Marcoses charged with racketeering

NEW YORK (AP) — Deposed Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos and his wife, Imelda, were indicted on federal racketeering charges Friday for allegedly looting more than $100 million from their homeland to buy art and real estate in Manhattan.

They also were charged with defrauding three lending institutions of more than $165 million in the purchase and financing of the real estate.

"This case amounted to the Marcoses and their co-defendants using their position of trust to turn the Philippines' treasury into their own treasury," said James Fox of the FBI's New York office.

Saudi Arabian financier Adnan Khashoggi, a central figure in the secret sale of arms to Iran by the Reagan administration, also was indicted.

"This was not a plea bargain...it was a set of non-negotiable demands," Richard Hibey, Marcos' Washington-based attorney, said at a news conference in Honolulu. The Marcoses would plead innocent when arraigned Oct. 31, he said.

"They vigorously will defend the charges that have been laid against them in this case," Hibey said. "The charges are false."

Marcos had been given until Thursday to accept or reject what Hibey called a "drop-dead deal," which would have required him and his wife to plead guilty to felony racketeering charges and testify against others — including family members — with no assurances they would not be jailed, Hibey said.

Hibey said a U.S. promise to indict Marcos was linked to the recently renegotiated base agreements for U.S. installations in the Philippines.

"I am personally concerned...that he may not be physically able to withstand the rigors of a criminal trial of this scope and magnitude," said Hibey, who said the 71-year-old Marcos is "frail."

Marcos did not attend the news conference. In the 2½ years he has lived in Hawaii, Marcos has been treated for a variety of illnesses, including chest pains and an eye ailment.

Under the racketeering law, the government is seeking forfeiture of all illegally obtained property and holdings, including Swiss bank accounts, for restitution to the victims — the Philippines and the U.S. banks — if approved by the U.S. attorney general.

The charges alleged that between 1972 and 1986, when they fled to the United States, the Marcoses amassed $103 million through embezzlement, theft, bribes and kickbacks.

According to the indictment, the Marcoses illegally funneled the money through secret bank accounts in Switzerland, Hong Kong and the United States and then used the money to buy valuable New York properties, including commercial buildings at Herald Square and on Fifth Avenue, Madison Avenue and Wall Street.

"When they decided to get a piece of the rock, that rock became real estate in Manhattan," Fox said at a news conference at the offices of U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani.

"This is a plan hatched and begun in the Philippines to move massive amounts of money illegally into the United States," said Giuliani. "Then the Marcoses came to the United States and continued their illegal activities."

He said Marcos was the highest-ranking former foreign official indicted in this country.

The Marcoses' New York lawyer said President Reagan should have prevented the indictment.

"President and Mrs. Marcos intend to plead not guilty to these charges and we will fully and vigorously contest them," said the lawyer, John J. Tigue. "President and Mrs. Marcos are obviously deeply disappointed at President Reagan's failure to prevent this treatment of a long-standing ally of the United States."

Reagan was saddened by the indictment, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said, because Marcos "is an old friend and a friend of the country."

"But it's clear that the Justice Department has a very strong case," he added.

"Live mannequin" Gina Downing's animated antics drew sizeable crowds to the Downing Wellhead Equipment booth at the Permian Basin Oil Show in Odessa.

Gimmicks galore at Oil Show

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND
Assistant Business/Oil Editor

ODESSA — There's a story about a farmer and his obstinate donkey. A passerby noticed the farmer smacking the donkey across the head with a two-by-four.

"Wouldn't he go better if you hit him on the backside?" the stranger asked.

"You've got to get his attention first," was the reply.

The "two-by-fours" being used by exhibitors at the Permian Basin Oil Show to gain the attention of visitors run the gamut from "tried and true" to impromptu and inventive.

"You've got to have a gimmick to stand out from the crowd," said Doug Ham, corporate salesman for Pool Co. in its Midland district office.

Visitors to Pool Co.'s outdoor booth had an opportunity to putt for prizes on the company's artificial green.

Standing out in the crowd is tougher this year than at any previous Oil Show, with a record number of exhibitors filling the show grounds' 860-plus booths.

In the heat of the afternoon, air conditioning appeared to be one of the most popular attractions, as visitors flocked around displays in the cooler Ector County Coliseum and Building G. The longest line in the coliseum most of the day was at the Chevron booth where industry personnel stood in line for a shot at the giant slot machine.

Although interest at the booth was heavy, the payoff was light — or lights, to be more exact. The grand prize was a trucker's hazard light, with flash lights and penlights as first and second prizes. Key chains and samples of Chevron multipurpose oil were the third place and consolation prizes at the booth.

The "no-armed bandit" — the traditional lever has been replaced by a button — is making its first appearance at the 1988 Oil Show, according to exhibit supervisor Ralph Prater.

Prater travels the western United States with the machine, traveling from trade show to trade show, keeping he and the machine busy full time.

Prater was "very pleased" with response to the machine, which ran virtually non-stop all day, he said. At a separate Chevron booth in Barn A, visitors spun a roulette wheel for prizes as well.

Odessa Nissan offers visitors a roll of the dice for a chance at new car and other games of chance for prizes include poker and hourly lottery drawings.

Kidnappers threaten to harm Americans in retaliation

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite Moslem kidnappers on Friday threatened to harm two American hostages to retaliate for Israeli air attacks on Palestinian and pro-Iranian guerrilla bases in Lebanon.

"Committing this stupidity and this attack shall not pass without a punishment," said a typewritten statement in Arabic signed by Islamic Jihad, the pro-Iranian faction holding American journalist Terry A. Anderson and educator Thomas Sutherland.

The typewritten Arabic statement was delivered to the independent Beirut newspaper An-Nahar hours after the attack. An authenticating color picture of Anderson was delivered to the Reuters news agency with a copy of the statement.

The statement praised the Shiite Moslem suicide car bomber who killed seven Israeli soldiers and wounded eight soldiers and two Lebanese women in Israel's self-declared security zone in south Lebanon on Wednesday. That attack prompted Israel's retaliatory air strike, which killed 15 people and wounded 35 in south Lebanon on Friday.

The instant photo showed Anderson, 40, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, wearing a Commodore Hotel T-shirt and a bushy beard and mustache. He looked straight into the camera without his glasses.

It was the 11th picture released of Lebanon's longest-held foreign captive, abducted in Moslem west Beirut March 16, 1985.

The photo was similar to one released of Anderson on April 10, when Islamic Jihad threatened to harm the hostages if a Kuwaiti jetliner hijacked to Larnaca, Cyprus was stormed to free the passengers.

The 29-line statement began with several verses from the Koran, Islam's holy book, and deplored Israel's air attack as a "challenge to the will of our oppressed people."

It accused the U.S. administration of giving Israel advance approval to attack Palestinian and Hezbollah guerrillas in Lebanon. The pro-Iranian Hezbollah, or Party of God, had claimed responsibility for the suicide bombing.

"The criminal America must realize it will not get away with what it has done, especially in connection with the hostages we hold, so that will be a lesson to whoever strikes at the dignity and glory of our people and mujahedeen (holy fighters)," it said.

Sheik Fadlallah, considered to be Hezbollah's spiritual leader, said he would do his best to protect the hostages.

"We continue to respect our previous commitments to defend human rights in order to see these hostages free and safe as soon as possible," he said. "We will do our utmost to see that nothing happens to any of them."

He spoke in Beirut with Ray Barnett, a Canadian representative of Ambassadors of Aid, a group that helps orphans in Third World countries.

In Cadiz, Ky., Anderson's sister, Peggy Say, issued a statement asking his captors to "recognize that Terry Anderson is totally innocent and has never been involved in the continuing Middle East strife except as a captive for 3½ years."

"It is totally unjust to hold him responsible for the military actions of another country," Mrs. Say said.

Lottery suggested for raising revenues

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Texas is not yet ready for a personal income tax, but it should turn to a state lottery for new revenues, the vice chairman of the Select Committee on Tax Equity said Friday.

San Antonio businessman Bob Marbut, who chaired the committee's working group on the income tax and lottery, presented the group's recommendations to the full committee Friday. The committee — charged by the Legislature with recommending a new, fair tax structure for Texas — will vote on the recommendations next month.

The state should not rule out adopting a personal income tax someday because it could raise huge sums of money at relatively low rates, Marbut said. But Texans' strong opposition to the tax means that day has not yet arrived.

"One needs either a consensus or a (fiscal) crisis or both...to adopt something like that," he said, claiming neither of those situations exists today.

Outgoing Sen. Grant Jones of Temple, a member of the committee, said pressing needs in school finance, prisons and mental health lead him to believe the Legislature will face another fiscal crisis next year. "I think the statement that we don't have a fiscal crisis is not justified," Jones said.

Another working group has voted not to recommend a corporate or business profits tax. But Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville and another committee member, said business leaders tell him they would prefer a stable corporate income tax to constantly changing rates for sales, property and corporate franchise taxes.

"Every time the Legislature meets, we do something ugly to 'em," Glasgow said.

When and if lawmakers do turn to an income tax, Marbut said, they should adopt a low, flat tax rate based on individuals' adjusted gross income as determined by federal tax rules. It should include no itemized deductions and should have strict limits on future rate increases.

Because it would take the state two to three years for the comptroller to implement an income tax, he added, legislators would face a "Catch 22" if they wait for a crisis to adopt the tax.

At a flat rate of 3 percent on adjusted gross income as determined by federal tax rules, a personal income tax in Texas could raise $5 billion to $6 billion a year. Texas is one of five states that does not impose a personal income tax.

In strong contrast to an income tax, Texans strongly favors a state lottery, Marbut said. "This is probably the most popular tax in terms of public opinion of the people of Texas that we could have," he said.

Within five years, he said, a lottery could raise $600 million for the state. It would take support of two thirds of the Legislature and voter approval of a constitutional amendment to take effect.

State Sen. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, a strong lottery supporter but not a member of the committee, said he was delighted with the working group's recommendation and pledged to introduce a lottery measure in the 1989 legislative session.

Some lawmakers on the committee, however, argued that they should not include an emotional issue like the lottery in their report to the Legislature. They said it would hurt legislators' acceptance of their other tax recommendations.

"I think you're making a bad mistake," Jones said. "This, in my judgment, is irrelevant to tax policy," said Rep. Dan Morales, D-San Antonio.

Cost of living up .7 percent in September

From Staff Reports

After recording a decrease in August, Midland's cost of living index rose 0.7 percent during September, according to ClayDesta National Bank's monthly cost of living survey.

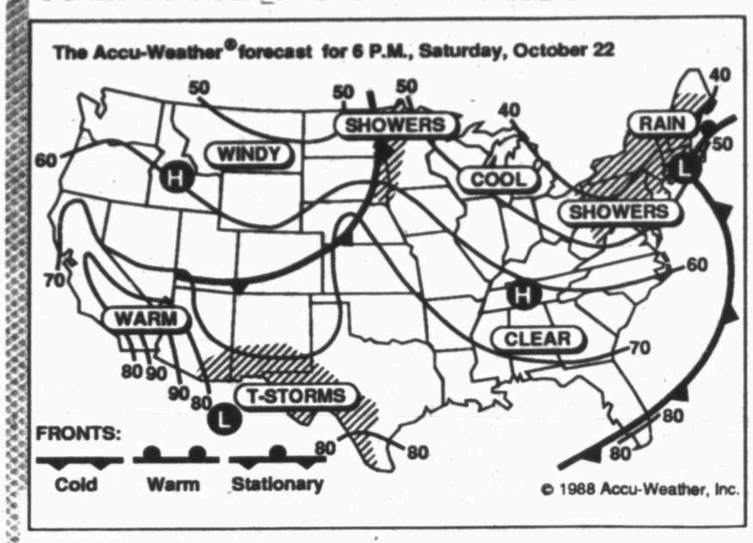

The increase was fueled by increases in health care, clothing, transportation, utilities and food eaten at home, which offset decreases in housing and the cost of eating out.

Clothing costs led the September increase, jumping 3.1 percent. After four months of falling price tags, men's clothing costs rose, as did prices for children's wear. Changes were noted in women's wear prices, but they offset each other, resulting in stable prices for the month.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Rain in today's forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

Today's early-morning fog surely will lift.

But not so sure is the falling of rain.

The National Weather Service at Midland International Airport is extending a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms and thundershowers this afternoon, tonight and Sunday.

The high temperature today is to be in the mid-70s, and winds are to be southerly at 5 to 15 mph. Skies are to be partly cloudy tonight and Sunday.

Tonight's low temperature is to be in the upper 50s, and the peak temperature Sunday is to be in the upper 70s.

Friday's high temperature was 74 degrees, and the overnight low was 55. The record high for an Oct. 21 is 91 degrees in 1979. The record low for an Oct. 22 is 33 degrees in 1945.

STATE

Scattered showers and thunderstorms lingered parts of the Trans-Pecos, Edwards Plateau and Rio Grande Plains Friday.

Meanwhile, isolated showers and thunderstorms were over parts of the Coastal Plains and along the middle and upper coast of Texas, the National Weather Service reported.

A cold front stayed over South Texas and extended from the middle coast west to the Rio Grande Plains, the weather service said.

Mostly sunny skies were common in the other areas of the state.

The forecast for Saturday called for a chance of thunderstorms and showers over most sections of West Texas and South Texas.

NATION

Rain fell over much of the eastern United States on Friday, and snow was reported in West Virginia.

A storm system over the central Appalachian Mountains also brought rain over the lower Great Lakes and the eastern parts of the Ohio Valley. Colder air across the mountain areas changed the rain to wet snow Friday morning.

A snow advisory posted for southeastern West Virginia called for accumulations of between 2 and 4 inches. The storm was to intensify overnight and bring heavy rain to much of New England by Saturday.

The rest of the nation, from the Mississippi Valley to the Pacific coast, had pleasant weather Friday afternoon, with showers and a few thunderstorms were developing over the Rio Grande Valley of Texas.

The forecast for today called for a low pressure system to move slowly northward along the mid-Atlantic coast, bringing widespread rain. Rainy and windy weather also was likely throughout central and northern New England.

A low in the atmosphere was to weaken over northwest mexico and bring scattered rainshowers and a few thunderstorms over extreme parts of the southern Rocky Moutains through the Rio Grande Valley of Texas.

LOTTERY

Glasgow, however, said many lawmakers would prefer a lottery to other taxes if they have to raise revenues.

Weston Ware of the Christian Life Commission, the lobbying arm of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, said the lottery issue would "muddy" the committee's report. "This committee is not the place to fight that battle," said Ware, whose organization is a major opponent of a state lottery.

"It is better for the committee to avoid an issue like the lottery which distracts from the major mission and mandate assigned to them."

Another working group studying business taxes offered tentative recommendations Friday. They include broadening of the current corporate franchise tax base to include service industries and non-corporate businesses and a gradual reduction of businesses' share of the state's total tax burden.

SHOW

For exhibitors, potential customers standing in line present an opportunity to hand out product information and sales materials and visit with consumers.

Getting brochures into visitors' hands was the aim of "live mannequins" Gina and Shelley Downing. The part-time models were sitting, bored in their father's company's booth on Thursday.

They decided to have some fun with the crowd and began taking turns posing like robotic animatrons, passing out brochures for Downing Wellhead Equipment, their father's Oklahoma City-based manufacturing company.

The response was quick and significant. Soon, crowds gathered trying to figure out if the attractive blondes were real or robots.

"I can't guarantee they're reading them (the brochures), but at least they're picking them up," said Gene Downing.

He said his younger daughter, Gina, had done mannequin modeling once before, but one would hardly suspect because of her polished, professional manner.

Downing's company, a gas wellhead equipment manufacturer and re-manufacturer, has a sales and repair facility in Midland and has recently expanded to Houston.

The name of the game, particularly during the first two days of the Oil Show, is making contacts. Business cards are the chief stock in trade and many companies offer door-prize drawings for those willing to drop a card into their fishbowl.

Knives and guns, facsimile machines, beepers, long distance telephone service, cruises and cash, fire extinguishers and caps and jackets were all offered as prizes in exhibitors' drawings.

This year's show, while still dominated by oil and gas equipment exhibits, has a broader variety of companies not limited to the oil patch showing off their products and services.

Show president Clarence Cardwell estimates that about 20 percent of the show's exhibitors are first-timers. "Mergers and reorganizations have meant that some companies have rearranged their exhibits, using fewer booths, which have freed up spaces for something over 100 new exhibitors," he said.

One first-time exhibitor is East Texas oilfield welder Bill Skinner and his wife Thelma. The Skinners are selling distinctive ceramic mugs in the shape of a drillpipe joint.

The venture represents a combination of the Skinners' businesses: his 20-year-old welding service and her ceramic shop.

Bill created the mug mold from the lower threads of a 3½-inch piece of drillpipe, tong scars and all, and links from a used spinner chain. The cup handle is in the shape of a small monkey wrench.

The Oil Show marks the first time the couple has traveled to a trade show to market their mug, which Bill said is largely purchased as a keepsake, although its food-safe paint coating makes it suitable for use as a hot or cold drinking mug.

Over eight years, the Skinners have sold several hundred of the mugs, primarily to rig hands in the East Texas oil field around their home — halfway between Wills Point and Canton, east of Dallas.

They said that other exhibitors have shown the most interest in the mugs during the show, with designs on using them as a sales promotion item or corporate gifts, Skinner said.

While technology has changed the faces of many booths which flash with computer screen demonstrations and televised video productions, the most enduring aspect of the oil show are the giveaways.

Cutbacks have trimmed budgets and scaled back the size and cost of the items given away at show booths, but nevertheless, the Oil Show remains a specialty advertiser's paradise.

Company names are emblazoned on everything from fly swatters and yardsticks to fans, visors and ice scrapers. And, the old standbys remain popular: pencils, pens and matches, as well as balloons, key chains and stickers of all shapes and colors.

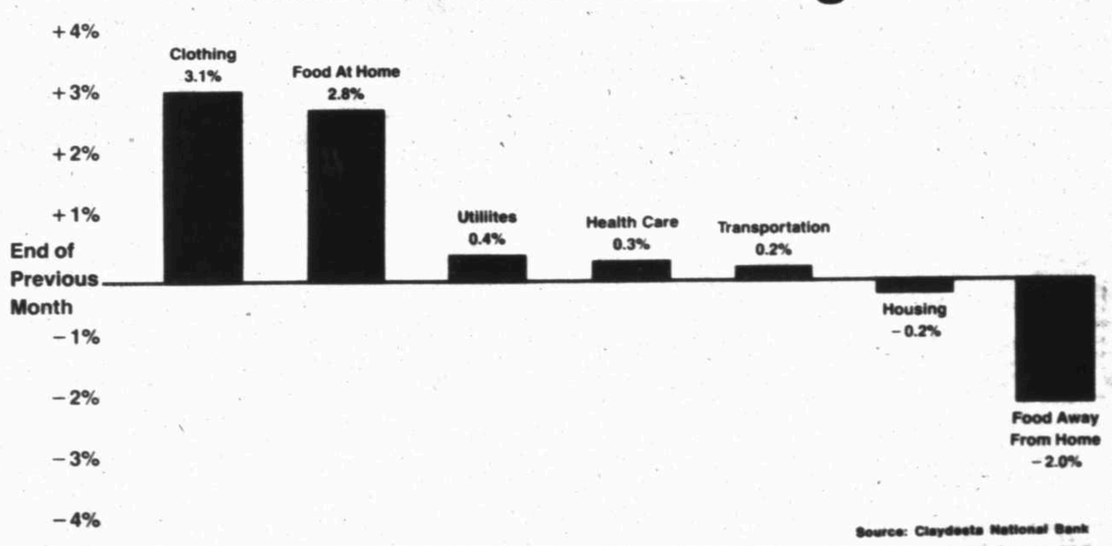

And, perhaps most important, bags to carry all the loot.

COST

Food prices rose 2.8 percent as higher prices for shelf items, produce and meat more than offset lower prices for alcoholic beverages.

A 1.7 percent increase in gas bills offset a 0.2 percent drop in electric rates, resulting in a 0.4 percent increase in utility costs last month. Local water rates remained stable for the 11th month in a row.

Health care prices broke a two-month decline, rising 0.3 percent in September. Higher rates for dental care, which had fallen in August, were assisted in higher prices for a hospital stay and a second month of higher prices for non-prescription medicine, caused the increase.

Higher gasoline costs helped fuel a 0.2 percent gain in transportation costs, reversing an August decline.

The cost of eating out showed the steepest drop, recording a 2 percent decline in September. Higher prices for main dishes made with beef and chicken were offset by lower prices for dishes with fish and pork, as well as lower costs for potato side dishes.

Midland rental costs continued to seesaw, dropping during September, as housing costs fell 0.2 percent.

DEATHS

Leamon Goode

Graveside services for Leamon "Johnny" Goode, 86, of Midland will be held at 11 a.m. Monday in Sunset Memorial Gardens in Odessa with the Rev. L.D. Green, pastor of University Park Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial will be under direction of Ellis Funeral Home of Midland.

Goode died Thursday in a Midland hospital.

Goode was born on May 22, 1902, in Rockwall, grew up in Dallas, and was married to Elmalee Sweeney in Anthony, N.M., on May 22, 1964. Goode worked for the Southern Pacific Railroad as a mechanic until his retirement in 1970.

After retirement, Goode lived El Paso and moved to Midland in 1982 to be near his family.

He was a member of the Sun Valley Baptist Church in El Paso.

Survivors include his wife, Elmalee Sweeney Goode of Midland; five sons, James Franklin Goode of Houston, Charles Goode of Dallas, Bobby Goode of Forney, Billy Goode of Wisconsin, and Tommy Goode of New Mexico; three daughters, Dorothy Socoma, Katherine Tipton and Betty Goode, all of Dallas; two step-daughters, Jean Thomas of Odessa and Nancy Greer of Midland; two brothers, Virgil Goode and Jim Lee Goode, both of Dallas; 34 grandchildren, 37 great-grandchildren, eight step-grandchildren and eight step-great-grandchildren.

Lovie Gilbert

LAMESA — Lovie Gilbert, 89, of Lamesa died Thursday in Lubbock. Services will be held 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the First Baptist Church in Lamesa with the Rev. Darry Dunks, pastor, presiding.

Burial will be at Lamesa Memorial Park under the direction of Branon Funeral Home.

She was born April 11, 1899, in Proctor and came to Dawson County in 1916. She married P.D. Gilbert Aug. 11, 1916, in Lamesa. He preceded her in death April 29, 1965.

She was a member of First Baptist Church.

Survivors include a son, Brad Gilbert of Anton; a daughter, Elwanda Calhoun of Lamesa; and a sister, Ruby Daugherty of Midland.

Jean Randerson

Services for Jean Osenbaugh Randerson of Midland will be held at 3 p.m. Monday in the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity with the Rev. Allen Whitman, rector, officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park under direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Randerson died Friday in a Midland hospital.

Survivors include her husband, L.W. "Randy" Randerson of Midland and a daughter, Debra Norwood of Midland.

Chloe Ward

MARCOS

Giuliani refused to comment on published reports that the indictment was brought after plea bargain negotiations with Marcos broke down Thursday.

Also charged with racketeering were Khashoggi; Bienvenido Tantoco Sr., former Philippine ambassador to the Vatican; his wife, Gliceria, once the president of a Filipino department store; the Los Angeles-based California Overseas Bank and its chairman, Roberto S. Benedicto; and the bank's former president, Rodolfo T. Aranbulo.

Three others were indicted on lesser charges.

Giuliani said a minimum of $250 million in property would be subject to forfeiture upon conviction. "No one is above the law," he said.

For the Marcoses, that includes four New York buildings, their home in Honolulu and some 28 foreign bank accounts, including 20 at the Swiss Credit Bank.

The government also is seeking forfeiture of Khashoggi's condominium at the posh Olympic Towers in Manhattan, as well two bank accounts and other properties.

The Marcoses were ordered to appear in federal court in Manhattan Oct. 31.

HOSTAGES

Friday's statement was the first since Aug. 18, when the group said none of its hostages would be released soon.

Sutherland, 56, of Fort Collins, Colo., was acting dean of agriculture at the American University of Beirut when he was abducted June 9, 1985.

Anderson and Sutherland are among nine Americans believed held by pro-Iranian extremist factions linked to Hezbollah. Others held are three Britons, an Irishman and an Italian.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Charles Redman called for an end to violence between Israel and Lebanon and urged the kidnappers to free their hostages.

Asked about the Islamic Jihad warning, he said: "These are innocent victims. They are being held through no fault of their own...And the appeal to the hostage-holders has to be always, 'Release these innocent people.' "

In a separate development Friday, the weekly Beirut magazine Ash-Shiraa said the United States and Iran were working out a new deal to free the American hostages before the U.S. presidential election on Nov. 8.

Ash-Shiraa said the deal would ensure the victory of Vice President George Bush in exchange for a commitment from the Republican candidate to re-arm Iran.

There was no way to verify the report. The United States has stressed that it has no contacts with Iran.

Parmer: Clements refused chance to review furloughs

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Republican Gov. Bill Clements in 1979 turned down a chance to have to review and approve all state prison furloughs, the Democratic leader of the Texas Senate said Friday.

Parmer

Fort Worth Sen. Hugh Parmer also claimed that Texans would be safer under Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis' much-maligned furlough program than they are under the current Texas system. He called Clements and the GOP hypocrites for using the furlough program as a campaign attack on Democratic presidential nominee Dukakis.

Clements said he had no recollection of the 1979 incident. He laughed at the "flaming liberal" senator's charge of hypocrisy.

Republican presidential candidate George Bush has criticized Dukakis for not stopping a program that allowed a 1974 murderer named Willie Horton to walk away from a weekend prison pass in 1986. Nearly a year later, Horton broke into a Maryland couple's home, torturing the man and repeatedly raping his wife.

At a Capitol news conference Friday, Parmer, chairman of the Senate Democratic Caucus, released the transcript of a 1979 Senate committee hearing on a bill that expanded the Texas furlough program. The transcript indicates that the House had given the governor's office authority to review and approve all furloughs.

"When we checked with Clements' office, they said, 'You know, we're about four months behind on just parole applications, and we really don't — we appreciate the honor — but we really don't need that,'" the transcript quotes Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena and sponsor of the bill, as saying.

"I don't have any recollection of this," Clements told reporters who showed him the transcript. "I don't think this says anything about what I said on a personal level."

STATE

The 1979 law he eventually signed allowed the Texas Department of Corrections to grant furloughs "for any other reason that the department determines is appropriate." Before that, they were only issued for medical or emergency reasons.

In 1987, Clements signed a law that expanded the furloughs from five to seven days.

The governor has denied knowing until recently that Texas has furloughed about 200 inmates a month since 1977. He blamed TDC "bureaucrats" for expanding the program beyond its original intent of emergency weekend passes only.

Even though Clements gave up the option to oversee the furlough program, Parmer said he "cannot escape the responsibility" for passes issued to 517 murders during his term in office.

...Gov. Clements appoints that board (Board of Corrections). The line of responsibility...runs directly to the...governor..."
— Sen. Hugh Parmer

"It's the policy of the Board of Corrections that determines who gets furloughed, and Gov. Clements appoints that board," Parmer said. "The line of responsibility...runs directly to the desk of the governor, whatever he says."

Registration of voters higher in GOP counties

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Under Republican Secretary of State Jack Rains' leadership, voter registration in counties that voted Republican in the 1986 governor's race grew at a rate almost 25 percent faster than in counties that voted Democratic.

According to figures Rains released Friday, voter registration in Texas hit a record 8.24 million in anticipation of the November elections, up 13.2 percent from the 7.29 million in the 1986 general election. Rains claimed that his "Voter '88" program, which encouraged businesses to register their customers and employees, was "successful in nearly every level of society."

Registration in the 195 counties that voted for Republican Gov. Bill Clements in 1986 increased by 14.4 percent over the two-year period, compared with an 11.6-percent increase in the 59 counties that voted for Democrat Mark White. Registration in the Republican leaning counties rose 24 percent faster than in the Democratic leaning counties.

Clements appointed Rains to office in January 1987.

"It's seemed to me that Jack Rains' program was skewed toward Republican-type voters anyhow," said Ed Martin, executive director of the Texas Democratic Party. "But you have to look at a precinct-by-precinct breakdown to get the real picture."

Martin said the Democrats came close to but did not reach "unrealistically high goals" for registering new black and Hispanic voters.

Rains spokesman Jim Warren called the difference between the Democratic and Republican counties "a meaningless number. "The majority of our (registration) cards were distributed through places like 7-Eleven, other convenience outlets, Wall-Marts," he said.

Overall, the 195 counties that backed Clements registered 584,000 new voters. The 59 counties that voted for White picked up an additional 375,000.

In the strongly Republican Collin and Denton counties north of Dallas, for example, registration jumped by 31,000 voters, or 29.2 percent. In two heavily Democratic counties of about the same size, Jefferson and Galveston, registration increased by about 24,000 voters, or 10.2 percent.

Traditionally Republican Midland County, however, showed an increase of 11.6 percent, while heavily Democratic Bexar and Webb counties increased their voter roles by 18.5 and 14.9 percent respectively.

Rains called a press conference Friday to announce that Voter '88 had reached its goal of registering 1 million new voters since the 1986 election. More than 1.5 million voters signed up over that period, but the August purge of almost 600,000 men and women who had changed addresses brought the net gain to about 900,000.

"I'm extremely pleased about the 3,300 firms and organizations involved in Voter '88," Rains said. "We've formed a public-private partnership that will go on a long time past this election."

Dietician says low-fat diet not good for babies

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — The so-called "heart-healthy" low-fat, low-cholesterol diet may not be best for young children and parents should refrain from cutting down on fats until their child is age 2, according to a nutrition specialist at Texas A&M University.

"There is some disagreement among medical authorities as to the exact age when children should start eating a low-saturated fat diet," Mary Kinney Sweeten, a registered dietitian with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said Friday. "But they all agree that it shouldn't be before the age of 2."

Studies of babies under age 2 whose parents put them on low-fat diets by giving them skim milk have been found to suffer from slow growth and failure to thrive, she said.

"Our county extension home economists are getting many questions from parents who are concerned about fat in their children's diets," she said. "We try to reassure them that a balanced diet is still most appropriate for all ages."

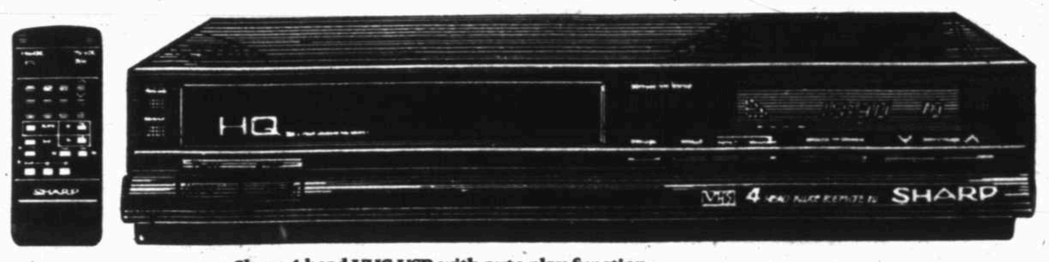

Since children need fat for normal growth and development, diets that are extremely low in fat are not desirable, Ms. Sweeten said.

"Severely restricting the amount of fat or cholesterol children eat would mean less meat, milk and cheese in their meals, which reduces excellent sources of calcium and iron that children need," she said.

Bentsen reiterates Dukakis not soft on crime, not anti-defense

ABILENE (AP) — Lloyd Bentsen pulled on his blue jeans and cowboy boots and rode on a hay wagon Friday as he tried to convince Texans that Michael Dukakis is not soft on crime and anti-defense.

"The Republicans have preferred diatribe to dialogue...they mass market innuendo and camouflage the fact" about Dukakis, he said.

The Texas senator said Democrats would spend just as much on defense as the Republicans — but they would crack down on the kickbacks to contractors, and focus more on convention weapons than nuclear missiles.

"I wouldn't be running on a ticket with a candidate who would weaken America's defense," the Democratic vice presidential nominee said at a barbecue for 600 people.

The Republican ads attacking Dukakis on crime by highlighting the Massachusetts prison furlough program were "slander," he said, and ignored the fact that Dukakis toughened a program he inherited from the previous Republican governor.

"As it turns out, the Massachusetts furlough is tougher than that in Texas," he said.

The Republican assertion that Dukakis wants to take away everyone's guns was "crazy," he said. "The truth is that Mike Dukakis supports the right of Americans to own guns to protect themselves, their homes, their business, he supports the right of Americans to own guns for hunting," he said.

Friday evening in Houston, he told a local meeting of the NAACP that for Republican vice presidential nominee Dan Quayle, "civil rights does not rank high on his list of priorities." He cited Quayle's votes against South Africa sanctions, against the 1988 civil rights restoration act, support for the Supreme Court nomination of Robert Bork, and opposition to affirmative action.

"And let's also remember that George Bush can run from the facts, but he can't hide from the truth," Bentsen said. "After all, he was vice president of the United States while this administration was was waging its onslaught and trying to turn back the tide of progress on civil rights,"

"I am not aware of any occasion when when the vice president questioned or disagreed with the administration policies on civil rights," he said.

"I can't recall a time when he stood up for what is right and just in America," he said.

"They see no problems and offer no answers. In George Bush's America, if you haven't made it, forget it," he said.

At the barbecue in Abeline, Bentsen's speech was made from behind a lectern with the initials "LB" burned into the front. A pair of covered wagons were in the background and a band called "Ray Peck and the Half Breeds" provided entertainment, including a song dedicated to the Democratic ticket.

Usually seen in his Washington suits, Bentsen wore black cowboy boots, blue jeans and a plaid shirt and string tie for the event.

Spider used to develop blood test that could detect several disorders

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The brown recluse spider whose poisonous bite in recent months has felled Houston Oilers linebacker Walter Johnson and evangelist Billy Graham may have the Midas touch for two Air Force researchers in San Antonio.

The researchers at Wilford Hall Air Force Medical Center filed a U.S. patent application Thursday on a blood test made from the spider's poison. They hope the test can be used to detect problems ranging from a tendency toward miscarriage in a pregnant woman to the first signs of fatal disease in an AIDS-virus carrier.

"We are just waiting to see how the royalty rights come out with the Air Force," said civilian medical technologist David L. McGlasson, 41.

He helped develop the test with Air Force Maj. James L. Babcock, 37, who made two trips to his hometown in Arkansas over the summer to pick up 400 brown recluse spiders.

"I go out on a hot summer night, collect the spiders in individual containers and then bring them back down here," explained Babcock, a physician with a specialty in pathology who also holds a doctorate in chemistry.

However, the pair's efforts will not help Graham, who was bitten on the toe and had to be hospitalized briefly in September.

Nor will the work assist Johnson, who had to take it easy during football workouts in August because of a brown recluse bite earlier in the summer at his home in Louisiana.

However, McGlasson and Babcock said the brown recluse venom test can save lives and thousands of dollars for hospitals.

When the venom is mixed with ordinary blood it exactly mimics the way blood looks in people with certain pre-stroke conditions, the tendency toward miscarriages and other serious medical problems.

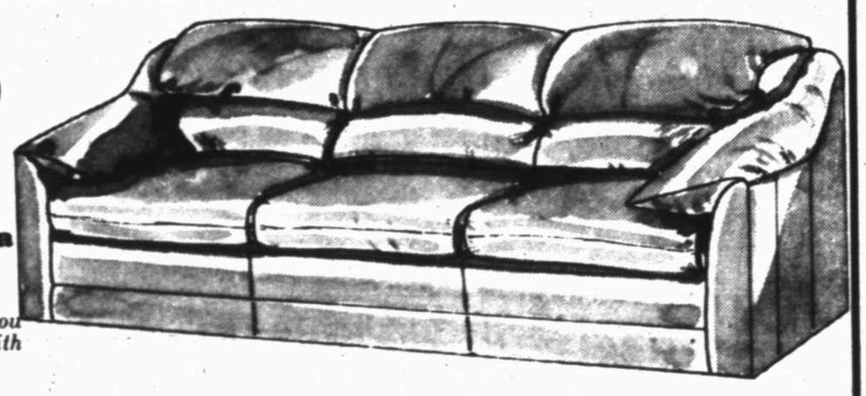

Merely by closely comparing the patient's blood with venom-infected plasma, the researchers explained, it can be quickly determined if the patient has certain type of blood abnormality, known as a lupus inhibitor, which makes them susceptible to a variety of disorders.

"I have gotten fooled before," McGlasson said. "I had a patient that I wound up doing $500 worth of laboratory tests on because I never had a good control to screen for this."

A control in blood work is a solution that exactly resembles a particular condition.

Tax bill would help farmers, writers, low-income families

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators from the House and Senate reached tentative agreement Friday night on a catchall tax bill with a $4 billion price tag over three years and a "bill of rights" for taxpayers.

The House and Senate, inching toward adjournment for the year, planned to consider the package later in the evening.

The legislation, more than two years in the making, includes tax relief for farmers, free-lance writers, owners of mutual funds, recipients of employer-financed tuition, and a variety of other interests. It also includes selected tax increases to pay for those benefits.

Most of the pressure for passage of the bill has come from farmers. They would benefit two ways under the bill, winning exemption from paying the federal tax on diesel fuel and authority to deduct some expenses of producing livestock even before the animals begin generating income.

Pressure also had come from accountants and other tax professionals, who are seeking corrections for hundreds of errors and ambiguities in the big tax overhaul enacted in 1986. The original purpose of the bill was to fix those errors.

A major non-tax provision seizes 540 acres of land adjacent to the Manassas Battlefield in northern Virginia to block construction of a shopping mall on the site. The Reagan administration opposes this provision, although there has been no indication whether it would prompt a veto.

Negotiators, meeting behind closed doors, dropped another unrelated provision, which would have imposed economic sanctions against Iraq to protest that nation's use of poison gas against some of its Kurdish citizens.

Other major provisions would:

— Require the Internal Revenue Service to fully inform taxpayers of their rights before launching an audit or collection action. This "bill of rights' also would require 30-day notice, up from 10 days, before the IRS seizes property for taxes. It would prohibit the agency from promoting employees on the basis of how much money they collect.

— Extend expiring tax benefits to help lower-income families buy their first home; reward businesses for increased spending for research and experimentation, and boost incentives for investment in low-income rental housing.

— Renew an expired provision that allows workers to exclude from income tuition payments made by their employers; most graduate study would not qualify.

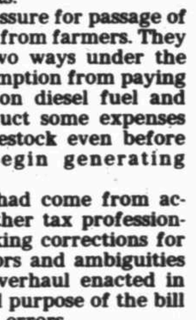

— Extend an exclusion for the value of employer-financed legal-service benefits.

— Prohibit a business deduction for the basic monthly cost of a home telephone.

— Allow free-lance writers, artists and photographers to deduct certain expenses before a project starts producing income.

— Permit owners of mutual funds to deduct certain operating expenses of the fund without having to meet a requirement that only miscellaneous expenses exceeding 2 percent of income be deducted.

O'Connor expects 'total recovery' after breast cancer surgery

O'Connor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor underwent surgery Friday for breast cancer and is expected to make a "total recovery" and be back on the bench by the end of the month, a court spokeswoman said.

Spokeswoman Toni House said the cancer was discovered "in a very early form."

The operation was performed at Georgetown University Hospital.

O'Connor, 58, was appointed to the court by President Reagan in 1981 as the first and only woman Supreme Court justice in the nation's history.

She issued a brief statement that said, "The prognosis is for total recovery. I do not anticipate missing any oral arguments."

The court is in a two-week recess, due to return to the bench on Oct. 31.

"I underwent surgery for breast cancer. It was found to exist in a very early form and stage," O'Connor's statement said.

The statement did not say whether the surgery was for removal of a lump or the entire breast. There were no other details.

A cancer expert, Dr. Robert S. Siegel, said her intention to return to work in just 10 days would mean "a remarkably fast recovery" and would be good news for her prognosis.

Siegel, who is assistant professor of medicine and director of a cancer treatment unit at George Washington University Hospital, said that would be "a pretty quick return to work."

Siegel was not involved in Mrs. O'Connor's case. But he said the speed with which she plans to return to work may indicate the cancer was caught at a very early time and that there is no indication it has spread to other organs in the body.

Siegel said lumpectomy patients usually are released from the hospital in three to four days, but usually return in two weeks to start radiation therapy. Patients who have a breast removed do not require the radiation therapy and usually return to work within two to three weeks, he said.

O'Connor's health, as far as is publicly known, has been good. She underwent an appendectomy in March and was soon back at work.

Supreme Court justices generally have not disclosed many details of their health.

In 1986, The Associated Press inquired about a tremor — a nodding motion of O'Connor's head — that has been apparent to court watchers for years. At times, the justice will rest her chin on her hands during the court's public oral argument sessions.

Social Security recipients to get 4 percent increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's 38.4 million Social Security recipients can count on a 4 percent increase in their benefits starting next January that will boost the average retired worker's pension by $21 a month, the government announced Friday.

The increase, the second largest in 6½ years, will mean the typical benefit payment will go from $516 to $537 per month.

Offsetting the good news on benefit increases was a $7.10 hike in Medicare premiums, which will rise to $31.90 a month starting in January. They are deducted directly from the monthly benefits.

The exact size of the increase became official Friday when the Labor Department announced the latest change in the Consumer Price Index.

Since 1975, Social Security benefits have risen automatically each year with the CPI with the exception of six months in 1983 that were skipped to help bail the system out of a crisis.

The 4 percent increase, which will show up in the Jan. 3 benefit checks, followed a 4.2 percent increase which took effect last January. The two increases were the largest since a 7.4 percent rise in July 1982, back when high inflation rates translated into bigger cost-of-living hikes.

Social Security officials said the maximum monthly benefit for a worker retiring in 1988 at age 65 will rise $61, from $838 to $899.

The 4.5 million recipients of Supplemental Security Income, a welfare program for the aged, blind or disabled, also will get a 4 percent increase in their benefit payments.

The maximum federal SSI payment will rise by $14, from $354 to $368, for an individual, and by $21, from $532 to $553, for a poor couple.

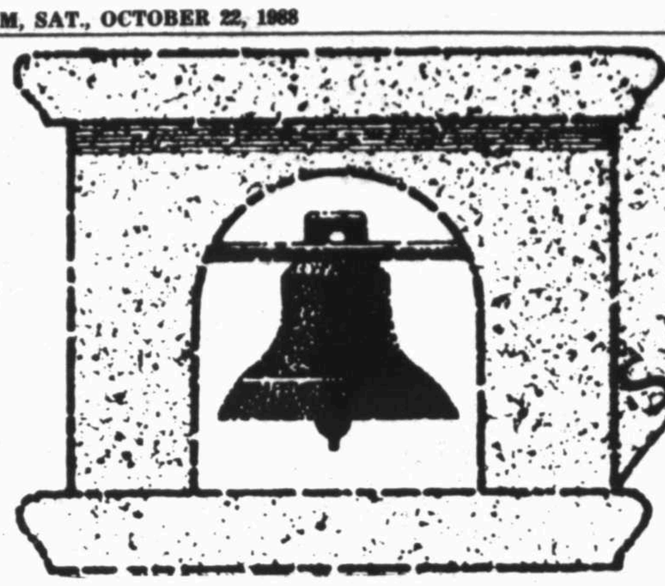

The change in Social Security benefits is calculated by taking increases in the CPI for urban wage earners for the July-September period, compared with the same period in the previous year.

The Social Security Administration also announced that the maximum amount of wages subject to the payroll tax will climb from the current $45,000 to $48,000 in 1989. The wage base, the amount subject to the tax, has gone up every year since 1971.

The latest change means the maximum annual Social Security tax paid by high income workers will rise by $225.30 to $3,604.80. Employers pay the same amount each worker pays.

The payroll tax rate will remain unchanged at 7.51 percent during 1989. But it will rise to 7.65 percent on Jan. 1, 1990, the final increase planned at this time. Those changes were adopted by Congress in 1983 as part of a bipartisan plan to bail the system out of recurrent financing problems.

Tax rates for the self-employed remain unchanged at 13.02 percent for 1989, but the amount subject to tax will rise to $48,000.

Rescuers using saws, poles to hack escape routes for whales

BARROW, Alaska (AP) — Frustrated rescuers using chainsaws and poles began hacking an escape route Friday for three whales trapped by foot-thick Artic ice, in hopes the whales could be coaxed to open water and safety.

More than a dozen volunteers decided Friday not to wait for a helicopter carrying a 5-ton concrete "hammer" and began carving long narrow holes in the ice themselves.

"We're just getting tired of waiting for things to show up," said North Slope Borough biologist Geoff Carroll. "We're getting away from the heavy equipment approach."

Mark Fraker, a whale biologist with Standard Alaska Production Co., said rescuers finally are making some progress. "Up until now, we've just been keeping them alive by keeping their breathing holes open."

A Skycrane heavy-lift helicopter loaned by the Alaska Army National Guard arrived Friday from Prudhoe Bay with a steel-tipped concrete cylinder, a remnant from construction of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline.

At 8 p.m. EDT the helicopter began dropping the hammer, or "bullet," through the ice, creating a series of breathing holes that rescuers hope the whales will follow to open water some four miles away.

"The bullet has penetrated the ice," said Spec. 4 Wade Palmer. "It is working now. It is still too early to tell what's happening with the whales.

The young California gray whales were imprisoned in shallow water about 100 yards from shore by thickening, shifting ice about two weeks ago. They have been breathing through small holes in the ice.

Easterly wind opened leads, or open water, through the ice to within four miles of the whales Friday, giving an added urgency to the effort to free the animals before a shift in the wind could pinch off the escape routes.

Biologists already were using tarps and aerators to get the trapped animals away from their breathing holes and condition them to the notion of moving from one hole in the ice to another.

Hope faded Friday that a "hover-barge" could be used to break ice to rescue the giant mammals.

Originally, the National Guard planned to use another Skycrane to tow a 185-ton icebreaking barge, floating on a cushion of air generated by huge on-board fans, from Prudhoe Bay to Barrow, a distance of 230 miles. But that bogged down in coastal mud, shallow water, thin ice and sandbars.

Two days of pulling had netted six miles. Helicopter crews set out Friday to try one last time to pull the barge.

The environmental group Greenpeace on Friday said the Soviet Union has offered to break a path to the stranded whales with an ice-breaking ship next week if current rescue efforts don't succeed. The ship is 300 miles north of Point Barrow.

Biologists had been getting impatient with the barge effort and pushed for the alternate plan, using the giant concrete punch.

A second concrete cylinder was to be hauled to Barrow later if there was no further progress with the barge.

With luck, the animals will follow a series of punched-out holes to open water, if broken ice can be removed from the new holes.

"The theory is to cut other holes very close, but not touching," said Ted Meyers, National Marine Fisheries Service habitat conservation chief for Alaska. "You cut a new hole close enough so the whales can see it, sense it and go for it. Once they have done that, and are using the new hole, then you start another process of discouraging use of the older hole.

"There are different ways. One would be to cover the hole, and then even the sounds of chainsaws cutting new holes could get the animals to associate that with new holes. Once you've got them moving, and this has not been decided in this case, then you could move the holes farther apart."

Carroll said the whales at least once have been coaxed to a new hole.

Skycrane pilot Chief Warrant Officer Gary Quarles experimented with one of the concrete cylinders earlier this week. He said the helicopter would suspend the cylinder about five feet above the ice and quickly descend to drop it through.

"It has to be very controlled, or it would be very dangerous," he said.

"What we're going to attempt to do initially is make fairly large holes close together in the hope the whales will go from hole to hole," he said.

House bill would ban sale of lawn darts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed legislation on Friday ordering the ban of the sale of lawn darts, a game that is blamed for the deaths of three children and injuries to thousands of others.

On a 304-51 vote, the lawmakers approved a bill ordering the Consumer Product Safety Commission to prohibit sale of the darts within 60 days unless it determines that the game cannot cause puncture wounds.

The darts currently must carry warning labels stating that the game is not for children. They also can be sold only in sporting goods departments, and not in toy stores or toy departments.

Last year, however, the CPSC said that none of the 21 models of lawn darts complied with those regulations.

Three children have died from lawn dart injuries in the last eight years and several have been blinded. An estimated 6,100 people have been treated for injuries from the game, of which 81 percent were children under age 15.

The commission already is considering banning the darts.

The measure still must be considered by the Senate.

Dissident Sakharov receives permission to visit U.S

Sakharov

MOSCOW (AP) — Andrei D. Sakharov, who spent eight years in exile in his own country for human rights campaigning, said Friday the Kremlin has approved his first foreign trip — a journey to the United States next month.

The lifting of the travel ban against the 67-year-old father of the Soviet dissident movement marked another reversal in Kremlin policy by President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, who has liberalized Soviet society on many fronts.

It also could set an uncomfortable precedent. Hundreds of citizens have been denied permission to travel abroad on grounds they know state secrets.

Sakharov, a physicist, had been denied permission to travel on grounds he had access to sensitive information while working on the Soviet hydrogen bomb in the 1950s.

He has spoken out repeatedly for free emigration and protested the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan in 1979. For his human rights activities, he was awarded the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize.

He was exiled to the closed city of Gorky in 1980 and released under Gorbachev's administration in December 1986.

Sakharov said authorities have agreed "in principle" to let him travel to the United States, but have not yet issued travel documents.

"This question was raised by the authorities of the foundation and presented to decision-makers, and now it has received a positive response," he said.

"I consider that the positive response making my trip possible stems from the very big changes in our country during the last few years," Sakharov told a news conference.

He said he plans to attend a meeting in Washington of a philanthropic group called the International Foundation for the Survival and Development of Humanity.

The U.S. State Department welcomed the Soviet decision but urged Moscow to give the same permission to all Soviets wishing to travel abroad.

"Soviet use of alleged knowledge of state secrets to deny many other Soviet citizens the right to travel abroad is deplorable and inconsistent with Soviet commitments under the Helsinki Accords," said spokesman Charles Redman.

The news conference was the second time the government furnished a stage for Sakharov to speak to reporters.

He thanked Yevgeny Velikhov, a top Soviet scientist and fellow member of the Moscow-based philanthropic foundation, who sat beside him.

Velikhov, a vice president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, also expressed confidence Sakharov would receive his foreign travel documents.

The clearest indication Sakharov would be given the documents was an Oct. 5 decree by the Council of Ministers.

Sakharov has been invited to attend the foundation's board meeting in Washington Nov. 15-16 and meetings in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Boston, New York and possibly Chicago, said group member Edward B. Hodgman.

The foundation was set up in January to help solve environmental, human rights, disarmament and economic development problems.

Editor of Farmer's Almanac crusading to get rid of penny

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — The Farmers' Almanac expects to see a little less snow and a lot less drought next year, but what the 172-year-old digest of Americana really wants to see less of is pennies.

The penny, inspiration for homely expressions that have been a staple of almanacs since Benjamin Franklin set up shop — "A penny saved is a penny earned" is one — has outlived its usefulness, concludes the 1989 edition of the Farmer's Almanac.

"Only tradition explains our stubborn attachment to the penny. But sometimes traditions get ridiculous," the almanac says, living down its reputation as a defender of long-held values.

Instead, editor Ray Geiger has proposed a new coin worth 12½ cents, or one "bit."

"I can't think of anything you can buy with a penny. The penny candy is all a nickel," said Geiger, who with varying degrees of success has led the publication's previous campaigns to restore city names to postmarks, eliminate the nine-digit ZIP code and print currency in colors other than green.

"You see a penny on the street and you no longer bother to pick it up," and young children often find it's no longer worth their time and effort to empty jars of pennies and package them in 50-cent rolls, Geiger said in a recent interview.

Also in the newly released edition is a prediction for another "cold and mean" winter, but not as rough as the last one, with a little less snow in the Midwest and the Rockies.

The summer of 1989 should be more pleasant, with drier than average weather but no repeat of this year's drought, according to Geiger. "We didn't predict the drought, but neither did anybody else," he said.

But what really gets Geiger heated up is the persistence of the penny, whose purchasing power has diminished to the point where its only uses are making change and collecting sales taxes, according to the almanac.

The almanac's plan for the bit — a name derived from "two bits," the colloquial expression for a quarter — takes into account the change in monetary values.

"This perceives the dollar as being cut into eight equal pieces, half a dollar is four bits, 75 cents is six bits," the almanac said. It points out that while U.S. money is based on the decimal system, stock markets routinely list prices in increments of one-eighth of a dollar.

The U.S. Mint churns out billions of pennies each year, and the almanac suggests that as many as 200 billion of the coins may be squirreled away in vaults, baby banks, cookie jars and shoe boxes.

The almanac says the introduction of the bit would bridge the gap between the dime and the quarter, for greater flexibility in coin combinations that would produce 22½ cents, 27½ cents and so forth, all the way up to 97½ cents.

To promote the idea, the almanac suggests a gold-toned coin that would be about as thick as a dime, midway in size between the nickel and the quarter.

The Treasury Department declined to embrace the recommendation, saying there has been no groundswell of support for a change.

"We've periodically examined the penny, and right now the department has no plans to eliminate it. It's still an integral part of the coinage system," said spokeswoman Felice Pelosi.

Undaunted, Geiger said he was prepared to travel to Washington to solicit support for the change.

"Some people will think this is a nutty idea, but they thought it was a nutty idea to bring back the old postmark, and that was a singlehanded victory for the Farmers' Almanac," he said.

Geiger's almanac, which is sold to banks, insurance companies and other businesses for distribution to customers as a promotion, claims a circulation of more than 5 million.

'Cool suit' gives boy chance to play outside

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Some kids would see it as a chance to play astronaut. Brandon Westmoreland sees it as an end to a lifetime of suffering.

"I love it. It cools me off," the 6-year-old said minutes after trying on his new "cool suit."

Developed with NASA technology, the $2,600 suit will do something Brandon's body has never been able to do: keep him cool.

Doctors have yet to pinpoint the cause of Brandon's problem, a condition that affects perhaps one in 100,000 people, most of them male.

Brandon's usual temperature has been about 100 degrees. Being outside for a few minutes on a hot summer day could drive his temperature to 105.

A cold or flu could send it spiking to 108.

To ease the problem, Brandon's mother, Jennie, would spray him with cold water, dunk him into cold baths and dress him in wet T-shirts.

Dr. Ronald Hansen, pediatric dermatologist, says Brandon's condition resembles a disorder of people born without sweat glands — the body's temperature regulators — called hypohidrotic ectodermal dysplasia.

But Brandon was spared other symptoms of the disorder: sparse hair, lack of eyebrows and lashes, balloon lips and pointed teeth.

He simply has been too hot all his life.

"When he was a baby, in the summer, I would pick him up out of his car seat and he would be hot to the touch, but he would not be sweaty, and he would throw up," his mother recalls.

"When he was a year old, he would play outside for an hour or so and come in and have a temperature of 105. The summer he was 2, he came in one day and started screaming up and down the hall."

Shortly after that episode, Brandon started seeing Hansen at the University of Arizona.

Cold water and restricted activity have been the boy's only therapy.

Playgrounds and physical education classes have been strictly off limits. His only sport has been swimming.

Brandon seems to have more trouble as he gets older — this past summer proved the most difficult for him, Hansen says.

The battery-operated cooling suit circulates a special coolant through ice packs imbedded in a helmet and vest made of a synthetic fabric called Flexitherm.

The garments fit the head and torso, where most body heat is given off.

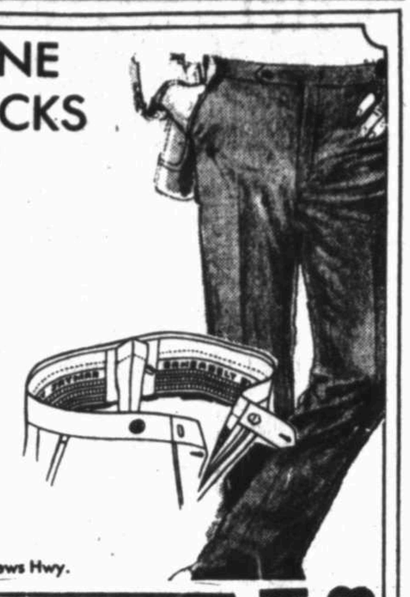

The coolant is automatically recirculated into a portable refrigeration unit attached to the suit with plastic hoses.

The unit sits on a two-wheeled carrier that Brandon can pull along with him wherever he goes.

The cooling suit looks funny, Hansen concedes. "But on the other hand, if it gets him out on the playground with the other kids, we can only support it."

The suit was paid for by the producers of the ABC news program, "Incredible Sunday," in exchange for exclusive national television rights to Brandon's story.

Po Folks, the national restaurant chain, has set up a fund to provide suits to other children.

Girl feared missing from sunken ship

PIRAEUS, Greece (AP) — A Greek cruise ship carrying 475 British students and teachers collided with a freighter and sank near shore Friday, officials reported. They said two Greek seamen were killed and a 14-year-old girl was feared missing.

Small boats picked up the high school students who jumped or fell into the water from the Jupiter, a 6,300-ton cruise ship, as it sank less than a mile from Piraeus harbor, said an official with the Merchant Marine Ministry.

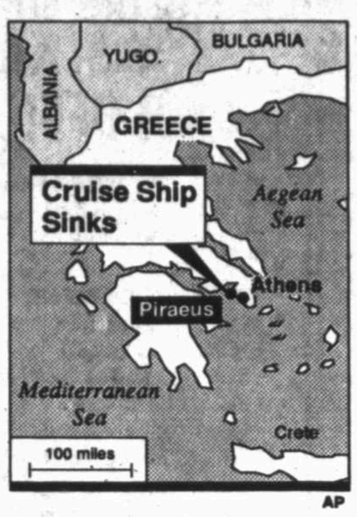

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said 64 people, including 30 students, were hospitalized with slight injuries or for shock.

A British Embassy official said that after a passenger count, a 14-year-old girl was the only person missing.

He said officials were checking to see if "she just got missed in the count....Some of the children are sleeping, some running around in a state of post-shock excitement." He declined to give the girl's name.

Scores of teen-agers wrapped in blankets were crowded into the coast guard headquarters at dockside in this port city. They later were transferred to another cruise ship for the night.

A spokesman for the Jupiter's owner, Epirotiki Lines, said the Jupiter collided with the Adige, a container ship owned by the Sicula Oceanica Spa of Palermo, Sicily.

AP

"The Jupiter was coming out of harbor and had right of way but the Adige came in at considerable speed and hit it amidships on the lefthand side," said the spokesman, Spyros Mavrikis.

A statement issued by Italian merchant marine officials said a Greek pilot was aboard the Adige at the time of the collision. It said there were no victims on the Italian vessel.

Merchant Marine Minister Evangelos Yannopoulos issued a statement saying the skipper of the Italian freighter, Capt. Flavio Caminale, was being held on manslaughter charges.

The ministry identified the dead seaman as Vassilis Psomas and Athanasios Golemotis, both members of the Jupiter's 120-member crew.

The Jupiter was headed for the Greek islands, Egypt, Israel and Turkey on an 8-day voyage organized by Schools Abroad that is based at Havering in the county of Essex, southern England.

A total of 415 students, aged 12-16 from 30 different schools, were on the cruise accompanied by 60 adults.

The accident occurred as the passengers gathered for a meal in the dining room.

"The lights went out and the ship went off to one side," said Stephanie Stavrou, 16, from Romford, England. "The girls were screaming and crying and we couldn't see anything properly. It was very frightening."

Fishing boats, tugs and coast guard launches raced to pluck the youngsters from the oily water, filled with debris from the ship.

Dozens of panicked passengers leaped overboard as the ship started to sink.

"I jumped into the sea and swam for a rescue boat, but it went away and I had to make for another," said a weeping, oil-spattered 14-year-old who refused to give her name.

"The lights went out and the ship went off to one side. The girls were screaming and crying and we couldn't see anything..."
— Stephanie Stavrou

A crewmember from the Jupiter said others were swept overboard by swells when the ship sank.

"They went down and popped up again after swallowing the dirty water....that's why so many people are in shock," said the crewman, Pantelis Bougoyannis.

The collision was the third fatal maritime incident near Piraeus in the past four months.

On July 11, Arab terrorists mounted a gun-and-grenade attack aboard a Greek cruise ship, the City of Poros, as it returned from a one-day island-hopping cruise. Nine people were killed and more than 80 wounded.

On Sept. 6, an explosion aboard a Greek oil tanker undergoing repairs at a shipyard near Piraeus killed four workers and injured another 16. The blast was caused by gas fumes igniting in a fuel tank, possibly by a spark from a welder's torch.

Former Nazi may be extradited to U.S.S.R.

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A former U.S. resident convicted by a Soviet court of World War II atrocities could be extradited to the Soviet Union if it waives the death penalty, a West German official said Friday.

A Soviet Embassy spokesman told a West German television network that the Kremlin may request the extradition of Boleslav Maikovskis from West Germany.

The question of whether to extradite Maikovskis, 84, comes as Chancellor Helmut Kohl prepares to travel to Moscow next week for talks with President Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

The Soviet Union in 1965 sentenced Maikovskis to death in absentia for his role in burning down a village and killing civilians as a pro-Nazi police commander in his native country of Latvia.

West Germany has no death penalty, and would probably not agree to extradite Maikovskis to a country where the death sentence awaits him, a justice official said Friday.

"But an extradition could theoretically be possible if, for example, the Soviet Union agreed to withhold the death penalty in this case," said Dortmund Prosecutor Klaus Schacht.

Maikovskis is being held in a West German prison while authorities investigate the shooting deaths of at least 130 men, women and children in the Latvian village of Audrine.

Schacht works out of Dortmund's war crimes prosecution office, which is responsible for the Muenster district where Maikovskis was taken into custody Wednesday.

The Mainz-based ZDF television network broadcast an interview Thursday in which a Soviet Embassy spokesman said the Kremlin may request Maikovski's extradition.

"The Soviet Union is reserving the right to officially request Maikovskis' extradition," Soviet Embassy spokesman Viktor Gutyev said.

Wisconsin couple find bear, her four cubs in their tree

APPLETON, Wis. (AP) — Howard Palmbach had two questions after finding a 300-pound black bear and her four cubs in his walnut tree.

"Where did they come from and how did they get here?" asked Palmbach, 68.

Palmbach and his wife, Phyllis, had just finished breakfast Wednesday when their dog barked and they discovered the bears napping in the tree.

"All five were just dozing there in the tree — 15 feet from the house," Mrs. Palmbach said.

Conservation wardens spent the morning trying to get the animals out of the tree. They finally used tranquilizer darts and a long pole to capture the mother bear and three of the cubs. The other got away but was caught later in a cornfield.

Authorities blocked off part of U.S. 10 for several hours as they captured the bears.

The captured bears were taken to Green Bay to be weighed before being released in Marinette County in northeastern Wisconsin.

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Yam Commission is considering changing its name after learning the state produces no yams.

North Carolina is the nation's top producer of sweet potatoes, but the yam is grown only in tropical climates, primarily in Africa, said Billy Yeargin, the commission's executive director.

"That bothers us a great deal," said Yeargin, who is worried about consumer confusion.

Sweet potatoes are smaller than yams, which grow up to 100 pounds. When cooked, the texture and taste of sweet potatoes and yams are similar but yams are off-white while sweet potatoes are orange.

Despite the "loss" of the yam, Yeargin predicted a growing demand for sweet potatoes as consumers become more health-conscious and turn to more nutritious foods.

"I think the sweet potato has a good future," he said.

WINTER SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — The nation's biggest lottery winner has left her job and her trailer home behind, but she hasn't abandoned all her old habits.

Sheelah Ryan, who bagged the $55.1 million jackpot last month in Florida's Lotto game, still reportedly buys lottery tickets at the same grocery store in the Orlando suburb of Longwood where she picked up her winning ticket.

Otherwise, Ryan, 63, is managing to keep her privacy.

"We haven't seen her. She packed up all her things," said Merrill Peterson, a former neighbor.

Her attorney, Evelyn Cloninger, said Ms. Ryan left her job as a part-time real estate saleswoman and moved shortly after picking up the first of 20 annual checks for more than $2.7 million.

Wil Bowles, Ryan's former boss, said she paid $260,000 in cash for a new home, but he declined to disclose its location.

Greenwood keeps district record unblemished, 22-14

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

CRANE — The Greenwood Rangers football team has never made the playoffs in nine years of grid competition. But that dubious record may change with the help of Friday's 22-14 win over the highly-charged Crane Golden Cranes here.

Sure, the Rangers made the zone playoffs during their long-ago days in Class A, but they've never been a factor since their meteoric rise to Class 3A during the most recent oil boom.

That's all changed, despite the best efforts of an inspired flock of Cranes that wanted to finish their home season with a win. The Rangers overcame a second-quarter deficit to post their sixth straight win and remain undefeated in District 4-3A play.

THAT SETS up a 4-3A showdown between Greenwood and Kermit this coming Friday. Kermit decisively defeated Fabens on Friday to keep pace with the surprising Rangers.

It wasn't easy for Greenwood, even though Randy Marquez gave the Rangers early momentum with an 88-yard touchdown return of the opening kickoff.

"Crane played as hard as they could play," Greenwood coach Bob Purser said. "It was time for them to play well.

"Now we've got the biggest game in the history of the school coming up next week."

AFTER Marquez' opening runback, Crane drove 75 yards in 12 plays to score on the first of two short TD runs by Sherod Vaden with 5:29 left in the quarter. Wingback Mark Sanchez set up the TD with a halfback pass to split end Jackie Jeffrey that netted 27 yards.

Meanwhile, the Crane defense was almost conpletely negating the speed and moves of Greenwood quarterback Randy Donnell. Donnell had been working the Rangers' wishbone attack for about 100 rushing yards per game, but Crane defensive end Roy Ramirez led a defense that sacked Donnell four times for 44 yards in the first half.

Donnell perked up in the second half to finish with 25 net yards rushing, but Crane coach Johnny Burleson still felt the Cranes did what they needed to defensively.

"We took Donnell out of the game with our defensive scheme," Burleson said. "I'm not taking anything from Greenwood, but I hated for our kids not to win because we played hard enough to win."

Donnell said Crane showed a lot of heart.

"I just think they played with a lot of emotion," the QB said.

THE CRANES even led for awhile after Vaden's second TD run with 4:30 left in the half. The senior tailback's four-yard run was set up when Ramirez stripped Donnell of the ball and Mike Stafford recovered for Crane on the Ranger 14.

Garden City back Tony Ramirez (21) races past Rankin's John Stokes.

Rankin defeats Garden City

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

The Rankin Red Devils, overlooked by the Associated Press in its weekly Top 10 rankings this year, made a strong statement Friday night and look to move into Class A's higher echelon after downing the Garden City Bearkats, 26-6, behind the strength of a strong offensive effort, including a particularly impressive passing display.

Red Devil quarterback Doug Braden found receiver James Watson for three touchdowns — two of which came in the first half — as the home team offense proved its worth in gold early.

Braden completed four of six when all was said and done. His three scoring strikes to Watson accounted for 177 total yards of the Devils' aerial attack.

Ranked No. 7 by one statewide poll, the Red Devils combined for 384 total yards on offense.

The Bearkats, also ranked in the Top 10 by one pollster, averaged 400 yards total offense per game before Friday, but were held to 209 yards against the Devils.

Garden City had held its opponents to just 150 yards a week before the Red Devil onslaught.

Garden City running back Tony Ramirez highlighted the Bearkat offense by carrying 20 times for 89 yards. With his output, the senior tailback crossed the 1,000 yard mark and now stands at 1,075 for the year.

"We played with an awful lot of effort and desire," first year Rankin head coach Troy Kennedy said. "I'm proud when they do play so well."

The Red Devils favored the end of quarters to do their damage, scoring their first two touchdowns with less than 45 seconds in the first and second frames.

And talk about extending one's luck to the fullest, Rankin was four of eight on not third down conversions, but fourth down attempts.

Kennedy said Garden City's insistence on stopping the running game provided the opportunity for Watson to be open the majority of the night. Of Braden's six passes, three went to Watson, all of which went for scores.

Passing game aside, running back Joe Abalos ran 21 times for 130 yards to provide Rankin's ground game highlights for the night. Abalos, a senior, capped his night with a 17 yard touchdown run with just over four minutes left in the third quarter.

As for the Red Devils' absence in the polls, Kennedy said that doesn't bother him.

Bulldogs close in on playoff berth, 19-10

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

SAN ANGELO - Midland High baked its playoff cake here at San Angelo Stadium Friday night with a 19-10 victory over the San Angelo Bobcats and all that's lacking now is the icing.

It has taken the harried Bulldogs over 30 years to perfect this baking process, but good things come to those who can wait. Now, if the sugar in the icing is sweet enough next weekend against Odessa High, the Bulldogs may be headed state bound.

"We're certainly in a lot better shape (for the playoffs) than we were before this game. This is one of the biggest victories this team has had in many years," said MHS coach Doug McCutchen before adding, "We still have two games left to play, but right now we don't have to depend on anyone else to do the job for us. That's a good position to be in.

"We win our last two games and we're probably going to be in the playoffs. If we lose, we may have to depend on Permian beating Lee and we don't want to depend on anyone."

BUT THIS rare playoff road for the Bulldogs has been anything but easy. This was another harrowing exercise in throat grabbing by a scrappy band of 'Dogs that just won't lay down and die. For the third week in a row they fought from behind to take a victory and now stand at 7-1, one of the best Pack records in almost two decades.

Leading 12-10 heading into the final quarter, the Bulldogs shut down a smoking San Angelo team that is known for its second half heroics.

"San Angelo has been a great second half team and that really concerned us at the half with such a small lead, but you have to give these kids credit. They shut them down in the second half and the offense put together a big fourth quarter drive that put San Angelo in a position of having to score two times."

Midland High moved 79 yards in an sterling 11-play drive in the fourth quarter to produce the 19-10 margin with running back Dwane Roberts getting the final one yard. Greg Boyt's PAT was a big one since it would force San Angelo to score twice to win.

ROBERTS ended the night with 112 yards rushing, leaving just over 100 yards to go to claim the 1,000-yard mark. He scored all three of MHS' touchdowns, giving him 104 points on the season and almost a lock on the District 4-5A scoring title.

"We're going to the playoffs. You can bank on that," said Roberts. "We've still got to go and play two games, but now we're on the way. We're going to go out and take it."

San Angelo made a bid to get back in the game, but Midland High defensive back Julius Bowers intercepted two Michael Emmons passes down the stretch to foil any comeback attempt. Bowers' interception with just over three minutes left to play in the game really sealed the win since the Bobcats still needed another score to win.

"We haven't played well in our last two games and we got it all together in the second half. Someone had to come up with the big play and it just happened to be me this time," said Bowers, who now has four interceptions on the year.

THE FIRST half was a wild affair as both teams missed scoring opportunities, but it was the kind of excitement that one would figure on in a game with playoff implications for both teams.

The Bulldogs led 12-10 at the half, but again found themselves having to dig out of a hole twice.

San Angelo drove 85 yards in 12 plays for a 7-0 lead when David Brainard scored from three yards out and Bobby Buntyn booted the point after. The drive was aided by a big third down interference penalty against MHS.

The Bulldogs roared back to narrow the margin to 7-6 when Dwane Roberts scored from 13 yards out, ending a four-week first quarter scoreless streak, but Greg Boyt missed the PAT, an area that has plagued the Bulldogs this year.

Second half runs help Steers, 31-24

By JOHN FREY
MRT Correspondent

BIG SPRING — It was not exactly how Big Spring Steer Coach David Thompson had it drawn up on paper but the Steers did manage to play one strong half of football to come away with a 31-24 victory over the Pecos Eagles.

The Steers, who usually rely heavily on the passing of quarterback Rance Thompson, used a strong second half running game to get the win.

Fullback Rodney Brown, whose night usually consists of few carries and a lot of blocking was a big weapon in the ground game. Brown finished the night with his finest game of the season picking up 92 yards on 18 carries and even caught one crucial third down pass for 13 yards.

Running mate Dennis Hartfield also had a fine evening rushing 19 times for 155 yards and three touchdowns. But it was Brown's play that impressed Coach Thompson.

"Rodney Brown played a great game tonight," Thompson said. "Everytime we needed him he was there for us. If there was a spark in our game tonight is was Rodney Brown."

But the game started out all Pecos. After strong defensive stands by both teams, the Eagles took over on their own 27 yard line.

Using mainly the running of quarterback Bobby Ray Smith and fullback Tommy Valdez, they were able to move as far as theBig Spring seven yard line before stalling. Kicker Frank Orozco finished off the drive with a 24-yard field goal for the only points of the quarter.

The second quarter though brought much more action as the two teams combined to score 33 points. Pecos began the scoring only four plays into the quarter. The key play on the drive came when the Eagles Eric Bradley took a pass away from a Steer defender and broke free to the eight yard line. Two plays later Valdez went in from the three yard line.

The Steers then had a chance to draw blood after recovering a muffed punt at the Eagles 23 yard line. But on second down Rance Thompson was hit hard and fumbled. After a long chase the Eagles recovered at the Steer 27- yard line. Four plays later it was Valdez in the end zone again. Orozco's kick stretched the lead to 17-0.

They may have looked down at that point, but the Steers were definately not out. The big play offense struck quickly.

Rance Thompson three 34-yards to a stretched out Joe Downey to the 23-yard line. On the very next play Hartfield broke through the line and raced into the endzone.

With a comfortable 17-6 lead the Eagles were not content to sit on their lead. On third down Smith threw an ill-advised pass that was intercepted by Big Spring's Fred Reid at the 41-yard line. Reid took the interception the distance for the touchdown.

With only 1:18 left in the half, Big Spring took over on their own 24-yard line. Trying to protect the lead, the Steers took to the ground. But a hard Eagle hit forced a Steer fumble and the Eagles recovered the loose ball on the 21-yard line. Then on second down Smith threw 19 yards to Doni Talamantez for the touchdown. Orozco's kick put the final points on the board in a wild quarter to make the score 24-12.

In the second half the Steers began their comeback. After turning the ball over on their own 8-yard line, the defense came to the rescue forcing an Eagle fumble and recovering it on the three. Ninety-seven yards later the Steers were in the endzone as Rance Thompson threw 19-yards to Neal Mayfield for the touchdown.

MHS——

San Angelo opened the second quarter with a fine drive that netted a 28-yard field goal by Buntyn and a 10-6 lead.

The Pack rumbled back to the three-yard line before Russell Page fumbled into the end zone where the Bobcats' De Eric Washington pounced on the ball, robbing Midland of a touchdown.

BUT THIS was to be a game of big mistakes with high stakes and San Angelo punter Robert Pritz couldn't get off a kick and the Purples were set up at the Bobcat 28-yard line where they converted the drive into a TD on another Roberts TD from one-yard out. The key play, however, came on a fourth down play when Page passed to Shaun Savas to the four. The ball bounced off a Bobcat receiver and Savas literally stole the ball in mid-air and almost scored.

San Angelo came back to move to the MHS 20, but Kevin Rychel intercepted a Michael Emmons pass to stall the threat and keep Buntyn's toe from again becoming a factor.

It was the second straight year that Midland High has come into the Bobcat Homecoming with victory on the mind. Last year, MHS spoiled the Angry Orange Homecoming with a 28-14 victory, but this one was even bigger. It was the heat needed for baking.

Now, does anyone have a recipe for icing? The Bulldogs would surely like to borrow it for at least one more week.

McCamey tops Marfa in District 5-2A test

From Staff Reports

MCCAMEY— McCamey's Badgers stayed in the thick of the District 5-2A race with a 34-0 win over Marfa here Friday night.

The win gives McCamey a 3-5 record for the season, but the Badgers are 2-1 in league. Marfa is 5-3 and 1-2.

After a scoreless first period, McCamey settled matters in a hurry, punching over 20 second period points and then added a 14-point lick in the third quarter.

Dave Angelin passed 11-yards to Shane Patrick with 8:54 left in the half and Patrick converted to start the ball rolling.

With 7:19 left in the half, Servando Venegas broke a 20-yard run and less than two minutes later Steven Terry returned an interception for a TD.

Terry scored with 4:10 left in the third period on a 17-yard run and then Angelin flipped a 23-yard scoring pass to Chris Holden as time ran out in the third period.

Iraan 21, Presidio 0

From Staff Reports

PRESIDIO— Iraan geared up for next week's showdown against Stanton in District 5-2A by beating Presidio, 21-0, here Friday night.

Ernest Galindo keyed the victory when he returned the opening kickoff 90 yards for a TD.

Robert King took it in from the one with 9:37 left in the half and then King passed to Riley Malone for a two pointer and a 14-0 halftime lead.

The final TD came with 25 seconds left in the game when Malone went in from the two and George Medina converted.

Malone gained 116 yards on 22 carries while Jay Kent gained 85 yards on 18 attempts and King delivered 85 yards on eight completions in 16 attempts.

Iraan, 3-5 for the season, is now 3-0 in district while Presidio is looking for its first district win.

Reagan County romps

From Staff Reports

BIG LAKE— Reagan County's Owls rolled to a 7-0 record with a 67-3 rout of Wall in District 6-2A play here Friday night, jumping to a 37-3 halftime lead.

Reagan opened a 3-0 league record. Wall is 2-6 and 1-2.

Roland Saldibar kicked a 28-yard field goal with 5:34 left in the first period and Sergijo Balderas scored from the two to make it 10-0 after a period.

The Owls scored 27 second period points as Willie Black scored from the two, Saldibar from the one and Shane McCutcheon took a 35-yard pass from Rodolfo Guerrera for the long play of the half. Balderas added a three-yard run with 21 seconds left in the half.

Leonard Castillo scored on runs of 34, three and two yards in the second half while Junior Pena supplied the final score on a 30-yard interception.

Dennis Hartfield of Big Spring is tackled by a Pecos defender in District 4-4A action Friday.

STEERS——

After another strong defensive stand the Steers took over on their own 14-yard line. Not yet panicking and throwing on every down, the offense went to the speedster Hartfield. Following a couple of short runs, Hartfield busted into the open field and dashed 62 yards for a touchdown to put Big Spring ahead for the first time, 25-24.

The defense did not allow Pecos to threaten as they picked off passes on two of the Eagles three possessions. Hartfield added another score on a two yard run for the final points sending the Homecoming crowd home happy.

Next week the Steers travel to Andrews to take on the once-beaten-in-district Mustangs.

Andrews thumps Lake View, 28-18

From Staff Reports

ANDREWS— Andrews' Mustangs hit Lake View with a 28-point first half haymaker and then withstood the Chiefs second half rally for a 28-18 District 4-4A football triumph here Friday night.

The Ponies made it look easy at first with Joe Don Finley striking from the one with 4:43 left in the first period and Michael Hernandez jogging in from the four with 3:08 left in the opening stanza.

With 8:39 to go in the half Robert Morris passed to Ronnie Seals on a six-yard TD and then with 13 seconds left before intermission, Morris hit Steven Hines with a 27-yard TD pitch. Amos Rosas kicked the conversion after each Andrews score.

Lake View began its comeback when Bobby Lose ran 53 yards with 10:26 left in the third and then went in from the one with 7:33 left in the game.

Will Burney's 14-yard pass to Lose came with 5:50 left in the game, but by then it was too late.

Andrews is 3-1 in district and 5-2 for the season while Lake View is 2-5 and 0-4.

Rankin's Joe Abalos (23) takes off wide as Doug Braden and Terry McCravey provide the blocks.

RANKIN——

"I'm going to be truthful ... ratings don't mean much as long as we can win. I don't care if we even get rated. Sure, I'd like to get recognition, certainly, but I'm pleased as long as we play well."

Rankin is now 7-0 overall and 2-0 in District 8-A. The Red Devils will next travel to Sterling City.

Garden City, at 7-1, and 1-1, travels to rival Water Valley, which will hold homecoming ceremonies next Friday.

The bag limit on quail this season is 15, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Dept. stated. The quail season opens Oct. 29 and continues through Feb. 26, 1989.

RANGERS——

But the Rangers all but ate up the rest of the half with a 10-play, 68-yard drive that Donnell capped with a two-yard bootleg run 50 seconds before intermission. Fullback Jimmy Cox keyed the drive with runs of 18 and 10 yards. Cox and alternate fullback Jimmy O'Briant combined for 96 yards to provide to bulk of the Ranger offense.

The Rangers ended up trying only one pass, which was intercepted. A later completion was nullified by a penalty.

But Greenwood didn't need much offense to score the deciding touchdown. After O'Briant recovered a Crane fumble at the hosts' 15, the Rangers needed only four plays for Cox to punch across from the two with 4:56 left in the third period. The senior fullback dragged several Cranes across the goal line for the game-winner.

Marquez added some insurance for running for the two-point conversion, and the Rangers ate up more than half of the fourth quarter with a 12-play drive that stalled deep in Crane territory.

Cornerback Larry Nichols sealed the win with an interception deep in Ranger territory with about a minute left.

Crane, 2-6 overall and 0-3 in district play, travels to Alpine this coming Friday.

Arkansas, Houston to provide a lot of answers

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

There will be a lot of answers to the Southwest Conference's puzzling football chase coming from the Astrodome on Saturday evening in a game that could be as high-scoring as pinball.

SWC

The unblemished Arkansas Razorbacks take their 6-0 ledger into the Dome for the 12:05 p.m. (Raycom TV) meeting with once-beaten Houston which warmed up by scoring 82 points against Tulsa.

Arkansas comes off a highly emotional 27-24 victory over the Texas Longhorns in Austin.

Oddsmakers made the game a pick 'em affair although Arkansas could only beat Tulsa 30-26 while Houston handled the Hurricanes 82-28.

The Razorbacks also will be without running back James Rouse, who suffered a knee injury against Texas. Joe Johnson was expected to start in his place.

In other games on the abbreviated SWC menu, Baylor travels to Texas Christian in a 2 p.m. game while the high-rolling Texas Aggies entertain Rice at 2 p.m. in College Station. TCU was favored by two points while the Aggies were 24-point favorites.

Arkansas has won six games in a row from the Cougars. Houston has been to the Cotton Bowl four times since entering the league in 1976 and two of the Cougar Cotton Bowl teams lost to the Razorbacks.

The Hogs are 5-2 in Houston against the Cougars and 3-2 in the Astrodome. Arkansas has won its last three games in the indoor facility.

Arkansas is expected to borrow a page from A&M's defensive play book and blitz the Hogs. A&M defeated Houston earlier in the season with an all-out rush.

"To stop Houston, you have to play an aggressive defensive game," said Hog tackle Michael Shepherd, The AP's SWC Co-Defensive player of the Week. "I think Houston is going to score some points on anyone they play. We need to try to force them to do things they do not want to do. "

Noseguard Kerry Crawford said "from my experience I know Houston is an offensive powerhouse. But our destiny lies in our own hands. We have to be ready."

Arkansas coach Ken Hatfield said "nobody runs the run-and-shoot like Houston does."

Houston coach Jack Pardee is worried about a surprise passing blitz from the Hogs.

"They beat us (21-17) because of their passing game last time," Pardee said. "We've got to stop that from happening again."

The defending SWC champion Aggies, who can't claim the title or go to a bowl game because of NCAA probation, have defeated three consecutive conference opponents, Texas Tech, Houston, and Baylor.

Baylor is 0-3 in league play and the Bears hope to get revenge for a 24-0 loss to the Horned Frogs in 1987.

"Those kind of defeats are not easy to forget," said Baylor coach Grant Teaff. "The bad thing is that TCU basically has the same team this year. And to make things worse, TCU has played like gang busters in Fort Worth."

Rice coach Jerry Berndt said the A&M game marks three straight tough weeks for the Owls.

"We play A&M, Arkansas and Notre Dame all on the road," he said. "I suppose we'll be 100-point underdogs in all of the games. It's hard to look our players in the eye and say we really have a chance to win those games, but miracles have happened in college football."

Rice has the longest losing streak in NCAA Division I at 12 games in arow.

UCLA, Notre Dame begin stretch drives for No. 1

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

Unable to settle the issue in a bowl game, No. 1 UCLA and No. 2 Notre Dame begin their stretch drives Saturday to woo the voters who will elect this year's national college football champion.

UCLA will be stumping in Tucson, Ariz., where the 6-0 Bruins meet Arizona in a Pacific-10 Conference game.

"The fact that you know if you play at your best six weeks in a row you can win a national championship gives you a feeling of security," Coach Terry Donahue said. "It's up to us.

"So many times in your life you say, 'I never had the chance.' Well, we have our chance. It's put up or shut up."

NOTRE DAME jumped two places in this week's AP poll thanks to last week's 31-30 victory over No. 1 Miami.

The Irish, 6-0, stay at home this week to entertain some government visitors from the Air Force Academy, and Coach Lou Holtz has been trying to hush any national championship talk.

"The victory over Miami was a tremendous one for our players and for our program," he says, "but it's important to keep it in perspective. It's only one victory and it's in the past now.

"What we did against Miami won't help us this week against Air Force, or anywhere else down the line. We've got to understand that when you beat a team like Miami, everybody else on your schedule shoots for you that much harder."

THIRD-ranked Southern Cal, which plays UCLA and Notre Dame in consecutive weeks late next month, is off Saturday. Meanwhile,

College Football

Miami, now No. 4, entertains Cincinnati, No. 5 Nebraska visits Kansas State, No. 6 West Virginia plays host to Boston College, Louisiana Tech is at No. 7 Florida State, No. 8 Oklahoma at Colorado for a night game, No. 9 Clemson at North Carolina State and Mississippi State at No. 10 Auburn.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Georgia is at Kentucky, Utah at No. 12 Wyoming, No. 13 Arkansas at Houston — the winner will be in line for the Cotton Bowl — No. 14 Indiana at No. 20 Michigan — the only meeting of Top Twenty teams — Missouri at No. 15 Oklahoma State, No. 17 Washington at Oregon and No. 19 Syracuse at East Carolina. South Carolina, the No. 18 team, is idle.

UCLA made it to No. 1 for the first time since 1967 thanks to Notre Dame's victory over Miami. The last time, however, the Bruins stayed at the top for only one week, losing to Arizona — in Tucson — 23-17.

"The poll really doesn't mean much until the ninth, 10th or 11th week of the season," Donahue said. "Then you really get a feel who the top teams are.

"I'm not worrying about it one way or another. We have the meat of our schedule coming up. We control our own destiny."

And the Bruins have Troy Aikman, the nation's No. 2-ranked passer.

"UCLA — you're talking about the best athletes," Arizona coach Dick Tomey said. "I doubt there is as accomplished a quarterback anywhere as Troy Aikman. And UCLA has more quality running backs than anyone in the country (the Bruins are averaging 253.5 yards a game passing, 240.5 rushing)."

For the second week in a row, Notre Dame faces one of the nation's top quarterbacks. But while Miami's Steve Walsh riddled the Irish for a record 424 yards and four touchdowns last week, Dee Dowis of the Air Force has thrown for only 576 yards and four TDs all season.

The Falcons run the wishbone and lead the nation in rushing with 432 yards a game. Dowis has rushed for 667 yards, second on the team to fullback Andy Smith's 742. Smith, Dowis, Greg Johnson and Anthony Roberson all are averaging more than seven yards a carry.

"We think we do a decent job running the ball, but you put it in perspective when you see that Air Force has twice as many rushing yards this year (3,113-1,547) as we do," Holtz said.

"They aren't going to throw the ball a great deal, but you can't let their running game lull you to sleep. They make the big play routinely.

"Anybody who scores 40 points a week like Air Force does (actually 46.4) is executing awfully well."

MIAMI coach Jimmy Johnson hasn't given up hope that his defending national champions can still repeat, saying:

"It's too early to be talking about championships. We've got the majority of our schedule left to play. Toward the end of the year, we'll know more realistically what our chances are."

The Hurricanes are 46-point favorites over a 2-4 Cincinnati team.

Nebraska is favored by 44 over winless Kansas State, which gave up 70 points to Oklahoma last week.

West Virginia returns to action after an open date. The Mountaineers are 6-1 against Boston College in Don Nehlen term as head coach.

Florida State faces its second Division I-AA opponent in three games in Louisiana Tech. The Seminoles trailed Georgia Southern 10-7 in the second half two weeks ago before pulling out a 28-10 victory.

Charles Thompson will be the starting quarterback when Oklahoma visits Colorado. Jamelle Holieway lost a step after last year's serious knee injury and also is hampered by a sprained ankle.

THE CLEMSON-North Carolina State winner will take over the Atlantic Coast Conference lead. Both teams are 5-1 overall but Clemson is 3-0 in ACC play to N.C. State's 3-1.

The Southeastern Conference race is a tight one, with Georgia 4-0, Alabama, Florida and LSU all 3-1 and Auburn 2-1.

"This is our most important game to date," Auburn coach Pat Dye said. "It's a conference game, and a loss to Mississipi State counts just as much as a loss to Florida, Georgia, Alabama or LSU."

Georgia's Vince Dooley, who is tied with Dye for the SEC poor-mouthing lead, calls Kentucky "an accident ready to explode," noting that the Wildcats have dropped heart-breakers to Alabama (31-27) and LSU (15-12) in their last two starts.

7 barred from Steer game after fight

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — Seven high school students were barred from Friday's homecoming game after some players on Big Spring's 1-4 football team and members of the championship band suffered cuts and bruises in a parking lot fight.

Big Spring Independent School District Superintendent Bill McQueary said the fight broke out the eve of Friday's game against Pecos.

School officials were told that some band and football players had been taunting each other for a few weeks, McQueary said. He had no specifics on what sparked the fight.

Six varsity football players and one band member were suspended from school Friday and were not allowed to take part in any homecoming activities, and more students may be reprimanded, McQueary said.

Student witnesses and teachers who declined to be identified said some youngsters were pulled from cars and were struck with belts.

The Big Spring High School Steer Marching Band took part in state competion for the past two years.

"Of course it casts a cloud over us and it's nothing we're real proud of," said McQueary. "But you know we've been through these dark clouds before and we've always come out on top."

WBA hails anti-doping rules

MARGARITA, Venezuela (AP) — Boxing officials Friday hailed the World Boxing Association's new anti-doping regulations as "timely and necessary."

The WBA passed the new regulations Thursday during its annual convention.

"It was about time we passed clear regulations against the use of drugs in boxing," said Jose Graglia, head of the Latin American Boxing Federation.

"I think the rules are clearer than ever and are necessary to rid the sport of pernicious drug use," said Octavio Barrientos, head of Chile's Boxing Federation.

Under the new rules, fighters in championship bouts must undergo an official urine test either before or after the fight with the presence of a WBA official in order to quell controversy over any alleged rigged testing in previous bouts.

Boxers who test positive for banned drugs will be disqualified and banned from fighting for two years, under the new rules. They also must undergo drug treatment before being allowed back into the ring.

Fighters who are found guilty in court of connections with drug pushers will be suspended for life.

If a world champion wins a title bout, but tests positive, the title will be vacated and his challenger will fight the next highest ranking fighter for the championship.

If a challenger wins a title bout, but tests positive, the champion retains his title.

Mike Schmidt files for free agency

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Schmidt, rejecting the contract offered by the Phillies as inadequate, filed for free agency Friday and his agent said the third baseman would seek to leave Philadelphia.

"We have filed for free agency and are looking elsewhere," said Arthur Rosenberg, Schmidt's agent. "We feel there is a list of teams that could certainly use Mike's help and they are the ones we will contact first."

Schmidt batted .249 this season with 12 homers and 62 runs batted in, his lowest totals since 1978, his first full season in the big leagues. He had surgery for a torn right rotator cuff Sept. 7 and did not play after Aug. 12.

He made $2.15 million this year and the Phillies contributed an additional $100,000 in his name to charity. His contract would have extended to 1989 at the same salary but did not because of his injury.

Rosenberg said Schmidt was willing to accept a contract in which part of the money would be paid only if Schmidt is able to play.

"I'm sure we could structure something that would protect a club from the slight chance, although the chance certainly exists, that Mike cannot recover from the surgery," Rosenberg said.

Schmidt has 542 career homers, seventh on the all-time list, and has played his entire 17-year career in Philadelphia.

"I am disappointed but certainly understand his right to become a free agent," Phillies owner Bill Giles said. "We will continue to make every effort to sign Mike and are still hopeful he will end his career in a Phillies uniform. We feel we made Mike a very fair and reasonable offer and will continue to keep the lines of communication open."

Catcher Ozzie Virgil of the Atlanta Braves and infielder Harry Spilman of the Houston Astros also filed for free agency Friday, the first day players were eligible.

Virgil batted .256 last season with nine homers and 31 RBI and made $900,000. Atlanta probably will not want him back next year, especially after the late-season aquisitition of Jody Davis from the Chicago Cubs.

Spilman batted .146 in 45 at-bats and made $225,000.

A total of 105 players are eligible for free agency. The most notable free agents this year are pitchers Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles, Bruce Hurst of Boston, Dave Stieb of Toronto, Nolan Ryan of Houston, Steve Bedrosian of Philadelphia and Mike Moore of Seattle.

Two players who could have been free agents agreed to new contracts Friday —outfielder Bob Dernier with the Phillies and pitcher Dan Quisenberry with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Los Angeles exercised options for 1989 in the contracts of catcher Mike Scioscia and outfielder John Shelby. And Toronto also exercised the option for 1989 on catcher Ernie Whitt, who was not eligible.

Like Williams, Winfield, Schmidt, Canseco learned

By BEN WALKER

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Ted Williams learned the hard way and so did Dave Winfield and Mike Schmidt. Now Jose Canseco and Mark McGwire know, too.

The best hitters often turn into the biggest flops in the World Series.

"I'm not angry. I'm not depressed," Canseco said. "I'm real happy with the things we've done this year."

But all anyone will remember, at least for awhile, is that Canseco went 1-for-19 as the powerful Oakland Athletics lost in five games to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Canseco led the majors with 42 homers and 124 RBI. McGwire, the other Bash Brother, hit 32 homers with 99 RBI. But he'd also like to forget this series after going 1-for-17.

"It's very frustrating, but I gave it my best shot," McGwire said.

The Dodgers' pitching was just better. Particularly MVP Orel Hershiser, who won two games and even outhit Canseco and McGwire combined, going 3-for-3 with two doubles.

Hershiser twice retired Canseco with two runners on base in Thursday night's clincher. Canseco popped up in the eighth inning and Los Angeles went on to win 5-2.

"I think I surprised Jose by pitching him inside with a fastball," Hershiser said. "I think it was the first time I pitched him inside the whole series. He's so strong that you have to surprise him to get away with it."

That Canseco and McGwire did poorly shouldn't be much of a surprise. It's happened before.

Williams, considered by some to be the greatest hitter ever, batted just .200 in his only World Series. With their future Hall of Famer in a slump, the Boston Red Sox lost to St. Louis in seven games in 1946.

Schmidt, perhaps the best all-around third baseman of all-time, went 1-for-20 as Philadelphia lost the 1983 Series to Baltimore in five games. His only hit was a broken-bat single.

Eddie Murray, Baltimore's big hitter, went hitless in the last five games of the 1979 Series. The Orioles went down with him, losing the final three games and falling to Pittsburgh in seven.

Winfield still hears about 1981. In his only World Series, he went 1-for-22 as the New York Yankees lost to Los Angeles.

Winfield has been one of the most productive players in baseball for more than a decade, but his failure to produce in those six games continues to haunt him. Yankees owner George Steinbrenner never fails to mention the slump when his on-again, off-again feud with Winfield is back on.

Playing off on Reggie Jackson's "Mr. October" nickname, Steinbrenner once called Winfield "Mr. May."

The best player to have the worst Series skid was Gil Hodges. He was 0-for-21 in 1952 and Brooklyn lost to the Yankees in seven games.

The record for futility is 0-for-22 by Dal Maxvill for St. Louis in 1968. Oakland's Dick Green was 0-for-13 in the 1974 Series against Los Angeles, but was voted MVP because of his fine fielding.

In this Oakland-Los Angeles matchup, Canseco and McGwire weren't so lucky. Canseco got off to a great start, hitting a grand slam in Game 1, but was hitless in his final 18 at-bats. McGwire's lone hit was a winning home run in Game 3.

"The next World Series that Jose Canseco gets into, he'll be dynamite," Oakland manager Tony La Russa said.

But all the big expectations fizzled in this series. Canseco, McGwire and the other Oakland hitters were too concerned about long balls, not line drives.

That didn't work, especially against Hershiser, who did not allow a homer in his last 14 starts.

"There was so much made of the power of this team," conceded Carney Lansford, who went 3-for-18. "A lot of times we got in big situations and just tried to hit home runs."

SMU golfers rally to win Coody WT

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Four Southern Methodist University golfers matched or broke par Friday to give the Mustangs a come-from-behind victory in the third annual Charles Coody West Texas Intercollegiate golf tournament.

SMU's team shot a cumulative 8-under 280 Friday for a 36-hole total of 579. Tournament host Abilene Christian was runner-up 10 strokes back at 589.

Texas Tech and North Texas tied for third at 590, and Rice was fifth at 596.

The 14-team tournament was played on the par-72 course at Fairway Oaks Golf and Racquet Club, site of the recent PGA Gatlin Brothers Southwest Golf Classic.

Mason, Bennett tied for Jersey 1st

ST. BRELADE, Jersey (AP) — Englishmen Carl Mason, who shot a 68, and Stephen Bennett shared the lead at the halfway point of the $220,000 Jersey Open golf tournament Friday, one stroke ahead of countryman Tony Charnley, who got help from his wife to stay in contention.

Bennett, who shot a course-record 64 in the first round, carded a 70 for a 36-hole total of 134, 10-under-par.

Mason caught him, despite being dosed up with medicine to help him over an influenza attack. Mason eagled the 497-yard 11th, where he hit two woods onto the green, then holed out from 15 feet.

MSA drops plans to buy Baltimore O's

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Maryland Stadium Authority has dropped plans for an outright purchase of the Baltimore Orioles, but hasn't ruled out a role in any future sale to keep major league baseball team in Baltimore.

"We have been approached by more than one individual or group of prospective buyers requesting that we become an investor or lender," said Herbert Belgrad, director of the stadium authority. "We were seeking controlling ownership, but we haven't closed our minds to consider some other alternative which would help ensure local ownership.

Celtics whip Yugos, 113-85

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Larry Bird scored 17 of his game-high 27 points in the second half and Kevin McHale sparked an early third-quarter surge to lead the Boston Celtics to a 113-85 victory over the Yugoslav national team Friday in the first round of the McDonald's Basketball Open.

The Yugoslav team trailed by just 53-47 at halftime, but McHale scored six points in a 10-2 spurt at the start of the third quarter as the Celtics pulled away. Bird had a 3-point shot in the fourth quarter.

Boston center Robert Parish scored 20 points, 16 in the first half, and grabbed 19 rebounds.

Zarko Paspalj led Yugoslavia with 18 points, Danko Cvjeticanin added 17 and Dino Rajda had 15.

Host Real Madrid and Italian league champion Scavolini Pesaro battled in a second game Friday for a chance to play the Celtics in Sunday's championship.

The Yugoslav team, which won the silver medal at the Olympics, played without guard Brazen Petrovic. Petrovic played for Real Madrid.

ABC smelling like a Rose Bowl

By RICK WARNER
AP Sports Writer

ABC's Jan. 2 bowl lineup is looking rosy.

In addition to the Citrus and Sugar Bowls, the network will televise its first Rose Bowl that day. If UCLA or Southern Cal finishes the season unbeaten, the Rose could feature the No. 1 team for the first time since 1980.

"It's shaping up as a great day for us," said Dennis Swanson, president of ABC Sports.

TV

ABC plucked the Rose from NBC, which had televised the game for 37 straight years. After losing $3 million on last year's game, NBC sought to reduce the $23.7 million it had agreed to pay for the 1989 and 1990 games.

When Rose Bowl officials balked, NBC gave them permission to talk to other networks. That led to a nine-year, $100 million agreement with ABC.

ALTHOUGH the Rose was a thorn in NBC's financial side, Swanson feels the bowl is a perfect climax to ABC's regular-season coverage of the Pac-10 and Big Ten.

"We've got UCLA-USC on Nov. 19, and Notre Dame-USC the following week," he told a group of television writers in New York Wednesday. "You couldn't ask for a better buildup."

Swanson was joined by Dennis Lewin, ABC's senior vice president for sports production, "Good Morning America" co-host Joan Lunden, and baseball commentator Tim McCarver. Lunden and Jim McKay will host ABC's coverage of the Rose Parade, while McCarver will provide special reports.

When McCarver and Swanson return to Pasadena, it will bring back fond memories. They both spent their honeymoons at the Rose Parade.

AFTER THE St. Louis Cardinals won the 1964 World Series, McCarver and teammate Bob Gibson were invited to ride a float in the parade. A representative of the Busch family, which owns the Cardinals, told the players they could bring their wives at company expense.

When McCarver mentioned that he wasn't married, the representative said, "Well, get married!"

"So I called Anne and proposed," McCarver said.

ABC's Jan. 2 bowl tripleheader opens with the Citrus at 1:30 p.m. ET, continues with the Rose at 5, and winds up with the Sugar at 8:30.

The Citrus will compete with the Cotton on CBS and the Hall of Fame on NBC, while the Rose will go head-to-head against the Fiesta on NBC. At night, it will be the Sugar against the Orange on NBC.

DURING a question-and-answer session, Swanson talked about the Olympics and the new baseball contract that will be negotiated later this year.

ABC didn't bid for the broadcast rights to the 1992 Winter Olympics in Albertville, France, because it objected to the contract language and the bidding process. CBS got the rights for $243 million.

ABC's failure to bid strained its once cozy relationship with the International Olympic Committee. But Swanson said the network will seek the TV rights to the 1992 Summer Games in Barcelona if "the circumstances are right."

Swanson said ABC also would like to continue televising major league baseball, but only if the network can make a profit. ABC has lost millions on its current six-year, $575 million contract, which expires after the 1989 season.

"We want to keep baseball, but it's got to make financial sense," Swanson said.

Miami fans hot

MIAMI (AP) — Miami Heat fans are hot on watching the elite of the NBA.

The expansion team on Thursday sold out eight regular-season games, including the Nov. 5 opener against the Los Angeles Clippers and two dates with the NBA champion Los Angeles Lakers.

Tickets at the 15,008-seat Miami Arena also were sold out for the Boston Celtics, Nov. 15; Chicago Bulls, Jan. 19; Atlanta Hawks, Feb. 29; Detroit Pistons, March 5; and the New York Knicks, March 22. The Heat plays the Lakers Dec. 23 and March 8.

Three share Pensacola lead

GULF BREEZE, Fla. (AP) — Mark Hayes, Scott Hoch and John Cook tied for the second-round lead at 9-under-par 135 Friday in the $400,000 Pensacola' Open.

One stroke behind the leaders were Lance Ten Broeck, Ken Green and brothers Curt and Tom Byrum, the latter shooting a 64, the lowest score of the tournament and the lowest of his career on the PGA Tour.

Dan Pohl, Howard Twitty and Ray Stewart were two strokes behind the leaders at 137.

The three leaders, the Byrum brothers and the trio at 137 all played in the morning before strong winds and a brief rain shower hit the 7,033-yard, par-72 course at Tiger Point Golf and Country Club.

The final two rounds will be played Saturday and Sunday by 79 golfers who shot even-par 144 or below in the first 36 holes.

This is the first year for the tournament at Tiger Point near this Pensacola suburb after 10 years at the Perdido Bay Resort about 30 miles west of here.

Hoch, who carded a 67, said the straight out and back layout reminded him of English courses, with the wind blowing one way on the front nine and the other way on the back nine.

"I can't remember playing any courses like that in the United States," said Hoch, who had six birdies and one bogey.

Hayes had an eagle, three birdies and a double bogey, on the 443-yard, par-4 18th en route to a 69.

"It leaves a sour taste in your mouth when you do something like that," Hayes said after three-putting the 18th. "I hope it doesn't carry over to tomorrow (Saturday)."

Hayes was the only one of five first-round leaders who remained atop the leader board after 36 holes.

Ten Broeck, another first-round leader, fell one stroke back. Others were Pohl, who went two strokes down; Kenny Perry, who dropped to three back; and Billy Andrade, who was four back at 5-under-par 139.

Cook fired a 68, with five birdies and a bogey on the 369-yard, par-4 first hole, the only one on which he missed the green.

"I'm very happy with it," he said of his round. "I've taken a lot of time off the last couple months. I'm pleasantly surprised."

He had been off for five weeks, discouraged by his disappointing performance this year, but returned to the Tour last week at the Texas Open.

Tom Byrum used his 64 to tie his brother Curt after the latter shot a 69. The brothers are accustomed to battling each other.

Punting another lost art

Battles

Where do you find a blacksmith these days and while you're at it, whatever became of the cooper, once a proud and necessary professional?

Last Sunday, Mike Saxon stood at midfield with an opportunity to drive a nail in the Chicago Bears' coffin and he slithered a punt something like 15 yards downfield and out of bounds on the Bear 25.

Another proud profession passes into the pages of the past....punting, too, has become a lost art.

Where are today's Eric Tiptons, Ace Parkers and Sammy Baughs, guys of yore who could boom a ball a mile or, if the situation called for it, angle a 45-yarder out of bounds inside the five.

Saxon, that's all he gets paid to do is punt the ball. Tipton, Parker, Baugh and the others who made kicking a football a damnable skill to the opposition, ran, passed, blocked and tackled and chances are played 50 to 55 minutes a game.

THEY SAY the football was rounder then and has been slimmed to make it easier to pass. Tell it to Ray Guy!

Nowadays they reward a punter who can kick the ball into the end zone with another 20 yards. Before, they penalized a punter who booted the ball into the end zone by deducting the 20 wasted yards.

The demise of the punt is strange since the place kick has attained levels never dreamed of by the artistes of old like drop kickers Jim Thorpe and Paddy Driscoll and Ken Strong and Lou Groza, the pioneers of the place kick.

Now, thanks to soccer field raids, any time a team moves across midfield, it's in position to come away with three points.

IT HAS changed the face of the game and, perhaps, deemphasized the stress placed on and the importance of the punt.

Then, again, today's punter, the guy who specializes in putting his foot to the ball, comes off the bench cold, like a pinch-hitter. The muscles aren't warm and loose and the adrenalin isn't flowing.

Unlike the baseball pinch hitter, he doesn't even get three swipes. One swift swing of the foot and he's free to go back to the bench and sulk.

Maybe, it's time to reevaluate the punter's role. In days of old, the best passer usually was the best punter. The skills for some reason went hand-in-hand.

Perhaps the solution to today's punting woes is to turn the job over to the guy who is already on the field.

At least, if he shanks one, he's got an excuse.

This week's line...

The SWC...

Baylor plus 2 over TCU- Looks even, take points.

Texas A&M minus 24 over Rice- Owls have played tough at times, but this week the roof caves in.

Arkansas plus one over Houston- Hogs heading for showdown with Aggies, but this one is fraught with risk if Cougar offense is clicking.

The others....

Penn State plus five over Alabama- Lions aren't what they used to be, but neither is Tide.

Clemson minus 7 1/2 over NC State- Tigers headed for ACC title.

Georgia Tech minus 6 over North Carolina- Tar Heels can't wait....for basketball season.

Indiana plus 6 over Michigan- Hoosiers are leading candidate for Rose Bowl, if they can survive Wolverines.

Air Force plus 20 over Notre Dame- After Miami, a let down?

Oklahoma minus 12 over Colorado- And this is on TV.

Washington plus two over Oregon- Webfoots are a perplexing favorite...why?

Army plus 10 over Rutgers- Black Knights of the Hudson vs. the Scarlet Knights of the Raritan.

UCLA minus 10 over Arizona- Aikman makes Heisman pitch.

UTEP minus 28 over New Mexico- As long as the Miners aren't carried away by the prospect of playing Wyoming on TV next month.

Boston College plus 17 over West Virginia- Who knows what the Eagles will do, but BC is about due for a good weekend.

The pros....

Eagles minus 5 over Cowboys- Randall Cunningham makes amends for last week in a grudge match.

Bengals minus 5 over Oilers- If only the Bengals hadn't lost last week.

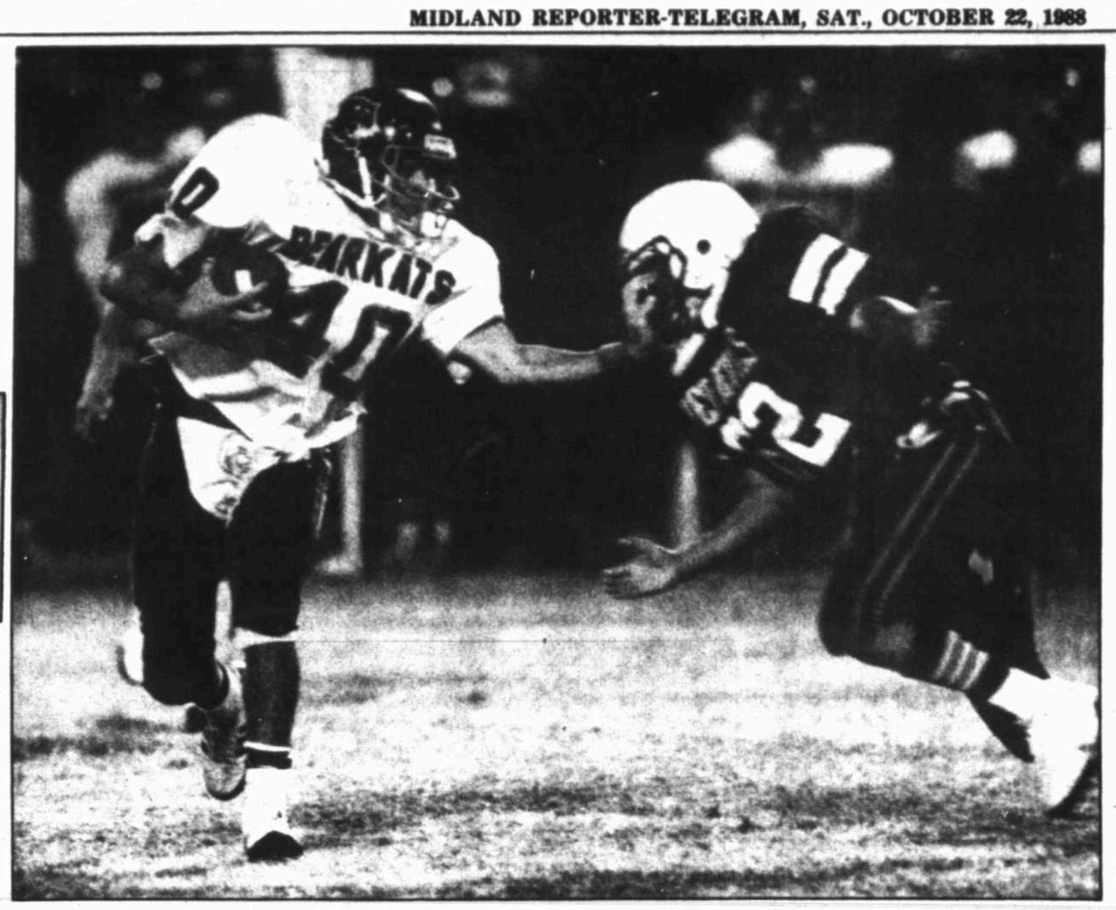

Rams minus 4 1/2 over Seahawks- Home field edge.

Browns minus 1 over Cardinals- Was Redskin game midnight for Cinderella?

Vikings minus 3 1/2 over Buccaneers- Both teams unpredictable.

Broncos minus 4 over Steelers- Watch out for this one. Pittsburgh has been a angry city this week.

Redskins minus 5 over Packers- Don't let Green Bay's win last week fool you.

DC Mustangs level Tornadoes

By DEENE EHLIS
MRT Correspondent

LAMESA— The Denver City Mustangs not only clinched a playoff spot, but also found a new offensive star in downing Lamesa 17-0 Friday night.

With star running back Kenny Samaniego sidelined because of an injury, the Mustangs turned to fullback Vincent Horton. With the power of a diesel engine, Horton responded with 99 yards rushing and one touchdown.

Horton scored the game's first TD in the second period from three yards out. His scored capped a 12 play, 83 yard drive. The key play for the Mustangs in the drive was a 20 yard pass play from Wade Roberts to Ed Hernandez on a third and six play from the Golden Tornadoes 23 yard line.

In the third quarter, Horton carried on eight straight plays during a 13 play, 56-yard drive, culminated by a 37-yard field goal by Roberts, the versatile quarterback-placekicker-defensiveback for DC.

The Mustangs wrapped up their scoring for the night in the fourth period on a picture perfect pass of 27 yards from backup QB Chad Sefcik to Ed Hernandez, despite protests of an illegal formation by the Tornadoes sideline.

While the DC offense was counting on power running from Horton (his 99 yards came on 19 carries) and timely passes from Sefcik and Roberts, the defense was shutting down the many surprises of the Lamesa offense.

Tornado coach Clyde Noonkester had a number of trick plays up his sleeve, as four different players threw passes and eight different Lamesa men ran the ball.

DC Head Coach Alan Cornelius said his defense "played well against all the trick plays of Lamesa." Cornelius added that "Lamesa played hard, but it was was a total team effort for us. Our intensity was up for the game, its a huge victory getting us into the playoffs."

He added that his Mustangs had some nice drives, but were hurt by penalties. Denver City can now look forward to their showdown for the district championship with Brownfield next week.

For the Golden Tornadoes and Head Coach Noonkester, all was not lost in defeat. Noonkester said his team got beat "by a good football team. We played hard and played a real good game."

He complimented the play of his defense and the play of backup quarterback Brock Cartwright. The junior signalcaller replaced starter Paul Lopez in the second half. Lopez suffered a thigh bruise.

Lamesa now stands at 3-4-1 on the season, 2-3 in District 3-3A. Next week, the Tornadoes take on Slaton. Denver City is 7-1 this year with a perfect 5-0 record in district play. On next week's showdown between the Mustangs and Brownfield, Noonkester calls it "even."

Leafs, Sabres post NHL wins

DETROIT (AP) — Darren Veitch and Daniel Marios scored 51 seconds apart in the second period Friday night and Toronto beat the Detroit Red Wings 4-2, giving the Maple Leafs four straight road victories for the first time since 1977-78.

Gary Leeman had three assists for Toronto, which won its third straight overall.

Detroit's Steve Yzerman failed to score for the first time in the Red Wings seven games this season.

Sabres 5, Canadiens 3

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Dave Andreychuk and Mike Foligno scored two goals each as Buffalo took a five-goal lead.

Ray Sheppard scored the other Buffalo goal. Montreal came back with three power-play goals, two by Shayne Corson one by Bobby Smith. The Canadiens outshot Buffalo 15-1 in the third.

Daren Puppa of the Sabres made 39 saves. Buffalo took only 18 shots in the game.

Buffalo took a 4-0 lead in the first period despite being outshot 14-9.

Devils 6, Penguins 4

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Kirk Muller snapped a third-period tie with his second power-play goal and New Jersey Devils ended a three-game losing streak.

Muller, who also an assists, took a pass from Aaron Broten on the goal line to the left of goalie Wendell Young. Muller took a step out and slid the puck under Young for a 5-4 lead with 16:33 to go.

Claude Loiselle scored with a shot from the top of the left faceoff circle with 4:21 left.

Mario Lemieux scored two goals and an assists, giving him seven goal and eight assists in his last three games. He has 11 goals and 11 assists in six games this season.

Rangers 4, Washington 1

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Marcel Dionne scored one goal and assisted on two others and Guy Lafleur scored the second goal of his comeback.

The Rangers scored three power-play goals as they beat the Capitals for the second time in three nights, improving their road record to 2-0-1.

Dionne scored his first goal of the season 7:52 into the first period with New York on the power-play. Dionne assisted on New York's next two goals, as James Patrick scored at 17:29 of the first and Brian Mullen added a goal 8:17 into the second. Lafleur scored at 5:30 of the third on a 70-foot slapshot.

Ratings improved

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC received a 24 rating for Wednesday's game between the Los Angeles Dodgers and Oakland Athletics, slightly higher than the 23.8 ABC drew for Game 4 of last year's Series.

Wyche relies on Oiler film for jolt

By JOE KAY

CINCINNATI (AP) — Coach Sam Wyche is hoping a few frames of film jolt the Cincinnati Bengals out of their midseason doldrums.

It was no ordinary film that the Bengals saw this week in preparation for Sunday's home game against the Houston Oilers. The footage of Houston's penalty-marred victory last Sunday over Pittsburgh represented a reel of the Oilers' latest hits.

Oilers

There were three personal fouls for late out-of-bounds hits and one unsportsmanlike conduct penalty called on the Oilers, the most-penalized team in the NFL.

The Oilers have received 71 penalties for 701 yards in seven games, well above the NFL average of 45 for 362 yards. In their 34-14 victory Sunday over Pittsburgh, the Oilers were flagged 10 times for 105 yards.

THE FLAGRANT fouls have given the Oilers a reputation as a team that tries to intimidate opponents, whether by legal means or other. Wyche figured a few minutes studying the Houston film would get his Bengals in a more aggressive mood than last Sunday, when they were flat in a 27-21 loss to New England.

"They're a very physical team," Wyche said of Houston. "They border on one step beyond the physical, which is going to be very much an incentive factor for us to be ready to play."

Wyche stopped short of criticizing the Oilers' style of play, but said his players would have no trouble figuring out what they're in for Sunday.

"I call it physical right now," Wyche said. "I think our players can interpret off the film what their style of physical play is all about. We'll handle it on the field."

The Oilers figure their growing reputation has helped them develop into a playoff contender the last couple of years. A victory Sunday would move the Oilers into a first-place tie with Cincinnati at 6-2 in the AFC Central Division.

"I think it was good for a young team that somebody gave us an identity when we were struggling, gave us something to hold onto," Coach Jerry Glanville said. "And I think it works against you in that we sort of play in a fishbowl, under a microscope. I think people watch us very close."

QUARTERBACK Warren Moon, ready for his second start since recovering from a fractured shoulder bone, said he gets angry when teammates commit "stupid" fouls that give the other team better field position.

"Whenever we seem to lose, it seems to be because we beat ourselves with a lot of stupid penalties and we're not playing smart," he said. "When we do the things we're supposed to do, we pretty much outtalent people.

"I hope to have something to do with our team playing with a little bit more composure and a little bit more class."

Moon isn't the only one concerned by the large number of penalties. Glanville said he'd like for the Oilers to remain aggressive but reduce the infractions.

"We would love to play the exact same way we play without having one penalty," Glanville said. "That would really be nice. We haven't come close yet."

Too Tall concerns Eagle scrambler

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles quarterback Randall Cunningham sees Dallas Cowboys defenders Ed "Too Tall" Jones, Danny Noonan and Jim Jeffcoat in his sleep, not the Cleveland Browns.

Cunningham told reporters that after he finished talking with them, the 19-3 flop in Cleveland Sunday was a piece of history.

"I'm concerned only with 'Too Tall,' Noonan and Jeffcoat. They're still there, aren't they," he intoned.

The Eagles, 3-4, and Cowboys, 2-5, meet Sunday in an NFC game that should be promoted by boxing's Don King if you believe the pre-game hype.

The heat was generated last season when each accused the other of running up the score.

First, Eagles coach Buddy Ryan charged Cowboys coach Tom Landry with using veterans at the end when leading by 25 points in a strike replacement game in Dallas.

When they met later in Philadelphia after the strike, Ryan ordered two plays with 11 seconds left and a 30-20 lead that resulted in a touchdown.

Landry and his team were furious. They were embarrassed.

WORD FROM Dallas this week is that the Cowboys would like to grind the Eagles' noses into the artificial surface.

Cunningham doesn't want any part of the vendetta angle.

"We're coming to play ball," said the quarterback who suffered no little measure of embarrassment himself in the Cleveland game, when he was sacked nine times.

After completing 31 passes for 369 yards and two TDs in a Monday night win over the Giants, Cunningham was 15 of 27 for 114 yards with two intercepted against Cleveland. His string of 18 straight games with at least one TD was snapped.

"It was the inevitable clunker," he said. "No more of those."

Cunningham said the big job for the Eagles against Dallas is to control the blitz.

"We should be able to control the blitz, because we know what's happening and we're a smart team. We didn't do that against Cleveland. We have to contain 'Too Tall,' who is good at batting down passes all his life."

CUNNINGHAM doesn't think the Eagles have to make any offensive adjustments.

"All we have to do is execute. We just didn't do our jobs (against the Browns)," he observed.

Cunningham also would like a little help from the officials. He said he likes the "in the grasp" rule, but feels the officials sometimes are too quick to call it.

"A guy grabs you by the socks and you're in the grasp," he complained. "You need protection when they come at you blindside and knock the hell out of you."

Dallas' Landry tended to dismiss the hostility between the teams in favor of the Cowboys' main mission — snap a three-game losing streak. Dallas is off to its poorest start since 1965. They have not been as low as 2-6 since 1963.

"We got to win," said Landry. "We've lost three in-a-row and are at the bottom of the league (division). We can't worry too much about little things. We got to try and win a game."

4 teams eye Mattingly

By MICHAEL MARTINEZ
N.Y. Times News Service

OAKLAND, Calif. — Don Mattingly, the subject of trade rumors since he criticized Yankee management in August, is continuing to attract attention from at least two teams in each league, according to General Manager Bob Quinn. And the Yankees are listening.

Quinn declined to reveal the names of the clubs interested in the Yankee first baseman, although he did confirm talking to Jim Frey, the Chicago Cubs general manager about "a number of matters." The Cubs are believed to be intrigued by the notion of acquiring Mattingly.

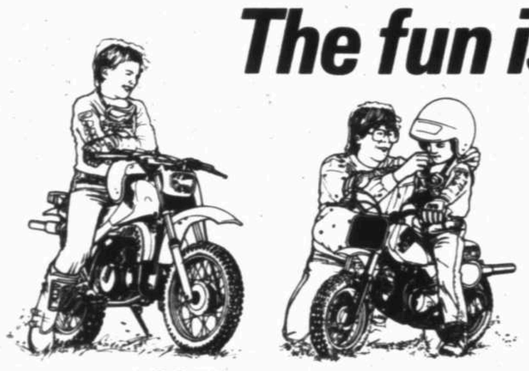

Quinn, however, said the price for Mattingly, who is apparently no longer considered untouchable by the Yankees, would be relatively high.

"There's been some interest here of late," Quinn said Thursday by telephone from Yankee Stadium, "but none of it has been solicited from our side. We've had inquiries from each league, but our standard operating procedure has been to say that if we're talking about a Mattingly, we'd have to have a quality left-handed hitter in return and pitching. Few teams have that to give."

Mattingly signed a three-year, $6.7 million contract last winter but did not produce the numbers of previous seasons. He batted .311 and finished with 18 home runs and 88 runs batted in, his lowest numbers since he became a full-time player in 1984.

On Aug. 21, after the Yankees lost three of four games to Seattle and fell six games out of first place in the American League East, Mattingly lashed out at management, and indirectly at George Steinbrenner, the principal owner.

Darryl phones to congratulate Tom

By GEORGE VECSEY
N.Y. Times News Service

OAKLAND, Calif. — The scene of this fantasy is Tom Lasorda's office long after the Dodgers clinched the World Series Thursday night.

Outside, the fans are driving off into the night, wondering how the brawny hometown heroes could lose to these Dodgers in five games. In the office, everybody is sitting around eating linguine con vongole and listening to Lasorda talk about the Great Pasta Machine in the Sky. The phone rings.m

"COLLECT call for Mr. Lasorda."

"Who is it, Operator? We're kind of busy right now."

"Sir, who shall I say is calling?"

"Darryl."

"All right, Operator, I'll take the call. Hey, Whitey Herzog, nice of you to call, but what's the idea of getting so formal and using your real name of Dorrel? Listen, your Cardinals will be back next year. And don't thank me again for pitching to Jack Clark in 1985 or I won't send over those trays of gnocchi al pesto next year."

"This isn't Dorrel. It's Darryl."

"I can't hear you because everybody's yelling so loud. Oh, Derrel. Derrel Thomas. Hey, great to hear from you, Derrel. You played all those positions for me. My super-sub. What's up, buddy?"

"This isn't Derrel. It's Darryl, Darryl Strawberry."

"Which Darryl Strawberry? I know lots of guys named Darryl Strawberry."

"With the Mets. Right field. Number 18. Local boy. Crenshaw High School. I used to sit in the bleachers and root for the Dodgers. Reggie Smith. Rick Monday. Dusty Baker. I've trying to get you all during the World Series. Congratulations."

"HEY, THAT'S nice of you, Darryl. I kept telling everybody that you Mets were the better team. Doc Gooden. Gary Carter. Keith Hernandez. Kevin McReynolds. I used to hide my eyes whenever you came to the plate against us, Darryl.

"If our playoff had gone any longer than seven games, you were going to crush us. We don't belong in your class, even without all our injuries. One writer said I was starting to sound like Uriah Heep, but he must have gotten that wrong. I think he meant I sounded like my secret weapon, Danny Heep."

"That's what I wanted to talk to you about, Tom. Everybody in L.A. is all excited. We don't know you did it, with all your guys getting hurt."

'Nobody took us seriously all year. Valenzuela got hurt. Griffin and Davis came over and didn't hit. We traded Guerrero for Tudor, and now Tudor's hurt. Then your guy David Cone wrote that column about how Jay Howell looked like a high school pitcher.

"BART Giamatti treated Howell like he was Al Capone just for having a little pine tar on his glove. Don Baylor ripped Howell. It's like my dear friend Rodney Dangerfield says, we don't get no respect."

"The thing that got me was all those injuries. I mean, we've had some injuries on the Mets, but nothing like this."

"You said it, Darryl. Kirk Gibson's legs. John Tudor's elbow. Mike Marshall's back."

"I know, I know. I was watching the pre-game show on Wednesday and I heard Bob Costas say the Dodgers might have had the worst starting lineup in World Series history. That must have made you guys mad."

"Mad? What are you talking about, Darryl? I loved it. Me and Kirk Gibson and Steve Sax and Mickey Hatcher, we're running around the clubhouse cursing NBC and cursing Costas like it was Korea and they were showing the boxing episode six dozen times a day. Hated it? I loved it. Played right into my hands. Guys were all pumped up.

"Then Mike Scioscia twists his knee at second base, Bill Buhler and I were helping poor Scioscia into the dugout and there's Rick Dempsey strapping on the mask, the chest protector and the shinguards. He's ready to go, and he hits a double tonight."

"I loved it on Wednesday when you said Bob Costas was the most valuable player of the game. But what about the future, Tom?"

"FUTURE, Darryl? I just want to enjoy this Series. What future?"

"You know, my contract with the Mets runs out in a couple of years and I've always wanted to finish up my career in my home town."

Lasorda clears his throat.m

"Ahem, Darryl, I don't think we should be having this conversation. If Bart Giamatti tried to suspend Jay Howell for three days for pine tar, he'd probably give me life for collusion."

"I'll pretend it never happened, Tom. But wouldn't it be great to write out a lineup card with Strawberry on it?"

"I'd love to, Darryl, but I've got to find room for Hatcher next year. After that home run tonight, he's gonna tear up the clubhouse if I don't play him every day next year."

"But I'd bring Davis with me."

"I've already got Davis. Mike Davis. After that two-run homer tonight, I think he'll find himself next year."

"Tom, Mike Davis only hit .196 this year. I'm talking about my pal Eric Davis. From Cincinnati."

"What a great ballplayer. He wears us out. I don't know how we finished ahead of the Reds this year."

"Eric and I used to dream of playing alongside each other in Dodger Stadium, just like in Little League."

"Darryl, you're gonna get me in trouble with this call."

"JUST say you were quoted out of context. What do you say, Tom? Just tell Fred Claire to save up some of Peter O'Malley's money and sign us when our contracts are up."

"Darryl, I've got some bad news for you. I don't care what NBC says about us. We just use it to our advantage. The truth is, we're not just a bunch of 'stunt men' like Rick Dempsey says, or 'little scrappers' like Mickey Hatcher says. We don't 'win ugly' like Kirk Gibson says. This is a handpicked ball club."

"But what about all the talk about the Mets being a better team? What about all the talk about the As power?"

Indoor bike race slated

From Staff Reports

Velodyne will hold its first National Indoor Bicycle race next month for the cyclist who would like to test his skills.

Peyton's will appoint an official race location for Midland which will be held Nov. 10 through Nov. 20.

A cyclist may enter more than once, but each time must pay the $5 entry fee.

The course will be a 2.3 mile segment of the 1988 Summer Games Road Race, fairly flat with short climbs and gentle descents.

Participants must complete and sign the waiver and entry form before the race.

The entry fee includes a free water bottle and free issue of Winning Magazine.

Race times are to be determined at each participating shop and will be within normal business hours. Practice rides are allowed, pending shop approval.

Just as in a typical race, drafting in a peloton (pack) enhances the rider's ability to win. Those who are able to maintain the pack's speed and remain in the pack are usually top finishers...

SUSAN VERNON of Taos Ski Valley informs that Ski and Skiing, the two major consumer ski magazines, had words of praise for New Mexico's TSV.

Ski reviewed the top 100 ski resorts in North America with 28 pros, members of the ski press and ski industry leaders ranked areas for terrain quality, difficulty of slopes, ski school, etc.

Taos ranked No. 1 for ski school. No 2 for difficulty and tied with Mammoth Mountain, Calif., for overall terrain quality.

Taos also received good marks for supervised out-of-bounds skiing off the ridges and ranked as one of 10 comeback resorts, where guests return.

Spinks joins drugs fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Michael Spinks says he has joined the fight against drugs as part of a promise to himself to be as good a person as he was a boxer.

"I'm a human being first and an athlete second," Spinks said Thursday after a new 22-bed drug detoxification unit at Bronx-Lebanon Hospital Center was named in honor of him and his promoter, Butch Lewis.

"As I came up, all the rest of the guys I boxed around portrayed bad images. They used their boxing abilities to outclass those who didn't box," he said in an interview.

Ex-UT back Koy caught in no man's land at A&M

By MARK WANGRIN

AUSTIN (AP) — To his veterinary school classmates at Texas A&M in the late 1970s, Ted Koy was known as that U.T. football player. To his friends back in Austin, he was known as that guy over at A&M.

"I was in no man's land," Koy recalled.

But Koy had grown accustomed to that feeling. As a sophomore at Texas, he played halfback behind star James Saxton. By the next season Saxton had moved on, but Koy found himself competing with a newcomer named Steve Worster for playing time in the Longhorns backfield alongside star Chris Gilbert.

"There were three running backs," Koy said. "One would have to sit on the bench."

Koy never had to settle for being a part-time player, though. When the Horns arrived for the 1968 season, Koy's junior year, they found a new offense waiting for them. Some called it the Double I. Others the Slingshot-T. Most now call it the Wishbone.

With Koy and Gilbert skirting the defensive perimeter on pitchouts and Worster pounding the middle, the Horns turned loose an offense that eventually brought the Horns a national championship in 1969.

Growing up in Bellville, the son of Ernie Koy, a UT star in the early 1930s, Koy played football and basketball.

Although a brother and a sister also attended UT, Koy said he didn't feel pressured to follow them. He remembered his father's only advice on the subject: that he narrow the choices down to a handful before making a decision. Koy did and kept coming up with the same conclusion.

"I kept comparing everything back to the university, and I always felt the university was on top," Koy said. "The only pressure really was from outside the family. They assumed I'd go single-file order to the university like everyone else."

Koy, whose older brother Ernie also played for the Longhorns, was picked in the second round of the NFL draft by the Oakland Raiders in 1970. Koy played for the Raiders for a year before being traded to Buffalo. Koy got a chance to do a little of everything with the Bills.

"I played running back, tight end, I even played defensive back and special teams," he said. "It was a good way to see the game, though."

Koy saw plenty. His first year in Buffalo, the Bills went 1-13, rebuilding under Lou Saban. By his third year, the Bills were becoming a contender. More importantly, they had a back named O.J. Simpson who was in the process of rushing for a then-NFL record 2,003 yards in 1973.

"Then and there, everyone realized there was a legend being made," Koy said. "A hall-of-famer, a top-notch star was being made. We'd pretty much go into games telling defenses we were going to run, and O.J. would still reel off 10, 20, 30 yards. It was uncanny to see that happen play after play."

Koy went back to school in the off-seasons, picking up the prerequisites he needed for veterinary school. When he had put in his five seasons — just enough for an NFL pension — he quit and went back to school. To Texas A&M.

"Like I told an old professor of mine," Koy explained, "going to A&M and being an Aggie are two different things."

Koy had been interested in being a vet since he was a child, when he saw his pet Boston Terrier Freddy get older and eventually die of kidney failure.

Koy and his wife Lynn, a former Texas Tech cheerleader, spend most of their free time with their children, Suzanne, 12, and Caroline, 10.

Kentucky aide says Sutton misquoted

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A Kentucky assistant coach who said he could vouch for Coach Eddie Sutton's assertion of being misquoted in a Sports Illustrated article was present for only a few minutes of an interview, a reporter said.

In the story, which deals with the NCAA's investigation of the Kentucky basketball program, Sutton accuses UCLA or Nevada-Las Vegas of putting $1,000 in a package Kentucky assistant Dwane Casey mailed to the father of a Wildcats' recruit.

One NCAA allegation says a package sent via Emery Air Freight by Casey to Claud Mills, father of recruit Chris Mills, popped open in transit, revealing 20 $50 bills.

"I was sitting with them at the time," assistant Jimmy Dykes said Thursday of the interview. "It was a very general conversation that covered a lot of areas and topics. Coach wasn't talking on the record. Even if he had been, he didn't say that."

LATER, Bruce Selcraig, the Sports Illustrated reporter who wrote the article, told Associated Press that Dykes was present during only the first eight to 10 minutes of the interview, then was called away to do an interview.

"We were by ourselves most of the time," Selcraig said of he and Sutton.

Dykes, contacted after Selcraig's assertion, read a statement that said: "Having been a part of and overhearing the conversation between Bruce Selcraig and Coach Sutton, I agree with Coach Sutton in that I also feel that he was misquoted in a story about our basketball program. I have talked with Bruce today about the incident, and he voiced his position and I stated mine. As far as our staff is concerned, it is now a dead issue."

Dykes declined to answer questions about how much of the interview he overheard and whether he was called away shortly after it began.

In its Oct. 24 edition, Sports Illustrated quoted Sutton as saying: "It was a setup, I know it. You can be sure Vegas or UCLA did it."

But in a statement released Wednesday night by the school, Sutton said:

"What I told the reporter was that the Emery incident is very bizarre, and that one of the theories that has been discussed is that the incident was a setup."

"My intent was never to implicate the coaching staffs of UNLV or UCLA or to reflect negatively upon their programs or fans. I called (Nevada-Las Vegas coach) Jerry Tarkanian, with whom I have been friends for many years, and also Jim Harrick at UCLA, to explain that I had been misquoted. Both accepted my explanation."

However, Tarkanian and Harrick told The Courier-Journal on Thursday that Sutton didn't tell them he had been misquoted, but did say the statement was taken out of context.

TARKANIAN said he believed Sutton did charge Nevada-Las Vegas with sabotage and that the quotes were not taken out of context.

Most U.S. adults don't exercise

CHICAGO (AP) — The nation's fascination with fitness is bypassing four-fifths of the population, according to a new study indicating only one in five U.S. adults gets a significant amount of exercise at least twice a week.

Forty-five percent of American adults don't participate in any fitness activity at all, the survey shows. The survey was released by the National Sporting Goods Association.

"You would have had to be living under the proverbial rock to miss hearing about the need for frequent participation in a fitness activity," said Thomas B. Doyle, research director for the sporting goods group.

"We know that regular exercise can reduce the risk of heart disease and help maintain a healthy weight," said Dr. J. Michael McGinnis, director of the federal Office of Disease Prevention and Health Promotion in Washington.

"And it can also make people feel better."

Yet the message doesn't seem to be getting through, especially to lesser educated adults, those over age 55 and those with annual incomes under $15,000 — the groups with the lowest rates of participation, according to the survey.

It defined significant exercise as aerobic exercising, cycling, calisthenics, exercising with equipment, exercise walking, running-jogging or swimming. It did not say how long each activity must be performed.

The survey's overall findings parallel those of previous studies by the national Centers for Disease Control and other groups.

Inactivity threatens the health of a far greater proportion of Americans than any of the much publicized evils of smoking, high blood pressure or high blood cholesterol, said Harold Kohn, an epidemiologist with the Institute of Aerobics Research in Dallas.

"An overwhelming majority of the population is not exercising currently at the levels we believe most optimal for health," he said in a telephone interview Friday.

Kohl said he believes people are discouraged by the belief that they must exercise at "optimal" levels — 20 minutes a day, three times a week, at 65 percent of the heart's maximum capacity to pump blood.

But latest findings indicate that the highest risks of death from fatal heart attacks or strokes occur only in the most inactive people, and substantial benefits result from activities such as brisk walks and gardening.

"And there is too much societal pressure on the ideal body, the Cheers or the Greg Louganises," he added, referring to the sleek singer-actress and the Olympic diver. "Someone looks at that and says, 'There's no way I can do that. I won't even try.' What we need to say is turn off the TV, do some gardening, take a walk after dinner."

Financing tough to find for Texas tracks

Bill Breese, of Austin's Manor Downs race track, is satisifed with progress being made by the Texas Racing Commission.

Houston is emerging as a battleground in the quest for licenses to run pari-mutuel racetracks in Texas. But investors in the rest of the state seem to face little competition in their quest to set up wagering systems.

Six of the seven Texas tracks that run American Quarter Horse Association nonpari-mutuel races expect to get licenses, their operators say. The seventh, Pineywood Downs in Nacogdoches, is in a county where voters turned down pari-mutuel wagering in a local election.

If any developers are considering a track in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, they are doing so quietly. One investors' group seems to have a lock on a San Antonio horse track. And the scramble for greyhound tracks in three Gulf Coast counties appears to be dominated by one group in each county.

But in Houston, two private groups are drawing up plans, and the president of the Texas Horsemen's Association is urging the city to build its own track.

Houston Downs Inc. wants to build a $100 million horse track near the Astrodome, said corporation spokesman John Bannerman.

Another group headed by industrialist Walter Mischer is looking at a site near Lake Houston, but little more is known about that proposal. Mischer did not return repeated phone calls from The Associated Press over a month-long period.

Bannerman said the toughest part of building a track will be finding money. He said his group might offer stock. Another option would be joint ownership with the city or county, but his group doesn't want to go that route.

"A lot of the applications are going to be leaning heavily on public funds," Bannerman said. "But I think the public's not going to go for tax money going to racing."

No so, says Al Poujol, president of the Texas Horsemen's Association. He thinks the city could profit from building an expandable track whose first phase would cost about $50 million. He estimates construction would add 7,000 jobs to the Houston economy, and that the track would employ 2,000 people permanently.

"It will pay for itself in nine or 10 years," Poujol said. "Why not let the city attract tourism? Certainly the hotels and restaurants are interested in it."

Poujol points out that the city would get the track's 8 percent share of the handle — the total amount of money wagered. Five percent more of the handle goes to the state and 5 percent pays purses; the balance is distributed as winnings.

An average daily handle of $1 million a day — which is typical of large tracks — would add $80,000, minus expenses, to the city's coffers each racing day, Poujol said.

City officials have been less than enthusiastic about spending tax money on a track.

With the price of oil recently sinking to a three-year low and the local economy struggling, financing a track in the oil-dependent city may be a difficult proposition, observers say.

Money will be similarly tight in more-diversified San Antonio, said Red McCombs, owner of the San Antonio Spurs and member of an investors group looking into building a horse track there.

"Racetrack financing is not high on the list of desirable financial investments," McCombs said.

His group, which includes San Antonio businessmen Joe and David Strauss and Marty Wender, has yet to decide on a site. They hope to spend no more than $50 million and have horses running by 1991.

Betting seen as economic barometer

Associated Press

One way to judge the economy is to see how much money people will gamble, say folks in the pari-mutuel racing industry.

If betting is an accurate barometer, the economic climate is getting gloomier in states surrounding Texas — all of which have pari-mutuel wagering on horses or hounds.

"When times get harder, the entertainment budget is the first to go," said Ken Campbell of the Texas Horse Racing Association. "You can't reduce your car payments."

The bright spot is Oklahoma, where $84 million Remington Park opened to good crowds on Labor Day weekend and continues to handle about $1 million each racing day.

The low spot is Nuevo Laredo Downs in Mexico. The track, which had been operating year-round since 1983, is closing this month. It might reopen in March.

"I think our economic situation as a whole is our major competition," spokesman Jimmy Newman said of the combination dog-horse track in Nuevo Laredo, across the Rio Grande from Laredo, Texas. "Neither city is very wealthy."

The drop in oil prices three years ago pinched the Southwest, and the effects have been felt at the tracks. Flat or falling gambling revenues have prompted Louisiana to experiment with off-track betting; Arkansas gave its horse-racing track more dates; and New Mexico is allowing more simulcasting this year.

Simulcasting allows people at one track to bet on a race being run somewhere else, but the betting pools are kept separate. Another revenue-boosting tactic, intertrack wagering, works much the same way but the money is transferred electronically between tracks.

Now Texas is stepping into the business. Smaller horse tracks in the state are expected to open their betting windows in late spring or summer.

Track operators across the region hope Texas' entry into pari-mutuel racing will help create a strong Southwestern racing circuit that would rival those in the Northeast and California.

Stronger circuits draw better horses, and hence raise public interest. Horsemen are confident they can draw the nation's best horses if tracks in adjoining states don't compete head-to-head by holding simultaneous racing seasons.

But ultimately, the region's overall economy will dictate whether racing will thrive.

Foremost on the minds of Oklahoma racing officials is the danger of expanding pari-mutuel racing too fast. "That's been our goal all along — to not saturate the market and to allow orderly growth," said Benny Lovett, director of law enforcement for the Oklahoma Horse Racing Commission.

So six years after Oklahomans approved pari-mutuel, only two tracks — Remington in Oklahoma City and Blue Ribbon Downs in Sallisaw — race regularly. There are two short county fair meets.

No new major tracks will be built until Remington Park has had about two years to establish a regular following.

In contrast to Oklahoma, New Mexico has six tracks. Its racing industry, which was shaken by a drugging scandal last year, has seen declining revenues.

In response, the New Mexico Racing Commission is allowing more simulcasting from out-of-state tracks and is considering allowing intertrack wagering within the state.

One track that probably doesn't need such gimmicks is Ruidoso Downs, high in the mountains of southern New Mexico. Ruidoso runs a summer meet, and busloads of racing fans and cool-weather seekers visit from as far away as Dallas.

Ruidoso Downs general manager Rick Henson said he's not bothered by the impending opening of Lubbock Downs in Texas.

"When it's 110 in Texas, they'll still come to the mountains," Henson said. "That's one thing Texas can't take away from us."

During the fall and winter, El Paso residents visit the New Mexico suburb of Sunland Park, where the track of the same name plans to expand simulcasting this season.

In its first season under new ownership last year, Sunland Park saw a 3.5 percent increase in the handle — the total amount bet — to $31.7 million. General manager Art Johnson hopes that doubling simulcast races, to 21 a week, will boost the handle even more.

Sunland Park also will host the Quarter Horse Breeders Classics races early next year.

"We're very proud," Johnson said. "It's the first time it's been out of a major state — California, New York, Illinois."

Though El Paso is Texas' poorest big city, it has the richest racing opportunities.

NORTHWESTERN BAPTIST CHURCH

Two seminary professors were discussing a former student who had got into some difficulty. One professor said, "They tell me he was a student of yours." The other replied, "He attended my classes, but he was never a student of mine."

It takes more than sitting at the feet of Jesus to be his disciple.

Learn with us what being a disciple really means.

The Wondrous World Of Childhood

This child is filled with wonder for God's handiwork. There's something rare in a young child's eyes. If only we could see the world through the eyes of a child, we would know how wondrous is His work.

Jesus knew this when he said "Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom as a little child, he shall not enter therein." Mark 10:15.

Open your eyes, try to see the world through a child's eyes. You will marvel at what you see.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Area Southern Baptists keep all ministries afloat

In the midst of statewide economic decline and the resultant year-to-date $3.2 million shortfall in giving through the Texas Baptist Cooperative Program unified missions budget, Southern Baptists in the Midland-Odessa area have managed to keep all of their ministries in operation.

Jimmy Law, director of missions for the counties of Midland, Ector, Winkler, Reeves, Pecos and Ward, said that in an association of 81 congregations with 30,500 members only about 40 percent are meeting their budget.

However, he stressed the churches' overall commitment to the Cooperative Program, the financial channel through which local Baptist churches give an agreed-upon amount or percentage of undesignated offerings to support worldwide Southern Baptist missionary, educational and benevolent causes.

Statewide, the shortfall in Cooperative Program receipts means fewer opportunities for missions and ministry, according to several Texas Baptist leaders.

The depressed economy, misplaced priorities, controversy within the Southern Baptist Convention and ignorance about the Cooperative Program all are contributing to the current shortfall in Texas Cooperative Program giving, state Baptist leaders have said.

Pianist to have recital

Trinity Presbyterian Church will present Clive Swansbourne, pianist, in recital at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Swansbourne is on the music faculty of the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

He was born in Surry, England, and graduated from the Royal College of Music in London. He was awarded a Doctorate in Performance from the Yale School of Music where he worked with Claude Frank and Ward Dovenny.

He has given over 200 recital, concerto and chamber music performances throughout the U.S.A., Canada, England and Scotland. His London debut received a rave review in The London "Times," and his BBC recital debut was broadcast on radio stations in nearly every major American city.

Swansbourne has won the Royal College of Music Concerto Competition, the Young Musicians '77 Award in London, the Artists International Auditions in New York, no less than three Gold Medals at the International Piano Recording Competition and the third highest prize at the Maryland International Piano Competition.

The public is invited to attend this first of the Fall Concert Series offered by Trinity Presbyterian Church.

Scout donates swing

Residents of the Lutheran Home-Permian Basin are swinging in style thanks to a dedicated scout.

Brian Matschull, 15-year-old son of Larry and Janet Matschull, made a special swing set complete with a sun roof for the courtyard of the nursing home. An active member of Scout Troop 176 led by Tom Elliott, Matschull made with swing to fulfill community service requirements for his Eagle Award.

The swing was dedicated on Sept. 18, with the Rev. Ray Johansen and the Rev. Donald Hafemann officiating. According to Liz Jones, Social Activity Director, "the residents are thrilled with this special gift. They are eagerly awaiting their turn to take advantage of the beautiful fall weather and such a memorable, relaxing activity"

Priscilla Hammer, Vice President — Residential Services of Lutheran Social Service of Texas, noted that "this young man's contribution set an example for others to follow. Brian could have volunteered anywhere but he chose to provide a meaningful gift for a group of our senior citizens. Too often people forget that residents in nursing homes are still a vital part of our community. Thanks to volunteers like Brian, our residents are not forgotten."

The Lutheran Home — Permian Basin, located at 3203 Sage, would like to encourage the Midland community to visit at any time. New administrator Ross Burrows believes "people will be pleasantly surprised at the changes we have made recently. Come for a visit and see for yourself. Take a ride in our new swing!"

Day to unite women

World Community Day, observed on November 4 is an annual event that unites Protestant, Roman Catholic, Orthodox and other Christian women in a common worship experience. It will be held at First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas, at 10:30 a.m. and luncheon will be held at 11:30 a.m.

This year's ecumenical service, entitled "Everywoman's Ministry," was written by churchwomen, both lay and ordained. It challenges women to recognize and share the gifts of their individual ministries performed within and outside the organized church that touch families, friends, neighbors — the sick, elderly and destitute.

"It is our hope that all who can will join in this year's celebration of World Community Day," says a news release from Church Women United. "We also hope all who support women's ministries of love and service will make a generous offering."

These World Community Day offerings make possible, in part, the mission of Church Women United and support its national commitment to eliminate the poverty of women and children in this country and build a world of peace and justice, the release says.

For more information, contact the First Presbyterian Church, 684-7821.

Health fair scheduled

Trinity Presbyterian Church, 2800 West Louisiana Ave., is planning a Health Fair during its Super Wednesday Night program from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Nov. 2.

Women's and Children's Hospital in Odessa will bring a portable mammogram unit, which will be available during the entire day on Wednesday for Trinity members and members of the community. Appointments can be made by calling 561-9999. Cost of the mammogram is $50. The unit will be at the church from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Other associations sponsoring a booth at this Health Fair are American Heart Association, American Red Cross, American Cancer Society, Midland Council on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse, Midland YMCA, Stress Management, Cardio Central Cardiac Rehab.

Members of Trinity, their guests and all those interested from the community are invited to attend.

Champions week to begin

STANTON — The Stanton Fellowship of Christian Athletics, along with area churches, is sponsoring a "Week of Champions" beginning Monday.

"Outstanding and successful Christians from around the country are coming to share and present Christ through music and testimonies," says a release from Wilma Stirl, Stanton's FCA coach.

On Monday night, the 1986 Texas State Powerlifting Champion in the Masters Divisions, Ernie Lane will tell about his life with and without Christ. Special music will be provided by the "Advocates," a Christian-rock band from Midland.

The featured speaker for Tuesday will be Jimmy Thomas, head basketball coach from Reagan County High School.

"He is a successful Christian coach who has taken several different schools to the regional finals," the release says.

All junior high and high school youth are invited to come to the Stanton High School Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday for the programs.

Roberson set to speak

SAN ANGELO — Teacher-evangelist Dave Roberson will be ministering at the Days Inn Riverside Convention Center, 333 Rio Concho Dr. in San Angelo at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. Friday, and 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. Saturday.

Roberson is president of New Creation Ministries in Tulsa, Okla. and has become one of the most inspired teaching evangelists in the United States, says a release from Faith Teaching Ministries, San Angelo.

"His ministry reaches the whole man — spirit, soul and body — suing the power of the Word of God to meet the needs of everyone, whether spiritual, mental, physical or financial," the release says. "The underlying theme of Roberson's ministry is training others, so that they can learn how to walk in the Spirit."

For more information, contact Faith Teaching Ministries, 1-944-2075.

Barnabas Awards given

First Christian Church presented its annual "Barnabas Awards" on Sunday, Oct. 16. The awards recognize church members who embody the spirit of St. Paul's companion, "The Encourager."

Recipients for 1988 were: Jo Sneed, from the Genesis Class; Sarah Schneider, from the Lost and Found Class; Eual Donovan, from the Loyal Bereans Class; Bob Leibrock, from the Pairs and Spares Class; Harold Jones, from the Fellowship Class; Faye Casey and Jim Morris, from the Congregation at Large.

Women to host bazaar

IRAAN — The Ladies' Christian Service of the Iraan Christian Church will sponsor its Annual Arts and Crafts Bazaar from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Nov. 18, in the Iraan Community Center.

Tables will be set up to accommodate those wishing to display their arts and crafts. The ladies of the church will have a table of home-cooked goods, bakery items, and Christmas goodies for the holiday season.

All individuals, clubs, and organizations of local and surrounding towns are cordially invited to participate in this annual event. For more information, call Rose Mary Rogers, 1-639-2417, or Kathy Webber, 1-639-2251.

Blessitt to give testimony

Sherry Blessitt, wife of evangelist Arthur Blessitt, will share her testimony in the Fellowship Hall at First Baptist Church from 10 to 11:30 a.m. today.

"All women are invited to hear this unusual testimony of Sherry's role as wife of the only man that has carried a 12-foot cross and walked literally around the world for the past 20 years sharing he message of Jesus Christ," says a release from the church.

Refreshments will be served.

Arthur Blessitt will speak at 7 p.m. today at the Midland High School Auditorium for a City Wide Rally. No admission will be charged.

Lewis, 'Amens' to sing

Alamo Heights Baptist Church will present Jerry Lewis and the "Amens" in concert at 7 p.m. Sunday.

Lewis is a full time music revivalist. His wife, Sharon, is a part of this ministry of singing. The "Amens" are a group of men from First Baptist Church of Stanton.

Lewis has recently completed three years of service at First Baptist Church in Stanton as Minister of Praise/Youth.

The congregation of Alamo Heights Baptist invites the public to this concert at 1305 North Midland Drive. A nursery will be provided.

'Rescuing' workshop set

An "Operation Rescue" representative will present a workshop on rescuing from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. today at the Word of Life, 3838 West Wall.

"A rescue in its simplest definition is the closing off of the entrances to an abortion clinic by using your body as a blockade," says Russ Austin of Word of Life.

In the last three months, over 4,500 people have been arrested in a handful of cities as they participated in "Rescue Missions" at abortion clinics, says Austin, who himself was arrested in an Atlanta abortion protest earlier this month.

All those interested in learning more about "Operation Rescue," are invited to attend. For more information, call 687-0337.

Children's program slated

A child advocacy program, sponsored by Trinity Presbyterian Church's Women's Group, will be held 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the church, 2800 W. Louisiana Ave.

Local guest speakers will be addressing issues facing young children in Midland and across the nation. Topics to be discussed will include day care concerns, latch-key children, child abuse and neglect, teen pregnancy and local emergency relief services for children.

The public is invited at 7 p.m. for social time with the program beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Wolmarans to speak

Wolmarans

The Rev. Theo Wolmarans will be the guest speaker at Word of Life Church, 3838 West Wall, at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Wolmarans and his wife, Beverly, are pastors of Christian City Church in Edenvale, Republic of South Africa. The Wolmarans are founders of the church which presently has 5,000 members. The Wolmarans have regularly scheduled Miracle Services and believe in the power of God for healing.

Pastor Russ Austin invites the public to hear this couple speak.

Follow-up luncheon set

The First Baptist Church of Midland is holding a follow-up luncheon in the Fellowship Hall at noon Nov. 3, when registrations for high school and men's basketball teams will be held.

All interested persons are asked to make their reservation with Charlie Elliott at 682-7669.

Basketball season starts Dec. 1, and registration fees must be in before that time.

Special choir service set

The Choirs of the First Christian Church of Midland, 1301 W. Louisiana Ave., will present a Special Service of Music at 10:45 a.m. Sunday.

Hymns and anthems of praise, prayer, and thanksgiving will be accompanied by handbell ensembles and The Lone Star Brass Quintet.

"Music is God's idea — a luxurious gift which has enriched life since earliest times," says a release from the church.

The public is invited to share in this service of communion and praising God through music.

Former Satanist to speak

ODESSA — Greg Reid, former Satanist and recently featured guest on KMID's television special "Children in Satan's Shadow," will be speaking Oct. 29 and Oct. 30 in Odessa.

The two-night seminar entitled "Halloween Unmasked — An Occult Expose" will be held at Bonham Junior High School auditorium, East 21 and Royalty.

Along with Greg Reid, in concert will be the music group Crosswind. The program begins both nights at 7:30 p.m. and is open to the public.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You can put a mistake behind you and forge ahead. Guilt is no basis for a lasting relationship. If partner really loves you, you will have the freedom to be alone when you want it. Strive to be as creative as possible in your work. Innovative ideas win you wider recognition. Sharing a secret hideaway could be the start of something very special. Protect your privacy from outsiders. Children play a more prominent role in your plans.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: country star Dwight Yoakum, talk show host Johnny Carson, author Michael Crichton, Sen. John Heinz III, golfer Chi Chi Rodriguez.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Start thinking about the year-end holidays. Make plans now to be assured of reservations. Family members have definite ideas about where they want to go. A good day to make home repairs.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You seem to have extra sex appeal this weekend. Your story-telling abilities prompt someone to suggest you write a book. You feel this should be a lazy day, but others urge activity.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You will thoroughly enjoy an outing with good friends. You feel comfortable and can let down your hair. If the weather turns bad, exercise indoors. Try aerobics or walking up and down stairs.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be at your glamorous best when you go to see someone you want to impress. Find ways to improve your image with your co-workers. An inspirational conversation has you itching to do something different.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You radiate success, becoming the center of attention at a party. Morning may find you buying new clothes. Look for bargains without losing sight of the kind of wardrobe you need.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Try to be more disciplined when shopping and spending money on entertainment. A little humor helps you get the attention of those you love. Be sure partner is not neglected.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your personality can help turn a social disaster to your advantage. Do not run away from your responsibilities. Pay bills when due to avoid jeopardizing your credit rating.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A letter makes you feel closer to loved one. You enjoy exploring on your own. Inspiration can come from a walk in the woods or mountains. Do not compare current relationship to a previous one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Friends will be affectionate now. This could come as a pleasant surprise. Talking over a financial situation with those at home will help you find a solution. Curl up with a book.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You have a wonderful experience and will want to share it by phone with a close associate or family member. A partnership becomes more meaningful. Show your appreciation for a special favor.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Do not neglect educational opportunities when traveling. You welcome new experiences far from home. Relationship problems will grow until you both face up to the real source of trouble. Curb spending.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A love relationship grows in intensity. You learn a valuable lesson about people and romance. A child is reaching out for help. Be sure you do not miss the signals.

Country music singer, wife post bail for indigent woman

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music star Little Jimmy Dickens and his wife won the praises of Gov. Ned McWherter for posting $2,500 bond so an indigent woman could be released from jail.

McWherter, in a letter to the couple, cited their "compassion and kindness" for enabling Lydia Roberts to get out of jail in Manchester.

The couple posted her bond Oct. 12 after reading news accounts about her. Ms. Roberts, a divorcee and mother of two, was jailed for writing two worthless checks totaling $2,106. She had spent 99 days in jail.

Princess Anne

NEWPORT, England (AP) — Princess Anne visited top-security Parkurst prison on the Isle of Wight off England's south coast Friday and chatted with some of Britain's most hardened criminals.

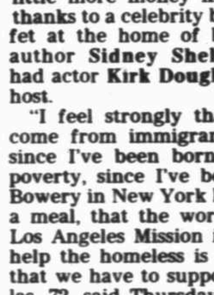

The 38-year-old daughter of Queen Elizabeth II spent nearly two hours at the prison visiting the hospital, meeting prison guards and chatting to some of the men in C wing, a special unit which holds 15 long-term and disruptive prisoners.

One prisoner gave the princess a cheese board he had made for her.

"Someone must have told you I'm on a high-protein cheese diet, and it's very handy," she said.

"It was a very relaxed tour and some very difficult prisoners warmed to her and talked to her," said Reginald Withers, the prison's governor.

Von Bulow

NEW YORK (AP) — An upcoming auction of art and antiques will feature the collection of Claus von Bulow and his wife, Sunny, whom he was accused of trying to murder, The New York Times reported Friday.

"Sotheby's lips are sealed, but mention its Oct. 28 and 29 sale entitled 'Property from a Private Collection' to any serious dealer or collector and the reaction will immediately be nods or winks," the Times said.

The offerings, which Sotheby's predicts will bring between $6 million and $7.5 million, reportedly include furnishings from Clarendon Court, the von Bulows' mansion in Newport, R.I., and pieces from their Manhattan apartment.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Skid Row's Los Angeles Mission has a little more money in the bank thanks to a celebrity benefit buffet at the home of best-selling author Sidney Sheldon, who had actor Kirk Douglas as a co-host.

"I feel strongly that, since I come from immigrant parents, since I've been born in abject poverty, since I've been in the Bowery in New York looking for a meal, that the work that the Los Angeles Mission is doing to help the homeless is something that we have to support," Douglas, 72, said Thursday.

The guest list included Sidney Poitier, Jaclyn Smith, Zsa Zsa Gabor and Red Buttons.

Douglas detailed his struggle with poverty in his recently published autobiography, "The Ragman's Son."

Cher

CHICAGO (AP) — Academy Award-winning actress Cher says the beginning of her relationship with her 24-year-old boyfriend two years ago provoked anxiety.

"I felt I was starting to fall into a pattern of being only with younger guys," said the 42-year-old actress and singer. "I thought that was maybe a fault or a weakness, something detrimental in my character. Now I don't know that it's not and I don't know that I care."

The star of "Moonstruck" said she does not feel she is a pioneer for women because of her relationships with younger men, but she added:

"I'm really happy to give women the courage to do the thing they might want to do....If they need someone to go before them I'm happy to help.

Reorganized Church releases sketches of innovative temple

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. — The first design sketches of the temple to be built here by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints were released Sept. 16 by Wallace B. Smith, president of the church.

"The temple will be a witness to the world of the church's belief in God and will be dedicated to the pursuit of peace," Smith said.

The temple will be open to the public.

Design architect for the temple is Gyo Obata, chairman of Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum, Inc., of St. Louis.

Smith said the design is the result of close collaboration between the church's spiritual leaders who have interpreted the purposes and uses of the temple and the creative genius of the architect.

Spaces in the temple include a sanctuary to seat 1,800 persons, classrooms and library for leadership education and offices for church officials. The public will be invited to share in programs of worship, music, and symposia on religious topics.

The design, a spiral which will reach up over 300 feet, is based on one mathematical formula.

Smith said the design will express growth, dynamism, harmony, unity, and the worldwide presence of the church.

In an earlier briefing to the Temple Project Committee, Smith and Obata pointed out that the design grows from a single source to infinity.

"The design is taken from nature where it is found in the nautilus seashell, the human umbilical cord, the DNA molecule, galactic nebulas, and many plants and other forms of life all over the world," Smith said.

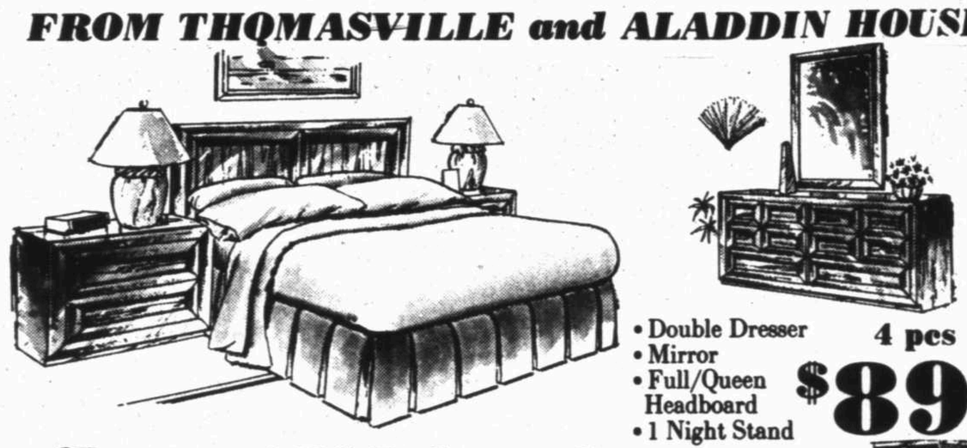

"The spiral does not reflect any particular architectural style, but is a form found throughout the universe and is familiar to all cultures," Obata said.

The temple will be built on a 13-acre site adjacent to the RLDS Auditorium. The site is bounded by Lexington, River, Walnut, and Pendleton streets.

A $60 million funding program is in progress. The first phase is scheduled to be completed Nov. 6 when financial commitments by members all over the world will be reported at a "celebration"' to be held in the Auditorium and broadcast by satellite to local churches in the United States and Canada.

Virgin Mary's 'weeping' at Chicago cathedral called miraculous sign

CHICAGO (AP) — Costandini Cosma says her eyesight was so poor she could hardly see, before the Virgin Mary began "weeping" at St. Nicholas Albanian Orthodox Church. Now, her eyes feel much better.

"I believe," the 74-year-old parishoner said Wednesday.

She believes the icon that appears to be shedding tears rewards those who have faith. And like thousands of others, she has stood in line for hours to get a look at what St. Nicholas' pastor calls a "phenomenon, a miraculous sign."

It's the second time the icon shows wet streaks under the eyes. The first time started in December 1986 and lasted seven months, attracting millions to the small, 17-pew church on Chicago's Northwest Side.

Last week, a man who entered the church to pray spotted the streaks.

"We had just finished a prayer service and I was in the banquet hall," said the Rev. Philip Koufos, the pastor. "He came running in saying he saw something strange in the eyes.

"We feel very blessed," said Koufos. "The mother of God is saying 'I'm still with you.'"

The church is open only three days a week, and despite the interest in the icon, Koufos says he has no plans to extend the hours as he did in 1987.

So at 10 a.m. on Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday, the line starts at the altar rail and snakes to the back of church, through the vestibule and into the adjacent banquet hall.

When the viewer gets to the rail, the icon hangs about 10 feet away behind a plexiglass shield. An usher helps visitors get the best angle to see what Koufos calls the "trickles of tears."

After a few seconds, another viewer steps up.

"People sometimes go around a number of times," Koufos said. "Some stay in the church for hours.

"They come for all sorts of reasons," he added. "Some come looking for consolation, contrition, out of curiosity — for every possible reason. Some are looking for cures."

The queue has parents carrying children, people toting Bibles and the devout clutching basil leaves, an Albanian Orthodox practice. All bear a desire to witness what most consider a bizarre yet pious mystery.

"I believe it," said Eleanor Chiczewski of Elmwood Park. "I need help. I came here hoping she could help me. I'm Roman Catholic but it's God, Jesus and Mary; it's all the same."

Patricia Slove, 22, of Chicago considers the tears a miracle.

"When I came here I saw a streak," she said. "On TV I saw a stream of water. Maybe she was crying harder then. It's a mystery to me. Why is there glass in front of her? Is it for reflection? You can't study it. They move you right along."

"Not for any deep faith experience," Ms. Duke, 54, explained. "But I had hoped to feel a little different. Maybe I'll come back."

A collection basket is kept at the rear of church and all donations go to the poor, Koufos said. Many people drop dollar bills at the altar rail after viewing the icon.

Blackwoods to have concert

The singing ministry of R.W. and Donna Blackwood of the Blackwood Brothers Gospel Singers from Memphis, Tenn., will be in concert at the Living Way Foursquare Church, 419 Alta, at 6 p.m. Sunday.

"The Blackwoods not only sing but they also minister to the needs of the people; to see people healed, the hurting relieved, the broken hearts healed and the lost saved," says a release from the church. "They want people to realize that the Lord really loves them."

The Blackwoods make II Corinthians 4:5 an active part of their lives, and base their ministry on Psalms 69:30, "I will praise the name of the Lord with a song. I will magnify Him with thanksgiving," the release says.

This concert is offered free to the public and everyone is invited. Seating will be on a first-come basis.

Hispanic voters may decide crucial Texas, California races

By SCOTT McCARTNEY

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The outcome of closely fought presidential races in Texas and California may hinge on whether George Bush or Michael Dukakis captures the Hispanic vote, but both candidates seem surprisingly inept in pursuing this fast-growing electorate.

Although the Democratic nominee speaks Spanish, the Dukakis campaign only recently has begun scrambling to deal with what some observers say is a dangerous lack of local organizing and his half-hearted, post-primary courting of Hispanics in California.

"At this moment it (the Hispanic vote) is in jeopardy," said Ruben Bonilla, director of the Mexican-American Democratic Political Action Committee. "There are certain things that need to be done, and we're in danger of running out of time."

At the same time, Bush's own Hispanic initiative hasn't lived up to his Republican supporters' expectations, and has been weakened by highly publicized comments by the vice president that some Hispanic leaders found offensive.

"Everyone's angry — the Latino Democrats and Republicans," said Richard Santillan, a professor at California State Polytechnic University at Pomona.

"Both campaigns are doing the same thing — taking the Hispanic vote for granted," he said.

At stake in the Hispanic community, ironically, are enough votes to tip the balance of victory in a close contest.

In the past 12 years, rapid population growth and massive voter registration efforts have nearly tripled the number of eligible Hispanic voters. More than half of all Hispanics live in California, Texas and New Mexico, which together carry 81 electoral votes, or 30 percent of the 270 electoral votes needed to win the presidency.

Pollsters say the presidential races in California and perhaps in Texas may come down to margins of about 100,000 votes either way. Hispanic groups have registered 100,000 new voters in California and 70,000 in Texas this year.

Hispanics already are credited with providing victory margins for Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., in 1986, and for Dukakis on the "Super Tuesday" primary in Texas.

But to provide the margin of victory over Bush, who leads in most polls, analysts say Dukakis would have to win upwards of 75 percent of a large Hispanic turnout. Bush is seeking at least one-third of the vote or else a low turnout.

Hispanics traditionally have low turnout rates in presidential elections. Excitement about Dukakis and the prospect of helping to decide a close race led experts to predict record numbers of Hispanics casting ballots on Nov. 8.

Those predictions may now be in doubt. In poorer Hispanic neighborhoods, which usually are Democratic strongholds, the key to winning is effective door-to-door campaigning, high-profile rallies and workable get-out-the-vote machinery. There also must be a close race, where Hispanics believe their votes can make a difference.

"The burden really is on Dukakis to convince people, and for his machine to get people to come out and vote," said Cal Tech's Santillan, an expert on voting trends and ethnic studies. "I don't know if he's been able to do that."

Said Richard Martinez, California director of the non-partisan Southwest Voter Registration Education Project:

"The longer they wait, the more options they cut off. The key for the Democrats is, are you going to be smart enough to make the investment and get out that 75 percent you need? Are you going to play your Hispanic card?"

Bush has tried to corral Hispanic voters by stressing his stands for a strong military and against abortion and crime, and pointing to the Reagan administration's new Hispanic education secretary, Lauro Cavazos.

The vice president is targeting middle-class neighborhoods which are more likely to vote Republican.

Dukakis hasn't campaigned in the Hispanic stronghold of South Texas since July.

Government fights back in Chicago

EDITOR'S NOTE: Among the hardest workers in Chicago, "the city that works," have been federal prosecutors and FBI agents who in recent years have bagged a remarkable number of public officials, including judges, for various forms of corruption. The feds' sometimes imaginative operations are far from over.

By WILLIAM C. HIDLAY

CHICAGO (AP) — Bribery, influence-peddling and political extortion have been as much of a tradition in the city that works as elevated trains, the Cubs and gangsters like Al Capone.

But federal authorities have fought back in a fashion that would have made G-man Eliot Ness proud, weaving elaborate sting operations with undercover agents paying off crooked cops, judges and politicians — and taping it all on hidden recorders.

"Corruption is an epidemic-proportion problem in Chicago," says U.S. Attorney Anton Valukas. "It would be hard for me to imagine a city in which there was more corruption."

To counteract Chicago's custom of greasing political palms to get things done, the FBI has run five major undercover stings reaching into virtually every area of local government in the past decade.

THE MAJOR INVESTIGATIONS are continuing. Valukas predicts more indictments for political corruption before January.

"We have cases pending now that we can't even talk about that will be coming down in about 18 months," adds Bob Walsh, special assistant in charge of the FBI's Chicago office.

Since May 1985, when Valukas was promoted to U.S. Attorney for the northern district of Illinois, 265 public officials, government employees and business owners have been indicted for corruption, the prosecutor says.

Since 1971, when federal agents and prosecutors first took aim at public corruption, 15 City Council members have been indicted. Fourteen have been convicted and one awaits trial, Valukas says.

One probe, code-named Operation Greylord, exposed the largest judicial corruption scandal in the nation's history. So far, 90 judges, lawyers and other court employees have been indicted and 70 have been convicted, including 14 judges. Three won acquittal and two have died while awaiting trial. The remaining cases are pending.

In Operation Safebet, undercover agents penetrated the seamy world of mob control in prostitution and bookmaking, uncovering a pattern of protection payoffs to vice police.

Along the way, they nabbed Bruce Frasch. A vice officer for the county sheriff's police, Frasch once was caught by another officer naked in a hot tub with a prostitute.

But it didn't slow his career and within a year he was named Cook County's commander of vice control. Frasch was later convicted of accepting bribes from bookmakers and bordello operators for protection from arrest.

THE SAFEBET STING also led federal authorities to reopen a local murder investigation.

James Keating, who was on the take while head of intelligence for the sheriff's police, bragged to an undercover FBI agent wired for sound that the 1982 gangland-style slaying of a suburban college official would never be solved.

Keating eventually was convicted of taking payoffs to protect vice rackets and recently was indicted on charges of agreeing for $25,000 to find someone to kill the official.

Three other stings have taken aim at classic Chicago-style corruption, Valukas says.

Operation Lantern tackled payoffs in city purchasing. Operation Phocus ferreted out bribery in business licensing and zoning. And Operation Incubator, the last major investigation unveiled by Chicago's G-men, uncovered City Hall influence peddling.

"We have indicted and convicted half of the electrical inspectors in the city of Chicago, half of the consumer services inspectors and almost three-quarters of the sewer inspectors," the chief federal prosecutor says.

"Corruption historically has been a way of life in Chicago," says the FBI's Robert Walsh. "People over the years have been more willing to pay $10 than get a speeding ticket or to pay a bribe to get a mooring slip in Monroe Harbor."

Some think the picture is a bit distorted.

"I do not believe this city is as corrupt as they portray it in the federal courts," says Louis Farina, a former alderman who was convicted of extortion and served a year in prison. "Sure there are frailties in government. Sure there is a little corruption in business.

"But when you blow it apart with Abscams, rest assured you're going to put every politician in jail or embarrass him so much he commits suicide. I'd advise people to stay out of politics because the government is going to set you up. And I think that's a shame," says Farina, a longtime ally and political appointee of former Mayor Richard J. Daley.

WALSH CONTENDS corruption has flourished in part because state and local laws make it difficult to prosecute such cases.

Chicago's 100-year history of Democratic machine politics also promoted graft and made petty corruption seem like an ordinary part of doing business, says Dick Simpson, a former alderman and now an associate political science professor at the University of Illinois' Chicago campus.

"In terms of political culture, Chicago is still more accepting of graft and corruption than other communities around the country," says Simpson, an alderman from 1971 to 1979.

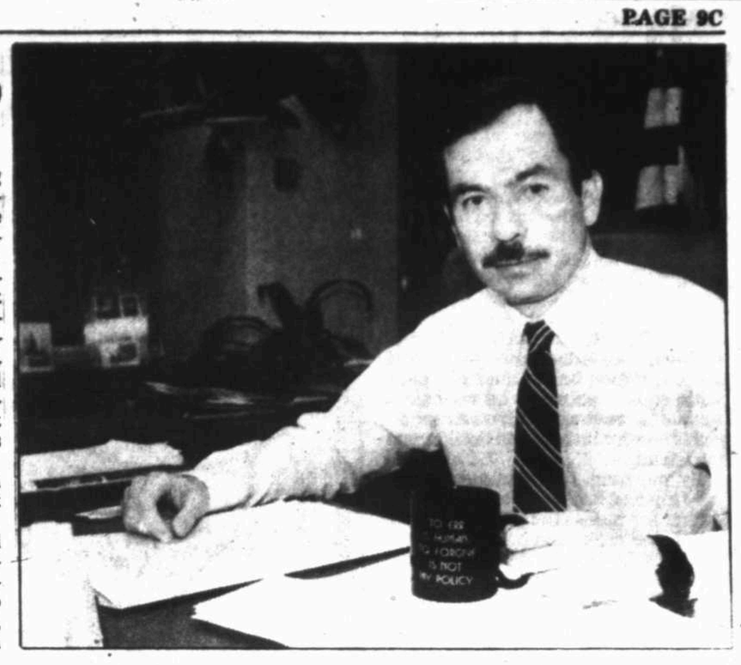

"The political machine operated on trading favors for votes. The precinct captains would say, 'OK, I'll get your son a job as a lifeguard this summer if you give us your vote.'

"So the political system was an economic system of payoffs that ended up leading to corruption."

In the early 1970s, the FBI and then-U.S. Attorney James R. Thompson, now the state's governor, decided they could use federal laws to fight local corruption. At the time, neither agency had a corruption squad.

They began by attacking shakedown artists within the ranks of the Chicago Police Department.

Over the next few years, more than 100 police officers were convicted of extorting bribes from tavern keepers, restaurateurs and other business owners by threatening to charge them with non-existent licensing violations, says FBI spokesman Bob Long.

Anton Valukas serves as U.S. Attorney for the northern district of Illinois.

Sailors' refuge restored

HUTCHINSON ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — During an Atlantic storm April 19, 1886, a 371-ton brigantine, J.H. Lane, with eight crewmen and a cargo of molasses, went aground on a reef 5½ miles south-southeast of this elongated island.

By morning, the twin-masted sailing ship had broken apart, scattering debris for miles along the coast. Seven of the crew survived because of Gilbert's Bar House of Refuge, built here 10 years earlier, and its keeper, Samuel F. Bunker.

Despite a raging sea, Bunker tied a line to himself with one end held by two assistants on shore and waded into the surf to pull some of the exhausted men to safety. A drink of brandy, hot food, dry clothing and beds awaited the survivors at the house.

"This is the only house of refuge remaining of six that were built," said Janet Hutchinson, director of the Historical Society of Martin County. "It was declared a historical site in 1974 and was completely restored."

The two-story wooden structures, explained Mrs. Hutchinson, were part of a federal plan to aid sailors shipwrecked along Florida's coast, still a wilderness area a century ago.

In that era, ships running between the United States and Caribbean countries hugged the Florida coast for protection from sudden storms and because there were few navigational aids, Hutchinson added.

Southbound sailing ships did the same to escape the northern flow of the Gulf Stream. Offshore Florida, however, is lined with sand bars and reefs — one of the most treacherous lying less than one mile from the beach here.

Houses of refuge were planned for strategic points between St. Augustine and Biscayne Bay, a stretch of coastline where seamen stood little chance of survival even if they made it to shore.

Equipped with cots, food and clothing, they were staffed by live-in keepers.

Identical, the original the houses was $2,900 each and under the jurisdiction of the Life Saving Service, forerunner of the U.S. Coast Guard.

Keepers earned $400 a year and lived in four rooms on the ground floor. A dormitory, capable of accommodating 18 cots, was upstairs.

Log books show this house of refuge participated in more than 34 rescues.

"Houses of refuge passed with the age of sailing," said Hutchinson.

Named after Don Pedro Gilbert, an early 19th Century pirate historians say knew these waters well, this house was used as shore patrol stations by the U.S. Navy in World War I and the Coast Guard during World War II.

A 40-foot wooden tower was erected in the 1940s to watch for enemy submarines. A small boat house and quarters for the Coastguardsman in charge were other additions.

Deactivated in 1945, the property was abandoned to vandals and the elements.

In 1955, the Soroptimist Club of Stuart organized the historical society to preserve the house of refuge.

With matching federal funds, it was restored at a cost of over $100,000 and was opened to the public in 1975. The boathouse now serves as a museum and office through which 45,000 visitors pass each year.

The lower floor of the house of refuge remains furnished as it was a century ago and, Dave Delk, the current keeper, lives in the commodore's quarters.

"This would be a lot better job then than now," smiled Delk, who spent 14 years in the Coast Guard. "Less people then," he explained.

Colloquium to be about sea lore

NEW YORK (AP) — Collectors of marine artifacts will meet here at a daylong colloquium Nov. 19, sponsored by the Sea Heritage Foundation, a non-profit society for the preservation of traditional sea lore.

The seminars and symposiums will cover numerous aspects of the marine collecting field, according to Bernie Klay, publisher of Sea Heritage News and a sea chantey expert who will coordinate the programs.

Keynote speaker will be John Sands, a director of collections at the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. A curator for 14 years at the Mariners' Museum in Newport News, Va., he will talk about prints and paintings, and discuss what makes a quality maritime image.

Barbara Johnson, whose collection of whaling artifacts was recently sold by Sothebys, will talk on whaling prints and scrimshaw. Charles McDonald, editor of the Nautical Research Journal and a bibliophile, will talk about his antiquarian book collection.

Henry Kriegstein, whose family has built an extensive admiralty model collection, will speak on the collecting of antiquarian ship models.

For more information on the colloquium call 1-800 247-3262.

Tommy's teachers always said he could do better. Sylvan showed him how

Like many students, Tommy was smarter than his grades suggested. For some reason, he just wasn't doing as well as his teachers, and parents, knew he could.

At Sylvan we guarantee that Tommy will reach his full potential. It's a promise. And we back it with this simple guarantee: your child's reading or math skills will improve by at least one full grade level after just 36 instruction hours. Or we'll provide up to 12 additional hours of instruction at no further cost. Improvement will be measured by a nationally-recognized achievement test, given before and after instruction at Sylvan.

The Sylvan Guarantee

Your child will improve at least one full grade equivalent score in math or reading skills after 36 hours of instruction, or we will continue up to 12 additional hours of instruction, at no further cost.

Measurement will be based on a nationally-recognized achievement test for improvement in either reading (comprehension or vocabulary) or math (computation or application).

Call today for more information. There's no obligation.

North Dakota's public schools imperiled by drought

By LEE MITGANG
AP Education Writer

BISMARCK, N.D. — The drought that laid waste millions of acres of wheat and grazing land across the Midwest now threatens to create a new victim: North Dakota's already hard-pressed schools.

Few states are suffering more acutely from the drought than North Dakota, whose highly regarded schools were already reeling from a prolonged slump in crop and energy prices. Drought-affected states like Illinois, Oklahoma and Nebraska have cut or frozen education spending this year. But North Dakota's current state appropriation of $346.4 million is fully $42 million less than it spent on public schools seven years ago.

"How serious is the drought for our schools? On a scale of one to 10, it is about an eight. It's very serious. It wouldn't have been so serious if we hadn't been struggling for the last six years with the oil problem," said Gov. George Sinner.

The drought has so far cost this economically depressed state $2 billion, a 10 percent drop in the state's gross product, Sinner said in an interview. At a time when the push for school reform was prompting many states to boost spending, Sinner this fall had to cut school aid 2 percent, or $9 million, the fourth education cut in North Dakota in as many years.

The latest cut means state aid dropped by $52 per pupil. Spending per pupil is $3,481, 31st in the nation. Six years ago, the state ranked 23rd.

Teacher salaries average $21,660, 47th in the nation. Six years ago, they ranked 30th.

Yet in many ways, the crisis is paradoxical. North Dakotans from the governor on down tend to regard public schools, for all their apparent troubles, as a comparative bright spot in the state's picture.

The state's 118,000 students generally score well in tests of basic skills. Ninety percent graduate from high school, the third best rate in the nation, although educators concede that's at least partly because school is the only game in town for rural youngsters, especially in hard times.

A statewide poll last September by the University of North Dakota found that 41 percent of respondents think schools have improved from five years ago; a comparable Gallup poll conducted nationwide found just 25 percent of respondents felt that way about their schools.

Demographically, the schools have much going for them. The state has fewer single-parent families than the national average. North Dakotans are ethnically homogeneous. The state has a long, ardent tradition of support for public education.

Many here refer glowingly to the "prairie ethic," the toughness of the early German and Scandinavian settlers who a century ago turned this harsh land into the nation's leading wheat producer.

Yet that very ethic may be making North Dakotans slow to react to the schools crisis, educators fear. There is practically no chance for new state taxes this year to bail out schools, said state senator Bonnie Heinrich, a member of the Legislature's education finance committee.

"The prairie ethic is a double-edged sword because we've got to change. We can't just ask, how did our ancestors tough it out before?" said David Smette, superintendent of the Dickinson school district, located in the western section of the state hardest hit by the agricultural and energy slumps.

The biggest fear is that the drought will hasten the already pronounced exodus of teachers and young people. North Dakota has become a favorite recruiting ground for teachers, especially for districts in Texas, California and Arizona that promise higher salaries and appealing lifestyles, said Peg Portscheller, president of the North Dakota Education Association.

"Right now the talk (among teachers) of leaving is more than at any time I've ever heard," said James Peters, a guidance counselor at Dickinson High School.

Seventy percent of young North Dakotans are leaving the state after finishing school, said Portscheller. In the most depressed places like Dickinson, it's worse. A visitor asked 50 high school seniors at Dickinson High if they would stay in the state. One said he would.

"I don't think there are a lot of job opportunities here," said Nicole Fruh, 17, who plans to attend the University of Minnesota at Morris next year.

Mary Johnson, president of Dickinson's board of education, said, "I've got a brother in Denver, a brother in Minneapolis, my sister left for Oregon to look for work, another sister's in New Jersey, and my folks are in Arizona. I wouldn't be surprised if my three kids leave someday. That's the story of North Dakota."

Leaving the state is "not necessarily what kids want. But we're not giving them the opportunity to dream, to explore, to build," said Portscheller.

Residents fleeing to higher ground away from storm

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Thousands of people clutching clothing, chickens and sacks of beans fled for higher ground Friday as Hurricane Joan stalked the Central American coast with 125 mph winds and torrential rains.

While Nicaragua and Costa Rica were in the most immediate danger, flash floods and mudslides could hit throughout Central America, said Bob Sheets, director of the U.S. National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla.

He said the storm was heading west and picking up speed Friday evening. The center of the hurricane will likely cross somewhere on the central coast of Nicaragua this morning, he said.

Residents were seeking shelter along a 250-mile arc of the coastline, and at least 52,000 people have been evacuated.

The storm already has left at least 26 dead and tens of thousands homeless in Colombia and Venezuela.

A mudslide 15 feet high blocked the Pan-American Highway in Panama about 100 miles from the Costa Rican border, authorities said.

Heavy rains began falling late Friday in Costa Rica, and rivers on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts flooded. The government issued a mudslide and flash flood warning for the entire country.

The San Juan and Colorado rivers near the Nicaraguan border flooded, officials said. The Pacuare, Toro Amarillo and Made de Dios rivers also threatened to flood their banks. On the Pacific side, the Coto River was flooding, officials said.

They said the flood areas had been evacuated and there were no reports of injuries.

"It's mostly children, women and old people," said Julio Aragon in Juigalpa, Nicaragua, 100 miles west of the Caribbean coast. He said refugees were being placed in schools and other emergency shelters.

"They're carrying everything they can — chickens, pigs, sacks of beans and other small belongings," said Aragon.

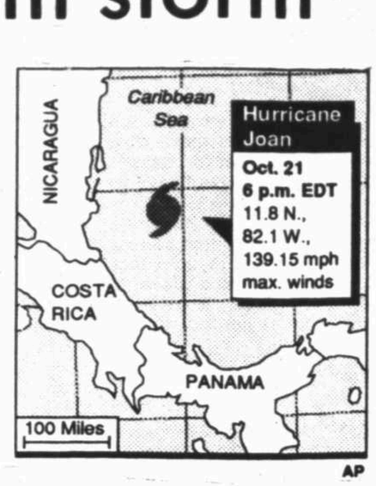

Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega, accompanied by Cuban hurricane experts, traveled to the coastal city of Bluefields and in a radio broadcast urged the population of about 60,000 to remain calm.

At 9 p.m. EDT Friday, Joan's center was in the Caribbean about 80 miles east of the Nicaraguan city of Bluefields, near latitude 11.9 north and longitude 82.7 west. Bluefields is 180 miles east of the capital, Managua.

Maximum sustained winds were 125 mph.

Both Nicaragua and Costa Rica declared hurricane watches and national states of emergency. All schools in both nations were closed.

Hurricane warnings were in effect for the Colombian islands of San Andres and neighboring Albuquerque and Providencia.

AP

Heavy rain continued to fall in Panama and light rain fell in Bluefields. Strong rains battered San Andres, according to a Colombian reporter interviewed by Nicaragua's Radio Sandino.

Nicaraguan officials worried about the readiness of war-battered government agencies, relief organizations and coastal residents, some of whom live in wooden homes on stilts. Nicaragua's ruling Sandinistas and Contra guerrillas declared a truce in their long conflict earlier this year.

The Nicaraguan government said it feared up to 200,000 people would lose their homes if Joan hits the coast with full force. Even if the storm turns away or weakens, heavy rains would cause flooding and mudslides that might leave 40,000 homeless.

Opposition spokesmen criticized the government for enforcing a vaguely worded state of emergency law that specifically suspended articles of the constitution dealing with freedom of speech.

The Nicaraguan government sent notes to the United Nations and the Organization of American States saying it imposed the state of emergency because of the storm.

About 7,000 people fled Nicaragua's remote Miskito Coast and two small islands by boat.

Authorities using military and civilian trucks also started evacuating up to 15,000 people living near the confluence of the San Juan River, which borders Costa Rica, and Lake Nicaragua. Although far from the coast, the area could be hit by flooding, officials said.

In Costa Rica, the National Emergency Council said 30,000 people were evacuated from Puerto Limon, a town of 20,000 about 100 miles southeast of the capital of San Jose, and 14 other towns along the northeast coast.

Costa Rican officials feared Joan could destroy many of the 20,000 banana plantations along the coast.

Officials said Costa Rica has never been hit by a hurricane in recorded history, and the last one that hit Nicaragua was in 1911.

Union charges official embezzled Pemex funds

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Chamber of Deputies is investigating charges by the oilworkers union that the governor of the state of Mexico embezzled $49 million from Pemex when he was head of the government petroleum monopoly.

The accusation against Gov. Mario Ramon Beteta was presented Thursday night by seven deputies from the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI, who belong to the powerful union.

The speaker of the chamber named a 22-member commission to investigate the charges. The investigation was approved by deputies from both the PRI majority and opposition parties.

The union and Beteta clashed repeatedly during Beteta's five years as Pemex chief. Beteta, an economist and former treasury secretary, left Pemex in January when he took office as governor.

The allegation against him was presented by PRI Deputy Adolfo Barrientos, head of a local union, amid the shouts of oilworkers crowded into the chamber's public galleries, the financial daily El Financiero said.

"To the gallows, to jail," they shouted. "He robbed the nation."

Barrientos accused Beteta of defrauding Pemex of $49 million through a 1985 deal for two Yugoslav-built tankers and said the union had documents to back up its allegations.

Barrientos said the deal involved a company called Flota Petrolera Mexicana, which bought a pair of Yugoslav-built tankers with only $2.5 million in capital, then leased them to Pemex for a profit of $49 million.

He accused the former commercial director of Pemex, Donasiano Tamez; a PRI senator from the state of Mexico, Jesus Alcantara Miranda; and the president Flota Petrolera Mexicana, Isidoro Rodriguez, of being involved in the deal.

President Miguel de la Madrid put Beteta in charge of Pemex as part of his "moral renewal" campaign against corruption. Beteta replaced Jorge Diaz Serrano, whose conviction for embezzling $58.7 million from Pemex in a 1980 tanker deal was a showcase of the campaign.

Many observers said the real test of "moral renewal" would be the rough-and-tumble oilworkers union, which has been repeatedly rocked by scandal.

The accusations against Beteta were made only hours after he and other political leaders met with president-elect Carlos Salinas de Gortari and endorsed Salinas' call for modernization of the PRI, which has ruled Mexico since 1929. The reform movement has run into opposition in some key labor sectors of the PRI.

Bishop, priest released in Laos

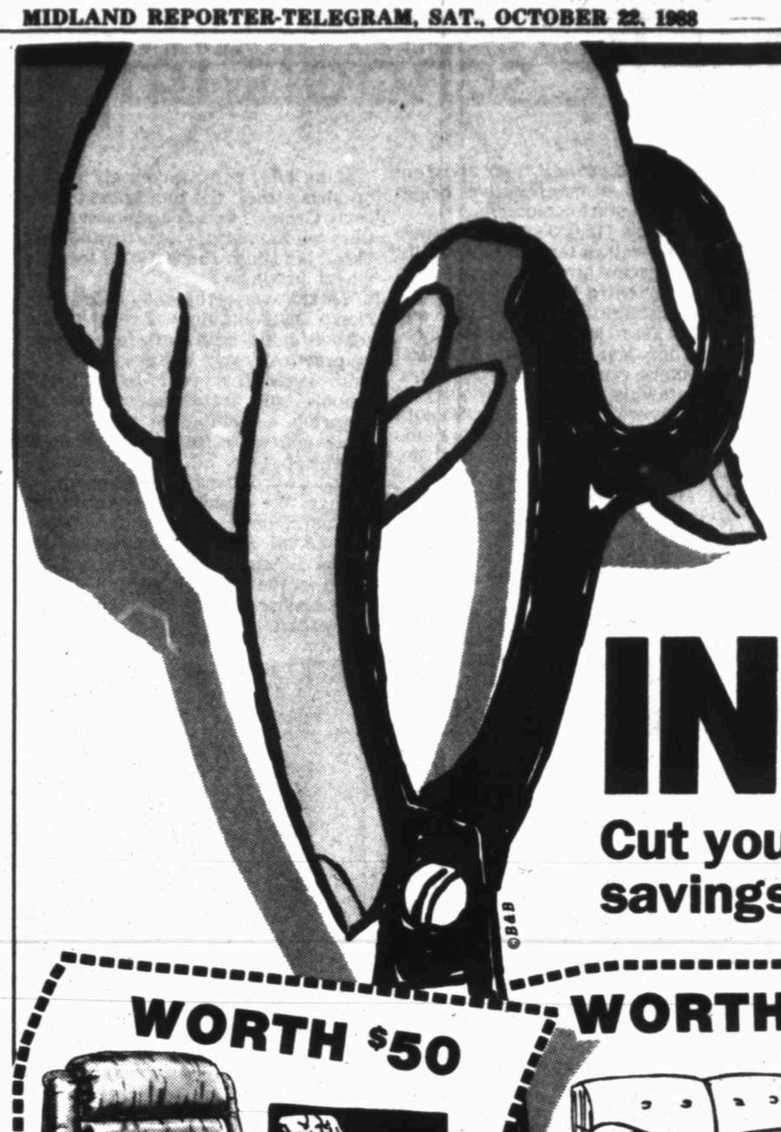

LONDON (AP) — Authorities in Laos have released a Roman Catholic bishop and a priest who had been imprisoned since 1960, Keston College said Friday.

The London-based college, which monitors religious affairs in communist countries, quoted reliable sources as saying that Bishop Thomas Khamphan, 63, the apostolic vicar of the diocese of Pakse in southern Laos, and a priest identified only as the Rev. Bounliep were both freed in August.

Their long-awaited release means that no Catholic priests are known to be in detention in Laos, although one priest in the capital Vientiane is reported to be under house arrest, the college said.

There are believed to be about 30,000 Roman Catholics in Laos, organized into three apostolic regions, the college said. After the communist takeover of Laos in 1975, all Catholic schools were taken over by the state, the seminary was closed and foreign missionaries were expelled.

The three Laotian bishops have not been able to leave the country to visit Rome although in recent years the Vatican pro-nuncio in neighboring Thailand has been able to visit Vientiane, the college said.

The time machine

Are viewers using the Time Machine to zap your advertising?

Not if it's in newspapers. Newspaper readers regard ads as news about the marketplace —what's for sale, where, and for how much. 60% of readers "look forward" to the advertising in their newspapers—more than say that about advertising in TV, magazines, radio and mail combined.*

Newspaper readers look forward to ads ... they don't fast forward past them.

FOR THE R.N. WITH CHILD CARE PROBLEMS... SHARE-A-SHIFT

Physicians and Surgeons Hospital is initiating a new concept that allows two R.N.'s to share an eight-hour shift. One R.N. works the first four hours, the second R.N. takes the last four hours. This provides the best of both worlds for a nurse...gives her more time with her family and yet enables her to retain her professional skills.

Positions open include:

Med-Surg: 3-11 & 11-7 RN & LVN

Physicians and Surgeons Hospital provides an opportunity for professional growth in a progressive community hospital. We specialize in quality patient care with a teamwork environment.
