Kicking The News Around

By ED ERARD

General Eisenhower and Upton Close teamed up last week in a pincer movement on the complacent home front. These boys know we ain't shooting doves on a fence. At least another year in Europe and then four more in the Pacific is their combined guess.

They think this war will be long as a well rope, bloody as a butcher's apron and tough as a Russian boot.

They say we'll win this war. But they don't say who will win the peace. Will Rogers said we never lost a war or won a peace. In Washington, politicians are thick as flies around a molasses barrel, but diplomats are scarcer than feathers on a frog.

Roger Babson says the "Atlantic Charter" is built on the "survival-of-the-weakest" theory and we guarantee to pinch-hit for the weak the next time they use bombs for baseballs and bazookas for bats. He says "permanent peace" can come when there is only one government in the world. That may sound like a long-distance boom for FDR as Lord High Exalted Supreme Ruler of the Universe in 1952, but Babson still believes we'd better leave the Universe in the hands that made it.

He thinks we ought to run this hemisphere, let England run Europe and Russia boss Asia. Sounds sensible, but it smacks of isolation.

And right now, Congressmen are bathing with the curtains up for fear of being called isolationists.

National Girl Scout Week, which opened on October 31 and continues through November 6 will be celebrated in Lamesa with a special program presented by Lamesa Scouts on Friday evening, November 5 at the Lamesa High School Auditorium beginning at 8 p. m.

Every citizen of Lamesa has a special invitation to attend this Scout program and see what Lamesa Scouts are doing, the admission price will be tin cans, old hosiery or any amount of waste fats.

The program will consist of the following numbers: Ann McGuire will be the reader; Mrs. Leuenberger's Brownie Troop will give a song and dance; Misses Brocks and Carter Brownie Troop, folk dances; Misses Eiland and Billingsley Intermediate Troop, the flag salute; Misses Brown and Harvey, Intermediate Troop, camp fire scene. Mesdames Blanton and Scott's Intermediate Troop will give the Girl Scout Laws and Promise and at the conclusion each girl will receive her Girl Scout Pin, to be presented by Mayor Charnell Jobe.

The Senior Scout Troop under the leadership of Mrs. McGuire, will show the part Girl Scouts are doing to help the war effort.

A number of articles the different troops have been working on will be on display for the public to see.

The Girl Scouts of Lamesa started the week off by a large group attending the First Baptist Church Sunday morning and were given special recognition by Rev. Cole. The schedule for the week, to be observed by the different troops is as follows: Sunday, Church Day; Monday, Homemaking Day; Tuesday, Citizenship Day; Wednesday, Health and Safety Day; Thursday, International Friendship Day; Friday, Arts and Crafts Day, and Saturday, Out-Of-Doors Day.

There are approximately 160 Girl Scouts now organized in Lamesa, and from all indications several other troops could be organized, if leaders were available. With the exception of the Senior Troop, with Mrs. Gordon McGuire as leader, all other troops have been organized since last July. The girls are all extremely interested in scout work, and it is thought the Girl Scouts will continue to grow and be a permanent part of Lamesa.

The Girl Scout organization originated in England under the name of Girl Guides who united after the development of the Boy Scouts under the leadership of Lord Robert Baden-Powell and his sister Agnes Baden-Powell. This organization was founded in America by Mrs. Juliette Lowe of Savannah, Ga., who lived for many years in England where she was a friend of Robert Baden-Powell and his sister. The American troops were organized in Savannah in 1912 and by 1928 the Girl Scouts and Guides had become the widest of organizations for girls, numbering 700,000 members throughout the world.

OPA and WFA Set Regulations For Meat Slaughtering

Farmers and other producers of livestock may easily determine whether or not they are eligible to slaughter without a WFA permit or license and to consume meat without giving up ration points under a simplified procedure announced jointly today by the OPA and WFA. Chief points in the joint action, according to district OPA director Howard R. Gholson, who said he had just received them, are as follows:

1. OPA changed its meat rationing regulation to simplify the requirements covering point-free home consumption of meat by livestock producers.
 2. WFA authorized an individual to slaughter for home consumption without a license or permit if he is entitled under OPA regulations to consume the meat point-free.
- "We are attempting to make the requirements covering home-slaughter and point-free meat consumption as clear and simple as possible.

both to aid the farmer and to conserve meat supplies for civilian and military use," the two agencies who may and who may not slaughter without a license and consume meat point-free.

"Meat obtained from slaughtering on the farm provides a large segment of the population with its meat needs. Under wartime rationing, it is necessary to set limitations on the point-free consumption of this meat, in order that as much as possible may become a part of the total supply available for rationing.

"Farmers and others who produce livestock may, of course, continue to serve at their own table the meat they raise without giving up ration points. The simplified limitations make it clear, however, that those who are not bona fide producers of livestock are not entitled to eat more than their ration stamps will buy."

Under the OPA revision a person may consume meat without giving up ration points only if:

1. He raised the livestock from birth or,
2. He kept the livestock for a period of 60 days immediately before slaughter, or,
3. The weight has increased at least 35 per cent between the time he acquires the livestock and the time of slaughter.

In all three instances, the raising of the livestock must take place on a farm or other place which the livestock producer operates.

In addition, to be considered eligible to slaughter and consume meat point-free, a person must have resided more than six months of each year on a farm which he operates, or he must have visited the farm for the purpose of giving personal attention and supervision to the raising of the livestock on his premises for at least a third of the time during the period (one of those afore listed) on which he bases his claim to the right to consume the meat point-free.

If a person has his livestock custom-slaughtered, he must meet these same conditions, in order to get the meat from the slaughterer without giving up points. He also is required to give a certificate to the slaughterer containing the facts showing he is eligible to consume the meat point-free.

Farmers or other persons who raise livestock and meet the requirements covering home consumption of meat, may, of course, serve the meat point-free to those who eat at the table—including farm workers. Prisons, asylums, restaurants

Crude-Oil Supply Will Not Fail Says Petroleum Expert

Will the earth's petroleum supply stand the enormous drain of global warfare? Will it meet the needs of postwar years — which will add many new items to the list of 2,000 products now being made from crude oil?

The answer is Yes, says Gustav Egloff, president of the American Institute of Chemists and research director of the Universal Oil Products Co., writing in a recent issue of the Rotarian magazine.

Oil is probably being produced by Nature faster than it is being consumed by man, Dr. Egloff maintains. There are doubtless millions of acres of oil-producing territory in the western hemisphere not yet discovered or developed, and many other parts of the earth should prove to be not less rich.

But in addition to its 373,000 producing wells, the United States has billions of barrels available from other crude oil sources, he contends. Investigations have brought to light and other so-called "institutional users," however, are not permitted point-free use of the meat from livestock they raise.

These changes are expected to make it an easier matter for a producer of livestock to determine whether or not he may consume meat point-free. It is hoped that this understanding will protect supplies of meat for military and lend-lease needs by stopping diversion of meat from legitimate distribution channels.

At the same time, today's action will disturb as little as possible the established custom of livestock producers in slaughtering the meat they raise for home use.

Director Gholson pointed out that under this clarification, "free barbecues" held for political or other rallies will not be permitted since meat slaughtered on the farm may be consumed by "hired hands" only.

The amount of meat a consumer may lend to another consumer, other than a consumer-producer, was limited to five pounds at any one time, the director pointed out. In order to permit the continuation of the customary cattle-ring or slaughtering club operators, the privilege of making larger loans by one consumer-producer to another such consumer-producer will be permitted. In the case of these larger loans, a time limit of six months has been fixed for the return of the loan.

facts regarding earth processes which convince us that oil is constantly being formed, Dr. Egloff asserts, citing the diatoms found in closed basins of the North American Continental Shelf, particularly along the west coast of California. Diatoms (brown, one-celled plants, growing in jellylike masses in both fresh and salt water) are constantly depositing in the deeper water of the Pacific Coast, and their organic content is constantly increasing.

Dr. Egloff estimates that the diatoms in the Monterey shale of the Santa Maria, California, oil fields would along produce 2 billion barrels of oil by an either-process extraction—and these represent only one limited area where diatoms are plentiful.

From the foregoing we may conclude that Nature is producing oil at a faster rate than gas pressure or pump strokes can bring it to the earth's surface, writes Dr. Egloff, so we may take heart for the future.

Rabbits Are Tasty If Cooked Properly

So you don't think you'd care to dine on mudhens—sometimes called coots?

Well, then, you've never eaten "Coot Bouhya," prepared to the recipe of Bob Becker, famous sportsman. If Mr. and Mrs. Average American give up some of their foolish taboos, he points out in the current Rotarian magazine, they'll find mudhens, jackrabbits, and other often-spurned game will save many ration points.

Here's Becker's recipe for "Coot Bouhya." You start with 10 coots: Wash birds thoroughly; salt for 24 hours, then wash again. Boil slowly in plenty of water, skimming this until surface clears. Add salt and pepper to taste, along with allspice and bay leaves. (Keep adding salt and pepper as you add other ingredients.) After broth clears, add pint of fine-cut onions, 3 pints of cut cabbage, pint of fine-cut celery. Add quart of tomatoes, or pint of tomato soup. Add all these items one at a time. Simmer until meat begins to get tender, then add hearts and livers, with pint of diced turnips, pint of diced rutabagas, 2 pints of sliced or diced carrots, and 2 quarts of potatoes, cut to inch cubes.

Keep adding water as needed. Check seasoning frequently. Stir constantly, as broth burns easily in thickening. Cook until meat starts to fall from bones. (one way to serve is by stripping meat from bones and then serving as thick soup for main dish.)

Getting rid of that extra-gamey taste in wild-fowl and animals is just a matter of smart cookery, Becker points out. In the case of rabbit he advises that a teaspoonful of vinegar be added to the water in which it is boiled. Another secret is never to boil rabbits too rapidly. Muskrats should be soaked overnight in salt water to draw out the blood and reduce the gamey flavor. As for the common complaint that pheasant meat is too dry, Becker suggests rubbing the bird with olive oil mixed with salt and pepper, or basting with sour cream during the cooking period.

This year hunting is more than a sport, the author asserts, for sportsmen can add to the family larder and help farmers "harvest" wild fowl eating their grain. Last Fall, American hunters "cropped" more than 254 million pounds of wild game meat—venison, elk, moose, rabbits, pheasants, and wild fowl. This year game laws are liberal and the War Production Board has made about 82 million shotgun shells and approximately 12 million rifle cartridges available to hunters.

Vigorous Rural Campaign Will Begin During Week

The local campaign to meet the needs of the war front and the home front continued to gather momentum. Henry Norris, co-chairman of the drive announced last week the house to house drive to be launched this week, under the direction of Johnny Agee and his crew of helpers. A business house drive will also get underway, and leaders will also contact governmental officials, and workers in industrial business.

Every community is expected to be worked this week in a vigorous rural campaign. C. A. Eiland is in charge of this phase of the drive.

The United War Chest of Texas

this fall is conducting the first unified war appeals program ever carried out in our state.

We know the job of the state. The National War Fund, representing 17 agencies, has called on us to provide nearly $5,000,000 of the national total of $125,000,000, and Dawson County has pledged to raise $10,700 of the fund. And we have accepted this responsibility as a part of winning the war.

The campaign is following the third war loan in which we were asked to invest heavily for our nation's safety—for our own security. In this appeal being conducted by the United War Chest of Texas and the National War Fund, we are not being asked to invest our money in the usual sense of the word but to make an outright gift to secure the continued existence of the kind of world in which we all believe.

This is the first time that these war appeals have been budgeted in a strictly business-like manner so that there may be no waste of money or manpower and no duplication of effort. This program is our most valid way of serving the Home Front, the United Nations Front and the Military Front.

Every single one of the 17 appeals has been studied carefully before it was included in the National War Fund, and every human effort is being made to stretch to its utmost every dollar contributed.

The dollars you give to the War Chest will take care of 17 strong war appeals approved by the President's War Relief Control Board. One campaign is much less expensive than 17, and the money provided will go further and give more service.

When the committeemen of the local War Chest contact you, be ready to take a Texan's share, the most generous share that we are able to take.

JEEP RIDES—

(Continued from Front Page) vage Committee, will present plans for the drive to the teachers, and it is hoped final plans for the drive will be completed at this time. Mrs. Myrtle Dickie Negy, home demonstration agent, and Lee R. Pool, county agent, who have been assisting Mrs. McLendon in laying plans for the drive, will also be present at the teachers meeting.

Different organizations have already pledged their all-out support for the drive. Members of the Commissioners Court have promised to help pick up the tin cans at the schools on the day the drive ends, and Captain Harris will furnish trucks to move the cans to town. This will eliminate the possibility of cans being scattered over the school grounds and will prevent them from lying out in the open until they rot. The city will be in charge of crushing those cans which have not been mashed previously. The Coca Cola plant will take the cans to a shredding plant in Dallas.

It is vital that every person remember to keep every can and never throw one away. We must "Salvage Tin to Win." In this county wide drive, no can larger than 5 quarts will be accepted. If possible, all cans should be mashed before turning them over to the collector; however unmashed cans will be accepted.

Our war plants are making the finest materials for our soldiers, and they need these tin cans to continue their good work. This Tin Can Drive is separate and apart from the Scrap Drive which is already underway.
