Colorado City, Loraine & Westbrook

Grant gets desalination plant underway

Facing severe water shortages and an ongoing drought, Colorado City will get a new source of drinking water thanks to a $2,756,295 grant awarded to Mitchell County by the Texas Department of Rural Affairs.

The grant will help fund an $8 million pilot project that will use wind power to help desalinate brackish groundwater and produce up to 750,000 gallons per day of potable water for residents of the county.

The city and county are currently working on a contract so that a formal agreement can be finalized with the Texas Department of Rural Affairs (TDRA). According to Mitchell County Board of Economic Development representative Woody Anderson, the tentative plan is for the county to contract with the city to operate the project.

If the county/city agreement comes to fruition, the city will own the water produced and may sell it to the residents of Colorado City and/or contract with Mitchell County Utilities, Westbrook or Loraine. Under current water district rules, however, the water cannot be sold to entities outside Mitchell County.

"The county, city, Lone Wolf Groundwater Conservation District and Mitchell County Utilities have been working together on this project for over a year and have a good working relationship," Anderson said. "We've attended two city council meetings and discussed the project and I think they are very supportive. We are currently working on an agreement between all the entities and hope to have it completed by the city's August meeting so we can begin the bidding process sometime in early September."

Once the contract with TDRA is signed and the county begins taking bid proposals, the time table for contracting with the city should move quickly. "The county has until September 1" to decide what direction the project

PRICE OF DROUGHT -- Irrigated cotton farmers face high production costs due to this year's drought, while dryland farmers waited for rain that never came.

Drought dries up crop hopes

It's been a long dry winter and summer for West Texas with precipitation totals for the seven month period, from October to April barely making 6 inches according to Texas Business reports.

The U.S. Drought Monitor lists West Texas in D4-exceptional drought mode, jumping from 48.34 percent of the area in D4 condition since March 2011. The Palmer Drought Severity Index shows nearly every county in Texas suffers from extreme drought conditions.

Topsoil conditions, which measure the top six inches of soil, show very dry conditions across the southern US from New Mexico to the east coast.

This is the driest period on record according to data which stretches back to 1895; the previous record was 6.36 inches in 1950-51.

Meanwhile, the drought is expected to lower the 2011 cotton crop, as the United States Department of Agriculture lowered its crop estimate by 1 million bales, according to an article by Seshadri Ramkumar, Texas Tech University at commodityonline.

Approximately 6.7 million acres of cotton were planted in Texas this spring.

"Out of that we'll be fortunate if we harvest four million acres of it," Woody Anderson said.

Unfortunately, world-wide cotton acreage is up so the effect on the cotton market isn't what might otherwise be expected with the abandonment of drought stricken acreage in Texas and flood stricken areas in the south, according to Anderson.

"World demand for cotton

Hospital looks toward strategic planning

With an eye to the future, the Mitchell County Hospital District continues to refine and develop improvement plans to the hospital plant.

Initial thoughts for future needs have led to a 14 month idea process as hospital administration work to produce a strategic plan that complements the hospital's master facility plan.

"The expansion of the rural health clinic and moving the specialty clinic is the number one priority we're looking at," Robbie Dewberry, hospital CEO said.

The renovation of the rural health facility and making the hospital facility more energy efficient are two areas being looked at, along with the possibility of expanding the ER and lab areas.

The master facility plan is a 3-10 year plan with three different phases and hinges on a community assessment plan.

"The community assessment plan is to see if that's the direction the community wants to go," Dewberry said.

Two thousand questionnaires will be distributed to random segments of population through Dave Clark and Associates, a consultant for strategic planning and community needs assessment.

A sample questionnaire will be printed in the Record and anyone is welcome to fill it out and return it to the hospital.

Cost determines the number of questionnaires to be distributed, since no grants are available for the community needs assessment, which is mandated by the federal government.

"Carl Stinson and Toni Everett procured a $10,000 grant for the strategic plan," Dewberry said, adding the overall master facility

Commissioners wait on tax rate

The county commissioners completed a preliminary budget workshop last week and are now waiting on the release of certified tax values.

The court expects the certified tax values to be released sometime next week, hopefully by Monday.

"We need to know how much tax revenue we'll be looking at and how much the effective tax rate would be," Judge Ray Mayo said, before the court can settle on a specific budget plan.

The effective tax rate determines the same amount of revenue as brought in last year.

The commissioners have gone through every department, as well as each departmental request.

Approximately $30,000 has already been tentatively cut from next year's budget to help

"MY GOAL IS SIMPLE," new LISD superintendent Travis Edwards said. "I want to continue to increase the advancement of the students here and draw some attention to this school."

Edwards shares LISD's vision

By Ira Montador

When Loraine ISD went looking for a new superintendent, they hoped they could find someone who shared their same hopes for the small school, someone who wanted the district to be as good as it possibly could be. What they found was a man who believes he can be instrumental in bringing Loraine into the spotlight of the Texas educational system.

"I am excited about the opportunity to work with the students, parents and teachers of Loraine ISD," newly appointed superintendent Travis Edwards said. "My hope, my goal is simple. I want to continue to increase the advancement of the students here and draw some attention to this school. I believe in time, Loraine can be the premier small school in Texas. They have the right teachers, the right kids and the right attitude."

Edwards, an eight year veteran of the U.S. Navy, is a native of Port Arthur. With seven years as a principal or vice principal and another seven as a superintendent or assistant superintendent, he has spent most of his adult life in the public education field. All in all, he has 17 years experience working with Texas schools.

On Monday night, the new superintendent sat down with the Loraine school board in their first meeting together. For the new guy at the table, he did not show any signs of uneasiness. He jumped right in from the beginning and ran the meeting like someone who knew everyone in the room.

"When I met with the board back in May, we seemed to hit it off immediately," he said. "We shared the same priorities and ideals. These men and women are good people and all they want is the absolute best for their kids. With an attitude like that, the sky's the limit."

Edwards wasted no time in his first meeting in Loraine, as he stressed the importance of new technology for the students, leading school board members in a unanimous vote to purchase lap tops and white boards for the kids at Loraine. If Loraine ISD wanted a man of action, they seem to have one. Debbie Finley, the Business Manager for LISD agreed as she watched the man work.

"He shows a lot of leadership," she said. "Hopefully, he will be able to keep us focused and on track."

In the last minutes of the meeting, before it went into an executive session, Edwards touched on one of the goals that he shared with the school board, a possibility of pursuing new facilities for the district.

The deadline to turn in ads is Tuesday, Aug. 2 at 12 noon.

School edition set August 4

The Record's annual Back-to-School edition will be printed August 4.

Benefit for Campbell set Aug. 19

A benefit fundraiser to assist Snyder police officer Darrel Campbell will be held at the Snyder Colliseum on August 19-20-21.

Campbell, a former Mitchell County Sheriff's Office deputy, was shot last week while investigating the scene of a family violence case.

Plans for the fundraiser are still tentative and subject to change, according to Tami Crawford, one of the event planners. However, event planners are issuing a preliminary call for assistance in organizing the concert.

"We would like to get one or two well-known bands, as well as other bands who would like to get their name out there," Crawford said.

Vendors, sponsors and individual donors are also welcome. All donations at this time will be used to host the concert and set up the sound system, with all concert proceeds going to Campbell.

Campbell, who underwent surgery for a gunshot wound to the head, is "still hanging in there, still fighting," according to a source close to the family.

For more information, please contact Tami Crawford, 325-574-4702 or Jaime Crowley, 325-574-4096.

Cancer society offers lots of help

The American Cancer Society offers many programs and service for cancer patients. Transportation assistance is one of many resources in high demand right now in this area.

If a patient needs to get to and from treatment and must drive

30 miles or more one-way, ACS offsets transportation assistance in the form of a gas card. The gas card is a debit card that can be used only at a gas station.

Cancer patients also have access to new wigs, turbans, and scarves with many styles and colors to choose from. For patients traveling over 50 miles for treatment, lodging assistance is available as well.

The American Cancer Society's Look Good...Feel Better program is a place where cancer patients can get together and learn from beauty professionals hands-on beauty techniques to help cope with the changes cancer treatment creates for their skin and hair.

A Personal Health Manager is an educational information packet and organizer for anyone diagnosed with cancer. The Personal Health Manager is full of information specific to the cancer diagnosis, treatment, nutrition, etc. and a place to save bills, receipts, test results and information from the doctor.

Lastly, the American Cancer Society offers Breast Prosthesis and Mastectomy Bras provided by trained prosthetic fitter. All of the programs and services are free for anyone diagnosed with cancer. Funding for these programs is provided through donations and fundraisers such as the Relay for Life events.

If anyone is interested in one or more of these programs or services contact Patient Service Center by calling 1.877.227.1618 or the American Cancer Society local office at 325.691.1519. City looks at redistrict plan

By Stephanie Perez

Colorado City council members adopted an illustrative redistricting plan in a called meeting Friday evening, with Mayor Carol Sue Dakan, Keith Hiser, Bob Brookshear, Marcelo Alvarez and Sammy Contreras present to form a quorum.

Sydney W. Falk, Jr., a representative from Bickerstaff, Heath, Delgado, Acosta, LLP, of Austin, met with council members and presented three plans his company has drawn up that adhere to redistricting laws enforced by the U.S. Department of Justice.

According to Falk, each district has to be equal in population, voting age population, and percentage of minorities. These factors, along with several others, are considered when drawing up all redistricting plans. Redistricting is a task that only has to be done every 10 years, coinciding with the U.S. Census.

Council members expressed concern that district lines are irregular and sometimes hard to understand for the citizens. However, lines are set according to the Voting Rights Act law. "All districts have a big Hispanic population," Falk said, explaining that each district must include an equal amount of voting age minorities.

After discussion of each proposed plan, the group unanimously adopted Plan C. (See map, page 1) The proposed plan shows district lines very similar to current lines. The plan will be open for view and discussion by the public during the public hearing segment of the city council meeting in August.

THE CITY COUNCIL narrowed down its choice of an illustrative redistricting plan during last week's council meeting.

Dry weather forces state park to make changes

By Ira Montador

With record-breaking temperatures and a full blown drought gripping West Texas, at least residents of Colorado City can get out on the lake and cool off. Unfortunately, that may not be a possibility much longer. As water levels continue to drop, the boat ramp at Lake Colorado City State Park is in danger of being closed to the public.

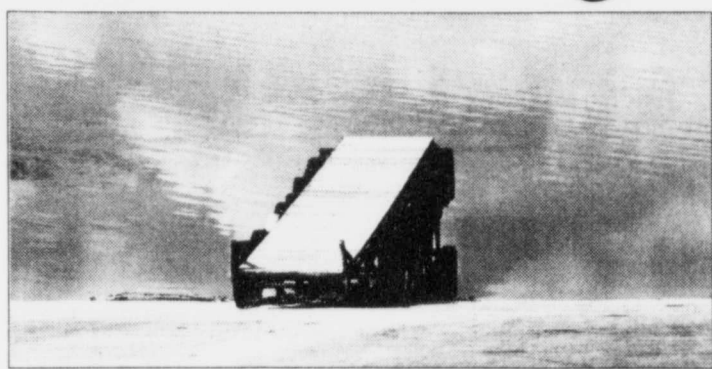

"We are currently picking up the courtesy dock," Park Superintendent Rick Thompson said. "Right now, it is more of a safety hazard than a convenience. As far as the main boat ramp goes, we still have a few people using it, so technically it is not closed, but if the water levels don't improve, or if they get any lower, it will probably be the next logical step to just close it."

Colorado City's closest lake is mostly used for recreational purposes- jet skiing, water skiing and boating- but the low water levels create a dangerous playground for the motorized aquatic vehicles. At a time when most people want to take the short drive to the park to cool off, conditions are making it harder and harder to get their boats into the water, only to find the water less than hospitable.

The number of people visiting the lake has dropped dramatically, over 50 percent, from this time last year. Now that rumors are circulating that the boat ramp will close, those numbers can be expected to drop even further. Currently, Lake Colorado City is only 37.72 % full, according to the Texas Water Development Board's website.

LAKE COLORADO CITY'S State Park officials have picked up the courtesy dock on the boat ramp at the park. Water levels are continuing to drop, causing potentially dangerous conditions on the lake.

Dialysis care provides one-on-one patient service

Bringing patient care to rural communities is the motivating force behind Access Care Dialysis Center.

"I thought it was a spectacular idea," Allan Wetzel AccessCare nurse said, speaking to the Lions Club during their Friday meeting. "It's not just about providing care, but about creating an environment that was small enough we could give patients a lot of one on one attention."

Wetzel started out selling dialysis machines and equipment and got involved with AccessCare by accident. "I liked what they had to say about the idea for AccessCare and changing the paradigm about how dialysis was delivered."

Most dialysis centers are located in urban metroplexes and don't want to take dialysis to smaller communities, according to Wetzel. "Houston has 85 dialysis centers, but the quality of care is like a zoo."

Moving dialysis care to rural areas saves patients having to drive 80-100 miles one way for treatment.

"With a four hour treatment, it blows a whole day traveling or waiting on a bus," Wetzel said.

AccessCare started with two centers in Brownfield and Muleshoe. The company approached Snyder, but was turned down, so brought the center to Colorado City, and added additional centers in Dumas and Ft. Stockton.

"Colorado City and Dumas are the two cities that really got onboard," Wetzel said.

The Colorado City facility is currently the largest in West Texas with 32 patients and the capacity to expand with an additional eight beds. The center treats three shifts of patients on Mondays and two shifts on Tuesdays.

The center also draws lab values every month per patient to determine effectiveness of treatment.

Colorado City's facility has the highest rating for treatment effectiveness.

"Patients here tend to participate more in their own care. They follow their diet or they try to," Wetzel said. "They do better than other places."

Diet is difficult for dialysis patients. They have to limit liquids, change their diet, be careful of the amount of phosphorus intake, which is present in nearly everything and deal with anemia.

The two leading causes of dialysis are uncontrolled hypertension and diabetes.

The company, which provides hemodialysis, is also looking at obtaining a license for peritoneal dialysis - where the patient does care at home and only sees doctor once a month.

"It gives lots of freedom to patients," Wetzel said.

AccessCare has plans to open

Officers earn commendations

The Colorado City Police Department honored two of its own with letters of commendation during the swearing in ceremony for Sergeant Traven Berrie last week.

Sergeant Berrie and dispatcher Dottie Taylor received commendations for their beyond-the-call-of-duty actions in the location and care of a MHMR patient from Lacy Lakeview.

Using GPS technology, the Lacy Lakeview police contacted dispatcher Dottie Taylor about Keith McAdams who was walking along I-20.

Through the efforts of Taylor and Berrie, the missing patient was found, cared for and returned to his parents.

"Officer Berrie's and your communication staff's assistance and eagerness to help were very much appreciated by me and McAdams' parents," Officer Suzann Lytle of the Lacy Lakeview Police Department said.

The dispatch assistance is one of many examples which prompted the Colorado City Police Department to nominate Taylor as 9-1-1 telecommunicator of the year for the state of Texas.

OPINION & COMMENTARY

TUMBLEWEED SMITH

People whose names are directions on the compass

Jack East was born in Rotan and grew up in Spur.

His grandfather was one of the first settlers there and was an early deputy sheriff under the first sheriff of Dickens County. Jack's parents had a feed and chicken business, the Spur Grain and Hatchery. Jack didn't stay in that line of work for a number of reasons, namely one that occurred while he and his father were culling hens on a farm near Spur.

"I had to crawl under the roost to get one of the hens down and it pooped in my mouth. I said 'O, Daddy!' I was spitting and everything and he said, 'Aw, son, that's OK. Life has a little of that in everything you do.'"

Jack has had some fun with his last name.

"My father used to say 'you won't remember what direction we are, but we answer to all directions.' Mainly we stayed East."

In 1954, Jack East married a girl from Fort Worth.

"Her name is Jo Ann Farr. So consequently, as you can imagine, everybody says it's the Far East. We've had a lot of fun with that being the Farr East."

When Jack East was studying agriculture at Texas Tech, he met a fellow student named Jess West.

"He didn't know that I was Jack East and so we shook hands and he said, 'I'm Jess West.' I told him my name was Jack East and he didn't believe me. He thought I was putting him on. So we became good buddies and we were in agriculture and of course we had to do our chores at the barn."

They were working one day when Jess asked Jack if he had ever met anyone with the name Southwest.

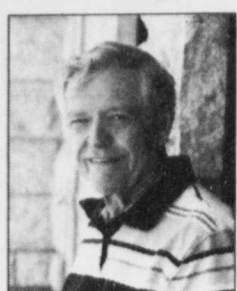

"I told him no, that I had known some Norths and Souths, and actually I've met every direction, but I've never met a Southwest or Northeast."

Jess said if he ever had a son, he would have the middle name of South. Jack responded, "Well, if you'll do that I'll name mine North and maybe they'll meet just like we did."

The years rolled on and in 1961, when Jack and Jo Ann were living in Fort Worth their first son was born. While they were still in the hospital, Jo Ann asked Jack what they were going to name the newborn.

"I don't know, sweetheart, but his middle name has got to be North," says Jack. "She threw something at me. I told her about the promise I had made to Jess. She asked me what about a first name. I said, 'your daddy doesn't have anything but girls, so we could name him Farr, your last name, and he could be Farr North East. 'Needless to say, that's not his name.'"

Jack and Jo Ann now live in Brownwood.

Dem bones dem bones dem awesome bones

By Monte Wike

I am intrigued by recent TV commercials that show an "x-ray" of the bones of a person in motion. It is just amazing how they fit together, function, support, and of course, wear out, grow brittle and need the latest medicine to keep them working. I have also been noticing that some of our bones are near the surface and others buried deep within the body.

Bones that are near the surface are usually joints, the skull, backbones and shins. Bones that are hidden are the "strength" bones in the upper leg, upper arm and interior of the spine.

We have to have a skeleton, something to build on, something to hold us in a functioning position. Some animals have their skeleton on the outside, others are like jellyfish with no rigidity at all. Sadly, there are people just like that. The human skeleton is diverse, awesome and a sure display of God's creative power.

Our lives need a foundation as well. We need to be flexible, like joints, but rigid like structure. We must be mobile, but at the same time unwavering in our morals and values. Each bone has its individual shape, function and name, yet collectively they are called the skeleton. There is no one bone to fit every circumstance. We will be called upon to work in many capacities and fill many roles, but we must work together collectively, blending our unique nature for the working of the whole.

The bones not only provide rigidity and form, but the marrow is vital to blood production. Man has an outer presence, but an inner resource. If the bone marrow is diseased or malfunctioning, the entire body becomes sick. When the soul of man is not in good working order, a person is in bad shape. If it is all form and appearance, but a man is hollow inside, he knows something is wrong or missing and he may not be sure of the diagnosis.

Bones can and must grow as a child grows. In fact, they can grow so rapidly at some points in life that there is pain. Our learning and knowledge should never be stagnant, and even after the "growth spurt" years of formal education, we should learn in new directions and dimensions. Mental health, physical health and spiritual health are good buddies.

The Psalmist predicted that not one bone of Jesus would be broken, but how did the Roman soldiers know to fulfill this ancient prophecy? Ezekiel saw a valley of dry bones and was encouraged to see them not as has-beens, but as a potential vital and living army.

A broken bone can be mended and made as good as new. Broken human relationships can be healed, fortified and restored. We do well to marvel at dem bones!

Everyone, mark your calendars for July 30th. St. Joseph's Catholic Church will host their annual festival. Located on Hinson Street, you will be sure to find delicious Mexican food plates, games, live music, raffles and all sorts of fun!

The festival will be held from 10 a.m. till 10 p.m. and everyone is invited to come out and have fun.

The weight room and gym at the school will be closed the 20th of July thru the end of the month. Students needing to use the facilities are encouraged to contact coaches Vasquez, Hanks or Langston, as Coach Jackson will be out of town until the end of the month.

Football two-a-days are just around the corner! Athletes and coaches better prepare for some hot practices!

The first practice will be held Monday, August 1st at 8 a.m. The kids will practice, break and then come back at 6 p.m. that same evening.

Coach Jackson wants everyone to know that they will be getting a phone call from him and or a letter. If you don't hear from him, make sure you get in touch with him before two-a-days kicks off.

I can't wait to see how far we go this year with this team. I am so excited for a Friday night game, I can hardly stand it!

Lilly, our English Bulldog, recently had the pleasure of meeting Maz Webb's English bully, Albert.

Apparently, it was love at first sight. Everyone keep your fingers crossed, Maz and I are hoping to be grandparents to some baby bullies by mid-September.

While Lily and Albert went on their date, Coach and I had a wonderful visit with a wonderful lady, Maz Webb. In case you didn't know it, you are a gem of a lady.

Visitors at the Lorraine Senior Center last week included Weldon McMillian; the Sheffield's daughter, Belinda Hailey; Frances Godwin's daughters, Joyce Buchanan and Marilyn Brookshear.

Methodist News...

Special music last week was by Sara Petty of Westbrook. She sang "Silver and Gold".

Bro. Abbott's message was "How Do You Become a Christian?" which involved the 3 R's:

1. Recognize--Something is missing, 2. Repent---Change old ways and 3. Receive---Christ in your life.

Seems like a pretty simple message with instructions, almost like "Christian Life for Dummies"

Lorraine's new superintendent has settled in and is looking forward to the new school year. Let's all make sure to welcome Mr. Travis Edwards and help him in any way that we can.

Geory and Christy Martin are on the road with the twins, enjoying an end-of-summer trip to Branson, Missouri. Geory's sister, Sheila Womack and her crew are with them also.

Hope everyone has a wonderful and safe trip!

City-wide vacation Bible school round-up was last Saturday. You may have heard the sirens around town. Seems like everyone had a good time.

Around 15 children ended up at the park for hotdogs where George and Fay Lee along with Pam Butler, Shawn Casey, Ruth Curtis, Bro. Dale Hartley and wife Helen all pitched in working and getting everyone served and signed up.

Bible school will culminate on Wednesday night, July 20th with a program for the parents' enjoyment. Parents need to be in attendance at First Baptist Church at 7:30 p.m. Refreshments will be served after the program.

it will take," Anderson said. "The first option is to contract with the city but there are other options."

The local water conservation district began looking for alternate sources of water about 10 years ago, according to Anderson. They were approached by City Manager Pete Kampfer a year ago to help the city find another, and possibly better, water source for Colorado City. Kampfer expressed his excitement about the project. "This is a great day of Colorado City. This project is truly a blessing for our community," he said.

If the project continues as planned, Anderson said that he thinks the desalination plant could be operating in 24 to 36 months.

"Like many communities in West Texas, Colorado City needs to develop new sources of drinking water," said Howard G. Baldwin Jr., TDRA's interim executive director. "Abundant brackish groundwater is available, and technology exists to make that water drinkable."

But desalinating enough brackish groundwater to supply entire communities requires tremendous amounts of electricity, Baldwin said.

"That's too expensive for most small towns," Baldwin said. "But if you have good wind resources like Colorado City does, then you may be able to make desalination affordable by using wind power."

Three 500-kilowatt turbines produced by General Dynamics will be installed and will provide a large percentage of the electricity needed to operate the desalination facility.

Power from the turbines will be donated to Mitchell County for this project. General Dynamics and the National Institute for Renewable Energy in Lubbock received federal funding to develop and test new mid-sized wind turbines. In addition to the state grant and the donated wind power, other costs of the project will be paid by Mitchell County.

"I think this project helps insure a long term, reliable supply of water for Colorado City and Mitchell County for the next 50 years," Anderson said. "I also think that this shows that our community is progressive in looking for new solutions for critical problems and that the rest of dry, arid West Texas will be asking, 'How did they get that done?' and 'How can we copy them?'"

Seven new wells will be drilled to produce brackish groundwater for the desalination facility, which will be located on land southwest of the Colorado City limits.

Construction of the project is expected to begin late this year. Eventually, the county hopes to expand the project to produce up to 1.5 million gallons of potable water daily and supply Westbrook, Loraine and other communities in the county.

Funds to develop projects using wind power to desalinate brackish groundwater were provided to TDRA by the Texas Legislature. TDRA also funded a project at Seminole to use wind power for desalination through its Renewable Energy Demonstration Pilot Program (REDPP). That program uses Community Development Block Grant funds to help rural communities cut energy costs for water and wastewater treatment by using wind power and solar energy.

With a REDPP grant from TDRA, the city of Lometa in Lampasas County last fall became the first in Texas to have its wastewater treatment plant completely powered by solar energy.

plan will be developed out of the strategic plan.

Harvey Chapman and Associates, out of Lubbock, is the architectural firm working on preliminary drawings.

"All this is just thoughts, at this point, to present to the board and community," Dewberry said. "It's important to have everybody together."

Chief Financial Officer Joe Wright agrees things are still in the planning stage. "If we don't do a master facility plan and tie it back to the strategic plan based on the community needs assessment, we won't be meeting their needs. Community input is valuable. We've got to have confirmation to do it right and be economically responsible."

Revamping the rural health clinic will provide more area for patient care and also expand the specialty clinic by allowing three specialists to offer their services simultaneously. Currently, the clinic only has room for one specialist at a time.

"We do everything we can to provide quality care," Dewberry said. "Our number one mission is to do the right thing every time for the patient."

TxDoT wins national recognition

Projects that reduced congestion, shortened project delivery times, improved access to rural communities, and made commuting safer were recognized today as winners of America's Transportation Awards at the annual meeting of the Western Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials.

AASHTO, AAA, and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce co-sponsor the annual awards competition to recognize the best of America's transportation projects in three main categories — On Time, Under Budget, and Innovative Management.

Twelve transportation projects from 10 Western state DOTs were entered into this year's competition. Five states received regional awards.

Three states earned awards in the On Time category: The Nevada Department of Transportation for its Spring Creek Roundabout Project (small project division); the Montana Department of Transportation for its Shiloh Road Project (medium project division); and the Texas Department of Transportation State Highway 161 Western Extension Project (large project division).

Winners in the remaining regional competitions will also compete for the national Grand Prize and People's Choice Award, which will be presented at the AASHTO Annual Meeting Oct. 16 in Detroit. Online voting will begin Aug. 31.

SURE deadline approaches

(Colorado City, TX), July 15, 2011 — Mitchell County USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) Executive Director Keith Hiser, announced that the deadline to apply for assistance for 2009 crop losses under the Supplemental Revenue Assistance Payments (SURE) program is July 29, 2011.

"The SURE program compensates producers for production and/or quality losses during times of disaster," said Hiser. "All producers who have experienced crop production and/or crop quality losses must apply for SURE program benefits by the July 29th deadline," he said.

To meet program eligibility requirements, the farming operation must be physically located in a county that was declared a primary or contiguous disaster county by the Secretary of Agriculture under a 2009 Secretarial Disaster Designation.

Producers located in designated disaster counties must have suffered at least a 10 percent loss on a crop of economic significance and purchased crop insurance through the Federal Crop Insurance Act or the Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program (NAP).

However, an operation located in a county that did not receive a primary or contiguous disaster designation, can still qualify for SURE benefits if the actual farm production was less than 50 percent of the normal production on the farm due to a qualifying disaster event.

Producers and legal entities collectively cannot, directly or indirectly, receive more than $100,000 in SURE and other FSA disaster assistance payments. FSA disaster programs include SURE, Livestock Forage Program (LFP), Livestock Indemnity Program (LIP), and Emergency Assistance for Livestock, Honeybees, and Farm-raised Fish (ELAP).

Producers or legal entities, whose nonfarm income is more than $500,000, are not eligible for SURE program payments.

For questions regarding the SURE program, please contact the Mitchell County FSA office at 325-728-2651.

and the overall world economy have driven cotton futures prices down over the last two-three weeks," Anderson said. "It's still above $1 a pound in the world market. Those with a decent yield should be able to realize a decent return."

However, Anderson believes it will be a non-productive year for dryland cotton. Irrigated cotton faces expensive production costs and less than anticipated net returns.

"This cotton crop is over for those of us in West Texas who have suffered through the driest winter and spring since the 1950s," Anderson said. "The safety net through crop insurance and the Farm Bill hopefully will help farmers recover some of the cost in trying to produce this crop."

Another somber aspect of the drought are the wildfires which have plagued Texas this year, forcing the Texas Forest Service to borrow equipment and personnel from across the US to battle the blazes and destroying thousands of acres of pastureland. Wildfires were wind driven during the winter months, but are moving to being fuel driven during the dry summer months according to the Texas Forest Service.

According to the Texas State Historical Association, Texas droughts have occurred since the Spanish exploration of the area. A drought in 1756 dried up the San Gabriel River, forcing missionaries and Indians to abandon the area.

Each decade since Stephen F. Austin's first colonists in 1822 lost their food crops has experienced at least one period of severe drought.

One of the worst droughts in Texas history occurred in 1884-86, causing most of the farmers to fail and to return to the East, according to Roy Sylvan Dunn's article "Droughts" in the Handbook of Texas Online.

Between 1892 and 1992, the High Plains region of Texas has had 10 droughts and the Low Rolling Plains have experienced eight. Current drought conditions are being blamed on the La Niña weather pattern, an ocean-atmospheric condition which tends to bring dry weather, as opposed to the El Niño pattern which creates a wetter climate.

FCCLA TEACHER RELAXES -- Ann Nobles enjoys a moment at the beach during the FCCLA trip.

SILVER AND GOLD -- Alyssa Leverton brings home the silver, while Tucker French and Ashli Cooper sport gold medals.

Hours of hard work and lots of practice paid off as three Colorado High students took their year long projects to compete in the National FCCLA competition at the Anaheim Convention Center in California July 9-14 and brought home top honors.

Entrepreneur duo Tucker French and Ashli Cooper brought home gold medals for their presentation of Haus of Coffee.

Wearing coffee colored aprons with a coffee cup logo, French and Cooper presented a strong business plan for opening and running a coffee house in Colorado City.

"We don't get to open the business, but we have the best business plan in Texas," Cooper said.

According to FCCLA sponsor Ann Nobles, French and Cooper originally looked at a Starbucks franchise, but after research realized it wouldn't work.

"They found out they couldn't do it and changed their plan," Nobles said. "They put in a lot of work."

Alyssa Leverton earned a silver medal for her presentation of Behind the Wheel, in the National Program in Action category.

"Alyssa learned to contact a lot of people for lots of her resources in driving safety," Nobles said.

One of those resources was the family of a teenager in Denver City who was killed while texting.

"It's a great thing to see them decide to do something and be able to talk to adults," Nobels said. "They don't let adults intimidate them. FCCLA is the ultimate leadership experience."

"It was neat to see the other FCCLA roles, not just the Star events," Leverton said. "There were so many people from so many places all together."

In addition to speakers and exhibits, the three CHS students had the opportunity to visit several tourist attractions including Disneyland, Universal Studios, Huntington and Newport Beaches.

Cooper, who is a spokesperson for Sunshine Kids, an organization which represents children who are cancer survivors, will be featured as an extra in an upcoming episode of The Closer.

G.W. Bailey, star of The Closer, is also the west coast chairman of Sunshine Kids and invited Cooper to watch the filming of an episode.

"Those people remember her and she doesn't let them forget her," Nobles said.

Cooper can be seen briefly in episode eight seated at a table during a drive-by shooting.

Even teachers learn at thing or two in FCCLA.

"I learned everything there is to know about film making," Nobels said, who talked to every cast member of The Closer about their profession.

STOPPING BY THE Rain Forest Cafe near their hotel are Tucker French, Alyssa Leverton and Ashli Cooper (from left). FCCLA allows students to expand their horizons and experiences.
