Sixteen Persons Killed In Accidents As Snowstorms Spread Over West

TWO TEXANS VICTIMS OF TRAIN CRASHES

Five Die in Dallas Grade Crossing Accident Due To Bad Roads

CISCO WRECK FATAL

Other Fatalities Over U. S. Occur in Blinding Snowstorms

Sixteen deaths in widely scattered portions of the United States Thursday were ascribed directly to chilling winter weather accompanied by snowstorms and consequent slippery roads.

Snowstorms and rainy weather penetrated the entire Middle West.

Several Northwest Texas points were covered with snow, and the entire area experienced temperatures at or near the freezing point.

At Erie, Pa., four men were killed. A freight train had cleared a crossing and a watchman, blinded by a snowstorm, raised the gates without seeing an approaching express. A truck and a passenger automobile started across the tracks and were hit. Tony Stahon, 25; Joe Stahon, 19; Robert Evans, 15, and Clyde K. Hinkson, all of Erie, were the men killed.

At La Follette, Tenn., W. F. Metchler, his wife, their son and two daughters were killed by a train at a grade crossing.

At Dallas, Texas, five women were killed in similar manner, and at Cisco, Texas, a man and his wife lost their lives.

SEVEN TEXANS KILLED BY TRAINS

DALLAS, Nov. 21. (UP)—Colliding trains and automobiles caused the deaths of seven persons and the injury of another in Texas today, while the first November snow in 13 years was falling. Six of the dead are women.

A party of five women, all of Leonard, was crushed until all were dead when the automobile in which they were riding was demolished by a crack Santa Fe motor train just outside the Dallas city limits at 10 a. m. The negro chauffeur, who was seriously hurt, was the only survivor.

The dead in the Dallas crash are

Snow Falls In Flurries In Wichita Falls Area

Spotless Flakes, However, Melt in Most Towns, While Slow Rains Fall; Mercury Nears Freezing Point

First general snow flurries of the season in the Wichita Falls section had changed to slush and a drizzling rain early Thursday night as the temperature continued to stick slightly above the freezing point over much of the area.

Practically every town in the Wichita area of Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma reported flurries of snow Thursday, but few of them reported the ground covered with the winter blanket. On the contrary, the slow rain which fell here seemed to be general over the entire area. Although there was little change in the temperature, reports from the north and west of heavy blizzards there indicated that the weather man is wrapping up his packages of snow, sleet and low temperatures for belated delivery in this area.

The temperature in Wichita Falls at 1 a. m. Friday showed a drop of only one degree from the reading at 5 p. m. Thursday, the recording thermometer at the Texas Electric Service company having indicated an unvarying temperature of 33 degrees from about 7 o'clock in the evening until past midnight.

34 Degrees Here

At 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon the temperature in Wichita Falls stood at 34 degrees, a decline of only seven degrees from the maximum reading of the day. The snow which had fallen rapidly early Thursday morning had disappeared from the streets, and a cold mist made thoroughfares slippery and treacherous for traffic. The precipitation here Thursday totaled 13 inches, according to the Texas Electric Service company weather bureau.

The following reports were received from Record News correspondents over the area:

ELECTRA—The first snow of the season fell at intervals here Thursday morning, melting almost as fast as it touched the ground. The temperature dropped slowly after noon, and at 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon was at 32 degrees.

BURKBURNETT—A light snow fell here most of the morning Thursday, but quickly melted.

NEWCASTLE—The first snow of the season has the ground well covered in north Young county. The moisture is welcomed by

Clemenceau Again Fights for Life

PARIS, Nov. 21. (AP)—The Tiger of France tonight was fighting another battle for life with characteristic courage and unshaken mind.

Although Dr. Degennes and Dr. Laubry reported Clemenceau's condition as improved after their consultation this evening, they appeared to consider the present crisis the most serious the wartime premier has yet encountered. The 88-year-old statesman has repelled successive attacks on his heart and digestive system during the past few months, but the effort has sapped his vitality.

The Paris evening newspapers expressed a pessimism they never before have shown during the Tiger's illnesses. Le Soir published a headline saying "Clemenceau's condition seems desperate."

Edge Confirmed As Herrick's Successor

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. (AP)—Quickly confirmed today by his colleagues as ambassador to France, Senator Walter E. Edge, of New Jersey, will sail early next month to assume the post vacated by the death of Myron T. Herrick, of Ohio.

President Hoover determined upon Senator Edge for this high diplomatic office several weeks ago. He forwarded the nomination to the senate today on the eve of adjournment of the special session and the senate dispensed with its rules to give immediate confirmation.

Senator Edge was not present, having departed 24 hours earlier to make a farewell call upon a son in school in New Mexico. He will return to the capital next week and depart at once for France.

AMARILLO GETS BAPTIST MEET

Wichitan Given Post at Beaumont Session

BEAUMONT, Texas, Nov. 21. (AP)—Amarillo was awarded the 1930 meeting place of the Baptist General convention by a vote of that body tonight.

The date was set for Nov. 12. Rev. Marshall Craig of Dallas was chosen the convention preacher, with Rev. T. C. Jester of Houston alternate. The convention will close tomorrow night.

Reports Heard

The convention put in a busy day hearing reports from its educational, evangelism, home and foreign missions, relief and annuity departments, hospitals and orphanages.

Tonight, Dr. W. W. Hamilton of New Orleans, president of the Baptist Bible institute; Dr. George W. Truett, of Dallas, president of the Southern Baptist convention, and other widely-known churchmen, made addresses.

Dr. T. J. Watts of Dallas, secretary of the relief and annuity board of the Southern Baptist convention pictured the problem of caring for the aged ministers and their widows. He declared that 15 per cent of the relief beneficiaries of the South were in Texas. Sixteen per cent of all of the money obtained for this purpose in the South is being paid Texas preachers and their widows, he said. There are 156 beneficiaries in Texas. Texas is receiving for her retired ministers and their widows six per cent more than she pays into the cause, he said. Citing the need of a bigger fund for this purpose he pointed out that the average salary

TEXANS MAILED FIRST FARM RELIEF FUNDS

$300,000 Sent to Farmers From Dallas Office Thursday Night

MORE TO BE SENT

Money Comes From State Cotton Bureau and Federal Board

DALLAS, Nov. 21. (AP)—Approximately $300,000 in checks, representing the first actual money to go to Texas cotton farmers from the federal farm relief fund, were placed in the mails tonight by the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association.

More to Follow

Harry Williams, president of the Farm Bureau Cotton association, said that additional checks would be mailed daily and that there was every reason to believe that the $2,000,000 already advanced would be taken up shortly and additional funds obtained from the federal farm board.

The checks mailed today represented the difference between the advance which the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association makes to members of its seasonal pool from its own resources and the advance authorized them by the federal farm board.

Membership Increases

Officers of the association report that there had been a big increase in membership in the last six weeks and a corresponding increase in deliveries of cotton.

The federal farm board authorized an advance of 16.35 cents per pound on middling seven-eighths inch staple. All cotton received by the association is classed and graded and the advance is computed on the value of the cotton, computed on this basis.

Gamblers Testify In McManus Trial

NEW YORK, Nov. 21. (AP)—The parade of the big-time gamblers, laconic, soft-spoken gentry to whom the loss of $50,000 in a stud poker game is nothing to get excited about, began today in the trial of George McManus for the murder of Arnold Rothstein.

Matter-of-fact, at times with dry humor, and always deferential in their attitude toward the prosecutors, they described a 22-hour session of stud poker at the home of Jimmy Meehan one Saturday night and Sunday in September, 1928, in which, they said, Rothstein lost $300,000.

In their account of this party, the state had announced it hoped to find a motive that would have driven McManus, race track bookie, to shoot the overlord of the New York gambling world in a room at the Park Central hotel the night of Nov. 4, 1928.

Colombia Unaffected By Failure of Budget

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 21. (UP)—The Colombian legation here has been advised that failure of the Colombian congress to pass the budget and other important laws will have little effect on operation of the government during the coming year.

A dispatch from President Mendez Abadia of Colombia and the minister of foreign affairs stated that the government was planning measures to provide against a deficit.

The 1930 budget automatically will be the same as the 1929 budget of $72,000,000, unless there is a decrease in revenues which would necessitate a corresponding decrease in expenditures.

Attorney General Directed To Aid Probe

AUSTIN, Nov. 21. (UP)—Governor Moody tonight described the lynching of Marshall Ratliff as "murder" and announced that he would request Attorney General Robert Lee Bobbitt to take whatever action is permitted by statutes to assist in punishing members of the mob.

"It is true that the law may move with a leaden heel," said the governor, "but that is no excuse for taking life unlawfully. Combatting crime with crime is unjustifiable and wrong."

Towns Engulfed In Wake of Tremors Off Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Nov. 21. (AP)—A gigantic tidal wave caused by the earthquake of last Monday, hit the isolated section of the south coast of the Burin Peninsula, Newfoundland, took 36 lives and caused property damage of unestimated proportions.

First news of the disaster which destroyed several little fishing villages along the remote southern side of the peninsula three days ago reached here today by government wireless from steamers which put into the inlet at Burin. Land communication with the section had been severed since Monday when a storm, preceding the quake and tidal wave, swept across the inland.

Towns Engulfed

Burin, the most important of the little coast towns, having a population of 1,200, reported nine had drowned when the huge wall of water struck, carrying 16 buildings into the sea. Most of those killed were women and children.

Some reports said the wave, crowded into the narrow inlet by high rocky cliffs, reached a height of 40 feet in Burin and swept away all property along the waterfront.

The dead at Lamaline, a village of 426 souls, and Lord's Grove, with 293 inhabitants, numbered 18.

Port-Aux-Bras, with 295 population, reported seven killed when buildings were demolished by the wall of water. Mrs. Thomas Judge and her three children were lost when their house was swept away and Mrs. S. Bennett, her brothers and Mrs. William Allen were the other victims.

Damage Investigated

A report from Kelly's Cove said Mrs. V. Kelly and her daughter lost their lives in the destruction of their homes.

The extent of the damage was unknown tonight, but numerous fisheries dot the peninsula coast and it was believed the property loss was great.

The tidal wave kicked up by the quake, originating under the sea, struck along the coast for a distance of 30 miles.

P.-T. A. SELECTS SAN ANGELO

Convention Votes to Cut Number of Committees

WACO, Texas, Nov. 21. (AP)—San Angelo was named the convention city for the 1930 meeting of the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations at a post-convention meeting of the board of managers Thursday evening at the Hilton hotel, when radical changes in the organization were effected with the reduction of the number of committees from 29 to 13. Election of new chairmen for the combined committees, and the adoption of the budget was announced. The name of Mrs. Ella Caruthers Porter of Dallas, founder of the Texas branch, will be carried on the organization's letterhead as honorary president.

To Simplify Work

Combination committees resulted from the plan outlined by the president, Mrs. Noyes Daring Smith, Austin, to simplify work along the lines of program, structure and project. The new plan seeks to abolish committees as such and add them to departments as projects.

The budget committee chairman authorized the following appropriations on the basis of $13,750 dues based on 55,000 members: The 15 districts will receive $7,633, or $508 each, this amount to be made up of $2,750 from dues, $3,040 life memberships, $1,500 endowment fund interest and $343 birthday gifts. The national congress receives $2,750 and the state $8,250.

The state budget includes $1,000 for traveling expenses of the president; $2,100 for executive secretary; $1,800 for secretary's assistant; stenography, $600; office sup-

Record News Cotton Table

For Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma

Gins over Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma held a fairly steady production record Thursday, despite slow rains and light snows over the territory which promised at least a temporary halt in activities later. Prices held steady in most points after the sharp advances of the previous day. Quanah and Wichita Falls posted advances in price, while Vernon, Iowa Park and Electra went down. Low grade staple at Iowa Park brought as little as 10 cents in some instances, reports said, and weaker prices in other points were attributed to the same factor. Memphis passed the 18,000-bale mark in ginnings during the day, and Childress, which holds third place, passed the 11,000 bale mark. Reports from Childress said 12,043 bales have been turned out in Childress county. The following reports were received by The Record News:

TWO PRISONERS SPEND NIGHT IN JAIL HERE

Judge Martin Orders Hearing in Stinnett After Attorneys Agree

LONG CHASE ENDS

Men Accused in Holmes Slaying Expected to Secure Bond

Attorneys who have played hide and seek with Hutchinson county officers for the better part of a week in an effort to obtain bonds for Sam Jones and Jim Hodges, indicted for the murder of District Attorney John A. Holmes in Borger last September, finally caught their quarry here about 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon and served a writ of habeas corpus on Deputy Sheriff M. (Red) Burton, in charge of the prisoners.

The writ was made returnable to the court in Hutchinson county. The prisoners were to be started for Stinnett about 6:30 o'clock Friday morning, accompanied by District Attorney Clem Calhoun, Sheriff C. O. Moore and Deputy Burton. The officers first planned to start late Thursday night and reach Quanah, continuing their trip Friday morning, but at the point of preparing the prisoners for the journey, it was decided to remain her on account of the bad weather and the possibility of an accident.

Bond Expected

In a conference held in the office of Sam Spence, district attorney here Thursday evening and attended by District Attorney Calhoun, Sheriff Moore from Borger, James W. Allred, representing the prisoners, Sheriff W. O. Bralley and Mr. Spence, it was agreed to ask Judge P. A. Martin of the 30th district court, where the prisoners were commanded to be brought Friday morning, to issue an order making the writ returnable at Stinnett where a previous writ had been served for appearance Saturday morning.

Judge Martin agreed to the order in a telephone conversation with Mr. Allred to which District Attorney Calhoun listened over another telephone.

In the conference Allred asked Calhoun if the prisoners would be allowed bond at Stinnett.

"You'll allow them bond?" Allred asked. "You won't show your hand!"

"No, we'll let them have bond Saturday, but I can't see that it will do them much good," Calhoun said.

Allred made an indirect query as to the reason for taking the prisoners to the various jails in which they have been lodged.

Calhoun smiled. "Oh, there were a lot of people around who wanted to see if they could identify them," he said, jokingly.

"Yes!" Allred countered, "I know why they were taken around like that."

Then they both laughed.

According to Jones and Hodges, they were first held at Borger and were later taken to Stinnett where they were held until last Saturday. Then they were taken to Fort Worth and lodged in the city jail, their destination not having been announced at the time they left Stinnett. Sunday afternoon they were signed out of the city jail and taken to the Tarrant county jail. Jones was placed in the death cell at that place, he said.

Prisoners Moved Often

While a deputy at Fort Worth was seeking Deputy Burton to serve a writ on him for appearance of the prisoners there, Jones and Hodges were removed from the Tarrant county jail and taken to Cleburne, where they spent Wednesday night. They arrived in Wichita Falls about 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon and were placed immediately in the county jail.

When asked about the writ he had barely missed at Fort Worth,

'MAKE JUAREZ DRY' IS CRY

Favorite Drinking Ground Threatened

JUAREZ, Mexico, Nov. 21. (UP)—The battle cry of prohibition was sounded today in the streets of this picturesque border city of Old Mexico, where countless thousands of visitors from the states quench their thirst each year.

Citizens picked up their ears in amazement as shouts of "make Juarez dry" resounded against closed saloon and cabaret doors.

Saloon keepers stared in wonderment and consternation at the demonstration, a parade of 2,000 school children, led by a detchment of 100 federal soldiers in command of Gen. Francisco Del Arco.

The parade was part of the campaign sponsored by President Emilo Portes Gil for reduction in the consumption of alcoholic drinks in Mexico.

All saloons were closed during the parade by order of city officials, and the school children marched through the streets, chanting their denunciation of the liquor traffic.

Juarez boasts that no other city in the world has more saloons in proportion to area, and that Juarez bartenders are as efficient as can be found anywhere.

'Jurisdiction' of Boatmen Stranded In River Argued

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 21. (UP)—Two Missouri river boatmen, high and dry on a sandbar with their ferryboat, signaled for help near here yesterday and precipitated a four-cornered debate as to who had the jurisdiction to assist them.

Officials of three counties and of the war department debated the location of the boat and decided it was not in their sphere of operation to go to the aid of the castaways. It was further argued the boat could not be floated away until spring floods.

Meanwhile, George and Clarence Hineline of Blair, Neb., cupped their hands and shouted proudly for a supply of milk for their kitten. They were cold, they said, and could something be done?

It appeared the marooned ferry, which its owners were taking down the river in search of a new point of operation where bridges had not been built, was outside the official responsibility of officers of Jackson, Clay and Wyandotte counties which converge on the river. The war department could assist only if it were a government boat, it was said.

The Hineline brothers gave their stern wheel another futile spin and said, "Well, we'll stick it out."

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germladen phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

BOARD PLANS COTTON CO-OPS

Farm Board to Come Here To Start Work

WACO, Texas, Nov. 21. (AP)—The federal farm board will come to Texas in December, or early in January, to set up cooperatives which it expects will appeal to farmers in a more popular way than organizations now in existence, it was announced by Lawrence Westbrook at a meeting of Central Texas farmers at the Waco Chamber of Commerce. Westbrook, chairman of Governor Moody's committee to work with the farm board, said the governor talked with him last night and expressed hope that "farmers will not obligate themselves with any other organization until the farm board announces its plan."

The farm board is selecting Texas as the first of the cotton states in which to set up its organization, Westbrook said. "While I do not know the exact nature of the plan they will approve," he added, "as a member of the governor's committee, I have been in close contact with the board representatives, and know that they contemplate a number of regional organizations in Texas, rather than one big state organization. The state is too big for a single group." Pointing out that only two per cent of Texas farmers are members of a cooperative, he said that "the chief of the bureau of cooperative marketing and one of his assistants came to Texas a month ago, and remained until a week ago, studying the situation, and I have confidence that the plan they will submit will be acceptable to a majority of the farmers and also to a majority of the business men."

The site of a village dating back to the end of the New Stone age has been discovered and excavated at Moedling, a picturesque town a half hour's train ride from Vienna.

Hoover's Business Conferences May Develop Into Economic Council

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The enduring outcome of the series of hurried conferences which President Hoover has been holding with business leaders this week, is likely to be the setting up of a permanent economic council, which will serve as a link between government and business.

Privately Planned

As a matter of fact, the recent speculative crisis has only served to hasten this development, which the chief executive has been privately planning and discussing with captains of finance and trade for at least six months. Accordingly, the conferences with railroad presidents, industrial executives and labor leaders, already held and Friday's conference with representatives of the construction trade spokesmen and Monday's with farm and public utility men are not to be regarded simply as activities of a fire bucket brigade, summoned to meet a passing emergency, but as the forerunners of a new extra legal agency for stabilizing business through the years.

If the next groups of business men show the same enthusiasm that the railway executives did, Mr. Hoover will probably take practical steps to bring into existence a long cherished ideal for a mechanism for articulating the best economic intelligence of the country. The long term aim of the proposed economic council will be to flatten out the business curve, reducing the peaks of prosperity and also minimizing the troughs of recession in order to assure the vast multitudes of working men and women better prospects of opportunities for uninterrupted employment through the varied phases of the fluctuating business cycle.

Requires No Legislation

President Hoover's program for setting up machinery for encouraging more orderly, more reasonable streams of business activity requires no legislative indorsement by congress. As was the case when he was secretary of commerce, Mr. Hoover doubtless will seek only to stimulate voluntary cooperation among private citizens, who will be mobilized through existing economic associations. The proposed economic council, according to present purely tentative plans, will consist of four branches—one representing spokesmen for the government, one representing business, one representing farming, and one labor. It is expected that to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States will be delegated the task of picking the personnel for the business section; the American farm bureau federation will probably be asked to nominate members of the farm group, and the American federation of labor will be asked to act in behalf of organized labor.

The value of having a continuous advisory economic council will be in having the facilities for dealing with situations while they are still developing, instead of having to wait, as in this instance, until an actual crash has developed. The inception for this broader plan of substituting informed cooperative business intelligence for blind submission to the working out of economic forces dates back to the president's conference on unemployment in 1921, which former President Harding called and over which Mr. Hoover, then secretary of commerce, presided. In stating the object of that conference more than eight years ago, Mr. Hoover said: "The object of the conference will be to inquire into the volume of needed employment, the distribution of unemployment, to make recommendations as to measures that are properly to be taken in coordinated speeding up of employment by industries and public bodies during the next winter."

The proposed economic council would provide channels for interchanging information between government and business, and for stimulating specific plans for stabilization at various stages of the ups and downs of commerce. Without a continuing voluntary body, it is thought that the Hoover ideas for stabilization will continue to dwell in the realm of theory, instead of being an engineering formula for actually keeping business on a more even keel. The vast improvement in business statistics and the increased technique of business organization in trade associations, it is believed, pave the way for substituting rational planning on a grand scale, for the traditional hit or miss non-scientific procedure of drifting and passively submitting to disrupting influences in trade and industry.

NAVAL ACCORD CALLED FARCE

Trotzky Ridicules Pact With England

PRINKIPO ISLAND, Sea of Marmora, Nov. 21. (UP)—Leon Trotzky, one of the guiding geniuses of the Bolshevik revolution, who has spent eight months of an indefinite exile on this island 15 miles from Constantinople, today ridiculed the Anglo-American naval accord as a "tragic farce."

Recent disarmament developments, he told this correspondent in an exclusive interview, will not prevent an Anglo-American war, which he believes is "not centuries or even decades away."

"Parity between the British and United States fleets means an enormous inequality of navies in favor of the United States," he said. "Only a huge English military and naval supremacy before the outbreak of a war would give Britain a chance to counterbalance successfully the technical and economic superiority of the United States.

"A possible agreement for equal navies is not the last word of the United States, whose slogan of freedom of the seas implies a restriction on Britain's use of her naval bases. It is wrong to assume that Anglo-American antagonism will lead directly to war, but it is making gigantic strides toward a revolution by bloodshed.

"I think the Hoover-MacDonald conversations do not involve disarmament or even limitation of armaments, but merely rationalization of preparedness."

Trotzky lives here with his wife, his son Leon Jr., two secretaries and a Russian maid-servant. Two Turkish body guards accompany him about the island. The former Soviet army commander divides his time between reading, writing a history of the three Russian revolutions, and fishing. Turkish natives of the island call him the "moonlight fisherman" because he occasionally angles until midnight.

Assassination of King Of Afghanistan Rumored

LONDON, Nov. 21. (UP)—Persistent rumors reached here by way of Peshawar, India, today that rebel tribesmen—either Ghilzais or Waziris, had assassinated Nadir Khan, king of Afghanistan. These rumors lacked confirmation, however. It was learned that Wali Khan, brother of the king, had been appointed Afghan minister to London.

Chinese Minister at Brussels Is Attacked

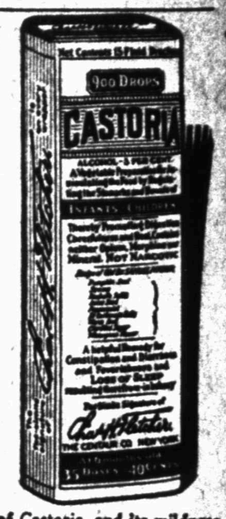

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Nov. 21. (UP)—Six Chinese attacked the Chinese minister at the legation here today and were subdued by attaches who rescued the official. The assailants had demanded the release of several compatriots arrested during a demonstration at the legation last week.

ITALIANS MAY BLOCK PARLEY

Naval Conference Presents Difficulties

By PAUL FREDRIX
United Press Cable Editor

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Italy, regarded as the weakest of the five great sea powers, may exercise a dominant role in making the five-power naval conference at London next January a success or a failure.

Like any of the other four nations represented, she can be obdurate on any given point and hence block a reduction of armaments, since Washington has indicated there must be a five-power agreement or none.

May Swing Delegates

But maintaining as she does that navies ought to be reduced and still insisting she must have parity with France, she is in a position to yield or persuade at certain critical moments and help swing the Paris delegates into line behind an agreement.

Here is how Italy lines up with the other powers in most naval topics.

Reduction versus limitation:

The United States with naval costs higher than any other nation, desires reduction. So does Japan. Britain seeks limitation somewhere near her present strength.

Japan wants seven-tenths as large a navy as those of the United States and Great Britain. In other words, she assumes she will be second in naval strength.

But France is continuing a building program calculated to make her second only to the United States and Great Britain and, inferentially, ahead of Japan.

Wants Equality

That is where Italy enters the picture. She says to France, "I must have a navy equal to yours. If you want my navy to be small, limit yours accordingly. You cannot go too low."

She is certain France does not wish to reduce. But she hopes for a reduction, and may get it, if she assures France she will not build up to the parity agreed on between them.

Submarines:

It had been presumed that Italy would agree with France and Japan on the need of submarines, as against the American and British wish to abloish them. But since President Hoover put forth his suggestion to exempt food ships from attack, Italy is inclined to think twice about its need of subsea craft as a blockading instrument.

By pretending to be cold to submarines, she at least may force France to reduce her demands for such vessels.

Freedom of the seas:

President Hooyer broached freedom of the seas to Premier J. Ramsey MacDonald of Great Britain. Both men agreed not to bring up the subject at the January conference. Mr. Hoover instead made an Armistice day speech suggesting the food ship idea for the powers to consider at their leisure.

Italy Favors It

But Italy apparently believes the idea so good that it ought to be discussed next January with the whole question of free seas.

If she presses the point she may make it embarrassing.

League of Nations:

Italy and France desired to have the hoped-for-five-power agreement regarded as a mere step toward a general disarmament treaty prepared under League of Nations auspices. But if she favors Hoover's food-ship proposal, Italy might be conflicting with the league's policy of using economic blockade against warlike nations.

Italy, observers agree, has played a canny game. By her declaration that she will accept parity with France, she leaves to Paris the onus of any large-navy demands.

She has created the impression she is very friendly with Great Britain, and yet backs up an American freedom-of-sea idea which Britain would rather not consider at this time.

Argentine Cereal Forecast Is Issued

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 21. (UP)—The ministry of agriculture today issued a second forecast of areas sown in cereals as follows.

Wheat, 7,863,125 hectares; linseed, 2,895,100; oats, 1,511,108; barley, 596,972; rye, 522,454; the report estimated that 16.7 per cent of the wheat crop and 25.7 of the linseed crop would be lost through drought and other causes, leaving the harvestable area of wheat at 6,552,160 hectares and linseed 2,152,092 hectares.

Italy has five cities with a population of more than half a million.

NEW CODE

Penalty for Infidelity in Italy Is Year at Labor

ROME, Nov. 21. (US)—A year in solitary confinement at hard labor is the penalty for the woman who breaks her marriage vows, under the new Fascist penal code.

A woman's accomplice in infidelity is liable to the same punishment. The law operates when the husband lodges a complaint.

Premier Mussolini's new code is especially drastic in regard to birth control propaganda. A year in prison and a fine of $1,000 is the penalty for spreading such information.

Alabama Woman Elected General President U. D. C.

BILOXI, Miss., Nov. 21. (AP)—Mrs. L. M. Basinsky of Troy, Ala., today was elected president general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, at the annual convention here.

Mrs. J. Wilcox of Texas was elected third vice president.

With election disposed of, the day's activities called for a visit to Beauvior, historic home of Jefferson Davis.

Tonight the convention was to observe "historical evening," and will confer crosses of military service upon Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder, Maj. Gen. Henry P. McCain, Brig. Gen. James J. Jervey and Col. George E. Pickett II. The evening will close with a "fashion parade of the sixties."

Yesterday's session included the reading of the ritual of the organization and the presentation of distinguished visitors. The convention extended greetings to President Herbert Hoover.

Venezuelan Students Released From Prison

CARACAS, Venezuela, Nov. 21. (UP)—Release of a large number of students imprisoned in Puerto Cabello castle since the students' week riots over a year ago was announced today by the government.

Several student leaders were arrested during students' week because of anti-government demonstrations, and many other students, when they failed to gain release of their comrades, demanded that they be arrested too. Police obliged them.

TEXAN'S WILL FOUNDS SCHOOL

Graduate Institution Is Provided For

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. (INS)—Judge Edwin B. Parker, chairman of the German-American mixed claims commission, who died here several weeks ago, left the bulk of his $2,000,000 estate to found a graduate school to teach and educate young men in international affairs, it was disclosed today when his will was filed for probate.

A well known Texas lawyer, Judge Parker apparently decided on this step only last September, for the will bore that date.

Justice Harlan F. Stone, Atty. Gen. W. D. Mitchell, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and H. T. Klein of New York, were named a supervising board to carry out the dead jurist's plans.

Judge Parker decreed the school is to teach "high-minded young men of character and ability subjects calculated to equip them to render practical service to the United States government in its foreign relations."

The will made numerous bequests. The widow, Mrs. Katherine Parker, was given life annuity of $2,000 a month; George A. Parker and O. S. Parker, brothers, in Texas, were given $250 monthly for the rest of their lives. Personal belongings went to the widow.

The sum of $100,000 was given to the Y. W. C. A., with which to establish and maintain a department of music in memory of his wife.

Jew Sentenced to Die For Slaying Arabs

To provide great realism, the artist offers to have a mist of steam rising over his clients.

Alleged Boy Slayer Receives Little Notice

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 21. (INS)—One box of candy labeled "from a mother," is the only gift received by Robert E. Landis, Minneapolis youth facing first degree murder charges here for the shooting of Detective Roy Fordyce.

Despite the publicity given the boy slayer, there has been a noticeable lack of "sob sister" flowers and letters, according to Sheriff Floyd Brower.

Death Leads to Probe of Tulsa Spooners Court

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 21. (UP)—The death of Otto R. Voss, 30, believed a suicide, late last night, may lead city and county investigators to probe activities of an alleged "spooner's county peace justice court."

Voss was found dead by two neighbor women who heard a shot in the corridor of an apartment house late last night. They saw no one else in the building.

Besides Voss' body was a revolver which belonged to Constable George Dorr who was said to have been working with Voss in arresting spooners and taking them before Justice of the Peace Charles Brown where fines and fees were said to have been divided three ways.

Dorr claimed Voss stole the gun.

Mrs. Frankie Voss, 22, who said she learned after marrying Voss a year ago that he had a family in Texas, had secured an assult and battery warrant for Voss late yesterday. Police believed Voss may have shot himself over trouble with his wife.

Mrs. Voss said her husband had planned robberies but she did not know of his executing any.

Ed R. Voss, brother of the dead man, said Voss and Dorr had trouble over attention by Dorr to Mrs. Voss.

Mrs. Ruby Dorr told of going with her husband and Voss to arrest spooners. Police scouted the idea that outraged road side parking victims of the officers had made reprisals.

No arrests have been made in connection with Voss' death.

Italian Births on Decrease, Report Shows

ROME, Nov. 21. (UP)—Despite Premier Mussolini's campaign for "more Italian babies," the first 10 months of 1929 showed only 574,585 births in Italy, a decrease of 23,011 compared with the same period last year, it was learned today. Total deaths increased.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

We have just been listening to an enthusiastic sportsman, lured by the idea of hunting pheasant, go back in his memory to a visit he made to South Dakota in 1912.

◇ ◇ ◇

It was purely a business trip,— one where he was forced to drive a team 125 miles—but his memory held every detail of that trip into pioneering country as fresh as though it were yesterday.

◇ ◇ ◇

The long, unbroken trail through strange country; the sod houses, most all empty because their owners had gone into the town for the winter. We could see them as he talked.

◇ ◇ ◇

Then 30 miles from the nearest family, they came to a sod house where a woman lived alone,—homesteading her section. And he told of her happiness at seeing them and how hard it was to get away. It had been so long since she had been able to talk to anyone at all, she could not bear to see them leave. She had wood a'plenty and was prepared for the winter. The winter before, two girls not far away had frozen to death. With an insufficient wood supply, they burned one room of their home, but perished from the cold after that.

◇ ◇ ◇

There was much said about the hospitality of the old West. People who remember the covered wagon days are always hospitable. In a covered wagon train, if one falls by the wayside, the caravan does not leave him. They help him on his way.

◇ ◇ ◇

And it was so in Texas in the early days of settling the country.

◇ ◇ ◇

He told of how in his grandfather's day, when a ranchman left his home, it was never locked and any traveler was welcome to go in and kindle a fire and help himself to bacon and sugar and coffee and flour,—just so he did not carry any away.

◇ ◇ ◇

It was an unwritten law, that if a man diminished a wood supply, he should bring in fresh fuel before he left, so that if another man dropped in during freezing weather, everything would be at hand.

◇ ◇ ◇

Once, he said, some travelers broke the law; they carried away all the sugar and bacon and flour they could find. And all that prevented a lynching, was the fact that the posse hastily formed could not find the thieves.

Love, Happiness Two Things You Can't "Put Off"

"None of This Marrying on a Shoestring for Me" Cries the Youth Who Would Make His Fortune Before Marrying—To Which Dorothy Dix Replies, "Love and Happiness Two Things You Can't Put Off"

"I don't see you about with Mary Blank any more," I said to a young man of my acquaintance the other day; "she is so pretty and fine and sweet that I hoped you would make a match." "It is because she is so pretty and fine and sweet that you don't see me about with her," he replied. "With a girl like Mary absence of body is better than tons of resolutions to remain platonic, and I keep away from her because if I didn't some moonlight night I would hear myself telling her that she was the only one and dooming us both to double wretchedness. For, you see, dear lady, I am not ready to marry yet. I haven't the price of a wedding ring."

"Wedding rings are not necessarily expensive," I returned, "and generally the plain gold ones outlast those of platinum set with diamonds and have more happiness in them."

"Well, I want by fetters gilded when I put on the good old ball and chain," he went on gayly, "I want to annex a wife to my other pleasures, not substitute her for them. I don't want to give up my clubs, my good clothes, my car, my trips, my little luxuries, for the dubious pleasure of living in a cheap bungalow or a two-by-four flat and pushing a perambulator for a Sunday afternoon's diversion and being harassed and worried wondering where the money is coming from to pay the grocery and the doctors' bills. Besides, after I had pulled a woman down to this sort of penury, how do I know that I would still stay in love with her enough to compensate for all the sacrifices I had made for marriage? Mary, for example, is tremendously attractive to me because she is fresh and gay and carefree and always daintily dressed. But suppose she was overworked and tired and shabby and smelled of the kitchen and sterilized milk instead of expensive French perfume? Would she still be as alluring to me or would my tired eyes roam off in search of some other woman who hadn't been up half the night with a sickly baby and fried her complexion out over the cook stove and whose father or husband dressed her up in chiffons? Believe me, I have seen too many romances that petered out under the blight of the installment collector and too many marriages that went bankrupt just because they were not adequately financed. So none of this marrying on a shoestring for me. I am going to wait until after I have made my fortune and can afford to marry."

"You speak," I said, "as if love was like a pot of jam that you could order in whenever you felt that you had a little money to spare and that you would like to sweeten up life a bit, but, unfortunately, this is not the case. Love is the gift of the gods, bestowed capriciously and without regard to our convenience and desires.

"You can put off marrying until you are 35 or 40 and have an income upon which to support a wife in luxury, but because the hour has struck when you are able financially to marry no miracle will happen that will give you back the rosy idealism of boyhood nor the fire and passion of youth. Nor will it automatically supply the beautiful young girl who is madly enamored of you, for it is only in fairy tales that the golden-haired princess always appears at the psychological moment.

"Of course, at middle age you may fall in love and some woman may fall in love with you, but you cannot count upon this as a certainty. For after we have turned love away from our door and denied it bite and sup, it has a way of leaving us and refusing to return to us when we whistle for it.

"Certainly no man has a right to marry unless he has some settled way of supporting a family. There can be neither peace nor happiness nor security in the home where the wolf howls forever outside of the door, where little children cry for food and the husband's and wife's nerves are ragged with fear for the future.

"But this margin of safety is all that is necessary. It doesn't take riches to marry on. Money doesn't guarantee domestic felicity, for love and congeniality and understanding and sympathy, the things that make marriage a success, are not for sale over the counter.

"So I think a man makes a great mistake if he puts off marriage until he has accumulated a fortune, because if he does he misses so many of the very best things in life.

"He misses the high enthusiasm that sends a youth starry-eyed out on the great adventure, feeling that nothing else matters as long as he has the beloved woman by his side. He misses the dreams that make a man see an angel in some ordinary girl.

"For by the time a man is middle-aged he has grown cold and cautious and learned to discount every emotion. He misses the fun of making his first home with his own hands, for no palace that he may subsequently own ever fills a man with the pride and delight of the cottage which he and his bride paid for by the month and where they painted their own woodwork and varnished their own floors and made their own furniture. He misses knowing that he is loved for himself alone and he misses that comradeship, that closeness that comes to the man and the woman who have begun at the bottom and worked up together and who have shared every hope and plan and aspiration of each other.

Long Gown Of Paris Fashion Is Losing Out

By PRINCESS ALI FAZIL
United Press Staff

PARIS, Nov. 21.—The war of the skirts is on, and it threatens to go down into history along with the war of the roses and other famous skirmishes.

The million-dollar dressmakers' trust of Paris is in the trenches with a goodly supply of long skrits as ammunition, but they suddenly find themselves with many women of the world lined up against them as allies.

The world is not taking to the edict of the Paris masters that skirts must be longer. Britain and America, particularly, seem to have had enough of the Gallic domination of style precepts. They have been slow to buy the ankle-length Paris creations. For the time being the women are winning their battle, for the style czars have remade their collections and it is noticeable that dresses are no longer full length but only medium length.

It is likely that the battle of the skirts will end as all wars do, with an armistice and the belligerents will spend much time and money in negotiating a compromise. Rather than give up the battle entirely, the dressmakers may compromise on short skirts up to 8 p. m. and then long skirts until morning.

Like Their Freedom

"The whole trouble is that women have learned to like freedom of dress and have no intentions of sacrificing comfort again for style," Mrs. Jean Nash Dubonnet, one of the best dressed women of Paris, said.

"Then too it is easy for women with a limited budget to make their own simple, short dresses, while they would be lost in the complications of the long robes. That may have much to do with the final decision."

Jacques Worth, famed creator of longer lines, has an argument that smacks of the original.

"Women dress in the daytime to impress other women, and at night to impress men," he says, wisely.

"Naturally, it will be hard to get them back to sensible length of gown in the daytime because there are not enough men around, and sport clothes are admittedly smart.

"But at night she enters into competition with other women for the admiring glances of men. She realizes that with close cropped hair, masculine air and knee-length skirts she cannot hope longer to compete for appreciation against a woman who knows that her longer dress and longer hair makes a man more interested in her.

Expressing Individuality

"In fact, we have tried to take women out of the system of mass production of unique models, like automobiles, and put them back where they were years ago. Each woman can express her individuality by the way she dresses. The past few seasons it has been impossible to tell women apart, and there was not enough material in a dress to be able to tell whether it was pretty or not."

Even if dresses are longer, there is no attempt to hide the legs. They are to be made appear like mysterious appendages.

"We do not hide the limbs, we dissimulate them. We conceal them, but a hint of them always remains," Worth said.

Rinso means longer life for your clothes

IT'S a pity to let your wash be scrubbed over and over again every washday . . . when it can be soaked whiter.

Rinso, the hard-water soap, is so safe. Gently it loosens the dirt, and clothes come snow-white without boiling, without a bit of hard rubbing. Clothes last much longer! No wonder the makers of 38 well-known washing machines recommend Rinso.

Granulated, compact—one cupful of Rinso gives more suds than two cupfuls of lightweight, puffed-up soaps—even in the hardest water. And no softener needed! Get the BIG package.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. (INS)—If the United States adopted the European practice of reviving old place names, 19 states would have to change the spelling of theirs, according to the National Geographic society. They are:

Alibamu (Alabama), Arizonac (Arizona), Quonoktacut (Connecticut), E-dah-hoe (Idaho), Illini (Illinois), Ayuhba (Iowa), Kanza (Kansas), Kentake (Kentucky), Massawadschuasch (Massachusetts), Mishiganaw (Michigan), Missisipi, Missiuri, Ohionhflo (Ohio), Tanasee (Tennessee), Texia, Ute (Utah), Mishkonsing (Wisconsin), Mcheuwomink (Wyoming), and Akansea (Arkansas).

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 21. (INS)—Efforts will be renewed at the 1930 session of the legislature to increase the legal speed limit for automobiles in New York state from 35 to 40 miles per hour.

At past sessions of the lawmakers bills of this nature always have gone down to defeat because of the opposition of the rural members.

Advocates of the measure insist the law should be changed because they say there are few motorists who drive less than 40 miles at present.

24 Business Men to Form "Glee Club" for Comedy

Professional Women to Present Play at Forum Nov. 25-26

Twenty-four local business and professional men will comprise the "College Glee Club" to be featured in the presentation of "Aunt Lucia," a three-act comedy of college life, by the Business and Professional Woman's club at the Woman's Forum on Nov. 25 and 26, it was announced Thursday.

While no effort will be made by the glee club to vie with the beauty chorus, which is to be composed of still another set of local business men, masculine pulchritude will be abundantly present in the vocal ensemble, both by virtue of native endowment and dashing collegiate attire, it was announced.

Corpulent outlines of staid business executives and the lithe figures of younger denizens of Wichita Falls' commercial network will be resolved into a charming uniformity of under-grad appearance through the magic of Oxford bags, monogramed V-necks, dormitory skull-caps, and all those naive touches recognized as properly collegiate.

These men will sing. They will be returning to their dear old Alma Mater for the homecoming game with Hadn't Oughter, and will tune up as of old, with barber-shop improvisations replacing the forgotten harmonies, in "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," "Boola," "Collegiate," "In the Evening by the Moonlight," "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny," and "Goodnight, Ladies."

The personnel, which includes many singers heard in various musical affairs here formerly, is made up of the following: J. L. McElreath, Ted Williams, Bob Murrill, Bob Duke, Frank Haley, F. M. Hanson, Paul Sisk, J. S. Menton, N. P. Hines, Dr. A. D. Pattillo, Harry McConnell, W. P. Lacy, John Reed, J. M. Bridges, Dave Covington, W. A. Johnston, James Pollard, Nick Oechsner, Al Bedinghaus, Arch Smith, Dr. J. M. Whitworth, Kenneth Bebb, Ernest Reeves and Luther P. Thurman.

The comedy will be given next Monday and Tuesday nights.

U. S. Milk Production Up in Last Eight Years

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 21. (INS)—That the production of milk in the United States during the past eight years has made rapid progress was recently pointed out here by Charles H. Hill, president of the National Dairy association.

Mr. Hill stated that "the total milk production of the United States is 724,000,000,000 pounds. It has increased 30,000,000,000 pounds in the last eight years when there was a decrease of 14,000 in the number of dairy cows. This is an increase in production of 25 per cent for each cow. In that time the per capita consumption of milk has increased 27 per cent."

Auto Speeds Traps Almost Eliminated

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 21. (INS)—Automobile speed traps have been pretty generally eliminated in New York state by the action of the legislature.

Under an old law the towns maintaining the speed traps could retain a large part of the fines imposed on the "speeding" motorists.

When the law was changed by the legislature, compelling the town to turn over all of the fines to the state, the speed traps started to disappear.

Costume Jewelry Wins Style Favor

Fashion Approves It for Season's Gifts

By FRANCES PAGET

(Copyright, 1929, by Style Sources)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21. (UP)—When in doubt this Christmas in choosing a gift, the solution of all perplexities is to be found in costume jewelry. One may express herself at any price, and find ample to admire from the single or triple ropes of beige and egg shell pearls to the most complicated designs in modern or rennaissance necklaces.

There are many other things, not exclusive of diminutive watches, the faces of which are entirely concealed by the design. Flat carved plaques of genuine semi-precious stones are effectively combined with smooth or faceted beads for some interesting necklaces. Others are in quaintly old fashioned floral motifs set with small stones, while others again employ the ultra modern wood or leather curious materials to be wrought into jewelry novelties.

Effective uses of onyx are being revived with either diamonds or crystals and with such intense colors as the green jade and the brilliant red of Cinnabar. Interesting treatments of old ivory also are noted at smart places. It is particularly liked this season when combined with carnelian. Obviously this combination perfects a brown ensemble.

Baguettes and rondelles continue to be favorite themes with designers of both precious and costume jewelry types. The modern woman is as punctilious about the ornaments with which she completes her costume as she is the hat or shoes she wears with it.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 21. (UP)—The viciousness of nicotine on the physiognomy of a rodent was demonstrated in the First Church of God here last night at a meeting of the Kansas Anti-Cigaret league.

Two minutes after an alleged dose of nicotine drawn from two cigarets was placed in the mouth of a rat the animal dropped dead.

The demonstration—not to show how to kill rats but rather to show the evil effects of cigarets—was given in connection with an exhortation against tobacco delivered by C. O. Miller of Los Angeles.

NEW BUILDINGS REFLECT STEADY GROWTH AT FLOYDADA

CREAMERY HAS GOOD TRADE

'Boomless' Growth Town Reviewed

By ED BISHOP
Record News Correspondent

FLOYDADA, Texas, Nov. 21.—As the closing months of 1929 approach citizens of Floydada can glance back through 12 months of construction that has added materially to the general appearance of the city as well as its development. Although not surpassing the record made in 1928 of approximately $500,000 in building permits the year 1929 has been one of substantial building and steady growth.

As a result of efforts on the part of the citizens of Floydada through their chamber of commerce the Floydada creamery was established with local capital and the company built a $6,000 home on South Wall street and is now serving the people of the South Plains, offering one of the best markets in this section for cream and butterfat. Thousands of pounds of butter have been shipped from this one station this year and with the rapid increase in dairying the manager of this firm expects the output of the creamery in 1930 to be practically doubled.

Business Expands

Although outside capital has been invested in Floydada to the extent that a number of well known chain stores have been established in the "City growing without the aid of a boom," the local citizens have not been backward in expressing their belief in Floydada and have erected some of the most recent improvements in the city.

At a cost of $50,000 the new Palace theater was built this year on West California street. This modern edifice is offering the best in amusement and is receiving patronage from surrounding towns and communities as well as a liberal patronage in Floydada. The Martin Brothers, for many years one of the leading dry goods firms on the South Plains, displayed their belief in Floydada when they spent $20,000 for a new home on West California street. The firm is now at home in the new building.

Other buildings that have added much to the appearance of the city are the George Finker building on West California costing $10,000, the King building on east Missouri street built at a cost of $15,000, the Enoch building on Wall street costing $6,000, the Phillips Petroleum station on California street costing $8,000, the Texas company station on Wall street built at a cost of $5,000, and numerous improvements to business establishments.

$450,000 Total Expected

The year just past has seen the erection of more than 100 homes in Floydada that are modern and of substantial structure. The most recent homes for which permits have been granted are the $12,000 residence to be occupied by W. M. Massie, prominent real estate dealer, the $7,500 residence to be occupied by Mrs. A. J. Welch, a modern home built by a Polk Goen at a cost of $3,000 and a home just completed on California street by J. H. Reagan at a cost of $4,000.

Total permits for the city of Floydada have already passed the $300,000 mark and with new buildings yet to be erected and new homes that will be built this year the permits will total near $450,000.

wheat growers, but will delay cotton picking, road and street work. Livestock is not expected to suffer.

IOWA PARK—A light snow, which melted rapidly, fell here until about noon Thursday. A slow drizzle which followed was continued early Thursday night.

WELLINGTON—Snow fell here intermittently all day Thursday, melting as it struck the earth.

LOCKNEY—A drop in temperature to freezing Wednesday night was followed by flurries of sleet Thursday morning which will be detrimental to crops, according to farmers. Cotton picking and feed harvesting in this section are only about one-half completed.

WHITE DEER—A snow which fell here throughout Thursday melted almost as rapidly as it struck the ground. The temperature stood at 34 degrees late Thursday afternoon. Fair weather is expected Friday.

DALHART—A light snow which began falling early this morning had covered the ground here early Thursday night. Tourist traffic has not been halted in the least by weather conditions. The first snow of the season, unusually heavy, fell here about two weeks ago.

STAMFORD—Snow and rain have fallen here all day, although the total precipitation has been less than one inch. The snow came for about two hours during the afternoon and fell heavily for most of the time. It melted, however, almost as fast as it touched the ground.

MEMPHIS—Snow fell all afternoon here, melting as it fell. The wind was blowing lightly from the northeast with the temperature standing at 32 early Thursday night. The bad weather will be a great hindrance to farmers in gathering and marketing cotton. The snow halted here about 7 o'clock.

ALTUS—Snow which had been falling slowly through the afternoon Thursday, began to fall in full force early tonight and prospects indicate that the ground will be covered by early Friday. The temperature was 29 degrees here late Thursday afternoon.

VERNON—Following the first snow of the season which fell here Thursday morning, a heavy mist fell almost without interruption during the remainder of the day. The precipitation, while amounting to little in quantity, will serve to further delay cotton picking. The thermometer stood at 40 degrees throughout the day, and early Thursday night had dropped to 38. A freeze is not expected.

As an indication of how the industry has grown in three decades, the club points out that 4,024,590 passenger automobiles alone were manufactured in the United States and Canada in 1928. Seven Texans Die In Train Crashes

Mrs. C. E. King, Mrs. Arthur Gryder, Mrs. Charles Clark, Mrs. E. H. Pendergrass and Mrs. G. R. Ryder, mother-in-law of Mrs. Arthur Gryder.

Doctors said that Robert Guess, the chauffeur, might recover.

A few hours later another automobile was struck by an east-bound Texas and Pacific passenger train just outside of Cisco, 150 miles west of here, and S. L. Davis, a carpenter, and Annie Davis, both about 40, were killed.

The train which killed the couple at Cisco missed a coupe which was just ahead of the other car by a foot, according to E. M. Little, Abilene, and Roy M. James, Dallas, who witnessed the double-tragedy.

Speeding Train Halted

Engineer W. L. Simpson of Baird immediately applied the air brakes and stopped the speeding train.

All of the members of the party killed near here were wives of prominent Leonard men, and were en route to Fort Worth to a house party. They were members of the Leonard Literary club.

The car was twisted out of shape. One of the women's legs were severed from her body and another lost an arm. Clothing from suitcases and human limbs were scattered up and down the right-of-way for more than 50 feet.

Four of the women were dead when picked up. The other died in a hospital.

Prominent Women

Mrs. Pendergrass was the wife of Dr. Scott Pendergrass of Leonard and Mrs. Arthur Gryder's husband is a banker in Leonard.

The negro chauffeur was delirious in the hospital late today and could not account for the accident. It occurred at a place where the highway dips, however, and it is believed he would have been unable to stop the car on the slick, icy road if he had seen the train.

Four unidentified persons of a group of five were injured in a wreck late today on the highway east of Midland. Snow and slippery roads were blamed for the crash. The victims were taken to a Midland hospital.

BLAST ROCKS WASHINGTON

Five Killed as Boiler Explodes

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. (AP)—An explosion in the basement of a 10-cent store during the rush hour today killed five persons, dangerously injured at least four others, and sent 40 less seriously hurt to hospitals.

The blast rocked the store and tore away the front wall to send bricks and huge concrete blocks from the sidewalks hurtling upon passers-by.

So great was the disorder left by the concrete and wreckage showered about the front of the building that it was two hours before firemen could clear it away with motor derricks to find the source of the explosion. In a basement under the sidewalk they found a shattered hot water boiler to which they attributed the blast. They reported the top of the steel tank was blown across the street.

cial grand jury at Eastland, scene of the Tuesday night lynching, asking that they thoroughly investigate the incident.

Directing the probers to go to the bottom of the incident, the judge admonished them that "Our law is supreme and for the protection of society.

"We must with a firm hand proclaim to the world that the laws of our land must be respected and obeyed to the letter, regardless of whom it may affect," the judge said. "I am relying upon this grand jury, with the assistance of capable officers, to ferret out thoroughly the deplorable affair of Tuesday night and to bring to justice all persons who were in any way connected therewith.

"None will contend but that Ratliff should have paid the penalty for the crime he committed, but his punishment should have been administered by the courts, and not by a few persons who delegated themselves to administer such punishment as in their opinion would be adequate."

The grand jurors then recessed for the day out of respect to Tom Jones, the jailer whom Ratliff killed on Monday night trying to escape jail, and will begin work tomorrow.

BORGER CHASE ENDS HERE

Writ Served Two Hours After Prisoners Arrive

Deputy Burton appeared surprised.

"There's no reason for all this fuss," he said. "They started looking all over the state for us as soon as they saw the prisoners had been checked out of the city jail at Fort Worth. We weren't trying to dodge anyone. They were right there under their noses all the time."

At Cleburne Wednesday night, Deputy Burton was quoted as saying he had covered a large part of Central Texas recently trying to keep Jones and Hodges with him without outside interference and that he was taking them to Stinnett to answer the habeas corpus served on him from there. Although the men were handcuffed when they left Cleburne they were not manacled when taken into the county jail here Thursday afternoon.

The writ here was served within two hours after the prisoners had arrived. Both Burton and Sheriff Bralley were named as defendants in the petition filed by Mr. Allred Thursday afternoon, but Sheriff Bralley was described as "an innocent party to this illegal action."

The petition charged Burton had removed the prisoners from Hutchinson county illegally and that he had deprived them unlawfully of their liberty. It also alleged that Burton had incarcerated them in different jails without authority and had "deprived them of the opportunity to consult with counsel and had concealed himself so as to avoid service of a writ of habeas corpus."

Sheriff Moore from Borger allowed Mr. Allred, acting in behalf of Ben P. Allred, his brother and attorney for the prisoners, to confer with Jones and Hodges in a private room in the county jail Thursday evening following the conference in the district attorney's office.

B. P. Jones of Wichita Falls, brother of Sam Jones, was also allowed to sit in on the private conversation. Sheriff Moore refused to allow a Record News reporter to speak with the prisoners or to listen to the private conference, explaining that he had received "far too much publicity on this matter and had been given the dirty end of the stick on several occasions by newspapers."

Jones and Hodges appeared in the best of spirits after the conversation with Mr. Allred and Jones' brother. They joked with Sheriff Moore and asked him how the roads would be up north while they were being taken to Stinnett.

Both of the prisoners were well dressed, Jones in a dark suit and Hodges in a heavy corduroy outfit with a black shirt. Neither had overcoats and Jones asked if it was very cold "out there." The sheriff told him it was fairly cold but that they were in a closed car and would not be "out in the weather."

District Attorney Calhoun and Sheriff Moore arrived in Wichita Falls about 6 o'clock Thursday evening in a car although it was previously thought they would arrive later in a bus. They came immediately to Mr. Spence's office and Mr. Allred was notified of their arrival. It was thought for a time that Judge Martin could convene court for the habeas hearing Thursday evening, Mr. Spence said, but Mr. Allred's agreement to ask that the writ be made returnable at Stinnett removed that necessity. The object in calling court would have been to keep Sheriff Bralley, named as one of the defendants in the petition, from being held in contempt of court by failure to produce the men Friday morning, since Calhoun and Sheriff Moore stated they would insist the prisoners be allowed to start immediately for Stinnett.

Asked concerning investigation of the Holmes slaying, Calhoun and Deputy Burton were quoted as saying "information is very satisfactory," but would make no further comment.

The Charles Weeks Community of Little Farms offers ideal conditions for commuters holding positions in the city who would like to have their families live in beautiful garden homes in the country where the entire living can be made from poultry and gardening, thus enabling the head of the house to save all of his wages. In such a community four or five commuters can make the trip to and from the city easily, comfortably and cheaply in a modern Ford car. By thus saving the entire wages in time the intensive little farm could be made entirely self-supporting and the nerve-wrecking job in the city could be given up. Visit the Model Farm in Weeks Community of Little Farms located near Westmoreland swimming pool and see what irrigating water and abundance of fertilizer will do when scientifically applied. It will be a revelation to you. If you cannot come write for free literature.

HOW SIMMONS GOT IT

Daily Editorial

YOUR BUSINESS is perishing from anemia—starving for fresh blood. Only the culls of talent and ability are content to enter your employ.

The crackerjacks are building up your competitors—supplying the mental ordnance to batter you out of the field.

All the first-class youngsters have your rating, and therefore won't trust you.

Your complacent, conceit-shriveled mind has become a wire-making machine, through which no big ideas can lately pass.

So heavy-caliber men aren't submitting their services to your Flaubert consideration.

There must have been a time when you were broader-gauged—it's incomprehensible that anybody could succeed to authority and reach the right of decision, except by the exhibition of enterprise and the exercise of shrewdness.

But nothing in your recent activities corroborated such qualities. In the beginning, you may have been hard-headed, but today, you're just bone-domed.

An extraordinary notion can't squeeze through the tiny peephole behind which you view values. Only as much of it as superficial judgment approves, may hope for your endorsement.

And so folk, able to command fair and unprejudiced hearings elsewhere, refuse to let you reduce their sound propositions to tidbits.

They take them, instead, to progressive managements, where worth is promptly encouraged and properly compensated.

YOU aren't growing, so you'll soon be going to the demnition bow-wows.

You've stopped learning and must consequently cease earning overhead requirements.

You have placed yourself above the necessity of instruction, assumed the role of everybody's teacher, and since you consider it beneath your dignity to become a pupil as well, whatever knowledge you once possessed, is trite, obsolete and non-productive.

Your position is analogous to that of a shopkeeper who purchases no new stocks and yet expects to hold his trade and prestige.

Every real merchant knows that buying is nine-tenths of selling, and so deeply is this principle rooted, that leading houses don't wait until novelties are brought to them, but scout the highways of trade to intercept innovation and originality, before rivals have a prior chance at them.

You not only make no effort to anticipate opportunity, but daily rebuff it.

The profit and loss statement has your number—and it's mainly zero.

Results finally count and never make a mistake in the figures.

You've adopted an attitude of such pernicious egotism, that, rather than acknowledge anybody else equal to problems with which you can't cope, you prefer to play dog-in-the-manger to the point of ruin itself.

You'd rather sink in the quagmires of vanity than be rescued from failure by a subordinate's suggestions or an outsider's criticism.

"The fellow for whom I used to work got in the habit of knowing it all," remarked old Cyrus Simmons. "That's how I happened to get control of the concern."

The Right to Be Thankful

THE THANKSGIVING SEASON is a good time for taking stock of one's self. Each of us doubtless has much to be thankful for. Health, happiness and prosperity have been with most of us. Fortune has been kind—if you believe that fortune accomplishes these things—but, whatever the reason, most of us are better off today than we were a year ago.

We still have our health, that priceless possesion without which no joys are real and with which even misfortune is tempered. There are others, some of whom were strong and robust a short year ago, to whom fate has not been so kind.

We still have our friendsand real friends are among the most precious possessions in the world, for they stand by us at all times, tempering our sorrows in time of adversity and encouraging us on in time of success. The man without friends is poor, indeed.

We still have our happiness—and that, in its many forms, is really what makes life worth while. There are many, perhaps mistaking mere financial success, wealth and position for true happiness, who have gained these but lost their happiness entirely.

We have been prosperous—but we should regard prosperity merely as a means for obtaining happiness, and not as an end; for wealth without happiness is poverty indeed.

Yes, we—certainly the most of us—have reason to be thankful.

But have we the right to be thankful?

The answer can be found if one will only consider himself for a moment. The decision is one's own, and the judge is one's conscience. No other judge is needed.

Have we been as considerate of our health as it has been kind to us? Have we been fair to our mind and our bodies, or have we placed an unnecessary burden upon them by neglect, indifference and perhaps occasional dissipation?

Have we been as true to our friends as they have been to us? Have we comforted and aided them in times of adversity as they have comforted and aided us? Aside from our intimate friends, have we been considerate of society as a whole and opened our hearts (and our purses, too) to those who suffer and are in distress?

Have we confused happiness with those gaudier, tinseled pleasures of life that are so often mistaken for real happiness? Have we realized that true happiness is measured—unconsciously, perhaps, but nevertheless inflexibly—by our return on the good we have done to others?

Have we regarded prosperity merely as a means for enriching ourselves, or as a means for improving ourselves and benefiting others? Have we been selfish with the good fortune that has come upon us—or have we been grateful?

These are the questions that we must answer for ourselves. No one else can answer them for us, no one else needs to. Each man knows the truth that lies buried within his own heart.

If we have done all these things, then we have really earned the right to be thankful.

If we have not earned this right, there is no better time to begin earning it than now.

The Law's Delays Didn't Help Him

SOMETIMES our complicated legal machinery, through which a convicted man can petition for a new trial because of minor errors at his first trial, enables a scoundrel to escape punishment. But sometimes it works the other way.

The other day the state of Texas executed a man for murder.

This man was arrested some years ago. Brought to trial for murder, he was convicted only of manslaughter and sentenced to four years in prison. He appealed and his lawyer won a new trial for him. This time he was convicted of second degree murder and sentenced to prison for life.

Again he appealed, and again he was granted a new trial. And in the third trial he was convicted of murder in the first degree and sentenced to the electric chair. His further appeals failed, and he finally was electrocuted.

It doesn't work out that way often. But in this one case, at least, the chap would have been wise to let well enough alone.

A New Alignment

IT IS whispered about Washington that the next presidential campaign year may see an entirely new ticket in the field—a ticket drawing its support from the groups represented in the present senate by the western-southern combination that is so sadly wrecking the administration's tariff program.

Whether this will ever come to pass, of course, is something that no man in his senses would try to say, definitely, right now. But it might prove a move in the right direction.

The one great criticism of American politics lately has been that there is little basic difference between the two major parties. Any development that would bring a more clear cut differentiation would be a thing to be welcomed. Some of the western Republicans are, at present, infinitely farther removed from the administration viewpoint than some eastern Democrats.

Interloper

"Now I am through with love," said I,
"Through with folly and through with tears,
Lads are silly to rant and sigh,
Wasting part of the precious years;
Eyes ahead is my battle cry,
Pipe and books and an easy chair—
(Why did you make my words a lie
Cunning mite with the golden hair?)"

"Girls are ever the same," said I,
"Foolish, fickle and insincere,
Nothing left but to pass them by,
Wisdom comes with the dying year.
Proud and cool I will go my way,
Done with laughter and done with lies;
(Why did you set my plane astray—
Shy young thing with the sky-blue eyes?)"

Gag

Eddie Cantor's latest joke concerns Meyer Petruffsky, who dreamed that an angel came to him and said: "Meester Petruffsky, I vuss han bengel. I geev you one wish, anything you wish you will gat right away, but honly one wish, do you hear?"

"Ull right," said Mr. Petruffsky, "I veesh I could have a copy of de New Yukk Times dated Novamber Feefteent' Nineteen Tolty!"

The angel immediately brought forth a copy of the N. Y. Times dated Nov. 15, 1930!

Petruffsky breathlessly turned to the stock market columns and beamed when he saw Montgomery Ward listed at 3070¼; Goldman-Sachs at 2350½, General Electric at 2576 and Radio at 950⅝.

Then he turned to the obituary department and read: "In Memoriam of Meyer Petruffsky, who died Nov. 15, 1929."

A byroad to hell leads through heaven,
The road that we traveled tonight,

Now whip up the horses for hell.

Why Writers Die Young

The story about Dorothy Parker's "Big Blonde," which gathered dust and rejection slips for over three years, and then copped the O. Henry Memorial blue ribbon, reminds Ward ("Cora Potts") Greene of Ernest Hemingway's "Fifty Grand." The Hemingway yarn came out in the Atlantic Monthly to be hailed by Harry Hansen for a full col'm and it kicked up plenty of literary excitement, both then and after its inclusion in "Men Without Women."

The day it appeared in the Atlantic Monthly a well known writer took it home to his squaw Kate and cried: "I want you to read the greatest short story ever written."

He had read about half a page aloud when she interrupted: "But, darling, I've read it before."

"Impossible!" he cried. "It just came out today!"

Finally her memory served her. "Do you remember when I was reading manuscripts for the Shrine Magazine a year ago?" she said. "Well, I was the one who rejected it!"

O Sidney Howard!!!

A Monday column recently contained the report that Wilson Follette, the actual winner of the O. Henry Memorial second prize ($250) could not be reached and that others accused him of being high-hat. It was also stated that Mr. Follette was not being snooty but was ill at the time and still needs the $250. The N. Y. World (or was it Harry Hansen?) picked up the lead and devoted almost a column to the story, for which thanks.

We trust Sidney Howard, who was the alternate winner of the second award and who doesn't need the money, has his attention summoned to this paragraph and that he will do what would be an appropriate and decent gesture, if he turned that coin over to Follette, who is plenty miserable.

Not long ago one of his daughters (who has had two tomes published) attempted suicide in California. Follette is there straightening out matters. His other gifted daughter is struggling to remain in college.

He rates a decent "break."

'EASY' The Love Story of a Modern Girl

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XLV

Ann Marie found her father in the side-yard where he was puttering around among his flower-beds with a watering can in his hand.

He was a fine gardener and had always known more about growing flowers than he knew about making.

"Someone walked all over my nasturtium bed the other day at the wedding," he said in his mildly complaining way. "Dear me, dear me!"

"Something worse than that has happened to you!" Ann Marie answered him grimly. "Leota Ingram has come to see you, and she certainly is on the war-path about something. She's out on the front porch waiting for you."

Mr. Macy set down his watering-can and wiped his wet earth-stained hands on his handkerchief. "Leota Ingram," he repeated. "Isn't that the girl that Howdy used to like when he was a kid?"

Ann Marie nodded. "Yes—and you gave him a thrashing once for taking her to a party. Remember? —I think he always ran around with her, though, until just before he met Stella and married her."

She was trying to prepare her father for the story that she knew Leota was going to tell him. Trying to soften the blow before it fell.

Leota was sitting in the hammock couch, swinging herself back and forth and smoking a cigaret in full view of sedate Pleasant street.

"How do you do?" she asked Mr. Macy coldly when he came up the steps of the porch. "I guess you know who I am. I come here to talk business with you tonight."

She crossed one silken knee over the other and made herself more comfortable in the swing.

"First of all," she said, "I want to tell you what your family has done to me the last couple months."

"My family?" Mr. Macy echoed, staring at her in mild astonishment from over his glasses. He sat down in his favorite porch-rocker and laid his hands over the shiny knees of his trousers. "What has my family to do with you—or you with my family!"

"Plenty!" Leota shot the word at him. "Plenty!—Take your wonderful son, first of all. You didn't know he was engaged to marry me when he left town, did ya? No, I guess not!—But he knew it, and so did I. That's why he left town—and that's why he sent Ann Marie to me to buy me off! 'Cause he got cold feet all of a sudden and didn't want to go through with it and marry me!"

Mr. Macy stared at her silently. But Ann Marie saw that his thin hands were trembling on his knees, and his face wore the look of one who has been stricken to the heart.

"If I'd used my head I'd stayed right here and made him marry me!" Leota's hard voice rang through the peaceful stillness like the clang of metal. "But I let Ann Marie talk me into taking some money and clearing out of town. She promised me $200—but she gave me only about half of it! And do you suppose I can get the rest of it out of her? Not a chance!—She's a double-crosser just like the rest of your family!"

"I've promised it to you, though," Ann Marie cut in, but Leota went right on talking, drowning her out.

"But I kept my part of the bargain. I got out of town and went up to New York—and there I met another man and fell in love with him. He asked me to marry him. And along about that time Ann Marie and Alice blows into town and takes a flat right next door to him.

She paused to light another cigaret.

"You know who the man was, don't ya?"

But poor Mr. Macy shook his head.

"How would I know?" he asked in his meek and gentle way.

"All right—I'll tell ya, then, if you're so dumb you can't figger it out for yourself," said Leota. "It was your daughter, Alice's new husband—Neal Forsythe! That's who it was!"

Mr. Macy's forehead knotted in a troubled frown.

"I see—I see," he answered, "and I can understand why you feel this way."

"Wait a minute! You haven't heard how I feel yet!" Leota cried shrilly. "I was just gettin' to that . . . You admit I've had a dirty deal all around from your kids, don't ya?"

Then Ann Marie spoke up. "You don't tell your story straight, Leota!" she said. "You didn't care whether Howdy married you or not . . . You just got that money from us because you wanted to go to New York, where Neal Forsythe was! You met him at Christmas-time—long before you and Howdy had your trouble—"

"Rave on—but it ain't gonna do you a bit of good," she said and stood up, teetering on her high pointed heels. "I just come from a lawyer's office, folks, and he tells me I oughtta sue Forsythe for breach of promise, and drag the whole story into the courts and the newspapers. He says the whole family has persecuted me—and he's right. You all have."

She threw the end of her cigaret over the railing into Mr. Macy's bed of mariposa lilies.

"But I don't want a scandal no more'n you folks want one," she finished. "So I come here to tell you that if you'll give me a coupla thousand to take me to Hollywood, we'll call it square."

She started down the steps, her short skirts swinging, her bead bag dangling from her fingers, the end of her fox scarf swinging back and forth like a pendulum as she went.

At the foot of the steps she turned, her lovely impudent painted face gleaming like an ivory carving in the summer dusk.

"Think it over, old boy," she said. "Think it over—and don't kid yourself I don't mean business 'cause I do. I've had a lot of luck lately, most of it bad, and I sure do need money. So dig down deep unless you want trouble and plenty of it, old papa!"

Halfway down the street she stopped beside a car that was parked at the curb. Through the dusk Ann Marie could see that it was a dark green roadster with cream-colored mud-guards.

She knew whose car it was . . . In a small town everybody knows everybody else's automobiles, just as everybody there knows everybody else's business.

"Well," she told the truth about having a lawyer, anyway, dad," she said, watching the car turn and disappear around the corner. "She just got into Mr. George Beeseley's roadster."

Mr. Macy made a sound that was half a groan and half a cuss word . . . For Mr. George Beeseley was the town's "shyster" lawyer!

The twilight deepened on the sagging old porch. All around the house were the familiar noises that mean peace and happy living . . . the faint clatter of china and silver from the kitchen where Mrs. Leezy was putting away the dishes . . . Stella's voice from the back yard where she and Howdy were weeding the little vegetable garden . . . the sound of water from the lawn-spray pattering on the grass.

But there was no peace and no happiness in Ann Marie's soul as she sat there on the top step of the porch with her head against her father's knee.

"You couldn't raise a dollar for her, could you, Dad?" she asked, presently, when the street lamp just beyond the maple trees had blossomed into light and the stars were coming out.

"You know I couldn't" her father answered just as she had known he would have to answer.

"I've borrowed on this house until I can't borrow another nickel. You know that," he explained. "And I haven't even paid for the stock I've got down in the store—the books and the pictures and all the rest of it."

He put his old head down into his hands. "I couldn't even give Jeanie her wedding," he said. "And when Mrs. Leezy and I were married—I couldn't even pay for the little trip we took. She bought the car with her own money."

The car . . . The car that Ann Marie had bought from her just in time for Neal and Alice to use for their honeymoon! . . .

Suddenly Ann Marie turned around and hid her eyes against her father's knee. She was too miserable to cry. She just crouched there in the darkness, wondering why life had to be so full of misery for some people and so bright with happiness for others . . . There were Jeanie and Alice, both of them on their wedding trips, both of them spending this warm whispering star-lit night with the men that they loved.

" . . . And here am I—broken-hearted," wailed a phonograph in the Green's house just across the street.

The next morning Mr. Macy came home from the store at 10 o'clock.

His wife and Stella had gone to market and Ann Marie was alone in her room upstairs, packing her overnight bag to go back to New York and her job.

"Well, Ann/Marie, that girls does mean business," he said, coming in and standing just inside the door, mopping his wrinkled forehead with his handkerchief. "Beeseley just telephoned me and said that if she doesn't get the money she wants out of court she's going to start suit."

"Well, let her sue!" Ann Marie answered. "Neal hasn't a nickel to his name. I can't imagine where he got the money to marry Alice—"

"Ah, but she's not going to sue him!" her father interrupted. "She and Beeseley must have got together last night and changed their plans . . . They must have found out that Howdy's my partner in the store, they're going to sue him."

He mopped his forehead again.

"She'll get a judgment against Howdy just as sure as shooting," he said. "And it'll hang over his head all his life until he gets it paid. Beeseley says that girl has a lot of love letters that Howdy wrote her just before he married Stella—the young fool!"

But that wasn't the worst of it.

An hour later Mrs. Leezy and Stella came home from down-town. Stella came straight up the stairs to Ann Marie and stood in the doorway of her room.

"I want to show you something I just bought," she said happily and opened a small package of white paper.

In it was a piece of the finest white batiste, some narrow lace edging and a spool of white thread.

"It's for a baby dress," sighed Stella, holding the batiste against her flushed cheek. "Howdy and I are going to have a baby next November!—Now, isn't that the loveliest thing that ever could happen in all this wide big world!"

After she had gone Ann Marie still stood, gazing at the empty doorway . . . There were no two ways about it now! Somehow or other that two thousand dollars must be raised and turned over to Leota right away before she started suit against Howdy for breach of promise!

"We can't let Stella find out about Leota—now!" she thought.

But she didn't know which way to turn for the money.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Finding Your Car After the Football Game

One of the jolly sports associated with the big football games is "Button, Button, Who's Got Any Idea Where We Left the Jitney?" It is faster than "Hide the Thimble" and more complex than "Blind Man's Buff."

PHILLIPS

The game is played like this: When you reach the scene of the gridiron classic you follow signs reading "Official Parking Space" and then follow the arrows for six or eight miles. When you are definitely out of sight of the stadium you turn left into a huge field where student attendants blow whistles, shout, gesticulate and make desperate efforts to prevent you from parking your bus anywhere it might be easily found again.

It is no fair parking near a tree, post, rock or path, which might aid you in locating it again without trouble after the game.

"I would like to leave it here," you explain. "There is plenty of room, it is not quite over the state boundary line and I can get the range on it by the fact it is on a line between that peak over there and the stadium."

"That wouldn't be fair to the other people who come by automobile," says the attendant. "If we make it easy for one man to find his car by a landmark like that we have got to make it easy for another man. You drive way down there and park near that policeman."

You mustn't argue with the attendant. That is one of the rules. If you quibble over the conditions of the game you will be driven off the the official parking reservations and forced to leave your car close to the stadium, where you can find it the minute the game is over.

After the game comes the mad rush across country to the official parking space, which doesn't look the least like it did when you last saw it.

While you have been watching the game the parking-space attendants have been busy, shifting the cars, digging new roads and cutting down any trees or posts that might help you get your bearings.

1.—White colonial house on hill to west.
2.—Cornfield, south by east.
3.—Mountain to the east.
4.—River to the north.

You find the colonial house has been torn down and carted away by the parking-space officials, the cornfield burned, the mountain taken up and transported to the northwest, and the river split into three sections and scattered all over the premises.

If, after sundown, you locate your car you probably discover three boys and five girls starting for Barney's grill in it and have a hard time getting them to abandon the idea. Their suggestion is that you get in and come along with them. And you might as well.

What's Your Opinion?

Question of the hour among investors: How far is down?

A lot of us wish the market would cease breaking if only to reduce the number of persons who go about the streets, homes and offices talking to themselves.

Reports of Outbreak in Argentine Puzzling

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 21. (UP)—Dispatches from Chile relating persistent rumors that a revolution had broken out in Argentina caused considerable surprise here tonight. Officials were at a loss to understand how the rumors could have originated.

BABSON FENDS SENATE THRUST

Solons 'Went Off Half-Cocked,' He Says

WELLESLEY, Mass., Nov. 21. (UP)—Roger W. Babson, nationally known statistician, whom leaders of the Democratic-Republican-Independent coalition in the senate attacked yesterday, issued a statement tonight in which he said "the senate went off half-cocked."

He reiterated his published statement, which drew fire from Senator Borah of Idaho, western Independent, that present "lack of confidence" throughout the country was in part chargeable to the senate.

Satisfied and Happy

"I have no bones to pick with the senate," Babson said. "The business men of the country want the senate to adjourn and they now have voted to adjourn. Therefore we all are satisfied and happy.

"Frankly, the senate went off half-cocked. These dignified gentlemen did not read through my whole statement but threw up their hands and dropped the paper when they came to the criticism of their inaction. I am glad to forgive them for what they said as they are all tired out and nervously wrought up. When they get home and have a good rest they'll feel differently.

"The real facts are that last summer the Babson organization saw clearly business was falling off. We earnestly called attention thereto but were merely ridiculed and called names. Then the decline began on Sept. 5 and still no one would heed our warning. We, however, then repeated that business was declining and unless something were done there would be a smash. This smash came on Oct. 24.

Steel Is Mirror

"Wall street then began to take notice. But still the West was adamant. Certain senators especially acted as if something was the trouble with business and that the stock market crash served Wall street right.

"Wall street is not perfect by any means and Wall street must share the responsibility with the senate and many other factors for the lack of confidence now prevailing. Wall street, however, cannot make stocks go up or down. Wall street is merely a barometer and a clearing house for the rest of the country. The crash was caused by the constituents of our honorable senators sending in selling orders from their home districts due to the fact that prices had become too high and business had become too poor."

Deputy Returns Man On U. S. Court Charge

Charlie Gant, deputy sheriff, arrived in Wichita Falls from Fort Worth at midnight Thursday with C. V. Curlee, indicted for child desertion by the federal grand jury and arrested in Fort Worth on a capias issued by Judge William H. Atwell in federal district court. Following the issuance of the capias, Sheriff W. G. Bralley wired Fort Worth authorities as to the whereabouts of Curlee and within a short while received an answering telegram notifying him that the man was being held there.

Small Crowd Hears Russian Choir In Beautiful Concert Program

Noted Musical Organization Attracts Few to Auditorium; Singers "Unexcelled," Says Critic

By W. L. UNDERWOOD
The Record News Staff

Many of the persons included in the audience of several hundred who heard the justly renowned Russian Symphonic choir in concert at the Memorial auditorium Thursday night probably went away with reawakened consciousness of having heard many times the complaint that Wichita Falls seldom gets any worthwhile traveling entertainment companies.

With the recollection of that oft-repeated criticism in their minds, the question inevitably arose as to where the hundreds who eloquently plead for high-grade attractions here spent Thursday evening while one of the foremost musical organizations in the world presented its program to three empty seats for each person present.

Press dispatches from a northern state recently carried the information that Wichita Falls had been classified by the national organization of hoboes as an "easy mark." It would take few manifestations of apparent indifference to unexcelled exhibitions of enjoyable musicianship on the part of those in Wichita Falls who profess a deep interest in such artistry to gain for this city a classification under which the annual program of cultural entertainment numbers would quickly wither.

Audience Pleased

Without exception, the comparatively small audience which heard the Russian singers Thursday night appeared to be completely won by the amazing finish and versatility of the 20 voices comprising Basile Kibalchich's choir. From the almost inaudible first notes of the conductor's composition, "Holy Week," to the rollicking finale of Gretchaninoff's "Gayety," with which the program closed, the applause which followed each number was stopped only by imminence of the next attack.

The organization definitely defined in its performance the significance of the term "symphonic" as applied to a vocal ensemble. Carrying five brilliant but rich soprano voices, three contralto, three first and two second tenors, three baritones and three basses, the choir has not only a theoretical distribution of tonal registers corresponding to that of a symphony orchestra, but possesses an uncanny ability to simulate the musical sound of orchestral sections. The singing of violins, with sparkling pizzicato effects; the mellow voice of woodwind instruments; the drone of bass viols and the 'cello were reproduced with unbelievable realism. Added to those tonal accomplishments were the tolling of bells, contributed by bass voices whose depth is equalled by singers of no other race, and in the closing programed number, the resounding effects, martial spirit and crashing climax of a Sousa march.

But the choral ensemble is not like those instruments. Produced through years of slow development under the genius of Kibalchich to appeal to the human ear and emotion, these voices reproduce the quality of orchestral instruments, but improve upon them through the injection of feeling and shading which are beyond the reach of instrumental interpretation.

Many Fine Numbers

Review of individual numbers is impossible, for in each the Russian choir revealed such a wealth of rare musicianship as to warrant prolonged consideration in an effort to retain its influence. Nothing was more brilliant than the "Lord, Have Mercy," by Lvovsky, used as an encore after the first group. From an exultant, full-voiced attack, the chant modulated downward chromatically through a constant diminuendo which reduced the ensemble to a whisper, and rose with astonishing breath and voice control through the same process to the original fortissimo.

Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in C Sharp Minor" best reflected the choir's capacity for production of instrumental effects. The subdued religioso of the opening group and the varied dramatic intensity of the classical selections were equalled in purity of tone and clarity of spirit in the folk music which comprised the third group. Featuring one of the sweetest and most flexible tenor voices ever heard in this city in the person of Mr. Manonoff, the closing numbers sparkled with playful moods and brilliant tonal pictures. The music, with its appealing intonation, pitch accuracy, and moving interpretation, was the accomplishment of human voices which did not depend upon any instrument. Their greatness was divided only with their director.

44 CONVICTED IN U. S. COURT

Sentence of Former Archer Postmaster Deferred

Calling of pleas to indictments in federal district court was completed early Thursday afternoon and Judge William H. Atwell adjourned the court at 4:30 o'clock after two civil suits had been dismissed.

A total of 44 convictions had been obtained by the time court adjourned Thursday, 28 of that number having been on indictments returned by the grand jury and the remainder on information given by arresting officers. Seven of the 35 indictments returned by the grand jury were being held over for the court session next April in the San Angelo division. About 11 sentences remained to be passed by Judge Atwell and it was thought he would consider them all at one time Friday.

Meyer Sentence Delayed

Among those whose sentences were deferred was John A. Meyer, former Archer City postmaster, who entered a plea of guilty on an indictment charging him with the embezzlement last August of $1,080 in government funds which came into his possession while serving in his official capacity. Mr. Meyer surrendered himself in court Thursday morning. He came here from Fort Worth immediately after having been advised Wednesday night that he had been indicted.

Settlement orders were furnished in two civil cases at the opening of court Thursday morning and the court proceeded with the criminal docket. Just before adjournment Thursday afternoon, one civil case was dismissed with prejudice and another dismissed for want of prosecution.

Those awaiting sentence and the charges on which they were convicted include Lena Phillips, narcotic charge, convicted by jury; Aubrey Smith, narcotic charge, pleaded guilty; J. T. Alsup, pleaded guilty to possession of whisky and still, found not guilty of manufacturing; Ed Koenig, convicted by jury of possession, manufacture and possession of apparatus; J. McCarter, using mails to defraud, pleaded guilty; Charles McCassalin and Lillie McCassalin, narcotic charge, pleaded guilty; Ben Gray, forging government check, pleaded guilty; Essie Whitener, 17, alteration of money orders, pleaded guilty; Genevieve Ellis, two counts of possession of liquor, convicted on one count.

Sentences Passed

Sentences passed Thursday included a $125 fine and forfeiture of his car in the case of Vernon Warlick, charged with possession and transportation of liquor and 20 days in the county jail and a fine of $15 for Mrs. Eva Gowdy on a charge of possession and sale of liquor.

With the clearance of the criminal docket, it was expected that the majority of the remaining court sessions would be devoted to civil cases, with the exception of the time given by Judge Atwell to passage of sentences. The trial of the suit to test the constitionality of the recently enacted state barber law is scheduled to come up for hearing before Judge Atwell on Saturday, Nov. 30.

Anglin Gives Talk At Retail Credit Meet

A talk on hot checks and the manner in which they were handled in the district attorney's office by Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney, was a feature of the regular weekly meeting of the Wichita Falls Retail Credit Grantors association in the Kemp hotel Thursday evening. Mr. Anglin also explained the new mortgage law and pointed out that the last legislature had made it prima facie evidence of sale or removal of mortgaged property even if the property were removed from the county. Another feature of the meeting was a talk on "Classification of Retail Accounts," by Frank L. Wiley Jr., of the American Refining properties. Mr. Anglin spoke as a representative of the Junior chamber of commerce. E. L. Buelow, president, had charge of the meeting, at which about 51 members were present.

If you are NOT yourself

Are you being denied the happiness that is due you in life?

IT is easy to abuse our golden life-given body, but Nature has a way of signaling danger. If heeded, graver troubles may be avoided. That tired, exhausted feeling, lack of appetite, aches and pains, flabby flesh, skin troubles—all speak of a body weakness—a lack of the normal count of red-blood-cells.

Every normal person's blood should contain about 5,000,000 red corpuscles to the cubic millimeter—those vitalizing, tiny red-cells which give blood its color and are carriers of nourishment to every part of the body. It is dangerous to let the red blood count remain below normal.

With an increase in the red-blood-cells, you will be on the right road to Health. This is Nature's way to body power and to clear skin. Naturally, with your strength restored, it is easier to fight disease and infection; to enjoy your food and to sleep soundly. When firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby, you will feel strong—your nerves will become steady—more happiness and friends will follow.

S.S.S. has been a blessing to millions of people. It helps Nature increase the red-blood cells. It promotes healthy body building. It is time-tested and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It is easily assimilated. Pleasant to take. It is on sale at all drug stores in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Moles Increasing

Question—Mrs. A. W. L. writes: "I have on my face and neck between 40 and 50 spots which I have been told are moles. They seem to be increasing in number lately. Some are light and some very dark brown. Will you kindly tell me the cause of them and if there is any way to get rid of them?"

Answer—Your increasing number of moles is evidence of some chemical unbalance in your body, usually a lowered alkalinity of the blood. A carefully balanced diet should be taken to help adjust the blood chemistry, then go to a beauty specialist who has the electrical equipment for removing moles.

Find the Cause

Question—Mary writes: "Please advise if an egg and milk drink every morning would be healthful for a child eight years old who is very thin and pale and underweight."

Answer—The child who is thin, pale and underweight is not in that condition because he does not drink eggs and milk mixtures. You can rest assured that there is some definite functional derangement which must be corrected. A good complete physical examination of the child should find the cause of his condition. This will do more good than for him to drink barrels of eggnog.

Disinfectants

Question—R. E. W. asks: "Do you recommend disinfectants? If so, which are the best, that is, concerning their predominant ingredient?"

Answer—There are many occasions where disinfectants are necessary, but cleanliness is still more essential. Your question requires too long an answer to be given in this column.

Business Success Found In 'Outside Influences'

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 21. (AP)—Fully 60 per cent of the influences that make the success or failure of any business are outside of that business, Saunders Norvell, president of the Remington Arms company and the Remington Cash Register company, New York City, told delegates to the first Ohio management conference in an address here last night.

"A merchant working in his own business, no matter how thoughtful he may be, or how good his judgment is, if he confines his thinking entirely to his own enterprise, will cover factors which are only 40 per cent of the total result."

Norvell stated that changes taking place in both industry and distribution were, to a great extent, entirely independent of the business of the individual dealers and merchants.

Kansas City Southern President to Retire

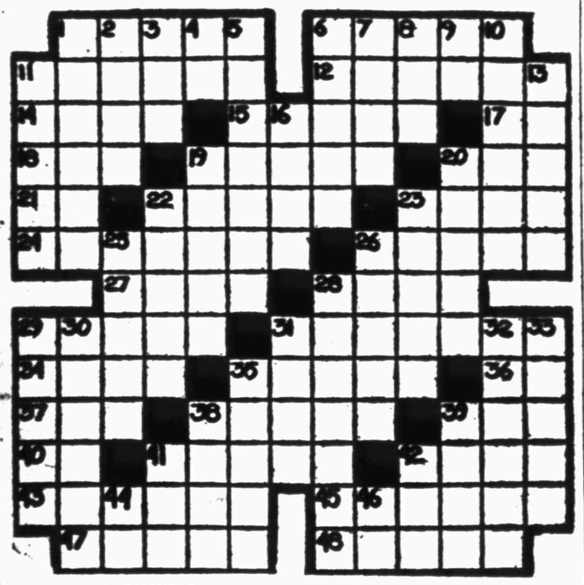

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 21. (AP)—James F. Holden, vice president of the Kansas City Southern railway, will retire Jan. 1, after a railroad career of 52 years, it was announced here today.

Holden, who is 67 years old, will devote his time to travel, personal affairs and recreation. He has lived here for 20 years, coming from Muskogee, Okla., where he was vice president and general manager of the Midland Valley railroad.

Speedy Haircut

LONDON.—London barbers are ready to throw away their scissors. A new electric hair cutter does the job in less than half the time it used to take. It is something along the line of the modern electric clippers, but does the entire job, instead of merely the trimming. As the hair is cut it is automatically thrown away, thereby elliminating the stray hairs from falling under the collar.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Maybe I shouldn't have been there, and certainly I oughtn't to have kept on looking. Not that the enthusiastic and well dressed pair in the Pennsylvania station knew it or minded, but I started a serious jam in the pedestrian traffic when I stood stock still, forgot to look about for my hosts, and offered sympathetic appreciation for the obvious sincerity of their greeting. It's all a matter of enough other people being as good as no other people at all for purposes of privacy. Just how many is enough I didn't have an opportunity for counting. Anyway, the clinch would have rated high on any screen, and its amateur standing only heightened the drama.

Stiff black curls bobbing over each ear beneath his skull cap and a saintly crop of black whiskers failed to conceal the disgust on the somewhat soiled countenance of a Greek priest at the sight of the young mother and the puling infant who shared his section on the train. I don't know what a puling infant is and one can't fly with an unabridged dictionary under the arm, but I'm sure the Greek priest called it a puling infant. The word was written plain in the tilt of the fastidious nostrils.

It was bitter warfare from the start, and the distaste of the youthful religiose triumphed, for mother and babe first sought refuge across the aisleway and later were hounded out of the coach altogether, while the victor remained sprawled in his quilted black robe, reading his Greek newspaper and crunching biscuits out of a paper sack—surely the original unleavened bread. It was not until the porter had obsequiously provided a writing table, searched hours for a lost fountain pen, and offered dusky homage through most of the day that the conductor discovered the dignitary without a Pullman ticket and informed him that he should have taken his crackers and his curls into the day coach at the crack of dawn.

Terrors of the city had always seemed to me the exaggerated figments of timid minds until I rashly attempted the escalators at Macy's. Gulping down my first tremors, I tripped and swayed, grasped desperately at the ascending bannister and kept a frightened and somewhat dizzy eye on the disappearing steps as we approached another level. It was only because I was stricken with new horror at the thought of having to ride them down again that I kept on going up in self-defense. The satanic contrivances had taken me four flights up before I could bring myself to start down. I tried hopping and skipping off and on in a panic stricken effort to keep the things from biting at my heels, and while my knees grew constantly weaker and I forgot altogether whatever foolish and unconsidered motive took me to the place in the first place. Weakened and in a generally low state I achieved the street, only to learn that an adequate supply o' the comforting old fashioned elevators were concealed along the walls of the building. A base and cowardly deception.

Just outside New York, but in the gentle hills of Connecticut, stands the Wayside tearoom, presided over by a Texas woman, a gracious small haven filled with the fragrance of a log fire and housed in a New England farm dwelling 170 years old. The stone court at the back is shaded by an apple orchard, much of its rosy fruit on the ground, and russet apples waiting for the pulling just overhead. Across the low rock fences that terrace the land and are so characteristic of the countryside, other orchards stretch, and in the back yard celery and dandelions bloom side by side. Tea is served to a privileged few beside the great fireplace while the hostess delights with her visitors in the ancient warming oven and the carefully cherished atmosphere of the old New England farm home.

Matinee audiences, seeing "Journey's End" in Henry Miller's theater, sob aloud during those poignant seconds in the third act when the curtain is momentarily lowered to mark the passage of time. There is more restraint at night, I am told, when there are more men in the audience, but the middle-aged gentlemen at my left were seriously afflicted with the sniffles and quite red-eyed when the subdued spectators arose to leave the theater.

A native New Yorker, probably the only one in captivity, wants to know if any rumor of events in the stock market has reached the wilds of Texas, or whether, indeed, the aborigines know there is a stock market. His disillusionment was almost as poignant there as in the spectacle of a wild westerner without a sombero, chaps, and at least two guns. From the reproachful look in his mild brown eyes, I gathered that he suspected me as a rank impositor.

On the other hand, there was the pale faced youngster in the Bronx who looked vague and uncertain when our host, wavering in his directions, asked the way to Riverside drive. "Riverside drive? I dunno. You're in New York now. That's a hundred and tolty-told street." . . . and imagine my embarrassment when a taxi driver, who shared my blind trust with all his fellows, turned to ask me the whereabouts of the address I had given him! It was my first intimation that taxi drivers don't know everything. He attempted, unsuccessfully, to increase his lowered prestige with a little study in current events, hopefully announcing the suicide of another banker in the financial district.

The spectacle of prosperous gentlemen airing diminutive dogs along the terraces in front of the opulent apartments of Riverside drive has become trite, but I hadn't expected the most effete of them all to be manipulating seven leashes with one hand and lifting a top hat with the other!

TURKEY PRICES MUCH LOWER

Thanksgiving Feasts to Cost Less

CHICAGO, Nov. 21. (UP)—Americans will sit down to a Thanksgiving dinner of the proverbial turkey and trimmings this year, but the feat will be more bounteous than last year and will not cost quite so much.

Roast turkey, done to a golden brown, with tart cranberry sauce to give it zest, and pumpkin pie and assorted nuts—mainstays of the holiday since the Pilgrim fathers initiated its observance—remain the choice of the vast majority of families, a survey of cities over the country revealed today.

Fowl of all kinds are more plentiful and lower in price than last year, dealers from the Atlantic seaboard to the Pacific coast revealed. Other good things for the Thanksgiving table, while varying in different parts of the country, will cost no more and in many instances less than a year ago.

Chicago prices, representative of those throughout the Middle West, were: Turkeys, 45 cents average; duck, 35 cents average; nuts 30 cents a pound and apples at 25 cents for three pounds.

The average Texas family can eat Thanksgiving dinner for something over $6 and have the best of everything, it was estimated. At Dallas quotations were: Turkeys, 33 and 35 cents; cranberries, 24 cents; potatoes, 5 and 6 cents a pound. Canned fruits were higher.

Oklahoma Constable Freed of Charges

M'ALESTER, Okla., Nov. 21. (UP)—Barney Tipps, Kiowa constable, who in October 1928, ran over and killed J. C. Peppers on a highway south of here while chasing a speeder, today was free of charges after running over and seriously injuring W. E. Patton near Kiowa late yesterday.

Tibbs was chasing a speeder yesterday when he struck Patton, a highway employe, who was unloading shale. No arrest was made in the accident. Tibbs was acquitted of first-degree manslaughter charges following the death of Peppers last year.

Watch Tongue For Signs of Illness

Your tongue is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system—and physicians say that 90 per cent of all sicknesses start with stomach and bowel trouble.

A white or yellowish coating on your tongue is a danger signal of those digestive disorders. It tells you why the least exertion tires you out; why you have pains in the bowels, gas, sour stomach, dizzy spells.

And it's a sign you need Tanlac. This good old reliable medicine has helped thousands who were physical wrecks. See how the first bottle helps you.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs—it is made of barks, herbs and roots—nature's own medicines for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

Oklahoma Woman May Testify In Tunney's Trial

PONCA CITY, Okla., Nov. 21. (INS)—It is expected that Mrs. Annie P. Rhodes, hotel woman of Ponca City, will make the trip back East as a witness in the case in which James J. (Gene) Tunney, retired heavyweight boxing champion, is being sued by John S. Fogarty for $500,000 on a charge that Tunney alienated Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty's affections causing her to divorce him (Fogarty) in 1925.

Mrs. Rhodes will be subpoenaed by the defense, it is understood.

In the last few weeks representatives of both sides in the alienation case have been in Ponca City attempting to secure evidence.

Both Mrs. Fogarty and the retired champion were said to have been visitors in Ponca City early in 1925.

Depositions in the case are being taken now in Little Rock, Ark., and Fort Worth, Texas.

The defendants, Tom Johnson and Miss Lillian Andrews of Cleveland and Charles Gwynn of Lansing, Ohio, were found guilty late yesterday after the jury deliberated only three minutes.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of good water.—Adv.

SINCLAIR IN LUXURY AGAIN

Oil Baron Leaves for New Jersey

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. (UP)—Harry F. Sinclair, oil operator and sportsman, returned to the life of luxury his millions can buy today after seven months' existence in the district jail here on plain prison fare and among simple accommodations.

His sentences for contempt of court and contempt of the senate growing out of the Teapot Dome oil investigations expired shortly after midnight and a few moments later, dressed in neat, expensive clothing, he was resting in luxurious quarters at the Mayflower hotel.

Accompanied by his brother, H. W. Sinclair, and his attorney, G. T. Stanford, the wealthy ex-prisoner left later in the day in a huge limousine for the Rancocas stables in New Jersey. Reports that he planned to stop at the Bowie racetrack where one of his horses was due to run, could not be verified.

COUNT KILLED

LONDON, Nov. 21. (INS)—One passenger was killed and seven others injured when an Italian airplane en route from Ostia to Cagliara capsized off Port Terranova, Sardina, according to a Central News dispatch from Rome today. The dead passenger was Count Henri Piercy. The plane carried eight passengers and a crew of four.

Nationalist Troops Prepare to Advance

HANKOW, Nov. 21. (AP)—The nationalist government today announced its forces had occupied Loyang, Honan province, and President Chiang Kai-Shek had ordered a concentration of troops at Tsao-Yang, Hupeh province, in preparation for an advance westward against the rebellious "peoples' party" forces.

The Kuominchun were reported to have made "sharp advances" from Siangyang and Panchang, 30 miles from Tsaoyang, and to stop the advance toward Hankow Chiang was believed to have ordered many of his troops from Honan provinces.

Indigestion

Immediate Relief!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any druggists.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.—Adv.

Imagine your Motor

Constantly immersed in Oil

That, in effect, is what happens when you fill your crank case with Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil—none of its hundreds of moving parts are ever without lubrication.

CONOCO

35¢ Per Quart—for All Grades Except Special Heavy and Extra Heavy

A MOTOR OIL, to do a 100% job, must lubricate all the time. That means that it should provide a lubricating film at every stage of motor operation including starting when the engine's cold. In other words, the motor should have a perpetual oil bath.

And that's exactly what happens when you use Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil for the very good reason that this super-lubricant because of the patented germ process by which it is produced, actually combines with the bearing surfaces to form a film which adheres indefinitely. It never leaves the bearings—and that means constant lubrication.

Think of the saving this means to the motoring public! Automotive engineers estimate that from 40% to 60% of the destructive wear and tear on a motor is caused in the starting operation because, with ordinary oil in the crankcase, the starting parts have no lubricating film when the engine is cold—and the oil is not distributed until 5 or 10 minutes after starting. Imagine the abuse to the engine during these periods of running with absolutely no lubrication! No wonder Conoco Germ Processed Oil is hailed as the revolutionizing motor lubricant. Its "carry-over" film has solved the greatest lubrication problem of the day. It assures longer life and smoother operation in any motor where it is used.

And never forget that to produce Conoco Germ Processed Oil the exclusive germ essence principle is applied to only carefully selected paraffin base crudes, resulting in a lubricant with greater film strength, greater adhesiveness, greater tenacity, greater stamina and lower friction than any other oil on the American market.

Draw up to the Conoco Red Triangle and give your motor a perpetual oil bath. Ask for Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil.

Where Tradition Counts

Yale and Princeton have had their annual war, but tomorrow two of the big traditional games of football still remain—Harvard and Yale, at Cambridge; Stanford and California, at Palo Alto.

These two games have gone deep into sentiment and they have been rich in tradition. They carry memories that drift back through many decades. They have nearly always been full of color and heart interest. Tomorrow, in addition to all this, they will bring about the double meeting of four strong teams. There is greater interest in each contest this season than their average meeting can show, with something to spare. California and Stanford are two of the strongest teams that football calls into action for 1929. Harvard and Yale are well above last season's strength, so far as possibilities go. The Blue and the Crimson have played high class football and each has been able to put on attack worth looking at—an attack hooked to speed and power—plus an improvement in the passing game.

Outstanding Stars

Yale has had in Albie Booth one of the sensational backs of the year—of many years. It has been a long time since a back, weighing well under 150 pounds, was able to star upon a bigtime organization, facing a hard schedule.

Harvard has in Barry Wood one of the star passers of the game. When Fielding Yost rates him up in the neighborhood one, ruled by Benny Friedman, the caliber of his marksmanship can be understood. Wood can't run and kick with Booth and Booth can't pass with Wood. There was a time when the East was supposed to be well back of the West in forwarding passing. This season the East has two of the greatest passers football has known in Cagle and Wood. If the West has had passers to match this pair they have been kept under cover since the season started.

Harvard has a better all-around backfield than Yale has—a stronger collection of reserves. Not many teams can bank upon such a flock as Harper, Mays, Putnam, Wood, Hughely, Potter, Deven and Gilligan.

There is no great difference so far as the two lines are concerned—but if there is any edge it belongs to the Blue. Yale has the better ends, headed by Barres, one of the stars of the country.

There are football stars on both teams—big, fast men who have the stuff, and this will make the contest of the most interesting yet played between two of football's oldest rivals.

California and Stanford

This game has the Pacific coast in a turmoil. The annual rivalry of California and Stanford goes back 40 years. Their next meeting will have a decisive bearing on the Pacific coast championship. California has shown more stuff than western critics allotted Price's team at the start, and there is a general belief that Stanford has not yet played up to its peak form.

California goes into battle with four leading stars—Benny Lom, backfield; Schwartz, guard; Reigels, center, and Norton, end.

California also has a fast, able quarter in Eisan, a marvelous punt catcher and a hard man to bring down.

Lom is one of the best backs football has turned into action this fall. He is a fine ball carrier, a high class kicker, an able passer and a strong defensive man. He can do about everything that a good back ought to do, and do it all extremely well.

It was Lom's all-around play that helped California to upset Pennsylvania and Southern California. He will be hard to suppress at Palo Alto.

This far western game should be a classic. In the way of a tremendous crowd, highly fevered interest and high class play, it will be a game second to no other played.

The Next Notre Dame Test

Notre Dame steps out once more against a team capable of giving anybody an even battle. Northwestern was badly crippled in the loss of Bruda, a star back, but Hanley has brought others along and he now has an outfit that will press even the South Bend Cyclone to the limit to win.

Few teams have ever followed up a hard early season schedule with three such finishing games as Southern California, Northwestern and the Army. And Northwestern is by no manner of means the easiest of the lot. Northwestern beat Illinois and did more damage to Ohio State than Pittsburgh did, according to Ohio State reports.

Notre Dame will have to stave off a hard running attack and the Irish will have no easy time in breaking through Northwestern's strong defense. It will take an exceptionally strong team to outplay the lineup Hanley will send to the field. Notre Dame has an exceptionally strong lineup, but N. D. has already played a schedule hard enough to leave most teams along the edge of staleness.

There will be other important games on Saturday—but these are the three contests that carry greater national interest. And this interest extends in an unbroken line from one ocean to another, which is about all the football territory the U. S. A. can offer at this particular moment. And those who think they can pick all three winners are optimists with deep faith in their guessing art.

OFFICIALS TO ANNOUNCE SOON

Notre Dame Emissary on Ground

PASADENA, Calif., Nov. 21. (INS)—Notre Dame and California today again forged to the front in the maze of rumors concerning the selection of opposing teams for the annual tournament of roses New Year football classic in the Rose bowl here. Official announcement from authorities of both colleges may be forthcoming within the next 48 hours, it was said. A representative of Notre Dame was believed to be here, effecting preliminary arrangements.

Emphatic denial was made, however, by H. W. Hall, secretary of the tournament of roses, that invitations had been issued, he admitted the work of printing tickets was under way but said the names of the competing teams and prices have been left blank.

BERKELEY, Calif., Nov. 21. (INS)—"It's all boloney," remarked Hibs Price today when informed of reports that tickets were being printed for a California-Notre Dame game at the Pasadena Rose bowl on New Year's day.

"Nothing will be decided about California playing at Pasadena until after the Stanford game. The way it looks now we may not play anywhere. And then we have to get official permission and the players have to decide if they want to play."

Seymour Roadsters Engage Vernon Hi Second Team, 0-0

The Vernon high school second string football team invaded Wichita Falls to engage the Seymour Roadsters at the Junior college practice field Thursday afternoon and battled for a solid hour with the local eleven with neither side scoring. The game was played on a slippery field and was choked full of fumbles and aborted passes.

Jack Allen was the individual entry for the Roadster outfit and played stellar ball throughout the contest. Time and again he broke for five and 10 yards around the ends before being hauled down by the enemy tacklers. Daniels at center also played a good game for the local youngsters. Cope's work was good and he aided materially in stopping the Vernonites. Cox was the best player on the team of the visitors and several times got on the receiving end of lengthy passes. However, he was never able to convert his gains into touchdowns.

McMurry Grid Team Plays Scoreless Tie With Sul Ross

ABILENE, Texas, Nov. 21. (AP)—McMurry college played its third scoreless tie of the season on its home field here today, fighting the Sul Ross college eleven from Alpine to a standstill. The game was played in a slow cold rain.

McMurry drove to the two-yard line in the first period and to the three-yard line in the fourth to be held for downs each time. The timer's gun ended Sul Ross' greatest scoring drive, an advance to the 15-yard line in the second period.

Wicker and Acker of Sul Ross and Tharp for McMurry were the outstanding ground gainers.

WET GROUNDS HINDER BEARS

Team Has Put in Severe Training Week

WACO, Texas, Nov. 21. (AP)—A cold drizzle, enough to keep the ground wet, hindered the Baylor Bears' practice session today, but Jennings was busy inside the building with some new "don't and does."

The spirit of the Bruins since the defeat Saturday at the hands of S. M. U. has been remarkable, Jennings said today. They have practiced with zest, pep and spirit, but they will not be in top physical shape for Saturday's fray.

Raymond Alford, Beaumont, who was to have been the starting quarter Saturday, suffered an injured shoulder. Jake Wilson will likely start at quarter. Maurice Pierce is almost certain to be a starting halfback. Albert Lewter and Captain Weldon Lucas will start at the wing positions but will give way to Runnels and Barrett who will alternate with them. Joe Potter will be unable to play because of an injury. Koch's injured leg is in much better shape than a week ago, but not in top shape yet, so he may be unable to play.

T. C. U. is expected to arrive here Friday afternoon for a light workout on the Cotton Palace gridiron.

Mandell K. O. Joe Azzerilla Quick

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 21. (AP)—Sammy Mandell of Rockford, Ill., lightweight champion of the world, knocked out Joe Azzerilla, of Milwaukee, in the second round of their eight-round non-title bout here tonight.

Approximately 13 per cent of the 697 candidates for entrance to the naval academy during the past year were rejected for failure to meet physical requirements and many of the applicants until that time were unaware of their condition.

Giant Italian, 280 Pounds, Boxer Coming to America for Opponent

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE
Universal Service

LONDON, Nov. 21.—"The Leaning Tower of Pisa," an American spectator behind me tagged Primo Carnera, the Italian mastodon first-mauler, at his first English appearance in Royal Albert Hall.

"When he leans on you, it's like Pisa tower had fallen," the American fan explained to his companion, and I jotted his remarks down on my copy paper. Perhaps if this Behemoth of the squared circle ever gets around to the United States, that tag will stick to him.

Right at present this Leaning Tower of Pisa who disposed of two heavyweights at his first London appearance—one a bit over 100 seconds and the second in less than two minutes—is the sensation of London. Crowds dog his number thirteens whenever he appears on the streets. What he thinks—if any—are all faithfully reported in the newspapers.

Will He Be Champ?

And the slick dopesters of the squared circle—the boys who figure on champions and near-champions—are all in a summer rash as to whether or not 280 pounds of Italian beef and bone passing under the name of Primo Carnera are destined to compose the heavyweight champ of the world.

Carnera is a giant who just escaped going into a museum because he possesses more brain than a museum freak: a hog-engine of a man who's been in the box game for only a year and so far hasn't been able to show what he can do because no opponent has yet been found to stand up to him longer than three rounds.

That he can give punishment without even extending himself was sufficiently demonstrated at Albert hall the other night when he floored Jack Stanley, British heavyweight, four times in the first couple seconds of their first round—the last time the referee stopped the massacre. But can Primo take it?

Fighting Freak

This Primo is a fighting freak, besides whom the Wild Bull of the Pampas and the Woodchopper of the Pyrenees appear as toy men out of a Noah's Ark. He stands 6 feet 10 inches. He weighs, in training, 280 pounds. He has a chest like a bank safe and arms like the cables of Brooklyn bridge.

Yet he's as quick on his feet as a bantam weight; at least he was during the brief scalp-taking at Albert hall the other night. There he showed, first with the unfortunate Stanley, then with his sparring partner Pat Tarling, a lightness of foot and shiftiness characteristic of Jack Johnson at his best. He showed, too, much more than an amateur's skill in timing his blows and shifting his offense.

But both contests were so brief they afforded no possible data upon which to decide how much of a boxer Primo is; whether or not a real boxer of far less weight could get under his guard and do something to him.

One added observation: When this Pisa Tower goes into action he has a face that would scare a New York city garbage scow. Not even the dimly remembered Jim Jeffries at his scowliest could approach the aspect of impending disaster Primo spreads over his countenance.

Child Like Fellow

But out of the ring, a child-like citizen.

"Maybe some day I'll lose to my brother," said Primo to me through his fly-weight French manager acting as interpreter, "I have a brother only 16 who is nearly as big as I and who is studying boxing. Maybe in a year he will challenge me; then—I shall have a worry."

This burglar-proof safe on legs bemoaned his lack of opportunities for a real try-out.

"I do not know how hard I can hit because I do not dare try for fear there will be an accident. The fights I have had have been all with nice fellows whom it was not necessary to hit too hard in order to win.

"I shall go to the United States soon and try to find some of your big tough men for sparring partners. I need much instruction in boxing, but I also need somebody who can stand up to me. That is difficult."

WICHITANS ARE GOOD HUNTERS

Five Black-Tail Deer Are Bagged

Bearing five black-tail deer, including 10-point, 8-point, and 4-point bucks, a quintet of Wichita Falls hunters returned Thursday morning from a two-weeks' hunting trip in the Blacktail mountains of New Mexico.

The returning party consisted of Chalmers Taylor, J. F. Nunn, Charley Kaufman, Phil Menke, and O. D. Taylor. They left this city on Nov. 8, and were present at the east entrance of the game preserve when the season opened on the morning of Nov. 10.

Deer Plentiful in N. M.

Three of the animals secured by the local hunters were killed by 10 o'clock on the morning of opening day, it was stated. More than 1,000 hunters were scattered over an area having a radius of about 30 miles, according to the information given. More than 600 deer had been brought through Magdalena, a small town in New Mexico just east of the hunting district, during the first week following the opening.

A hospital in Washington, D. C., to treat all cancer patients free of charge has been proposed by H. E. Robertson, of the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn.

COACH SIGNS PAPER FORFEITING CLASS B GRIDIRON TITLE

SCHOOL HEAD ACKNOWLEDGES

Spur Player Ineligible for Play

Special to The Record News

LUBBOCK, Texas, Nov. 21.—A forfeit paper signed by Superintendent Chuck and Coach Gene Taylor of Spur acknowledging the ineligibility of one of the Spur players who participated in the Post-Spur high school football game, puts the Post team back in the race for class B honors in district No. 2, a news dispatch from Spur to the Lubbock Daily Journal today states.

Executive Committee Acts

At a meeting here Saturday the executive committee voted to have Lamesa play the winner of the Lockney-Ralls game on Thanksgiving day for the championship, these three teams being the only undefeated teams in the running. A scheduled game, between Lamesa and Post on Thanksgiving was called off by the committee due to the loss of the Spur game by Post.

With the game eliminated it now appears Lamesa will have to go ahead and play Post Thanksgiving and the winner of this game play the winner of the Lockney-Ralls contest which will be played Friday, Nov. 22.

Post plays a scheduled game with Slaton, Friday, Nov. 22, which may put the 1928 champions on the bench again. Neither of the Ralls or Lockney teams are doped as strong as Post or Lamesa, and of the two, Post seems to hold the edge. Slaton, doped early in the season as a good running mate for Post in the championship race, was eliminated by Lamesa Nov. 11 in a game called an upset by fans who expected Slaton to romp away to victory again as they have for the past several years.

San Antonio Man Gets An 80 in Golf Tournament

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Nov. 21. (AP)—Lewis Levinson of San Antonio led the field in the first annual invitation tournament of the Corpus Christi Golf and Country Club tournament turning in an 80 in a driving rain and bitter north wind. Clyde Cunningham of Houston was second with an 81 and Dick Turner of McAllen third with an 82.

Levinson, because of the weather conditions, led the qualifiers with a score that was 10 above par. His card:

Illinois Judge Holds Liquor Buyers Guilty

Stanford Blocks Golden Bears' Path to Coast Championship

Capt. Mush Muller and his Stanford Cardinals are pointing for the game that will decide much in the Pacific Coast conference title race—the meeting with California at Palo Alto Nov. 23. Bennie Lom and Rusty Gill will probably carry the Golden Bears' attack, while Bert Schwarz, California's great guard, will stop some of the rushes of Rothert and Smalling.

Texas-Aggie Feud Covers Long Years

Hostilities Opened Back in the Gay 90's

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Nov. 21.—Though the Longhorns still hold a considerable all-time edge on them, the Texas Aggies since 1909 have been gradually cutting down the wide margin of victories established in the early years of this colorful football feud, a review of the 35 games in which Longhorn and Texas Aggie teams have met since the opening of hostilities in 1894 shows. The Longhorns are shown with 22 games to their credit while the Aggies have won 10. The other three games were marked by tied scores. The 36th conflict Thanksgiving day on the gridiron of the new concrete stadium at Kyle field, promises to add an interesting a bit of football history as is to be found in that long and colorful record.

Fourteen of the Longhorns' 22 victories came in the first 17 games, after which the Aggies entered upon their longest string of consecutive wins over the Longhorns, with one victory in 1909 and two in 1910, when the teams met twice. Prior to that the Aggies had won only once from their hereditary rivals, that victory being in the second game played in 1902. The only other occasions that marred a perfect record for the Longhorns in the first 17 games were two scoreless ties, one in the first game in 1902 and one in the first game in 1907. The first of these came after a string of seven Longhorn victories and the second followed four straight wins for Texas.

Opposition Stiffens

Since 1909, however, the records show that the Longhorns have not found the going so easy. In 18 games, beginning in 1909, the Aggies have won nine and lost eight, the other being the only tie in the past 20 years. This year the Longhorns have an opportunity to even up the score for recent years while the Aggies with a victory could again obtain the two-game margin of recent history held on their arch gridiron enemies until the defeat last season. Under Coach Clyde Littlefield the Longhorns have an even break with the Aggies, a win and a loss in two games, the championship A. & M. team having taken the measure of the Littlefield crew, 28-7, in 1927, while last year the championship Texas team downed the Aggies, 19-0, at Austin. This year the Longhorns will meet the Aggies under Matty Bell for the first time though the new Aggie mentor might well have a grudge against the Steers, for during his entire regime at T. C. U. the Horned Frogs labored under a Longhorn "jinx."

Few Tie Games

It is interesting to note that only three games between the two teams have resulted in ties, each of which was scoreless. The Longhorns hold the record for the largest score in any of the games, 48-0 in 1896, but until their 19-0 victory in Austin last year, the Steers in recent years had not been able to score more than a two-touchdown victory. The Aggies in 1925 won, 28-0, and in 1927, 28-7, to hang up their most decisive scores.

STAMFORD WILL ENGAGE ANSON

Game Will Decide Title District 9, B

Special to The Record News

STAMFORD, Texas, Nov. 21.—Several hundred Stamford citizens will accompany the Bulldogs, the school football team, to Anson tomorrow afternoon for the championship game of the eastern section of district 9, class B, to be played there between the locals and the team from Merkel. The winner of this contest will play Roscoe, champion of the western section of the district, on Thanksgiving day, for the district crown. Roscoe defeated the Bulldogs early in the season, but since then the two teams have gone into a tie for first place and the play-off game has been made necessary. Should the score at the end of the Friday game between Stamford and Merkel be tied, the winner will be decided on the number of 20-yard penetrations made. If they should tie on that item, the team making the greatest number of first downs will be declared the winner and in the event of a tie on that the game will be awarded to the club showing the largest yardage gained from scrimmage.

Thanksgiving Service Planned at Electra

Special to The Record News

ELECTRA, Texas, Nov. 21—Rev. L. D. Grafton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church and president of the Electra Pastors association, has announced that there will be a special Thanksgiving union service at the First Methodist church on Thursday, Nov. 28. Rev. C. C. Klingman, pastor of the First Christian church, will deliver the sermon.

Max Schmeling Is Peeved With N. Y. Boxing Commission

BERLIN, Nov. 21. (US)—"Any man who says I'm afraid of Phil Scott is crazy. There isn't a boxer in the world I'm afraid to face. But I don't like to be told that I've got to fight Scott.

"It's all very well for the New York boxing commission to lift its ban on me, but it shouldn't restrict my rights in compelling me to face Scott. The matter isn't all as simple as that."

Max Schmeling, slightly peeved, thus delivers himself in particular and then in general about his status in the American boxing mill. His peevishness was increased by the report that Jacobs, his manager, was about to sign a contract for him.

"I have ordered Jacobs to sign no contract for me," he stated. "If there is any signing to be done I'll do it. I'm no kid and I don't need anyone to use a pen for me. It has already cost me enough to learn that I'd better do all the signing myself.

"I have fought hard in America to make a name for myself. I don't know why they want to hold me to the contract Buelow and Fugazy made regarding a fight with Scott. As soon as $100,000 is forthcoming, I will fight Scott. I know how to handle him."

Texas Coach Striving To Get Men to Forget Defeat

AUSTIN, Nov. 21. (AP)—Although the Longhorns rest Saturday in preparation for the Thanksgiving day battle with the Aggies, they are not loafing this week.

One of the most dismal days of the fall failed to quench their determination today as they broke up the Aggie plays as imitated by the freshman red squad.

Coach Clyde Littlefield is striving to have his men forget about the defeat Saturday, the first in more than a year and to remember only that the Aggies always battle on Thanksgiving day and especially on Kyle field.

PONIES FORCED WORK INDOORS

Team Is About Primed For Owls

DALLAS, Nov. 21. (AP)—The year's first flurry of snow, accompanied by a biting wind, forced the Southern Methodist university squad indoors for most of today's practice. After a couple of turns about the field Coach Ray Morrison herded his Ponies into the gymnasium for a lengthy lecture and chalk talk.

Little was lost, as the Mustangs already are primed for their closing home battle with the Rice Owls Saturday. Most of the current week has been devoted to perfecting several new plays to spring against Texas Christian in the titular game on Nov. 30. Little but straight football will be used against the Owls unless they show unexpected strength.

Scouts reported to Coach Morrison that he had one man to prepare a defense for this week. He is Ralph Jones, shifty Owl halfback. The Mustang mentor believes his powerful line will take care of the Rice ace.

Providing the Pony first string can run up a safe margin early in the game, as it figures to do, Morrison will turn his fine lot of reserves loose for the remainder of the contest. Several players, such as Winters, Johnson, Woodward, Tarrence and Giles, barely are under conference caliber.

Camel has the quality that smokers depend upon

It is all right to experiment but a pity to spend too much time experimenting when you might be enjoying the fragrant pleasure of smoking Camels.

It has been the experience of many smokers, after trying other brands, that Camels give constant and unfailing pleasure. Their mildness, due to choice tobaccos and expert blending, makes it possible to smoke them liberally without any tiring of the taste. This quality, which smokers have learned to depend upon, will be maintained, because Camels are made for those who know and appreciate the real pleasure of smoking.

GOOD TO BE BURIED TODAY

Body Arrives at Former Iowa Home

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, Nov. 21. (AP)—Former neighbors, friends and business associates of the late James W. Good, secretary of war in President Hoover's cabinet, today gathered at the railroad station to pay final honors to the man who began a life of public service as a young attorney here.

Tomorrow morning they will attend a simple funeral in the First Presbyterian church where he worshipped with his family when in Cedar Rapids. Then he will be buried with military rites in a cemetery a few miles from his birthplace on an Iowa farm.

The special train carrying Mr. Good's body, his widow and two sons and a congressional and military delegation, reached Cedar Rapids at 2:47 p. m.

One Great Funeral For Bodies of 212 Soldiers

SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 21. (INS)—The largest funeral procession in the history of this ancient city will be witnessed soon when the remains of 212 soldiers will be removed from Fort Apache for reburial in the national cemetery here.

The bodies are those of veterans of the Civil, Spanish-American, and Mexican wars and Indian fights.

On order from the quartermaster department in St. Louis, Superintendent G. W. Rose, of the national cemetery, has requested bids from New Mexico undertakers to include receiving the bodies at the railroad station, digging the 212 graves, reburying the caskets and erecting monuments.

Railroad Monument Is Planned for Montana

CHICAGO, Nov. 21. (INS)—A towering shaft dedicated to the men and women of the Milwaukee railroad who gave service to their country during the Spanish, Civil and World war is to be erected next year on the continental divide in Montana, it was announced here.

Railroad employes and their wives are sponsoring the project and fill finance it. Search for a suitable location is now being made. It will be built upon a rocky crest, open to the sun, with the sky as the background. Floodlights will illumine the monument at night. On top will be installed a high power beacon.

Psychologists Suggest Help for Flaming Youth

CHICAGO, Nov. 21. (INS)—The spiritual sickness of flaming youth was proffered in the following remedy by various sociologists and psychologists who spoke here this week:

Guide youth, don't goad it.

Slip it religion surreptitiously.

Give it responsibility to lessen its indifference.

Do away with the shams, superstitions and the old hocus pocus and give it stark reality.

Give it beauty, intellectual respectability and vital religious contacts with genuine personalities.

15-Day Shutdown for Oklahoma City Field

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 21. (UP)—A 15-day shutdown for wells in the South Oklahoma City field during December was agreed upon by Oklahoma operators here today. The proration would cut production 50 per cent, operators said.

It was recommended the present curb be maintained during January as it was estimated the field would be making 20,000 barrels a day by the new year.

GINS ACTIVE DESPITE RAIN

Good Season Assured for Big Feed Crop

Ginning of cotton was retarded in the county Thursday, but not stopped, by the combination of rain and snow which fell throughout the day. Reports were received from all points except Kemp City, and reflected the ginning of 123 bales during the day, bringing the season's total to 18,325.

Additional moisture represented by Thursday's precipitation, which amounted here to more than one inch, was not needed, but will increase the assurance of reserve moisture for growth of winter crops during the coming months, leaders in agricultural activity said.

Sale of seed and preparation of land indicates that more feed will be planted in Wichita county in 1930 than in any previous year, due primarily to the unprecedented increase in the number of dairy herds maintained in this area. Growth of dairying activity is being accompanied by the intention to grow sufficient small crops to afford feed for all milk cows, and it was predicted that the coming few years will see a marked diminution of wheat and cotton acreage in favor of row crops and milk production.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 21. (AP)—Cotton lost part of its recent advances during today's trading under realizing and liquidation which appeared to be combined with a little more southern selling. January contracts sold off to 17.58 to 20 points net lower and closed at 17.62 with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 7 to 17 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 1 to 11 points in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables. Comparatively light ginnings reported prior to Nov. 14, came in for some bullish comment, but evidently failed to create much fresh buying power. December sold off to 17.42 and May to 18.11 or 17 to 21 points on the general list.

At these prices there was a little more trade buying and covering promoted by talk of a steadier tone in the stock market, and prices recovered all but a few points of their losses during the early afternoon.

Reports from the Washington conference between the administration and business leaders, appeared to encourage optimistic views of the general business outlook, which doubtless contributed to the rally. December liquidation continued and the market eased in the late trading under renewed realizing which was accompanied by reports of rather freer selling by the south.

July was relatively weak in the late trading and showed the maximum loss at the close when it was only 77 points over the price of December compared with a premium of 84 points at the close of the previous day.

Next Monday will be the first notice day for December contracts in the market here and today's business was again largely connected with the evening up of this position.

The ginnings of 11,898,308 bales reported prior to Nov. 14 were about in line with expectations as comparatively light figures had been expected in view of unfavorable weather conditions during the period.

Liverpool cables said selling there had been absorbed by buying on the reduction in the English bank rate.

Exports today 27,526, making 3,006,157 so far this season. Port receipts, 48,706. U. S. port stocks, 2,473,975.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21. (AP)—Cotton fluctuated widely today under divergent influences made up of a bullish first impression of the official ginnings report which later turned bearish, December liquidation and firmness of stocks. January contracts declined from 17.73 to 17.52 but rallied and closed at 17.63, or 5 points net lower. The general market closed steady at net declines of 7 to 9 points.

Liverpool cables were easier but the local market ignored that influence and opened steady at an advance of 2 to 3 points. The initial gain was due to an early bullish view of the census bureau's ginning of 11,898,308 bales. Recent buyers sold when it became apparent that the official figures just about met expectations. These offerings were augmented later by considerable December liquidation by ring traders who held on in expectations of a smaller ginnings total. Under pressure of the selling December dropped to 17.40 and March 17.80, or 17 to 19 points under the previous close.

Offerings appeared absorbed at the decline and the market firmed in response to the firm closing of stocks and the efforts of President Hoover to restore trade confidence. The subsequent rally carried prices nearly to the highs but in final trading the market encountered realizing and last prices showed a small net loss for the day. December closed at 17.49 and March 17.90, or 8 points net down.

Receipts 48,379; for week 218,777; for year 5,285,932; last year 5,348,027. Exports 30,509; for week 243,378; for year 2,997,251; last year 3,162,833. Stocks 2,490,574; last year 2,232,004. Optimism Over Hoover's Parleys Farther Sustains Stock Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 21. (US)—Flood of optimism from the president's conference of industrial leaders sustained the recovery in a more active, three-hour stock market today. The wires from Washington burned with the cheering statements from business leaders so that what profit taking there was encountered was absorbed without difficulty. Steel added 1¾ to its gain while Can climbed 7, General Electric 13, Bethlehem 2½, New York Central 2⅜ and Westinghouse 7. Utilities featured as a group with American Telephone gaining 3½, Consolidated Gas 3⅜, American & Foreign Power 6½, Public Service 6½ and Standard Gas 10½. Standard of New Jersey climbed 2½ while other oils and the copper shares held firm. Call money was in good supply with the rate dropping from renewal of 5 per cent to 4½ per cent. Some loans were made on the outside at 4 per cent. Turnover totalled 3,138,600 shares.

None could be ought but optimistic while industrial leaders talked so cheerful and courageous down at Washington. TWO AIRLINES PLAN MERGER

Safeway and Detroit Co. Discuss Step

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 21. (AP)—Initial steps toward the merger of two air transportation companies for passenger and mail service in the Southwest and Mexico have been taken at a conference between officials of the Southwest Air Safe Express company, the Southern Skylines and the Detroit Aircraft company, it was learned here today.

Erle P. Halliburton, president of S. A. F. E. company, informed the Tulsa Tribune the proposed consolidation had been discussed with W. G. McAdoo of Los Angeles, chairman of the board of southern skylines and Edward S. Evans of the Detroit Aircraft company.

The Safeway airlines operates two routes—one from St. Louis to Dallas, serving Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas points, and the other from Kansas City to Sweetwater, Texas, connecting with rail and air lines to the Pacific coast.

Southern skylines, organized in April, has not begun actual operations.

POLICE MAKE ALL-AMERICAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 21. (US)—News from Princeton indicates that the police are going to college and getting all the worst of it.

They took part in the annual cane spree between the frosh and the sophs. Smacking a fellow student over the skull with a cane is education by infiltration.

When the freshmen meet the sophomores in a cane spree it's the biggest merger of the year.

The object of these ethical stampedes is to pull the ears off the freshmen and use them for loving cups.

The freshmen retaliate by kicking the sophomroes in the trousers until their bell-bottomed pants ring out the old year.

A Princeton policeman strolled into one of these punctuated panics and the students sold him short.

They then took his coat, badge and handcuffs, overturned a parked car and broke the windows in Borough hall.

The law should know better than to step in when students are whil-

Denton Mayor Says Power Trust Runs Them

SHEFFIELD, Ala., Nov. 21. (AP)—B. W. McKenzie, mayor of Denton, Texas, and president of the municipal utilities league of Texas asserted in an address prepared for delivery this afternoon before the public ownership league of America that "a majority of the newspapers in Texas are controlled by the power interests although most of the newspapers had refused to be influenced."

"The chain newspapers especially are dominated by the power trust," Mayor McKenzie said, "and to such an extent that they refuse to carry publicity concerning municipally operated plants and take strong editorial stands against such undertakings. They also go so far as to distort the real facts and print untrue statements in an effort to influence the public."

Mayor McKenzie's remarks were in the course of an address on "Municipal vs. Private Ownership of Utilities Plants in Texas."

ing away the happy hours of childhood.

At the conclusion of the Fordham-Holy Cross game in Boston the Fordham youngsters started for the hostile goal posts with the idea that the posts would grow more luxuriantly in another climate.

They were charged by mounted police. We congratulate the Fordham boys. You're pretty good if you can make a squad of mounted police walk back from a ride.

They're much smarter in New Haven. A Connecticut gendarme refused to scatter a Yale snake dance on the ground that he was no snake charmer.

We have watched polyclinic and theological students engaging in educational thuggery on the college campuses. We have gazed on law, medical and business midgets demonstrating sciences and the fine arts with the aid of brickbats and barrel staves.

They call it the annual cane rush and only a coward wears a trench helmet when he is about to be tapped for the skull and keys.

It's a pillow fight with embroidered and garnished cobblestones. And the village constabulary should never butt in until the last student falls unconscious from overstudy.

Progress has reached that stage where education can be tabulated by the different sized lumps on collegiate heads.

The biggest football game of the year is the one between the local police and the post-pullers of dear old Rutgers.

Junior C.-C. to Hear Talk On Home Industry

Five days' efforts on the part of members of the Junior chamber of commerce to instill more general and constant loyalty to local commercial institutions in the minds of Wichita Falls' citizens will be brought to a climax Friday noon when Dr. W. F. Hauhart, director of the school of commerce of Southern Methodist university, will address the weekly meeting of the organization at the Kemp hotel on the subject "Encouragement of Home Industry and Home Markets."

Not only members of the Junior chamber of commerce, but business men and women generally, are being invited by the sponsoring organization to make reservations for the Friday luncheon in order to hear Doctor Hauhart's discussion of industrial community building. The speaker is an economist of national reputation. He is being supplied for the climatic meeting of "It's Right in Wichita Falls" week by the Dallas Chamber of Commerce.

Officials of the Junior chamber of commerce stated Thursday that the past two days have witnessed a material increase in the interest shown throughout the city in the observation of "It's Right in Wichita Falls." A number of advertising displays of various kinds have been entered in a contest for which a silver loving cup has been provided. Numerous concerns also have adopted the chosen slogan for incorporation in their letter-heads and other literature, it was said.

It was also reported that different merchants have attributed considerable patronage this week to the home-patronage campaign, stating that much of it otherwise would have gone elsewhere, as formerly. Speakers have appeared before all local luncheon clubs and in radio talks daily during the week, discussing the purposes of the campaign.

Wets and Drys To Debate Sunday

NEW YORK, Nov. 21. (US)—Delegations from Washington and other cities, near and far, have sent word that they will be in New York on Sunday to attend one of the greatest debates of the decade, on prohibition.

No exponent of the dry cause, since the passing of William Jennings Bryan, is more widely known than the Rev. Clarence True Wilson. He is the battling secretary of the board of prohibition, temperance and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church. Entrenched in headquarters at the capital he has established himself as a sort of commander in chief of the militant prohibitionists.

From out of the West comes E. Clemens Horst, San Francisco capitalist and eloquent advocate of a policy that holds prohibition to be a menace to social and political welfare.

These two radically opposed leaders of thought on one of the greatest national issues before the present generation will meet in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor Sunday afternoon.

Orphan Now Has Seven 'Mothers and Fathers'

CHICAGO, Nov. 21. (UP)—Six-year-old Rosalyn Bloom, who was left an orphan when her mother committed suicide and her father was murdered, now has seven "mothers and fathers."

Judge John R. Pritchard, in settling claims for her custody, ruled Rosalyn could call seven aunts and uncles mamma and papa and should spend the school year with one family, except for week ends with another, and during summer vacation should stay a week at the home of each of five others.

Only Memory of Troubles Left

"Orgatone Is a Wonderful Medicine And Has Restored My Husband to Strength and Health" Says Waco Woman

"About all that is left of my husband's four years of suffering is the memory of it," said Mrs. J. E. Watson, 2205 Webster street, Waco, Texas. Mr. Watson is a railroad brakeman.

"My husband would have been a different man today if he had gotten hold of Orgatone four years ago," she continued, "and it would have saved him a world of suffering. He had a chronic case of stomach trouble and nothing he took seemed to help him. He would have frequent attacks of acute indigestion which would leave him weak and worn out for several hours. He would hardly eat anything without a sour gas would form on his stomach and cause the sharpest kind of pains all through his chest. He often had dizzy spells and he was very restless and hardly got any rest at night. He always had a very sore tender spot in the pit of his stomach. He would get up in the morning feeling as tired as when he went to bed."

"We read so much about Orgatone in the local papers, where it had helped so many people here he began taking it. He found it to be very good for his case. He now eats anything and everything he wants without the slightest disagreement whatever. He is feeling better and stronger and has more strength than he has had for the past four years. We think Orgatone is a wonderful medicine for the good results my husband received from its use."

That type of melodramatic material which effectively rounds out pulpit sermons, which in actual, every day life gives practical definition to "the milk of human kindness," which in the field of salesmanship is lauded as "human interest appeal," but which in penned or screened fiction is classed as hokum—that's the thing on which "Young Nowheres," Dick Barthelmess' present vehicle at the Majestic, is built; and with which the picture wraps its fingers of sentiment tightly about most of the hearts exposed thereto.

Like the remembered Charles Ray, Barthelmess fits most effectively into character roles which are rather boyish than youngmannish, and cinematically, thrives upon adversity rather than luxury with respect to imagined station in life. A quaint twist of the mouth, and upward turning of eyes which actually suggest the man-worshipping Irish setter, impart to the actor's face a wistfulness sufficient in itself to accomplish much of the assigned characterization.

◇ ◇

"Young Nowheres" affords opportunity for frequent play on these charms in Barthelmess' appearance and style. It is not a pleasant story. It might well be chosen by a community chest board as a subtle agency for loosening contracted purse strings. Again, coming just before Christmas, and including an acceptable choral rendition of "Holy Night, Silent Night," the picture inevitably will arouse here and there the spirit which finally took hold on Charles Dickens' crusty old Scrooge in "Christmas Carol."

◇ ◇ ◇

Incidentally, Dick and Marian Nixon succeed unusually well in reflection of the vernacular of the working classes from which the characters they portray are drawn. Typical and inherent disregard of grammatical correctness, produced as it actually is used instead of being exaggerated, achieves a commendable harmony in impersonation. Over at the Strand, with all the beauty of the Romeo and Juliet scene when played "straight" by Norma Shearer and the amorous John Gilbert, it flopped terribly when burlesqued a moment later by the same pair. The burlesque consisted of converting the thought of Shakespeare's beautiful lines into modern slang of the adolescents. Norma's classic features and classic, cultured voice adapted itself to this lingo just about as Adolphe Menjou would adapt himself to a stevedore's light exercise on the cotton wharf. If they wanted that thing done in slang as is, with deep-chested punch to put a hard-boiled whang in the voice, why didn't they page Clara Bow? Tell me that, why didn't they?

◇ ◇ ◇

One scene in "Young Nowheres" will give you a nice little example of the attention given to atmospheric detail in complete utilization of sound-recording phases of production. While Pinky (Dick) endeavors to present his homeless plea for a raise to the calloused superintendent (Satan), in the lobby of a fashionable hostelry, the unseen telephone operator keeps up a subdued but plainly audible stream of characteristic answers, numbers, etc., such as you hear in any hotel office. Just a neat bit of added realism, well done.

But there's another little detail that bothers us. A young man of Richard Barthelmess' means and tastes, it seems, would probably prefer rubber heels on his shoes. Rubber heels are, generally speaking, in vogue with male beings above 16 years. As Dick chases himself feverishly about New York's cold, wet streets in "Young Nowheres," one is made aware again of the fact that he, and other screen actors, either can not, or will not, wear rubber heels. For as he leaves Annie's poor lodgings, and walks off through the relentless downpour of rain, the peck-peck-peck of his shoes on the submerged sidewalk resounds to tell you that he is walking away through the rain. Just a neat little bit of realism, but why?

SCHOOL HEAD DEFENDS YOUTH

Bowie Superintendent Speaks to Rotary Club

Oft-maligned modern youth found another advocate Thursday noon when Dan L. Martin, superintendent of the Bowie schools, declared before members of the Rotary club in their weekly meeting at the Kemp hotel that "boys of today are better than we were at their age, and as a whole, will shoot square with us if we shoot square with our fellowmen."

Statistics quoted by Mr. Martin indicated that boys from 11 to 14 years of age rate Christ and Lindbergh as their favorite heroes, and that 75 per cent of them regularly read some of the best magazines.

The boys' work program was presented by members of the Bowie Rotary club under the direction of Dr. J. T. Lawson, president. Other features were instrumental solos by Mrs. J. M. Crisp, pianist, and Jack Brooks, harmonica player. Dr. M. I. Brown led in a singsong, accompanied by Mrs. Crisp.

Abe Cline of Bowie introduced members of the visiting delegation, while Dr. O. T. Kimbrough, president of the club, presented other guests.

Lamesa Judge Orders Bootlegging Investigation

Special to The Record News.

LAMESA, Texas, Nov. 21.—Describing the tactics of bootleggers and their debauchment of society by selling intoxicating liquor to men women, boys and girls, Judge Gordon B. McGuire charged the 106th judicial court grand jury here this week to probe into the open selling of "jake" and extract in Lamesa and surrounding territory. Judge McGuire also charged the jury to investigate the numerous robberies here recently by yeggs and the violation of law by persons selling and buying mortgaged property and moving it out of the county and state. The grand jury is in session now and will probably discuss the charges all of this and most of next week. The term this fall is for three weeks.

Athlete Tells of Secret Marriage To Journalist

NORMAN, Okla., Nov. 21. (UP)—One of those rides in a rickity flivver that ended in romance was described today by Ralph Thomas Churchill, University of Oklahoma athletic star.

Announcement of his secret marriage to Miss Marie Alberta Meeks, of the Pawhuska Journal-Capital staff, last Aug. 10, was made at Pawhuska last night. The following account was given by Churchill today.

Seeking diversion from a Ponca City ice wagon on which Churchill was conditioning himself for the coming football season, the couple, accompanied by Marie Phelps, Pawhuska, decided to ride to Bentonville, Ark.

Their somewhat unstable car skidded into the ditch but after some coaxing it proceeded. Having decided to get married upon their arrival in Arkansas, the next problem was to get a preacher.

They hailed a loitering resident at Bentonville, asking where a preacher could be found. He was a justice of the peace.

"Sure, I'll marry ye," the official replied, and he did.

"Marie is coming to school the next semester and we're going to settle down," Churchill said. He will be graduated this year.
