In Brief

Pod to stay

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — An inmate pod where Christian Bible lessons are taught in the Tarrant County jail will remain, but Sheriff David Williams said he will try to diversify the program to include other faiths.

The American Civil Liberties Union and several Jewish organizations have complained that the 48-prisoner pod favors Christian prisoners.

Williams said he made the decision late Monday to keep the pod after receiving a legal opinion that it is constitutional.

Don Jackson, president of the Fort Worth chapter of the ACLU, said he hopes to resolve the matter short of litigation.

Officials urge cult to give up

WACO (AP) — Negotiations with the messianic leader of a heavily armed religious cult are proceeding along "two irreconcilable tracts" — one peaceful, one not — the FBI said today.

FBI special agent Bob Ricks said Branch Davidian leader David Koresh goes from belligerency to peacemaker during talks aimed at ending the 10-day standoff.

The FBI had been portraying the negotiations as positive, but Monday began discussing what it called "the dark side" of Koresh, who claims his name is "the surname of God."

While Koresh has amassed an arsenal that could includes rockets and grenades, Ricks said the FBI has sufficient firepower to respond.

"I want it absolutely clear that we have sufficient firepower to respond overpoweringly," Ricks said.

"We have sufficient firepower, if we chose, to completely neutralize this situation at any moment," Ricks said. "We do not choose to do that."

The FBI said early in the siege that it was not planning to storm the compound, which has been surrounded since Feb. 28, with agents tried to serve federal search warrants and an arrest warrant on Koresh. Ricks repeated that pledge today.

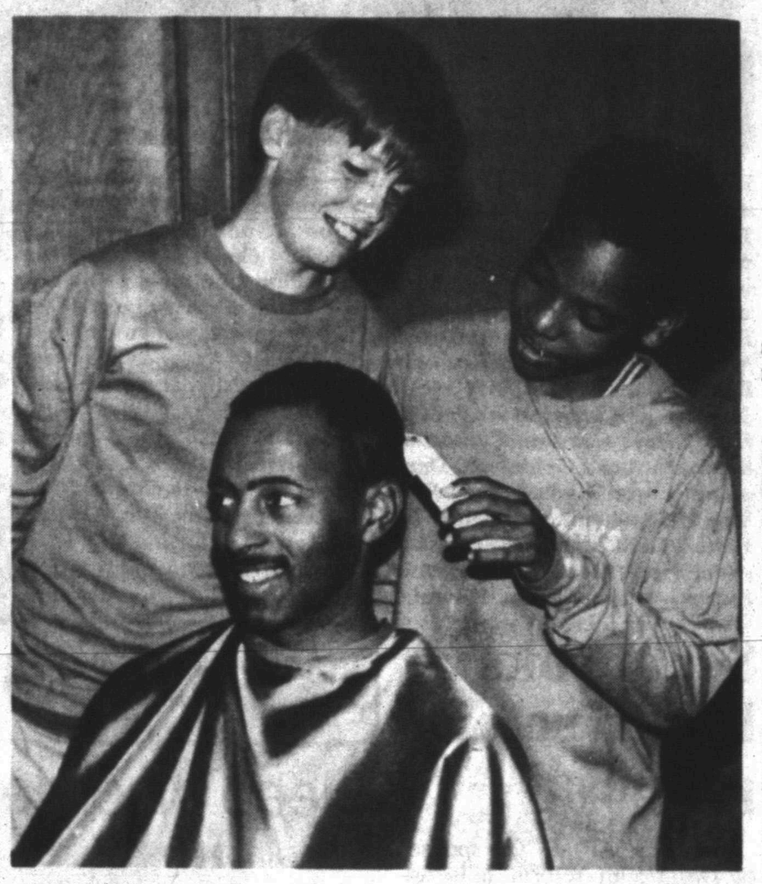

Also today, a judge continued state custody of the 21 children who have been released since the stalemate began. The judge also ordered the state to investigate the home environments of relatives seeking custody of the children.

Two elderly women who came out of the compound with the children last week have been were released from custody, Ricks said. They were first charged with murder, but those charges were quickly dismissed and they had been held since March 2 as material witnesses.

Ricks said they were released into the custody of a trustworthy person.

Earlier, a hearing for cult member Del Roy Nash was postponed at his attorney's request. Nash was arrested and charged with attempted murder and firearms violations.

Also today, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms director Stephen Higgins said federal agents are prepared for a lengthy standoff with the cult.

Ware told the boys that if they went undefeated in the season he would shave his head. The team won all its games and the kids compromised by shaving "Mavs" and "14-0" into his hair. Coach reassigned; faculty pacts ok'd by Snyder trustees

Snyder public schools trustees approved a coaching reassignment, okayed 248 teaching contracts and tabled one other during their March meeting, held Monday.

Board members also adopted a calendar for 1993-94 and recommendations for waivers to the Texas Education Agency.

The board approved Athletic Director David Baugh's recommendation to reassign girls' varsity basketball coach Jerry Tucker next year.

Tucker, who had served as the Lady Tigers' coach for one year, will continue to coach junior varsity tennis this spring but will not handle girls' basketball off-season duties.

Tucker's teaching contract was renewed for 1993-94, and he will be reassigned within the school district.

Following the meeting, Baugh indicated he will go outside the present coaching staff in search of a new varsity girls' basketball coach.

Trustees approved one-year extensions for 28 faculty members, one-year renewals for 177 faculty members, new additions to term contracts for 26 teachers and probationary contracts for 17 teachers.

The board tabled any action on the contract of Stanfield first grade teacher Floyd Garcia Jr., who is currently on administrative leave, facing possible criminal prosecution.

In other business, the board approved recommendation of two waivers requested by Assistant Superintendent Dr. Tom Scannicchio. The first is to submit a waiver to the Texas Education Agency for two staff development days for the 1993-94 school year. Those will be Aug. 12 and Jan. 31. A second waiver to TEA will request that the district's summer bilingual program be altered from three hours a day for eight weeks to four hours a day for six weeks.

Dr. Scannicchio said that the eight-week program is too long and disrupts family-planned activities. He also noted that many children have siblings who are in programs which end two weeks earlier. Because of this, he said, there is a serious lack of attendance in the bilingual program during the final two weeks.

The board approved a 1993-94 school calendar which has teachers reporting on Aug. 11 and the first semester running from Aug. 11 through Dec. 17. The second semester will be from Jan. 3 until May 26, 1994.

Election clerks approved by the board for the May 1 school board election were Phyllis McGinnis, June McGlaun, Polly Autry, Francene Allen-Noah, Treva Moore, Georgene Galloway, Jo

Incumbents file for HISD board

Incumbents Brian Blair and Jimmy Frank "Chip" Roemisch Jr. have filed for re-election to the Hermleigh public school board, giving the May 1 race three candidates to fill two positions.

Blair is running for a third term on the board while Roemisch served two years of a partial term and is seeking his first full term.

Earlier, Joe Roemisch, owner/salesman with Production Pump Systems, filed for one of the two at-large terms up for election on the board.

The filing period continues through March 17.

Smith new chaplain at Price Daniel unit

Mark Smith, a native of Fort Worth, has been named chaplain at the Price Daniel unit, according to Warden Les Woods.

Smith, 35, has been with the Texas Department of Criminal Justice since February. He previously worked as a chaplain with the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation at the Terrell State Hospital.

MARK SMITH

Smith replaces Stanley Wilson who had served as Price Daniel chaplain since the unit opened in 1989. Chaplain Wilson transferred to the Robertson unit in Abilene.

Smith is a graduate of Poly-Tech High School in Fort Worth. He earned his bachelor's degree in 1987 from Arlington Baptist College.

In 1991 he graduated from Southwestern Theological Seminary in Fort Worth with a master's degree in Divinity.

Smith has preached for the past 15 years. While serving in the military in Alaska, he pastored a Baptist Church in Anchorage for four years. He has also pastored churches in Palmer, Alaska, Kenny Lake, Alaska and in Garland.

Prior to working for Terrell State Hospital, Chaplain Smith completed an internship with the Baylor Medical Center in Dallas.

Smith and his wife, Shirley, have five children enrolled in Snyder schools. They are in the second, fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grades.

Reno testifies before Judiciary Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Miami prosecutor Janet Reno pledged at her confirmation hearing today that if confirmed as attorney general, her top priorities would be "attacking violent crime, drug trafficking and public corruption."

In prepared testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee, Reno also pledged strong civil rights enforcement and added: "I want to do everything I can to ensure equal opportunities for all Americans."

Reno was the only scheduled witness and the committee was expected to act swiftly to ratify her nomination. President Clinton was hoping for a quick Senate vote to fill the last vacancy in his Cabinet. Clinton's first choice, Zoe Baird, withdrew her nomination in January after admitting she had hired illegal aliens as household employees.

Reno, a 54-year-old Harvard lawyer who has been Dade County, Fla., state attorney for the last 15 years, faced little or no organized opposition as she settled into the witness chair.

"Attacking violent crime, drug trafficking and public corruption must be the first priority of the department, and if you confirm me, it will be," Reno said in her prepared testimony.

Reno also promised to fight on behalf of the environment as attorney general.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A smart person believes only half of what he hears, but a wise person knows which half to believe."

The following ended up on our desk, and is a good reminder for all during tough times:

"You say you love me, but sometimes you don't show it. In the beginning, you couldn't do enough for me. Now you seem to take me for granted. Some days I wonder if I mean anything to you at all.

"Maybe when I'm gone, you'll appreciate me and all the things I do for you. I'm responsible for getting the food on your table, for the clean shirt you wear each day, for the welfare of your children and your home, and for the thousand-and-one things you want and need.

"Why, if it weren't for me, you wouldn't even have a car to drive. I've kept quiet and waited to see how long it would take for you to realize how much you really need me.

"Cherish me. Take good care of me, and I'll always take good care of you.

"Who am I? I'm your job...your customer..."

Card coaches are sidelined

Hermleigh public school trustees decided not to renew contracts for the three coaches and a special education teacher for 1993-94, but did renew all other teaching contracts during the board's March meeting Monday.

Superintendent Jerry Church said the board did not renew contracts for coaches Mark Minor, Kelly Irvin and Don Tubbs, and special ed instructor Larry Riley.

Church declined to comment on why the contracts were not renewed, saying only that discussion of the teachers took place in executive session.

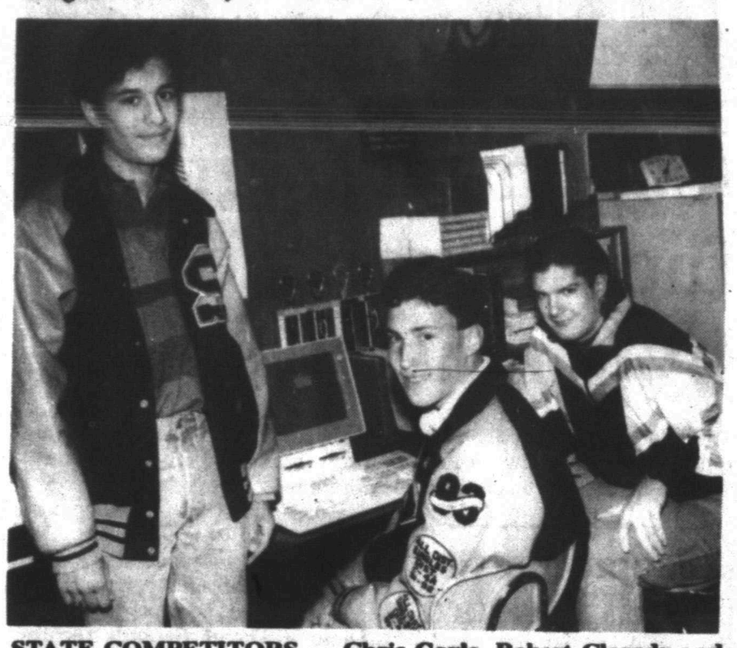

In other business, the board approved a textbook committee report and cast votes in the Region 14 Education Service Center board election.

The only other items of business were payment of bills and minutes of the previous meeting.

Senate oks health reform proposal

AUSTIN (AP) — The sponsor of two health reform bills approved by the Senate says the measures would encourage young doctors to practice family medicine in medically underserved areas.

"We don't need more family practicing physicians in North Dallas," said Sen. David Sibley, R-Waco. "We need them in rural areas."

A bill sponsored by Sibley would allocate about $1 million to a pilot program that would allow clinics that train family practice physicians to increase care for the poor.

A second bill by Sibley would allow medical graduates to save about $20,000 in student loans if they agree to serve their residencies in a medically underserved area, such as one of the 125 rural counties in Texas facing doctor or nursing shortages, Sibley said.

Both bills passed the Senate 31-0 Monday and will be forwarded to the House for consideration.

Texas has led the nation in hospital closures for more than five years, and nearly 40 percent of physicians in the state are age 55 or older and are nearing retirement, according to the Texas Hospital Association.

Rural areas have been calling for more aggressive recruiting of doctors to avoid severe shortages in the future.

He said the bill to forgo repayment of student loans would encourage doctors to select family practice, rather than the more lucrative field of surgery.

Sibley said medical students may think it's "really cool" to be a surgeon, but added, "We think that if they will give this a look, they will find out there are more rewards to medicine than just financial."

Sleep disorder causes muscle spasm

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a sleep disorder called nocturnal myoclonus that is almost controlling my life. I've been to doctors since I was 22 and haven't been able to find one who will take me seriously. Most refer to it as restless legs, yet mine actually jump. I've been prescribed sleeping pills, muscle relaxers, nerve pills and pills for poor circulation. Do you know what medicine would work for my condition?

DEAR READER: Myoclonus is a brief muscle contraction; when such a contraction occurs at night, usually as a person is dropping off to sleep, it is called nocturnal myoclonus.

These muscle spasms can result from a variety of disorders that affect metabolic balance, including kidney failure, Alzheimer's disease and other neurological disorders. Many healthy persons experience nocturnal myoclonus; the reason is unknown. The affliction usually responds to drug therapy with medicines such as clonazepam and valproic acid. Anti-convulsants are often beneficial.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with benign positional vertigo. My doctor indicated the inner ear plays a role in this disorder but also said the cause is unknown and there is nothing to be done about it. Is exercise beneficial or is there something else I can do?

DEAR READER: Benign positional vertigo is a common condition marked by episodes of uncontrollable dizziness and nausea. It usually occurs in certain positions, when the balance mechanism in the inner ear is inappropriately stimulated. The cause is unknown, although some experts believe that poor circulation to the inner ears may play a role.

The condition does not ordinarily respond to exercise, diet or an alteration of lifestyle. Antivert, a prescription drug, often relieves symptoms, although most patients quickly discover which positions of the head worsen matters. Thus, by attempting to avoid the wrong position, you may be able to prevent the vertigo.

Most cases of benign positional vertigo last only a few weeks or months. If the symptoms persist, I recommend that you be examined by an ear-nose-and-throat specialist to make sure than an infection or tumor isn't causing the problem.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report — "Ear Infections and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Astro-Graph By Bede Osol

Your Birthday

March 10, 1993

In the year ahead, you could be more fortunate than usual through changes that have been precipitated by outside factors. Flow with the tide of events, and don't swim against them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you are considering making an investment today, be very selective about whom you see for advice. It could spell the difference between profit and loss. Pisces, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Pisces' Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Others will hold you to your word today regarding any commitments you make to them. If you promise you're going to do something, you had better mean what you say.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In order to expedite a matter today, you might attempt to do something that you are not qualified to do. Instead of saving time or cutting corners, you could make something worse.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you have a short memory today, there's a possibility you may repeat a painful past mistake that should have taught you a lesson the first time around.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Quality should take precedence over quantity today. Instead of attempting to do too many things simultaneously, focus in on the one or two projects that you can do well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Usually you're not the type of person who is easily influenced by others, but today you might let associates think for you. Make sure you think for yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Strive to be methodical and realistic in your commercial affairs today. There is a chance you might kid yourself into thinking you're going to be able to get something for nothing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you want to make a favorable impression on a member of the opposite gender today, don't come on too strong. Instead of hitting a home run, you're likely to strike out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you're dissatisfied with something in a valued relationship, it's best to bring things out in the open today. However, do it in a diplomatic manner, without hostility.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There are indications that you might be more tolerant and considerate of casual acquaintances today than you will be of friends with whom you share strong emotional bonds.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It is wise to look out for your own interests today, but don't do so in a manner that could bruise another in order to get what you want.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Guard yourself against inclinations today to take fun things too seriously and serious things too indifferently. This could spell trouble.

A beautiful play, yet simple

By Phillip Alder

I don't think the state does enough for artists and writers in the way of subsidy and tax relief and so on. I mean, as an artist and a writer, I have to be surrounded by beautiful things and beautiful people. And beautiful people cost money.

No, I didn't write that — it was the English humorist and playwright Alan Bennett. But I do agree with the first sentence.

There have been numerous beautiful bridge plays through the years. Many of these — like today's — are simple in essence. If you find the critical defensive play here, you can justifiably feel pleased with yourself.

Cover the East and South hands. Sitting West, you lead the heart king against four spades. Declarer wins with dummy's ace, plays a spade to his ace and returns a low spade, East following with the two and 10. You cash the Q-J of hearts, everyone following suit. What should you lead now?

There is a natural inclination to cash the club ace to defeat the game, but this is demonstrably wrong.

Count South's tricks. He has five spades, one heart and at most two diamonds. That's only eight. You must make sure he doesn't win four diamond tricks or two club tricks. But you can afford to concede one club trick. The correct defense is to lead a low club at trick six. Whatever the lie of the cards, you must defeat the game.

Note finally that conceding a ruff-and-discard is fatal with this layout. Declarer discards a diamond from the dummy and ruffs in hand. Then one diamond ruff in the dummy establishes the suit.

Girls' cage coach relieved of duties

Snyder head girls' backetball coach Jerry Tucker was relieved of his duties in that capacity at Monday night's SISD school board meeting.

Tucker, who coached the Lady Tigers to a 3-24 record in 1992-93, will continue working as JV tennis coach.

Tucker was the varsity tennis coach during the 1991-92 school year before taking the reins as head girls' cage coach following the departure of former coach Laurie Welch.

JERRY TUCKER

Under Tucker, the SHS girls won as many games as in the previous two seasons combined, including three District 2-4A wins, the first loop wins for the program since UIL realignment in 1990.

However, two games were forfeited after the University Interscholastic League found out that team members were treated to a meal by a local fan, in violation of UIL rules.

Snyder Athletic Director David Baugh cited the reason for the change as "philosophical differences".

"Nobody denied that Coach Tucker worked hard," Baugh said, "and I think our girls played harder for him. In certain aspects, the program improved under him.

"We just felt like it was time to get another coach.

"I appreciate Coach Tucker's hard work and efforts," Baugh added.

Baugh said that the district will begin looking for a new girls' coach right away. "We will go outside and find us somebody," he said.

The girls' off-season program will be taken over by Robin Turner, freshman girls' cage coach, and Matt Garrett, Tucker's assistant varsity and JV basketball coach.

Tucker's teaching assignment with the district, which was renewed in other business in Monday's meeting, is in special education at Humble Smith school.

SHS girls named all-district

A pair of Snyder Lady Tigers grace the Honorable Mentions listed on the All-District 2-4A basketball roster, released Monday.

Junior Annie Ragland and senior Stephanie Fambro were both named to the elite squad.

Ragland, a 5-7 guard, averaged almost nine points a game, while Fambro, a 5-0 guard, canned about four.

"I'm real proud of our girls for making it," said Snyder coach Jerry Tucker. "They did an excellent job for us this year.

"All the girls named to the all-district team deserved to be there," he added.

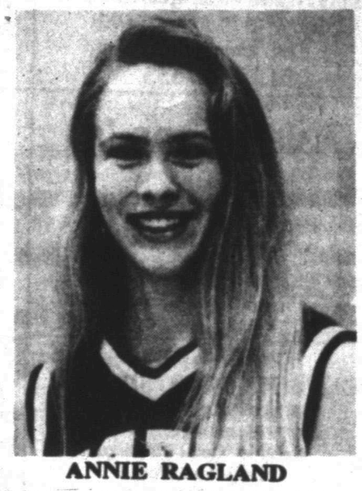

Tucker guided the Lady Tigers to a 3-24 campaign, including a 1-9 loop slate. Snyder actually won 5 games overall and three within the district race, but was forced to forfeit league wins over Lamesa and Estacado due to UIL sanctions following an illegal team meal purchased by a Lady Tiger fan.

Not surprisingly, the district's two playoff teams, Levelland and Plainview are well-represented on the all-loop team.

Levelland head coach Dean Weese, who guided the Loboettes to a loop title and eventually a trip to the Class 4A state tournament, where they lost to Austin Westlake in the final, was named 2-4A Coach of the Year.

STEPHANIE FAMBRO

ANNIE RAGLAND

Weese's star senior, Dana Cunningham, a 5-5 post, was picked by district coaches as the team's most valuable player. Plainview standout Tina Walton, a 5-6 junior guard, was selected the squad's Newcomer of the Year.

Cunningham averaged 14 points and 5 rebounds a game for the Loboettes.

Joining her on the first squad are LHS teammates Emily Fowler, a 5-9 senior post, and Joyce Howard, a 5-3 senior guard.

Plainview's Erika Thompson, a 5-6 senior guard, and Frenship's Delawna Meloy, a 5-10 junior guard, and Summer Lawlis, a 5-11 sophomore post, round out the first team.

Thompson canned 11.5 points per game for the PHS girls while Meloy and Lawlis combined for 26 points and 13 boards a contest for Frenship.

Second teamers included Trina Pinner of Levelland, Plainview's De Lynn Brunson, Lamesa standouts Amber Vaughn and Keisha Butler, and LaTeedra Butler of Estacado.

Joining Ragland and Fambro as Honorable Mentions are Frenship's Kristy Babbs, Shea Blanks of Levelland, and Estacado's Evette Perry.

Coaches' pacts not renewed by Hermleigh school board

HERMLEIGH — Renewal for the contracts of Hermleigh's three coaches were voted down, 4-2, in Monday's meeting of the HISD Board of Trustees.

Girls' coach Kelly Irvin, boys' basketball, football and baseball coach Don Tubb and head football and track coach and assistant basketball coach Mike Minor will all be released by the district at the end of the academic year.

"That's something," said an outspoken Irvin today. "We come in here, we try to build a program, and we get fired.

"It's the same thing as getting fired," she said. "I've never been fired from anything in my life.

"I know why they did it to me, but I don't understand them doing it to Don and Mike."

Irvin said that the reason for her contract not being renewed was her nomination of a senior student to the 6-man All-Star game in July, against a directive issued by Hermleigh Superintendent Jerry Church.

The girl, according to Irvin, had left school, missing the last six weeks of the 1991-92 school year, and the first grading period of this year, and wanted to return.

Irvin felt that the student was not being given any supprt for her return to class and that the HISD adminstration was trying to keep her from participating in athletics, even though it had been cleared by the University Interscholatic League.

The Hermleigh coach said that the district singled out the student because she is living with her Hispanic boyfriend.

The student, according to Irvin was unanimously voted into the annual game by District 27-A coaches.

Following the naming of the girl to the All-Star team, Church reportedly reprimanded Irvin for her actions.

"Superintendent Church told me not to nominate her," Irvin said. "But she deserved it. I thought it might give her enough enthusiasm for school that she'd graduate."

Since the incident, senior Stephanie Gannaway, the district alternate, replaced the student in question on the All-Star roster.

Irvin said that that several athletes from Hermleigh's girls' programs were at her residence until late last night. A freshman member of HHS girls' basketball and softball teams allegedly injured her hand, slamming it against a wall when learning of the coach's impending departure.

"They are such good kids," said Irvin. "I'm not going to miss anything about this place, except the kids."

Church told the Snyder Daily News this morning that the issue was dealt with in executive session and he could not comment on the reason for the move.

Irvin, whose Lady Cardinals softball team is 2-0, coached the HHS varsity basketball team to a 5-16 mark. Her junior high squad finished the year at 15-0.

Minor was 4-6 in his first year at the helm of the football program. Tubb's high school cagers went 6-13 and his baseball team opens it's first season today against Abilene Christian High School.

The coaches are slated to continue their respective duties through the remainder of the year.

C-City tops SJHS tennis squad

Snyder Junior High netters Patrick Jordan and Jay Don Griffin each posted 8-0 pro-set singles wins in seventh grade boys' play Monday in a dual match with Colorado City.

Colorado Middle School posted a 12-9 victory in Monday's meeting, in spite of the lop-sided SJHS wins.

Jordan topped C-City's Kevin Chambers in the No. 1 battle, and Griffin beat Kendall Williams in the No. 2 tilt.

Other Snyder singles winners included Troy Allen, who posted an 8-4 seventh grade boys win over Michael Finley, and David Forbes, who beat C-City seventh grader Jebby Forbes, 8-6.

Snyder was able to take only two girls' singles wins, an 8-5 decision by eighth grader Molly Wilson over Colorado City freshman Jennifer Lawson, and Shelly York, an 8-4 victor against Leslie Turnbow, also a ninth grader.

Ty Jones and Witt downed Kendall and Williams for Snyder's only seventh grade boys' doubles win, and Wilson and Sonie McMillan were good for an 8-4 win over Misty Perales and Amber Kelley in girls' doubles.

Snyder's junior high tennis team also competed in the weekend Andrews Tournament, grabbing third place.

Top finishers for Snyder were Laura Gonzales, who took second in seventh grade girls' singles; Griffin, who was runner-up in eighth grade boys' singles; Ray Romero and Griffin, who were third, and Clark Church and Geoffrey Loper, fourth place finishers in eighth grade boys' doubles.

The SJHS squad will return to the court with an appearance in the March 20 Colorado City Tournament.

Tigers visit Steers for non-district tilt

The Snyder Tigers will try to keep from being victimized by the Big Spring Steers three times in a row when they visit BSHS today for a 4 p.m. non-district baseball game.

The Tigers lost to the Steers, 5-2, at Moffett Field a week ago, then fell, 7-2, in the third-place game at the Big Spring Varsity Baseball Tournament Saturday.

Today's expected starters are Luis Bustamante, who pitched a two-hitter against the Tigers last Tuesday, and SHS senior Raymond House.

Tiger offensive leaders nine games into the campaign include House, who is hitting .480 with four RBI, sophomore John Clinkinbeard, who chips in a .370 average with three runs driven in, and DH Chris Mitchell, a sophomore who carries a .295 batting average.

As a team, The Tigers are hitting .274. Snyder is 3-6 coming into today's contest.

U.S Congress ponders more spending cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton, told by Senate Democrats he might have to accept up to $90 billion more in spending cuts than he proposed, cautioned today that too many cuts could wreck the nation's recovery, lawmakers said.

Senate Budget Committee James Sasser, D-Tenn., said Clinton was hesitant when he and other members of the panel told him that the spending cuts in his plan do not go nearly far enough.

"The president was generally accepting, but he did sound a cautionary note," Sasser said. "He said that, we could, if we're not careful, turn off the recovery."

Earlier today, Clinton said he was encouraged by House and Senate efforts to cut federal spending more than he originally planned, saying lawmakers' ideas are "consistent with the direction of my plan."

"I think that eventually we'll ... get together and we'll work out a budget that the American people can be proud of," Clinton said during a morning photo session before the meeting with Senate budget leaders.

The Senate Democrats' plan goes beyond a House Democratic proposal to cut spending over the next five years by $63 million more than Clinton initially proposed.

Sasser said Senate budget writers plan to slash spending $90 billion over five years beyond what Clinton proposed. Sasser said their plan also would propose new tax increases and user fees beyond what the president recommended.

In addition, the new "investment" spending that Clinton proposed will be scaled back and drawn out, Sasser said.

"There will be more cuts. Some of that new spending has to be shaved back," said Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D. He suggested that the new spending proposed by the president might be trimmed by 20 percent.

Clinton said details hadn't been worked out yet, "but I think that in the end there will be further cuts and there will be ... a much more substantial reduction in the deficit than the estimates showed."

No action was taken concerning the complaint.

Trustee Terry Martin was absent. All other board members, to include Geraldine Parker, Luann Burleson, Ann Walton, Glen Clarady, Charles Anderson and Billy Bob McMullan, were present.

Alleged open meeting violations to be prosecuted

HOUSTON (AP) — The Texas attorney general's office is prosecuting two allegations of violations of the state's open meetings and open records laws, the first such cases to be handled by a newly appointed special enforcer for open government issues.

Special Assistant Attorney General Gary Bledsoe said Monday he is pursuing misdemeanor criminal charges against several Bee County commissioners for an alleged violation of the state's Open Meetings Act and a civil lawsuit involving the city of Dallas' refusal to release police records.

The two cases being pursued by Bledsoe already had been initiated at the local level when the attorney general's office stepped in.

Texas lawmakers hopeful hit list will exclude state

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas stands a good chance of dodging the painful military cuts that will be meted out this year in an attempt to save money and reflect post-Cold War realities, several Texans on Capitol Hill say.

The lawmakers are cautiously optimistic Texas won't figure prominently on the base closings list Defense Secretary Les Aspin is expected to unveil Friday.

"I think that Texas will come out OK," Rep. Solomon Ortiz, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, said Monday. "It's a matter of just sweating it out until the list comes out."

Said Rep. Chet Edwards, who also sits on the Armed Services Committee: "I'm hopeful this round will be easier to swallow."

Aspin has promised "the mother of all base closing lists." While he won't reveal how many facilities are in jeopardy, senior Pentagon sources say the Navy is expected to take the biggest hit.

That could benefit Texas. "Given the fact that the Navy is going to be doing more cutting than anybody else and that we have a small naval presence in Texas ... there's nothing illogical about the fact that Texas appears to have escaped this round," said a military affairs expert to one Texas member of Congress, speaking on condition of anonymity.

But Naval Station Ingleside near Corpus Christi could be on Aspin's list, some said, as well as Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene.

"There are going to be some pitfalls and some obstacles along the way, but we've talked to a lot of people from the Navy and I think we're going to be okay," said Ortiz, D-Corpus Christi.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, concurred. "After speaking today with Admiral Frank Kelso, chief of naval operations, I remain hopeful that the new naval station at Ingleside will not appear on the upcoming base closure list," he said Monday.

Ortiz and members of the Coastal Bend Area Economic Development Council made a presentation Monday about Ingleside's strengths to the Navy's congressional liaison. One plus they touted is the Navy's plan to consolidate mine warfare operations at Ingleside.

Associated Press Interview...

Mrs. Clinton outlines health care proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — First lady Hillary Rodham Clinton said Monday the health care legislation she is helping to draft would create a guaranteed "core of benefits" for all Americans, with an emphasis on preventative care and local control.

Mrs. Clinton ruled out taxing insurance benefits, saying it would be an "unfair" way to pay for health care reforms, and said the White House has no plans to seek a middle-income tax increase to pay for the new system. Echoing her husband, she said so-called sin taxes, such as those on cigarettes, were a good source of financing the reforms "because those are health-related."

Charged by President Clinton with directing the health care task force, Mrs. Clinton sought to soften concerns about her role. "I kind of view myself in some ways as a citizen representative," she said, adding that she would not make final decisions on the legislative proposal.

In a 60-minute interview with The Associated Press, Mrs. Clinton said her husband's health care reforms could be financed in part by cutting up to $200 billion of red tape from the $900 billion system, including some paperwork.

"We've spent all this money creating a system that costs us more money," she said.

Mrs. Clinton ticked off options, such as standardizing reporting forms and eliminating federal subsidies to medical schools for training specialists.

Mrs. Clinton said there are several ways to raise money for reforms, including tax hikes on insurance companies.

She also:

—Defended the decision to have the task force meet in secret, saying it is an effort to stem the influence of special interests.

—Promised that people who have adequate health care coverage will not suffer under reforms aimed at providing coverage to all. About 15 percent of the population is without coverage.

She said the legislation, due to Congress in May, will create a national guaranteed "core of benefits." This basic package will resemble a typical insurance policy. But major hospitalization and preventative care are likely components of the guaranteed benefits.

Working under a budget that would limit how much the nation can spend on health care, state-level "cooperatives" likely will negotiate with insurers, health maintenance organizations or others to develop insurance packages.

A typical family might be able to choose among an HMO plan that covers routine doctors visits for children, a traditional fee-for-service plan and several other packages, she said.

The task force begins winnowing its list of options this week.

Mrs. Clinton plans to travel the nation, using polls and other campaign techniques to convince Americans that reforms will provide less expensive health care.

The task force has not determined how much the reforms will cost — although estimates climb as high as $90 billion, she said.

She ruled out taxing health care benefits.

"Until we get a system that works — so that they can have some assurance that their health care benefits will not continue to explode, which is depressing their wages — I don't see how you can do that," she said.

Teen-age brothers ask court to keep abusive parents away

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two San Antonio teen-age brothers who say they were brutally abused have received a temporary restraining order keeping their divorced parents away from them.

District Judge Martha Tanner signed the order Monday, preventing the couple from contacting their sons pending a court hearing Friday on a lawsuit the teens filed to make the separation permanent.

The 14- and 15-year-old brothers are asking the court to take custody rights away from both parents, not allow visitation and force child support payments for whoever is appointed their guardian.

"I wish it didn't have to come to this, but no one was helping us out," the 15-year-old told the San Antonio Express-News in an interview published in today's editions.

"It was scary at first, but I am not going to run back to all the hurt."

Along with the suit, the boys filed affidavits detailing the physical and emotional abuse they say they have endured.

Problems listed in the sworn statement include being burned by cigarette lighters, being beaten with belts, and being pulled across the room by their hair.

The 14-year-old, who is a diabetic, said his father withheld his insulin, according to the affidavit.

They said their father padlocked the refrigerator, bathroom and pantry and wanted the boys to pay rent, according to the affidavit.

The boys also said they were the victims of sexual abuse at the hands of a man their mother continued to subject them to, according to court papers.

The pair also said their father threw family pets out of the window of a moving car for no reason and sang the Michael Jackson song "Beat It" as he whipped the boys, according to court papers.

Each boy ended his statement with: "I have lived all my live in total fear of both my parents."

In December, the teens sought help from the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services but said they were returned home after a brief investigation.

An official with the state agency told the newspaper they were investigating the case when the boys left home and have been trying to find the teens in an attempt to help them.

In January, the boys ran away from their father's home and have been staying at an undisclosed location, said attorney William Dooling, who volunteered to represent the boys after hearing about their plight.

"These kids, the way I see it, simply had to take things into their own hands," Dooling said.

The boys said they just want to live normal childhoods.

"I want to go to school to become a doctor. I want to make something out of my life, not like some people. I want to do something," said the 14-year-old.

His brother added, "I do have a little love for my parents, but I also have hate, and the hate is stronger than the love."

PD notes one arrest

Snyder police made one arrest, submitted a report for Class C assault and worked several traffic mishaps Monday.

Officers arrested a 25-year-old man for driving with a suspended license at 8:32 p.m. near Cogdell Memorial Hospital emergency room.

At 6:15 p.m., police were dispatched to Snyder Laundry where a 1985 Chevrolet owned by Patricia Escobedo of 511 34th St. had been struck by a vehicle which left the scene.

At 5:36 p.m., police investigated an accident in the 2400 block of Avenue T. Involved were a 1987 Yugo driven by Rodolfo Canas of 3720 Ave. U and a 1988 Ford driven by Eddie Gutierrez of 910 28th St.

It is almost that time again. A time, set aside each year, to give special recognition to the things which we owe our very livelihood. America's resources. The week of April 25 through May 2, is Soil and Water Stewardship Week. This year's theme is "Hands of Healing." I sincerely hope the local churches in Snyder will plan a service to include a special thanks to the Lord for all of our bounty.

The earth, the Bible tells us, is the Lord's — a gift we all share with "all living beings, all mortal creatures that are on earth" (Genesis 9:16-17 KJV). As descendants of Adam through Noah, we are responsible for being concerned with all life on earth, since the lasting covenant God made with Noah included "every living creature that is with you" (Genesis 9:9 RSV).

Healing our environment begins with individual action. Each one of us can do our part — no matter how small a task it may seem — to start the healing process. We can plant a tree, collect recyclable products, conserve water, compost our leaves, apply pesticides more carefully — generally, think about the enviroment. The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District invites you to join them in celebrating Soil and Water Stewardship Week by bringing this message to your congregation.

Our local district is just one of nearly 3,000 districts nationwide that works with the National Association of Conservation Districts to encourage the wise use of natural resources through the annual week long observance.

The Upper Colorado SWCD has already mailed out information to each church in Scurry and Borden Counties about Stewardship Week. The district will supply, free of charge to the churches, various materials such as church program covers, youth and adult discussion guides, bookmarks, children's activity booklet, reference booklets and many other professionally designed materials. All the congregations need to do is contact the Upper Colorado SWCD.

The directors would like to encourage you, as a congregation member, to go one step further and request that your church dedicate one Sunday to Soil and Water Stewardship Week. As the citizens in Scurry County are wholly dependent upon agriculture for survival is it not proper that we as businessmen, pastors, farmers, teachers, etc. devote one day in the year to give a formal thank you for all that we reap from the earth? I think it is.

This year's stewardship art suggests the need for each of us to stretch out our hand and do our part to help heal and care for our fragile environment. Three hands: one holding a leaf, another with soil and the 3rd with water are illustrated in 4 colors. This illustraton is depicted in all the material available for use during the week. The Upper Colorado SWCD has a list of materials available to the churches. Any material ordered is free, paid for by the district.

If your congregation is interested in ordering any of the material available for the church's use during Soil and Water Stewardship Week, contact our office. Please come by, meet with us and look at the samples we have. We feel that this issue is a very important part of the life of every living creature on earth.

Suppliers are limited and the National Association of Conservation districts has requested that we have all orders to them as soon as possible in order to assure delivery of complete orders.

All information given herein is for educational purposes only. Education programs conducted by the ASCS, SCS and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Men are more interested than ever about nutrition issues and health.

According to a recent survey by the American Dietetic Association, men are changing the way they think about nutrition. The campaign targeting men between the ages of 25 and 49 surveyed more than 500 men aged 18 years and older in March 1992.

Survey results indicated the following:

—71 percent considered nutrition a top priority.

—33 percent saw health maintenance and disease prevention as top reasons for eating healthfully.

—87 percent had some concern about nutrition.

—28 percent had physical fitness and 13 percent weight control as reasons for healthful eating.

—Strong gains in nutrition awareness among younger men reducing their chances of developing many diet-related diseases associated with aging.

—25 percent did "all or almost all" of the grocery shopping in their households, and 47 percent of married men did at least half of the shopping.

—43 percent read labels on food packaging "all" or "most of the time."

—27 percent reduced their fat intake during the past year.

—14 percent ate less cholesterol.

—10 percent ate more vegetables.

—5 percent increased fruit consumption.

If men were to choose just one way to improve their diets, cutting back on fats is it. Lower fat diets have not only been linked to reduced risk of heart disease and certain types of cancer, they're also a key to successful weight control, physical fitness, improved energy, and mental alertness.

Men should make gradual changes to make low-fat eating habits a way of life. Everyone can do it — even those who have hectic work or social schedules, travel, or hate to cook.

Men interested in learning more about the importance of nutrition are encouraged to telephone the National Center for Nutrition and Dietetic's toll-free hot line at 1-800-366-1655 with questions or requests for a free copy of ADA's Food Strategies for Men brochure.

Entomology Report

By Mark Logan
County Entomologist

There are a number of insects that will infest nearly any type of dried food. These pests often contaminate food pantries, and they annoy homeowners when they fly or crawl around indoors. The eggs or larvae of these insects may be brought in with the food when it is purchased. Adult insects may also be attracted to the food from nearby infestations.

Certain pests prefer to infest only whole kernels of grain. These include the Angoumois grain moth, grain weevils, and bean and pea weevils. In the home, these are most often found invading popcorn, Indian corn decorations, or seeds in dried flower arrangements.

Often pests have a tendency to infest processed dried foods. These include a number of small beetles as well as flour moths.

Three other pests may appear in the pantry if stored products become moist or moldy. These include grain mites, booklice, and mealworms.

The most effective control method pantry pests is "search and destroy."

Examine all susceptible foods, such as flour, dried beans, and cornmeal. Infestations usually develop in seldom-used foods and in the least-disturbed storage areas. When searching through flour or meal, use a spoon to stir the food around the bottom and edges of the container. Look for adult insects, the larval forms, and for the skins that are cast from the larvae as they grow in size. Throw away any items that were found to be infested. The shelves should then be vacuumed and scrubbed with hot, soapy water.

If the infestation was heavy, an insecticide treatment should be considered. The empty cabinets can be treated with insecticides labelled specifically for this use. Of course, label directions should be closely followed, and the insecticide should not exceed the labelled rate recommendations.

Do not allow these insecticides to come into contact with any food items or cooking utensils. The insecticide can be applied with either a sprayer or a paint brush. Be sure to treat around cracks and crevices in the wookwork.

After the insecticide has dried thoroughly, cover the shelves with clean paper or foil. Be careful to avoid further spillage of flour, meal, etc. As a further precaution, store processed or dried foods in containers that can be sealed tightly. Revised estimates now say 1,500 Iraqi soldiers died in war

WASHINGTON (AP) — After the Persian Gulf War ended, the world was told that as many as 100,000 Iraqi soldiers were killed. At one point, even Baghdad put the toll that high, as did the U.S. Defense Intelligence Agency in private.

But U.S. officials have been backpedaling ever since, even though the Pentagon has yet to settle on an official estimate to release to the public. Now, one former DIA analyst says the number of Iraqi troops killed may have been as low as 1,500.

That conclusion by John Heidenrich, writing in the current issue of the quarterly magazine Foreign Policy, represents the lowest estimate yet from U.S. defense sources.

The revisions suggesting a less devastating Iraqi toll fit a pattern of vastly moderated U.S. military claims in the months after the war ended. Claims for a number of U.S. weapons also were scaled down.

Heidenrich is not the first to question the Iraqi death toll numbers that originally were aired. More than a year ago, Air Force Lt. Gen. Charles Horner, the commander of the air campaign in the Gulf War, said he believed the Iraqi military death toll was fewer than 10,000 for the entire war.

The Pentagon itself still refused to provide an estimate of th number of Iraqis who died in the 42-day war against the U.S.-led coalition in January and February 1991. On Monday, Pentagon spokesman Lt. Cmdr. Joe Gradisher reiterated past statements that "there just isn't a number," that's credible.

But some current internal estimates range from 8,000 to 25,000 Iraqi troops killed, said one analyst, speaking on condition of anonymity, who is familiar with the Pentagon's reports.

Allied deaths were put at 146 Americans, 35 by friendly fire; 24 British, 9 by American fire; 2 Frenchmen, 1 Italian and 39 among various Arab allies.

Of the postwar reassessments, the most widely publicized was the Army's reluctant acknowledgement, months later, that its touted Patriot air defense system was nowhere near so effective as claimed against Iraq's Scud missiles. The Bush administration initially claimed an almost perfect record for the Patriot; last spring it revised the hit ratio to 60 percent.

The House Armed Services Committee staff estimated 9,000 dead and 17,000 wounded after a review last year.

But Heidenrich, writing in the current issue of the quarterly Foreign Policy, estimated the total death toll from both the air and ground offensives as low as 1,500 — with about 3,000 wounded.

Heidenrich based the conclusion in his article on the number of bodies found and buried by U.S. troops — 577 — and on prisoner of war interviews. He noted that only about 2,000 of 69,000 Iraqi prisoners of war were wounded.

Based on the calculation that about half as many wounded escaped as were captured, he put the number of wounded at about 3,000. Using a conservative ratio of one dead to two wounded, applicable to Third World armies like Iraq, he set battlefield deaths at 1,500.

Production totals

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. butter production came to 144 million pounds in January, 7 percent below January 1992.

A report this month on dairy products by the National Agricultural Statistics Service said American-type cheese production during January totaled 248 million pounds, 1 percent above January 1992.

Total cheese output was 509 million pounds, 1 percent below January 1992.

Creamed cottage cheese production was 34.4 million pounds, 12 percent below January 1992, while low-fat cottage cheese production was 25.3 million pounds, 4 percent below January 1992.

Bill approved

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has approved a bill that would turn Laredo State University into a four-year institution and change its name to Texas A&M International.

Currently, Laredo State University is a two-year school offering junior and senior level courses.

The measure by Sen. Judith Zaffirini, D-Laredo, was approved by the Senate Monday and sent to the House for consideration.

The bill authorizes courses from freshman through the doctoral level and calls for joint degree programs with other institutions in Texas and Mexico.

Wine exporters making key impact in Denmark

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. wine exporters are making dramatic gains in Denmark, where they have mounted extensive efforts to boost their product's popularity, Agriculture Department trade experts say.

Denmark has only a relatively short wine-drinking tradition, the report said, and makes no wine of its own. Until the mid-1960s, beer and soft drinks were the beverages of choice there, and per-capita wine consumption was less than 2 liters a year.

But per capita wine consumption has risen to 22 liters per year, it said.

"Danish imports of U.S. wines in 1991 were 2.6 million liters, a level slightly larger than Denmark's total wine imports in 1952," said a recent report in the Foreign Agricultural Service's Ag-Exporter magazine.

While France is by far the top supplier, claiming about two-thirds of the Danish market for the past decade, the U.S. share has grown from only 0.76 percent in 1984 to 2.4 percent in 1991.

"Starting in 1986, serious efforts to boost U.S. wines in Denmark were launched.

The U.S. Office of Agricultural Affairs in Copenhagen and the Wine Institute, a market development cooperator working with USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service arranged for annual wine tastings, the report related.

"The Washington State Department of Agriculture joined this effort in 1989," it said. "More than 65 U.S. wineries contributed about 200 wines at the last presentation."

Events are staged at the U.S. Embassy for wine journalists, importers, retailers, hotel and restaurant operators and representatives of the business community.

"In early summer 1992, two Danish wine writers visited California, Oregon and Washington," the report said. "In December, they published a book, titled 'American Wine — a Place in the Sun.'"

A byproduct of the book is an eight-page pamphlet on U.S. wines that will be distributed to all segments of the wine trade in Denmark, it said.

"Denmark is the only Scandinavian country whose wine trade is not controlled by an alcoholic beverage monopoly," the report said. "So, importers can buy directly from suppliers. And since Denmark does not produce wines, it's a market open to new wines, especially those that carry a commitment to long-term market strategy."

Yearly Mammogram Is Woman's Gift to Herself

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1993 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from "X-Ray Tech" concerning the importance of mammographies.

I, too, am a mammography technician whose patients ask me how I can do this job day after day after day.

I just smile and say, "I enjoy my work because I go home feeling good, knowing that I may have saved a life. But when I find a large cancer that has been growing for years, I'm saddened, because I know the patient would have had a better chance had it been discovered earlier."

Mammography is my specialty, and I find it very rewarding. Last fall, I performed a mammogram on Rose Phillips — your mother-in-law. I was very much impressed with her youthfulness and pep. I never would have guessed her age had I not seen it on her chart. When she left, she gave me a hug and thanked me, saying it was quick and painless. She is quite a lady!

Keep stressing the importance of having mammograms regularly. Most women have a "pap" test every year without fail. Mammograms should be included with it. I do mine every year on my birthday. I call it my birthday gift to myself.

CAROL M. FRUETEL, MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR CAROL: Thank you for giving me another opportunity to remind women about the importance of regular mammograms. And a special thanks for your kind words about my mother-in-law. Having been her daughter-in-law for 53 years, I can say in all earnestness that Rosie Phillips could give lessons on how to be an ideal mother-in-law.

DEAR ABBY: My family has had a soup recipe that we have enjoyed for many years. Two years ago, my sister submitted our family recipe to a contest conducted by a major food manufacturing company. The company replied, stating that it could not use the recipe, and thanked my sister for her participation in the contest. (Our recipe was not returned with the reply.)

Recently, we learned that this company not only used our family recipe, it changed the name — but the ingredients are the same. The company is now advertising it, and will make this recipe available to the public on a commercial basis.

My family is furious that this company did not acknowledge our recipe, nor did it compensate us for it. The contest rules stated that all entries selected became the property of the company.

I think we should write to this company and protest its use of our recipe without our permission, and also demand compensation for it. Unfortunately, my sister did not keep any of the correspondence and feels that there is nothing we can do. What action should we take?

C.L.A. IN NEW ORLEANS

DEAR C.L.A.: Without copies of the correspondence, or proof that this company is using the soup recipe that you submitted two years ago, your chances for being compensated appear to be anywhere from slim to zero. However, don't take my word for it — consult an attorney.

P.S. Could the rules of the contest have stated that all recipes "submitted" (not "selected") would become the property of the food manufacturing company? Check it out.

Lawyer wants client released

WACO, Texas (AP) — A lawyer representing one of the elderly women freed from the Branch Davidian religious cult says his client should be released.

Attorney Gary Coker, representing Catherine Mattson, who emerged from the compound voluntarily, said that an informal hearing before U.S. Magistrate Dennis Green was held Monday.

The judge indicated that Ms. Mattson, 77, who is jailed as a material witness, probably would be released Tuesday, Coker said.

Students learn about cancer

HOUSTON (AP) — More than 1,000 Texas high schools are using a new program to teach students the dangers of skin cancer.

Project SAFETY — Sun Awareness for Education Today's Youth — instructs students about the harmful effects of the sun's ultraviolet rays and offers sun safety tips.

"When I first talked with educators in Texas high schools ... they told me it would be easier to get young people to eat broccoli than to give up their suntans," said Dr. Michael Ahearn, an M.D. Anderson assistant vice-president, in a prepared statement released Monday.

But teachers say the program, which features videotapes, handouts, posters and tests, is a great motivator for their students.

"The students are absolutely fascinated by this course," said Alice Kagi, a biology teacher at St. John's School in Houston. "It's created a lot of awareness for them."

Students are taught the importance of wearing sunscreen yearround, avoiding midday sun and of being aware of reflected light in higher altitudes.

The incidence of melanoma, a type of skin cancer, has steadily increased in the past 40 years. Experts predict that if the trend continues, one out of 75 Americans born in 200 will develop skin cancer.

Project SAFETY, which was tested at several schools last year, is one of three skin cancer projects M.D. Anderson has developed recently to increase public awareness about dangerous exposure to the sun.

Langrill fund is established

Area residents may wish to donate funds to help pay medical expenses for a five-year-old Ben Wheeler girl, Amanda Kae Langrill.

Amanda is the granddaughter of Bill and Linda Armstrong of Snyder and Barbara Armstrong Lewallen, formerly of Snyder and now of Canton, and her husband Richard.

Amanda, who was born with a congenital heart defect, recently underwent a heart and lung transplant and is recovering as an outpatient at St. Louis Children's Medical Center in Missouri. The youngster has previously had four major open heart surgeries.

Her condition is improving and she has been released from Children's Medical Center. However, she is living at the Ronald McDonald House in St. Louis because she must return to the hospital for treatment several times a week. When she is released in two to three months, she will still need to travel from her home to St. Louis every three months for tests.

Amanda is the daughter of Robert and Jean Langrill. Accounts have been established at Bank One Texas, 207 S. Athens, Canton, Texas, 75103, and First State Bank, P.O. Box 994, Morton, Texas, 79346 for anyone who would like to donate.
