

New Housing Units Coming to Town

There was an old lady who lived in a shoe. In Pampa, you see, there was nothing else to do. Houses to buy were so hard to find. And apartments all wore a "No Vacancy" sign.

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

The critical housing shortage in Pampa soon may be at least partially alleviated by as many as 48 new apartment units and the first of 170 low cost houses.

Two firms now have plans well underway though neither of them have finalized all the facets involved in their projects. A spokesman for a new

Pampa-based corporation, Mo-De-Co-Bo Inc., said the firm has acquired 179 lots at the north edge of Pampa and "We are proposing to build on these lots some low cost housing."

Zolan Wilkins Jr. of Lexington Apartments and Motor Inns, based in Irving, said that the family-owned organization has an option on about two acres of Pampa land adjacent to the Coronado Apartments with 340 feet of the property fronting on Sumner Street.

Wilkins said the firm, which has apartments in 15 locations throughout the state, has been looking at Pampa for about a year. He said that apartments built by his company are brick veneer structures featuring moderately priced one and two bedroom units. The buildings have two entrances and a private security system.

If plans can be successfully completed, Wilkins said construction on between 30 and 48 units will begin in the next 60 days and will be completed about six months later. "A lot has to do with the weather."

He said that the organization has its own construction company, but some local labor will be used in the construction. Two or three employees will be required to run the completed complex.

Units in the apartment complex will be rented by the day, the week, or the month, Wilkins said.

"Our motto is A Day Or A Lifetime," he said.

Lexington Apartments and Motor Inns currently is renting apartments in Amarillo and has more units under construction there.

Among problems to be worked out before construction can begin is zoning. The land currently is zoned for agriculture and must be changed to a multi-family designation.

Mo-De-Co-Bo Inc., currently is waiting for the 179 lots it has acquired to be annexed into the city limits.

The corporate spokesman told The News today that the firm will make some of the lots available to other developers interested in constructing low cost housing.

Neither Wilkins nor the Mo-De-Co-Bo spokesman would speculate on the rent rates or purchase prices, but both repeatedly used terms like "low cost" and "moderately priced" — areas of housing that recent studies in Pampa have indicated to be the most needed.

Plenty of Jobs Available Here

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

While unemployment rolls soar to an all-time high in cities across the nation, employers in the Pampa area are crying for help.

A Pampa News poll this morning revealed that more than 200 jobs were available today in this city.

Two firms said they have immediate openings, and the Texas Employment Commission interviews have 50 available jobs.

Marie Foundations officials have announced plans to hire an additional 130 employees. Packerland Packing Co. needs 25 employees today.

Bill Ragsdale, manager of the Texas Employment Commission's Pampa office, said openings range from skilled to unskilled work.

Unemployment here was officially recorded last month at 3.3 per cent. However, those looking for a job today can almost take their pick, according to penings at the TEC office.

Ragsdale said many employers are disappointed to find that people are not sitting in the office waiting for someone to call them out.

He added that those who come in from other states tell about waiting in long lines of people looking for jobs at employment offices across the nation.

The Pampa TEC office is open Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Ragsdale said this area is fortunate in not having the large layoffs many areas have experienced.

Job openings here range from the minimum of $2.10 an hour to $1,000 a month.

Jobs available today include plant electrician, machinist, welders, tool engineer, automobile mechanic, service station attendants, roustabout, construction labor, casing puller, truck driver, secretary, legal secretary, insurance clerk, silk finisher, fountain waitress, cook and delivery truck drivers.

Other openings include car hops, waitresses, baby sitters, housekeepers, lumber yard laborer, retail store manager, trainee, bookkeeper, plumbers helper, warehouse and shipping clerk and various temporary jobs.

Ragsdale said he attributed the wide range of openings to the fact that school is starting, many students who had summer jobs will be returning to classrooms.

Dale Greenhouse, division manager of Marie Foundation told the Pampa News this week that plants in Pampa and McLean plan to add 130 additional employees if they can find them.

Officials at Packerland Packing Co. of Texas said they could use additional employees today at a starting wage of $2.90 per hour.

Howard M. Frankenthal, general manager, said he could use employees on the kill floor in addition to welders and electricians.

Asked if he finds the labor market tight in Pampa, he replied, "Tighter than in other areas."

Judge Orders Workers To Load Soviet Grain

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) — A federal judge ordered longshoremen back to work today at the Port of Houston to finish loading grain on a Yugoslavian ship bound for Russia.

The International Longshoremen's Association Local 1273 and Local 872 stopped loading grain on the ship Bosanka Monday night in compliance with an AFL-CIO boycott of loading newly purchased grain destined for Russia but returned to the docks and resumed work early today in compliance with the court order.

AFL-CIO President George Meany says the Ford administration has not provided sufficient assurances the recent grain sales to Russia will not increase American food prices.

U.S. District Judge James Noel issued a temporary restraining order Tuesday night to force the two longshoremen unions to start loading the ship again today.

Noel scheduled a hearing today on the request for a temporary injunction.

Half of the Bosanka's 25,000 tons of grain cargo had been loaded when the work stoppage began. The West Gulf Maritime Association, TTT Stevedores of Texas, Inc., TTT Ship Agents Inc. and the Dalton Steamship Corp. asked Noel for the restraining order and a temporary injunction to keep the longshoremen from refusing to load Soviet-bound grain in the future.

AFL-CIO Grain Boycott Cause of Much Concern

United Press International
The AFL-CIO boycott of Russian-bound American grain occupied President Ford's attention today. It also was uppermost in the minds of American farmers and in a courtroom in Galveston, Tex.

A grain industry source said Ford was to meet today with Kenneth Kendrick and Irv Friehe, representing Great Plains Wheat and Western Wheat Associates, two companies that promote overseas sales of U.S. grain.

The source said the industry is angry over the longshoremen's boycott because the grain business they are threatening to halt "is our livelihood and we have to live with it."

Ford, who said Tuesday "it would be tragic and unfortunate in a way cannot be found to solve this situation that has been created," said he would meet with Labor Secretary John Dunlop when he returns to Washington next week and review the possibility of taking executive action to get the ships loaded.

Dockworkers in Houston stopped loading grain on two ships Tuesday. But a federal court in Galveston ordered two union locals working on one of them back to work as of 8 a.m. EDT today.

Judge James Noel Tuesday night issued a temporary restraining order that would force International Longshoremen's Association local 1273 and local 872 to continue loading grain on the Yugoslavian ship Bosanka, bound for Russia.

The order did not cover the Italian vessel, the Ivanfrancesco, hit by the work stoppage Tuesday because of reports the grain was destined for the Soviet Union and not Germany as a grain company official said.

Grain farmers and their spokesmen were outraged at the stoppage and the prospect of plummeting prices. AFL-CIO President George Meany, who backed the maritime unions' threat to stop the grain, was the target of widespread vilification Tuesday that pitted farmer versus laborer.

Weather

Continued mild temperatures are the forecast for today and Thursday. The highs will be in the 90s and the lows in the 60s. Wind warnings are in effect for area lakes.

Patrol Car Damaged, Two Drivers Injured

Two persons received minor injuries and a new Pampa Police Department patrol car was damaged extensively Tuesday in an accident at Alcock and Price Road.

The patrol unit was driven by Officer Bruce Bailey who was attempting to stop a speeding pickup truck which was west bound on Alcock Road. The police unit had its emergency lights on.

Police Chief Richard Mills said when the unit approached the intersection of Price Road, a vehicle driven by Virgie Belle Culver of 114 E. 4th Lefors pulled through the flashing red light in front of the police car.

The chief said Officer Bailey applied the brakes in an attempt to avoid the other car, but was unable to do so.

The police car struck the left rear side of the Culver car.

Mrs. Culver was treated at Highland General Hospital and released. The officer received treatment at Worley Hospital and was released.

Damages to the police car were estimated at $2,500.

Damages to the Culver vehicle were not known at noon today.

The chief explained that the intersection at Price and Alcock is controlled by a flashing yellow light for Alcock and a flashing red light for Price Road.

The patrol unit was west on Alcock and the Culver vehicle was north on Price.

The accident was investigated by Phil Altman of the Department of Public Safety who issued Mrs. Culver a ticket for failure to yield right of way.

No School Tax Hike—Yet

By JANE P. MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

There will be no hike in school taxes this year but, the Pampa school board warned, taxpayers can expect an increase of 35 to 68 per cent next year.

The Pampa Independent School District Board of trustees at 8 p.m. Tuesday voted to borrow the $398,550 necessary to meet this year's school budget.

The trustees, who met at 7 p.m. at Carver Center, 321 W. Albert, approved a $5,377,683 proposed budget. They will meet again next week to okay the final edition.

School administrators predicted that next year the board will have to raise an additional $1.1 million for the 1976-77 budget. The increase will cover financial demands of the newly passed school finance bill and repayment of the loan.

Board members stressed that a tax increase for schools is inevitable next year, they are looking at a possible 60 per cent assessment with a $1.50 tax rate.

Current assessment is 40 per cent at $1.50 for maintenance of the schools.

School board president Curt Beck compared the board's job, at their third meeting in less than two weeks, to that of a man convicted of a crime he didn't commit.

"Now we are forced to decide if we want to be electrocuted or hung," he said.

Trustees didn't agree on the solution of their budget deficit. Harold Comer and David Crossman voted no on the motion to borrow money to meet the budget this year.

"Taxpayers will have an intolerable burden in '76-'77 because of our failure to raise the assessment," Comer said. "It is better to go to 18 per cent increase now than to go up from 35 to 68 per cent next year."

"I cannot understand that (Comer's) reasoning because in any length of time no extra funds will be generated by this taxation," trustee Bill Arrington said.

Voting for the loan were Arrington, Beck, Paul Simmons, Sam Anderson and Robert Lyle. They favored one large increase next year in taxes and an opportunity to study the new education legislation which threw a monkey wrench into the district's budget.

The new bill will cost the local school district at least a half million dollars in teacher salaries alone. State funds will contribute $71,000, to that, according to local administration figures.

"I have never faced a budget with so many variables," said Dr. Dan Long, school superintendent. He recommended the board not raise taxes this year but wait until it has a chance to further study HB 1126 and to research opportunities to equalize the tax burden in the school district.

"Then we will be able to tell the public that we have the fairest values that taxing can get," he said.

"If we communicate to the people that next year will be a make-up year then I'd say that is the way to go," Long recommended.

He predicts that in the third year the tax burden will drop off. But advisers warned that a 50 per cent tax increase for the taxpayer next year is possible.

Long pointed out two problems with the local budget. The district has operated in the red for nine of the last 18 years so it "is not in a position to absorb increases needed this year." And Long pointed to the tax rate here. Other Panhandle communities have been forced to increase taxes and Pampa rates are lower than most.

Long called it "little local effort" to support schools.

Beck emphasized that a tax increase now would be based on several best guesses.

"There are a lot of uncertainties and projections," trustee Paul Simmons said. He pointed to the $200,000 in possible collectible taxes and the possibility of equalizing taxes and broadening the tax base.

"I cannot help but feel one year from now we'll be able to make a better decision," he added.

The board estimates that it will not have to borrow the almost $400,000 until the summer of 1976 and will need it only for 60 days or less.

"If we increase valuation now and bring in the revenue we need, then if next year we look at it and we don't need the tax rate, we can reduce it," Comer argued. "We are just postponing the inevitable if we take a short term loan."

But Beck pointed to the board's credibility. "If taxes go up, taxpayers believe they will never go down even if we say we will reduce them." He added that the reduction would be optional.

The board must reduce the tax rate when the portion which goes to debt service is paid off. But other reductions for school maintenance is up to the board. Current debt service, which is 30 cents of the current $1.50 rate, is expected to be paid in two years.

Arrington said that industry favored the board borrowing the money to meet budget needs until further studies were completed.

"They're going to shut the door if they can't make a profit," he said.

He also pointed out that if the federal government decontrols gas and oil industry, the tax assessed valuation of the district would increase and make more tax money possible.

In other board action the group accepted the resignation of Baker first grade teacher Lila Griffin and appointed Rose Nelson to the post.

The trustees authorized a salary increase for custodial, maintenance, transportation and cafeteria personnel.

"We have great difficulties in getting employees, even at these salaries," Long reported. The increase added an approximate $74,000 to the budget.

The board also approved the salary increase listed on the state salary schedule for all employees covered by HB 1126.

Inflationary injustice

Not by design but simply by accident, the steady devaluation of the dollar is increasing the impact of the progressive income tax on many American taxpayers.

Congress and the Legislature should revise the structure of state and federal income taxes to compensate for the unintended distortion caused by inflation. Obviously, income taxes will increase as income increases. A 10-per-cent increase in the cost of living might be followed by a 10-per-cent increase in income, for example. The taxpayer then will have the same purchasing power he had before. If his income taxes rise by 10 per cent, he will be paying the same percentage of real income in taxes.

But what if, as can easily happen, the 10 per cent increase in income puts him in a higher income tax bracket? Then the tax take will jump to a higher percentage and he will be unable to maintain his standard of living.

Here is a table showing the effect of a 10 per cent increase in taxable income on tax liabilities under the 1974 federal income tax rates:

Taxable Income	Tax	Income After 10-per-cent Increase	Tax on Increased Income	Increase in Tax Amount	Per Cent
$ 1,000	$ 140	$ 1,100	$ 155	$ 15	10.7
3,000	450	3,300	501	51	11.3
5,000	810	5,500	905	95	11.7
10,000	1,820	11,000	2,040	220	12.1
20,000	4,380	22,000	5,020	640	14.6
30,000	7,880	33,000	9,080	1,200	15.2
50,000	17,060	55,000	19,650	2,590	15.2

These figures prepared by the Tax Foundation show how federal income taxes rise at a steeper percentage than income. State income taxes do the same.

It is in fact an essential and desirable result of the progressivity of income tax rates that exactly this kind of progressively steeper taxation will occur.

That is based on the sound theory that as a man's purchasing power increases, his ability to pay taxes increases. But what if, due to inflation, his purchasing power can only be maintained by higher income and this results in the loss of a greater share of his purchasing power to the tax collector?

That is an inadvertent perversion of a good principle. It should be corrected in order to maintain public confidence in the equity of the income tax system.

Islam plan irresponsible

Delegations from 40 Islamic nations meeting in Saudi Arabia recently voted solidly to expel Israel from the United Nations General Assembly. Algeria and Syria, which instigated the move, will be trying to pick up more support at a conference of "nonaligned" nations in Peru this month.

It takes less than 70 votes to carry a motion in the 138-member U.N. General Assembly, so it is largely up to the Moslem countries whether they want to pursue such a course when the Assembly meets for a special session Sept. 1 or at the regular session opening two weeks later.

They have already heard from U.S. Ambassador Patrick Moynihan that Israel's expulsion would have severe repercussions as far as America's participation in the U.N. is concerned. Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon has given them another good reason to think twice. If Israel goes out the door, he says, so does the U.N. machinery being relied upon to keep peace in the Middle East and to negotiate a long-range settlement at Geneva. And so would the work of U.N. relief agencies among Palestinians in Israeli-occupied territory.

The Moslem countries and other nations that side with them on U.N. issues can form a steamroller of General Assembly votes. If they are not careful their attempt to knock over Israel with that steamroller could precipitate more than they bargain for by knocking the props out from under the truce in the Mideast and ultimately wrecking the United Nations itself.

REVENUE SHARING

Cities Fighting For Funds

By ROBERT BETTS
Copy News Service
Congress faces a tough battle over revenue sharing.

This is the scheme in which federal funds are funneled back to state and local governments to spend as they please — unlike other aid programs where the money must be used for federally designated purposes.

About $19 billion has been distributed since the $30.2 billion program was launched by the Nixon administration in 1972. It terminates Dec. 31, 1976.

President Ford wants to extend it to September, 1982, at an additional cost of $39.8 billion. The final decision, however, rests with Congress where opposition is expected from both right and left.

Democrats may not want to support something they view as a Republican-initiated program, preferring that federal money be spent on specific social programs. On the other hand, there is strong pressure from influential lobbying groups representing many of the more than 38,000 state and local governments that have come to count on the federal revenue-sharing checks as a key to economic survival.

A recent congressional survey showed that state and local governments are being forced to cut services and raise taxes this year, removing $8 billion from the economy and eliminating about 140,000 jobs. They plan $3.6 billion in tax increases and cutbacks of $3.3 billion in expenditures and $1 billion in construction outlays.

About half the states have cut payrolls through layoffs, hiring freezes, reduced work hours or other means.

The problems currently plaguing many cities were cataloged at the recent U.S. Conference of Mayors in Boston.

The warning sounded there was that New York's financial crisis is a forerunner of what other local governments face unless federal aid is pumped into cities and counties, which have been hit by spiraling costs due to inflation and sagging revenues because of the recession.

New York Mayor Abraham D. Beame, facing a $430 million deficit in the city's $12.1 billion budget, laid off 19,000 city workers as part of an effort to reduce the deficit to $130 million.

Detroit, where more than one in five workers already is unemployed, has had to cut its payroll by some 4,000 employees.

The capital of the auto industry also cut spending by eliminating a $2.5 million purchase of new cars.

Across Lake Erie, in Cleveland, the city work force has been reduced from 13,000 in 1970 to about 10,800 today. In Bridgeport, Conn., plans called for laying off 500 workers, totaling 15 per cent of the city's work force.

Cutbacks also were reportedly planned in New Jersey, Massachusetts and Alabama.

The cutbacks have triggered widespread protests and walkouts. About 10,000 New York garbage men staged a wildcat strike to protest the dismissal of 3,000 of their number.

In neighboring Pennsylvania, more than one-third of the 120,000 state workers walked off their jobs July 1 protesting the state's offer of a 3.5 per cent wage increase and demanding increases of 10 to 11 per cent.

In California, state employees said they were "outraged and upset" by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.'s decision to cut wage increases for 180,000 workers. A California State Employee Association spokesman said the group is "tired of state employees always having to suffer for hard times."

The current fiscal dilemma in Illinois led Gov. Daniel Walker to ask all agencies to cut their budgets 6 per cent across the board. Since many departments failed to do so, he has been axing funds out of various budgets. Recently, in an amendatory veto, he struck $50.4 million from the public aid medical assistance and administration appropriations.

Not all cities are in such financial straits.

A notable exception is Houston, booming hub of the oil and energy industry, where a $422 million, two-year city improvement building program is under way. Not only is no tax increases proposed, property taxes were reduced from last year's rate.

Chicago has managed up to now to live within its budget. Mayor Richard R. Daley has been noted for trying, with some success, to keep the lid on spending, and major cutbacks of employees have been avoided.

In Washington, a spokesman for the government of the District of Columbia said, "The district has not had to fire public employees up to this point. However, there is a strong possibility that budget restrictions will make it necessary to fire some workers this fiscal year."

According to sources on the House and Senate Government Operations committees, which have jurisdiction over revenue sharing, hearings on the subject are not expected for some time. "It's not even a sure thing revenue sharing will be extended" when its five-year life is up, commented an official.

There is said to be greater interest in the $2 billion emergency antirecession bill for cities and states with high unemployment, which is being co-sponsored by Sens. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, and Bill Brock, R-Tenn. This proposal, called "countercyclical" revenue sharing, would be targeted sharply on the needy and would phase out as soon as employment began to improve.

The Ford administration does not look favorably on this bill, although Treasury Secretary William Simon promised recently that it would be reexamined.

BATTIN' AROUND

Failure of Revolt

By C.R. BATTEN

Stephen A. Odom, in a letter to the Colorado Springs Gazette Telegraph has pointed out a serious weakness in my recent column entitled "A False Assumption."

"This time his logic left me way behind," wrote Odom. "He posed the question: 'Has armed revolt by ordinary citizens ever been successful in increasing the personal freedom of the individual?' He concludes that: 'Armed conflict only concentrates power.'"

"Illustrations offered are the Cuban revolution, French revolution and the Communist revolution in Russia, all of which replaced bad governments with worse ones. Mr. Batten eliminates the American revolution from consideration by stating that, '... the War of Independence was not an ordinary revolution. It started as an effort merely to regain the rights enjoyed by British subjects in England.'"

"But that is precisely what all revolutionaries have wanted — a change in the legal acceptance of their rights (usually the right to keep the fruits of their labors)."

Mr. Odom is correct, but my basic question remains: has any armed revolution ever been successful in achieving the desired 'change in the legal acceptance of their rights?' The American Revolution was 'different' because it did not seek to depose a king or overthrow any government in the usual sense of revolutions.

Yet, the American experience is an excellent illustration of the growth of power in response to resistance to restrictive laws.

The British kings lacked power to enforce their restrictive trade laws and to collect their taxes and quitrents in the colonies until George III ascended to the Throne. King George began to set up a bureaucracy in the colonies, and

As enforcement became more successful, the resistance of the colonials grew — and as resistance grew, enforcement grew stronger, and even more restrictive laws were passed. The Stamp Act, the Tea Act, the Coercive Acts which closed Boston port and changed the government of Massachusetts; the Quartering Act, which legalized the quartering of British troops in any occupied dwelling; and more.

On October 14, 1774, the First Continental Congress passed its Declaration and Resolves, in which these and other grievances were detailed. Proposals for reconciliation were made on both sides of the Atlantic, but tension increased. Then someone fired a shot at Lexington, and the war was begun.

On July 6, 1775, the Second Continental Congress adopted the Declaration of the Causes and Necessity of Taking up Arms — but Congress still emphasized the colonial's desire to remain united with Great Britain.

In May of 1776, Congress learned that the King had hired German soldiers (Hessians) to send against the colonists. Finally, on June 7, Richard Henry Lee offered a resolution "That these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States. . . . It was approved on July 2.

The Articles of Confederation were believed by some to be too weak to form the base of a national government, and only five years after the end of the war, a convention was called for the sole and express purpose of revising the Articles of Confederation. . . .

Instead, a new Constitution was written, which, in the words of Richard Henry Lee, "opens to my mind a new scene: instead of seeing powers cautiously lodged in the hands of numerous legislators and many magistrates, we see all important powers collecting in one centre, where a few men will possess them almost at discretion. . . . The process of centralizing power had already begun — at the expense of the rights the people had fought so hard to preserve."

So, Mr. Odom, I must conclude that even in the case of the American War of Independence, no armed revolution in the history of the world has ever accomplished its objectives of increasing the individual liberties of the people for more than a short period of time.

Teacher in School Daze A Problem for Family

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: We have been married for five years and have two children. Ward is 26 and I'm 25.

Ward teaches sixth grade students, and he loves his work. That's the trouble: he loves it too much. All summer, he mooned around like a lovesick calf saying how much he missed his "kids." He has two children of his own who could use a little more of his attention.

Last semester, Ward talked endlessly about one of his girl students. He would even call her on the phone to visit with her in the evenings. He says it's not exactly a "physical" attraction, but he would like to see her mature and blossom, and he would even like to have a hand in choosing her husband! Is this normal for a husband and father, Abby?

On weekends he'd get "the blues" and could hardly wait for Monday so he could get back to his "kids." And on Fridays he would get the blues again. I think it's wonderful for a man to love his work so much, but he makes me feel as though the children and I are a drag.

Do you think his feelings for his "kids" at school have reached a dangerous point? Please tell me what to do about this.

WORRIED WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Your husband is either very immature or dangerously involved (emotionally) with his work. He needs counseling to get his priorities in order. Urge him to get it, fast.

DEAR ABBY: My father makes a lot of mistakes when he talks. He says, "He don't," and, "They was."

I am only 14 and happen to believe that it is never too late for a person to learn. My father is only 34, and he was born in this country.

Sometimes I correct him in front of people because if I wait and tell him later, he claims he never said it, and a fight develops. My father has a hot temper and hates to be corrected, especially in front of people.

Shouldn't adults take criticism with a smile and appreciate it even if it does come from a 14-year-old kid?

JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: No one, regardless of his age, appreciates criticism from a 14-year-old kid in front of others. Your intentions may be good, but your timing is poor. Cool it.

DEAR ABBY: No one would think of dropping in on his minister without calling first to set up an appointment, right? So why do ministers think they have the right to drop in on their parishioners without any advance notice just because they happen to be in the neighborhood?

One afternoon last week, I entertained some out-of-town friends and served some of my homemade apple cider. I am not a big drinker, but it was very warm that day, so I had more than I should have — and on an empty stomach, yet. Well, no sooner had my guests departed when my minister rang the bell. I don't remember what I said, but I do recall that I babbled on and on and just couldn't quit talking. The minister couldn't get a word in edgewise. I am sure I made a perfect fool out of myself.

Anyway, now I can't look him in the eye. I hope you put this in your column because I know he reads you, and I want him to know that I don't usually sip cider in the afternoons — also, if he ever calls again, to please phone first.

Hospital Sets Smoking Areas

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff
No visitors will be allowed to smoke in patient rooms at Highland General Hospital beginning Sept. 1.
The Highland General Hospital board of managers met Monday night and designated specific areas within the hospital for smoking.

A new state law, House Bill 59, prohibits smoking in public places beginning Sept. 1.
Failure to comply is punishable by a fine up to $200.
Robert Monogue, administrator, said signs informing guests and patients in regard to the new law will be up within 10 days.

The designated areas for smoking include the main entrance lobby, cafeteria, snack bar, doctors' lounge and conference rooms.
Dr. Royce Laycock, chief of staff, said no visitors will be allowed to smoke in patient rooms.
The new law prohibits smoking in public places such as hospitals, schools, elevators, enclosed theater or movie houses, libraries, museums, intrastate buses, and transit system buses, planes and trains.

Senator Max Sherman of Amarillo said in Pampa recently that his mail prior to passing the no smoking bill endorsed it.
"I wish it could be covered by good manners. I think it would be better handled by self compliance and we may get back to that," Sen. Sherman said.
He said the bill was probably passed more as a public awareness precaution.

The hospital's board of managers changed employee vacation pay to three weeks after five years instead of 10 years as the present rules read.
The sick leave accumulation was changed to 30 days instead of the present 18 days.
Employees are allowed to accumulate one day of sick leave per month.
"There will be no carryover after the 30 day accumulation," said Monogue.
No change was made in the present rules which allow two weeks vacation after one year of service.

City Gets Tax Check

By TEX DEWEESE
Pampa News Staff
Pampa has received another sales tax check from State Comptroller Bob Bullock's office in Austin boosting the total since Jan. 1 to $197,280.92.
Today's check, City Finance Director Stanley M. Chittenden said, was for $41,639.27 and labeled "city sales and use tax allocation summary through period ending Aug. 1, 1975."
Chittenden stated the last check received from the state comptroller in July was for $20,106.34, covering the period ending July 3.
Along with the current check,

Bullock sent a letter addressed to all city officials in which he announced his office is starting a new system to give cities a proportionate share of what he described as all partial collections from delinquent accounts.
Bullock's letter states: "In the past the Comptroller's Department has applied all partial collections and all collections from payout agreements with delinquents to the state tax liability until it was fully satisfied. Only after that did the city receive any payment on its claim."
This was wrong, Cities are partners of the state in sales tax and should not be made to play second fiddle. Therefore, beginning with your payment next month (September), any partial payment or payout agreement collection attributable to your city will be shared with you in proportion to the state-city liability relationship.

Bullock went on to state in the letter that he doesn't believe the new system will mean "significantly more money to Pampa in the long run, but that it will mean that the city will get its rightful share of the sales tax justifiably more quickly."

Ford Challenges Recall

DETROIT (UPI) — The Ford Motor Co. is challenging a new federal law forcing it to recall and pay for repairs on more than 600,000 cars with allegedly defective seat belts.
Ford said it would not comply with a federal order and filed suit — the first test case of its kind — in U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C., Monday.

An unreasonable risk of accident or injury and, accordingly, there is no safety defect.
The government claims seat belt bracket pins have broken on several cars, allowing the seat back to collapse and causing loss of control. Ford says there have been only 25 reported incidents on more than 600,000 cars and that a safety defect doesn't exist.

The government estimates about 600,000 of the cars are still on the road. Ford says the figure is closer to 625,000.
Nolle said Ford is not yet contesting the recall itself, just several sections — including one he claims would leave Ford open for fines up to $800,000 simply because it decided to fight the recall. He said the provision "violates due process."
Under a new section of the safety act signed in December, NHTSA can order vehicles recalled and repaired at the manufacturer's expense. If the company decides to go to court, the owners of the vehicles still must be notified and it faces stiff civil penalties if it loses.

The suit challenges sections of the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act under which the government has ordered recall of the 1968 and 1969 Ford Mustangs and Mercury Cougars. The government contends seat backs on the cars can collapse.

Previously, the safety agency had the power only to order the auto firms to notify owners that the government had found a safety defect exists. In at least four instances, auto firms have successfully fought that provision.

Ford also notified the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration it does not intend to comply with last week's recall order. It was the first time NHTSA had used the 6-month-old law to order a manufacturer to pay for repairs.

The firm's chief lawyer, H.R. Nolle Jr., invited a government lawsuit to enforce the recall order. He said Ford would defend itself "on the grounds that breakage of (seat belt bracket) pins does not result in

No Manned Flights Set for 4 Years

HOUSTON (UPI) — The director of the Johnson Space Center says the space program has a bright future although there will not be another manned flight for at least four years.

last 17 years of what we've done," Kraft said. "The country has made an investment in spaceflight and it's going to pay off handsomely in what it can produce from that investment."

Christopher C. Kraft says JSC, hub of the manned space program for the past 11 years, will have plenty to do although no flights are planned until at least 1979 when a reusable craft called space shuttle is spaceborne.

Kraft said the shuttle will have more uses than any previous space program because it can make many trips into space at a low cost and can take the scientists and industrial workers into orbit without astronaut training.

"The outlook for the space business is brighter than it ever has been before because the potential developments (made possible by shuttle) have such large scale effects," Kraft said in a recent interview.

He said energy problems, which plague the world today, will get worse and the space program will have a major role in solving them.

Other centers, such as the Kennedy Space Center at Cape Canaveral, have had personnel cutbacks, JSC will not, Kraft said.

"The answer to many energy problems is in solar energy and spaceflight can be the aid to those answers," Kraft said. "Gathering energy through solar means in space and transmitting it to earth is not only feasible but cost effective. Vehicles to provide the total energy of the world could be the net result."

"We have people under the pressure of worrying about when they're going to get the job done and not whether they will have a job to do," Kraft said. "The next five years at the Johnson Space Center will be very busy."

After the shuttle is operational and proven, space engineers will look beyond to even more futuristic vehicles.

The space shuttle will be a two-stage spaceship which launches like a rocket and lands like an airplane.

"In 25 to 50 years our concept of transportation and space travel will change so drastically we cannot imagine it, but can only guess," Kraft said. "This center will be a part of that."

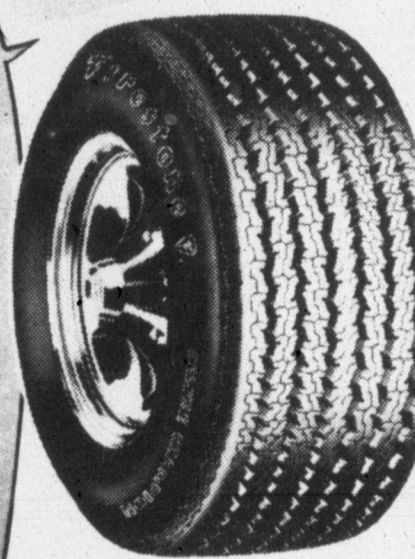

JSC has prime responsibility for developing the shuttle, the sub-orbital test in 1977 and first space mission scheduled for 1979.

"I'm as much excited about the next five years of what we're going to do as I was about the

Kansas Gov. 'Lower Wages For Loaders'

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Gov. Robert Bennett Monday suggested the longshoremen's union reduce wages for unloading ships with foreign exports if they are concerned about cutting consumer prices.

The fact is that approximately 40 per cent of the cost of bread is in wages and salaries while less than 10 per cent of the cost of that loaf can be traced to the farm price of wheat," he said.

Bennett said action by AFL-CIO President George Meany and longshoremen to stop shipment of American wheat overseas is a grandstand play with tragic consequences for the nation.

The Kansas governor said a reduction in longshoremen's wages would not have a great effect on price of wheat, but would cut costs to their current proposal to stop grain shipments.

Bennett said since World War II the price of bread has increased 25 cents per one pound loaf while the farm price of wheat, the basic bread commodity, has increased only two cents per loaf.

The Kansas governor said a reduction in longshoremen's wages would not have a great effect on price of wheat, but would cut costs to their current proposal to stop grain shipments.

Israelis Protest New Pact

By United Press International
Right-wing Israeli demonstrators chanting "traitor! traitor!" converged on the Tel Aviv home of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin today to protest a new Israeli-Egyptian Sinai pact on the eve of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's arrival.

Earlier today Israel said its security forces killed three Arab guerrillas who crossed from Lebanon bent on attacking a frontier settlement in a death squad strike apparently timed to coincide with Kissinger's latest Middle East shuttle.

Israeli soldiers suffered one casualty in a brief clash with the guerrillas of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine shortly after they were detected outside the settlement of Hanita, the military command said.

More than 200 demonstrators of the Gush Imunim (Loyalist Bloc) converged on Rabin's home but were blocked by blue iron police barricades and two dozen police 30 yards from the house.

Kissinger was leaving Washington tonight for Israel where heavy security precautions were in effect against expected anti-American demonstrations. He was expected to confer by telephone during the day with President Ford on the agreement said to involve nearly $3 billion in aid to Israel.

There were a series of Middle East developments today involving the new interim Sinai agreement.

The Beirut newspaper Al Anwar reported that Egypt and Israel settled their last remaining dispute over terms after Ford sent two messages to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat assuring him that the United States will try to launch negotiations for a Golan Heights disengagement between Syria and Israel before the end of this year.

Egypt criticized Israel for disclosing prematurely key elements of a new Sinai disengagement accord, saying the disclosures were "incomplete and distorted." At the same time, presidential spokesman Tahsin Bashir said Egypt was "hopeful" Kissinger's peace-seeking mission, beginning in Jerusalem Thursday, would result in the long-awaited second-stage interim agreement.

Chanting "Rabin resign!" and "traitor! traitor!" the demonstrators held a clear plastic rectangular balloon the floated 30 feet above them bearing the words "Peace, Not Surrender."

"We don't consider an agreement is an agreement until it is signed and sealed and implemented," Bashir said. "The Egyptian mood is hopeful. We have offered reasonable solutions that any reasonable man would accept."

But, he cautioned, "we're not playing a game of releasing documents. We will do our negotiating with the best interests through Dr. Kissinger."

Defense Committee, described crucial elements of the proposed accord Tuesday in a national television interview from Tel Aviv.

Navon said the agreement included a nonbelligerency clause in which Israel and Egypt would reject the use of force in settling the Middle East conflict.

"We will not wage war or hostile acts as long as Israel does not wage war or hostile acts," Bashir said.

"When the agreement comes to pass, it will be balanced, integrated document. You cannot talk about one third of it and say it is an agreement."

He said there were still "many highly explosive risks" involved. "But we must accentuate the positive," he added.

He said if the Israelis delay in either negotiations or implementation of the accord, "the responsibility squarely and totally lies upon them."

Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz scheduled a final meeting with Kissinger in Washington today before the secretary of state leaves for the Middle East. Israeli rightists threatened "extensive and even illegal" demonstrations against Kissinger to protest alleged U.S. pressure on Israel to withdraw from strategic areas in the Sinai Desert.

Venezuelan Man Learns To Speak English Here

By THOM MARSHALL

Pampa News Staff

Andres Salas, 29, has been speaking English for about three months now and it appears that he will achieve his goal of learning enough of the language to enable him to enroll in an American university and begin his chemical engineering studies.

Currently visiting Pampa as part of the Experiment in International Living Program, Salas arrived in Louisiana in May and began English courses at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge.

He left his home in Trujillo, Venezuela, in May. His wife and three children will join him in the United States after Christmas, he said.

The student is able to come to a U.S. university because of a company scholarship from the firm that employs him in Venezuela. The company produces fertilizers and explosives, Salas said.

When he was attending the classes at LSU this summer, Salas said there were about 300 foreign students studying English for five hours a day.

The Experiment in International Living program places foreign students in individual homelife situations for one month in order to help them adjust to the way of life in the U.S.

Salas currently is staying in an apartment provided by Ted Gikas and is being shown around town by Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Morgan.

Mrs. Morgan said that Salas English speaking abilities have improved quite a bit in just the short time he has been in Pampa. He arrived here Aug. 12 and will stay until Sept. 1.

Salas has not been speaking English long enough to be totally comfortable with the language.

"I am surprised because when I speak to somebody, he understands me."

And Salas also is a little surprised that when somebody speaks English to him he can understand. And he is getting better — "much better than when I came last Tuesday."

Salas does not expect to miss visiting with his countrymen while he is in America. Many Venezuelans are in America attending school.

"The government of Venezuela provides 10,000 scholarships every year," Salas said.

The Venezuelan program began last year. Two 19-year-old Venezuelans men on the program were expected to arrive in Pampa today. Salas became acquainted with them while at LSU.

One thing Salas thought unusual about the Louisiana town was the degree of racial segregation that is practiced.

"We have no racial problems in Venezuela," he said.

Part of his sightseeing in Pampa included a visit to the Celanese plant where Morgan is employed.

Salas said that he is enjoying the hospitality of Mr. Gikas and the family Morgan. Pampa is a nice town. Very friendly. Many friends told me how nice Pampa is. Now I am approving."

Both Gikas and Mrs. Morgan are very active in the Experiment in International Living Program and persons who would like information about hosting a foreign student, or showing them points of interest in the Pampa area, may contact either of them. Mrs. Morgan said.

Grass Grows Green Through Bike Trail

Pampa's two - and a - half miles of Hike and Bike Trail has been attacked by grass growth that is penetrating the black top asphalt and slowly cracking it up.

City Manager Mack Wofford said this morning City Park Department workers have been using ever maintenance device available to stop the growth of grass through the black topping but have been unable to control it.

Wofford said the new city budget coming up for a public hearing at City Hall next Tuesday morning contains one $17,000 item for repairs to the trail which is extensively used by hikers.

It has two sections. One extends from N. Zimmers St. on the west through Central Park to Duncan St. The other section reaches from Charles St. through the north tier of city park land to Evergreen St. on the east.

Park employees say worst damage to the trail seems to have been done in the Aspen and Beech park areas, although both sections have sustained spots of cracking and breaking up from one end to the other.

"To keep from losing the trail which is popular with so many Pampa Pampans," Wofford said, "we decided on a major repair program."

The city manager said work on the trail repairs should start after Oct. 1 when the new budget becomes effective for fiscal 1977-78.

Wofford added that the $17,000 set aside for Hike And Bike Trail repairs is the only new city program in the operating budget.

"We decided if repairs were not made on the trail it soon would be in such bad condition it could no longer be used," Wofford said, "and it was felt Pampans do not want to lose it."

Mrs. Hearst Testifies

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Mrs. Catherine Hearst walked down the short, gray hall from the grand jury room, a U.S. marshal at her side and a hoard of reporters in front of her.

"Have you talked to your daughter?" the newsmen asked the mother of the missing Patty Hearst. "What did the grand jury ask you? Do you think your daughter is a willing member of the Symbionese Liberation Army?"

The questions echoed down the hall of the federal building. But Mrs. Hearst would say only that she loves her daughter and wants her to come home.

Gas Prices To Hike

CHICAGO (UPI) — There will be another round of gasoline price hikes next month, but the increases will be modest as the nation's oil industry attempts to prove itself mature enough to handle its own affairs, a veteran industry observer says.

The projected hike was based on the assumption the price-control era for gasoline will come to an end when the Congress fails to override President Ford's veto of a measure to extend controls beyond their Aug. 31 expiration date.

Herbert Hugo, senior editor of Platt's Daily Oilgram, said gasoline prices might go up as much as 3 cents per gallon in September. But he predicted competition and restraint by oil companies in the face of possible public recrimination to keep the average hike below 3 cents.

"This is a test period for the major oil companies. They want to show the world they can run their own business without government interference," Hugo said.

"I expect the industry to come through this initial stage with flying colors," he said.

her own will when she allegedly joined her captors.

"My daughter was kidnapped, pushed into the trunk of a car and given a very rough time," she said. "After people have treated you that way, you lose your own free will, don't you?"

Mrs. Hearst, wife of San Francisco newspaper publisher Randolph Hearst, was the only witness scheduled to testify before the grand jury this week.

Federal investigators suspect Jack Scott, former athletic director at Oberlin College, and his wife, Micki, rented the South Canaan, Pa., farmhouse targeted in the probe.

But their appearance before the grand jury has been delayed while a federal judge considers their motion to kill government subpoenas on grounds the FBI used extensive wiretapping and harassment.

Government sources conceded they had little proof that Miss Hearst personally stayed in the farmhouse.

However, they said they have evidence other SLA members she is suspected of traveling with — William and Emily Harris and Wendy Yoshimura — spent some time at the house.

There were reports early in the investigation that Miss Hearst's fingerprints were found in the farmhouse.

However, sources now say the FBI has no fingerprints of Miss Hearst on file for comparison. They do have a copy of a thumbprint from a California driver's license.

Texas' First Lady Dies In England

HOUSTON (UPI) — Miss Ima Hogg, the perennial "First Lady of Texas" and one of the state's most celebrated citizens, died Tuesday in a London, England, hospital. She was 93.

Miss Hogg's personal secretary, Mrs. Jane Zivley, said the Houston social leader and art patron was recuperating in Westminster Hospital from a broken leg suffered Friday and complications set in.

Nicknamed "Miss Ima," the wealthy philanthropist was the daughter of one of Texas' most progressive and distinguished governors, James Stephen Hogg, and the niece of a Confederate captain in the Civil War.

Former Gov. Allan Shivers, speaking of Miss Hogg when he presented her the University of Texas Distinguished Alumnus award in 1963, said, "Some persons create history. Some record it. Others restore and conserve it. But Miss Ima always has been and always will be the First Lady of Texas."

Miss Hogg was born July 10, 1882, in Mineola, Tex., where her father was district attorney.

Her father's eldest brother, Thomas E. Hogg, a Confederate captain, wrote a poem about the Civil War called "The Fate of Marvin." Featuring a heroine named Ima and James Hogg passed the name on to his only daughter.

Miss Hogg donated several gifts to the public, the most memorable being her 15-acre River Oaks home in Houston called "Bayou Bend," including its art and antique treasures.

The home, with its rich examples of American art ranging from 17th Century Pilgrim pieces to 19th Century federal period furniture, was given to the Museum of Fine Arts in Houston and was made an historical landmark.

A solar electric generating plant, believed to be first of its kind in the world, will be operating before the end of the year in the central Mexican state of Guanajuato.

Gospel Ranch Car Burns

The Living Waters Gospel Ranch, an organization dedicated to the rehabilitation of young men with drug-related problems, now finds itself in need of help.

J. Kirk Duncan of Pampa, one of the supporters of the ranch near Lefors, reports that ranch residents were driving to church last Sunday night when their automobile caught fire and was burned beyond repair.

That meant that the ranch's only means of transportation was destroyed.

The ranch is located near Lefors. Duncan said, transportation is a necessity.

He added that efforts now are being made to purchase a van with a larger seating capacity.

Duncan said persons who would like to contribute to the cost of new transportation for the Living Waters Gospel Ranch so that it can carry on its work should contact him at his Pampa office, phone 665-5757.

Well Doggone, Subtract Two Leaves Four

DAVIS, Calif. (UPI) — A puppy named Vinnie had two legs amputated Tuesday, but it's probably just as well. He still has four left.

"We've seen about everything here, but this is the first time we've had a six-legged dog," said Dr. Robert Leighton, head of the surgical team at the University of California veterinary hospital here.

Dr. Leighton said the dog had done "very well" with his six legs, but the 3-month-old puppy would now be "much more comfortable, and much less of a freak" with only four legs.

Leighton said Vinnie should return home in a few days.

The pilots recognized "bits and pieces" of a familiar substance that weren't under cover, a spokesman said Monday in announcing the haul.

"These guys have been looking at marijuana for years. They knew they'd found something," he said. "It was discovered purely by accident."

The Miami-based helicopter happened to fly over the area after searching for a helicopter downed at sea.

Customs notified the Bahamian police commissioner and the helicopter ferried his men to the scene.

An official said the stack of bricked marijuana was about 70 feet long, 13 feet wide and 7 feet high. He said it "may be the largest marijuana seizure in history" and called it a "mountain."

There was speculation it had been unloaded from a ship, but Customs officials said only that the case was under investigation both in the United States and the Bahamas.

John Hancock, president of the Second Continental Congress, was very upset over the choice of George Washington as the Continental Army's first commander-in-chief. He wanted the job for himself and was even more unhappy when his fellow Bostonian John Adams proposed Washington for the post.

MacKenzie State Park Prairie Dogs Plagued

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Mary Ebert's customers normally don't talk much about the prairie dog town across the street from The Fair Restaurant. When she places a plate of food in front of them, they're usually discussing the weather, the cost of living or admiring the truckstop cafe's new interior.

Lately conversations in the concrete and wood building have centered on the tiny, furry rodents housed in a field at MacKenzie State Park near the fairgrounds.

About 60 miles from the all-night restaurant near Needmore, authorities at the Mullock National Wildlife Refuge said they found indications of bubonic plague among the prairie dog population and are using chemicals to kill the fleas that carry the disease.

No indications of plague have been found in the prairie dog town near Lubbock but authorities said they would spray the area anyway to avert any chances of the disease.

"I haven't heard about anyone panicking," Mrs. Ebert, 23, said, wiping a formica countertop. "No, there's nothing been said here about a panic."

"Everybody here thinks they're (prairie dogs) cute and adorable," Bert Blair Jr., manager of the federal preserve near the New Mexico border, said all areas where the disease was confirmed have been closed to the public. Signs are up and chemicals have been placed in the prairie dog holes, he said.

Blair said the rodents die in their burrows and the prairie dog deaths are not easily detected because their carcasses can't be seen.

"When they die, the fleas are down in the ground and the flea ain't going to come out of that hole as hot as it is," Blair said.

The park, located northwest of Lubbock, covers 5,800 acres and hosts about 12,000 visitors a year, according to Blair.

A 3-year-old Navajo girl died of the disease in New Mexico this summer and a total of seven cases have been confirmed in humans this year in New Mexico.

Bobby L. Davis of the Texas Department of Health said there had been no reported cases of the disease in Texas.

"There has been no indication — nor do we anticipate — any human involvement whatsoever," he said.

This plague (in prairie dogs) was picked up as part of more or less routine surveillance. It is not unusual, not in an area (panhandle) where it is known to occur. It is not unusual at all to have it show up there.

Davis said there has not been a case of the plague in Texas since 1920. He said the "die-offs" of prairie dogs because of the disease were fairly common and occurred in Texas as late as 1973.

"Prairie dogs happen to be very sensitive to it and they die," he said. "When that happens, we check it out. It's a natural thing of its there. We're aware of it and we will watch it."

Burger, McCarroll Vows Exchanged

First Christian Church in Norman, Okla., was the setting for the Aug. 10 wedding of Miss Karen Sue Burger and James Dennis McCarroll, both 1973 graduates of Pampa High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Tuney Burger of Norman, and Mr. and Mrs. George F. McCarroll of Wilton, Conn., are parents of the couple.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory princess satin with an overlay of peau de Ange silk complemented with beads and re-embroidered Alencon lace creating the bodice, enhancing the sleeve design and highlighting the A-line skirt, which swept into a full cathedral train. The attire was designed and fashioned by the bride. Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion edged with deep scalloped lace, fell from a matching Cemelot cap of lace and tiny seed pearls.

The program of wedding music was presented by organist, David Vogeled, who accompanied Shelley Cogdell, Pampa, vocalist.

The Rev. Hugh Wilson, pastor, directed the couple in their marriage vows. The ceremony was performed before an altar decorated with four-tiered candelabra and two baskets of apricot gladioli. Ivory bows marked the pews.

Mrs. Jeanne Burger McCarroll was matron of honor and Miss Joanne Burger was maid of honor. Both are twin sisters of the bride. Bridesmaids were Shelley Dickson, Searcy, Ark., Evelyn Cash, Pampa, and Pamela Howard, Pampa. Teresa Baca, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. The attendants' gowns were fashioned of apricot satin and ivory lace and each wore a straw ivory garden hat.

John D. McCarroll, College Station and John Power, Brownsville, were best men and groomsmen were Dr. David McCarroll, Stillwater, Okla., Duncan McCarroll, Lubbock and Steven Burger, Norman, Rusty Brown, Roanoke, Richard Stowers, Pampa, and Dan Chesier and Danny Worley, both of De Sota, acted as ushers.

The reception was held in fellowship hall of the church. Assisting with the serving were Dianne Ramsey, Becky Berg and Sandra Watts, both of Norman, Barbara Sybert, and Cecil Enchelmeyer, both of Lubbock, and Julie Gass, Wichita, Kans.

The couple left for a Padre Island wedding trip and plan to move to College Station. The bride will graduate from the University of Oklahoma in December with a Fashion Design degree. She is a member of Omicron Nu, National Honor Society and is presently employed at Penney's in Norman.

The bridegroom attended Clarendon College, Texas A&M University and plans to attend OU in the fall.

James P. Daniel
Colorado, School of Mines students have elected James P. Daniel as Student Body President for 1975-76.

Daniel, 21, is majoring in Mining Engineering and attended Pampa High School.

During his junior year, Daniel was class president and in his freshman year was selected by the Denver Post as an outstanding Freshman ROTC Cadet. He has also been selected to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities; Member of Society of Mining Engineers of the American Institute of Mining Engineers; Sigma Gamma Epsilon Honorary Earth Science Fraternity; Blue Key Honorary Fraternity and member of Varsity Ski Team.

Daniel is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe M. Daniel, Jr., 1928 Evergreen.

Shannon Kay Hood
Named in this year's national listing of America's most outstanding university and college students is Shannon Kay Hood daughter of Mrs. Madeline Sears Hood and the late Mr. Fletcher Tatum Hood, 728 Bradley Drive.

Her name is included in the edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges," a listing of the campus leaders from more than 1,000 of the nation's institutions of higher learning.

The annual directory of distinguished students has been published since 1934 and carries only the names of students whose academic standing, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and future potential are decidedly above average.

Miss Hood is currently a Senior graduate student majoring in English.

Gordon Satterwhite and Leon F. Osborne Jr., both from White Deer and Kenneth Nunn, Pampa, were selected as delegates to the Federation of Americans Supporting Science and Technology (FASST) Youth Symposium on "Energy, the Environment, and Societal Needs," held recently in Washington, D.C.

Throughout the symposium workshops, an in-depth discussions between students and leaders in the field of energy, environmental protection, and education from the industrial, governmental, and academic sectors of society was held.

During the months following and through 1976, the delegates will be assisted by FASST in developing a better student and public understanding of the continuing energy environment situation.

The symposium is sponsored by the Federation of Americans Supporting Science and Technology (FASST) which is a non-profit, non-political, student organization with members and chapters across the country bound together by the common goal of involvement in current and future scientific, technological, and social issues.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By Fred Karpin

During the past decade, more and more of our better players, holding three low cards of partner's suit, will lead the third highest rather than the top card. In their judgement (reinforced by experience), the lead of the third highest (e.g., the four rather than the nine from a holding of 9-7-4) is the winning lead more often than not.

As an example, observe today's deal, which came up in a tournament some years ago, before the "discovery" of the virtues of the lead of the third highest. The play presented occurred at one of the tables.

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ♣.

West's penalty double was based on the hope that his hand would produce about two winning tricks, and that his partner, who had opened the bidding, would produce the two additional tricks needed to defeat the contract.

On West's ten of clubs opening lead, dummy's jack was played. East covered with the king, and South ruffed. Declarer found himself looking at five losing tricks. He recognized that his sole hope of fulfilling his contract lay in establishing two cashable club winners. To accomplish this required a bit of luck.

To trick two declarer led the five of trumps, and when West followed with the six, dummy's eight-spot was inserted. When the eight won the trick, West pushed his chair back and held his remaining cards closer to his chest. Next came the queen of clubs. East put up his ace, and South ruffed with the jack. The seven of trumps was then led.

the board's ten winning the trick as both opponents followed suit. On the high eight and nine of clubs South discarded his two losing hearts.

Of course declarer was lucky in his successful finesse against West's nine of trumps, and he was also lucky in that the adversely held trumps were divided 2-2. But his line of play, even if unsuccessful, would have been the correct one.

Had West opened the four of clubs (his third highest) instead of the ten-spot, declarer could not have established and cashed two club tricks. The eight would be played from dummy, South ruffing East's king. Next would come a trump to dummy's eight. Then the club queen would be led. East would cover with the ace. South would ruff — and West's ten-spot would become the highest club left in the deck.

This fall's big hit in the scarf department is a classic in-back-to-school clothing: a long, muffer, sometimes with matching knit hat.

Men Wanted for High Life

LOS ANGELES — Men wanted. Good pay. Excellent working conditions. Thirty-five thousand feet above the ground. No stairs.

Pretty Anita Elliott, Continental Airlines' recruitment and placement specialist, says she's always wanted to hang out a Help Wanted sign such as the above to welcome males to careers as flight attendants. "For two and a half years we've been recruiting men as members of our cabin crews," she reports. "Our last seven classes have been composed of a majority of men. Our next class will have a three-to-one male ratio."

What does the airline look for in evaluating male candidates for flight attendant positions? Communication skills, says Anita. "Ideally, they've had jobs with heavy public contact in sales positions or in the service industries. We want people who have enthusiasm, warmth and meet people well." Recent candidates have ranged in age from twenty to thirty-eight. Their backgrounds have included everything from skilled technicians to men seeking their first jobs.

Women flight attendants seem to welcome their male counterparts. "They try hard and do a fine job," said one air hostess. "Also, it's nice to have a man around the plane for some of the heavy work." Continental currently is combing through sixteen thousand applications for flight attendant, but they emphasize they're always looking for more.

Anita travels throughout the country interviewing prospective "hosts," as the airline calls the male attendants. What makes a man request the job? "Well, most of them want to somehow get into the airline business and a flight attendant seems like a great way to learn what passenger service is all about. As a group, I'd say they really enjoy traveling.

Books

United Press International Breach of Faith, by Theodore H. White.

(Atheneum, $10.95)
The master of fast-breaking history has written an intelligent, absorbing account of the Watergate disaster that captures the shattering of a presidency in all its sweep and drama.

Some of the chapters, such as the one on the firing of special prosecutor Archibald Cox, stand by themselves as morality tales presenting full-blown examples of venality and arrogance in the Nixon administration.

But White, in an apparent attempt at even-handedness, stops the action every now and then for effusive compliments on Nixon's accomplishments in foreign policy or on his plans for reorganization of the federal bureaucracy.

The kudos often appear awkward and oddly out of place. White tries to solve the difficulty by splitting Nixon into two personalities. Then he concludes with this explanation of the Nixon contradictions:

"Unless one is satisfied that Nixon is a total hypocrite, a man of unrelieved brittleness, one must ask how he could stomach what he authorized and learned about his administration and its underground. And the answer can come only by imagining that here was a man who could not, in his waking moments, acknowledge the man he recognized in his nightmares — the outsider, the loner, the loser."

Nixon, White says, viewed his overwhelming 1972 election sweep from the viewpoint of the lifelong loner, as a personal victory. "It was not simply an election he won; he had conquered a land; its citizens were the occupied and he could toy with the law as he wished, however much a hostile Congress, the news system or the intellectuals protested."

The book's strength comes from White's talent as a digging reporter who can supply the telling detail or the view of a participant which illuminates an event and gives it a coherence it lacked in newspaper stories. Easily, this is the finest book on Watergate so far.

The Proteus Pact, by Geoffrey St. George. (Little, Brown, $7.95) In this engrossing espionage tale of World War II, a German scientist, horrified by the cruelty of the Nazi regime, decides to sabotage his secret weapons project with the aid of British Intelligence. But the British are suspicious and, as tension builds, one of their number is suspected of being a spy. A sophisticated, satisfying espionage novel.

Supernatural on Stage, by Richard Huggett. (Taplinger, $8.95) Considering the superstitions that pervade the theater, it's a wonder any play even makes opening night, no less financial or artistic success. And opera superstitions he calls "irresistible lunacies" that make theater superstitions appear "as sane and sensible as a provincial vicarage." The book, complete with name-dropping descriptions, makes light-hearted, amusing reading.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:
Here is a hint for men who wear a mustache, particularly the handlebar style.

My husband has a handlebar type and sometimes when he is out of mustache wax, he uses a bar of hand soap.

He simply moistens his fingertips, scrapes off a little of the soap, and rubs it on with his fingers.

Then, he just grooms, and shapes his mustache and it looks perfect and stays all day long.

And because it is soap, it can be washed out with water.

Joy Bazill
I asked a friend that has a handlebar "stash" to try this to see if it worked.

Ron said that it did hold the mustache, but to be careful not to get the soap on the skin above your lip.

Said he did once, and it sure made his coffee taste funny!

Heloise II

UNWRITTEN LAW
Never carry your books, etc., to your room when entering the house.

After all, what are living room chairs and tables for?

J. Pruitt
Dear Heloise:
I do a lot of sewing and I've come up with what I think is a great idea.

When making a hat with a brim—whether the brim is wide or fairly narrow—if you want it to dip flatteringly over one eye, try small weave penelope backing used in needlepoint work.

Be sure to preshrink the backing first—just as you would the fabric you use for the hat.

You may want to use a heavier needle in your sewing machine, also. Sew and save!

Carol S.

Dear Heloise:
Add the unbeaten white of an egg to cream that is too thin to whip.

You will have a thick, creamy consistency in no time.

Edith Whitney

Dear Heloise:
Love your column. I'm one who hates to throw anything away. Those family-sized detergent boxes make fantastic magazine holders.

Cut away the top and carve out a portion of one side, then cover with adhesive-backed paper. Different-sized boxes can be covered for different-sized magazines if desired.

I made extra ones and put them in my closet for last year's collections.

Nancy Perdue

Dear Heloise:
When traveling with perfume, I always seal the cork or whatever with nail polish.

Then, when ready to use it, break the seal with the point of a nail file, and there you are.

Now this means you have to travel with nail polish!

Use one of the plastic sandwich bags and seal tightly.

Mrs. M. Hildebrand

Dear Heloise:
Old decals are difficult to remove, but if you moisten them with vinegar a few times, they will wash off readily.

A. Frederick

True, I find that if you heat the vinegar a bit, it will work better. I also dip a blotter in the vinegar and plaster it to the decal and let it dry.

Both will peel right off!

Heloise

Dear Heloise:
May I offer another suggestion to your readers who find it necessary to transport a cat or small dog to the vet in a carrier.

My wife and I are the sole support of several felines, and when we find it necessary to take the dears to the vet, we put one or two disposable diapers in the carrier.

It is so easy to clean up if there is an accident.

Astronaut To Undergo Surgery

HOUSTON (UPI) — A small lesion in the left lung of astronaut Donald K. "Deke" Slayton has been discovered so early Slayton will probably be able to return to space flight status, according to his physician.

Slayton, 51, the last of the original seven space pilots to fly, will undergo exploratory lung surgery next week because of the lesion, the space agency announced Tuesday.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration denied it was caused by the poison rocket propellant fumes Slayton, Thomas Stafford and Vance Brand breathed July 24 during the return from their historic rendezvous in space with two Soviet cosmonauts last month.

Dr. Arnold Nicogossian, a space agency flight surgeon who treated the pilots after the mission, said the exposure to the poisonous fumes contributed to the early discovery of the lesion.

He said the lesion, which appears to be the size of a pencil eraser, shows up as a faint shadow in pre-flight x-rays of Slayton's chest, confirming it was not caused by the rocket propellant fumes. But Nicogossian said it went unnoticed until the very careful examinations of the pilots after the mission because the fumes burned their lungs.

"The reason it was detected was because the x-rays showed everything (from the fumes) had cleared up but that spot," Nicogossian said. "It was covered by bone structure and blood vessels. Anyone looking at the x-rays pre-flight would have said it was a blood vessel."

He said even if the lesion turns out to be a malignant tumor, Slayton will probably easily recover and return to flight status.

"If it is a growth, it will be removed. Assuming everything is healed and settled down, he'll be ready to fly," Nicogossian said.

Slayton, America's oldest astronaut, was grounded just before his first Mercury flight in 1962 because of a heart irregularity. He served as chief of the astronaut corps until doctors determined his heart problem was gone and he was returned to flight status. He made the final Apollo flight and officials earlier said he would be considered as a pilot on the next manned program, space shuttle, in 1979.

He will enter M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, one of the nation's leading cancer treatment centers. Monday and will undergo surgery the next day, NASA said. Nicogossian said he probably would be hospitalized for seven to 10 days.

Bomb Disturbs Talks With Striking Police

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A small bomb exploded on the doorsteps of Mayor Joseph Alioto's home early today, forcing him to leave talks with representatives of striking police officers.

Police said the blast "blew out part of the front door, but there were no injuries." The mayor's secretary, Julie Nichols, said Alioto's wife and a housekeeper were at the home.

Alioto said in a get-together speech televised to San Francisco Tuesday night that dismissal proceedings will be started against strikers who do not return to work today "at the start of the normal work shift at about 8 a.m."

The talks were aimed at ending the walkout by 80 per cent of the city's 1,800-member police force over wage demands.

A spokesman for Alioto said a note found on the lawn outside the mayor's house said "Don't threaten us." He said it was crudely lettered in red printing on a white background and possibly had a Nazi marking.

The spokesman said that shortly after Alioto's hard-line speech he received a phone threat.

"We took it seriously," he said.

The spokesman said the threat "had something to do" with Alioto's publicly announced walk through the tough Tenderloin area after his video speech to prove his point that San Francisco is safe despite the lack of 80 per cent of the police force.

Alioto said in his speech that "police just don't have the right to strike."

He said he was taking a "get-tough attitude" because San Francisco "can go the route of New York unless we call a halt right now" to economic demands on the city.

On the first night of the strike some thieves broke into a leather goods shop in the North Beach section and looted the entire stock. Owner Dennis Sinatra said he planned to sleep on the floor of his store until the strike was over.

The walkout began Monday, and San Francisco faces these other immediate strike threats.

Alioto met with union representatives Tuesday night to try to avert these walkouts.

Then he got together with officials of the Police Officers Association and the city's Board of Supervisors at a hurriedly-called late-night meeting he instigated.

Concert Plans Progress

Jack Hulsey finishes putting up the Up With People sign on Pampa's main street. The young entertainers will be in town Aug. 26 and 27 to perform at M.K. Brown Auditorium. Their concert is being sponsored by the Downtown Kiwanis Club. The group still needs housing for about 50 young people. Homes willing to share their space on August 24, 25, and 27 are asked to call 665-5730 or 669-2753. Pampans can put up as many or as few Up With People singers as they want. They are asked to deliver them to rehearsals and feed them breakfast if possible. A choice of race and sex is available. The 150 member cast includes young people from 21 countries.

Mob Loots Residence Of Thailand Official

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — A mob of "law-and-order" demonstrators, many of them believed to be off-duty police, broke into the home of Prime Minister Kukrit Pramojo today and looted the residence.

About 2,000 persons marched across the Thai capital to Kukrit's home Tuesday night to protest government leniency toward militant students and farmers.

The jeering crowd threw stones at the house for two hours and then broke into the building after midnight as riot police fired bullets into the air.

At the time of the incident, the prime minister was talking to representatives of the demonstrators at a police station a half-mile away.

Kukrit then drove to Government House for a two-hour, early morning meeting with members of his cabinet and National Police Chief Pote Bhanand.

Defense Minister Pramarn Adireksarn said later the prime minister decided against calling in troops to put down the increasing police unrest.

"The prime minister decided to make big matters into small matters and small matters into nothing at all," Pramarn said.

Police said as many as half the demonstrators were believed to be off-duty officers dressed in street clothes. At least three police vehicles took part in the protest.

Witnesses said riot police armed with carbines and demonstrators wielding pistols fired their weapons at the height of the protest. But police said there were no reported injuries.

Authorities said the mob almost totally looted the heavily damaged residence during the demonstration, the latest in a series of nationwide police protests.

A crowd of some 10,000 police and supporters from across northern Thailand seized province headquarters in the town of Lamphun Tuesday and threatened to call a nationwide strike.

Angry policemen have been staging "law-and-order" rallies since last week when the government released nine imprisoned demonstrators during violent farmer protests last spring.

If the Shoe Fits...
By Gary Gattis

How can your varied size foot fit in a one-size shoe?

The foot's shape and size is different in the morning than at night; different on weight bearing than at rest; different when walking, jumping or running; different in illness than in health; different in summer than in winter.

A foot has many shapes and sizes. Yet it must be fitted to a one-shaped, one-sized shoe. It's a great trick if it can be accomplished. Very few customers appreciate this fact.

Modern science and tannery supply "upper" materials that yield just enough to accommodate the enlarged foot on weight bearing without discomfort, yet return to the smaller foot size when the foot is inactive.

Expert shoe fitting is far more than selecting the right size. It involves the right "last," meaning shape, and the right materials and construction. And most of all, it requires a fine skill backed by experience and judgment.

Politicking Begins For Presidency

United Press International
President Ford implored the GOP faithful in Iowa "to rouse the nation to greatness" and sounded optimistic about the party's 1976 chances Monday night.

Ronald Reagan, a potential GOP rival, spoke to the Veterans of Foreign Wars and criticized the government for giving up in Vietnam.

Ford, on a two-day trip to the Midwest that included several political stops and a speech today to the American Legion, told well-heeled supporters at a fundraising dinner in Des Moines.

"The American people are ready for a fresh start and we're going to give it to them. I'm convinced that 1976 can be a great election year for all of us. Let's get to work... let's make sure 1976 is a banner year and let's make sure that banner says Republicans."

In reference to Watergate, the President said, "Without question, 1976 offers a great opportunity for the Republican party to prove once and for all to the skeptics that it has the strength to survive setbacks, the resolution to rouse the nation to greatness and the will to win elections. We can do it and we're going to do it."

Reagan criticized the government for giving up in Vietnam, undercutting its own fighting men and abandoning an ally.

The former California governor told the VFW convention in Los Angeles: "This nation, not its fighting men, gave up, for the first time in its history, and walked away—not only from a war but from an ally."

Reagan said the United States should make clear that "never again shall we ask young men to fight and die for their country unless the goal is complete victory."

He also criticized Congress for not pressuring the administration to get an accounting of GIs missing in action.

Alabama Gov. George Wallace, addressing the same convention in Los Angeles, dwelt on the failure of U.S. foreign policy. He said, "Our foreign policy experts apparently have not learned that you cannot trust the Communists, who are liars and cheats."

"The only way we are going to have a permanent peace in this world is that this nation be, and remain, the number one offensive and defensive power on the face of the earth—then you can always get them to negotiate with you."

Ford told his Iowa audience about the evils of big government and the GOP belief that "personal initiative in private enterprise—not a meddling, musclebound federal government—is what made this nation great."

He said he would keep vetoing big spending bills passed by the Democratic Congress except those dealing with the military, which Ford said he would try to make sure is "second to none."

Teamwork was emphasized while he learned to work as a member of a rifle squad, mortar squad or direct fire section. Each team member completed the training well qualified to perform other jobs in case of casualties.

FTC Probes Reserve Reports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For five years, the Federal Trade Commission has been trying to determine if natural gas companies got together to win higher rates by poor-mouthing the size of their gas reserves.

The FTC investigation has run into delays, but a congressional committee has taken up the matter and widened the investigation into the possibility that companies also deliberately held back production.

The reserves figure is crucial to natural gas rates because the Federal Power Commission has allowed higher interstate gas rates as reserves are shown to decline.

A federal court entered the picture with an order to the FPC to investigate supplies of gas available to Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Co., because of the Houston-based firm's contention it ran suddenly short.

The outcome of the scrutiny will help determine how—and whether—the federal government continues to control prices of gas in interstate sales. The debate centers on whether higher prices will produce more gas and whether some companies have held back production in anticipation of more money down the road.

The FTC's Bureau of Competition, which did that agency's investigation, has built what it contends is enough of a case for an antitrust complaint to be brought against 11 gas-producing companies and a trade group, the American Gas Association. The AGA is not the producers' organization, but it has acted as their conduit of reserves estimates to the FPC for its rate-making decisions.

James T. Halverson, head of the competition bureau, said there is evidence to allege that the companies and AGA "agreed, by jointly maintaining and participating in a system each knew or should have known was inadequate and unreliable, to attempt to influence the wellhead price of natural gas."

The flow of data to the FPC has no safeguard against "use of biased or manipulated data," Halverson contended.

The commission decided July 29 to continue the investigation and to put off the issuance of a complaint for the time being. One lawyer who has participated in the case called that decision "a copout."

The commission will try in court to get data from seven companies who have ignored subpoenas — Shell, Texaco, Mobil, Exxon, Standard of Indiana, Standard of California, and Tenneco. It has material from the AGA and Gulf, Continental, Pennzoil and Union of California.

Kenneth Anderson, who moved to the FTC from the Justice Department to work on the investigation, said, "This investigation has been going on for five years. It is time to do something about it."

A congressional subcommittee headed by Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., has been investigating whether reserves data are accurate and whether natural gas producers had ever consciously held back production in expectation of higher prices.

Moss said last month there is evidence that, by shutting down some production capacity needlessly during a high-demand time, some companies did hold down production.

Texans Called 'Anti-tax Reform'

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa News
Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — Texas' 24 House members collectively rank near the bottom in their support of tax reform legislation, according to a report released by a private tax reform lobbying group.

The organization, Taxation With Representation (TWR), said Texas' representatives voted for tax reform measures only 22 per cent of the time — better than delegations from only five other states. The TWR analysis was based on seven recent House votes having an impact on the nation's tax structure.

The highest state score noted was Indiana, whose representatives voted 83 per cent correct.

Only two Texas congressmen, Robert Eckhardt (86 per cent) and Barbara Jordan (57 per cent), both Democrats of Houston, voted "right" more than 50 per cent of the time, according to TWR.

Four Texas representatives — Jim Wright, D-Fort Worth, William Poage, D-Waco, Richard White, D-El Paso, and John Young, D-Corpus Christi — scored a zero rating.

TWR's tax voting analysis, the first of its kind, is based on two votes during debate on the Tax Reduction Act, one during discussion of the House Budget Resolution and the remainder during debate on the recently passed Energy Bill.

Comprised of several leading economists, the organization found Democrats averaged 30 points higher than the Republican average of 29 per cent.

TWR defined pro-tax reform position as generally those opposing special interest tax breaks, such as business deductions, credits or exclusions. It is also defined in terms of requiring "persons with similar incomes and assets" to be taxed alike.

Use of Tax subsidies to influence specific business and personal decisions should generally be a last resort, the report stated. "Most deductions, credits and exclusions erode the tax base and increase the tax burden assumed by others."

The three Texas members of the House Ways and Means committee, which handles all important legislation bearing on the tax structure, scored less than 30 per cent. J.J. Pickle, D-Austin, received a 14 per cent rating; William Archer, R-Houston, and Omar Burleson, D-Anson, both scored 29 per cent.

Democrats Charles Wilson of Lufkin and Jack Brooks of Beaumont each scored seven points higher than the state average of 22 per cent. Democratic colleagues Olin Teague of College Station, and Jack Hightower of Vernon, earned a rating eight points below the state average.

Of the seven votes used by the TWR for the ratings, five passed the House. The votes included:

— An amendment, offered by Texas Rep. Wilson, to permit oil drillers who did not own either refineries or retail outlets to continue to permanently receive percentage depletion on the first 3,000 barrels of oil per day and the first 18 million cubic feet of natural gas per day. A "no" vote on the measure, which was defeated, was considered the pro reform position. No member of the Texas delegation cast a "correct" vote on the measure.

— An amendment by Texas Rep. Archer to allow tax deductions based on a five-year amortization on qualified solar energy manufacturing facilities. Casting "correct" or negative votes on the measure, which was defeated, were Eckhardt, Jordan, Henry B. Gonzalez, D-San Antonio, and Ray Roberts, D-McKinney. Others voted for the amendment.

Other key votes cited by the TWR were amendments to:

— repeal the 22 per cent oil depletion allowance. TWR backed the repeal, which passed.

— give a tax credit for home insulation expenses. The amendment, endorsed by TWR, was defeated.

Dog Bites Local Child

A three-year old Pampa child was bitten by a dog Monday on her nose and above the left eye.

Heather Chase, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Chase of 1510 N. Sumner, was in good condition at home this morning and the dog was impounded. Jackie Mason, 15, was also bitten by a dog within the city Monday. He, too, was reportedly in good condition.

In both cases, the dogs will be kept confined for 10 days.

Virdon In; Gomez Out

HOUSTON (UPI) — Should the Houston Astros win the World Series in the near future, historians no doubt will mark the walk of Bill Virdon across Bill Virdon's backyard as the turning point.

The Houston team, as newly Astros Smith and Virdon know, is nowhere near pennant material. But both men like to think it soon could be. And in any case the fate of the team is in the hands of the two after Smith, the new general manager, Tuesday named Virdon his field manager.

The two were in similar roles with the New York Yankees the past two years when Smith was executive vice president and Virdon was manager. The two were also neighbors in a wooded section of Oyster Bay, Long Island.

"I know now what Texans mean when they say damn Yankees," Virdon joked after the announcement that he would replace Preston Gomez. He recalled his unexpected visit from Smith.

"I really didn't expect to get a call from Tal," said Virdon, "but when I saw him coming across the lawn (Monday afternoon)...I had a good feeling."

It didn't take Virdon long to decide he would accept Smith's offer of a contract through 1976. "I said, 'Let's go,'" Virdon said. He became the seventh manager of a team which has never won a pennant and which is on the skids toward the worst season ever. Houston lost No. 81 Tuesday night in Virdon's debut and there are 33 left — 11 with Cincinnati and Los Angeles.

"We're going to try to be a spoiler the rest of the way," Virdon said, "but I'm going to evaluate the talent first and look toward 1976."

Jon Matlack, the New York Mets' lefty who defeated Houston in Virdon's debut, had a word for the Astros' players.

"He doesn't take anything off anybody," Matlack said. "He is one of the fairest men I have ever met and the best manager I've ever been associated with."

Virdon got his first managerial job with the Pirates, a team he played with for nine years. He managed the 1972 Buc team to a pennant, but was fired late the next year with Pittsburgh three games out of first place.

He left the Yankees this season with the team 10 games out after leading them to a second place, finish his first year.

"Obviously, I think he was the most qualified and the best candidate to direct the Astros in the future," Smith said. "Bill has been a winner as a player, he's been a winner as a manager and I'm confident in the future he will be able to direct a winner here in Houston."

BoSox Dump Royals

UPI Sports Writer
The impact of rookie Fred Lynn on the Boston Red Sox this season can be easily summed up in three letters—MVP.

In the history of baseball there has never been a first-year player who has won the Most Valuable Player Award in either major league, but the 23-year-old outfielder of the Boston Red Sox continues to perform in a way that will be difficult to overlook when the American League MVP voters cast their ballots at the end of the regular season.

"He's the best young all-around player to come through this league in a long, long time," Manager Whitey Herzog of Kansas City said of Lynn Tuesday night after watching the Red Sox' rookie lead Boston to a 4-0 victory over the Royals. The triumph boosted Boston's lead to eight games over Baltimore, which lost to Minnesota 5-2, in the AL East.

"Really, he reminds me a lot of (Carl) Yastrzemski when he came up," adds Herzog. "He's an aggressive hitter, a good outfielder and a fine baserunner—just like Yaz was. There's really no phase of the game he's short in."

Lynn showed off his hitting and running ability against the Royals Tuesday night. He doubled in the sixth inning and, after taking off for third base on Jim Rice's grounder to third, scored when first baseman John Mayberry's return throw to third went wild.

In the seventh, after Yastrzemski walked, Lynn blasted his 20th homer to give the Red Sox a couple of valuable insurance runs. Supported by Lynn's heavy hitting, southpaw Bill Lee went the distance, allowing only four hits, to gain his 18th victory against seven losses.

Lynn's overall batting credentials are unmatched by any player in the AL this year. He stands first in the league in runs batted in with 88, first in runs scored with 78, second in batting average with .333, second in doubles with 31, tied for fourth in triples with six and tied for sixth in homers.

In other AL games, Texas nipped Cleveland 2-1. Chicago edged New York 7-6 in 11 innings. Detroit defeated Oakland 3-1 and California nipped Milwaukee 5-4 in 15 innings.

Pittsburgh blanked San Francisco 4-0. Atlanta topped Philadelphia 6-4. St. Louis nipped Cincinnati 2-1. New York downed Houston 6-3. Montreal shut out San Diego 5-0 and Los Angeles beat Chicago 2-1 in National League action.

Twins 5, Orioles 2
Bert Blyleven tossed a five-hitter as Minnesota stopped Baltimore for the second straight night. Blyleven retired the first 13 batters in order and finished with eight strikeouts to raise his record to 13-6. Jerry Terrell had three hits and scored twice to pace the Twins' attack.

Rangers 2, Indians 1
Jim Spencer's solo homer in the seventh inning and the hitless relief pitching of Steve Foucault sparked Texas over Cleveland. Spencer's 10th homer was only one of five hits the Rangers got off rookie Dennis Eckersley. Foucault pitched 2-3 innings of hitless relief to protect Jim Umberger's sixth victory.

White Sox 7, Yankees 6
Jorge Orta singled home the winning run in the 11th inning to give Chicago its victory over New York. The White Sox tied the score at 6-6 in the seventh on Bucky Dent's three-run homer. Pete Varney had his first major league homer for Chicago while Graig Nettles homered for New York.

Tigers 3, A's 1
Aurelio Rodriguez and Ron LeFlore singled home runs in the fifth inning to spark Detroit over Oakland for its fourth consecutive victory after a 19-game losing streak. Mickey Lolich scattered nine hits in going the distance for his 11th win.

Reunion Stated With Tiant, Son

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Boston Red Sox pitcher Luis Tiant says he is eagerly awaiting a Boston reunion with his Cuban parents, who have been unable to visit their son since the Fidel Castro regime took power.

"Luis and Rosita Tiant, both of whom will be 70 this year, are in Mexico City trying to acquire visas necessary to enter the United States and meet Tiant in Boston, possibly as soon as Thursday or Friday."

Reuss Blanks Giants; Pirates Lead By 1 Game

UPI Sports Writer
That rumble heard 'round the National League East Tuesday night was the Pirate batsmen returning home.

Home to Pittsburgh and home to undisputed first place.

"Anything we did before tonight had no bearing on how I pitched," said Jerry Reuss, who in hurling the Pirates back to a one-game lead in the NL East with a 4-0 shutout over the San Francisco Giants, snapped a personal three-game losing streak. "Tonight we got hits and these are the Pirates that I know."

"We must have left the real Pirates at home when we went on the road."

The Pirates, returning home after a disastrous 2-12 road trip, rapped out 10 hits against the Giants including solo homers by Al Oliver and Richie Zisk. Reuss, meanwhile, yielded only three hits as the "stopper" of Pittsburgh's six-game losing streak.

Sporting a 10-day beard, Reuss struck out six and

Pheasants Moved to Pampa Area

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, with the cooperation of the Soil Conservation Service, released 200 pheasants in the Pampa area Tuesday morning. About 100 of the birds were released in Gray County and 100 in Carson County. The pheasants were released as a part of a program that started last year as a result of a petition of 700 names requesting the stocking of pheasants in the area. The birds were hatched at a Tyler Texas Parks and Wildlife hatchery. But their parents were caught at Hereford, so they should have no difficulty acclimating to the Pampa area. Another release involving at least 300 more pheasants will take place in a few weeks, according to Perry Gruhkey, district conservationist. There were 500 birds released last year and another 500 will be released in 1976. Gruhkey said that the birds will be plentiful in the future if hunters do not shoot them for a couple of years. An area farmer, on whose land pheasants were released in 1974, said he has noticed several young birds hatched out this spring. (Pampa News photos by Thom Marshall)

Pheasants' Needs

For the first five weeks of their lives, pheasants feed almost entirely on insects. Following that, domestic grains are the main item on their menus making up 50 to 75 per cent of their diets from spring to fall and up to 90 per cent in the winter. Weed seeds provide some food, but seldom more than 20 per cent of the total diet. Several types of cover are required — loafing cover, travel lanes, roosting cover, nesting cover and winter cover. Of these, nesting and winter cover are the most critical. Winter cover needs to be dense enough to provide protection from high winds, cold, snow and ice. Wintering pheasants prefer to roost in dense, low cover. Nesting cover needs to be tall enough to conceal eggs and hen. It also needs to be relatively free from disturbances and not subject to destruction before late summer. Pheasants will roam widely, but if adequate food and cover are available throughout the year, they will spend most of their time on a square mile or less.

Combination Licenses Available at Savings

New 1975 - 76 combination hunting and fishing license are available now.

The combination license provides a savings of 75 cents over the cost of purchasing separately a resident hunting license at $5.25 and a fishing license at $4.25.

The new license, valid Sept. 1, 1975, through Aug. 31, 1976, are available at all Texas Parks and Wildlife enforcement offices and bonded license sales deputies such as major sporting goods stores throughout the Panhandle and South Plains.

Non - resident hunting license are $37.50.

Fishing licenses purchased separately at anytime of the year are valid for one year from the date of purchase.

Three turkey tags and four deer tags are on the new hunting licenses and must be used according to regulations.

New licenses are printed on a special paper which is resistant to tears and water.

Brown Bear's Future Cloudy

Alaskan Indian and Eskimo land claims on Kodiak Island may jeopardize the future of the world's largest carnivorous land mammal — the legendary big brown bear.

The brown bear stands to lose roughly 20 per cent of its habitat in the 1.8 million acre Kodiak Wildlife Refuge to native Alaskans, according to the current (June - July) issue of "National Wildlife Federation," the nation's largest conservation organization.

As reported by wildlife writer David R. Zimmerman, some of the best bear habitat could become privately owned under the provisions of the Federal Alaska Native Land Claims Settlement Act of 1971, which re-established previously unrecognized land claims of Indians and Eskimos.

The bear territory is coveted by the land claimants for the same reason that makes it attractive to bears — Kodiak Island's mild climate.

Known as Alaska's "island in the sun," the bear refuge offers warm winters and lush vegetation, a strong attraction for settlers, including cattle ranchers who originally launched a campaign to eliminate the Kodiak bears in 1930. Protests from sportsmen and conservationists thwarted this effort and led to the creation of the bear refuge in 1940, notes the National Wildlife Federation magazine article.

Another threat to the bears came from trophy hunters, who at one time in the 1950's, were killing more than 200 bears a year. Since then, the allowable limit has been 120 bears annually, a level exceeded in both 1973 and 1974.

The 2,000 bears living on Kodiak Island today enjoy an easy life, eating fresh salmon in summer and berries in the fall before retiring for a long winter's sleep.

A large Kodiak stands ten feet tall on its hind legs, a foot higher than its grizzly bear cousin.

One proposal now being considered to ease the conflict would add bear territory on the Alaskan Peninsula to the national park and wildlife refuge systems to accommodate bears displaced from the Kodiak refuge.

A rancher who wants to extend grazing operations for cattle on Kodiak Island recently said: "Nobody enjoys watching an old brownie fish a salmon stream more than I do. But I lose a darn sight more beef to the bears than I market."

Civilization is moving north, and the bear is going to have to give way.

Metropolitan Ambulance Service

Jimmy Free, Metropolitan Ambulance manager

Metropolitan Ambulance Service of Pampa a subsidiary of Metropolitan Ambulance of Amarillo, had its beginning in Pampa in September 1971.

The Pampa division has three ambulances, six full time employees and five who work part time.

"I personally think it is the best thing that ever happened to Pampa," Jimmy Free, manager, commented. "All employees undergo emergency medical technician training and can take care of just about anything that comes up."

Free says it looks like Metropolitan will be in Pampa for a long time.

"We have a four - year contract with Gray County and the City of Pampa."

House Construction Surges 49 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A 49 per cent surge in construction of condominiums, townhouses and other multifamily dwellings in July has pushed housing starts to their highest level in a year, government and industry officials say.

Housing Secretary Carla Hills said the figures reported Monday were "encouraging, particularly with regard to multifamily starts. This trend seems to indicate a continued recovery for the housing industry."

Construction of condominiums, townhouses and apartment buildings jumped from an adjusted annual rate of 209,000 units in June — the worst in 29 years — to 311,000 units in July.

Despite improvement from an extremely poor base, the rise was indicative of a trend developing among home builders to meet public demand for moderate-cost housing after the price of the average new home swelled to $40,600 this year.

"The whole industry is trying to get back to basics by reducing the size of the house and lot," said vice president Stanley Baitz of the National Association of Home Builders.

The best answer so far has been the townhouse, which provides a feeling of single-family ownership while holding down costs through common structural walls and green space, said Baitz.

While builders of condominiums and townhouses vaulted from historic lows, construction of the classic single-family home gained by only 5 per cent, to 927,000 units, in July.

The number of all types of homes under construction in July was estimated at 1.238 million, an increase of 13.7 per cent from an upward revised June rate of 1.088 million. It was the highest level since July 1974, when new units under construction totaled 1.314 million, the Commerce Department said.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

THURSDAY, AUGUST 21

Your birthday today: This is your year for taking care of long-standing obligations. Upgraded skills attract heavy responsibility; you may be promoted to a higher level than you ever thought you could manage. Relationships become subtly complex, perhaps too numerous to deal with easily. Today's natives are hungry for understanding and determined to achieve physical and intellectual success.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Make lump-sum settlements today. Various opinions are hard to reconcile. You meet up with delay and detours in travels. Personal projects thrive in odd moments.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Your work conflicts with your interests and demands that family or neighbors make upon you. Ignore so-called "friendly" advice.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): It doesn't pay to show irritation or offer harsh comment if people disagree with you. See that things are completed or secure even if you have to postpone a trip.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Make that purchase with cash, if you can pay for it, it's the item you've been looking for and the price is right. Real bargains are nonexistent just now.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): If you're in charge, try to understand the emotions of those under you; if you're not, expect leadership to have a blind spot. Everyone gets into the act and causes dissension.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't insist on having matters 100 per cent your way, but try to take what you can get or wait for a better time. An impulsive remark hurts someone innocent.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your intuition guides you in advance enterprises that are under your control. Let any project sit for now until you can get the proper help. Ignore criticism.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Personal matters clash with business and cause differences. Confidential deals are favored temporarily, but will become public knowledge at the first sign of friction.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Travel is unproductive, so put it off for another day while you attend to essential jobs at home. Solve that long-lingering problem.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accept the tension, interruptions and misunderstandings of today and make the best of it. Keep your own words to the point. Your sense of humor saves you.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You examine how your impatient moves generate most difficulties. Concentrate on routines rather than capricious experiments. Get extra rest.

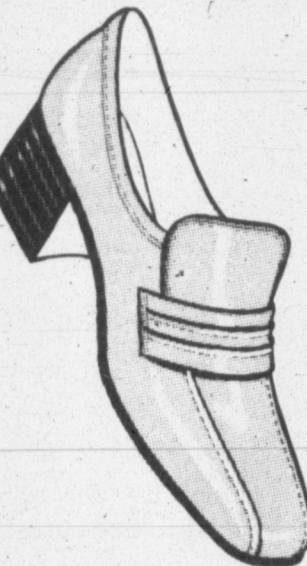

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Appearances are misleading. Take things in proper sequence. Don't ask for favors or make promises. Use this chance to collect what is long overdue. Be more understanding at home.
