Midland Republicans want lizard on party platform

By Kathleen Petty
Staff Writer

The state Republican Party platform likely will include a formal opposition to the listing of the dunes sagebrush lizard after Midland representatives worked earlier this week to ensure the item was addressed.

Delegates planned to vote late Friday on the 2012 party platform that was considered as part of the State GOP Convention taking place through today in Fort Worth. The Texas Democratic Party also is hosting its convention this weekend.

James Beauchamp, Midland County Republican Party chairman, said Midland delegates worked during the early part of the convention to include a stance in the platform on environmentalists, particularly as they relate to the dunes sagebrush lizard.

As written, the platform states the Texas Republican Party opposes "extreme environmental groups that stymie legitimate business interests."

The platform also states the party opposes environmental efforts that "purposefully disrupt and stop" activity in the oil and gas industry and opposes listing the dunes sagebrush lizard as threatened or endangered. Finally, the party platform states the party supports the repeal of the Endangered Species Act.

Midland was allotted 72 delegates for the state convention, up from the just more than 60 it was permitted to bring during the last convention, Beauchamp said.

Of the delegates in attendance, Beauchamp said three sought to become delegates to the national convention later in the year.

Whether because it's a presidential election year or because of the U.S. Senate race runoff, Beauchamp said interest has been high among longtime Republicans in Midland and among those who

MPD: Man assaults female family member, officers

By James Cannon

A 34-year-old Midland man remains in custody after he was arrested Friday for allegedly breaking into a female family member's apartment, assaulting her and then assaulting officers.

Jonathan Eugene Fearn is being held on a $20,000 bond for a first-degree felony of burglary of a habitation with intent to commit another felony and a third-degree felony of assault on a public servant. Immigrations Custom Enforcement agents placed a detainer on Fearn, negating the possibility of a bond.

STAAR test results for ninth-graders 'sobering'

Associated Press

DALLAS — If the final standards already were in place, more than half of Texas high school freshmen would have failed the new, more rigorous end-of-course standardized tests in five key areas, figures released Friday by the state education agency show.

The new State of Texas Assessments of Academic Readiness, or STAAR, end-of-course tests gradually are replacing the Texas Assessment of Knowledge and Skills, or TAKS. This spring, more than 319,000 ninth-grade students took the STAAR exams for the first time in biology, world geography, algebra 1 and English 1 — writing and reading.

When their scores were judged against the state's final standards, which will be used in 2016, the passing rate in biology was 41 percent. In English writing, it was 34 percent.

"I think those numbers are very sobering," said Debbie Ratcliffe, a Texas Education Agency spokeswoman. "We wanted to present them and make them available to districts so that they would realize we all have a lot of work to do if we're going to keep these students on track to graduate on time."

But not all is as it appears, as the first passing standard is the easiest. Measured against the current standard, the ninth-graders' scores ranged from 87 percent passing biology to 55 percent passing English writing.

The tougher passing standards are phased in gradually to give students time to adjust. Standards will rise in both 2014 and 2016. State law now requires students to pass 15 of the tests throughout high school to graduate. Those who failed them this year can take them again in July.

"While we know there is always an adjustment period for students and teachers in a new testing program, results from the first STAAR assessments are encouraging overall, showing that students generally performed as expected or better," Texas Commissioner of Education Robert Scott said in a statement.

State education officials said school districts and teachers will need to adjust their lesson plans to ensure students in elementary and middle school will be prepared for the high school end-of-course exams. The education agency will make STAAR training available for

Boos scarcer, but Republican convention still divided

Associated Press

FORT WORTH — Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst addressed the Texas Republican Convention largely without boos Friday — a sign of unity in a powerful party still struggling with deep internal divisions between traditional conservatives and tea party activists.

The U.S. Senate candidate took the podium to warm applause and a partial standing ovation one day after some delegates launched into loud and prolonged boos as Gov. Rick Perry endorsed Dewhurst on the convention floor.

When the crowd quieted, a few people booed or yelled "Cruz!" in support of Dewhurst's opponent Ted Cruz, but they were quickly and forcefully shushed.

Dewhurst is competing with Cruz, a former state solicitor general and tea party favorite, for the Republican nomination to replace retiring Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison. They face a runoff July 31 after no one in a crowded GOP field won a majority of the votes cast in last month's primary.

Lieutenant governor since 2003, Dewhurst is the mainstream Republican choice. He says he has helped make Texas one of the most conservative states in the country, but also doesn't apologize for sometimes working with Democrats

Wealthy woman faces child porn charges

Associated Press

DALLAS — A wealthy Texas woman married to an attorney has been charged with collecting and trading child pornography online in what experts say is a rare case of a woman caught up in such activity.

Erika Susan Perdue has been undergoing addiction treatment since her April arrest on federal charges that she accessed child pornography from the computer in her $1.4 million, 4,000-square-foot home in the well-heeled Dallas enclave of University Park.

FBI agents who raided the home found child pornography on the computer, and Perdue admitted she'd been collecting it for 12 years, according to court records. She told investigators she used file-trading software every day to exchange images while her husband, an attorney who specializes in intellectual property cases, was at work.

"I've seen cases of women collecting or trading child porn, but not very often and not somebody in that socio-economic strata," said Nancy Hagan, the longtime executive director of the Alliance for Children, a Fort Worth child advocacy center.

A four-count indictment claims Perdue, 41, engaged in transporting, shipping, receiving and possessing child pornography. If convicted, she could face maximum prison sentences of 20 years for three of the counts and 10 years for the other.

She isn't accused of creating the images.

The search of Perdue's home was prompted by federal agents who, working undercover, logged into file-sharing programs and obtained 21 downloaded files containing child pornography, according to an FBI affidavit. The agents traced the IP address to Perdue's home, the affidavit states.

George "Buck" Johnson, one of three attorneys representing Perdue in the case, declined to comment.

Perdue and her husband, Mark, have been married since December 2009, records show. Mark Perdue is not named in the criminal complaint.

According to a court filing by the defense team, Since her arrest, Perdue has been undergoing unspecified treatment at a center outside Dallas. The facility identified in the document specializes in addressing "addictive behaviors and associated conditions," according to its website.

The filing says Perdue suffered a "serious psychiatric/medical setback" in early May, about two weeks after she was charged, making her unable to help with her own defense.

"Her counselor (at the center) remains optimistic that her mental state will improve with continued treatment, but not for several months," the document states.

Toby Shook, a Dallas criminal defense attorney who previously served as a state court prosecutor, said he has seen cases where women were involved in the distribution of child pornography, usually under the direction of men. But he said he couldn't recall one in which a woman was interested in trading or purchasing the images.

"It's very rare that women have an interest in sharing files," Shook said. "Almost all of the cases you see, as far as trading files, involve men."

Two Dallas-area women have been sentenced to prison for federal offenses related to child pornography within the past year, but both were involved in creating sexually explicit images, not simply viewing them.

Fay Dublin Smith

Wonderful wife, Mama, Granny, and friend, Fay Dublin Smith passed away on June 7, 2012. She will be missed, but her memory will be cherished with love by her big family and the many people whose lives she touched. Fay was born to Elizabeth and Ben Dublin May 31, 1925, in Midland, Texas, which would be her lifelong home. After graduating from Midland High School, Fay attended North Texas State for a year. Music was always a big part of her life. She was a wonderful pianist and sang beautifully, playing and singing at school, church, and social functions. She was regularly called on to perform at the First Presbyterian Church, where she was a member.

On October 26, 1946, Fay married the love of her life, James R. "J. R." Smith, also a lifelong Midland resident. As was tradition at the time, Fay joined her new husband as a member of First United Methodist Church. This was the beginning of years of service and friendship, as she became more involved in her new church home. Her love of music was a key part of her commitment, as she played piano for various Sunday School Classes and sang in the Chancel choir. She and J. R. were faithful members of the Fellowship Sunday School Class and volunteered for children's, youth, and Golden Agers programs. They also served as drivers for Meals on Wheels. Fay was a member of the Midland Audubon Society and was an avid bird watcher, a pleasure she passed on to her family. She spent many happy hours watching the birds in her yard and was thrilled to help family and friends identify any new birds they sighted.

Fay and J.R. were blessed with 5 children, to whom she was totally devoted. She was always busy keeping track of scout meetings, Little League games, PTA meetings, and the piano lessons, choir practice, and band through which she passed on her love of music. She also loved cooking for her big family and friends. Always thinking of others, Fay turned her cooking skills into service, often providing meals for those who were not able to cook for themselves.

As her children got older, Fay was able to go back to being more involved in the music she loved. She returned to the Chancel choir, played in the hand bell choir, and played piano for any Sunday School class that needed her. Fay became even more involved in the church music program when she became secretary for the Director of Music. This was a position she happily filled for 30 years.

Fay was preceded in death by her husband, J. R. Smith and her brother, James R. Dublin. She is survived by sister-in-law, Cleo Dublin; and a loving family of children, Pat Pruitt and husband, David; Don Smith and wife, Nancy; Bill Smith and wife, Tammy; Bob Smith and wife, Shelia; and Kay Baker and husband, Marvin. Ten grandchildren and four great-grandchildren also survive: Jennifer Bingo and husband, Kyle; Danny Smith and wife, Jenny; David Smith and wife, Marissa; Will Smith and wife, Casey; Elizabeth Smith; Kimberly Smith; Michael Smith; Betsy McKeller and husband, Michael; Emily Baker and Caroline Baker; as well as great grandchildren: Ingrid and Hugo Smith and Sydney and Peyton Smith. Fay also has three step children and six step grandchildren and many nieces and nephews, who she dearly loved. Her visits with all these family members usually ended with her saying, "I love you so tight."

The family would like to extend a special thank you to Becky, Sandy, Eva, and all of the Hospice of Midland Staff. 'Visitation will be held 5:00 - 7:00 p.m., at Ellis Funeral Home on Sunday, June 10, 2012. Funeral services will be held at 12:00 Noon on Monday, June 11, 2012, at First United Methodist Church.

Annie Oakley's hat, guns to be auctioned

Associated Press

DALLAS — Relatives of legendary sharpshooter Annie Oakley are offering up a collection of items — including her Stetson hat, guns, letters and photographs — in an auction that one expert says hits the mark for its breadth and sentimental value.

On Sunday, Heritage Auctions will offer up about 100 Oakley-related items in Dallas, including a 12-gauge Parker Brothers shotgun that is expected to fetch about $100,000. Two Marlin .22 caliber rifles are expected to sell for more than $20,000 each.

Oakley gained fame in the 1880s and 1890s for her shooting skills as a performer in Buffalo Bill's Wild West show. She died in 1926 at the age of 66, but has remained a pop culture icon.

"The country kind of took her to heart," said Tom Slater, Heritage's director of Americana auctions.

Over the decades, her likeness has appeared on everything from dolls to lunchboxes and her life story inspired a Hollywood movie and Broadway's "Annie Get Your Gun."

"She was just sparkling as a public performer," said Paul Fees, former senior curator at the Buffalo Bill Historical Center in Cody, Wyo., with whom Heritage consulted on the auction. "This petite person handling firearms was startling. She was a natural at it. She made it look easy."

The items are being offered up by Oakley's great-grandnieces — sisters Tommye Tait and Terrye Holcomb of California. They inherited the items from their mother, Billie Butler Serene, who died in 2009 at the age of 95.

Serene was raised by her grandparents, and her grandfather, William Butler, was the brother of Oakley's husband, Frank Butler, a marksman who became Oakley's manager. Oakley and Frank Butler frequently visited and Oakley taught Serene how to handle a gun.

"They were fun and they were almost like surrogate grandparents to her," Holcomb said.

Holcomb said she had grown up with many of the items, such as Oakley's famous Stetson with a ribbon trim — expected to sell for more than $4,000 — which was a favorite for school plays and Halloween costumes.

But Holcomb and her sister didn't realize how many of Oakley's possessions their mother had until they went through the West Los Angeles house after her death.

In this handout photo provided by Heritage Auctions, Annie Oakley is seen as The Western Girl in a Cabinet Photo, signed and inscribed on verso. This is one of a series of photographs taken in 1902 or 1903 in New York. Relatives of Oakley are selling items that once belonged to the legendary sharpshooter including a Stetson hat, guns, letters and photographs.

Associated Press

Fees said several museums across the country have collections related to Oakley, including the Garst Museum's Annie Oakley Center in her hometown of Greenville, Ohio, and the Buffalo Bill Historical Center.

What makes this auction significant, Fees said, is the number of items in the collection and the fact that it's been in the family all this time.

He also said many of the letters speak to how close the family was. In one letter to William Butler, Oakley refers to Serene, telling him to "give dear little Billie a big hug."

"The correspondence in this collection is really emotionally revealing," Fees said.

The photos in the auction include several of Oakley hunting with her dog, Dave, and more formal shots of her posing with a gun. A promotional mini-postcard that Oakley sent William Butler has the words "Compliments of Annie Oakley" on the front with an adjacent heart that's been pierced with a bullet.

4 sentenced for stealing fuel from Army

Authorities say three West Texas men have received federal prison sentences and another is on probation for stealing $290,000 worth of aviation fuel from the Army.

Tomas Quintero and Luis Campos were employed by a contractor that supplied fuel to military aircraft at Biggs Army Airfield in El Paso. They would steal the fuel and sell it to Fernando and Richard Baca, who used it on their gravel trucks, the office of the Comptrollers Criminal Investigation Division said in a statement Friday.

All four have pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit theft. Quintero received a 30-month sentence while Campos got four months in prison. Fernando Baca, also pleaded guilty to IRS-related charges and received a 15-month sentence while Ricardo Baca is on five years' probation.

Man guilty in health care fraud conspiracy

Prosecutors say a 45-year-old Houston man has pleaded guilty to participating in a massive health care fraud conspiracy.

U.S. Attorney Kenneth Magidson said Friday that Floyd Leslie Brooks admitted he referred Medicare beneficiaries to City Nursing Services of Texas Inc. in exchange for illegal kickbacks.

The plea agreement states that Brooks received 32 checks totaling $13,700 for referring beneficiaries to City Nursing's owner, Umawa Oke Imo.

Imo was sentenced to more than 27 years in prison last year for his main role in the conspiracy. Imo billed Medicare and Medicaid more than $45 million for physical therapy services at City Nursing that never occurred.

Brooks was allowed to remain on bond pending sentencing Sept. 20. He faces up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine.

Texas court overturns $5 million drug judgment

The Texas Supreme Court has reversed a nearly $5 million judgment against prescription drug maker Centocor Inc., that blamed the company for a Corpus Christi woman's illness after she took medication to treat an existing condition.

A Texas appeals court had upheld a jury's findings that the Johnson & Johnson subsidiary was liable for fraud for misrepresenting its drug Remicade as a treatment in 2001 for Crohn's disease, a bowel condition. The woman, Patricia Hamilton, contended an instructional video she saw about the drug emphasized its benefits but not possible adverse reactions.

Centocor appealed to the high court, which unanimously ruled Friday that existing case law shows it's up to the prescribing physician and not the drug manufacturer to discuss side effects with the patient.

Shooter's beard stops court hearing

A hearing to consider pre-trial motions in the murder case against an Army psychiatrist charged in the Fort Hood shooting rampage has been delayed after defendant Maj. Nidal Hasan showed up in court wearing a beard.

The trial judge, Col. Gregory Gross, said Hasan's appearance at the hearing Friday violated Army regulations and is considered a disruption to the proceedings.

Gross says the hearing will be delayed until the near future when Hasan either complies with military grooming standards or watches the hearing from outside the courtroom on a video feed. Hasan's lawyers said they'll seek an exception to the grooming rule on religious grounds.

Hasan faces the death penalty if convicted of 13 counts of premeditated murder and 32 counts of attempted premeditated murder in the November 2009 attack.

Pipeline worker hurt in Panhandle explosion

An equipment operator was slightly hurt in a fiery explosion near a natural gas pipeline in the Texas Panhandle.

Hemphill County Sheriff Morse Burroughs said the accident happened Friday morning about 11 miles east of Canadian.

Burroughs said a Presser Construction Inc. crew was working on a pipeline that had been shut off. The sheriff said some residual gas got sucked into the running engine of a track hoe, which ignited.

Burroughs said the track hoe operator suffered minor injuries and was treated and released from a hospital. The track hoe and three service trucks burned. Firefighters monitored the blaze, which burned itself out.

Massive oak lifted in League City, being relocated

Two cranes have been used to lift a massive oak in Southeast Texas after delays caused by the staggering weight of the tree.

The estimated 400-ton Compton oak was heaved from its site in League City about 9 p.m. Thursday.

Officials said the so-called Ghirardi oak, named for one of the city's early farm families, should be hauled to a park next week. Workers dug out soil around the more than 100-year-old oak to place the tree on a steel plate for transport.

Some equipment buckled Wednesday as cranes tried to lift the tree, delaying the moving process.

Plans to cut down the tree for street widening were criticized by some residents. League City leaders are spending nearly $200,000 to relocate the tree and put the process online via webcam.

HOUSTON

Bills checked after libraries receive counterfeit cash

Bogus cash has turned up at some Houston libraries, and that's led to expansion of a bill-checking system.

Officials said staffers are using counterfeit detector pens to ID fake bills printed on copier paper, not cotton-and-linen-fiber paper used by the government. A mark placed on the bill turns black if counterfeit paper has been used.

The Houston Chronicle reported Thursday that city libraries for about a month have been checking all bills larger than $1.

recently have become involved.

"We've had a lot of people participate in the process; a lot of them are new people. I think that's really, really good," he said. "Anytime you can have new people and even some younger people, I think that's great."

On Friday, delegates and others in attendance at the convention heard from former presidential candidate Rick Santorum, who spoke during the evening gala, Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison and Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst, among others.

In addition to environmental issues, the platform includes opinions on education policy to stances supporting the strengthening of families, opposing abortion and supporting marriage as between a man and a woman.

Small government was supported throughout the platform. One item expressed the state Republican Party's commitment to the 10th amendment and state sovereignty.

Requiring elected officials to participate in any program enforced upon citizens also was stated as a priority as was limiting government organizations, including the U.S. Census Bureau, which the platform states should not be permitted to request any information beyond the number of people residing in a dwelling.

Beauchamp said issues raised typically are standard to those that are important to the party during the year.

Democrats also voted on a platform at their convention in Houston.

Updates have been posted on the Democratic Party's website opposing many of the Republican Party's stances.

The Democratic Party of Texas calls the Republican Party anti-senior and anti-women. The GOP's continued stance on Planned Parenthood and its ability to receive funding for women's health care programs is one example of why Democrats have pegged the Republican Party as anti-women in Texas, according to a release from the Democratic Party.

David Rosen, chairman of the Midland County Democratic Party, said Midland County was allotted 17 delegates to attend the state convention.

Speakers at the Democratic State Convention included Julián Castro, mayor of San Antonio, and Ron Kirk, former Dallas mayor and U.S. trade representative.

Texas Democrats focus on building party, rallying

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Texas Democrats put their brightest stars on display at their convention Friday as they tried to rebrand the party as pro-family and pro-education while ridiculing the growing influence of the tea party movement among Republicans.

San Antonio Mayor Julian Castro, the keynote speaker, called on Democrats to take advantage of how Republican activists are marginalizing moderates. He said many mainstream Republicans, particularly business people, are frustrated with how radical the party has become and are looking for an alternative.

"I know, Texas Democrats, that we've struggled," Castro said. "But I believe that now more than ever that we have an opportunity to once again bring Texans the leadership they demand and deserve. That's the opportunity before us right here, right now."

Democrats are struggling for relevance in Texas, where they haven't won a statewide office since 1994 — the longest losing streak for Democrats in any state. But with a rapidly growing Hispanic population and key victories in the state's largest cities and counties, the mood during the convention in Houston was optimistic about the future, if not for November.

Castro, 37, was introduced by his twin brother, state Rep. Joaquin Castro, who doesn't face significant challenge to represent San Antonio in Congress next year. The two men are considered rising stars within the party with strong support among the state's growing Hispanic community.

More than 7,000 delegates are attending the Democratic convention, hoping to rally hardcore supporters to go out and recruit more supporters.

to ensure key bills are approved by the Texas Legislature.

Tea party groups have branded Dewhurst too moderate. Ex-Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin and South Carolina Sen. Jim DeMint have endorsed Cruz, as has former presidential candidate Rick Santorum.

Dewhurst trumpeted his conservative accomplishments in his speech at the Fort Worth Convention Center, saying he helped Texas defund groups affiliated with abortion providers, such as Planned Parenthood, while also helping pass 51 tax cuts.

He said his record has even impressed hardcore conservatives, saying, "Tea party leaders know because last year, I helped cut $14 billion out of our state spending."

Dewhurst also stressed the importance of religion: "We know that whatever success that we've had in Texas is due to our deeply held conservative principles and the will to implement them and by the grace of the good Lord."

Cruz is set to address the convention this weekend, but as he headed to a Texas Republican Women's gathering nearby on Friday, he stopped to argue with Tarrant County delegate Sherri Heinzman and her 17-year-old daughter Sara. The two were waving Dewhurst signs and claimed Cruz was soft on opposing gay marriage.

Cruz responded that Palin and Santorum would not have endorsed someone who wasn't a true conservative — and he looked ready to keep talking, but was pulled away by an aide.

The intraparty senatorial fight has laid bare divisions within the Texas GOP— but it's not the only example. State House Speaker Joe Straus took the stage later Friday to sporadic cries of "Oust Straus!" Some delegates even walked out. Straus made his appearance with the Republican party's full slate of state lawmakers and legislative candidates, however, making it difficult for detractors to focus their wrath on him.

Straus took power in 2009 after forming a coalition between moderate Republicans and Democrats when the Texas House was almost evenly divided. After tea party members helped form a 101-49 supermajority two years later, conservative Republicans tried to depose Straus but failed.

Since then, grassroots groups have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars to oppose Straus, and Republican state Rep. Brian Hughes of Marshall has announced his intent to challenge the speaker for the House leadership.

cers the man had been calling her "nonstop" for over an hour, arrived at her apartment "highly intoxicated" and began banging on the front door, according to Fearn's arrest report.

Fearn jumped the fence and entered the apartment through the back door after the victim refused to let him inside, she told officers. Fearn then allegedly slapped the woman in the face and took her phone out of her hands. The assault continued when the pair entered the bedroom, the report stated.

Fearn continued to be belligerent and began to struggle with corrections officers after he was booked into the Midland County Central Detention Center. During the fight, he allegedly kicked one of the officers in the groin, court documents stated.

If convicted of the first-degree felony, Fearn could face between five and 99 years in prison. He also could receive up to 10 years if convicted of assaulting a police officer.

teachers this summer — much of it online — and predicts that more children will enroll in summer school than ever before.

The Houston school district, the largest in Texas, posted a message on its website Friday that said its board will hire 228 additional summer school teachers. The district's summer session begins Monday.

"I think it's safe to say we were all hoping for higher scores," said Bill Hammond, president and CEO of the Texas Association of Business. "While the results are disappointing, and in some cases surprising, this also shows us why we need a strong accountability system in Texas."

But state Rep. Mike Villarreal saw it differently, saying test results alone are not an adequate measure for evaluating schools or students.

"We need to tone down the obsession with test scores and test preparation," said Villarreal, adding that the Legislature needs to bring balance to the state testing system during the next session. "It's hard to know if a low score is the result of a student having a bad day or if a high score is the result of a teacher putting aside enriching lessons and just teaching to the test."

Man sentenced to 35 years for indecency with a child

From staff reports

A Midland jury convicted and sentenced Robert Lee Trevino to 35 years in prison Friday for a second-degree felony of indecency with a child by sexual contact.

The jury in the 385th Judicial District Court also fined Trevino $10,000. Because of the defendant's previous convictions for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, the punishment range was five to 99 years or life in prison.

The state was represented by Michael McCarthy and Leah Robertson, and the defense was represented by Woody Leverett, according to a news release by the Midland County District Attorney's Office.

Dublin to celebrate despite snub by Dr Pepper

Today, if you drive northwest from Waco on Texas 6, you'll pass through Dublin.

The town's name won't change, as it has one day each year for decades, to "Dr Pepper, Texas," and no one will be crowned Miss Pretty Peggy Pepper.

Those long-standing traditions died with the settlement of a lawsuit in January that also threatened to kill the iconic soft drink bottling plant on Patrick Street, the town's main drag. The plant, though, has reinvented itself with a new line of beverages it hopes to begin selling in Houston soon.

The plant's annual birthday celebration will continue — about 2,000 people are expected to attend, slightly fewer than last year — but without mention of the soft drink with which it has been most closely associated during its 121 years.

"We're still having the party," said Jeff Kloster, vice president of what's now called Dublin Bottling Works. "It's going to have the same feel, and it's going to celebrate the history of that plant."

Kloster's tone is upbeat, even though his company faces its greatest challenge in more than a century. The plant soldiers on, despite being stripped of its rights to make the cult-classic beverage "Dublin Dr Pepper" with vintage bottling equipment and cane sugar instead of high-fructose corn syrup.

But this year's festival will be different, like a family reunion after a divorce.

"You won't see the Dr Pepper signs up on the city limits of Dublin this year," Kloster said flatly.

Was that just a hint of bitterness in his voice? Who could blame him if it was?

Two weeks after last year's festival, Kloster was walking the floor of the plant, founded in 1891, that his family has run for three generations when a reporter called asking about the lawsuit. It was the first he'd heard of it.

Dr Pepper Snapple Group, the multi-billion-dollar Plano-based corporation that owns the formula for Dr Pepper, sued the Dublin plant, claiming it was infringing on corporate trademarks by putting the "Dublin" name on Dr Pepper bottles and selling soft drinks outside its prescribed territory.

'Corporate jealousy'

For decades, Dr Pepper corporate celebrated the unique Dublin brand. But in recent years, it came to see the Dublin operation as a threat. In the response to the lawsuit, Kloster accused the big company of "corporate jealousy."

Any potential threat that Dublin Dr Pepper posed to the Plano company or its other bottlers paled compared with the marketing benefits it generated. Dublin Dr Pepper was soft drink chic, a Texas treasure amid a sea of unremarkable sugar water.

But that no longer seemed to matter.

In January, after months of costly legal battling, Kloster settled the case, agreed to stop making Dr Pepper and removed all mentions of the drink from the factory.

Triple XXX Root Beer

He refuses, though, to let Dr Pepper's corporate bullying get him down. The plant continues to make Triple XXX Root Beer, and it's rolling out six new drinks, including Vanilla Cream Soda, Cherry Limeade and Vintage Cola. They're all made with cane sugar in the same classic way the Dublin plant always has operated, and each is emblazoned with the Dublin name.

"Since we own them, we don't have any licensing issue," Kloster said. "We're going to sell them everywhere."

While Kloster declined to discuss the private company's finances or how much it's spent on the new sodas, it clearly faces an uphill battle without the affiliation of a national brand and the distribution capabilities to blanket the market.

Two factors in success

Soft drink success comes down to two things: brand recognition and shelf space, said Tom Pirko, managing director of the consulting firm Bevmark.

While the Dublin drinks may struggle to gain market prominence, they should benefit from an awareness of the Dublin name and a strong dose of retro chic.

"There is a part of the soft drink business that is nostalgia-based," Pirko said. "People like to reach back to something familiar."

And that may be enough to generate a following.

"There's a sense of staying power," he said. "The fact that they've been around a long time could help them. I really think they have a shot."

This weekend, then, isn't about beauty contests or name changes. It's truly a birthday, or perhaps, a re-birthday.

Pentagon crackdown on free guns riles some police

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Defense Department recently fired off a round of letters warning state law enforcement officials to track down every gun, helicopter and Humvee that the military had given them under a $2.6 billion surplus program or have their access to the handouts cut off.

The problem, according to the states: At least some of them already had turned over that information.

All the same, officials at the Defense Logistics Agency have stopped issuing weapons to thousands of police departments until they're satisfied they've had a full accounting of where all the giveaways have landed.

While some of the state liaisons said they don't expect major hassles complying with the broad review, others said Friday that the letters show the Defense Department's own troubles keeping abreast of paperwork and add another layer to an overly bureaucratic process that, on its face, is fairly straightforward.

The defense agency's Law Enforcement Support Office provides police and sheriffs' departments with equipment ranging from guns and helicopters to computers and air conditioners and even toilet paper. The goods are cheap or free to acquire, but much of them come with strict rules that prohibit them from being sold and dictate how they must be tracked.

Associated Press inquiries into how the program is administered in all 50 states and several U.S. territories, however, show that most of them only keep paper records, and the few states that keep electronic records only recently made the switch from paper.

"That's the problem with the entire program is it's paper-based when it should be automated," said Michigan National Guard Master Sgt. David Sass.

Sass, who has been the state's coordinator for just four months, said he already feels like he's dealing with a broken system.

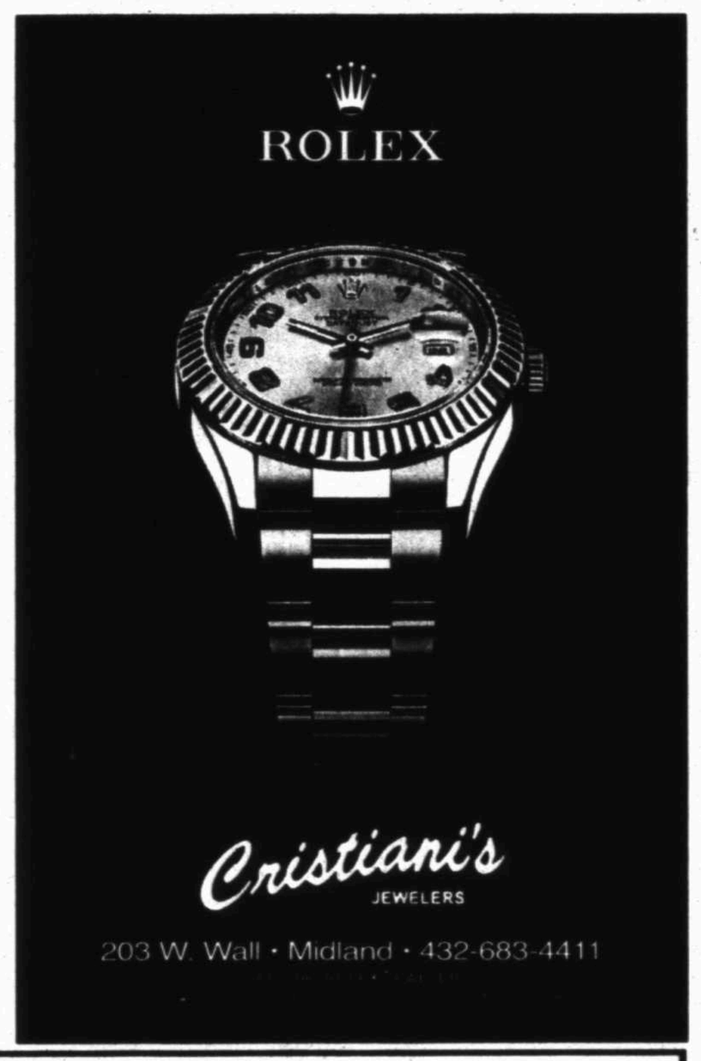
"The current program they have is inefficient and ineffective and truly not of the quality and value we need to accomplish our ultimate goal of property accountability," Sass said.

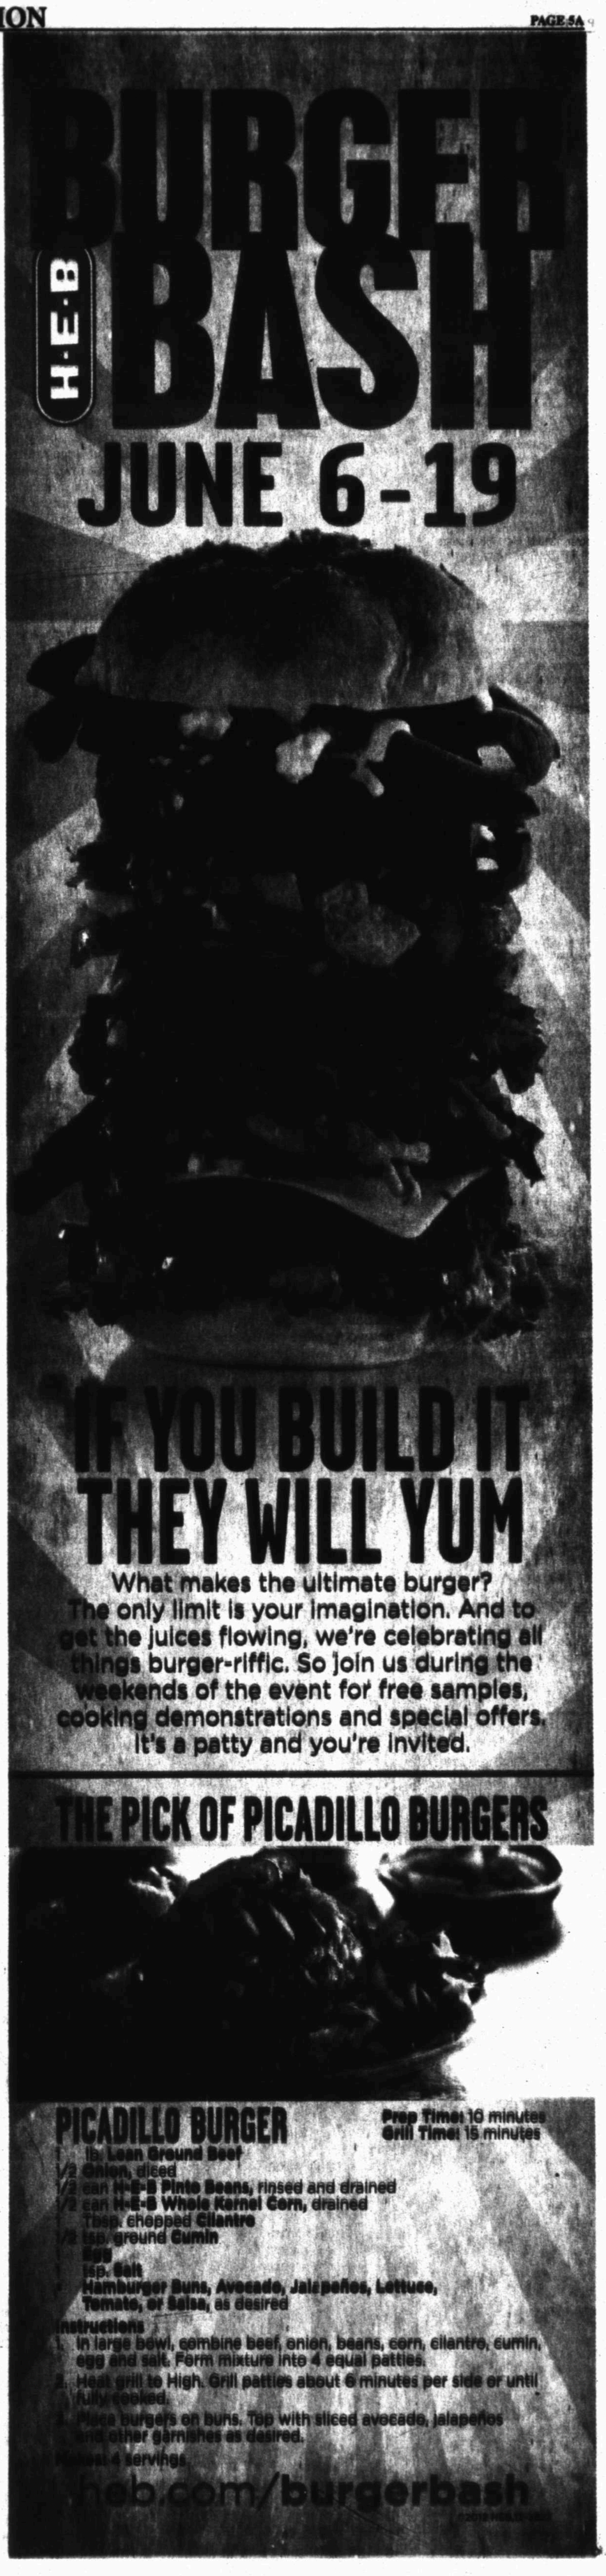
What worries Sass the most is being asked to certify, under the penalty of perjury, what law enforcement agencies tell him about the weapons they got from the Pentagon. The letters the Defense Department sent out late last month demand "a complete (100 percent) weapons physical inventory," in accordance with the program's rules.

Sass said there are more law enfacement agencies in his state than there are work days in the year and it would be impossible for him to personally check the inventory of each one.

"I'm quite concerned," he said. "Realistically, how can we be expected to verify that they have all their weapons without them being honest?"

The military decided to conduct a "one-time, clean sweep" of all state inventories instead of reviewing them piecemeal, said Kenneth MacNevin, a spokesman for the federal agency. While some gear, including guns, has been stolen or otherwise gone missing over the years, MacNevin said the reporting requirements themselves aren't new and that the review wasn't prompted by anything specific.





OIL BRIEFS
FROM WIRE REPORTS

HOUSTON

Weekly US oil, gas rig count up by 4 to 1,984

The number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. is up four this week to 1,984.

Houston-based oilfield services company Baker Hughes Inc. reported Friday that 1,414 rigs were exploring for oil and 565 were looking for gas. Five were listed as miscellaneous. A year ago this week, Baker Hughes reported 1,855 rigs.

Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, Colorado gained fours rigs and Louisiana three, while California, Oklahoma and Texas each were up two.

Oklahoma declined by one.

NEW YORK

Oil price slips on weak economy

The price of oil fell slightly Friday on the prospect of weak economic growth with no immediate assistance from the U.S Federal Reserve.

Oil ended the week at $84.10 per barrel, within $1 of its close last week. It remains near its lowest level since October of last year.

Higher oil production and weakness in economies around the world that are now burning less gasoline and other fuels have helped push down crude prices 14 percent in the last month and 25 percent from a high in February. Reports in recent days of weak job growth in the U.S., a deepening financial crisis in Spain and slowing growth in China have rattled markets.

"It's a world of terrible news and a huge build (of oil stocks)," says Rich Ilczyszyn, an analyst and founder of the trading firm iiTrader.com.

U.S. drivers have welcomed the lower oil prices, though. Retail gasoline prices have fallen steadily since their peak of $3.94 a gallon April 6. The national average fell half a penny to $3.555 Friday, according to the Oil Price Information Service, AAA, and Wright Express.

U.S. benchmark crude fell 72 cents Friday, a drop of 0.8 percent. Brent crude, which is used to make gasoline in much of the U.S., fell 46 cents to $99.47.

More declines could be on the way. Julian Jessop, Chief Global Economist at Capital Economics, thinks oil prices will end the year "much lower than they are now."

Chesapeake shareholders vent, rebuke board

Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY — Chesapeake Energy Corp. shareholders rebuked the company's board by withholding support for two directors up for re-election at Friday's annual meeting. Both directors have tendered their resignation.

Shareholders also withheld their support for Chesapeake's executive compensation plan and peppered CEO Aubrey McClendon with questions about the corporate governance and accountability of the nation's second largest producer of natural gas.

Shares of the Oklahoma City-based company are worth nearly 40 percent less than a year ago. And Chesapeake still has big spending plans even though it's taking in less cash because of a plunge in natural gas prices. It also needs to sell off billions of dollars in assets to service a huge debt load.

"Something is out-of-balance here at Chesapeake," said shareholder Gerald Armstrong of Denver, whose proposal to reincorporate the company in Delaware passed with the support of 53 percent of the votes cast. Armstrong said the move would bring greater accountability to the company but that Chesapeake had resisted it. The proposal is nonbinding.

Armstrong said he filed his proposal in January before media reports raised questions about whether McClendon's personal business interests were in conflict with those of the company he runs. The reports helped sink an already depressed stock price. They also painted a picture of a board that accepted better-than-average pay and perks in return for keeping a loose rein on the CEO.

The reports disclosed that McClendon was allowed to borrow money from a company that Chesapeake was doing business with. Shareholders began calling for a shake-up of the board after Chesapeake acknowledged that directors hadn't fully scrutinized the loans' details.

"The absence of good government practices has become more apparent," Armstrong said. "Accountability is what it's all about, and it's time for a change."

Change, at least in the make-up of the board, is coming. Chesapeake has agreed with activist investor Carl Icahn and Southeastern Asset Management, its largest shareholder, to replace four of nine board members with directors they choose. The company also stripped McClendon of the chairman title and plans to name a new independent board chairman by June 22.

The two directors who resigned Friday are V. Burns Hargis and Richard K. Davidson.

A representative of Icahn Capital, Vincent J. Intrieri, said the organization is demanding better corporate governance. Intrieri said McClendon is a great oil and gas executive but that even the best executives need a strong board of directors to oversee their decisions.

McClendon and his company have been at the forefront of a boom in U.S. natural gas production. Just a few years ago it appeared the U.S. was running out of natural gas. Now the supply is so abundant that prices have dropped to levels last seen 10 years ago.

That plunge has left Chesapeake short on cash to service the large amount of debt it accumulated while buying up land for drilling. To fill the gap, Chesapeake plans to sell as much as $14 billion of its assets in 2012.

Pennsylvania might pay for cleanup of Shell refinery site

Associated Press

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Lawmakers briefed on Gov. Tom Corbett's package of financial incentives for a planned petrochemical refinery in western Pennsylvania say it could also include the cost to clean up pollution from the zinc smelter that's there now.

That revelation by two state senators Friday is the latest on Corbett's plans for the Shell Oil Co. facility. His administration has shared those plans sparingly with the public.

Lawmakers say it'd be the biggest package of taxpayer-paid incentives in Pennsylvania's history.

Sen. John Blake said the plans revolve around a previously disclosed tax credit worth up to $1.7 billion over 25 years and a newly created tax-free zone for the site.

But Sen. John Wozniak said the cost of an environmental cleanup would be limited since it's being turned into another industrialized use.

Feds postpone lease auction in Talladega forest

Associated Press

ANNISTON, Ala. — An auction for drilling rights in the Talladega National Forest is off.

The U.S. Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management announced Friday that they would delay the June 14 auction for oil and gas drilling rights to allow more public informational meetings. Forest Service Chief Tom Tidwell said the agency wants to ensure people have ample input into decisions involving the management of national forests.

Ray Magliozzi, left and his brother Tom, hosts of National Public Radio's "Car Talk" show, in Cambridge, Mass., pose in 2008. The Magliozzi brothers said Friday they will stop making new episodes of their comic auto advice show at the end of September, 25 years after "Car Talk" began in Boston. The show airs every Saturday morning and is National Public Radio's most popular program. Older brother Tom is 74 years old, and the brothers say it's time to stop and smell the cappuccino.

'Car Talk' duo retiring; reruns to continue

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The comic mechanics on NPR's "Car Talk" are pulling into the garage.

Brothers Tom and Ray Magliozzi said Friday they will stop making new episodes of their joke-filled auto advice show at the end of September, 25 years after "Car Talk" began in Boston. Repurposed versions of old shows will stay on National Public Radio indefinitely, however.

The show airs every Saturday morning and is NPR's most popular program.

"We've managed to avoid getting thrown off NPR for 25 years, giving tens of thousands of wrong answers and had a hell of a time every week talking to callers," Ray Magliozzi said. "The stuff in our archives still makes us laugh. So we figured, why keep slaving over a hot microphone?"

The duo will continue writing their "Dear Tom and Ray" column twice a week, NPR said.

With their byplay and Boston accents, "Car Talk" was as much about laughs as motor advice. On last week's show, a caller confessed that she had broken the clutches of some ex-boyfriends' cars and was now worrying that she was damaging her own.

"That might be the reason none of your relationships lasted," she was told.

The two men proved that public radio didn't have to be stuffy, said Doug Berman, executive producer of the show. "Car Talk" began as a local call-in show on Boston's BUR radio in 1977. It's now on 660 stations across the country, with some 3.3 million listeners a week.

"The guys are culturally right up there with Mark Twain and the Marx Brothers," Berman said. "They will stand the test of time. People will still be enjoying them years from now. They're that good."

The staff has stored and logged about 12,500 phone calls since the show began, rating them in order of their entertainment value, Berman said. They will take the best and use them for the repurposed shows. Berman said he figured there was about eight years' worth of strong material without the show having to repeat itself again.

"I'm the producer of all their shows, and I can't remember most of (the calls)," he said.

"Car Talk" has tested out the repurposed show and is convinced it will work. There's a strong wish among NPR stations to keep the show going even if there isn't fresh material, he said.

Berman said he knew the retirement was a possibility; Tom is 74. That didn't stop Ray, 63, from mocking him. "My brother has always been work-averse," he said. "Now, apparently, even the one hour a week is killing him."

In a goodbye message posted on their website and titled "Time to Get Even Lazier," Tom wrote, "We're hoping to be like 'I Love Lucy' and air 10 times a day on 'NPR at Nite' in 2075."

Mob attacks women at Egypt anti-sex assault rally

A mob of hundreds of men assaulted women holding a march demanding an end to sexual harassment Friday, with the attackers overwhelming the male guardians and groping and molesting several of the female marchers in Cairo's Tahrir Square.

From the ferocity of the assault, some of the victims said it appeared to have been an organized attempt to drive women out of demonstrations and trample on the pro-democracy protest movement.

The attack follows smaller scale assaults on women this week in Tahrir, the epicenter of the uprising that forced Hosni Mubarak to step down last year. Thousands have been gathering in the square this week in protests over a variety of issues — mainly over worries that presidential elections this month will secure the continued rule by elements of Mubarak's regime backed by the ruling military.

Earlier in the week, an Associated Press reporter witnessed about 200 men assault a woman who eventually fainted before men trying to help could reach her.

Friday's march was called to demand an end to sexual assaults. Around 50 women participated, surrounded by a larger group of male supporters who joined to hands to form a protective ring around them. The protesters carried posters saying, "The people want to cut the hand of the sexual harasser," and chanted, "The Egyptian girl says it loudly, harassment is barbaric."

AFGHANISTAN

General apologizes for Afghan deaths in airstrike

PATROL BASE PUL-I-ALAM — The top commander of U.S. and NATO troops in Afghanistan offered a somber apology on Friday in an eastern province where officials say 18 civilians — half of them children — were killed in a coalition airstrike this week.

U.S. Marine Gen. John Allen spent several hours with local Afghans to express his regrets about Wednesday's pre-dawn raid to capture a Taliban operative in Baraki Barak district of Logar province.

"We take these deaths very seriously, and I grieve with their families," Allen told the provincial governor, an elderly man with a long, white beard and gray turban. "I have children of my own, and I feel the pain of this."

Hours after Allen's visit, the U.S.-led coalition issued a statement saying that it had completed its initial assessment of the operation and confirmed that "in addition to the insurgents killed during the operation, it's also responsible for the unintended, but nonetheless tragic, death of Afghan civilians."

Nighttime raids on militants taking cover in villages are a major irritant in Afghan President Hamid Karzai's relationship with the international military coalition. Karzai said the raids put civilians at risk of injury or death. Military officials say such operations are key to capturing and killing Taliban leaders.

Allen left his office in the Afghan capital in the early afternoon and boarded a Blackhawk helicopter that flew him 25 minutes south to Logar.

VATICAN CITY

Vatican hits back at Italy over document seizure

The Vatican chastised Italian authorities on Friday for seizing documents intended for the pope during a raid on the home of the recently ousted Vatican bank chief, reminding them that the Holy See is a sovereign state whose officials and documents enjoy immunity protections.

In a statement, the Vatican said it expected that Italian judicial authorities would recognize and respect its internationally recognized sovereign status in any proceedings concerning Ettore Gotti Tedeschi.

Italian paramilitary police raided Gotti Tedeschi's Piacenza home on Tuesday as part of a corruption investigation into Italy's state-controlled aerospace giant Finmeccanica. He is not under investigation, and at the time of the raid prosecutors said the search had nothing to do with Gotti Tedeschi's recently terminated role as president of the Vatican bank.

But during the raid, police seized documentation Gotti Tedeschi had prepared for the pope concerning his controversial May 24 ouster as president of the Vatican bank, known as the Institute for Religious Works.

In an unprecedentedly harsh move, the bank's board fired Gotti Tedeschi in a no-confidence vote, accusing him of leaking documents, failing to do his job and impeding the Vatican's efforts to be more transparent in its financial dealings.

Benjamin Perez, right, walks Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner I'll Have Another after a news conference at Belmont Park in Elmont, N.Y., on Friday. I'll Have Another's bid for a Triple Crown ended with the news the colt was out of the Belmont Stakes due to a swollen left front tendon.

I'll Have Another out of Belmont

By Tim Wilkin
Albany Times-Union

ELMONT, N.Y. — The Belmont Stakes became just another horse race at 1 p.m. on Friday afternoon.

I'll Have Another, the only horse with a chance to win the Triple Crown, was out. And the most anticipated horse race in New York in years was over before it started.

The popular horse, who won the Kentucky Derby and Preakness in come-from-behind fashion, was retired after owner J. Paul Reddam and trainer Doug O'Neill stunned the racing world and said I'll Have Another never would run again because of tendonitis in his left front leg.

"This is extremely tough for all of us," said O'Neill, standing outside the controversial Belmont detention barn with approximately 300 media members hanging on his every word. "I feel so sorry for the whole team. We had an amazing run."

O'Neill led I'll Have Another out into full view of the media, and the colt then was taken to the back of the restricted barn area where he chomped on grass.

The New York Racing Association, which was expecting more than 100,000 fans for today's Belmont, now will be hosting an American Classic without the showstopper for the fourth straight year. The last time a horse was going for the Triple Crown in the Belmont was Big Brown in 2008, and he finished off the board.

A crowd of 94,476 came out for that race.

While 11 other horses will run for the $1 million prize in the Grade I Belmont, I'll Have Another will make an appearance before the 1 mile race. He and jockey Mario Gutierrez will lead the horses out of the Belmont tunnel and then head the post parade.

After that, I'll Have Another will fly back to California on Sunday or Monday, then will have a career as a stallion. His racing career is over with five wins in seven starts and career earnings of $2,693,600.

O'Neill said he noticed the colt getting quiet the last few days, and Thursday afternoon he spied a loss of definition in his left front leg. Friday morning, O'Neill said the horse looked fine and he went out for his daily gallop, albeit three hours earlier than the usual time of 8:30 a.m. O'Neill said that change in routine had nothing to do with a possible injury.

When the horse came back to the barn, O'Neill saw the swelling was back, and he knew there was a problem.

"We were all a bit shocked," Reddam said. "But we have to do what's best for the horse, and if he can't

Power lines up against MISD counterparts at Classic

By Jordan Mason

Trying to figure out how teams are selected for high school all-star games can be an exercise in futility.

Between former teammates going head to head or longtime rivals playing alongside each other, the randomness of the teams is generally left alone.

But with five Lee Rebels and four Midland High Bulldogs competing in this year's ASCO West Texas Football Classic, which kicks off tonight at Lubbock Cooper's Pirate Stadium, one can't help but wonder what Jacob Power did to be the only one of the nine MISD players to play on the Blue team.

"I have no idea — I was wondering the same thing," Power said with a laugh. "I was looking at the sheet, I was like, 'Wait a second, I don't know any of these guys.'"

Power's Lee teammates Travis Williams, Matthew Brem, Josh Shelton and Evan Chamblee will team up with former crosstown rivals Donavon Lee, Quade Huckaba, Stevie Rhodes and Brandon Williams of Midland High on the Red team. They will be joined by former Greenwood linebacker Hunter Rose.

Inside
See the ASCO West Texas Football Classic rosters on Page 3B.

As if that wasn't weird enough, Odessa High's Ivan Subia and Odessa Permian's Kacey Ryan and Landon Weeden will play on the Red Team as well. That makes 12 players who played in District 3-5A this past season, and Power is the only one on the Blue team.

But Power is taking it all in stride, the same way he did a position change from fullback

Lucas ends UT career with top 10 finish in high jump

■ The Midland High graduate finished in 6th place with a height of 6 feet.

From staff reports

DES MOINES, Iowa — Victoria Lucas' last official competition wearing burnt orange and white didn't quite go as she might have planned on Friday, but Lucas will end her career at Texas with a top 10 finish in the women's high jump.

Lucas, a senior, finished tied for sixth in the high jump at the NCAA Women's Outdoor Track and Field Championship at Drake Stadium on Friday as she finished tied with two other jumpers who cleared 6-foot on their second attempts.

Lucas

Lucas, a Midland High grad, made three attempts at 6-1 1/2 (1.87 meters) but could not clear the height. Lucas tied for the sixth place with Louisville sophomore Michelle Theophille and Georgia junior Saniel Atkinson.

Lucas passed on the opening height and then cleared 5-8 3/4 and 5-10 1/2 on her first attempt before clearing 6-0 on her second attempt. It was the third time in the outdoor season Lucas had cleared 6-0.

Lucas ends her career at Texas with two straight appearances in the NCAA Outdoor Championships, including finishing second in 2011, She also won the Big 12 outdoor high jump title in 2010.

Lucas is also a three-time All-Big 12 performer in the event. Lucas' career best in the event in college is 6-1/2.

Lucas' jump of 6-0 or 1.83 meters on Friday and in two other meets this year does meet the standard to provisionally qualify for the U.S. Olympic Track & Field Trials, scheduled for later this month in Eugene, Ore. The USA Track & Field website on Friday did not have Lucas listed yet as provisionally qualified.

Arizona's Brigetta Barrett won the competition clearing 6-4. Barrett made three attempts at 6-5, which would've tied a meet record, but she could not clear the height.

Texas sophomore Shanay Briscoe finished second, clearing 6-2 3/4 and East Carolina sophomore Tynita Butts was third, clearing 6-1 1/2.

Tension surrounds IndyCar's annual stop at Texas

By Jenna Fryer
Associated Press

FORT WORTH — The tension surrounding Texas Motor Speedway began in the offseason, when drivers still reeling from the death of Dan Wheldon questioned the compatibility of IndyCar and high-banked ovals.

It's led to a conflict between a track promoter who champions himself a longtime IndyCar supporter and the stars of the series who want to ensure they will be safe tonight when racing returns to Texas for a 16th consecutive year.

When the checkered flag falls tonight, the 24th running at Texas could very well be the final race around the 1.5-mile oval for IndyCar.

"We've had no discussion about anything, and as far as I'm concerned, we're running the race and we'll address 2013 when the race is over," TMS President Eddie Gossage said Friday. "I run a race track. I want to run races, and we've had spectacular races over the years. But at the same time there it has grown increasingly difficult in dealing with these folks. And, at some point, you have to decide if the pain is worth the trouble.

"What has happened of late really just sucks the passion out of you, and it's really hard to be passionate when you have been there and supported — some may even say saved IndyCar racing — and you feel like you are due a little respect and loyalty and courtesy. I don't think we are alone in this category of feeling this way, and it's absolutely puzzling."

TMS and IndyCar are dealing with several issues. Among them is the high sanctioning fee the series charges the track, and a date shift this year that gave Belle Isle the slot after the Indianapolis 500 that Texas

Baseball helps MCS win Henderson Cup

From staff reports

The Midland Christian baseball team had plenty of pressure on it when it took on rival Fort Worth Christian for the TAPPS 4A title in mid-May.

That victory, though, not only helped the Mustangs win the school's first state baseball title but also helped the school's extracurricular program win the Henderson Cup for Class 4A in TAPPS.

Midland Christian earned 10 points with the state championship victory in baseball, and that helped them earn 70 points for the season and win the Henderson Cup title for best overall extracurricular program in TAPPS 4A by one point over Tomball Concordia Lutheran, which had 69 points.

Along with the state title in baseball, the Mustangs also earned the maximum of 10 points for state championships in football, girls golf and boys track, while also earning points in volleyball, boys basketball, girls basketball, boys golf, boys tennis, girls track and softball.

Tomball Concordia won its lone state title in girls track, but earned points in boys cross country, volleyball, football, girls swimming, boys and girls soccer, girls basketball, boys basketball, academics and speech, vocal music, boys golf, boys track and baseball.

Fort Worth Christian finished third with 60 points, and Dallas Parish Episcopal was fourth with 58 points.

Rangers get 5 on District 4-3A second team

From staff reports

The Greenwood baseball team did not have a first teamer on this year's 4-3A All-District team but did have five players earn second team nods on the squad.

Ranger junior Zach Long earned a slot on the second team as a pitcher, and freshman Zach Redwine was named a second team catcher.

Junior Garrett Carlisle was a selection as a second team first baseman, while freshman Victor Urias earned a slot on the second team as an infielder and senior Stephen Milligan was a second team outfielder.

Seminole senior catcher Caleb Koedyker was named the District's Most Valuable Player, and Fort Stockton freshman third baseman Michael Garrison was the Newcomer of the Year.

Andrews had eight players earn first team nods as Carl Warren (pitcher), Blaine Chavez (pitcher), Daniel Ramos (catcher), Gunnar Rogers (first base), Braden Martin (infielder), Shane Dolgener (outfielder), Kyle Buck (outfielder) and Christian Marquez (designated hitter) were all on the team.

Ownership of Jackalopes officially transferred

Lee Scheide
Odessa American

ODESSA — On Feb. 22, a little more than a year after announcing their intention to leave the Central Hockey League to join the North American Hockey League, the ownership group of the Odessa Jackalopes dropped another bombshell with its intention to sell the team.

A group of local investors led by former players Donnie Margettie, Brian Swiniarski, Adam Doyle and Dan Lavergne agreed to purchase the team. All that needed to be done was finalize a few details.

Seems there were more details than originally thought, including background checks for each member of the ownership group and licensing applications through a myriad of organizations.

On Thursday, one day before a deadline imposed by the previous ownership group of Rick Gasser and Bill and Tracey Nyborg, the final documents finally got the signatures they needed and the team officially transferred to the new group.

"It's nice to get things wrapped up," Swiniarski said. "There were a lot more things involved and it took longer than we thought it would, but it's finally finished and we are looking forward to getting things going for next season and beyond."

General manager Joe Clark and head coach Paul Gillis both are heading into the final year of their contracts with the organization.

Gillis has led the Jackalopes to the playoffs in all five of his seasons as head coach, including a late charge last season to qualify during the franchise's first season in the NAHL. Clark was the team's first head coach in 1997 and returned to the Permian Basin in 2008 as the team's general manager.

"I haven't spoken with anyone in the new ownership group," Clark said. "I'm sure we will at some point now that the sale is final, but my focus has been, and is, on getting ready for the 2012-13 season and doing anything I can to help the Jackalopes win a championship."

Back at practice, Kings again have eyes on prize

By Ira Podell
Associated Press

NEWARK, N.J. — Jonathan Quick was back in lockdown mode: preparing for Game 5 of the finals as though it were Game 1, and not the Los Angeles Kings' second chance to claim the Stanley Cup for the first time in franchise history.

As he did on media day in advance of the series opener against the New Jersey Devils, the Kings' stellar goalie faced reporters on Friday with a baseball cap yanked down to just above his eyes, with the black hood of a sweatshirt pulled over the top.

Quick's answers were to the point and spoken quietly. Everything about his demeanor screamed focus.

Los Angeles leads the series 3-1, following a 3-1 loss at home to the Devils on Wednesday that forced the series back to New Jersey. Game 5 is tonight

Even though the Kings are 2-0 in Game 5s in these playoffs, ending series both times, and a perfect 10-0 on the road, Quick took the tact of viewing the slate as clean.

"It's 0-0," he said. "It doesn't matter if you're coming off a win or coming off a loss. Obviously, it's disappointing anytime you lose, no matter what the situation is. As of today it's 0-0. You're trying to win Game 1."

Oddly — or not so much — the Devils are taking a similar approach, and their reasoning is quite simple. As it was on Wednesday, New Jersey's season is on the line. If the Devils don't win today, they are finished. When every game means the difference between staying alive or going home, there is no point in looking past the task at hand.

The Kings don't want to let the Devils hang around and gain momentum and belief that they can erase a once 0-3 deficit and win the Stanley Cup for a fourth time. Each game that Los Angeles fails to capture the Stanley Cup makes its chances more tenuous, too.

Los Angeles took 3-0 leads in every series before the finals, eliminating Vancouver and Phoenix in five games to bookend a sweep of St. Louis in the second round. The Kings are 15-3 in the playoffs, with each loss coming at home in Game 4. The previous two defeats were followed by a series clincher in Game 5 away from home.

DREAM 60, SILVER STARS 57

ATLANTA — Angel McCoughtry scored 16 points, Lindsey Harding added 14 in Atlanta's victory over San Antonio.

Sophia Young finished with 21 points and was the only player to score in double figures for the Silver Stars (2-4), who have lost two straight and four of five.

Atlanta (3-4) overcame 23 turnovers, matching a season high, to snap a two-game skid.

SUN 89, FEVER 81

INDIANAPOLIS — Kara Lawson scored 18 points to help the Connecticut Sun beat Indiana 89-81 on Friday night, while WNBA MVP Tamika Catchings missed part of the third quarter after she was accidentally elbowed in the face by Fever teammate Tammy Sutton-Brown.

Catchings left the game with 6:58 left in the third quarter. She went to the locker room with a towel over her face and had a bandage on her lower lip when she returned at the 3:38 mark of the quarter.

LIBERTY 76, MYSTICS 70

WASHINGTON — Cappie Pondexter scored 25 points, New York took control with a 30-5 first-half run and survived a frantic fourth quarter to beat Washington for its first road victory of the season.

Leilani Mitchell hit four 3-pointers and scored 16 points for the Liberty, winners of three straight after opening the season 0-5. The latest victory also snapped a five-game losing streak in Washington dating to the 2009 season. Crystal Langhorne led the Mystics (1-5) with 24 points.

to linebacker to start the 2011 season — where he racked up the second-most tackles on the team — before eventually playing both ways by the end the season.

"We're all pretty excited about it," Power said. "I'm not really sure how the picking went — I'll end up asking."

Power did say he was looking forward to lining up across from 3-5A rivals such as Lee, Huckaba, Subia, Ryan and Weeden.

"I at least get one last chance to go after those guys," Power said.

For Huckaba, it will be a different experience after spending last season blocking for Lee and the rest of the Bulldog offense. Tonight, he'll block for three Rebels (Williams, Shelton and Brem) and a Broncho (Subia), while handing off to one Panther (Ryan) and blocking alongside another (Weeden).

Power, however, is relishing the chance to learn a different defense under Shallowater coach Kyle Maxfield, even if only for one game.

But most of all, Power is happy to be playing one last game before heading to Midland College, even hitting the gym with a friend as a workout partner. Because with the Classic looking like the last time he'll lace them up, Power wants it to be perfect — no matter who's playing with him.

"I haven't decided if I'm going to try to walk on somewhere. For now, it's kind of the last go around," Power said. "The last time was (Lee High's season finale against) Odessa High — I thought that was going to be the last time.

"(This is) one more chance to make everything right."

Tension

From 1B

usually held. Gossage did not think a different race date warranted the same fee from IndyCar.

But the greatest concern is safety, stemming from Wheldon's fatal October accident at Las Vegas Motor Speedway. The two-time Indianapolis 500 winner died when his head hit a fence post, but there were several mitigating factors that the accident report cited as contributing to the 15-car accident.

Among them was the pack racing on a high-banked oval, the crowded 34-car field of drivers of varying experience and a track wide enough that allowed drivers to run three-wide at more than 220 mph.

The drivers immediately began fretting over Texas, which marks the first high-banked oval race since Wheldon's death. They are unanimous in not wanting Saturday night's race to feature any sort of pack racing and met privately as a group last weekend in Detroit to vote on suggestions for IndyCar officials.

What they came up was a recommended level of less downforce that IndyCar accepted.

"I think that really helped the whole group calm down because we felt like IndyCar is listening to us, and listened to our concerns," said Justin Wilson, the de facto leader of the driver group, who noted the downforce recommendation came on a unanimous driver vote.

"The biggest concern for all of us is the pack racing. People want to be able to drive the cars, but they want to be in control. We're OK with danger if it's our responsibility. If you go into a corner and drive too fast and crash and get hurt, well, you screwed up or something happened or it was racing. The thing that concerns everyone is just that unknown when everyone is (racing) flat out, just waiting for something to happen. None of us want to do that."

In decreasing the downforce, the cars should be more difficult to drive, thus separating the pack.

"We want to make it so it's not just musical chairs and who is in the lead when the music stops," Wilson said. "That's what some of the pack racing can get like, and we want to make it where you've got to earn it."

The desired effect seemed to be achieved through Friday's practice session, which received mixed reactions by drivers having to adjust to not being able to run wide open.

"I think it's great," Graham Rahal posted on Twitter. "Yes, it's a damn handful, but it should be."

Another matter at Texas is the construction of the fence, which is similar to the one at Las Vegas with the fence posts located inside the fencing. Drivers seem to agree that they'd like the posts outside the fence, but track owner Speedway Motorsports Inc. has been steadfast in the belief that the current construction is the safest option.

No driver has sounded off more about the fences than Oriol Servia, who apologized this week for taking jabs at Gossage on Twitter. He is now trying to shift the focus from the fences to a safe Saturday night race.

"I am not a guy always out there complaining about this bump or that curve," Servia said. "But this matter, it's one that really just drives me nuts, and I think that should give it some weight because I am not a complainer. I am not somebody out there every weekend complaining. This is one matter that means that much to me."

Gossage is puzzled with Servia's stance.

"I've never met him and never spoken to him, still haven't," he said Friday. "What he tweets, it's up to him. But the fact we've never even talked about it, it just makes it that much more bizarre."

The many unknowns created speculation during the offseason that IndyCar's drivers would boycott the race. Even last week there was talk the drivers would either form a pact that would create an essential 500-mile parade or agree to be patient until the end of the race.

Scott Dixon dismissed it as nonsense.

"It will be a race. Everybody will race," he said. "They may say something different before they get in the cars, but when they get out there, they will race."

The most overlooked issue might stem from last month at Indianapolis. At least three cars tilted on their sides — open cockpit facing the fence — in accidents. Chassis manufacturer Dallara studied what happened and altered the underwing supports of the cars to create more vertical stiffness. The decision was made after testing and simulations showed that the stiffness was likely contributing to the car lifting slightly off the track.

Of the three accidents that occurred in the Indy 500 after the change by Dallara, only Mike Conway's car turned into the fence, and the car was helped by a second impact from Will Power. That's all IndyCar can do right now based on the limited data it has with the new Dallara DW-12 on ovals.

"It's as easy to make it worse as it is to make it better. If we rush to do something with limited data, we may make it worse," said Will Phillips, IndyCar's vice president of technology. "Can we make it safer still? Of course. But there's always going to be a concern — it's motor racing, it's not a sport you can guarantee is safe."

SUPER REGIONAL ROUNDUP

UCLA 6, TCU 2

LOS ANGELES — Cody Regis had a three-run double in UCLA's five-run sixth inning and Adam Plutko pitched seven solid innings in the Bruins' 6-2 victory over TCU on Friday night in Game 1 of the best-of-three NCAA Super Regional.

Regis' double to left center off reliever Justin Scharf gave the Bruins (46-14) a 6-2 lead.

Plutko (11-3) limited TCU (40-21) to seven hits and two runs. David Berg got the final six outs after replacing Plutko in the eighth with no outs and one on.

Brandon Finnegan (4-5) was the loser.

Josh Elander hit his 11th home in the first to open the scoring for TCU. The Bruins tied it at 1 on Kevin Kramer's two-out single in the second.

Kyle Von Tungeln led off the third with home run to give the Horned Frogs a 2-1 lead.

The series winner will advance to the College World Series In Omaha.

ARIZONA 7, ST. JOHN'S 6, 10 INNINGS

TUCSON, Ariz. — Trent Gilbert hit a bases-loaded single with one out in the bottom of the 10th inning as Arizona rallied from an early five-run deficit and defeated St. John's, 7-6, in the opening game of their super regional series Friday.

The Red Storm had taken a 6-5 lead in the top of the inning on Sean O'Hare's RBI double, but the Wildcats tied it on Bobby Brown's RBI single. Arizona (42-17) loaded the bases against Kevin Kilpatrick (3-3), and Gilbert slapped a single off James Lomangino into right field for the win. Reliever Mathew Troupe (4-1) got two outs for the victory.

Arizona can advance to the College World Series for the first time since 2004 with a win Saturday.

St. John's (40-22) scored five times in the fourth inning, but Arizona got single runs in the fourth and fifth and tied it at 5 with three runs in the sixth.

FLORIDA STATE 17, STANFORD 1

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Devon Travis homered twice and drove in six runs Friday as Florida State pounded Mark Appel on its way to a 17-1 victory over Stanford in the opener of their best-of-three NCAA super regional.

Florida State (47-15) batted around in the fourth and fifth innings to build an 11-1 lead. Travis singled in a run in the fourth, hit a two-run homer in the sixth and belted a three-run shot in the seventh.

Appel (10-2) was hurt by his wildness and an error by shortstop Kenny Diekroeger, who booted a potential double play grounder as Florida State scored its first run.

Freshman left-hander Brandon Leibrandt (8-2) pitched six innings before leaving with a 14-1 lead.

It was the worst loss of the season for Stanford (41-17).

WILD STONY BROOK-LSU GAME POSTPONED IN 12TH

BATON ROUGE, La. — LSU hit tying home runs in the ninth, 10th and 11th innings, prolonging a wild NCAA tournament game with upstart Stony Brook long enough for a downpour to postpone it until today, tied at 4.

Sal Intagliata's two-run homer in the second gave the Seawolves (50-12) a lead that lasted until Jacoby Jones' solo homer off reliever James Campbell tied it at 2 in the bottom of the ninth.

Stony Brook left fielder Steve Goldstein homered in the 10th, but flubbed a chance to end it when he overran Tyler Moore's two-out foul popup, giving Moore the extra swing he needed to hit his tying homer.

After Stony Brook scored on a sacrifice fly in the 11th, LSU (46-16) tied it at 4 on Mason Katz's homer.

The opener of the best-of-three super regional, will resume at 10:05 a.m., with Game 2 starting 50 minutes after the first ends.

Celtics, Heat set for Game 7 to decide East title

By Tim Reynolds
Associated Press

MIAMI — LeBron James has no idea what he will do for an encore.

He offered a simple vow instead.

"I won't regret Game 7," James said.

There may not have been another sentiment the Miami Heat would have preferred hearing more as they prepare to host the Boston Celtics tonight.

James is coming off a season-saving 45-point, 15-rebound, five-assist effort to force Game 7. The winner will head to Oklahoma City to start the NBA finals on Tuesday night and the loser heads into an offseason of decided uncertainty.

"Win, lose or draw, I'm going to go in with the mindset like I've had this whole season," James said. "And you know, we'll see what happens."

A series that has gone back and forth — Miami won the first two games, then lost three straight before James carried the Heat to a win that denied Boston the East crown on Thursday night — comes down to an ultimate game.

For the Heat, it's a chance to play for the ring they couldn't win last year in the opening act of the Big Three era. For the Celtics, it's probably one last chance for their current core to reach the NBA's mountaintop.

"This team has been about adversity all year long, you know, so this is not going to be nothing new," Celtics forward Paul Pierce said. "It's been tough for us all year long to get to the point where we would be at, and why wouldn't it be tough now? Winning is hard. Trying to get to the finals is hard. And this is as hard as it gets. And I think we are prepared for it."

It's the 111th time a best-of-seven NBA series has gone the distance. Home teams are 88-22 in the previous matchups.

That means little to Heat coach Erik Spoelstra. The last time Boston was on his team's court, the Celtics sputtered offensively and still managed to leave with a win, taking Game 5 to put Miami on the brink.

The Heat are still there. Only this time, so are the Celtics.

"Both teams will come out with an appropriate level of urgency," Spoelstra said. "And that's the beauty of a Game 7. We fought and earned the right to have this on our home court. We don't take that for granted and we don't assume that that will take care of anything. We're going to have to play, compete at the same urgency level we played last night. And we'll also have to play well and probably have to beat them when they're at their best."

If James has the same game he had Thursday, the Celtics will have to beat him at his best.

The reigning MVP put on a show in Game 6. The expression on James' face barely changed all night — after makes, after misses, even after a drink got dumped on him while leaving the court not long after the final buzzer of Miami's 98-79 win. He made 19 of 26 shots, that 73 percent success rate the best he ever posted in a playoff game. His 30 first-half points matched an NBA season high. His 45 points were second-most in Heat playoff history.

Djokovic faces Nadal in historic French Open final

By Howard Fendrich
Associated Press

PARIS — Here comes the French Open final everyone expected.

No. 1 Novak Djokovic, one victory from becoming the first man in 43 years to win four consecutive major championships, against No. 2 Rafael Nadal, one victory from becoming the only man to win seven titles at Roland Garros.

Djokovic is undefeated in his past 27 Grand Slam matches, which includes beating Nadal in the finals at Wimbledon in July, the U.S. Open in September, and the Australian Open in January. Nadal has won 51 of 52 career matches at the French Open; only he and Bjorn Borg have won the clay-court tournament six times.

Never before have the same two men met in four Grand Slam finals in a row, so it's apt that no matter who wins Sunday, his achievement will be monumental.

"I have this golden opportunity to make history. This motivates me. It really inspires me. I'm really grateful to be in this position, obviously," said the 25-year-old Djokovic, who owns five Grand Slam titles to Nadal's 10. "And look, I'll try to prepare for that match and get my hands on that trophy, if I can."

Won't be easy, that's for sure.

Both Djokovic and Nadal breezed through their semifinals Friday. If this stage of a Grand Slam tournament is supposed to provide a challenge, it did not — which probably isn't all that stunning in Nadal's case, but was rather striking when you consider Djokovic faced 16-time major champion Roger Federer and won 6-4, 7-5, 6-3 in a match that wasn't really that close.

"His mental state and preparation for this match was excellent," said Djokovic's coach, Marian Vadja, "and this has to happen against Rafa."

Nadal found himself flying by the seat of his pants — OK, white shorts — on one point against No. 6 David Ferrer, somehow winning the exchange despite falling on his rump. Otherwise, he was completely in control en route to 6-2, 6-2, 6-1 victory.

"I'm surprised," said Toni Nadal, Rafael's uncle and coach, "because we were expecting a very difficult match against one of the best players in the world."

Make no mistake: Ferrer is a formidable opponent, not someone who got hot for a few weeks to sneak into the semifinals.

He was playing in his third Grand Slam semifinal. He already won two clay-court titles this year. And it was Ferrer who upset Nadal in the 2011 Australian Open quarterfinals, stopping his bid for a fourth consecutive Grand Slam title — the milestone Djokovic now seeks.

Nadal won all 15 sets he's played this year at Roland Garros, losing only 35 games, the lowest total for anyone reaching a major final since Borg lost 31 on his way to winning the 1980 French Open.

Nadal has won 71 of 72 service games, saving 18 of 19 break points.

Pretty close to perfect.

"I really don't like to talk about perfection, because that, in my opinion, doesn't exist. You can always play better," said the 26-year-old Nadal, whose only loss at the French Open came against Robin Soderling in the fourth round in 2009. "But, sure, I am very happy the way that I am playing. Probably today was my best match of the tournament."

With Ferrer serving at 1-1, 30-all in the second set, Nadal produced a masterpiece, turning a gaffe into a highlight.

During a point that lasted more than 30 shots, Nadal's feet slipped out from under him as he sprinted toward the net. On the slow-motion replay, it's easy to see that his eyes never left the ball, even as he crashed to the court. Suddenly sitting — yes, plopped on his backside, right there in the middle of the most important clay-court stadium in the world — Nadal raised his left arm to slice a backhand drop shot that prolonged the point and drew Ferrer forward.

As if that weren't impressive enough, Nadal popped up like a jack-in-the-box in time for the next shot, a volley-lob that arced over Ferrer's head and settled near the baseline. Ferrer, no slouch himself in the speed department, got to the ball, but his forehand landed in the net.

That gave Nadal a break point, and he converted it in much more conventional fashion, staying upright until Ferrer simply pushed a forehand long.

US gets past Antigua in World Cup qualifying

By Fred Goodall
Associated Press

United States....................3
Antigua 1

TAMPA, Florida — Carlos Bocanegra, Clint Dempsey and Herculez Gomez scored as the United States opened World Cup qualifying with a somewhat shaky 3-1 victory over Antigua and Barbuda on Friday.

Bocanegra put the Americans ahead in the eighth minute, tapping the ball into the net after goalkeeper Molvin James made a diving save of Gomez's header off Landon Donovan's corner.

Dempsey's goal came from a penalty in the 44th minute after Marvin McCoy upended Donovan streaking into the area.

Peter Byers scored in the 65th minute for 105th-ranked Antigua, a nation of about 88,000 that almost could fit its entire population in 65,000-seat Raymond James Stadium. Gomez restored a two-goal lead in the 72th after his initial shot and Michael Bradley's follow up both were blocked.

It was a costly night for the No. 28 Americans, attempting to qualify for their seventh straight World Cup. Third-choice left back Jose Torres was stretchered off after injuring his left ankle in the 54th. Bocanegra shifted to the left, and Oguchi Onyewu entered only to overcommit and allow Byers to come in alone on goalkeeper Tim Howard.

The Americans played their first competitive match since blowing a two-goal lead and losing to Mexico, 4-2, in the final of the CONCACAF Gold Cup last June 25.

Terrence Boyd, the 21-year-old son of an American serviceman and a German mother, entered in the 79th minute on a rainy night and now is tied the United States in international competition.

There is little time to recover for the Americans, who play their second qualifier of the semifinal round on Tuesday at Guatemala. Two teams from the group, which also includes Jamaica, advance to next year's six-nation regional finals, which will produce three qualifiers for the 2014 tournament in Brazil.

Torres, usually a possession-oriented midfielder, started at left back following injuries to Fabian Johnson and Edgar Castillo.

compete at the top level, you know, he's done enough."

This is the third time in the 144-year history of the Belmont that a horse going for a Triple Crown scratched because of injury. Burgoo King (1932) and Bold Venture (1936) didn't run in the Belmont because of bowed tendons.

With I'll Have Another out, the Dale Romans-trained Dullahan became the morning line favorite. The third-place finisher in the Kentucky Derby is 9-5, Union Rags is 3-1 and Paynter is 7-2. The only other horse with less than double-digit odds is the Chad Brown-trained Street Life, who is 8-1.

"It has to be disappointing for them," said Brown, who is from Mechanicville. "They all put a lot of time into it. The race has lost its biggest player. Very disappointing."

Romans thought all week long that he had the horse to beat despite the fact that I'll Have Another was scheduled to be in the starting gate.

"It's a funny reaction I have," Romans said. "It does make the race easier for us, but I really wanted to run against him. I am disappointed, and it's devastating for raeing. This was going to be a special race."

You don't have to leave Texas to 'get away'

Helen Anders

AUSTIN —

The common denominator for Texas resorts right now seems to be s'mores around a firepit. Almost every resort in Texas seems to feature some variation of this childhood-favorite pastime. Most resorts have spas and fitness centers, too.

Aside from that, you need to choose your resort based on your focus: Is it golf? Animals? Kid-friendly water parks? Boating? Varmint hunting? You can find all of these and more.

Here's a look at some of the state's most popular resorts. May rates listed are per night except where noted, are available on the resort's own website and do not include resort fees (typically $20 to $30 per day to cover activities at some of the resorts; they're usually disclosed when you book your room).

North Texas

GREAT WOLF LODGE, 100 Great Wolf Drive, Grapevine; greatwolf.com/grapevine. The indoor-outdoor water park is the star of the show. (Watch out for the big bucket that dumps water on the kids; it can be a rude awakening for very young ones.) From wading to scary rides, Great Wolf offers water play for all ages. Then come inside, buy a wand and let the little ones practice hallway "magic" opening treasure chests and making wolves howl. An arcade and ice cream shop complete the kiddie experience. There's a spa for grown-ups. Rooms for four start at $199.

GAYLORD TEXAN RESORT, 1501 Gaylord Trail, Grapevine; gaylordtexan.com. Right across Texas 26 from Great Wolf is a hotel complex that specializes in conventions but has plenty to offer families, too, with two hotel pools plus a small water park (a bus takes you) at the edge of the property and kid-friendly dining options. The Texas-themed courtyard is fun to stroll. Rooms start at $161.

ROUGH CREEK LODGE, 5165 County Road 2013, Glen Rose; roughcreek.com. This is the place that offers varmint hunts, along with more traditional hunting experiences. The resort itself, though, is a luxurious hideaway, and the fact that its general manager came from Dallas' high-end Rosewood Hotels (for example, the Mansion on Turtle Creek) tells you all you need to know about the

A San Antonio hotel reinvents itself

By Helen Anders
Cox Newspapers

If you've been in Austin long enough, you'll remember the modular hotel that popped up in San Antonio in 1968 across the street from the site of the HemisFair. The Hilton Palacio del Rio was a modern marvel, each room furnished before its module was lifted into place by a crane. All the rooms were stacked in 46 days.

The hotel's still there, and it just underwent a $27 million guest room renovation. You wouldn't recognize the rooms if you've stayed there in recent years. And there's a cool, new elevator system, too.

The rooms are contemporary, with a few Spanish notes such as hand-carved headboards reinforcing a vibe described to me as "hip hacienda." The decor is mainly dark woods and subdued colors, with pops including the striped rugs, designed to evoke Native American blankets. A new presidential suite was added with a sweeping city views. All have really good beds with quality linens.

Guests had asked for bigger bathrooms, so they were enlarged by creating a door that serves both the bathroom and the room's closet. The change added enough room for a large, granite vanity.

There are places to really strike oil and see cowboys in Dallas

By Helen Anders
Cox Newspapers

That Dallas that's portrayed in "Dallas"? The one with the oil wells and cowboy hat-wearing people and all? That's not really Dallas. But here's where you'll find all that:

■ Cowboys and cowboy hats: Cowtown. That would be Fort Worth. Visit the Stockyard District (fortworthstock yards.org) for daily trail drives down the street (at 11:30 a.m. and 4 p.m.) as well as plenty of stores in which to buy a cowboy hat.

Once you have the hat, please do not wear it to business meetings in Dallas or inside Cowboys Stadium. People will look at you like you're a loon. You may wear your hat walking around the Fort Worth Stockyards as much as you like, though.

You may also wear it in Bandera, where you'll find plenty of dude ranches as well as more places to buy cowboy hats. Check it out at bandera cowboycapital.com.

■ Cowgirls: As you know, few Texas women actually tuck their jeans into cowboy boots. For a look at many who do, visit the National Cowgirl Museum and Hall of Fame (cowgirl.net), 1720 Gendy St. in Fort Worth's Museum District. To be honest, many of the women in the Hall of Fame (such as Sandra Day O'Connor) are cowgirls only in the philosophical sense and aren't known for jeans-wearing at all. But Dale Evans surely was. Admission is $10; $8 for seniors and children.

■ Gushing oil well: This happens on designated days at the Spindletop Gladys City Boomtown Museum (spindle top.org) in Beaumont, which is a re-creation of a wildcatter town honoring the history of Texas' key gusher. It includes a replica well that gushes forth from time to time. It is scheduled to gush again at 4 p.m. June 9 during the attraction's Wildcatter Weekend. The museum complex is off U.S. 69 on the Lamar University campus. Admission is $5 for adults, $3 for seniors and $2 for kids.

■ Working oil rigs: By far the most productive oil area is the Permian Basin in West Texas. The Texas Railroad Commission says this part of Texas produced 282 million barrels of the stuff in 2011. You'll also see the rigs in the Panhandle, South Texas, the Plains ... pretty much everywhere but the Dallas area.

■ Oil platform: You don't see one of these in the TV series, but you can actually see and visit one in Galveston. Ocean Star Offshore Drilling Rig & Museum offers a self-guided tour of a retired rig at 1900 Harborside Drive. Admission is $8 for adults, $5 for seniors and students 7 to 18 and free for kids 6 and younger. Find out more at oceanstaroec.com.

■ Cows: OK, these really are all over the place — even across the street from Southfork itself. Can't miss 'em.

service level. Shoot skeet, go to the spa, zipline or just watch the cows come home from your balcony. The food's fabulous; try the quail. Rates start at $270 per person per night (includes three-course dinner, breakfast and activities).

East/Southeast Texas

LA TORRETTA LAKE RESORT AND SPA, 600 La Torretta Blvd., Montgomery, latorrettalakeresort.com. A tower of suites perches on a chunk of land that juts out into Lake Conroe. That means every suite has a view of the water. There's a water park for kids, too, and a large fitness center and spa. Unfortunately, this resort closed its fabulous French restaurant, but I'm told a new fine dining spot is on the way. Rooms start at $179.

SAN LUIS RESORT, SPA AND CONFERENCE CENTER, 5222 Seawall Blvd., Galveston; sanluisresort.com. The pool scene, with a bar, sushi bar and cabanas, is beyond lively here. The food's good, and the spa's mellow. Don't let the screeching parrot in the lobby scare you. If you want the high-end experience, book on the Club Ten level, where rooms have all the bells and whistles (including TV embedded in the bathroom mirror). Rooms start at $249.

West Texas

CIBOLO CREEK RANCH, U.S. 67 south of Marfa, cibolocreekranch.com. If you want to truly get away from it all, come to Cibolo Creek, because this is about as away from it all as you can get (which is why Mick Jagger and others have holed up here). Horseback riding, spa, stargazing and — surprise — gourmet food in the Chinati Mountains. Rates start at $325.

Barton Creek Resort and Spa

LAJITAS GOLF RESORT AND SPA, FM 710 near Lajitas, lajitasgolfresort.com. Golf, hunting and skeet shooting are a few of the activities offered, but a lot of guests just like to hang out and watch the sun rise and set over the Chisos Mountains. You're tucked in between Big Bend national and state parks, so this is the perfect base for enjoying both. Stay three nights starting at $450 for all three.

San Antonio

WESTIN LA CANTERA HILL COUNTRY RESORT, 16641 La Cantera Parkway, San Antonio; bit.ly/euGALY. This resort took pains to make its pool courtyard beautiful, with five pools flowing through escarpments and a 14-foot waterfall. Its two golf courses are a big draw as well, along with the food and plentiful kids' activities. Enjoy Chef Ernesto Estrada's cuisine at Francesca's or take the kids to the more casual Brannon's Cafe. Its 508 guest rooms were renovated last year. Rates start at $229.

HYATT HILL COUNTRY RESORT & SPA, 9800 Hyatt Resort Drive, San Antonio; hillcountry.hyatt.com. Kids are all over the four-acre waterpark as well as the kids' camp, and in summer, there's a special spa for teens as well as the adult Wildflower Spa, which makes the most of its Hill Country setting. Enjoy golf, tennis and several restaurants and bars. Rates start at $194.

JW MARRIOTT SAN ANTONIO HILL COUNTRY, 23808 Resort Parkway, San Antonio; jwsanantonio.com. Kids float happily in tubes while adults play the TPC golf courses. (The Valero Open just wrapped up at the AT&T Oaks Course designed by Greg Norman; Pete Dye designed the Canyons course.) Lantana Spa is big and luxurious. The food's yummy, and you can even Segway around the property. Rates start at $299.

Central Texas

BARTON CREEK RESORT AND SPA, 8212 Barton Club Drive; bartoncreek.com. Three Springs Spa constantly reinvents itself with creative treatments. Golfers flock to play courses by Tom Fazio, Ben Crenshaw and Arnold Palmer. And kids' activities abound, with summer spa programs including health and hygiene classes for the little ones and family spa hour with treatments for the kids. Room rates start at $189 for four people in a room.

LAKE AUSTIN SPA RESORT, 1705 S. Quinlan Park Road, Austin; lakeaustin.com. All things spa, with more than 100 treatments, activities such as yoga and kayaking, an organic garden, good food and luxurious accommodations. Forget the s'mores here; it's all about relaxation and getting healthy. Great for a girlfriends' or mother-daughter getaway. Three-night packages start at $1,720 per person (double occupancy; includes meals and activities).

HYATT REGENCY LOST PINES RESORT AND SPA, 575 Hyatt Lost Pines Road; lostpines.hyatt.com. Texas touches include farm animals, wagon rides and Texas Longhorns to climb aboard for photo ops. The luxury's plentiful with fine dining, golf, a spa and a pool complex that offers separate places for adults and kids. Kayak or raft at a leisurely pace down the Colorado River. Check the activities desk for the day's special fun, such as stargazing. Rates start at $284.

TRAVAASA AUSTIN, 13500 FM 2769, Austin; travaasa.com/austin. This resort is all about your health, with classes in meditation, yoga and cooking, among other things. But it's also a great weekend retreat, with one of the most spectacular pools in Texas overlooking the Hill Country. Rates start at $283.

LAKEWAY RESORT AND SPA, 101 Lakeway Drive, Lakeway; lakewayresortandspa.com. There's no big water park here, but there are several pools, including a highly kid-friendly one with a slide. There's a spa and a marina — the resort's on the lake, of course — and kids' activities. With rates starting at $173, this is one of Texas' best resort bargains.

HORSESHOE BAY RESORT, 200 Hi Circle N., Horseshoe Bay (near Marble Falls), hsbresort.com. Golf and tennis for both adults and kids are the key features of this resort, with an 18-hole putting course as well as three Robert Trent Jones golf courses and tennis courts for both kids and adults. Add pools, a spa and kids' activities, and you've got a winner. Rates start at $219.

HOTEL

From 1C

But the coolest innovation just might be the elevators, which I greatly enjoyed riding. (Some might say I'm easily amused.) There aren't any floor buttons inside. Instead, there's a touch panel in the hall, next to the elevator bank. Each person is supposed to enter which of the 21 floors he or she would like to arrive on.

A voice then announces which elevator — A, B, C or D — the person should enter. That elevator then goes to the floors its occupants selected — and only those. So if you just pop into an open elevator without entering a floor, you might not get where you want to go.

I loved having the elevator zip immediately to the floor I selected, but I confess I still felt weird not pressing a button inside the elevator. I guess you get used to it. (There's a big board offering directions in the lobby.) The elevator knows which times of day it should, for example, focus on getting newly checked-in guests headed up and which days it should hover high, planning to taking many guests to lower floors.

Next up for renovation: meeting rooms, ballrooms and the restaurant.

The hotel's at 200 S. Alamo St., and summer rates start at $169. Find out more at online.

Potentially severe thunderstorms will track from Lake Ontario to the New York City area and southwestern New England today. Damaging winds and hail are the greatest threats.

The powerful thunderstorms are riding along the northern rim of heat flowing into the mid-Atlantic and Midwest. The weekend will have a comfortable start in northern New England. However, showers or thunderstorms will dot Maine.

Meanwhile, tropical moisture pouring northward and interacting with a disturbance will cause drenching thunderstorms to invade more of the central Gulf Coast.

Bride's mother does best to keep stepmom out of sight

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: My husband, "John," and I have been married 12 years. My stepdaughter, "Diana," who gave me a "My Second Mom" card on Mother's Day, is being married in September. Diana is very close to her mother, "Charlotte," who resents me.

Because John and I are paying for half the wedding, we requested that my parents and Diana's stepbrother and stepsister be invited. Our request was denied. John and Charlotte will be taking part in the ceremony together, which is fine with me. Diana asked me to play a small role in the ceremony, but Charlotte became very upset, so I was excluded. The engagement announcement also made no mention of me.

As things stand, I'm not sure where I will be seated, if I will be included in family photos, the reception line, first dance, grand march, etc. Out of deference to Charlotte, the wedding seems to have been planned as if I don't exist. How do other second wives in this situation make it through?

I have tried hard to be supportive, keep my mouth shut and remember that the birth parents take precedence, but being treated as if I don't exist is hard to swallow. The more I try to be understanding of Diana's position, the more I'm excluded and the more I feel our relationship is being compromised.

John and I discussed it and I suggested that maybe it would be best if I didn't attend the wedding. He became very sad and said he really wants me there. How can I support John and stop all this from damaging my relationship with Diana? Your thoughts, please. — DISAPPEARING STEPMOTHER

DEAR STEPMOTHER: Although you and your husband are paying for half the wedding, it's clear that Charlotte is running the show. I don't blame you for feeling hurt; however, you will do more damage to your relationship with Diana if you do not attend. I think you should go — first to help your stepdaughter celebrate this important day in her life, and second, to inject a much-needed dose of reality into this fantasy.

DEAR ABBY: I left my husband 2 1/2 years ago because he physically abused my son. I tried dating after that, and thought I had found a nice guy. Then I discovered that in spite of being on birth control, I was pregnant. He pulled the "it's not mine" routine, so I again became single — this time with four children — and remained that way for more than a year.

Five months ago I started seeing an amazing man. He loves my children and wants to marry me, but I find myself pulling away. Is it because I'm afraid that this man will become the Jekyll and Hyde type, too? — GUN SHY IN CANADA

DEAR GUN SHY: Probably. Your fear is understandable, considering the luck you've had with the previous men in your life.

Before you distance yourself any further, consider asking a psychologist to help you come to grips with your fears. And while you're at it, couples counseling would also be helpful, so you can get to know this "amazing man" better before you make any more lifetime commitments. If he loves you as he claims to, he will cooperate. If he refuses — keep looking.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, June 9, 2012:

This year you often feel tense. Learn to relax more during this special year, and say "no" to taking on more obligations. You have a unique ability to present situations in the most positive light. Use this skill when you feel it is necessary. If you are single, you will be noticed. Be aware that sometimes you send mixed messages. If you are attached, be sensitive to your communication style. Sometimes your sweetie might misunderstand you. PISCES is as emotional as you are intellectual.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★ You might have a slew of plans, but for some reason you want to quiet down the noise of partying and visiting. You could decide to watch a good ballgame, or curl up with a great book. As a result, you'll feel refreshed and great. Tonight: Vanish.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★ You might need to retreat after an important meeting or get-together. You could feel as if you need some downtime, but you — the Bull — will revitalize before you know it. An artsy friend could play into your plans. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★ Use the morning for important long-distance calls. You might find yourself making plans for a trip before you know it. Visit with an older relative or friend in the afternoon. Obviously, this person enjoys your visit. You actually feel great, too. Tonight: Out.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ What might be considered a fantasy could be instrumental in your plans today and this weekend. A risk no longer carries the same heaviness with it. You are becoming more willing to toss yourself into life. Listen to your inner voice. Tonight: You know what to do.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★★ Nothing seems very different at the present moment, other than most of the people around you acting unusually congenial. In fact, others willingly go along with your wishes. Spend some quality time with a loved one. You know how important this act is to the relationship. Tonight: Make it romantic.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★ Be your efficient self in the morning. You will need to clear out certain errands in order to enjoy yourself. After you do, relax and decide to join a loved one, and a good time will be had by all. Let your instincts come into play. Tonight: Be with the one you love.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★ It will be close to impossible to settle down, so don't even try. If you would like to give a child extra attention, now is the time. You both could give in to some wild impulsiveness. Do not forget a special loved one who appreciates one-on-one time. Tonight: Dote and be doted on.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★ You might be slow to get started today. Kick back and enjoy yourself with a child or loved one. You might prefer not to have a big audience. Someone clearly sees you as being very special and is putting you on a pedestal. Tonight: You know how to make the night special.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★ Use the daylight hours for important communication. You will be far more satisfied if you do. By the afternoon, you'll receive an abundance of invitations wherever you are. Whether you are off at a ballgame or at a flea market makes no difference. Tonight: Let the games being.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★ While you have time, shift your budget around and make sure everything is in order. You get an invitation to just hang out. This doesn't seem demanding, but it could be costly. A conversation enlightens you to a problem. Tonight: Hang out.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★ You could be somewhat frayed and exhausted by midday. Slow down, as you might not have a choice. A conversation with someone who is the apple of your eye makes you smile from ear to ear. You are reading the tea leaves correctly. Tonight: Indulge a little.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ Play it low-key in the morning. If you can sleep in, do so. The Moon slides into your sign midday, and suddenly you cannot believe all the activity going on around you. Requests or needs that stem from your immediate circle also need to be honored. Tonight: Wherever you want to be.

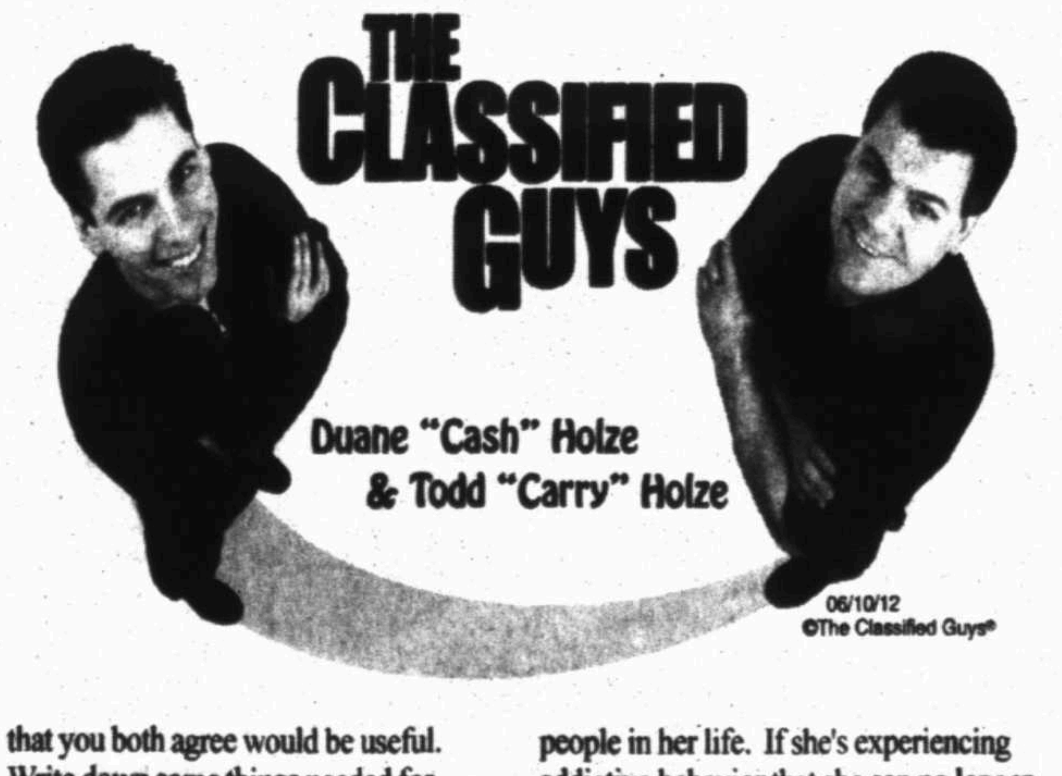
Ask the Guys



Dear Classified Guys,
Saturday used to be my favorite day of the week. My wife would go shopping at garage sales for a few hours and I could do whatever I wanted. Although as summer approached, her shopping took most of the day because she stopped at every garage sale advertised in the newspaper. The problem grew when she took over our entire 2-car garage with her "amazing deals" on corncob holders, crocheted tissue boxes and hundreds of toys for the grandkids. I can live with a few purchases, but this seems to be getting out of hand. Worse yet, it's only mid-summer and I think she's starting to eye my den for more storage. Any idea how to stop this garage sale Godzilla before she takes over our house?

Cash: You're lucky. Your wife could be shopping retail! Then you'd have to worry every time a sale flyer comes out.

Carry: Finding that "amazing deal" can be addicting. It's tough to pass up an item valued at $100 when you can buy it for only a dollar.

Cash: If your wife truly enjoys the thrill of treasure hunting at garage sales, then try coming up with a list of items that you both agree would be useful. Write down some things needed for around the house, for the grandchildren or even for friends or family. Offering some direction while shopping can help to minimize impulsive purchases.

Carry: It's just like grocery shopping. If I shop without a list and find a two-for-one sale on string beans, I end up buying two cans. And I don't even like string beans!

Cash: Unfortunately, it's also possible your wife's hobby may have crossed over to her becoming a shopaholic. It's one thing to enjoy treasure hunting at garage sales, but another when it starts affecting people in her life. If she's experiencing addictive behavior that she can no longer control, then it may be time for you to step in and find her professional help.

Carry: Now solving your existing room dilemma is easy. Much like your wife's typical Saturday afternoon, it's time to have a garage sale of your own. If you're not using the items she bought, it's time to move them on. The grandchildren can only play with so many toys.

Cash: Besides, after the sale you may find you'll become addicted as well to converting all those unnecessary items into cash!

Fast Facts

Shop Till You Drop

It's estimated that 1 in 20 people, some 17 million Americans, are Shopaholics. They fall into the category of people who shop to feel better about themselves, even at the expense of their family, marriage or finances. People seldom acknowledge this disorder and rarely attempt to obtain treatment until their debt catches up with them. Although this disorder may be more prevalent in today's society, it does have history. A German psychiatrist first published the clinical disorder back in 1915.

Celebrity Shopping

Impulsive shopping can affect everyone, even celebrities. Elton John, for example, raised over $600,000 for AIDS by selling some of the 15,000 suits, shoes, hats and other items from his closet. When fleeing the Philippines, former first lady Imelda Marcos left behind 200 girdles, 1,000 handbags, 2,000 ball gowns and 1,500 pairs of shoes. Mary Todd Lincoln, wife to the 16th President, Abraham Lincoln, was known to have bought 300 pairs of gloves at one time.

Fits Perfectly

When my wife and I had a yard sale, she cleaned out every closet in the house. There were racks and racks of clothing. Since I know people like to try on the clothes before they buy them, I asked my son to set up one of our many camping tents to use as a changing room.

On the morning of the sale, he went out early to set up the tent. When I came out I realized I should have been more specific about which tent to set up.

"What do you think?" he said pointing to his accomplishment.

"It looks good," I commended. "But I doubt people will like changing in a screen tent."
