SUSPECT CHARGED WITH MURDER

Novelist Sought After Girl Dies In Quest Of Future Life

SUICIDE PACT IS FEARED IN RIVER DEATH

Body of Virginia Drew Found After Visit With Writer

NOVELIST MISSING

Maxwell Bodenheim Believed to Have Entered Death Agreement

NEW YORK, July 20. (UP)—The mystery of reincarnation and a young girl's belief in a better life after death were involved tonight in the attempt of New York police authorities to explain the apparent suicide of Miss Virginia Drew, 24, whose body was recovered from the North river and identified today by her father.

Foremost among police activities tonight was a search for Maxwell Bodenheim, New York novelist, who was known to have taken an interest in Miss Drew and promised assistance in her struggle for literary attention. Bodenheim has been absent from his apartment since early Tuesday.

Death Pact Hinted

The possibility of a suicide pact, with the girl fulfilling her end of the vow and the novelist backing down from his end, was considered by police, who believed Bodenheim would be found either in New York or in some nearby city.

Miss Drew was the daughter of Eugene Drew, a railroad station agent. She had artistic and literary aspirations and attended art school with Carolyn Nowday, a girl about her own age. Together they tramped Manhattan streets in search of employment but met with no success.

Virginia had been writing, completing manuscripts on theology and reincarnation, in which she was a stern believer. Telling Carolyn of her disappointment over failure to have the treatises accepted she declared:

"But I have met a 'literary light' and he has promised to help me."

Several days later Virginia told Carolyn that she had discovered her tutor was also a believer in reincarnation and that the two had entered into a suicide pact.

Carolyn argued with Virginia, at last persuading her to break the pact and to attempt to have the

Daniels Disappointed At Raskob's Selection

SLEDGEFIELD, N. C., July 20. (INS) — Disappointment was expressed today by Josephus Daniels, southern Democratic leader and ex-secretary of the navy, over the choice of John J. Raskob as chairman of the Democratic executive committee.

"It takes a lot of nerve and deliberation for a Democrat who has ridden a donkey for 40 years to attempt to ride a tiger," he said during the course of a civic club address. "The appointment of Raskob to guide the progress of the tiger has made a difficulty more difficult for most southern Democrats."

TEMPERANCE IS RASKOB'S PLEA AT CONFERENCE

Democratic Chairman Gives Views On Question Of Prohibition

COMMITTEES NAMED

Two Groups to Further Party's Caimpaign Are Chosen

NEW YORK, July 20. (AP)—John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, said at a press conference today he believed the thinking people of the country should try to work out some scheme "for the restoration of temperate life in America."

He said he had no definite plan in mind and the national committee had no idea of evolving any.

"I don't believe that's any part of our work in this campaign," he said. "But I sincerely believe such a plan should be evolved and that it should be adopted only after the most careful consideration so that it would be acceptable to everyone and could thus be made workable."

One of Issues

He expressed opinion that prohibition is one of several rather than the sole issue of the campaign, but added that the issues would have to be defined by the candidates and not by the committee.

"Do you think the majority of the people in the country are wet?" he was asked.

"I don't know," he replied. "It's difficult to class people as wet or dry. For instance, I'd hate to have people refer to me as a wringing wet."

Two Committees

Raskob spent most of the day in conference with Democratic leaders deciding on organization of the campaign forces and saw reporters just before starting on a week-end vacation at his home in Maryland. He said it had been decided to have two committees, an advisory one headed by Senator Peter Gerry of Rhode Island and an executive committee, headed by himself, to carry out the recommendations of the larger committee if they were approved.

The personnel of the two committees was announced as follows: Advisory, Senator Gerry, chairman; Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, Parker Corning of Albany, Pat Harrison of Mississippi, Bruce Kremer of Montana, William E. Oldfield of Arkansas, Jouett Shouses of Kansas, Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland, and John J. Raskob, ex-officio. Executive, Raskob, chairman; Senator Gerry, James J. Joey, Herbert H. Lehman, Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, Franklin D. Roosevelt, George R. Van Namee.

Iowa Park Residents Fail to Learn How Candidate Stands On Bolting

IOWA PARK, July 20.—Iowa Park residents wanted to know Friday night how A. V. Grant, candidate for election to the legislature from district 112, Wichita and Wilbarger counties, stands on the question of supporting or bolting Democratic party ticket in the general election.

But Mr. Grant did not choose to let the voters in on his secret.

"I'll let you know how I stand if Mr. Storey will tell you how he stands," he told them.

It seemed that the audience was mainly interested in Mr. Grant's attitude toward the national candidate, and not particularly curious about how Mr. Storey stood. This is the second rally where Mr. Grant has been questioned on his stand regarding the nominee of the Democratic party for president.

The heckling of Grant furnished the high spot of the meeting here which was attended by about 300 persons.

The district attorney and district judge's races also warmed up more than usual, all the candidates for both offices giving heated arguments against their opponents.

J. C. Murphree acted as chairman and introduced the speakers who were limited to 10-minute talks with the exception of candidates for

CIVIL TRIAL FOR ASSASSIN

Authorities Dispense With Usual Methods

MEXICO CITY, July 20. (UP)—Jose de Leon Toral, who shot President-elect Obregon in the back five times, will be tried by the civil courts as soon as the police investigation of the murder has ended, it was learned authoritatively tonight. It is usual in such cases in Mexico for the military authorities to try the assassin.

The second district court, meanwhile, granted a temporary "amparo," which enjoined the war office or the police department from proceeding against the prisoner for 72 hours. The petition was signed by Jose Mendez, unidentified.

Additional arrests were made today, it was learned officially, and the police are continuing an inquiry to disclose the assassin's religious connections and the possible responsibility of the Catholic clergy for the murder.

Chief of Police Rios Zertuche, although known as an ardent adherent of Obregon, is conducting the examination and the handling of Toral with a methodical, calm thoroughness. He issued a statement blaming the Catholic church for the assassination.

"Police headquarters now is in a position to make public the fact that responsibility for the crime rests with the Catholic clergy," his statement said.

"The general inspection of police, now under my charge, is about to conclude the investigation and we will make known the results in every detail."

Previously Zertuche ordered the young assassin brought before a number of newspaper men to show that he had not received rough treatment.

HIGH POWERED PUBLICITY FOR G. O. P. SOUGHT

Republicans Will Depend Largely On Editorial Aid in Race

DIGNITY GUARDED

Strategists Realize Hoover Must Not Be Made Ridiculous

By CHARLES S. HAYDEN
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 20.—High powered editorial support is being recruited by the executives in charge of the Herbert Hoover campaign to help put their candidate over in November.

It is generally agreed that, so far as possible, there will have to be a few speeches which, through a complete radio hookup, will be carried to the most remote corners of the country and each of these will be preceded by much ballyhoo. For the most part, however, Candidate Hoover is to be kept secluded in a sort of Republican holy of holies, much as though he were a wonder working image of Buddha. From time to time the faithful will be admitted to his presence, where they may gaze with the proper amount of awe and listen to the pearls of wisdom as he discusses river transportation, Belgian relief, the protective tariff and such other non-controversial topics as may occur to him.

Poor Mixer

This plan of campaign is prompted by two reasons. The first is that Mr. Hoover dislikes to meet and mingle with a crowd. He doesn't get any thrill out of it nor does he shine at his best in such an environment. Besides, the Republican strategy which is a sort of legacy from Will H. Hays, under whom Dr. Hurbert Work studied national politics, will be to pussy-foot issues. In the 1920 campaign Hays demonstrated how it was possible to hold pro-League Republicans through Hughes and Taft and the anti-Leaguers through Lodge and Smoot, the candidate, Harding, meanwhile satisfying both factions with a few discreet cryptic utterances.

It is recognized, however, that with such a campaign as this there must be adequate editorial support. It will not do to rely altogether upon the fighting qualities of such shock troops as the Ku Klux Klan, the Anti-Saloon league and the political preachers. The candidates himself must be built up as a prodigy of heart, hand and brain; a man of power, decision, force and character. Above all care must be taken that nothing creeps into the news or editorial comment that can be construed as making the candidate ridiculous. This is one thing that neither Dr. Work nor Mr. Hoover can stand and, moreover, they realize that nothing could be more fatal to their political aspirations than to have the public, or any considerable portion thereof, laugh at them.

Wise Selection Made

All this, then, calls for expert editorial direction and the appointment of Henry J. Allen, former governor of his state, as chief of this bureau is reckoned as a wise move. Politically Governor Allen is "dry" and he comes from a very "dry" state and from the wealth of his experience as a successful editor and a successful governor he knows just the right keys to touch so as to improvise harmony.

In addition to Allen, editorial generalissimo, Mr. Hoover has his press representative in George Akerson, formerly political editor and Washington correspondent for the Minneapolis Tribune, and who has been associated with the secretary of commerce for the last two years. He has been the contact man with the Washington correspondents and has done much to popularize his chief. Dr. Work, too, had a press agent in Harry Brown, correspondent for the Salt Lake Tribune and president of the Gridiron club. He has long been a friend of the former secretary of interior and his connection with the exclusive newspaper club probably enhanced his value.

The field man of the force as chosen is Alfred Kirchofer, managing editor of the Buffalo News and former president of the National Press club. To him has been delegated the duty of organizing press bureaus in various parts of the country to see that Republicans news is properly presented.

WEST TO FILL CABINET CHAIR

Besides being national committeeman from Illinois, West is vice chairman of the finance committee. He formerly was secretary of that body.

George Duckett Accused Of Killing Dundee Man in Fight

ALIBI BORNE OUT

Court of Inquiry Reveals Evidence Favorable To Youth Held

George Duckett of Newcastle was charged with the murder of Charles McDaniel, Dundee merchant, in a complaint filed in Archer City by Sheriff Ed Goodwin of Archer county late Friday afternoon. Filing of charges resulted from identification of Duckett as the man who shot McDaniel while the Dundee man was frustrating an armed man's attempt to rob the First State bank at Dundee Wednesday noon. The identification was made by Charles Drummond, Dundee resident.

Duckett also was identified by F. M. Grundy of Archer City as the man who at the point of a pistol had taken an automobile from him. The same identification was made by Richard Nix of Wichita Falls.

Denial Borne Out

Meanwhile, under direction of Ben Allred, district attorney, a court of inquiry was being conducted at Newcastle by George Berry, assistant district attorney of Graham. Every particular said to have been made by Duckett in his sweeping denial of complicity in the murder and holdups with which he is charged was borne out by the investigation, according to Mr. Berry.

Two Newcastle men testified before the court of inquiry that they had engaged in a game of pool with Duckett between two and four o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The proprietor of a cafe at Newcastle told the court he had served Duckett in a Newcastle restaurant at noon Wednesday, and had entered a charge against the man's account for the meal. Later the same afternoon, he told the court, Duckett had purchased a package of cigarettes in the cafe.

Sheriff's Force Seek Pair After Road Hijacking Near Iowa Park

Members of the sheriff's department Friday night were searching for two men who held up and robbed Jimmie Parks, driver of an Uncle Jo Bottling works truck, of about $50 three miles north of Iowa Park Friday afternoon.

Young Parks told members of the sheriff's department that two men in a Nash roadster bearing an Oklahoma license had stopped him on the highway and robbed him of all the money he had.

The truck driver told officers that shortly after he had passed Clara two men in a Nash automobile passed him. As he rounded a corner a short distance further down the road, he found the Nash roadster blocking the road, with one man sitting in it. G. O. P. INVADES SOLID SOUTH

"Southern Bureau" Opened By Campaigners

WASHINGTON, July 20. (UP)—The Republican national committee has determined upon an invasion of the "solid South."

To this end, it established within its headquarters today a special "southern bureau" and called in C. Bascom Slemp, Virginia national committeeman and past master in mustering Republican strength in Democratic strongholds in the South.

Simultaneously it was made known at headquarters here that the party, in keeping with Chairman Work's recent announcement, proposes to "meet" the prohibition issue. It was said the Republicans are now convinced that the Democrats have definitely raised this issue, and it was pointed out Work said recently that while he did not consider the dry question an issue, it would be "met if raised by the opposition."

Details of "meeting" it were unrevealed.

Slemp, formerly secretary to President Coolidge and active in lining up Southern delegates for Hoover, joined Work's staff today. An official announcement said he will work in co-operation with the chairman "in conformity with the plan to counsel constantly with all available members of the national committee on the conduct of the campaign."

One of his first tasks, it became known, will be to assess the situation in the South arising from the Asheville "dry" conference decision to campaign among Southern dry Democrats for Hoover votes. Headquarters was elated over this turn of events, but refused to comment on what its importance to the Hoover campaign may be. Meantime, Southern experts opened the Southern section and said that a real campaign was in prospect.

Derelict Daughters of Former Penn. Governor Found On River Barge

NEW YORK, July 20. (AP)—A determination to starve rather than give up her musical career was voiced by Miss Isobel Stone, daughter of a former governor of Pennsylvania, who with her sister recently was found living in poverty on a derelict barge off upper Manhattan.

Miss Stone said that after the death of her father, the late William A. Stone coal operator and often referred to as "the best governor Pennsylvania every had," it was found his estate, estimated at $3,000,000, had dwindled to practically nothing through stock market speculations.

"We were left in the house," she said, "but we had no food. We had to go to work and we didn't know what work meant, for it had never entered into our lives. We imagined that money grew on trees."

Lived on Barge

Miss Stone took up her abode in the rent-free barge more than a week ago with her younger sister, Mrs Peggy O'Neil. She is a singer studying for an operatic career while her sister is a sculptor.

She said her sister first got a job in a box factory while she obtained a place in a chorus, later becoming a singer. She has since appeared in Broadway shows and night clubs and also made her debut in opera. Sickness, however, interfered with her career.

Peggy could not be seen by newspapermen and Isabel explained she had been frightened away by publicity and had gone into town to stay with friends.

"But," she said, "it won't scare me away. I had no thought of a publicity stunt when we came to live here, but I'll tell you frankly that if I can get any benefit out of that publicity, I am going to do so."

Judge Stephen Stone, a half-brother, at Pittsburgh, said the plight of the two young women was due to their "strong headedness" in insisting on artistic careers, and asserted, "any time they want to break away from this art business we will be tickled pink and will listen to them."

As far as possible Smith intends to refrain from mentioning his opponent, Herbert Hoover, in any way, will confine himself to a discussion of governmental problems.

Smith will offer a definite program for each question raised by the Democratic platform.

It was believed that on financial sections of his message he would be assisted by John J. Raskob, chairman of the national committee. State Comptroller Norris Tremaine also is assisting.

It has long been the argument of Smith that in a campaign the best way to sell his goods is to set up a concrete program of what he believes constructive moves in affairs of government and that the best way to lose an election is to try to tell the public that the "goods of his opponent are no good."

HOW WE ROASTED that fellow! He was good for one good joke from us more gifted students, daily at least. That was back in the college days of this column, when razzing other students came easy. And we all did our best to make his way one jolly razz after another.

This morning a state paper carried a feature story on the lad's success as a short story writer and a poet, and gave a graphic description of the young man's glorious promise of a big future. It would seem from this story that our schoolmate of a few years back is headed straight from the very start. And he has a long time to fulfill that prophecy.

◆ ◆ ◆

WHY DO PEOPLE still insist on passing out questionnaires asking young men, especially college men, their requisites in a wife. For 90 per cent (more or less) will say place good housekeepers ahead of the pretty dolls, and spend the rest of the day, running around with pretty ones. I read just today of such a questionnaire and the fool answers that some of those did give!

◆ ◆ ◆

NO REMARK has yet been passed on the weather, but if it takes me much longer to get this column written, I'm afraid there will be plenty—but left unpublished.

◆ ◆ ◆

A WELL KNOWN columnist whose clever remarks are syndicated throughout the country, says that she likes newspaper work because the right kind of people never, even under stress, insult a newspaper man or woman, and the wrong kind can't. Think it over, it's a pretty good philosophy. Try newspaper work as a means of learning human nature, there's nothing to surpass it. Besides, there is a possibility of making a living at it, if you last long enough.

Morals of Tennis Club Saved By W.C.T.U. Worker

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 20. (UP)—The heat wave almost made prohibition law violators out of those persons who attended the lawn fete of the East Manchester Tennis club, a Methodist organization.

The club decided on root beer as refreshments. Miss Edith P. Flanders, W. T. C. U. worker, objected and had the root beer analyzed.

One portion of the beer showed a 1.17 per cent alcoholic content. It was destroyed and the other part of the beer—with only a very slight alcoholic content—was served.

Alligator Killer Given Charge of Goat Herd

ORANGE, Texas, July 20. (AP)—Having successfully carried on a war against alligators, Alvey Griffith now has been appointed herder for billy goats and bullfrogs in the marshes of Cameron Parish, La., by the Orange-Cameron Land company, which owns 160,000 acres of land in the Louisiana parish.

Griffith has been hunting alligators in an effort to make the swamps safe for bullfrogs. And in addition to raising "frog legs" to satisfy the palates of connoisseurs he now will ride herd on goats on a 100-acre island in the swamp.

Steward Denies Mail Robbery

NEW YORK, July 20. (UP)—Archibald Chapman of London, line steward on U. S. liner Leviathan, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Francis A. O'Neill today in connection with the Leviathan mail robbery.

He was sent to Tombs prison to await a hearing on Aug. 9, when he failed to raise bail of $7,500.

Although Chapman denied all knowledge of the Leviathan robbery, Assistant U. S. District Attorney Alvan McSylvester said he had found keys in Chapman's possession which would open the registered mailroom next door to the linen room.

Chapman was said to have served a prison term in London for stealing jewelry and returning it to collect the reward.

Postal authorities who appeared against the defendant did not estimate the amount of mail stolen aboard the Leviathan.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, July 20.—It was stated in a recent news story that a famous criminal had escaped detection for a considerable time because he had taken up the occupation of a dishwasher. His purpose was to erase from his hands the telltale finger prints. Efforts to make such things possible have been in the making for a long time, but so far no real results have been noticed by the police.

Today a policeman may get you for something not more important than a traffic or misdemeanor violation, but he takes your finger prints. And such prints go to the proper place, the identification bureau.

In other words you have finger prints you cannot erase. You may try and succeed for a time—but the telltale whorls, hooks and loops are still there, and come back so that officers and judges are never doubtful about a proper identification.

As a result of all these telling marks, the man and woman in the street, who cannot cover his or her finger prints had better stop the business of trying. It is the business of the police to know. This does not apply to New York City alone, for the adjoining states have equal access to the files of New York; likewise New York can get these prints from neighboring states. As such service develops, one can be quite sure that he is not immune from detection wherever he may be, dead or alive.

Of course, in reading these records one must have in mind that they are not made unless the police has made them. This situation may come through the smallest of misdemeanors in some places and after the first of July the police department of the city of New York will be able to get a full-figure photograph of a criminal before he has actually been sentenced by the court. Heretofore, following the conviction of a yegg or any of the more up-to-date gang boys variously called "cake eaters," "pants gang," "cheese gang" or what not, the officials at police headquarters could take only a bust photo.

Now the law will permit a photographic study by police photographers. They may take a front and side view or may demand only a head which may have characteristics, too. The hand, after all is said and done, is the thing that counts when real records are checked.

Eva Le Gallienne has come back to Broadway. Sandwiched in between an English music hall comedian and two of our own colored comics, she gives the new bill at the Palace a fresh and vibrant keynote in the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet."

The Palace can take its Shakespeare or leave it alone. It has discovered in Miss Le Gallienne's bobbed-haired Juliet a good deal that is lyric and alive, and has taken her warmly to its heart. It is not the easiest thing in the world to break the brisk patter of a Palace bill with mediaeval romance, but Miss Le Gallienne, her poise and personality enriched by several seasons at the head of her own repertory theater, holds her audience spellbound to the curtain. Donald Cameron gives her ample support as Romeo, but the balcony doesn't look as if it would stand a great deal of climbing.

The girl reporter, as they used to call her in the old days, was interviewing the college professor. She wanted to know how many years he had worked in a certain place.

"Let me see," he pondered. "I worked there from 1914 to 1927. How many years is that?"

"Thirteen," answered the reporter.

"Put down 12," instructed the professor. "I'm not taking any chances on hard luck." And to show that he was in earnest, he inserted the words "for 12 years" in the reporter's manuscript.

Aviation

Each passing day sees some bold scheme
To fly the broad Atlantic;
The flyers work, and sweat and strive,
And toil 'till they are frantic.
The average of those who reach
Their goal is growing better;
This aviation's grown by leaps
And broken danger's fetter.
And when a couple fly across,
Thru rain, and storm, and squall,
It proves—that this old Lindbergh boy's
The greatest of them all!

Greater Baylor Drive Launched at Waco

WACO, Texas, July 20. (AP)—Baptists and alumni of Baylor university from every section of the state attended the launching of the $2,000,000 greater Baylor campaign here today.

Dr. S. P. Brooks, president of Baylor university, and Dr. E. H. Cary, dean of the medical school of Baylor at Dallas, were the principal speakers. D. K. Martin, state chairman of the campaign, presided.

In launching the campaign Dr. Brooks said:

"Baylor university has lived long enough on its past history. It must look to its future development now."

Vikings of All Lands

GENERAL UMBERTO NOBILE'S polar flight, designed to redound to the greater glory of Fascist Italy, seems to be turning into an exploit which provides great gobs of glory for Communist Russia, which is everything that Fascist Italy is not.

If it were not for the Russians it is safe to say that Nobile himself would be the only survivor of the luckless expedition. A ship named for one of Bolshevism's great leaders, Krassin, has snatched seven men from the grip of death and restored them to the service of Fascism's leader, Mussolini.

This, to be sure, doesn't prove anything about the respective merits of these two divergent social philosophies. It does re-emphasize one thing, though, a platitude that we find easy to forget; the old, hackneyed truth that differences of nationality and class have a way of becoming insignificant when men come up against the fundamental realities.

There are men who are fitted to stay at home and do the uneventful work of the world, and there are men who were made for daring adventures, hair-breadth chances and flirtation with death. Up on the world's highest rim, where desolate ice fields stretch out like the empty plains of a forgotten planet, there has been unfolding an epic tale of courage, hardihood and peril. Some men, vanishing into the void, have been seen no more; others, given up for lost, have been caught up at the very last by adventurers to whom the menacing northland was but a parade ground for the primitive virtues of daring and endurance.

Russian, Italian, Norwegian, Swedish, French—the limits of nation and class were transcended. They were all Vikings. That strange human urge to forget oneself for the sake of another gripped them all.

All of us are the gainers by this. There is never too much unity in this world. The vision of brotherhood is all too easily forgotten. The time may not be far off when, in the unpredictable shift of things, certain of these men will be at one another's throats, crying out battle shouts about God, home and fatherland; yet, for the moment, they have clasped hands—and we have had a vision.

Complaints that the entire Italia expedition was a useless waste seem puerile in the face of this. Of course, it was worth it. Visions are rare. The world has more brave and good men than we dream. It can always spare a few if their deaths will light once more the glowing altar fires of unity and concord. Those men with unpronounceable names—Lunborg, Chuchnovsky and the rest—are outriders on the great advance, which is often slowed up but which never stops.

They all were Vikings. And they demonstrated something the Vikings never knew—that all men may yet be brothers.

The Mind of Evil

IN THE middle of the famous Boston Common is a pool where little children go bathing on hot summer days. The thing is very informal; most of the youngsters come from very poor families, and most of the costumes are quite sketchy. But Boston, staid as it is, is used to them and doesn't mind.

The other day, though, a stout and testy gentleman happened along and was horrified. He summoned a group of six-year-olds and harangued them:

"You children should be ashamed for appearing in such indecent attire. If I had anything to say about it I would forbid you to come on the Common. It's positively disgusting what decent people have to stand for these days."

We are very, very happy to report that a group of older people, sitting on nearby benches promptly arose and tossed the evil-minded old meddler into the pond.

Seven Accidents a Month

A NEW ENGLAND motorist the other day wrote to the newspapers raising a howl because a liability insurance company cancelled an accident and liability policy on his automobile. It developed that this man had been involved in seven automobile accidents in one month, and the insurance firm, quite naturally, decided that he was too big a risk.

He really ought not to protest. Massachusetts, in which state he lives, has a strict drivers' license law, and its officials are apt to decide that a man who had seven accidents a month ought to lose his license.

If they do they're quite right. We don't know a thing about these accidents; but mere bad luck couldn't account for all seven. A man who gets in that many smashups ought not to be allowed to drive at all. He is a menace to every other motorist and pedestrian in his vicinity.

Texas-Oklahoma Press

CHILDRESS IN AIR LINE

Childress is to be placed on a passenger, freight and express air line which will begin operation about August 1, according to announcements made here.

Further recognition in this line will come. It will mean that Childress will want a municipal landing field, and upon the way that landing field is established will depend to a large extent the relative importance which Childress will eventually attain as an air transportation center.

It would be folly not to see ahead what air traffic is going to develop into. Plane lines will, within a comparatively few years, be more independent of weather and conditions. They are the coming mode of universal transportation for journeys of any length.

Judging from price schedules announced by the American Air Transport company, the air routes are going to be the most economical transportation because they eliminate unnecessary miles, traveling as the bird flies, without grades or curves.

—Childress (Texas) Daily Index.

TRANSPORTATION NATIONAL BACKBONE

If man power were used to transport the freight carried by the railroads of the United States, 1,200,000,000 men, each carrying a 100-pound load 15 miles a day would be required, according to a recent authoritative statement.

Adequate transportation is the backbone of a country. Before communities could grow, before industries could be established, the railroads had to be built.

Today it is more important than ever that we have first-class transportation facilities. Agriculture and industry are dependent on transportation.

Because of this splendid service, we must not overlook danger signs in the railroad situation. Taxation measures and other legislative action affecting the railroads must be carefully weighed. It is up to us to see that our railroad efficiency is not imperiled.

—Collingsworth (Texas) Standard.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Virginia Brewster, after losing both her father and wealth, consents to make her home with Clarissa Dean and her father. Her fiance, Nathaniel Dann, objects to this for he mistrusts Dean's motives.

Meanwhile, Dean plots to get Niel away from Virginia but fails, and later is forced to pay blackmail to a Mrs. Farley or face a scandal. Clarissa becomes jealous of Virginia, and the latter resolves to leave, but Dean insists that she marry him, saying that she cannot endure poverty.

When she refuses, he threatens to reveal the fact that her father cheated him out of $100,000 in a bootlegging deal. Recklessly, she promises to earn enough to repay him in one year—or marry him.

Virginia leaves, but has to pawn a ring to tide over until she can find a position. She goes to Niel's studio to tell him of her break with the Deans, but her joy at seeing him is clouded because she dare not reveal her compact with Dean, and also because of the familiarity with which his model, Chiri, treats Niel.

She goes to an employment agency seeking work and is sent out to interview one of the "newly-rich" impossibles. She returns to the agency to report and is surprised to find a man following her. Discouraged, she goes to her hotel to scan the help wanted ads and is angered to find orchids from Dean awaiting her.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER XXVII

She lifted the green paper aside very tenderly and then uttered a gasp of delight. Orchids! Three of them! Their sheer beauty clutched at Virginia's heart with instant fascination. She picked them up with a thrill of pleasure before she thought of looking at the card which accompanied them.

She took it up, expecting to find a charming line from Niel but she read instead a name and message that sent an icy shiver over her from head to foot.

"Lest you forget what the world has to offer," Virginia read on Frederick Dean's card. It seemed to her, as she stared at the bit of pasteboard, that she could see his jeering smile behind the words, mocking her fight with him, taunting her with her misfortune.

She was tempted to throw the fragile blooms across the room with the same fury that she tore his card to bits but their beauty restrained her. Hastily she replaced them in the box and put on the lid.

"What a horrid thing to do," she considered, frightened a little that the ignoble gesture of flaunting a symbol of what she had lost could upset her so greatly. To be disturbed was to admit her enemy's power, she knew.

The thought so occupied her that she overlooked the astonishing fact that Dean had her address. When it did at last occur to her she puzzled over it in much annoyance until she solved the question. She assumed he had got it from someone at her former home.

"I should have left instructions not to give my address to anyone," she regretted, provoked with herself. "But who could have guessed that even Frederick Dean would be so contemptible as to mock me with things that I love!"

Her afternoon was now thoroughly saturated with gloom. There was nothing she could do but wait for a call from Nathaniel. She sat huddled in a chair, her head on her arms and her eyes feverishly dry, trying to hold her courage together by the will of it.

Bitter loneliness, bitter despair, crept up and sought to take possession of her soul, but Virginia fought them off with the thought of her ultimate happiness if victory were hers.

"It must be! It must be! Oh, dear God, help me!"

But help seemed very far away and the orchids on the bed were so near. Time dragged along in weary, heavy seconds and endless minutes until—was it really so?—Nathaniel telephoned.

He noticed at once when he came for her that Virginia's spirits were very low and he set himself to cheer her up, but there was no flash of spontaneity in her mind or heart. The day's events had dulled her, robbed her of all semblance of gaiety.

She saw understanding and sympathy in Niel's eyes as he talked to her over a table in an East Side restaurant to which they had gone for the Russian music. Virginia tried to appear interested in the menu of foreign dishes but gave it up and let Nathaniel order for her. The best soup with sour cream she ate because she knew he would be troubled if she refused all food. After that she finished her dinner with tea and lemon in tall glasses.

Nathaniel spoke of the music, enjoyed it, but it seemed to Virginia that the plaintive notes of the balalaikas would break her heart.

"Virginia, dear, have you any plans?" Nathaniel asked quietly when the music crashed to silence.

She reached out and laid a hand on his, a gesture of gratitude for his patience. "Not exactly," she said, shaking her head; "but you know, Niel, I've got to prove to myself that I can stand on my own feet. It's everyone's right to have that chance."

"But you didn't seem to think about that when . . . when . . ."

"I know . . . when father was alive," she finished for him. "I just took everything for granted in those happy days, Niel. Perhaps if it had occurred to me to want to make my own living I might have tried it, but I doubt it," she added honestly.

"I don't want to upset you with arguments, dear, but I can't see why you should be so keen about it now."

"Because I'm forced to make a living or admit that someone else must do it for me," Virginia told him. "I never gave a thought to whether or not I was entitled to all the good things that dad's money bought for me, but it's all very different now. I want to make sure, Niel darling, that I won't be just a leech on you."

"Please don't say such silly things."

"It isn't silly, Niel, and you know it. If it were any other girl you'd say she was quite right because, you know, it was just the other night that you expressed yourself very clearly on the subject of freedom."

Nathaniel gazed at her hard for a moment. "You're cleverer than I thought," he admitted reluctantly. "I see now how you led me into that just so you could use it the next time I brought up this subject."

She nodded and smiled at him wistfully. "I want you to see it my way so you won't doubt me," she said softly.

"Doubt you . . ."

"You might. You did when you said I didn't know enough about love."

"Virginia, forgive me. I know it isn't selfish love that's greatest, and I was, I am, selfish, for I want you to throw all your own wishes into the discard for me. But I'm trying to see it as you do, and if I can't it's because I love you with every breath I draw."

"I'd rather have you feel that way than not to care so much," Virginia replied; "but if I don't love you so . . . violently, it's not because I don't love you as much as you do me, Niel. I think women can love in more ways than one at the same time," she added enigmatically.

Nathaniel thought she meant that love of her father's memory stood abreast with her love for him and he told himself he'd be a cad to object to that. Virginia really was thinking of a love that can sacrifice everything for one thing alone—honor.

"I wouldn't want you to love me except in your own way," he told her earnestly; "and as long as that lasts I'll be happy."

"Then you will help me by just believing in me and waiting until . . . until the right time comes for our marriage?"

"Don't make it too far off," he pleaded.

"Not a day after I've proved that I can earn my right to love." Virginia's answer was fraught with a different meaning for each of them, but Nathaniel did not know that.

"Well, I suppose I would congratulate you if you weren't the girl I want to marry," he admitted, half reluctantly. "After all, you're right. One has a right to justify his existence as he sees fit. If you don't think it's doing enough for the world just to make one man idiotically happy I can't stand in your way."

"Thank you, Niel. Now let's talk about you. When are you going to begin work on the murals?"

"Just as soon as I have those illustrations out of the way. Chiri got temperamental today and walked out."

Virginia started to ask why he didn't use another model, but checked herself abruptly. Honesty compelled her to admit to herself that it wasn't Niel's best interest that had prompted the question so much as a wish of her own that he replace Chiri. And she was determined not to let her ridiculous feeling toward Miss Mond color her remarks.

Perhaps Niel might discover how she felt, and even though he laughed at her, as Virginia knew he would, she'd be terribly humiliated. She felt humiliated enough as it was to have to acknowledge to herself that Chiri disturbed her, but she couldn't help how she felt.

"I can help making an open fool of myself, though," she warned herself silently.

"I suppose you must finish with her," she said conversationally.

"Yes, I'd rather. Soon reach the stage where I won't need a model to finish the things."

They talked for a while of his work and then Nathaniel took Virginia unawares by a direct question regarding her circumstances. "Have you all the money you need?" He intentionally put it abruptly, hoping to surprise the truth.

"Why, I . . . of course, Niel."

"Virginia, you haven't!?"

"Yes, really I have plenty for the present, and you know I have an uncle in England."

"But I thought your father wasn't on good terms with that branch of the family," Nathaniel said, troubled.

"That's true, but I'm sure he would help me."

What she did not add was, "If I ask him." She wouldn't have asked him for worlds. He and her father had quarreled bitterly when her uncle had expatriated himself, damning the United States as unfit for a gentleman to live in. And at best, if she humbled herself to appeal to him, she could benefit only in easing her struggle for a livelihood.

It was unthinkable that she should tell him of Frederick Dean's charges against her father. Virginia could hear him sneering that no man could remain respectable in America. Oh, yes, he would believe her father guilty, and even if he were willing to part with $100,000, and Virginia doubted it, she could not think of subjecting her father's memory to his contempt.

She succeeded, however, in satisfying Nathaniel that she would not be in want, and he dropped his intention of trying to force money upon her.

Presently they left the restaurant and stopped outside to wait until a cruising taxicab should happen along. Just as Nathaniel signaled to one down the block Virginia chanced to glance across the street. A man was emerging from the shadows of a doorway, but as Virginia's face turned toward him he stepped quickly back, though not in time to prevent her from seeing him.

Girls Have Their Reasons After All for Wanting to Get Married

Why Girls Are in a Hurry to Get Married. The Unhappy Wife, Urged by Her Family to Leave Her Husband, Yet Cold-Shouldered After Her Broken Marriage. Can a Young Couple Live on $175 a Month?

Dear Dorothy Dix—What's the matter with girls that they are in such a hurry to get married? We are anxious to marry the girls to whom we are engaged, but we are just getting a start in life. We are making small salaries, not enough to support a family on in any decent comfort, and we want to put off marrying for two or three years until we have saved up a little money and have worked up into better jobs and can feel that we are not running such a foolhardy risk when we take wives unto ourselves.

But the girls are not willing to wait. They want to rush into matrimony whether we are ready for it or not, and it puts us in a darned awkward position. Makes us seem slack lovers to be standing with cold feet, shivering on the brink and afraid to take the plunge into matrimony when the girls are all for shutting their eyes and taking a header into it. Why aren't girls willing to wait?—DON AND ARTHUR.

Answer: Probably the first reason girls are in a hurry to marry is because when they are in love they are possessed by the delusion that every other woman is equally enamored of the men on whom they have set their affections, and that the only way to keep them is to put their matrimonial brand upon their foreheads.

Another reason why girls are in a hurry to marry is because a girl has been led to believe that her wedding day is the great moment in a woman's life. It is the hour she has dreamed of ever since she was old enough to have a conscious thought. She looks forward to it as eagerly as a child does to going to the circus, and she can't bear to wait two or three years for the big thrill of walking up the aisle with orange blossoms in her hair and a trailing veil, and having the spotlight turned upon her.

Many girls are in a hurry to marry because they are lazy and self-indulgent. They don't want to earn their own bread and butter. They want a husband for a meal ticket.

They don't want to punch the time clock of a morning. They prefer to lie abed and snooze along until noon. They don't want a job in which they have to be efficient. They want one on which they can loaf and from which they cannot be fired. Therefore, as soon as they get their clutches on a man they hurry him off to the parson as quickly as they possibly can.

Perhaps the chief reason of all why girls are more in a hurry to marry than boys are is because women are more given to acting upon impulse than men are, and women are less forward looking than men. A woman seldom counts the cost of what she does until after she has done it, and she has to pay the piper.

So when she falls in love she wants to marry right then and there, without giving a single thought as to how she is to be fed and clothed and housed, or taking a look at the future and trying to forecast what it will bring to her.

Worse still, she does not perceive that in her greediness, which makes her snatch at green fruit, she is throwing away the perfect thing that she might have if she had only the patience to wait for it to ripen.

For innumerable marriages are failures because they were entered upon too soon. They would have been successes if only the man and woman had waited until they were prepared to marry.—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—My husband and I quarreled whenever my family came to see me. He said my sister's three children tore up the house, my brother he hated, and my mother made him nervous. Consequently, about a year ago, we parted.

My husband worshipped me, waited on me and did everything for my comfort. I had a fine home, a good car and pretty clothes. Now I put in seven days a week waiting on my mother. My brother and sister have their own families, and I have nothing of my own.

I realize what a fool I was to leave my home and husband. Don't you think I should go back if he would take me?—MRS. X.

Answer: I certainly do, and if I were you I should put ashes on my head and go back and ask my husband to give me another trial, while the going was still good, and before some other woman stepped into my shoes.

Your experience is a very common one. For, curiously enough, although many a family will foment a quarrel between a wife and her husband, and egg her on to leave him, they give her a very cold welcome when she finally does leave him and comes back home to live.

Between Mary, in her own house with a husband to support her, and Mary, who is dependent upon them and whom they must feed and clothe, there is a vast gulf fixed. They may have been willing enough to pity poor you and weep over your sorrows and bolster you up into making a stand against your husband, but when it comes to dividing the family income with you, and having you as a hanger-on in the family circle, that is something else yet again, Mawruss.

The woman who finds that matrimony is not a bed of roses, and that her husband is not a pin-feathered angel, but an ordinary, faulty human being, often throws up her hands and quits, because she thinks that she can go back home, and be the pampered darling that she was in her girlhood.

Then she was the center of her little world. The best of everything was hers, and father and mother and sisters and brothers were the slaves of the young lady of the family.

But when she returns as a divorcee, she ascertains with surprise and chagrin that she occupies a different status. She is looked upon as a failure. She is damaged goods that has been sent back.

Father and mother feel that she has had her show, and that she should give way to the other children, and the younger children openly resent her return. Every one "poor-Mary's" her, and nine times out of ten she realizes that she has jumped out of the frying pan into the fire.

Apparently that is your case, and so if I were you when I made my peace with my husband I would tell him that I was fed up with my family, and that henceforth their visits would be few and far between.—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Can a young married couple live comfortably on $175 a month? We feel that we could exist on this amount, but would we be really alive? We both have extravagant tastes and are fond of entertaining. In fact, to retain our present social standing in the community in which we live, it would be necessary for us to have an occasional dinner party, bridge, etc. And if we can't do that on my fiance's present income, we both feel that we would be happier if we waited.—WONDERING.

Answer: I don't think you need waste much time wondering about that. Giving dinner parties and bridge parties and gratifying expensive tastes is simply one of the things that can't be done on $175 a month.

With the present high cost of living it would take the closest managing for two persons to live in the plainest manner on that amount of money, because after you have made out your budget and figured out your every expense as carefully as you can, there always crop up a lot of things that you have not counted on—prices go up, sickness comes, all the little foxes that eat up the grapes.

But, my dear girl, you and your fiance are looking at life from the wrong angle. You are letting your neighbors dominate your lives. You are letting your happiness, your very love for each other, depend on what the Smiths and Joneses and the Browns think.

Believe me, that's all wrong. You will be miserable as long as you are slaves to public opinion. The only happy men and women are those who can look the world in the eye and tell it to go to—where it pleases, and that they are going to do as they like and buy only what they can afford.

And believe me also when I tell you that you can devise no fate for yourself so wretched as living beyond your means and trying to keep up a champagne appearance on a beer income. The frankly poor who live in the cheap quarters, who wear cotton stockings, who ride on the street car, and who have enough to be comfortable on and still put a few dollars in the savings bank every week, are as happy and chirpy as sand boys.

But no people are so miserable as the shabby genteel, who live in houses they can't afford, who starve for a month to give a pink tea, and who ride around in automobiles that are bought on the installment plan and have heart failure every time they think of the price of gas.

Don't believe in this foolish tribe. Be yourself. Don't wait to marry until you can keep up with the Joneses.—DOROTHY DIX.

VETERAN CLUB MEETS TODAY

'Last Man's' Club Changes Gathering Place

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 20. (UP)—A tragic-comic little drama unfolded today as two of the three living members of the famous old Last Man's club explained why the annual banquet of the organization will be held here tomorrow rather than in Stillwater where the club was formed and where the reunions were held for 42 years.

"Charley, Peter and I haint so young as we used to be," declared John S. Goff, 86, of St. Paul, "especially Charley."

"Charley" is Charles Lockwood, 87, Chamberlain, S. D., and "Peter" is Peter Hall, 91, Atwater, Minn.

These three men are all that remain of the 34 members of "B" company, Minnesota volunteer infantry, who in 1865 placed in a bank vault a bottle of wine from which a toast was to be drunk to his comrades by the last man.

"Charley got all tuckered out last year," Goff, a half-blind, withered, little old civil war veteran, now confined to a wheel chair, said, "so we decided to meet here in my home this year."

Meanwhile, Lockwood, who is visiting his son in Minneapolis, prior to the banquet said: "Yes, Peter and I are going over to Johnny's house. John is not able to get around as well as we are so we are going to him.

"It will be fine to see Goff and Hall again, we went all through the war together.

"The wine? No we won't have the old bottle on the table like we did last year. It's still in the vault.

"It can't be so long now until one of us does drink the toast and it doesn't matter much which one of us it is. We know we have kept faith with the other lads and it's not far now to the last man."

Summer Period Gives Opportunity For Featuring Special Salads

DENTON, Texas, July 20.—Salads for the hot summer months have been featured in the menus prepared by the household arts department of the College of Industrial Arts because they are refreshing and appetizing. Many varieties may be made and are easily prepared. The frozen ones may be packed early and when ready to serve may be put together with little or no trouble. Salads are more appetizing if they are not fussed or handled a great deal; they should be simple and yet attractive. Some of the summer salads are:

Date and Almond Salad

Put one package of seeded dates and one cupful of salted almonds through the meat grinder. Mix with boiled dressing. Top with lettuce leaves as a foundation in moundlike shapes and cover them with shredded cocoanut.

Frozen Fruit Salad

Cut, drain and squeeze the juice out of one large can of sliced pineapple (cut in small cubes), one pound of seeded malaga grapes, and one can Royal Ann cherries (seeded) and one pint maraschino cherries (diced). Put one pint of mayonnaise on a small platter and add two small rolls of cheese, mixing well. Add one quart double cream, whipped and then the fruit and mix well. Pack in a mould and be sure that the mold is lined with waxed paper. Pack in salt and ice and let stand five or six hours. Serve with lettuce.

Frozen Roquefort Salad

Press one-third pound of roquefort cheese through a sieve and work into it a teaspoonful of vinegar, two tablespoons of cream cheese and a (tablespoon of finely mixed cherries. Season with paprika and fold in a cup of whipped cream and one of finely chopped cabbage. Pack in ice and salt for four hours.

Pearl Glace

Rub a cake of cream cheese to a smooth paste and add a cupful of currant jelly which has been whipped and one tablespoon of lemon juice. Season slightly with salt and paprika and fold in a cupful of stiffly whipped cream. Pack in ice and serve one tablespoon in halves of chilled pears. Garnish with lettuce leaves.

Frozen Apricot Salad

Heat in a double boiler 1-4 cup each of apricot and orange juice, two tablespoons of lemon juice and a pinch of salt. NOTED RAIL EXPERT DIES

Brother of Nocona Woman Succumbs in Ft. Worth

FORT WORTH, July 20. (AP)—S. H. Cowan, 69, attorney for the American National Live Stock association since 1892, and recognized as one of the best informed railroad experts in the country, died today in a Fort Worth hospital. Pending funeral arrangements the body is at a local mortuary.

Though he held but one political office during his lifetime, that of district attorney of the 32nd judicial district, Cowan was a leading member of the Democratic party and is believed by friends to have played a more important role in national legislation than any other figure in private life. He personally drew up the Hepburn bill as introduced in the senate by Senator Dolliver and afterward by Representative Hepburn in the house, and was recognized as an advisor of President Roosevelt in the railroad rate regulation that marked his administration.

In 1893 Cowan became legal advisor for cattlemen belonging to the National Live Stock association and continued in the post until his death. From 1896 until 1916, when he was engaged in a partnership with I. H. Burney, Cowan also represented the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers association.

As general attorney for the organizations he appeared frequently before the interstate commerce commission, congressional committees and state legislatures.

Cowan was born in Marion county, Tennessee, Dec. 15, 1858, the son of William and Sarah Caroline Cowan. He was graduated from Sequatchie college and married Miss Anna Schoolfield of Galveston in 1883.

Surviving are his widow; two daughters, Mrs. R. G. Thomas, Fort Worth, and Mrs. J. W. Scheuber, San Angelo; three brothers, H. D. of Temple, C. A. of Roanoke, Texas, and W. H.; two sisters, Mrs. W. E. Lewis, Nocona, and Miss Ida L. Cowan, Roanoke.

MARRS WARS ON BOOK COMPANY

Gives Reason for Concern's Opposition to Him

AUSTIN, July 20. (INS)—Declaring that his administration cannot be successfully attacked, S. M. N. Marrs, state superintendent of public instruction, charges that it is "a well known fact that the American Book company, through its agents and other propaganda is opposing my re-election. Marrs further charged that this alleged opposition is due to the following causes:

"At the request of the 39th legislature, I contested the validity of the present geography contract which gave this company $100,000 excess profits.

"I opposed renewal of this geography contract because such a renewal would cost the state $100,000 more than any other geography submitted.

"I refused to sign the American Book company contract for the speller now in use because said contract was not approved by Attorney General Moody as required by law.

"I opposed amendments to the textbook law favored by the American Book company, one of which sought to remove the governor and the state superintendent from the textbook commission."

JOE COOK

Joe Cook, whose real name is Joe Lopez Jr., is recognized as one of the most versatile and adroit of our musical comedy comedians. At the age of 14 he came to New York and in one fashion or another secured a vaudeville engagement as a juggler.

His career then and thereafter was a succession of vaudeville shows until—in 1923—he was engaged for the first edition of Earl Carroll's "Vanities." There followed a smashing success in one musical comedy after another. For the last year he has been appearing in the stellar role in "Rain or Shine."

"The best I ever heard," Cook opped, "is a story about fish peddler who, with his heavy pack, tramped down a certain street each day crying his wares. He had a more or less regular customer on the sixth floor of a tenement house.

"One day when he passed this particular house the sixth floor window went up and the customer stuck out his head and called down: 'Hey, come up here a minute!'

"After climbing six flights of stairs with his heavy load the fish merchant naturally expected a sale. But as he arrived at the sixth landing the customer stuck his head out the door and said: 'I just wanted to tell you that I didn't want any fish today.'

"Disconsolate, but hesitant about offending a good customer, the hawker wended his way down the stairs. When he had regained the sidewalk the customer again stuck his head out of the sixth floor window and called.

"Consoled with the thought that the customer had changed his mind, the fishmonger again panted his way up the six flights.

"Finally, when he had reached the top and had rested his load on the floor, the customer appeared at the door, and said:

"'I just wanted to tell you that I didn't want any fish tomorrow, either.'"

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health."

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

"The Fast Way to Health"

Dr. McCoy's menus suggested for the week beginning Sunday, July 1:

Sunday—Breakfast: One coddled egg, 3 or 4 pieces of Melba toast, 6 stewed prunes. Lunch: Boiled potatoes with chopped parsley, string beans, avocado salad. Dinner: Roast chicken, Melba toast dressing, cooked carrots and fresh green peas, head lettuce, ice cream, made with figs. (See recipe June 16th).

Monday—Breakfast; Cantaloupe as desired. Lunch: French artichoke, cooked greens, sliced cucumbers. Dinner: Boiled fresh beef tongue, cooked spinach and parsley, molded vegetable salad (peas, cucumbers, tomatoes), baked apple (no sugar or cream).

Tuesday—Breakfast: French omelet, made of the whites of two eggs, and two ounces of milk, served on Melba toast, stewed raisins. Lunch: Apples or fresh berries as desired. Dinner: Baked sea bass, cooked celery, string beans, sliced tomatoes on lettuce, plain Jello or Jell-well (no cream).

Wednesday — Breakfast: Whole-wheat muffins, peanut butter, stewed pears. Lunch: One pint of buttermilk, 10 or 12 dates. Dinner: Roast mutton, cooked mashed turnips, asparagus, salad of grated raw beets, pineapple whip.

Thursday — Breakfast: Coddled eggs, toasted triscuit, stewed apricots. Lunch: Sweet corn, cooked asparagus, raw carrots. Dinner: Broiled steak, mushrooms en casserole, cooked greens, chopped raw cabbage and celery, junket.

Friday — Breakfast: Baked stuffed apple, with milk or cream. Lunch: Baked egg plant, spinach, lettuce. Dinner: Broiled white fish, summer squash, salad of tomatoes and watercress, prunes in gelatin (no cream).

Saturday—Breakfast: Baked eggs, wholewheat muffins, stewed figs. Lunch: About a pound of fresh cherries, and an 8-ounce glass of sweet milk. Dinner: Veal roast, baked vegetables, salad of raw asparagus eaten as celery, raspberry whip.

Select small tender carrots, beets and turnips and without peeling them, cut into small pieces and put into a baking dish. If desired, add a cupful of finely cut string beans or celery, pour over all a little water, and cover with two or three thicknesses of lettuce leaves. Bake in a moderately hot oven until vegetables are tender, and season with a little salt and butter as served.

Questions and Answers

Question: R. K. asks: "Will you kindly advise the proper diet for one with low blood pressure?"

Answer: One with low blood pressure should live on a well balanced diet. No special foods are required, but simply good combinations, such as I suggest in my weekly menus. Increasing your physical exercise each day will do more than anything else to bring up your blood pressure.

Question: Mrs. A. F. writes: "I have cold chills in my head very often. I get dizzy at times, and have loud noises in my right ear. I'm deaf in that ear too. The doctor blows into my ear with an electric affair four times a week. What can I do? Will my hearing be restored if I keep up these "blow-outs"?"

Answer: Practically all deafness is caused by catarrh of the inner ear. The blowing-out treatment will relieve you temporarily, but it is unwise to continue such treatments unless at the same time you remove the cause of catarrh through proper dieting.

Question: S. L. writes: "I have epileptic fits, and a few days before a spell my hands and abdomen jerk. I eat candy and lots of it, and I surely suffer from those spells."

Answer: Intestinal poisoning is the real cause of epilepsy. Prolapsus or kink in the colon are contributing factors. Candy and all kinds of sugar must be entirely prohibited. Please send for a special article on this subject.

Federal Pen Warden Better After Collapse

ATLANTA, Ga., July 20. (UP)—Warden John W. Snook of the federal penitentiary here, who collapsed late yesterday during his investigation into the attempted prison break Wednesday, was confined to his bed today and was "very sick," Mrs. Snook told the United Press.

Warden Snook was recuperating from an attack of intestinal influenza which had confined him to his bed for several days, when the attempted break occurred.

Hurrying to the prison, Snook took personal charge of an intense grilling of numerous prisoners and following the strain of his all-day questioning of backward witnesses, collapsed later yesterday.

He was rushed to his home and has been under constant care of doctors since.

Bandit Takes $3400 In Bank Robbery

OAKLAND, Calif., July 20. (UP) Entering a branch of the American Trust company, at one of Oakland's busiest intersections today, a robber held up two employes and escaped with $3,400.

The bandit made his getaway in an automobile he left with the motor running at the curb. He was pursued by G. A. Wilson, manager of the bank, who commandeered an automobile containing a youth and a girl.

Police were informed by excited witnesses to the chase that the bandit had kidnaped a young man and a girl at the point of a gun, but investigation proved the "kidnaping" was done by the bank manager, who was outdistanced by the bandit's machine.

Freight Restriction Hearing Under Way

SHERMAN, Texas, July 20. (UP)—Hearing was begun here before Charles M. Bardwell, inspector for Interstate Commerce commission, on protests against a purported effort by the Missouri Pacific lines and subsidiaries to restrict movements of grain to and from certain points in Texas and routed to points on the Rock Island lines and Arkansas and Kansas and cut out certain intermediate lines handling this traffic.

HOME RUNS BY FITZGERALD AND BENTON TIE BUFFS FOR LEAD

FITZ WHALES 2 4-BASE DRIVES

Batting of Howard and Rabbit Scores 6-5 Win

By LARRY DAILY
Record News Sports Editor

Our Spudders! Climaxing a home stand of 17 days and a bitter, uphill fight, the Wichita Falls club yesterday defeated Waco and while Houston was losing to Dallas went into a tie for first place with the Buffs.

It is the first time since early in the first half, won by the Buffs, that the Spudders occupied the lead. The sharing of league dominance with the Houston club was made possible by courageous and superb play on their home stand closed yesterday, in which they won the high number of 12 games and lost only five.

Victory over the Cubs, 6 to 5, enabling them to sweep the two-day series, was due mainly to the terrific batting of Howard Fitzgerald and Rabbit Benton. Three home runs by this trio, two by Fitzgerald and one by Benton, accounted for four runs. They each banged a circuit smash in the first inning with none on base and in the fifth inning Fitzgerald smashed his second Ruthian clout with one comrade on the baseline.

Fitz Has Perfect Day

Fitzgerald also whaled a double and single for a perfect day at bat, and Benton smashed two-base and one-base hits. Fitzgerald scored after his double on a single by Brick Eldred, who also made another hit. Tom Jenkins smote a brace of knocks, one for two bases, and Doc Smith smashed a double to account for the remaining hits of the Spudders' 12.

George Payne was batted hard by the Cubs, yielding 13 blows. And along with his unsteady flinging was some shaky defensive work by his comrades. But Jim Galloway had said let George do it, and George finally did it, though not without more than one anxious moment.

The Cubs bunched four blows in the first inning to score two runs and four knocks in the fifth gave them their other three tallies. The remaining hits were scattered along the route, though a pair of clouts in the ninth with one out were a menace. But Pete Turgeon came up with a hard hit ball to start a fast double play that Benton and Stanton completed.

Cubs Score in First

The Cubs tallied a pair of runs in the first. Moore doubled to right after one was out. Johnson singled to left, Moore stopping at third. Blackerby singled to right, Moore scoring and Johnson going to third, and Blackerby to second on the throw-in. Battle grounded to Turgeon, who made a perfect throw to Smith to catch Johnson at home, Blackerby going to third. Shires' bounder hopped over Turgeon, Blackerby scoring.

Benton and Fitzgerald hit over the left-field wall to tie the count in the Spudders' half and that same pair started the run-getting in the fourth that netted two runs. Benton led off with a double to center after one was out. Turgeon lifted to Johnson. Fitzgerald doubled to right, Benton scoring. Eldred singled to center, Fitzgerald scoring.

Waco Tallies in Fifth

Waco counted their last three in the fifth. Karow doubled to left and scored on Moore's single to right. Johnson singled to center, Moore going to third on the hit and scoring when the throw got away from Turgeon, Johnson going to second. Johnson went to third on a passed ball. Blackerby struck out. Battle grounded to Turgeon. Shires beat out a bounder to Benton, Johnson scoring.

The Spudders tallied tying and winning runs in their half. Benton started it again with a single to center and went to second on Turgeon's sacrifice, Elliott to Karow. Fitzgerald hit his second home run over the left-field barrier, Benton scoring ahead of him.

Eldred singled to left. Jake Freeze relieved Elliott and Jenkins doubled, Eldred stopping at third. The Spudders were held scoreless thereafter. Elliott is charged with the defeat.

Notes of the Game

The Spudders open a three-game series today at Waco in the start of a 13-day trek, which ends August 2.

Monday's game will be played Sunday at Waco as part of a double-header. Skippers Galloway and Pratt agreed yesterday.

Cvengros probably will pitch today.

The fans cheered lustily when the score of Dallas 6 and Houston 1 in the first inning, was posted.

Swenson played a corking game at third base. He took Windle's bounder back of third base in the fourth and threw out Wayne with an excellent peg.

Jenkins made a fast catch of Windle's drive to the foul line in the seventh with a runner on second and two out.

Tunney Insistent He'll Fly to Titular Battle

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 20. (AP)—Gene Tunney today instructed his New York attorneys to oppose any court move of Tex Rickard to restrain him from flying to the scene of his championship title with Tom Heeney next Thursday.

The heavyweight champion is determined to make the flight. "Why," he asked, "should I make a tiresome seven hour railroad trip when I can have a good night's sleep here and then get to New York in two hours by airplane?"

"I have instructed my attorneys to oppose any step Rickard may take in the courts."

Tommy Armour's 278 Wins Metropolitan Golf

WESTFIELD, N. J., July 20. (AP)—Tommy Armour, former national open champion, today won the Metropolitan open golf title with a score of 278 for the 72 holes. Armour's score set a new record for the Metropolitan event and led Johnny Farrel, present national open champion and defending titleholder by two strokes.

Keeler Tells How Johnny Farrell Won Open Golf Title

Quaker Ridge Professional Rests After Near Breakdown and Cops

By O. B. KEELER

I suppose that since Johnny Farrell won the United States open championship so brilliantly at Olympia fields a lot of stories are going the rounds as to how, precisely, Johnny did win it, in that gruelling finish with Bobby Jones—a 36-hole play-off probably never paralleled in the history of golf for closeness and gameness; a finish in which each man played the last two holes in birdies.

This is my version, only.

It dates back nearly eight weeks before the championship, when I was having luncheon with Johnny Farrell and Ray Schindler, at Johnny's club, Quaker Ridge, at Mamaroneck, not far from New York city. We played golf that afternoon, over the beautiful Quaker Ridge course. That is, Johnny played golf and Ray and I went through the motions. Johnny coached us and paid little attention to his own game. But when we checked over his card he had shot 35-34—69.

At luncheon I asked the young professional why he did not go to Britain with the other boys to compete in the British open.

Johnny's smiling features suddenly solemnized.

"You know," said he, "I needed a rest. The winter campaign had been a hard one. I felt sort of hauled down and below par, physically, and in my nerves. Especially in my nerves."

Yes—I remembered Johnny at Pinehurst, in the north and south open, thin and drawn, and struggling with desperate courage against a skidding game, to finish well up after a bad start, following his win of the $15,000 tourney at Miami Beach.

"I came away from Pinehurst under weight and jumpy. I figured this way. If I went to Britain, I'd get no rest—only fierce competition. I 'put out' in every tournament, and, of course, I'd 'put out' over there, harder than ever, if possible. And I'd come back in worse shape than I started. So I just didn't go. I came back to my own club, and I'm resting. I've got my weight back, and, I think, my nerves. I tell you, I want to win this United States open!"

Well—he did. Let us give the handsome Irishman credit for something besides a grand game. Johnny has brains, too.

Heeney Spends Day in Idleness As He Nears Fighting Condition

Yacht Cruise as Guest of Millionaire Taken by Tom; Irritability Sign Challenger Is Ready

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

FAIR HAVEN, N. J., July 20. (US)—Tom Heeney forgot about the heat, training grind and heavyweight title bout with Gene Tunney today as he sailed over the blue waters of the Atlantic ocean just off the Jersey coast in a trim sail boat. The challenger has not lost any sleep over this fight, but the ocean jaunt put him in high spirits and eager to plunge into the final three days of training Saturday.

Heeney will do his last boxing Monday and will take only light exercises Tuesday and Wednesday. He probably will wait until the morning of the fight to leave for New York, going by train.

There was no work at all today, Heeney devoting himself entirely to recreation. He got up at 4:30 a. m. and went for a walk with Jimmy Hennessey, his trainer, and later an automobile ride. Then at noon he went off with Charley Gaston, millionaire sportsman, and a party for a pleasure cruise in Gaston's yacht.

Heeney has worked himself into the peak of condition and the lay-off really did him good.

"Heeney will enter the ring for Tunney in as good shape as he has been for any fight in this country," Hennessey said.

Tom Is Irritable

Heeney has been highly irritable the last few days, and Hennessey believes that is an indication of good physical condition. The New Zealander ordinarily is an easy-going fellow.

No one was ever easier to talk to than Heeney and he will discuss any angle of the approaching contest with newspaper men. One even had the nerve to tell him how to whip Tunney. He listened, but said nothing.

"After my workout I don't mind talking to anyone," Heeney said. "But I don't like to be bothered on my way over to the camp from my cottage."

Heeney hasn't any set idea about how he is going to fight Tunney.

"I'm just going in there to lick him," Tom said. "I'm going to try him every way. I'm going after him from the first bell, and if he starts belting me badly, I may change my style and make him come to me."

In discussing the Tunney-Dempsey bout at Chicago, Heeney preceded reference to both fighters with "Mister."

Clean Break Important

"I saw pictures of the bout at Chicago between Mr. Tunney and Mr. Dempsey and Mr. Tunney did plenty and plenty of holding." Heeney said, in explaining that Charlie Harvey, manager, will demand that the New York state athletic commission instruct the referee to make Tunney break cleanly.

Heeney realizes that his chances for victory will be greatly lessened if Tunney holds him coming out of clinches. The outcome of the bout may even depend on that point.

"It's not fair for a fellow to deliberately hold," Tom said. "Delaney did it all through our fight and I don't want it to happen again."

Dan Morgan Picks Tom

Dan Morgan, prominent fight manager, who was one of the few to pick Tunney to beat Dempsey at Philadelphia, is stringing along with Heeney in this bout.

"Heeney is the best man I ever saw on the ropes," Morgan said. "He will win over the limit unless Tunney blows up completely, and Heeney knocks him out."

Heeney expects to enter the ring weighing 198 pounds. He is almost down to that figure now, hovering just over the 200-pound mark.

Jack Dempsey will visit the training camp Sunday with Tex Rickard and a party of newspaper men and Madison Square garden stockholders. Just what Dempsey will do after he gets here has not been determined, but he will not get in the ring with Heeney.

Sweep for U. S. Cup Team Looms

Hennessey and Hunter Win Easily in 1st Matches

PARIS, July 20. (UP)—A clean sweep for the American team against the Italians in the Davis cup semi-finals seems certain.

William T. Tilden, captain of the American team who was disqualified on the eve of the match for writing newspaper articles, was not missed today. Johnny Hennessey, a freckle-faced youth from Indianapolis, stepped into Tilden's shoes and filled them completely.

Hennessey, who was believed to be fighting for a lost cause, pulled the surprise of the year by defeating Baron Henri de Morpurgo, Italian ace, in straight sets, 6-4, 7-5, 6-2.

That put the American team in the lead, two matches to nothing, for prior to Hennessey's victory Francis Hunter defeated P. Gaslini in three easy sets, 6-1, 6-1, 6-0. At no time during the match was Gaslini able to extend Hunter.

Hennessey started slowly, losing the first game at love. He then won his service and settled down to brilliant tennis. After the first four games it became apparent to the crowded galleries that the American youth was going to defeat one of the most highly-touted stars on the continent.

NEW YORK, July 20. (US)—Our European fashion expert radiogrunts us that the elite are now wearing celluloid bathing suits at Deauville.

Lindbergh flew the Atlantic a year to soon.

It is possible that they are wearing celluloid swimming burlap at Deauville. France is as batty as an old barn at twilight and as nutty as a squirrel's nest in October.

Isinglass is a much more durable fabric for swimming.

When a European makes up his mind to jump in the Atlantic, he is still economical.

He knows that salt water spoils clothes. So he leaves his on the beach.

We were at Deauville last season. Everybody on the beach was dressed for an operation.

But Deauville is modest compared to Juan-Le-Pine on the Riviera.

Take the word of a pop-eyed witness, they wore nothing. We do not think that the celluloid bathing trousseau will be seen on American shores. It may become popular. But never official.

We didn't go swimming at Juan-Le-Pine, pronounced Wan-La-Pan. We couldn't find nothing to wear.

We piped a mob of swan dancers rushing up the beach behind a wind shield then we left the beach. Being a real reformer, we had to see a thing before we condemned it.

The wife met us on the boardwalk and asked, "Were you down on that terrible beach?"

We told her it was all right because we didn't speak the language.

Different beaches, different manners. At Lido Venice, the Italian Riviera, they wear pajamas and carry sunshades.

Now, pajamas and sunshades are too incompatible articles of wearing apparel. One belongs to the night which hath a thousand eyes, and the other to the day, which hath a million. Also opera glasses.

We admit that Gertrude Ederle didn't wear a high hat and rubber boots when she swam the channel. But Gertie was in Europe then, and clothes were rushed to her by the next boat over.

You can wear a celluloid bathing suit at Atlantic City if you desire. But don't smoke.

STEERS AGAIN WHALE BUFFS

DALLAS, July 20. (AP)—Hopping on Hallahan, for six runs in the first inning Dallas engaged in another Buffalo feast Friday, defeating Houston, 9 to 3. Tunney Better Fighter Than Ever, Corbett Says After Visit to Camp

Gene Gains Polish, Poise and Confidence and His Left Jab and Smashing Right Carry Menace to Heeney

By JAMES J. CORBETT
Former Heavyweight Champion of the World
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 20. (US)—The Gene Tunney of 1928 strikes me as being just as strong and rugged and great a fighter as was the Gene Tunney of 1926 and 1927—with a little something added to make him even better.

And that something is the polish and the poise and the confidence that comes to men who gain the pinnacle of pugilism and hold it during their athletic prime.

So far as I could observe when I saw the champion in a workout at Speculator, the nine months of comparative idleness since his last Dempsey fight and the fact that he has fought but 20 rounds in three years have not dulled his fighting form, have not taken away any of his speed nor made his timing faulty.

All this seems to be due to the fact that Tunney, one of the keenest of all students of athletic form, keeps in fine condition even when he is not boxing. He is even aware of the menace of "ring dust," he knows what happens when men let down between bouts—and Tunney never lets down.

Gene Always in Condition

He has been ever watchful of his diet, he always has done just enough training to keep himself keyed up nicely and the result is that the training he has been doing in Speculator has been designed to tighten him up, rather than put him in shape. For Tunney, a truly smart boxer, never has been out of condition at any time since he began his professional career seven or eight years ago.

Watching Tunney punch the bag and watching him box, I found that he still has the one VITAL thing for any type of athlete. And that is the ability to relax. Tunney has this down to a fine art. He steps along at great speed for a while and then, when continuance of the pace might strain the muscles and tire him, he relaxes, even if for only for a few seconds, takes the tension off his body and then can go on with renewed vigor.

Tunney is tense only in moments when tenseness is the greater thing. He is not constantly keyed up; not drawing upon his nervous forces or his physical power while in action, as did Jack Dempsey and as do so many other fighters. Because he can relax—and does relax—he has saved himself from wearing out and today he seems to be just as superb an athlete, and with the same ability to carry on at top speed in difficult moments as was possible when was 22 or 23.

Carries 30 Years Lightly

Therefore, in thinking of Tunney and in trying to figure out his chances to retain his kingship against the onslaughts of Tom Heeney, it is best for one to disregard the fact that Tunney is 30 and that he has been idle, in a large way, for three years. For Tunney is different from most fighters; he is a man who has carried the stamina and the energy of 22 or 23 into his 30th year and he has, by careful, almost scientific living, been practically on fighting edge through every day of those three years.

Tunney's left hand needs no description, for it long has been regarded as the best left hand among the heavyweights—and it is still that. Tunney actually PUNCHES with that hand by the simple process of putting his body into his jabs. And that is a great trick and one that should be tremendously helpful for him in the Tom Heeney fight, as it was in all the others.

I noticed that Tunney is driving much harder with his right than ever. And this year, for this fight, Tunney seems to be concentrating on its improvement; his ambition seems to be to make it a "killing" punch.

Hits Harder With Right

Whether he will succeed in that is, of course, a matter of conjecture. But Tunney certainly gets more of his body back of his right hand drives this year. He jolts harder. So it can be said that his right hand has improved and that it seems now to be nearer a knockout smash than it ever was at any other time in Tuney's career.

Tunney is as fast as he was in 1926 and 1927—and that is a tribute to him, because a man of 30 usually is not as fast as he was a year or two earlier. But Tunney, as I have tried to point out, is not the usual fighter. He is intelligent, he is a student and he has his brains to acquire and then to perpetuate physical fitness. And I feel that he is as shifty and as elusive as in any of his earlier years.

From what I saw of Tunney in his workouts, it strikes me that he certainly will carry condition and durability and speed into that fight with Heeney—and so he will go into that battle 100 per cent fitted to fight in defense of his crown.

And 100 per cent fitness is all that the friends and the admirers and the backers of any athlete ever can hope for their man.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, July 20. (AP)—Continuation of selling sent cotton prices into new low ground for the movement today. October contracts closed at 20.88, or within a point of the lowest, the general market closing barely steady at new declines of 36 to 39 points.

The market opened easy at a decline of 10 to 25 points in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables, and reports of better weather in the eastern belt. October sold off to 21.06 on the call and failure of this price to attract a more aggressive demand appeared to encourage selling.

Offerings increased after the call and while there were spurts of covering with moderate rallies from time to time, the decline continued until July sold at 20.66 and December at 20.71, or about 37 to 40 points net lower. The forecast for unsettled weather in West Texas was evidently regarded by some traders as possible foreshadowing rains or showers in that section.

Offerings tapered off at the decline and there were rallies of 15 or 16 points from the lowest on covering for over the week-end, probably promoted by private reports that there was no sign of rain in West Texas and that temperatures continued high. Notwithstanding the extent of the recent decline, however, demand failed to broaden much, and the market weakened again in late trading, closing at about the lowest prices of the day. Part of the selling was attributed to the liquidation of Liverpool and continental long accounts, and it was reported that a little hedge selling was reaching here from the southwest, where ginning, although late, is said to be making progress.

Port receipts today, 3.244 bales. U. S. port stocks 694.450 bales. Exports today 17.802, making 7,681,438 so far this season.

Futures closed barely steady, 36@39 points lower; spot quiet, middling 21.20.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, July 20. (AP)—Continued favorable weather was again responsible for a reactionary tone in the cotton market today. Although the market rallied at times the demand was quickly supplied and prices were on the downgrade practically the whole session.

October contracts opened 13 points down at 20.52 and, except for a rally of 9 points near midsession, eased off all day, reaching the low of 20.27 in afternoon trading. The delivery closed at 20.28, a net decline of 37 points. The general market closed easier 33 to 37 points net lower.

Liverpool cables were 6 to 8 penny points lower than due and were reflected in an opening decline of 13 to 16 points in the local market. The absence of rain brought out offerings and before they were absorbed December sold off to 20.27, or 31 points under yesterday's close.

After a period of quiet the market weakened again o nthe more favorable character of crop accounts being received and an official forecast for continued favorable weather. October traded off to 20.28 and December to 20.22, or 36 to 37 points under the previous close.

In the early afternoon satisfied shorts covered and forced prices up 9 to 11 points from the lowest, but the recovery met a renewal of selling on the favorable weather and October made a new low at 20.27, or 38 points net down. December eased only to its earlier low. The close was at or near the bottom.

Pool Stocks Feature Day of Quiet Trading On N.Y. Stock Market

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, July 20.—Special pool stocks featured an extremely quiet day today on the stock exchange during which call money held at 5 per cent throughout. Some loans again were made at 4½ per cent on the outside.

Warner Brothers scored the best individual gain, jumping 8¼ for the session while Eastman Kodak gained 5½.

Standard industrials held to a narrow market in most instances with Steel adding another point to its gain, while General Motors slipped.

Short covering rallied wheat and influenced a better tone throughout the grain market.

The smallness of the $48,000,000 decline in loans caused momentary weakness at the opening as it was accepted as indicating further correction was needed. However, close study of the statements revived better feeling for they showed full cooperation of the local banks with the reserve. The New York City banks which are members of the reserve showed a drop in loans of $121,000,000 putting the total $161,000,000 below a year ago. The decline here, however, was offset in gains of loans of banks in other centers and by the continued rapid increase in loans from "other sources." These "other sources" are corporations, institutions, etc., with huge liquid assets resulting from the continued prosperity of the last few years.

Warner's skyrocketing was the result of several weeks of quiet group work. While the operation is shared in by powerful bull interests here, it is learned that the main incentive to the operations comes from Hollywood, or in other words the insiders. Vitaphone is the one factor mentioned in connection with the strength and there is a revival of those highly enthusiastic estimates as to the earnings to result from the "talking pictures" which were first circulated when the stock was pushed to record heights many months ago coincident with the introduction of that feature by the company.

Montgomery Ward was pushed into new high ground as the operations of the Chicagoans were helped by those of the local group that broadcast the highly favorable analysis on the stock last week. As a result of this buying the shorts find themselves locked in with an ever decreasing supply of shares in the street to supply requirements. Those who first took Montgomery Ward in hand also were giving their attention to Union Carbide. It enjoyed one of the best advances of the day as those at work therein talked of slip-up of the shares that would mean higher return to stockholders.

Childs company benefited somewhat from expectation that favorable earnings statement would be issued in the near future.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW

NEW YORK, July 20. (AP)—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

The more cheerful tone of advices as to retail trade and crops noted last week seems fully maintained. High temperatures have been favorable alike to distribution of light summer wear and to growth or harvesting of crops. While wholesale trade still tends to lag, there is evidence that buying for fall has been stimulated by the improved reports from the crops, especially corn. Weather conditions have favored the continued harvesting and marketing of wheat in the southwest and middle west, and this has resulted in a call for increased supplies of money in those areas.

Reports from the industries this week are cheerful as regards iron and steel and automobiles, and a shade better as regards shoe and furniture manufacturing. Reports from the cotton manufacturing industry are that June consumption was the smallest in nearly two years.

Weekly bank clearings $10,911,547,000, an increase of 12.8 per cent over last year.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, July 20. (AP)—(USDA)—Demand for killing cattle was slow at most points around the 11-market circuit. Killers continued to display considerable interest in finished yearlings, but grassy short fed yearlings and all grades of matured steers were under pressure. The outlet for heavy steers has been especially narrow the past few days. Feeder buyers early in the week were a decided prop to the market for fed western grassers, taking numerous loads of thick fleshed Kansas and Texas cake feds scaling 1,000 to 1,300 pounds. A weak to lower undertone developed on stockers after midweek, the off quality kinds being very difficult to move. Total receipts today of around 10,250 were 2,000 less than a week ago, but 2,500 larger than the same day last year.

Hogs were tendered another price jolt of 10c to 25c with closing values to packers at some points off more. The day's extreme top of $11.25 was paid at Chicago. Offerings around the loop were estimated at 60,700, against 63,731 last Friday and 59,215 the same day last year.

Fat lambs were in active demand at strong to 25c higher prices. The full advance was put into effect at the river markets. Choice Idaho and Washington lambs in Chicago stopped at $15.75, but choice rangers at Omaha scored $15.40, while $15.25 was secured at Kansas City and St. Joseph. The supply approximated 30,000, as compared with 31,744 last week and 26,834 a year ago.

FORT WORTH, Texas, July 20. (UP)—Hogs—Receipts 1,000; market slow, uneven; truck hogs, 25 to 35c lower, Rail hogs weak to 25c lower; top $10.90, out of line, paid by small killers for one load. Truck top, $10.50. Bulk desirable 175 to 240-pound averages $10.25@10.50.

Cattle—Receipts 3,500; slaughter steers and she stock and slaughter calves generally strong and active, spots higher on plain grass slaughter steers and on slaughter cows: two cars good lightweight beeves $12.50; desirable fat cows mostly $7.25@8.00. Grain

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE
(Universal Service)

CHICAGO, July 20.—Wheat had a fair upward reaction today, which was due, but corn after an ephemeral display of strength weakened and closed in a way that might well shake bullish confidence in it.

At the end wheat was up 1⅛ to 1⅜c; corn was down ⅛ to 1⅛c; oats were ⅛ to 1¼c higher; rye was up 1¼ to 2⅜c.

Interest centered on the progress of the deal in July corn.

It will require a demonstration of strength in corn tomorrow morning to hold longs to the conviction that they are in the right position in the deferred futures. Strength in the July future alone may not be enough. The action of that is losing its influence on the September and the December.

The break in the former today was sharp and ominous when it came. December corn showed more strength, but that future holds out little attraction that this writer can see for a buyer.

It has been repeatedly insisted that December corn is "way oversold." This contention is obviously incorrect. There is practically no hedging December against cash corn. That means that every bushel on the short side is offset by a bushel on the long side.

Wheat and rye opened up strong. They never sold off very much after the opening and closed with an appearance of considerable strength.

Wheat, however, may meet with selling on any further advance from the present price. A good deal may be made of talk of rust damage, but the general crop prospect for wheat, both in this country and in Canada, is so good by comparison with what was expected that sentiment is not likely to persist in a bullish view of the situation.

In the cash market wheat was 1c up; corn was unchanged to 1c up; oats were unchanged; rye was quiet; barley was steady.

Probably resulting from the completion of the Charter Oil company-E. J. 'Cash On the Barrel Head' Reviewed As Method of Paying Store Debt

HOUSTON, Texas, July 20. (AP)—"Cash on the barrel head."

That's the way Mr. and Mrs. Sam H. Earnest made the down payment on a lot they purchased for their second grocery store.

Earl C. Bradley, real estate salesman, had heard the barrel head adage many times, but never before had he seen it carried out in detail.

He sold the property to Mr. and Mrs. Earnest late one afternoon. The next morning he went out to their home to get the papers signed and to collect the down payment. He congratulated his purchasers who met them on their front porch, and extracted the papers from his pocket.

"Just a minute until I get your money," Mrs. Earnest said, walking into the house.

She returned shortly with a large cigar box. There was a barrel in the yard, and she walked to it, putting the cigar box on the lawn beside it. Then he reached into the cigar box, took out a handful of dimes and started counting them out into the barrel head.

Sometime later she said to the dazed salesman: "There's 440 of them, and I think that makes the down payment of $44."

Bradley, without other ceremony than a handshake with his buyers, left for the courthouse to get the transaction recorded. In his hand was a small flour sack containing the 440 dimes, two and one-half per cent of the total purchase price.

JILTED WIFE TAKES DIARY

Record of Meetings of Hubby and Pal "Stolen"

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 20. (INS)—An intimate diary was one of the "very few" things she took from the suburban home of her husband, Frank Lloyd Wright, internationally known architect, Mrs. Miriam Noel Wright declared here today in answer to charges that she had looted the place of linens and pictures valued at $199.

The diary, Mrs. Wright declared, contained a day by day account of the meetings of her husband with Madame Olga Milanoff, Montenegrin dancer.

Wright, who, together with Mme. Milanoff, faces a moral charge in San Diego police court, swore to a complaint in the southern city yesterday charging his wife with petty theft. The charge came as an aftermath of his accusation that she recently wrecked the furnishings of his seaside home at La Jolla in a fit of jealous rage.

The only article she took, Mrs. Wright said today, were Mme. Milanoff's purported diary, her own cloak, two Japanese prints she bought in the orient and a piece of linen embroidery.

Mrs. Wright added she had turned the diary over to her attorneys to be used as evidence against her husband.

Second 'Snyder-Gray' Love Triangle Looms After Bombing of Husband

ROCKFORD, Ill., July 20. (INS)—A "Mrs. Snyder-Judd Gray" triangle loomed here this afternoon as the pretty widow of Vernon Plager, radio store owner who was blown to bits by a bomb planted in his automobile, and the "other man," Paul Reed, 30, her admitted former and present sweetheart, sat in the office of a state's attorney and told conflicting stories of their lives and their relation to Plager's strange death.

"She loves me. She had only one thought and was to divorce Plager and marry me. Why, she kissed me only last Monday," Reed told investigating officers.

"No, it is not true. It is not. I wanted to forget Paul and stay with Vernon," sobbed Mrs. Iva Plager.

Detectives renewed their investigations of the case when Reed was unable to explain his actions within two and one-half hours of the time of the bombing. FREDERICK, Okla., July 20.—Tillman county's wheat crop was handled in record-breaking time this season, due to the combine which accounted for most of the small grain this year. Harvesting began early in June, Frederick gaining the distinction of getting the first two cars of 1928 wheat to terminal markets this season, the Northwestern Elevator company's initial car arriving in Fort Worth June 12, while the Farmers' Co-Operative Grain and Cotton company's first car arrived there a few hours later. Grandfield, which for a number of years won first place, was the first to get a car of wheat to a northern terminal and arrived at Enid a little after the wheat from here reached Fort Worth.

Big Harvest

About 750,000 bushels of wheat were raised in Tillman county this season, according to D. H. Sims, veteran grain dealer, all of which have been sold except about 100,000 bushels. Some 75,000 bushels are stored in elevators and 25,000 are in farmers' bins, waiting for a higher price. The price ranged from $1.10 to $1.30 a bushel, with $1.25 about the average. The present price is $1.12.

The yield ran from four to 30 bushels an acre, the latter being the number of bushels raised by W. W. Palmer from southwest of Frederick averaged. The first wheat marketed graded No. 1 but since the rains it has graded No. 3 and even lower.

Because of the large amount of protein, wheat from southwest Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle was in great demand at Minneapolis, Kansas City and other northern points this year, said Sims. Wheat from northern Oklahoma and Kansas had less protein this year than wheat from this locality. As Texas raised a large crop of wheat this season but a small part of the crop from here found its way to Galveston and other Texas points.

Ground is already being prepared for next season's crop and planting will be done in September and October.

SERVICE HELD FOR SIMMONS

Civil War Veteran Buried Here Friday

Funeral services for George Simmons, 85, pioneer Wichita Falls citizen and Confederate veteran, who died at his home, 1406 Broad street, Thursday night, were held Friday evening at 3 o'clock from the First Methodist church with Dr. S. S. McKenney, pastor, officiating. Burial was in Riverside cemetery.

Mr. Simmons was born in Winchester, Tenn., and served in Gen. N. B. Forrest's bodyguard during the Civil war. He fought many battles with the great calvary leader and was never wounded, although his horse was once shot from under him.

Mr. Simmons moved to Texas in 1874 and first settled in Dallas, moving to Wichita Falls in 1890. He was the oldest and one of the charter members of the Kay Bible class and was for a number of years secretary of the Wichita Falls National Farm Loan association.

Survivors include one son, Robert T. Simmons of Wichita Falls; four daughters, Mrs. M. J. Kavanaugh of Terrell, Mrs. J. B. Craig of Friendship, Tenn., Mrs. D. A. Bohannon and Miss Carrie Simmons and three grand children.

Active pallbearers were, Oral Jones, Ralph L. De Shong, Charles Andree, W. F. Jourdan, Charles Quarnstrom and Roy J. Daniel.

Bond Ordinance Ready for Council

The ordinance calling for a city bond election of $250,000 is completed and is awaiting the action of the city council Monday night, it was learned at the city auditorium Friday. The date is inserted in the ordinance as August 28. This may be changed by the council if it sees fit.

Two spaces are left blank in the ordinance to be filled in by the councilmen at the meeting. One is the determining of the interest rate the issue shall bear, and the other is the statement of the number of years for which the bonds shall be issued.

Free Swimming Lessons Start Next Monday

Free swimming lessons will be given each afternoon this next week at Haven park pool, according to an announcement made at the city park department Friday.

The number taking the lessons this week at the Westmoreland pool has taxed the capacity of the pool and instructors, and C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks said he was highly pleased at the reception with which the free swimming lessons have been met.

He also said that the Haven pool water will be changed regularly in order to insure clean and pleasant swimming at all times.

City Operates in June At $12,000 Saving

The actual saving or lowered cost of operation of the city government for June 1928, the third month of the city manager government, as compared to June 1927, was revealed Friday as $12,668.52 by W. E. McBroom, city clerk.

When the figures for the month were first compiled, this saving was set at $10,400. One item of a little over $1800 however, was found charged to operation which should have been capital investment in the water department on sewer mains.

Today { At the Theaters

MAJESTIC: Evelyn Brent and George Bancroft in "The Drag Net." Fables. Topics. Paramount news.

STRAND: Barney Oldfield in "The First Auto," a vitaphone picture. Two vitaphone shorts. Pathe news.

MISSION: Hoot Gibson in "Riding for Fame." Chapter three of "The Man Without a Face."

OLYMPIC: Estelle Taylor in "Lady Raffles." Fox newsreel. Ben Turpin comedy.

GARDEN: "North of the Border." Serial. Comedy.

GEM: "The Soda Water Cowboy." Serial. Comedy.

Evelyn Brent and George Bancroft are opening at the Majestic Saturday in "The Drag Net." Francis MacDonald, one of the self condemned aviators in "The Legion of the Condemned," is seen as Sniper Dawson, a gangster, in this show. Fred Kohler, another one of "Underworld" artists also appears. The feature is directed by Josef von Sternberg, director of "Underworld."

◇ ◇ ◇

Lilyan Tashman, who started out in Ziegfeld's follies, is in one of the principals in "Lady Raffles," now at the Olympic. This is the last day of "Lady Raffles," and it may be said for the picture that there is not a dull moment in it. It's a show that plays upon the emotions and gives many a thrill.

◇ ◇ ◇

That breath-taking, adventure serial picture, "The Man Without a Face," is at the Mission with the third instalment. Allene Ray and Walter Miller, two popular serial stars, are featured in it.

◇ ◇ ◇

Now that the Spudders are on the road for a couple of weeks, it is highly probable that the matinees will pick up on the days the ladies are wont to go to Spudder park to watch the athletes frolic around.

◇ ◇ ◇

Anyone who wants to laugh real good and hard should take in "The First Auto" at the Strand. The vitaphone music with the film is good, and the show is full of fun. It is one of the most unusual laugh makers that has come to town in a long time.

George Bancroft in "The Drag Net" opening Saturday at the Majestic theater.

Wichita City Attorney Named On Committee

FORT WORTH, July 20. (AP)—City attorneys of Texas perfected a permanent organization at a meeting here today and Saturday will select a name for their organization, a place and a date for the next meeting.

John McGlasson, city attorney of Waco, was named president.

Other officers are: Hamp P. Abney, Sherman, vice president; Harvey W. Draper, Houston, secretary; J. H. Painter, Houston, treasurer, and the following members of the executive committee: Walter H. Scott, El Paso; Joe Ryan, San Antonio; Thelbert Martin, Wichita Falls; W. O. Seals, Lufkin; Rhinehart Rouer, Fort Worth; J. J. Collins, Dallas, and J. B. Rector, Austin. Ryan will act as chairman of the committee until Scott recovers from illness, when the latter will assume the chairmanship.

Dallas Youth Missing After Reported Crash

DENVER, Colo., July 20. (UP)—Authorities here are investigating the mysterious disappearance of Harry Garrett, son of a prominent Dallas, Texas family, who was mentioned in a false message sent to a newspaper there, as having escaped injury in an automobile accident near here. The message, signed by "The Rocky Mountain Highway Accident commission," said a "Peggy Selwyn of Dallas and an Ed Wells, New York bond broker," had been killed in the crash.

Two More Indictments In Patronage Scandal

BILOXI, Miss., July 20. (AP)—A federal grand jury concluded an eight-day investigation into federal patronage affairs in Mississippi today by returning two additional indictments, one of which named a man hitherto not identified with the investigation. Court officials refused to identify the man or reveal his connection with the investigation pending his arrest. The other indictment named Ed L. Patton, negro Republican leader.

Moody Orders Cleanup Of Oil Boom Town

WILLS POINT, Texas, July 20. (UP)—An order to clean up unlawful conditions at Wink, Winkler county oil boom town, was sent today by Governor Dan Moody to Attorney General Claude Pollard. The order was sent after Moody received a report from Ranger Captain Will Wright that gambling and bootlegging were being openly carried on there. Assistant Attorney General Galloway Calhoun was assigned to investigate.

Candidates At Iowa Park, Burk

judge of the county court-at-law, who, agreed among themselves to make only three-minute talks.

The candidates spoke as follows:

Miss Eunice Jackson and Jesse S. Smith declared their candidacy for the office of district clerk and asked the support of the voters.

H. L. White, S. B. Spruiell and W. G. Bralley, candidates for sheriff, promised honest administrations and to enforce the law if elected.

Arthur C. Howard, candidate for tax collector, asked election to the office as a promotion while his opponent, Guy C. Raley, declared that he was making the race solely on his past record in office.

For district judge 78th court:

George Smoot: "I believe that cases in the district court should be set up and tried and that prisoners should not be kept in jail longer than necessary. The system of bookkeeping in this county has been very unsatisfactory and if I am elected I propose to see that every cent that comes into and goes out of the county is accounted for."

W. W. Cook: "I have tried civil cases largely since I have been district judge but I do not think it can be counted against me. Some people think that it is easier to try a civil case than a criminal case, but it is not. I have been on the job every day since I have been in the office and I promise you the same service if I am re-elected."

H. F. Weldon: "I am a candidate because there is too much delay in the courts and the people are tired of it. George Smoot says that he will run the court like a federal court but I won't. I will never make a white man get up and give his seat to a negro. Allred says that he wants the office for a promotion but you can't promote these Allred boys fast enough. All of them are running for office except one and he is entered for the attorney general's race two years from now."

Ben F. Allred: "I am the second Allred that has been elected to district attorney's office while a Weldon has never been elected to office in a contested election. Judge Weldon resigned as district judge before because he said that he could not sacrifice the best years of his life and now that he has come back he has no right to ask for the office again. I have fought a good battle for you as district attorney and as long as an Allred stays in there and pitches you will still be promoting them."

For district attorney:

W. L. Scott: "We should vote no man into office as a favor to him but we should select a man who will enforce the law. My opponents will tell you that they had their fingers in the wonderful Allred record but they are severely criticized for their work in the office. They are young and have many years before them and should serve longer as lawyers before they attempt to be district attorneys."

E. F. Fruechte: "Mr. Scott said something slighting about the bar examination in his talk but it is an endurance test and I do not believe that he can pass it now. He says that he would not hit a man below the belt but he said in a speech a few weeks ago that I was misrepresenting the facts and when I called his hand he did not apologize for it nor has he answered me to this day."

Sam Spence: "Fruechte has told you one of the best stories of big and little we that you will ever hear. I asked him why he did not quote his figures right and he said that because I had quoted some wrong we were even. Two wrongs have never made a right. I do not propose to be a would beater but I will clean up the dockets and enforce the law to the best of my ability."

Mrs. John B. Rhea gave a short history of the life of her husband who is a candidate for the office but who is unable to speak because of illness.

A. V. Grant, E. Van Deventer, and Cecil Storey, candidates for representatives, declared that they would favor fewer laws and more reform of the present laws.

Ralph D. Pittman, Irvin J. Vogel and M. G. McFarland, candidates for judge of county court-at-law, declared their candidacy and asked the support of the voters in three-minute talks.

BURKBURNETT, July 20.—Five hundred citizens of Burkburnett listened to political candidates alternately praise their opponents and hurl charges of falsifying at them as they spoke from a flat bed truck in a roped off area of the business district here tonight.

National issues, Al Smith, the farm question, prohibition and similar issues were ignored as the campaigns generally are being made on issues peculiar to the office in question.

Bill Davenport, former assistant county attorney and candidate for county attorney, was the only one to mention prohibition. He promised vigorous prosecution of prohibition cases in the county courts if he was elected.

Wayne Somerville, county attorney and candidate for reelection, and Robert Crain, former assistant district attorney, accused each other of false statements. Mr. Crain also renewed his challenge to Mr. Somerville for a discussion of their issues.

"Mr. Crain issued a pamphlet telling about my office, and he included in it fees for attorney hire for the years of 1923 and 1924 when I was not even in office," Mr. Somerville stated. "He has said my office cost the county $40,000 when as a matter of fact I have paid back to the county over $14,000 in excess fees, more than any other county attorney in the same length of time. Mr. Crain doesn't know enough about the office to tell you the truth about it."

"I had a pamphlet printed and that is what Mr. Somerville refers to," Mr. Crain said. "Everything in there is true according to records and I can prove it by the records. I hereby renew my challenge to Mr. Somerville for a joint discussion."

W. E. Wilson, another candidate for the office, said that Mr. Crain had been stirring up Wayne Somerville's record so much that it "stunk pretty badly."

"I understand that Wayne's assistant county attorneys are wearing clothes pins on their noses these days," he said.

Youth versus age was the issue discussed among the candidates for the 89th district judge's bench and representative from the 111th district.

Harry Bunnenberg, on a platform of youth, said: "If you would have a young man get ahead, elect him to the office. If you wish to go far, you must start young and early.

"If you elect me, I will bring the trials up rapidly, as it is in bringing the cases to trial that time and money are lost."

Judge P. A. Martin, incumbent, said he had tried more cases in his tenure than any other district judge in Texas. "The position is one that calls for experience," Judge Martin said. He also said that on May 31, he had been elected state president of the Judges association.

R. A. (Bob) Long said his platform was brief, and that if the voters could only know his opponents they would vote for him. "Because of this, one of my planks is for you to know my opponents," he said. "One is over 60 and the other over 40 years of age. If you want youth and progress, I will serve you. Both of my opponents are known as radicals on some subject or other.

"I will vote for no fool laws, and I will introduce no fool laws. My platform is common sense."

Dr. Joseph Graves, candidate for the same office, spoke on the money spent by state officials traveling.

F. G. Swansen said he had no objection to increasing land taxes but he objected to increasing improvement taxes.

Everett Hughes, N. A. Moore, Mart Banta, Robert Dunaway and B. L. Trevathan, spoke on their candidacies for the office of county tax assessor.

C. J. Shumake, father of Max Shumake, spoke for his son who is confined to the hospital.

P. B. Curd, candidate for county judge, told of his private and political history and his four years of service as a Wichita Falls alderman. When he was through speaking a voice in the audience shouted, "Hooray for Waite Phillips."

Judge E. W. Nicholson, incumbent, said that he had held the office for 18 months and 20 days, and that the office is in good shape and that taxes have been reduced. On his record he asked re-election.

John P. Marrs, attorney, said that an attorney should have the office and that he was an attorney seeking in. "These other two candidates have been tasting of that political pie in their offices, and I have never held public office. I have practiced law 23 years and I would like some of that official pie," he said.

V. W. Holmes and D. J. Johnson, candidates for Burkburnett justice of the peace, told of their qualifications, after having been introduced by Chairman R. S. Ragsdale as the first speakers of the evening.

Lee Prescott, candidate for county commissioner at Burkburnett, asked for the support of the voters for a change in office, and F. R. Knauth, incumbent, asked support on his record.

T. W. McHam, candidate for reelection as county treasurer, said he has held the post for 22 years and that he is running on his record. When he sat down a man in the audience shouted: "And I hope you live to enjoy it for another 22 years, Tom."

Mrs. W. W. Gardner, another candidate for county treasurer, said she had no criticism against Mr. McHam, but that he had held the position long enough. She said she was a widow with three children to support.

Clyde R. Wofford and J. A. Hood, candidates for the office of county superintendent of schools, said they were especially prepared for the office by college training and experience in teaching. Burl Bryant, incumbent, said he was similarly qualified, holding the same degrees and also having been a rural specialist, and that in addition he has had experience in office as county superintendent. He stood on his record.

Army's Salute for Major Generals Accorded Carranza Cortege in Texas

SAN ANTONIO, July 20. (AP)—The skies, which a week ago dashed Captain Emilio Carranza to the earth and to death, today wept flowers on his funeral cortege as his body paused in San Antonio to receive the final gesture of friendship and sympathy this country will offer before the funeral train reaches the Mexican border.

A flying guard of honor composed of 100 of the army's fighting airplanes met the train at New Braunfels, Texas, 30 miles north of here and escorted it to San Antonio. At the city limits the last flight of the formation swept down in a long graceful curve to shower the coach in which the body rested, with masses of native Texas flowers. An 11 gun salute, accorded brigadier generals, was fired by the 15th field artillery as the train entered the depot. The Mexican government gave Captain Carranza the rank of brigadier after his death.

At the depot the flyer was among his own people again for the first time since he crossed the border on his ill-fated goodwill flight to this country, for the International-Great Northern depot here is in the heart of the Mexican district. Thousands of Mexicans were gathered about the train shed, and lined in solid ranks all along the route of the march.

People More Intelligent Now, Says Grand Old Man of Oklahoma at 83

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 20. (UP)—Oklahoma's "grand old man" thinks the world is getting better.

Col. R. A. Sneed, state treasurer, who will be 83 next month, says the spark of manhood and womanhood in the race today is brighter than ever.

The cigaret smoking, gin drinking boys and girls are exceptions, not the rule, he said.

"I don't believe many boys and girls do these things, though we hear much about the few who do. Most of it is done in imitation of others, in an effort to 'be smart.' When they stop to think, they get new viewpoints. America's youth is not going to the bow-wows," said the venerable official, for 43 years an active Democrat in Oklahoma.

"People have more real stamina and intelligence today than when I was a boy. Education is a necessity. The man or woman without it is handicapped. It was not so in my day," the colonel said. His education was ceased when he joined the southern army at 16.

"The world is more intelligent, more forgiving, more tolerant than ever before. We think more about our fellow man's interests than we did 70 years ago. People didn't have the enthusiasm of the modern man and woman," he said.

ABSENTEE VOTE TOTAL GAINS

300 Ballots Expected By Next Wednesday

Indications Friday were that the absentee vote in Wichita county would exceed 300 votes. More than a score of persons marked their ballots in the office of Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk, during Friday, bringing the total absentee vote to almost 150.

Wednesday was the first day those expecting to be absent election day were allowed to mark their ballots upon presentation of a poll tax receipt. Prior to that time for 10 days persons expecting to be out of the county on election day who planned to leave here before July 18, made application for a ballot to be mailed them at the visiting address. Seventy persons have voted or will vote by this route.

Next Wednesday will be the last day for absentee voting.

Elephant Favored To Outrun Donkey

WASHINGTON, July 20. (UP)—The elephant is sure to win the projected race with the donkey from New York to Washington, Aug. 1, Director William M. Mann of the zoo here said today.

"Elephants have speed and endurance," he explained. "Two elephants traveling with a circus that winters in Florida hike to Canada and back every year, while other circus animals ride."

Mann said the elephant would prove stubborn only if rushed too hard, while the donkey was certain to balk.

He would not extend his prognostications to the political parties of which the two animals are symbolic.

NEW TEST IN IRRIGATION

Lelia Lake Project Watched With Interest

Special to The Record News.

CLARENDON, Texas, July 20.—Farmers of the Lelia Lake community, seven miles east of here in Donley county, are watching with interest a tryout at irrigation of farms in that section. M. G. Cottingham, farmer of that community, is irrigating with success a five-acre patch of corn, some garden truck and an alfalfa field. A stream of running water, which runs the year around crosses Cottingham's farm and he takes the water from this stream by means of a pump to the highest level in the field from which it is run over the crops by gravity. The West Texas Utilities company of this city is cooperating with Mr. Cottingham in this work and are furnishing the power and pump for carrying the water to the point of distribution.

This test is being watched with considerable interest on the part of farmers over the county, inasmuch as there are many miles of running water in the county that could be used for this purpose in case this test proves feasible.

Youth Charged With Murder

gave an account of his whereabouts from Tuesday night until after McDaniel had been shot.

Every detail of the statement, it is understood, was substantiated by witnesses summoned at the court of inquiry held at Newcastle Friday afternoon.

Prior to Duckett's arrest Friday officers had partially identified, through a general description, the automobile which the bandit who shot Mr. McDaniel abandoned near Holliday as the same in which a lone bandit escaped the Roszell cafe after holding up the proprietor and two customers Tuesday night.

Witness Positive

W. H. Roszell, proprietor of the cafe, declared that Duckett is not the man who held up his place the night before.

Mr. Drummond, who witnessed the shooting, was positive in his identification of Duckett, as were Mr. Nix and Mr. Grundy. Mr. Nix was stopped by the driver of a Whippet automobile near Holliday and ordered to turn his car over to the man who stopped him. Later a Pontiac coupe was stopped by the bandit and Mr. Nix was allowed to continue in his small truck. Mr. Grundy's car was that in which the fugitive reached Wichita Falls.

Duckett was arrested by officers from Wichita and Archer counties at the home of his father in Newcastle as the result of investigations made by Sheriff W. G. Bralley, who learned that Duckett recently had been released from the penitentiary, and had been seen in Wichita Falls Monday.

Mr. Bralley, Mr. Goodwin, Warren Belcher, Wichita county deputy, S. O. Hamm, state highway officer, and Curley Kincaid, Archer county deputy, arrested Duckett while he was asleep on a pallet at the home of his father at Newcastle.

Author Hunted After Suicide

"literary light" continue his tutoring.

Virginia told her parents she was being assisted by a "very famous novelist" but it was not until Sunday that she revealed his name, informing her mother she was going to Bodenheim's apartment.

When Virginia did not return home Sunday or Monday her father and brother went to Bodenheim's apartment, where they were informed that Bodenheim was out and "would not return until 1:30 a. m."

The negro elevator operator told them a girl answering Virginia's description had entered Bodenheim's apartment early Sunday evening and left alone at 1:30 a. m.

No further trace of Virginia was found until today when Drew was taken to a morgue and identified the body of a young woman taken from the North river as his daughter.

Search For Bodenheim

With Virginia's death definitely established, attention was turned to Bodenheim's activities. It was learned that he had left his apartment early Tuesday, entering a taxi-cab and instructing the driver to take him to Grand Central station.

Later it was learned he was still in New York Wednesday, having attempted to borrow money from his book publishers.

Bodenheim has been a picturesque figure in New York literary circles; has spent most of his time in Greenwich Village where he was considered a "Bohemian of Bohemians;" has a wife and two children but has not lived with them for some time.

He is the author of several books, including "Replenishing Jessica," and "Georgia May," which attracted attention because of their risque themes.

Although search for Bodenheim is to be extended until he is found police were careful to point out that he is wanted purely for any information he may be able to give concerning Miss Drew's activities Sunday night.

VAN DEVENTER SCORNS BOLT

Candidate Will Support Demo Ticket

Early Van Deventer, seeking election as state representative, district 112, formerly a leader in the Constitutional Democrat movement against Al Smith, declared Friday that he would not bolt the Democratic ticket, but would vote for Alfred E. Smith for president.

Mr. Van Deventer's statement was the first written reply to the query of a Record News editorial on the attitude of candidates toward the national ticket.

The statement follows:

In response to The Record News' invitation and challenge to all candidates to declare position as regards supporting the national ticket I am ready to answer. I am answering, not because I would criticize others who take a different view of their duty, but because I think the public has a right to know. I trust that my opponents will be equally as outspoken. It is not fair for one candidate to answer and the others to evade the issue.

I am somewhat in the same position of the newly married W. C. T. U. worker whose young husband came home drunk.

"Of course you are going to quit him?" queried a solicitous neighbor.

"Quit him? Lord, no!" she answered as she tied a hot towel about his head. "I am going to stay with him, the dickens, till he learns to behave himself."

I opposed the nomination of Alfred E. Smith both in the precinct and county conventions, and even went to Beaumont to oppose the election of a Smith delegation to Houston. I took the pledge in the precinct convention; a majority of my party in the county convention sent me to Beaumont to represent them there. For these good and sufficient reasons and the additional reason that I am asking for a place on the Democratic ballot, I shall vote the Democratic ticket straight.

This is not the last campaign we are going to have. We need soldiers on the firing line in public office.

EARLY VAN DEVENTER.
