranks to the highest place in Tammany Hall where he ruled for years the ancient organization and was the real ruler of the greatest city on the continent of North America.

A man should dispose of his estate while he is in the land of the living. Then there would be no soiled linen to wash or air in court after an undertaker has put him away. Really, the Crokers and the Goulds and the Stilwells have been the best copy makers the editors of American newspapers have ever known.

Money may not be the root of all evil but too much of it in idle hands plays the devil with the reputation of the men who accumulated vast fortunes and then passed their wealth on to their children and to the lawyers.

ELSIE TOO

Now Elsie Ferguson, noted star of the stage and the screen has said goodbye to her husband, Thomas B. Clarke Jr., vice president of the Harriman National bank of New York. They were married seven years ago and all their friends said it was a love match. He was wealthy in his own right, she had accumulated a fortune on the screen and on the stage. Now they are traveling different roads and a divorce court judge will do the rest. Life is a queer proposition. Wealth and position should win happiness but it doesn't. At least it did not win happiness for the noted stage beauty and star of movie land and her banker husband.

COST OF GOVERNMENT

President Harding has reminded the American people that it is time for them to place a curb on government costs. He asserts that the revenues of American cities rose 76 per cent in eight years and the indebtedness 40 per cent. He insists that costs of state government are rising at a rate which at least justifies the most serious consideration. Expenditures rose from $83,000,000 in 1913 to $1,000,000,000 in 1921, an increas of 163 per cent. Some day Jones is going on the war path. He will not be able to carry the load.

A Chicago girl jilted the man to whom she was engaged. He had given her a thousand dollar diamond ring. He sued to recover its possession and a jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff. The world is getting on a fifty-fifty basis now. In the so-called good old days, the girl would have the ring and the man would have drowned his sorrow in red liquor.

SAVED BY AMERICA

Russia is to be congratulated. Its premier says that the famine is over and that the Russians will never forget American relief. He admits that millions of starving Russians received needful help from America and that hundreds of thousands were saved from death by famine. He advises that this year's harvest promises to be quite satisfactory and upon its realiation the government hopes to provide the basic needs for the former famine regions and utilize the surplus for the economic restoration of the country.

This is what America did for the people of a government that is looked upon as an international outlaw. This is what we did for the people of a government that repudiated its honest debts and declared that the pledge of the Russian nation was as worthless as its ruble is today.

America fed the hungry; America saved the starving from famine; and America made it possible for Russia to come back. Lenine and Trotzky should take this lesson to themselves. They should impress it upon their countrymen. They should work to restore Russia to a place among the civilized nations.

They should realize that a nation that repudiates its honest obligations wins for itself the brand of dishonor. It is impossible for an individual to stand alone; a nation is only a collection of individuals. An individual whose pledge is worthless is very like unto a nation that has no regard for its pledges or its promises.

EQUAL RIGHTS IN ENGLAND

Woman is coming into her own in the British Isles. They have attained equality with men in the divorce courts. By a vote of 57 to 26 the House of Commons adopted final reading of a bill making the grounds for divorce the same for both sexes. The bill now goes to the House of Lords where it will be approved and after the royal signature is affixed to the measure, misconduct will be a sufficient cause for a wife obtaining a divorce, the additional grounds of cruelty or desertion which are now required of women being no longer necessary.

Misconduct on the part of the husband has never been cause for divorce on the part of the wife of a Briton until the House of Commons adopted this measure. Another bill forbidding publication of divorce court evidence which has long been a feature of English newspapers has passed the House of Commons. Should it receive the approval of the House of Lords another of the demands of the women of England will have been granted by the lawmakers of the empire.

Women are fast travelers in foreign countries. They have won the ballot and nearly everything else since the signing of the armistice. There is a new civilization in the making over there. There is a new civilization in the making over here. War has a lot to do with it.

UNCOMMON SENSE

By JOHN BLAKE

HABIT BREAKING

The reason that most golf players play bad golf is because they form bad muscular habits when they begin to play.

The habits soon "get set."

After that their golf is a long fight to break them—usually with no result.

In that respect the game of golf resembles life, which is a continuous struggle to get rid of bad habits, which double and treble the toil necessary to get work accomplished quickly and safely.

"Piece workers" in factories cannot afford bad habits. They must learn to do their work in the first place, or they will never be able to make good wages.

They must use the fewest possible motions to do a given amount of work, they must guard against wasted effort. They must never on any account be obliged to go back and do anything over.

The facility they acquire—provided they get the right start—is almost miraculous.

But they must get the right start. Without it no matter how industrious they are, no matter how intelligent, they will always lag behind.

What wastes the most time in all industry—indeed in any effort, mental or physical is "going back and doing it over." If it were possible to estimate the time lost in correcting mistakes, either one's own or those of other people, the total would astonish even the statisticians who compiled it.

The necessity of doing things twice that ought to be done only once is almost invariably due to slovenly habits, formed because the worker does not give it enough thought in the early stages.

When anything has been thoroughly learned it becomes second nature, and can be done with little thought.

The experienced and skillful golfer does not need to think exactly how to make his swing. But he cannot begin to play that way. Every movement of the club must be studied out. And a golf addict has recently estimated that he must think about his swing at least a hundred thousand times before he can make it without thinking.

It is so with all work which is done by the muscles. Work done by the brain must have constant thought. Even the actor who has played a part a thousand times must have his mind on his lines, or he will not speak them properly.

In the race that we call living, the starter who begins in the right way, even if he does not make quite as much progress at first, is sure to be the winner.

For him there is no necessity of going back. He can spend all his working hour in going ahead.

TODAY AND YOU

By MARY BLAKE

GEMINI

Very disturbing elements operate today making it necessary to beware of accidents, observe health measures and refrain from giving way to ugly impulses. There are tendencies to nervous activity, inharmony and restlessness.

A child born today will be of extremely affectionate and generous nature.

All together your life will be a desirable existence if today is your birthday. Although it will not be heaped with material luxuries, you will never experience actual want for anything. As the expression goes, you "were born with a gold spoon in your mouth," and "always land on both feet" is particularly true in your case. There will be a multitude of friends attracted to you by your jovial, sociable nature. You make an unselfish comrade, ever ready to share the good things of life.

People born today are noted for their warmth, and affectionate natures. They are loving, tender-hearted, and of infinite patience—even with those who have victimized them and taken advantage of their generosity.

Your entire life will be spent in the glorification or the degradation of this quality of generosity. With the proper development this faculty might make you a great humanitarian or a spiritual or religious leader. With insufficient self-control it will undoubtedly make you a victim of every beggar you meet and your day will be largely spent in listening to the woes of others.

Your temperament is one of vicciliating moods. You are easily dejected, but you always rise smilingly triumphant over your disappointments.

Intellectually your interests will tend towards things which you can readily share with your friends. You will set little store in the joy you cannot communicate to your fellow beings.

You will only find happiness in a sympathetic understanding of your married life if joined to some one with beautiful nature. A dominating, selfish type would only take avantage of your fineness and make you utterly miserable.

Well known people born on this date are: William H. F. Faunce, the clergyman; Francis E. Elwell, the sculptor; Edward Channing, historian. (Copyright 1923 by Bell Syndicate.)

AND WHAT OF TOMORROW?

The VANISHING MEN

By Richard Washburn Child

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

Peter DeWolfe, a wealthy young American, becomes interested in an English friend's description of a mysterious beauty who had taken a cottage next to his home. Among the things of interest about her, he says, "was a strange look of fear in her eyes." DeWolfe goes to visit at the home of his friend and there meets

Muriel Benham, his sister, who is very strongly attracted to Peter but seeing her affection not returned, and suspecting that he is attracted by her beautiful neighbor, warns him that if the latter "takes him in," he will "vanish like the others."

Brena Selcoss, is the mysterious beauty. He meets her in London and after several days of delightful companionship falls in love with her, but she tells him that she was married some years ago when she was seventeen in Dallas, Texas. A few years before that her mother had died, and her father later had been killed in an accident, leaving her a message "not to be afraid, for, if any danger threatened her, she would be protected."

Mrs. Wilkie, who runs a boarding house, rents her a room, where she meets

Jim Hennepin, a dashing young man, who courts Brena strenuously. At length he tells her that he is about to make a great deal of money and asks her to go to St. Louis and await his coming. He tells her that he has had a "call." She returns several days later from St. Louis and is told by Mrs. Wilkie, who knew nothing of her appointment there, that she had no knowledge of Hennepin's whereabouts.

Mrs. Wilkie often mentioned the journey to St. Louis. She would have given Brena a week's board to know why the girl had gone, but even Mrs. Wilkie sensed some quality in this beautiful child which made her a creature of a different species and she never pressed her questions beyond a point where she found herself looking into the wondering, dark Selcoss eyes.

Brena herself asked twice whether Hennepin had written. She chose moments when the two other women boarders and the accountant of the Southern Pacific were at the table.

"Written!" said Mrs. Wilkie. "Written? Not he!

"His own father, dying of Bright's hasn't heard from him—not for three months."

Brena then set her face toward tomorrows. She might have been expected, therefore, to be startled when the past broke in upon her.

It came in the form of Compton Parmalee.

He was the head of the firm which had employed Jim Henepin.

Parmalee was a small, wiry man, careful of his dress.

He had come to Texas from the desert country of Southern California when he was twenty-six. He knew that country well. In his years in Dallas, acting as a cotton commission man and commodity gambler, he had collected a valuable library about the whole historic Southwest, its Indian tribes, the Pueblos, the strange customs and secrets of savage men carrying some of the traits and traditions of prehistoric Aztecs, and the Jesuit missionaries.

It was said by some persons that his quiet ways were a veneer put on by some studious years in Berkeley at the University, but rumor had it that Parmalee with his rather pale, young face that made him look thirty instead of forty-three, his small, well-shaped hands, his immaculate linen, his soft voice, had once shot a man across a roulette table which he himself owned and operated.

That he was ever a man of violence is very doubtful. He was an unquivering gambler but not with his personal safety; his personal safety was his principal concern. He wore gloves on all occasions—to keep the germs off his hand. He was always fearing contagion. He gargled. He snuffled. He sprayed. He read medical journals. He feared cancer above all other things.

He loved his life so much that he had loved no woman for many years; the monopoly of this devotion excluded competition. He loved his life with an unending passion; be ruined it by fearing to lose it.

He came to call one night and told Brena that he wanted information about Jim. She answered that he should see Jim's aunt, Mrs. Wilkie, but he was not to be denied.

"You telegraphed to Jim Hennepin from St. Louis," he said. "That telegram was opened in my office. It was just your message, 'I am waiting,' and it was signed, 'B.' It took a little inquiry for me to know that this telegram was probably sent by you."

"But nearly five months have gone."

"I know."

"And why now do you come to me?"

"You needn't tell me anything you do not wish to tell. I assume that you arranged to meet him in St. Louis."

Brena put her hand up and felt her throat. It was hot—the skin was hot under her cold hand.

"It was a great mistake," she said in a low voice.

"The idea was marriage?"

"It was my idea—if I had any clear idea."

"The dirty dog!" said Parmalee.

Brena shuddered.

"Of course, if he were to meet you," Parmalee said, "he probably told you where he was going, eh—and why?"

"No," she said. "He only spoke of making a great sum of money, of getting it from some place."

"He did not say where?"

"No. He spoke of some call—some message," said Brena.

The broker's eyes widened until they were in a staring distention.

"Ha! What more did he tell you?"

"Nothing."

Parmalee sat down in a chair and stared at the carpet for a long time.

"Do you not know where he is, Mr. Parmalee" asked Brena at length.

"I have heard nothing," he answered. "Apparently after Jim had decided to take you away from Dallas this thing described as a 'call' came. There is still an unclaimed balance of a considerable sum to his credit in the office. He has gone—like this!"

Parmalee held up his small clenched fist, opened it suddenly and blew an imaginary speck of dust from its palm into oblivion.

Two days after Christmas Compton asked Brena by telephone to come to his office.

"You are sure that all you told me that night was accurate?" he said.

"Of course," she said, in a tone of indignation.

"I know," said he. "But there was just one more thing. Did he leave a paper with you?"

"A paper? No, he left no paper. He gave me some money and there was a little scrap of paper in it. It had on it an arrow, drawn with ink, and a lizard drawn beside it and two words underneath. 'This sign.'"

"Well, that was nothing," said Parmalee. "Where is it now?"

"It disspeared. You haven't—"

"No. Not a word. He has gone." She was silent.

"In fact, it was not because of anything to do with it that I wanted to see you," the man said. "You will say when you know why I sent for you that you have never heard of anything like it in all your life."

Brena said nothing.

"I sent for you to tell you about myself—not about what I have been—but about what I am. For I believe there is a sympathy between us that is most extraordinary—more than you know."

"I think I understand."

"It is not love," said he. "Let me make it plain that I am not deluded, that I am not in love with you. I am not old, but the passion and idealism of love have gone. No I will not make love to you."

"No," said Brena giving affirmation.

"Ten months ago I scraped together all my money and threw it into a final play." Compton went on. "I am now worth a little over two million dollars. I am through with business, with trading, with speculation, with this office—forever!"

"And now—?" asked Brena.

He laughed. "There is now left to me collecting books, travel, a kindness now and then and taking good care of my health. Can you think of anything else?"

To Brena the problem was new; she did not have a ready answer.

"I have burned out," said Parmalee. "I am ashes. You see I am not a great man," he explained. "It was necessary for me to throw all of myself into the fight—every resource I could summon. I do not smoke, do not drink. I have conserved and guarded all my sensations until—I have none! All my life—my last twenty years of life—I have promised myself indulgences—indulgences of gigantic and exquisite design, but now that I can have them, this body of mine rejects them all, refuses them all. Fate laughs in my ear and says: 'You're done for. The most sensuous pleasure you shall have will be the flavor of that apple sauce you have eaten for lunch for fifteen years and will eat for lunch for the rest of your days.' Isn't this a grim joke, Miss Selcoss?"

"I do not know," said Brena uneasily.

He sensed her desire to go.

"Don't leave me," he said with a voice which almost broke into a low sob, "You are the only one who can understand!"

"All right," she said astonished that she had become important to any one. "There are so many things you can buy with your money."

"Only one," he replied sharply.

"And that—"

"Is you!"

She pushed her chair back from the desk with both her hands.

"You need not be alarmed," said his calm voice. "I have stated it purposely at its worst. It is better for you to have this thought presented at first and perhaps we can overcome it later. I put it in the terms the world will use. Dallas will say, "He bought her.' But, after all, we will be in Pekin or in Bombay or in sight of the Pyramids or in the crags of the Norway coast. I am more than twenty years older than you are. But the interesting and important persons with whom we may dine will only say, 'He has a beautiful young wife with a free mind. Her father was a patriot of Greece!'"

Brena's face was white and frightened as if she had seen a ghost. It was enough to tell him that she knew that he spoke truly.

"I do not ask you to give anything to me except your help to make me new again," he said. "I do not ask your love. I have none to give. I cannot take you away or keep you near me without marriage. It would blast us both. But if you marry me you shall be made free whenever the day comes that you wish to go. I ask no promises."

Brena got up and stood looking out the window. To be free! To grow! To range! To know! To be emancipated from the sordid round of days!

"Do not answer now," said Parmalee. "I have said all I can. Write me."

A week later he got her letter: it was on his desk apart from the business envelopes. He tore it open and read her introductory sentences down to the phrase: "I think you are above all honorable."

Parmalee uttered an exclamation of triumph; he alone knew that she was wrong.

"I want to make my life of greater service than it can ever be here," she wrote. "I am impatient for a richer soil in which to grow. I am willing to help you, too, if I can, though it seems a little vague to me how I can do this.

"Therefore I assent to your plan as you state it. Always yours, Brena Selcoss."

Not fifteen minutes had elapsed after the marriage before there came into the lives of the two a new element.

At the station they were strolling up and down and little by little his conversation fell away; he muttered a few last absent-minded words and it was gone altogether. He walked on; she kept pace with him. He walked on in silence.

Not until she heard a strange sniffling noise as a sudden sucking in of breath of one who has fainted did she turn.

"You are as white as linen," she said trembling.

He wet his lips and looked at her almost snarling.

"What is this fate that follows you?" he asked.

"Fate?"

"Something."

"Why? What do you feel?" she asked in a frightened whisper.

"I feel fear," he said, his upper lip fluttering, "a horrible, unaccountable terror."

Another fine installment tomorrow.

IRRIGATION

By A. M. McPHERSON
Kahn Bldg., Eighth and Indiana
Consulting Engineer

Is it going to be possible to irrigate any more land than is now included in the two irrigation districts?

TENTH INSTALLMENT.

In yesterday's article, we showed that if four acre feet of stored water was allowed for each acre of land that there would not be sufficient water during the first real dry year if 100,000 acres were irrigated.

One hundred thousand acres is mentioned in the contract between the two districts as the amount to be irrigated with the same class of water right. All land irrigated above this would have a right secondary to the first 100,000 acres.

Now, let us see how many years of minimum river flow we could stand if we were irrigating 100,000 acres and allowing two acre feet of stored water per acre of land. Without showing the detail of the computations here it works out that more than five successive years could pass without a shortage, providing that the dry spell started with Lake Kemp filled to its rated capacity.

As five successive years of minimum rainfall is an unheard of thing, it means that we can either irrigate more land than 100,000 acres, or we can give more than two acre feet per acre.

Two acre feet stored in the reservoir will mean a delivery of about 1½ feet to the farmer's land. The rainfall here averages about 2 1-3 acre feet if we add to this 1½ acre feet of irrigation water we have almost 4 acre feet.

If you want to realize how much water this is, take a rule and measure up on the wall four feet and then imagine that every acre of land in the project was covered that deep with water.

In our judgment a good irrigation farmer could raise practically any of the staple crops that grow here in any year with this amount of water.

Tomorrow we will discuss further phases of the water question.

More Truth Than Poetry

—By James J. Montague—

MR. REDHEAD

Through all the forest far and near
The lightning's searchlights flash;
The robin's children shrink to hear
The thunder roll and crash.
The swaying elms and sturdy oaks
Are rocking in the storm.
But little Mr. Redhead's folks
Are snug and safe and warm.

When Mr. Owl comes out at night
And hunts around for food,
There's nothing but a hasty flight
Can save the blackbird's brood.
But, famished though the rascal be,
His dark nocturnal ways
Avoid the hollow maple tree
Where Mr. Redbird stays.

If you'll look up above your head
Amid the woodland dim,
Perhaps you'll see a blotch of red
Below a spreading limb.
And sometimes a defiant squawk
Flies upward through the air:
"Just you come down here, old man hawk;
Come down here if you dare!"

With juicy grubs beneath the bark
That shelters kid and wife,
A long and very pleasant lark
Is Mr. Redhead's life.
And we who watch from tree to tree
The gallant fellow flit,
Are fully satisfied that he
Deserves it, every bit.

Miss Sara Dale Weds California Man at Henrietta Thursday

In an exquisite setting of gladiola, palms and ferns, the wedding of Miss Sara Dale of Henrietta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Dale, to Fred Humphreys of San Diego, Cal., was solemnized Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the First Methodist church, the Rev. Guy F. Jones, pastor of the church, and Rev. Crutchfield of Dallas officiating.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. J. S. Dickey sang a pre-nuptial solo and Mrs. Jouette Bonner played on the violin, "I Love You Truly." Mrs. Will T. Owen of El Paso, a cousin of the bride, sang "Because," and Miss Annette Walsh at the piano, accompanied by four violins, Miss Maurice Mount, Mrs. C. R. McDonald, Miss McDonald and Miss Jones, played the wedding march from Lohengrin.

The bride, who entered on the arm of her brother, J. B. Dale, who gave her in marriage, was lovely in a gown of beige lace over a slip of pastel shades. The trimmings were a beaded girdle and she wore a handsome picture hat of beige with trimmings of blue, with blue slippers and hose, and carried a shower bouquet of roses and lillies of the valley. She was preceded by her small sister, Marguerite, who, dressed in an airy frock of white organdy, strewed rose petals in her path.

Misses Madelyne Macbeckney, Josephine Mayfield and Mattie Lee Straus, all of Wichita Falls, and Grace Hapgood of Dallas, Francis Harris of Snyder and Katherine Noble of Henrietta acted as bridesmaids, and Mr. Humphreys had for his best man A. F. Bowden of this city.

Ushers were Messrs. Carl Green, Donald Dale, Gaffin Dale, Brad Skaggs, Kirk Edwards and Harry Meyers.

Miss Macbeckney wore a gown of cream lace over flesh; Miss Josephine Mayfield wore a cream lace creation; Miss Mattie Lee Straus wore yellow georgette with trimmings of lace and ribbon; Miss Grace Hapgood wore a gown of orchid chiffon; Miss Fatherine Noble wore orchid chiffon and Miss Francis Harris wore pink chiffon with trimmings of green. All carried bouquets of Ophelia roses and wore lovely picture hats to harmonize with their gowns.

As maid of honor the bride chose Miss Dorothy Bear of Henrietta, her life long friend.

Immediately following the ceremony the bridal party met at the bride's home where an informal reception was held. Presiding at the punch bowl were Mrs. J. T. Dale of Henrietta and Mrs. Amelia Dale of El Paso.

Miss Dorothy Dale acted as junior bridesmaid to her sister, and was charming in a gown of peach colored organdy with organdy and lace hat to harmonize. She wore shoes and hose of blue, and carried a shower bouquet.

An informal reception at the Dale home followed the ceremony. The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Dale, one of Henrietta's most prominent families, was popular in her home circles and also in Wichita Falls' younger social set, being a frequent visitor here and attending most of the social events for the younger crowd. The groom is the member of a prominent California family.

Mr. and Mrs. Humphreys left on Thursday afternoon for El Paso, where they will meet the groom's brother, Paul Humphreys, who was also recently married to a young woman in Massachusetts, and where both couples will proceed to California to get a lovely sport model car, their wedding gift from Mr. Humphreys' parents, and take an overland tour of the Pacific coast, including Oregon, Washington and British Columbia.

One of the most beautiful parts of the wedding ceremony was the proceeding of the bride by John Kelly Dale as cupid and little Miss Evelyn Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Taylor, who represented a fairy and carried a basket of sweet peas.

They will be at home after July 15 at the Hotel Sandfort. Out-of-town guests included, among others: Mrs. Henry Young of Fort Worth, Mrs. Amelia Dale of El Paso, Mrs. Will Owens of El Paso, Jerome Dale Owens of El Paso, Mrs. Talley of Bonham, Mr. and Mrs. Jouette Bonner, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mayfield, Mrs. Nelson Decker, Misses Josephine Tucker, Ivy V. Larkin, Ruth Barnard, Louise Jenkins, Josephine and Julie Cummings, and Mrs. Steger, Mrs. Crow, Mrs. J. C. Straus, all of Wichita Falls; Miss Ellen Brooks of Forney, Mrs. Margaret Hanes and Ben Proctor of Wichita Falls.

Heart and Home Problems Solved

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young girl 21 years of age. I married a young man five years my senior about one year ago. I, as well as everyone else, thought I made a splendid marriage. I soon found out after my marriage that he was selfish and not kind. He makes me work hard and never buys me any nice clothes, and I am not having a nice time as I did before. Should I apply for a divorce or keep on living in this manner? Please tell me what to do.

LONESOME BOB.

If you are very unhappy and convinced that you and your husband cannot be happy together, divorce seems the only course. Perhaps, however, you have expected too much of marriage and not realized that it is a contract of give as well as take. A man ought to want to make life happier and easier for his wife, while she in turn ought to consider her duty to her husband. When a woman marries a man with a large income it is only natural that she should expect him to provide help in the home and buy her attractive clothes. But if her husband has a small income, his wife should expect to do her own work, make her clothes last as long as possible, and work as hard as her husband does to get ahead.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a girl and boy friend who think enough of each other to get married, but they are of different religions, and the boy belongs to an order that forbids his changing his religion.

They want to marry without changing his religion, but the boy's parents are strictly against his marrying a girl of her religion, although they think the girl is very nice.

This fellow works for his dad and is to take over the business some day, but if he marries this girl he will lose it.

What would you suggest that they do? Please give them a little advice.

THANK YOU.

I would advise the boy to change positions so that he can say his soul is his own. It is not worth the price to stay with his father if he loses his independence. Besides, it would be good for him to make his way in the business world without having his father to lean on.

In regard to the matter of marriage, the boy and the girl must decide for themselves. No one else can weigh the matter for them and decide whether their love is great enough to stand the strain of a difference in religion after marriage and after there are children.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am just a young girl at high school and have become interested in one of the male students. Some time ago he took me home from several of our school affairs and seemed to enjoy taking me out. Since then he has become more popular and I do not see much of him. When I do meet him he mumbles a greeting and doesn't even smile. How can I win his attentions again?

STUDENT.

Where is your pride? Why do you want to win back a young man whose interest in you was evidently of a merely casual nature? You took too seriously the slight attention he showed you and probably saw that you did so and determined not to let the affair go any further. If you want him to be friendly to you be just carelessly friendly with him, and take care to keep any signs of sentimentality out of your manner to him.

WATER RATES SET IN ACT BEFORE COUNCIL TODAY

The new water department ordinance, fixing rates and prescribing duties, will probably be passed by the city council at a special meeting called for this afternoon. The ordinance brings nothing new in the way of rate change or operation of the department but merely puts in ordinance form the rules and regulations as they have heretofore existed.

The new ordinance has been in process of construction for some time. It was drafted by Utilities Commissioner Stayton.

Several other minor matters are scheduled to come up for attention at the meeting today, it is reported.

LADDIE—By Clare Dillon Holt

A laddie I love, a happy wee slip of a lad
Whose merry brown eyes are as brown and as cherry and glad
As the heart of a daisy. His smile's like a glint of sunshine
And all of the day he's as sweet as the arbutus vine.

A laddie I love, a laddie whose visions and dreams
Of romance and fairies can charm like the dance of moonbeams.
I forgot I'm a grown-up with worries and care. I play
I'm a princess and dwell in rose tints with laddie all day.

I love a chattering laddie whose questioning me
For the wherefore, the why and the how of the restless sea,
Of the golden sun and the twinkling stars by night,
Of the song of the birds and the growth of flowers bright.

A laddie I love, a wee little starry-eyed knight
Who infolds all things in their radiant charm and delight.
A blade of green grass he beholds as a true miracle
And he finds not a thing in God's universe sordid or dull.

The generous heavens have hidden a paradise here.
Just listen and look! It is glowing and glistening near,
Enchanting all those who like laddie can love and can see
The fathomless wonders in this world of mystery.

The doll, which is of life-size, picks up a small glass of punch, lifts it to its lips and then replaces it. A good-sized crowd was in front of the window most of the day.

Salms Outslug Bruins For 14 to 7 Victory

WHEELER TIGHTENS IN TIME TO HOLD BEARS TO 12 HITS AND SPUDDERS TAKE OPENER

Cotter Gets Three Bagger As Spuds Pound Ball To Four Corners of Lot; Overcome Lead to Take Victory.

SAN ANTONIO June 13.—After letting the Bears get a lead that threatened to carry the opening game of the series the Spudders started pounding Johnson in the fourth stanza and ran up a count that overwhelmed the Bruins winning 14 to 7. Wheeler was not at his best in the first three innings and for a time it looked as though he would be unable to hold Bob Coleman's crew but in the end of the three in which the Bruins made six of their seven runs, he began to tighten and allowed only one more counter, which came in the fourth.

Both the Bears and the Spudders hit heavily, the Salmites getting the best of the clouting after they got started in the fourth. They got to Johnson and Roberts for 19 base bingles, while the Bruins found Wheeler for 12, mostly in the early part of the game.

Start In First

Salms crew started the spring in the first when they made two markers, but they were unable to keep the advantage for the home club came back in the same stanza with four, threatening to pound Wheeler off the mound. Bescher beat out a bunt down the third base line, and was sacrificed to second by Coombs. He was scored by Tanner with a double to right field, and Cotter went out at first, Tanner taking third. Grigsby scored Tanner for the second counter with a single to left field. White popped to center.

Booe started the Bruins half with a disappointing double to right field, and went to third when Gross went out at first. Galloway and Simon got on with singles during which time Booe crossed the plate, and Boone's triple to center scored Galloway and Simon. Boone was out at the plate, Meyers going to second. Meyers counted on Schultes single, and the inning ended with Johnson's liner to Wheeler.

Berger grounded to Simon and went to second when the throw to first was wild, the error being responsible for the scoring of one Salmite run. He took third on Bischoff's single to center, Wheeler hit into a double play, Goss to Galloway, Berger scoring on the play. Bescher went out at the initial sack. The Bruins failed to count in the inning.

Two In Third

In the third however, they got two runners across, keeping the lead they got in the early stanzas. Boone sent a hopping bunt down the third base line and went to third when Tanner's throw to first was high. He was scored by Meyers with a single to left. Fuller singled to left and went to second on the throw to third for Meyers. Schukte was out at first and went to third and was run down Fuller was run down between bases, Meyers scoring. Johnson sent a high one to Berger.

White's doubles to left paved the way for two more for the Spudders in the fourth, and was scored by Berger's double to the same spot. Berger made the second when he counted on Bescher's single, just before the third out.

An error by Cotter in throwing wide to White at first, and a series of singles, counted Booe in the Bears' part of the stanza, the only run scored.

The Spudders got right with their big sticks in the fifth and four Salmites trotted, slid and walked across the plate, taking the big end of the score, and starting the slugging that won the game. After Coombs was out on a high one, Tanner beat out a hit to short, and Cotter singled to left, Tanner stopping at second. Tanner crossed the rubber on Grigsby's single to center, Cotter taking third. White scored Cotter and Grigsby ahead of him when he pounded the ball over the right field fence for a home run, and three outs stopped the scoring.

In the sixth they added a couple more, started by Coombs with a double to center. Tanner sacrificed him to second, Cotter singled to left, scoring Coombs, and then stole the second sack. He scored on Berger's single to right, and the Spuds took a lead that was safe for the rest of the game.

Their last three came in the eighth inning when they hit Roberts, who went in for Johnson, to all corners of the lot. Coombs singled to left and went to third on Tanner's single to center. They both scored on Cotter's triple to right, and Grigsby, White and Berger went out.

Americans Are Expected To Bring British Cup Home Today

Associated Press Dispatch

TROON, Scotland, June 14.—Britons are fearful tonight over the possibility that their long lost open golf championship trophy is going to start back to America tomorrow for the third successive season. Walter Hagen carried it over the Atlantic last year to the United States, and is threatening in a most impressive way to do it again. Tonight, with half the struggle, he stands just one stroke behind two British players, who are tied for first place, and this despite a somewhat ragged round in the morning.

The leaders, C. A. Whitecombe and Arthur Havers, each covered the two rounds in 146 strokes, while Hagen took 147.

If Hagen fails, there are two others who still have a chance to take the cup to America. One is the Australian champion, Joe Kirkwood, who resides in the United States, and the other is Johnny Farrell of New York, who, however, is considered something of an outsider. Kirkwood scored 151 and Farrell 152 over the 36 holes. Between Kirkwood and Hagen only two names show on the record of today's playing—Gordon Lockhart, with 149 and Robert Scott with 150.

First Triple Play of Texas Loop Season Made By Winners

GALVESTON, June 14.—The Sand Crabs had one big inning today and with five hits put six runs across to defeat the Cats, 6 to 1. After Galveston had batted around in the fourth, Stoner was relieved by Dolly Gray. Both hurlers were wild and Ross went in to pitch in the eighth. Perryman was effective throughout. The Sand Crabs pulled the first triple play of the Texas league season, when in the eighth inning, with Moore and Ross on first and second, Calvo lifted a high one to right which looked good for a home run. Munson reached far up on the right wall for the catch and threw to Distel, who touched second and ran down Ross between first and second for the third out. Score:

ACE ELLIOTT GOING STRONG WITH CUBS

Ace Elliott, who recently went to the Chicago Cubs, played in his first game with the Cubs yesterday afternoon, drawing the attention of the scribes and fans with his fast filed-ing. Elliot is working at his old position on the initial sack, and in the game yesterday handled the ball with all the speed and accuracy of a big league veteran.

Wichita Rotarians Pour It On Burkburnett Club 13 to 12

The Wichita Falls Rotary club took the big end of a 13 to 12 score in a more or less farcial contest at the Athletic park yesterday afternoon when they defeated the Rotarians from Burkburnett. With the playerr on both teams hitting the several hurlers regularly and garnering many safe bingles to the outfields, the game was hard on both the fielders and runners, and many were the exponents of the national pastime who withdrew from the game before it was ended.

The hurlers went on a wild ball throwing rampage and four balls got out of the line far enough to meet with the bodies of the batters. Hanks, a Wichita Falls Rotarian, proudly displays two distinct bumps on his head, as evidence that he reached first twice. He scored the winning run in the seventh inning after reaching the initial sack because of a wild ball thrown by Martin of the Burkburnett aggregation. Horace Robbins and Frank Blum also were given a free trip to first via the "hit by pitcher" route.

Johnny Thomas, who was relief pitcher for the Wichitans, was largely responsible for the win, and in addition to pitching a fast game, hit 1,000 per cent, smashing the ball to the outfield at every trip to the plate.

The game was a result of a challenge made by the Burkburnett Rotary club to the Wichita Falls Rotarians.

ACTIVE STOCKS SHOW UP HEAVY

New Flock of Low Records Made In Conflicting Price Ranges

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, June 14.—Conflicting price movement characterized the desultory trading in today's stock market, most of the active issues displaying a heavy tone throughout the session.

Another flock of new low records for the year were established during the day. United States Steel touched a new bottom at 94 1-4 and then rallied feebly for a net loss of one point on the day. Other stocks to sell at new low prices for the year included Sinclair, Cosden, Pacific and Texas Oils, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Phillips Petroleum, Wilson Packing and Consolidated Textile.

Rail shares offered better resistance to selling pressure than the industrials. Failure to attract a public following in the recent series of favorable dividend developments, however, caused some liquidation by tired holders of stocks.

Reports that flush production in the Southern California oil fields shows signs of having reached its peak failed to stem the liquidation of oil shares, which suffered the heaviest losses. California Petroleum new stock dropped four points.

Call money opened at 4 1-2 per cent, but advanced to 5 before the close. Time money business is quiet, with plenty of money available for the shorter maturities at 4 3-4.

Foreign exchange trading was quiet, with few important changes in rates. Demand sterling held around 4.61 and French francs around 6.35 cents. German marks touched a new low at .0000 1-8 cent.

Football Star Jailed For Raising Bills

Associated Press Dispatch

SAN FRANCISCO, June 14.—Raeburn Doughty, half on the Stanford football team, and until recently a physical instructor in the Sacramento high schools, was arrested by police here late last night after, it is charged, he attempted to pass in a drug store a $2 bill which had been raised to $20.

Police said nine other raised notes were found in the athlete's pockets. Doughty entered Stanford university in 1921, coming from a small Texas college.

FRENCH NOVELIST DIES IN HENDAYE

Associated Press Dispatch

HENDAYE, France, June 14.—Pierre Loti, the novelist, died at his home here today. The end came peacefully, with his bedside surrounded by his children and a few of his friends.

M. Loti had been in frail health for a long time. He returned to his beloved Basque country last Tuesday and sank rapidly until death intervened.

He will be buried in a tomb he built on the Island of Oleron, in the Atlantic off the coast of Charente-Inferieure.

WHEAT SHOWS LATE DECLINE

Averages Rise But Lack Of Sustained Buying Causes Drop

Associated Press Dispatch

CHICAGO, June 14.—Notwithstanding that wheat averaged higher in price today, the market declined at the close in the session, owing chiefly to lack of sustained buying and to almost complete absence of fresh export business. The close was heavy, 1-4 cent to 1 cent net lower, with July 1.10 7-8 to 1.11 and September 1.08 7-8 to 1.09. Corn finished at 1-4 cent off to 3-8 cent gain, oats at 1-4 cent decline to a shade advance and provisions unchanged to 7 cents down.

An upturn in Liverpool quotations, together with unfavorable reports of crop conditions in the Southwest, as well as complaints of dry weather in the Northwest, led temporarily to increased buying and to a moderate upturn in values.

Corn and oats followed wheat. In the provision market commission house selling was more than an offset for the advance in hog values.

RAW SUGAR UNCHANGED

NEW YORK, June 14.—There was no change in raw sugar prices, but a steadier undertone prevailed and a better inquiry was reported. Cubas were quoted at 5 1-2 cents, cost and freight, equal to 7.28 for centrifugal, with duty free sugars at the same level. The sales amounted to 71,000 bags of Cubas to refiners and operators for June shipment and 7,000 bags for Philippines for July arrivals. Raw sugar future closing: July 5.30; September 5.33; December 4.85; March 3.83.

The market for refined sugar was unchanged at 9.25 to 9.90 for fine granulated, but there was no improvement in the demand and business was light. Refined futures nominal.

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, June 14.—July liquidation was the dominating factor in the cotton market again today. Unexpectedly, bullish figures on domestic consumption for the month of May caused rather sharp rallies from an early decline, but the buying was soon supplied, and prices reached the lowest levels of the day in the late trading. July sold off to 27.11, or 83 points net lower, and 169 points below the high price of last Monday. The near month weakness pulled down the later months, with October selling at 24.45, or 47 points net lower, and the close was within four or five points of the lowest, with the market barely steady at net declines of 33 to 90 points.

The market opened barely steady at a decline of 6 to 26 points on the more active months, while August was 60 points lower. There was selling on disappointing Liverpool cables and better weather reports from the South which sent the active positions about 33 to 40 points net lower. The market then rallied on the census report showing domestic consumption of 620,963 bales for the month of May, or the second largest for any one month on record. The market was very weak in the afternoon, when there were rumors that some Southern mills were offering spots for resale, or to exchange for October deliveries, and reiterated reports of New England mill curtailment. Port receipts today, 3,030; United States port stocks, 353,620; exports today, 5,444, making 4,514,768 so far this season.

There is no question about Mistletoe Butter—it is good!

Cream from selected, supervised dairies--pasteurized for purity--churned in snow-white churns in creameries clean as the cleanest kitchen--a food rich in body and nerve building elements--that is Mistletoe Butter.

Few foods contain growth and health producing vitamines more abundantly or in more convenient form than is found in butter.

Pierce Preferred Stockholders Win Court Decision

Associated Press Dispatch

RICHMOND, Va. June 14.—Preferred stockholders of the Pierce Oil corporation won control of the affairs of that company today when the Virginia supreme court of appeals affirmed the decision of the chancery court of this city and held the election of directors last fall by the common stockholders to be illegal. The decision of the high court ended lengthy litigation in which the common and preferred stockholders fought for control of the corporation.

The case was tried in the lower court last December, Judge William A. Moncure holding that the board of directors elected in October was illegally constituted because of the default by the corporation of four quarterly dividends. Under its charter, the control of the company's affairs should have passed to the preferred stockholders following default of the fourth dividend.

Judge Moncure issued an injunction restraining the officers and directors of the corporation from performing any function of their offices pending a review of the case by the supreme court. The decision today ends the controversy so far as the state courts are concerned.

LUMPKIN TO DRILL ON DUNCAN FARM NEAR FREDERICK

FREDERICK, Okla., June 14.—A new oil test on the G. A. Duncan farm, northwest quarter of section 7, township 2 south, range 18, will be drilled by C. S. Lumpkin, who Thursday began hauling rig timber to the location, which is five miles west and one mile north of Frederick.

This well is but 150 feet from the original Duncan test drilled by the McDonald brothers in 1921. Lumpkin drilled the first test. It was announced at that time that oil sand had been encountered. A well was never brought in, however, and a second test on an adjoining quarter proved dry.

The work is being done with a rotary, and the operator is prepared to drill the customary 2,000 feet.

LARGER RAILROAD OIL FREIGHT RATES HELD UP BY I. C. C.

Associated Press Dispatch

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Increases in rates on refined petroleum products moving from refining points in Kansas and Oklahoma to El Paso, and surrounding territory which railroads proposed to make effective June 15 were suspended today by the Interstate Commerce Commission until October 13. The southwestern railroads participating in the plan to raise the rates were notified to appear at a hearing in Houston, Texas, June 27, before interstate commerce commission examiners.

Present rates from Ardmore and Tulsa, Okla., and Augusta, Kansas, typical producing points to El Paso, range from 52 1-2 cents per 100 pounds to 56 1-2 cents but would be increased under the new scheduled to 62 1-2 cents all around.

Wild Wildcat Good Producer

What is termed a wild wildcat of the most wild inclination is proving a good producer and opening up a new Archer county territory, being the Roy I. Carter test in Block 33, Kemp Kempner tract in the Wichita Valley lands which now looks good for 150 barrels before standardization and with a possibility of the production being greater.

The nearest production to the Carter test is the Freeman-Hampton pool two and a half miles southwest. The well was Thursday reported standing 1400 feet in oil and with indications for an excellent producer getting better. The Carter interests control 50 acres around the new well and other tests are expected to be made rapidly. The sand was struck at a depth of 1595 feet and pentrated for a depth of seven feet.

TEXHOMA MAKES ANOTHER TEST

Third Well Goes Down On E Lease Just South Of No. 2 Well

The Texhoma has made a location for its third test on the E least in the Freeman Hampton pool to be located 150 feet south and 490 feet west of the No. 2 well on the lease which is now drilling at 1560 feet.

The Texhoma is hopeful of finding the pay at this test on this particular as it is just south of lease F on which the company now has 13 producing wells.

The moving of material for another Texhoma well to be drilled by Lanning and Monninger has begun in Archer county on the Lyle tract in the Hooper and Wade survey. A derrick has already been erected for a test south of Fowlkes station on the S. B. Burnett tract, S. A. & M. G. survey, abstract 271.

RAINS IN KANSAS
Associated Press Dispatch

KANSAS CITY June 14.— Heavy rains in some portions of Kansas with light showers at many places were reported this morning, just as the swollen streams which have caused several million dollars damage to crop and property were returning to their banks. The rains have caused no appreciable rise in the river of the state, but should they become general, many of the streams probably will again leave their banks.

BRISTOW BRINGS UP PRODUCTION

Southwestern Kansas Hope For Crops Ruined

HUTCHINSON, Kan., June 14.—Southwestern Kansas has practically no hope of delivering a wheat crop this year, farmers and grain men today reported, following a long drought of the winter and unprecedented rainfall last week. Even row crops have been planted two and three times with poor prospects, in many sections it was said. A sudden heat following the rain will blight even the present outlook for crops.

C OF C FROWNS ON GAS BONUS

City Joins Body In Opposing "Ready to Serve" Charge

Decision to co-operate with city officials in opposing the proposed "ready-to-serve" charge of the Municipal Gas company was reached Thursday by the directors of the chamber of commerce at a special meeting.

Support of the chamber had been pledged the city council by W. D. Cline, president, several days ago and the action yesterday was merely in the nature of a ratification of his promise.

Mayor Collier and Utilities Commissioner Stayton appeared before the directors and asked their co-operation in the fight.

City officials stated Thursday that thus far nothing more had developed in regard to the fight against the new monthly charge of 50 cents. City Attorney E. M. Mann is to attend a meeting in Denton early next week, at which time the matter will be taken up and it is expected that some definite plan of action will be outlined there.

Wichita Falls Offers Opportunity For Poultry Men to Reap Harvest

AL OLSTON.
Extension Department, Medical Coal & Feed Company, Poultry Editor, The Record News.

"The amount of broilers and springs offered for market here this year will show a 25 per cent decrease. This has been a good year for young stuff and the other poultry will show about the same numbers. No eggs or poultry are shipped from here," was seen in the Produce Packer of June 8 concerning the Wichita Falls market.

This article only goes to show that Wichita Falls is one of the best local markets in the country. Ever holding her arms extended offering wonderful and attractive prices for all the farmer and poultry man cares to sell, Wichita Falls is well adapted to the poultry industry. Today many of the farmers are working in their grain fields and leaving the poultry end of the game shift for itself and not realizing the money they are losing by this plan.

Fryers and springs are holding their own just now, but as soon as the farmers harvest their crops they will begin to bring in their extra birds, thus causing a drop in the market. The best plan is to bring in all your fowls before the others start bringing in theirs.

H. A. Bittenbender of the Iowa State College says, "One of the greatest aids to successful winter egg production is in the presence of a large flock of young pullets that are in prime condition. On most farms chicks hatched in April or May require from seven to nine months to reach mathrity, usually laying no eggs until the following spring."

Due to improved methods of management the time between hatching and egg laying is steadily becoming shorter and shorter. Last spring a flock of S. C. White Leghorns started laying eggs 109 days after hatching. This is said to be a record, as the shortest time previously reported was 116 days and this was with only one pullet.

A fact that is hard to account for is that these pullets that were laying at 109 days of age weighed slightly more than old hens of the same breed. They were fully matured and not merely crowded for egg production. This is shown by the way they continued to lay eggs. About 50 per cent of the pullets in this record group continued laying through the entire summer.

One feature in the feeding of these birds was the prominent place given buttermilk in the food. Not a drop of water was given them but a supply of buttermilk was always at hand for them to drink. Separate all your growing stock from your old stock and if possible let them run on a free range. Have good colony houses in order to protect them from bad weather.

Keep your cockrels from your pullets and only keep enough male stuff that you intend to use as breeders.

The mash should be kept before the pullets at all times. If possible give as much as one gallon of milk to every 60 pullets daily.

Answers to Questions.

R. M., City.—Yes, I am surprised at the poor vitality in the chicks and the low percentage of hatches that are coming from your hatchery. Nothing can be done for the chicks you spoke about. The cause is in the hatchery. No, feeding will not help them and they can't live much longer. You will soon be noticing them lying in bunches.

The fire department had the blessings of Monroe street heaped on its collective head Thursday when it finished removing some of the surplus moisture in the lagoon district. "You'll never have to come around here and fight fire," one resident told them, "there's too darn much water here to allow one to start."

Material for a dispute that may be everlasting was provided Thursday afternoon when Doc Landon and Bill Norton tangled up with W. E. Rippy and Doc Burleson in a high-powered doubles match on the Country club tennis courts. It was hard to decide who won, but hostilities brought out some points that at least caused "discussion." All four players said that 10 years ago they were pretty good.

Two new coaches were received by the Wichita Falls & Southern railroad Thursday and will be put into immediate service, according to officials of the company. The coaches are modern in every way and were shipped direct from the factory. They will be put on the run between here and Breckenridge within the next few days.

Woman Makes Bond

A $500 recognizance bond was made Thursday before Judge Guy Rogers of the county court at law by Mrs. Selba Galloway of Burkburnett, convicted recently on charges of operating a bawdy house. She gave notice of appeal after a motion for a new trial had been overruled.

She was fined $200 and sentenced to 20 days in the county jail.

LAGOON PUMPED DRY ONCE MORE

"Monroe Lagoon" was pumped dry again by the fire department Thursday, this making the third time that the big trucks have been called out to provide relief for water logged residents of Monroe street between Avenues D and E.

The two largest pumps of the department, those at stations 1 and 2, were forced to go a lively speed for an hour and a half before all the water had been lifted from front yards and sidewalks in the afflicted territory.

Forty-one gallons of gasoline and 10 gallons of oil were consumed during the operation.

TESTIMONY OF ENOREE WOLFE MAY BE USED IN CASE

Application to perpetuate the testimony of Enoree Wilfe, former wife of Conner O'Neil, was filed in district court Thursday by John O'Neil as a prelude to a contemplated suit against Conner O'Neil for recovery of certain sums of money awarded Conner O'Neil in previous litigation between he and John O'Neil.

It is further set forth in the petition that Enoree Wilfe, nee Enoree O'Neil, is and has been for several months seriously ill and that her testimony in the case to come is highly important. He asks that questions, submitted in the petition, be propounded to her and made admissable as evidence when the trial of the case comes.

RAIN DELAYS WHEAT SALES

Wagon Grain Brings 93c; No. 3 Oats Quoted At 40c

Reports from local grain companies say that practically no grain has been brought in by the nearby farmers due to the recent rains.

After a few loads of grain had been brought into the city and threshers all over this district had begun work, rains began and have delayed the harvesting for several days.

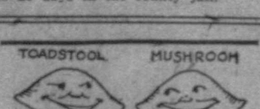

Providing no more rain falls between now and Monday, the local grain men are expecting that day to usher in the real grain market season, which will continue for several weeks.

Wagon wheat No. 2 was still selling at 93 cents Thursday, with No. 3 oats at 40 cents.

A field of wheat near here yielded nine bushels of wheat to the acre, according to County Agent Guy R. Jones. The land belonged to Nick Urban in the Mt. Carmel district. The grain was headed and threshed at the same time.

TOADSTOOL MUSHROOM

The Proof of the Difference is in the Eating

MUSHROOMS and toadstools look so much alike that now and then somebody mistakes one for the other and the doctor gets a rush job.

Perhaps you can tell a mushroom from a toadstool—before eating. If you can't you'll find it pays to ask someone who can, rather than take a chance—and the same rule applies to valve cup buying.

Darcova Valve Cups and other valve cups may look pretty much alike but the difference is vast.

Before you re-cup, ask your neighbors in the oil country. They will tell you that "Darcovas" last longer and pump more oil.

Or a hillside broad and wide
