Local man gets 21 days, $1,000 fine for DWI

Albert J. Anderson of Colorado City was found guilty of a charge of DWI and sentenced to 21 days in jail and a $1,000 fine by a Mitchell County Jury Tuesday afternoon.

Anderson represented himself in the trial which was prosecuted by County Attorney Clay Strange. After the testimony was presented the 2-man, 4-woman jury found Anderson guilty of the incident which occurred on January 31.

In the punishment stage, Presiding Judge Bill Carter charged the jury that the offense carries a penalty of not less than $100 nor more than $2,000 fine and/or not less than 72-hours nor more than 2 years in jail; and that it was the jury's prerogative whether or not to grant probation.

Attorney Strange told the jury he didn't think the defendant deserved the minimum punishment nor the maximum, and left it entirely up to them.

Anderson's only comment to the jury was "I think the $25 See TRIAL, Page 2

County to buy new equipment

With County Judge Bill Carter absent while presiding over a county court jury trial Tuesday afternoon, the Mitchell County Commissioners Court side-stepped a couple of issues, but authorized jail planning and purchases of equipment.

Marion Bassham again appeared before the Court to request $751 for purchase of sprinkler system hardware for the planned Memorial Garden in the back yard of the Heritage House. The Court indicated it had no authority to authorize funds for such a purpose. However, since it does make an annual contribution to the Historical Committee, the County might be able to help by going through this organization. Further negotiations with the His-

The annual survey of Mitchell County Hospital for Medicare purposes was underway at press-time Tuesday, Ray Mason, administrator, said.

Mason said in addition to the hospital, the home health care agency and the swing bed program, two relatively new services of the hospital, were being surveyed by the six-man team.

FROM THE SCRIPTURES—"Happy is the man that rewardeth thee as thou has served us." Psalm 137:8

One of my favorite waitresses is Dollie Ramirez, who works at the Pizza Hut. I missed her there a couple of weeks ago, and was afraid she had quit or otherwise departed. But she finally showed up again.

"Where have you been, Dollie?", I asked. "On a cruise," she said over her shoulder as she hustled past the table. Next trip by I asked, "Did you enjoy the cruise?" "Not like the Love Boat," she said as she hurried to the kitchen to turn in an order. As she returned later to fill my cup of coffee, I continued to inquire, "Where did you go?" "New Orleans, Key West, Cancun, other South Seas stops," she said as she rushed to refill other cups. While she was clearing and cleaning the next table she added "Our ship caught on fire!" And it went that way through the whole lunch hour—you see why she is a good waitress. I finally pieced together the story that her husband, Ricardo, had won the week-long trip in a incentive program with "76" Truck Stop. Even though it may not have had the glamour of the "Love Boat", they apparently enjoyed the trip. The fire at sea of the "Canada Star" happened last Tuesday, several days after they had completed their cruise. The Ramirez' are relatively new residents of

THE LONE WOLF SAYS, "The longer you nurse a grudge, the longer it takes to get better."

Did your wife ever ask you to "zip" the zipper on the back of her dress, and it broke or got stuck? Well, it happened to a young couple one morning while they were hurried to get ready for work. The wife did a slow burn all day thinking of that broken zipper on her new dress.

Coming home that evening she walked through the garage and saw her husband under the car, fixing something, with his legs sticking out. The moment of revenge had come!

She leaned over, grabbed his pants zipper, and whipped it up and down. She then walked into the kitchen where she found her husband standing. Sheepishly, she asked him who was under their car and was told it was a neighbor who had come over to help fix the muffler.

The embarrassed wife asked her husband to explain to the neighbor and they returned to the garage. When they asked him to come out from under the car he failed to respond. When they dragged him out he was unconscious and bleeding from slamming his head into the underside of the car when he got zipped by surprise.

A Republican runoff election will be held the same day at the Civic Center for U. S. Senator, Railroad Commissioner and Supreme Court Justice, Place 2 races.

Bubonic plague threat appears to be subsiding

The threat of contracting bubonic plague is subsiding, according to Dr. Evret Newman, a regional veterinarian for the Texas Department of Health.

The infectious plague is expected to subside because of warmer and drier weather conditions and a decreased rodent population, he added.

Thirteen West Texas counties were affected this winter by an outbreak of the infection, including confirmed cases in Mitchell County. The plague also spread from the first outbreak in Midland and Martin counties, in November, to Borden, Dawson, Howard, Ector, Glasscock, Sterling, Coke, Crane, Upton, Pecos and Brewster. There have been no reported cases affecting humans.

Newman said what brought on the plague was the unusually mild

Currently serving as the vice-chair of the House Democratic Caucus, Carriker stressed in his announcement statement both his life-long residence in the district and his demonstrated leadership abilities in the legislature. "I was born, reared and live in the 30th District," he said, "and I make my living tilling 30th District soil. My great-grandparents settled here and my children are growing up here. This is where my commitments are."

An elected member of the Democratic National Committee, Carriker went on to point to the effectiveness of his work with the Democratic Party and in the legislature. "This District cannot afford do-nothing representation in the Senate. I'll make the same kind of Senator as I have Representative; someone who listens to his constituents, makes the right decisions, then fights hard for his district," Carriker said.

Carriker serves on the committees on Agriculture, County Affairs, and Interim Joint Committee on Waste Management. He served for four years as a member of the Board for the Senior Texans Employment Program and serves as a member of the Advisory Board for Green Thumb. He has served on numerous agriculture-related boards, is an ex-officio member of the Fisher County Economic Development Commission, is a former scoutmaster, member of the National Rifle Association and Texas Sheriff's Association. He was also active in the "Super Tuesday" primary with the Committee to Retain Elected Judges.

historical Committee was suggested.

Tracy Nobles, local child welfare worker, had previously asked for new appointments to the County Child Welfare Board. She indicated she had such good volunteer response from local citizens that she would like to request to increase the number on the board from 7 to 15. The Commissioners indicated they were in favor of the idea, but any action would have to be delayed until they could check the organizational documents, to see how and if they could be amended to meet the request. Further consideration would be placed on the April 5 meeting agenda. While conferring with Mrs. Nobles the Court approved an expenditure to pay for a small boys' dental needs.

To meet a May 1 deadline for proceeding with required County Jail improvements, the Court authorized Commissioner Ed Roach to make arrangements with a draftsman or architect to draw up plans for converting the old living quarters into a jail kitchen area and other offices.

Commissioner Bill Preston

received permission to advertise for bids for the purchase of a new motorgrader for Precinct 4. Also Commissioner Roach received permission to seek bids for the purchase of a 67-yard dump truck for Precinct 1. Specifications for the equipment will be available in the County Auditor's office. Bids will be received until 2 p.m. on April 11.

Commissioner Johnny Shackelford reported that the Ambulance Board had met recently and that improvements in the operations are progressing well. He said a regular report would be filed with the regular monthly reports received by the Court.

The Court also approved the current two-week payroll totaling $37,610 submitted by Treasurer Ann Hallmark; and $41,438.15 in current bills submitted by Auditor George Griffith.

Commissioner Paul Hunter presided over the meeting in the absence of Judge Carter. Deputy Clerk Emma Hopper substituted for County Clerk Joan Beach who was also involved in the County Court trial.

Tejas CattleWomen promote Ag Day

Every year CattleWomen all over the nation set aside one day in March during Ag Week to celebrate Agriculture Awareness Day by promoting programs to make the public more aware of the importance of agriculture in our daily lives. March 20-26 is Ag Week for 1988.

For several years, and again this year, Tejas CattleWomen have sponsored a farm field trip of fourth grade students at Coahoma to the farm of Paul Allen. On this trip, the students witness the environment of different kinds of farm animals, hear reports of how the different farm crops are seeded, fertilized, irrigated and harvested and see demonstrations about the effects of wind and water on different soil conditions.

This year, Tejas is introducing a new project to promote awareness of beef and agriculture. "Beef By-Products" coloring books will be distributed in one class of third grade students in Big Spring, Gail, Ira, Snyder, Sweetwater and Westbrook schools.

Tejas CattleWomen recently met at Mac-Michael's Restaurant for their regular meeting with President Yvonne Nunn presiding. Adele Ginzler gave the opening prayer. Sue Guelker gave an oral report of the February meeting that was held in Big Spring at which time Libbi Garnett, Mitchell County extension agent, gave a program on "stress".

Texas CattleWomen's Legislation Chairman Lucille Sterling reminded all members to write to their congressmen urging their support for the repeal of the diesel fuel tax and heifer tax provisions. Also, all CattleWomen are to continue to support the vote for the beef referendum on May 10 at their respective county agent's office.

Maureen Morris, past president, read several letters from members of the staff and the girls at Girlstown thanking the Tejas members for the gifts sent to them at Christmas.

Sue Guelker, program director, introduced Mrs. Roland (LaRue) Powell, guest speaker. Mrs. Powell is vice president of City National Bank of Colorado City where she has been employed for over 30 years. She stressed the importance of everyone acquiring and establishing their own individual credit in their own name. Since 1974, when the Equal Opportunity Credit Act was introduced, there has been an increase of 76 percent of women working in public. The importance of women being informed of the family's financial position cannot be over emphasized, especially in the event of a death or tragedy where she is forced to make many important decisions and continue the family business.

Carlyn Walker, president of Texas CattleWomen of Mirando City, will be guest speaker for the Tejas CattleWomen at their meeting on April 4 to be held at the Golden Corral in Snyder. All women who are interested in promoting beef are encouraged to attend.

Those attending were guest

LaRue Powell and members Guelker, Maureen Morris, Lucille Yvonne Nunn, Adele Ginzler, Sue Sterling and Minnie Boyd.

National Ag Week

Opening the 1988 Spring season, National Agriculture Week is being observed this week, with the theme of "Honoring America's Providers."

"These observances provide a good time to recognize the people, organizations and businesses responsible for producing the abundant, high quality food and fiber supply for today's consumers," says Dr. Carl G. Anderson, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"A healthy agriculture keeps the wheels of the economy turning. The food and fiber system not only provides reasonably priced nutritious diets and beautiful clothes, but it also means jobs and payrolls," Anderson explains.

These jobs stem from the production, storage, processing plants, transportation, offices, wholesalers, retailers, and supermarkets needed to move food and fiber from farmer ranch to consumer, Anderson emphasizes.

"Agricultural producers and consumers depend on each other for products and services that are vital to modern businesses and lifestyles. Even though only one out of every 40 Texans is a farmer or rancher, about 25 percent of the state's retail trade business is directly associated with the selling of food and fiber products," Anderson says.

In Texas during 1987, cash receipts to producers from farm marketings alone amounted to an estimated $10 billion, Anderson reports. Another $750 million was generated from the expanding agriculturally-related industries of timber, fish and fishing, hunting leases, horses and outdoor recreation.

"Agriculturally, Texas ranks third nationally behind California and Iowa. Texas is traditionally number one in the sales of cattle and calves, cotton, grain sorghum, sheep and wool, goats and mohair, cabbage and spinach," Anderson says.

In addition, farm real estate values in Texas are estimated at $64 billion. With 160,000 per farm, although many commercial family farms have far more than a million dollars invested in their farm or ranch businesses, Anderson explains.

Many of today's farmers are professional, college-educated, business people with high dollar value assets and capital needs. Farming requires a broad range of skills to operate complicated machinery, use a variety of chemicals properly, and manage animal nutrition, crop production, genetics and marketing with sophisticated computer technology, Anderson notes.

Food is still a bargain, Anderson contends. Because of the U.S. farmer's productivity, Americans can buy their food for less of their disposable income today than even a few years ago.

Presently, the average American spends about 15 percent of his income on food. Just over a century ago, food spending in the U.S. accounted for 61 percent of income in 1869, when average income was $791 a year and $479 of that went for groceries. Today's spending for food in China amounts to 52 percent of income, 36 percent in Korea, and 32 percent in Mexico, explains Anderson.

"One U.S. farm worker today supplies enough food and fiber for 80 people, 21 of whom live abroad. Producing an abundance of high quality food and fiber is inherent to American agriculture," Anderson says.

As the world's largest exporter, the U.S. has the greatest stake in the changing world market, he adds.

"Developments in any major importing country ultimately affect U.S. agricultural exports and the economic health of related industries," Anderson says.

"THE COTTONWOOD TREES"

They are only trees you say?
But, such very special trees.
They've been standing there forever.
Swaying in the breeze.

They mark a special place.
They call it "Cottonwood Flat".
Those of us who love them
Will never, ever forget.

In Summer there is their beauty
As they arch across the road.
And in the fall, the Flat is covered
In their leaves of red and gold.

Long, long ago
In the forties and the fifties
Couples often drove out there
To sit and plan
With no one to contradict us.

One lovely Sunday afternoon
In the leafy, green shade
My love proposed and I said yes.
And, oh what memories are these!

And now the trees are in danger!
Yes - It's progress I know.
But, there are those of us who feel the pain
Knowing the trees will have to go!

Lost

IN WEST TEXAS

Lost in West Texas

Nostalgia, wonderment, and a healthy and imaginative provincialism color the pages of LOST IN WEST TEXAS—a new book published this month by Texas A&M University Press. The vibrantly concrete details of daily existence in West Texas are startlingly juxtaposed with philosophical musings about the limitations of all of us face in comprehending even that little bit of life we live. "Can poetry, or water, be found in West Texas?" asks author Jim W. Corder at one point. His answer—if such it be—makes it worth our getting lost with him in this journey of the heart and mind.

"I want to hear about such folks as my father and how he knows how to make cement, not by recipe, but by something in his bones. I want to hear how my grandfather learned to plow a straight furrow and why even older men always called him Mister. I want to know all of the reasons why, those years ago, my mother cried when the tomatoes in her garden twisted and died."

Trying to find out such things, Jim Corder leads us through the ravines of the Croton Breaks, around to the backside of the Double Mountains, and through the streets of Jayton and Spur, as they are and as they used to be. He takes us right up to gaze at the Big Rock Candy Mountain, which, however, he can't tell us how to find since the day in 1937 when the State Highway Department made it into gravel. Fort Concho and Fort Phantom Hill, outhouses and feed mills, high school athletes and desperately lonely teachers—all come under his scrutiny and are hauntingly considered for their stories, their limitations, and the sense of place they afford.

Jim W. Corder is professor of English at Texas Christian University.

Texas economy improving; State faces $1 billion deficit

STATE CAPITAL

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Good news for Texas came last week when Comptroller Bob Bullock said the Texas economy has bottomed out and will rise steadily, barring a national recession. But all is not rosy yet.

On the down side, state government faces a $1 billion shortfall in the 1990-91 budget, Treasurer Ann Richards told a West Texas audience. Another tax hike looms. And with federal aid still poised to rescue Texas banking, the economy will probably look gloomier even as it begins to improve.

Experienced observers predict economic forces will drive up the price of oil which, coupled with business diversification efforts here, could produce a good recovery.

Bullock said retail sales in Texas are at an all-time high of $9 billion per month, but the finance, real estate and insurance industries are still suffering.

"I don't think any other state could have gone through what Texas has lived with in the last few years," he said.

Pro-Racing Records

The citizens watchdog group probing whether a pro-betting association illegally laundered political donations asked a district judge to force turnover of the records.

Common Cause of Texas is suing the Texas Horseracing Association over whether $1 million in illegal funds were used to campaign for passage of the pari-mutuel wagering issue.

The pro-racing group argued its records are protected by trade association laws and are non-public records.

Cisneros Says No

Some politicians would kill for the invitation that San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros declined last week to address the Democratic National Convention.

After all, no one really knew of Mario Cuomo until his passionate speech at the '84 convention, and he's been mentioned ever since for a possible presidential draft.

That's not all. Last week, Cisneros reportedly transferred most of his political operation to San Antonio state Rep. Dan Morales, who may run for attorney general.

Morales explained that Cisneros was ready to "transition down" at the same time Morales wanted to "transition up."

Royalty Suit Filed

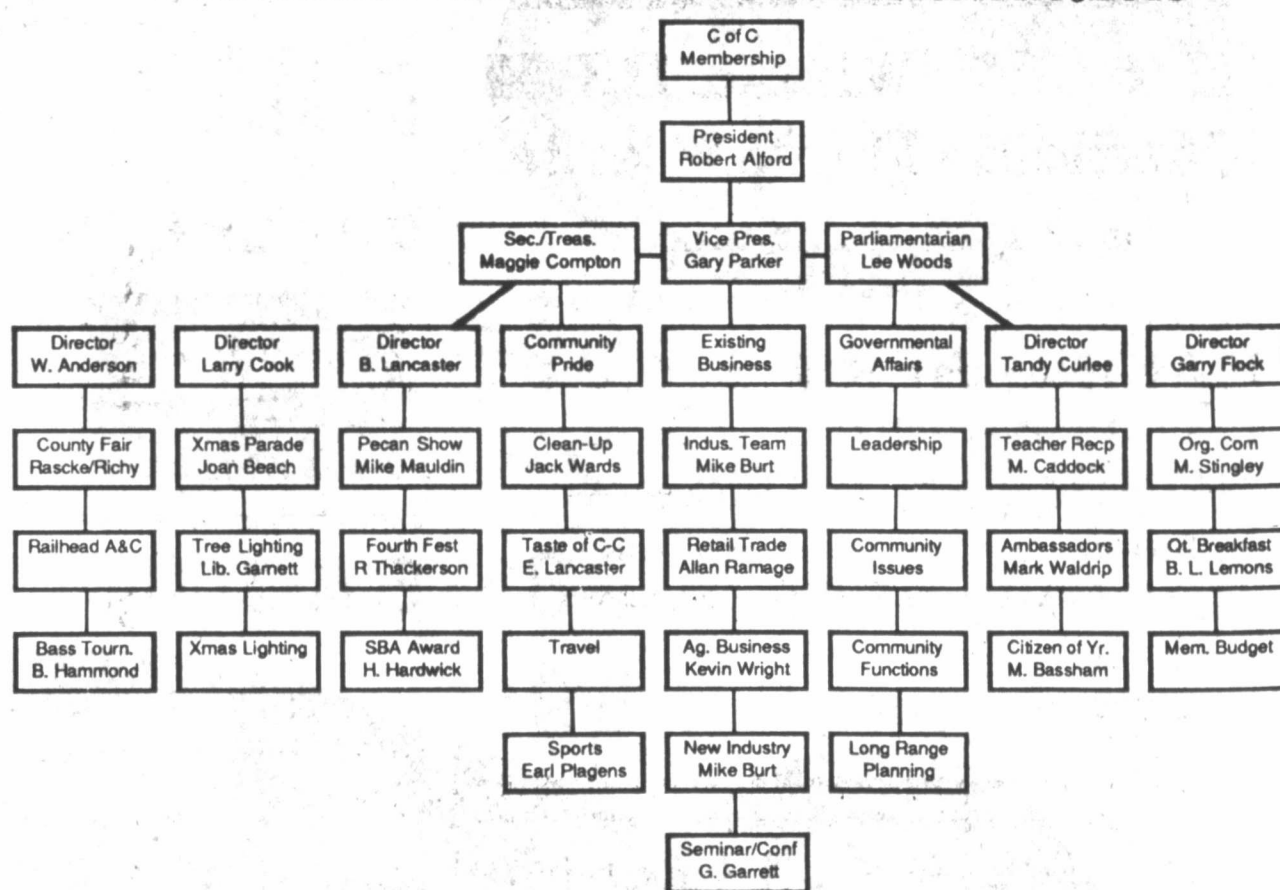

Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro is demanding repayment of $120 million in royalties he says are owed the state since 1934 on the Yates oil field in West Texas.

Under Texas law, state oil and gas rights are leased by the owner of the surface land, and the surface owner splits royalties with the state.

A lawsuit filed last week by the Texas attorney general names 27 defendants—including heirs, corporations and executors of estates—who have interests in the almost four acres of Pecos County land.

The lawsuit contends the original surface owner, Fred Turner, leased the land for drilling by a friend who in turn assigned the rights to a third party to avoid oil and gas royalties to the state.

For 4-H Leaders, Sitting on Hands is Good Strategy

Some 4-H leaders make a habit of sitting on their hands. They are well-informed, helpful, capable, enthusiastic and love kids, but they sit on their hands. They think this strategy is a good one.

They'll tell others that one of the most difficult things a 4-H leader must do is allow other people to use and develop their abilities.

Whether it's a nine-year-old future designer or chef, a first-year leader, the initial meeting for the newly-elected club president, or a "committee" planning the club's parade float, the 4-H leader is often tempted to "help".

But sometimes it is much wiser for leaders to just sit on their hands.

It's simpler and faster for the person who already knows how to do something to do it again. The muffins will be gently rounded instead of peaked, the meeting will be given by an experienced leader, the club business meeting will go more smoothly and the 4-H float for the parade will get an award. But what happens to the people in the process?

The 4-H'er still won't remember to stop stirring. The new leader still won't have the opportunity to hold a meeting alone with the members. The new club president may decide the leader can do it better, so why bother to try. Members of activity planning committees still haven't had the experience of carrying out an idea and setting goals as a group.

Deciding when help is needed and when help would stifle developing abilities in another person is very important.

Instead of reaching in to do something, why not give a few directions to enable members to handle the jobs more effectively?

Patience is an important attribute of a good 4-H leader and goes well with "keeping hands off" or "sitting on your hands" to enable others to learn.

Mitchell County 4-H leaders are currently helping youth learn skills in agriculture, foods and nutrition, clothing and public speaking. If you or someone you know could benefit from these skills please contact the County Extension Office at 728-3111. 4-H is open to all youth ages 8-19 regardless of socio-economic level, race, color, sex, religion, or national origin.

Club members told of rich history of Buffalo Gap

The Self Culture Club met March 11 at 3 p.m. in the home of Linnie Williams.

A committee was appointed by president Pearl Watson to choose a two or three year college student for books or supplies for the 1988 school year.

At the meeting of the club March 25, the members will hear Mrs. Margie Kolman on Alzheimer's Disease.

The club contributed to a fund for the out-going district president, Mrs. Archie Nichols of Baird, to be presented at the spring convention in Abilene March 18-19.

Lil Brown discussed the legend of Buffalo Gap. She stated that Buffalo Gap was the county seat when Taylor County was organized July 3, 1878. It was the only town in a county of 300 people. In 1879-80, law and order was badly needed. A courthouse and jail was built with gun ports because of the Indian threat. It was built with civil war cannon balls between large stones for stability. It still stands in excellent condition as a museum of the old west.

At the time of the civil war, this was still Indian country.

A favorite buffalo run was through the big gap in the Calhoun divide. The Indians left after the buffalo hunters killed the buffalos. Settlers and outlaws came to the area because of the water, large trees, rich soil and good ranching. The pioneers built houses, stores and churches.

Buffalo gap is unique in that it has still has original buildings including a log cabin which is the oldest structure in the area.

In the town is a blacksmith shop, a barber shop, a wagon barn, a bronze foundry, several old stores. There is an early-day church known as the Sweet Church because of bees which have lived there for 80 years. The church is still used for weddings and special occasions.

Those present were Fannie Beeman, Eddie Barclay, Elizabeth Elliott, Ida Keith, Dona Reed, Jewell Tiller, Pearl Watson and hostess Linnie Williams.

Chiropractic for Health

By Dr. Hondo Whitmire
Doctor of Chiropractic

BEING THROWN A CURVE

Scoliosis is a potentially crippling spinal deformity. It is a curve that nature throws at one in ten children. Some curvatures are mild and will not get worse. Parents need to be alert to signs of scoliosis, however, because some curvatures progress rapidly. In advanced cases, the spine gradually rotates on its own axis as it grows. It pulls the rib cage around until one side is raised higher than the other. The ribs on the inside of the curve pinch together. Those on the outside spread apart. Ultimately, the lopsided arrangement cramps the lungs and heart and encumbers their efficiency. Typically, scoliosis appears between the ages of 10 and 15. Seven out of ten cases that progress occur among girls in early adolescence.

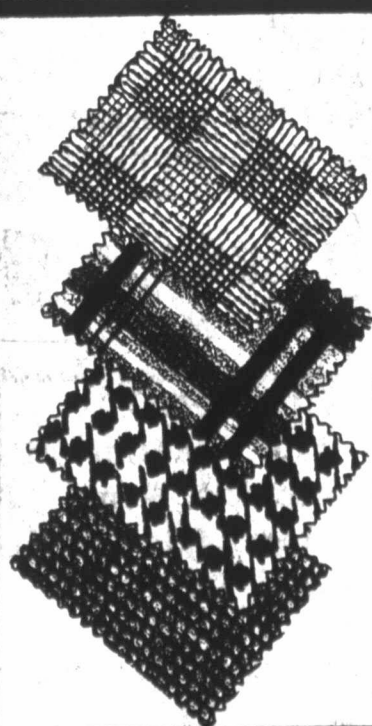

Many problems can be avoided or the severity reduced with early detection. Likewise, many discomforts that man endures he does so needlessly. The science of chiropractic offers a natural, drugless and knifeless approach to dealing with many of man's most uncomfortable situations. For more information on how chiropractic can fit into your lifestyle, we welcome your call at the WHITMIRE CHIROPRACTIC CENTER, Dr. Hondo Whitmire, 2112 Hickory St., Colorado City, Texas.

Scoliosis tends to run in families. Be particularly alert if a child or parent is affected.
