UNDER NEW BUDGET

Air Force Cuts Surplus Officers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27—UP—A special Air Force board is looking over personnel rosters to winnow out some 4,000 "surplus" reserve officers.

The other services are also trimming their ranks of large numbers of reserve officers, to make room for graduating classes of Reserve Officer Training Corps men and also to get their manpower within limits dictated by the new defense budget.

The Air Force board has already studied its colonel- and lieutenant colonel lists in certain specialized skills to find men who will be ousted against their will.

The 4,000 officers now being tabbed for discharge are in addition to 6,500 who have already received notices that they must get out in 60 days. These 6,500 were picked on the basis of their efficiency reports. The remaining 4,000 will be released, not on the basis of their performance, but because they occupy jobs which the board feels can be eliminated.

Certain specialists, such as pilots and physicians, will not be considered for discharge.

The armed forces, generally, are unhappy about the cutbacks. The officers being returned to civilian life against their will are, mostly, reserves who had planned to stay in uniform. When Congress cut appropriations for the services, it meant a cut in strength.

The reduction comes as Defense Department leaders are crying their best young regular officers are leaving in alarming numbers because of congressional cuts in such extra privileges as commissary rights and medical care for dependents.

Thus, the Defense Department is in a position of trying to attract more officers while at the same time forcing others to leave.

Ike's Cable Encourages Iran's Shah

DENVER, Aug. 27 —UP—The White House Thursday announced President Eisenhower has sent a message of encouragement to the Shah of Iran in a cable certain to be interpreted as holding promise of American assistance.

"In the spirit of the friendliness which has always been the basis for the relations of our two countries," the President cabled the Shah, "I offer you my sincere felicitations on the occasion of your happy return to your country. . ."

The President also extended his "continuing good wishes for every success in your effort to promote the prosperity of your people and to preserve the independence of Iran."

The message was dispatched to U.S. Ambassador Loy Henderson in Iran several days ago for relay to the Shah. The White House Wednesday night received word the message had been delivered.

Reporters covering the summer White House here immediately asked the President's staff whether the message means the United States would meet the Shah's request for immediate financial assistance to relieve the depletion of his national treasury.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the White House at present had nothing to say about matters involving aid or assistance in any form.

New Courts Not Busy

Only one of the four justices of the peace in Gray County today had the equipment for holding a Small Claims Court—and he was scheduled to go on a week's vacation Friday.

One docket book—complete with 100 copies each of citations, subpoenas and claim statements—is in the county and it came to Justice of the Peace D. R. Henry who leaves Friday for vacation.

Not one of the other three justices—J. V. Andrews, Pampa; E. A. Vance, Lefors, and J. C. Claborn, McLean—was reported this morning to have received any of the supplies necessary for the conducting of the new civil court.

Explaining that he had received his material late Wednesday afternoon, Henry said that one Pampan told him he had 25 cases to file. But Henry asked him to file only "six or eight" a week—otherwise, there'd be too many cases at the same time on the docket.

United Fund Work Enters Second Day

Pampa's four United Fund census-takers today were on their second day of contacting the heads of local business and professional houses, following the 179 contacts they made the first day.

According to Paul Brown, chairman of the 1953 drive, they will visit all of the estimated 550-600 such concern—including city and county offices—with the purpose of getting data "to formulate plans for the conduct of the United Fund."

"They probably won't finish up the job till sometime next week," Brown said today, pointing out that as the girls begin working the concerns farther away from the general downtown area it will take them longer.

Brown was particularly gratified by the "pretty good cooperation" that local merchants were giving the census-takers, though he admitted—sadly—that "some of them seemed never to have heard of the United Fund."

Reds Bar Berlin

BERLIN, Aug. 27 —UP—The Soviets and East German Communists Thursday put Berlin "off limits" to all East Germans seeking to reach the city to collect "Eisenhower food parcels."

Sale of railway tickets to points within 50 miles of the city was banned.

Soviet troops were posted on roads leading to the city.

These strict measure were taken as the United States and West German governments opened the second phase of a free food distribution program in the American, British and French sectors of this city—110 miles behind the Iron Curtain.

The ban on railway travel to Berlin was reported by the West Berlin railway administration.

Reports of Beatings

East Germans who ran the blockade reported that Communist "strong arm squads" were beating up East Germans who attempted to collect the prized food packages.

In spite of the strict Soviet controls, western authorities estimated 100,000 East Germans managed to reach West Berlin Thursday. This brought to nearly 3 million the number of free food parcels distributed since the program began. The second phase of the plan, which opened Thursday, will supply a million additional parcels of American food to East Germans.

The isolation of West Berlin from the surrounding Soviet zone was ordered even as U.S. High Commissioner James B. Conant appealed to the Soviets to lift the Iron Curtain to permit Germans to travel freely between East and West Germany.

Asked Restrictions Be Eased

He recommended the immediate removal of travel restrictions which prevent Germans in the Soviet occupied zone from seeing how the other half — the Germans in the U. S, British and French Zones — live.

The Soviet restrictions also prohibit 50 million West Germans from visiting the eastern one-third of their homeland except with hard-to-get, special Soviet permits.

Conant, in a letter to the Soviet high commissioner, V. S. Semyenov, said "the continuation of the system of interzonal passes between our respective zones has, in my view, no justification."

Son's 2nd POW Release Confirms Mother's Faith

COLORADO SPRINGS, Aug. 27—A grizzled farmer said Thursday the news of his son's second release from a prisoner of war camp confirmed his dead wife's strong faith in God.

The farmer, Omar Kaessner of Black Forest, Colo., grinned broadly when reporters told him his son, Sgt. Millard (Buddy) Kaessner, 30, was released after 34 months in a Korean prison camp.

Sgt. Kaessner spent 16 months during World War II in a Nazi prison camp after his capture at Anzio beachhead in Italy.

Kaessner's mother won't be at the door to greet her son when he arrives. She died two days after learning of his capture in Korea nearly three years ago.

Omar Kaessner said his wife was dying when word came their son was captured at Chosin Reservoir in Korea Nov. 5, 1950. He said he withheld the news for two days until the family physician advised him to tell her.

"The good Lord brought him back once before and he will bring him back again," Mrs. Kaessner said simply.

NAMES RESULT IN ROMANCE

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 27—UP—Miss Jerry McConkey is going to become Mrs. Jerry McConkey next June.

Miss McConkey, of Topeka, met Mr. McConkey, of Quinter, Kan., at a college in McPherson, midway between their two towns.

Intrigued by their common name, they got together for a date. Coincidence then stepped aside for a normal college romance.

They won't marry until June because they want the wedding to coincide with other anniversaries in the two McConkey families.

Also, they both have signed teaching contracts for this school year. She at Topeka, he at Quinter.

Business-Education Day Books Ready

The handbook for Business-Education Day hosts is ready for distribution, E. Q. Wedgeworth, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said this morning.

B-E Day, to be observed here Oct. 12, is designed to give public and parochial school teachers a close-up of business and industry. Teachers will spend a full day with business and industry getting first hand accounts of the trial, tribulations, advantages, disadvantages of every type of business in the community.

The list of participating industries has not yet been compiled but will be within the next few weeks following meetings of the various committees, Wedgeworth said.

The Steering Committee will meet next week before distributing the mimeographed handbooks to discuss their distribution and further details of the one-day program.

Firemen Extinguish Blaze In Pampa Home

First fire run in several days occurred in the home of George Hindman, 312 Miami, but only scorched a wall.

Call came at 6:10 p.m. Wednesday and resulted in negligible damages, according to Pampa firemen who made the run.

Fire started from a matchbox, firemen figured.

Dallas Union Leader Denies He Proposed Picket Violence

DALLAS, Aug. 27—UP— Union leader G. E. Terry Thursday denied that he had advocated violence between striking Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. employes and non-strikers.

Terry, who addressed a meeting of 900 employes Wednesday, told the workers to "beat hell" out of non-strikers who try to cross picket lines. Thursday, the leader said he had instructed the striking Communications Workers of America to "beat-up" non-strikers, only if they attempted to molest the pickets.

He said he told the pickets to lay down their signs before socking the non-strikers "in the jaw." He said he and other officials who represent the CWA hoped there would be no violence, and that he had advocated the socking tactics only as a means of defense for the pickets.

The strike, which entered its second week Thursday, involves 53,000 Southwestern Bell employes in a six-state area. Negotiations between the union and company officials are being held up in St. Louis by a "no strike" clause which the company officials have demanded.

Terry and state CWA director T. E. Webb both said they would resign if the "no strike" clause goes into effect. Terry said that employes from throughout the six-state area have sent protests to the bargaining committee of the CWA in St. Louis regarding the "damnable" clause.

The union leader said the clause "would do away with 'the union'" and would not allow it any bargaining power.

"Militant action is the only way to make the company move on grievances and other cases when it refuses to sit down and deal in good faith with us," he said.

Rio Grande Flooding

By UNITED PRESS

Flood threats to villages and ranches near Falcon dam and along the Rio Grande and its tributaries forced residents to leave their homes Thursday, as more rain was predicted for the area.

Trucks were rushed in to evacuate villagers and ranchers whose homes may be inundated along the Falcon dam reservoir. At Alice, South Creek caused slight damage after it overflowed.

The Rio Salado, a tributary on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande, was rushing water toward the international river. The tributary was expected to pour more tons of water into Falcon reservoir. It had gone over its banks and cut a 25-foot breach in the Pan-American highway between the border and Monterrey, Mex.

New Crest at Roma

At Roma, a new crest of 32,000 cubic feet of water a second had been reached and additional water surged from another tributary, the Rio Alamo.

Meanwhile, the weather bureau forecast more thundershowers for South Texas again Thursday. Rains Wednesday fell along the Gulf Coast from Houston westward as far as Junction.

Only scattered showers were predicted for the northern part of the state, with little change in temperatures which have been ranging in the 80s and 90s for the past week.

Official rainfall recorded during the 24-hour period ending at 6:30 a. m. Thursday included 1.43 inches at Galveston, .47 at Victoria, .90 at Corpus Christi, .89 at Brownsville, .37 at Laredo, .04 at San Antonio, and .01 at Del Rio. Austin and Junction reported traces.

No Traffic Mishaps Here Since Sunday

Pampans must be getting more careful.

For there hasn't been an automobile accident reported by city police since Sunday afternoon—that was the 193rd of the year.

And today is the 239th day of the year. Last year there was an average of more than one a day—some 375 of them by year's end.

City officials today were just keeping their fingers crossed—and hoping.

ON TELEPHONE STRIKE

Officers Eye Pickets

Telephone strikers who picketed the homes yesterday afternoon of workers who refused to go on strike may find their actions are not too popular with the sheriff's office or the police department.

Late yesterday Sheriff R. H. Jordan received several calls from persons whose homes had been picketed by striking operators and maintenance men. The sheriff had no official comment to make at the time, but said he was going to contact the union officials to "see what this is all about."

But, the little stunt brought other repercussions from a different angle this morning.

Chief of Police Jim Conner began checking into laws governing strikes and picketing and said:

"I am not so sure they aren't violating the laws right there at the telephone office."

Reading from the statutes, Conner added:

"According to this law, only two pickets are allowed, and they are not allowed to picket within 50 feet of the door of the premises. I've seen more than two pickets marching by the telephone office, and right by the door."

Reporters passing by the telephone office this morning noticed three pickets walking abreast along the Francis side of the office. But, they broke into single file when meeting people walking from the opposite direction.

During the private home picketing yesterday, it was reported, the pickets were cautious and did not step over the property line.

At the same time, County Atty. Bill Waters said he was not sure whether the strikers were in violation of the law or not by picketing the homes of non-strikers.

"Even though they may not be technically in violation of the law, I am wondering whether they weren't morally wrong," he said.

The picketing of private homes yesterday was the first sign of any discord locally during the week-old strike here.

But, with all the picketing telephone calls were still going through locally as well as long distance. One long distance call last night between Pampa and an east coast city—a private call—was through in less than five minutes.

This morning there appeared to be no slow-down in service, and it was almost impossible to tell there was a telephone workers strike in progress.

Cafe Owner Dies After Long Coma

JUAREZ, Mex., Aug. 27 —UP—Roberto Flores, Juarez cafe owner who was slammed to the floor by a professional wrestler last year, died here Wednesday after remaining in a coma 13 months.

Flores was injured by wrestler Carlos Pescada in July, 1952, and never regained consciousness. Pescada was arrested and new charges filed against him Wednesday.

$100 MILLION NEEDED

Iranian Refinery Hurt By Neglect

LONDON, Aug. 27—UP—An official of the Iran National Oil Co., said Thursday it would take at least a year's hard work and $100 million to restore the great Abadan refinery of the former Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. to capacity production.

The Iranian official said a large section of the refinery has been reduced by neglect to such shape that if it were possible to get some of the plant functioning, vibration probably would cause the heat-cracked buildings to collapse.

He said 30,000 employes of the nationalized company are sitting idle and talking politics while Iran's treasury thirsts for the money oil used to bring in.

Engineers See Neglect

"There are 30,000 foreign ministers in Iran," he said. "They have nothing to do but talk politics."

The Iranian official, who arrived here a month ago, said electric power and pumping services had been maintained "fairly satisfactorily" at Abadan. But he said little else of the world's largest refinery had been kept in order since it was nationalized in 1951 by Premier Mohammed Mossadegh.

The source said Dr. Reza Fallah, in charge of the operation, "would tell you that everything is being kept in good condition, but the engineers would tell a different story."

He said the 30,000 workers were being paid from the proceeds of domestic sales of oil from the refinery.

Critical of Anglo-Iranian

"Sales inside Iran total somewhere about a million tons annually," he said, "enough to pay the idlers who all talk politics. If the refinery at Abadan got working at only one-fifth capacity it would bring in revenue equalling the royalties Iran used to receive from the Anglo-Iranian Oil company.

He reviewed critically the 40 years of Anglo-Iranian's operations.

"The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company became a state within a state," he said. "It had too much power, which was abused. The Persian government was equally at fault for not standing up more for its rights. Like Humpty-Dumpty, Anglo-Iranian had a great fall, but all the Shah's horses and all the Shah's men cannot put Abadan together again."

Plan To Ask India To Meet Falls Short

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Aug. 27 — UP — The United Nations Thursday won a "down-the-line" victory in the United Nations as the General Assembly's political committee appproved all major points of its plan for the Korean poltical conference

Although the committee returned a 27-21 vote in favor of inviting India to the conference—an invitation adamantly opposed by the U.S.—it fell 15 votes short of two-thirds majority required for approval of the Indian bid in the full General Assembly.

The assembly will meet Friday to ratify the decisions of the 60-nation committee.

Victory for U. S.

The vote was a victory for the United States, which had split with Britain and the Commonwealth countries on an invitation to India. U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. contended that the Korean conference should be confined to active belligerents in the war and opposed India on grounds that it had not sent troops.

However, South Korea had announced here that it would be "next to impossible" for Syngman Rhee's government to participate in the conference if India were invited and the U.S. supported the South Korean opposition.

The committee approved the western proposal to invite any country that fought for the UN in the war to attend the Korean parley.

The 60-nation committee voted 42-7, with 10 abstentions to approve a paragraph of a 15-power resolution which would extend such an invitation.

The committee subsequently approved the resolution as a whole by a vote of 42-5 with 12 abstentions.

The group previously rejected, by a 41-5 vote, with 13 abstentions, Russia's slate for the conference.

Submitted as Amendment

Russia had submitted its ticket as an amendment to the 15-power resolution and thus it was first to be put to the vote as the committee was polled in paragraph-by-paragraph ballots.

Gray Schools Set To Open

Public schools in the five Gray County communities outside the Pampa school system are all set to open their doors to students Monday—one full day before the Pampa schools do.

Some 1,112 pupils and 85 instructors are expected to be on hand Opening Day in McLean, Lefors, Alanreed, Grandview and Hopkins, according to B. R. Nuckols, county school superintendent.

Broken down, these are the estimated statistics: McLean, 500 students, 22 instructors; Lefors, 400 and 26; Alanreed, 90 and 17; Grandview, 32 and two; and Hopkins 90 and 18.

Most of the Opening Day activities will be concerned with the rigors of enrollment, Nuckols said. "The students won't be there all day—they'll probably be sent home early."

There is no teacher shortage in the county's schools as there is over so much of the nation. Said Nuckols: "So far as I know there isn't a single vacancy."

Two new buildings have been added to the county's school system, the superintendent said. They are a new recreation building in Grandview and a combination for Hopkins.

The Grandview one—a Quonset type costing about $13,000—is designed to handle all indoor recreation and club work. And it can even be used for bus storage. Labelling it "an all-purpose building," Nuckols said it was 40 x 60 feet and has a concrete floor.

The Hopkins structure, to be used for music, art and a library, was purchased for $1,250 by way of Dalhart, White Deer and Spearman. Moved in one piece from place to place, it was one of eight used by Dalhart schools after a fire four years ago and by White Deer after the 1951 tornado.

Airliners Collide, Escape Disaster

CHICAGO, Aug. 27 —UP— A major disaster was narrowly averted when two loaded Convair airliners collided in flight near here and then limped to safe landings with ragged holes torn in their light metal bodies.

A difference of only two or three feet in the location of the holes would have spelled death for some, or all of the 57 passengers and crew aboard the two planes, experts said.

The accident occurred Wednesday night at a height of about 11,000 feet when a United Airlines plane and an American Airlines ship clipped into each other over Michigan City, Ind., about 60 miles east of here.

Some of the passengers prayed as wind whistled into the depressurized cabins and one young wife fingered a rosary, but witnesses said most of the passengers were "pretty calm."

War Hero Won't Talk On Korea

EL PASO, Aug. 27 —UP—Lt. George H. O'Brien Jr., Congressional Medal of Honor winner, said Thursday he could not comment on Korea or the armistice.

O'Brien, accompanied by his wife, spent early - morning hours here awaiting a flight home to Big Spring, Tex., from Korea.

The lieutenant said he did "not care to comment" when asked about the sentiment of the fighting men toward the Korean armistice. And when asked how other UN troops performed with those of the United States, O'Brien said, "I've been instructed to make no comment about any troops except the Marines, and for them I have nothing but the best things to say."

Learned of Medal Sunday

O'Brien did not learn until his ship docked in California Sunday that he had been awarded the Medal of Honor.

The citation was for bravery in leading his platoon of men against an overwhelming force of Communists. He was wounded in the arm and knocked down twice by concussion grenades as he led the retreat of his men to safety.

Appearing thin and tired, he was returning home for a 15-day furlough, and the first sight of his son, born on St. Valentine's Day. The O'Briens also have a three-year-old daughter.

To Go to Corpus Christi

He will be attached to the Marine Corps barracks in Corpus Christi after his furlough.

O'Brien said he was not sure about future plans.

"I am now in the United States Marine Corps Reserve," he said. "I may ship (transfer) over to the regular Marines, but I'll have to talk things over with my wife."

He enlisted in the Marine Corps Reserve in 1947 while attending Texas Tech at Lubbock.

Sen. McCarthy Raps Colleague

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 27 —UP—Sen. Joseph McCarthy suspected Rep. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania Thursday of "probably wanting to get a headline" by calling him and four other Republicans "noisy obstructionists."

The Wisconsin senator, in a terse rebuttal to his fellow Republican's charge, declared "It's getting so all you have to do is call McCarthy a name, and you get your name in print."

McCarthy was among a group of "free wheeling grandstanders" and "old fuds" named by the former Republican national chairman Wednesday in a magazine article.

Others in Scott's group of "obstructionists" were Sens. Herman Welker (Ida) and George W. Malone (Nev.), and Reps. Noah M. Mason (Ill.), Clare Hoffman (Mich.), and Daniel A. Reed (N.Y.).

McCarthy said the harboring of Communists "wrecked the Democratic party, and if I can help it there will be no harboring of Communists which will likewise wreck the Republican party and the nation.

"If fighting communism is being an obstructionist," McCarthy continued, "then I'm an obstructionist."

Hope Dims For GI 'Criminals'

PANMUNJOM, Aug. 27 —UP— Newly-freed war prisoners dimmed hopes Thursday that the Communists plan to return captives sentenced to long terms in jail for committing "crimes."

They contradicted reports of other men who said the Reds were releasing the prisoners and sending them to nearby Kaesong for repatriation.

Cpl. James R. Westerson, 22, of Miami, Fla., said the Reds removed about 60 or 70 prisoners from Camp No. 3 on armistice day.

"Didn't Announce Sentences

"They took out three truckloads of men," Westerson said. "It must have been about 60 or 70 men there. They didn't announce sentences or anything."

Pfc. Nicholas Aramino of Leroy, N. Y., first American released Thursday, said that he, too, had seen several men taken from Camp No. 3 on armistice day.

Aramino said they had been jailed on false charges and apparently would not be released.

"They're still being held, Aramino said. "We haven't heard from them."

Tell Conflicting Stories

But some of the Americans returning Thursday told conflicting stories on the fate of prisoners jailed for committing "crimes."

Cpl. Charles G. Guidetti, 32, of Philadelphia, said Americans sentenced to long prison terms have been released and now are in nearby Kaesong awaiting repatriation.

Staffers Aid Ike

DENVER, Aug. 27—UP—Backstairs at the summer White House:

Sherman Adams, the assistant to the President, has this to say about Mr. Eisenhower's job:

"This job is a perfectly stupendous one and often takes a terrible toll of the President's health. I do not know just what the best remedy would be—proper staffing or a better distribution of the presidential load."

Adams and other members of the Eisenhower staff have studied the records of past presidents closely and have resolved their man won't be ground to bits as other presidents have been by the senseless pressure of minor detail.

In this resolve, the President's secretariat is attempting to protect him as much as possible here in Denver from callers whose business is something less than urgent. Consequently, there are hurt feelings in some political areas of the land by people who would like to be summoned to the vacation White House. One senator called for days, inviting himself to be invited to Denver.

Mr. Eisenhower is in no particular hurry to receive a first-person report from Adlai Stevenson on 1952 Democratic nominee's recently concluded around-the-world tour. This is in no sense a back-of-the-hand attitude, but the White House was somewhat surprised to read speculation Stevenson might come to Denver to report to the President.

The President got down on his hands and knees in a mountain pasture outside Pine, Colo., the other day and industriously swatted grasshoppers with his sky blue felt hat to provide fishing bait for members of his party.

Mrs. Hobby Asks Minimum Control

PASADENA, Calif., Aug. 27—UP—Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, secretary of health, education and welfare, said Thursday the federal government should exercise a minimum of control over the health and welfare programs it helps support.

She said the government's control should consist chiefly of setting "clear and simple" conditions for the aids and helping states to improve the programs.

"Properly organized and administered," federal grants can strengthen state governments by helping them meet their obligations, she said.

Her speech was prepared for delivery to the Pasadena Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Hobby said the federal government and states "must act as partners in serving the people." She said the states should take over as many health and welfare activities as possible, but said it would be "impracticable" to decentralize them completely.

States where assistance to the aged, blind, disabled and dependent children is needed most are least able to finance the aids, she said.

Mrs. Hobby noted a new commission on federal-state relations will study welfare and health grants.

"I think we must recognize that whatever is done about grants-in-aid, the activities now supported in part by grants will continue," she said.

"They have become so much an established part of state and local government services that they are not likely to be much decreased."

Big Welcome Ahead

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 22—UP—Private Eugene Fields Saturday was promised the loudest welcome any freed Canadian war prisoner will come home to. Fields, freed in Korea Friday night, has 21 brothers and sisters. "He'll get the whoopingest reception you ever saw," his mother said. "All but two or three of the other kids are younger than him, and apt to be noisy."

Hank Looks Toward His Future And Gets Himself An Old Chair

By HENRY McLEMORE

I went down to a furniture store the other day and bought a chair.

Before you catalogue the sentence above as coming out of a second-grade reader, and brand it as perhaps the dullest line any columnist ever started off with, please let me explain.

I expect that chair to keep me in my old age, to take the place of an annuity and piece out my meager social security. When I am no longer able to work I am going to put that chair in a place of honor in my living rom, fence it off with a velvet cord, and charge people to take a look at it.

You are wrong if you think I paid a fortune for the chair. I didn't. It cost less than twenty dollars. It was not made by a master craftsman and can claim to have been sat on by no more illustrious persons than tired salesmen and perhaps prospective buyers who tried it out before I came along and purchased it. It is, in fact, a rather unattractive chair, and I wouldn't be surprised if you weren't wondering why I paid money for it, and how in the world I expect it to provide for me when I am in the sunset of my life.

All right, I'll tell you. It is a member of a fast disappearing race. If furniture designers keep on at the mad pace they have been setting in recent years, what we have always known as a chair will no longer exist.

My chair is a good example of what I believe museums will be searching for before too long. It has four legs, a level seat, a back, and two arms on which to rest your elbows. And that's all.

Even in August, 1953, I had to search all over the store before I found my chair. It was obvious that the firm was ashamed of it and didn't want to be caught dead with such an object on display.

The salesman apparently couldn't believe his ears when he saw I was interested in it, and despite my protestations shepherded me to a vast assortment of chairs of TODAY and TOMORROW.

If any of our forefathers could be brought down (or up) and shown these chairs they wouldn't be able to identify them as such.

Some of them had five legs, some four, and quite a few of them only one. Some of them were built so they seemed to slink along the floor like cowed dogs; others were a mass of bends and resembled the union of a tortured pretzel and a beer coil; still others looked as if they had been stolen from page 52 of a geometry book. Wood used to be associated with chairs. No more. Now everything but wood is used: concrete, stainless steel, dinosaur bones, coconut fiber, reinforced banana peels, raffia, taffia, and baffia; copper, rubber, bricks, plastic, chicken wire, and skins of wild and domesticated animals.

The salesman insisted I try them out. Many that I got into I couldn't get out of, and the salesman had to resort to a fireman's lift. Several of them had hidden control panels and when I inadvertently pressed in the wrong place my head was plunged downward, my feet zoomed ceilingward, and it was all I could do to keep from crying out for a parachute.

Several of them stretched me out as if I were a Nero awaiting the dancing girls, and one number bent me backwards into a perfect position for eating asparagus, but nothing else.

Take my tip and insure your future with an old-fashioned chair. Then, when we're all 80, we'll take a world cruise.

New Mark on Boxes

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 —UP— At President Eisenhower's request, the Commerce Department has urged all businessmen engaged in foreign trade to mark shipping containers with the phrase, "United States of America." The request was in line with a congressional resolution making it the "sense of Congress" that external containers bear such a label.

Former Showgirl Turns To Writing

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK, Aug. 26—UP—The authorship credit on the "Danger" television program the night of Sept. 8 will read "Mary Dowell."

This less than startling information packs significance only when you know that Mary Dowell is "Stutterin' Sam," a former showgirl who did much to decorate and enliven the Broadway scene back in the late 1930's and early 1940's.

"That all seems so long ago that I don't think I can even claim to be an ex-showgirl any more," Mary said. "I guess you'll have to call me a former ex-showgirl."

Had Native Wit

Mary was one of those "Long-Stemmed Roses" Billy Rose imported from Texas around 1936 to decorate his night clubs. This particular over-six-foot brunette not only was a beauty, but she had a native wit and a knack for attracting attention that soon resulted in her becoming a "character."

She achieved her nickname of "Stutterin' Sam" quickly, as soon as she came under the direction of John Murray Anderson, who was staging Rose's shows. Anderson seldom calls his people by their right names, inventing nicknames on the spur of the moment.

"And when John gives you a nickname it sticks," Mary said. "Of course, I don't hear it so much any more, now that I'm not on Broadway, but whenever I run into an acquaintance from the old days out it pops."

Writing Kick Isn't New

She still stutters at times.

This writing kick isn't exactly new for Mary. She's had a typewriter for many years and has always turned out anecdotes about her experiences for the folks back home. And during the war, when she was showgirling at the now defunct Diamond Horseshoe, it was suddenly announced she had been signed to a writer's contract by Warner brothers.

The trek to Hollywood may have started as something of a publicity gesture, but Mary had her option picked up twice and actually worked on pictures before she got out.

'A Gangster Sort of Thing'

"Off and on over the years I've been writing at what I call 'The Book'," she said. "I set down the things that happened to me and those I knew during the Broadway years. Actually, I don't know if I'll ever get the stuff in proper shape for a book or whether, if I did, it would be anything anyone would want to publish.

"But the important thing is that I've been writing. Then recently I got an idea for a television drama, put it down roughly and submitted it to 'Danger.' It's a gangster sort of thing called 'The Boys on the Corner.' They took it.

"Now I've got myself an agent and I've sold a second script—a Western—to the 'Suspense' program. Maybe if this keeps up I can quit being a secretary one of these days."

PROGRESSIVE PILGRIM—Egypt's Premier Mohammed Naguib wears centuries-old garb as he steps from a modern limousine in Cairo, to begin the customary pilgrimage to Mecca and Medina, holy cities of Mohammedanism.

Malenkov Is Tightening Power Grip'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26—UP—Russian experts said Wednesday, Premier Georgi M. Malenkov seems to be slowly tightening his grip on the reins of power in the Kremlin.

They said Soviet Army leaders, who might have overthrown Malenkov in the backstage power struggle set off by Stalin's death, now appear to be losing ground.

Nikita S. Ruschchev, who didn't get on too well with Stalin at times, is edging his way up and looks to be the No. 2 man after Malenkov. His stature has increased following the downfall of Lavrenti P. Beria, purged secret police chief.

Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, the "old Bolshevik" comrade of Stalin, is still running No. 3.

But Lt. Gen. Vasilly Stalin, son of the former dictator, has dropped out of sight despite his rumored marriage to Svetlana Molotov, the foreign minister's daughter.

Clear signs that Malenkov is emerging stronger than before are seen in his quick elimination of Beria, his almost single-handed conduct of the recent supreme Soviet meeting, and a sharp increase in the appearance of his name in the rigidly controlled Soviet press.

Seize Four Stills

AUSTIN, Aug. 26 —UP— Four illicit stills were seized during July by Texas Liquor Control Board inspectors, Administrator Coke R. Stevenson Jr., reported. He said two stills were in Marion county, one in Cherokee county and the other in Smith county.

A Real Surprise

OWOSSO, Mich., Aug. 26—UP—Keith W. Wilson, 27, didn't know his mother was planning to pay him a surprise visit Tuesday until his auto collided with another at an intersection. The other driver was his mother, Mrs. Lora Wilson, 61. Neither was injured.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

Iron Out Your Meld Problems

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"The opponents," writes a Chicago correspondent, "had their initial meld of 120 points with three kings and a joker as one meld, together with two sixes and a deuce as another meld — all put down by one opponent.

"After a round or two of play, the other opponent tried to meld six nines and a joker; three sevens, and two kings with two deuces.

"My partner and I said the concealed hand couldn't go out with the meld of kings since they would have to be added to the initial meld of kings. If the concealed hand could go out, would the kings (added to the initial meld) be considered a canasta?"

The player is allowed to meld out, but does not get the bonus for melding out concealed. He gets merely the normal bonus of 100 points for melding out.

The player's meld of two kings with two deuces must be added to the initial meld of three kings with a joker. Since these two melds must be joined, the player must add to the initial meld and therefore cannot meld out concealed. The mere fact that the player cannot meld out concealed does not, however, prevent him from melding out altogether. He still melds out.

The addition of all the kings and the wild cards makes a canasta of kings. Hence the player is entitled to the bonus of 300 points for a mixed canasta. This is more than the bonus for going out, so the player gains rather than loses by joining all the kings into one meld.

Q — In a game of samba two ladies are playing as one team against their husbands. The ladies meld out, catching the men with only one canasta but with all six red threes. It is understood that a certain number of points will be deducted from the previous score of the men for these six red threes, but the exact amount is in dispute.

Do they lose only 100 points for each red three, or do they lose a total of 1000 for the six red threes?

A — The amount to deduct from the previous score of the men is 1000 points for the six red threes. If they had completed two canastas, they would have been credited with a bonus of 1000 points for the six red threes. The amount to deduct from their score is exactly the same amount that you would have added to their score if they had completed two canastas.

Out of One Pocket, Etc.

AUSTIN, Aug. 26 —UP— Constable A. W. Murchison figured Wednesday he may have netted $1.25 profit when he did business with himself, but it was going to cost him more in the end. Murchison, whose job is serving citations on tax delinquents, found he was being sued by the city for back automobile taxes. So Taxpayer Murchison promptly accepted service of the citation from Constable Murchison. The fee was $1.25.

Wheeler Farmers Build Terraces

WHEELER — John Haggard is planning on constructing about eleven miles of terraces on the Reed place, which he purchased last year. These are to be channel type terraces which means they are built altogether from the uphill side. This system of building them gives a smaller terrace which is easier to farm and still handles the water just as efficiently as the larger ridge type. T. H. Gilchrist of Conway is going to build them with a motor grader.

Terraces such as Mr. Haggard is building are becoming more common in the district and are liked by most cooperators. These terraces will have a little fall in them so that the water will run out of them onto the pasture. In other words, by moving what water is going to run off of the field out to where it runs down the hill on grass, erosion is prevented.

Record Foreign Trade

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 —UP— The United States exported goods valued at $8,091,000,000, a record rate, during the first six months of this year, the Commerce Department reports. Imports totaled $5,630,000,000, also a record.

Modified Auto Law In Effect

AUSTIN, Aug. 26 —UP—Texas had a new modified automobile inspection law Wednesday, after the old controversial measure died Tuesday midnight.

The new law calls for inspection of car brakes, lights, horns, rear-view mirrors and windshield wipers, instead of the multitude of items that were inspected under the old measure.

Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of Public Safety, said inspection stickers will be issued under the new law from Sept. 15 through next April 15.

George Busby, head of the motor vehicle inspection division, said some 3,000 inspection stations will be in operation by Sept. 15. Garrison said the block-long lines at inspection stations when the old law took effect last year were caused by too few inspection stations and too much last-minute waiting.

Mrs. Jordan Speaks On Finance In Business Woman's World At B&PW Meet

MRS. LILLIAN JORDAN
. . . B&PW Speaker

Mrs. Lillian Jordan, a past president of the local Business and Professional Women, was guest speaker at a meeting of the group this week. Mrs. Earl Eaton, finance chairman, introduced Mrs. Jordan, who spoke on "Finance in a Business Woman's World."

"The role of women in American culture, society and economics is ever expanding," Mrs. Jordan told the group, "and within a few years women have demonstrated ability and qualifications to enter all phases of economic and industrial life."

Mrs. Jordan pointed out that women have met the challenge of the business world, accepted responsibilities willingly and discharged obligations in a meritorious manner.

Mrs. Alma Ash presided at the business session, after which Mrs. Eaton and Mrs. G. O. Cunningham served refreshments to Mmes. J. L. Mullinax, D. C. Ash, Homer Doggett, Virgil Howell, H. F. McDonald, Jordan, Lois Patton, Nell Tinnin, Lonia Killian, Elsie Gee, Dovie Breeze, Marguriete Nash, Lucille Turner, Lorene Lock, Cordelia Mayes, Irma McWright, Gladys Jaynes, Mable Fort, Libby Shotwell, W. A. York, Helen Sprinkle, Laura Cornelius, and Hattie Holt.

Wrinkles Hang Out Of Treated Fabrics

By ALICIA HART

What is a "crease-resistant" finish? Does it have any real value? These questions are asked by girls who want to get the most for their clothes money.

This finish is intended to overcome cotton's old drawbacks — crumpling, mussing, wrinkling. To prevent this wilted look, a processor applies a finish to the fabric, which may be made from linen, wool or other fibers and not just cotton.

This finish, when given by a reliable processing firm, really enables these fabrics to recover from wrinkles. You simply hang the garments up for a rest and the creases fall out. They'll never be deep in the first place. Many kinds of fabrics, chambrays, taffetas, tweeds, and so on, are treated.

Don't depend on any sales-person's word for your information. Look for a hang-tag which gives the manufacturer's name and tells you just what permanence you can expect from the finish, which will be trade-marked, and just how to care for the garment.

Tests have proven these fabrics absorb less soil than the same fabrics untreated. They'll also hold less moisture. This makes strenuous washing unnecessary and fast drying a certainty. Pressing, when slightly damp, is easier. Starching is never needed. You are asked not to use bleach on garments with this crease-resistant finish. Have your water temperature in accordance with the color-fastness of the fabric.

When tomatoes come along in their red-ripest best in late summer, sliced tomatoes make welcome and frequent appearance as the salad for many a family meal. For party fare, lush slices of chilled tomatoes are equally welcome as the salad offering, especially when there's a glamorous dressing to dollop on them. Such a dressing is this one made with finely mashed avocado. Avocado is a fine flavor partner for tomatoes and the delicate green color of the dressing is eye appealing to boot. The secret of this tempting dressing is the use of salad oil and double rich evaporated milk to form a creamy emulsion. Lemon juice and seasonings are added to point up the delicate flavor of avocado. Incidentally, this avocado salad dressing doubles beautifully as a dunk for crackers or potato chips to serve with chilled tomato juice or other predinner potables.

Avocado Salad Dressing
¼ cup salad oil (not olive oil)
¼ cup evaporated milk
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
Few grains pepper
½ teaspoon sugar
1 avocado, mashed (about ½ to ¾ cup)

Oil and evaporated milk should be at room temperature to form a good emulsion. Measure ingredients into a screw top jar that holds at least 1 pint. Cover tightly and shake vigorously for about 1 minute. Chill thoroughly before using, about 1-½ to 2 hours. Serve on sliced tomato and cucumber salad. Makes 1 to 1-¼ cups dressing.

NOTE: This avocado dressing is a good dunk for crackers or potato chips.

RUTH MILLETT

A reader asks: "Would you write an article on children who pick, trample and run over other people's flowers and shrubs?

"It seems to me that if their own mothers would raise some flowers and teach their youngsters to enjoy them they would have more respect for their neighbors' flowers."

With that I agree. And it applies to more than flowers. If a child is taught to appreciate beauty and to take care of things at home, he will usually show respect for other people's property.

But what can you expect from a child who isn't taught to take care of things at home? If he jumps up and down or walks on his own sofa at home, he'll do the same when he is in someone else's house.

If he hasn't been taught at home that it requires work and effort to grow flowers or had their beauty pointed out to him, it isn't likely that he'll have much respect for the flowers other people work to grow.

So it is doing a child a real injustice to neglect to teach him respect for beauty and for the care of possessions.

For no child is a welcome guest in other's homes or yards who hasn't been taught to take care of things. Even though a mother may not care if Willie stands on her coffee table because she is waiting until the children are older to get new furniture, she can be sure that nobody else is going to appreciate having Willie treat their possessions so carelessly.

You know yourself that whether or not you groan when you see a friend arriving with her children or are genuinely pleased to see them depends on whether or not you expect the house to look like a cyclone had struck when they leave.

Liquor License Request Refused

SANTA FE, N. M., Aug. 27—UP—State Liquor Control Director Elfego Baca has rejected an application for a liquor license from Mayor D. F. Mollica of Gallup.

Baca said Mollica's application stated the proposed bar in Sunset Inn west of Gallup would be more than five miles from the McKinley county town, but he said his investigation showed the location to be within five miles of the city and thus would be counted as a Gallup license under the New Mexico liquor law.

"Gallup not only has full quota of liquor licenses—it has too many," Baca said.

Red Hunting Is Expensive

By WALTER G. RUNDLE
United Press Staff Correspondent

In the steaming jungles of Malaya, where Red machine guns spit death from ambush at British and Malayan troops, it's axiomatic "The only good Communist is a dead Communist."

Trouble is it costs so much to make "good Communists."

Britain, who has been engaged in that project for five years now places the cost at 250,000 Straits dollars, or about $80,000 for each Red eliminated.

Those may sound like abstract figures to Americans. But there's more than a little probability the high cost of making "good Communists" of Red rebels in Malaya soon may be translated into higher prices for everything rubber from automobile tires to sponge rubber falsies.

Britain has laid its cards on the table. The shooting war against the Reds in Malaya is being won. But Malaya and Britain are in grave danger of losing the struggle in the final go-around at the economic level.

Ironically, the threat of economic disaster, which might wipe out the military gains, has arisen in Malaya as an indirect result of the end of the Korean war.

Rubber and tin prices — the things on which Malaya's economy depends — have taken a disastrous slump on the world markets. The speculative boom that accompanied the Korean conflict has collapsed.

As a result, the price for tin has skidded from $176 per picul (136 pounds) to $98.

Rubber prices have toppled from 57 cents per pound to 21 cents.

To Malaya, with a budget tied directly to the price of those two major sources of income, the situation is close to desperate.

It's fine practice for arithmetic classes when school opens, but Warren fears he'll have to close the store when Bobby returns to school.

Rotary Club Views Medical Operation

Full color moving pictures of eye operations and an actual human skull dissected for medical instructive purposes held the attention of Pampa Rotarians Wednesday at their weekly meeting in the Palm Room, City Hall.

The two pictures were taken of Dr. Calvin Jones performing the operations while he was preparing for his specialty in the Gill Memorial hospital, Virginia. Both were close-ups, showing the full operations—only Dr. Jones' hands were visible—from injection of local anesthetic to incisions, suturing and bandaging. The first picture showed an operation to correct cross-eyedness and the second removal of a cataract.

Prior to the picture, Dr. Jones dissected a prepared human skull—which cost him $250—which had been painted, hinged and clamped to give practical demonstrations on eye, ear, nose, and sinus operations.

One of medical science's most elaborate instruments, the Jackson asphagascope — used to remove pins, buttons and other foreign objects from the throat was also demonstrated by the doctor.

Dr. Jones' talk was part of the club's program on classification talks by its members.

Following the program, Ben Guill, an honorary member, told the club he was glad to be back home and wished he could stay longer. Guill was an active Rotarian before he was named executive assistant to Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield.

Polio Victim Aided By Letter

COLORADO SPRINGS, Aug. 27—UP—The mother of a 16-year-old polio victim said Thursday a letter from Mamie Eisenhower to the teenage girl "very definitely" contributed to her recovery from the disease.

The girl, Barbara Cornelia, meanwhile, had quite forgotten the temporary paralysis of her legs in her excitement over receiving the get-well note from the first lady.

"I'll keep this letter to show my children, my grandchildren and my great-grandchildren," she said.

Barbara was stricken in both legs by the disease Aug. 7. She received her letter from the President's wife Aug. 18, and came home from the hospital Monday.

The girl had a friend, Donna Hiatt, 16, of Colorado Springs, to thank for the letter. Donna said she worried about Barbara's despondency over the possible effects of the sickness.

After reading a newspaper report of the Eisenhowers' trip to Denver for a vacation, she wrote to Mrs. Eisenhower—noting she had heard of the first lady writing such letters in the past—and enclosed a picture of her friend.

"Dear Barbara," Mrs. Eisenhower wrote, "the President and I have just heard of your recent illness. I know the days in the hospital are hard for you since you are young and pretty."

Crooner Dick Haymes Faces New Charge By Government

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 27—UP—Trouble - ridden Dick Haymes, threatened with deportation for visiting Rita Hayworth in Hawaii, Thursday faced a new government charge which also could force him to leave this country.

The second charge against the Argentina - born crooner came at the close of a five-hour hearing Wednesday before a special board.

The new charge accuses Haymes of violating the McCarran-Walter act by failing to notify immigration officials annually of his address and other information prior to Feb. 1, 1953.

At the hearing on charges he also violated the act by illegally reentering this country from Hawaii, the singer "remembered" a previously unpublicized marriage.

Hayes disclosed he married Edith Harper, a singer at Chicago's Sherman Hotel, in 1939.

"It was only for two or three weeks," Haymes explained. "She divorced me in Little Rock, Ark. I had just forgotten we were ever married."

The revelation as to his marital status moved actress Joanne Dru back to the position of wife No. 2 and Nora Eddington Flynn Haymes, who now is suing him for divorce, to the position of wife No. 3.

Whether Miss Hayworth, now romantically linked with Haymes, will become wife No. 4 remained a secret. When Haymes was asked if he was "contemplating marriage at this time," his attorney lodged an objection which was sustained.

The government accused the 34-year-old crooner of giving up all future rights to become an American citizen by applying for draft exemption during World War II as a citizen of Argentina.

Haymes was shown an application for relief from military service dated Jan. 25, 1944, which he admitted he signed, but said he had "no idea of making it a permanent thing."

"My wife (Joanne Dru) was pregnant at the time and I felt she needed me," the tousel - haired crooner said.

Suffer Injuries in Mexico

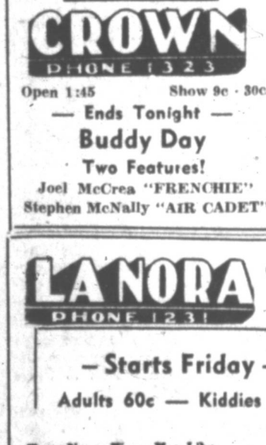

CIUDAD VALLES, Mex., Aug. 27—UP—Mr. and Mrs. Samuel James Kniffer, a Houston oil worker and his wife, were treated for serious cuts and bruises here Wednesday after Kniffer tried to avoid hitting a pedestrian and crashed into a truck. Police said Kniffer crashed while enroute to Mexico City on a vacation "when some stupid person ran across the road in front of him."

A Needed Anchor

A Constitutional Amendment to give substance to new interests in decentralization of government has been proposed by John B. Ebinger, an Oregon attorney and authority on Constitutional law. A national organization with headquarters in Chicago has been formed by Mr. Ebinger to advance the proposal, and already two state legislatures, Illinois and North Dakota, have adopted resolutions calling for Congressional action on it.

The purpose of the proposed Amendment is to restore to the states "their inherent powers to amend the U. S. Constitution." Article V of the Constitution provides that it may be amended as follows:

"The Congress, whenever two-thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose Amendments to this Constitution, or on the application of the Legislatures of two thirds of the several States, shall call a convention for proposing Amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States."

Under that provision, proposed amendments may be instigated either by Congress or by two-thirds of the states. Only the first method, however, has been employed.

One reason why the second method has never been used, (and the aim of the Ebinger proposal is to make it practical for the states to use it) is that there has always been widespread fear of calling a national Constitutional Convention empowered to submit amendments of any or all articles of the Constitution. A second reason is that the Supreme Court, by a ruling in 1939, interpreted Article V to mean that even if two-thirds of the state legislatures submit a proposal, it is not mandatory, but only discretionary, on Congress to call it.

The Ebinger proposal meets the first objection by providing that the convention be "limited and restricted specifically to the proposal of such Amendment." It would offset the Supreme Court ruling by Amending Article V "to provide a clear absolute mode of proposing Amendments to the Constitution by the sovereign states."

The Ebinger amendment, in short, would be an amendment to make it practical for the states, as well as Congress, to initiate proposed amendments.

If the amendment were ratified, Mr. Ebinger argues, the new power may never need to be exercized. Bureaucracy will know that the power is there, thus permitting stabilization of the federal-state position in line with original and traditional concepts and intentions.

Respectable Dollars

A Wall Street Journal news story began with these words: "The dollar is getting more respectable. Despite the great abundance of greenbacks kicking around each of them will buy more of nearly everything." The paper went on to say that the official cost of living figures do not show this, but a trip to the markets does. It then dealt at length with a wide variety of wares in common use which have gone down in price, based on surveys made by its reporters in communities from coast to coast.

It would be a foolhardy man indeed who would forecast that inflation has run its course and that we can confidently expect steady price declines. No one knows what the future will bring, but the fact that so many prices have dropped, often by substantial percentages, since abandonment of government price controls is an excellent commentary on the worth, efficiency and vigor of our competitive system of doing business.

All of us see that system in action on the retail level. Every kind and size of store, from the newest and smallest specialty shop to the oldest and biggest chain, is aggressively seeking business. In many lines, the "buyers' market" has come back with a vengeance. Every possible inducement of price and service is used to attract the consumer. In most merchandising operations, the retailer's profits are very small — a few cents or less out of each dollar he takes in. Together, mass production and mass distribution, both intensely competitive, see to it that we get the best possible value for our money.

Give Me Subsidy!

In a recent speech, Dr. U. G. Dubach, professor of political science at Lewis and Clark College, Portland, Oregon, made this cogent observation: "We want the budget cut, but we don't want cuts for appropriations affecting Portland."

He added that this generation, unlike that of Patrick Henry's time, has a philosophy of "Give me subsidy or you can't have my vote."

Dr. Dubach thus characterized the worst disease that now affects the body politic. The idea that government economy is for the other fellow, never for us, is rampant. It is a commonplace for local chambers of commerce and other organizations to demand rigorous economy as a principle — and cry to high heaven when cuts affecting their areas are proposed.

Here is one reason why a balanced budget and tax reduction have not been possible so far. Even more important, the attitude it represents saps the character and fiber of the people, and implacably undermines the foundations of free, representative government.

An Unchristian Program For Peace

III

Since I believe that most of our political and economic trouble comes from people who are regarded as "good" and who are well - meaning people, I want to quote and discuss further Bishop Gardiner M. Day's booklet "A Program for Peace" that is being distributed in many of the Episcopal churches throughout the land.

Bishop Day is certainly an example of "good people" advocating things that instead of bringing about what they hope, bring about the exact opposite.

His whole program is to initiate force or a form of civil war in this country to take the energy that could go into tools of the big producers to feed and clothe and supply capital to the improvident in the rest of the world in order to eliminate poverty and thus defeat communism.

There is mighty little use to give tools to people who do not know how to use them and develop them. One writer relates an experience of a missionary in a primitive country who was obliged to leave the natives who were plowing with oxen. When he returned, he found that the natives had killed the oxen. The natives' answer was that they were hungry. They could not see that if they killed the oxen they wouldn't have the oxen to plow with the next day. That is about the way sending complicated tools abroad to be operated by inexperienced people would end up.

Then the bishop closes one of his sub-headings by writing:

"Hence the second plank in a practical program for peace is that we must strive without ceasing and with a willingness to sacrifice our own personal advantages if necessary, in order to make our society one in which justice and brotherhood are not ideals to which we simply give lip service, but are actually put into practice in a way that makes our democracy live."

Notice he uses the word "we". He evidently believes in some form of collectivism and he also uses the word "democracy," which simply means that the majority has a right to control and oppress and rob the minority.

Then in the closing part of his booklet the bishop says:

Endorses UN

"The third plank in our program for peace is that the United States must continue to be steadfast in its loyalty to the United Nations. As we live in a democracy, this means that we must help to create the public opinion necessary for our government to maintain that loyalty."

You will note all the way throughout his article he uses the word "we," which really means our government represented by the majority and that the individual has no inalienable, inherent rights that the majority need respect. It is hard to conceive how a real Christian individual could place such faith in the majority. Remember the Great Teacher said:

"Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadest to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it."

Now if this be true, then how can we have much faith in anything that is run by the unlimited government of the majority in our nation or the majority in the world?

Remember also how when Abraham asked the Lord:

"Wilt thou destroy the righteous with the wicked?

"Peradventure there be 50 righteous within the city, wilt thou also destroy and not spare the place for the fifty righteous that are therein?"

Then the Lord said if He found in Sodom 50 righteous within the city that He would not destroy it. Then Abraham asked whether He would spare the city if there were 45 righteous in the city, and the Lord said He would. Then it finally got down to whether the Lord would spare the city if there were 10 righteous within it, and the Lord said He would not destroy Sodom if there were 10 righteous people in it.

So we better remember that if the United States is a righteous nation and its citizens live in harmony with moral law and respect the God - given rights of every individual throughout the world by permitting them to trade and to come to our land, that our nation will be spared and that will be the best way by example to promote peace throughout the worrld.

Worshiping The Golden Calf

Instead of the bishop really worshiping God and living in harmony with the precepts of Jesus, he is worshiping the Golden Calf, or the majority or the state. And when people worship the Golden Calf, whether it be a physical calf of gold or the divine rights of kings or the divine right of government of the majority to do things that no individual has a moral right to do, we are bound to increase poverty, misery, suffering and have almost continuous wars. So instead of the bishop having a program for peace, he is having a program of initiating compulsion and he is having a program of might makes right, that the majority determines peace and justice and good will and there are no eternal principles that each and every individual must live by if we are to reduce wars and approach a Christian way of life.

American Industrialists Laugh At Newest Giveway Program

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON— Harold E. Stassen's new Foreign Operations Administration will pay an annual bribe of $100,000,000 to persuade friendly European industrialists to switch to efficiency methods, that are common sense practice here simply because they boost production and profits, and increase the standard of living, which President Eisenhower regards as "the best defense against Communism."

It is such an extreme and bizarre example of American "giveaway" philosophy that many British spokesmen and leading newspapers are protesting against acceptance of the money for this purpose, although England's share in the Stassen bonus is only $9,000,000.

They insist that British firms should modernize their plants simply because it is good business, and that they should not require American financial pressure or help to induce them to do the obvious.

Although this "carrots" amendment to the Mutual Security Act was sponsored by such radical New Dealers as former Sens. William Benton of Connecticut and Blair Moody of Michigan (both were defeated for re-election), Stassen apparently approves the program. He did not ask for repeal at the recent session of Congress.

NEW WAYS TO SPEND MONEY—The Benton-Moody amendments, although they involve a relatively small sum, reveal how both Democrats and Republicans at Washington can always find new ways to dispose of the taxpayers' money in overseas projects. Only Congress has shown a determination to eliminate or reduce these expenditures.

Under the original Marshall Plan, counterpart funds piled up as a result of American dollar contributions could be used for only two purposes: (a) for financial or monetary stabilization (b) for internal improvements that revived or strengthened the recipient nation's economy.

England used the money to reduce its public debt and support the pound. France, Italy and other European countries spent it to rebuild bombed-out factories, railroads, highways, power projects, etc.

TO STIMULATE EUROPEAN PRODUCTION! — When Russia began to act up, the law was broadened so that counterpart balances could be diverted to military expenditures.

The Benton-Moody expansion of the field of spending escaped general notice because it was adopted in June, 1952, on the eve of the exciting Eisenhower-Stevenson conventions at Chicago. The expiring Congress did not have time to appropriate the necessary money, and it became available to Stassen only recently. It is his "come and get it" invitation that provokes the current British protests.

The Benton-Moody amendments stipulate that the $100,000,000 must be used to "promote productivity and stimulate production." Some of the economic objectives are so kindergartenish, so elementary, that they are incomprehensible, almost laughable, to American businessmen.

TO CONVINCE PRODUCERS THEY MUST BE SMART—Foreign industrialists, for instance, are required to spend this money to discover (a) whether a monopolistic or competitive system produces the best results (b) whether their production and distribution system should be shifted from a handicraft to an assembly-line basis (c) whether a restrictive or incentive program would increase production and improve labor-management relations (d) whether there should be more research and development of new and cheaper products.

In short, millions of American dollars will be spent to convince European producers that they ought to get smart.

WASTEFUL EXPENDITURE—To add irony to this $100,000,000 giveaway, top American industrial experts, who studied Europe's production plant at Stassen's request, have warned foreign manufacturers that they cannot survive against American, German and Russian competition, unless they modernize their methods. They do not need a $100,000,000 bribe by American taxpayers to teach them these basic economic truths.

If there was ever a needless and wasteful expenditure, this is it!

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

Mrs. B. W. asks for a discussion of the gall bladder and its functions. She also wants advice on a diet for an inflamed gall bladder.

Unfortunately, it is not possible to answer the latter question in a newspaper column since there are too many individual variations between the dietary needs of victims of gall bladder trouble, and specific advice on this matter must be obtained from her physician. It is, however, worth while to discuss some aspects of the gall bladder.

The gall bladder is a small, pear-shaped hollow organ lying just under the liver and ribs on the right side. It's function is to store bile and to empty it gradually down a small tube into the intestines. The bile is manufactured in the liver; when it reaches the intestines it helps greatly in the digestion of fats.

Irritation or inflammation of the gall bladder may or may not be associated with gallstones. In about two-thirds of all cases the bile itself is sterile, that is, germs cannot be found in it.

Chemical agents, apparently even the bile itself, as well as bacteria, can produce either acute or chronic gall bladder inflammation. When germs are at fault they may have come from infection in the mouth and throat, or have passed up the tube or duct from the intestines.

In acute inflammation of the gall bladder, severe but not constant is the first sign of difficulty as a rule. This is generally on the right side of the abdomen. Often pain from the gall bladder is felt in the back under the right shoulder.

Nausea, vomiting, slight fever and swelling of the entire abdomen may come after a short time. The area around the inflamed gall bladder is almost always extremely tender.

If all the college boys who slept in classes were placed end to end they would be much more comfortable.

Fair Enough...

U.S. Had Narrow Escape From Socialism Under Recovery Act

By WESTBROOK PEGLER
(Copyright, 1953, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The so-called sick-chicken case, once famous but now almost forgotten, was a criminal prosecution of some petty New York live poultry dealers by the United States of America for claimed violations of the "code of fair competition" established under the National Recovery Administration. Hugh S. Johnson, the administrator of this reckless venture into absolute fascism, called it the sick-chicken case because one count of the indictment would have punished the defendants, by name Schechter, for selling a bird which was said to be "unfit."

This was not the only type of crime alleged against the Schechters, but it was grotesque in proportion to its historic majesty. Thus it dramatized the noisy collapse of the fascist structure. In an opinion delivered by the late Chief Justice Hughes, The Supreme Court held that even if the chicken in question was indisposed, the sale of this fowl in New York for consumption in New York was beyond President Roosevelt's power to forbid.

We have heard much about "liberals" and "liberalism" and "progressives" in the last few years. Recently, I thought I would refresh my own knowledge of this attempt to repeal our constitutional liberties by a sly, indirect action of the very plotters who now lay claim to these discredited titles. A "liberal" or a "progressive" is now a fascist or socialist whose political language is casuistry.

The NRA was passed by Congress in a hysterical mood at a time when Roosevelt's melodious voice held the population in a spell. As we have since learned to our reluctant amazement, Harry Hopkins, David K. Niles and Felix Frankfurter were planting their devotees in the bureaucracy, some of whom, notable Alger Hiss, among others, have since turned out to have been Communists and traitors. Hiss was a Frankfurter plant as he admitted with a show of anguish when Robert Stripling, of the House Committee, insisted that he state for the record who his sponsor was.

There were actually public parades to hail the NRA as a grand economic and social cure-all. The mountebank Roosevelt waved his flagon of magic tiger-marrow-fat from the tail-gate of his wagon, and enchanted yokels in editorial offices, classrooms and pulpits scuffled to get theirs. Will Rogers produced a movie called "Stand Up and Cheer," in which little Shirley Temple, until then unknown but at her very best, did some dancing with Bill Robinson. This movie was sidelong ballyhoo for the fatuous proposition that we could git saved by hollering hallelujah.

The preamble to the law was a clumsy attempt to justify a surrender of the legislative power by Congress to Roosevelt, Johnson and the "code authorities." It said Congress hereby declared the existence of a "national emergency," which "burdens interstate and foreign commerce and affects the welfare of the people." Such invocations of the "commerce" and "welfare" clauses of the Constitution were to become a familiar trick. The author of the so-called Wagner Act, whoever he really was, knew the bill was unconstitutional of itself and therefore avowed a purpose to promote interstate commerce by abating "labor disputes," which was neither its intention nor its effect.

Continuing, the NRA law said it was the purpose of Congress to promote the free flow of commerce and "provide for the general welfare by promoting the organization of industry for the purpose of cooperative action among trade groups." Congress also wanted to maintain united action of labor and management under governmental supervision. Congress had no right to "maintain united action of labor management under governmental supervision." This was a fascist innovation but this was 1933 and our people, always slow on the uptake, had not yet parsed and analyzed fascism, if, indeed, they ever have. Roosevelt and his cabal knew the true inwards of fascism, however, and they stole it from Mussolini with no fundamental change. As long as NRA refrained from choking castor oil and kerosene down the gullets of the Schechters, it wasn't fascism to us.

The NRA provided that if one or more groups of businessmen in a given business applied to Roosevelt for a "code of fair competition," Roosevelt could approve such a code provided he did not "think" it promoted monopoly. He was to impose very complex and onerous provisions concerning "reports" and accounts to the NRA but he could also grant exceptions and exemptions "at his discretion." Remembering now the exploits of Elliott and Jimmy and of Truman's gang even without this tempting provision of NRA, my imagination falters at the splendor of the deals which could have been pulled under this presidential power to favor their friends or clients.

Once a "code" was approved by Roosevelt, its provisions became actual law for the industry concerned. In the end, this was the downfall of NRA. The Supreme Court held that Congress had a constitutional duty to legislate and was explicitly forbidden to delegate that duty to anyone. Actually, Roosevelt was not the one to whom the duty was delegated. The so-called code authorities were to perform that duty and Roosevelt merely to ratify their suggestions.

Already, by the time the thing blew up, profiteers had felt out the weak spots and defects and were muscling in to become grand fascists. The union racket was expressly declared in on the deal and would have taken the same position here that the fascist labor syndicates enjoyed under Mussolini.

I doubt that the present corrupt mentality of our higher education permits our young people to study this narrow escape from fascism which occurred when they were babies or yet unborn. They can find it in the papers and magazines and in the Supreme Court's unanimous decision but they won't bother to.

LOOKING SIDEWAYS

By WHITNEY BOLTON

A restless, tireless, blonde, and affectionately regarded old friend has an anniversary coming up this fall and before everyone else begins tossing the roses and the kind words her way I'd like to be the first to knock on her door and tell Sophie Tucker that 50 consecutive years in show business haven't done a thing to her but make her more popular than ever. She's a grand old girl and I didn't have to read her autobiography, "Some of These Days," to know it.

But it was worth reading, because I found out a lot of things about Sophie that I never knew and most of them were fascinating. I didn't know, for example, that she was about 15 years old when she began singing for her keep, that she was married then and had a son at 16, that she traveled a long, lonesome and often bitter road before becoming the star she was determined to be and did most certainly and smashingly become. She was a girl who had brains, which is always a certified help to anyone. When William Morris booked her into London for the first time, she laid out the plan to insure her success in a nototiously tough citty for a show woman to conquer. She got to England several weeks ahead of her booked date and haunted the music halls, clubs, pubs, gathering places of all kinds and sorts of Britons. She eavesdropped on them, questioned them, surveyed their likes and dislikes and then, for free, did a benefit to test out her feeling that she could give the British audiences what they wanted. The result of this research into a nation's likes and dislikes in a performer made her an instant hit when she did finally open in the West End. She wasn't just an American performer with a noted name, doing what she wanted to do and expecting a new kind of audience to like it. She was a performer who had sounded out her new audience in advance and changed her act to suit. I recommend the idea to American music hall artists who, of late, have been failing miserably in London. Martin & Lewis, for example, recently were abysmal failures and instead of being smart and changing their act — they publicly lashed into critics and audiences. You may be sure that they will not be booked into London again soon.

Another thing Miss Tucker learned early was that a mink coat and a set of diamonds never hurt a girl's chances in the theater. She began a systematic project for buying mink and diamonds on time and to this day follows that plan. She has found that diamonds are indeed a girl's best friend whether worn on the person or taken around to Uncle when times are tough.

Sophie's book is warm and generous and human. She tells of her first "Follies" job when she killed them on opening night with several songs. On the second night she arrived at the theater to be told she would be allowed one song and only one—and discovered that Nora Bayes, the star, had ordered the cuts in Sophie's sure-fire material. Years later she and Nora became close, dear friends and the friendship lasted for 20 years or more—during which neither Sophie nor Nora even mentioned the occasion when the new girl who had stunned a First Audience fell afoul of star jealousy. That requires something commonly known as character.

She is candid about herself, often rueful. She describes when she became a star and bought her first automobile. It wasn't enough to tool up Broadway, swathed in mink and with her diamonds winking. She had her full name printed on eace side of the car doors: SOPHIE TUCKER. She confesses now that it was a darn fool thing to do and has the grace to laugh at herself for doing it.

I have affection of a deep and abiding nature for this true, this wonderful show woman. I could wish her another half century of joy and attainment, but it can't happen, of course. Or maybe it can. Some people DO live to be 115 years old.

THE RECORD SHOP

By RICHARD KLEINER
NEA Staff Corrspondent

NEW YORK — (NEA) — It is rather difficult to believe that Martha Lou Harp, the woman, is the same person as Martha Lou Harp, the singer.

Miss Harp, the woman, is very beautiful, but hers is a fresh, dewy kind of beauty. Looks like she was picking magnolias all morning.

Miss Harp, the singer, has a very beautiful voice, but it is a smoky, lusty kind of beauty. Sounds like she was picking orchids all night.

Her style, someone has said, is a cross between Johnny Ray and Marlene Dietrich. It's husky, exciting and—well, there's no other word: sexy. She herself prefers to call it "warm and intimate."

How did a magnolia-type girl develop an orchid-type voice?

"When I was a girl," she began, which is a sensible place to begin, "my sister took singing lessons and I took piano lessons. My folks couldn't afford to do more than that, and they thought she had the better voice.

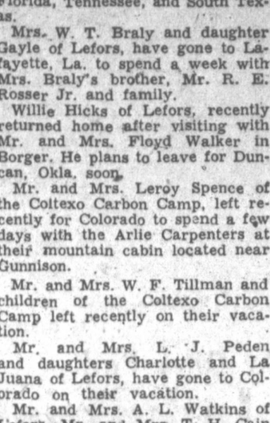

"I liked to sing, though, and I'd sit on my bed and sing quietly. I'd sing popular songs and my folks didn't approve of them. I never heard any girl singer, so I just sang quietly and naturally."

If you want to hear what this sort of thing can lead to, listen to her new Columbia album, "Dream Time." It's just Martha Lou, an echo chamber, an organ and a harp. It would produce pleasant dreams in a misogynist.

Martha Lou's sister, the one who got the singing lessons, now has five children.

THE POPULAR SIDE: Ever notice how many top gal singers are little things? Joni James, Teresa Brewer, Toni Arden, Lola Ameche and many others are about knee high to a clef. Miss Arden claims she's five-two "with spike heels on." . . . Joni James, incidentally, does a multiple-recording job for the first time in her new one, "You're Fooling Someone."

ON THE CLASSICS: Big classical story is that Mischa Elman, who will leave RCA-Victor after 43 years, did so because of a feud with RCA's other recording violinist, Jascha Heifetz. Elman reportedly felt the company was letting Heifetz record the best numbers.

LADY LEGIONNAIRE — Mrs. Harold Soule Burdett, of Brooklyn, N. Y., will be the new president of the American Legion Ladies Auxiliary when the veterans' group meets in St. Louis, Mo., on Sept. 3. Mrs. Burdett, an Army nurse, succeeds Mrs. Rae Ashton, of Vernal, Utah.

MULTIPLE 'BIGAMIST' — Wedding bells are old stuff for Jerry Dugan, wise-cracking roue pictured here on the knee of his creator, Landrus, the ventriloquist, currently appearing with a medicine show off Foster between Ward and Purviance. Jerry will repeat the vows for the 2260th and the 2261st times at 9:30 p.m. Friday when he "marries" the two Pampa charmers shown with him. His newest "brides" are Geraldine Rains, 9, 233 W. Craven (left), and Clara Mae Stone, 10, Tyng St. Apartments. A member of the International Platform Association, Landrus has entertained school kids in more than 5,000 assembly programs in all the 48 states. (News photo)

Plans Made On Highway

Plans and specifications for the troublesome nine miles of State Highway 70 immediately south of the Canadian River were 60 per cent complete today in the State Highway Department engineering office here.

The nine-mile stretch calls for a 10-inch caliche base from the end of paving north for six miles and a 12-inch caliche base for the remaining three miles, ending at the approaches of the proposed Canadian River bridge — yet to be built. Topping for the roadway will be a two-course asphalt surface.

Loose and deep sand approaching the river has been one of the major problems in finishing out the road. A raft of various forms of road building methods were available to the engineers, but they had to decide on something with long life as well as economical to lay.

In the meantime, Senior Resident Engineer G. K. Reading was almost midway through the plans and specifications on jetties and bridge protection which must be constructed before the span itself is started.

Bids on the bridge protection and jetties may not be called before December due to shipments on steel. The same steel problems face the recently let bridge spanning North Fork of Red River, southeast of Lefors. Construction there may not start for 90 days. In that time the plans for the nine-mile sector of Highway 70 will probably be completed, corrected, and approved and a date set for bidding, engineers believe.

License Upheld By Commissioner

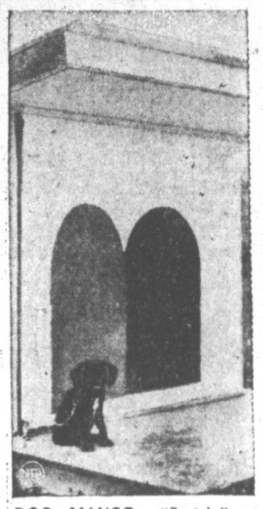

SANTA FE, N. M., Aug. 27—UP —State Motor Vehicle Comissioner Tony Luna has rebuffed the Motor Vehicle Dealers Association of New Mexico by putting a liberal interpretation on the controversial new law relating to dealers' licenses.

Luna upheld a license held by Ray Kelch of Los Alamos as valid and announced he will not interpret the new law to prevent dealers from using their homes as their business offices.

A representative of the dealers' group insisted the law prevented dealers from operating from their homes. He pointed out a clause requires dealers to have an established place of business devoted "exclusively" to trading in autos before they can qualify for a license.

Kelch, who uses his Los Alamos apartment as his business office, was called to show cause why he should not lose his license.

Luna said under his interpretation, he will ask references and make a careful examination of each license application before approving it to protect the public.

Oilers Leave For Final Trip Into Southern End Of League

PRESS BOX VIEWS

By BUCK FRANCIS
Pampa Daily News Sports Editor

JUST AS A REMINDER, you football fans wanting to see all Harvester games this fall better get down to the school business office to pick up those choice seats that still remain. These season books will be taken off the market in a few days and after that time fans will just have to sweat out each game of getting a ticket.

There are some good games slated for Harvester Park this season. The feature game, of course, is the Odessa Bronco invasion in November. Then the Amarillo Sandies, a team that may go somewhere this season, is on the slate.

Abilene's Eagles furnish the opposition in the only other District 1-AAAA battle. The two non-district foes on the slate are Austin of El Paso and Big Spring. Austin is the favorite to repeat in 2-AAAA while reports out of Big Spring have it that the Steers are coming up with one of their better teams of all times.

All these five games for $7.50 is certainly a bargain. The season reserve books take a lot of strain off the cash customers. The fans don't have to rush to the game to be sure and get a good seat because they already have one reserved. And then, in addition, the fans will get the option of keeping the same seat each year afterwards.

It won't be long now until the Harvesters and other schoolboy and college gridders will be breaking camp. In fact, next Tuesday is the starting date. We'll have more on the gridders later.

WHILE THE FOOTBALL fever is beginning to take hold here, the Oilers will be striving to retain their chances at a first division spot on a most crucial road trip that starts tonight. The Oilers more or less have their back to the wall at the moment but they aren't quitting by any means.

The "do-or-die" series, of course, will be the two Plainview series the Oilers have with the Ponies yet to come. Those two series will consume six games and should the Oilers get hot, then watch out.

IT WAS A BIG NIGHT for The Bob Galeys at Oiler Park last night. Mr. Bob came through with his finest mound performance of the year to lead his Lubbock Hubbers to a 5-1 win over the Oilers. And Mrs. Bob was awarded a $12.50 cash prize by the Oiler management for coming closest to guessing the attendance at Tuesday night's game.

Mrs. Galey tied with a Pampan, Sammy Pursley, in coming closest to guessing the right attendance and thus split the $25 pot. Both guessed 1,111 while the paid attendance was 1,110.

Queen Hopeful Wins

CHICAGO, Aug. 27—UP—Queen Hopeful won the $107,490 Princess Pat Stake, charging up from the pack to run her race in the stretch and edge Chorus Khal by three-quarters of a length.

Hubbers Win Finale Here; Maxie Back

The Oilers left today for their last invasion of the southern end of the league this season, opening the six-day jaunt at Lubbock tonight with the veteran Max Molberg due to take the mound. Molberg is returning to the squad following a 10-day inactive status.

Lubbock, behind the air tight pitching of Bob Galey, took the final game of the series with the Oilers at Oiler Park last night, 5-1. Galey, hurling possibly his best game of the season, dished up only three hits and struck out nine in winning his 16th of the season.

Rolando Rodriguez of the Oilers hurled creditable ball but he slipped up and gave "curve-shy" Bill Metzig a couple of wrong pitches and the Hub manager blasted them out of the park to account for four Lubbock runs. The homers were the 25th and 26th for Metzig this season.

In tonight's game, Molberg will be gunning for win No. 8 as compared to 10 losses. Molberg, bothered with arm trouble most of the year, appears to be recovered and is ready to go. With Molberg rejoining the club, lefty Larry Fox has been returned to the Harlingen club of the Gulf Coast loop.

After two games with Lubbock, the Oilers will go to Abilene for two and then to Plainview for two.

Doug Lewis of the Oilers got one of the three Oiler hits last night and thus extended his hitting streak to 18 consecutive games. Lewis' bingle last night drove in the only Oiler run. The run came in the sixth inning when Ben Felder singled, moved to second on Manny Temes' groundout and then scored when Lewis drilled a sharp single to right.

The only other hit garnered by the Oilers was a Texas League single by George Lambrinos in the second frame.

The Hubs scored enough to win in the first inning when Metzig blasted his first homer. Ray Newsome singled and two outs later Bob Featherstone walked to start the Hub first. Rodriguez seemed to have Metzig on his hip with a 2-2 count but the Hub boss pickled a knee-high fast ball over the left centerfield wall for three runs and that, as it turned out, was the ball game.

Lubbock added single runs in the fifth and eighth innings. Metzig accounted for the eighth inning marker with his second homer of the night and the third of the series. In the fifth, successive singles by Newsome, Al Kubski and Bob Fernandez brought in a run.

Rodriguez, in losing, struck out eight Hubs and walked only two.

Rhodes' 3-Homer Feat First Of Year

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—UP—The annual August-September salary drive was on in earnest in the majors Thursday as some of the boys on the also-ran ball clubs try to impress their bosses and earn raises next year.

With the pennant races all but over, the players were looking to their own averages and other marks with more concern than whether their teams are winning or losing.

Such obscure performers as Dusty Rhodes of the Giants, Hal Jeffcoat of the Cubs, Dave Philley of the Athletics, and a few others not noted for their slugging activities, were impressive Wednesday in leading their second division teams to triumph over first division opponents.

Giants Get 16 Hits

Rhodes became the first player this season to hit three home runs in a game as he paced the Giants to a 13 to 4 victory over the Cardinals by batting in five runs. He became the 101st player in major league history to whack three in a game. His batting average was a measly .167 and he had hit only three home runs previously during the entire season.

The Giants, all anxious to stave off paycuts let alone shoot for raises, banged out 16 hits good for 31 bases. Al Dark hit a two-run homer and four singles. Bobby Thomson hit a two-run homer. Pinch-hitter Peanuts Lowrey and rookie Dick Schofield hit successive first pinch homers off winner Jim Hearn after he walked two batters in the seventh, accounting for all St. Louis runs.

The Cubs squared accounts for much of the rough treatment they have received in Brooklyn this year when they also beat the Dodgers, 13 to 4, on 15 hits, including two homers by Jeffcoat and one by Bill Serena. Jeffcoat had hit only two homers previously this season. It was Brooklyn's worst home defeat. Randy Jackson hit a two-run triple and Serena a two-run homer in a six-run eighth inning rally.

Dodgers Stay Nine Ahead

However, the Dodgers remained nine games ahead in the National League race when the second-place Milwaukee Braves dropped a 6 to 5 verdict to the Phillies in a night game. The Phillies, with a total of 16 hits off five pitchers, rolled up a 6 to 0 margin in the first five innings as Del Ennis showed the way with a two-run homer, a double, and a run-scoring fly. But the Braves kept rallying until Sid Gordon's ninth-inning homer cut the margin to one run and brought in reliever Jim Konstanty to save the victory for Karl Drews.

The Yankees boosted their lead to 10½ games in the American League by topping Detroit 5 to 4 on 13 hits and single runs in five different innings, while Philadelphia again topped Chicago, 10 to 8. Cleveland defeated Washington, 9 to 5, and the Browns and Red Sox had an open date.

Texans Shine In East-West All-Star Tilt

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 27—UP—The East turned a fumbled punt and an intercepted pass into two final period touchdowns Wednesday night to down the West 22 to 13 and remain undefeated in the All-America high school football game.

The West, powered by the passing of quarterback Ronnie Knox, Santa Monica, Calif., and the running of fullback Jack Throckmorton, of Lamarque, Tex., was leading 13 to 9 going into the fourth period.

But the fumble and interception, coupled with the running of John Blalack, Drew, Miss., and David Kaiser, Alpena, Mich., proved a decisive edge, and the East racked up its fifth straight victory.

East Scores First

The East scored first, when Pete Cook, Alexandria, Ala., tackled Knox in the end zone in the first period. It was a defensive battle at the start, with East's Fred Sington Jr., Birmingham, Ala., and West's Ben Woodson, Brownwood, Tex., the standouts.

The West team went ahead when Gerald Tubbs, Breckenridge, Tex., blocked Kaiser's second period punt and Jack Stovall, Phoenix, Ariz., recovered on East's 11-yard line. Two Oklahoma boys—Robert Derrick of Woodward and Dick Wilkins of Duncan moved the ball to the five. Throckmorton plunged over three plays later. Stovall's kick was bad.

The East returned the kickoff to the 30-yard line, and Kaiser, Blalack and J. Paige Cothren, Natchez, Miss., put on a sustained drive that carried to the East four. But then Blalack fumbled and Woodson recovered to end the threat. The half ended with the West leading 6 to 2.

'Knox' Passes Click

In the third period, Knox, who was voted "outstanding player" by sports writers, started clicking with passes. Knox completed two throws to Olan Burns, Earle, Ark., good for 11 yards to West's 47. Throckmorton gained 30 on two running plays. Knox passed to Sonny Ray, Corpus Christi, Tex., and then hit Joel Favara, Tucson, Ariz., and the ball was on the four. Favara carried to the three and Throckmorton took it over. Stovall kicked.

The East bounced right back to score. Dan Coyle, Birmingham, Ala., took the kick on the 15 and returned it to East's 36. Kaiser took a lateral and ran to West's 36. Blalack, starting from the 36, reversed his field and carried for 25 yards to the nine. A penalty put it on the four and Cothren carried it over. Sington kicked the extra point, but the East trailed 13 to 9 going into the final period.

Then came two quick touchdowns by East. Coyle recovered a punt fumbled by Charles McCue, Lawrence, Kan., on the three and stepped over the goal.

The final score came when Cothren intercepted a Knox pass and ran it to the West's three. Blalack lost four yards, then Cothren plunged over four minutes before the whistle. Gordon Wakefield, Ripley, Tenn., kicked the extra point.

Industrial League Playoff Set Tonite

The third game of a best three out-of-five series for the Industrial League playoff champion will be unreeled tonight at Oiler Park with Skelly and Cabot meeting at 8:15.

Skelly has taken a 2-0 lead in the series already and can sew up the playoff title by winning tonight's game. Should Cabot win tonight, then the fourth game would be played Friday night, also at Oiler Park. And a fifth game, if necessary, would be played at the same place Saturday night.

In the event Skelly wins tonight, an all-star team picked from the other teams of the Industrial League will play the Skelly nine tomorrow night at Oiler Park.

Proceeds taken in at the games will go toward Lions Club project of supporting the Crippled Children's Hospital in Kerrville.

The Cabot team is strictly a Pampa team while the Skelly nine is made up mostly of Skellytown players.

Manager A. C. Hourigan of the Cabot team has three football coaches on his roster, shortstop Weldon Trice, centerfielder Dwaine Lyon and second baseman Marvin Bowman.

Hourigan gave his starting lineup for tonight's game as follows:

Weldon Trice, ss.
Dwaine Lyon, cf.
A. C. Hourigan, 1b.
Bill Stephens, pitcher.
Dick Abbot, 3b.
Marvin Bowman, 2b.
Hoyt Taylor, lf.
Dan Sadler, rf.
Robert Scott, catcher.

Manager Buster West of the Skelly team was unavailable this morning to name his starting lineup for tonight's game.

Admission to the game will be 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children.

Gavilan Wins By Decision

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—UP—Welterweight Champion Kid Gavilan was so delighted with his victory over middleweight contender Ralph (Tiger) Jones he declared positively Thursday, "I will win the middleweight championship!"

The speedy Cuban "Keed," who won a unanimous 10-round decision over Jones of Yonkers, N. Y., Wednesday night, said he would challenge the winner of the middleweight title fight between Bobo Olson and Randy Turpin Oct. 21.

"All I want to know is who is middlweight champion; then I will beat him," he explained with a happy grin.

* Border Conference Game (H) Homecoming

TEXAS TECH'S CO-CAPTAINS FOR 1953 — Guard Don Gray of Breckenridge, Tex., (left) and End Vic Spooner of Colquitt, Ga., Gray, 6-footer weighing 195, returned to the Red Raiders last fall after serving in Korea. He also fought in Italy in World War II. Spooner, first out-of-stater ever to lead the Raiders, was a junior college All-American playing for South Georgia College. He's 6 feet tall, weighs 190.

32 Lettermen, Including Two Pampans, Returning For Tech

LUBBOCK, Aug. 27—Thirty two returning lettermen will be among the approximately 100 candidates reporting at Texas Tech's first football practice session Tuesday morning.

Coach DeWitt Weaver will have less than three weeks to get his Red Raiders ready for their opening game, a Border Conference clash with West Texas State here Sept. 19.

In his third year at Tech, Weaver is hoping to get the Raiders winning once more. They took the Border Conference title in 1951 and captured the Sun Bowl to wind up with a 7-4 record but last season compiled only a 3-7-1 mark while finishing second in conference play.

Most missed in the post-platoon era will be All-Border Conference halfback Jim Turner of Olney, the Raiders' only two-way starter throughout the season. Other starters who must be replaced are tackles Marland Ribble and Hollice Davis, both of Fort Worth, guard Vernon Barron of Temple, fullback Charles (Sandy) Welton of Fairmont, West Va., and end Lew Crossley of Eastland.

Both Ribble and Welton played considerable double duty ball. Barron started every Tech game, on offense, for three successive years, and Davis made the All-Border Conference (AP) team at offensive tackle. Despite his slight build, Crossley was a first team wingman for three seasons.

End Vic Spooner of Colquitt, Ga., and guard Don Gray of Breckenridge succeed Turner and Barron as co-captains.

By positions, other returning lettermen in the split-T operating Tech lineup are:

Centers Don Funk of Chickasha, Okla., and Ralph Martin of Fort Worth.

Guards L. W. Fitzhugh of Blytheville, Ark., Ray Howard of Childress, and Bob Hunt of Altus, Okla.

Tackles Bobby Lambert of Nixon, Jimmie Williams of Phillips, Arlen Wesley of Littlefield (from 1951, did not play last fall), Jerry Walker of Pampa, Bill Bryan of Pecos (end last year), Barton Massey of Bowie (center last year).

Ends Paul Erwin of Odessa, Billy Wright of Lubbock, Ken Kummer of Detroit, Mich., Dean White of Lubbock, R. D. Bradshaw of Childress, and Harold Spraggins of West Point, Ga.

Quarterbacks Jerry Johnson of Hale Center, Jack Kirkpatrick of Post (halfback last year), and Carl Madison of Atmore, Ala.

Williams Says Pearsall One Of Game's Best

NEW YORK, Aug. 26—UP—They say in the dugouts:

Thumping Ted Williams insists teammate Jim Piersall is the outstanding American League ball player he has seen since returning from Korea. . .

Shortstop Bobby Morgan owns the best batting eye on the Brooklyn ball club. Authority for the statement is Manager Chuck Dressen. . .

Bob Porterfield, the Washington shutout specialist, doesn't blame the Yankees for turning him loose. "I wasn't helping them and I was not helping myself," he says. "I would have done the same thing if I were in their shoes." . . .

Wrong Dope on Lindell

The Senators have soured on Pete Runnels. They're expecting Jack Luttrell, soon to be discharged from service, to take over the first string shortstop job in 1954. . .

Wally Moses, now coaching for the A's, tells how he accidentally received "the greatest ovation ever given a ball player" while a member of the White Sox in 1943. "I had just stepped up to bat at Yankee Stadium when it was announced over the public address system that Mussolini had abdicated as premier of Italy," Moses recalls. "The fans simply tore down the joint." . . .

National League pitchers are rewriting "the book" on Johnny Lindell of the Pirates. They were told he was "strictly a high ball hitter" so they fed him a steady diet of low balls and were murdered. . .

Bucky Harris Apologizes

Shortstop Dick Schofield of the Cardinals and pitcher Bob Miller of the Tigers are the "bonus babies" who have impressed rival players most from among the recent crop. . .

Rex Baxter A 'Comer' On Links -- Fite

By ED FITE

DALLAS, Aug. 27—UP—Lanky, blue-eyed Rex Baxter Jr. failed in his quest for a Hogan-like "triple" in national junior golf circles, but the raw-boned youngster from the wind-swept Texas Panhandle still figures as a "comer" on the links.

The 17-year-old Amarillo product was well on his way to that "triple" until he let one bad round get away from him last week in the National Junior Chamber of Commerce tournament at Ann Arbor, Mich.

He was fresh from sparkling triumphs in the USGA's National Junior Tournament at Tulsa and the Hearts National Junior Tournament in Birmingham, Mich., when he stumbled at Ann Arbor and wound up in sixth place in the medal play affair.

But, Texas observers who have watched such stars as Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson, Lloyd Mangrum, Jimmy Demaret and many others blossom from their Texas starts into national prominence figure young Baxter did right well in his first fling at national competition.

And, they're predicting a bright future for the lad who buried his love for other sports to devote his time to golf.

He could have been a standou in football and basketball at Amarillo high school, producer of many star players in Southwestern college circles, but chose to concentrate on golf.

The dividends are beginning to pour in from the five years of hard work he's put in since an aunt and uncle introduced him to the game.

Baxter, son of a chamber of commerce secretary, is taking a cue from Hogan in being deadly serious about his golf game.

On the fairways, he is a solemn-faced competitor although he admits he would rather play with a friendly foe than one who "clams up."

He says he plays the course, rather than his opponent in match play—a trait he'll need as he wends his way down the amateur trail.

Young Baxter's putter, admittedly, is the weakest club in his bag, but he doesn't particularly like his short irons either. His long suit lies in his woods with which he powders the ball far and true off the tee or from the fairways.

Off the course, Baxter's winning smile under a short thatch of sun and wind-bleached hair makes him a likable personality.

And, friends say his recent triumphs have not forced him to change the size of his hatband.

He attributes his success to an intense "desire" to win and an "awful amount of luck."

He has cast his golf future with the University of Houston, but will first try the National Amateur at Oklahoma City next month in another effort to get the third leg on that desired "triple."

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 26—UP—Ed Mathews of the Milwaukee Braves Wednesday was the third National League player in 23 years to reach a season's homer total of 40.

Mathews hit his 40th of the season as the Braves divided a doubleheader with the Phillies Tuesday night. Johnny Mize and Ralph Kiner were the only other National Leaguers to reach the 40 mark since 1930, when Hack Wilson set the league mark of 56.

New Hitting Leaders in Both Loops

NEW YORK, Aug. 26—UP—Mickey Vernon of the Seantors and Al (Red) Schoendienst of the Cardinals took over the major-league batting leads Wednesday. Vernon collected two hits in five trips against the Indians Tuesday night to shove his average to .326, while Schoendienst bagged four hits in eight trips in a twi-night doubleheader against the Giants to top the National League with a .340 mark.

Ponies Win Behind Arthur

By UNITED PRESS

Pampa's hopes for a West Texas-New Mexico League playoff berth dimmed Thursday with the Oilers three and one-half games behind fourth-place Plainview.

The Oilers took a 5 to 1 lashing at the hands of Lubbock last night as Hubber pitcher Bob Galey gave the home standers but three hits.

Plainview got almost as good pitching from Ed Arthur. Arthur allowed Abilene only six hits as the Ponies edged the visitors 3 to 2.

Dupas Favored in Fight

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 24—UP—Classy New Orleans Lightweight Ralph Dupas will go to the post a slight favorite over the Canadian Irishman Brian Kelley in a return eight-round bout Monday night. Despite his loss to the Irish Canadian several weeks ago in a close bout at Miami Beach, Fla., Dupas has been installed as favorite to stop the rough, boring-in Kelley.

Rosen Takes 3 Leads

CLEVELAND, Aug. 24—UP—Al Rosen of the Indians now leads the American League in three departments—batting average, home runs and runs-batted-in. The Indians' third baseman moved into the triple lead by blasting a three-run homer and two singles Sunday. He leads in homers with 33, in batting average with .326, and runs-batted-in with 116.

Young Movie Star Enjoys Loan-Out

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 26 UP—Bright-eyed Piper Laurie said today she feels like an honest-to-Pete movie star for the first time in her career—thanks to RKO pictures.

The vivacious young redhead began her film career at Universal-International when she was 17; and had never made a picture elsewhere until she was loaned to RKO last month for "Rangers of the North."

"It's wonderful," she said, "people here at RKO call me 'Miss Laurie' instead of 'Pipe' like they do at U-I. They treat me like Garbo, instead of a kid sister.

"Everyone here has been wonderful about making me feel at home. I was scared to death about making my first picture at another studio. You know, a person gets used to doing things one particular way at their own studio—and doing a movie at another lot is always different."

"Ranger" also marked the first time Piper's ever gone on location for a picture.

"Vic Mature, my co-star, really goes out of his way to help me do a scene. He's a perfectionist. He wants everyone to do his part exactly right."

Piper also is happy the picture doesn't cast her as a girl disguised as a boy, or a harem girl in frilly Arabian nights pantaloons.

"The gowns," she smiled, "are out of this world. U-I wouldn't let me wear them, even if the part called for it. The wardrobe department here kept asking for lower cut bodices and tighter sweaters. I really feel 21 for a change.

"I can make suggestions as we go along, too. At Universal people would listen to me, then go ahead with things the way they'd planned them. At U-I I'm still just the little girl who grew up on the back lot."

The youthful actress returns to her home lot in a few weeks to co-star opposite Tony Curtis in "Johnny Dark," but looks forward to being loaned out again.

"What I'll miss most," Piper sighed, "is the little man here at RKO who spends all his time in a corner just making coffee. At U-I we have to use the vending machine.

Birds Of A Feather

CHICAGO, Aug. 27 —UP— Mrs. Sally Cannon, a character reader, Thursday considered changing professions.

Six gypsies showed up at her house Wednesday, said they "were passing through and thought they would drop in."

Mrs. Cannon, 45, sized them up as friendly characters and served coffee and doughnuts. It was then one guest pulled a pistol from his pocket and robbed her of $400.

Plane Search Continues

LUFKIN, Tex., Aug. 27 —UP— A search continued Thursday for a light plane piloted by Pvt. Klein Evans of Fort Bliss and missing on a flight Tuesday night from El Paso to either Lake Charles or DeRidder, La. The search centered near Lufkin after a forest ranger and a farmer reported hearing a plane during the night.
