Union Rejects Support For Administration

NEW YORK (AP)—The merged AFL-CIO has rejected an appeal for support of Eisenhower administration labor policies and criticised them sharply.

The more than 1,400 convention delegates voted unanimoqsly to "condemn the administration for its failure to live up to its campaign promises to rid the Taft-Hartley law of its antilabor provisions."

Other resolutions yesterday "denounced" operation of the National Labor Relations Board under the present administration and criticized current economic policies.

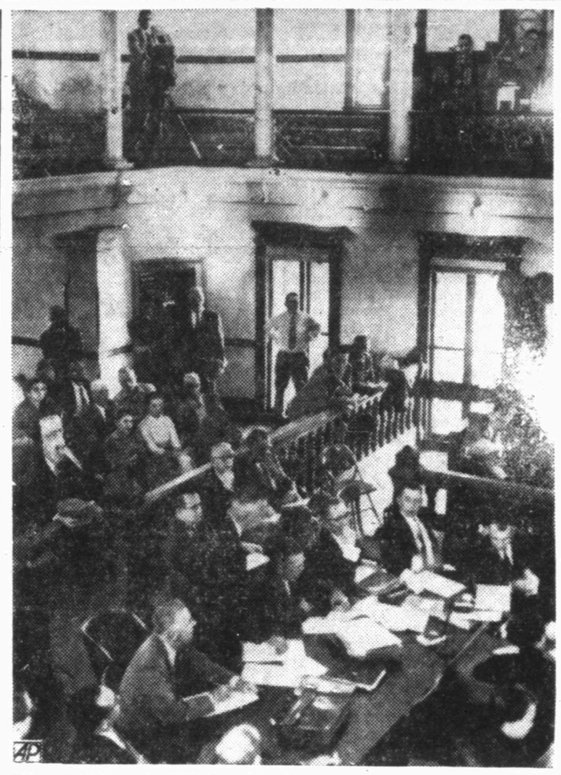
"The administration," said one resolution, "seems more interested in tilting with the windmill of inflation by increasing interest rates than in creating the environment necessary for economic expansion.

"We recognize that monetary policy is a legitimate tool for stabilizing the economy but it is merely one of many weapons in the arsenal of economic programs."

This resolution said automobile production and home building are "leveling off" and said government housing, tax and social aid programs should be geared up to counter any possible economic decline.

Secretary of Labor Mitchell had called on the AFL-CIO in a speech yesterday to support administration policies. He said that under the Eisenhower administration workers were benefiting from a stable economy and high wages.

The convention resolution dealing with the NLRB disagreed with a series of board decisions and said, "The administration-dominated board has established ... antiunion policies almost entirely detrimental to the rights of labor."



TV RECORDS MURDER TRIAL—KWTX-TV camera records the proceedings in the district court at Waco, Tex., during the trial of Harry Washburn, who is accused of the car-bomb slaying of his former mother-in-law. Judge D. W. Bartlett granted permission after both the defense and prosecution agreed to the televising. The camera and sound equipment are located in the balcony of the court room.

Surgeon From Big Spring Nabbed In Arizona Motel

Registers As Snyder Man

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — Dr. Frank Sainburg, charged in New York with kidnaping his son, was arrested in a motel here today.

With him were Phillip II, 4, and Mary Jean Nance, 4, daughter of his present wife by a previous marriage.

Sainburg is being held in the county jail, awaiting arrival of a warrant from Ithaca, N.Y.

The children were taken to her home by Mrs. Clara Peny, jail matron.

Sainburg is a former member of the staff of the Veterans Hospital at Big Spring, Tex.

Police Sgt. R. G. Dehn said Yuma officers made the arrest after being informed by Ithaca Police Chief William Simmers that Sainburg had made a phone call from the Flamingo Motel.

Police made the arrest at 3:04 a.m., awakening Sainburg and the children. There was no resistance.

Sainburg had registered on arrival last night as Jack Carpenter and family of Snyder, Tex.

Sgt. Dehn said he had been advised by Ithaca authorities that Sainburg had been indicted for kidnaping, burglary and second degree assault.

Sainburg made no statement to Yuma police about the case which began Nov. 14, when he is alleged to have kidnaped his son from his former wife, who had court custody of the child.

He left Longview, Tex., with the children after a contempt of court order was issued against him for refusal to give up custody of his son.

A new charge of threatening a human life was filed against Sainburg yesterday at Longview in connection with a telephone call he made to his wife Saturday night from Hobbs, N.M.

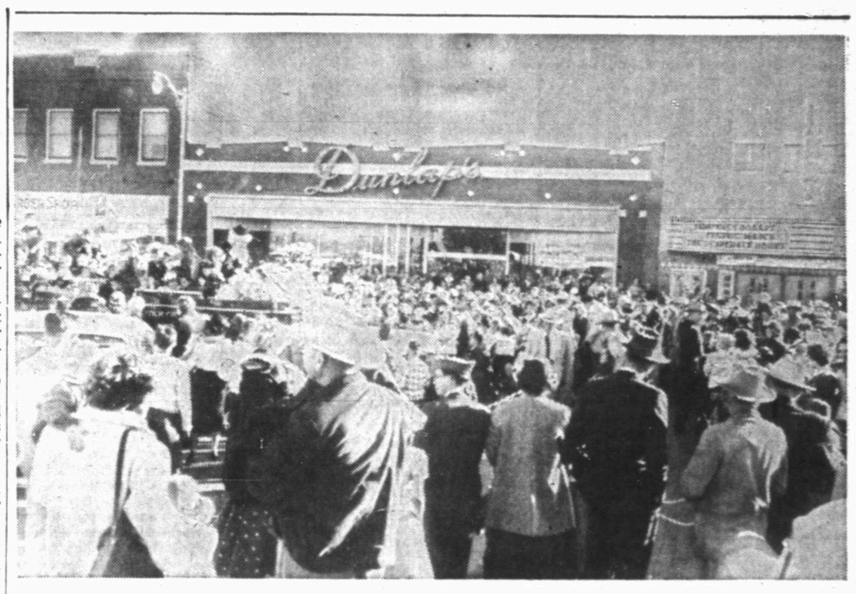
He is alleged to have told his wife that she would never see her daughter alive again unless charges against him were droped.

Mrs. Sainburg had been in the Longview jail in what officers said was "protective custody."

Sainburg fled from Texas after he was fined $100 and ordered jailed when he failed Friday to appear in court at Longview to answer a show cause order.

The court had ordered him jailed "until he has purged himself of contempt by complying with the order of this court" that he show cause why he should not be held in contempt for failing to surrender custody of Philip to his former wife, Miss Doris Blanchard of Ithaca.

She had been awarded custody of the child by a Texas court in 1954. After Sainburg took Philip again in November, the show cause order was won. The contempt citation had the effect of ordering Sainburg to surrender the child to Miss Blanchard.



SANTA ON SNYDER VISIT—Santa Claus paid a brief visit to Snyder yesterday afternoon to prepare everyone here for his traditional visit the night of Dec. 24. He flew in from the north pole, and was brought downtown on a city fire truck. A crowd, including thousands of children, jammed the street south of the courthouse square to greet the welcome visitor. Attlee Quits As Party Head

LONDON (AP) — Pipe-smoking Clement Attlee, the mild-manered Socialist who directed creation of Britain's welfare state, resigned today as leader of the Labor party.

A three-cornered fight for the top post in the British oposition party apeared shaping up among the deputy leader, Herbert Morrison, 67; 49-year-old Hugh Gaitskell; and Aneurin Bevan, 58, fiery Welsh leader of the party's left wing.

Bevan was given almost no chance, however, against Morrison or Gaitskell, both followers of Attlee's moderate policies. Morrison's age could count against him.

Characteristically, the 72-year-old Attlee almost tiptoed out of the party leadership he had held for 20 years — a record in modern British politics.

He handed in his resignation at a closed meeting of Labor members of Parliament which lasted less than half an hour. His colleagues saluted him with "For he's a jolly good fellow."

Attlee was visibly moved. His lips quivered.

Age and ill health were responsible for his retirement from the minority leadership in the House of Commons. The man who served as Britain's Prime Minister from 1945 to 1951 had found direction of the party's opposition to the Conservative government an increasing burden in recent months. Labor's defeat in the general election in May might have speeded his decision.

Witness Tells Story Of Murder For Hire

WACO (AP)—State witness James Ray Fife levelled a finger at Harry Washburn today and identified him as the man who tried to hire him to kill Harry E. Weaver at San Angelo in 1954.

Fife, first witness today in Washburn's TV murder trial, said he and a friend took Washburn's cash, spent it, and never harmed Weaver.

Washburn, 39, Houston businessman and former son-in-law of Weaver, is accused of planting the auto bomb that killed Mrs. Weaver Jan. 19.

The trial is believed to be the first televised live from the courtroom. The entire proceedings were carried by Station KWT—TV yesterday.

Judge D. W. Bartlett made a brief introductory talk before court formally opened today to the radio and TV audience explaining court procedure.

Only a scattering of spectators showed up, most of them apparently preferring to stay home and watch their TV sets.

The trial was transferred here because an unbiased jury could not be obtained in San Angelo.

Weaver told the court yesterday that Washburn was the first suspect he named after the dynamite explosion that rocked the West Texas ranching city.

Fife said Washburn contacted him in March of 1954 and said "He had a party he wanted me to kill. He said the party was Mr. Harry E. Weaver."

The witness then told of several trips over the state with one Johnny McKinnis, also of Houston.

He said he first told Washburn: "I don't do things like that, Harry."

He said Washburn replied: "Well, if you don't do it, how about getting me someone to do it?"

It was then, Fife testified, that he got in touch with McKinnis.

He said Washburn gave them $450 at a meeting arranged at a Houston drivein cafe, calling it expense money for a trip to the little town of Robert Lee, near the Weaver ranch north of San Angelo.

Instead, the two went to Galveston and splurged the money. They came back and told Washburn they had been to San Angelo "but the fellow had too much company."

Washburn then told them to return to San Angelo and telephone him from there. He gave them another $50.

Fife said he and McKinnis rode a bus to San Antonio, then to San Angelo. They telephoned Washburn and told him "The weather is too rough and they have too much company at the ranch."

He said they returned by San Antonio, picking up a $40 telegraph money order from Washburn there.

Fife said they met with Washburn a third time in Houston and he arranged another trip to San Angelo "to kill Weaver." He said Washburn furnished them a rented car, $50 in cash, and a shotgun and pistol

Ike Reviews U.S. Economy

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — President Eisenhower reviewed the state of the nation's economy today with his special advisers in that field.

He conferred with Dr. Arthur Burns, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, and economic aide Gabriel Hauge. They arrived at the President's post office headquarters at 8:45 a.m.

This review of the national balance sheet took place against the background of a virtual certainty that defense spending next year won't fall much, if any, below the present 34½ billion dollar level.

Secretary of Defense Wilson, after conferring with Eisenhower yesterday, gave out the word that defense outlays would be around that figure — although he conceded it would be "pretty tough" to hold to that amount.

Plane Crashes Into Houses

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A Navy Banshee jet plane crashed in Richmond's fashionable Windsor Farms residential section today and set two houses on fire.

The pilot, Ens. Robert Amman, parachuted to safety in a Richmond residential area. He talked with a newspaper reporter by telephone soon afterwards. He was apparently unhurt.

The jet was assigned to the Oceana Naval Air Station at Virginia Beach.

"I was flying at about 20,000 feet when something went wrong," Amman said. "I don't know what happened. The plane was uncontrollable and I bailed out. It was an ejection seat. It took me 15 minutes to land."

Amman, 22, of Dallas, Tex., landed several miles from where the plane crashed.

Police said one home in Windsor Farms was demolished. There were no immediate reports of injuries.

Probe Of Woman's Skeleton Started

CASPER, Wyo. (AP)—A woman's skelton, chipped by police hammers from a concrete tomb in the home of a respected family of seven, has started a bizarre investigation.

The grisly find solved the disappearance 29 months ago of Mrs. Barbara Alexander, 27. But in turn it led to new and macabre puzzles.

Mrs. Alexander's body, the hands clutching a rude cross at the chest, was found in the basement of the east Casper home of her husband James, 48, a former schoolteacher here.

"The body was pointed out to us by the person who buried it," said Natrona County Atty. Ray Whittaker. "That person was Mrs. Rose Alexander."

Rose Alexander is James' first and also his present wife. Married some years ago, they had two children and later were divorced, Whittaker said. Alexander then married Barbara Alexander, who had two children by a previous marriage and one by Alexander. All the children lived at the Alexanders' home here.

Barbara Alexander vanished in July 1953, but, for reasons not explained, her disappearance was not reported by Alexander until "about nine months later," the county attorney said.

Asked by the missing woman's parents at Hardin, Mont., to continue an investigation, police questioned the present Mrs. Alexander. On Monday, Police Chief C. J. Carter said, Mrs. Rose Alexander signed a statement relating these details:

She went to the Alexander home in 1953. Barbara came to the door and stumbled against a pile of bricks. The bricks toppled, killing her. Rose, shocked and frightened, dragged the body into the house and returned several days later to bury it in the basement.

Alexander was building the home, and the basement was unfinished. Carter said the body apparently was placed in dry cement, then was wet down and covered with dirt and a concrete floor.

Where was Alexander at the time his wife was killed? Where were the five children? Police say they do not know.

Sometime after the incident, Rose Alexander returned to live with her former husband.

Alexander resigned as a shop instructor at Casper High School last spring, and in August he and his family moved to Worland, Wyo., where he works as a machinist. The home here was left unoccupied.

Acting on Mrs. Rose Alexander's statement and at her direction, police began drilling in the basement Monday night. At first they were unsuccessful. Then the Alexanders' pet dog, a St. Bernard, came to the basement and whimpered over a spot in another corner.

Officers dug there, and within minutes unearthed the body.

Alexander identified a wedding ring on the hand of the dead woman as one he had given Barbara.

Police permitted Alexander and his wife to return to their home overnight.

Seriously Burned Youth Tells Of Being Used As Human Torch

CLEVELAND (AP) — A frail 17-year-old boy's story of being made into a human torch by three youths who chained him to a tree may be a hoax, Detective David E. Kerr said today.

There were so many discrepancies in the boy's account that further investigation may show the three youths existed only in his imagination, said Kerr, who is head of the homicide bureau.

Earl R. Fryman, suffering second and third degree burns over about 85 per cent of his body, was in poor condition today in a hospital.

Naked, and with a tree branch chained to his waist, he lurched into Fairview Hospital last night through a kitchen door.

He said three youths had drenched him with turpentine and lighted it. He told of walking a mile to reach the hospital, through a heavily wooded valley of the Rocky River in Metropolitan Park.

He told police three strange youths about his own age picked him up yesterday morning as he was hitchhiking to St. Ignatius Parochial School, where he is a senior. Because the car had St. Ignatius stickers on the windshield, he said, he thought they attended the same school.

But instead of taking him to school, they held him captive and drove around Cleveland until dusk, he continued.

Then for some reason the three became "mad and disgusted," he said, and drove down into the river valley, where they chained him to the tree and secured the chain with a cheap padlock. He said he could not explain their motive.

He said that when the youths left him, he broke loose from the tree and rolled on the ground to put out the flames.

Police found his clothing snagged on a branch overhanging the river. An empty turpentine can lay nearby and Fryman's schoolbooks were on the river bottom.

Fryman's parents were too upset to talk to reporters, but his 69-year-old grandmother Mrs. Juliea Keller, who lives with them, said he was an excellent student. A friend of the family, Atty. Marvin J. Schatz, said the boy was considering entering the priesthood.

Fryman's father Earl is a merchandising employe of a food company. His mother Irene is a supermarket cashier.

Police were combing the park area today for clues.

Congress May Get Improved School Plans

NEW YORK (AP)— A Cabinet member said today the Eisenhower administration "will present to Congress a broadened and improved program to help build thousands of schools for our children."

Marion B. Folsom, secretary of health, education and welfare, outlined government intentions on the convention of the newly merged school problem at the founding AFL-CIO.

"It is perfectly possible, I am sure, for the federal government to help build schools for our children without in any way endangering the freedom of local school systems," Folsom said.

Folsom said that the administration believes strongly that states and local communities must continue to increase their efforts.

President Eisenhower, he said, believes lack of school facilities "no longer can be allowed."

"Every 10 minutes, new classrooms of children are reaching school age," Folsom said. "Every 10 minutes, a new teacher and a new classroom are needed."

Folsom is the second Cabinet member to address the convention. Secretary of Labor Mitchell spoke tration's policies, the convention yesterday. Although he asked the convention to support the admin- adopted resolutions critical of it.

Such action resulted only 24 hours after President Eisenhower had addressed the convention by telephone from Gettysburg.

The program to be presented to Congress, Folsom said, culminates months of work by the administration in "developing a plan of federal assistance to help erase the nation's deficit of classrooms."

Israel, Arab Threat Of War Is Lessened

WASHINGTON (AP)—Top officials believe the threat of war between Israel and Arab countries has eased.

They credit this to intensive diplomatic efforts by the United States, Britain and the United Nations.

Both Arabs and Israelis, despite their continuing dispute, they said, are now thinking in terms of negotiating a compromise peace settlement.

Two months ago many had considered an explosive war likely after Egypt's big arms deal with the Communist bloc.

Officials acknowledged the improving outlook might be only temporary. No formula has yet been found for peace talks.

Israel's Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett made it clear yesterday he does not share what he described as "a wave of optimism" over peace prospects.

After calling on Secretary of State Dulles yesterday, he reported he saw "no improvement" in the picture. "I see the possibility of things getting worse," he added.

Officials said Sharett's gloomy outlook applied more to long-range prospects rather than the immediate situation. They noted the nearly daily clashes along the Israeli frontiers have subsided considerably, and saw little chance that either side would launch a major attack at present.

With this lowering of tensions, they said, even the prospects of a lasting peace settlement are brighter.

British Prime Minister Eden is recognized as having played a big role in calming Arab countires by his proposal last mbnth to mediate their quarrel with Israel. President Eisenhower's Nov. 9 statement appealing for talks is believed to have allayed Israeli fears considerably. Likewise, Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, United Nations truce supervisor in the area, has played a big part in calming both sides.

The grand jury made its report at about 10:30 a.m. today to Sterling Wiliams, district judge.

Sheriff Homer Whisnand and his department, Highway Patrolmen E. W. Green and Bill Zimmerman, the Snyder police department, County Attorney Wayland Holt, and District Attorney Renal B. Rosson were all commended by the grand jury in the report made by the jury foreman, Leonard Spence.

The report said, in part, "And we further wish to commend Homer Whisnand, the sheriff of Scurry County, and his deputies; the police department of the City of Snyder, and the county and district attorneys for their conscientious and effective work and efforts in apprehending and prosecuting offenders of the law and in helping make law and order a matter to be proud of in this city and county."

One case was passed, to be further considered Saturday when the jury reconvenes.

Two indictments returned were for murder, one aggravated assault, three for driving while intoxicated as a repeated offense, one for burglary, and one for felony swindling by worthless check.

U. S. Personal Income Hiked During October

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another sharp increase in Americans' personal income during October raised the 10-month total to the rate of 301 billion dollars a year, the Commerce Department reported today.

That figure is 14 billions higher than the annual rate for the first 10 months of 1954.

For October, personal income reached a record high rate of 309½ billion dollars a year, more than 1½ billions higher than in September.

Two thirds of the rise was attributed to bigger wage and salary payments, reflecting both increases in wage rates and gains in employment. Wage increases were a major factor.

Defendant Passes His Own Sentence

CHICAGO (AP)—Fred J. Estrada, 20, in Traffic Court yesterday on a charge of drunken driving, admitted to Judge Joseph Butler he led police on a four-mile high-speed chase.

"You read the papers, don't you?" Butler asked the youth. "And do you know what they do to drunken drivers like you?"

"They get a year in the county jail," Estrada replied.

"You have just passed your own sentence," the judge said.

East German Reds Arrest Americans

BERLIN (AP) — East Berlin Communists, exercising new Soviet-granted sovereignty, announced today they have arrested two American soldiers.

The two were not identified, and the U. S. Army could not immediately confirm the announcement broadcast by the East Berlin radio.

But it raised speculation that the Communists would use the two soldiers as an example, put them on trial before one of their courts, and thus demonstrate that East Berlin, as the Russians declared last week, is no longer occupied territory.

The Communist East Berlin newspaper, Bz Am Abend, said however East Berlin police had turned the Americans over to Soviet military authorities.

The Bz also did not name the soldiers, but it used a picture of a uniformed American holding his hand over his face with the caption: "One of the gangsters."

The radio said the two were arrested after beating a male cabaret performer unconscious. The performer was identified as Werner Lierck, of the Distel cabaret.

The radio announcement was later confirmed by the official East German news agency ADN.

ADN said the two soldiers attempted to flee by jumping into a taxi and ordering the driver to take them to the East-West sector boundary. The driver agreed, and drove them until he found two Communist policemen.

Then, ADN said, he stopped and "brought about the immediate arrest of the rowdies."

ADN said the incident occurred at 2:45 a.m. as Lierck and his wife were leaving the Hajo bar in East Berlin.

The soldiers had also been in the bar, ADN said.

The strike, No. 1 D. E. Wells, three miles southeast of the Mungerville (Pennsylvanian) field, was finaled for a daily potential of 892.8 barrels of 37-gravity oil.

Potential was based on a 10-hour flow of 372 barrels of oil through a ½-inch choke and perforations from 12,081 to 12,096 feet after 500 gallons of mud acid. Gas-oil ratio was from 1601 to 25-1.

The test was not completed satisfactory due to a small leak in drillpipe.

Coring continued below 7,563 feet.

Location is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 9, block 1, J. Poitevent survey.

GM Praised, Given Ideas On Remedies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top officials of General Motors got some praise from Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) today plus a request for their ideas on solving other problems of the auto industry.

O'Mahoney told reporters he hopes that Ford and Chrysler will follow the surprise move of General Motors in extending its one-year retail dealer contracts to five years.

GM President Harlow H. Curtice announced the longer-term agreements at the start of yesterday's public hearing by O'Mahoney's Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee.

Curtice said "misleading statements" of a "few complaining dealers" at the hearings might cause "possible damage to General Motors good will."

In Detroit, the Ford Motor Co. declined comment on GM's policy change. A Ford spokesman also declined to say how long its dealer contracts run.

Chrysler spokesmen said their company's dealer contracts are "perpetual agreements." They never automatically expire but are subject to cancellation by either side "for cause" on 30 days notice.

"We are very much indebted to GM for the frank way in which they have met issues as they were presented," O'Mahoney said as he asked additional testimony before the subcommittee.

He termed the extended contract "at least one step—a short step" in improving the lot of the retail auto dealer.

The subcommittee has been conducting what O'Mahoney calls a study of GM as the largest industry in the nation and the world.

Some former and present GM dealers have complained at the hearings about "packing of sales," failure to control bootlegging of new cars, unethical advertising, and high profits for manufacturers while retail dealers face "economic ruin."

Debs Create Problem For Great Britain

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Launching a debutante in London is one of the trickiest affairs in the world.

Just now ladies who wish to present a budding belle to Queen Elizabeth II are flooding the lord chamberlain's office with letters. The petitions must be in Dec. 16.

Having an eligible girl of 17 presented at the royal court is relatively easy compared with some of the low jinks, manipulations and high-powered financing that follow.

Presentations come in March. All that the proud parents have to do is to get someone who's been presented at court to forward daughter's name to the lord chamberlain.

Complete strangers will sponsor the damsel—for a consideration. This advertisement is typical:

"Peeress would like to chaperon debutante for the London season. Write box——."

Unless the girl has a criminal record or is an active member of the Central Committee of the Soviet Union, she'll probably be accepted.

Then comes the real struggle. No general has to deploy his forces more adroitly than a matron steering her fledgling through a London social season.

In this costly parade of the 17-year-olds (some of them Americans) Papa can be separated from large wads of money.

A season can cost from 1,000 pounds ($2,800) to just how high you want your daughter to kick that social gong. There have been heavily fortified fathers who forked up 20,000 pounds.

For some girls it's a never-to-be-forgotten experience . . . soft lights and sweet music . . . handsome young men . . . boy meets girl . . . night rides on the Thames . . . champagne and caviar . . . long weekends in the English countryside on hilarious house parties in the still stately homes . . .

For other girls the season can be a hellish stretch of awful weeks, filled with heartbreak and humiliation at trying to keep up with richer or prettier girls. Some parents employ public relations experts to keep the girls' names before the public.

And there is the question of clothes.

The deb should have at least six evening dresses and perhaps eight cocktail dreses. There must be that extra, extra model for the coming out ball It usually costs $500.

The coming out ball—unless she joins in with several other girls for a joint affair—can cost up to $10,000 or $12,000.

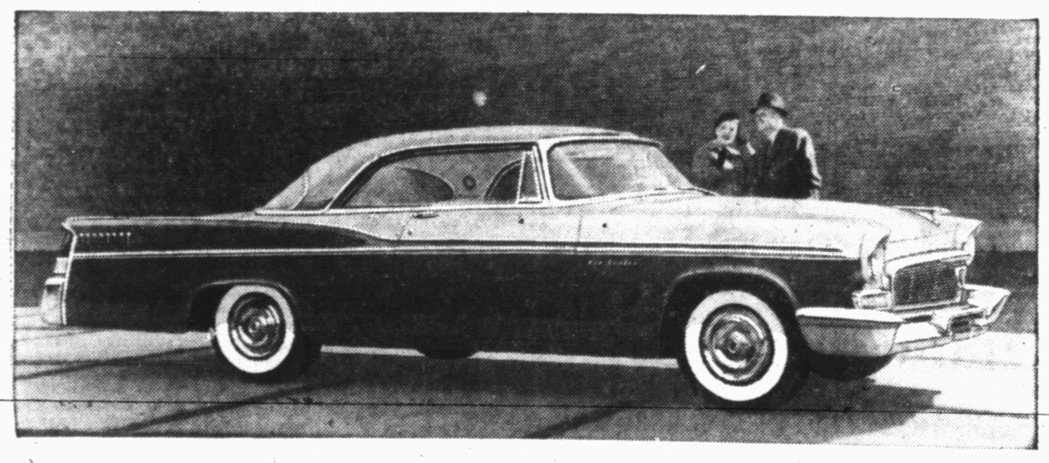
"Best car manufactured in America today"

That's what Floyd Clymer, famous automobile authority, said about Chrysler in Popular Mechanics (October)



"I have tested many fine automobiles over all kinds of terrain," writes Mr. Clymer, "and in my judgment Chrysler is the best automobile manufactured in America today."

When you compare this Chrysler with the other two major cars in its price class, you will be in for an electrifying awakening. Because this is power driving as it was meant to be.

You push the "D" on the Pushbutton PowerFlite Drive and a mighty airplane-type engine whisks you away in an instant. There's a new, wonderfully easy feel-of-the-road with full-time PowerPilot Steering . . . a straight, sure, velvety sense of safety in the stops you get with PowerSmooth Brakes . . . a world of authority in the tremendous response of Chrysler's exclusive airplane-type FirePower V-8 engine!

Just one look at this car tells you the power's there. You see it in the flairing "PowerStyle" lines . . . in the flight-swept look of its rear deck and fenders. Let us put you behind the wheel of the "PowerStyle" Chrysler for just 15 minutes this week. Compare its all-around performance with its two price competitors. Then you'll know why "the best car manufactured in America" is your best buy! Come in or call us today!

Talk Is Given Here On Spiritual Values

"The Family Lives By Spirtual Value" was the subject of a talk given by Ted Norton, minister of the Twenty-fifth Church of Christ, to the High School P-TA at their meeting Monday in the high school cafeteria, at 3:45 p.m.

Mrs. Shiflett, Spanish Teacher, gave a report on the State Convention, which she attended recently in Ft. Worth. She said that P-TA is not sponsored for small children only, but it benefits the high school students as well, because they need purpose, entertainment and guidance, which can be sponsored by P-TA.

The High School P-TA gives a scholarship to some student, picked by Mr. T. D. Wiman, Jr., principal of High School and a committee, each year. A larger scholarship could be given if all parents interested would attend and pay their dues, a P-TA member said. Myrtle Scott received the scholarship last year and is now attending Hardin-Simmons in Abilene.

A social hour followed the meeting. The next meeting will be the first Monday in Janurary at 3:40 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

About 25 members attended.

Aviation Pioneer Passes

Although overshadowed by the Wright brothers as a patron saint of aviation, Glenn L. Martin, dead at 69, was one of the towering figures in the development and rapid growth of that industry. The Wright brothers were the first to build and ride an airplane as we know it today, but it remained for Glenn Martin to build and pilot the first plane ever to leave the ground under its own power.

That was August 1, 1909. He lived to see his company chosen by the government to make and launch the first manmade earth catellite, almost half a century later; thus his life and activity spanned the science of flight all the way from the ground to the outmost reaches of the stratosphere.

Young bachelor Martin built his first plane in an abandoned church at Santa Ana, Calif., putting on the finishing touches while his mother held a lamp to see by. The engine he used came out of an automobile. He lived to become president of one of the giants of America plane production, stepped out as chairman of the board in 1952, but continued as director and principal stockholder.

Martin and his company pioneered many developments and innovations in plane production, and less than 20 years ago the Martin bomber was the wonder of modern aviation. Later it was to look like a toy besides the giants of the present day, but it broke new ground and upset all previous conceptions regarding bombardment as one of the principal weapons of warfare.

On the eve of WWII the Martin B-10 was the marvel of the time, so "secret" and costly and complicated that no one below the rank of captain was permitted to pilot it. Almost before you could turn around it was a museum piece.

Today a super-bomber could carry a B-10 under each wing without much inconvenience.

Outlaw Of Weapons

Talk of outlawing nuclear weapons will likely continue to be heard from time to time, especially from those who persist in believing that to abolish an evil it is only necessary to pass a law.

They make it sound very practical and sensible. It is unlikely, they say, that any nation would use such weapons in a new war, thanks to the ability of the other side to retaliate, so why not go all the way and outlaw the A-bomb and the H-bomb; that is, forbid their use, destroy existing stockpiles, and establish rigid international inspection to insure compliance.

In the Washington armament limitation conference of 1922 it was proposed to outlaw the use of submarines altogether but France objected so restrictions were put on their use instead. France never ratified this, either, so the treaty was never effective. But by 1930 France, Britain, Japan, Italy and the U.S. accepted the restriction on submarines, and this understanding was renewed in 1936, at which time Germany also accepted.

Nevertheless, when the chips went down in World War II both sides used unrestricted submarine warfare.

The 1922 conference also outlawed poison gas, but again France would not go along. By 1925 it was proposed to add bacteriological warfare, but this time the U.S. refused to go along because such a step was unrealistic.

Nevertheless, both gas and germ warfare were absent in World War II—not because a number of great powers outlawed them, but because of (1) the power of retaliation, (2) their indecisive nature and (3) inability to insure that the user wouldn't suffer from its own gas or germs.

Nuclear weapons are decisive, all right, but there is no reason to believe a treaty could insure against their use. As with poison gas and germ warfare, reason and logic may eventually rule out their use. Meantime the free world will have to keep abreast of the potentials of nuclear warfare or lose its own best hope of standing off aggression.

Men Are Deadly

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Insurance underwriters disagree with Kipling's famous line. They think the male driver under 25 is more deadly than the female—especially if he is unmarried.

Proposals for revised liability insurance rates, filed with the state, ask increases up to 43.6 per cent for unmarried male drivers under 25. Such drivers who are married would get off lighter and girls in the same age bracket—married or unmarried—would get a decrease.

Neither Party Can Afford To 'Stand Pat' On Foreign Policy Issue During Campaign

BY WALTER LIPPMANN

Although words like moderate, constructive, non-partisan are hard to define, it does not follow that they do not mean something important. There is in fact every indication that these adjectives express qualities which a preponderant majority are looking for in the next president. We need not boggle too much over the definitions. There are lots of things in this world which are hard to define in the abstract and yet are obvious enough in the concrete.

Take, for example, an egg. There is hardly an egg-eater in the country who could tell a press conference what a good egg is. But it is no problem at all to recognize a bad egg. It is just about as easy to recognize an immoderate, destructive, and partisan politician.

If, as we all hope, there is to be an honest, serious and public-spirited discussion of foreign affairs, there is only one way to go about getting it. That is to see to it that each party nominates the kind of man who does not and who will not stoop to extremism, violence, and demagoguery. If either of the candidates is the kind of man who thinks that he is entitled to do anything to win, no amount of pious talk now will save us from a poisonous campaign. The character of the coming campaign, will, in short be determined by the character of the candidates.

* * *

During the months to come the country, regardless of the campaign, will be hearing a great deal about foreign affairs. That is because a re-appraisal, looking to a revision and a reinforcement in several sectors of our foreign policy, has become necessary. Our basic commitments to the United Nations, to our allies in NATO, to our neighbors, are not in question. But there is little doubt that policy, which is periously near being at a dead end, and certain aspects of our containment policy in the Middle East and South Asia.

The overall characteristic of the situation is that, as of now, there is no clear issue on which Americans are divided and can take their stand and argue their side of the case. The old bi-partisanship consisted of a coalition of Republicans and Democrats who were for the United Nations, who were for the Marshall Plan and NATO and the like. The crux of the present situation is that the policies are not yet formed, that the policies have still to be hammered out, around which a bi-partisan coalition could be rallied.

This peculiar situation lends itself all too easily to aimless and irresponsible political talk. We shall not avoid that kind of talk by exhorting one another to be constructive. The bottom fact of the matter is that neither party and none of the candidates now has the answer to the questions that need to be answered. They are all seeking, or ought to be seeking, answers that have not yet been found.

* * *

The character of the campaign on foreign affairs will in the main be determined by the way the party leaders approach the search for these policies that have not yet been found. The primary responsibility is with the Administration, with the party in power. If they choose to stand pat, as Mr. Dulles seemed to be doing this week, they will precipitate a severe Democratic assault on the record of the results. Our position abroad has in fact deteriorated. It is easy to prove it. It is known to every disinterested observer. Mr. Dulles will be making the mistake of his life if he stands pat on his policies and the record.

The alternative is for the Republicans to take the lead in recognizing that the world situation has changed and is changing, and that United States policies must be adapted to these new developments. This is not only a sound approach, it is the best political approach. For if the Republicans re-appriase, review, and prepare to revise, the Democrats have to "constructive," have, that is to say to propose answers to the unanswered questions.

* * *

On the Democratic side, the question is also whether they choose to stand pat or whether they put themselves in the position of looking honestly for the answers to the new developemnts. Standing pat for the Democrats means of course standing pat on the Truman record and pretending that everything was going splendidly until the Republicans came in. In my view, the acid test of whether a Democrat is being unpartisan and "constructive" is whether he admits that at least some of our worst problems today originated in mistakes made by the Democrats.

I refer, for example, to the premature attempt to re-arm Germany in 1950 which has ruined the promising movement towards a European community, to the irreparable mistake of crossing the thirty-eighth parallel in Korea which turned a U.N. police action into a Chinese-American war, to the over-militarization of the containment policy which has jeopardized our relations with India and several other uncommitted nations.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Big Doors Of Soviet Embassy Are Opened

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—The big doors of the Soviet Embassy were opened to guests for the third time in 10 days, but no sleek limousines rolled up, no photographers were snapping big shots, even Ambassador Zaroubin was out of sight.

It was a small, informal shindig honoring the group of seven visiting Russian editors and the only faces I recognized were those of some of my colleagues. The rest, mostly male, were press or cultural attaches from the various embassies around town.

This time the guests concentrated in the big gold and white ballroom with its crimson velvet hangings and crystal chandeliers. They gathered mostly around the bar. They didn't pounce on the food attractively arrayed on the long buffet table until late in the evening.

A previous big affair was attended by more than 1,000 to celebrate the Russian Revolution of 1917.

An earlier affair, a reception for touring Soviet pianist Emil Gilels, was more exclusive, a black tie do, to which only a select 100 had been invited. Gilels gave a recital and guests were more restrained.

I had some difficulty tracking down the Soviet newsmen. I approached a tall, dark young man who was speaking an unfamiliar tongue. He turned out to be the cultural attache of the Polish Embassy. He could speak English.

On my next turn about the room I edged up to an amiable-looking pink-cheeked plumpish man talking with a young blond, blue-eyed chap. The first was Rumanian, the second Hungarian. They didn't speak English.

Finally, I met Boris Kampov-Polevoy, leader of the group, a tall, broad-shouldered man, with mop of black hair, drooping right eyelid and medals pinned on his uniform. The one word he spoke in English to me was "Okay," but through an interpreter he told me the group had enjoyed their trip.

Newswomen in Russia are treated just like the men, "cover the same things, get the same pay." belong to the Moscow Press Club. And "instead of being a distraction to their male colleagues, as some American journalists had jokingly told the group, newswomen in this country were, he said "their women provide inspiration."

Sale Of Narcotics Went Unrestricted In America Until After Turn Of The Century

By ROGER D. GREENE

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ancient clay tablets unearthed in the desert sands of Mesopotamia disclose that man was a victim of drugs, the insidious, habit-forming juice of the poppy, more than 7,000 years ago.

Ninety years ago, a survey turned up 116 addicts in the town of Adrian, Mich., or 1 in 100 of the town's population. Ten years later, a survey of the state of Michigan showed that 1 in 166 residents was an addict.

Around the turn of the century, American mothers bought 750,000 bottles of opium-spiked soothing syrup a year to quiet their babies. One of every 400 Americans was an addict—four times as many women as men.

Narcotics were sold over the counter as freely as lemon drops or epsom salts. Except for local ordinances, the use of drugs was entirely legal in this country throughout the 19th century.

It was not until 1909 that Congress finally took alarm at the ugly growth of drug addiction and passed a law banning the importation of morphine or coca leaves—the raw material for cocaine—except for medical purposes. When the more stringent Harrison Narcotics Act was passed in 1914, there were 200,000 addicts in the United States.

How many are there now?

No one knows, for sure. Federal and state authorities are far apart, with estimates ranging all the way from less than 100,000 to more than a million. Now men addicts outnumber women nearly 4-1. Roughly 25,000 persons are arrested every year for narcotics violation.

Commissioner Harry J. Anslinger of the Federal Narcotics Bureau says reports gathered by his agency in a continuing study put the nationwide total at about 60,000 addicts.

But in 1951, the Mayor's Committee on Narcotics said there were 90,000 addicts in New York City alone. Ohio's attorney general, William O'Neill, says his state has 15,000. California's attorney general, Edmund C. Brown, puts the total there at 20,000. By contrast, the Federal Narcotics Bureau shows 2,350 addicts in California as of last April 30. Yet Los Angeles alone reported 12,461 narcotics arrests in 1953-54.

The government figures for early this year list the 10 "worst cities" for addiction as New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Detroit, Cleveland, Washington, D. C., San Francisco, Cincinnati, St. Louis and San Antonio, Tex. The "worst States" are New York, Illinois, California, Michigan, District of Columbia, Ohio, Texas, Missouri, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

There is also conflict between the federal bureau and the states on juvenile addiction. Anslinger says it hit its peak in 1951 and has been declining, but "the fact that any at all exists is shocking."

New York's attorney general, Jacob K. Javits, countered in testimony before a Senate Narcotics subcommittee:

"Narcotics addiction among teen-age boys and girls is at an all-time high ... From 1953 to 1954 arrests of persons under 21 jumped 30 per cent in New York City." He added that addiction throughout the United States has "spurted above the so-called epidemic year of 1951 and appears to be on a steady rise."

Anslinger says narcotics bureau figures put known addicts under 21 years old at 13.1 per cent of the national total.

"Some youngsters try drugs for a thrill," Anslinger says. "Despite all warnings, they believe they can take dope and then give it up when they please—only to discovr too late that their curiosity has led them to utter ruin."

Anslinger has a staff of 253 field agents across the country—"about the size of the police force in Akron, Ohio." He calls it a "thin line of defense," but says that with twice that many "we could do a bang-up job."

Most big cities now have police narcotics squads, usually working closely with the federals. New York has 200 in its dope division, Chicago 94, Los Angeles 77.

Authorities know well that drug addiction and crime go hand in hand, as addicts steal to get money to buy drugs, or stage other crimes while hopped-up with false course.

Anslinger pointed to an upsurge in addiction in Richmond, Va., which coincided with a 600 per cent increase in crime.

"After we cleaned out the drug peddlers, crime went down to normal," he said.

How can you spot a drug addict?

"For one thing," says Anslinger, "they have a peculiar shuffle when they walk. And their eyes have a frozen stare with a pinpoint pupil when they're on a job. They freeze on whatever they're looking at, as though they were in a dream.

"They don't care about eating. When they do, they just eat sweets. They're never clean, always shabbily dressed. I've never seen a clean one yet. And—Lord knows why, but they always have a lot of old papers stuck in their pockets.

"My agents can spot 'em a mile off."

How long does it take to get "hooked" by the narcotics habit? Three days to two weeks, according to experts. The Federal Narcotics Bureau, in a pamphlet entitled "The Truth About Drug Addiction," adds this warning:

"The idea that an addict takes dope just to feel good is a mistake. He takes it to head off, for a little while the horrible effects which he feels when he doesn't have the drug."

Similarly, the U.S. Army "Handbook on Narcotics," declares:

"There is no known cure for drug addiction. Death is the only sure release from the living hell into which an individual commits himself when, for a momentary thrill, he takes 'just one shot.'"

Commercial TV Reveals Britons Like Other Men

BY INEZ ROBB

The British, Lor' luv 'em, have been sorely tried in the 20th Century. The pound has lost its bounce, the empire has come apart at the seams, and its kings and princesses keep falling in love with the wrong parties.

And now commercial television is adding the straw to this already-heavy burden of woe that may break the camel's, or rather, the lion's back. With commercial teevee only a few months old, it is already revealing that the proud Englishman is even as other men, a possibility he has loftily denied from time immemorial.

Commercial teevee is baring the fact that the average Briton is no more couth, for example, than his low-life American counterpart, a sad situation the Englishman has always successfuly repudiated until now. It has taken commercial teevee to show that in England culture is for creeps, too.

It took such teevee to prove that the Englishman, safe in his castle after a hard day at the factory or parliament, the mines or the bank, would rather dial an American rootin', tootin', shootin' cowboy mo'om picture than a symphony orchestra conducted by Sir Thomas Beecham standing on his noggin.

As long as the only teevee station in the country was run by BBC, the public took Beethoven's Fifth and lumped it. But it obviously didn't like it much. What it really wanted was "Shane" or "The Virginian" shooting up the chandeliers in the Last Chance Saloon, even as you and I.

This dubious cultural preference was carefully concealed until a shocking fact came to light through the decision of Britain's commercial television service to cut its nightly symphony orchestra program from 60 to 30 minutes. It also pushed the symphony back from the choice 8:30 p.m. spot to 10 p.m., when most of the boys have slipped around to the pub for a game of darts, anyway.

The fiction that England's mass entertainment media, and hence its audience, are several notches above that in the cousin country has gone down the drain with the announcement that its commercial teevee has just bought a load of American horse operas and no less than 78 Douglas Fairbanks dramas. As I remember, the villain in the Fairbanks operas always got skewered with a sword and still does, in all probability.

So far, the station has purchased no American soap operas for the simple reason that, to the loyal Briton, no washboard weeper can compare in interest with the doings of the royal family. They get it live over there, with the original company.

During the year of debate that preceded the authorization of a commercial television outlet in England, there were widespread predictions by many Britons that no good would come of it. Alas, how true, since it is piteously exposing to light the fact that British tastes in entertainment are about on a par with American.

About the only word of advice possible from this side of the Atlantic is: "Duck, boys, low brow ahead."

Political Future Of Union Hinges On Uncertain Factors

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Leaders of the newly merged AFL-CIO poohpooh the idea they will try to form a labor party or capture one of the existing political parties. Nevertheless, that time may come.

Whether it happens—since the AFL and CIO, although now combined into the biggest labor organization in history, are just starting life under one tent—depends on future factors now unpredictable.

Among the factors are: (1) whether they can stick together; (2) what changing times bring; (3) how influential they are in the political field as it now stands; (4) how well they increase their membership and can influence its political thinking; and (5) the possible personal ambitions of some of the leaders who now may have none.

Starting right away the combined AFL-CIO, claiming 15 to 16 million members, will be a far more powerful force in American politics than either separately.

Their new strength will get its first big test in the 1956 elections when and if they back one of the two candidates for president. But they will work in state and local politics too, and speak to Congress with one voice.

Some Republican politicians — particularly Sen. Goldwater of Arizona—seem to have misgivings about labor's support next year. The AFL and CIO backed Adlai Stevenson in 1952. Goldwater said Sunday the AFL-CIO "had no right" to endorse a presidential candidate in 1956.

President Eisenhower, who beat Stevenson in 1952, said in saluting the AFL-CIO yesterday that labor organizations have a legitimate interest in politics. But he cautioned they should be sure they "accurately reflected" the thinking of "minorities holding differing social, economic and political views."

The weakest spot in labor's political front—from the standpoint of its ability to use it utmost strength—is that the union leaders cannot order their members how to vote.

But the AFL-CIO isn't going to spend all its energies directly in politics in the years immediately ahead.

It will try to organize millions of workers not now in unions. The bigger the AFL-CIO, the more potent its political weight.

Until they get a lot bigger than they are now—and test their power with the two present political powers—the leaders of the AFL-CIO are not likely to try for a labor party.

Hot Loot Hotter Than Man Thought

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—"I'd like to report that someone broke into my residence and stole three gallons of moonshine whisky," the male voice informed the sheriff office's radio operator on the telephone.

The operator tried twice to get the caller's name and then said:

"Well, listen to me then. Don't you know it's against the law even to have moonshine whisky in your possession? You could go directly to jail if we knew who you were."

"Well, now," the man replied, "if that's the case, I'd just as soon forget about the whole thing." He hung up.

REPORT RADIO-TV

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Television has a small screen. Thousands of intensely creative executives, producers, directors, writers, cameramen, designers are striving daily to make it larger.

Something has to give. What is giving is the once-sacred concept of half-hour and hour programing. The program of 90 minutes and longer, viewed with increasing frequency this year, will be commonplace in 1956.

Audience rating systems (which are far from being scientifically perfect) indicate that the regularily scheduled half-hour and hour quiz, variety, comedy and dramatic shows still are the most popular. One reason is that they fall with specific regularity while the programing time concept of most of the 90-minute shows have beaten their opposition with relatively high frequency.

We are a people of great leisure these days. We also are a people enamored of bigness — in cars and buildings and government and corporate structure. The concept of longer television programs aptly fits the structure of our lives.

Nearly all of us care about people and opinions — which means that we're interested in drama and ideas. As some one has said, we like to laugh, and we'll even laugh again and again at the same jokes, as demonstrated by our fealty to many of our so-called comedians. We're a musical people, as proved by the millions of recordings and radios we buy and the thousands of community orchestras and choral groups we support.

The many creative minds of television are fully aware of these facts. They know that longer programs are not better simply because they're longer. The best of them view 90 minutes and more not as a time to fill but as an opportunity to develop varieties of entertainment and thoughtful programs that often were distorted or cut short under the older rigid concept of television time. Longer periods of time open the door to plays and musicals and journalistic techniues which once were impossible on the TV screen.

GUIDEPOST LITERARY

VICTORIAN VISTA. By James Laver. Houghton Mifflin.

The lace-paper Valentine, the tidy for hair combings, the bloomer, the grocer's itch, the dado, the 10-inch waist, the ices eaten with a fork, the removes, the lad cyclist and cricketer, the toxophlite (that is, archery addict) — these were oddities for which we have long been accustomed to snicker at the Victorian age.

It was a time when taste changed from hock with sodawater to sherry with seltzer to whisky with soda. It could have artist Aubrey Beardsley though to be sure he could be caricatured in Punch as Wierdsley Daubery. There could be blushes for the wicked woman—"She has fallen by the wayside;" it could be regretted by the social mentor that "girls are so seldom taught to be of any use whatever to a man that I am only astonished at the numbers of men who do marry;" and there was the ditty about a sad female left "waiting at the church, waiting at the church, when I found he's left me in the lurch."

Men and women might travel by the new railroads. According to "Etiquette of Good Society" they attended "county balls, hunt balls, hospital balls, bachelors' balls." Paintings were anecdotal, the can-can was the rage of nightlife, and Bohemia was already queer—in "passionate Brompton," as this London section was called, you were aksed "Are you intense?" and the answer was supposed to be yes, an utterly utter yes.

The other side of the picture was child labor, sweatshop, flogged soldiery, and slums. But Laver finds some Victorianism becoming popular again as style and fashion turn full circle. That is to be like the plague, but certainly this record deserves to be popular. This is an Old Curiosity Shop of a book, full of the spoils of the Victorians.

Audience Poll Won By Late James Dean

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The late James Dean, emotion-torn hero of "East of Eden," and Jennifer Jones, Eurasian doctor of "Love Is a Many Splendored Thing," have been named the top movie performers of the year by the first Audience Awards poll.

An estimated 15 million fans also voted ("Mister Roberts") the best picture and Peggy Lee ("Pete Kelly's Blues") and Tab Hunter ("Battle Cry") the outstanding new personalities.

The first mass polling of moviegoers produced results that could have important bearings on the award of Oscars next March. Certainly Dean, and perhaps Miss Jones, loom as top contenders for Hollywood's premier honor, the Academy Award.

It was a touching moment when Grace Kelly announced the award for Dean to the glamorous crowd at the Beverly Hilton last night. There was stunned silence, then applause. The brilliant actor, was killed at 24 in a nighway crash two months ago.

After his costar, young Natalia Wood, accepted the award, emcee George Murphy asked the crowd to join in a tribute. The great names and lesser lights of Hollywood stood for a moment of silence and there were many wet cheeks among them.

Jennifer Jones, who won an Oscar for "Song of Bernadette" in 1942, made one of her rare public appearances to accept her award. "I think it's wonderful," she said as she clutched her golden statue, nicknamed 'Audy."

Moviegoers voted for their favorites between Nov. 17-27 in theater lobbies. Theater managers made the nominations.

Land Official Seeks Advice On Problems

FORT WORTH (AP)—Earl Rudder, state land commissioner, asked livestock producer groups yesterday for advice in solving state land problems.

He suggested to the Texas Sheep & Goat Raisers Assn. that it and the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Assn. appoint committees to confer with him on land problems.

He spoke of state leasing of riverbeds for grazing, which has been criticized by owners of adjoining land. They said cattle had been coming onto their property.

An Agriculture Department official told the 300 sheep and goat producers that an increase of 15 per cent in income from farm wool and lambs is expected this year.

Frank Immasche, deputy director of the dairy division of the Commodity Stabilization Service, said the new wool support price program will bring about the increase. The program is in effect for the first time this year.

Immasche said producers have said their income will be down because domestic wool prices have dropped but that the difference will be seen at the end of the marketing year.

R. W. Hodge of Del Rio, association president, described work by the Texas group in helping bring about establishment of the American Sheep Producers Council to handle a promotion campaign financed by grower contributions from the support program started this year.

Sen. Dorsey Hardeman of San Angelo will speak tomorrow.

Daniel Move Is Criticized

AUSTIN (AP)—Efforts by persons he called "professionals" to push a movement to get Sen. Price Daniel into the governor's race were criticized yesterday by Reuben Senterfitt.

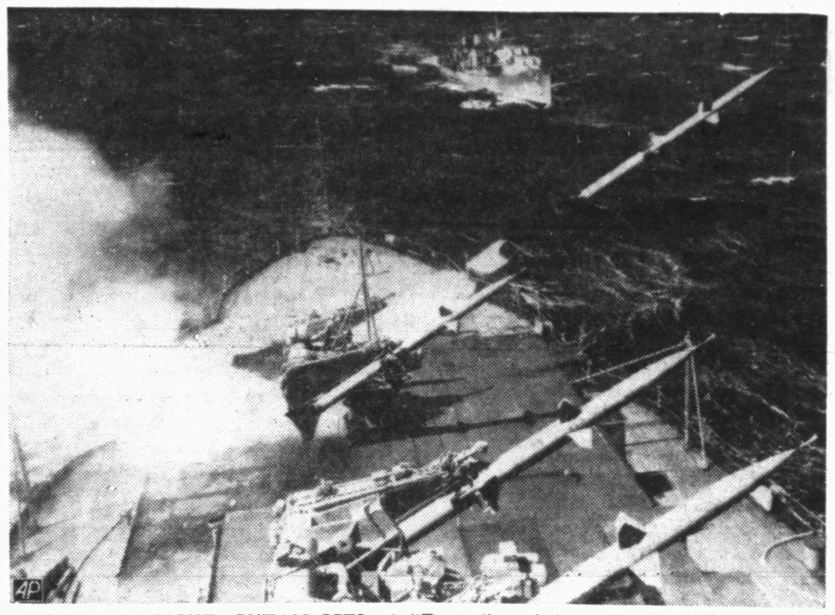
Senterfitt, a candidate for the office, said "paid publicity agents" were backing the "draft Daniel" movement in an effort to link forces of liberal and conservative minorities.

Senterfitt said he respected Daniel's right to make the race for governor, but that his own plans would not be altered should Daniel run.

The former House speaker brought Daniel's name into the controversy in a letter to his campaign workers.

Senterfitt said a statewide television broadcast in mid-December would be aimed at stopping a "defeatism" attitude being spread among his workers by political opponents.

"We intend to tell the people of Texas the truth about the political closed shop in Texas, how it is run, and what its true objectives are," Senterfitt said.



TERRIERS ALL RIGHT—BUT NO PETS—A "Terrier" guided missile roars off the deck of the USS Mississippi as others wait on launching platforms during evaluation tests last spring. Nearby is the USS Krause. The Navy, in releasing the photo, said it had been held up previously for security reasons.

State Soldier Joins His Wife

NEW YORK (AP)—A Texas sergeant, an escape artist who had first been thought a prisoner of mock war in operation sagebrush, joined his German bride and daughter in New York yesterday.

"Thank God we are together again," Sgt. John Digiovanni said as he clasped his weeping wife, the former Rosa Maria Breu, 21.

They were separated in February when he sailed from Europe for a new assignment at Ft. Hood, Tex.

Mrs. Digiovanni and her daughter, Joann, 3, landed in New York Wednesday penniless because she had been robbed en route. Her sergeant wasn't there.

The Red Cross heard he was a prisoner in the Army's big war game, deep in Louisiana but couldn't learn where he was.

Digiovanni, 25, told his story:

His tank broke down in aggressor territory and he and his crew stood guard over it. A farmer showed him a newspaper story Sunday of his family's lonesome landing.

The sergeant made his way through enemy territory to his own side, got quick permission to detach himself and took off for New York. The Army even rushed him 160 miles by jeep to the nearest railroad point.

Another Turncoat Will Return Home

HONG KONG (AP) — Richard R. Tenneson, American GI who chose to stay in Red China after the Korean War and then decided to leave, is expected to arrive at the Hong Kong border next week.

The British Red Cross said Nov. 30 it had been informed by the Chinese Red Cross that Tenneson, 22, of Alden, Minn., had been released and was free to leave.

Tenneson was one of 21 turncoat GIs who denounced conditions in the United States and elected to stay in Red China as "free men." He was captured in Korea in May 1951.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —Movie producer Sam Katzman, 54, has been sued for separate maintenance by his wife Hortense, 50. She alleges cruelty.

32 Covered By Explosion

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — A terrific explosion destroyed a new apartment building in midtown Frankfurt before dawn today and buried 32 Germans in a 20-foot-high mass of wreckage.

Officials said 26 persons, including 7 children, were believed dead.

It was the worst disaster in West Germany's vast postwar rebuilding program.

Six hours after the blast shattered the five-story building like a blockbuster bomb, the damaged wall of an adjoining building threatened to collapse on 150 German and American rescue workers. They ran, but soon resumed work.

Men, women and children were rescued from the wreckage. One, a 12-year-old blond boy, was carried out on a stretcher after being buried six hours. A murmur of "He's still alive" ran through the crowd of spectators.

Among those listed as dead was the owner-architect of the building. He and his tenants had moved in only two weeks ago. All the tenants were Germans.

Woman Gets $64,000 On TV Program

NEW YORK (AP)—A pretty young psychologist who became interested in boxing through her husband answered a knotty question on the sport last night to pocket $64,000 in television winnings.

The contestant, Dr. Joyce Brothers, 28, of New York City, became the second person to win the top prize on the CBS show The $64,000 Question. The first was Marine Capt. Richard S. McCutchen, whose category was cooking.

Dr. Brothers, wife of a hospital interne, had as an assistant last night Eddie Eagan, ex-Olympic boxing champion and former New York State Boxing Commision chairman. The show allows an expert to help the $64,000 level.

Dr. Brotners told reporters she plans to use part of the money to outfit her husband's office when he begins practice. It also will finance a vacation for the two, and a new dress for herself.

Another contestant on the program, Stanley Skeens, a Danville, W. Va., coal miner, won $32,000 by answering a 10-part question on the story of David and Goliath. He will get a chance to try for $64,000 next week.

Dr. Brothers, mother of an infant daughter, just barely got in her answers before the program ended. CBS actually allowed it to run 30 seconds overtime.

She named Cestus as the special gloves gladiators wore in ancient Rome; Daniel Mendoza as the first of scientific boxers to become champion of England, in 1791; Gentleman John Jackson as the English champion who taught boxing to poet Alfred Lord Byron; William Hazlett as the essayist who wrote "The Fight" after seeing Bill Neat defeat Thomas Hickman in England in 1821 and "Hickman the Gasman" as the latter's nickname.

She also answered that John Sholto Douglas was the full name of the Marquis of Queensbury; Rome was the city and Paulino Uzcudun the opponent in Prime Carnera's heavyweight title defense in 1933, and that Jack Dempsey knocked down Luis Firpo nine times in their famous bout and that the fight lasted 3 minutes and 57 seconds.

Moroccan Officials Will Be Sworn In

RABAT, French Morocco (AP) — Sultan Mohammed Ben Youssef today swears in Morocco's first representative government with Mohammed Bekkai as premier.

The No. 1 task for Bekkai's government will be to hammer out a new agreement with France replacing the 43-year-old treaty under which the French have held the territory under tight control.

The French have promised the Moroccans widely expanded self-government at home but plan to retain control of the northwest African country's defenses and foreign relations. Morocco's biggest nationalist party, the Istiqlal (Independence), already has announced it wants complete independence.

With 9 of the 20 seats, the Istilal is the largest single faction in the new cabinet. The other members are nationalists of a more moderate stripe, like Bekkai. They include six members of the Democratic Independence party (PDI), four independents and one representative of the large Jewish minority.

Bekkai himself is an independent and a close adviser of the Sultan, whom the French ousted from his throne 2½ years ago because of his pronationalist leanings, then brought back from exile in October in an effort to bring peace.

Bekkai, is a 48-year-old French army veteran who lost a leg in the 1940 battle for France and retired as a lieutenant colonel. He was the Sultan's trusted personal representative in France during Ben Youssef's two years of exile in Madagascar and represented the ruler in the negotiations which resulted in his return.

The new Cabinet must work with the French in putting down continuing terrorism.

As Bekkai was naming the last of his ministers, the bodies of eight Moroccans were found at Saidia, Mediterranean port city near the Algerian frontier. Their heads had been crushed.

In Casablanca's New Medina native quarter a Moroccan was shot in a restaurant. The assassin fled.

The body of another Moroccan was found, his hands tied, on a beach near Casablanca. Near Rabat the body of an 18-year-old native was discovered.

In neighboring Algeria, which is ruled as a part of European France, French forces killed at least 10 rebels during operations in the Constantine area. Other rebels in turn assassinated six Moslems friendly to the French.

Canyon Reef Tourney Set Tomorrow

BUCKIN' THE LINE

By BUCK FRANCIS
News Sports Editor

THERE'S A BIG BASKETBALL tournament coming off here Thursday and Friday but we'd like to put some finishing touches on the fine Tiger grid season that has just been completed.

We saw the game movie of the Garland game last night at the Quarterback Club meeting and we're a bit more confused on the disputed lateral play than we were before seeing the movie.

We weren't sure at the time it happened whether the lateral was OK or not. We thought maybe the movie would help clear us up on the deal.

But, even after seeing the play run over a dozen or so times (in the movie) we still can't make up our minds whether the lateral was forward or not.

The confusing part of the play is this:

Jack Spikes was hit just as he lateralled the ball and was driven back about three or four yards. Joe Baxter, who took the lateral, was behind Spikes when he (Spikes) started his lateral but when Baxter caught the ball he was actually in front of Spikes who was driven back by the tackle.

It was a very, very close on whether the ball travelled forward, parallel or backward. In the case of the latter two, the lateral would have been legal.

We are convinced that is was an honest call by the official who ruled on the play, Curly Hays. Hays has called several Southwest Conference games this season and is considered one of the finest refs in the business.

The way it looks, the play could have been called either way and it would have been right.

But, it was called like the ref saw it and it will remain that way, of course.

Quickly here are some final notes on the Tiger football season.

Tiger Scout Reports Up To 'Snuff'

Coach Conley and his staff have done wonders this season in setting up defenses for each of the Tiger foes.

You might say Conley had the "hosses" for a stout defense but unless you set these "hosses" up right they won't do you much good.

Practically every team the Tigers have met this season has had a speed demon or two to contend with.

But only on two occasions all season have the Tigers allowed runs of more than 30 yards. Jerry Barron of Big Spring made the longest run of the season against the Tigers—a 40 yard gallop. Barron, however, didn't score on this run.

The other plus—30 run was made by Garland's Charles Bailey who raced 32 yards for a TD last Saturday.

Keeping these scatbacks from breaking away has been the secret of the Tigers' defensive record this season.

Much of this credit goes to the fellows who scout the opposition in advance. These fellows are "men behind the scene," so to speak, but they are due much credit for the Tigers' success this season.

Coach Conley and his staff take these scouting notes and spend hours diagramming defenses to use in the game and the results tell the fine job they did in this respect.

The scout reports on Garland proved to be invaluable as the Tigers held the Garland offensive attack almost to a standstill. Only the breaks of the game allowed Garland to score, otherwise the Owls might have been shut out.

Garland was held below 200 yards rushing for the first time this season against the Tigers. The Owls, who had averaged better than 300 yards per game rushing before the Tiger tilt, netted only 169 yards against the Bengals.

Bobby Boyd, the Owl star, gained 115 of his team's yardage but could never break loose for a long run of which he is so famous. Boyd's longest jaunt was for 29 yards.

The scout report on Garland was so good that the Owls ran only one play that the Tigers didn't know about. This play, a reverse off the single wing formation, lost four yards.

Jack (Spider) Dillon and Verlan Shearburn did the scouting on Garland for the Bengals

Other coaches in the system who have done yeoman jobs of scouting this year were J. P. Ward, Ace Amos, Bill Hartgraves, Charlie Sparks and Jimmy Stewart.

Hobbs' Longest Run Under 20 Yards

Sweetwater's Harroll Hobbs, who is a bit speedier than Boyd, also found it difficult running against the Tigers. Hobbs' longest run against Snyder covered 18 yards.

Following are the longest runs made by each of the Tigers' 10 opponents this season:

Breckenridge—Eddie Offield, 10 yards.
Weatherford—Novis Stroud, 22 yards.
Monterey—Don Cathey, 10 yards.
Vernon—Larry Hamm, 24 yards.
Plainview—Donald Stone, 26 yards.
Sweetwater—Bobby Hartgraves, 23 yards.
Palo Duro—Jerry Cannon, 12 yards.
Big Spring—Jerry Barron, 40 yards.
Levelland — Joe Kennedy, 23 yards.
Lamesa—Dwayne Powell, 14 yards.
Garland—Charles Bailey, 32 yards.

Only two of the above runs were touchdown gallops. They were by Hartgraves of Sweetwater and Bailey of Garland.

The longest touchdown play made by the opposition this season was that fatal 38-yard pass that spelled defeat for the Tigers in Saturday's game at Garland. Only two other opposition touchdowns this year were made outside the Tiger 20, Hartgraves' 23-yarder for Sweetwater and Bailey's 32 yard scamper for Garland.

Of the 12 touchdowns allowed by the Tigers to their 11 foes, nine were made on the ground and three in the air.

Five of the nine scoring plays on the ground were for two yards or less.

Breckenridge, in the season opener, scored on 2 and 1 yard runs; Weatherford scored on a 12 yard pass and four yard run; Sweetwater tallied on 23 and 2 yard runs, both by Hartgraves; Big Spring scored on a 14-yard run by Barron; Levelland tallied on a 17-yard pass from Reeves to Mitchell; Lamesa scored on a 2-yard run by Chapman; and then Garland scored on 32 and 2 yard runs and a 38-yard pass.

Tigers Drop First Tilt To HCJC 'B'

Midwestern and Trinity Universities are due to arrive in Snyder today on the eve of the 3rd annual Canyon Reef Basketball Tounament set for Tiger Gym Thursday and Friday.

Both teams are expected to work out tonight at Tiger Gym upon their arrivals.

The other two teams in the college division, McMurry and Wayland, will arrive tomorrow.

The visiting high school teams who'll take part in the tournament will arrive tomorrow monring. They are Lubbock, Midland and Andrews. The fourth schoolboy team will be the host Snyder Tigers.

In first round games tomorrow, Midland and Andrews will clash at 2:30 p.m. to be followed by Wayland and Trinity at 4 p.m.

Then, in the night session, the Tigers will take on Lubbock at 7:30 with McMurry and Midwestern closing out the first day's activities at 9.

The loser of the first round games in the high school bracket will meet at 2:30 p.m. Friday with the college losers to meet at 4. The championship high school game will be played at 7:30 p.m. Friday and the college title game at 9.

The Tigers got their first taste of court action last night at Big Spring when they met and were defeated by the Howard County Junior College B team, 64-34, in a practice game.

Milton Ham, who only joined the Tiger cagers Monday after completing his football duties, led the Tiger scorers with 16 points, coming on seven field goals and two free tosses.

Ham as did all other Tiger footballers who saw action in the game last night, had only one day of workout behind him.

It will take Coach J. P. Ward a couple of weeks or more to whip the charges in shape for the coming cage campaign.

Admission prices for the Canyon Reef tournament have been set at $1 for adults and 50 cents for students for each session.

The tournament is being co-sponsored by the Snyder Quarterback Club and Snyder High School.

Houston Bids For SEC Entry

HOUSTON (AP)—The University of Houston will know tomorrow if it is to become a member of the Southeastern Conference.

Officials of the school left today for Nashville, Tenn., where expansion of the 12-member league will be discussed.

A recommendation will be made by athletic directors of the conference to faculty representatives tomorrow morning whether invitations should be issued. Miami also wants in the conference.

Harry Fouke, Houston athletic director, said "After the athletic directors meet we will know whether to go home or stick around."

Fouke said "If we don't make it this time, we won't consider it a rebuff. We are extremely gratified by the reception given us by Southeastern Conference member schools and certainly are hopeful of admittance."

Midwestern Star Hits 39 In Opener

WICHITA FALLS, Dec. 7 (Spl.)—With a fresh win streak started the Midwestern University Indians enter the Canyon Reef Tournament at Snyder Thursday and Friday with high hopes of meeting the squad that broke their 15 game victory string last year Wayland College.

The Tribe opened its season Monday night with a 106-88 win over Northeast Louisiana State and it is primed and ready for McMurry the first round foe in the Snyder Tourney. Ray Schumann, 29-year-old senior forward from Kampsville, Ill., led the Indians in their opening victory tossing in 39 points. Midwestern's win broke a three game Northeast victory skein. Should MU get past McMurry in the tournament, its foe in the finals would be the winner of the Wayland-Trinity Tussle and Wayland is a decided favorite.

Last season Wayland clipped MU 79-71 in a Region Eight NAIA playoff game to snap a 15 game winning streak. The Indians are anxious for another crack at coach Harley Redin's Pioneers.

In MU's win over Northeast, four of the first five, all of whom were starters last season, scored in double figures.

Besides Schumanns 39, O'Neal Weaver got 23, Cotton Fitzsimmons picked up 15 and Rogers Morgan canned 13. Coach Dallas Clynch swept his bench as all of the reserves saw action.

The Indians took up where they left off last season hitting 38 of 74 shots from the field for a percentage of 51. They canned 30 of 42 free throw attempts. The Tribe will leave for Snyder Wednesday with Coach Clynch taking a 12 man travelling squad. MU's game with McMurry in the tournament will be the 19th in history between the two schools. Midwestern has won 14, downing the Abilene squad twice last season 93-70 and 83-69.

Joe Black had a 6-2 record for 118 innings of pitching with the Cincinnati Redlegs after being traded by the Dodgers last June 14. 1945.

Illini, San Francisco Make Big Noise In College Ranks

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

This figures to be a beetle-a winner.

college basketbal season for Illinois Coach Harry Combes, the great worrier. It looks like he has Nothing leaves Harry limper than one of those rip-snortin' title races in the Big Ten and that's apparently right where he's headed after the way his Illini made their debut last night with a whomping 107 - 75 victory over Butler.

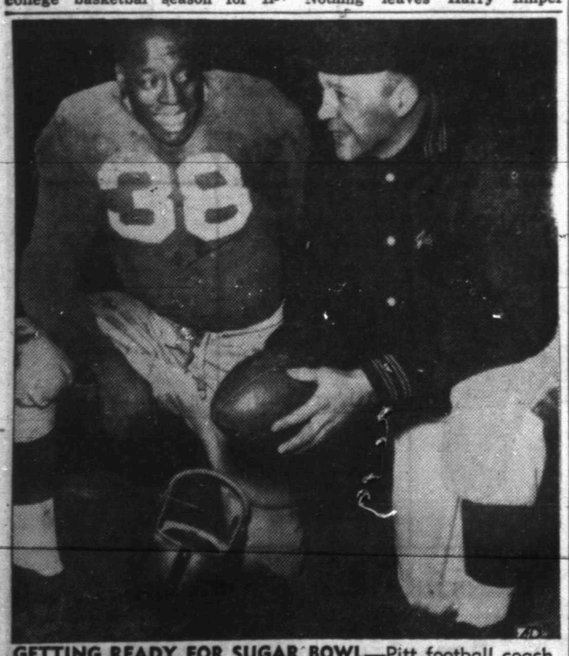
Illinois' big noise drowned out the continued success of top-ranked San Francisco and third-rated North Carolina State as each tacked another game to winning streaks. The Dons, with All-State 72-47 for their 30th consecutive victory. The Dons now America Bill Rusell packing in 20 put the string on the shelf until points in the 22 minutes he played, meeting Marquette Dec. 16.

N.C. State, meanwhile, bagged No. 15 in a row as Vic Molodet canned 26 in a 90-81 decision over Wake Forest. It was the Wolfpack's first Atlantic Coast Conference game of the season, but their third straight triumph of the new schedule.

Illinois, ranked eighth in the Associated Press poll, was a preseason pick for the Big Ten title scrap along with defending champ Iowa and Indiana. But probably no one figured the Illini to break upon the scene with such a show of offensive punch. Capt. Paul Judson and Harv Smith each scored 22 points as the Illini rang up their highest one-game total ever.

No other teams among the top 10 in the poll were active last night.

The Southern Conference got going en masse, with defending champ West Virginia spilling Furman 85-71. Washington & Lee's Five-Star Generals tagged Richmond 78-76 in a battle of contenders and George Washington, another "favorite," smacked William and Mary 81-75.



GETTING READY FOR SUGAR BOWL—Pitt football coach John Michelosen (right) chats with Negro fullback Bob Grier as Pitt starts practice in Pittsburgh, Pa., for their Sugar Bowl game Jan. 2 at New Orleans against Georgia Tech. A few hours earlier regents of the University System of Georgia authorized Tech to play despite objections of Georgia's governor, Marvin Griffin.

Cubs Swap Jackson Off To Dodgers

CHICAGO (AP) — Rival National League managers were chagrined and embittered over the trade between Chicago and Brooklyn that sent hard-hitting third baseman Ransom Jackson to the world champion Dodgers for reserve third sacker Don Hoak and spare outfielder Walter Moryn.

Cub Personnel Manager Wid Mathews, who made the swap with Brooklyn Vice President E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi, announced there will be a "tail" to this transaction sometime next week. The "tail", reportedly is Russ Meyer, the veteran right hander, who will report when the Cubs have gotten down below the 40-player limit to make room for him. The Cubs released Walker Cooper and the 42-year-old catcher was expected to sign with the St. Louis Cardinals.

The proposed 15-player deal between Washington and New York involving southpaw Mickey McDermott's transfer to New York hit a snag when General Manager George Weiss of the Yankees refused to include three of his prize youngsters—second baseman Bobby Richardson, shortstop Jerry Lumpe and outfielder Norm Sieburn. Bill DeWitt, assistant to Weiss, said the multiple deal was "left hanging," but Charlie Dressen, Senators' manager, insisted the trade was still "hot."

The big three-way deal among Chicago, Cleveland and Baltimore also reached an impasse when Manager Paul Richards refused to let the Indians have catcher Hal Smith. According to the report, the Orioles were to deal off Smith and pitcher Jim Wilson, the Indians were to contribute shortstop George Strickland and pitcher Art Houtteman and the White Sox were to throw in six players into the pool, including first baseman Walter Dropo, outfielder Bob Nieman, catcher Earl Battey and pitcher Sandy Consuebra. The Sox were to get Wilson and Houtteman, Cleveland was to get Smith and Baltimore was to get Nieman and Dropo.

Negotiations between the Cardinals and New York Giants involving Red Schoendienst's transfer to the Giants were halted abruptly when Chuck Feeney, New York vice-president was forced to leave for New York because of illness in his family. General Manager Frank Lane of the Cards was still hopeful of swinging a deal with Philadelphia. He is seeking either outfielder Del Ennis or catcher-first baseman Stan Lopata.

Mustang 5 Crushes TWC Rams, 64-42

DALLAS (AP)—Southern Methodist beat Texas Wesleyan, 64-42, last night for the third basketball victory in a row in the only game involving a Southwest Conference team.

The Rams made a battle of it with their ball control tactics, even though they weren't a match for the Southwest Conference champions.

Mustang guard Ronnie Morris held the Wesleyan ace, Don Bice, to 5 points. Morris was deadly from the free throw line, sinking 12 of 12. He added 6 field goals for a 24-point total and high scoring honors.

UT's Price Asks For Confab With Regents; May Quit

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP)—Ed Price, who said he had not resigned as football coach of the University of Texas but wouldn't say whether he planned to, confers with chairman Tom Sealy of the Board of Regents here today.

Price, under fire from some of the alumni for the past two years, denied at Austin yesterday that he had submitted his resignation as he was reported to have done at a meeting of the regents in Houston last week. He said, "I have not taken any action on my part and I am not prepared to say I will take any."

Sealy said Price did not offer his resignation, that no demand had been made upon him or any demand would be made. But he added that Price had asked him for a conference to "talk over the athletic situation at the university. If he does resign, I will, of course, have to call a special meeting of the board to consider it." Sealy said Price had requested the conference several days ago.

Sealy was emphatic in declaring that "No one is interested in firing Ed Price or buying up his contract."

Price, who became head coach of the university Jan. 1, 1951, replacing Blair Cherry, who had resigned, was voted a 5-year contract extension in 1953. Thus he has two years to go.

Texas under Price has won one Southwest Conference championship and tied for another and won 31 games, lost 18 and tied 1 in five years. There was some agitation for a change in coaches last year when the Longhorns dropped five games, won four and tied one, but this subsided after Price took disciplinary action against several members of the team accused of breaking training.

This year Texas had a 5-5 record and there was some talk of replacing Price but this died down as the Longhorns made a fine finish, winning four of their last five games and beating Texas A&M in the traditional Thanksgiving Day clash.

D. X. Bible, athletic director of the University of Texas, said upon his return from a hunting trip last night that he knew nothing about the situation and that "all we have is a rumor." Dr. O. B. Williams and Dr. J. Alton Burdine of the faculty athletic council said they had heard no recent talk of resignations or other changes in the football coaching staff. At Houston, Leroy Jeffers, member of the Board of Regents, declared that no resignation had been presented to the board and none was pending.

Should Price resign, it would mean the second coaching change in the Southwest Conference within three days. George Sauer Monday retired from coaching to be athletic director only at Baylor with Sam Boyd being elevated from line coach to head coach.

Welsh Edges Luppino For Offense Title

NEW YORK (AP)—George Welsh, who served as Navy's air-arm, is the individual total offense champion of major college football, but only by a scant 35 yards over Arizona's Art Luppino, who made all his gains by running and romped off with his second straight rushing title.

Welsh, the individual passing king as well, topped the Arizona junior in the final game of the season by picking up 185 yards against Army. Luppino was checked at 68 yards by Arizona State for his lowest one-game output of the season.

That gave Welsh a season total of 1,348 yards in 9 games, according to final NCAA Service Bureau figures released today, while Luppino collared 1,313 in 10 games.

Luppino, first ever to win the rushing crown in two consecutive seasons, also is the first to finish as high as second in the total offense race on rushing alone. With one season remaining, he's just 168 yards short of the all-time college career record of 3,212 yards set by Wisconsin's Alan Ameche.

All-America Earl Morrall of Michigan State had the top average gain for rushing-passing plays with 9.1 yards, third best in history for a minimum total gain of 1,000 yards. Notre Dame's Paul Hornung had the single-game running-passing high, gaining 354 yards against Southern California in the finale.

All-America Howard (Hopalong) Cassady of Ohio State was the workhorse, figuring in more rushing-passing plays than anyone else with a total of 249—one more than John Majors of Tennessee.

Border Conference To Meet Saturday

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)— The Border Conference will meet in El Paso Saturday in an annual meeting.

C. Zaner Lasher, secretary-treasurer of the conference, said yesterday an attempt by the University of Arizona to have freshmen ruled out of varsity competition heads the agenda.

A request by Hardin-Simmons for the conference to eliminate the one year of ineligibility requirement for transfer students was also on the docket.

The conference plans a spring meeting at Lubbock.

Sugar Ray, Bobo Confident Of Victory In Bout Friday

CHICAGO (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson doesn't believe there'll be any psychological factors involved in his bid to regain the middleweight championship against Bobo Olson Friday night, but the champion thinks otherwise.

"I wouldn't say there are any psychological advantages or disadvantages," Robinson said, "but I guess it's better to have won two over the man than to have lost two."

He was referring to his two victories over Olson in 1950 and 1952.

"Sure he beat me twice," retorted Olson, "but things have changed. I'm the champ now.

"The first time I went against Robinson, I was scared. I was just a green kid and while working out for the fight, fans would crowd around and watch me. Then I'd hear them say, 'Man, what Sugar Ray's going to do to this guy.' Don't think those remarks didn't make a difference to a newcomer."

That was when Robinson knocked Olson out in 12 rounds but he didn't have an easy time of it.

"No one ever has an easy fight against Olson," said Robinson before going through a couple of fast windup rounds yesterday. "I'm not trying to build him up but he's out there giving you a battle three minutes of every round."

And Olson doesn't figure to change any.

"I'm going to fight the same way," he said. "I nearly beat him the second time and that was three years ago. I know he's not as fast now as he was then and he had to rely on speed.

"Psychology? Sure there's psychology in every fight and I know he beat me twice," continued Olson. "But look at it this way. I'm the champ this time and there's a lot of confidence that goes with that title. This time he's coming to me."

Shrimp Bowl To Pit Two Service Teams

GALVESTON (AP) — Fort Hood's Tankers will bring an impressive record to the Shrimp Bowl Dec. 18 when they meet the Navy Gators from Little Creek, Va.

The Tankers twice have beaten Fort Sill, ranked as the No. 2 service team behind national champion Boling Air Force. The Tankers have just finished winning the Fourth Army title by beating Fort Sill, 31-20.

Fort Hood faces a tough assignment, however, in the Navy Gators, who proved their worth by playing on nearly even terms with Boling Air Force.

Both teams, loaded with ex-college and professional stars, have wound up their regular schedules and are drilling for the Shrimp Bowl.

Thirteen playoff games in the Class A Eastern League drew 23,382 fans this season as compared with 14,621 onlookers for 15 games in 1954.

Daniel Gets Boost For Governor Race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Price Daniel (D-Tex) said yesterday he had found hundreds of letters urging him to run for governor of Texas when he returned to his office after a month's absence.

Daniel reiterated a previous statement that he will announce early next year, after Congress convenes Jan. 3, whether he will be a candidate for governor.

He said the announcement "will be made in Texas."

Sen. Daniel is expected to go to Texas late in January for at least two conventions of state organizations.

There are reports he does not want to get involved directly in the Texas political situation until the Senate has finished action on two pieces of legislation in which he is especially interested—the bill to exempt natural gas producers from federal regulation and a measure to tighten federal laws against the illicit narcotics trade.

The House-passed natural gas bill is ready for Senate action as soon as Congress convenes, but many here feel opponents have mustered strength since adjournment and that Senate action won't be speedy.

Regarding that measure, Daniel said:

"I still feel confident that the bill will be passed and sent to the President early next year."

Daniel denied reports published in Texas last week that he had told friends he would resign from the Senate if he decided to make the governorship race.

"I am not that far along on the subject. I certainly am not going to decide on that until after I make the decision of whether to run for governor," he said.

Daniel's Senate term expires in 1956.

Guns Carried By Plowmen

JERUSALEM (AP)—On the world's strangest battlefront, it's winter plowing time, and the plowman carries a gun.

On both sides of the touchy Israeli-Jordan frontier through the Samarian and Judean hills, plowmen are cutting their furrows right up to the border line.

On hill crests and in valleys behind them are soldiers in jeeps, with automatic arms and mortars.

When a plowman steps across the line, firing often starts.

On both sides plowmen have given their lives for a few more feet of soil. Some of the soldiers have died too. Much the same thing is happening along Israel's frontiers with Egypt and with Syria.

This is the fragile truce in the Middle East war where six years of armistice have not brought peace.

Despite repeated pleas from United Nations truce supervisors, both sides insist on planting their fields to the last inch of the armistice demarcation line. Each side feels this puts a clincher on their claims to the land, against any future negotiation or compromise.

Sibelius To Have His 90th Birthday

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Jean Sibelius, famed Finnish composer, observes his 90th birthday tomorrow in the seclusion of his forest home and wants no solemn festival concert for the occasion.

Nevertheless, the Helsinki Orchestra will honor him with a program of his works. There will be other Sibelius concerts at music centers around the world, many of them conducted by Finns.

Sibelius has lived for more than 50 years at his country house Ainola, deep in the woods only 40 miles from Helsinki. Yet he has not been to the capital for over 10 years.

Tomorrow he will have his birthday dinner with his wife, Aino Jarnefelt, member of an old noble and artistic family, and other relatives. Only one of his five daughters, Mrs. Eva Paloheimo, will be present. The other four will attend evening concerts and other celebrations in the composer's honor.

Paratyphoid Fever Research Continues

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—State and local health authorities continued their research today into 37 cases of paratyphoid fever in an effort to pin down the source of the outbreak.

The cases have been reported throughout the greater Lancaster area. Most of the victims were children. Three were reported in critical condition today.

Dr. Oscar Davis, county medical examiner, said the only common factor thus far in all cases is that the victims' milk originated at the same dairy. The owner has agreed to suspend bottling while the probe is made.

Dr. Davis said at least two days investigation will be necessary before the source can be determined for certain. Samples of ice cream, milk and similar food products are undergoing analysis.

Farmers around the world are growing a quarter more rice than they did at the end of World War II.

Record High Is Expected On Capital

NEW YORK (AP)—Business capital spending in the first quarter of 1956 will climb to a record high, 12 per cent over the pace of booming 1955, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks declared today.

In an address prepared for delivery at the opening session of the convention of the National Assn. of Manufacturers, Weeks gave this business forecast fo 1956:

"For the first six months at least I am confident we'll move to a higher plane—for the balance of the year I'm optimistic."

Weeks said the estimate of capital expenditures in next year's first quarter was made by the Commerce Department, which will make public details of its survey tomorrow.

Weeks said industry can do its part to help maintain prosperity by keeping prices from getting too high, by managing consumer debt and by careful handling of inventory problems to avoid major cycles.

"Insofar as prices are concerned," he said, "there's no occasion today to charge all the traffic will bear and I hope business management will exercise statesmanlike restraint in this respect."

In the keynote address, NAM President Henry G. Riter III declared that the merger of the AFL and CIO represented a threat to the country's freedom and prosperity.

Riter, also president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., West Orange, N. J., said:

"If there is one fundamental American principle which must be maintained so people may prosper, it is the principle of equal application of laws to all citizens.

"Within the last 48 hours, we have seen the amassing in the hands of a few men of the greatest potential economic, and possible political power, in the history of the country."

Teenage Girl Is Abducted

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP)—The 19-year-old daughter of a Methodist minister vanished last night and police fear she was abducted from the rear of the family home.

The search for Donna May Upton was spurred by the finding of a scarf believed to be hers on a prairie northeast of here.

Police Capt. R. L. Mayber said the pretty hospital student's wristwatch, its bracelet snapped as if in a struggle, was found near an ashpit in the rear of the family's east Pueblo home.

Mayber said there were indications that Donna May was abducted as she was driving her brother's car home from the post office. The car was found at a drive-in restaurant with a set of keys in the door.

Police said neither members of the Upton family nor neighbors heard any disturbance during the evening.

The missing girl, a student laboratory technician at the state mental hospital here, is 5 feet 4, weighs about 120 pounds, and has brown hair and blue eyes.

Formation Of Cancer Cells Being Studied

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the country's leading cancer research organizations reports "new and fundamental evidence" has been uncovered in the past two years on formation of cancer cells.

The Sloane-Kettering Institute for cancer research said yesterday that "there seems now to be good reason to believe that we have a rational approach to cancer control."

The report said one of the most important discoveries is that "every kind of cell has its own particular requirements for the buildup of its nucleic acid."

This information, the institute added, "should make it possible to narrow the research for chemicals that will destroy cancer cells in man."

Under laboratory conditions, it already is possible to kill some types of animal cancer cells without harming closely related, normal cells, the institute said.

Loud Popping In Ear Results In Lawsuit

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A 60-year old Oklahoma City piano teacher yesterday filed a $70,240 damage suit against Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., in U.S. District Court, contending a loud "popping" in her telephone caused a ruptured eardrum and injury to her spine.

Mrs. A. R. Bartley further charged in her petition that the alleged incident resulted in partial paralysis of her left arm and shoulder. She said she twice had to go to the hospital.

Youth Shoots Deer, Celebrates Birthday

POCOMOKE CITY, Md. (AP) — Billy Cottman, who leaves his farm home a couple of hours early for the school bus during deer season, celebrated his 13th birthday yesterday by dropping his first deer.

The bus usually arrives around 8:15 a.m. Billy has been at the corner waiting for it at 6:30 a.m. the past two deer season days.

He keeps a gun with him. He can always take it back home around 7:30 or so if nothing shows up. Yesterday, a deer bounded out of the woods and Billy's vigil paid off.

Billy's father took the deer home on a tractor and Billy made it to school on time.

Bank Giving Nickel For Every Dollar

RUTLAND, Vt. (AP)—The Killington Bank and Trust Co. is giving $1.05 for every $1 brought in—and claims that's good business.

The bank inserted a newspaper advertisement yesterday calling attention to its bargain in money.

The only provision is that the $1 brought in must be in pennies rolled in wrappers.

The reason for the bargain is a shortage of pennies.

HITLER'S PRIVATE LIFE

Assassins Miss Killing Hitler

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in the series on the private life of Adolf Hitler as told by his personal valet.)

BY HEINZ LINGE
Hitler's Personal Valet
(WORLD COPYRIGHT 1955)

BERLIN.—Between 1935 and 1945 there were four plots to assassinate Hitler.

In two of them, other members of Hitler's party were killed and wounded. In the third, shots were fired at Himmler's car, which was mistaken for Hitler's. The fourth never was carried to its end because an Army colonel lost his nerve.

The first attempt was during my first year with Hitler as his valet and staff attendant. A number of people knew Hitler intended to drive to Karinhall, one of Goering's country homes, just outside Berlin. Himmler, using a car identical to the Fuehrer's, had preceded him a short time before. As he drove shots shattered his windscreen.

Hitler was certain that whoever fired the shots intended them for him, not Himmler. I think he was right.

The second attempt, which might very well have been successful, was on November 8, 1939, at Munich. Hitler held a party every year with his comrades of the early days in the Buergerbraukeller. He would make a speech, then join them with easy familiarity at their tables.

The war was two months old in 1939 and Hitler decided he could not spare the time for friendly chats, but he was determined still to attend the meeting. He told the organizers he would make his speech one hour earlier than usual, and would leave immediately afterward by train for Berlin to attend an important military conference.

His speech was a great success. He left the Buergerbraukeller smiling, drove to the railway station, and soon was speeding north by train.

At Nuremburg, the news was rushed to Hitler that there had been a great explosion in the keller a short time after he left within a foot of the desk where he had been standing. Several persons were killed.

Hitler, stunned, instructed the Police President of Nuremburg to contact Himmler and give him Hitler's order to arrest every member of the Buergerbraukeller staff and to spare neither men nor time in finding those responsible for the outrage. He was in a violent rage all the way to Berlin and on arrival he immediately asked for the news of the investigation.

Soon we learned a man named Elsner had been arrested trying to cross the Swiss frontier. He was identified as the man who, disguised as a mechanic, was seen by members of the keller staff inside the premises on two or three nights before November 8.

Stony-faced, Hitler listened to the recital of Elsner's confession.

"Nonsense," he said at the end. "I know it was the British secret service that planned this attempt on my life. We will test Elsner.

"Give him enough pieces and parts, put him in a room and tell him I want him to make another clockwork mechanism like the one he used at Munich.

"If he cannot, he must be shot."

In his prison cell, with only a few tools Elsner turned out a perfect "time-clock" mechanism.

Like most of the staff, I thought Elsner would be shot very soon. Instead, Hitler said, "His brain can be used to the advantage of the Reich. See that he is provided with material and get him to turn out more time-clocks."

This in fact did happen, and when the war was ending I know he was still in prison. I have no idea what has happened to him since. Nor do I know what Hitler planned to do with the time-clocks Elsner was making in his prison cell. I can only guess he wanted a few in reserve in case he wanted to use them to assassinate his own enemies.

The third attempt on the Fuehrer's life was planned for April 20, 1944.

This was Hitler's birthday and there was to be a grand military parade on the autobahn near Salzburg. The soldiers were to wear special equipment for use in Russia.

During his inspection Hitler was to be asked to look at a new type pack for soldiers to carry on their backs. The pack for inspection was to be full of dynamite.

The men behind this plot were the same as those who were so very nearly successful three months later.

The success of this plot, however, depended on the courage of one man, who would himself have to give up his life to accomplish the assassination of Hitler. Colonel Stief was selected for the task. He was to lead Hitler to the pack, talk about its advantages and maneuver Hitler into such a position that he would be blown to bits.

Colonel Stief's nerve failed him. The dynamite-filled pack was never produced and the birthday passed without incident.

Now I come to the last attempt on Hitler's life, as I saw it.

On July 20, Mussolini was expected at Rastenburg, the Eastern front headquarters, and I had gone with Gesandter von Doernberg, Hitler's chief of protocol, and several other staff officers to discuss the arrangements for Il Duce's visit.

As I stood talking to Doernberg, we heard the sound of an explosion. We continued chatting, thinking a stray dog had exploded one of the land mines which surrounded headquarters.

I suppose we were about 100 yards away when the explosion occurred, and it was only some few minutes later when I was told Hitler wanted me. I immediately left the reception party and on the way met Major von Freyend. His face was bleeding. He said, "The Fuehrer is alive. He is in his bunker."

I broke into a run. When I reached Hitler's side, he was sitting in a chair, his trousers and jacket in tatters, his hair burned. Dr. Hasselbach was bent over Hitler removing wood splinters from his legs.

Hitler looked up at me with a piercing stare, which fixed on me for a minute or two. Later I knew he was wondering if I, too, was against him. When he satisfied himself that I had no part in the affair, he said: "They've tried to kill me, Linge. Even in this bunker there may be explosives all around. See to it that all the floors and walls are examined immediately."

I went at once to give the order to the criminal police.

Once the doctor finished bandaging Hitler's legs, he changed his clothes with my help. When he finished I went to the room where the explosion had taken place. There was nothing there but ruins. Tables, chairs, walls, concrete, all were smashed. As I turned to go, Sergeant Adam came to me and said he had been on telephone duty near the conference room.

"I think I have news for you," Adam said. "At a quarter to one, Colonel von Stauffenberg came from the conference room and made off in the direction which would take him away from headquarters altogether.

"A few minutes later, General Buhle came out and asked me for the telephone call which had been booked earlier. I told General Buhle there was no call booked for him. He became very angry with me and said he had sent Colonel von Stauffenberg to make the call for him.

Later I learned von Stauffenberg had arrived at headquarters saying he had been sent as a deputy by Generaloberst Fromm in Berlin. He was seen by Keitel and taken into the military conference room to meet Hitler.

When Adam stopped speaking I took him immediately to Hitler and said, "I think this sergeant has an interesting story to tell you." Adam repeated his story to Hitler.

When Adam finished, Hitler turned to his adjutant, Colonel von Below and asked, "Who sent von Stauffenberg here?"

Told it was Generaloberst Fromm, Hitler shouted: "Then I know now it was Stauffenberg who was responsible for the explosion."

If Hitler needed confirmation of the suspicions planted in his mind by Sergeant Adam, he soon had it. During the search of the debris, a pair of pliers with peculiar grips were discovered. It was then recalled that von Stauffenberg had been crippled in the hands during the desert war, and the pliers had been made so he could use them.

He had taken the explosives into the room in an attache case which he carefully placed against the leg of the table where Hitler was supposed to sit.

General Korten, who was standing alongside Hitler, had both legs blown off and died almost at once. General Schmundt had a leg and an arm blown off and died after four days in hospital. The shorthand writer sitting directly opposite Hitler, lost both legs and died soon after. Nearly everyone else, in addition to wounds, had their eardrums burst. Keitel and Jodl both suffered damaged eardrums. Guensche was blown clear out of a window.

Describing later what had happened, Hitler told me:

"I was leaning on the table, which fortunately had a thick top. I had my right arm forward across the table because I was marking a map when the explosion happened. I was thrown into the air as the tabletop was blown up. I found that I was burned and injured about the legs."

Undoubtedly the tabletop saved Hitler's life. Had it been thinner Hitler would have taken the full force of the explosion in the upper part of his body.

It later transpired that von Stauffenberg stayed in the camp waiting to hear the sound of the explosion. Immediately afterwards he went straight to an exit where he was held up by the guard.

He ordered the sentry to send for an officer, to whom he said, "You know my plane is waiting for me. I have strict orders from the Fuehrer in person to take an immediate message to Generaloberst Fromm in Berlin. Let me go at once."

The officer believed him and let him go.

Hitler realized the plot had been conceived in Berlin and he ordered an urgent call be put through to Goebbels but it was three hours before communications were reestablished with Berlin.

While this was going on the driver who had taken von Stauffenberg to the airport was questioned, and he said he noticed that the Colonel threw a parcel from the car on the way to the airport. The parcel was found and in it were more explosives.

It was exactly 4:30 p.m. when the operator said that communication had been resumed. I called Hitler, who, despite his injuries, almost ran to the telephone in his anxiety. In a very loud voice and very excited, he asked what was happening in Berlin.

Goebbels told Hitler that he had with him Major Rehmer who was in charge of the Berlin security forces. Rehmer had come to him, Goebbels said, bewildered after receiving orders to march his troops up to all the ministries around the Reich chancellery and to seize them.

Hitler asked that Rehmer be put on the line, then I heard Hitler say:

"Major Rehmer, an attempt has been made to kill me but I am alive. My orders, and only my orders are to be obeyed. My orders to you are that I make you responsible for Berlin. You will take steps to secure Berlin for me. You have my order to use such force as you may think necessary, and to shoot anyone who may attempt to disobey the orders I have given you. You will be promoted immediately to the rank of colonel."

Rehmer said he would carry out the orders.

There followed a long discussion with Goebbels, at the end of which Goebbels was asked to make arrangements for Hitler to speak over the radio to the nation.

At midnight, Hitler addressed the German people. He told them what had happened. He said he was very much alive, but the fact that the generals on each side of him had been killed was a sure sign of his future destiny.

Hitler was followed on the air by Keitel, representing the army, Doenitz representing the navy, and Goering representing the air force, to let everyone know that the three services were completely behind Hitler.

Bib by bit, news of von Stauffenberg's flight from Rastenburg, his arrival in Berlin and his reception by General Fromm reached Hitler.

Immediately von Stauffenberg landed in Berlin, about 4 p.m., he telephoned General Fromm to say, "Der Fuehrer ist tot." On receipt of this message, Major Rehmer was given orders to secure Berlin.

Von Stauffenberg then went about some business of his own and it was not until 5 p.m. or later that he reported at General Fromm's headquarters in Bendlerstrasse, where he was immediately arrested with two other officers. On General Fromm's orders, he was taken into the back yard and shot at once.

Although a subsequent People's Court failed to convict General Fromm of complicity in the plot, it did not change Hitler's mind.

"Stauffenberg was shot," said Hitler, "to destroy direct evidence against General Fromm himself."

In the following year, Fromm was shot on Hitler's direct orders. I can't remember now the official reason for the shooting, but the real reason was that Fromm was the general who sent Von Stauffenberg to Rastenburg.

Fegelein, Eva Braun's brother-in-law who was later shot, arrived some time later bringing two thick books which Himmler said had been found in a safe in the headquarters of Admiral Canaris, head of espionage service at Zassen near Berlin.

I read the books myself some time later. They purported to be accounts of plots which had been hatched ever since 1939 to get rid of Hitler.

Hitler gave the impression that he was highly amused at the contents of the two books but left it to [illegible] and the Gestapo and the S.S. to deal with it.

"Linge, he said to me, "I have been saved when comrades died in Munich, and have lived in Rastenburg when two generals at my side were killed. It is clearer than ever that the destiny and greatness of the German Reich lies in my hands and that this has long been decided by fate."

(NEXT: Linge describes the last of Hitler's dealings with Mussolini).

Chapa Defense Story Given By Witness

TYLER (AP)—A witness in the D. C. Chapa trial testified yesterday she saw a former employe leave the tax office of the Benavides School District in Duval County in October of 1953.

Mrs. Verlon Bridges, a former employe of the office, said the man was Diego Heras. She said she saw him leave when she made an unexpected visit to the office.

Heras was described earlier by the defense as a man who had "the design and the opportunity" to steal money from the school district.

Chapa is charged with misappropriating $1,400 in school funds.

Mrs. Bridges testified that her father and brother were with her when they went to the tax office one evening because she had noticed a light burning. She testified that was when she and her brother neared the inner office used by Oscar Carillo Sr., Chapa's son and that she dropped her keys.

She said the sound of the keys set off a scuffling noise in the inner office and she and her brother turned on the lights and opened the door. Heras jumped through the window and left, she said.

Mrs. Bridges said she then found the minute books of the school district missing.

Mrs. Bridges said she reported the incident to F. H. Canales, Benavides constable.

Mrs. Hilda Chapa Gonzales testified she did not think the signature on tax receipts were those of Chapa. The state had earlier called a handwriting expert who testified otherwise.

She said she thought the signature was that of Heras.

Mrs. Gonzales also testified that the combination of the vault of the office and the school district's postoffice box were written on the office wall.

Houston Group Is Reelected

HOUSTON (AP)—Four more of the seven city councilmen who tried last summer to impeach Mayor Roy Hofheinz were reelected yesterday.

Two others were reelected Nov. 19 when Mayor Oscar Holcombe came out of retirement to defeat Hofheinz. Holcombe will take office Jan. 2 with an eight-member council, including six members of the council that tried to impeach Hofheinz and two former councilmen who are political foes of Hofheinz.

Holcombe had endorsed the four councilmen and a former councilman who won the runoff election against a slate named by the Hofheinz-backed United Citizens Assn.

"Now let us all forget about what has happened in the past and join a united effort to make Houston the type of city we all want it to be, a progressive city and the best city in which to live," Holcombe said.

Councilmen elected were incumbents Lee McLemore, Matt Wilson, Shirley Brakefield and Gail Reeves; and George Marquette.

At 42, Theodore Roosevelt was the youngest U.S. President.

Postal Receipt Record Seen

The post office here is headed for another record-breaking year in total postal recipts.

Last year, the post office had a total of $121,137.91 in receipts for the year, breaking all previous records. Already this year, by the end of November, the 1955 receipts had totaled $106,822.62, lacking less than $15,000 reaching last year's total for the 12 months.

There is little doubt that the record will be broken again. Even normal business during December would put it over the top. During the last two years, December receipts ran over $18,000.

The more than $106,000 during the 11 months so far compares to $102,748.39 during the same months last year.

November receipts totaled $9,421.56 which was a new record for that month Previous high for any November was $9,277 in 1950. Six months of 1955 have set new records.

Snyder Rifle Unit To Enter League Finals

A team of riflemen from the Snyder National Guard unit will compete next month against Pecos in league finals of the National Guard section of the National Rifle Association's indoor tournament.

The local unit, Co. D, 112th Armored Cavalry Regiment, is a finalist in League B. There are six leagues in the state. The winner of the Snyder-Pecos contest will compete in state finals against two other winners, and the state finalists will go on into national competition.

Man Demands Right To Pay His Taxes

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—W. L. Stanton, a 73-year-old retired construction worker, surprised Oklahoma County Treasurer W. T. (Bill) Hale yesterday by demanding the right to pay taxes.

Hale said he had mailed a notice to Stanton telling the Oklahoma city pensioner his homestead exemption claim wiped out any tax assessment against his home. Stanton and his wife receive $108 a month in pensions.

Stanton insisted on paying the tax. His homestead exemption finally was reduced by $50 and Stanton paid $3.38.

He explained he and Mrs. Stanton have grandchildren and "I believe it is right to pay taxes so they can go to school."
