Victory Stock Piles

As local scrap drives gather momentum, towering stacks of scrap will appear at vacant lots, in city squares, and at rural crossroads in various communities in the United States. Don't be fooled by these victory stockpiles, and don't say "if we are really so hard up for scrap—why do they let stuff pile up for days before hauling it away?"

Remember these mountains of scrap metal and rubber are America's scrap inventory. In this form they can be melted and sorted and prepared for their journey to the armament plants. They are our reserves stored while awaiting their call to the mills. As long as the government and industry know the extent of these reserves, and know where they are, there is no danger of a decline in production brought about by a shortage of scrap. If, on the other hand, the same scrap were hidden in 30 million attics and farm yards and factories, there would be no way to move it to the mills fast enough to keep the furnaces roaring.

Too, every pound of this accumulated scrap must be carefully sorted and graded, broken up, baled and compressed before it can be sent to the mills, and it would be physically impossible for America's scrap dealers to prepare the entire fall harvest of scrap for shipping to mills as fast as it is collected.

Large stockpiles do not constitute cause for alarm. It is only when these towering peaks of metal and rubber begin to dwindle that America must begin to worry about declining production. The day when the local scrap piles are gone—that is the day to dread. It is a day to avoid at all costs.

LORRAINE GIRLS JOIN LITERARY CLUB IN COLLEGE

Joy Green, Alene Walker, and Margaret Watson are new members of the Sigma Lambda Kappa, a junior literary club at McMurry college, Abilene. All three girls are freshmen at McMurry. Simplicity was the keynote of the formal installation of officers and initiation of new members of the Sigma Lambda Kappa in the music studio at the college. A tall lighted candle surrounded by ivy wreaths, symbols of club purposes, formed the centerpiece. New members: lighted candles from "big sisters" and received an ivy wreath to be planted.

Joy, Alene, and Margaret are members of the Wah Wah-tay-see drum and bugle corps. Joy is a member of the McMurry Maidens and is secretary of the freshman class. The three girls are majoring in Business Administration, and their hometown is Lorraine.

Registration For Gasoline Here Nov. 12, 13, 14

Registration for mileage rationing in Mitchell County will be conducted on November 12, 13, and 14. Mr. Tom Goss, chairman of the Mitchell County War Price and Rationing Board, announced today, and actual rationing of gasoline will begin November 22.

"We had been advised that Washington expects to have the application blanks available by November 7," Mr. Goss said, "but everyone should watch the news papers for our announcement when these application forms are available. We will try to see that they are distributed at garage tire inspection stations where every passenger car owner can obtain an application form conveniently."

He said each motorist should fill out the form listing the serial number of each tire. Then on one of the registration days the motorist should present this application form at the schoolhouse nearest his residence to be issued a basic "A" ration book for gasoline. Any motorist who is away from home in another county should register wherever he is on one of these three days, November 12, 13, and 14.

School officials have been requested by the County War Price and Rationing Board to cooperate in the registration as was done in the sugar rationing last May.

Those who feel that they are entitled to a supplemental ration provided by the "B" or "C" books should obtain another application form for this at the place of registration where the "A" book is issued.

Mr. Goss emphasized that every passenger car owner must sell to the Government before November 12, all tires over five for each vehicle.

That means, it was explained, that the car owner is allowed one tire for each running wheel and one spare for the car. A registrar can not issue him a mileage rationing book for that car if he owns tires in excess of that number.

For that reason excess tires should be turned in before November 12 to a local Railway Express Agency which will tag the tire and the seller will receive a check from the Government, or if he chooses the Government will pay him in War Stamps or War Bonds for his excess tire or tires.

Commercial vehicles, trucks and farm trucks must obtain a certificate of War Necessity from the Office of Defense Transportation before they are registered for mileage rationing with the local War Price and Rationing Board. The ODT has mailed these forms to all owners of commercial vehicles that were registered last December 31. Persons who have not received these application forms should write immediately to the nearest ODT Field Office. In Texas these offices are located in Dallas, San Antonio, Houston, Lubbock and Austin. As soon as this form is received it should be mailed back to the ODT in time for the applicant to receive a Certificate of War Necessity by November 15 when it will become mandatory that every commercial vehicle and truck carry one of these certificates at all times.

In regard to the selling of excess tires attention is called that "On and after October 1, 1942, no person may transfer or accept any transfer of a used tire or tube." "Used," as applied to tires and tubes means a tire or tube which has been run 1000 miles or more. A recapped or retreaded tire which has been run less than 1000 miles after retreading or recapping is not a "used tire." This means that those having excess tires can not sell them to others but must turn them into the government.

LORRAINE GOES TO BAIRD FRIDAY NIGHT

After dropping their first two conference games the Lorraine Bulldogs will journey to Baird Friday night determined to get in the win column for the first time in conference play this season. Baird has forfeited two games and her record is not at all impressive.

The Bulldogs lost to the Rotan Yellowhammers here last Friday night 27 to 6 for their second loss in conference play, the other loss being to Merkel.

The Yellowhammers clearly outclassed the local lads, making 14 first downs to Lorraine's 4. Rotan made 279 yards rushing to Lorraine's 60 and only lost 25 yards while the local boys lost 21. Rotan gained 40 yards passing while Lorraine gained 62.

District Court Opens Monday

The November term of 32nd District Court will convene Monday, November 2.

According to District Clerk J. H. Ballard, very few carry-over criminal cases appear on the docket. One important case slated for trial is the case of The State of Texas vs. Lee Brando, billed by the last Grand Jury for Murder Without Malice. This charge carries a maximum penalty of five years in the penitentiary. The indictment against the defendant is the result of an automobile wreck on Highway 80 which occurred last April 19, wherein Mrs. Lela Tillison, wife of Victor Tillison, lost her life.

The civil docket is made up principally of divorce suits, there being 18 divorce cases out of the 35 cases appearing on the docket.

November 9th Last Day For Canning Sugar

An extension of the date for issuing canning sugar in Mitchell County has been set by the War Price and Rationing Board. The last day of registration for canning sugar has been set as November 9, 1942. This has been made necessary because of a change in schedule given the local Board by Rationing Headquarters, for this reason the office will not open for registration for canning sugar on November 5. This will leave Thursday, October 29, Monday, November 2, and Monday, November 9, as the days on which registration may be made.

The Board calls attention again that a limit of nine pounds of canning sugar per person in the family for those who live in the country and six pounds for those living in city limits has been set by Rationing Regulations. This does not mean that every family will be issued six or nine pounds of sugar per person for canning as sugar allotments will still be based on the amount of fruit canned.

Families who have already received as much as the six or nine pound limit as applied to their residence, will not be issued more canning sugar this season.

Sugar purchase certificates should be used within thirty days of the last day that certificates are issued and sugar bought for canning must be used in this time limit also. If not used in this allotted time, the Board should be notified and sugar ration books turned over to the Board to be held until the sugar has been used normally.

Solomons Battle Cost Mounts Steadily; WPB Cuts 1943 Farm Machine Output But Provides Adequate Parts Supply; Winter Helps Russ Defenders of Volga

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

With a picturesque South Sea island landscape as a backdrop, U. S. marines are shown taking bombs from a "bomb garden" concealed in the palm trees of Guadalcanal island. As operational flights against Jap ships, land forces and air bases in the Solomon Islands have been stepped up, U. S. air forces have been increasingly employed.

FARM IMPLEMENTS: 20 Per Cent Slash

Farmers would not have new tractors or new plows to hitch them to in 1943, but they would have plenty of repair parts to keep their present machinery operating.

That was clear when the War Production board issued its drastic order slashing the production of 1943 farm equipment to 20 per cent of the 1940 total, but permitting repair parts production to be 130 per cent of 1940 operations.

Forecasting industrial readjustments in other fields, the WPB order concentrated the new farm equipment output in the hands of small manufacturers in labor-shortage areas.

Repair parts manufacture was left to the big producers. This decision represented a victory for these companies which had held out for retention in their own plants of all the repair parts production, thus preserving the identity of their specialized, trade-name implements. It likewise represented a concession to the department of agriculture which had strenuously urged a heavy program for repair parts manufacture, while it opposed any new machinery cut below 50 per cent of the 1940 output.

RUSSIAN FRONT: Ally Winter Comes

Winter was one ally that could give the hard-pressed Russians immediate help. For days past the engagements surging around Stalingrad in the northeast and Mordok further south in the Caucasus had been a race against time. Thus when snow swept across the Don-Volga steppes the Russians knew their reinforcements had arrived.

Significant was the German high command's communique that the Nazi drive in the Caucasus had been impaired by continued bad weather, and that the Russians had undertaken strong, tank-led diversion attacks against the north flank of the Nazi thrust into Stalingrad.

The strength of Marshal Timoshenko's relief assault from the north was indicated in the communique which said the Russian onslaughts had been undertaken with "fresh, strong infantry and tank forces."

SUBMARINE MENACE: Will Get Worse

Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the U. S. Maritime commission, warned the nation that "the submarine menace is going to be progressively worse this winter."

Speaking before the Investment Bankers association, he said the menace would grow, because of winter's bad weather and longer nights, giving U-boats better opportunity for concealment.

SOLOMONS: Battle Cost Mounts

Guadalcanal with the only good airfield within hundreds of miles controls the southern Solomons, plus a sizeable area in the South Pacific. Whoever holds and uses that airfield rules that area.

The efforts of the Japs to regain the Guadalcanal airfield from its American defenders thus had strategic implications affecting the entire southwest Pacific. If the Americans held, they could protect Allied supply lines, keep the Japs checkmated and prepare to expand their offensive.

The cost of the battle was high to both sides. As planes, ships and land forces jockeyed for favorable position, the United States reported the loss of two destroyers, the O'Brien and the Meredith. American planes retaliated by damaging a Jap cruiser and a destroyer and shooting down 12 enemy planes.

Meanwhile, west of the Solomons, Allied bombers blasted enemy ships in New Britain's harbor of Rabaul.

LABOR DRAFT: 62,500,000 Needed

Drafting of men and women for war work to meet the employment-armed service demand of 62,500,000 persons is "inevitable," Paul V. McNutt, war manpower director, declared in testifying before the senate military affairs committee.

McNutt listed three essentials which forthwith must embrace: (1) Employers in any area must be required to hire all workers through a central bureau; (2) Methods of labor utilization must be controlled to prevent employment from "hoarding workers"; (3) Individuals must remain on the job, or transfer to one more important to the war effort.

FEDERAL TAXES: 43,000,000 Will Pay

More than 43,000,000 Americans became subject to direct federal taxation when President Roosevelt signed the new war-time tax bill which congress has spent 10 months in compiling.

Designed to produce revenues of close to 25 billion dollars yearly, the new law extended the tax load to all Americans making more than $24 a year. Through the President's prompt action in signing the bill, 65 million dollars worth of higher excise taxes on liquor, travel, telephone service, cigarettes, telegrams and other items went into effect November 1.

Payable next March 15 are record-breaking normal and surtax levies on 1942 individual and corporate income.

A special 5 per cent Victory tax on all income in excess of $12 a week will be deducted from pay envelopes after January 1.

New Anti-Sub Weapon—the Sea Skimmer

Newest weapon to combat the submarine menace is the sea-skimmer sub-chaser, which hops the waves at 50 miles per hour. It is armed with four depth charges, which can be replaced by torpedoes. Except for the engine and propeller, it is built entirely with non-strategic material—plywood plastic—and can be molded out by the thousands in a short time. As it is not driven by a water propeller it cannot be detected by submarines. Top photo shows the two-man crew at the guns. Bottom photo shows the sub-chaser skimming over the water.

Axis Nations Face to Face With Strong U. S. Air Power

America's Theoretical Aerial Strength Translated Into Actuality; Japanese Revise Three Major Campaigns.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1213 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

As this is written Washington is discussing a pitched battle in the Solomons and the beginning of a sharp rise in American air activity over Europe. Exciting stories are coming in from all quarters of the globe about the achievements of our pilots and our planes but few civilians realize the significance of these separate exploits. The enemy does. And in the opinion of air force officials in Washington the Axis partners have at last been brought face to face with the fact that America is in the war, that the theoretical striking power of the United States has been translated into a practical impact of American strength which is now being felt on every front.

Since the smashing victory of Midway, the Japanese have been forced to change their whole campaigns in three different sectors: in the Aleutians, in New Guinea, in the Solomons.

And, as Rommel girds for another attack in Egypt, it is conceded that what might have been a victory in the drive on Alexandria was turned to defeat in a not unimportant measure by American bombers and fighters.

And lastly, with the great raid on Lille early this month, the Germans found themselves faced with the prospect of terrific destruction of their cities or the revision of their whole program of air defense.

From the beginning, the Germans knew that America had the men, the money, the resources to build the most powerful war machine in the world. But they never thought the parts of that machine could be assembled in time. Now as we approach the anniversary of Pearl Harbor, we are still unable to furnish our Allies with the men and material required to make any single front, of the many we are feeding, strong enough for an offensive in which there is combined action, air, land and sea. Put in one arm we have developed the beginning of superiority on many fronts as the growing giant of the air.

This is now possible because we have been able to do three things: provide a terrific engine of precision destruction in our mammoth bombers; provide those bombers with such fire-power that it makes up for their lack of maneuverability and thus offers in a single unit the ability to carry out precision bombing of individual targets and at the same time the ability to fight off the enemy defense in the air, a combination perfected for the first time in this war.

A Comparison

To reduce this achievement to lay terms: Heretofore the big bomber which could drop tons of destruction on the earth below, was so cumbersome in the air that it was a prey to fast moving acrobatic fighter planes. Like the buffalo which could be pulled down by a herd of agile wolves. Now, because of the terrific effectiveness of the guns our bombers carry, those fighters cannot get near enough to them to damage them. The wolf pack is cut to pieces before its fangs can seize the monster.

In addition to giving our heavy ships their own protection we have built pursuit planes—the agile wolves—which are sinewed with some of the might of their bigger brothers.

Our pursuit planes are able to carry bombs, too, and perform some of the functions of the dive bomber with the added advantage of maneuverability.

With this equipment we have been able to make the Japanese hold on the Aleutians untenable. We have already dislodged two footholds (Attu and Agattu islands, and will probably force the Japs out of the third, Kiska, before the winter sets in. That is one radical change of plan which the Japanese did not anticipate we could bring about.

In the southwest Pacific there has been wrought another change of plan. In conjunction with Australian fliers, American forces have completely broken one offensive, the one directed at Port Moresby, by smashing enemy bases and supply lines and forcing the Japs, who after incredible hardships had crossed the towering Owen Stanley ridge, to take to their heels and flee.

And in Europe we have definitely affected the tide of battle on three fronts. In Russia, vicariously it is true, because we have sent no pilots there. But American planes played a vital part in harassing the Nazi advance.

In Egypt, the British, according to dispatches, credit American fliers with a large part of the achievement of breaking down General Rommel's advance into Egypt.

Attack on Rommel

There our heavy bombers helped to render Rommel's supply ports of Tobruk and Benghazi virtually useless. Against Nazi ground forces our planes, notably the Airacobras, acting as a shallow dive bomber and also as a strafe, played a vital part in smashing the Axis supply lines.

But it was—and is and will be—American bomber wings over Germany itself that cast the most alarming shadow across the Reich. The Lille raid brought home the fact that Germany must now face American might.

In that raid 112 American bombers, besides carrying out their mission of precision daytime bombing, were able to bring down 115 of the 120 Nazi fighter planes that were destroyed.

Germany must rebuild her planes to match ours, or suffer an incredible handicap.

And so we see the faith in air power and American invention justified. This, however, does not mean victory. It means merely the preparation. Smoking ruins are a triumph but possession is nine points of victory. No land is conquered until a human being stands upon it, his feet firmly planted, his position secure. And that means, in the last analysis, man power, not air power. That is the next step.

Aircraft Carrier—Fleet Spearhead

The aircraft carrier, says Rear Admiral Carl Sherman, naval hero of World War I, and commander of the Lexington, is "the spearhead of the fleet, the backbone of the navy, the slinger in offensive and defensive warfare."

The admiral may be a bit prejudiced, of course, but after you have read "Queen of the Flat Tops," which is the story of the Lexington's epic adventures, you may agree with him. Let it be carried away with my own enthusiasm. I asked a lover of the sea what he thought about it. He pored over my copy and refused to return it. So I am going to quote his words.

"This is a fine book," he told me after he had read it. "The author, Stanley Johnston, sums up my opinion. He says that the 'flat-top' Lexington ushered in a new era in naval warfare which will rank with the battle of the Monitor and the Merrimac in the Civil War. And he makes you believe it."

Johnston was in the highly enviable position of being the only reporter on board, and now has given the world a first-hand picture of the terrifically important last cruise of this converted battle cruiser, right up to the time she was sent to the bottom by American torpedoes after withstanding Jap "tin fish" and direct bomb hits.

Johnston saw it all from the "Lex," as she was affectionately known.

All of our new group of naval air heroes appear as modest young run-of-mine men, in Johnston's record. He was struck by the complete lack of heroics, as he was struck during every action and particularly during the last terrible hours aboard the carrier, with the complete lack of confusion and the outstanding bravery of all aboard, even when the gallant ship was a blazing inferno. This is all the more remarkable when it is known that a great many of the ship's complement were making their first trip to sea. No naval or military man is going to miss reading and studying this volume, and no civilian ought to who has any interest in the methods of modern sea battling.

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

Almost 10,000 rural fire-fighting companies have been organized this year to protect America's farms against destructive fires, with 100,000 men enrolled.

Marketing, processing, and distribution facilities are operating at capacity this fall, preparing the record 1942 farm production for military, lease-lend, and civilian use.

Prices are responding to rising demand, and latest estimates of the U. S. department of agriculture are that the total cash farm income this year will exceed 15 billion dollars.

The huge production of soybeans, peanuts, cottonseed, and flax seed this year on American farms has greatly relieved the fats and oils situation.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

BALTIMORE: American plane production stands in sore need of a "man with a stick" who will speed production and prevent war costs from becoming a "Frankenstein," according to Lieut. Col. Harold Evans Hartney, former chief of army aircraft training and operations. Now advisor to the army ferry command, Hartney declared we should have a separate air command.

NEW YORK: A new chemical compound which will be a universal odor killer was announced here by two chemists, Doctors James H. Dalbey and Walter H. Eddy. Tested as an inhibitor, the new compound has permitted no smell among hundreds to escape. It is reported to have completely eliminated the scent of skunk and of putrefaction odors.

SADDLE and RIDE

By ERNEST HAYCOX W-N-U Release

THE STORY SO FAR: Clay Morgan has decided to play a lone hand against Ben Herendeen, a rancher bent on running the cattle country his own way. The two men have been enemies for years, having first fought over Clay's wife, Lila, who died hating him and believing she should have married Herendeen. Morgan is a solitary figure, devoted to his nine-year-old daughter, Janet. Although two women, Catherine Grant and Ann McGarragh, are in love with him, they know he cannot forget Lila. Of his former friends, only Hack Breathitt had not gone over to Herendeen's side. Now Hack is dead, shot by Herendeen's foreman, Charley Hillhouse. Gurd Grant, Catherine's brother, joined Herendeen when he learned that Catherine had been to Morgan's ranch, but the cold bloodedness of Hack's murder has made him break with Herendeen. Warned by Fox Willing, a "nester" he once befriended, Clay discovers that Herendeen is stealing his cattle. He is nearly killed when he goes to Herendeen's ranch for a showdown, but he is saved by Lige White, one of Herendeen's friends. Like Gurd Grant, he is fed up with Herendeen's high handed methods. Clay and his men drive his cattle back into Government Valley, Clay's range. In the fight with Herendeen that follows, Lige is badly hurt. Now Clay is talking to Janet, who has discovered that she likes Catherine Grant better than Ann McGarragh and is not sure she should.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER XVIII

In the following silence Clay at once sensed that Janet was struggling with her loyalty to Ann McGarragh. She said: "I don't know, Daddy. Do you like her a lot? As much as you like Ann?"

He said: "Maybe I do, Janet. I'm going to town now. Better sleep."

She turned in the bed, her small body curled beneath the blankets and her head sinking into the pillow. She murmured: "It is like having a mother. It really is."

He went out of her room. There was a difference in women nobody could explain, an understanding, or a touch, or some mysterious fragrance of personality some had and some did not have.

Fox Willing was in the room with Lige White; the rest of the crew had left the house. Catherine waited for him downstairs.

"Janet wants you to stay on tonight."

She moved around the table. She put this distance between them deliberately, no longer smiling. "I can't do that, Clay. Not now."

He said: "I keep forgetting it wouldn't look right to you. Well, I don't know what you've done to Janet, but you did it."

She said with some concern: "You don't mind, Clay? I wanted her to like me—and that's why I came!"

He said, still in wonder: "How did you do it?"

Her eyes showed him a warm, deep shining. "She's still a girl, Clay, wanting to believe little-girl things and live in the land of make-believe. She knows those things aren't so, but she wants the comfort of them a little while longer. And I talked to her as though those things were good things."

"Wait until I get back from town and I'll ride home with you."

"I'm not afraid of the ride, Clay." But she closed her lips, color rising on her cheeks.

"Hate to have you go alone."

"Then I'll wait."

Harry Jump joined him in the yard, but Morgan shook his head. "I won't be long, and you've got to watch this place."

Jump had saddled a fresh horse for him; and now he lined out for town along a road smothered by a deep, moon-shot fog whose thickness touched him and seemed to break as he went through it. The lights of War Pass didn't show until he had turned into the main street. He went at once to Doc Padden's house, hailing him out. "Lige White's in a bad way, at my place. I'll go back with you."

Padden said, in rough regret, "Everything happens. Wait a minute." He went into the house for his hat and bag and walked down Custer Street with Morgan. "You heard the latest? Hillhouse killed Breathitt. He brought Breathitt into town and went out again."

They were near the stable when Morgan stopped. "In town?" he said. "Go ahead, Padden, I'll catch up with you."

Padden said: "Hillhouse bought a quart of whisky and started back to Three Pines. I guess it was on his soul, as God knows it should have been. Billy Wells came in a few minutes ago. He saw a team and wagon standing at the edge of Cache River near the Cottonwood ford, so he went over to look. Hillhouse sat against one of the trees. Guess he finished the bottle first. There was one bullet hole through the tree and another through his head. He killed himself."

Padden was a rough-handed man, made so by the kind of gunshot medicine he practiced; but he had his moments of insight and now walked to the stable without looking around. Morgan stood in the street's dust until he saw Padden ride away, then he turned down the street, left his horse by the hotel, and entered Padden's office. A night lamp burned here, wick turned low. He screwed up the light and took it with him into the adjoining room.

The first thing he noticed was Charley's hat placed over Hack Breathitt's face.

He noticed Charley's hat placed over Hack Breathitt's face.

And when he saw it he knew at once the hell that had been in Charley Hillhouse's mind—his relentless zeal and his memories of olden times confusedly mixing and torturing him. This last small act of grace, the placing of the hat across Hack's eyes, told the whole story of Charley's suicide. The wild and bitter winds governing Charley had blown him at last out of life.

Living or dead, the essential things of a man seemed to remain on his face. It was so with Hack. The disbelieving, cheerful insolence was still present. Born restless and full of scornful courage, he had carried these qualities with him; wherever he was now, Morgan thought, he'd be showing hell or heaven the same half-gay and half-ironic expression. Maybe, Morgan added, it was the best way out. For during these latter days he had seen a faint disillusionment in Hack, as though the youthful freshness and the strong appetites were wearing thin. Well, it was a new trail for Hack now; he could travel it with the same gusty pleasure that once had been his.

Morgan replaced the hat and returned the lamp to the other room. On the street he felt the brush of air on his cheek, and stood a moment in thought. These men had been close to him. Their passing left an empty place, reminding him that his wish to keep his youth alive was a futile wish. Suddenly, this part of the past was gone, leaving him high and dry, and presently other parts would go. It was a mistake to look behind, to try to hang on to what was over and done with. For him it was a strange thought and a powerful one; it pulled at his very roots and made him feel insecure.

He turned toward his horse. Jesse Rusey came from the shadows near the hotel. He said, "One Moment, Clay..." But at the same time, looking across the street, Morgan found Ann McGarragh on the store's porch. Her eyes were on him and, silent as she was, he felt the pull of her will or of her wish, and so he walked toward her.

Rusey held his position by the hotel, watching Morgan and Ann McGarragh go into the store and close the door behind them. A light came through the window, reflected from the back room of the store; in a moment another door closed and this light died. Rusey rubbed a hand across his chin. Distant in him was a faint envy at Clay Morgan's opportunities, and a worldly man's curiosity. For Rusey's philosophy was a gray philosophy, wrung out of his cool, perpetual watchfulness. All people had wants. Some wants were little and some were big; some came cheap and some came high—but to all people sooner or later came a time when they placed their pride and all that they believed in against the one thing they most wanted, and made their decision. Usually they sold out. For in the world Jesse Rusey so closely watched, wants always came first. He knew what Ann McGarragh wanted. He knew her pride and her scorn of the ordinary follies and appetites. Now he stood, rubbing his chin, faintly amused that all these qualities had bought her nothing, and knowing she realized it; knowing too she was close to her own decision. And very hard to find out that a woman has to change as she swore she could never change. All that I am is right here in front of you, but it never has been enough—just to be in front of you. Is it something cold about me, or something of an old maid in me? I don't know. But only once did I ever see anything in your eyes that I put there. That was when I wore a dress which left my shoulders bare. I was a woman to you that night."

She lifted her arms. They touched his shoulders and lay there, with the smallest pressure in them, pulling him. He saw her lips lengthen and part, he saw her eyes widen, as though she opened herself to him completely. Reaching forward he kissed her, catching the force of her sudden-giving body. But even then there was a difference, a strain, a lack. When he stepped back they both knew it. She caught her breath sharply, turning away. And said in a dulling voice: "No, not for me. Well, good-by."

'The Marines Have Landed And the Situation Is in Hand'

U. S. marines have been landing on hostile shores for 167 years. During this long stretch of time the "leathernecks" or "devil dogs," as they are affectionately known, have upheld the highest traditions of the U. S. military forces. The scrappy marines, each of whom can individually whip his weight in wildcats, know no retreat. The U. S. marine corps is a fighting outfit, through and through.

Today U. S. marines are serving their country at sea aboard cruisers, battleships and aircraft carriers, as well as in the Pacific, West Indies, the Caribbean and Alaska.

These pictures take you to the jungle islands of the S. W. Pacific, stepping stones for our march back to Bataan.

Right: Maj. Gen. Alexander A. Vandergrift of the U. S. marine corps, who leads the way in the Solomons.

The marines practice with the latest "Commando" equipment. Rubber boats were used by the leathernecks to reach the "enemy" shore, during maneuvers.

Here is the real thing! U. S. marines charge up the beach (above) at Guadalcanal island in the Solomon group, with guns and packs. Some of the marines may be seen in the landing barge.

Left: Eight months to the day after Pearl Harbor was attacked, these marines hoisted Old Glory over the first territory taken back from the Japs. Major General Vandergrift was present, but does not show in this picture.

This group of Jap workmen, herded behind barbed wire enclosure, were captured by U. S. marines on Guadalcanal island. The marine in the center barks out orders to the Japs.

WAR STRIKES

INJURE U. S. CAUSE

WE HAVE some four million men in the armed services of the nation. Those four million men work at a wage fixed by the government. They go where the government tells them to go. They work as many hours a day, a week, a month or a year as the government tells them to work. They are not paid for any overtime, they do whatever the government tells them to do, even to the point of dying. They have no grievance committees. They do not strike. They are working to make possible a continuance of our freedom.

We credit the man in the factories producing our war essentials with importance and with patriotism equal to that of the men serving in the armed forces. But the men in the factories dominated by union racketeers tell the government what their wages will be, where they will work, what they will do and how many hours of each day or week they will work. When their demands are not complied with, they strike.

In the first six months of this year there was a loss of one and one-half million man hours of production by strikes in war industries.

A strike in a war industry plant is a strike against the government.

PRODUCTION LOSSES

SINCE PEARL HARBOR

LAST DECEMBER 23, two weeks after Pearl Harbor, the AFL and CIO assured the President that there would be no more strikes called by organized labor for the duration of the war. From January 1 to July 1 of this year a total of 1,130,678 man days were lost to war production only because of strikes called by local union racketeers. These may not have been authorized strikes, but in no single instance was any local union or local racketeer official disciplined because the strikes were called. The men who were called out had to respond or lose their opportunity to work in any union-controlled plant. Practically all union workers are patriotic. That cannot be said of the labor racketeers who seek self interests only.

WEST COAST SHIPYARD

AND PROFITS

A WEST COAST SHIPYARD had a cost-plus order for the building of Liberty ships. That order was changed early in the summer to a contract price per ship. After the change, the yard laid off 16,000 employees and built ships faster than it had before. There may be either one of two answers to such a situation, or both may apply. If the shipyard were employing more men than were needed in order to increase costs and so increase profits, the government would take back practically all of the increased profits through the heavy excess profits tax. If the men were but soldiering on the job, it was a case of sabotage or worse.

SPEEDERS WARRANT

NO RESPECT

HAVING BEEN ABLE to drive 40, 50 and more miles an hour and get away with it will not have made heroes in the eyes of good Americans who limited their driving to 35 miles and under per hour, but who must now suffer the penalty of gas rationing because of the "speedsters." The speeders, when known, who forced the necessity of gas rationing as a means of saving rubber, should be ostracized by all patriotic Americans. They are not entitled to the respect of good citizens.

WHEN I MARRIED AND SET UP

A HOME, one of the luxuries we could not afford was a telephone. We were not exceptions. Less than one in ten of the homes of Chicago had telephones. Today the home telephone is considered a necessity. Today less than one in ten of the homes of Chicago, or any other city, do not have telephones. That typifies the advance in the American standard of living under the American system. No other nation can show an equal advance.

NEGOTIATED PEACE

IS NOT THE ANSWER

A NEGOTIATED PEACE might be effected at most any place and at any time. An unconditional surrender peace can be had only at Berlin after Germany has been invaded. A negotiated peace would guarantee a third World War. An unconditional surrender peace can be an insurance against a third world conflict. That insurance policy is worth fighting for.

HITLER CAN'T BEAT

THIS U. S. SPIRIT

"WE HAVE no bacon or no ham," said the market man to a woman customer. "It is all going to the armed forces." She looked disappointed for a moment, and then replied: "That's fine. The family likes bacon and ham, but we can cheerfully do without so the boys may have what they want. They earn everything we can give." That reply represented the America Hitler cannot defeat.

Senior Specials
You know what? My mother always reads the paper to find the bargains and specials that each organization in town has to advertise each week. She always wants to get her money's worth and at the same time get a sure thing. Well, if you are in the same boat with my mom, just read what the Seniors have to advertise this week. It is very simple. Just vote for the Senior King and Queen.

Remember? They were introduced for the first time last week. They are none other than Eula Fae Anders and Ray Furlow. Hold on a minute! Don't you start saying "Well, where is there any money's worth to that?"

or "Why is that such a sure thing?" Just for your personal information—here goes.

Any day of the week that you are in town, especially on Saturday, as soon as you get out of your car, you will find about a half a dozen freshmen, Sophs, Juniors and just not least Seniors at your heels, begging you to vote for their King and Queen. You might say "Oh, I'm not gonna vote for anybody." Listen, brother, you have another think a coming, because even if you are a stingy old guy—you will vote for someone to get rid of the beggars. Then, if you are a generous person, you will vote a freewill offering to help out the P. T. A. and the various classes. (The latter attitude is preferable.) Not only do you want to vote for the Seniors because you know little Susie Brown and old Sam Jones' boy and you want to help out their class, because it is his or her last year; but because, too, we have the best two looking candidates that can be found. We are sure that most of you readers know Queen Eula Fae and King Rae, but just in case you don't—you try to get a description of them.

Queen Eula Fae is 5 feet 7 1/2 inches tall and weighs 125 pounds. She has a beautiful olive complexion, dark hair and hazel eyes. In other words she is tall, dark and beautiful. What else could you ask of a Queen?

King Rae is that good looking Bulldog with that cute grin and pretty white teeth. He is the sort of guy who makes every little girl's heart go "thump thump". He is 5 feet 8 1/2 inches tall and weighs 135 pounds. He has dark hair and hazel eyes. He is what you term tall, dark and handsome. He is a King, if we ever saw one!

Now then, tell me, Sir,—what reason is there for you not to vote for the Seniors? None at all, is there. Well then, when you see Gypsy Ted McCollum and Eleanor Green or those two darling Bulldogs Bryan Mahon and Hugh Elliott holding out their hands—or any other Seniors, as for as that goes (those named were mentioned because they are campaign managers) you give them a quarter, a half dollar or even a dollar. You won't miss it a month from now. So vote today tomorrow may be too late. Hurry! Hurry! vote for the Senior King and Queen. Not only do we want you to vote for us, but we want you to attend our booth at the Carnival. It will be a soda pop and candy stand. It can be easily found by the appearance of Halloween novelties. "Eat, drink and be merry" will be our motto.

We want to thank Merrill Martin, the artist of our class, for making us a grand poster to advertise our King and Queen. You will see a lot more of his drawing in our annual this year.

Speaking of the annual, we are going to start to work on its construction this week. By the way, did any of you Freshmen, Sophomores and Juniors see the notice on the bulletin board this past week? If you didn't, we kindly ask you to read it. We have had no results so far, but we are hoping that you will start bringing in your snapshots in due time. Remember—the sun might not shine forever this winter.

This week our president appointed two new flag monitors. They are Forrest Meadows and Truman Nix. Have any of you other classes started saluting the flag? We Seniors do it every morning in English class. Mrs. Ison thinks that we have improved considerably with the pledge in unison.

In Civil government we have taken up a very interesting movement. We have made believe congress. We are divided into two groups—the Senate and the House of Representatives. And there are parties, the Democrats and the Republicans. Our first bill was that we would declare war on Rotan, and have the score not less than 25-0. Well we lost, but Bulldogs you really put up a good fight. Just keep up the good work.

We have just got to quit so as to leave a little room for some more classes. In the meantime, vote for the Seniors King and Queen. We are sure you won't be sorry.

Sports News

The Rotan Yellowhammers defeated our Loraine Bulldogs 21 to 6. Even tho the Bulldogs lost, they really played a good game. We're proud of you, boys, just the same. Our only score came when Rae Furlow completed a pass to Alfred Hackfeld in the second quarter. Furlow attempted a drop kick for the extra point. Truman Nix was the one who did most of the running. Carol Preston also did some good running. We should have had another touchdown. But it all goes with the game. The Bulldogs hope that they get to go to Balj next Friday night. Baird and

Snyder are next on our list, and we hope to beat them.

Our boys are getting in shape for their next game and plan to beat Baird. They can do it, I bet. Come on Bulldogs we are all behind you. Baird has had hard luck this year, and the teams should be fairly evenly matched.

Don Narrell, known on the football field as "big Don", played a cutting and slashing game at tackle. Lennis Ray McCollum did a nice bit of dumping some plays against Rotan. Pierce 'Rei' Givens played a hard, good game, and Cammie Brown did some good tackling. Hugh Elliott at right guard also did some nice playing. In fact the whole line played a good ball game. And you can bet your last dollar we are going to win from Baird.

Mr. Cook said he appreciated the people's cooperation and loyalty. He was sorry that the boys couldn't win, but they did their best. He is proud of the good clean game they played.

Not a one of our boys were hurt, and we are certainly glad of that. All the boys certainly played a good game.

Come on Bulldogs! Don't lose confidence just because you haven't won but one game. Stay right in there. Just remember we'll always be behind you, no matter whether you win or lose.

Pep News

The Pep girls marched all last week and had a stunt last Friday night at the Rotan and Loraine game. They did the best they could for just a few days practice. We hope everyone enjoyed it. Our stunt was a V... for victory. The Pep girls made the V, the drummers and flag bearers made the dash, and the three leaders made the three dots.

The squad really yelled the first half. It was so cold that the last half they left the stands and got in cars and watched the rest of the game. The game was enjoyed very much and all are sorry the boys didn't win. They did their best, and the pep squad still has all the confidence in the world in them. They'll always be pretty "swell" to us. Stay in there, Bulldogs, and fight.

The H. E. News

Yes, as Miss Gann promised, the Red Cross Nutrition course is very interesting (as well as helpful). The books look good enough to eat. I wonder why? Could it be the cover?

In this course we will do our cooking, and lunch, breakfast, and dinner planning. Certificates will be given in this course to everyone who finishes the course in satisfaction to Miss Gann the teacher.

Anyone outside of the class is urged to attend; hurry up and join us before it is too late. The Red Cross Nutrition Class needs you; so join today.

Nothing unusual has happened since last week unless one of the girls has a new desk, I wonder who that could be? Until next week, Adios.

Freshman News

Well, most of the talk around this week is about the Halloween Carnival, which is to be this coming Saturday. The King and Queen contest is the biggest event of all. The Freshmen are sure they are going to win the contest. Some of the more energetic girls got out Saturday night and tried around to get together a few more votes. And they did pretty well.

We want all of you readers to vote for our king and queen, and be sure to visit our booth at the carnival. We hope to take a lot of money that day.

We received our report cards, and I think a few of us were lucky enough to get on the "50 Honor Roll."

We are awfully sorry we did not win that game last Friday night. But our boys did the best they could. One of these days we are going to start winning, and we aren't going to stop.

Maybe we'll have more news for you next week.

Sophomore Gossip

The Sophs had a busy week last week. Mr. Cook is showing us an entirely new world so far as figures go and believe me it is getting some of us down.

We have decided to have penny pitching at the carnival Saturday, so come around and we will give you a chance.

The Bulldogs played a good game Friday night, although we only made one touchdown, and just think it was made by a Sophomore, Alfred Hackfeld. Stay right in there, and keep up the good work, Alfred.

Everybody be sure and come to the Spanish meeting Thursday. You'll be missing something, if you don't.

Mrs. I. J. Pierce of Abilene spent the week end here with Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Taylor and other relatives.

Certainly, ranges are rationed Here's why:

Range factories are making War Goods

IT'S a good sign, too, when you think about it. It means this country is bearing down on the war. Think of the guns, tank-plates, and airplane parts that American gas-equipment factories can turn out (some of the range factories had been making 550 ranges per day).

Take good care of the gas range you have. Gas ranges are for sale in the U.S.A. only to those persons who positively need them. (The same applies to Water Heaters).

Spoon Bread

This famous American recipe doesn't sound exciting, but it makes up with a spirited flavor and a high fragrance. Lots of vitamins, too.

1 cup boiling water	2 teaspoons baking powder
2 cups yellow corn meal	1 1/2 cups milk
1 teaspoon salt	2 egg yolks
2 tablespoons butter or margarine	2 egg whites

Pour boiling water over the meal, salt, and butter, stirring constantly. Let stand until cool. Add baking powder, milk, and beaten egg yolks, and blend well. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in a moderate gas oven (350 degrees F.) for 45 minutes. Serve immediately.

Corp. Cope volunteered in the Marines in World War 1 and served two and a half years, 18 months overseas.

He enlisted in the Marines in February 1942, and has been stationed at Cuddihy Field, Corpus Christi. Mrs. Cope is at present acting postmaster in his absence. Their daughter, Mary Frances, graduated from Loraine High School in 1942 and is a student in Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene.

Two of Russell's brothers are in the service, one in the Navy and one in the Army.

Corp. William M. Jarratt

Corp. William M. Jarratt, son of A. E. Jarratt of Loraine, was born and reared here. He attended high school here. He has been in the Army for several months and received his basic training at Camp Roberts, Calif.

William is now stationed somewhere in the Aleutian Islands off Alaska.

Mrs. Fowler McIntire and her mother, Mrs. Johnson of Sterling City, visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Saultz Friday.

Methodist Church

America's armed forces may need 10,000 chaplains of all faiths before the war is over, according to Dr. Luther A. Weigle, Dean of Yale Divinity School and president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

In view of this great shortage of chaplains in the armed forces and the constant increasing of all the forces Dean Weigle said that there is a danger that churches will increasingly be left to ministrations of relatively uneducated men.

It is a fact that no man without college equipment can get into the chaplaincy. This is taken from the churches press but recently a secular paper stated that the time might come when many churches might be without pastors. Already many schools are closing due to the lack of teachers.

Also the missionary work of the church is badly altered in this war crash. The missionary world is divided into ninety-five areas, forty of which are either under foreign occupation or definitely in the war zone. The major part of twenty-two have ceased to function and the remainder, 18, are greatly disturbed. This means that 18,000 missionaries are affected, out of the 28,000 in the whole field.

These are some conditions in the church and this is bad enough but the home and business are still being demoralized by the war. If you have not tried to buy something go into the stores and get a taste of this condition. This calls for greater courage and sacrifice on the part of all at home. "Here is the real front line trench of the battle." This calls for denials in essentials and non essentials. And many formerly essentials are no longer so. But the church school or Sunday school and church are still essential. We at home are urged now as during the other war not to let anything molest our regular attendance at all the church meetings and the mass public worship or private either at church.

Our hours are changed again as the days shorten. Youth and missionary study meet at 7 and church at 7:45. Watch out for these changes from time to time.

Our Youth Fellowship, under the leadership of Mrs. Martin, their sponsor, gave us some timely and interesting assistance in our evening services last Sunday. We should hope that all departments do more of this, it will develop the individuals in the department and the department as well.

Mrs. S. Satterwhite and children of Big Spring spent Friday and Saturday in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. McGowan. Mrs. McGowan accompanied them to Sweetwater Saturday for a visit.

29, 1942. He is in 120 Medical Detachment, U. S. Army, stationed at Ft. Jackson, South Carolina.

Pvt. Herbert Lemaster

Pvt. Herbert Lemaster was born Nov. 12, 1917, in Cherokee County, Oklahoma. After the death of his parents he left Oklahoma and came to Loraine in August 1935 and made his home with his sister, Mrs. Willie Coley.

He joined the Marines April 23, 1941 and was stationed at Camp Linda Vista. Last word received from him he was in San Diego, California.

Dr. Bruce Johnson presented the church a War Bond, making a total of $500.00 in the building fund in bonds.

The pastor gave an object lesson on the ten commandments at the training union hour. There were about 50 present for the program.

The evening sermon topic was "Our Supreme Obligation to the World."

All the Sabbath services were well attended.

Kent McGowan of Houston will come in Sunday to spend a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. McGowan, before entering the Army.

Introducing the Seniors

Myna Eleanor Green was born at Snyder, Texas, July 22, 1925. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Green.

Eleanor acquired the first four years of schooling in Snyder, and the remainder has been accomplished here in Loraine. She is a very active member of the pep squad, one of the leaders for three years.

Her signing off year she is the main pep leader. During her Junior year, she was elected queen of the campus by a big vote. In Eleanor's Freshman year she presided as secretary-treasurer of the class; sophomore year she was secretary; Junior year she was reporter. So far in the last year, Eleanor is Editor-in-Chief of the "Mastiff", and last but not least in her school activities she has been F. F. A. duchess for two years, and this year was our F. F. A. Sweetheart.

Eleanor is five feet four inches tall, weighs 116 pounds, has dark hair, olive complexion, blue eyes and a swell personality.

Like everyone else, she also chooses her favorites. Down the eating line, she prefers hot tamales and banana pudding. Her favorite boy friend must be five feet, seven inches tall with dark hair and, oh, well, you just look around at a certain little Senior boy! We might also add that she is wearing a ring rather large for her.

Eleanor likes good movies. That is why her favorite movie thus far has been "Gone With the Wind." Her favorite actress is Hedy Lamarr and actor, Richard Gen. Since Eleanor has a tendency to be a "jitter bug", she likes music such as "Amen".

Her ambition is to go to McMurry College and major in Business Administration.

The best of luck to Eleanor.

Rae Furlow, or maybe we should say King Rae now days, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Furlow. He was born and reared at the place they now reside, which is located five miles west of Loraine. He was born April 11, 1926.

Rae attended school here until in the sixth grade, then he started to Colorado City. After two years over there, he came back to Loraine and is still with us. He was elected King of the Senior class, and all votes and donations are highly appreciated. He is one of those so-called football heroes. He has been playing football for three years and has lettered for two. He has been captain of the team several times this year, and what I mean, he's one of those real Bulldogs.

Rae is five feet eight inches tall, weighs 135 pounds, has dark hair and hazel eyes. In fact he's one of those really good-looking and a person that is liked by everyone.

Rae chooses a few items that he prefers above the others, or we might say favorites. He likes movies, and one movie he likes to see is "To the Shores of Tripoli," and these might show on Wednesday or Friday night, for these are his favorite days or nights. Rae likes to eat as well as to go, anyway if there's a big bowl of ice cream nearby. His favorite screen actor and actress are Betty Grable, and for the actor, well just any of them. They're all considered the same. But as far his ideal girl he just chooses any of them. He says he likes them all.

Rae's ambition after completing his high school career is to join up with the Army Air Corps

RUBBER

Rubber is not the sap of a tree, but is the latex found in tubes that run lengthwise throughout the inner part of the bark.
Individual car owners can conserve rubber. Never drive over 25 miles an hour, check inflation pressure once a week, check wheel alignment every six months, rotate tires (including spare) to different wheels every 3,000 miles. It is not a difficult habit to acquire and it will keep you rolling longer.
Why built at 35 miles an hour restriction in Jerusalem 8 miles an hour is the limit for automobiles, with the speed warnings printed in Arabic, Hebrew and English.
The Army is supplied by hundreds of thousands of rubber-tired trucks, just one of which for a 2½ ton vehicle, takes more than 7 times as much rubber as your passenger car.
Pneumatic bridges are built on rubber floats that take more than a ton and a half of rubber.

THE CHRISTIAN VIEW OF MARRIAGE

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 2:18-24; Matthew 19:3-6; John 2:1-5.
GOLDEN TEXT—Marriage is honorable in all.—Hebrews 13:4.

The home is not just one of the institutions of our social order, it is a part of God's plan for man. It thus holds a position of greater importance than institutions of society, and should take first place in our thinking.

Home and the life which centers in it has lost much of its meaning and value in recent decades. It is appropriate and timely to study for four weeks in our Sunday schools the foundation principles of the home and to learn how we may hinder or help it in its influence. Teachers will wish to make much of this vital series.

We begin right when we inquire what the Bible teaches about marriage, and we find the instruction plentiful and to the point. Concerning marriage we learn of

I. Its Origin—Ordained by God (Gen. 2:18-24).

Nations and states have marriage laws, and certain civil requirements must be met. But true marriage from the Christian viewpoint is far more than a civil contract. It is an ordinance which God Himself ordained from the beginning for the welfare of man.

As Adam gave names to the animals (which, incidentally, tells of his intelligence and ability) they passed before him. It became evident to him that there was no true fellowship between man and beast, that there must be a "help meet" for man, one of his own kind, with his capacities of personal being.

God quickly and adequately meets every real need of man, so He created out of Adam's own flesh one who was to be his true companion. "If man is the head, she is the crown," said Matthew Henry. "The man was dust refined, but the woman was dust doubly refined, one move further from the earth. She was not taken out of his head to top him, not out of his feet to be trampled upon by him, but out of his side to be equal with him, under his arm to be protected, and near his heart to be beloved."

So God ordained marriage, but down through the ages man has seen fit to tamper with God's holy arrangements, adjusting them to suit himself, so we need to be reminded of the truth.

II. Its Control—Not Subject to Man (Matt. 19:3-6).

Because of the hardness of man's heart Moses permitted divorce (Mark 10:4, 5), but God did not intend it from the beginning. The Jewish rabbis had so stretched the interpretation of that act of Moses that a wife could be divorced for almost any reason. The same was true among heathen nations.

Our Lord makes it very clear that man has no authority to determine such matters at all, that the union of life in true marriage is by the act of God, and that no man has power to sunder such a relationship. The whole trend of thought on marriage has been away from its sacredness as a divine institution, and we need to return to a proper appreciation of it as such. All too often, marriages are mere civil agreements, hastily made before a justice of peace. We need to encourage our young people to recognize

III. Its Dignity—Sanctioned by Christ (John 2:1-5).

The wedding ceremony tells us that marriage "is an honorable estate, instituted by God in the time of man's innocence, confirmed by the teaching and hallowed by the presence of our blessed Lord, and likened by St. Paul to the holy union that exists between Christ and the Church; and therefore is not by any to be entered into unadvisedly, but reverently, discreetly and in the fear of God."

At the very beginning of His public ministry Jesus performed His first miracle as His share of a wedding feast. It is true that He does share every occasion of joy and sorrow of His people, but it seems to be significant that this first occasion for His miraculous power was a wedding.

He was there to rejoice with and to bless those who had exchanged their vows in marriage. Should He not be the unseen guest at every wedding? Whether in the home or in the church; whether the occasion be a simple or an elaborate one; whether a host of friends attend or only the witnesses—always and everywhere Jesus Christ should be recognized as the One who stands by to bless, and to unite the two lives for His own glory.

This means that the ceremony should be a Christian one, with prayer a vital part of it, and the will of God paramount. Then indeed, God may and will join together that which no man can put asunder.

Pack a Lunch That Gives Them a Lift (See Recipes Below.)

Victory Lunch Box

How's the vim, vigor and vitamin content on the put-up lunches for your school children and defense workers? You may not realize it, but the three "v's" have an important bearing on their intelligence quotient, for good, well balanced food makes both child and adult fit for whatever the day may bring. A poorly nourished body isn't receptive to learning exposure, nor is it capable of meeting the intensive requirements of physical or mental work.

Lunches should pull no punches. Just because they are compact, and it's difficult to have as much variety and hot food as when you are preparing the lunch in your own kitchen, is no reason for skipping over the lunch lightly. In the hope you can make up these shortages at dinner. This meal in the middle of the day should take care of a third of the day's food requirements and as such is not a matter to be considered lightly.

Yes, it's a challenge, homemakers! You may bake the best cake in miles around or turn out a roast that's proud to behold, or a dessert that's purely ambrosial, but if you don't put up a lunch that your child or defense worker husband eats with gusto, you won't get my vote for excellence.

Now, let's get to work! Sandwiches are a standby, but let's make them something more than peanut-butter and jelly or cheese between a couple slices of bread.

Sliced or chopped hard-cooked eggs, combined with pickle and moistened with salad dressing. Sliced tongue or ham with mustard or horseradish.

Liverwurst, mashed and seasoned with catsup. Chopped ham, chopped hard-cooked eggs, minced green pepper, cooked salad dressing.

Cream cheese, grated yellow cheese, chopped pimiento, chopped green olives, salad dressing to moisten. Ground corned beef, chopped pickle, and chopped ripe olives blended with mayonnaise. Peanut butter and honey or cream cheese and honey.

Meat loaf, lettuce, rye bread. Have a hot dish, too. This makes for top-notch efficiency besides giving the luncheon a hearty and substantial angle that your children or defense-plant husband will welcome.

How to do? Simply use a thermos bottle for soup or a hot drink or unwaxed paper cups and containers for hot foods. Packing the kind of lunch your family can work on should be your aim—an aim, which is fast gaining prominence because hours lost out of the plant or by children from school by illness, mean sabotage on the nutrition front.

LYNN SAYS:

Idea in a Box: Surprises are as welcome in a lunch box as on a birthday. Try adding a few stuffed prunes (with cream, cheese, honey and peanut butter or dates) just as an extra. It will go over big, as will a few salted nuts, a bit of stuffed celery and whole carrots.

Dress up lunch with a perky salad. They'll like cooked or canned green beans with cooked or canned carrots with lettuce and French dressing. Shredded cabbage with shredded carrots, strips of green pepper; grated carrots, diced pineapple and raisins; canned peas, chopped onion, hard-cooked egg. Devilled eggs are nice, too—with a touch of paprika for color.

Creamed meat or fish in the hollow of a bun which has been scooped out, and the top of the bun held on together with a toothpick is good. Try creamed dried beef, creamed sausages, tuna fish or salmon salad, or creamed stuffed eggs.

This Week's Menu

Lunch Box
*Vegetable Soup
*Tongue Sandwiches
*Grated Cheese Sandwiches
*Grated Carrot-Pineapple Salad
*Devilled Eggs
*Fresh Pear
*Honey Brownies
*Recipes Given

Do you ever realize how much the family raves over your good home-made vegetable soup? Yes, they do, and it will be especially welcome in the lunch box:

*Vegetable Soup.
1 soup bone
2 quarts cold water
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup diced carrots
1 cup sliced okra
1 cup green beans, cut
2 cups diced potatoes
2 cups tomatoes

Wash bone and remove all loose, small pieces of bone. Cover with water and let simmer for two hours. Remove bone from broth and cook all vegetables until tender. Season.

Salads make a complete meal of lunch besides providing the day's quota of vitamins. Neatly packed in small, waxed containers salads will retain their original freshness and appeal:

*Vitamin Salad.
1½ cups spinach leaves, raw
2 tablespoons chopped, mixed pickles
½ cup diced celery
1 teaspoon chopped onion
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 cup cottage cheese

Add pickles and celery, chopped onion and salt to spinach and mix well. Chill overnight in covered waxed paper container in refrigerator. Pack cottage cheese and mayonnaise in separate small paper containers to serve with spinach mixture.

Bright, fresh, juicy fruits such as oranges, pears, apples, bananas, grapes, individually wrapped in waxed paper will give a lift in the middle of the day. Then for variety's sake you might have a pudding packed in an individual paper container like this one:

Apricot Cream.
(Serves 6)
4 egg yolks
½ cup sugar
Juice and rind of 1 lemon
2 tablespoons hot water
½ cup strained apricot pulp
4 egg whites
2 tablespoons powdered sugar

Beat egg yolks, add sugar, lemon juice, water and apricot pulp. Cook over hot water until thick. Beat egg whites stiff and add powdered sugar. Fold into cooled, cooked mixture. Place in refrigerator until thick and cold.

Cookies with fruit or puddings polish off the dessert course, and child or plant worker is ready for an afternoon of real "production." Favorite cookies made with honey to keep in tune with the times are:

*Honey Brownies.
(Makes 2 dozen)
1 package semi-sweet chocolate chips
¼ cup shortening
2 eggs, beaten
6 tablespoons strained honey
¾ cup sifted flour
¾ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped nuts

Melt chocolate and shortening over hot water. Cool. Beat eggs until lemon-colored and add honey gradually. Add sifted dry ingredients. Mix in chocolate, add vanilla and nuts. Pour into greased, waxed-paper lined 8 inch square pan. Bake 35 minutes in a moderate (370-degree) oven.

Cake Making? Bread Making? Cookie Baking? Budget Fixing? House-keeping? You name the problem and explain it. WAR ON ALL FRONTS

In Jap Hands for 60 Days

By M. C. Ford

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

I am one of the Americans who survived two months of a Japanese prison. I was one of those forgotten men, charged with nothing, but reduced to the level of the lowest and vilest criminals in China. Two months in Bridgehouse, torture theater of Japanese terrorism in Shanghai, end of the road of missing men.

Strangely enough, for the first time in my life I was not afraid to die, to expect the worst.

Not far away and not so long ago, humble Chinese soldiers had died. I could see, through the small, rain-spattered window, the ruins of a five-story building which had been their front line. Braced for the worst, I sat quietly on a vermin-infested blanket.

In one corner a Baghdad millionaire lay sick and unattended. A Russian hotel manager knelt against the side wall and prayed. A British professor cajoled the guards for the medicine he needed. Twenty-four Chinese chattered softly among themselves, against the rules. Seven of them were sick with malaria.

A leper kept at a safe distance, except at mealtimes when he scrambled with the rest for his bowl of rice and later, in the same bowl, hot water flavored with tea.

Herded Together Like Animals.

All of us inhabited one wooden cage 14 feet wide and 17 feet long, giving on a wooden stage three feet above the cement floor, with a trough three feet wide separating the stage from the line of wooden pickets that made up the east wall and joined with pickets of the north wall. The other walls were solid boarding.

Murderers, pickpockets, dope fiends and opium smokers rubbed elbows with high and low. One Chinese, dying of consumption, slept next to me.

Followed Gestapo Methods.

Following Gestapo methods, five armed gendarmes had rung my doorbell in the middle of the night, searched my apartment and hauled me off to the "torture circus" with bundles of papers and files.

I settled down in Cage Number One in the old block, where I spent days sitting on the floor on a lice-infested Japanese military blanket, without reading matter or time-piece, and risking a beating every time I whispered to foreigners or Chinese.

When nine o'clock arrived we were permitted to lie down. The light in the center of the ceiling was on all night. I employed my mind picking out the Chinese character for "prisoner" and noting how many times it was used in the placard giving 13 regulations.

A Long, Hard Day Ahead.

On rising at 6 a. m., four or five men from each cage were allowed to put on shoes, which had to be left outside the cages, and hurry to the hydrant for a few minutes of cleaning faces, after which the next relay came out.

Breakfast was hot rice gruel, and was the best meal of the day. It was handed in via a small hole in the picketed door at 7 a. m., usually with one chopstick for each, but sometimes with none, therefore fingers were used. At eleven and four the food was rice and fishheads and a chunk of bread with a spoonful of brown sugar.

Frequent Change of Guards.

Guards were changed every two hours. We were alert in watching our steps when the worst ones were on duty. Punishment was a series of blows on the head, face or back with a rubber hose.

After two weeks I contracted fever and three days later was permitted to go upstairs to see a doctor. I had malaria. He prescribed powders which the guards gave me two days later when I was delirious.

While lying in a corner one day, the guard ordered me to sit up alongside the sick Chinese, whereupon I sat up. Each night I thought I would die, but the morning trip to the hydrant refreshed me and renewed my courage.

When I was recovering from malaria, the questioning began. I was taken to the fifth floor, with an escort who was careful to make me walk away from the railings lest I should be tempted to jump.

I was seated at a bench while the interrogator and the interpreter sat opposite and aside.

THE STORY OF BREAD

may well be called The Story of Civilization

Bread, the most venerable of prepared foods, has helped man, and man in turn has bettered the quality of his staff of life.

YEAST is the life of bread... and the story of yeast is the story of scientific research, uniform quality, mammoth production, modern refrigeration... and daily delivery to bakers in every city, town and village throughout the land... even by boat, by sled and by plane when other transportation is interrupted by floods and blizzards.

Anheuser-Busch is one of America's biggest sources of baker's yeast.

Year after year, we have striven with research and resources to better the methods and facilities for brewing Budweiser. To do this, a laboratory specializing in fermentation and nutrition was necessary. Discoveries made in the laboratory and in the plant have led to the development of products contributing to human necessity and progress. Some of these products would appear to have only a remote relationship to brewing, yet, they are the result of scientific research into many allied fields.

Endless research in making the world's leading beer has led to other products

VITAMINS, B COMPLEX—For manufacturers of pharmaceutical and food products. Our plant is one of the world's largest sources.

VITAMIN D—Anheuser-Busch produces enough of the basic material for Vitamin D to supply the entire American market.

CORN SYRUP—many millions of pounds annually for America's candy industry.

SYRUPS—for food, table and confectionery uses and special syrups for medicinal purposes.

STARCH—for food, textile, paper and other industries—millions of pounds annually.

VITAMINS FOR LIVESTOCK—We are America's biggest supplier of yeast vitamins used to fortify animal feeds.

REFRIGERATING EQUIPMENT—for retailers of frozen foods and ice cream the country over. This division is now working all-out on glider wing and fuselage assemblies for our Armed Forces.

DIESEL ENGINES—Adolphus Busch, founder of Anheuser-Busch, acquired the first rights to manufacture this revolutionary engine in America and thus started our great Diesel industry on its way.
