PECAN CULTURE ASSUMES LARGER PLACE

The growing importance of the Texas pecan industry is well set out in a letter recently received from E. C. Butterfield, the newly elected president of the National Pecan Growers' Association, which held its annual meeting in Selma, Ala., on October 13, 14, and 15. The letter says in part:

"The pecan nut case-bearer has cost the State of Texas many millions of dollars alone in one season, and Texas should be proud of having one of the best entomologists in the country working on this pest. Prof. Bilsing has had some eight years' experience with this important insect, and it is hoped that he will solve the problem not only for the pecan industry of Texas but for the entire pecan growing section of the United States. He reports a ray of hope at this time, but it will take time to work the problem.

Since the elimination of the appropriation for the nut division of the State department of Agriculture at Austin that went into effect September 1, 1925, the pecan growers of Texas are looking to the extension service system of the A. & M. College to help them in obtaining adequate experimenting stations and furthering the interests of the great industry as a whole in the State along lines much needed by the pecan growers.

Not that I was made president of this association, but that a Texas man was made president, is evidence that it is the intention of the association to make it a National Pecan Growers' Association in fact, and Texans should take more interest in this organization than they do.

"With the interest that Texans are taking in pecan growing, they can not go blindly into the pecan development game without the help of this national association that has had 24 years of experience in threshing out the important questions and problems confronting the fast developing industry. When one considers that a pecan grove once planted will last for more than 100 years, it is easy to see the importance of starting right.

"Of course the national association has nothing to sell and is being kept alive by the growers who are vastly interested in the industry and where they can come together with all of their various problems and talk them over and work them out with the help of the department at Washington and the various State departments. The membership is $2 per year and a copy of the proceedings of each meeting goes with it. Many people are making plans to expend hundreds and even thousands of dollars in Texas in growing pecans who do not know there is a national association in existence where they can get protection for practically nothing. What I mean is protection against mistakes that will amount to thousands of dollars when their trees are coming into bearing.

"One incident that was brought out at the recent meeting where a man had topworked a seedling grove ten years ago and had lost 50 per cent of the trees from wood rot fungus and would lose more because he could not stop it with the advanced stages. This man stated that he could have prevented this had he had the information received on the floor of the present convention. The various departments at Washington have specially trained men in the field working on these problems, and this information is free for the asking, but a lot of people do not know this and suffer losses as a result."

WORK ON ICE PLANT WILL BEGIN AT ONCE.

Mr. E. R. Borden, who is to erect a new ten-ton ice plant in Junction, to be ready for the coming summer demand, was in Junction Monday and Tuesday, going from here to San Antonio on business connected with procuring the mechanical equipment for the plant.

Blue prints for the building have been prepared by Mr. Borden and work of actual construction will likely begin within the next week or two.

While no attempt to give details of the building will be made here, it might be stated that the structure will be frame and concrete, and the 45-foot front, facing the Highway will be a most attractive one, as Mr. Borden says he wants to erect an ice plant that will not only have the mechanical facilities for taking care of the needs of the town, but wants the appearance of his place of business to be in keeping with the progressive attitude of the town and to be one of which he and the people of the town will be proud.

The plant will be located on the northeast corner of the second block east of the square and the loading platform will be arranged so that trucks or cars can load from either the north or east side.

J. L. Terry, advertising manager of the Kerville Publishing Company, publishers of the Hill View Times, at Kerville, was a visitor at The Eagle office last week, while enroute to Rocksprings on business for his paper. The Hill View Times carries in its masthead three men as owners, P. E. Hawkins, Editor and Otho Morris, Business Manager. The paper was established several months ago.

F. H. Dunk was in town last Tuesday from his ranch near Segovia. While here he called at The Eagle office to have the paper sent to his daughter, Miss Pearl, who has a position in Kerville with the Telephone Company.

TAXPAYERS ASK FOR ELECTION IN DIST. NO. 1

Elsewhere is printed a copy of the petition of a large number of property taxpayers, asking the County Judge to call an election for the purpose of voting an additional school maintenance tax of 25 cents. We are for it; the school needs the additional money; and we hope that the voters of the school district will put it over by an overwhelming majority.

Of course, right now is tax-paying time and we all have to do some turnin and twistin to get up our tax money. We think it's high, but we would think the same thing if it were only what it is. Taxes are higher than they used to be, and everything else is higher, and money more plentiful, and the pleasures and conveniences derived from our government are much more than in "the good old days," as we are prone to call them.

Comparatively speaking, taxes are low in this district. On a low valuation the total tax rate for all purposes is now only about $2.75. In many of the small town districts, similar in size and population, the rate is $4 to $5. The proposed additional tax will amount to about $3, or on a 25 per cent valuation (at which most of the land is rendered—town property being rendered higher), the total tax would amount to less than three-fourths of one per cent.

A card was received this week from Frank Cowser who is now located in the Valley country, with headquarters at McAllen. Frank was recently transferred from this county by State Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner Hubby. S. O. Durst, formerly located in Bandera County, has been transferred here, which is doubtless very satisfactory to Sod, as this is his home.

FEBRUARY TERM COURT TO OPEN NEXT MONDAY

The February term of District Court will open in Junction Monday morning, February 1st, Hon. J. H. McLean of Llano presiding, and Hon. F. H. Hammond of Burnett, prosecuting attorney.

Grand Jurors have been summoned to appear Monday morning, while petit jurors for the first week will appear Tuesday morning. The petit jurors for the second week are to appear the following Monday morning.

On account of the fact that the entire criminal docket was continued at the September term, on account of District Attorney being needed by the Grand Jury, the docket will be unusually heavy this term. Some twenty-five criminal cases of which twelve are new ones, and thirty-nine civil cases, of which sixteen are new, are on the docket. Not all of these will come up for trial, as arrests have not been made in several criminal cases, and a number of civil suits were continued from the last term, pending settlement, some of which have doubtless been settled by this time.

Most of the criminal cases are for liquor law violations.

Mrs. E. O. Bode and son, Ed, were called to San Angelo week before last on account of the serious illness of two of L. R. Bode's children. Both had pneumonia. The little girl, 5 years old, is now very much improved, but his 9-year-old son, Othello, died on the 18th and was buried in San Angelo on the same day. Ernest Bode and family and Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Harrison went to San Angelo last Monday to attend the funeral.

E. Holekamp is one of our local poultry enthusiasts who finds that hens will lay in winter if given the proper care. He has less than one hundred hens and gather over forty eggs a day, right here in town, too. Better try a few hens for the back yard, and eat fresh eggs.

CONSTRUCTION BEGINS ON ELECTRIC HIGH LINE

In addition to the engineering force of the West Texas Utilities Co., that has been here two or three weeks surveying the right of way and mapping the route for use of the construction men, a crew of about twenty-five men arrived Saturday afternoon, and on account of the snow, was delayed in starting work until Tuesday morning.

Mr. Gallowsay, a specialist in the Distribution Department, was here the first of the week laying out the lines that will distribute the current over the town. Mr. Pippin, construction foreman, will be in charge of building the high line.

A crew started out Tuesday morning digging the six to eight feet holes in which the high line posts will be set. This crew of about twenty men, is under Mr. Boatright.

One of the big problems of this construction will be getting the heavy poles distributed, especially in the rough country up Elm and over the Divide. The 60-foot poles weigh around five thousand pounds, while the 40 and 50-foot poles weigh around four thousand pounds.

The distribution lines will go due south from the Sub-Station, on Elm street to the end, at the John S. Durst and the N. C. Patterson residences. Laterals from this main line will run east and west on each street to take care of the entire town.

The Company's office and sales room will be located on the lot where the Becker blacksmith shop was located. From the kind of buildings that are being erected in other towns, similar in size to Junction, where they have taken over the lighting systems, it is safe to predict that the one they erect here will make a very creditable showing as compared with even the best business buildings that are already here.

Right of way easements to the Menard County line have been secured and it is hoped that the right of way in Menard County will be secured this week. It is probable that more than 100 men will be at work on the line by the end of next week.

STATE DEPARTMENT MAN VISITS JUNCTION.

L. D. Borden, Supervisor of Rural Schools in Texas for the State Department of Education, was a very pleasant caller at The Eagle office last Saturday, and we were gratified to learn that E. R. Borden, who is soon to become a citizen of our little town, and who will be the owner of the new ice plant, is his son. Several years ago, when the editor of this sheet was a student of the North Texas Normal College, Mr. Borden was head of the Department of Physics. He is a very able man and it is doubtless on account of his influence that his son decided to locate here. Together they visited a number of prospective towns in Texas and Oklahoma, and Mr. Borden told us that from visits here and careful observation, he thought this town offered the best future of any of the several they visited. He spent a week here last summer, after having spent the first week of his vacation elsewhere, and after finding things to his liking here, wished that he had spent the two weeks here. It is safe to bet that he will spend his future vacations here. E. R. Borden is a graduate in both mechanical and electrical engineering.

Charles Kingsley said: "Thank God every morning when you get up that you have something to do that day which must be done, whether you like it or not. Being forced to work, and forced to do your best, will breed in you a hundred virtues which the idle never know."

GENERAL HINTS

Put these in your card cabinet to use when occasion demands. We are all prone to forget just the thing we need, and a reminder is always helpful.

If you spill iodine, that cure-all kept in so many homes, saturate the spot with ammonia and wash it well.

Use the following spray for the small green bugs that infest the plants, sweet peas and rose bushes: Steep tobacco leaves and use the liquid as a spray. Save cigar stubs or get the strummings from a cigar factory if one is near.

A famous cholera cure: Mix together one-fourth of a teaspoonful of soda, the same of ginger, and fifteen drops of peppermint; add to a glass of hot water and take a glass every three hours until relieved.

A splendid lotion for tan: Save the whey from cottage cheese, and in this cook a good-sized cucumber cut into slices, peeling and all. Let stand until cool, strain, add a teaspoonful of benzoin, two drops of oil of rose, and a tablespoonful of alcohol. There should be a cupful of the whey and cucumber juice.

When buying grapefruit or oranges, weigh them in the hand. The heavier they are the more full of juice.

Carry a few sheets of asbestos paper with you when camping. It makes (when rolled into cone-shaped dishes, set point down into coals and ashes) good receptacles to cook vegetables or anything to be baked.

A fine shampoo for dark hair is a well-beaten egg yolk. Rinse in several waters, adding lemon juice and a few drops of perfume. The natural oil of the hair retains the odor for days.

A little lye is a great convenience in any household. The convenient can should be kept where it can be often used. Drop a bit into a pan which has burned on food. Add a small pinch to the white clothes when boiling, but be sure to rinse them well. Pour a solution down the sink drain often to keep the drain pipes clean.

ATHLETICS GONE CRAZY.

Football is in the same bad way, as a starter, that has caused several Eastern colleges and universities to give up base ball as part of their athletic programs. But two or three weeks ago, "Red" Grange, the player whose sensational work accounted for much of the Illinois team's success on the gridiron, received $20,000 as his share of the receipts of a professional game in Chicago. If you will stop long enough to think this out, you'll sense the danger which threatens the one really popular American game which until now has escaped the suspicions and torments of all sports where money takes the place of patriotic fervor.

First, the importance of raising vast sums for athletic purposes has been permitted to overshadow, or seemingly to overshadow, the one big purpose for which our people have created colleges and universities, the acquisition of sufficient knowledge to fit boys and girls for life. Second, the practice of athletics, in the restricted sense, too often only the flower of the student bodies, boys and girls, of exceptional physical fitness, themselves least in need of muscular development, while "runts" and students of limited stamina are left to cheer and take it out in looking. Third, such keen rivalry has been developed between towns, and between schools in the same town in some cases, that all sorts of tricky practices are resorted to in order to secure the services of athletics of exceptional skill, resulting in fierce jealousies in addition to these jolts character-development inevitably sustains where school authorities either openly tolerate crooked-

What the head of a school does, or blinks at, the student knows stays with him and colors his conduct through life.

It is foolish to deny that reasonable athletic programs are essential to every student group; that it is less necessary to develop the body than the brain, but the time has come when every lover of clean sport should seek some way out of the sordid tangle which promises to make Roman gladiators of American boys and girls, and a race course touts of millions of spectators whose moral can never be much above that of actual participants in any given event.

President Lowell of Harvard, makes a point that is as amusing as it is true: "When I have one of Harvard's robust graduates come to me and loudly say, 'I am a red-blooded man,' I want to know why the football team doesn't win. I can not help but recalling what the physiologists say, that human blood is most red when it has been through the brain."—Holland's Magazine.

WHITE BOY BECOMES INDIAN IN EARLY DAY

A family by the name of Fischer lived just below the Morris Ranch in Gillespie County in the early days, and in about 1868 the Indians made a raid through that section and carried off one of the Fischer boys. The red men were in the habit of coming in frequently, during the light of the moon, to steal horses, and settlers throughout that section suffered much through these raids. The Fischer boy, at the time of his capture, was about 12 years old, and he was carried to the Indian Territory, where he grew up in the Indian camp and became one of the tribe.

Years later he was found by United States soldiers and was returned to his people. They dressed him in civilized garments and used every effort to make him contented, but he had become so thoroughly Indianized that he returned to his tribe after staying with his parents only three or four weeks. The young man had married an Indian girl, and thoughts of his wife and children off in Indian Territory, and the wild life he had been raised to, called him back; civilization had no attraction for him. His father tried to get him to bring his wife and children and live with him, but he refused, saying the white people would always look upon his wife as a squaw and she would not be happy there. His father gave him a horse to ride and he made the trip back to his Indian friends with a party driving cattle to St. Louis.

Nearing his tribe in the Territory, he bade his friends good bye, and exchanging his white man's clothing for the Indian garb, he rode away to his squaw and papoose.

This Fischer was living a few years ago at Apache, Oklahoma. He has a brother, Otto Fischer, living at Fredericksburg. This brother at one time went to visit his Indian brother in the Indian Territory, going from the railroad station to the reservation in a buggy. When he reached his brother's place he found him sitting on the doorstep repairing a piece of harness. Otto alighted from the buggy and walked up and said, "Hello." The brother merely said, "How," but never offered his hand, nor even looked up. That seemed to be the Indian style of greeting. The next day when Otto Fischer was ready to return home he bade his brother goodbye, but the brother got in the buggy with him and said, "Me going with you." And he made the trip to Fredericksburg in his old work clothes, the same he was wearing when Otto reached there. He remained a few days with his parents and then returned to his tribe in Oklahoma.

Some time in 1892 I was on a train going from Fort Worth to Pecos, and across the aisle was Chief Quannah Parker and one of his wives. Quannah Parker's mother was a white woman, Cynthia Ann Parker, who had been captured by the Indians when she was a very small child, and after about 28 years' captivity she was recaptured by Sul Ross' rangers. I asked Chief Quannah on the train, if he knew a German in the Territory by the name of Fischer. "Fischer," he repeated the name over several times, and finally said, "You mean a Dutchman, don't you? Oh, yes; I know him. He is well fixed, has fine farm, much cattle. Oh, he is all right."

I also asked Quannah Parker if he had ever been on any raiding expeditions on white settlements, and he only said, "Oh, yes." When I asked if he was a good shot, he laughed again as if it was quite a joke. "Oh, yes," he said, "I got shot in knee once; makes me limp now, and once a bullet rapped my side, and if he had gone little farther over, he got me," and he laughed over it. The Chief was on his way to New Mexico to bring back some of his tribe that had run off. He said he only wanted to get the men, and when he rounded them up to take them back the squaws would follow.

Chief Quannah Parker was one of Theodore Roosevelt's guests at one time when "Teddy" was on a hunt in Oklahoma. Charles Morris, in Frontier Times.

BEST WEST TEXAS FRUITS

Recently a questionnaire from this college to county agents and fruit growers of West Texas returned the information that fruits were ranked in order of their ability to produce the largest number of times in a given series of years, are: grapes, berries, and cherries first, plums, second, while apples and peaches ranked last.

In the different sections and counties one will find different successes with various classes of fruits; consequently, the above rank is a general rather than a specific grouping. The limiting factors affecting orchards west of the 100th meridian have been soil fertility, and water requirements more often than damage from insects or diseases. Those farmers who have selected fertile soil types adapted to the particular fruit in question, and who when necessary have hauled water to the trees the first summer, or who practiced much cultivation, have not been disappointed with fruit growing. It is easy for one to overlook the importance of water requirements for orchards in winter months. County Agent Betton of Potter county says that he advises his farmers to plant trees in late fall because he fears they will not keep sufficient water around the trees the first winter.—Frank Phillips, in the Progressive Farmer.

The greatest of your assets, business or personal, is your credit, yet you cannot look it in a vault nor insure it against loss. It is a part of you. You created it and you may destroy it.

Your credit is something apart from what you are worth in money. Your property statement does not create your credit; it merely settles the question of "how much."

Honor and truthfulness are two cornerstones of credit. They mark you as a reliable man; one who may safely be trusted with that which is another's. That is the essence of credit.

Individual capacity is an important factor in deciding your credit. Many honest, reliable men lack capacity. The capable man grasps opportunities; he forges ahead.

Here, then, is your credit. Your honor, your word, your capacity—these three make it. Your holding of this world's goods merely measures it.—The Alamo Lines.

In placing my candidacy before you for the office of Treasurer, I do so feeling that I am fully competent to fill the office, and wish to state that I am not asking any one to support me from any sympathetic motive. Having lost my hearing in early childhood, I got my education at the Texas School for the Deaf, at Austin, which school I attended thirteen years, taking special courses in penmanship, typewriting and bookkeeping. Since my graduation, I have been doing office work most of the time. For about two years I was with an Abstract Company in San Antonio.

Later was employed by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., in Akron, Ohio. For the past two years I have held a position in the Junction State Bank. I gladly refer you to any of the firms for which I have worked, as to my ability.

I am somewhat handicapped in meeting and soliciting your support, but am in no way handicapped for the duties of the office of Treasurer.

I shall appreciate your support and promise you a faithful, careful, and efficient service, if you see fit to elect me.

The Improved Star Four Touring Car

The improved Star Four Touring car, by Durant Motors, Inc., embodies several interesting new features. In addition to the sweeping chassis changes which improve riding qualities, sturdiness and roadability, a new body by Hayes-Hunt adds further to the comfort and beauty of the car.

In general appearance, the Touring Car has been improved by the smart stream lines and beautifully proportioned heavily-nickled radiator that now characterize the Star models.

The body is lacquered in a highly attractive shade of royal blue, set off with a gold stripe. The one man top is of heavy, black, highly finished, water-proofed, artificial leather, with side curtains to match, opening with the door. Windshield is double-ventilating, upholstery is of good quality black artificial leather and wheels are black wood, artillery type, with 30x3½ inch clincher cord tires on demountable rims.

Exceptional seating capacity and leg room has been provided in the improved Star Touring, which offers roomy accommodations for five persons of generous proportions. Low price and operating economy makes this car an attractive value and assures its popularity.

That the one harmonious color line may sweep gracefully from the top of the head to the very tip of the toe, come this selection of shoes—smartly different, with an air of nonchalant sophistication and indifference. Finest fabrics and workmanship stamp the mark of "exclusive" on every pair of these shoes.

Fancy cut, Blonde Kid with Metal Buckles, Brown Kid Strap Slippers, Black Patent Leather with or without Sstrap, Black Satin Step-Ins, and others that are in line with fashions latest modes. They are priced very reasonably, too.

Our Shoe Department is complete—all the New Spring Styles for Ladies and Misses, are here.

For Men and Boys, we have shoes and slippers that combine style, comfort and long wearing qualities, and the prices are right.

P.-T. A. NOTES.

The meeting of the P.-T. A. Monday afternoon was an unusually important one for several reasons.

The committee appointed to revise the constitution and by-laws made their report and the changes were adopted as recommended.

Mrs. H. O. Patterson was elected third vice president and becomes chairman of the ways and means committee. Miss Durst and Miss Merchant serving with her.

The funds of the organization are rather low, so plans are under consideration for an entertainment to be given in the near future.

Recognizing the needs of a larger school fund, the question of an increase in the local school tax came up for discussion, and the P.-T. A. wish to go on record as heartily in favor of the movement. Should an election be called we urge the careful consideration of the measure as the best means of meeting the needs of the school. So far no other plan has been devised that will meet the requirements.

BROWNING-GRAY.

Friends of A. W. Browning and Dr. Helen Gray were surprised Sunday when the San Antonio papers arrived and it was noticed that their names appeared in the list of marriage licenses issued in Bexar County.

They had driven to San Antonio Friday and were married at the First Calvary Baptist Church about 2:30 that afternoon, Rev. Lee officiating.

They spent several days in the city and returned to Junction Monday afternoon, and are at home to their friends at the Chas. Luke residence.

The groom is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Browning, and was born and reared here. He is in the livestock and insurance business, and has his office in the Telephone building. For the past two years he has been secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. Gray was Junction's first lady physician. She came here about three years ago from Paxico, Kansas, and has been engaged in the practice of medicine here.

Both have numerous friends in and around Junction who will join in extending congratulatory and best wishes.

J. W. BARTLEY DIES NEAR ROCKSPRINGS

J. W. Bartley, who moved to Kimble County more than fifty years ago, settling near Telegraph, died at the home of his son, Will, a few miles from Rocksprings on the 19th, and was buried the following day at Rocksprings.

Deceased was past eighty-two and has been in bad health for several years, but the day before his death was feeling better than for some time and had eaten a hearty supper. Shortly after retiring, some one heard some disturbance in his room and when his son reached him he was in a critical condition and died before medical aid could be secured.

He was one of the early settlers of this county, having attended the first court ever held in the county. The past few years he has been living in Edwards County with his son.

Surviving him are five sons, Albert of Junction, Will of Edwards County, and Wes, Walter and Bud of Arizona; and two daughters, Mesdames Hutchinson and Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bartley went over Wednesday and returned Thursday.

REPORTS 1924 GOVERNMENT COST $10,252,000,000

The total cost of government in this country, covering the expenditures of federal, state and local governmental authorities and including capital outlays, amounted to $10,252,000,000 in 1924, as against $2,919,000,000 in 1913, according to a report on "Cost of Government in the United States," by the National Industrial Board, 247 Park Avenue, New York.

Expenditures in 1924, according to the conference board's study, show a 1.1 per cent increase over those of 1923, which totaled $10,145,000,000, and were three and a half times as high as in the last year before the war. Taking into account the decreased purchasing power of the dollar, the increase in total governmental expenditures since 1913, expressed in terms of dollars of 1913 purchasing power, was about two and one-fifth times in the 11 years from 1913 to 1924.

While there was a decrease of $185,000,000, or of 10.6 per cent in the expenditures of the federal government in 1924, state and local governments increased their outlay by $492,000,000, or 7.6 per cent, leaving a net increase of $107,000,000 in total governmental expenditures.

The significance of these figures in relation to the previously published amounts of total taxes raised by the various governmental agencies, lies in the fact that more taxation figures do not present a complete account of the real financial burdens assumed by citizens thru public expenditures from year to year, as becomes apparent in comparing the total taxes raised in 1924, amounting to $7,907,000,000 with the total of expenditures amounting to $10,252,000,000. While true that in the long run expenditures and taxes go hand in hand, the proceeds of loans, made use of by municipalities and states to an increasing degree during the last few years, may create a great disparity between taxes and expenditures for the time being, which, however, eventually has to be made up by the taxpayer. Fines, penalties, special assessments, interest on public funds and similar revenues account for part of the difference between taxation and expenditures.

A striking illustration of this relationship between expenditures and taxation is given in the following comparison of figures given in the board's report. In 1924 local governments were responsible for 42.7 per cent, or more than half of the total public expenditures, but raised only 47.4 per cent, or less than half, of the total taxes; state governments likewise spent 15.5 per cent of the aggregate of 1924 expenditures, while raising only 13.5 per cent of the total of that year's tax levy. The federal government, on the other hand, was responsible for 31.8 per cent, or less than one-third, of all public expenditures in 1924, but raised 39.1 per cent of all taxation. In this, the conference board points out, is clearly reflected the increasing use of bond issues to finance additional expenditures by states and municipalities, while the federal government is not only not incurring any fresh indebtedness, but is paying off its indebtedness by spending less than the amount raised by taxation.

Soldiers Fond of Tobacco

European soldiers always have been heavy smokers, in the last war as well as in the conflicts of olden times. Napoleon used snuff, lots of it, when on the march; the life of Frederick the Great was once saved when a bullet flattened out against a snuff box in his pocket, and Seydlitz, one of the famous cavalry generals of history, was a slave to his pipe.

The TWAIN by Grace E. Hall

He saw the masonry tier on tier
That fashioned the bridge they crossed,
She saw the mind with its vision clear,
That never a detail lost;
He figured the cash it had cost to build—
The power of each massive span,
She glimpsed the spirit that first had thrilled
And given birth to the plan.

He viewed the cathedral and said 'twas fine
The labor, he guessed, was great;
She was blinded by grandeur of art divine,
And worshipped beside the gate;
He listened to music by artists rare—
And wondered what they were paid—
She heard God's voice in the sacred air
Was humbled and half afraid.

The twain returned from the spaces afar
Where marvelous sights accrue,
He told of the gains and she of the brains,
And both of the tales were true;
He measured the greatness by cost in gold,
And that was his only zest;
Her measures were those that are never told—
Rich gems in her memory-chest.

'Tis said that "the twain shall be one flesh,"
That no one shall break the tie,
That a man and his mate are thus through fate
And the Power that rules on high;
They call it a sin when love has ceased,
And maybe that idea's best,
But the West cannot go to the East, you know,
And East cannot come to the West.

TEXAS POLITICS.

Petty politics—political demagoguery—in Texas are providing amusement for paragraphers and magazine writers and readers throughout the country. Texas politics have become a National joke. It is to be deplored that so great a State with such fine people should be held up to ridicule by the rest of the country, but it is, and it is the fault of the people themselves. Just so long as Texas voters allow themselves to be swayed by cheap oratory and mud-slinging, abusive politicians, or to be influenced by prejudices and side issues, including all of the "isms" in the category, Texas will have dirty politics and expensive, unsatisfactory administration of public affairs.

Texas voters generally would welcome clean political campaigns in which issues were intelligently discussed instead of personalities. Will we have such a campaign this year, or are we again going to submit ourselves to the will of politicians and vote for the man who has the greatest vocabulary of abusive words? Are we going to listen to pleas for restoration of the family honor at the expense of the people? Are we going to allow our sympathies and votes to go to those who appeal for office because they have always held a public job and need another? Are we going to send lawyers to Austin, and place them in positions of trust because they need a larger acquaintance in order to build up a practice in the future, or are we going to find honest, capable men who will make the sacrifice of holding public office and administering our affairs because of the service they can render and because of the honor attached to such service?

The salaries paid by this great State of Texas limit the opportunities of public service offered its citizens. Positions of great trust and responsibility pay clerk's hire, and many men who would make good public servants are deterred from offering for service because of families to support and children to educate. Therefore, our choice of candidates is limited to two classes. We must either choose from men who have already made a business success in life and are willing to serve because they are good citizens, and for the honor going with public office, or we must choose from another class who expect to take advantage of position to make money on the side either by brazenly grafting, or by the use of influence under the guise of legitimate business methods. That is our field to choose from. What are we going to do about it?

Farm and Ranch appeals to the men and women of Texas to pay their poll tax, and then to lay aside personal friendships and prejudices of all kinds and nominate and elect men and women to serve us because of their known and proven honesty and ability to fill the position for which they are chosen. Put lawyers in office where legal ability is a requirement, an advantage, and not qualified business men and women in other positions where business ability and executive and administrative qualifications are necessary.

Pull Texas out of the mire of political filth. Give Texas an opportunity to become the best governed State in the Union. Why not?—Farm and Ranch.

Don't Neglect That Stubborn Hacking Cough

It is not only dangerous but entirely unnecessary to let a persistent, hacking cough rob you of sleep and strength. For through a very simple treatment you can get almost instant relief, and very often break the most stubborn cough completely in 24 hours.

This treatment is based on the famous prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You simply take one teaspoonful at bed-time and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly removes the phlegm and congestion which are the real cause of night coughing. So the coughing quickly ceases and you sleep right through undisturbed.

Dr. King's New Discovery is for coughs, chest colds, sore throat, hoarseness, bronchitis, spasmodic croup, etc. Fine for children as well as grown-ups—no harmful drugs. Economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for

About the New Overlands

IN Setting forth the good points of the Overland we are not trying to discredit any other car. We merely use two as a comparison, because they are near the Overland price.

WE Do not care to exaggerate by telling you we have the best car in the world. We do claim we have a good car—the best in its price class—and we only ask an opportunity to demonstrate an Overland to your entire satisfaction.

DID You know that a two door Standard Overland Sedan, on a twelve months pay plan, only costs you $5.00 more than a Ford? Or, that it costs you about $75.00 less than a Chevrolet Coupe? And that the Standard 91 Overland has 16 desirable features not found on a Ford, and 8 special features not found on a Chevrolet?

WE Are not trying to tell you any unreasonable things about our car—just come by and let us show you or ask some Overland Owner.

SUTTON COUNTY ROAD PROGRESSING NICELY.

Sonora, Jan. 18.—Work on the thirty-one mile rock base macadam highway leading out of this city toward Junction, continues under the direction of L. P. Sawyer, superintendent for W. T. Montgomery, who has the approximately $300,000 contract for this job. The road when completed, will present one of the prettiest drive to be found in the United States, thinks Mr. Sawyer. Some sixty men are at work on the project which will not be completed until about January 1, 1927.

The road, which is three miles away from the present highway, is on top of the divide. The getting of rock here is thought to present the easiest problem of solution in the State of Texas. This material is obtained right along the highway. The road is not being used at all now and the contractors are not bothered by detouring cars.

It is thought that the State will put on an asphalt topping when the present work is completed. The new highway lacks only about four miles of connecting with the Kimble County line, which county has a hard surfaced highway stopping several miles short of the county line. The two hard surfaced roads ultimately will be joined by another project, it is thought.

EIGHT INCHES SNOW COVERS THE COUNTY.

The third snow of the winter began falling Friday night and continued through Saturday and Saturday night, reaching a total of about eight inches, or amounting to a rainfall of about three-fourths of an inch, according to E. Holekamp, local government Weather Bureau reporter, who has a rain gauge at his residence.

From reports, it seems that the snow was general over the State, being more than twelve inches in the northern part of the State, and gradually diminishing until only a few inches fell as far south as Corpus Christi and east of Houston. San Antonio had about six inches.

Saturday was comparatively warm, and snow melted at different times during the day, but during the night the temperature dropped to 9 degrees F., which was the coldest time for this winter by several degrees.

The Weather cleared Monday and grew gradually warmer, and there was only a little snow in protected places Wednesday.

The good women of the Parent-Teachers' Association are sponsoring the petition for the additional 25 cent school maintenance tax, and from what these ladies have done in the past, and knowing their unselfish interest in the matter, we commend their efforts and cannot but feel that the voters of this District will follow their leadership.

While all the members have done much for which the community should thank them, The Eagle feels that one, in particular, Mrs. Minnie Riley, deserves much more than anything that we are able to say complimenting her efforts. Mrs. Riley is a leader and through her untiring efforts, many good things have come to the school that would not have otherwise. She has her own family to look after, but we have observed that she is never too busy to do her part and more than her part in any move that is for the good of the community and the advancement of our local school.

Our neighbors—thousands of Goat Coats hanging in the cedars, where they undergo final treatment before distribution to other ranches. In these same cedars, six years ago, we burned a flock of goats, in spite of human aid, within sight of a shed. On this spot where the idea was conceived, the practice's development has today reached great proportions. We are happy for we have overcome a difficulty and saved strength from a hardship.

The RIECK GOAT COAT made of specially selected 14 ounce double filled duck, specially processed by ourselves, may be purchased with 65 per cent of the proceeds of one shearing and will cost the goat for 16 used thirty days after Spring shearing.

We can assure delivery only on orders that are placed early.

How Doctors Treat Colds and the Flu

To break up a cold overnight or to cut short an attack of grippe, influenza, sore throat or tonsillitis, physicians and druggists are now recommending Calotabs, the purified and refined calomel compound tablet that gives you the effects of calomel and salts combined, without the unpleasant effects of either.

One or two Calotabs at bed-time with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, work or pleasure. Next morning your cold has vanished, your system is thoroughly purified and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please,—no danger.
