Food prices up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sharply higher prices for food and fuel drove consumer prices up eight-tenths of a per cent in January, the biggest monthly inflationary surge in 18 months, the government said today.

In addition, the Labor Department indicated there could be worse news in months ahead since it said its January price index failed to reflect the full price impact of severe winter weather that has affected much of the nation.

The January price report was certain to add to fears that inflation may be much worse this year than in 1976, when prices rose only a moderate 4.8 per cent.

The Labor Department said food prices alone rose nine-tenths of a per cent in January, more than in all of 1976 when they were up six-tenths of a per cent. Prices rose for most types of foods purchased in grocery stores, it said.

Prices of commodities, including fuel oil, autos and clothing, advanced seven-tenths of a per cent last month, and prices of services, including natural gas and electricity, jumped ahead nine-tenths of a per cent.

The eight-tenths of a per cent increase in the Consumer Price Index in January was double the December increase and the largest monthly price rise since July of 1975 when the index increased nine-tenths of a per cent.

Although economists expect prices for 1977 will increase between 5 and 6 per cent, the January price hikes, if continued for the full year at that rate, would translate into a 9.6 increase in prices.

The index in January stood at 175.3 of the 1967 average of 100, meaning that goods which cost $100 ten years ago had risen to $175.30.

The Labor Department also reported that workers' spendable earnings, after discounting for inflation, declined 1.1 per cent in January, largely the result of business closings because of weather conditions.

The number of average weekly hours worked in January also fell 1.1 per cent during the month, which accounted for the drop in earnings. The agency said real earnings in January were five-tenths of a per cent below real earnings in January of 1976.

A 7 per cent increase in coffee prices accounted for about one-fourth of the overall increase in food prices in January. Prices also increased for the month for pork, cereal bakery products, dairy products and processed fruits and vegetables.

A rare decline in food prices during 1976 kept the overall figures lower than they would have been otherwise. Food prices are expected to resume a more normal upward trend this year, especially in the wake of winter crop damage.

Another indication that consumer prices will rise at a slightly faster rate this year is the trend of wholesale prices, which in recent months has been slightly ahead of consumer prices. Wholesale prices rose five-tenths of 1 per cent in January after increases of six-tenths of 1 per cent in each of the two previous months.

Wholesale price trends eventually are reflected in the prices consumers pay.

$50 rebate moves closer

By CARL C. CRAFT

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation is moving forward in Congress to enact President Carter's economic stimulus package including $50 rebates for most Americans and permanent tax cuts for 44.6 million households.

The legislation approved Thursday night 26 to 8 by the House Ways and Means Committee, could be ready for House action later this month or early next month.

The $50 rebate checks would start going into the mail in May or June to all American families with income under $25,000 if the bill passes in its present form.

The permanent tax cut would be reflected in reduced withholding from paychecks received after May 1. This would be worth an average of $90 annually to some 44.6 million tax payers and their families earning $20,000 or less a year.

The committee voted to replace the current system of minimum and maximum standard deductions for taxpayers who do not itemize with a new flat deduction of $2,400 for single persons and $3,000 for couples. Carter had suggested a $2,200 deduction for singles, but the committee rejected this because it would have raised taxes for 2.1 million single taxpayers.

The action would raise the so-called marriage penalty, now at $1,300 to $1,800. Carter has acknowledged that two single persons living together have a tax advantage over married couples. The new system would allow the singles to get two deductions totaling $4,800, while the couple would be limited to $3,000.

Most of the benefits from the new standard deduction would go to taxpayers making less than $17,500 a year. It would mean a tax cut of $154 a year for a single person making $10,000, $175 for a couple earning $12,500, and $171 for a family of four with $10,000 of income.

The tax reductions first enacted in 1975 would be continued through 1978, including the present $35-per-person tax credit, a special bonus of up to $400 for working poor families, and corporate tax rate reductions aimed mainly at helping small businesses.

In addition, a new jobs tax credit for businesses would provide up to $40,000 annually for each company hiring new workers this year and in 1978. The government, in effect, would pay up to $1,680 of the wages for each new employee, with even greater incentives for hiring the handicapped.

The tax rebate would mean a $50 check for single persons; $100 for couples and $200 for a family of four. But people earning between $25,000 and $30,000 would get less than the full $50 and those over $30,000 would get no rebate.

About 36 million persons who receive Social Security railroad retirement or aid to the aged, blind and disabled would be eligible for a special $50 payment in lieu of a tax rebate.

The committee also put other groups on the list for checks, including coal miners suffering from black-lung disease, recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children and veterans or their widows.

'Fed planners should seek aid'

HOUSTON (AP) — Chairman Mack Wallace of the Texas Railroad Commission told federal energy planners Friday to do themselves a favor and ask the commission for help in designing a long-range energy policy.

We know more about the subject than anyone else, Wallace said. We have done it well — well enough that we have consistently fueled the nation even in times of crisis.

Woody Guthrie returns to Pampa...on film

By THOM MARSHALL

Pampa News Staff

It's a kind of a homecoming. Woody Guthrie's return to Pampa in the form of a movie which opens tonight at the Capri Theatre.

There are lots of folks who would have found that hard to believe if it had been predicted back in the dust-bowl, oil-bowl days when Guthrie lived, scrounged, painted and played his music all over Pampa.

He certainly didn't look like somebody then who would become famous for his music playing and his book writing and his philosophizing.

But that happened. When Guthrie left Pampa to make his way West along with thousands of other poor folks leaving dust and wind ravaged farms in search of better times, he may have gotten the inspiration for his song, "So Long. It's Been Good to Know Ya."

He described the town as "a Texas oil boom town and wilder than a woodchuck. It traveled fast and traveled light."

He could have been describing himself. According to his autobiography, he travelled the country over unencumbered by worldly possessions other than his ever-present guitar. Never any money to speak of. Just what he picked up nickels and dimes at a time singing in working-man bars.

He never really changed much. His widow, Marjorie Guthrie, who lives in New York City, where Woody died, said recently, "I wasn't married to a famous man. We were poor all our lives."

Pampa changed, though. So much that if it were really Woody up on that screen tonight instead of David Carradine acting the part, and if he could step down and walk around town, he might not recognize much of it.

The town was mainly a scattering of little old shacks, he wrote. They were built to last a few months, built out of old rotten boards, flattened oil barrels, buckets, sheet iron crates of all kinds, and gunny sacks. Some were lucky enough to have a floor, others just the dusty old dirt. The rent was high on these shacks. A common price was five dollars a week for a three roomer. That meant one room cut three ways.

The movie makers couldn't film in the modern day Pampa. They made up a little dust-swept California place to look like they thought Pampa probably looked back when Guthrie scratched out an existence here.

He did quite a variety of things to earn his bread, according to his book.

He sold bootleg liquor.

Prohibition was on, and folks seemed like they were dry. I got an inside view of what the human race was drinking. Lots of people fell over dead and was found scattered here and yon with different kinds of whiskey poisoning. I hated prohibition on that account.

He painted. I painted cheap signs and pictures on store windows, warehouses, barns and hotels, hock shops, funeral parlors and blacksmith shops, and I spent the money I made for more tubes of oil colors."

He told fortunes.

People hunted for some kind of an answer. The banker didn't give it to them. The sheriff never told anybody the answer. The chamber of commerce was trying to make more money, and they was too busy to tell people the answer to their troubles. So the people asked the preacher, and still didn't learn much where to go or what to do. They even come to the door of the fortune teller.

He played and he sang his music. And there on the Texas plains right in the dead center of the dust bowl, with the oil boom over and the wheat blown out and the hard-working people just stumbling about, bothered with mortgages, debts, bills, sickness, worries of every blowing kind, I seen there was plenty to make up songs about.

Everywhere he went he found plenty to make up songs about. Songs that had the Guthrie way of telling what I thought was wrong and how to make it right, songs that said what everybody in that country was thinking.

Guthrie died in 1967 of Huntington's Disease. He died a poor man. But he had spent his life giving away his words and music, making people happy or making them mad — making them think.

This Land Is Your Land. Woody wrote and sang. He knew. He'd seen it all. After he left Pampa, Bound for Glory.

Arms ban irritates Israeli officials

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli officials described President Carter's refusal to sell concussion bombs to Israel as one of several irritants by the new U.S. administration and a psychological hangover from the Vietnam War.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat hailed the ban as a great statesmanship and a very positive and creative step.

The White House announced Thursday that Carter was reversing President Ford's commitment during his election campaign to sell Israel the CBU-72. A presidential spokesman said the bomb would not be sold to any other nation and that Carter was considering banning it from U.S. arsenals.

A well-placed Israeli official said the ban was "an irritant along with several other such irritants." He referred to a series of Carter administration moves, including:

—State Department condemnation Feb. 7 of Israeli oil drilling in the Gulf of Suez, off the Egyptian coast it has occupied since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

—The U.S. ban Monday on the sale of the Israeli Kfir fighter bomber to Ecuador because it is powered by an American engine.

—A cool reception to the Israeli request to manufacture the U.S. F-16 fighter bomber.

But Defense Minister Shimon Peres said he did not expect Carter to limit arms supplies to Israel.

I rely in this vital matter on a public and declared commitment by President Carter to assist in the strengthening of Israel's security, he said. I have no doubt as to that commitment.

There is a clear psychological element here connected to the Vietnam war, Peres said of the embargo on the concussion bomb.

This is a bomb that causes a huge air blast and when it is used against people it can be lethal. We made it clear to the United States that we do not intend to use the bombs against civilians, but against military targets in time of war.

The use of an early version of the bomb in Vietnam was widely criticized because of the casualties it caused among civilians. The 500-pound CBU-72 is dropped by parachute from a jet, explodes with crushing force, covers a wide area and is particularly effective against missile sites, airports, harbors and minefields.

FBI not linked to King death

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Justice Department task force found no evidence that the FBI was implicated in the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and concluded that the FBI investigation of the assassination was thorough and honest.

The task force today released a report of its findings after reviewing more than 200,000 FBI documents and interviewing about 40 witnesses.

Former Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi launched the probe to clear up questions about the FBI harassment of the civil rights leader and the investigation of his death.

The task force said the evidence virtually rules out the possibility of a conspiracy to kill King, who was shot on a motel balcony in Memphis on April 4, 1968.

The evidence indicates that James Earl Ray, who was arrested and pleaded guilty to the crime, acted alone, the task force said.

The sum of all of the evidence of Ray's guilt points to him so exclusively that it most effectively makes the point that no one else was involved, the report said.

Of course, someone could conceivably have provided him with logistics or even paid him to commit the crime. However, we have found no competent evidence upon which to base such a theory.

The task force said the FBI conscientiously checked out leads suggesting a conspiracy but the results were negative.

The task force has concluded that the investigation by the FBI to ascertain and capture the murderer of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was thoroughly, honestly and successfully conducted, the report said. We found no new evidence which calls for action by state or federal authorities.

The task force members also said they found no evidence of any complicity in the assassination by the FBI or the Memphis Police Department.

Borger paper may sell

Negotiations apparently are underway for the sale of the Borger News-Herald newspaper to Allison Communications, Inc., owners of the Plainview Herald and the Midland Reporter-Telegram.

There's been some talk of that, but as far as I know there has been nothing closed. I don't know whether we'll go through with it.

He said information on the possible purchase should come from James N. Allison Jr., executive vice president, Allison. He said he had not been reached for a comment this morning.

Union-silenced presses

On Jan. 13 The Times of London did not appear. The reason for the majestic newspaper's uncustomary disappearance became a hotly argued controversy in Parliament. Sympathetic editorials were written in The Times' competitor newspapers and it is safe to say the matter points up much of what is wrong in the United Kingdom today.

Labor union intransigence shut down The Times. An article critical of union power, written by the former owner of another newspaper, The Observer, was to have appeared that Thursday in The Times. But the National Graphical Association, a printers' union, wanted an article appearing alongside giving the union's point of view. When the editors didn't bow to the union's demand the union refused to print The Times.

Naturally the Tories, who are out of power at the moment, seized the occasion or non-occasion, to club the ruling Labor party. Obviously the Tories have political purposes. But consider the words of The Daily Telegraph, the Times' chief competitor.

If the Government is not itself the chief direct danger to our liberties, it is impossible to acquit it of conniving of being an accomplice in their progressive extinction. It does all in its power to bolster the power of the unions. As evidence accumulates of how this power will be illiberally used, Ministers stand aside, ostentatiously washing their hands in feigned impotence. Mr. Callaghan, far too squeamish to criticize in any way the stopping of the Times is not too squeamish to launch a peevish sub-Metternichesque assault on the freedom of the Press, as though neither he nor anyone else nor the country as a whole derived the slightest benefit from any such institution.

It is a point friends of unionism, abroad or here at home, might ponder well.

Free enterprise lesson

Everyone talks about the economic illiteracy of Americans and now someone is doing something about it where it counts—at the elementary grade level.

Thousands of school children in the fourth through ninth grades are being introduced to the American economic system through a program called The American Way 76.

Developed by the National Schools Committee, a nonprofit foundation, The American Way kit teaches youngsters the principles, concepts and values underpinning the free private enterprise system through film, strip stories, like that of a boy who spends his summer washing windows to earn money to buy a bicycle. The roles of free choice, profit, competition and enterprise are pointed up by comparing the boy's small business with that of the larger economic system, including the bicycle shop and manufacturers.

According to Dr. James A. Sensenbaur, chairman of the National Schools Committee and superintendent of schools of the state of Maryland, by the time many students reach high school they not only lack knowledge about the American economic system but worse have a lot of wrong ideas about it.

For example, some 60 per cent of these students say they do not believe that profit is a valid motive for business, yet these same youngsters take on jobs to make money and expect a profit, or return for their investment of time when they cut a lawn or baby sit.

Thus the great need for programs like The American Way 76, which help kids make the connection between their world and the economy as a whole.

A tough bird

Let's hear it for the white-tailed kite.

A few years ago, this small member of the hawk family was on the rare and endangered species list. Now it is reported to be flourishing in all of its unlikely environments, the Los Angeles freeway system.

It seems that the broad grassy shoulders and divider strips of the freeways have become havens for mice, lizards and grasshoppers, which are the natural prey of the kite. One estimate is that the number of the birds is approaching 1,000. Flocks of 100 at a time are not an unusual sight for motorists.

An abundance of food and freedom from human molestation notwithstanding, any bird that can survive the pollution generated by a modern urban freeway has got to be tougher than anyone gave it credit for.

HOUSE STUDY:

Candy price ripoff revealed

By ROBERTS ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 — If you think you're being ripped off on candy bars, you are absolutely right.

You are — on price, size and in some instances ingredients.

Those are the major conclusions of a comprehensive study by the House Consumers and Monetary Affairs Subcommittee, which opens hearings next week on soaring coffee prices. The panel's staff has compiled voluminous reports on both coffee and candy bars which will be the basis on the public inquiries.

The findings on candy bars are stingingly summed up as follows:

In the past five years, the cost of leading bars, when computed according to weight, has increased by as much as 263 per cent — making candy one of the most inflationary items on our economy today.

Singled out in the study are glaring contradictions in the cost of sugar and cocoa (main candy ingredients) and prices charged consumers. Examples:

In 1974, candy manufacturers' wailing wrung their hands over dramatic sugar increases, when they soared to record highs. That was used to pry a 50 per cent price hike out of candy consumers. Since the 1974 peak, sugar costs have dropped almost 90 per cent.

But consumers aren't benefitting. In fact, manufacturers are charging even more. This time they are blaming higher cocoa bean prices.

Same Run-Around

Not only was a cocoa bean shortage, considerably exaggerated, asserted the report, but price hikes based on it were far out of line.

Wholly disregarded was the fact that the steep drop in sugar costs largely offset the cocoa increase. But candy makers brushed that off on the ground higher labor, packaging and energy charges forced price boosts. Comments the report caustically.

What the Commission has done so far will save businesses and state and local governments over $6.5 billion a year and untold frustration — and it's just getting started. Ultimately, it is the consumers and taxpayers who will benefit from these savings.

The Commission staff is anxious to hear about paperwork problems. They have worked closely with the National Chamber and other business groups to get our advice. And they have set up an "Ombudsman" to receive complaints and suggestions from individual citizens. The Ombudsman's toll-free hotline is (800) 424-9882.

I sincerely hope that President Carter — who has often expressed his concern for Those protests sound hollow in the light of a study by the Council on Wage and Price Stability which, in substance, concludes that candy manufacturers were caught with their hands in the cookie — or candy — jar.

The cocoa shortage, due to a poor harvest in West Africa, source of about two-thirds of the world's cocoa supply, was largely offset, holds the subcommittee study, by two factors. A good crop in South America, the practice of candy manufacturers to contract cocoa supplies six to twelve months in advance.

Also by reducing the size of candy bars, and substituting cocoa butter with vegetable oil in chocolate coating — as well as using thinner coatings.

This double whammy fulminates the report, "would be suspicious enough but candy manufacturers also appear to be getting ready to jump the gun in their enthusiasm for price hikes."

Look 'Em Over

The study has a pointed piece of advice to candy buyers: "Examine candy bar labels both for weight changes and substitutes of vegetable oil for cocoa butter. Recent declines in the price of cocoa butter make candy wrapping — watching even more urgent."

The importance of this warning is stressed by the disclosure that the National Confectioners Association asked the Food and Drug Administration for permission to eliminate weight information on candy bar labels. This was sought on the contention it would give candy makers "flexibility for packaging to price" as their expenses fluctuated.

But public opposition was so extensive and vehement that the FDA rejected the proposal. Declares the report.

This glaring attempt must not be forgotten. It illustrates to consumers that candy manufacturers, using raw material price fluctuations as their shield, are only too willing to take hefty pieces from candy bars as well as from consumer pocketbooks.

Appended to the study is a detailed breakdown of five leading candy bars which, it charges, "discloses an enormous increase in prices while their size has been steadily shrinking."

Price hikes of these candy bars since 1974 range from 193 per cent to 263 per cent.

On The Way

It's all set — but the collecting.

That $12.900 congressional pay boost (from $44,600 to $57,500) is in the bag.

So are the thousands of other hefty federal pay raises — 22 per cent for the Vice President, 23 per cent for Supreme Court Justices, 45 per cent for circuit and district judges, 7.1 per cent for cabinet members, 34.5 per cent for other top-level officials.

Overall, it's one of the biggest boodle grabs on record — totaling more than $124 million a year.

Stage for the lush pay-off was set when Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., was outvoted 56 to 42 in his fight to bar the 28.9 per cent boost in congressional salaries. With the Senate slamming the door, House leaders felt free to follow suit — and lost no time doing just that.

Under the wily steering of Speaker "Tip" O'Neill, D-Mass., a so-called "ad hoc" panel was set up to "study" the pay question and report back by Feb. 21 — remarkably exactly one day after the grab automatically becomes effective unless expressly barred by a disapproving vote.

What this hocus-pocus committee reports doesn't matter one bit. Its findings will be completely moot, because the deadline for blocking the pay raise will have passed — which is just what O'Neill farsightedly had in mind.

As the old saying goes, "Them as has, gets" — especially if you are a member of Congress.

Wanted: programs we can all live with

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — It is now learned that most of the advice the nation's scientists have been giving the White House and Congress these past two years on solving the energy crunch has been so wildly contradictory and impractical it has been either impossible for anyone to come up with a workable program.

This in considerable measure is the reason we are today even more dangerously dependent on oil from the petroleum monopoly than at the time of the worldwide boycott — and why, energywise, we are living on borrowed time.

For one, scientists could not agree on priorities. And thus it now appears that we may be throwing most of our research money into the wrong channels, and stranding areas of the greatest promise.

As one example, technical men working on pure theory saw in coal a relatively quick substitute for oil in a variety of operations. The U.S. has coal in abundance. Coal liquefaction and shale oil were the talk of scientific conferences. Never mind that coal producers said that practical production problems and high costs would make shale and liquefaction at competitive rates a long time in coming.

The scientists too, in their enthusiasm for coal, have only recently begun to consider just how great may be the environmental problems associated with a major increase in coal output — and the costs involved in ameliorating damage to the environment in large-scale strip mining.

Today also, the scientists are beginning to find unexpected problems associated with all other major roads to greater energy self-sufficiency — whether it be nuclear fission or fusion, breeder or non breeder, geothermal, solar. All, including solar power, may create unwanted changes in the environment, the scientists now say.

It now appears we may well run seriously short of energy worldwide before we solve the social-environmental and commercial problems necessary to expand alternate sources, such as coal, and to develop new sources, such as breeder reactors and solar energy, on a scale sufficiently large to meet our energy needs.

In the long run, the problems undoubtedly can be solved, though at considerably higher cost than energy today. But the social, environmental, political and engineering adjustments, and the consequent delays, will mean that sometime in the interim period — that is, in the next 30 to 40 years — there may be a most serious energy shortage worldwide.

The only way to make ends meet, a growing number of scientists now say, will be through the rapid development and adoption of much more efficient means of using energy, and adjusting our needs so that we don't increase our energy requirements at the fast pace of the recent past.

Yet just a year ago, a prominent government engineer was all but laughed off the platform by the chairman at a major scientific meeting for suggesting just this approach.

The problem here, as in economics, is that the scientists too often live in a world of their own. The politicians also. And the producers. And those working on environmental protection. Each develops a program to protect or promote what their particular group believes in, independent of the others. The programs don't mesh. The groups end up in conflict.

The truth is, of course, we need in government, and in private society, more teams which include a variety of legitimate interests, teams that will work together to develop programs all of us can live with.

Bill would limit money in malpractice suits

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — It will be at least next week before any further action is taken in House and Senate committees on identical, 67-page bills that would limit the amounts plaintiffs could recover from malpractice suits.

The Senate Jurisprudence Committee heard its second round of hearings Wednesday on the proposal that is being strongly supported by Texas doctors and just as adamantly opposed by some lawyer organizations.

Chairman A.R. "Babe" Schwartz said the committee will have a work session on the bill next Tuesday night and won't vote before Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the House State Affairs Committee, which has already gone through two grinding, marathon sessions on the measure, postponed its third round of hearings until Monday night.

A Texas Trial Lawyers Association official charged before the Senate committee Wednesday that Texas doctors are "passing through" to their patients far more than the actual costs of their malpractice insurance.

Citing earlier testimony by Texas Medical Association lobbyist Ace Pickens, TTLA official Wayne Fisher said, "Texas doctors are collecting an additional $18,000 to $45,000 a year from their patients to cover insurance costs that seldom approach these figures."

Pickens had testified that malpractice insurance adds $2 to $5 to the cost of a visit to the doctor and Fisher said a TMA survey indicated an average Texas general practitioner sees more than 9,000 patients per year.

Fisher said a general practitioner in Harris County, where figures indicate malpractice insurance rates to be the highest in Texas, pays less than $2,000 a year for normal coverage.

The Houston attorney said insurance companies are overcharging doctors and added, "We think there is much more medical negligence occurring than physicians are prepared to admit."

"Somehow, the medical profession has got to assume the responsibility for adopting risk control measures that will reduce the number of medical injuries," Fisher explained.

Pickens had said the malpractice "crisis" is having an "adverse impact" on the availability and quality of medical care.

The bills, sponsored in the House by Rep. Pike Powers, D-Beaumont, and in the Senate by Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, would limit recoveries of actual damages to $500,000, unless it could be proven that a higher amount would be needed to cover future medical costs.

The proposals would also limit to $100,000 the amount a plaintiff could recover for such non-economic losses as pain, suffering, disfigurement and inconvenience.

Other provisions include:

- A limitation on attorney fees, based on the amount of the award. The range would be from 50 per cent on the first $1,000 recovered to 10 per cent on amounts exceeding $100,000.
- Screening committees, consisting of three health care providers, with a judge as non-voting presiding officer, to review all malpractice cases before they can go to court.
- A "collateral source rule" that would reduce a malpractice settlement or judgement by the amount the injured patient had received from his own insurance, Medicaid, Medicare or social security.

—Periodic payments of jury awards instead of the present system of lump sum payment.

—Continuation of the present risk sharing pool that guarantees insurance to doctors who cannot find coverage on their own.

—Continuation of the State Insurance Board's temporary power to regulate malpractice rates.

—Stronger disciplinary powers for the State Board of Medical Examiners, which would receive automatic reports from insurance companies of all malpractice claims against Texas doctors. The board would have the power to suspend a physician's license for incompetence or require him to take further training or practice under supervision.

More deer in Texas now

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas had barely left frontier days in 1925, and most people think wild game abounded. Actually, the estimated white-tail deer population stood at 108,000, compared with today's 3.2 million.

Wild turkey totaled 95,500, compared with today's 400,000, the Parks and Wildlife Department reported today.

Other comparisons, with the 1925 figure listed first:

- Mule deer 20,000 — 150,000.
- Antelope 2,400 — 10,000.
- Aoudad sheep "none" — 1,500 (Palo Duro Canyon).
- Bighorn sheep 100 — 40.
- Javelina "numerous" (South Texas) — "numerous" (South Texas).

Moscow revives 'coexistence'

By DAVE MASON
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet ambassador has told a top U.S. State Department official that Moscow rejects attempts to interfere in its internal affairs on the human rights issue, the Soviet news agency Tass said today.

In a report from Washington, Tass said that on Thursday Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin called on Arthur Hartman, who is acting secretary of state while Cyrus R. Vance is in the Middle East.

It was not clear in the Tass dispatch whether the meeting came before or after it was disclosed that President Carter promised in a letter to Soviet dissident Andrei D. Sakharov to help secure release of political prisoners.

The Dobrynin call on Hartman appeared to link progress on such outstanding issues as the strategic arms limitation talks — SALT — with Washington's attitude on human rights in the Soviet Union.

The Tass dispatch said: "Relations of peaceful coexistence and constructive cooperation can develop fruitfully between the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A. in the interests of the two peoples only when they rest on mutual respect for the principles of sovereignty and noninterference in each other's affairs, as is said in basic Soviet-American documents."

However, the Tass dispatch made no specific reference to suspended negotiations on a new nuclear arms agreement, which Carter and Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev have said they hope to resume quickly.

The Soviet side, Tass said, "resolutely rejects attempts to interfere under a thought-up pretext of 'defending human rights' in its internal affairs, in matters that fall within the internal competence of the states."

In answer to Carter's letter, Sakharov asked the American president's help on behalf of three ailing dissidents.

The three include Alexander Ginzburg, through whom exiled author Alexander Solzhenitsyn funneled $363,000 to political prisoners and their families in the past two and a half years.

Carter in a personal letter to Sakharov delivered Thursday said human rights is a "central concern" of his administration, and he would use his "good offices to seek the release of prisoners of conscience."

The exchange of letters between a Soviet dissident and an American president, which the U.S. Embassy said was unprecedented, was expected to heighten the U.S.-Soviet conflict over human rights in the Soviet Union. There was no immediate comment from Soviet officials or the official media, however. Meanwhile, President Nicolae Ceausescu of Romania criticized human rights activists in his country and elsewhere in the Soviet Bloc as "traitors to their countries." Observers said Ceausescu's remarks Thursday to a workers' convention were aimed at author Paul Goma and seven other Romanians who complained publicly about the lack of civil rights in their country.

In his reply to Carter, Sakharov asked the president's help in arranging bail for the ailing Ginzburg and Mikola Rudenko, members of a group formed to monitor Soviet compliance with the human rights declarations of the 1975 Helsinki Agreement signed by the United States, the Soviet Union and 33 other nations.

He also asked Carter's help in arranging the transfer to a prison hospital of Sergei Kovalev, a member of Amnesty International who is serving a seven-year term in a labor camp. Sakharov said he was dangerously ill with a tumor.

Ginzburg was arrested Feb. 3 following allegations of illegal currency transactions in the Literary Gazette.

The 1975 Nobel laureate reminded Carter also of the recent arrests, along with Ginzburg and Rudenko, of Oleksa Tkhi and Yuri Orlov, two other leaders of the group monitoring the Helsinki Agreement.

House okays tax break

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas senators have the job now of deciding how much tax break owners of producing farm land should get, if any.

The highly controversial measure was finally approved by the House Thursday after being under consideration three days.

The House and Senate adjourned shortly before noon Thursday until Monday.

The adjournment was hurried by police reports that an anonymous caller said a bomb would explode in the Capitol at 11:30 a.m.

There was no explosion and squads of police found no signs of one, but several thousand state employees got a long lunch hour when they were evacuated for the search.

The House-approved tax break bill, which won't take effect unless a constitutional amendment on taxation of agricultural land also passes, was sent to the Senate on voice vote.

The proposed constitutional amendment authorizing such legislation is stalled in the Senate until mid-March. It would require a two-thirds majority in the House and Senate plus approval of the voters.

The House-passed enabling bill would evaluate "open space land" except that held by corporations with more than 10 stockholders, for taxation according to its ability to produce crops, forage and timber.

Farm land now is taxed on its market value as real estate.

After obtaining expert opinion on the productivity of various kinds of land, the state comptroller would issue a manual to be used by local tax assessor-collectors. The key figure will be the average net income a piece of land would have earned over the preceding five years if cultivated with "ordinary prudence."

The net average income figure then would be multiplied — in most cases — by 10 to obtain the taxable value of the land.

If land is taken out of cultivation or grazing, it would be taxed at market value for the preceding five years, with an additional penalty of 5 per cent.

Senators disposed of one of their more volatile issues by passing a bill undoing a 1975 bill that allowed San Antonio policemen and firemen to accumulate sick leave and collect it in cash upon retirement. The bill, which still needs House approval, limits the accumulation to 90 days, effective Aug. 1, 1977. Firemen and policemen who already have 90 days or more would not be affected.

House members passed a Senate bill preventing state universities and junior colleges from collecting full tuition from persons who are part-time students at two or more schools. The student would pay the higher of the two, plus a per credit rate at the other.

The House tentatively approved a bill allowing judges to award attorneys' fees in suits based on oral or written contracts. Under current law the winner cannot have the loser pay his fees.

Cox stallion places 4th in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO — Sir Prince Plaudit, yearling stallion, placed fourth in a class of 19 during Appaloosa halter competition at the San Antonio Livestock Show.

The leopard Appaloosa is owned by Dr. and Mrs. Harbord Cox's Bar DK Appaloosa Ranch west of Pampa. Sir Prince Plaudit is shown by Dick Bennett, trainer.

Appaloosa competition started Thursday and will end Saturday.

Sixteen Pampa and Gray County youth showed entries in the junior barrow competition here Wednesday. Names of local winners are not yet known, according to Layton Barton, assistant Gray County Extension agent. The barrow exhibitors will return to Pampa later today.

Williams awarded

Quentin Williams of Quentin Williams Real Estate recently received two awards for his work in real estate. At the local Realtors meeting on Tuesday, Williams received an award for Region 1 of the Texas Association of Realtors presented by Ted Schuler of Amarillo, 1977 regional vice president. "Region 1 had a higher percentage of increase in membership than any other region in the state," Williams explained. On Feb. 1, he was presented an award for "outstanding service to organized real estate in Texas" by the state association of which he served as 1976 vice president of Region 1. "I've been a director of the Texas Association for 17 years prior to last year," Williams said. "I was national president of the Farm and Land Brokers Institute in 1968." In April Williams will have been in real estate for 25 years. He served in the mid-1960s as president of the Pampa Board of Realtors.

Hill wins judgement against school operator

By RICK SCOTT
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill today won a $927,000 judgement against the operator of a chain of 11 private business schools in the state.

State District Court Judge Robert Murray granted Hill's motion ordering San Antonio businessman Carl D. Whelming to return $927,793.60 in unearned tuition to 1,506 students.

Hill's office in Austin said the judgement was the largest ever obtained under the state's Consumer Protection Act.

The attorney general sought the refunds for students who paid for education which they never received.

Whelming's schools have been closed, but a jury earlier this month cleared the way for the judgement by deciding that Whelming was personally responsible for the schools' actions.

Judge Murray also ordered Whelming to pay a $1,000 penalty fine. Hill had sought a $10,000 fine.

Whelming's chain included schools in Victoria, San Angelo, McAllen, Harlingen, Brownsville, Beaumont, Lubbock, Amarillo and Abilene.

The Attorney General announced his motion at a news conference here Thursday.

He also confirmed that two assistant Texas attorneys general, Ed Idar Jr. and Dan Maeso, are expected to work with the U.S. Justice Department in its civil rights investigation of former Castroville Town Marshal Frank Hayes.

Idar and Maeso, along with a lawyer from the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division, will serve as special Assistant U.S. Attorneys and help present evidence to a federal grand jury.

Hill said a grand jury may begin hearing the case in the next week.

Hayes was convicted in San Angelo last summer of aggravated assault in the shotgun slaying of Richard Morales, 27, a Mexican-American construction worker in Castroville.

Hayes is serving a two to 10 year prison sentence.

The justice department announced last week it would seek federal civil rights indictments in the case.

Morales was in the custody of Hayes at the time of the shooting in September 1975 and it is a federal crime for a law enforcement officer to violate the civil rights of a prisoner in his custody.

JP raise rejected

CANADIAN — A second effort to obtain a salary increase for Justice of the Peace Bob Gober was rejected during Monday night's meeting of the Hemphill County Commissioners.

Gober had asked earlier that his $8,184 annual salary be raised. When his request was vetoed by commissioners, a committee was formed this month to petition in his behalf.

The committee's recommendation failed to win approval by the commissioners. In other business, plans were finalized to purchase a new pickup truck and stock trailer for use by county 4-H members. The group voted to accept a bid of $5,395 for a 1977 Chevrolet pickup from Pennington Chevrolet, and a bid of $2,870 for a stock trailer from Champion Trailer Sales, Chickasha, Okla.

The commissioners approved a donation of $1,000 to the Briscoe Fire Department toward the purchase of a new truck. Briscoe firemen attending the meeting said that in reciprocation for the donation, they will answer fire calls from south Hemphill County.

Government declares war on sex bias in schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government, using the threat of fund cutoffs, is launching a drive to end discrimination by schools against girls and women.

The action announced Thursday means that the government will enforce existing rules against sex segregated physical education classes, single-sex organizations such as honorary service fraternities and scholarships restricted to members of one sex.

Exempt from the ban on sex discrimination are contact sports and sex education classes. Otherwise, the federal rules apply to all areas of school life, including hiring, admissions and athletics.

Affected by the rules are 16,000 school districts and 2,700 institutions of higher education that receive federal funds.

The action by the Carter administration constitutes agreement with the long-standing complaint by women's groups that HEW has been slow in enforcing a 1972 law banning sex discrimination in schools.

After the law went on the books, HEW took three years to formulate regulations to implement the law.

"Only scattered enforcement efforts have been undertaken, and these were only in response to individual complaints and were not initiated by the department," said new HEW Secretary Joseph Califano Jr.

Califano directed that a list be compiled by March 15 of colleges and school systems that have assured HEW they are complying with the 1975 regulations. Schools are supposed to review their own policies on equal treatment of both sexes.

Osborne treated after accident

A Pampa man was treated at the Highland General Hospital Emergency room following a one-car accident west of Kingsmill Thursday morning.

Jack Osborne, 56, of 1038 N. Wells, was taken to the hospital by Metropolitan Ambulance after the car he was driving ran off the road two miles outside Kingsmill.

An ambulance attendant said it appeared Osborne had blacked out. He was released following treatment.

and to list any corrective measures needed.

After 60 days "those that do not comply will face the initiation of legal proceedings leading to termination of federal funds," he said.

A HEW spokesman said schools and colleges have filed the compliance statements haphazardly in the past and the department has not been diligent in examining or processing them.

College athletic administrators have campaigned unsuccessfully for a congressional waiver of the rules for their top revenue-producing sports, football and basketball.

Califano also promised to cut off federal funds for any school district found to be guilty of racial discrimination. No school district in the nation has lost federal education funds for civil rights violations in the last five years.

An HEW administrative law judge on Thursday ordered federal funds to Chicago's public schools cut off because of alleged violations of the civil rights laws. His ruling would be final unless the school district appeals within 20 days. Chicago's schools get more than $100 million a year from the federal government.

Briscoe daughter denies royal rumor

DALLAS (AP) — Can the pretty daughter of the governor of Texas find happiness in Buckingham Palace with Prince Charles, the heir to the British throne?

"Don't hold your breath waiting for the answer," Cele Briscoe, 20, and a student at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, doesn't want to talk about it.

She has never met Prince Charles, never mind dated him. Nevertheless, she is being linked to the prince in print. The Dallas Morning News said in Friday editions.

"I'm getting an awful lot of teasing from my friends," Cele said. "I just don't want to talk about it."

The News cited stories in a London publication calling Cele, daughter of Gov. and Mrs. Dolph Briscoe, a "blue-blooded heirress" who American society matrons feel would be perfect for Prince Charles.

"I've just had to stop answering the phone," Cele said. "Reporters from everywhere are calling me. You wouldn't believe the questions they are asking me. I don't know how all this started. I wish it would stop."

The News said British writer James Drummond called and said he was writing a "life story" on Cele. "I tried calling her," Drummond told the News, "and she said she didn't want to talk. So we'll do a story about a beautiful American heiress anxious to meet the Prince of Wales. Do you know if she dates any celebrities? Does she know any rock stars?"

Survivors include his widow, Mollie; a son, Jerry of Los Alamos, N.M.; a sister, Mrs. Annie Wright of Marysville, Calif.; and one grandchild.

MRS. NOLA E. WRIGHT WHEELER — Services for Mrs. Nola E. Wright will be at 2:30 p.m. Saturday in the First United Methodist Church with the Rev. Ernie McGughey, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Shamrock Cemetery by Wright Funeral Home.

Mrs. Wright died yesterday. She was 83.

A native of Nashville, Tenn., she married John T. Wright Nov. 26, 1912 in Shamrock. He died in 1964. A resident of Wheeler since 1941, Mrs. Wright was a Methodist.

Survivors include two sons, J.T. Jr. of Houston and Harvey of Elk City, Okla.; two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Wynn of Dalhart and Mrs. Juanita Allen of Wichita, Kan.; a brother, Herman Jinnette of Nashville; 16 grandchildren and 27 great-grandchildren.

E.L. HARBIN AMARILLO — E.L. Harbin, brother of Mrs. Bill Woods of Skellytown, died Wednesday. He was 68.

State department mum on millions to Hussein

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department is declining comment on a report that the CIA for two decades secretly funneled millions of dollars to Jordan's King Hussein.

White House officials could not be reached immediately for reaction to the story, published today by The Washington Post.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, in the midst of a trip through the Middle East, was to visit with Hussein today in Amman.

President Carter learned of the payoffs and ordered them halted a few days ago, the Post reported. Former President Gerald Ford was informed about the payments last year, but did nothing to stop them, the paper said.

The Jordanian embassy in Washington declined comment.

The Post said the CIA began supplying Hussein with funds in 1957, when the monarch was 21 and former President Dwight Eisenhower was in office. In-tial payments ran to millions of dollars, but diminished to $750,000 last year, the Post said.

The paper said the CIA claimed that in exchange for the funds, U.S. intelligence agencies won permission to operate freely in strategically located Jordan over the years.

The money was forwarded to Hussein under the codeword project name, "No Beef," with the king normally receiving his payments in cash from the CIA station chief in Amman, according to the Post.

"Hussein himself provided intelligence to the CIA and forwarded money from the payments to other government officials who provided intelligence or cooperated with the CIA," the newspaper said.

The Post said the CIA payments were made outside the conventional channel of military and economic assistance, although Hussein regarded them as another form of U.S. assistance.

The Ford administration apparently withheld the whole story about the payments to Hussein from the Senate Intelligence Committee, established last year, said the Post.

The Intelligence Oversight Board, a three-member panel that Ford created to curb CIA abuses, told Ford in a report last summer that it considered the payments improper, the paper said.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've always gotten along well with my neighbors, but listen to this. The woman next door has a lovely Peace rose bush.

Last June she planned to take a large bouquet to decorate our church, but when she came out early Sunday morning to cut the roses, she discovered that the bush had been stripped!

Meanwhile, guests whom we had for dinner on Saturday night brought me a large bouquet of Peace roses, which I had placed in our front window.

When my neighbor discovered that her roses were gone and she saw the bouquet in my window, she immediately assumed that they were hers, so she rang my doorbell and awakened me. Then she forced her way into my house, took my flowers and said some terrible things to me. I was too shocked and bewildered to respond.

Since then she's been avoiding me, but her husband still talks to my husband. Now it turns out that on the Monday following the episode, another neighbor had come to her to apologize for her preteen daughter, who had sneaked into her yard that Saturday evening and taken her roses!

My neighbor's husband says his wife is too embarrassed and ashamed to face me, and I should swallow my pride, go over there and make up with her.

Abby, I can't forget those shameful things she said to me. I feel terrible about the whole thing, but since she's in the wrong, I think she should come here and apologize to me. How can this be settled so we can be friends again?

ROSE FEVER

DEAR FEVER: She SHOULD come to you and apologize, but since she hasn't and you want to be friends again, swallow your pride (thorns and all) and make the first move. Be mature. Defer.

DEAR ABBY: I am 12. I told my father to go jump in the lake. We live by a lake, but it is frozen over now, so he should have known I didn't really mean it.

He grounded me indefinitely. How long is "indefinitely?"

GROUNDING IN MINNESOTA

DEAR GROUNDED: It's for as long as it takes your father to cool off. (Apologize and promise to be more respectful, and it may break the ice.)

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a 55-year-old Mama's boy who gave his girlfriend an engagement ring in 1970 but does not allow her to show it to anybody because he doesn't want his mother to find out?

Well, I am the girlfriend. I have gone with Arthur for 10 years, and I am pretty sick of this setup. I met his mother just once, when Arthur brought her to the eye doctor. He let me go along for the ride. He never told her I was his girlfriend, though. The problem is, Arthur's mother has money, and she says if he marries, she will leave it all to the church.

He was so confused two years ago he wrote to you, and you told him to talk to his pastor. He said he did, and the pastor told him he was lucky to have such a wonderful mother.

What am I supposed to do now? I am 48 and not getting any younger.

ARTHUR'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: Put the ring through Arthur's nose and send him to his mother.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Two years ago I passed out from lack of blood and was rushed to the hospital. An X ray showed I had a hiatal hernia. I was lucky as they were able to give me blood and stop the bleeding.

Would it be all right in my case to continue on the roughage diet you suggested in one of your columns? I am concerned about it being rough and passing the place where the hernia is located. The doctor wants me to take Tylenol instead of aspirin. I have heard that Tylenol has some bad side effects and shouldn't be taken.

I have had constipation for a number of years and have such wonderful results since trying your roughage diet. I know it isn't rough after it gets into the intestines but I am worried about how rough it is on the hiatal hernia or to the ulcer patient. I will be very anxious to hear from you.

DEAR READER — If you use one of the bran breakfast foods and allow the cereal to stand in sufficient milk it will be quite soft by the time you start to eat it. In this condition it will not harm the hiatal hernia or an ulcer.

You may have had a small ulcer of the lower esophagus where the hiatal hernia is located. That sometimes occurs and may be associated with bleeding — sometimes massive as you must have experienced.

Tylenol has some side effects as do all medicines, including aspirin. Since you are not taking any medicines that tend to prevent blood clotting, as used in heart patients, it is

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — When I let a hem down in a skirt or dress I am left with a ring where the hem was turned up so I would like to know how to remove it. — MRS. C.L.

DEAR MRS. C.L. — If the ring is a soil line you will have to pre-treat that line before laundering the garment or point it out to the dry cleaner if the garments have to be dry cleaned. When such a line is a crease line wet a cloth with a mixture of white vinegar and water, wring out and use as a pressing cloth. This has never failed to work for me and when line is very stubborn I have used pure vinegar alone after testing on an inconspicuous place. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — For many years I have used the following so as to cut down on so many trips to the dry cleaners. Often I take a clean cloth or brush and dip in rubbing alcohol I keep in a glass container and clean spots of grease, etc. Hang garment for an hour for the wetness to evaporate and I have never been left with any stains or circles. Test first to see effect on fabric. — AUDREY.

Small space may become sewing haven

ATTIC OR odd-sized basement space converts to ideal sewing room.

The greatest aid to home sewing is a home for the sewing machine and sewing clutter.

Even the tiniest, most uninspired scrap of space can be turned into a pleasant sewing area, with planned storage for fabrics and sewing needs, a roomy table for the sewing machine and a sleek, uncluttered feeling.

For example, a tiny attic room was transformed by designer Shirley Regendahl into a combination sewing and guest room, with a flowing fabric treatment for walls, table and studio bed, plus mirrored storage pieces. These provide light, transparent bins for yarns, fabrics and books. This is a room for a do-it-yourselfer. The black-and-white floor tiles are the self-stick variety. It's a cinch to cover the walls and table with the black-and-white and rust-and-white acorn-printed fabric, using glue that can be sprayed on the walls. And any home sewer can make the cover and dust ruffle for the studio bed.

Even the mirrored storage units are a do-it-yourself project. They are put together like a child's construction set, with glass and mirror panels that fit into rigid plastic channels to form shelves, cabinets or square storage units. This new system, developed by PPG Industries, makes it possible to design storage units for special areas and special uses.

In this room, a mirrored pedestal is used for a planter base and 13-inch-square mirror cubes are used as reflective occasional tables. The reflections of the glass and mirror units add light and space to the tiny room.

Of course, the units may be dismantled and rearranged to fit other storage requirements.

A pegboard on the wall organizes scissors, thread and tape measures. Attractive sewing boxes take care of the rest. The dress form and ironing board store in the closet.

With a place for everything, and room to leave out work-in-progress, this is a sewing room to inspire extra effort and extra creativity.

Chicago spawned porcelain prizes

By Jean Barnes

Helen G. introduced us to Pickard porcelains at a dinner party two years ago. Our host was a collector of the early Pickard handpainted art pieces and Helen had been a Pickard employee for a number of years and had her own fair-sized collection of contemporary pieces.

Her enthusiasm for Pickard was born of first-hand knowledge and we began scouting shops and shows seeking our own example of Pickard ware.

Pickard was founded in 1894 by Wilder A. Pickard as a china decorating studio in Chicago. Importing blank ware from abroad, the company specialized in handpainted art pieces. The artists were for the most part chosen from Chicago's Art Institute. The ware was noted for its quality of design and beautiful colors.

Early examples of Pickard are not to be found in great quantity. However, it is possible to find such pieces as pitchers, cream and sugar sets, perfume bottles, dresser sets, cake plates, bowls and condiment jars.

In 1911, Pickard introduced a heavily embossed gold luster pattern, the rose and daisy, which is still in production today.

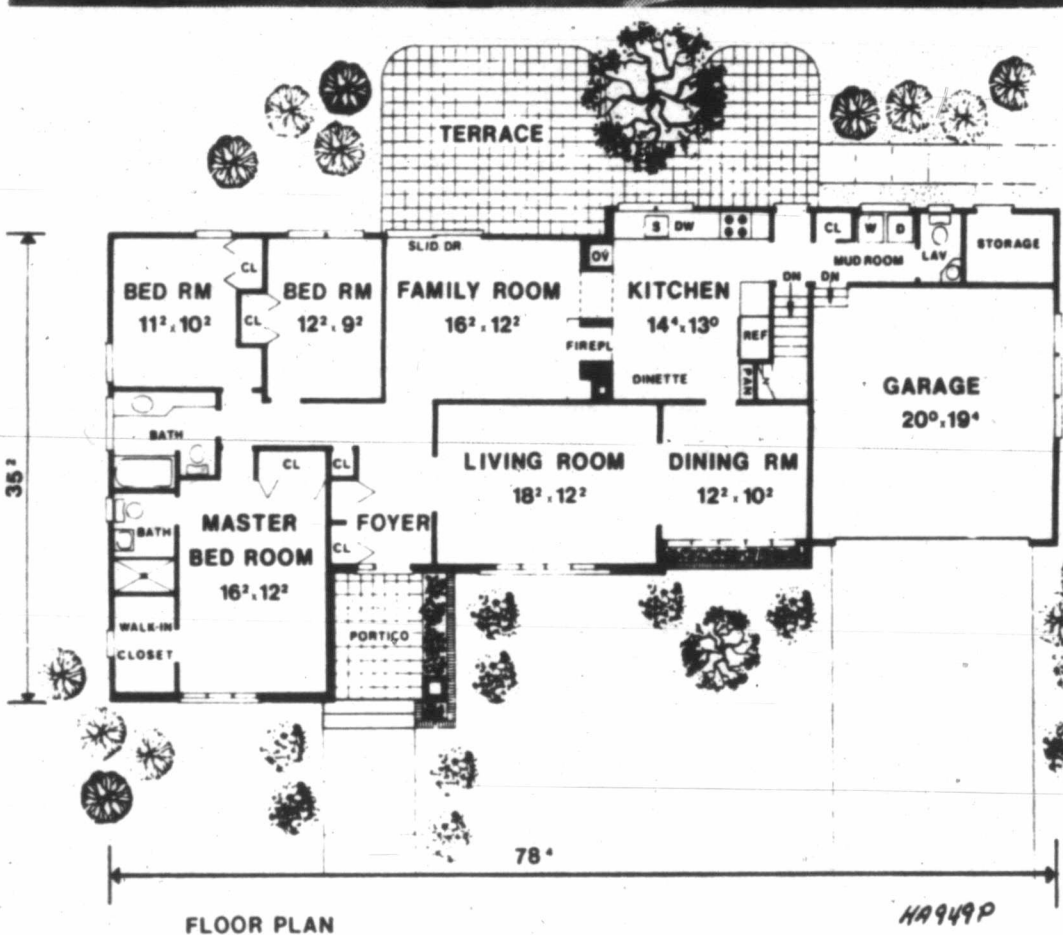

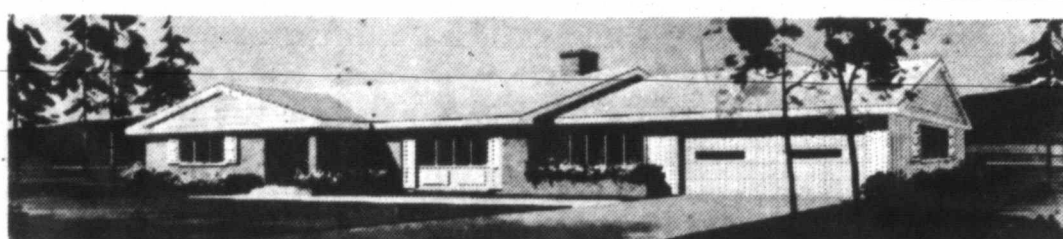

Austin Pickard, a son, is responsible for the porcelain formula which enabled the firm to manufacture its own ware in 1938. And, it was about this time that the company was moved to Antioch, Ill.

From this time on, according to a company spokesman, the mark on all Pickard ware is that of a lion supporting a shield with the name of Pickard in gold.

When Pickard began issuing limited edition plates of wildlife paintings by James Lockhart several years ago, they caught the fancy of the collecting public.

"The limited edition plates brought the line to the attention of collectors," the spokesman said. Now there are many collectors of the early handpainted pieces from the turn of the century.

Carter, Trudeau seek friendship

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau are meeting next week for the first time, determined to mend some battered old fences in a mood of good neighborliness.

The agenda for the Canadian leader's two-day visit starting Monday is loaded with issues ranging from rival fishing rights to nuclear controls, from pollution of rivers to human rights.

The visit will also pack a certain symbolism. The Carter-Trudeau encounter, like this week's meeting between Carter and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo, suggests that Carter is placing high priority on fostering good relations with the nations of the Western Hemisphere.

The focus of the two leaders' talks on Monday will be on international matters, including the projected London economic summit talks, East-West relations, checking the spread of nuclear technology and equipment, arms sales and the law of the sea.

On Tuesday they are to turn to strictly U.S.-Canadian issues, with the emphasis on economic, environmental and energy matters that concern both. Each nation faces formidable problems of unemployment, inflation and trading abroad.

Neither wants to follow policies that might restrict the free flow of world business and, particularly, the quest for understanding between the nations of the industrialized Northern Hemisphere and the developing states of the Southern Hemisphere.

The energy problem not only divides but also unites the two countries. Neither has enough. Each is exploring for more.

This has brought them into conflict over where their rights begin and end on the continental shelves they share in the Pacific and Atlantic Oceans. Talks on this subject, and on each country's newly-planned 200-mile fishing zones, have failed to resolve certain conflicts.

Canada as an act of friendship came to the help of the U.S. recently with extra supplies of gas and fuel, setting aside certain curbs on the export of fuels. The action drew formal expressions of thanks from Carter.

Yet U.S. companies control 58 per cent of Canada's oil and natural gas industry, 45 per cent of its manufacturing, 63 per cent of its mining and smelting activities. Over the years this has fed a feeling of Canadian economic nationalism with the state acting to curb further inroads of U.S. investment.

Mystery money probed

ALICE, Tex. (AP) — Dist. Atty. Arnold Garcia begins presenting evidence today to a special grand jury investigating two Alice boys and nearly a half-million dollars in mystery money.

You've got to remember, there is no law against anybody having $486,000, said the district attorney but added, "With this much money and no one claiming it, you've got to suspect involvement with the dope traffic in our area."

Percy Garcia, 15, and Dean Bridges, 16, told officers they dug up the money at a ranch belonging to Bridges' father, James E. Hiroms.

The two boys and Hiroms have been subpoenaed for today's grand jury session.

The Garcia youth, no relation to the district attorney, was granted immunity from prosecution prior to Tuesday's grand jury session. The immunity reportedly cleared the way for both juveniles to testify.

Texas Congressmen want raise

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. E. Kika de la Garza, D-Tex., is going to take the extra $12,900 in annual pay that Congress begins receiving this weekend. He has children in college and two homes to maintain. He feels he needs and deserves the extra money.

But de la Garza still feels a little uncomfortable when a reporter comes around to ask about it.

"I know it sounds like a lot, and it would be if I lived in Mission," he said of the $57,500 annual salary that congressmen will now earn. "But people in the district just don't realize expenses involved. Just moving my family back and forth costs several thousand dollars a year."

Like many of his colleagues, de la Garza is aware that his pay raise is accompanied by an unwelcome glare of news coverage while other people win higher salaries in private.

The media make a big deal about this thing. They talk about how we have subsidized this and subsidized that. Well, the biggest table I see in our restaurant (where food prices are somewhat lower than in Washington restaurants) has a sign on it that says "Reserved for Press, but I don't see any stories written about that," he said.

De la Garza was one of 10 Texas congressmen who voted to adjourn for the weekend Thursday, thereby letting the pay raise go into effect without a recorded vote by the House. To most congressmen, the vote on the adjournment resolution was the best means available to record their sentiments on the pay raise question. A vote against adjournment was considered a vote against the pay raise.

One of those who voted favorably, Rep. Bob Krueger, had slightly different reasons than de la Garza. Krueger, a bachelor, said he didn't need the money. But he had been disturbed by the retirements of capable congressmen like William Hungate of Missouri, who left government partly because of the salary.

Ten Texans voted not to adjourn, and most of them were against the raise. Included among them were most of the first and second-term congressmen who are less secure in their seats and appear more sensitive to reaction from their districts.

"I felt it should come before the House. Some pay raise is probably in order, but the amount (28 per cent) is a little bit exorbitant. I knew what the job paid when I ran for it," said freshman Democrat Bob Gammage of Houston.

Rep. W.R. Poage was one of the veteran members who voted against adjournment. Poage said he dislikes the procedure by which congressional pay is increased. Under the law, a citizens' commission meets every four years to recommend new pay scales. Unless the President, the House or the Senate act to veto by Feb. 20, the raises take effect automatically.

The idea behind the law was to remove the question of top-level government salaries from the heat of politics. But Poage called it a "cowardly procedure." He said Congress ought to be willing to sacrifice to help curb inflation, and he feared that a group which voted itself such a raise would exercise little control over other areas of federal spending.

"I realize the amount of this raise is a small drop in the barrel of federal spending. But it's going to have bluing in it and it's going to color the whole barrel," he said.

Orr wants mechanics licensed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Rep. Fred Orr has resumed his interrupted crusade against dishonest auto repairmen, saying regulation worked in Dallas and it ought to be imposed statewide.

Orr, D-DeSoto, failed to get his bill through the 1971 legislature and didn't serve in 1973 and 1975.

Since 1971, he said, "the abuses in this field have grown to unbelievable numbers."

"As one who has a long record of opposition to government interference, it may seem curious for me to seek such legislation, but from my own experience and those relayed to me by consumers, I am convinced we cannot let the industry go unchecked any longer," Orr said.

Nuclear power lacks support on Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the dismantling of the House-Senate Atomic Energy Committee, nuclear power advocates can no longer count on a ready ally in Capitol Hill.

Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., chairman of the House Interior Committee, which has picked up much of the joint panel's jurisdiction over civilian nuclear programs, makes it clear he views nuclear power with skepticism.

His committee is holding a series of hearings on nuclear issues. Today it continues budget hearings for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission that began on Thursday.

At Thursday's session, Udall expressed his views on nuclear energy at the outset. "My own position is one of little enthusiasm tempered with the recognition that we are probably going to have to live with it for at least the immediate future."

And, he added, "I hope that conservation, solar and other technologies might be developed so that by early in the next century we will be able to start phasing out our reliance upon nuclear fission."

The statement was a far cry from the advocacy of nuclear power voiced in the past by many members of the once-powerful joint committee.

For the past 30 years, the joint panel held almost sole jurisdiction over nuclear programs. Its members were viewed as experts on atomic energy and when they reported a bill to the floor, the legislation was seldom challenged — until recently.

And on some matters, the committee itself had legislative powers — the authority to act on its own without requiring further action by either House or Senate — a power given to no other committee.

But the outspoken advocacy of nuclear power by members of the committee may have contributed to its demise.

BABES IN CHRIST

Various passages in the New Testament liken new converts to Christ as babes. (1 Cor. 3:1-2; Hebrews 5:12-13; 1 Peter 2:1-2) Of these, 1 Peter 2:1-2, shows that the healthy babe in Christ, in partaking of the sincere milk of the word will grow thereby.

However, the other two passages reflect a different and very serious condition: a condition which after the passing of many years, finds converts to Christ unskilled in handling the word of righteousness; and are workmen that have every need to be ashamed of the babyish performance as children of God.

The parable of the sower, (Luke 8:1-15), portrays a soil classified as stony. In his explanation of the parable, Jesus said, "They on the rock are they, which, when they hear, receive the word with joy; and these have no root, which for a while believe, and in time of temptation fall away." (vs. 13). There is a vast difference between various soils and the hearts of men. Soils have not the intrinsic ability to change their makeup; but men are able to prepare their hearts to be "good soil." And, may I had, are responsible to God to do so.

Those likened to babes in Hebrews 5:12-14, had neglected a work which the heavenly Father had given them to do. Paul said unto them, "For when for the time ye OUGHT to be teachers..." The word "ought" means that they were under obligation to prepare themselves to be teachers, but had shirked the responsibility. In 2 Timothy 2:2, Paul said, "And the things which thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to FAITHFUL men, who shall be able to teach others also."

With all gravity let me say, If you cannot get them to be faithful long enough to teach them, then there is no way to get them beyond the baby stage.

An investment in Your Future ...ATTEND CHURCH

The Church PLANTS and WATERS...

The church plants the seed of faith, waters and tills the soil.

These are the things that a church can do, and no more...

then God provides the love and life-giving essentials. The growth then depends on the type of soil...is it barren...

mediocre...or fertile. Your life with God will grow according to your will and desire.

"Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night. And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

District champ Pampa closes against Sandies

AMARILLO — It's all a matter of pride... Amarillo High beating Pampa in tonight's District 3-AAAA basketball game, that is.

The Harvesters, 23-5, close out their regular season at 7:45 p.m. today in the Sandie gymnasium after clinching the district championship Tuesday against Amarillo Palo Duro.

The Sandies could have made tonight's clash a battle for a playoff berth had they beaten Amarillo Tascosa Tuesday. The Rebels won 58-50 to eliminate the Sandies from the district title race as the Sandies fell to 1-1 in the second half. Pampa won the first half outright and needed only to tie for the second half crown to win district without a playoff.

"It's all for pride when we play Pampa," Amarillo Coach Tom Leezer said. "Our kids realize we can't win district or anything. But we realize we've got to go out and play hard. If we don't play, we're going to get run off the floor."

That's what happened when the teams met in the first half. "We were terrible," said Leezer, who watched Pampa roll to an 87-59 victory in one of the Harvesters' most impressive showings of the season.

"We didn't play offense and we didn't play defense, and Pampa played very well. They're always going to play well against us. Besides, that was a big game for them."

The win gave Pampa the first-half title outright and has led to the third straight district championship for the Harvesters, who have won their last 10 games and 15 of their last 16.

"To stop Pampa, we've got to play much better defense than we did over there (in Harvester Fieldhouse) and do a better job at stopping their break. We've got to make improvements in all phases."

Amarillo might be hard-pressed to make any improvements in its offensive game because its leading scorer, sharpshooter Mike Smith, suffered a mildly sprained ankle in Wednesday's practice. He'll start but Sandie Coach Tom Leezer isn't sure how effective his 6-3 senior guard will be.

Smith leads 3-AAAA in scoring with a 26.5 average. For the season he's scoring at a 23.9 clip. "He'll probably start but I don't know how much the ankle will hurt him," Leezer said. "Mike's still going to get his points."

When the teams last met, Pampa did not allow him a field goal attempt or any points in the first period. He scored 23 points in the last three quarters, however.

"It wouldn't surprise me if he (Leezer) doesn't turn Smith loose when we play him," Pampa Coach Robert McPherson said Thursday. "Smith's a good basketball player — a real good shooter — and he's got a nose for the ball. He has that good offensive ability."

The Sandies, 11-15 overall, also have a quality post in 6-7 Eric Jacobson, who is averaging nearly 12 rebounds per game.

"I feel like we will win the ball game," Pampa Coach Robert McPherson said, "but we'll have to play good defense on Smith and Parker (forward Kevin Parker). Parker's come a long way this season — the kid plays with a lot of confidence now."

"Jacobson is a real fine post man. He's real physical and he has a good turnaround jump shot from eight to 10 feet out."

"We've won district but we'll still try to win the ball game. A loss wouldn't help us any right now. Amarillo High is a lot better than what they were when we beat them over here."

Harvester starters will be 6-0 senior guard Rayford Young (17.8 average), 6-4 junior forward Rusty Ward (14.5), 6-3 senior guard Brian Bailey (12.9), 6-4 senior forward Lon Hughes (12.3) and 6-4 junior post Rickey Buntin (9.8).

The Pampa B-team, 17-7 overall and an 82-40 winner of Palo Duro Tuesday, meets the Amarillo junior varsity in a 6 p.m. contest.

Massengale nets lead again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "We call him 'Mr. Massengale,'" said Lanny Wadkins, who just missed a share of the lead in a late-afternoon fog.

"I'm tickled to death to be just one shot back of Mr. Massengale — we call him 'Mr. Massengale' when he's playing like he is right now," Wadkins observed after an opening 66 that wasn't quite good enough

Thursday in the first round of the $200,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament.

Massengale, a record-setting, runaway winner of last week's Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic, still has his string going. He now has led the last six rounds of competition on the pro golf tour and is a total of 29 under par for those days of play.

"When someone asked, are you going to cool off?"

"Too soon," Rik said with a smile. "I'm not sure when it'll be, but it'll be too soon."

"I just want to keep it going."

His pace hasn't slackened at all.

Massengale, who led all five rounds of the Hope and won by six strokes with a 23 under par scoring total, followed up with a six-under-par 65 — including birdies on his first four holes — in the first round of this tournament, an event he'd originally planned to skip.

become a free agent, eligible to deal with other teams.

Both sides were mum on any specifics — including the length — of the agreement hammered out after extended talks at the union headquarters in Washington and the Management Council offices in New York. The owners and player representatives are scheduling meetings for next week to obtain formal approval of the agreement.

Also in the agreement are subjects like the Rozelle Rule, Rozelle's arbitration powers, and minimum salaries.

The Associated Press has learned that draft is set for April, that it will involve eight to 10 rounds instead of the 17 of past years and that it will contain a time-limit of somewhere between six weeks and three months on talks between the teams and drafted collegians.

In other words, a player drafted by a team but unable to come to terms with the club would, after a specified time, the league before. In two federal court rulings, the standard player contract (the Joe Kapp case) and the Rozelle Rule on option compensation (the John Mackey case) were illegal.

Still, the game went on. But last year a federal court ruled (in the Yazoo Smith case) the college player draft, as the NFL conducted it, was illegal, a restraint of trade and all that. Thus, the system by which the league replenished itself each year was suddenly very much in jeopardy — and only a labor agreement containing some sort of draft would save it.

Further, Rozelle decreed, until a draft was conducted, teams couldn't talk contract with potential rookies. And without the draft, there was the threat of lawsuits from those rookies and their agents and the prospect of a money war similar to the multi-million-dollar bash between the NFL and the American Football League a decade ago.

Those fears apparently have now been allayed. The "apparently" is included because the agreement between the representatives of the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining agent, and the NFL Players Association has to be ratified by all the owners and union members.

Sargent Karch, executive director of the NFLMC, and Ed Garvey, his counterpart with the NFLPA, announced the "agreement in principle on a collective bargaining agreement that includes... a modified draft."

NFL adopts modified version of draft

By BRUCE LOWITT

AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — "Dear Mr. Dorsett:

"Greetings from the Commissioner of the National Football League. You are now subject to the draft."

Tony Dorsett, Ricky Bell and hundreds of other collegians can expect to be tapped on their collective shoulders next April and offered millions of dollars, thanks to the arrival Thursday of labor peace in the NFL.

For three years the league and the players union had conducted business as usual — the business of playing football — without a basic labor agreement. And the NFL might well have been content to continue in that fashion had not the long arm of the law reached in.

It had grabbed and shaken the league before. In two federal court rulings, the standard player contract (the Joe Kapp case) and the Rozelle Rule on option compensation (the John Mackey case) were illegal.

Still, the game went on. But last year a federal court ruled (in the Yazoo Smith case) the college player draft, as the NFL conducted it, was illegal, a restraint of trade and all that. America's 51th state: Nayaug near Hartford

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
SOMEWHERE SOUTH OF HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — America's 51st state proves to be, on inspection, as true to its high purpose as the day it was founded and this sign was raised at its border:

"Entering Nayaug, Capital of Glastonbury, Bypassed by Progress and Blessed by the Lord."

And down below:

"Please walk your horses. Adults at play."

Anyone unaware that America had a 51st state, Nayaug, will be relieved that it is, as Mayor Jim Finne explains, a state of mind. Anyone unaware that America needed a new state of mind hasn't been paying attention to what's unimportant.

Oh, Nayaug is a place all right, a rural square mile bounded by the Connecticut River and Roaring Brook where hypocrisy is unknown and the meek have inherited the earth.

"We just think life is terribly grim," Jim Finne said. "Everybody seems to be running around with gavel and clipboard" and causes and taking themselves so seriously. Well, we don't."

To put it mildly, What Nayaugians do instead is skewer the pompous with satire and laugh all the while.

Thus they elected Chet Hodge, village butcher, as Man of the Year, held a parade and also a house tour around Chet's birthplace at which Nayaug Social Director, Ruth Witherspoon, pointed out such historic sites as "the drainage Chet slid down, the tree where Chet climbed, the window of the room where Chet was potty trained." Overcome, Chet wept.

Thus, they elected village grocer Elmer Gardner as Governor of Nayaug and when he announced for president from atop a hay wagon at a pancake breakfast, they fired a 21 gun salute in his honor, two muskets and a pistol.

Thus they dedicated a section of Mayor Finne's pasture as a Village Green, and after a few appropriate words from the Nayaug Historian, E.P. Mangan, and from the Nayaug Venerable Latin Scholar, John Finney, and a few lines from the Nayaug Poet Laureate and Militant Feminist,

Hilda Moe, and kisses all around from the Nayaug First Lady, septuagenarian Ruth Dufford, and advice on the danger of sitting on cold stones from the Beloved Proctologist, Archibald Asculbrooch, and a tune or two on the piano by the Nayaug Musical Director and Ambassador to the Vatican, Joe Puzzo, the assembled Nayaugians erected a sign:

"On this spot 357 years ago nothing happened."

Nayaugians go for signs. One sign encourages ball-playing on the green. Another, placed by the Nayaug Conservationist — or was it the Cat Control Commissioner? — warns: Native Rattlesnake Crossing.

Even before all this tomfoolery began, about 15 years ago, the neighborhood hereabouts was known as Nayaug, the southern section of the city of Glastonbury. The name is an Indian word for Roaring Brook. We have that on authority of the Nayaug Archivist.

The tribe was described as a peace loving people often harassed by more warlike neighbors," Mayor Finne said. "We find that appropriate."

US image switches in Mexico

By KERNAN TURNER
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — A cartoon in a Mexico City newspaper the other day showed a benign Uncle Sam riding with a Mexican on a bicycle built for two.

It was a switch from the usual picture of the United States as an aggressive, all-powerful intruder. It reflected the high spirits generated by the meeting this week between President Carter and President Jose Lopez Portillo of Mexico, the first foreign head of state received by Carter.

But in general the Carter administration's quick attention to Latin America has been received with mixed feelings in the region. Some leaders predict smoother relations, others take a wait-and-see attitude.

Excelsior, Mexico City's leading newspaper, said the meeting would have "ample repercussions which will spread to other latitudes of America." It predicted the United States will take greater interest in Latin America because of international conditions.

A check of opinion in other Latin American countries indicates that Mexico's seeming enthusiasm about the new U.S. administration is not shared universally.

The reactions appear to be based on Carter's first moves as President. In addition to the choice of a Latin American to be his first official visitor, these included:

—The appointment of Sol M. Linowitz, a strong supporter of closer ties with Latin America, to head a commission on U.S.-Latin American relations.

—The promise of a major effort to reach agreement with Panama on a new Panama Canal

An AP news special

nal treaty, an important and sensitive issue in the region.

—Statements by Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance that the United States is willing to normalize relations with Cuba.

—The declaration that U.S. foreign policy will be based on moral as well as political concerns, and that the United States will expect its friends to respect human rights.

This championing of human rights puts South America's military governments on the defensive while gaining support from Mexico, Venezuela, Colombia, Costa Rica and other republics with civilian governments.

Cuba's Fidel Castro has turned out to be an unexpected backer of the Carter administration. He told a U.S. television correspondent last week that he was pleased with Carter's election because the new President "may abide by a policy of international principles." Here is a sample of other opinion in the hemisphere: Venezuela: President Carlos Andres Perez said as a Latin American he was pleased with the change of administration and was confident that the new American leadership would oppose dictatorships and human rights violations. But he warned that Washington's future relationship with Latin America depends on a "definitive solution" to the Panama Canal negotiations.

Argentina: Officials of the military government said privately they would have preferred the Ford-Kissinger administration to continue because they believe it viewed military regimes in Latin America more as anti-Communist bulwarks than as violators of human rights. But in Argentina and Paraguay, another military dictatorship, hundreds of political prisoners have been released since Carter took office, and this apparently was designed to impress the new U.S. administration.

Brazil: Friction may develop between the U.S. and Brazilian governments because of Carter's efforts to get West Germany to cancel the sale of a nuclear reprocessing plant to Brazil that could be used to produce plutonium for nuclear weapons. Brazilian policy-makers were stung because they were not consulted before Vice President Walter F. Mondale raised the issue with the West Germans on his trip to Europe.

Chile: Foreign critics frequently single out Chile's military regime as one of the world's most repressive. The government newspaper El Cronista commented: "We are very aware of some declarations by Jimmy Carter about his aversion to authoritarian military governments. The next question, then, is whether Jimmy Carter will not go on to reject to an intolerable degree the Chilean military government."

combination in Latin America, welcomed Carter's inauguration and expressed the hope that he would work toward a more equitable relationship between rich and poor nations.

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Cronkite has signed a five-year contract to continue as anchorman of the CBS network nightly news program. "There was a bit of tug on me not to sign," the 60-year-old Cronkite said Wednesday. "But in the end I did because I feel comfortable here and I suppose the people must feel fairly comfortable with me." The network announced Wednesday that the contract provides the same schedule as Cronkite's previous one, giving him 10 weeks vacation each year. Salary figures were not disclosed.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Three Spanish clowns sang "Granada" and 15 white doves chirped away to tunes from "My Fair Lady" in a special circus performance put on for a delighted Pope Paul VI. Members of the Orfei circus of Italy entertained the 79-year-old pontiff Wednesday at the conclusion of his general audience. The scene-stealer was 11-year-old Ambra Orfei, an accomplished bird trainer, who said: "To perform in front of the Pope is so unusual that I'd like my doves to understand what it means."

LONDON (AP) — Saudi Arabia's King Khaled will spend about a week recuperating from hip surgery at Wellington Hospital before returning home. The 63-year-old king was making good progress, a spokesman reported Wednesday. Saudi national radio has reported that Crown Prince Fahd, running the country in the king's absence, released a number of prisoners from jail in a gesture of thanks to God for the success of the operation.

NEW YORK (AP) — First Lady Rosalynn Carter will be the hostess for singer Marian Anderson's 75th birthday gala on Feb. 27 at Carnegie Hall. Young audiences, sponsors of the party, said Wednesday it would be Mrs. Carter's first appearance at a cultural event outside Washington since the inauguration. The black contralto, who integrated the nation's concert halls and opera houses with an assist from the late Eleanor Roosevelt, will share a box at the gala with the latest First Lady.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Henry C. Wynberg, onetime frequent escort of actress Elizabeth Taylor, has pleaded innocent to 10 misdemeanor counts of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Wynberg, a 42-year-old former used car dealer, and another man are accused of engaging in sexual acts with four girls, 15 to 17 years old, giving them alcohol and drugs, and taking "sexual nature" pictures of them. During Wednesday's brief arraignment, Municipal Court Judge Andrew Weisz ordered Wynberg to return to court March 22 for a pretrial hearing. He is free on $10,000 bond.

ATLANTA (AP) — The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference since 1968, has resigned to spend more time campaigning for the 5th District congressional seat. Abernathy expressed "deep regret" Wednesday over the resignation, which becomes effective Feb. 25. Abernathy is one of several candidates seeking the congressional seat vacated by Andrew Young, now U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Fingerprint files are not only used in police work. After disasters such as a flood, plane crash or auto accident, they often provide the only way to check the identity of the dead.

Cars can usually last ten years or 100,000 miles without major overhauls, says the Highway Users Federation, but not without proper maintenance.
