Cut spending...

Congress preparing to raise taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of decrying the record federal deficit, Congress is preparing to do something about it by raising taxes and cutting spending.

The Senate was opening debate today on a measure to raise taxes by $48 billion through Sept. 30, 1987, and reduce spending by $14.8 billion. Committees are putting together legislation that would make further cuts, especially in the growth of defense spending.

The House will consider a $49 billion tax increase on Wednesday and soon afterward is expected to vote on a package of spending cuts.

Meanwhile, the Senate Budget Committee is writing a target budget for fiscal 1985, the 12 months beginning next Oct. 1. That non-binding outline is expected for the first time to give the government authority to spend more than $1 trillion in a single year, just as the version passed by the House last week did.

Congressional leaders had hoped to complete action on all the budget and deficit-reduction proposals before taking a week off for Easter, but now it appears that final action by Memorial Day would be a better bet. The House and Senate plan to adjourn no later than the close of business Friday and to return on April 23.

The federal deficit, which is expected to total about $175 billion this year, is clearly the No. 1 political issue in Congress at the moment, chiefly because of fears about rising interest rates. Many economists say there is a direct connection between the large deficit and investors' uncertainty that again threatens to push up the cost of borrowing and ignite a new round of inflation.

President Reagan has joined members of Congress in calling for lower deficits, but the effort to reduce the red ink was slowed by the administration's oft-stated opposition to higher taxes as a solution. The president eventually agreed with Senate Republican leaders on a combination of spending cuts and tax increases that would cut the deficit by about $150 billion in the 1985-1987 period.

Now, with the Senate Budget Committee writing its own blueprint for 1985, there is no assurance the Reagan compromise will be accepted by the Senate.

But one thing is for certain in this election year: Congress is unlikely to pass any tax increase that has a significant effect on a large number of taxpayers.

The Senate and House tax bills would extend the 3 percent telephone service tax due to expire at the end of 1985. They would raise the tax on liquor.

Incumbents win re-election here Saturday

All incumbent office holders who sought re-election were returned for new terms here Saturday in the college, school and city elections.

A heavy voter turnout was noted in all three local elections with an estimated 1,100 voting in the city; more then 1,400 in the school races and more than 1,700 in the countywide college race.

The turnout for the college election was a record. Voter counts at both the city and school apparently were not, however. School officials Monday said some elections for school board candidates have gone as high as 1,600.

In the college election, 1,565 voted in Snyder; 90 from Hermleigh; and 115 from Ira.

Monday morning, all vote counts remained unofficial until they can be canvassed by the respective entity boards. The smallest margin for apparent winners involved at least 100 votes, however.

As the voting now stands, the only possibility of a runoff election was avoided as incumbent college trustee Roy Baze polled a majority of votes over two opponents in the first contested election in the 13-year history of Western Texas College.

Incumbent Bill Wilson was unopposed for another six-year term on the WTC board.

In addition, a write-in candidacy for a Snyder school board seat appeared to be successful as Allen Grimmett polled a majority over two other announced candidates, although one of these had indicated prior to the election he would be unable to serve if elected.

Incumbent school trustee J.D. Hinton, place 7, also apparently won re-election for a second three-year term.

In the city council election, two incumbents were unopposed. The council will gain two new members with incumbents for both electing not to seek re-election after completing two two-year terms.

In the city council race, Mayor Rod Waller and Councilman Don Osborn, place 6, won new terms unopposed.

In addition, the apparent winners from two two-candidate races were Tommy Davis, place 2, and Troy Williamson, place 4.

Voting judges Saturday were Pat Falls, who served for both the school and college election, and Janelda Davis, who served as city election judge.

The following is a breakdown of votes for

HOMECOMING MEMORIES — Work is beginning on the campus of Western Texas College as plans for the weekend WTC Homecoming take shape. A collage of photographs made in years past have been gathered in the Student Center. Shown working on the layout are Cathy Caddell and Danny Hunter, Mr. and Miss WTC for 1983-84. They will serve as official host and hostess for a reception planned from 8:30 a.m. until noon next Saturday in the center. (SDN Staff Photo)

WTC contracts due vote

New contracts for professional personnel at Western Texas College will be considered Monday during the April meeting of the WTC board of trustees.

Ballots from Saturday's board election will be canvassed also and the official swearing-in for two new terms will be conducted.

Beginning new six-year terms will be Bill Wilson, place 1; and Roy Baze, place 2.

The Monday meeting will begin at 5:45 p.m. in the administration building conference room.

TESCO's rate before council

A rate increase request filed by Texas Electric Service Company will be before the Snyder city council Monday.

While local comment is required concerning such requests, traditionally the final decision will come at the state level and the Public Utility Commission.

The council will have the option, however, of approving the rate, disapproving it or postponing any final action.

The decision is scheduled during the April meeting of the city. It will begin at 6:30 p.m. at city hall.

In other agenda items listed under new business, the council will:

—Consider amending the Borden County fire contract to specify medical coverage.

—Consider a home occupation special use permit requested by Ben Clamon. The permit would allow the selling of food and vitamins at his residence, 1205 28th St.

—Canvass the ballots from Saturday's city council election.

—Appoint two members to the Colorado River Municipal Water District. The current terms of James Rosser and H.W. Cargile expire May 31.

—Review plans to widen 30th St. east from College Ave.

—Consider a request from the chamber of commerce to conduct a fireworks display July 4 in Towle Park.

—Appoint one member to the Builders Board of Appeal. The term of D.D. Shelburne expired April 1.

Hermleigh seats won unopposed

Two members of the Hermleigh school board were unopposed in their bids for re-election Saturday. In addition, Hermleigh voters cast ballots for two expiring seats on the board of trustees for Western Texas College.

In the school board election, trustees unopposed were Jimmy Hudgins and Alan Kuss. Hudgins received 69 votes and Kuss 64.

Write-in votes cast were Carol Haynes, 25; Billy Haynes, 7; and Tim Dacus, 2.

10 votes divide Ira school vote

Four seats on the Ira school board were decided in Saturday's vote, but only one was a contested race.

The election was the first for Ira where candidates run for specific board places. Ira voters also cast ballots in the Western Texas College election.

The single contested race involving announced candidates was for place 1. Bo Robinson was elected to that post with 69 votes. Carl Smith received 59 votes.

Other candidates included Myron Calley, place 2, who received 112 votes; Jim Wilson, place 3, 113 votes; and Darwin Baze, place 5, 110 votes.

For place 5, Smith received one write-in vote and for place 3 Smith received one write-in vote and Robinson received two write-in votes.

'Fighting chance' remains to repair spacecraft

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Challenger's astronauts will try again Tuesday to snare the crippled Solar Max spacecraft with the shuttle's bionic arm, and a flight director said today they have a "fighting chance" to carry out the first satellite repair mission in space.

The satellite eluded them Sunday when free-flying spaceman George Nelson was unable to hook on to it despite repeated attempts.

"We are in good shape and anticipate a good shot at it tomorrow," flight director Jay Greene told reporters. He said the effort was given new life by a dramatic series of radio commands from Earth that stopped Solar Max's gyrations, stabilizing it for a safe approach.

"It's going to be tight; we have no guarantees," he said.

Greene raised the possibility of bringing satellite back to Earth for repair. He said the decision will depend on how much maneuvering fuel Challenger has remaining after Tuesday's effort.

The unit, known as the Solar Maximum Satellite, is a sophisticated solar observatory launched in 1980 to study sunspots and other phenomena. Within a year after it reached orbit, a control system and electronics box failed, greatly reducing its value to science.

Commander Robert Crippen and his crew had hoped to try again to rendezvous with the satellite today, but the radio commands succeeded in steadying Solar Max so well that engineers had to start it spinning slowly again to enhance the chance of grabbing it.

"They did a magnificent job on the ground," Greene said. But because the target is almost steady, he said, there is a high probability the docking pin will be on the side opposite the shuttle.

It would be better, he said, if Solar Max were given the extra day to resume spinning about one revolution every six minutes so the astronauts would have several chances to grapple it with the 50-foot arm without having to use valuable fuel to fly around the spacecraft.

"We've decided not to do it today; we'll wait 'til tomorrow," Mission Control told the astronauts today, giving them a leisurely schedule — taking pictures and medical and scientific experiments.

Astronaut James van Hoften took a look at a box full of 3,300 honeybees and counted about 20 dead ones. The survivors, he said, appeared to be building a good honeycomb in their weightless world.

If the capture is successful, Greene said the astronauts likely will extend their flight.

Ask Us

Q. — At Saturday's school board vote, I saw a card which indicated how to vote for a write-in candidate. Is this legal?

A. — Yes. Under Texas law, when there is a write-in candidate, information regarding the name of the write-in candidate must be provided if a voter requests it. A card was kept at the school ballot table. Election judge Pat Falls said unless a request was made, this card was kept face down.

In Brief

Group criticizes U. S. plan

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Four Latin American nations working to avoid a regional war in Central America say American military maneuvers and U.S. support for Nicaraguan rebels are "intensifying tensions and deepening distrust."

The foreign ministers of Mexico, Venezuela, Colombia and Panama, which make up the Contadora group, issued a communique Sunday criticizing U.S. maneuvers under way in Honduras and the mining of leftist-led Nicaragua's ports by U.S.-backed insurgents.

Elsewhere in Central America, El Salvador's Archbishop Arturo Rivera y Damas said rightist death squads have become more active in recent days. He said the increasing violence threatens the upcoming Salvadoran presidential runoff election.

The Contadora group, which takes its name from the Panamanian island where the foreign ministers met to launch the peace effort in January 1983, warned of a "grave deterioration" of prospects for peace in the region.

The Contadora nations are seeking a demilitarization of Central America and a negotiated settlement of the region's political conflicts.

Gunmen kill three in bar

HOUSTON (AP) — Three people were killed when two gunmen opened fire in a bar in northeast Harris County, sheriff's deputies said.

The gunfire erupted about 9:20 p.m. Sunday at Lee's Spot when two men who had been ejected from the bar earlier in the evening returned with guns, investigators said.

Two people were killed immediately when the men opened fire and a third died late Sunday at Tidelands Hospital, authorities said. The third man was identified as Donald Paul Brunk, 31, a spokeswoman at the Harris County Medical Examiner's office said today. She said officials were still trying to reach the other victims' families.

A bouncer returned the gunfire, wounding one gunman who was in serious condition today at Northeast Memorial Hospital, deputies said. The other suspect was taken into custody, investigators said.

SCOOP meets county

Scurry County commissioners told members of Snyder's SCOOP organization Monday they are now looking into the legal guidelines regarding pledging county funds for the organization's home for teenage girl project.

SCOOP (Scurry County Options and Opportunities for People) volunteers have indicated they would like the county to consider a fund donation toward the project, to be called Friendship Home.

Meeting again with the court Monday were Becky Robinson and Peggy Kennedy.

SCOOP has scheduled a series of fund raising activities this week. The next one is Wednesday with an adult game day planned at the Teen Center.

This week has been declared Friendship Home Week by county officials.

Ag teams win in Canyon

Snyder High School vocational agriculture students won two events and placed high in three others in competition held at West Texas State University in Canyon Saturday.

SHS Ag teacher Billy Bob McMullan said Monday that the local teams won both the grass and crops judging events and took 3rd, 4th, and 5th places respectively in the range, livestock and meat judging contests.

United Way changes due

Proposed organizational changes for the Scurry County United Way campaign will be revealed here Tuesday at a meeting of all directors for the local effort.

It will begin at 10 a.m. at city hall.

Officials await results of bone tests

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — Authorities hope to receive results today of tests on bone fragments found at at Kerrville-area ranch where six people allege they were held as virtual slaves and where one man says he was forced to burn a human body.

"Obviously, those results will determine where our investigation goes and its intensity," Kerr County Sheriff Cliff Greeson said Sunday.

Greeson also said he is looking for at least one more person who apparently was held at the ranch, located about 20 miles northwest of Kerrville near Mountain Home.

"We really want to find him if we can," Greeson said.

Three people — Wesley Ellebracht Sr., 57; his son Wesley Jr., 31; and daughter-in-law Joyce Ellebracht, 29 — remained in the Kerr County jail on Sunday in lieu of $100,000 bond each. Greeson said their arraignment on aggravated kidnapping charges could come this week.

Five men and a woman, described by authorities as drifters who were picked up while hitchhiking, allegedly were kept at the ranch and forced to work there. Officials reported that the six said they had been chained to trees and threatened with cattle prods.

"There were kept down there in the barn. It's as remote as it can be," Greeson said.

"It was terribly degrading. They were forced to sleep in a barn with a dirt floor. They slept on old mattresses and ate canned food they cooked in an old wash pot," he said.

Larry Todd, spokesman for the Department of Public Safety in Austin, said Sunday that DPS experts were working on the bone fragments. He described the case as "really weird."

If the tests reveal that the bone fragments were human, Greeson said law officers would return to the ranch for further investigation. He said officers armed with search warrants gathered evidence at the ranch on Friday and Saturday. The Ellebracht's were arrested Friday.

The 3,500-acre ranch is located on what Greeson described as "real hilly, real rough terrain."

In the past, he said, lawmen only heard about the ranch "when we'd get calls about their cattle getting out and getting up on Interstate 10."

The six people "were drifters who hitchhiked from Florida to California and back. They weren't the type to have relatives who would report them missing," Greeson said.

The sheriff said the six do not want to discuss their ordeal. He said they are being carried for by "a local organization that doesn't want its name released."

A man who notified the Texas Rangers about the allegations 10 days was also in seclusion.

Lawmen who freed the six Thursday night encountered no resistance, Greeson said. He said sheriff's deputies, the FBI, Texas Rangers and Department of Public Safety officials raided the ranch Friday.

Every day somebody comes up with a new product, a new service, a new idea.

Schoolboy Fred Smith had an idea; he absolutely, positively believed in an overnight package delivery service. His term paper on the subject got him only a "C."

But in 1973 he went to work to prove his point and today his FEDERAL EXPRESS makes more than 90 million shipments a year.

Steve Jobs was 20 years young when he created an Apple Computer — and started the computer revolution.

He built Apple from scratch into a billion-dollar business in eight years.

Wally Amos had a recipe for cocolate—chip cookies. He borrowed $25,000 to start what is now Famous Amos cookies, a $300 million business.

Liz Claiborne began designing clothing just seven years ago. Today she employs a thousand people.

America is still open for business.

Anybody innovative, imaginative, creative — who is also competent, efficient and competitive — can scale the heights.

Last year 16,500 companies were started with loans from the Small Business Administration. Already they have filed 125,000 patent applications.

Lots of names you've never heard of. But you will.

It still takes imagination.

Kimo Turner dared to open three indoor tanning salons — in Hawaii. And succeeded. Tanning salons in Hawaii!

Ron Hogan dared to open a Dairy Queen in Kotzebue, Alaska — on the edge of the Arctic Circle — and he's selling ice cream to Eskimos!

Then there is the Cabbage Patch doll.

Xavier Roberts, who designed the first of the Cabbage Patch kids, has since licensed sales to Coleco but remains personally involved.

He sold a record 3.2 million last Christmas and might have sold more except that demand exceeded the supply.

He tells me that he honestly intended to anticipate and satisfy the demand for next Christmas — but — foreign orders have overwhelmed the company. Europe is in love with the Cabbage Patch kids and Japan can't get enough so, probably, they will be in short supply again next Christmas.

Also, Roberts — in the image of the best of America's entrepreneurs — is not "standing still."

Already he has in production a new generation of Cabbage Patch "pets," animals unlike any other, which he calls "K'oosas."

Across my desk comes an idea a day for something innovative which I usually forward to Baylor University's Center For Private Enterprise for evaluation.

America is still open for business!

At Wit's End
by erma bombeck

I don't pretend to know a lot about football, but the other day when I was taking a three-week supply of newspapers out of the family room I noticed where an All-American quarterback, Steve Young, signed a contract with a team in Los Angeles for $40 million over a 43 year period.

I figured the kid has to be 22 or 23 years old. In 2027, that would make him 65 or 66 years old. that seems old for a quarterback to me, but what do I know? If he eats sensibly and takes Geritol, it could happen.

When I mentioned this to my son he said a lot of football contracts offered big bucks on a long-term basis. He said "Magic" Johnson of the Lakers has a 25-year deal worth $25 million and Dave Winfield of the Yankees will be paid $15 million over the next 10 years.

He also reminded me of how I discouraged him from playing football because there was no future and no money in it.

Children have a wonderful talent for remembering every lousy word of advice you gave them, but none of the good stuff. I had a feeling I was about to hear a replay of my more forgettable lectures.

"You wanted me to work for Ma Bell, remember? You said there was security in the phone company ... especially when there was a monopoly.

"Then you pushed for me to be a teacher. You said children would always be in great supply in this country. The demand for English teachers would always be with us. That was two years before the English teacher glut.

"Then you got the idea I should go into the automobile industry. You said America's affair with the big car would never be over, but would take me right into retirement."

"Are you finished?" I asked.

"No. You told me politics was dull and there weren't any peeks. Besides, the presidency didn't lead to anything. If I wanted excitement, I should go into the wave of the future ... like selling underground nuclear shelters.

"You told me computers were a fad like the hula hoop and the mood ring, but if I could figure out a way to carry 78 rpm records with breaking them, I could write my own ticket."

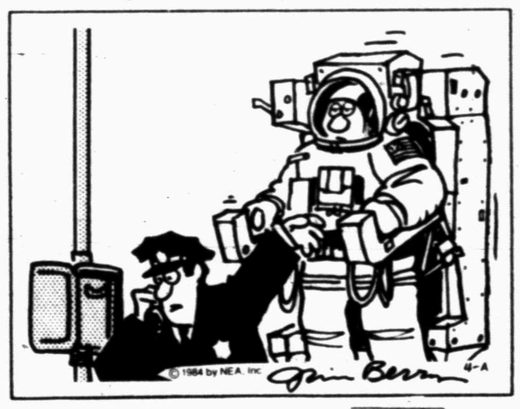

Some mothers are lucky. They raise their sons to be 65-year-old quarterbacks who take their $1.3 million a year, their Social Security benefits and their Grecian Hair Formula royalties and live the good life.

With my luck, my kid would suit up for the game in 2027 and Los Angeles wouldn't be there.

Delta Kappa Gamma meets at Dermott

Zeta Lambda Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma International met in the home of Marge Mathis at Dermott March 19.

Ruby Anderson reminded members of the importance of friendship in the meditation.

The program entitled "New and Old Waves" was presented by Joyce Fuqua, Jean Sealy, Phil Kelly, Monette O'Day, Helen Mock, Virginia Grove, and chairman, Durelle Gorman. This program was done as an orientation for the two new members, Betty Courtney and Sharilyn Vestal. A brief history of the society was given by Virginia Grove in readiness for the Bingo games which followed.

Marge Mathis requested that the chapter assist Scurry County Options and Opportunities for People in providing a home for abused girls. Carol Miller, a SCOOP member, informed the chapter of the progress made. President Johnnie Harber was to appoint a committee to find out some possible needs the chapter might fulfill.

Georgene Galloway reported on the teacher survey in progress and is to report on the results at the April meeting.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Marge Mathis, Georgene Galloway, Johnnie Harber, Empress Terrell, and Carolyn Hamby.

Another enjoyable novel by Greeley

LORD OF THE DANCE. By Andrew M. Greeley. Warner Books. 401 Pages. $17.50.

There is something about an Andrew Greeley novel that is enjoyable. I'm not quite sure what the magic ingredient is. It isn't the characters, who are unrealistic. It isn't the story line, which is implausible. It isn't the fact that Greeley, a Catholic priest, writes scenes that contain sex and violence. But whatever it is, that special "something" about Greeley's novels keeps the reader turning the pages.

"Lord of the Dance" is his latest and the final book in his Passover trilogy, which his publisher describes as "a story of death and resurrection, of fire and water coming together to produce new life."

The novel's main character is Noele Farrell, a teen-ager living in the present-day Chicago area. Her mother, Irene, is a frustrated novelist. Her father, Roger, is a university professor with political ambitions. The Farrell family also includes Roger's brother, John, a Catholic priest, and Roger's and John's cousin, Daniel X. Farrell, who disappeared over China in 1964, while apparently on a mission for the CIA, and who is presumed dead.

Noele becomes interested in discovering what really happened to Daniel while researching the family's history for a school assignment. She begins asking questions, questions that are best not asked. Soon, the family's life is disrupted, and Noele is in grave danger.

Noele is an intriguing character. In certain ways, she is a "typical teen-ager" who likes boys, sports cars and fast food, but who hates to clean her room. Yet, she also displays rare intelligence and sincerity, and an eerie ability to read other people's thoughts. The character is not skillfully created; Noele is often too smart and self-assured to be believable. Still, she is appealing.

The plot itself is contrived, with various twists and turns and subplots that neither add nor detract from the main story line. John and Irene are attracted to one another. Roger is unfaithful to Irene, and Daniel seems to have had an impact on quite a few lives.

"Lord of the Dance" may not be critically acclaimed but it will probably be eagerly read by Greeley fans.

Jim: "Let's talk about squeezes for a while."

Oswald: "Some are complicated. Some are so simple that declarer will just fall into them automatically. Let's look into a squeeze that would develop automatically for any declarer."

Jim: "Here's the simplest possible one. South opens two no-trump with his 21 points. North looks at his 17 and counts a combined minimum of 37, even if his partner has shaded his opening down to 20 points, as most players are inclined to do. Anyway, he counts a second time to make sure and bids seven no-trump."

Oswald: "North and South are unlucky. If either held four spades or hearts, the presence of the jack would give them a sure 13 tricks."

Jim: "As it is, if either minor suit breaks 3-3, the 13 tricks are right there. If both minor suits break badly, and East and West are reasonable bridge players, seven will go down unless fate comes to declarer's rescue."

Oswald: "All declarer has to do is play out his spades and hearts. On the last one, East has to chuck a club or diamond. Whichever he chucks gives declarer his thirteenth trick. East has been the victim of an automatic simple squeeze."

Buscaglia video presented to BSP

Jean Rico gave a video presentation by Dr. Leo Buscaglia entitled "The Art of Being Fully Human" to members of Beta Sigma Phi at their regular meeting April 3.

Dr. Buscaglia pointed out that there is no limit to human potential and the greatest attribute in a human is forgiveness. He also stated that if we are bored we are probably boring, that the opposite of love is apathy, and 90 percent of what we worry about never happens.

Hostesses for the evening were Marie Boone and Carolyn House. Dena Ellis, president, announced there would be a game day at the Teen Center Wednesday, April 11, from 1-3 p.m. to support Scurry County Options and Opportunities for People.

Beverly Mitchell reminded members that the Founder's Day Banquet will be the next social. Jean Rico, service chairman, handed out packets for the Cancer Drive and reminded those working on this project that they would need to finish by April 13.

The next meeting is scheduled for April 17.

L. Geter gets life of fried chicken

GREENVILLE, Texas (AP) — Lenell Geter shed a life prison sentence and now has a lifetime of free chicken from one of the restaurants he was accused of robbing until prosecutors decided he was innocent.

Geter and George Hairston, a lawyer with the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, visited the restaurant Saturday on their way to a banquet in Dallas honoring two lawyers who represented Geter and his former roommate, Anthony Williams.

"He wanted chicken," Geter said, explaining why he and Hairston stopped at the restaurant at about 6 p.m. Saturday. "I guess it was a spur-of-the-moment thing."

Geter said the manager of the restaurant, Joe Cuna, recognized him and gave him a business card with a handwritten, lifetime free-meal pass at the restaurant scribbled on the back.

"We were really touched (that) he'd come in," Cuna said. "I guess he just wanted to show us everything was cool."

None of the restaurant employees worked there in August 1982, when police claimed Geter robbed the establishment.

Geter, a black engineer working at E-Systems in Greenville, was tried on charges of robbing another fried chicken restaurant in Balch Springs, a suburb of Dallas. He received a life sentence. He was not tried on the Greenville charge.

Prosecutors agreed to let Geter have a new trial last December. Charges were dropped last month after authorities blamed the robbery on an ex-convict from Houston.

Williams, a former E-Systems engineer, was acquitted of a robbery charge stemming from a holdup of a fast food restaurant in the Dallas suburb of Garland. He said he is now pursuing an engineering degree at the University of Texas at Arlington.

TV series probes Gospels validity

LONDON (AP) — A three-part television series that questions the authenticity of the Christian Gospels has angered some Britons and sparked a lively debate among Britain's clerics, scholars and theologians.

One politician asked that the show be canceled. But a Church of England spokesman is advising viewers to "grit your teeth and see it through."

The first one-hour segment of the series, entitled "Jesus: The Evidence," aired Sunday night on national television.

It suggested that the writers of the Gospels invented incidents in the life of Jesus Christ because they knew nothing about him and that the virgin birth and resurrection of Jesus are myths borrowed from earlier religions.

Another proposition was that the Gospels were "ghost written" after the apostles died. The four Gospels of the New Testament are attributed to the apostles Matthew, Mark, Luke and John.

The program cast doubt on the miracles attributed to Christ and said he might not have walked on water but instead on a sandbank.

The entire three-hour series, produced by London Weekend Television for the commercial Channel 4 network, was screened for selected groups before the national broadcast.

A 41-member group of the Anglican state Church of England's Evangelical Alliance denounced the program as "mischievous, misleading and imbalanced."

Grandmas jailed in legal crossfire over probate issue

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — Two grandmothers, described by their friends as sweet, God-fearing and stubborn, are behind bars because they refused to tell a judge where another woman had stashed her money.

Evelyn Hertzog and Dorothy Pauline Lindsay, both 65 and both of Denison, have been caught in a legal dispute between Mary Ellen Bader, of Sherman, and Mrs. Bader's children, who are seeking control of her estate.

Mrs. Hertzog and Mrs. Lindsay have sided with their friend and against a county judge, who demanded that the women tell him where Mrs. Bader had hidden an estimated $45,000.

As a result, the two grandmothers were sharing a cell at the Grayson County Jail for a fifth day today.

"They're great little old ladies," a jail spokesman told the Dallas Times Herald. "They're in a separate cell by themselves. It's a standard cell with a couple of beds, a toilet, a shower and a table to eat on. They're getting regular jail food."

Stephen Hefner, a lawyer representing the jailed women, said a hearing was scheduled today in Tyler before U.S. District Judge William Steger in an effort to secure Mrs. Hertzog's release.

Hefner spent Sunday trying to get U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice, also of Tyler, to release Mrs. Lindsay.

Their saga began last Wednesday when they accompanied Mrs. Bader, 55, to a court hearing in Sherman to offer moral support, friends said. Mrs. Hertzog is Mrs. Bader's sister. Mrs. Lindsay is Mrs. Hertzog's next-door neighbor.

Mrs. Bader's son, Walter, was appointed a temporary guardian of his mother's estate in January after he convinced County Judge Lloyd Perkins she was mentally incompetent to manage her own affairs. Bader has been attempting to gather his mother's assets for safekeeping.

Mrs. Bader says she is not mentally incompetent and is resisting her son in court. She has refused to turn over $45,000 in cash she received when her husband, a retired building contractor, died four years ago.

"I'm not hiding it. I just say that it belongs to me and he has no right to have guardianship over me," she said Sunday. "I don't honor that."

During a court hearing Wednesday, Mrs. Bader refused to tell the probate judge where the money was.

Bader's lawyer, Scott Pelley, said he then decided to put Mrs. Hertzog and Mrs. Lindsay on the witness stand, a move he called "a stab in the dark."

"They indicated they knew where the assets were and refused to tell us," Pelley said.

Perkins said he then ordered the women to jail.

Teens named guilty

HOUSTON (AP) — Four teen-agers have been charged in connection with the shooting death of a prominent architect who was killed outside his home as he attempted to help a deputy arrest a suspect, authorities said.

James Edward Gerry, 17, was charged Sunday with capital murder in the death of William Frank Wortham Jr., according to the Harris County district attorney's office.

Three youths who authorities say were waiting for Gerry in a car were charged with burglarizing a vehicle. They were identified as Terrence C. Smith, 19; Eric T. Collins, 17; and Richard D. Hornsby, 18.

Homicide detectives also were searching for two other suspects who were in the neighborhood burglaring another car when Wortham was killed, said Sgt. Larry Webber. Detectives want to question the suspects to find out what they know about the shooting.

Wortham died Wednesday of a gunshot wound to the chest after he tried to help Harris County Deputy Constable Clyde Williams arrest a man who was spotted sitting in Wortham's car, apparently trying to rob it.

As Wortham walked out of his southwest Houston home to help, the suspect grabbed the deputy's .357-caliber pistol and fired a single shot at Wortham.

Wortham, a graduate of the University of Texas, studied with several European architects and American architect Frank Lloyd Wright.

He began designing buildings in Houston in 1948. He designed many of the city's office buildings and apartment complexes and worked on projects in more than a dozen states.

At the time of his death, Wortham was working on two condominium projects in Galveston

Dear Abby

Nursing 6-Year-Old Is Not the Cultural Norm

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I totally disagree with your attitude toward breast-feeding a 6-year-old boy. (You said, "At his age he should be drinking from a cup—and I don't mean a D cup.") You also said that most pediatricians would agree with you. Which ones?

I am sending you a list of physicians on the La Leche League's Advisory Board. If you had called any of them you would have been told that it is perfectly OK and very beneficial emotionally as well as physically for a 6-year-old to nurse.

Please don't allow your own prejudices to interfere with your advice.

JUDY K., PATTERSON, N.J.

DEAR JUDY: My office telephoned pediatricians in Denver, Cincinnati, Washington, D.C., Des Moines, Iowa, Rochester, N.Y., Edmonds, Wash., Columbia, Mo., Miami, Chicago, Tucson, Ariz., and Toronto, Canada.

The consensus was that to breast-feed a 6-year-old in this culture would be highly irregular, bizarre, psychologically unhealthy and definitely not recommended. Most doctors indicated that the mother needed psychiatric treatment—that she is satisfying her own need, not that of her child.

Only one physician said he saw nothing wrong with a mother breast-feeding her 6-year-old son, but it would be considered somewhat "unusual" in our culture. He pointed out that he had read in the medical literature that an 82-year-old man had been breast-fed by his daughter, but that occurred in Peru where the culture is different from ours.

In conclusion, shall we say the dairy bar should be closed to any child who is old enough to put his foot on the rail?

DEAR ABBY: I always wondered why my aunts and uncles never talked much about my grandfather's absence from the family scene from 1908 to 1920. An indirect hint from a cousin led me to search the records of the state mental institution. Sure enough, there was Grandpa's name.

Shall I tell the relatives where Grandpa was all those years, or keep the family secret? The problem is particularly pressing because I have children, one of whom is chronically mentally ill, and I understand that these tendencies are often inherited.

Should my children be told? It could involve future generations.

WORRIED IN EUGENE, ORE.

DEAR WORRIED: Absolutely. To withhold such information would be unfair and unwise.

DEAR ABBY: I feel terrible about something and want your opinion. I went to visit a friend one afternoon without calling first to tell her I was coming.

When I knocked on her door, she called through the door, "Who is it?" After I told her who it was, all I heard was her footsteps walking away from the door. I stood there for about five minutes, and when she didn't come back, I began to wonder if maybe she was sick or something, so I knocked again to make sure she heard me.

About 10 minutes later she came to the door and yelled, "What's the matter? Can't you take a hint?" When I tried to explain that I thought maybe she was sick, she walked away from the door again.

Now I'm upset and my feelings are hurt. What should I do if I see her again?

HURT IN HIBBING, MINN.

DEAR HURT: Apologize for knocking on her door without having called to find out if she wanted company. She may have been sleeping, not feeling well, or otherwise occupied.

Your friend was very rude to have asked, "Can't you take a hint?" Let her know your feelings are hurt. In the future, if you want to be welcome, call first.

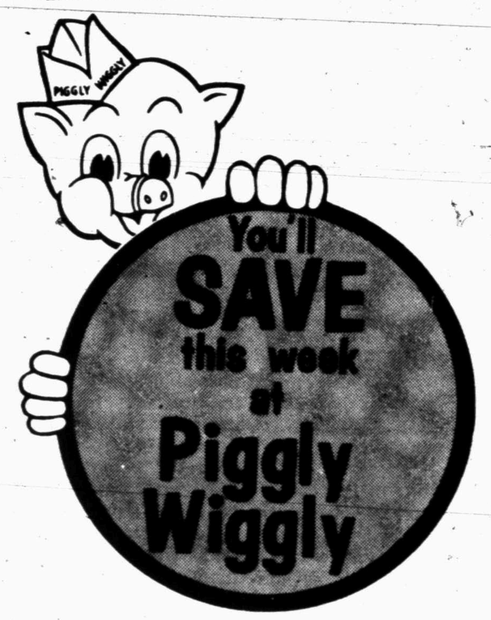

Despite ruling owners rebuilding

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Residents on this island's hurricane-battered west side have built bulkheads, hauled in tons of sand to create new dunes and planted grass around their beach houses.

But in Austin, an assistant attorney general is working on lawsuits against owners who have been told they cannot rebuild their beach houses. Twelve lawsuits already have been filed.

Nearly eight months after Hurricane Alicia roared ashore, many homes on West Beach are better than before. Other, however, remain only pilings because the owners have been told they can't rebuild.

The hurricane caused massive erosion and pushed back the natural boundary between the public beach and private property.

Satellite responds to earth signals

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — High above the Earth, circling the planet once every 90 minutes, the "patient" was terribly sick, and NASA assembled its top team to find a cure.

The patient was the Solar Max, a science satellite that had been crippled since 1980. It lapsed into an apparently terminal illness on Sunday when an attempted salvage resulted in an out-of-control tumble. Its batteries were running down and there was little hope to stabilize the spinning, twisting, wobbling craft.

Max seemed a goner.

"We kept talking about whether the patient will live," said Frank Cepollina, a Goddard Space Center scientist who was the mission manager for Solar Max. "We went from crisis to crisis. We were very concerned about the patient, but we're not going to give up."

Max had been spinning slowly when astronaut George Nelson, flying a jet pack from the space shuttle, attempted to attach a clamp on the satellite and stop the spin. Nelson thrice jammed the clamp, called the Trunnion Pin Adapter, against a handle on Max's side. But each time the clamp failed to snap closed.

The impact of Nelson's attempts sent Max into a wobble and then to a tumble. What had been a gentle spin became a three-axis gyration.

Solar panels that usually supply power were denied sunlight. Max began to pull electricity from its batteries.

A National Aeronautics and Space Administration official announced that Max had only six hours left to live. After that, the electricity was gone. With no power, a tumbling Max would be space garbage. An attempt to snare an uncontrolled satellite with robot arm of the shuttle would be almost impossible — it would be like trying to spear a small target on a spinning ball.

Cepollina and a team of experts sent signals to Max to bring itself under control. The craft was ordered to use its torque bars — electro magnetic bars that use the Earth's magnetic field to control its movements.

What Cepollina got back was gibberish. Max's gyros, the engineers learned, were "saturated," sending out false signals. They were useless.

The team ordered Max to purge its computer and a new program was sent up. There were 40,000 words in the program — enough for a short novel — and they had to be sent in 4,000 word segments. It took two hours.

By then, Max had only four hours to live.

The new program was the perfect medicine. Max, the patient, responded almost immediately. Its spin and tumble slowed. But the batteries continued to decline.

NASA experts, even Cepollina, talked of Max's demise.

But then the solar panels caught sunlight. At first, it was only briefly, just enough to send a burst of energy to the batteries. The spin and tumble slowed even more. Max was getting better. Battery life improved.

"We might be lucky," said Cepollina.

Another flash of sunlight, and more power flowed into Max. Gradually, the craft came under control, gradually it picked up more and more sunlight, gradually the hope grew.

City agenda slated tonight

—Discuss closing an alley between 30th and 32nd Sts. east of Houston Ave.

In addition, the council has several old business items, all involving second readings of previously approved zoning changes. These include:

—Consider on second reading an ordinance changing a lot at 1807 40th St. from C-1 to R-4.

—Consider on second reading changing lots in the 600 Block of 32nd St. from R-3 to R-4.

—Consider on second reading changing a tract of land at 2801 25th St. from M-2 to R-4.

—Consider on second reading an ordinance which updates the city's zoning ordinance. This update essentially eliminates an R-4 designation previously set aside strictly for mobile homes.

College items due discussion

clude also:

—Consideration to increase room and board charges for WTC dormitory students.

—Ratification of a bid for fertilizer.

—Request for de-annexation of 300-ft. strip of property on the east, west and south sides of the campus.

Under information and discussion, college board members will:

—Hear the monthly president's report.

—Discuss the donation of a windmill to be placed on the WTC campus.

—Discuss expansion of the campus apartment units.

—Consider preliminary findings of the energy audit on campus.

—Discuss the college computer system.

—Discuss possible replacement of mailing and copying macines.

Dairy plan is explained

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new analysis by the Agriculture Department throws a little more light on the government's "paid diversion" program to cut milk production but stops short of predicting how effective the plan may be.

Faced with rising dairy surpluses and a milk support system that cost more than $2 billion a year, Congress last year designed the program to pay farmers $10 per 100 pounds for reducing the amount of milk they sell on the market during a 15-month period that began Jan. 1.

Although the program technically calls only for a reduction in milk marketed, not production, the effect is to cut output.

Nearly 38,000 dairy farmers — those with one cow or more — signed contracts to cut production 5 percent to 30 percent over the 15-month period.

Wrecks noted in Snyder

Two minor traffic mishaps were reported in Snyder over the weekend.

According to police reports, a 1977 Chevrolet driven by Greg Guerra of 1601 Ave. L., struck a trailer parked at 3408 Ave. V and owned by Bobby Thompson of that address.

That mishap occurred at 9:52 p.m. Saturday.

A hit-and-run accident was reported at 1:37 p.m. Sunday in the 2200 Block of Ave. I.

According to reports, a dumpster owned by the City of Snyder was struck by an unidentified vehicle.

Damage from both accidents was called minor and no injuries were reported in either incident.

City thefts over weekend

Snyder police were called to investigate a variety of complaints including three misdemeanor thefts Saturday and Sunday.

Jesse Garcia filed the weekend's first theft report at 2:07 p.m. Saturday. He told police a set of dishes and a toy car had been stolen from his pickup while the vehicle was parked at Shakey's Pizza between 9:45 and 10:30 p.m. Friday evening.

No value was estimated for the missing items.

Angie Johnston of 2707 Ave. X filed the second theft report at 1:13 p.m. Sunday.

She told officers that about $200 worth of clothes had been stolen from a machine at the Don Adams Laundry on 26th St. sometime between 11:50 a.m. and 12:10 p.m.

The weekend's third theft report was filed at 6:27 p.m. Sunday by Kay Grametbaur of the Smith Apartments.

According to reports, a radio-cassette player valued at $70 had been taken from her apartment sometime earlier Sunday.

City officers also jailed two suspects on misdemeanor assault following disturbance at an North Snyder residence late Sunday night.

One female subject involved in the altercation was treated for minor injuries and released from Cogdell Memorial Hospital shortly after midnight while two other individuals involved in the incident, one man and one woman, were booked for the misdemeanor assault.

Other weekend misdemeanor arrests included six subjects jailed for public intoxication, two for DWI, and one each for driving on a suspended license and disorderly conduct.

Ag department seeks comments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is seeking public comments on a proposal to change official U.S. standards for slaughter hogs.

Thomas H. Porter of the department's Agricultural Marketing Service said the proposed changes would make the standards easier to apply and that they would "more accurately reflect actual yields of lean cuts and to distribute carcasses more evenly" among the different grades.

"The current standards were issued in 1968, and most carcasses now qualify for the top grade due to improvements in hog production since 1968, particularly in reducing the amount of fat in the pork produced," Porter said.

As proposed, the revised grades would be based on the thickness of backfat over the last rib of the hog carcass, with an adjustment for superior or inferior muscling or lean.

Arthritis in eyes?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR LAMB — I'm 50 and bothered with arthritis. Some days it's worse than others. I take aspirin if necessary.

I noticed in one of your columns you said arthritis could affect the eyes and cause dryness and burning.

I've had this problem for the last five years. But my gynecologist and internist both say the medicines I take for hot flashes and an underactive thyroid have nothing to do with my eye problems.

I've seen an eye specialist who finds the moisture in my eyes very low, but he has no answers.

Do I have arthritis in the eyes? If so, what can be done about it?

DEAR READER — I don't like the term "arthritis of the eyes." In reality, the term rheumatoid arthritis is probably a misnomer. What we call rheumatoid arthritis is a generalized disease. One of its most prominent and frequent features is the joint involvement, but the disease can affect membranes and similar body tissue.

I'd prefer to say that you have an eye complication. Even if dry eyes occur because of rheumatoid arthritis, there are limits to what can be done. Your doctor can prescribe some solutions as a replacement for tears, which you can use regularly.

The dry eye complication of arthritis occurs with rheumatoid arthritis, not osteoarthritis (degenerative arthritis).

The generalized disease we call rheumatoid arthritis can include complications that involve the heart, lungs and even the blood vessels. I discuss this in the Health Letter SR-10, Rheumatoid Arthritis and Ankylosing Spondylitis, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My son is 9 and has recently been diagnosed as having diabetes insipidus. It seems to be an uncommon disease.

If he doesn't take his medicine, will the disease progress? He's had all the tests, including water loading and a CAT scan.

DEAR READER — As you probably know, diabetes insipidus has no relationship at all to diabetes mellitus, the form of diabetes associated with high blood sugars.

It's unfortunate that the term "diabetes" was ever applied to your son's problem. It's caused by the absence of a hormone from the pituitary gland that prevents excessive loss of water through the kidneys. As a result of this lack, these patients drink a lot of water and pass diluted urine. In most cases today, the medicine desmopressin is inhaled through the nose. It replaces the hormone action and prevents the loss of excess water through the kidneys. It's usually quite effective.

There are many causes of diabetes insipidus. All of them involve some damage to the portion of the brain that connects to the pituitary gland, or with the gland itself. Sometimes it's a tumor, which is why the CAT scan was done. It can be a birth defect or even a head injury.

The outlook really depends on the underlying cause. Sometimes the cause is never found and the diabetes insipidus is all you see. In many such cases, if it's not that serious, proper treatment may enable a person to live a normal life.

In six events...

Lady Tigers qualify five to regional track relays

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

SAN ANGELO -- As expected, Sweetwater dominated the District 2-4A girls relays here Saturday, outpointing its nearest competitor by 38 points. But if the Mustangs had thoughts of sweeping all three relays, they quickly evaporated when Snyder's Anderina Kitchens left the competition behind in the 4 x 400.

"I felt like I had an extra push, an extra spurt of energy," said the Snyder senior, who out-ran Sweetwater's Johnna Puckett in the lead-off leg of the evening's final event. "I felt like we could win it."

Kitchens handed off to Katerina Reed, who kept Snyder in front before giving way to Dora Hernandez. Hernandez ran well, but Sweetwater - which had speedsters Carol Weaver and Alice Smith on the final two legs - made its move, edging her by three steps. It wasn't enough. Hernandez gave the baton to 400-meter champ Karlene Thompson, who regained the lead on the backstretch and put Snyder across the finish line almost three seconds ahead of Smith.

Snyder ran a 4:07.6. Sweetwater finished in 4:10.06. Lake View was a distant third in a time of 4:17.58.

"It was a good way to end the meet," beamed Snyder Coach Patty Grimmett. "They wanted first place really bad."

It was one of six events the Tigers qualified to regionals in. Thompson qualified in all five she entered while Kitchens made it in three, Reed in two and Hernandez and Donna Anderson in one apiece.

Thompson had a banner day, setting a meet record of 37-9½ in the triple jump, winning the 400 meters in 61.75, grabbing second in the long jump with a leap of 17-1¾, and running the final leg of both the second place 800 meter relay and the winning 1600 meter relay.

"Karlene had an excellent day," said Grimmett. "All of our relays had fine times. The 800 was the fastest time we've ever run (1:46.11) and we had a freshman (Reed), two sophomores (Anderson and Thompson) and a senior (Kitchens). All of the girls from Snyder did well."

Thompson, who ran the 400 meters only minutes after running the final leg of the 800 relay, was exhausted by the end of the meet.

"It's great," she gasped. "I really didn't think I would do all of this. I knew the (1600) relay would do well. I just didn't know about me. I'm really proud of my quarter (400 meters) and my triple jump."

Thompson was the key to Snyder's placing second in the 800 relay. She took the baton trailing second place by three yards and edged out Andrews' Bonnie Flores at the finish line by four-one hundredths of a second. Kitchens, Reed and Anderson were the other members of the team.

Kitchens qualified in both relays and took second in the 200 meter dash with a time of 27.22. To take the regional-qualifying position, she nipped teammate Reed, who ran a 27.36.

"It's been that way all season. Sometimes I would beat her and sometimes she would beat me. It's just kind of alternated between us," said Kitchens, whose seven-year track career at Snyder paid off Saturday. "This (qualifying in three events) is just great."

Snyder also got sixth in the 200 as freshman Kim Koening ran a 29.34. Anderson also placed fifth in the discus with a 95-10 and sixth in the shot with a throw of 32-9. In other events, Dora Hernandez placed fifth in the 800 meters with a 2:33.77, Hope Hernandez was sixth in the discus with a 93-8 and Tonya Holladay was sixth with a time of 17.73 in the 100 meter hurdles.

Snyder's 400-meter relay team took third with a 49.01. Running on the squad were Koening, Anderson, Dora Hernandez and Stephanie McKnight.

Everything did not go well for the Tigers. Anderson, who pulled a muscle a week ago throwing the shot, did not qualify for the finals in the 100 meters - probably her best event. Also, Cintia Gonzales was a sure bet to qualify in the hurdles, but stumbled and fell in the preliminaries.

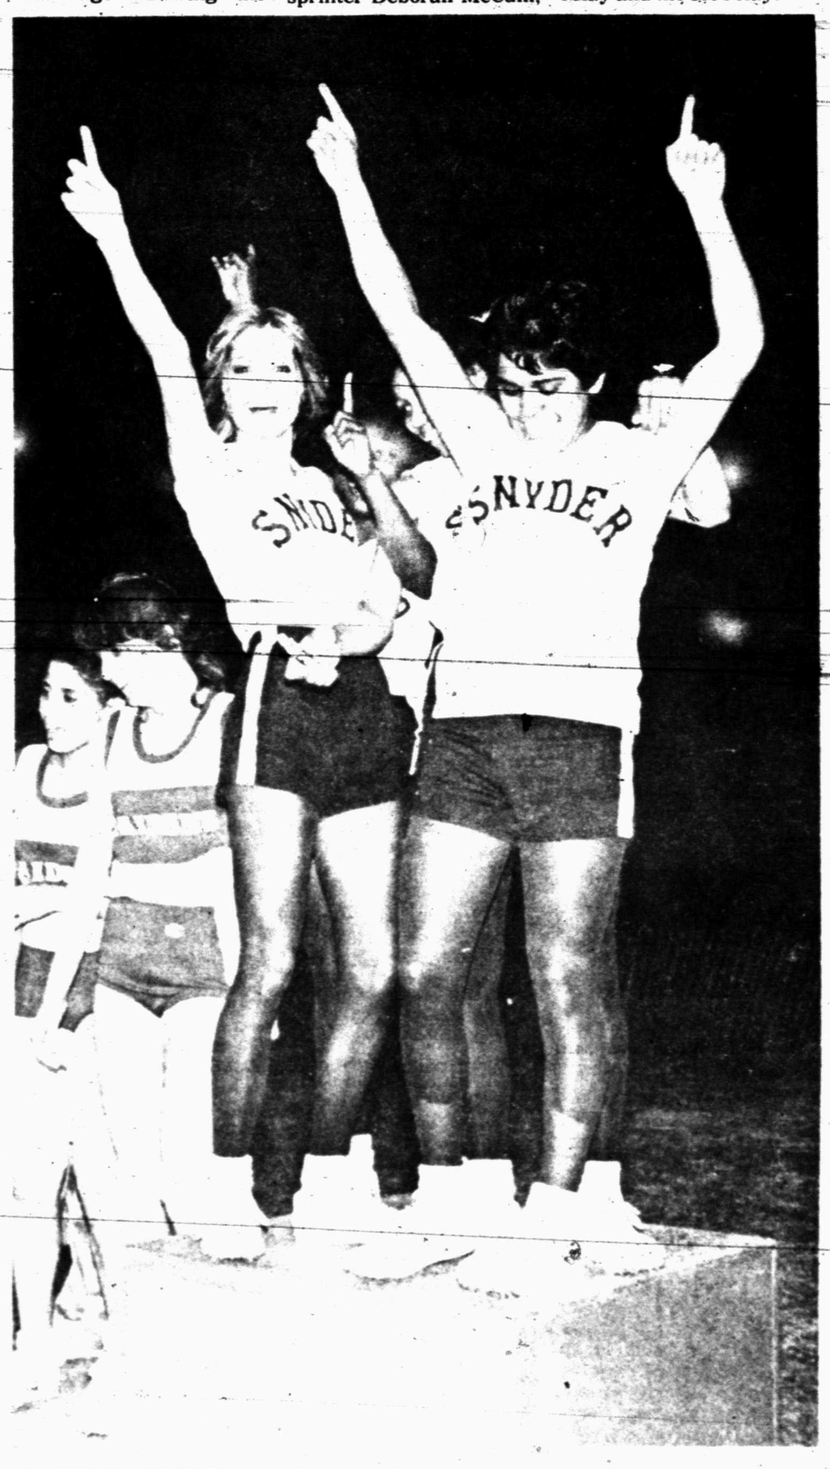

Sweetwater, led by sprinter Deborah McCain, won the meet with 161 points. Andrews polled 123 and Snyder tallied 98 for third place.

McCain won the 200 meters and led Sweetwater to wins in the 400 relay and the 800 relay.

Bulldogs 2nd at Loop Relays

LOOP -- Ira ran well in both relays and got strong efforts in individual events to place second in the Loop Six-Man Relays here Saturday.

The Bulldogs recorded 97 points to finish behind Dawson, which scored 104, and ahead of Grady, with had 86.

Hermleigh and Borden County also entered the meet, with Hermleigh's Marcus Fuentes winning the shot put. Fuentes threw the shot 42-3¾.

Chris Cooley of Borden County won the 100 meters in 11.86 and took second in the 200 meters in 25.26.

Ira grabbed second in the 400 relay with Darren Hughes, Jay Clark, Steve Denson and Danny Denson and third in the 1600 relay with Hughes, Bruce Strickland, Chris Reyna and Albert Reyna. The 400 squad ran a 47.07 and the 1600 team ran a 3:53.14.

Strickland placed third in the shot (39-4¾) and in the discus (122-11) for Ira, which also got a first place in the pole vault from Steve Denson (11-0), a second place in the 3200 from Reyez Juarez (11:32.42), a second in the 400 meters from Chris Reyna (56.11) and a second in the 100 (11.97) and a third in the 200 (25.34) from Danny Denson.

Ira's junior high team also placed second here. Lancer Hughes won the 100 and 200 and took third in both the long jump and shot put. Brent Withers set a meet record in the pole vault with a 9-9 and was third in the high hurdles.

The district meet will be held April 17 at Sands for Ira, Hermleigh and Borden County. A district junior high boys and girls meet is set for April 25 in Klondike.

Tigers ready for Andrews

ANDREWS -- Snyder's Tigers, undefeated in District 2-4A baseball, will take on Andrews here Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Girls win HC rodeo; WTC event this week

BIG SPRING -- Paced by all-around champion cowgirl Kellie Kyle, Western Texas College's women took first place in the Howard County NIRA Rodeo over the weekend here.

WTC's men took sixth.

"I was glad the girls won. We probably should have done a little better point-wise. It was not a high-point rodeo for us," said WTC Coach Bob Doty. "The guys' side was pretty disappointing. We drew well enough to win the rodeo. We just didn't do well with what we had."

Western will host its own collegiate rodeo this week, from the 12th through the 15th at Scurry County Coliseum. Tickets are $3 for adults and $2 for students.

"The guys have a lot to look forward too because of last week," added Doty. "They will be trying a lot harder. They've been trying every time, but things just haven't clicked for them."

Kyle, a freshman from Quanah, was first in the barrel race with a time of 17.94 and tied for fourth in the break-away roping with a time of 4.1.

Judy Cox of Commanche, Okla., tied for second place in the break-away with a 3.8.

The women recorded 186 points to defeat Sul Ross State University, which came up with 157.5. Tarleton was third with 136.5, followed by Eastern New Mexico with 77, Vernon RJC with 72 and NMJC and Howard with 27 each.

Aiding Western's men to 93.5 points was Roby's Rowdy Rasberry, who chalked a 71 to place third in the bull riding. Shane Smith of Sweetwater scored a 68 in the bareback to finish in a four-way tie for third place. John Hedrick of Post scored a 68 to place fourth in the saddlebronc.

Greg Rhodes of Stamford and Dale Gideon of Odessa tied for sixth in the bulls with a 69 apiece. Also, Randy Bomar of Midland was sixth in the calf roping with a time of 10.6 and Todd Whatley tied for sixth in the steer wrestling with an 8.5.

Sul Ross won the men's division with 420.5 points. New Mexico JC was second with 228, followed by Texas Tech with 166.5, Frank Phillips with 107.5, Tarleton with 96.5 and Western with 93.5. Eleven other schools participated in the men's division, including Vernon RJC which got 79.5 points and Eastern New Mexico wich had 14.

Campbell will run for Oilers

HOUSTON (AP) - Running back Earl Campbell, who demanded last season that the Houston Oilers trade him, now says he's willing to return to the club, The Houston Post reported today.

Campbell, 28, has two years left on his contract. He told the Post he wanted to play another four years.

Soviets make accusations; call for olympic meeting

MOSCOW (AP) - The Soviet Union, accusing the United States of violating the International Olympic Charter, asked today that an emergency session of the International Olympic Committee be convened.

The call was made in a statement issued by the Soviet National Olympic Committee and carried by the Tass, the official Soviet news agency. The statement did not say whether the Soviet Union has yet decided to send teams to the Summer Games, which start July 28.

The statement said that the 23rd Olympic Games in Los Angeles are just three months away and that "time is ever nearer for the national Olympic committees to take a decision on participation in the Olympic Games."

It said U.S. President Ronald Reagan has submitted to the International Olympic Committee written guarantees that the United States will respect the Olympic charter, but "these obligations and guarantees are not respected in a number of major matters."

It accused the Reagan Administration of using the Games for "selfish political ends" in the U.S. Presidential election year.

A senior U.S. diplomat, who asked not to be further identified, said on friday that it appeared the Soviets were "trying to build a record of complaints in order not to come to the olympics" should that decision be made.

Estate lawyers try to settle tax question

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorneys for Texas and California will meet Tuesday in Ann Arbor, Mich., to try to remove the last legal obstacle preventing 22 people from dividing the vast estate of Howard Hughes.

The only question left unanswered in the complex, eight-year fight for the reclusive tycoon's fortune, worth up to $2 billion, is which state has the right to collect the inheritance tax.

Hughes, 71, died in April 1976 aboard a private jet flying from Acapulco, Mexico, to Houston, his hometown. More than 40 purported wills that surfaced after his death were declared invalid and a Houston probate judge ruled in 1981 that Hughes had no immediate heirs.

A series of trials in 1981 determined that 17 relatives on Hughes' mother's side and five cousins on his father's side were heirs to the estate.

Early this year, the Texas Supreme Court dismissed the last challenge from people claiming to be Hughes' wives, illegitimate children and distant cousins.

Before the estate can be distributed, the U.S. Supreme Court may have to decide whether Texas, California or Nevada was Hughes domicile, or permanent home.

Both Texas and California claim to be Hughes' legal domicile and are waging a legal battle to collect more than $100 million in taxes on the estate. Attorneys for the estate claim Hughes' domicile was Nevada, which has no death tax and is not involved in the dispute.

Following a three-month trial in 1978, a jury of six Texans ruled that Hughes was a resident of Texas, which he left in 1926.

Hughes, once testifying before a U.S. Senate committee, said "I am a Texan and I give my word as a Texan," said Rick Harrison, an Austin attorney who has been preparing the state's case.

Harrison said Texas could collect up from $100 million to $130 million in inheritance taxes.

California has challenged the Texas court ruling, claiming Hughes left Texas and moved to California. Hughes lived in California for about 40 years until he moved to Nevada in 1966.

California, which has a higher inheritance tax than Texas, could gain $200 million, said Deputy Controller Peter Pelkofer.

The Supreme Court, which settles disputes between states, appointed Wade McCree, a former federal judge who teaches law at the University of Michigan, to oversee the case.

McCree has scheduled a pretrial conference Tuesday "to talk settlement," Harrison said. If the case is not settled, a trial will be held in the summer and McCree will submit his findings to the high court for a decision.

"A settlement means that they put money on the table and everybody walks away with some. It also means you get less than you argued for," Harrison said.

The federal law in effect when Hughes died was 77 percent, with a credit of up to 16 percent for state taxes.

If Nevada is found to be the late tycoon's domicile, the federal government will get the full 77 percent of the value of the estate at the time of Hughes' death.

If Texas is ruled Hughes domicile, the federal government will take 61 percent. Texas will get 16 percent of the value set by the federal government or 15 percent of the value determined by state officials.

When Hughes died, California had an inheritance tax of 24 percent, Pelkofer said. Voters repealed the tax two years ago, but it won't affect the case because the tax was in effect when Hughes died.

William T. Miller, a Houston attorney representing the state, said each of the 22 heirs has already received "some money — a very modest distribution" from the estate. "But they won't see any more money until the tax issue is resolved," Miller said.

Four of the 22 heirs are dead and their shares of the fortune will become part of their estates, Miller said.

California has spent nearly $5 million on the case, Pelkofer said.
