By J. W. King, Sr.

The large crowds attending the soft ball games each Friday afternoon is evidence that the recreation program sponsored by the American Legion, is appreciated by many.

Thus far not much interest has been created in events for the smaller kids. They have not attracted many entrants and may be dropped. Lack of interest on the part of merchants in cooperating by closing their places of business for the events has contributed to the lack of interest in these events.

The Veterans Post American Legion is a going concern now. The Post expects to receive its charter in the near future. The Legion probably will sponsor many things in the future and will want and need the full cooperation of everyone.

The cleanup campaign in the city last week accomplished a lot but there are still some places that need to be cleaned up. The city should put on a campaign now to eliminate open toilets and cess pools that are scattered all over town. Our town would be a much better and healthier place to live if this were done, and the city would benefit from the additional sewer revenue.

Commander Endorses Hospital Plan

Herman G. Nami, State Commander of the American Legion, in a written endorsement commended the newspapers of Texas for their part in extending health protection to the returning veteran through the newspaper's May 10 to June 10 unrestricted enrollment campaign for World War 2 veterans in the Blue Cross Plan.

"The veteran, after having served his country on the world's battlefields, is now attempting to readjust himself to normal civilian pursuits, and he is entitled to every possible consideration," Nami writes. "Enrollment in a Blue Cross nonprofit hospital plan will provide for the veteran, and his family as well, assurance that an unexpected illness will not retard his readjustment financially."

The enrollment campaign is a national program sponsored by the newspapers of America thru cooperation with the Blue Cross Plans of the nation.

June 10 is the last day of the campaign in which veterans may enroll in the hospital plan. The local hospital is a member of the Blue Cross Plan and offers complete service to veterans of this territory.

Farmers Lose Many Machines In Strikes

"Farmers throughout the nation have lost the use of thousands of tractors and even greater quantities of other farm machines as a result of a strike called at the plants of the J. I. Case Company," officials stated today.

Production has been paralyzed on hundreds of thousands of dollars of needed replacement parts in addition to the tillage, seeding and harvesting units which will never come off the assembly line, it was pointed out.

The strike, called by the union on December 26, is being prolonged at the Rockford and Racine, Wis., plants although employees at the Rock Island and at Burlington, Iowa, have returned to work in full force.

Case officials rejected union demands for a 30 per cent increase on grounds that such a demand is unfair to its farmer customers who would have to foot the bill.

"It is inevitable that large increases in the cost of manufacture must result in higher prices for farm machinery," Case officials stated today. "All but a fraction of each production dollar goes directly or indirectly into wages. The wage level cannot be drastically advanced without the burden being passed on to the farmer customer. It is the policy of the Company to pay wages as high as those in the community for similar work and that will continue to be Case policy."

The current wave of strikes which has crippled the farm machinery industry has aroused considerable alarm in Washington, according to dispatches from the capital. The food study committee in Congress has called on the Administration to give farm machinery priority, pointing out that restrictions produced an almost complete stoppage starting in 1943 and that the situation has become more critical each year as equipment wore out.

Assembly lines were starting to move at near normal speed in the industry again when strikes set in and prevented farmers from getting but a fraction of much needed machinery. The Federal Bureau of Agricultural Economics has estimated that the accumulated need for new equipment "will overshadow" limited supplies now in prospect.

Case officials also pointed out that the loss to employees is wages as a result of the strike would affect the farmer as well as other groups in the community. Employees of the J. I. Case Company alone have lost more than $3,000,000 in wages since the strike began on December 26, 1945.

"There were no problems which could be settled on the picket line that couldn't be settled on the production line," Case officials asserted. "There had been no cutbacks in wages or hours. Employees were still taking home 'wartime' pay envelopes. They were fully aware of urgent need for farm machinery but took this occasion to call a strike, demanding a 30 per cent increase in wages and greater powers for the union."

Newspaper Man Stuff:

INS foreign news chief J. C. Oestreicher tells about the pompous general who gathered a group of war correspondents and bored them by outlining the broad strategic situation without giving them any worthwhile news. When the general asked for questions, newsboy Johnny Flores promptly double-talked: "That is great, General. But when will your troops take Unterstutzen on the Bleiweis?" . . . The general looked uncertainly at his maps. Of course there was no such town. He asked Flores to repeat the query. The reporter did so, emphasizing that Berlin could not possibly be reached unless the Bleiweis was crossed and Unterstutzen captured. Afraid to admit he didn't know something, the general confidently replied: "My men will take it in a few days at the most."

Probably the most bumptious publisher of all was James Watson Webb. During the Civil War he wrote to Lincoln suggesting that he be made a major-general. Lincoln offered him the slightly lower rank of brigadier-general. Webb returned the commission with the words "Respectfully declined — J. W. Webb" written across it.

Some legislators are again whooping up plans to clamp a mix on newscasters who tell the truth about them. Which isn't anything novel. Years ago, only reporters who were friendly to Congressmen were allowed to enter the halls of Congress. Henry Clay fought such undemocratic procedures. He pointed out: "Liberty is not the private property of Congress. It is America's heritage. If freedom is only accorded to our friends, then we are the foes of democracy."

When Floyd Gibbons covered China for a news service, he didn't communicate with his home office for many weeks. Finally Gibbons' editor asked another news service to cable their correspondent in China and find out what happened to Floyd.

The whimsical newsmen cabled his report: "Have located Gibbons in the bar-room of Cat's Hotel in Shanghai. Do you want me to interview him?"

Inquiring photographer Sam Mellor stopped a group of ex-G.I.s to ask what they thought of the way Congress is treating returning servicemen.

Just after the last election FDR had an appointment with a visiting Gov. But due to a meeting on war matters, he was detained.

"Mr. President," his secretary said, "I guess you know you have kept the Governor of Massachusetts waiting four minutes."

"That's not so bad," winked Roosevelt. "I intend to keep the Governor of New York waiting four years."

During the early 1900s America's gazettes were very prim and dull. Editors recoiled in horror at the thought of dealing in personalities. But one New York newspaper blew the lid off this staid attitude—with a bang — by publishing the first interview. An interview with a prostitute!

There has been no satisfactory agreement among scholars or etymologists on the meaning of the word "Selah" — which appears so often in the Book of Psalms.

U. S. WANTS PEACE MADE IN EUROPE

Byrnes Signals U.S. Offensive To Win the Peace; Congressional Chiefs Oppose Service Merger

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

FOREIGN POLICY: Byrnes Reports

Back from the foreign ministers' parley in Paris, Secretary of State Byrnes took to the radio to air this country's position on the important question left at issue and reaffirm its determination to press firmly but patiently ahead for world understanding despite all obstacles.

While the U. S. may be tempted to pull out of Europe because of the difficulties encountered in drawing a peace without sacrifice of our principles, to do so would be to risk the possibility of another world war in which we would again have to participate, Byrnes said. Therefore, we must take the offensive to assure adoption of U. S. principles, he said.

Bluntly attributing existing differences to Russian jockeyings for advantage, Byrnes declared that the crying need was for a European peace paving the way for orderly production and distribution. If the Soviets continued to block the making of peace and the convening of a peace parley, the U. S. will feel obligated to ask the United Nations under article 14 of the charter to recommend terms of a settlement.

In reporting on the Paris parley, Byrnes outlined these differences between the U. S. and Russia:

Reparations—While Russia demanded the payment of 100 million dollars in reparations from Italy out of production, the U. S. balked because the financial help we are furnishing Italy to get back on her feet would thus be diverted for the benefit of another country.

Venezia Giulia—U. S. resistance to Russian demands that this strategic province embracing Trieste be handed over to Yugoslavia was based on the fact that 500,000 Italians presently living there would be placed under foreign rule. Instead, the U. S. recommended drawing a boundary along racial lines.

Balkans—Settlement of Balkan treaties was obstructed by Russia's unwillingness to freeing the Danube river for international commerce.

NEW AUTOS: Another Price Raise

In compensating automobile manufacturers for increased steel costs resulting from wage hikes in the industry the OPA scheduled new price increases averaging 4 to 5 per cent for new cars to be added to the $1 to $60 boosts previously allowed.

Shortages Curb Output

Continuing parts shortages blocked all-out automobile production, with a scarcity of seat-back and cushion springs slowing up completion of assemblies in Ford, General Motors and Willys-Overland factories.

CONGRESS: Hit Merger

While calling for closer co-operation between the army and navy departments, the chairmen of congressional naval committees warned Secretary of the Navy Forrestal not to enter into a compromise with Secretary of War Patterson for merging the services since congress would not approve of such a consolidation.

"We believe the bill (for merger) accentuates the differences between the services," Senator Walsh and Representative Vinson of the senate 4 house naval committees declared. "Its enactment . . . would widen the breach since naval officers are convinced . . . that naval aviation and amphibious operations played a great part in winning the war. They are also convinced . . . naval aviation and amphibious forces will play a major role in preventing any potential enemy from bringing war to our shores."

COLLEGES: Crowded Future

Because of the shortages of housing, facilities, books and teachers, the nation's colleges will be unable to take care of a postwar rush partly prompted by the G. I. bill of rights educational benefits for vets.

In reviewing the college picture for next fall, Reconversion Director Snyder declared that only half of the 2 million people desiring to enroll in higher schools of learning will be able to do so, including 690,000 vets. In 1946-47 alone, the government will spend at least 1 billion dollars on G. I. s, he said, with expenditures over the years totaling 6 billion.

U. N.: FAO Meets

Formation of a United Nations food administration to direct world food policies during the period of scarcity and reconstruction was urged by Herbert Hoover at the opening session of the U. N. food and agriculture organization in Washington, D. C.

While such an administration would co-ordinate governmental efforts at relieving the critical food situation, Hoover recommended that it set its sights at restoring private distribution and production of farm machinery, fertilizer and other material as quickly as possible.

Declaring charity programs were wasteful and inefficient, Hoover said private commerce could provide more economical and reliable service to farmers, merchants and consumers.

Having passed qualifying tests, 33 speedsters were entered in the first renewal 500 mile automobile race at Indianapolis since 1941 with $100,000 in prize money at stake.

With drivers required to average 115 miles an hour or better in four runs on the 2 1/2 mile track in order to qualify for the Memorial Day event, the veteran Cliff Bergere chalked up the fastest speed in the early trials at 126.47 miles per hour.

World Farmers Unite

The International Federation of Agriculture, the first such international organization comprised of individual memberships by farmers' organizations from most of the nations represented in U. N., comes into being as a result of a meeting of farm leaders from throughout the world in London.

James Turner, president of the British National Farmers union, was the moving spirit in calling the London conference and in formation of the new organization. As head of a delegation of British farmers which traveled half-way around the world to study conditions in Australia, New Zealand, Canada and the United States, he found a widespread belief that the primary producers of the world must organize if they were to be protected against uncertainties of the postwar period.

U. S. representatives at the conference included Allan B. Klein, vice president of the American Farm Bureau federation; James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers Union; Albert S. Goss, master of the National Grange, and Quentin Reynolds, president of the National Conference of Co-operators.

Put Sales Goal At 200 Billion If Strikes End

CHICAGO—A total of 200 billion dollars in merchandise still could be produced and sold in 1946 if strikes and threats of strikes could be eliminated, Gene Flack, vice president of the National Federation of Sales Executives, declared here recently.

As an annual sales goal for coming years, Mr. Flack put 140 billion dollars as a satisfactory figure. Such a total would provide 53 1/2 million jobs, he said, "enough to make certain that this nation will avoid any possibility of a depression."

Flack asserted that if the engineering and sales abilities of American manufacturers could lift sales to a total of 150 billions during the war years, certainly America could make another 33 per cent increase.

Hires Vets and War Widows Only; Finds Them Best

VALLEY STREAM, N. Y.—Last January the Commonwealth Aircraft, Inc., inaugurated the experiment of hiring only veterans or war widows in its plants, to the exclusion of others. The plan worked so well that it has been made a permanent policy.

Raymond Voyes, president, said the company, which manufactures private planes, currently has 500 veterans employed at the Valley Stream plant and expects to hire 1,000 more. In addition, 1,500 more veterans will be added to its Port Washington, N. Y., plant.

Mr. Voyes said that not only have production figures increased, but personnel turnover among veterans is only 0.5 per cent, compared with about 3 1/2 per cent among the company's civilian employees.

HOOVER AND REPORTERS

WASHINGTON.—When Herbert Hoover staged a press conference after his talk with President Truman and Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, newsmen immediately asked what President Truman had told him.

The former chief executive—who had as rough a time with the press as any United States President in this century—replied with deep feeling:

"There ought to be a law," he said, "against anyone repeating what the President has said to him."

Hoover also refused to answer any questions about administration measures to meet the European emergency, and would not give any opinion when asked if U. S. rationing might be necessary.

ARMY DENTISTS

At long last Maj. Gen. Norman Kirk, who has the reputation for hoarding more medical manpower than any other surgeon general in history, has decided to let a few more doctors slip through his fingers and go back to civilian practice.

He has decreed that all medical corps officers who have served 30 months as of May 1 can be released from the army before June 30.

However, this does not apply to army dentists, who are now getting to be the forgotten men of the U. S. army.

For some strange reason best known to General Kirk, general service doctors can get out of the army after 30 months, but a dentist must remain in 39 months. And today there are hundreds of patriotic dentists who gave up good practices to join the army, now marking time as army posts, unable to get discharged.

Furthermore, the brass hats have permitted the discharge of many younger dentists, while older men have to stay on. Many of the youngsters, educated at army expense, have been declared "essential to civilian practice" and discharged, while older men with families to support, can't get out. This means that younger dentists get their civilian practice firmly established before older men can even begin to look for scarce office space.

HOW TO HANDLE LEWIS

Towering Gov. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma, who packs close to 250 pounds and a droll wit, tells this story about a chat with a "prominent Republican" during a recent visit to Washington.

"Why doesn't Truman do something about John L. Lewis," complained the GOP'er, "instead of sitting around on his hands while Lewis ties up production in the entire country?"

"Lewis is a tough man to handle," said Kerr. "What would you suggest that the President do?"

"I could give him plenty of ideas if I had the chance."

"Okay," said Kerr. "I'm going to give you the chance. I'm a close friend of Harry Truman. In fact, I am going to see him tomorrow morning. And I happen to know that right now, more than anything in the world, he wants the answer to this coal strike. So you just sit down and write out the solution and I'll give it to him the first thing in the morning."

The discussion ended right there.

RAIL BITTERNESS

For a long time, bad blood had existed between the trainmen-engineer brotherhoods and the other three—conductors, switchmen and firemen. It has been somewhat like the CIO-AFL row, but the bitterness deepened after the Roosevelt arbitration dispute.

Whitney, at the time, sent a letter to his trainmen exhorting the other brotherhoods for refusing to arbitrate—a letter which doesn't put him in such a good light today. Among other things, he made up a little poem which read:

"Three blind mice—hear how they talk!

They're gambling with their country's fate—

Though the hour is getting late

For the three blind mice."

"Were they afraid to trust the President?" Whitney asked his fellow-trainmen in the round-robin letter. "Or is it possible that the (other three brotherhoods) were playing organization politics in the hope that they may strengthen their numerical and financial condition?"

Atomic War Could Force Return to Primitive Life

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

Mid-June welcomes a gathering to Washington which will deal with a subject more important to you and me than anything I can think of.

The meeting is described as an "institute on the control of atomic energy." At about the same time, the United Nations Commission on Atomic Energy will be meeting too.

At the "institute" in Washington, authorities will explain just what effect atomic energy can have on your life if you are one of those who aren't going to be destroyed by it. I was going to say "one of the lucky ones," but you won't be lucky, if atomic warfare starts, even if you are among those whose lives are spared.

We have all heard a lot of dire prophecies about what the atom bomb can do, if it once gets on the loose. Also, what wonders atomic energy can perform in building a better world, if it is confined to peaceful and productive activity.

But by far the most impressive footnote on the subject came to me in the repeated words of a scientist: speaking not scientifically, or for quotation, but very intimately of his own private thoughts, and his own personal plans.

He has lectured a great deal on the subject of atomic energy, and is one of those intimately concerned with its development. Suddenly, one day he realized that he had better make some personal plans to prepare for the future in this atomic age of which he had spoken so much. His work is near one of the several prime targets of any enemy bombs that would be dropped.

No Refuge From A-Bomb

So he began to consider. Should he try to get transferred to some smaller institution, located in a little town? That, he considered, would not help much. He has a farm, but he is not a farmer. Should he move onto the farm immediately, learn as much as he could about farming, and plan to live there where he would be comparatively safe? The farm is far from any large city, tucked in the hills.

Then he started planning. He would have to learn a lot more than farming. He would have to learn to card wool, for instance, his wife would have to learn to spin, to weave, to make soap, to fabricate all the things you buy in stores.

He would have to lay in tools, and enough other supplies to last him the rest of his lifetime.

Well, perhaps all that could be done. Then he realized that even at that, he wouldn't be safe. He would have to build barbed wire entanglements, and obtain machine guns and other weapons with which to defend himself. . . . for with the refugees who escaped, starving, from the cities, the few who had food would be at the mercy of the hungry mobs.

If I had heard these statements from a lecture platform, or read them in a magazine, I might have passed them by as sensationalism. But the statements weren't in a magazine, or spoken from a platform. They were said over the luncheon table in the quiet corner of a club. The speaker wasn't trying to "sell" his ideas to anybody. He wasn't trying to persuade anybody to do anything, or to get publicity. He was thinking out loud about what he considered an acute personal problem.

In the end it left him baffled. There is no defense.

The only hope is to make the United Nations work.

SENATE COMMITTEE ACTS

Farm Prices Taken Out of OPA

WASHINGTON.—Power to say when price ceilings should be lifted from food and other farm products was taken away from OPA and given to Secretary of Agriculture Anderson by the senate banking committee which is considering the price control bill.

Chairman Wagner (D., N. Y.) announced after a closed meeting that the vote was 12 to 2.

Tentatively, the committee agreed on a general plan for ending the wartime controls over prices as production of goods begins catching up with demand. It embraces three main points:

1. A policy formula, proposed by Senator Barkley (D., Ky.), calling for removal of price ceilings by the end of the year on all commodities not important to business costs or to living costs, and removal of other ceilings when supply and demand reach a ratio where a price increase other than a temporary fluctuation would not result.

Independent Appeal Board.

2. Creation of an independent board of three members to which industries could appeal for removal of ceilings if the Office of Price Administration declined to lift them. This was proposed by Senator Millikin (R., Colo.).

3. Lodging of control over food and farm prices in the department of agriculture.

A subcommittee of three was appointed to put this three-point program into legislative language. The members are Senators McFarland (D., Ariz.), Fulbright (D., Ark.) and Millikin (R., Colo.). When they have completed their draft, the full committee will consider and take a formal vote on it.

Senator Bankhead (D., Ala.) sponsored the proposal to let the secretary of agriculture decide when ceilings should be lifted from farm products. Under his amendment, the secretary would advise every 30 days whether supplies of a farm commodity had reached sufficient volume so that ceilings should come off. If he decided they had, OPA would be required to lift them. The secretary also could direct a price increase for a commodity.

and be my Love

By PEGGY DERN WNU RELEASE

THE STORY THUS FAR: "I'm fond of you, Larry," Meg said quietly. "That's not enough," he replied. "There's something else?" No one else, Megan assured him, but he knew she did not love him enough. They decided to call off their engagement and wait another year. Jim MacTavish did not like that arrangement. Mrs. Stuart was first to tell Megan that her father was "running after" Alicia, and that it was "the talk of the town." Megan could not believe it—didn't want to believe it. "Folks is talkin' about Miss Jim and Miss Stevenson," Old Annie confirmed. Annie left a shirt of her father's and Meg picked it up. There was lipstick on it. She mentioned it to Jim that night.

CHAPTER IX

The next morning when she was assembling the laundry, Annie came to Megan carrying a shirt of Jim's and held it out, saying in that colorless voice, "Do I wash this one, Miss Meggie?"

Megan looked at the shirt, puzzled. And then she saw the unmistakable signs of lipstick on the collar! That of course, had been the reason Annie had brought the shirt to her—so that she might see the lipstick mark!

Megan drew a breath and said quietly, "Of course, Annie—what a silly question!"

Megan sat quietly, her hands clenched in her lap. But after all there was surely no reason why her father should not see Alicia Stevenson, if he liked—even to the extent of getting her lipstick on his shirt collar! Alicia was a widow, Jim a widower.

But that night when Annie and Amos had departed for their own two-room cabin at the back of the barn, and Megan and her father were alone in the house, Megan said quietly, "I understand, Dad, that you've been seeing a lot of Mrs. Stevenson?"

Jim looked up at her from his newspaper, and his eyes darkened with anger. "Have you any objections?" he demanded curtly.

"None at all," she answered him evenly. "It's just that I was a little surprised, that's all—to hear a thing like that from the neighbors, instead of from you."

"A thing like what?" Jim's anger had deepened. "You sound as though I'd been conducting an affair with a very charming and pleasant woman."

"I know nothing about it, except that—it seems people are talking."

"Pleasant Grove people? Do you think I give a darn what do—sum in this place talk about?"

"They are my friends," she pointed out.

"That's your own fault," he reminded her. "You don't have to live in this—this hick hole! You had a chance to get out of it."

"We're getting away from the subject, don't you think?"

"If you're prying, trying to find out about my intentions towards Mrs. Stevenson," Jim said distinctly, "I have no objection to telling you the truth. I hope to marry Mrs. Stevenson—as soon as I can persuade her! She's selling her place, and I think we can make her happy here, don't you?"

"You would bring her—here?" Megan gasped, appalled.

Jim's eyebrows went up in pretended surprise, though his eyes laughed at her.

"And where else would a man take his wife, if not to his own home?" he asked. "You aren't forgetting that it is my own home—quite as much as it is yours?"

Megan sat very still, stunned with the unexpectedness of the blow.

"Of course," Jim went on after a moment, "when Matthews was so sure he could get seven thousand for this place, Alicia and I planned to keep her place and live there, because her place won't bring over two or three thousand. But when you decided not to sell, Bill, Alicia gave the listing of hers to Matthews, and we feel sure that we can all be quite cozy here together."

Megan drew a hard breath. "You know that wouldn't work out, Dad," she said.

"I can't see why not! There's surely ample room—four big bedrooms upstairs, five rooms downstairs—why, there's room enough here for half a dozen people—"

"If there were forty rooms, there wouldn't be enough room under one roof for Alicia Stevenson and me both!" Megan told him rashly.

"I think you're taking a very unreasonable attitude, my dear," said her father gently, malice twinkling in his eyes. "After all, having Alicia here will make things much easier for you. She will take over the management of the house, while you can give all your time to your beloved farming! I think it will be a very good arrangement, all around."

"It's an impossible arrangement and you know it," Megan told him hotly.

He shrugged ever so slightly and said gently, "Oh, well, if you are going to take that attitude—" He pretended to lose interest, but Megan knew that he was alert, that he was waiting tensely for her answer.

"I know why you are doing this, Father," she said at last, one of the few times in her life calling him "Father" instead of the more endearing "Dad." "You think you will force me to consent to selling the place here—" "But, my dear girl, I thought we'd settled all that," he pointed out gently. "That's the reason Alicia decided that she might as well let Matthews see what he could do with the sale of her place. When you come to think of it, it would be rather silly to keep both—" "And you wouldn't consider sharing her place?" Megan could not stop the words in time, and knew that a frantic hope threaded them. "My dear!" her father protested, hurt. "What do you take me for? A man without pride, or the natural desire to take care of his wife? Most certainly I wouldn't consider moving into Alicia's place. This one is much larger and more comfortable and there's plenty of room. No, I think the whole arrangement is ideal. You are always so overworked with the outdoor labor in spring and summer, that I think it will be very nice to have the worry and responsibility of the housekeeping taken off your shoulders."

"It won't work, Father," she told him flatly.

There was something in the stealth, the furtiveness of his tread on the stairs—

"No?" His tone and smile were tantalizing.

"No! I'm not selling! And that's that!" she told him again, her jaw hard and set, her voice unshaken.

She got up suddenly and caught her sweater. The night was mild for winter, yet there was a dampness and a chill in it that made the sweater, and the scarf about her head very welcome, as she stepped from the back door into the yard.

The meadow was washed with thin cold moonlight, but under the trees the darkness was so intense that she had to feel her way from moonlit patch to moonlit patch—until she reached the flat stone beneath the tallest pine; and as she reached it, her heart turned over in her breast, and terror clutched at her, for a shadow moved in the darkness, and she knew that she was not alone. The next moment the shadow had moved swiftly into a patch of moonlight, and she saw it white on Tom Fallon's face.

"I frightened you—I'm sorry—" Megan managed an unsteady laugh. "And I imagine I frightened you, too," she answered him.

"Well, as a matter of fact, you did," he admitted. Then as the moonlight touched her white face he added hurriedly, concerned: "Why, what's happened? You're ill—"

"Oh, no—just—well, upset—and ever since I was a child I have brought my troubles, big and little, to this spot and tried to find a way out of them! It's a habit that's hard to break," she added with an attempted gaiety that had an almost macabre quality.

"Could—a friend help?" She shook her head.

"I—I'm afraid nobody can, really—that is, the only two people who can have no intention of doing it. I sound as confused and mixed up as I feel—so if you could just overlook it—"

And to Megan's own horror, and Tom's shocked surprise, she burst into tears!

After a stunned moment, Tom put his arm about her and held her close as though she were a frightened, bewildered child, and his soothing words were the words one would have used to a grieving child.

"My father is going to marry Alicia Stevenson," she told him, and so strong was the bond of friendship between them that it did not occur to her to be surprised that she should confide in him.

She heard him swear under his breath, but after a moment, he tried to offer comfort. "Well, of course I suppose she's a very attractive woman—and your father is lonely—"

"And she is selling her place and coming to live with us," she went on. "Oh, good Lord, you can't live with her—"

"Either that, or I have to agree to sell the farm, and she and father will live in her house."

"And you don't want to sell the farm, or go away from it?" Tom understood that without any words from her, "I've gathered since I've known you how much the place means to you—"

She found it very soothing to sit here with him. It was surprising to discover that they knew each other well enough for silence to be pleasant and companionable so that speech was unnecessary.

Gradually the silence and peace of the moon-silvered pines seemed to drift into her heart; her spirits lifted a little. Someday, somehow, she would find a solution to the problems that now loomed so terrifyingly strong and black and evil. Perhaps it was only that she was emotionally exhausted and had reached a place where she was conscious only of a lack of emotion that had replaced her grief.

They talked quietly, after that interval of peace and stillness. She asked about Martha and he told her that Martha had completely recovered. She asked hesitantly about Mrs. Fallon, and Tom told her, his mouth taut and tired, that there was no change there.

"She's—completely helpless, of course, and there is no change mentally," he added wearily.

"You mean—she can't leave her bed? Can't get around by herself?" asked Megan, remembering, with a feeling of chill, the morning when she had sat here and had watched that grotesquely posturing figure on the back lawn.

"She hasn't been out of bed in months and months," he told her heavily. "The doctors say that there is a thin chance of her recovery. That's why we can't bear to—send her away. If I had the money to pay for a private sanitarium—" He shrugged and his hands clenched into hard, tight fists. "But I can't turn her over to a state institution. Not while there is the smallest, faintest, tiniest hope that she can be made well again."

Megan asked uneasily, "But shouldn't she be having treatments?"

"She's had treatments for the past four years," Tom answered wearily. "Everything possible has been done, and a few months ago the doctors told me that the only hope was to get her away somewhere quiet, among new scenes, and just try to build up her physical condition. That might help to restore the lost mental health, but they couldn't guarantee it. She—went to pieces when our son was born—dead."

Megan said, her voice shaken and ragged with pity, "I'm so terribly sorry—"

Unconsciously, she had put out her hand to touch him, and as his hand closed over it and held it hard for a moment, she heard him mutter something—she couldn't be sure what.

They were still for a little, and Megan wondered uneasily about his saying that his wife had not been out of bed in months. She knew that she had seen her, a slim white form, the sunlight gleaming gold on her head, dancing a weird, grotesque dance—a dance interrupted by Martha, who had taken the white figure into the house.

Did Tom know, she wondered? Did he try to conceal the fact that his wife was not a helplessly bedridden invalid, in the hope of convincing people that, while she was a "mental case," she was completely harmless? Of course, he and Martha were doing everything but manly possible to keep anybody in Pleasant Grove from knowing that his wife was a "mental case"—

She stood up suddenly and said, "I have to go—I shouldn't have come, at all, but habit is strong."

"I'm glad you did," Tom told her quietly. "And I hope you didn't mind finding me here."

"Of course not. There's room on the Ridge for both of us—and who knows? Maybe we'll both find solutions to our problems here."

She answered as she turned to go. "No, you mustn't come with me—"

"Only to the fence," Tom told her. "From there on, you have the moonlight clear to your back door and I can watch until you go into the house and know that you're safe."

There was a look in his face that made the protest stop on her lips. She nodded and they walked together to the fence. When she had crossed the meadow and stood at the little foot-log that bridged the small, busy creek, she turned to look back and saw him still standing there. She threw up her arms in a little gesture that said good night and caught the flicker of his return gesture. And then with her heart considerably lighter than it had been when she left the house, she went back in and up the stairs to her own room.

The house was dark and silent. There was no thread of light beneath her father's door, and she was surprised, when she reached her own room, to discover that she'd been gone two hours.

Come up to Cool COLORADO

By EDWARD EMERINE WNU Features.

"OLD!" The magic word was spoken. It was heard and repeated. Gold in Colorado for the taking. Nuggets as big as turkey eggs all over the mountains. As the story traveled, it was embellished in retelling. Overnight in 1858, "Pikes Peak or Bust" became the nation's slogan.

Men of every nationality, occupation and station in life joined the Pikes Peak gold rush, one of the great mass migrations in America's history. They swarmed into the Colorado mountains, whooping it up as they went. In their wake followed farmers to settle in the fertile valleys. From Texas, across the open grasslands were driven herds of longhorn cattle.

Down south in Georgia, W. Green Russell heard about it. He organized a party of 30 or 40 miners and set out for the Pikes Peak region, hardly sleeping until he reached the banks of the South Platte and made camp. Within a month he had been joined by 400 others and the settlement was dignified by the name Auraria, in honor of Russell's town back in Georgia.

Thousands of others were on their way. A year later General Larimer crossed Cherry creek, took possession of some cabins, and named the settlement Denver City, in honor of Gen. James W. Denver, governor of Kansas. (At that time, Colorado—as yet unnamed—was a part of Kansas territory.) Wild days followed on that 960-acre townsite. Thousands of excited people thronged the dusty streets.

Soon Denver was the Mecca of the Mountains. A printing plant was brought from Omaha, and the Rocky Mountain News made its debut (1859). Soon thereafter the Herald was founded. The files of those early-day newspapers tell a story of lusty life in Denver, of gambling, Indian scares and promised riches for all men.

The Denver scene was re-enacted

JOHN C. VIVIAN Governor of Colorado Gov. John C. Vivian was born in Golden, Colo., not far from Denver and state capital. He is a graduate of the University of Denver. His profession is law. He served as lieutenant governor from 1936 to 1942.

SUGAR BEET FACTORY . . . At Brighton, Colorado is a leading producer of sugar, made from sugar beets.

ed a hundred times. Boom towns grew overnight at Cripple Creek, Leadville, Central City. Greeds and scores of other places. Prospectors clambered over the hills. Nuggets were found. Rich veins of ore were uncovered. There were millionaires created—Winfield Scott Stratton, H. A. W. Tabor (of "Silver Dollar" fame) and others. Men blustered, gambled, drank, fought and died during the score of years that followed.

But slowly the truth about Colorado emerged. The facts were not all pleasant ones. The territory was incredibly rich—there was no doubt of that. There were great stores of silver and gold. There were rich and fertile soils. There were other resources—lumber, coal, building stone and a marvelous climate. There was deep snow in the mountains, but there was little rainfall on the plains. The nuggets were soon picked up. The "free" gold was gone and hard-rock mining had come to stay. Gold and silver were buried deep in the granite, defying quick wealth. Men who had sought a soft and easy life were confronted with stark reality. Colorado was no Garden of Eden. They would have to work—and work hard—for whatever they got. And they couldn't live on fresh air and mountain scenery.

Colorado weighed each man among them to find his worth. There was work to be done, and it took strong men to do it. The weaklings, the ne'er-do-wells, the misfits were eliminated. They departed with a curse on their lips and hatred in their hearts. Those with courage, strength, hope and vision stayed.

First, the miners set to work. They did not know the extent of mineral reserves in the Colorado Rockies—and they still don't know. Many veins have been merely tapped and new ones are constantly being discovered. In spite of all obstacles, Coloradans have dug and blasted three billion dollars' worth of precious and industrial metals from the granite war-houses within its borders. More than 250 minerals have been discovered within the state, between 35 and 50 of them now being extracted for market. Colorado is first among the states in vanadium and uranium, third in gold, fourth in tungsten, fifth in silver, sixth in lead, seventh in copper and fifteenth in zinc. It leads the world in molybdenum production.

These Coloradans probed and blasted and swore, as they went deeper and deeper into the granite treasure chest. In 1862, A. M. Cassidy drilled in a canyon near Florence and struck oil, after petroleum had been found bubbling on the surface of Oil creek. They found Colorado shales containing enough recoverable oil to equal present production for 50 years. The recently opened Rangely oil field on the western slope is the most sensational find in years. Natural gas was discovered over a wide area, and helium gas struck in Las Animas county.

Beneath the surface of the good earth they found coal, too—enough of it to last the nation for 700 years! Colorado ranks first among the states in coal reserves, most of them in the San Juan basin, Moffat county, all along the Utah border and extending under the foothills on the eastern slope from the Wyoming border to New Mexico.

The Colorado plainsmen were sifted, too, and the unfit were blown out, starved out and sent back home. Where there is life there must be water—every Coloradoan knows that. Cowmen, sheepmen, beet growers, truck gardeners, fruit growers, hay ranchers and general farmers must have water. They got it. They dug wells deep in the ground. They constructed dams in the canyons to store the melted snow; they dug canals and ditches; they irrigated the rich, thirsty soil.

They homesteaded in the Great American desert and they made it bloom. The beet and potato industry around Greeley, founded by the old Union colony, is a monument to pioneers in irrigation. All along the South Platte basin, from Denver and Fort Collins to Sterling and Julesburg, is a mighty agricultural empire. The Arkansas river waters developed a famed valley that produced beets, melons, fruit and garden truck for the nation. From Canon City through Rocky Ford to Lamar and the Kansas line is another agricultural wonder brought about by irrigation.

In between the rivers, the non-irrigated farms and ranches now produce wheat, corn, hay, beans, potatoes and other crops. Thousands of head of sheep and cattle are grown and dairying is statewide. The Western Slope, the San Luis valley, and all mountainous areas below timberline are havens for farms, ranches and orchards. Snow-capped peaks often look down on blossoms in the valley below.

With raw materials near at hand, Colorado progressed industrially too. Mills were built to process the ores. Steel plants grew up at Pueblo, the Pittsburgh of the Snow Mass Lake and Haggerman Peak, near Glenwood Springs.

Rockies. Colorado has foundries, brick kilns, canning plants, sugar factories, food processing plants, creameries, cheese factories and scores of other manufacturing plants. Colorado's granite, marble, limestone, sandstone and lavas are known to builders the world around. Sawmills still flourish near its great forests.

Colorado clasped its riches tightly to its bosom and said, "you can have them—if you deserve them." The men and women of Colorado accepted the challenge. They conquered the mountains and plains. They built cities and factories and schools. They blasted highways out of solid granite. They made it easy for others to "Come Up to Cool Colorado," where the sublimity of the Rockies inspired Katherine Lee Bates to write "America the Beautiful."

Pikes Peak, the monarch which watches over the plains.

(This is a weekly question and answer service on current veterans' problems furnished by the Veterans Administration)

Q. Can an honorably discharged member of the Women's Army Corps obtain hospital treatment in a Veterans Administration hospital?

A. Yes, former female members of the armed forces are entitled to the same treatment as male war veterans.

Q. Does National Service Life Insurance contain any restrictive provisions respecting military service, occupation, or travel which might limit the protection under the insurance retained after discharge from service?

A. No.

Q. Under what conditions may National Service life insurance premium be waived by the government on account of total disability?

A. All National Service life insurance policies contain a provision for the waiver of payment of premiums, upon application by the insured, during the continuous total disability of the insured which continues or has continued for 6 or more consecutive months, provided such disability commenced subsequent to the date of his application for insurance, while the insurance was in force under premium-paying conditions and prior to the insured's sixtieth birthday.

Q. How does a noncitizen veteran apply for naturalization? A. If the veteran has been honorably discharged, he may apply at the nearest office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service or at the nearest post office for complete information.

Q. What are the requirements for a pension payable to World War 2 veterans for service-connected disabilities?

A. Pension may be paid for disability incurred in, or aggravated by, active service in World War 2, in line of duty, according to the degree of disability shown. Pension is not payable if the disability is the result of the veteran's own willful misconduct.

Americanism?

There is no mystery in Americanism. It is the warrant that any man may be Master of his Fate and Captain of his Soul.

The National Americanism Endowment Fund, headed by President Truman, is asking the Americans of Texas to contribute $450,000.00 toward the national goal of a $15,000,000 trust fund to further a broad—and urgent—program of widespread education in the fundamentals of Constitutional Americanism. Make your check payable to The American Legion—Americanism Endowment Fund—Austin, Texas.

The veteran must have a discharge under conditions other than dishonorable.

SIDELIGHTS
FROM WASHINGTON

By George Mahon

My mail from our District indicates widespread approval of the quick action of the House of Representatives in passing legislation to stop the paralyzing railroad strike. Within two hours after the President addressed the joint session of Congress we had passed the bill requested by him.

The railroad unions are made up of the very highest type of American citizens. They did a great job during the war. The union organizations were 18 to 2 against the strike. It was principally the stubbornness of one man, Mr. A. F. Whitney, that produced the disastrous situation. A country that cannot protect itself against utter chaos is in a bad shape. I am convinced that the quick action of the House gave hope and encouragement to a great majority of the American people.

The American people have been kicked around by such tyrants as John L. Lewis until their patience is threadbare. People generally do not have time and opportunity to read the Congressional Record and they cannot understand why more effective action was not taken against racketeers in industry and labor months ago.

The fact is that before the war, during the war, and since the war, the House of Representatives passed legislation to meet the situation but the legislation has usually died in the Senate. However, the Senate has now passed the Case Bill which was approved months ago by the House, and the bill has gone to the White House.

Those of us who voted for the bill to stop Mr. Whitney's paralyzing railroad strike have been threatened by Mr. Whitney, and he has also insulted the American people. In commenting on those of us who voted for the bill, Mr. Whitney, according to the Associated Press, said:

"My Board of Directors already has authorized me to spend $2,500,000 to defeat the members of Congress who have voted for the shackling labor legislation Mr. Truman has proposed. We mean to defeat every member of Congress who voted for that bill."

The C. I. O. continues to breathe out threats against those who have advocated and are advocating remedial legislation. What we desperately need in America today is government in the public interest—not government by pressure groups who threaten legislators and insult the intelligence and patriotism of the people. Minority groups are entitled to be heard in America and they are entitled to a fair deal and every legitimate right, but they are not entitled to run roughshod over the majority.

There is no perfect answer to all the problems which beset our country. But one thing is sure—this Nation cannot safely go forward without the adoption of a more clear-cut and workable Labor-Industry policy—a policy which will safeguard the best interests of the American people.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Martin spent the first of this week in Dallas on business.

Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Morgan spent from Sunday until Tuesday with relatives in Ballinger.

ELEANOR ALTHOF WEDS KANSAS MAN MAY 21
Miss Elnora Althof, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Althof of Roscoe, became the bride of Mr. Arnold Peters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Peters of Greensburg, Kansas, at 5 o'clock Tuesday evening, May 21, in the Champion Baptist Church. The Rev. Sam A. Bonetati, pastor of the church, read the double ring ceremony.

The bride wore a white satin gown with a fingertip veil. The gown fashioned with a sweet heart neckline, has a fitted bodice with sequin trim. Sequins were sprinkled on the bodice. She carried an arm bouquet of white carnations with a white satin streamer. For something old she wore her maternal grand mother's three strand pearls. For something borrowed she wore a bridal wreath belonging to her aunt, Mrs. G. R. Baumann. The bride was attended by her only sister, Frances Althof, who was matron of honor. She was dressed in a pink gown with a shoulder corsage of blue iris. Miss Mildred Peters, sister of the groom, was bride's maid. She was dressed in a blue gown with a shoulder corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. Wilbert Althof, brother of the bride, who was recently discharged from the armed service after seven months overseas, and Mr. Bennie Peters, brother of the groom, served as best men.

Miss Frances Classen, niece of the groom, was ring bearer. She wore a white satin gown with a white carnation as her shoulder corsage. Albert Hrbacek, Jr. and Edgar Baumann, both recently discharged from the armed service, were ushers.

Miss Laura Althof, aunt of the bride, played the wedding march.

The church altar was banked with flowers and ferns.

The bride is a 1945 graduate of the Roscoe High School. The groom is a 1941 graduate of the Greensburg High School.

A reception was held on the lawn at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony.

The dining room table was laid with an ecru lace table cloth where gifts were laid. A beautiful hydrangea was used as the centerpiece. The bride's attendants opened the gifts and Mrs. Charles Holderman registered them in a beautiful bridal book, and they were then shown to the guests.

Guests present were Messrs. and Mmes. K. J. Althof and Laura, Emil Althof and family, Willie Landfried, O. C. Gabler and family, Henry Sauer, Fritz Sauer and daughter, A. A. Gabler, Ben Mueller, Aruther Marth and son, Richard Sauer and family, Karl Kafer and family, Morgan Wright, Bruce Newton, Charles Holderman, W. I. Morris and daughter, E. O. Mahon and family, R. L. Gus Baumann and sons, C. H. Hackfeld and sons, Otto Hackfeld and family, and Mrs. F. H. Baumann of Lorraine; Messrs. and Mmes. Albert Hrbacek, Sr. and sons, Bob Mills, Oscar Sjostrom of Sweetwater; Messrs. and Mmes. Abe Peters and family, Jake Peters, Frank Classen and daughter, and Mrs. Elizabeth Friwert, all of Greensburg, Kansas; Mrs. Alfred Schnaffner of Henrietta, Texas; Mr. Alex Millne of Reno, Nevada.

Those sending gifts were Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Whisnant and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Gracey and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Edd Gabler, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Rannefeld and family, all of Roscoe; Mr. and Mrs. Alex Klas and daughters of Lamesa, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Kiphen of Houston; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Massier and family of Crawford; Mrs. Maartin Freyer and family of Olesby; Mr. and Mrs. Herman Aucutt of Clovis, N. M.; Mr. and Mrs. Pete Andrian and family of Dallas; and Mrs. J. A. Ziegler of Sweetwater.

The couple left for Carlsbad, New Mexico, and other points in New Mexico before returning to Greensburg, Kansas, where they will make their home.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Apprenticeship Training Plans for Veterans

State approved labor-management committees are now recognized by the veterans' administration as institutions eligible to provide apprenticeship courses for veterans under Public Law 16, for disabled veterans, and under the G.I. bill of rights.

The committees when approved by the appropriate state agency will be responsible for: (1) acceptance of applications for veterans training; (2) determination of establishments in which training is to be provided; (3) arranging for placement of veteran and (4) assurance the establishment is providing a standard course.

Veterans administration commitments on homes under the guaranty provisions of the G.I. bill now amount to $134,545,000, on business loans, $6,814,000, and on farms, $2,721,205. Of 97,728 applications for loans received up to February 23, 81,632 were approved. There were 73,553 applications for loans on homes approved, 2,233 on farms and 5,576 on business loans.

Approximately one in four of the 10,610,000 veterans discharged as of March 1, have enrolled for readjustment compensation and survey shows that the average veterans only draw about five or six weeks' allowance. Approximately 2,500,000 have received compensation and less than half that number are currently enrolled. Some 500,000 withdrew their claims before receiving first checks. This indicates the peak of demobilization has passed and that veterans are rapidly obtaining jobs, the VA said.

Questions and Answers

Q. My brother, after being discharged last March, 1945, from the marines for wounds received on Guam, is now called to the hospital for observation for 30 days. Will his wife and children receive any allotment or aid from the government while he is there?—Reader, Webster, Mass.

A. If your brother was actually separated from the marines and obtained his honorable discharge, the answer is no. The general rule is that he cannot be discharged unless he is physically fit. It could be that some repair job was done and surgeons wanted to check it at the end of a year.

Q. My son enlisted in the navy in May, 1945. He had an allotment paper made out and sent to me, but at the time I did not feel that I really needed it and did not fill out the questionnaire. Ever since he had this paper sent to me he has only received a small amount of his pay. What can he do to get his full pay check?—Mrs. P. C. Orrick, Mo.

A. The navy department says there is no paper for the wife or mother to fill out. If the allotment, however, has been deducted from his pay, write to Field Services, Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, Navy Department, Cleveland, Ohio, giving serial number, name, duty and rate.

Q. My husband and I have been separated six years. He has a bonus from World War I that has never been cashed. He left it with me and said it was mine. He is now in very poor health with a heart ailment. In case of death, could I cash this and if so, how?—Mrs. H. R. R., Battle Creek, Mich.

A. The veterans' administration says this is a legal question. In general the bonus would go to the legal heirs or assigns of the veteran. Suggest that you write to your nearest veterans administration office and give them full particulars, or consult your attorney.

Q. My husband has chronic arthritis of the spine and right hip and is totally disabled. He is only rated 20 per cent and thinks he should receive more. He was denied more over a year ago. How can he get his pension raised?—Mrs. T. O. G., Milwaukee, Wis.

A. There is a sub-regional veterans administration board in Milwaukee. Suggest you appeal your case to this board. You have right of appeal.

Q. My son volunteered for the navy in November, 1941. He has spent 45 months overseas. I want to know if he is eligible for a discharge or state-side duty and if so who does he get in touch with?—Mrs. J. B. Foxworth, Miss.

A. A general rule is that a "tour of duty" at sea is 24 months when he would become eligible for shore duty in the States. It is, however, up to the theater commander and depends on whether your son enlisted in the regular navy before Pearl Harbor or was drafted afterwards.

Rena Louise Taylor left last week for Fresno, California, where she will do special work for the Baptist Home Mission Board this summer. Miss Taylor taught in the Coahoma school since Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Richey and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hallmark visited Mrs. Richey's mother, Mrs. Laura Clark, in Christoval Saturday night and Sunday. Mrs. Richey remained there for this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Claud Neeley of Seagraves spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Mayes.

RADIO—And remember, folks, to get one of those 20 new sedans being given away by Twigg's Deodorant. You just send in a four-line jingle on body odors... just a four-line jingle and four cents in stamps... Every week 20 lucky persons see a brand new 1946 sedan roll up to their door.

Mother—Now how do you explain that? If they can give twenty cars a week away as prizes in a radio contest I should think that you...

Dad—Now, please, don't make me go into that again!

Mother (a little later)—I don't know whether to call a doctor or not.

Dad—What's wrong?

Mother—All those bruises and contusions?

Dad—What bruises and contusions?

Mother—Oh, I got 'em yesterday in one of those nylon lines. It was awful.

Dad—Did you get any nylons?

Mother—No; thousands were turned away. The supply is still terribly limited, you know...

RADIO—And now, folks, for further details in our wonderful contest in which 5,000 pairs of nylons will be distributed absolutely free to the women of America!... All you do is send in a 25-word essay on why you use Zafex for bleeding gums... Merely send in a 25-word essay and the six box tops and win a dozen pairs of nylons...

Dad (with sarcasm)—Supply scarce, did you say, honey?

Mother—Now I know I'll have to call the doctor! Those bruises hurt more than ever.

Dad (at the phone)—I can't get a doctor. They all say they won't be free for weeks.

RADIO—Do you want a doctor? Are you feeling indisposed? Clip the tops of four boxes of Daby's new face cream and win a doctor's visit.

Mom and Pop—Awahh-h-h-h!

Merrily We Roll Along

A National Highway Safety conference is being held in Washington, with its main object safer auto driving. Well, we think its emblem would be four slices of baloney floating in a dish of applesauce. Everybody knows that the incredibly reckless driving and the hundreds of tragedies every day are due chiefly to three facts:

1. Few states make more than a pretense of an adequate test for auto drivers, seven out of ten of whom don't even know the elemental rules of the road.
2. Not a community in America has police enough to make a real war on reckless drivers, and the cops now on the job are almost helpless, due to the fact the courts let the reckless drivers off with piddling fines.
3. Big cities, especially New York, permit flagrantly dangerous speeds on crowded streets day in and day out, with the traffic cops apparently loving it.

"Orson Welles has written a musical with forty scenes, calling for 'much activity among the audiences.'"—News Item.

If a good title is wanted how about "Welles-A-Poppin'?"

VANISHING AMERICANS

"The government won't stand for it."

"Let's see, you had two beers and gave me a quarter; you got 15 cents coming back."

"We'll get married first and find a place to live afterwards."

"Ask for our 25-cent steak sandwich."

Models, style parades and the distribution of nylons are now features at Yankee stadium ball games. We expect to hear of a pitcher taken out for a bailing beauty any day now.

CAN YOU REMEMBER—

Away back when you could take the car to a service station and have the carbon cleaned for less than the cost of a new auto?

Congress Lacks Courage To Solve Our Problems

I WALKED ACROSS the broad, beautiful lawns of Lafayette park with its century-old trees, toward the White House. The fountain playing in the foreground beyond the high iron fence, flowers in bloom, sun bright, peaceful, as traffic rolled leisurely up and down Pennsylvania avenue. I flashed my pass at the gate, and the guard waved me up the paved driveway toward the White House press room.

It wasn't a good press conference. I felt sorry for the President, a little embarrassed. For here he was, heading the world's most powerful nation... the world's biggest government... the world's only great Democracy and he was, figuratively, wringing his hands.

Why was he wringing his hands? There is only one answer. Because the world's most powerful nation, the world's biggest government and the world's only great Democracy is not united behind him. Our power is being clipped and hacked until other nations who stood shoulder to shoulder with us are fearful. Our legislative branch of the government is cringing, supine, and there is not a vestige of leadership apparent on either side of the political fence. What little legislation that is enacted is shot-gun legislation, worse than none.

And our great Democracy, under test at this moment as never before in history... watched by the rest of the world... is apparently futile, running in circles, seemingly rudderless... without unity, tackling this way and that with every gust of a willful wind.

Selfishness in Saddle

Why? Because personal selfishness is rampant... because arrogant labor leaders grasp at moments of national opportunity to seek more power... because members of congress are afraid to face facts... because farmers refuse to sell grain at parity prices even when their government offers a bonus, to feed starving fellow human beings... because ranchers and cattle raisers sell meat to the black market so they can get more than ceiling prices... because every mother's son of us will buy from the black market or any place else in our scramble to get what we want when we want it... because manufacturers withhold goods from market waiting for inflation prices... because industrial and business leaders grab the opportunity created by selfishness of labor leaders to penalize all labor... because congress, stung, as John L. Lewis single-handed, defies the government and slows up the reconstruction program in his grab for power and money, fiddles and "deliberates"... because business men in their mad grab for more money would tear away the last vestige of controls for a shibboleth they have named "free enterprise" which is not freedom but license—and so we are quarreling and squabbling and stumbling and staggering... and the world which looked toward this nation as the hope of the world... the one great, firm rock... now gasps with amazement and horror, their hopes rapidly fading.

'And We Jitterbug'

We have wealth, the productive capacity in field and factory, the raw materials, the manpower, the know-how, the consumer demand, the world demand, we have everything including the amputees, the soul weary veterans, the lame and halt-wounded, the hospitalized victims of a world war... and we have the ideal for a quarter of a million of them died. We have the atomic bomb with which a warring congress is afraid to deal... and all humanity fears a craven man with a gun in his hand... and we jitterbug. We are deadlocked everywhere along every front... our secretary of state makes commitments and our congress knocks the props from under him and members of the armed forces. If congress had deliberately set out to sabotage and hamstring our foreign policy they could have done nothing more injurious than what they did do by voting their own personal selfishness on the selective service bill, responding to election year pressures.

At this particular time in the world's history there is no substitute for strength and this most powerful nation is showing nothing but weakness... all brought about by personal selfishness and intolerance. And when you watch this thing first hand... as it is unfolded here in Washington, it is not a pretty thing to see, nor to contemplate. Are we going to let the rest of the world down... are we going to let ourselves down... for what is happening is there for all to see... it's in your town and on your farm and it's here in Washington.

Kathleen Norris Says: "Do You Know What You Want?"

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

"We did carpentering, painting, gardening, built walls and window-boxes and a bathroom, and had more fun than we ever had."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

SOME women know what they want. Others only know what they don't want.

The difference is that between happiness and unhappiness, failure and success. The negative attitude destroys. The positive attitude always constructs.

The woman who only knows what she doesn't want talks to you somewhat like this:

"Yes, my dear, we unlucky Bakers are still in the same dreadful apartment—I dislike that school intensely, but I'm keeping the children there, and there's no use moving. Harry's worried about bills and he says we've got to economize if we expect to find a better place, but you simply can't these days. No, he's still with Miller and Miller; dreadful—they pay the lowest salaries in town, but there's no help for it. It's bills—we seem haunted by bills. I hate them as much as anyone, but what can you do?"

This woman hates everything in her life: her house, her clothes, her meals, dishwashing and ironing and bedmaking—and she does nothing about it. Presently she begins to blame her husband for the whole thing; she convinces herself that she never really loved him, and honestly feels that any change would be for the better. She simply can't stand things the way they are any longer. So another home goes on the rocks simply because the mother and wife takes the negative instead of the positive attitude.

Cure Is in Your Heart. If you happen to be one of the women who doesn't want anything she has, but at the same time hasn't formed any definite picture of what she does want, the cure for you lies entirely in your own heart and mind. This is one of the miracles of life, and it is a pity not to take advantage of it.

In other words, stop thinking of what you don't want, and begin to think of what you do want. It sounds simple, but it takes some courage, some imagination, some consistency to begin.

Once you get started, everything is smooth sailing. Your husband becomes not an obstruction and an enemy, but a partner. The things you dislike in your life become only so many upgrades to be passed on the road. When you get to the top of the slope, you get a finer view. "We pulled ourselves up by our own bootstraps," says a man's letter, which reached me this week. "Everything was going wrong with Tess and me, when she wrote you. Your so-much-older-advice sounded rather romantic and impracticable, at first, but we tried it. You said first to look the money question squarely in the eye; this was hard. I wasted in my way and Tess hated any supervision of her expenditures. But we faced it, decided where we could cut, and took our two boys, then aged 7 and 9, into our councils. My salary was $300 a month, with no rent to pay. Our bills totaled $2,400. It scared us, and we decided that Tess should take part-time work until they were paid. This ended the divorce idea we'd both been entertaining in a half-hearted sort of way. The boys' spending money came down with a rush; we paid off all but $200 in bills in six months and began to buy government bonds. We talked of nothing but a small country place, cost around $6,000 and one day we found it, shabby, unloved in for years, rather remote, but priced at $3,400. We jumped at it, did painting, carpentering, gardening, built walls and paths, window-boxes and a bathroom, and had more fun than we've ever had in our lives. That was two years ago; we're out of debt now, the new 'busline runs by our corner, we've been offered $11,000 for our property and wouldn't dream of selling.

Everything Rosy Now. "My salary is now $400 and Tess and the boys sell sandwiches and mugs of coffee for 25 cents all day Saturday and Sunday to passersby, down under the trees at the gate. Last season they put more than $900 in the bank, and the boys' college expenses are safe.

"We were a negative, unsatisfied, crowded family in a five-room flat, four years ago, a family that knew what it didn't want, but had no idea what it did.

"We were still crowded, in debt, worried, unsympathetic, when we sat down to face the situation and begin to say 'we do,' instead of 'we don't.' Now we are independent, strong, our boys normal happy youngsters, and my wife and I more united than we were when we were bride and groom. We've lately been joined by a young lady who takes it for granted that we think her more precious than the Koh-i-noor diamond, and she is right."

This is a true letter, and the fact is true, too. Change from thinking what you don't want to thinking what you do want, and watch your life shape into a similar miracle.

TRAINING FOR SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 6:7-13; Luke 10:1, 2, 14:23-27.

MEMORY SELECTION—And he that taketh not his cross, and followeth after me, is not worthy of me.—Matthew 10:38.

Workers for God, and with God! Such is the high privilege of the men and women who respond to his call and who go out to witness for him.

On the one side, we have a world desperately in need of the gospel, perhaps more so than any generation in history. On the other hand, we have the gospel of the saving grace of God in Christ Jesus, the only solution to the problems of mankind, the perfect answer to man's need.

How shall these two be brought together? By sending out witnesses to tell the glad tidings of redemption and peace. Where shall we find these witnesses? In the church, for only the believer in Christ is qualified to tell others of his saving grace.

Our lesson, in telling of the Lord's calling and sending forth laborers into his harvest field, gives us much helpful instruction regarding service for the Lord. We learn that:

I. God Provides for His Workers (Mark 6:7-10)

Jesus sent out his twelve disciples two by two, thus providing every worker with fellowship and help in hours of discouragement and trial. This also served to keep a man in balance so that he would not become self-willed and proud of his own achievements.

It was a wise provision. Perhaps the church should have observed it with more care, and thus have saved some good workers from going astray.

They were not to be cumbered with extra equipment, nor be concerned about their daily sustenance: The Lord would provide through the hospitality and generosity of his people.

Note that the expected hospitality was not to be allowed to hinder their work (cf. v. 10 with Luke 10:7). Many a preacher or evangelist has ruined a series of meetings by letting social life hinder prayer, soul-winning, or preparation for preaching.

II. God Gives Power to His Workers (Mark 6:7, 11-13)

He gave them authority over evil spirits, so that they could drive them out. He gave them power, to heal; he gave them power to preach effectively.

The man who goes forth to speak for the Lord does not have to muster up his own puny powers or depend on the weak arm of some human helper. His resources are infinite and omnipotent. He speaks for the Almighty God. He has a message with saving power.

All too often the servants of the Lord are apologetic and hesitant in their ministry. They mistake weakness for meekness, and in their desire not to assert themselves, they fail to speak a ringing, "Thus saith the Lord."

We need a revival of authoritative preaching, of that holy boldness which was not afraid to rebuke sin and its unwillingness to do the Lord's will (v. 11). We need a new emphasis on repentance (v. 12).

III. God Calls Helpers for His Workers (Luke 10:1, 2)

After the twelve were sent out, he called and commissioned the seventy. That blessed process has gone on ever since. How blessed it is that even in our day of unbelief and sin, hundreds of young men and women are going out to all the mission fields of the world to work with older and experienced missionaries.

Perhaps these words will be read by some young man or woman who has felt the promptings of the Spirit of God to go into his service. Step out by faith just now, and begin to prepare yourself for God's service. If the writer of these notes can be of help to you, do not hesitate to write to him. God is looking for more workers.

Do not overlook the important admonition in verse 2. The Lord is waiting for his people to pray for laborers for fields which stand white and ready for harvest.

IV. God Requires Self-Denial of His Workers (Luke 14:25-27)

The mighty works and the powerful words of Jesus made it impossible for people to ignore him. Multitudes followed him, but he, knowing the fickleness of the human heart, faced them with the real demands of discipleship.

The Lord was never concerned with mere numbers. He wanted followers whose hearts were right. The church has broken down its testimony in the world by its frantic desire for more members, great crowds, large church buildings, at the expense of compromise of testimony.

The requirement of the Lord is unmistakable. A man or woman who is to serve him must put him first. No worldly ambition or earthly friendship, no, not even the tender love of family, can come between the Lord and his servant. He is either Lord of all, or he is not lord at all.
