House Demo Chiefs Hold Strategy Meet

Rayburn Leads Discussion Of Plans To Insure Passage Of 'Truman Deal'

By ROSE McKEE
INS Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—House Democratic leaders conferred today on strategy to insure passage of the "Truman deal" legislative program in the 81st Congress opening Monday.

Rep. Rayburn (D-Tex) slated to be speaker of the House in the new Congress, returned to his office and immediately began a series of meetings with leading Democrats.

The conferees were said to be mainly concerned over how to keep their new majority from melting away into a coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats that could wreck the Truman program.

Rayburn Perturbed

Such a coalition blocked various presidential measures in the latter part of the Roosevelt era and the first two years of the Truman administration, when Democrats ostensibly controlled Congress.

Rayburn was reported especially perturbed over the make-up of the House Ways and Means committee and the Rules committee.

The Ways and Means committee will handle the administration's tax and social security measures. A coalition on this committee could tie up Mr. Truman's forthcoming request to increase social security coverage and increase benefits for the aged, survivors and children. It could also pigeonhole his tax proposals.

Six Democratic vacancies are to be filled on the ways and means unit. The appointments will be made by Rayburn subject to approval by a caucus of all House Democrats on New Year's day.

Problems Fewer In Senate

Democratic ways and means members then will name the majority members of other committees, including that of the rules unit. It is the Rules committee which controls dispatch of all major legislation to the floor for debate.

Several proposals have been advanced to "liberalize" this powerful committee and prevent it from killing bills.

Democrats face fewer problems in taking over control of the Senate. However, Senate Republicans are reportedly having difficulties in organizing as a minority party.

The desire of Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) that he would like to remain as GOP policy chief, is being opposed behind the scenes by "young turks" in the GOP.

Rules Change Proposed

Sen. Wherry (R-Neb) is understood to want the post of minority leader but a slate being talked about would give that position to Sen. Millikin (R-Colo). This slate would retain Taft as GOP policy

GI Slayer Will Appeal Sentence

MARBURG, Germany, Dec. 28. (AP)—Mrs. Wilma Ybarbo of Malden, Mass., was convicted and sentenced to 20 years in prison today for killing her soldier husband from Texas.

The American woman, mother of a six-year-old boy, was found guliyt of "malice aforethought" in the midnight shooting of Sgt. John Ybarbo of Goliad. The trial was held before a three-judge military government court instead of a jury. The defendant also was declared subject to German law.

Her plea for self defense was emphatically rejected. The American judges ruled she "was not justified in taking a human life" even though her big half-Indian husband beat and threatened her.

Attorney Plans Appeal

Mrs. Ybarbo's attorney said he will appeal.

The pretty 23-year-old defendant, pale and erect, heard the sentence without a change of expression. An audible gasp went up from the American women filling the courtroom who had followed with avid interest the seven-day trial and its revelations of sex life.

The appeal may blaze a new trail on the disputed legal status of American wives of soldiers and other American civilians in Germany.

"I will appeal to the military government court of appeals in Nuernberg and then to the U. S. Federal court challenging these

China Peace Rumors Grow

By HAROLD K. MILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

NANKING, Dec. 28. — New rumors of peace flew in Nanking today as a winter lull settled over China's civil war battlefields.

Several highly-placed and well-informed sources said the developments "looking to a new government leadership and probably peace" with the Communists might be expected by New Year's day.

The informants said the decision, which would touch off the developments, would have to come from President Chiang Kai-Shek himself.

It is certain that Chiang is under strong pressure to resign, possibly using ill health as the reason.

This would permit Vice President Li Tsung-Jen to take over the presidency and begin exploring the possibility of peace with the Communists.

The rumors were denied by a high government official, but they were too persistent to be ignored.

(A Hong Kong dispatch, meanwhile, said 2,000 Nationalist troops had revolted in Kwangtung province, considered a likely south China refuge should Chiang's government be forced to flee from Nanking.

Mutiny Is Reported

(The pro-government newspaper Sing Tao Jih Pao in a dispatch from Canton said government troops were rushed to quell the mutineers, who were trying to go over to the Communists.

(The location was not given, but trouble has been reported in the province previously. The Communists claim they hold half the countryside in Kwangtung but no cities. Canton is the capital of the province.)

The renewed talk of peace was in sharp contrast to the situation earlier this week. Peace talk subsided after the Communists broadcast a list of "war criminals" including not only Chiang but a number of prominent Chinese believed to favor peace with the Reds.

Nationalist defenses were being rushed along the south bank of the broad Yangtze, the last natural barrier before Nanking.

Child Is Slain When Pistol Discharges

SNYDER, Dec. 28. (AP)—Robert Ernest Wallace, 4, of Memphis, Tenn., was shot to death yesterday when a pistol he had found in a dresser drawer discharged accidentally.

He was the son of Dr. and Mrs. Grady Wallace of Memphis. The family was visiting the boy's grandmother, Mrs. E. E. Wallace. The child was alone in a bedroom when he found the pistol and it discharged.

The accident occurred about noon. The family had planned to leave for Memphis as soon as it had finished a noon meal.

Funeral services were held here today and burial was in the Snyder cemetery. In addition to the parents survivors included a brother, James E. Wallace, one year old.

MRS. YBARBO GETS 20-YEAR SENTENCE—Guarded by a military policeman, Mrs. Wilma Ybarbo of Malden, Mass., leaves the military court building at Marburg, Germany, after she was sentenced to 20 years in prison for killing her American soldier-husband after a bedroom quarrel. The three-man U. S. military government court convicted her of killing Sgt. John Ybarbo of Goliad, Tex., "with malice aforethought." (See story in column 1). (AP Wirephoto via radio).

Medical Student Seized After Shooting

Egyptian Premier Is Assassination Victim

(By International News Service)

CAIRO, Dec. 28.—Egyptian Premier Mahmoud Fahmy Nokrashy Pasha was assassinated in Cairo today by a young medical student and a new coalition cabinet was formed tonight by Ibrahim Abdul Hadi Pasha.

The student was identified as a member of the outlawed Nationalist group known as the Moslem Brotherhood. Police investigated tonight to see if other high Egyptian political leaders were marked for death.

Disguised As Policeman

Hadi Pasha's new Saadist-Liberal coalition includes nearly all the present ministers, and it was increased from 13 to 16 members. Hadi Pasha was chief of King Farouk's household staff.

The student, Abdul Meguid Hassan, gained entry into the interior ministry building disguised as a policeman, and fired five shots into the face and chest of the 60-year-old premier.

Killer Salutes Premier

Nokrashy Pasha, bleeding profusely, fell to the floor near an elevator while enroute to his office, and died within a few minutes.

Hassan, dressed in a police lieutenant's uniform, saluted the premier before drawing the gun from his pocket and firing.

He then fired three more times, the bullets chipping the walls of the corridor. These scattered shots led to erroneous rumors that the assassin tried to commit suicide.

Student Identified

Hassan was overpowered quickly by the regular police guard which later saved him from possible lynching by an angry mob outside.

The student kept shouting "I am an Egyptian, I am a Moslem, I am a patriot."

A veterinary professor from Fuad university hurried to the ministry and identified the assassin as one of his students. The professor was surprised, terming Hassen "a gentle, shy, and most quiet personality."

A police investigation disclosed Hassan was a member of the Mos-

Illiterate Driver Goes Wrong Way, Loses His License

(By The Associated Press)

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 28.—The bridge had a one-way sign on it.

Motorist Andrew Dorchy, 35, of Hopewell glanced briefly at the sign and started driving across the bridge—the wrong way. He bumped into a car that was going the right way.

In court today, Dorchy had an explanation for the whole incident.

He can't read.

He can't drive either, beginning today. His operator's license was revoked for 30 days pending a new examination.

U. S. Force In Korea Reduced

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. (AP)—The Army said tonight it is withdrawing a "portion" of its troop strength from Korea, and there were indications the force might be reduced by as much as half.

It announced plans for a "general regrouping of U. S. Army forces serving under General MacArthur," including the transfer of the Seventh Infantry division from Korea to Japan.

The "current reduction and regrouping" of forces in Korea of which the United States and Russia each occupy half, was made possible by several factors, the announcement said, including:

Army Lists Reasons

Establishment in the U. S. zone of a government for the Republic of Korea; its assumption of responsibilities; the United Nations declaration Dec. 12 that the government "is the only lawful one in Korea;" the ability of the Korean constabulary, civil police and coast guard to handle the recent uprising at Yosu, in southern Korea.

There was no announcement at this time of the total U. S. Army strength in Korea. However, about 30,000 troops were there last May.

If the Seventh division is at full strength, about 15,000, this would

Navy Announces Large-Scale Exercises In Alaskan Waters

(By The Associated Press)

TERMINAL ISLAND, Calif. Dec. The Navy announced today it will send 18,000 sailors and Marines on 34 ships in wide-scale tests next month of Alaskan operations.

Rear Adm. L. T. Dubose made it plain at a press conference that the operation is "an exercise to test men in cold, wet weather and rotten conditions."

He said it is not to be construed as a major naval problem.

The locale will be Kodiak island, where a naval base already is in operation. There Army, Navy and Air Force personnel already in the Alaskan area will repel a theoretical attacking force, first unit of which leaves San Diego Jan. 17.

Admiral Dubose said every bureau in the Navy department and every command have been offered an opportunity to test materiel and personnel problems under the icy conditions to be encountered during the month-long maneuvers. He listed especially cold weather clothing, food, survival and oil and engine problems.

VA To Pay Insurance Dividends In 1949

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. (AP) — The Veterans administration plans to start paying a $2,000,000,000 insurance dividend in 1949.

Sixteen million war veterans may share in the payments.

Veterans who took out the $1,000 minimum policy of national service life insurance and held it only briefly will receive comparatively small dividends.

But those who got into the program at the beginning and for the top amount—$10,000—will receive an eight-year accumulation of several hundred dollars.

It is unlikely that dividend payments will start before next August, a spokesman for the agency said.

Dutch Told To Free Captives

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, Dec. 28 — The United Nations Security Council today gave the Netherlands 24 hours in which to release captured Indonesian Republican leaders.

The resolution did not say what would happen if the deadline is not met.

Britain, angling for American support, also submitted a resolution demanding an immediate cease-fire in southern Palestine and withdrawal of Israel's armed forces from the Negev desert battleground.

The British demand, and an Egyptian charge that Israel is the aggressor in the Negev fighting, will be taken up by the council tomorrow.

The council ordered the release of captured Indonesian leaders over the protest of Dutch delegate Jan Herman Van Royen that he could read a "note of censure" in the resolution sponsored by China.

Resolution Asks Report

The council also adopted a Colombian resolution calling on a committee of foreign consuls in Batavia, Java, to supervise and report on compliance with the council's Christmas Eve cease-fire order.

Van Royen told the council yesterday his government is giving the order "serious consideration," but has not obeyed it and does not yet concede the council has jurisdiction in the dispute.

Eight of the 11 council members supported the Chinese resolution. Britain, France and Belgium abstained. Nine voted for the Colombian plan, Russia and the Soviet Ukraine abstaining. The Colombian resolution set up a commission of the consuls of all Security Council members in Batavia to report on cease-fire compliance.

Actually, the Chinese demand ordered the Dutch to free the captive Indonesian president Soekarno, Premier Mohamed Hatta and other top leaders "forthwith." The delegates agreed this meant 24 hours.

Van Royen, appealed unsuccessfully for a delay in the vote on the resolution which declared:

"The Security Council, noting that the Netherlands government

Jewish Forces Make New Gains

TEL AVIV, Dec. 28. (INS) — A UN communique said tonight Jewish troops racing through Egyptian desert positions have reached Auja, 40 miles southwest of Beersheba. This is the deepest stab yet into the Negev area.

Unofficial Arab broadcasts from Cyprus said the Jewish drive "routed" the Egyptians who were retreating into Egypt. The broadcast said many Egyptians were trapped.

(An Egyptian war ministry spokesman in Cairo claimed the besieged Egyptian garrison at Faluja killed 500 Jews, shot down two Israeli planes, and damaged two other planes in repulsing a Jewish attack.)

The UN report, originating in Haifa, followed yesterday's report that Jewish spearheads had driven to the sea near the Egyptian frontier, cutting off the big Egyptian invasion base at Gaza.

Jews Drive To Sea

A reliable private informant said the Jews had driven a second spearhead to the sea by capturing Kfar Darom, Jewish settlement on the road and rail line midway between Gaza and Khan Yunis.

BURNING TORCH REACHES EL PASO

Indian Races 230 Miles In 45 Hours To Launch Sun Carnival

(By The Associated Press)

EL PASO, Dec. 28. — Pedro Paseno, a 35-year-old Tarahumara Indian brought a smouldering torch into El Paso today to signal the start of the city's 14th annual southwestern Sun carnival.

Paseno, a distance runner who had won many Mexican race events, made his run of the 230 miles from Chihuahua city to Juarez, Mexico, in less than 45 hours.

From Juarez he came across the international bridge. The torch was handed to Mayor Dan Ponder of El Paso who was waiting in the city's plaza. With it the mayor lighted the urn which will burn here throughout the carnival.

The others in the Tarahumara band of nine who had set out on the marathon dropped out of the race at Villa Humada, 87 miles below Juarez.

After a rubdown and taping of his blistered toes Paseno carried on alone. The others, bewildered and tired looking, came along in an escort truck, arriving with Paseno at 4 p. m. (MST).

All wore running shorts, red shirts, and blue bandan-

Civil Service Group Delays Decision

Suspension Order Is Appealed By Firemen

LUBBOCK Civil Service commission announced Tuesday night, at conclusion of a four-hour hearing of an appeal of J. W Pruitt and Woodrow Quinn from their suspension as city firemen, that it would announce its decision "within a few days."

Suspension resulted, it was brought out, from a Dec. 17 letter addressed to W. E. Twitty, fire chief, by Marlin R. Smith, jr., city manager, in which it was suggested that "disciplinary action" be taken.

The firemen had attended a Sept. 9-15 Houston convention of International Association of Firefighters, after express rejection by the city commission Sept. 8 of a request by them that they be allowed leave to go without forfeiting pay for the period.

The men testified under oath before the Civil Service commission that they, upon being told the answer of the city commission by the city manager, then asked Smith to inquire of the city commission whether they might attend if they would make arrangements for other firemen to "work for us while we're gone." They said Smith went back into the "closed meeting" of the commission, then returned a moment later and said "No."

Department Rule Cited

Whereupon, they testified, they went to the convention anyway, after first arranging for other firemen to absorb their duties in the fire department.

They said that they, considering themselves "deprived of our rights" under the commission's action, "dropped back to fire department rules."

Under those rules, they pointed out—and they were supported in their version of what custom has been in the department by revelations of Chief Twitty—any member of the department had been free since 1924 to leave his duties so long as a week without asking permission of superior officers, provided he made arrangements for another fireman to work for him in the period of absence.

Both Quinn and Pruitt told the Civil Service commission they

Legal Rights Pose Problem; Interfere With Guilty Plea

(By The Associated Press)

TULSA, Dec. 28 (AP) — Philip Redinbaugh found it wasn't easy to plead guilty in common pleas court — his constitutional rights kept getting in the way.

Redinbaugh, 28, was arraigned before Judge H. E. Chambers on a burglary charge. Asked how he wanted to plead, he answered promptly:

"Guilty."

Up spoke Assistant County Attorney John Richards.

"I recommend a public defender be appointed to defend this man and that his plea of not guilty be accepted at this time," he said.

"But," Redinbaugh protected, "I want to plead guilty."

Judge Chambers explained that he had the right to state-provided counsel, a preliminary hearing and a district court trial.

"But they've got my confession and everything and all I want to do is plead guilty," Redinbaugh stood his ground.

The judge again explained about constitutional rights. So did Richards. The defendant was adamant.

"Call a reporter," the judge finally ordered. A newsman came forward and the judge again explained for the record Redinbaugh's rights.

Redingbaugh pleaded guilty. His bond was set at $2,000 and he was bound over to district court.

Sumner Welles Condition Is Reported To Be Satisfactory

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. (AP) — Sumner Welles' condition continued "satisfactory" today but his physician still was not sure whether the frostbite he suffered after a weekend collapse beside a country road would require amputations.

The former undersecretary of state's fingers and toes were frozen when he was found unconscious a mile from his Oxon Hill, Md., home, Sunday morning. He was presumed to have gone for one of the after-midnight walks he frequently took to combat insomnia.

Truman Names Jap Prosecutor To UN Commission On Palestine

By FELIX COTTEN
INS Staff Correspondent

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Dec. 28. —President Truman today named Joseph B. Keenan, Japanese war crimes prosecutor, as United States representative on the United Nations conciliation commission for Palestine.

The appointment completes the formation of the commission, recently created by the UN, in an effort to bring peace to war-torn Palestine.

France and Turkey, the other two member nations, already have named their representatives.

Mr. Truman refused today to identify the Russian leaders he says are "exceedingly anxious" to reach an agreement with the United States on differences between the two countries.

When one of the newsmen who accompanied him on his morning walk said there had been considerable speculation as to the Soviet leaders he had in mind, the President tartly replied:

"You will just have to continue to speculate."

Mr. Truman then turned and walked into the house.

Usually, at the conclusion of his morning walk, he has stopped

Hope Wanes For Airliner

(By International News Service)

SEVEN persons were killed in two airplane crashes Tuesday near Detroit and Port Huron, Mich., and 30 others were missing on a flight between Puerto Rico and Miami.

Hope waned for the missing airliner, a chartered DC-3, after hours of fruitless searching for the craft.

The plane, carrying 27 passengers and a crew of three, was overdue on a flight between Puerto Rico and Miami and feared to have gone down.

To Resume Search

Darkness sent 43 search craft back to their bases. The vast hunt will be renewed at dawn today.

The two-engined plane, operated by the Airborne Transport company of New York, has been unreported since it left San Juan late last night bound for New York by way of Miami.

More than 40 Army, Navy and Coast Guard planes began a far-flung search for the airliner shortly after it failed to land in Miami on schedule.

Babies Among Group

The craft was due to stop over in the Florida metropolis at 4:05 a. m.

Most of the passengers were believed to be Puerto Ricans returning to New York from a holiday excursion visit to their homeland. Two babies were reported to be among the passengers.

Crew members included pilot Robert Lindquist, of Fort Myers, Fla., co-pilot E. E. Hill, of Miami, and stewardess Mary Burke, of Jersey City, N. J.

CAA officials said the plane's crew filed an instrument flight plan, designating departure and arrival times, before leaving San Juan.

No Distress Calls Heard

The search for the missing airliner spread over a 900-mile span from Miami to San Juan and involved planes from bases in Florida and the Caribbean.

Coast Guard officers said the DC-3 was fully equipped with survival equipment, including life rafts, individual life preservers and a "Gibson Girl" emergency radio.

Late today, however, radiomen had received no calls on 500 kilocycles, the international distress frequency to which all "Gibson Girl" transmitters are automati-

Colder Weather Expected Today

Light to moderate northerly winds are expected to cut through overcoats and pierce cracks in houses all over Lubbock and the South Plains today, the weatherman said last night, as a result of a fresh air mass that moved over the area Tuesday evening.

Fair skies but lower temperatures are due for the area today and Thursday, he added. Cooler weather is in store for the next days, with low temperatures skidding down to the low 20's and high temperatures reaching the middle and high 40's.

Winds Stirs Dust

Meanwhile, Tuesday's winds that brought swirling dust to the South Plains reached a sustained velocity of about 38 miles an hour, with higher gusts, the U. S. Weather Bureau station north of Lubbock reported Tuesday night. Visibility was cut to ¾ of a mile at 12:45 p.m. Later, visibility was variously at between one and 1½ miles. The duster cleared suddenly about 5 p.m.

Tuesday's high was 52 degrees and the morning low 41 degrees.

An Associated Press dispatch Tuesday night reported that a mild cold front which had drifted through Texas and approached the Gulf coast Tuesday night was "nothing to get excited about."

Meanwhile, some rains fell. The weather bureau said these appeared to be very light and confined to an area extending from San Antonio through Austin and north to Dallas and Fort Worth.

However, Malakoff, near Ath-

WHEN Mrs. R. L. Goad was battling her way against the strong winds, while she was down town Tuesday morning she picked up an eight by ten picture of a youth, smiling through snaggled teeth and sporting as thick a crop of freckles as Tom Sawyer's.

Knowing that the loss means much to the owner of the picture, Mrs. Goad brought it by the desk. "Looks like all he wanted for Christmas was his two front teeth," she mused.

We hope the mother or grandmother of the young boy will see this and call for the picture.

What I was going to do for a living and what my life-work would likely be.

That my health after thirty depended in a large degree on what I put into my stomach before I was twenty-one.

How to take care of money.

The commercial asset of being neatly and sensibly dressed.

That a man's habits are mighty hard to change after twenty-one.

That a harvest depends upon seeds sown.

That you can't get something for nothing.

That the world would give me just about what I deserved.

That the sweat of my brow would earn my bread.

Baskets of white chrysanthemums and gladioli stood against a background of greenery which lined the candlelighted altar. Dr. J. Ralph Grant, pastor of First Baptist church, performed a single ring ceremony.

A program of wedding music offered by Gerre Hancock, organist, included "Prelude in E Major" by Bach, "Arroso" by Handel, "To the Evening Star" from "Tannhäuser" by Wagner, and "Chanson, Friesse" by Revel. Carey May, soloist, presented "I Love Thee" by Grieg and sang "The Lord's Prayer" as a musical benediction. The organist played "Liebestraum" "Liszt) as vows were repeated.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Howard Boulter of 2604 Twenty-second, was given in marriage by her father. Candles, lemon leaf and white satin bows marked the bridal aisle.

The gown of white brocade satin worn by the bride was styled with a fitted bodice and a sheer yoke outlined with a drape of satin which extended over the shoulders. Her long tapering sleeves ended in points over the hands and her full skirt extended into a long train. The bride's fingertip veil of imported illusion fell from a heart-shaped bonnet of lace embossed with seed pearls and trimmed with orange blossoms, and her cascade arm bouquet was of white orchids and stephanotis. She wore an heirloom pin belonging to Mrs. I. C. Enochs.

Attendants were Mrs. J. Robert Duncan, sister of the bride and matron of honor, and Miss Martha Enochs, Mrs. David C. Weaver, another sister of the bride, Mrs. John McLarty, Miss Xen Harris,, and Mrs. C. M. Trout, jr., and Miss Lam McKay of Austin, bridesmaids. They wore gowns of soft sea green faille created with fitted bodices trimmed with heavy green lace, and worn with matching fitted jackets fashioned with puff sleeves. Their hats were of sea green net adorned in the back with long faille bows and their elbow length gloves were of faille. Mrs. Duncan carried an arm bouquet of Better Times roses and the bridesmaids carried colonial bouquets of the roses.

James P. Williams served as best man and David C. Weaver, Ted Alkire, Gene Anderson, Ralph Cocanougher, C. M. Trout, jr., of Austin, and Mert Starnes were ushers.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was given in the Yaqui room of Hilton hotel. The bride's table was covered with white ruffled net over satin and centered with a double wedding ring cake with rousebud decoration. Tapers burning in silver candelabra and an arrangement of white chrysanthemums and gladioli completed decorations.

Parents of the bride and bridegroom and members of the wedding party assisted with hospitalities. Others in the house party were Mesdames Clarence E. Davis, I. C. Enochs, G. P. Cunningham, Don Furr, Ralph Cocanougher, James P. Williams, William J. Harris, G. G. Porter, and Misses Alyce Howell, Martha LaRoe and LaVaughn Bearden.

Out-of-town guests were from Melrose, N. M., and Abilene.

For a plane trip to Portland, Ore., the bride wore a black and grap serge suit with black accessories and a white orchid corsage. Her black hat was complimented with a rose moonstone clip and a feather. Mr. and Mrs. McCarty will be at home in Forest Grove, Ore., where the bridegroom is enrolled in the School of Optometry at Pacific University. He is the son of Mrs. George Jackson McCarty of 2121 Twenty-second.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Lubbock High school and attended Texas Technological college where Mrs. McCarty was a pledge of Sans Souci social club and Mr. McCarty a member of Wrangler social club.

Miss Betty Jenkins, of 2124 Thirtieth street, will preside at the bride's book at the reception.

ORGANIZATION WORK UNDERWAY

Firm Given Contract To Build Atom 'Motor' For Navy Vessels

By WILLIAM FLANNERY
INS Staff Correspondent

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 28 — The U. S. Atomic Energy commission announced tonight that a contract has been signed with the Westinghouse Electric corporation of Pittsburgh to build an experimental "nuclear reactor" for propelling Navy ships with atomic power.

Charles H. Weaver, youthful head of the newly-created Westinghouse Atomic Power division, said organization work is underway and the laboratory will be constructed "somewhere in the Pittsburgh district."

He said construction is expected to begin within a few months and that some 600 persons will be employed on the project, the majority of them engineers and scientists.

The object of the development will be to meet requirements provided by the Navy Bureau of Ships for powering naval vessels.

Laboratory Aids Project

The Westinghouse laboratory will design, build and engineer the new atomic power unit in cooperation with the Argonne National Laboratory in Chicago, according to an announcement originating with the Chicago operations office of the U. S. Atomic Energy commission.

Westinghouse has been handed the job of detailed engineering and construction of the reactor, and will undertake such research and development activity as may be assigned by the commission.

A. Tammaro, in making the announcement in Chicago said:

Time Element Stressed

"It is the objective of the commission to produce a nuclear power plant which may be adapted to the propulsion of a naval vessel within the shortest practicable time."

The development of such a specialized nuclear power unit was among the functions assigned to the Argonne National laboratory in January, 1948, when the laboratory was made the major center of the AEC reactor development program.

Westinghouse has had extensive experience in atomic energy work, having contributed to the wartime Manhattan project in the processing of uranium and the manufacture of specialized equipment for use at Oak Ridge.

First Major Job

The Westinghouse atomic power division was created last October, and the development of an atomic power unit for the Navy is its first major assignment.

While declining to discuss specifications for the power unit, Weaver said the most obvious approach is to design and build a heat producing "nuclear reactor" that can be used to provide steam for ship boilers.

Such a unit, if it were successful, would have the advantage of providing ships with a long-lasting fuel that would require little or no replenishing.

The laboratory head said that while the project will be located in the Pittsburgh district, no atomic pile will be constructed and final experiments will be held "at some other place."

Triplets Born To Beaumont Waitress Doing 'Fairly Well'

BEAUMONT, Dec. 28. (AP) — Triplets born here yesterday at municipal hospital were reported today doing "fairly well."

The two boys and a girl have been in an incubator since birth and are being fed with an eye dropper.

One of the boys weighs two pounds, nine ounces, the girl two pounds, one ounce. The other boy has not been weighed.

The mother, Mrs. Glendowlyn Muschott, 36-year-old waitress, received a divorce from her husband in May. She has six other children.

Airlines Coordinate New Ticket Service

Pioneer Air Lines and Continental Air Lines announced here today that effective January 1 the two airlines will be abe to sell instant passenger space on the other planes on certain Southwestern flights.

Passengers using the two companies direct connections at Midland-Odessa, San Angelo, Las Vegas and other points will be able to call their local Pioneer or Continental ticket office and make through or complete reservations at either office.

53 Cities Served

These sales improvements affect such flights as those which would provide Houston and other Texas' city passengers bound for Denver and Colorado cities to El Paso. In turn, the Continental line could provide the same return sales and connections.

Harding L. Lawrence, Pioneer's vice-president of traffic said that arrangements such as these remove many of the old obstacles in air travel. By simply calling one air line ticket office, in this case Pioneer or Continental, the passenger can make this reservation on through service."

Pioneer, which covers cities over 2,200 system miles in the Southwest and Continental, which serves some 27 cities over the 2,900 miles in the area, have been making arrangements for this type of coordinated plan for several months.

Pioneer, the nation's largest and oldest feeder-type airline, has been operating since August 1, 1945.

Lubbock Girl Gives Musical Program At Lions Club Meet

Two numbers by Miss Frances Watson, Lubbock girl now studying music in Hollywood, and a report on club activities during the last six months, highlighted the luncheon of the Lions club Tuesday at the Hilton hotel.

Miss Watson, daughter of Charles Watson, a Lions club member, sang Maybe You'll Be There and Sunny Side of the Street, with Lawrence Ivy at the piano.

H. Groves Denman, club secretary, gave a brief outline of club activities the last six months, and believes that the next six months of the fiscal year under club President Wayne Henly will show an even better record of achievement.

Others who spoke briefly included Raymond Burford, who outlined the procedure by which new members are accepted into the club, and awarded keys to four Lions for bringing in new members; and K. L. Riggs, who presented briefly a proposition by which the city could buy 18 acres of land near the north side of the Tech campus for use in erection of an auditorium-coliseum for which bonds were voted several years ago. Cost of the land would be $200,000, Riggs said the proposal showed.

Buster Moxley was introduced as a new member. Henly announced that Dr. D. M. Wiggins, president of Texas Tech college, is to speak at next Tuesday's luncheon. Invocation was by Elmer Tarbox.

Life Is Complicated But Interesting; Red Cross Worker Records Folk Lore For Hobby

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. — The hobby of recording folklore on wax for the ages can have some interesting complications.

Ask George Korson. He makes a living working for the Red Cross. As a hobby, he makes records and writes books about American lore. Never made a dime out of the latter. But the experiences!

George, a little man in shell-rimmed eye glasses and pin-striped blue suit, told me about it as we talked across his desk.

One scene was a blacked out farm house near Linton, Ind., and the time was a few years back. George had learned that a Dennis G. Sims, a coal miner, was the author and singer of a tune called "My Father's Union and Mine." It was a sentimental ballad about what the union had done to improve the lot of the down-under guys in the mines.

All Weather Hobby

Well, it was a rainy, shivery night, along about 8:30. George, with his recording equipment in the hind end of his car, rapped on the door. Nobody answered, so he gave another rap.

Finally, Sims came to the door, dressed in old-fashioned, ribbed long underwear, carrying a kerosene lantern.

He held the door open (for an hour, according to George) while the wind swept the rain into the tiny cabin. Mama huddled back there under the covers, quaking.

At length, the miner agreed to put his song on a record. In walked George. And then out again in a hurry. The place had no electricity and therefore no place to plug in the recorder. He should have caught on when Sims showed up with his lantern, but he didn't! The song was recorded in Linton the following day.

Difficulties Arise

When he was preparing data for a book he called "Coal Dust On The Fiddle," Korson visited a 73-year-old miner in Ohio.

George said the old-timer gave him a time. The song, which the old guy was willing to sing all right, contained the word "Hell." After a lot of coaxing, he eventually sang it as it had been handed down through the ages.

"Then," said George, "he wrote me a letter filled with the pain of a guilty conscience. He wanted me to change 'hell' to 'heck.' I could not, of course, do that, but when I used the anecdote in my book, I wrote a postscript and explained the man's objection. He seemed happy and satisfied."

The tune, by the way, was called "The Young Lady Who Married A Mule Driver."

George also had a part in the current album of folklore which the Library of Congress just put out—about coal miners in Pennsylvania and other places.

Our hero and a technician were dispatched to the mine fields to record some local atmosphere. The two rounded up various miners with various kinds of voices and thought they were doing a pretty fine job.

As they were packing their equipment in the mine corridors and preparing to leave, a burly fellow came bounding in and said: "Fellows, I'd like to sing 'Mother Machree.'"

George explained politely that it sure was one fine number, but that it was not what the Library of Congress wanted at the moment. Some other time, maybe. The man whipped out a shotgun and said "I sing now."

The man sang right now!

It's A Man's World After All, Womans' Magazine Survey Shows

NEW YORK, Dec. 28. (INS)—It's a man's world all right. Starting from childhood even the girls admit it.

A survey of boys and girls 11 to 14 years old, reported in the January issue of Ladies' Home Journal, shows that 61 per cent of both boys and girls think Dad has more fun than Mother.

And as the youngsters see it, the advantage of being a male is even greater in youth. The magazine reported that 92 per cent of the boys and 58 per cent of the girls think boys have more fun than girls.

"Pop" Called Easy

Dad, said the children surveyed, goes out to work, but Mother has to stay home and do the housework.

Children also indicated that "Pop" is "easier to take" than "Mom." He makes them mad less often.

The most common complaints against mothers are restraint ("not being allowed to do what I want to"); too much direction and nagging. Some of the sample quotes from children about their mothers are:

"She makes me do the chores ... She says 'we'll see' instead of yes of no ... She looks messy when my boy friend comes ... She calls me "Sweet" in public ..."

The magazine lists the bill of particulars against fathers as restraint, chores, severe physical punishment and nagging.

Some of the children said: "He reads the paper when I want to play ball with him ... He walks from base to base when we play ball ... He snores on Saturday afternoon ... He says 'we didn't do that when we were your age' ..."

Nation's Crude Oil Output Increases

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 28. (AP) — America's crude oil production reached a daily average of 5,633,775 barrels during the week ended Dec. 25, an increase of 1,730 barrels over the previous week, the Oil & Gas Journal reported today.

Three states — Oklahoma, Louisiana and Colorado—hit new highs for the year. Oklahoma's production was up 7,000 barrels to 448,300 barrels and Louisiana's gained 1,000 to 495,300.

Excluding 160 barrels of Utah production, Colorado had a daily average of 56,580 barrels, an increase of 3,230.

Other sizeable gains were by the eastern area, up 1,200 barrels to 63,000, and Wyoming, up 1,010 to 155,530.

Arkansas increased 350 barrels to 81,750; Alabama gained 50 to 1,200; and California's production was up 900 to 956,200.

States with the biggest losses of the week were Indiana, down 1,500 barrels to 23,000; Illinois, off 3,900 to 177,200; Michigan, 1,000 to 45,100; and Mississippi 5,750 to 123,000.

Kentucky's output fell off 100 barrels to 23,900; Kansas was down 750 to 306,400 and Montana declined by 10 barrels to 23,900.

Production was unchanged in Florida, 850 barrels; Nebraska, 350; New Mexico, 134,490; Texas, 2,515,675, and Utah, 160.

Korda Studios Want Cary Grant For Role In European Epic, 'The Doctor's Story'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
INS Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 28. — If Betsy Drake and Cary Grant want to remain in Europe they have an offer to do so. Sir Alexander Korda wants them for "The Doctor's Story," and has already talked to David Selznick about borrowing Betsy, who will be our next "sensation" after "Every Girl Should Be Married" is released.

Of course, Alex would probably have to do a little talking to Howard Hughes for Cary, who signed a five-picture contract with him.

The Kodra epic will be directed by Sidney Galliet, who wrote "39 Steps," one of England's greatest pictures.

All of Cary's friends have been waiting for an announcement of his marriage to Betsy, which is planned to take place in Europe.

When Irving Berlin was here, he made a big effort to borrow Dan Dailey for "Miss Liberty," the new musical he and Robert Sherwood are putting on Broadway.

The only reason I think Darryl Zanuck might be interested in letting Dailey do it is that he has made so many pictures this year. Dan is the hottest actor on the 20th lot today, but, of course, a hit in a Berlin hit show wouldn't hurt him any.

Still, the borrowing and lending is in the talking stage, and if 20th has anything ready for Danny, well—you know how producers are with their important stars.

Colbert Continues Comedy

Howard Hughes, who bargains for only the best, signed a pretty package agreement Christmas when he tied up Claudette Colbert's "Love Is Big Business" for RKO release.

This is the picture Claudette is producing independently with Jack Skirball and Bruce Manning, with Manning also doubling as the director.

Talk that the picture might go to RKO has been breezed about—but the actual contract was just signed Christmas eve.

Claudette is one smart girl in making up her mind to stick to the slick, well-polished, well-groomed comedy roles that brought her fame.

I loved her in "Family Honeymoon" and I am glad she is making another light, gay film. Walter Kane and John Maschio put over the deal.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Mildred Brock, ex-wife of Miriam Hopkins' husband, Ray Brock, was married Christmas Eve, to a San Francisco business man named Tom Benben.

"Slim" Hawks, former wife of director Howard Hawks, has rented Miriam Hopkins' apartment in New York and will live there until she marries Leland Hayward. They expect to wed in June.

Eddie Lowe's romance with Lady Thelma Furness is over, although they are still good friends. Eddie's heartbeat these days is Mrs. Beth Hirsch, attractive Beverly Hills widow.

Singer Jane Froman, who was so badly injured in that Clipper crash, has to undergo another operation. Until that is over she has been ordered to discontinue all work.

Mrs. Warren William, whose health has been bad since her husband's death, has her friends in Port Washington, New York, very concerned.

She is staying there with Warren's sister until she recovers.

There was much talk that Janet Blair was going up to marry Barry Nelson, who is now clicking on Broadway in "Light Up The Sky," when her divorce from Stanley Reams becomes final. There is still much talk that she likes him, but she's being seen constantly with Arthur Loew Jr.

Carroll, Husband Part

Those close to Madeleine Carroll say that she and her husband, Henri Lavorell, have put finis on their marriage. He has gone back to France. I'm sorry to hear that, because they seemed so devoted.

I am sorry to report, Mrs. Brynie Foy is critically ill.

Marguerite Chapman and Bentley Ryan will honeymoon at the Reforma hotel in Acapulco.

Sir Alexander Maxwell, who has been visiting here, attended a party where Joan Bennett and her daughter were present. He couldn't believe she was the mother of a grown, married girl.

New Method Of Detecting Rays Of Radioactive Atoms Claimed

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 28 (AP) —Development of a new method of detecting rays from radioactive atoms was announced today by the University of Richester.

The University said the rays may be detected by means of a device known as a scintillation counter, developed by Dr. George B. Collins, professor of physics. He expects to use it in connection with the university cyclotron.

Tennessean To Push Proposal To Abolish Electoral College

CHICAGO, Dec. 28. (U.P.)—Senator-elect Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) said today that he will back a constitutional amendment in the next Congress to abolish the electoral college.

Under the amendment the electoral votes now cast by each state would automatically be divided among the presidential candidates according to the popular vote.

Such an amendment, Kefauver said, would permit the people to express their will "more clearly." It would also prevent a third or "splinter" party from controlling any one state and would force politicians to pay closer attention to "one party states," he said.

Texan To Join

Kefauver spoke before the 44th annual meeting of the American Political Science association.

He said that Senator C. Lodge, jr., (R-Mass) and Rep. Ed Gossett (D-Tex) would join him in introducing the proposed amendment. A similar amendment was proposed to the 80th Congress, Kefauver said, but was never acted upon. In an earlier talk before the association Rep. Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill) called the Hatch act "ineffective" in its purpose of limiting campaign funds. "The wording of the law itself suggests ways for evading the limits it sets," Dirksen charged.

Another speaker told the group that the two party system "has reasserted its strength and vindicated its usefulness."

Max Lerner, a columnist for the New York Star, speaking on the "outlook for realignment of parties" added that the two party system "is here to stay."

He said the recent Democratic victory showed "the New Deal impulse" is still here without the "father fixation" that accompanied the original New Deal.

Last Rites Held For Former Resident Of West Texas

Funeral services were held Sunday for Harry I. Davis, 87, Parker county pioneer and former resident of West Texas, who died Christmas day in Bowie hospital after a short illness, were held Sunday.

From 1914 to 1933 he lived in various West Texas towns, including Lubbock, Plainview, Snyder and Silverton.

Survivors include four daughters, Mrs. Roxie Whitley of Childress, Mrs. Laura McMinn Roy of Mineral Wells, Mrs. Carrie Pharris of Ogden, Utah, and Mrs. Winnie Lowe of Amarillo; three sons, Fred L. of Austin, Perry P. of Portland, Ore., and Roy H. of Amarillo; 27 grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren.

EDUCATION INTERRUPTED

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia. (U.P.)—L. C. McWhinney had only a few weeks left on his correspondence course in burglary insurance when a burglar broke into his home. After packing up McWhinney's suit, shirts, neckties and blankets, the thief riped up the burglary insurance course.

Possible A-Bomb Attack Upon New York Described By Groves

By BOB CONSIDINE
INS Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—The theoretical destruction of New York City by enemy A-bombs is vividly described today in the January issue of Cosmopolitan by Lt. Gen. Leslie R. Groves.

Groves, war-time head of super-secret Manhattan project, which produced the bomb, envisions the appalling damage which one, two, seven and finally ten A-bombs could wreak in the nations biggest city.

He believes New York would be an enemy's No. 4, U. S. target.

One A-bomb, if detonated at an unmentioned height over Washington Square (approximately halfway between the Bowery and Central park) would kill outright between thirty and forty percent of all persons within a radius of half a mile, Groves estimates.

Exposure Toll Heavy

He adds that about ten percent of those exposed to the bomb's gamma radiation would die within ten days. Tens of thousands would suffer serious flash-burns. But the greatest loss of life would come from countless thousands of flying bricks and parts of buildings, the caveins of subways and fires from the collapse of buiidings, rupture of gas mains, short-circuits and the like.

Groves asserts that buildings extending across Manhattan from City Hall to the Empire State building would be heavily damaged. In a graphic present tense, Groves adds:

"The Empire State building tower . . . may be riddled. Many of the panel walls of the north and south sides of the building will have been blown out. Stuyvesant Town and Peter Cooper Village, the enormous new apartment developments on the East River, are a mass of rubble and twisted steel.

Picture Of Chaos

"Just north of these, Bellevue hospital, with its adjoining medical center, is wrecked to the point where it needs help instead of giving it.

"The superstructure of the Hudson river docks between Houston street and 23rd street have been crushed, fires are raging along the water front . . . Blast damage extends all the way to Times Square. Many buildings, which might otherwise have been saved from fires, must be sacrificed.

"There is no pressure in the water mains because of the thousands of broken hydrants and service lines. For the thousands of wounded and burned victims there is no hope. Few persons are venturing into the area. Those who try to enter are overwhelmed by movement in the other direction, for most of those who can move are fleeing in panic."

Groves does not estimate the number of New Yorkers who would be killed or injured by a single explosion of this type, but he hints that it would make Hiroshima pale in comparison—especially if the bomb were dropped during a rush-hour.

Could Destroy Port

New York City would be destroyed as a port with six additional A-bombs, the former A-bomb chief who is now a vice-president of Remington Rand, reports in the magazine.

These additional bombs, he writes, would be exploded over City Hall, Penn Station (". . . would knock out practically all of the Manhattan dock facilities . . . ") the Lincoln Tunnel plaza, Jersey City's city hall, the Bayonne Navy yard, the Brooklyn Navy yard and Red Hook.

Groves concludes:

"These seven bombs would eliminate New York City as a major factor in our war potential for many months.

"To rebuild the city as a major port would probably take five or six years."

Drawing on the findings of his associates at Bikini, Groves states that the addition of several underwater A-bombs, in his appalling word-dream of the destruction of New York, would "be even more horrible."

Areas Remain Dangerous

"This would be due to the persistent radioactivity from the spray," he writes.

"As we learned at Bikini, if there was a breeze thousands of tons of water would drench the area, leaving a deadly radioactive contamination which would persist for years. I won't venture an estimate of loss of life from radiation alone, but the figure would be staggering."

Groves sees many methods and means of A-bombing New York. Bombs could be dropped by long-range bombers, brought in and secretly assembled by saboteurs, or surreptitiously dropped into neighboring rivers by "an enemy's secret ally, or even by a supposedly friendly power."

His conclusion:

De-centralize our industries, and stay so tough, militarily, that no power will take a chance on making Groves' vivid article come true.

'Mystery' Gasoline Well Is Running Dry

FOND DU LAC, Wis., Dec. 28. (U.P.)—A mysterious gasoline well in downtown Fond Du Lac is running dry after supplying fuel for the city's trucks for 10 years, officials said today.

No one has ever been able to explain where the gasoline came from.

But the refined, low-octane fuel was good enough for the city to mix with commercial gasoline and use in its trucks.

City Street Department crews had to pump the well dry each week to prevent it from accumulating and possibly exploding.

Since the well first sprang from nowhere, officials estimate more than 20,000 gallons of gasoline had been pumped from it. But in the past three years the output has dropped off and officials now believe the well may go dry in a few months.

Origin Is Mystery

Petroleum experts have said that the gasoline definitely was not leakage from filling stations in the vicinity. Fond Du Lac is not in a petroleum producing area.

Officials said that as the gasoline supply dropped off, the fuel's octane rating also fell to the point where it no longer could be used in city trucks.

Street crews are still pumping the well dry each week, however, to prevent the gasoline from collecting or from seeping into the city's water mains. The gasoline is carted to the city dump and burned.

Texan Killed, Wife, Three Children Injured In Crash

DALLAS, Dec. 28. (AP)—Howard L. Hartley, 40, of Van Alstyne, Tex., was killed and his wife and three children injured in an auto-truck collision here today.

Hartley's car and a truck belonging to a Gonzales, Tex., trucking firm collided on an overpass. The 18-year-old driver of the truck was held for investigation.

One of the Hartley children, a baby boy, was in a critical condition. Mrs. Hartley and the other two children were less seriously hurt.

Power Of Press Unites 'Lost' Best Man, Happy Couple

DETROIT, Dec. 28. (AP)—The power of the press was amply illustrated today.

It took only one edition for Joe Christian, bridegroom-to-be, and Gordon Clarke, his lost best man, to find one another.

Clarke, resident of Draper, N. C., flew to Detroit to serve his honorary function at Joe's wedding today to beauteous Barbara Mason.

Gordon and Joe were college chums at medical school in Winston-Salem, N. C. Barbara is a Detroit girl.

But when the best man arrived, he found to his consternation that he'd lost the address. Every source he tried for help failed him.

Then he went to a newspaper office (Detroit Free Press). His plight was put on page one, with his picture.

Quick as that, the best man and the betrothed couple were together and shaking hands—In the city room, of course.

Gloria Swanson Gets Her Fifth Divorce

RENO, Dec. 28. (INS)— Gloria Swanson, onetime Mack Sennet beauty in the days of the silent films, was divorced today in Reno from her husband William M. Davey.

Mrs. Davey was granted the divorce on a cross complaint filed after Davey first started divorce proceedings Jan. 21. His action was filed in secret to permit service of the divorce papers on Miss Swanson in New York.

Desertion Charged

The couple was married at Union City, N. J., Jan. 29, 1945. Both charge desertion for three years. They separated the following April.

Mrs. Davey took her former name of Gloria Swanson.

Davey was the 50-year-old film actress' fifth husband. Previous mates included actor Wallace Berry, Michael Farmer, H. K. Sanborn and the Marquis De La Falaise De La Coudraye.

Miss Swanson was one of the first film stars to marry a European title. She retired from Hollywood in 1941 after appearing opposite Adolph Menjou in "Father Takes A Wife."

The actress currently is active in television and in the management of her extensive business holdings and manufacturing interests.

ICC Approves Plan To Abandon Waco-Denison Interurban Line

DALLAS, Dec. 28. (U.P.)—The Interstate Commerce commission today gave final authority to Texas Electric railways to abandon its interurban service to Denison and Waco.

The ICC had ruled Nov. 16 that the interurban company must sell the lines to any responsible company who submitted a bid.

Forty days were allotted, and the time expired at midnight Monday with no offers.

The railway company said that operators would make their last runs Friday. Buses will be supplied for the Waco route after that date, while the Denison route will be handled by a bus service already in operation.

Jap Warships Reported Stolen, Sold Back On Black Market

TOKYO, Dec. 28. (AP)— Two warships of the imperial Japanese navy were stolen and sold on the black market, press reports revealed today.

A report from Aomori, northern Honshu, said the ships were stolen by Yaichi Mori, 64-year-old iron plant owner, who had contracted to dismantle the vessels.

The report said that Mori channeled 2,000 tons of sheet metal from the ships into the black market.

The ships were the destroyer Tokiwa and another warship which was not named.

Rankin Scores Probe Reforms

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. (AP)—"Utterly silly," snapped Rep. Rankin (D-Miss) today in dismissing a set of proposed new rules for the House Un-American Activities committee.

Rankin, a veteran member of the committee, said the changes recommended by Reps. Mundt (R-SD) and Nixon (R-Calif) just aren't practical.

The nine point overhaul program was advanced by the two Republicans last night for committee consideration when the Democrats take over control of Congress next week.

Mundt and Nixon's main idea is to counter some of the criticism that has been heaped on the committee for its conduct of the recent spy investigation and earlier cases.

To Have Powerful Voice

But Rankin, who will have a powerful voice in the new committee's affairs, said that if his Republican colleagues really wanted the changes made, they should have proposed them while their own party was in firm control of Congress.

"Everyone should know," Rankin told newsmen, "that the rules of house committees follow the rules of the House. Committees themselves just don't make their own rules."

The changes proposed by Mundt and Nixon would:

1. Permit each witness to have a lawyer at either public or private sessions.

2. Prevent subcommittees from publishing reports not approved by the entire committee.

3. Precede public meetings with private sessions in an effort to prevent the disclosure of "surprise names."

4. Give accused persons the opportunity to testify at a public hearing.

Allow Questioning

5. Allow accused persons to question, through the commtitee chairman or counsel, the persons making the accusations.

6. Allow witnesses to make written or oral statements at the end of hearings.

7. Require the committee to furnish a transcript of testimony to a witness whenever the testimony is made public.

8. Stiffen the penalty for contempt of a congressional committee. Mundt and Nixon did not say, however, how much stiffer they think the penalty should be. The maximum now is a $1,000 fine and one year in jail.

The ninth proposed change was in the form of a suggestion that the new committee see what can be done about "excluding certain types of information media from open hearings of the committee."

Seattle Street Carmen Give Days Pay To Blind Twin Girls

SEATTLE, Dec. 28. (U.P.)—Walter A. Nord learned today why 1,800 members of the street Carmen's union (AFL) of Seattle worked Christmas day without getting their pay.

Nord is a bus operator. His fellow drivers finally told him that they worked that day for him, his wife, and their blonde twin girls, 28 months old. The children, Bette Jean and Barbara Jo, were born blind.

On Jan. 10 Nord will receive between $3,600 and $3,700, to be held for a surgeon who may some day be able to give the twins their eyesight.

Baylor, Wake Forest Head For Alabama

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 28 (INS)—Football fans in Birmingham tonight awaited the arrival of the Baptist gridders from Baylor university of Waco, Tex., and the Wake Forest Deacons of Wake Forest, North Carolina.

The two teams ended their last home workouts today and headed for the Dixie Bowl town of Birmingham. Both the Bears and the Demon Deacons will arrive early tomorrow.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 28 (INS) — Clemson's Cinderella football team arrived in Jacksonville today by chartered plane.

Coach Frank Howard said that his undefeated and untied "Country Gentlemen" would practice for their New Year's Day 'Gator Bowl game with Missouri behind closed doors.

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 28 (INS)—The Missouri Valley Vikings today zipped through their first workout on Florida ground since arriving in Tampa Monday night for their New Year's Day Cigar Bowl grid game with St. Thomas College of St. Paul, Minn.

The St. Thomas team already is in Tampa with its number one supporter, Bebe Shopp, Miss America of 1948.

FAVORED SMU, OREGON CONTINUE TOUGH WORKOUTS

DALLAS, Dec. 28 (INS)—Favored Southern Methodist and the underdog Oregon aggregation spurned rainfall today and continued strenuous workouts for their Cotton Bowl gridiron clash on New Year's Day.

Matty Bell, SMU's veteran coach, has shrugged off the bait of seeing his team installed as seven-point favorites to whip the Pacific Coast co-champions, who were snubbed for the Rose Bowl shot.

The Bucks' Jim Aiken, meanwhile, is enjoying the role of the underdog. He's not reveling in it, however, preferring to remain mum about its advantages.

BUTTS GETS TOUGH WITH BULLDOGS; IRONS OUT KINKS

MIAMI, Dec. 28 (INS)—Georgia's "Weeping" Wally Butts dried his tears and got tough with his Bulldogs today, ordering them out for both an offensive and defensive workout.

He called the scrimmage to iron out the multitude of kinks he said he observed in yesterday's practice for the Orange Bowl tussle with the Texas Longhorns.

The Longhorns arrive in Miami at 1:30 Wednesday. They are traveling by chartered plane—running three days behind the Bulldogs in getting broken in to the warm Florida climate and the Orange Bowl game.

Banks And Grove Pace Late Rally

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 28. (AP)—The Texas Tech Red Raiders came through with a 55 to 52 victory over the Southern Methodist Mustangs to reach the consolation finals of the All-College Basketball tournament here today.

The win qualified Texas Tech for a shot at the Colorado Aggies for the consolation championship. The Aggies had advanced earlier with a 54-51 conquest over the Auburn Tigers.

Tech trailed by one point with a minute and 50 seconds to play, but came out on top as Bill Banks and Don Grove connected on field goals to gain a three-point lead.

The Red Raiders achieved victory the hard way, pulling away to a 10-point lead with only 10 minutes to play and then letting it slip from their grasp.

Bob Prewitt and Johnny Zatopek sparked the late Mustang drive. Prewitt sent two field goals through the basket and added a couple of free tosses, while Zatopek hooked in a field goal from the side to send the Ponies to the front.

Dual Triumph

It was just seconds, however, until Banks countered with a one-hander from the foul circle and Grove tipped in a follow rebound to spell defeat for Southern Methodist.

It was a dual purpose triumph for the Raiders, since it was the rubber game of a series with Southern Methodist. They divided a pair of close contests early in the season.

Zatopek took scoring laurels with 19 points followed by Prewitt with 16. Grove was the big scorer for the winners netting 15 points.

The Colorado Aggies fashioned their triumph in just about the same manner as Texas Tech. The Aggies led by 10 points with 10 minutes to play and stalled a late Auburn rally in the final minutes.

After playing nip and tuck ball the first 30 minutes, the Baylor Bears ran away from Texas to win a semi-final All-College tournament contest 49-36.

Oklahoma A. and M., seeking its fifth straight tournament crown, in the tournament meets Baylor Wednesday night.

The Aggies went to the finals by easing past Alabama 44-31 in the first game of the night doubleheader.

The Texas- Baylor contest, a preview of this year's Southwest Conference play, was a thrilling battle as the lead changed hands nine times and the score was tied ten times.

Martin Paces Steers

Baylor was led by two sharp shooting artists, Bill Johnson, a senior guard who made 15 points, and Don Heathington, who had 13—including 7 of 8 free shots.

Slater Martin, Texas' little dynamo, led his team with 12.

The Oklahoma Aggies played precision ball and were deadly at the basket.

Hank Iba's charges hit 50 percent of their shots.

A PAIR OF HORSE TRADERS—President Bill Veeck, right, of the Cleveland Indians and Calvin Griffith, son of the "Old Fox" of the Washington Senators, both seem happy over a recent deal. The trade, one of the biggest in baseball this year, sent First Baseman Mickey Vernon and Pitcher Early Wynn of Washington to the Indians. The Nats, in return, received First Baseman Eddie Robinson and a pair of hurlers, Joe Haynes and Ed Klieman.

Lubbock or South Plains football fans who want to see the Sun bowl game in El Paso New Year's day can get six good tickets for the tussle, as well as choice auto court reservations, from George W. Pfeiffenberger, connected with textile research at Texas Technological college. Pfeiffenberger bought the tickets and made the reservations at the time it looked as if his old alma mater was going to play in the game, but later developments brought in another team. Any person interested in taking over the ducats and the reservations at one of El Paso's finest tourist courts should phone Pfeiffenberger at 2-3475.

Lubbock's Westerners will get plenty of competition this weekend at the Brownwood cage tourney, where at least six or seven of the "top bracket" quints will compete for first-place honors. Pampa, Big Spring and defending champion Olney are pre-tourney favorites, but Temple, Brownwood, Odessa, Dublin or Laredo are all capable of upsetting the dope bucket. Then, too, the Westerners cannot be counted out of the running. Coach Roy Morris' cagers have won nine of 10 games this season, despite injuries to several key players, and the Westerners have looked impressive in most of their outings.

Amarillo's Golden Sandies officially opened their season last week in a blaze of glory by defeating the Crozier Tech Wolves from Dallas, the defending champions in Class AA. The Wolves are definitely weaker this season, however, and the two Amarillo wins may not be as important as many cage fans believe. The Sandie victories did prove that the Amarilloans will again field a good, hard-fighting team that will be tough to beat when district play gets underway.

• • •

Pampa's Harvesters, pre-season favorites in District 1-AA, have chalked up a long string of victories in the new season. The Harvesters have lost several settos, but their only defeats have been at the hands of good teams. For instance, in the first week of the season the Harvesters were defeated by Stratford by one point. A couple of weeks later Stratford beat the Westerners, 59-39. So Pampa and Amarillo both share the favorite's position in the 1-AA race.

With the confusing "overlap" in sports seasons, it's not surprising to find that many of the Lubbock High track hopefuls are planning to open drills during January. The weather will hardly be favorable for lapping around the track at Chapman field, but the cinder path candidates hope to start conditioning drills in the gymnasium and be ready for the first break in the weather. The boys are eager to start to work—they're shooting for a sixth straight regional track crown for Lubbock High.

• • •

Just for the fans' information, the Westerners should field another strong track squad this year. The Westerners will have one of the top milers in the state this season, if Richard Johnson returns to the track with the same form he exhibited late last season. Richard ran the mile in 4:48 last spring, and should improve during the coming campaign. The Westerners have two of their top four sprinters of last season returning, Donald Decker and Charley Williams. Wayne Stroud, a stellar performer up from junior high, should take over a spot on the sprint relay team and Malcolm Young should help in the sprints and possibly the hurdle events.

• • •

The Westerners are certain to miss their great quarter-miler of the last two seasons, Jim Johnson, but mentors are hoping they will discover some youngster who can turn the 440 in good time.

Wrestle Royal Carded Tonight

Six men and a referee in the ring will feature a wrestle royal tonight at Sled Allen's arena with the first two men ousted from the squared circle out for the night.

The second two wrestlers eliminated will return to meet in the semi-final and the final two men in the ring will come back later to grapple in the main event.

The six wrestlers tonight will include Vic Weber, an oldster making a comeback here; Milt Olsen, the Texas Junior Heavyweight champion; Monte LaDue of Canada, who made a favorable debut here last week; Tex Riley of Muleshoe, who got his start here some 30 years ago; and a pair of Dettons from Amarillo, Dory and Glen.

Detton Brothers Meet

Of primary interest will be the meeting of Dory Detton, Amarillo promoter, and his brother, Glen Detton. The latter is a member of the Amarillo police force and is said to have great prospects, if he wants to remain with wrestling.

Olsen is a popular favorite on the basis of his fine performances here against Dick Trout, former Southwestern Junior Heavyweight champion, and others. Trout, incidentally, lost his newly won crown to Dory Funk in Amarillo this week. Olsen's performances have been topnotch and he should outlast the others.

LaDue is a French-Canadian in appearance, but a tiger in the ring, with a combination of bull. His first appearance last week was pleasing and he is a refreshing addition.

Riley and Weber both are oldtimers, who lend a touch of realism to their ability and manage to hold their own against the younger wrestlers.

The main event and semi-final each will be two out of three falls, the main with a one-hour time limit, the semi-final with a 45-minute time limit.

Lubbock Five Holds Defensive Workouts

A lengthy session on defense climaxed the Tuesday afternoon workout of the Lubbock High Westerner basketball squad, as Coach Roy Morris sent his cagers through another workout at the O. L. Slaton Junior High gymnasium in preparation for the Brownwood Invitational tournament this weekend.

The Lubbock schoolboys showed considerable improvement in the session, although most of the squad members still show the effects of their four-day Christmas vacation. The team members have regained most of their timing, however, and all the boys put in plenty of time at the free throw line.

The Lubbock squad is in near perfect physical condition, despite Charles Galey's foot injury. Some of the squadmen were stiff and sore Tuesday, following Monday's lengthy practice period, but Coach Morris hopes to have all the "kinks worked out" during a final homecourt drill this afternoon.

A squad of 10 players will probably make the journey to Brownwood by chartered bus Thursday morning, Coach Morris said, and the boys will be accompanied by two of the mentors.

The Westerners are scheduled to tangle with Dublin in a first round meet game at 7 o'clock Thursday night.

Fred Wendt May Miss Bowl Game

EL PASO, Dec. 28 (AP)—Something closely resembling a bolt of lightning struck Sun Bowl backers of the Texas Miners today.

They received dismaying news that flying Freddy Wendt, the El Paso eleven's fullback, is in the hospital with a sore throat.

At first blush that might not sound so bad. That is, unless you recall Wendt was collegiate football's top man in rushing gains and scoring for the regular season.

Dr. R. B. Homan, jr., team physician for the Miners, ordered Wendt to the hospital after he was found to have fever last night. The Ore Diggers' star is being given penicillin and sulfa.

The physician said he hoped to be able to discharge Wendt tomorrow. But that didn't do much to lessen the gloom of Miner Coach Jack Curtice.

Even if Wendt can play Saturday, Curtice reasoned, the illness is likely to leave him weak.

Glad to see sunshine again, both squads held double workouts today. They found practice fields still water-logged after two days of rain, however.

Crippled Vets Are Bowl Victims

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 28 (INS)—The East Liverpool, O., Post No. 4 of the American Legion offered today to "foot the bill" for combat-wounded wheelchair war veterans who are being charged $5.50 to witness the Northwestern-California football game in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

The offer followed the nationwide expose of the situation by John B. Old, sports writer for the Los Angeles Evening Herald and Express.

Old declared that paraplegics were given a chance to buy tickets at $5.50 a toss, but that most of them had given up the idea of seeing the game because they couldn't afford it.

Lathrop K. Leishman, Rose Bowl football committee chairman, explained that he was bound by a policy he inherited with the job. He added that Special Service had been privileged to buy about 1954 seats, but there were no funds in the veteran administration's kitty to pay for them.

Ohio Legion Post Commander Charles B. Stewart, who learned of the veterans' plight through an International News Service story, telegraphed the following to the Herald and Express and the Rose Bowl committee:

"The membership of this post considers this outrageous. The unsportsmanlike conduct of your committee is very unpatriotic. We feel that these veterans are entitled to see the Rose Bowl game free of charge.

"If they insist on making them pay an admission, use this as your authority to admit them and send the bill to us."

Leishman said that the entire matter was being discussed in detail by the committee.

ALASKA CARDS ICE BOWL CLASSIC

Nearly 600,000 Spectators Are Expected To Watch Bowl Games

By CHARLES EINSTEIN
INS Sports Writer

Nearly 600,000 spectators — a record number — will watch 17, maybe 18, New Year's Day football bowl games Saturday.

The doubtful game is on tap at Fairbanks, Alaska, where the University of Alaska and Ladd Field will collide in the Ice Bowl, they hope. Since the field is not equipped with lights, the two elevens will have to wait for the sun to come up, which it sometimes doesn't.

The mercury at Fairbanks, having long since passed the freezing point of water, is nearing the freezing point of mercury, something conducive to the sporting writer's favorite phrase: "chilled fans."

Sellouts Are Predicted

Exclusive of the throng of 62 chilled fans expected for the Ice Bowl game, the word throughout Bowl land is sellout: 94,000 for the Rose Bowl; 82,000 for the Sugar; 67,000 for the Cotton; 61,000 for the Orange; 60,000 for the Shrine game.

For the 'Gator Bowl, 40,000; Dixie and Delta, 30,000 each; Harbor 22,000; Sun 18,000; Cigar and Salad 17,000 each; Raisin 15,000; Tangerine 10,000; Prairie View and Vulcan 9,000 each; Flower 8,000. Give or take a few fans, chilled or otherwise, in each instance.

For the most part, the New Year's Day crowds are apt to get their three million dollars' worth. There seems to be no beating things like Northwestern-California in the Rose Bowl; Oklahoma-North Carolina in the Sugar Bowl; Southern Methodist-Oregon in the Cotton Bowl, or the East-West All Stars in the Shrine game.

Authorities Condemned

In some instances, though, fans showed complete disregard for what they call their better judgment. Orange bowl authorities in Miami were roundly condemned for selecting Texas, a three-time loser, to oppose Georgia's Southeastern Conference titlists. But scalpers hawking last-minute seats to the attraction experienced no difficulty in ridding themselves of tickets.

The twister on the whole thing is that Texas-Georgia may be quite a ball game.

Other spectacles which may produce tremendous football include the Clemson-Missouri 'Gator Bowl game at Jacksonville, Fla.; the Villanova-Nevada Harbor Bowl date at San Diego, Cal.; the Texas Mines-West Virginia Sun Bowl contest at El Paso, Tex.; Baylor vs. Wake Forest in the Dixie Bowl at Birmingham, Ala.; Drake vs. Arizona in the Salad Bowl at Phoenix, Ariz.; and William & Mary vs. Oklahoma A. & M. in the Delta Bowl at Memphis, Tenn.

The Cigar Bowl at Tampa, Fla., bringing together the "big little" teams of Missouri Valley and St. Thomas (Minn.) may be productive too.

Amarillo's Lynch May Go To Beaumont

BEAUMONT, Dec. 28 (AP) — Howard Lynch, coach of Amarillo high school for more than a decade, is one of the men under consideration for the head coaching job at Beaumont high school.

Lynch, whose Amarillo team lost to Waco in the state Class AA state finals Saturday, has a contract at Amarillo that runs through next spring.

Kenneth Sutton, president of the Beaumont school board, said Lynch conferred for two hours with school officials regarding the job here. Sutton said he came here upon invitation of the officials.

Wildcats Win Loop Game At Boys Club

Four more games were played yesterday afternoon and night in the leagues at the Lubbock Boys club.

The Wildcats downed the Black Demons in a Pee Wee loop game 16-8, with Don Daniels scoring seven points for the winners and Paul Sikes getting four for the losers.

In the Midget league, the Fighting Irish downed the Eagles 32-28 behind the 18 point scoring of David Morgan. Jimmy Washington had 14 points for the losers.

Mikie Brady's field goal in an overtime period handed the Dirty Five a 39-37 victory over the Roughies in a Junior League tilt. J. R. Bradford paced the victors with 12 points, but Charles Rand of the losers led all scorers with 22 tallies.

Neil Sikes had 18 points in leading the Bombers to a 49-31 victory over the Roughnecks, for whom Mackie Lawrence scored eight points.

Two games, one each in the PeeWee and Midget leagues, will be played tomorrow.

RAILBIRDS GAPE AT BULLET PASSES

Aiken Grooms Van Brocklin For Duel With Johnson And Company

DALLAS, Dec. 28 (AP) — Norman Van Brocklin, sturdy quarterback of Oregon's Webfoots, has had the railbirds gaping with his bullet passes as he tunes up for Saturday's Cotton Bowl game with Southern Methodist.

A duel between Van Brocklin and Southern Methodist's bomber, Gil Johnson, is billed as the big feature of the post-season gridiron show.

Van Brocklin shakes his head when he speaks of Johnson. He's watched the Methodist passing star work in pictures of SMU games Coach Matty Bell loaned to Coach Jim Aiken of Oregon.

But take it from Aiken, Van Brocklin can pass with the best of them. "He's the best passer I ever coached," says the veteran mentor. "And he's the best long passer I ever saw."

Started Van On T

Van Brocklin was sixth string left halfback in 1946. The next season Aiken went to Oregon as coach. The first question he asked was who could pass. An assistant coach told Aiken that Van Brocklin was the best thrower on the squad. Aiken sent for Van Brocklin and out in the hall of the building, started working Van on the T formation.

"He used two students and me right there in the hall to show Van the T," grins Art Litchman, publicity director of Oregon.

In 1947 Van Brocklin completed 76 passes out of 168 throws and this year 68 out of 139.

Van Brocklin doesn't play on defense. He's only in the lineup when Oregon has the ball to general the attack, throw the passes and do the kicking Back in high school Norman was a star defensive player but he's too valuable to risk using on defense at Oregon.

Van Brocklin is Aiken's right arm. "Night after night during the football season those two study plays and work out pass patterns," says Litchman. "Each knows just what the other is thinking about all the time."

Al Renfrew, captain of Michigan's NCAA championship hockey team, lives in Toronto. He scored 25 goals last season.

Man And Wife Set New Bowling Record

CHICAGO, Dec. 28 (INS) — Chicago bowling officials tonight claimed a new all-time world's record for husbands-and-wives tournaments in the scratch total of 1,372 rolled by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wilman of Berwyn, Ill.

Rolling in the Barney Hochstadter husband and wife sweepstakes Sunday night at Berwyn Recreation, Mrs. Henrietta Wilman, put together games of 221, 256 - 193 for 670. Her husband, former national individual match game champion, had 179 for his first game, but came back with scores of 244 and 279 for 702.

Officials at the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, major equipment firm and general information clearing house for the sport, said the 1,372 scratch total was good enough to have won all but six of the doubles events of the American Bowling Congress tournaments. They added that the total is the highest ever recorded in available records of husbands-and-wives tourneys.

CALIFORNIA FREE OF INJURIES

Northwestern, Bears Sharpen Offensives For Rose Bowl Tilt

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 28. (INS) —Coach Bob Voigts sent his Northwestern football squad through a rough scrimmage session today, sharpening the Wildcats' offensive claws for their impending Rose Bowl battle with California.

And farther north, at Riverside, Cal., Coach Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf —Voigts' former boss at Northwestern—was trying to pitch his Golden Bears mentally for the New Year's Day grid titanic.

Weather was perfect for both workouts, following one of southern California's biggest storms of the season, and the weather experts were predicting sunny skies for the pappy of all bowl contests.

Bears 6½-Point Underdogs

California remained 6½-point underdogs in early betting odds.

The Northwestern practice stints have been strictly closed affairs—to west coast sports writers—but Waldorf was maintaining practically an open house to scribes.

The California squad of 45 players that buckled down to rough stuff today, was virtually free of injuries. Only Jim Turner, the king-size tackle, was ailing, but Waldorf indicated a leg injury had improved enough to guarantee Turner's participation against the Wildcats.

Says Jensen Okay

Waldorf denied reports that his All-America back Jackie Jensen was suffering from a bum thigh muscle. The Bears' top ground-gaining flash took his share of knocks today and spent a long time punting.

The California mentor opined: "We're not sharp enough yet, but we're coming along fast. At any rate, we have a lot to do in the next two days."

Two Northwestern stars, Joe Zuravleff and Don Stonesifer, both left ends, drilled lightly and Voigts promised they would see action New Year's afternoon. Stonesifer has had a charleyhorse and Zuravleff is still bothered with a jarred shoulder.

PLANE SNATCHES MEN TO SAFETY

Air Force Rescues Marooned Fliers From Greenland Icecap

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28 (AP)—Twelve U. S. airmen marooned atop a 7,800-foot ice cap in Greenland were rescued in 38 minutes today by a C-47 transport equipped with jet-assist takeoff apparatus and skis.

Seven of the men had been stranded in the lonely Arctic encampment since Dec. 9. The other five joined them later in a series of unsuccessful rescue attempts.

By latest reports, all the men were in good health despite subfreezing temperatures of 40 below and winds up to 100 mph.

Air Force headquarters here said the rescuing C-47, flown to the scene from its Greenland base 270 miles away, landed on the snow at 8:30 a. m., CST, loaded the happy men on board, and took off at 9:08 a.m.

Men Resting Up

Tonight the men were resting in snug Officers Club quarters at Bluie West Eight base in northwest Greenland. They arrived there at 12:20 p.m. (EST).

Communications with Bluie West Eight blacked out shortly after word of the rescue plane's arrival there was received. The Air Force said no further details were expected tonight.

At least three previous "air snatch" attempts, with gliders and a B-17 Flying Fortress, had failed. But the men were kept warm and well fed with heating equipment, food, medical supplies and even a dismantled plywood house dropped to them by parachute. A Christmas tree and Yule dinner were also floated down for the holiday.

Navy Too Late

In carrying out today's successful exploit, the Air Force beat the Navy to the punch in a joint rescue mission. It came as the Navy's aircraft carrier U.S.S. Saipan, with five helicopter "flying windmills" aboard, sped through the storm-swept North Atlantic toward Greenland.

The Saipan, which left Norfolk, Va., on Christmas Day, was still about 1,000 miles from its goal and had not expected to begin rescue operations before Thursday.

Air Force officials credited the rescue to a young Air Force pilot who only a year ago was the hero in another "top-of-the-world" rescue exploit in a Labrador wilderness.

He is Lt. Col. Emil J. Beaudry, 32, a native of Manchester, N. H., now stationed at Westover, Mass., air base. He is known to his colleagues as possibly the Air Force's ace pilot of Jato (jet-assist) ski-equipped planes.

Pilot's Second Rescue

Col. Beaudry, a World War II bomber pilot with a record of 26 missions and 200 combat hours in Europe, flew the big plane in today's episode. A year ago, on Dec. 26, 1947, Beaudry piloted his plane to Dyke's lake in Labrador and picked up nine survivors—seven Air Force men and two civilians—whose B-17 had been forced down three days earlier.

Jubilation over Beaudry's feat today was increased by word of the safe arrival in Greenland of the noted Arctic expert, Col. Bernt Balchen, who left Winnipeg in a big C-54 at dawn yesterday and headed toward Greenland for a new rescue attempt.

Plane Loses Contact

Balchen, flying with a crew of six officers and eight enlisted men, had hoped to fly non-stop from Winnipeg to Bluie West One, the U. S. Air base 100 miles south of the Greenland crash scene. Some concern had been felt for the Balchen group's safety when they were unreported for many hours.

Air Force headquarters said previous announcements that 13 men were marooned on the Greenland cap were in error. It said only one man, instead of two, was aboard a glider which made the last previous rescue attempt.

(The Navy immediately ordered the Saipan to return to its base at Norfolk, Va., the International News Service reported.

The 14,500 ton carrier will put in at Argentia, Newfoundland, about 9 a. m. Wednesday to land 16 newsmen aboard and then continue southward. The newsmen will return to the United States by air.)

Two More Injured At New Traffic Circle

Two perons were injured in the second accident within two days at the newly-constructed traffic circle south of Lubbock on Tahoka highway.

Mr. and Mrs. Newt Barham of Tahoka route 5 were taken to Lubbock Memorial hospital Tuesday after their 1948 Plymouth sedan overturned as it approached the circle at about 4 a. m.

Barham had suffered a heart attack, highway patrolmen reported, and Mrs. Barham was driving him to Lubbock for treatment. As she approached the circle, she steered to the left side of a midroad safety island, the car hit a soft shoulder on the highway and overturned once.

Taken To Hospital

Mr. and Mrs. Barham were taken by Plains ambulance to the hospital, where neither was thought to be seriously hurt.

James H. Wilson, 18, his mother, Mrs. Edith Wilson, 45, and an aunt, Mrs. Zelma Jones, all of Midland, were treated at Lubbock Memorial hospital for injuries suffered when their 1946 Dodge failed to negotiate the curve on the traffic circle south of town and jumped a culvert into the center of the circle Monday night.

Dr. Hsia Ching-Ling, the Chinese delegate, said he saw no reason for even a day's delay in the release of Soekarno and others interned when the Dutch captured Jogjakarta, Indonesian Republican capital, in a surprise attack Dec. 19.

Of Van Roten's protest against "censure," Australia's delegate, Col. W. R. Hodgson, said:

"We are told here is a note of censure. There may well be, and why not?"

Prisoners Moved

The Indonesian delegate, L. N. Palam, said the Dutch have removed Soekarno and other prisoners to the mountains, and that this seemed to indicate intention to hold them a long time.

In the Palestine issue, Britain, which first intended to ask the council to censure Israel as the aggressor, overnight softened its resolution to omit any direct statement of condemnation. This evidently was in the hope of winning American support.

British Delegate Harold Beeley submitted the resolution in a form simply demanding a cease-fire and withdrawal of Israel's troops. He urged the council to tell its truce supervision committee to meet at Lake Success, N. Y., Jan. 6 and report on compliance with the two orders.

His proposals are based on the council's Nov. 4 truce orders, which instructed Israeli forces to withdraw to positions held before Oct. 14.

Beeley called his plan a "first step in restoring the authority of the Security Council and of the United Nations itself in Palestine."

and bandied words with the reporters and photographers who accompanied him, but the question on the Russian leaders ended the pleasantness today.

Staff Is "Surprised"

Some members of the White House staff expressed surprise that the statement attracted any particular attention. They insisted that the President had said the same thing at least three times before.

Newsmen, however, did not recall any express statement indicating that some Russian leaders were peace-minded.

The President's remark aroused speculation that he might have been referring to Premier Josef Stalin. It was recalled that Mr. Truman said last summer that he liked "Joe," and that he was a prisoner of the 13-man Soviet politburo, which would not allow him to keep agreements.

At mid-day Mr. Truman attended a luncheon given in his honor by the newsmen and photographers who accompanied him on his Christmas trip to Independence. The luncheon was off the record.

Works On Message

He spent most of the day in his suite at the Muehlebach hotel in Kansas City, disposing of correspondence and working on his state of the union message to the new Democratic Congress.

Mr. Truman will board his plane, the Independence, at 10 a. m., tomorrow and fly to Washington, arriving there about 1 p. m. (CST).

Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) offered a proposed change in the Senate Republican rules today which would have the effect of toughening the policy chairmanship for Taft.

The Californian suggested that the chairman of the GOP conference, the conference secretary, the minority floor leader and the minority whip be made members ex-officio of a nine-member policy or steering committee. The other five members would be elected by the conference in a secret ballot.

His amendment continues the present rule limiting a tenure on the policy committee to four consecutive years which Taft already has served. It provides also that the policy chairman would be chosen by members of that committee.

Thus Taft's only chance of becoming eligible for the policy chairmanship would be to first win one of the other leadership posts and thereby become an ex-officio member of the policy committee.

Family Of Five Is Accused Of Hiding $9,000 In Stolen Bills

CORPUS CHRISTI, Dec. 28. (AP)—A family of five was arrested and charged in federal court today with receiving and concealing stolen property—$9,000 in mutilated one dollar bills.

The bills were taken from the Corpus Christi National bank Nov. 23.

Those charged were Mrs. Rosa Rico, 49, a seamstress; her two sons, Rosalio and Antonio; her son-in-law, Theodore Vasquez, and her daughter, Helen, 14.

FBI agents here refused to comment on how the family came into possession of the money or whether theft charges will be filed against the group. The investigation is continuing.

Law Violations Show Drop Here

Law enforcement authorities reported a relatively quiet time yesterday and last night, with only minor thefts and burglaries interrupting the continued investigation of numerous law violations reported over the Christmas holiday period.

Edd Holcomb of 2708 Twenty-ninth said that a tire and wheel valued at $30.60 had been stolen from his car, and another tire and wheel was reported missing from the trunk compartment of a car belonging to Virgil Haney of Lubbock general delivery.

Two spinner hub caps valued at $9 were taken from the car of Otho Hendricks of 2312 Twenty-sixth, and papers were reported stolen from the car of C. J. Cribbs of 2401 Second street.

Police were informed Tuesday afternoon of the theft of a .22 caliber revolver from the glove compartment of the car of W. R. Harral, of 2813 Twentieth.

Officials said Fred Shockley, 23, of 2208 Twenty-fifth, was treated for cuts of the back, then released from a hospital. He declined to tell a police detective what had happened, and said he preferred not to prosecute.

Nine women were arrested in three small hotels here and charged with vagrancy by prostitution. Fines of $25 were assessed in eight of the cases after the defendants entered pleas of guilty to the offense as charged.

Hospital Says Lubbock Boy Is 'Doing Satisfactorily'

DALLAS, Dec. 28 (AP) — Jerry Donelson, the seven-year-old boy brought here from Lubbock for a diagnosis of whether he had a brain tumor, was "doing satisfactorily" today in Baylor hospital.

An attending physician said a test given Jerry this morning had a normal reaction; that the boy would be kept under observation, and would go home in a few days.

He said "It looks now like this possibly may be non-surgical." The test failed to show a tumor, but sometimes at an early stage such a test doesn't show one, the doctor said.

The boy was brought to the hospital here Dec. 20, accompanied by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy A. Donelson, of 516 East Thirty-fifth street, Lubbock.

Funeral services for the slain premier, who left a widow and three children, one of them by a previous marriage, may be held tomorrow morning.

Nokrashy Pasha's body was taken to his home, accompanied by Ibrahim Abdul Hadi Pasha, chief of the royal household.

Held Important Posts

The Egyptian cabinet met in an emergency session. An official statement said:

"The premier was assassinated by a criminal hand at the interior ministry and died when his country needed him most—needed his sincere patriotism, exceptional bravery, wide experience, rare understanding and entire honesty.

"He fell victim while enroute to carry out official duties in the service of fatherland and king."

Nokrashy Pasha, slain Egyptian premier, had held practically every important government post during his lifetime, following his entrance into public life at the age of 30.

In 1919, he was appointed director of education, and in the succeeding years, at one time or another, he filled a variety of cabinet posts, culminating with his emergence as premier in 1945.

Prior to his career as a public official, Nokrashy, Pasha was known mainly as a teacher and schoolmaster.

Actress Claims Cut Accidental

NEW YORK, Dec. 28. (AP)—Elliott Roosevelt and his actress wife Faye Emerson said today the cut in her wrist which put her in a Poughkeepsie, N. Y., hospital 30 hours was caused by accidental contact with a razor blade.

Reached by telephone at their New York apartment, they both told a reporter the version of the affair given by the actress' mother in San Diego, Calif., earlier today was correct.

The sheriff of Dutchess county had said he understood the wound was self-inflicted.

Was Hunting Aspirin

But the mother, Mrs. Jean C. Young, said her daughter slashed her wrist reaching into a drawer "where there were some extra razor blades" while hunting for aspirin.

"That's exactly how it happened," the blonde actress said in the interview. She then called her husband to the telephone and he said "That's right. That's what happened."

Meanwhile, in Poughkeepsie, near which the Roosevelt Hyde Park home is located and where the incident took place, the Dutchess county district attorney called three witnesses for questioning about the injury to Mrs. Roosevelt.

Eight Stitches Taken

After the closed session, District Attorney W. Vincent Grady said he was satisfied the doctor who treated Mrs. Roosevelt and the hospital had not violated any law in not reporting the incident.

"It appears the case was not reported because the wound was not sufficiently serious to be likely to result in death," Grady said.

The beautiful blonde actress, Elliott's wife for four years, was taken to Vassar Brothers hospital in Poughkeepsie early Sunday with a cut in her wrist. Eight stitches were taken. She left the hospital with her husband yesterday.

Elliott Roosevelt said he would be at Grady's office at 9 a. m. (CST) tomorrow to testify as requested.

STORM, COLDER WEATHER DRIVES INTO MIDWEST

CHICAGO, Dec. 28 (AP) — Colder weather moved in over the northern plains states tonight while freezing rain and sleet battered northern Wisconsin, upper Michigan and parts of Minnesota and Iowa.

The weather bureau at Chicago reported generally fair weather—just a little above normal—throughout the east but rain was expected to blanket the eastern section tomorrow.

A vigorous storm, centered in northern Kansas, caused rain in Arkansas and eastern Oklahoma, over most of Illinois, southern Iowa and Missouri. A band of freezing rain and sleet hit northern Illinois, southern Wisconsin, northeastern Iowa, and portions of southeastern Minnesota.

Kansas, Nebraska Hit

Kansas and Nebraska bore the brunt of a severe storm which caused considerable damage in both states. Colby and four smaller northwestern towns in Kansas were isolated from telephone communication. Seventy nine long distance circuits were blanked out by the storm. There was an inch or more of ice on the wires between Colby and Salina. Strong winds and drifting snows swirled through the plateau states and the central Rockies.

The Kansas storm was expected to move east and northeastward during the night causing light rain in the southern sections, with freezing rain or sleet changing to snow in the central and northeastern sections all day tomorrow. Drizzling rain was expected to continue falling at scattered points along the east Gulf coast.

His appeal may test these rulings by the court:

1. That Americans leave the Constitution behind and lose their right to trial by jury when they come to occupied Germany.

2. That Americans in Germany not members of the occupation forces are subject to German criminal law.

Mrs. Ybarbo was tried both under Garman law and military government ordinances, and was sentenced to 20 years under each, both the sentences to run concurrently.

Six-year-old Jimmy Ybarbo, son of Mrs. Ybarbo, will be flown soon to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bailey of New Bedford, Mass.

The court said Mrs. Ybarbo's sentence may be served either in an Army stockade, a federal prison or other officially designated place.

Firemen Appeal

did not feel guilty of having acted in bad faith in going to Houston, that, actually they were not convinced they had violated any commission order in their resort to "customs of the fire department."

Claims No Vote Taken

"The commission turned us down only on a request for leave with pay," they said.

Gordon Treadaway, counsel for the suspended firemen, charged that the city commission never took a vote on the alternate proposal: that the firemen would go to the convention "on their own time, after arrangement for someone to do their work during their absence."

Treadaway offered a copy he had made of the commission's minutes in support of the contention. There was no reference to such a vote in the copy he presented. He said he had telephoned Miss Lavenia Williams, city secretary, and that she, at her residence, told him she had taken down copies of the entire proceeding before the commission. Smith, too, said he recalled no formal motion and second of the proposal that the firemen attend the convention "on their own time."

Charge Said Erroneous

So, Treadaway contended, the chief's action suspending the men for violation of a "special order of the commission" was taken on an "erroneous charge." The commission voted formally that Quinn and Pruitt would not be allowed to attend the convention "on the city's time," he reiterated; but took no formal action to oppose their going on their own.

He cited procedure provided in the civil service act, interpreting it to mean that when a civil service employe is suspended or discharged for cause, then there can be no amendment to the charge when the matter goes to the civil service commission upon appeal.

Treadaway said the function of Tuesday's hearing should "be educational, not in the nature of a purge."

Wilson Presents Views

City Attorney Vaughn E. Wilson, asked to represent the civil service commission, took the position that the city manager himself is the executive head to whom the request for leave properly should have been brought, and that his negative answer to the firemen's alternative request should have been sufficient for them.

He, after civil service commissioners brought out from Twitty that the chief devotes only slight attention to the comings and goings of his department personnel, just so long as there is a full compliment on duty, developed what he termed "a necessity that the fire department have specific direction."

Wilson cast oblique charges that the firemen may have been influenced in their actions by organized labor, which brought quick and heated denial from Treadaway. Christopher J. Lightholder, a representative of the labor temple here, was with the firemen's delegation that awaited the city commission's answer to the request on Sept. 8, it was brought out. Lightholder was one of several witnesses sworn at Tuesday's hearing. He was in attendance, but was not called.

Discipline Declared Necessary

Wilson said that whether the firemen were "influenced", in order to make a "test case or put somebody on the spot," or whether they had a "misconception" of rules, "there must be discipline or the entire system (of civil service) will fly out the window."

The commission and Wilson asked questions as to whether Lightholder, or anyone else, had sought to influence them in anticipation of an adverse decision of the city commission. There were no admissions in that direction.

Witnesses called were Twitty, Smith, J. M. Goldwater, a city fireman, and Quinn and Pruitt. The firemen, who were sworn as "defense" witnesses, were called by Wilson as "adverse" witnesses. Since Treadaway questioned them too, he called no witnesses after Wilson had completed his case.

Witnesses Examined

Harry Morris, chairman of the Civil Service commission, asked George W. McCleskey, who with Marion Sanford, are other commissioners, to preside. All commissioners closely examined witnesses at various stages of the hearing. All made it clear that civil service here is "new" and that the commission's function is to "do everything possible to make it work, fairly and equitably." They pointed out that they had "spent much time in attempting, with the aid of the police and fire departments, to make the rules workable and understandable." Morris said at one point, "when the time comes, if it does, that we can't serve you understandably, then I'll resign as chairman of the commission."

At no time in the hearing was there any reference to a "petition" that rumor had was being circulated by the fire department in efforts to remove Argo Peek as city personnel manager. Treadaway said at a recess period he had no knowledge of such a petition, and Wilson made no reference to it. Rumor had it that such a petition was the result of fire department belief that Peek had "tattled" to the city commission about Pruitt's and Quinn's going to Houston.

Mayor W. H. Rodgers said the information about the firemen came from a different source, but said Peek, had he known of their absence under the conditions, should have reported the occurrence.

Members of the city commission had told H. I. Kiefer, city hall reporter for The Morning Avalanche, that leaves of absence were refused members of the fire department to attend the Houston meeting because the "department is undermanned, without allowing two men to leave."

The proposal of other firemen to work for absent members during off-duty time was rejected, Kiefer was told, as a bad precedent.

The purposes of the Houston meeting, it was brought out at Tuesday's hearing, were: The furtherance of unionization of firemen; and to strengthen a lobby in Austin to work for legislation looking toward increased pay and other benefits for members of city fire departments.

The hearing was the second appeal brought before the commission. Recently a policeman lost his appeal after discharge for allegedly attending a theater program at a time he was supposed to be on duty. His discharge was by Chief of Police Lewis Kittrell.

Six persons were reported killed last night in the crash of a twin-engine B-26 at Romulus Air Base, near Detroit.

A Michigan National Guard spokesman said the craft was out of McDill Field, Fla., carrying four Michigan men and two from Tampa to Romulus. The bomber exploded on contact with the landing strip at Romulus, plowed through the adjoining field, but did not burst into flame.

The Air Force declined to identify the victims until their families have been notified.

Plane Heavily Iced

The National Guard source said the fliers were bound for guard training centers in Michigan in the course of a routine training flight.

He said the light bomber was forced to fight rough skies filled with freezing rain on the final leg of its journey and, apparently, it was heavily iced when it eased in to the runway.

A source at Wayne county airport reported that sheriff's officers retrieved six parachutes from the wreckage but had not "found a whole body."

Jet Pilot Killed

The pilot of an Air Force F-80 jet plane was killed Tuesday when his craft dove nose-first into a field and exploded near Jeddo, Mich.

No trace of the pilot's body was found but sheriff's officers said papers recovered from the wreckage bore the name of First Lieut. Joseph R. Thomas of Paducah, Ky.

The jet plane was one of a formation of four from Selfridge field, Mich.

Last Known Cave Dwellers

The Tarahumara Indians, who inhabit central Chihuahua state, are the last known cave dwellers on the North American continent.

They stood silent and expressionless through short speeches from the welcoming party, and introductions by Dr. Robert Zingg, El Paso anthropologist who had gone into the Mexican hills to arrange the race.

The Indians run with a peculiar, rabbit-like hop, carrying forked poles for partial support. A thick, milky corn drink, carried in the escort car, provided their only food on the journey. When the tiny band halted for rest, its members stood leaning on their sticks.

Dr. Zingg said Paseno was off his feet only at Villa Humada where the others agreed to drop out of the race. He said Paseno told him he could have run for many more hours.

Miss Patricia Beach Murchison, blonde College of Mines coed from El Paso, was crowned Sun carnival queen in elaborate ceremonies tonight. A pageant and the coronation ball followed.

Taking part were the queen's court, the southwestern Sun princesses, and their escorts.

Completion Of Lubbock Count Well Announced By Tobe Foster

An extension to the Lubbock field of central Lubbock county was completed by Tobe Foster, et al, at their No. 1 Travis, 330 feet from north and 990 feet from east lines of section 4, block A, Gibson survey.

This project, located about four miles northeast of the city of Lubbock, pumped 24 hours on an initial production test and made 103.41 barrels of oil, with a gas-oil ration of 100-1.

Gravity of the petroleum was 23.6 degrees. Of the total fluid developed on the test, three per cent was water.

The pay section at 4,863-4,990 feet was acidized with 16,000 gallons of acid, by stages.

Hockley Test Completed

A small discovery from the San Andres, upper Permian, in northwest Hockley county was completed by Edward C. Lawson of Tulsa.

On a 24-hour potential, Lawson's No. 1 George L. White pumped 93.82 barrels of oil per day. Gravity was 31.9 degrees. The gas-oil ration was too small to measure.

In addition to the oil pumped on the test, 12 per cent water developed.

Production was safer after the San Andres pay zone between 4,617 feet and 4,648 feet received a 1,000-gallon acid treatment.

This new pay opener is 440 feet from south and east lines of labor 16, league 704, State Capitol Lands survey, abstract 236, A. Taylor original grantee, about 18 miles northwest of the town of Levelland.

Nearest production is in the Yellowhouse field, a few miles to the southwest.

Drillstem Test Made

Placid Oil company drillstem tested the northeast Scurry county Ellenburger with its No. 1 Cornelius Davis, wildcat 6½ miles northeast of the town of Snyder and 660 feet from north, 1,980 feet from east lines of section 387, block 97, H&TC survey.

The tool was open 50 minutes at 7,755-7,830 feet. A slight blow of air held at the surface for part of the period.

Recovery was 150 feet of very slightly oil and gas cut drilling mud. Salt content of the mud was 10,000 parts per million.

Last report had the prospector making hole deeper into the Ellenburger below 7,850 feet in lime.

A core was to be taken in the Ellenburger of extreme northeast Scurry county at Sun Oil company and the Ohio Oil company No. 1 Helms, wildcat, 660 feet from south and west lines of section 636, block 97, H&TC survey, about 20 miles northeast of Snyder.

Total depth was 7,230 feet. Top of the Ellenburger was called on 7,185 feet. The current zone has shown faint possibilities of production.

Soldier, Italian Girl United By Phone Call

FORT WORTH, Dec. 28. (AP)—Their romance had a rocky road and no pavement is in sight yet, but Master Sgt. John D. Kent and Djana Macchetta were married today. He was in Fort Worth, Tex., and she in Milan, Italy. A phone call united them.

The bride and groom had an anxious week. The ceremony from this side of the Atlantic was to be performed at Fort Worth, where Sgt. Kent was stationed. He sent a stream of cables to make the arrangements, then waited for the day.

Wedding Delayed

Last Friday a blow fell. He was transferred to Barksdale Field, La. The bride waited Monday and Tuesday in a Milan press service office for the call that didn't come.

Finally Kent got permission to return to Fort Worth and arrived late last night.

The Rev. A. B. Lightfoot, pastor of the Sylvan Heights Baptist church, performed the ceremony in his study. "You're ready, are you?" asked the sergeant as he heard his sweetheart's voice. "It's been a long wait, hasn't it?"

"I've waited long enough for this," Miss Macchetta replied. "This is about time."

Vows Are Exchanged

The vows were exchanged and at 7:41 a. m. (CST) the sergeant declared "we are now married."

"Chow (their own way of saying so long) Diana," he concluded. But that wasn't good enough. The Italian girl quickly had him change it to "Chow, wife."

Whether they meet soon is a matter of chance. He is due back at Barksdale Field for processing for immediate overseas duty in the European theater. However, he's saved a furlough he rated from his re-enlistment last September.

Kent met his bride while stationed in Milan in 1946. They planned marriage before the sergeant returned to the U. S. a year later.

Aldermen Quit After Mesquite Tax Battle

MESQUITE, Dec. 28. (U.P.)—The "mutiny in Mesquite" over a proposed property tax hike appeared ended today after a belligerent taxpayer group forced the resignations of three of the city's five aldermen.

What started out as a meeting of a recently-appointed tax equalization board turned into a howling session of complaining taxpayers, one of whom threw a punch at an alderman who favored the tax increase.

Board Is Heckled

An estimated 100 persons converged on the municipal building and heckled the board and five aldermen. The result was a cancellation of a 33½ per cent across-the-board valuation hike and the resignations of three aldermen.

They were Buel Harvey, L. B. McLaran and Roy Moore. A taxpayer identified as Hugh Lawrence, a plumber, was among those protesting the tax increase. He and Moore swapped a few punches before they were separated. Each nursed a black eye today.

The meeting lasted more than two hours and as a precautionary move, someone called the highway patrol. Four officers arrived about the time the meeting was over.

Mayor Sam Rutherford was on the side of the protestants and announced the resignations of the aldermen after conferring with them. He was away on a deer hunt today.

An unidentified member of the crowd announced an election would be held Jan. 8 to fill the three vacancies, but later City Attorney Ellsworth Weinberg questioned its legality.

Charles Greer Is Speaker At Lubbock Optimist Club Session

A brief talk on "Optimism" by Charles Greer featured the program at Tuesday's weekly Optimist club luncheon in Hotel Lubbock.

Some 40 members present voted to re-activate the "buddy" plan of attendance formerly used by the club, in order to boost attendance during 1949.

Charles Cobb disclosed that an anonymous donor had contributed $50 to the club's fund, in appreciation of the work of the Optimists in promoting Boys club activities in the Arnett-Benson addition.

One guest, Charles Moeser, was introduced.

'Miracle Of Grogan's Mill' Brings Money, Letters By Truck Load To Young Shut-In

CONROE, Dec. 28. (U.P.) — "The Miracle of Grogan's Mill," that's what they're calling "Bubba" Long's good fortune today.

Bubba is a little crippled boy whose real name is Charles Edwin Long. He wished for a bushel of mail, and got several truck loads — after a radio entertainer told his story on a nationwide hookup.

Bubba's 14 years have been tortured by rheumatic fever, and about half of his life has been spent in bedfast misery.

Grogan's mill is the name of the sawmill where Bubba's father is a hand and where the six Longs—Mr. and Mrs. Joe Long and Bubba an his brothers and sisters—live in a little house that's part stucco and part weatherbeaten pine.

Many Letters Unopened

It's a little place, and it's fantastically overcrowded by letters from warm-hearted well-wishers. Only about a third of the letters have been opened, but a golden flood of currency and coin has poured out.

The biggest gift was $5. There were "several" of them, and lots of $1 bills and half-dollars and quarters and dimes. No one knows what's in the estimated 65,000 letters unopened or how much money has come from those already opened. There has been no time to count it.

Bubba's story began last Monday when Jack Berch, the radio whistling man who aims his program at the shut-ins, read a letter from Bubba Long. He wanted some new friends and hoped for "a bushel of mail."

Postmaster Gary Williams' life hasn't been the same since. Let him tell about how the letters come—from everywhere:

"Well, sir, it's been going on since last Monday, a week ago. It's a fair estimate that he's got 100,000 pieces of mail now. The rural carrier can't handle that kind of mail. So we send it out in trucks.

Peak To Come

"Every train that comes in has more sacks for Bubba Long. I'd say it hasn't reached a peak yet. One day, we handled 30,000 pieces of mail for Bubba."

Take a look at the Long house. There are letters knee-deep, literally, in the living room. Letters are stacked waist high in corners of the kitchen. There are letters under the sofa and under the beds; letters everywhere.

The Longs appear overwhelmed, stunned into silence.

Make a suggestion—build new rooms on the house? Set up Bubba an educational insurance fund? "Maybe so," they answer, or "we just don't know," or, "what would you do?"

Bubba's big, dark eyes flash happily. He sits and rubs his enlarged knuckles, the work of rheumatic fever.

"My fingers sure do get tired, opening those letters," he says.

Tide Water Oil Firm Abandons Plan To Buy Doheny Interests

NEW YORK, Dec. 28. (AP)—Tide Water Associated Oil Co. abandoned today its plan to buy the Doheny oil interests in California.

Tide Water dropped the proposal after failing four times in nine days to get a stockholders' vote on the plan, which would have involved the expenditure of $43,000,000.

At none of the series of four stockholders' meetings, which began Dec. 19, was at least 50 per cent of the outstanding common stock, required for a quorum, represented. The last meeting was held today.

Tide Water attempted to get its stockholders to agree to the purchase of California oil field holdings owned by Mrs. Carrie Estelle Doheny. Mrs. Doheny had indicated that negotiations for the sale would be off if they were not concluded before the end of the year.

William Humphrey, president of Tide Water, estimated today that the company's earnings would be equal to $6.25 a common share and would total between $39,000,000 and $40,000,000. In 1947 Tide Water reported net income of $30,175,955, equal to $4.57 a share.

Texas Crop Production Is Above Average

Harvest Under Record Of 1947

AUSTIN, Dec. 28. (AP) — The Texas crop production was slightly better than average this year but did not compare with the bountiful 1947 harvest, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reported today.

Below average yields for most crops were offset by above average acreage, the government reporting agency said in its annual crop summary.

New Records Set

The pecan crop was one of the largest on record.

Rice and flour had poor yields but nevertheless set new production records on expanded acreages.

Production of small grains and deciduous fruits was cut by the mid-March freeze and the winter and spring drouth.

Corn and cotton were the only major crops which showed above average yields per acre.

Texas farmers harvested crops on 27.9 million acres. This was three per cent less than the 1947 acreage but two per cent above the 1937-46 average.

"The 1948 crop season was characterized by a general moisture deficiency in which practically the entire state received below normal rainfall; a severe freeze on March 11; extremely high day temperatures during July and August; and an open fall which was ideal for harvesting of crops," the USDA report said.

Harvest Report Made

The 1948 Texas production picture, crop by crop:

Corn — 44,698,000 bushels, the smallest harvest since 1934.

Flax — 1,320,000 bushels, the highest crop on record.

Wheat — 56,290,000 bushels, 23 per cent above average but less than the record crop of 124,000,000 bushels in 1947.

Oats — Estimated at 14,240,000 bushels, less than half of the 1947 crop and only about 40 per cent of average.

Rice—23,040,000 bushels, compared with 21,330,000 bushels last year.

Sorghums—76,434,000 bushels of sorghum grain and 2,750,000 of sorghum forage, substantially above 1947 totals.

Cotton — 3,200,000 bales, compared with 3,437,000 bales in 1947 and an average of 2,894,000.

Peanuts—Estimated at 276,375,000 pounds, 22 per cent below 1947 but still above average.

Pecans — Estimated 43,000,000 pounds, more than double the 1947 crop and 60 per cent above average.

The 1948-49 grapefruit crop was forecast at 19,000,000 boxes and oranges at 4,700,000 boxes, comparing with 23,200,000 and 5,200,000 boxes, respectively, for the 1947-48 crop.

$570,286 PROGRAM UNDERWAY

More Than 21 Miles Of Paving Slated For Completion In City

With work started on the most ambitious paving program in the city's history, Lubbock can look forward to completion of 21½ miles of new paving at a total cost of $570,286 by the end of next summer.

That estimate was contained in a report prepared Tuesday by R. L. Oldham, acting city engineer, who also explained procedure by which property owners may petition additional paving to be included in the program.

Although advent of winter weather has delayed hard surfacing until about May 1, work is proceeding rapidly on excavating, laying of curb and gutter and application of caliche base to streets on the current program, Oldham explained.

Of the 21½ miles included on the current work list, the city is constructing with its own forces 68 blocks at an estimated cost of $194,525. Another 91½ blocks is being built under contract with a paving contractor, L. A. Purtell, at a cost of $210,411.

Petitions Received

Petitions have been received for a third portion of the project, totaling 66½ blocks, estimated to cost $165,350. Work on this portion will be under way shortly, the engineer indicated.

Oldham explained the method by which property owners who are not on the current program who wish to be included in the program may do so.

Property owners whose property abuts on the street or streets affected should circulate a petition, obtaining signatures of the greatest possible number of property owners concerned.

The petition, addressed to the mayor and city commissioners, should set out the request for curb and gutter and paving, and should contain a statement that the owners understand the approximate cost of such paving. (The cost at present is approximately $2.75 per linear foot for a 30-foot street, $3.25 per linear foot for a 36-foot street. Estimated costs for streets of other width are available at the engineer's office.)

Sample Petitions Available

After a petition containing a sufficient number of signatures is received, the prospective paving is added to the project for construction at the earliest possible time.

Oldham said sample petitions are available at the engineer's office in city hall, or that help would be given property owners in drawing up a special petition.

He indicated that petitions for additional paving received within the next four weeks stand a good chance of receiving particularly prompt attention, since there probably would be time to include them in the current program for completion by the end of the summer.

Greatest acceleration of the program will occur after May 1 when weather will permit application of the quadruple asphaltic surface treatment specified on city streets. The treatment cannot be applied with best success in winter months.

Former Anson Bank Official Is Claimed

Airline Seeks To Drop Two Cities

By TEX EASLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. — The Civil Aeronautics board said tonight it has received a request from American Airlines for a "temporary suspension' of its service to Abilene and Big Spring.

The air carrier contended, CAB oficials said, the public would be "substantially benefitted" if American is permitted to concentrate on "long haul" operations and let some of its present business go to smaller airlines.

It specifically mentioned Pioneer airlines, which now services the two West Texas cities.

This feeder line would be able to improve its service to Abilene and Big Spring if American drops them from its schedules, the application asserted.

The "temporary suspension" was requested because Pioneer is currently operating on a temporary permit. If the latter company gets a permanent certificate, then American would want Abilene and Big Spring dropped permanently from its list of schedule stops.

American said one other main reason for its requested discontinuance of service to Abilene and Big Spring is the fact that, since starting service to them, it has been authorized to make regular stops at Midland-Odessa.

Early Action Asked

The latter point is a particularly suitable stop on its flights between Fort Worth-Dallas and El Paso, American said.

Ordinarily several weeks are required before the Civil Aeronautics board acts on such applications, an official of the agency said.

Complete data on the airport facilities and traffic conditions and public demands are first obtained from various federal agencies, as well as from the carriers involved.

American asked that action be taken as soon as possible, and said it would like to have a decision within the next three weeks.

The CAB does not normally conduct hearings on applications for discontinuance of service, but might order one if such a request came from civic groups and others in the areas affected.

The CAB, questioned by a reporter about the recent crash of a private plane near Houston, said no report of findings has yet been filed by its investigators in Texas.

Contest Winner Now Facing Big Problem

Her surprise and joy at winning $5,000 worth of merchandise on a radio give-away program still had Mrs. Grace Hurd "up in the air" Tuesday afternoon, but she had already come face to face with a big problem.

She related her joy thus: "I feel like I have butterflies in my throat. It's more than I have ever had before and I'm so happy I have cried."

And her problem: "Where in the world am I going to put it?"

Mrs. Hurd, who was weekly winner of Bert Parks' ABC-KFYO "Heart of Gold" contest on the Second Honeymoon program Monday afternoon, is living in a small garage room at the rear of 1611 Ave. O. Her mother, Mrs. Anna Hurd, although in bad health, is forced to live at another address.

So Mrs. Hurd's initial thrill at winning a virtual houseful of furnishings was giving way to desperation with the realization that the merchandise will start arriving in less than a week's time.

What she wants now is a three- or four-room unfurnished house or apartment at a price she can afford to pay—not more than $40 a month.

If she gets it, she will not only have a place for her winnings, but she will be reunited with her mother for the first time since three years ago when their household furnishings were lost in a fire.

So she was asking anyone who has a house or apartment, or knows of one, to call her at home 2-4246, until 2 p. m. when she goes to work, or at the American Restaurant, 2-2683, after that time.

Tito Halts All Food Exports To Eastern Europe, Looks To West

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Dec. 28. (U.P.)—Yugoslavia cut off all food exports to eastern Europe today and prepared to begin trading her rich stores of copper, zinc, iron ore and timber to the west in return for industrial machinery.

The trade break with Russia and Soviet satellite countries was announced in a major policy speech before the Yugoslav parliament yesterday by Marshal Tito.

Claims Pacts Broken

Tito said Yugoslavia no longer will export any "meat, wheat, oils and other items" to eastern Europe because those nations have violated trade agreements with Yugoslavia as a result of the Cominform's excommunication of the Tito government.

Concrete economic pressure (from Eastern Europe) is increasing, Tito told parliament in presenting the 1949 budget of 161,000,000,000 dinars ($3,750,000,000).

"If our allies in the countries of the peoples democracies do not want to help us, if they violate agreements and various obligations they have with us, then of course we must sell our raw materials elsewhere to capitalist countries in order to buy the machines needed for mechanization of our mines and heavy industry."

Defends Trade Stand

Tito emphasized that "trade is not a matter of influence but merely an exchange of goods" and that "Yugoslavia would not fall under the sway of the west because it traded with "western reactionaries."

Tito also emphasized that the break with Russia began two years ago when Yugolsavia inaugarted the five-year plan to industrialize the country.

"Our basic trouble is that we want to bring socialism and industrialize our country as rapidly as possible, and not remain a backward rural country which only sends out raw materials," he said.

"Our country need not remain only as a source of raw materials for industrial states, and buy manufactured goods from them at high prices.

"That is the way it was in the past. At the beginning of the five-year plan there were statements from responsible people in the east to the effect that we were to remain only as suppliers of raw materials.

"These Marxist wiseacres tried to enforce their distorted views with quotes from Marx and Lenin."

USDA Reports Record Seeding Of Wheat By Texas Farmers

AUSTIN, Dec. 28. (AP)—Winter wheat seeding in Texas for the 1949 harvest is estimated to cover 7,630,000 acres, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reported today.

This acreage, if realized, would be the largest of record for Texas. A record of 7,587,000 acres was seeded for harvest in 1947.

NOT SURPRISING

An Expected Report

IDENTITIES of the members explain, in large degree, the report of the President's Council of Economic Advisers Sunday that there is "no hope" of substantial reduction in government spending for many years.

Members of the council were hand picked by Mr. Truman. All doubtless are able and sincere men. But it stands to reason that Mr. Truman would not have chosen men who might issue a report criticizing or condemning his own insistence that larger, and ever larger, spending is inescapable. He chose the kind of men who could be relied upon to make, possibly with sincerity, the kind of report which was announced Sunday.

But, in the last analysis, their report merely stated their collective opinion concerning governmental financial policies and prospects. They symbolize the very heart of a political philosophy which operates under the formula, "Tax and tax, spend and spend, elect and elect."

The report amounts to nothing more than a documentary argument in an official cloak for increased taxes. The views are due no more consideration than the equally expert opinion in many quarters that governmental costs could be reduced substantially by curbing the wild extravagances which have become synonymous of the New Deal.

With full allowance for all other motives, the timing of the release of the report obviously was intended as a further build-up for the increased taxation Mr. Truman is sure to propose.

The report will be entitled to nothing more than Congressional consideration as a biased argument for the administration's high tax and spending program. If Congress should accept the council's philosophy of the hopelessness of reductions for many years, it can expect in 1950 a repetition of the congressional election upheavals of 1946 and 1948. The law makers have those elections as proof of a state of mind which is likely to keep on making changes until the American people get a congress able and capable of rendering satisfactory service to the fellow who has to dig up the dough Washington spends with such lavish hands.

A Wise Decision

THE STUDENT council at Rice Institute, Houston, took commendable action in rejecting an "invitation" to sponsor an entry in the approaching Galveston bathing beauty contest.

The invitation said the competition would require the absence of the contender for about five days and necessitate the purchase of "a lovely gown, costing $300 to $400." The student council sensibly decided such an absence from classes would be too long and the gown would cost too darn much.

Most bathing beauty contests, including the Miss America event in Atlantic City, N. J., are rackets rather than competitions. Most of the profits go to the promoters. A public rebuff for such people, as administered by the Rice student group, is refreshing.

It would seem that with reference to a good neighbor policy, Uncle Sam always has to pay the premiums.

A period of prosperity is one in which our so-called economic experts go around saying that there will never be another depression.

Waltz Into Darkness

NOTHING more, then, for five days. No more visits to the post office. No more letters sent, no more letters received. Whatever had been said was said, and only the inside of a fireplace knew what that had been.

For five days after that she did not even go out, she took no more walks. She loitered about the rooms, noncommunicative, self-assured. As if waiting for something. As if waiting for an appointed length of time to pass. Five days to pass.

Then on the fifth day, suddenly, without a word, the door of her room opened after long closure and he beheld her coming down the stairs arrayed for excursion. She was carefully dressed, far more carefully, far more exquisitely, than he had seen her for a long time past. She had taken a hot curling iron to her hair; ripples of artifice indented it. Her lips were frankly red, not merely covertly so. Her floral essence was strong to the point of headiness.

She was going out. She made that plain, over and above his own powers of observation. As if she wanted no mistake about it, no hindrance. "I'm going out," she said "I'll be back soon."

He did not ask her where.

That was about three in the afternoon.

At five she was not back yet. At six. At seven.

It was dark, and he lit the lamps, and they burned their way toward eight. She wasn't back yet.

• • •

ON toward nine there was a sound at the door. Not so much an opening of it, as a fumbling incompletion of the matter of opening it.

He went out into the hall at last to see. To see why she did not finish coming in, for he knew already it was she.

She was half in, half out, and stopping there, her back sideward against the frame. Apparently resting.

"Are you ill, Bonny?" he asked gravely, advancing toward her.

She laughed. A surreptitious, chuckling little sound, exchanged between herself and some alter ego, that excluded him.

"I knew you were going to ask me that."

He had come close to her now. The floral essence had changed, as if from long exposure; fermented; there was an alcohol base to it now.

"No, I'm not ill," she said defiantly.

"Come away from the door. Shall I help you?"

She brushed his offered arm away from her, advanced past him without it. There was a stiffness to her gait.

"I'm not drunk, either," she said suddenly.

He closed the door, first looking out. There was no one out there. "I didn't say you were."

"No, but that's what you're thinking."

He didn't answer. She went on into the sitting room.

When he entered it in turn, she was seated in the overstuffed chair, her head back a little, resting.

He stood and watched her for a moment.

"You're late," he said at last. "I know I'm late. You don't have to tell me that. Why don't you ask me where I've been?"

"Would you tell me?" he retorted.

"Would you believe me?" she flung back at him.

She took off her hat. Regarded it intently, and unfavorably.

Then unexpectedly, she cast it from her, so that it fell to the floor a considerable distance across the room from her.

He made no move to get it. It was her hat, after all. He merely looked after it, to where it had fallen. "I thought you liked it. I thought it was your fondest rage."

"Hoch," she said with throaty disgust. "In New York they're wearing bigger ones this season. These little things are out."

• • •

WHO told you that? he said to her in bitter silence. Who told you that you're wasting yourself, buried down here, away from the big towns you used to know? He could hear the very words, almost as though he had been there when they were spoken.

He could see the shabby, secretive hotel room, hidden away in one of the byways down around the railroad station; the shade drawn against discovery from the street; the clandestine rendezvous, unwittingly prolonged beyond the bounds of prudence in forgetfulness lent by liquor. She and the man, whoever he was—

The flame of an old love rekindled, with alcohol for fuel; the renewal of old ties, the whispers and the sniggered laughter, the reminiscences shared together — He could see it all, he was all but there, looking over their shoulders.

There must have been a letter North, and though he'd never seen it, he could guess what rancorous summons it contained: "Come get me; I can stand no more of this; take me out of it." And then, five days ago, the answer; the mysterious letter to "Mabel Greene."

She needn't go to the post office any more, stealthily to appropriate them. There would be no more sent. The sender was here with her now, right in the same town.

Yes, he thought with saddened understanding, I too would travel from a distance of five days away to be with a woman like Bonny. What man wouldn't? If the new love cannot provide for her, she has but to call back the old.

Looking At Life -- By Erich Brandeis

BELIEVE it or not, I have just found out the most important thing in the world.

It isn't Russia. It isn't Palestine. It isn't anything you will ever see on the front page of your newspaper.

BRANDIES

The most important thing in the world to me this morning is my stomach!

And, by the same token, the most important thing in the world to you tomorrow may be your stomach.

I had intended to write something very lofty today.

I wanted to inspire you, encourage you, point out to you all the good things in this life, all those good things that way overshadow the bad ones.

But, instead, I think the world is awful. I think all people are mean. I think the sooner the human race is wiped off the face of this earth, the better.

All on account of some shrimps au gratin with rice.

• • •

It was a delicious dish, and my wife worked hours over those shrimps and the rest of the mess—pardon, the rest of the delicious dish.

Almost all day the house smelled of boiled shrimps—and you know what the smell of boiled shrimps can do to the aroma of a house.

But I love shrimps, and to me that smell was anticipatory delight.

As a mater of fact, I caught myself drooling several times during the day, as that smell wafted into my nostrils.

• • •

I ATE a heaped-up plateful of this shrimp-au-gratin business for which the Waldorf-Astoria or the Stork Club would have charged at least four or five dollars.

I had a second helping.

Nothing happened for a while, except a few b - - ps.

I read my papers, looked at my television, listened to the radio and went to bed.

Usually I am asleep in sixty seconds after I hit the hay.

But not last night.

Cramps. Twitchings. Jerkings.

Apparently my wife had mixed Republican and Democratic shrimps in that dish and they were now carrying on an election campaign in my stomach.

At about five this morning I fell asleep. It is eleven now and there is lots of important news in the papers on my desk.

But nothing in the whole world is as important to me today as my still grumbling stomach.

ORDERS FROM MOSCOW

Reds Trained Chinese

By RAY TUCKER
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Now that Communist forces seem able to overthrow the Chiang Kai-Shek government and seize control of the major portion of China and its 400,000,000 population, high authorities at the State department and on Capitol Hill admit that the revolutionary chieftains are Stalin stooges, and not simply the leaders of a peasant movement for redistribution of land and elimination of crushing taxes.

Even Secretary of State Marshall, who once urged that the Generalissimo form a coalition government in which the Communists would share, now concedes that he was mistaken.

TUCKER

His own diplomatic aides have disillusioned him on that score. So have ex-Senator DJ Worth Clark of Idaho and William C. Bullitt, who visited China as special emissaries of the Senate committees which handle foreign relations and appropriations for overseas assistance.

When Chiang Kai-Shek falls, according to these reports, China will become a Soviet vassal state, and disappear behind the "iron curtain" as completely as Poland, Czechoslovakia and other satellite nations have vanished.

• • •

TRAINED: Eighteen of the thirty-one acknowledged political and military leaders of the Communist movement in China were trained in guerrilla warfare, propaganda and statesmanship in the Red schools of Russia.

They spent from two to five years as Stalin students of world revolution, and his professors impressed upon them that the Soviet dictator regards China and Asia and the islands of the Southern Pacific as the forthcoming seat of world communism.

Here are the names of the Moscow propaganda and military institutions which the new leaders of China attended from 1919 to 1930, with Stalin's top men as their teachers:

The Chungshan University, the Far Eastern University, the Lenin Institute, the Red Army Military Academy, the Eastern Laborer's University, the Lenin Academy, the Frunze Academy, and the School for Eastern Studies.

Every leader of the Communist movement in China is a graduate of these Communist institutions. They are pupils of Stalin.

• • •

BOSSES: Like many of the Communist leaders in our own country, the leaders and spokesmen of the Communist movement in China are well educated, perhaps overeducated. Contrary to Secretary Marshall's former belief, not a one ever handled a shovel or a plough.

Most of the Communist chieftains in China come from wealthy parents. In State department and Capitol Hill files, they are listed as teachers, doctors, architects, lawyers, engineers, economists, and plain politicians. Although they remain in the background as of today, they are the kind of bosses who run the Communist party in China.

• • •

SINCERE: Not a single Chinese Communist leader has a peasant or agrarian background. They are merely using the starving and anti-Kai-Shek farmers, promising them more land, lower taxes and a termination of the warfare which has swept the sprawling continent since 1911.

These Communist leaders, however, seem sincere in their desire for betterment of Chinese conditions. It is Secretary Marshall's belief, also President Truman's, that they will break away from Stalin's grip as soon as they have gained control of China.

• • •

DOSSIER: Here is State department's dossier on the top and the smartest Communist in China, a name which will blaze in the headlines in the next few months—Mao Tse-tung:

"Chairman, Central Executive Committee, Chinese Communist Party; chairman, political bureau; secretary general of the Secretariat; chairman, Central Revolutionary Military Council; director, Research Bureau; president, party school in Yenan.

"Born 1893: Primary education: studied under several teachers while working and traveling through the countryside. Attended the Hunan Normal school. Led a group of students to Peiping to prepare them for study in French universities in 1919 (prep training for Commie leadership, propaganda and activity on their return to China. — Ed Note.)

"As a member of the Central Executive committee of both the Chinese Communist party and the Kuomintang, he was assigned the task of coordinating the activities of the two.

"After 1926, he worked in the peasant movement of the Communist party and founded the All Peasants Union. After the Nanchang uprising, he became the political commissar of the Fourth Red Army under Chu Teh."

• • •

PEASANTS: Showing his astuteness, Mao Tse-tung quickly broke with a Chinese named Li Li-san, who had been Stalin's favorite in China. But Mao won out at Moscow, and is now the Kremlin's big man in China—an outright Communist.

Li Li-san argued with Stalin that China could be sovietized through organization of factory workers in the cities. Mao said "no." Pointing out that there are few industrial employees in China and Asia, Mao urged Stalin to concentrate on the poor peasants. And it is their belief in Mao-Stalin promises which has fired the anti-Chiang Kai-Shek revolution.

NEW REGIME TAKING OVER

'Progress' Seen In Arkansas

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON. — Things move by fits and starts in this world. Now forward a little, now backward, and vice versa. A backward step here is often offset by a forward step there.

Typical of the forward step is what is going on in the state of Arkansas in the deep South. It was brought to national attention recently by the visit here of the young newly elected governor, Sidney S. McMath, and a group of his young associates, many of them war veterans like himself, who helped him to his election and will occupy key posts in his young men's administration which begins with his inauguration, January 11.

STOKES

Also Controlled Legislature

The governor-elect, who had a distinguished war record with the Marines and in gruelling Pacific campaign from island to island, has likewise proved his mettle on the political battlefield. He attracted wide notice with a clean-up of rackets as mayor of Hot Springs, a resort city, and he and his vigorous young lieutenants broke up a poll-tax racket to defeat the machine and win his election as governor. It was the old device familiar in southern politics where bosses buy up poll-tax receipts by the thousands and vote lists of names en bloc. This vote is often the balance of power.

The victory was along a wide front, our group enlisted young men of like mind all over the state to run for the legislature. As a result, the new governor will have a legislature sympathetic with his program. Their success shows what a political group can accomplish if it has ideas, ideals, and energy and gets right down to the precinct level with an organization to do a job.

• • •

It was heartening to sit around with the young men and listen to them talk about their aims—new schools, new roads, expansion of public-power projects to utilize the power potential of the state's many rivers, the greatest power potential of any state in the union.

An objective in the political field is elimination of the poll tax as a pre-requisite to voting. Arkansas is one of seven southern states that still has this restriction. It is imbedded in the state constitution. The new governor will ask the legislature to start the protracted process of repeal by passage of a resolution to submit the issue to the voters.

While his opponents exploited the racial issue in their campaign against him, he refused to use it, saying flatly that the negro was not an issue in the campaign. That is not an easy position to take in the South.

The Arkansas advenure offers a hopeful offset to what is going on in other southern states. In Georgia Governor Herman Talmadge is taking a backward step. He is seeking to deprive the negroes of suffrage through an educational test device that can be distorted, as it has been in Alabama and other southern states, to stop negroes from voting. In South Carolina a move is under way to upset court decisions upholding the right of negroes to vote in the Democratic primary.

• • •

HST Talked With Group

Among other reasons, the new Arkansas governor and his young men came here, frankly, to find out what federal funds are available to their state for various purposes, such as schools and roads and public health. One of them remarked, with a grin, that they had discovered the state was entitled to three or four millions more than they knew. They deployed all over the city in their mission.

There was a little political missionary work done while they were here, too, designed both for their interest and for that of President Truman and the Democratic party nationally. The President received the governor-elect at the White House and he also dropped in at a reception of the Arkansas society in honor of Mr. McMath and his associates.

• • •

Arkansas gave the President the largest vote proportionately of any southern state. It is the President's desire to encourage progressive Democratic forces in the South, and Arkansas is a good symbol now with its incoming administration. The President hopes to see the Democratic party in the South become, in time, a real Progressive party that can root out such influences as those represented by the States' Righters. He owes the States' Righters nothing. He defied them, and they were shaken loose by his victory. His interests lie elsewhere, and so do those of the Democratic party nationally.

The British government sees its recovery program threatened as long queues of frowning men and women waste valuable working hours waiting outside stores where there is a faint chance of buying cigarettes, and employers say efficiency is falling off from tormented workers craving a smoke.

Louisiana Offers Tideland Oil Rights Despite Federal Claims

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 28. (AP)—The Louisiana State Mineral board today decided to continue offering tidelands mineral rights for lease, although the United States had asked the Supreme court to declare that it has jurisdiction and that the state is a trespasser in the area.

The board was warned also that the state may face a federal claim not only for any future revenues it obtains from the oil properties off the Gulf of Mexico coast, but for any it has received since June 23, 1947. That was the date on which the Supreme court ruled for the United States in a similar suit against California.

This warning came from Assistant Attorney General John Madden, who said the suit which United States Attorney General Clark has asked the Supreme court to accept calls for an accounting of all funds received by the state from the tidelands since the California decision date.

Estimate Indefinite

Mineral board officials estimated the amount already received at $15,000,000 more or less, depending on what definition of tidelands ultimately may be adopted.

The board, meeting here today, unanimously expressed itself in favor of continuing leasing in the tidelands unless and until it is definitely forbidden to do so by court order. It authorized drafting of a resolution stating its position by Madden in collaboration with board members A. O. King of Lake Charles, R. B. Prentice of Houma and Winston L. Stokes of Bunkie.

The court is expected to consider Attorney General Clark's motion for permission to file the suit at its Jan. 3 session. The next leasing of Louisiana tidelands is set for Jan. 26. Madden said the Supreme court's usual procedure was not to grant an injunction—which case would stop state leasing and perhaps interrupt oil operations in the Louisiana tidelands—until a case had been heard on its merits.

Decision Important

Madden advised the board also that some purchasers of oil produced from tideland wells might hesitate to continue buying unless the money was set aside pending a decision on ownership of the property.

C. J. Bonnecarrere, board secretary, said about 125,000 barrels of oil had been produced from wells clearly in the tidelands, but had been stored and was not yet sold.

He said the board had "had some feelers" from oil companies about continuing to obtain leases from the state, but that the companies were awaiting the board's reaction to the federal suit.

Both he and Madden emphasized the difficulty of determining where the tidelands begin and what would be considered "inland waters" on Louisiana's bay and bayou-indented coastline. Madden suggested that the state "claim everything that looks like inland waters."

Leases Approved

The board earlier approved mineral leases by subdivisions of the state, including:

City of New Orleans to Johnson and Gill, 708 acres of undeveloped land attached to the Moisant airport, for a bonus of 15.76 an acre, usual royalty and overriding royalty of 1/16 up to approximately $70,000, with the obligation to drill a well within six months about 6,000 feet from the airport.

Acadia Parish School board to Humble Oil co., 480 acres on the flank of the Tepetate field, for $25 an acre bonus, $6 an acre rental and usual royalty, also school board property in the Egan townsite to Sun Oil co. for $150 bonus, and other Egan property owned by the police jury for $2660 bonus and 1/6 royalty.

Solon Proposes To Discourage Cotton Overplanting In 1949

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. (AP)—Legislation which he hopes will discourage cotton farmers from overplanting in 1949 will be sponsored early next year by Rep. Gathings (D-Ark), he said today.

Gathings, a member of the House Agriculture committee, said he will present a resolution which, if adopted, would result in 1949 being ignored in fixing base acreage allotments in a new cotton program.

Gathings said the new Congress likely will write a cotton program restoring planting restrictions which were tossed overboard during the war. Prior to the war each farmer was given a stated acreage allotment, based on plantings during a previous five-year period. The new program, likewise probably will base the acreage allotments on some five-year period, he said, but one of those years should not be 1949.

"If the farmers know 1949 isn't to be included," he said, "they will go ahead and plant corn, soybeans and other crops which they need. And we will avoid the danger of a 20,000,000-bale cotton crop."

Earl Stilley, Geologist And Oil Producer, Is Claimed

WICHITA FALLS, Dec. 28. (UP)—Geologist and oil producer Earl Stilley, 48, died in a hospital here yesterday where he had gone for treatment of a heart ailment.

Stilley, a native of Benton, Ill., and a graduate of the University of Oklahoma, participated in the discovery of many shallow oil pools on the Waggoner ranch in Wilbarger county, as well as in Young, Wichita and Archer counties.

Before moving to Wichita Falls, he worked for the Empire Oil & Gas Co. in Oklahoma.

TSTA Official Sees Serious Shortage Of Teachers In Texas

AUSTIN, Dec. 28. (UP)—A "bare minimum" of 51,772 new teachers will be needed in Texas classrooms in the next 10 years to cope with a "tremendous shortage," the Texas State Teachers association said today.

Miss Maurine Walker of Waco, first vice-president of the TSTA, said that figure is 5,000 more than the total number of teachers in Texas now.

Of the total, she said, Texas will need almost 16,000 teachers to meet the increased enrollment due to the advanced birth rate during the war years.

Navy Plans Use Of Lie Detector

GUAM, Dec. 28. (INS)—The Navy completed plans today to fly a lie detection expert and his complicated apparatus to Guam in a last effort to solve the Dec. 11 rape-slaying of Ruth Farnsworth.

(In Brkeley, Cal., the Navy announced that A. E. Riedel and the lie detector would be flown to Guam in a Mars flying boat scheduled to leave San Francisco bay tonight at 7 p. m.)

Machine Borrowed

The machine, borrowed from the Berkeley, Cal., police department, will be used to question 15 to 20 suspects held in connection with the slaying of the 27-year-old San Francisco girl.

Miss Farnsworth, a Navy civil service employe on the island died 48 hours after she was found unconscious and savagely beaten in jungle underbrush near the curio shop where she had worked nights.

Guam authorities admitted that the use of the lie detector will be a last resort in their invesigaion of the mystery and that they have little evidence to link the suspects with the crime.

Riedel has warned Guam police that the machine—it measures changing blood pressure—is not effective on natives because they seem "able to cover up their lying" and their blood pressure doesn't seem to change when they should be nervous.

LAWYER MAKES 5-CENT POINT

DES MOINES, Ia. (UP) — Earl Ryan, an attorney, told the judge he should not be fined $1 on a parking ticket. Actually, he should get a five cent refund because a parking meter failed to register, he pleaded. Ryan was fined 95 cents.

Sen. McKellar Admits Punching Publisher

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. (UP) — Eighty-year-old Sen. Kenneth McKellar, (D-Tenn) confirmed today that he landed a blow on the head of Silliman Evans, publisher of the Nashville Tennesseean.

McKellar told a reporter the incident—the second recent encounter for the senator — occurred about two weeks ago when Evans walked up to him in a sixth floor corridor of the Mayflower hotel.

Evans, McKellar said, grabbed his hand with assurances that although he had battled him politically for years, there was no personal enmity involved. McKellar said it was his first meeting with Evans, and that he did not recognize him.

Sent Publisher Sprawling

The senator said he sent Evans sprawling against an elevator door with a straight right hand punch above the publisher's cheek bone.

McKellar said he struck the only blow and that Evans and two companions withdrew calling "Oh senator, oh my, oh senator."

Questioned about a reported fracas with a newspaper reporter, McKellar admitted he "landed two or three kicks and maybe a punch or two" on Jack Anderson, a reporter for columnist Drew Pearson.

The senator said Anderson refused to leave his office until McKellar answered a question about his age.

"I kicked him out," McKellar said.

He read a letter from Anderson expressing regrets at the incident and assuring McKellar that no suit would be brought if apologies were forthcoming.

McKellar also read his reply to Anderson in which he praised the newsman for a "manly" gesture and expressed hope that the reporter never again would encounter a similar incident "or anything like it."

Last Rites Are Scheduled Today For Mrs. H. N. White

Mrs. H. N. White, 41, of 2312 Sanders, died about 5 p. m. Tuesday in St. Mary's hospital after a short illness. She had resided in Lubbock since 1941.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. today in Rix Funeral home chapel.

Survivors include the husband, a daughter, Miss Reba Nell White of Lubbock; a son, Hobart W. White of Lubbock; two sisters, Mrs. J. F. Huffmon and Mrs. G. N. Miller, both of Leakey, Tex.; and two brothers, George B. Large and Gus A. Large, also both of Leakey.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon in Rix Funeral home chapel, with Dr. M. Norvel Young, minister of Broadway Church of Christ, officiating.

The body will then be taken overland by Rix to Cherokee for burial under direction of a Llano funeral home.

Both white and black pepper are made from the dried berry of a climbing plant found in tropical regions.

Move Launched To Repeal Oklahoma 'Bone Dry' Law

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Dec. 28. (INS)—A campaign to repeal Oklahoma's "bone dry" liquor law gets underway Wednesday in Oklahoma and Tulsa counties.

Leo T. Gibson, of Bristow, executive secretary of the Oklahoma Economic institute, said in Oklahoma City today that initiative petitions will be circulated first in these two counties and then over the entire state.

The institute aims at 200,000 signatures by Feb. 1. Under the law a total of 108,240 signatures, representing 15 per cent of the total vote for President on Nov. 2, is required for a sufficient petition.

A constitutional amendment repealing the prohibition amendment and leaving the method of control to the legislature is proposed. It contains prohibitions against sale of intoxicating liquors to minors, sales on Sundays and prohibits the open saloon.

BUSINESS NOT GOOD

SALEM, Ore. (UP)—The Mt. Hood Railroad, which operated from Hood River, Ore., to Parkdale, Ore., was permitted by the state public utilities commission to abandon its passenger service after pleading its passenger revenue in 1945 was $2.60; 1946, $2.35; 35 cents in 1947, and 20 cents in 1948.

STOCKS TURN DOWNWARD

NEW YORK, Dec. 28. (AP)—The stock market took a surprise turn downward today in the broadest trading in the history of the exchange.

Prices declined a few cents to an extreme of around $3 a share. A half-hearted rally in the business reduced the worst losses in many cases but the average decline was the sharpest of the month.

Volume of 1,650,000 shares was a high since Nov. 10. Low-priced stocks accounted for much of the day's turnover.

A total of 1,189 issues changed hands, a new record. Previous high of 1,174 issues was hit Nov. 5 in the post-election break.

Brokers said that sales to establish tax losses were unexpectedly large and that some speculative selling also showed up. Demand was curbed, it was added, by the approaching policy address of the President to Congress and a recent spattering of unfavorable business news items.

Cotton

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Dec. 28 (AP) — Cotton futures turned easy today in later dealings on profit taking. New crop months were lower in anticipation of a decline in the mid-December cotton parity compared with the November figure. The market also lacked the aggressive covering against export sales which was evident in Monday's trading. Mill buying and short covering extended early gains by as much as 50 cents a bale before the market reversed its uptrend.

Cotton closed barely steady.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Dec. 28 (AP) — Purchase of part of her first quarter of flour allocation by Italy rallied wheat prices from the day's low. The Italian government took 900,0000 hundredweight of flour today.

Prospect of heavy snow fall over the winter wheat section had weakened new crop deliveries partway through today's board of trade session. The May delivery, however, had shown some strength on commercial buying.

Corn was fairly steady during the greater part of the session. Country bookings were placed at only 45,000 bushels. The Commodity Credit corporation advanced its purchase 1 cent at Atlantic seaboard.

There was considerable selling on soybeans. Oats, however resisted selling on other futures.

At the close wheat was ¾ higher to ¾ lower than yesterday's close, May $2.39¾-⅞. Corn was ⅛ lower to ⅛ higher, May $1.49⅛-¼. Oats were ⅛ higher to ⅛ lower, May 78⅞. Rye was ⅛ higher, May $1.72⅛. Soybeans were 2¼ to 2¾ lower, March Hundredweight lower, January $16.90.

FORT WORTH REPORT

FORT WORTH, Dec. 28 (AP) — Wheat No. 1 hard 2.44½-49½.
Oats No. 2 white 1.00-02.
Corn No. 2 white 1.76¼-80¼.
Sorghums No. 2 yellow milo per 100 lbs. 2.70-75.

Plans have been made for producing 10,500 railroad freight cars in the Bizonal Area of Germany in 1949.

FOURTH OFFICIAL QUITS

DALLAS, Dec. 28. (AP)—Bette G. Mikel, Mesquite city secretary, resigned today, bringing to four the number of officials of that town who had stepped out of office. W. Burton, of Hevingham, England, has caught 35 foxes near his home in four years.

The Education Department of West Bengal, India, has raised the pay of teachers and ordered that each be paid a uniform "dearness allowance."

Quick pastures are small grains, sweetclovers, sudan grass, and stubble fields, and give high yields of fresh green grazing for a few weeks in late fall, early spring and mid-summer when the sod pastures are low.
