Reagan disputes inevitablity of war

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, contradicting a senior Marine general, said Friday that war with the Soviet Union is not inevitable, and he complained that peace demonstrations are damaging efforts to curb U.S. and Soviet nuclear arsenals.

In addition, Reagan expressed optimism about chances for a summit meeting with Soviet President Konstantin U. Chernenko, despite signs to the contrary from Moscow.

The president spoke at a White House Rose Garden ceremony honoring young people involved in the United Nations-sponsored International Youth Year.

Asked by one participant how young people could help stop the arms race, Reagan replied: "Well, I have to tell you that — not through some of the demonstrations that are going on." The young people cheered and whistled at his response and at end of his appearance chanted, "Four more years."

A reporter asked the president whether he agreed with Lt. Gen. Bernard E. Trainor, the Marine Corps' deputy chief of staff for plans, policies and operations, who was quoted as saying a limited war with the Soviet Union in this generation is an "almost inevitable probability."

A limited war is considered to be one that does not involve a nuclear exchange.

"No, I don't," Reagan replied. "And I think one of the most dangerous things in the world is for anyone to get fixed in their mind the inevitability theory."

He said belief in such a theory could help bring about a war.

"My theory is there doesn't have to be a war," the president said. "We're going to do everything we can to see that it doesn't (happen)."

Trainor, speaking Thursday at a forum at the Naval War College in Newport, R.I., said the Soviet Union was increasing chances of war by expanding its navy and challenging the United States in ocean areas long consdered a U.S. preserve.

"Given what's happening with Soviet power projection, we probably at some point in our lifetime will clash," Trainor was quoted in the Washington Post. "The world better get the perception that we bested them, because the fight will be on ...our turf."

Asked whether Trainor would be disciplined for his remarks, Reagan said he wanted to see exactly what the general said. White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said later that "I don't look for any discipline from the president."

At the Pentagon, spokesman Michael Burch said Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger does not plan to take disciplinary action.

After conferring with Weinberger, Burch said, "The academic atmosphere, encouraged by the seminar organizers, allowed the general to present personal views which do not reflect those of the Department of Defense or the administration."

LULAC leaders call on Hispanics to support Jackson

EL PASO (AP) — Leaders of the nation's largest Hispanic organization vowed Friday to help the Rev. Jesse Jackson stop Walter Mondale from being chosen as the Democratic presidential nominee on the first ballot at the party's national convention.

Jesse Jackson

After a fiery 45-minute speech by Jackson, the national president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, Mario Obledo, said the group would pressure all Mexican-American Democratic delegates to refrain from voting on the first ballot for the candidate to whom they have committed themselves.

Obledo said the Hispanic delegates would be asked instead to cast a vote for Jackson.

Jackson, who begins a trip of Central America and Cuba today, was the only Democratic candidate to accept an invitation to speak at LULAC's 55th annual meeting, which opened Thursday in El Paso.

Obledo said Jackson is the only Democrat to give full and continued support to Hispanic issues.

Obledo, who announced Friday he would join Jackson in his tour of Latin American countries, introduced the black minister as a "freedom fighter for all Americans."

Jackson, who received six standing ovations during his talk, continued to call for a "rainbow coalition," saying that because blacks and Hispanics have "suffered and died" together, "we must realize the resurrection together."

LULAC members throughout the convention have condemned Mondale because he refused to attend the meeting and because he suffered from "cowardness" and did not strongly oppose a controversial immigration measure approved by the House this week.

Obledo said Friday that LULAC, which boasts a membership of more than 100,000 Hispanics nationwide, was "dissatisfied" with the former vice president.

The immmediate past president of the group, Tony Bonilla, also called upon all Hispanics to denounce Mondale and "support the candidate who has stood with us. In my opinion, that candidate is Jesse Jackson."

Neither Mondale nor his campaign organizers could be reached immediately for comment Friday on LULAC's pledge to try and hurt his bid for the nomination.

But Jackson said that if all minorities band together, their voting strength gives them the power to defeat Monday and "to fight for justice at home and peace abroad."

Yet he conceded it would take time for minority groups to learn to work together.

"The rainbow coalition has just been born," Jackson shouted at the enthusiastic crowd. "We are a world power within a world power."

Jackson, obviously still campaigning for the Democratic nomination, continued to assault Mondale and his other primary opponent, Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado.

"Mr. Mondale and Mr. Hart both are decent men with humane instincts," Jackson said. "But they stand at the crossroads hit by crosswinds."

Telling LULAC delegates that blacks and Mexican-Americans "need each other," Jackson pushed for the end to U.S. intervention in Central America.

"Together we will get the boys out of Central America and home at college and at work," he said. "And, at the same time, we will stay together.

"If we come together, we will win America together," he yelled to cheers and shouts of "Viva Jesse."

"We never have made progress without the other," Jackson said.

Jackson also condemend the House's passage of the immigration bill, which is designed to discourage undocumented workers from breaching U.S. borders.

"Undocumented workers don't drain this economy," he said. "They subsidize it."

Tower honored by LULAC

EL PASO (AP) — An appearance by retiring Republican U.S. Sen. John Tower of Texas before the nation's largest Hispanic organization is a prime example that the group is nonpartisan and willing to work with representatives of both major political parties, the group's executive director said.

John Tower

"We may not have always agreed, but Tower has done tremendous things for us and has always worked with us on Hispanic issues," said Arnold Torres of Washington.

Tower, who this year is giving up the Senate seat he has held for four terms, was honored Friday by LULAC, which is holding its annual convention in El Paso this week.

San Diego not hospitable to Communist Party U.S.A.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The welcome mat has been pulled out from under the Communist Party U.S.A. by both the Catholic Church, which considers it "evil," and the YWCA, which thinks it's too "partisan." Now the party has canceled plans for a rally, saying it can't find a place to hold it.

The rally, planned for today to kick off the party's presidential campaign in the San Diego area, first was booked into a Catholic church parish hall. That arrangement was canceled by the Most Rev. Leo T. Maher, bishop of the San Diego Diocese, who called the Communists "evil" and "repulsive."

The party then tried to rent a YWCA community center, but permission was withdrawn after Y officials said they feared violating their tax-exempt status by acting as host to partisan political events.

"We've held political forums before but only when all sides were represented," said Lucia Smalheer, the local Y's director of community development.

"In each case, the local branch was very cooperative and then when the upper echelons got involved, things got nasty," said John W. Porter, a retired San Diego lawyer who volunteered to find a site for the rally.

"We're not mad at anybody. But we don't like the vicious language that has been used," he said. "We thought the day had passed when First Amendment rights could be shut off on impulse."

"They are entitled to a meeting place, but I'm not sure if a private place like the Catholic church or the YWCA is it," said Phil Connor, chairman of the Democratic Central Committee of San Diego County. "Face it, nobody wants the commies on their front doorstep."

Allan Royster, chairman of the county Republican Party, said he felt little sympathy for the Communists."Personally, I think it's time we become more pragmatic about our adversaries," he said.

Porter said he sought private locations for the rally after finding public facilities filled, but he said, "It was too late to get anything else and still get the word out to the community."

So instead of holding a rally, the party has rented a small public room at Balboa Park for a news conference today featuring Fania Davis, younger sister of Communist vice presidential candidate Angela Davis.

The party is conducting a petition drive to get Communist presidential candidate Gus Hall and Miss Davis on general election ballots in California. It needs 115,591 signatures to have Hall and Davis listed as independents. Communist candidates won a ballot berth in 1976 in California but lacked sufficient signatures in 1980.

The Communist ballot effort also is under way in 15 other states, and its ticket is on ballots in Michigan, Utah and New Jersey, according to Kendra Alexander, chairperson of the California Communist Party.

"We generally don't have a problem like we're having in San Diego," Ms. Alexander said in a telephone interview from San Francisco.

The head of one municipal agency said he didn't think the dispute would do anything to mar the city's image.

"I think the city has had a conservative image and it still has its conservative leanings, but it's developing a much more moderate outlook," said Dal Watkins, executive director of the San Diego Convention & Visitors Bureau.

United Way announces goal of $1.95 million

From Staff Reports

United Way of Midland announced a 1985 campaign goal of $1.95 million at a Friday media conference at Water Wonderland.

"We're trying to raise about 7.9 percent more than last year," said Campaign Chairman Joseph I. O'Neill III. The 1984 campaign raised $1.81 million.

This year's campaign will run from Sept. 10 to Oct. 25, preceded by a pilot campaign from July 18 to Sept. 7.

O'Neill expressed confidence that the goal would be met, "though I see a lot of competition for the dollar this year because it's an election year."

The improving area economy might help the campaign, according to O'Neill.

"It's still precarious, but it's not as bad as last year," when the First National Bank of Midland failed right in the middle of the campaign, he said.

One reason O'Neill gave for increasing the goal was the recent additon of Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Midland to the United Way's roster of agencies.

Homes of church members raided

ISLAND POND, Vt. (AP) — State troopers staged an early morning raid on members of a secretive fundamentalist Christian sect Friday, taking 112 youngsters away from their homes to learn whether they have been physically abused by church elders.

But a judge refused to detain the youths, despite state efforts to keep them in custody three days.

About 100 troopers, armed with search warrants and aided by state social workers and nurses, entered 20 homes of members of the Northeast Kingdom Community Church shortly after 6 a.m.

There was no resistance as the children were taken, placed in buses and driven to nearby Newport.

"The action was carried out after two years of effort by the state to get the parents to identify and report abuse and neglect," said David Dillon, spokesman for Gov. Richard Snelling. He said the raid had been in the planning stages for eight months.

The families were being taken individually into District Court, where lawyers for the state asked to retain custody of the youths for three days so a physician could examine them for evidence of beatings.

However, Judge Frank Mahady refused to grant the detention, and dozens of children had ben released by late evening. The first family was processed and drove away 11 hours after they were picked up, said Vermont Defender Andrew Crane.

But the state still benefited from the proceedings. For the first time, the state got specific data on the children of the church, which church members had refused to provide for two years.

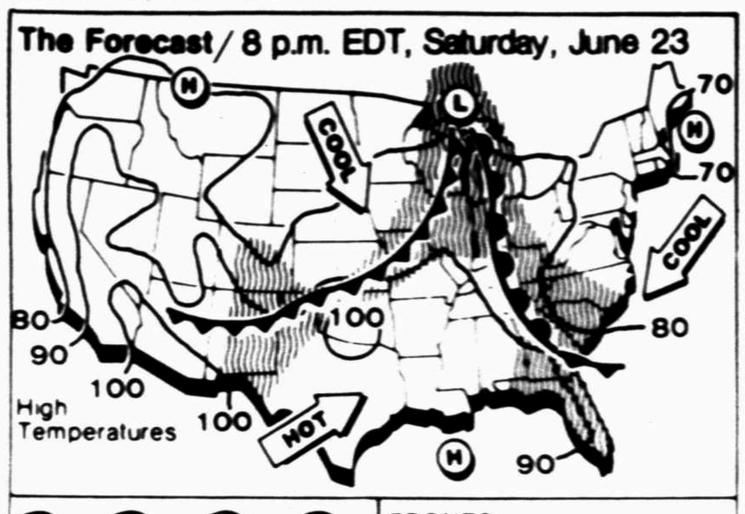

No members of the press or public were allowed in court, so the reason for the judge's action was not known. Crane refused to elaborate.

The raid came four days after a judge briefly jailed seven church members for failing to answer questions concerning the treatment of the children. They were released after the judge decided he lacked the authority to hold them.

Church policy is set by a group of 12 elders, who mete out punishment to errant children. One of the church's leaders, Charles "Eddie" Wiseman, has been charged with simple assault for the alleged seven-hour beating last year of a 13-year-old girl who was left with 89 welts on her body, from her neck to her toes. The girl's parents said their daughter was beaten because she lied.

WEATHER SUMMARY

National Weather Service NOAA U.S. Dept. of Commerce

AP Laserphoto Map

The National Weather Service forecasts showers for today for Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Colorado, the Great Lakes region, the Carolinas and Florida.

Nice weekend in store; There's slim chance of rain

The National Weather Service at the airport is calling for a pleasant weekend, with high temperatures in the mid-90s. Skies will be partly cloudy. Winds will be out of the south at 10 to 15 mph. The overnight low should be in the upper 60s, with a 20 percent chance of rain.

There's a slight chance of rain for Sunday. The high should be in the upper 80s.

The record high temperature for today's date was set in 1951 at 107 degrees. The record low of 61 was set in 1957.

STATE

Most of the state was sunny and hot Friday, except for scattered thundershowers that popped up over the mountains of West Texas, and the picture is expected to continue today.

Afternoon temperatures ranged from the mid-80s in portions of West Texas to around 100 degrees over parts of North and Southwest Texas. The rest of the state had mostly 90s, the National Weather Service said.

Winds continued from the south and southeast at 10 to 20 mph.

The forecast for today calls for little change.

In West Texas, highs were expected to be near 90 in the north to upper 90s in the southeast, with up to 103 in the Big Bend valleys. The lows tonight were forecast in the low 60s in the north to the low 70s in the south.

In South Texas, isolated showers or thundershowers were expected today. Overnight lows were expected to be near 80 on the coastal barrier islands and near shore to the 70s inland. Afternoon highs were forecast in the mid-80s to near 90 along the coast, near 100 along the Rio Grande and in the 90s elsewhere.

In North Texas, fair nights and mostly sunny days were expected through Sunday. Highs both days were forecast in the mid-90s in the east to around 100 in the west. Lows today night were expected to be in the lower to mid-70s.

NATION

Thunderstorms packing 85 mph winds, hail and tornadoes struck the Midwest and northern Plains on Friday, uprooting trees, damaging homes and unleashing more rain onto already saturated farmland.

The storms stretched from the eastern Dakotas to northern Iowa and over the upper Great Lakes, with a tornado watch posted for parts of Minnesota, South Dakota, Illinois, Indiana and Iowa.

Winds up to 85 mph were reported Friday morning at Jamestown, N.D., said Rich Blizzard of the National Weather Service. The winds were strong enough to flip one crop-spraying plane and break the wing of another, said Gary Baker, manager of the Jamestown Airport.

Floodwaters receded in South Dakota, where federal disaster aid has been requested for 17 counties, but forecasters predicted more rain over the weekend.

In southern Wisconsin, a tornado knocked down trees and power lines near Blanchardville, littering a road dividing Green and Lafayette counties, sheriff's deputies said. No injuries or damage to farms or homes was reported.

Flash-flood warnings were posted in four southwestern Minnesota counties, as state and federal officials traveled to the area to survey damage suffered in recent rains.

Nebraska farmland, already waterlogged after more than a week of steady rains, and a storm that dumped as much as 3 inches of water on Thursday, braced for a new wave of weekend thunderstorms.

Rain strands Scouts at Davis Mountains ranch

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A deluge which flooded ravines and washed out roads in the Davis Mountains has left more than 150 Scouts, their leaders and staffers stranded in their week's encampment on the 6,000-acre Buffalo Trail Scout Ranch.

The ranch is about 60 miles southwest of Pecos and is in Jeff Davis County midway between Fort Davis and Balmorhea.

None of the Scouts was harmed, but the Scouts suffered from "cabin fever," said Steve Odom, Scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America's Buffalo Trail Council. The Council is headquartered in Midland.

"The mountains are just saturated," said Odom, who has been in telephone communication with the Scouts.

The 12-mile road — the Scouts' passage from the wilderness to the highways — "right now...is impassable," Odom said. The road, Farm-to-Market 1832, links to Texas Highway 17.

The Scouts, which numbered 103, from Pecos to Midland—Odessa to Austin, their leaders and staffers have been holed up in cabins since Sunday, when the week's encampment started.

"It was raining (then), but nobody knew it was going to do this," he said. The rains and thunderstorms continued, he said, and so far 16 inches of rain have fallen on the ranch since May 15, he said.

Reportedly, "excellent progress" has been made in opening the road for a exodus today, but there's an apparent problem: More rain is falling.

The Scouts have been kept busy working on indoor merit-badge projects, Odom said.

A storehouse of food — enough for a week's isolation — was on hand, Odom said, and the Scouts were "well supplied" with rations.

Telephone contact was broken off from Monday night until Thursday, he said.

In the meantime, a Texas Department of Public Safety helicopter out of Lubbock flew in a Pecos physician, who checked on the health of the campers. All were in good condition, Odom said. But one Scout, who suffered a suspected broken arm, was flown out. Examination proved the arm to be bruised.

"It's different from what normally happens (at campouts)," Odom said, "and up to this time, there had been (virtually) no rain, and that drought got shattered."

This week was the 1984 season's second week of encampment in the mountains.

Next week's scheduled encampment will be cancelled due to the rains, Odom said, but the fourth week — barring rains — will be in July.

The ranch has been a Boy Scout encampment since 1947, he said.

Odom said the season's unusually heavy rainfall "has been a different experience" for the Scouts. It kept them indoors and off the wilderness trails.

GOAL

"We're pleased to add Big Brothers/Big Sisters," he said. "They serve 235 children in their program, and have 145 matches (adult volunteers to pair with these children of single parents). Our goal is to raise that up to 190."

United Way of Midland supplies from 20 to 94 percent of the budgets of its member agencies. Last year's campaign helped the agencies provide services to 27,000 Midlanders, according to a United Way press release.

This year's campaign is led by Chairman O'Neill, with George B. Irish, publisher of the Reporter-Telegram, serving as vice chairman.

The chairman of the Special Support Unit is Larry Bell of HBF Corp. Under this unit are the Special Gifts Division, headed by Jack Steele of Steele and Associates; Independent Oil I, headed by independent landman Jack Swallow; Independent Oil II, led by independent oil operator Ed Innerarity; and Residential, chaired by Jan Van Eman.

This year's Oil Unit is chaired by H. Jeff Noble of Exxon. Under him are Ted Collins, for the Major Oil Division; Judith H. Devenport of Earl M. Craig Jr. Corp. for Intermediate Oil; and Michael J. Cook of Magnatex Petroleum Co. for Trailblazers.

The chairman for Industry and Commerce is Thomas J. Madonna of Price Waterhouse. Under this grouping are Major Firms, chaired by Thomas J. Wageman of Republic-Bank First National Midland; Pacesetters, chaired by Darryl Pounds of First City National Bank; and Small Business, chaired by Charlie Rowton of Exxon.

The Public and Professional Unit is chaired by Dr. Joseph P. Baressi of the Midland Independent School District. Serving under Baressi are attorney Michael Williams for the Government and Services Division; Robert C. Irvine of Price Waterhouse for the Professional Division; and Garland R. Chapman of MISD for the Education Division.

Dan G. Moriarty of LEAMCO Services Inc. is directing the Wildcat Division.

Several Midland young people celebrate at Water Wonderland Friday as the city's 1985 United Way goal was announced to be $1.95 million. The campaign will run from Sept. 10 to Oct. 25.

TOWER

Tower, a native of Houston, was the keynote speaker at the organization's presidential banquet.

Before the banquet, he told reporters Hispanics always have played a large role in politics and will continue to be a major force affecting political decisions.

"They certainly are a vital force in Texas," he said, adding that now that Mexican-Americans are becoming more politically aware, they are also becoming more active in national politics.

Tower said he was flattered to be honored by LULAC, adding that the group, which boasts more than 100,000 members, "has always been cooperative."

"I want to express my admiration and respect for LULAC," he said. "The cooperation they have always shown me has been appreciated."

Tower said he has worked with members of LULAC on several key issues, including bilingual education and immigration legislation.

WAR

Burch made it clear that Weinberger would not hold the general's views against him and that the episode would not blight Trainor's career.

Reagan, replying to the arms control question from his visitor, said, some peace demonstrations "are so sincerely meant, but they don't realize that the two so-called superpowers in the world today must come to a meeting of the minds and an understanding that there is a better way, of — than a continued arms race on down through the years."

He said the United States is trying to bring the Soviets back to the nuclear arms reduction talks, adding, "I still am optimistic that we're going to succeed."

Reagan said that for arms talks to succeed, "we have to have some tools...they have to sit at the table and know that as far as strength is concerned we're nearly enough equal that we better discuss how we can go...what can you do about that."

Reagan also was asked about prospects for a summit with Chernenko. A reporter said Chernenko had said "no." Reagan replied, "Well, maybe we can get that around to a 'maybe' pretty soon."

Soviet spokesman Leonid M. Zamyatin indicated in Moscow on Thursday that Chernenko was not prepared to meet with Reagan soon. "We see no changes in the position of the United States leading from statements of desire to expression of concrete readiness to raise and solve questions that would be required at a summit meeting," Zamyatin said.

RAID

Dillon said no single incident triggered the raid.

"It's been a two-year constant flurry of reports of child abuse and neglect," he said. "Doctors and (social workers) will examine each child and if there is not problem they will be returned to their parents and the whole thing is laid to rest once and for all."

Church members have defended the practice of using a 2-foot-long rod on their youngsters.

"We're putting a conscience into them," Jay Howley said in an interview last year.

Church members call their community the "kingdom of God" and refer to the outside world as the "kingdom of Satan."

Mondale, Bentsen take different sides on key issues

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, who visits Walter F. Mondale today to discuss the vice presidential spot on the Democratic ticket, voted in 1981 to support the key elements of President Reagan's economic program.

Mondale has condemned that blueprint as "the worst massive deliberate economic mistake in our history."

Bentsen also is a supporter of the B-1 bomber, voted to confirm former Interior Secretary James Watt, has voted for production of a new type of nerve gas weapon and favors continued research and development of the MX missile, according to his office and congressional records.

Mondale is on the opposite side of all of those issues, and has used some of them to attack his rivals in the long campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

He sharply criticized Sen. John Glenn last year for his votes for the president's economic program, describing it as a test between the "special interest" and the "public interest."

"At the time Mr. Glenn voted for Reaganomics — and for massive military spending increases and cruel cuts in human services — the economy was in sharp recovery," Mondale said last October.

Last year he also described the new nerve gas shell as a "dangerous new escalation" of the arms race.

He said that as a senator from Colorado, Gary Hart "must have known" about Watt's view of environmental issues, but "failed to fight" his nomination.

A spokesman for Mondale, Dayton Duncan, asked about Bentsen's record, said, "I really can't characterize whether that troubles Mr. Mondale or not."

Mondale, who claims enough delegates to win the Democratic presidential nomination on the first ballot, has said he will select a running mate who is compatible with him as well as someone who is capable of taking over as president.

Bentsen's press secretary, Jack Devore, said the Texas senator and Mondale "certainly have some differences on the issues," but said that — as former colleagues in the Senate and on the Senate Finance Committee — "They are friends, they like each other."

He said Bentsen supported the president's tax program in 1981 after the administration agreed to reduce the tax cut from 30 percent over three years to 25 percent.

He also noted that the majority of Democratic senators supported the president, as often happens when a new chief executive takes office and the Senate decides to give his program a chance to work.

"There's different kinds of compatibility," Devore said. "There's personal compatibility as well as philosophical compatibility."

Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley met with Mondale at the former vice president's North Oaks, Minn., home to discuss the vice presidential nomination Thursday and San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein will meet Mondale today, after Bentsen has left.

Despite any differences between the men on issues, Bentsen is politically appealing to Mondale as a potential running mate because he is from Texas, a state that is very important to the Democrats' chances of defeating President Reagan this fall. Because he is generally more conservative to Mondale, Bentsen also could provide a counterweight to Mondale's generally liberal views.

Teen convicted of killing mother with bat

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A 16-year-old boy who complained that his mother nagged him about smoking marijuana was convicted Friday of voluntary manslaughter for beating her to death with a baseball bat.

Antonio Flores of Port Isabel had been charged with murder in the death of his mother, whose skull was crushed with an aluminum bat. But the jury returned the guilty verdict on the lesser charge, which carries a prison sentence of two to 20 years.

Later Friday, the jury sentenced Flores to 15 years in prison.

Several jurors wanted to mete out the maximum sentence "because of the brutality of the case," but others "felt his rehabilitation and education would better (in prison) than at home," said jury foreman E.A. Gonzalez.

Assistant District Attorney Rick Lara said he was "disappointed" by the verdict.

In closing remarks Thursday, Lara placed a blood-stained bat and a series of gruesome photos before jurors and said, "Murder is not reserved for adults."

Flores told authorities after the August 1983 slaying that he had killed his mother, Balbina Flores Pena, 46, because she had "been on my case" about his staying out late, running with a bad crowd and smoking marijuana, Lara said.

Defense attorney Fred Galindo maintained that Flores was telling the truth when he first told authorities that someone had broken into the home, killed Mrs. Pena and stabbed the youth in the shoulder. But the state argued that Flores had stabbed himself superficially to cover up his crime.

Lara described Mrs. Pena as "a very hard-working, religious woman who held down three jobs" to support her son and husband.

On the day of the slaying, she had returned from church and was working in the kitchen while her son, then 15, watched television, authorities said.

Lara said the boy took the bat off the back porch, sneaked up behind his mother, who was on her knees putting away some kitchen pots, and "hit her golf-club style," crushing her head in four places.

"There was never any evidence of a struggle. She was never given a chance," the prosecutor said.

Visitors: Church stronger in U.S.S.R.

NEW YORK (AP) — American Christians who spent two weeks touring 14 cities in the Soviet Union said Friday they found "vital religious communities" wherever they went.

The Rev. Bruce Rigdon, a church historian from Chicago and leader of the group, said at a news conference that "certain improvements" were noted in the "situation of religious communities."

The Rev. Vladimir Berzonsky, an Orthodox Church of America scholar from Cleveland, said he saw "more self-assurance among congregations" in the Soviet Union than he had seen on previous visits.

There were more young people in churches and more young clergy, he said. "The church there has a strength it did not have 10 years ago," he said.

The 266-member group was the largest contingent of U.S. Christians ever to visit the Soviet Union. It included Protestant, Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox representatives and pastors from congregations across the country.

The church leaders said they had sought to talk with unregistered Soviet worshipers as well as those in registered churches. Under Soviet law, all religious groups must register with the government, but some church congregations have refused.

"We did try to make contact," Rigdon said. "Some of us were able to meet some of them and try to understand their problems."

Asked why some congregations refuse to register, Rigdon said they had various objections, one being that there was no basis for it in the New Testament of the Bible. Others are protesting the Soviet government's "mistreatment of believers," he said.

Rigdon added that his group was "deeply troubled" by an incident that occurred Sunday at the Moscow Baptist Church, when demonstrators unfurled a banner from the balcony charging that 200 Baptist leaders are in prison.

He said that as far as his knew, the demonstrators were allowed to leave freely and were not disciplined for the outburst.

The Rev. John Lindner, a Presbyterian and a specialist on Soviet affairs for the National Council of Churches, which sponsored the trip, said "we asked hard questions" about church and human rights in the Soviet Union.

Asked for details of the improved church situation, Rigdon cited packed congregations, several new church buildings, the doubling of students at seminaries in Zagorsk, Leningrad and Odessa and the reopening of a monastery in Moscow.

However, he also noted there still was an insufficient supply of church literature and Bibles. Rigdon said that although there seemed to be enough in the churches, outside there is an "enormous hunger for Bibles."

Rabbi James Rudin of the American Jewish Committee charged that the group had "missed a rare opportunity" to speak out against Soviet policies on religion.

"American people have a right to demand that," he said.

But Helen Hamilton, a Presbyterian from Tacoma, Wash., said the church leaders were generally not considered expert enough to speak out on U.S.-Soviet political relations.

De Lorean lawyer says agent 'used' informant

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An attorney for John Z. De Lorean suggested Friday that a federal drug agent was trying to advance his own career when he used the government's key informant against the automaker in an alleged cocaine deal.

Drug Enforcement Administration Agent John Valestra bristled at the accusation, saying he was "not sure" if he ever used the term "meal ticket" to describe James Timothy Hoffman, the informant who was the trial's star witness against De Lorean.

"Is it possible?" asked attorney Donald Re.

"Anything's possible," said Valestra.

Re asked whether Valestra saw Hoffman as "a person who could help you get involved in good cases."

"I evaluated Mr. Hoffman as reliable," said Valestra.

However, he reluctantly conceded that a number of the cases Hoffman brought him were duds — until the De Lorean case.

In one case, Valestra said, Hoffman reported seeing cocaine in a house, but when agents got there they found no drugs. In another case, he acknowledged, a defendant was tried on Hoffman's evidence and acquitted. In yet another, he said, Hoffman led him to an alleged drug dealer who was already an undercover informant.

Re implied that Valestra was desperate for a successful investigation by the time Hoffman went to him in July 1982 and reported that De Lorean was seeking a drug deal.

Valestra denied this.

"Sir, if Mr. Hoffman got you involved in good cases, you would do well in the DEA, right?" asked Re.

"I suppose so," said Valestra.

De Lorean, 59, was eventually arrested as a result of the government's "sting" operation and was charged with conspiring to distribute $24 million worth of cocaine. Conviction on all counts carries a maximum sentence of 72 years in prison.

The prosecution claims De Lorean was in the deal to raise money to help his failing sports car in Northern Ireland.

In Friday's cross-examination, Re implied sinister reasons for unrecorded phone calls in the "sting" operation, but Valestra said he can't prove from "personal knowledge" what was said in those calls.

The agent denied knowing from the start that his key informant was failing to record certain calls.

"That's not quite accurate," Valestra said.

Valestra, on the stand for a fifth day, said that at the start of the government's undercover operation in July 1982, he instructed Hoffman to "record all calls from this point forward."

He insisted he did not find out until 1983 that Hoffman had disobeyed his orders. The failure to record some calls, he said, was discovered only after De Lorean's arrest when telephone toll records were compared with tapes.

Researchers analyzed traits of murder victims

CHICAGO (AP) — Almost two dozen black youths who died in a series of slayings in Atlanta between 1979 and 1981 shared some behaviorial traits that may have increased their risk of being harmed, researchers say.

The victims were more likely to trust adults and to have been in trouble with the law, according to a study in Friday's Journal of the American Medical Association.

In addition, these youths more frequently ran errands for money, were more likely to be alone in shopping centers or on streets and seemed to be less under their parents' supervision when compared with a control group.

This pattern of behavior, researchers say, suggests "victims may have been more approachable than other children in the neighborhood."

In Atlanta, police investigated the disappearance of 29 blacks missing or killed in a 22-month period between 1979 and 1981.

Wayne Williams, a freelance photographer and talent promoter, was convicted of murder in February 1982 in the deaths of Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, both of whose deaths were investigated by a special task force.

After the convictions, authorities blamed him for 22 of the other killings on the list, although he was never charged in any of those slayings. He was sentenced to life in prison.

Boy bitten by infected flea, recovering from plague

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 12-year-old boy, apparently bitten by an infected flea, is recovering from bubonic plague — the third victim of the plague in Los Angeles County this year, health officials said Friday.

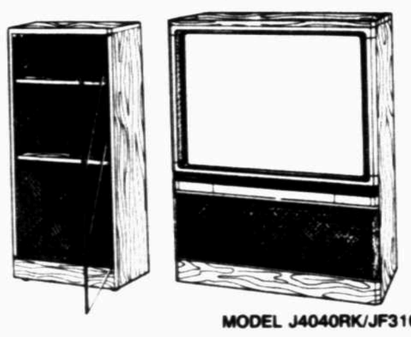

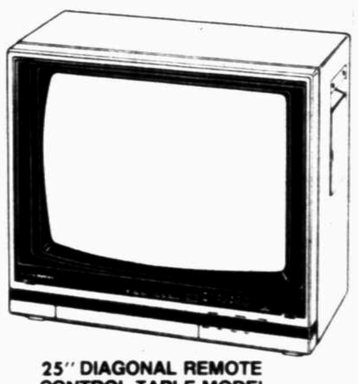

The Lakewood boy, hospitalized in Bellflower, "is suffering from a non-transmittable form of the plague," said Dr. Shirley Fannin, associate deputy director of acute communicable disease control programs for the county's Department of Health Services.

The boy "does not present a danger to persons with whom he has come in contact, including family members and hospital personnel," she said.

Government complicates diplomats lives

WORLD

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department disclosed in detail Friday how it deliberately complicates the lives of foreign diplomats posted in the United States if their governments harass American envoys overseas.

The tit-for-tat retaliation involves unplugging telephones, cutting off utilities, restricting travel, holding up shipments of goods from overseas, and refusing certain countries the right to buy property in the United States, according to a report by the department's two-year-old Office of Foreign Missions.

The department also said it will soon require all of the estimated 25,000 motor vehicles driven by diplomats in the United States to carry new and distinctive red, white and blue federal license plates.

Thus Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, the dean of the diplomatic corps here, will lose his prestigious city of Washington diplomatic license plate — "DPL 1" — and be issued a substitute that includes a two-number designation for the Soviet embassy and the numbers 001 designating an ambassador.

The licenses will be free if no fee is imposed on U.S. vehicles by the country concerned. But if such fees are imposed, they will be matched.

And for the first time all diplomatic vehicles will be required to carry a minimum $1 million in liability insurance to protect Americans involved in accidents with vehicles driven by envoys shielded by diplomatic immunity.

The foreign missions office is setting up a central motor vehicles bureau and giving it responsibility for the titling, registration, licensing and insuring of diplomatic vehicles.

Where foreign governments impose restrictions on the operation of U.S. vehicles or impose special conditions, the United States "is ready to impose similar restrictions at home," the report said.

The government also plans to remove an exemption from local sales taxes for diplomats whose countries do not provide reciprocal exemptions.

The report also warned that the State Department is taking legal steps to permit it to impose "an immediate retaliatory communications isolation" of Cuba's interest section in Washington any time Cuba cuts off communications from the U.S. interest section in Havana.

It said such a cutoff in the Cuban capital during the crisis over Grenada had "grievous consequences" because it prevented the transmission of a critical diplomatic note."

The department is acting under a 1982 law aimed at providing leverage over nations that do not accord U.S. diplomats and their families the same privileges accorded their counterparts in the United States.

The law is administered by the department's Office of Foreign Missions, which said in the report that the statute has given the United States new tools "to apply the appropriate amount and kind of pressure to resolve long-standing problems limiting the effectiveness of the United States abroad.

"As the word gets around we expect the act to become more and more effective," the report said.

It concluded that the law now gives the United States the ability to deal with some practical irritations in the life of U.S. foreign service officers.

For example, two apartments used by U.S. embassy staff members in Prague, Czechoslovakia, "languished" for two years without telephones, the report said.

In retaliation, the United States last March cut off telephone service to an apartment rented by the Czech government in the United States and unplugged a second Czech telephone here in September.

Discussions then began between the two governments and both the U.S. apartments now have telephone service, the report said.

The 1982 law requires foreign missions in the United States to get State Department permission to buy property in the United States for diplomatic or residential use and the report said that most applications to do that have been approved.

However, it said the Soviet Union, China and some other countries have been refused permission because the United States is barred from buying property in those countries.

The report said also that plans are under way to delay delivery of the household effects of foreign diplomats posted here for up to six weeks in retaliation for similar delays in American baggage delivery in certain other countries.

The department also said that after a thorough review it is moving to recoup some or all of the taxes levied against U.S. installations and personnel overseas by the selective revocation of sales tax exemptions or by levying surcharges on diplomatic construction projects whenever that is done at U.S. projects abroad.

The department said that the "mere suggestion" of State Department interest in the taxation of U.S. construction projects overseas was enough to resolve such a problem in the building of a U.S. embassy in an unidentified country, saving $1 million.

And it said that potential savings to U.S. taxpayers in attacking the application of so-called value-added taxes to U.S. missions and personnel ranges from $15 million to $20 million.

The report also said that additional travel controls imposed in April 1983 against Soviet diplomats in response to Soviet restrictions on U.S. diplomats has had a national security benefit and "improved the morale of our people in the USSR."

Man throws girlfriend down abandoned mine

NEWTON, N.J. (AP) — A man has been charged with trying to kill his girlfriend by throwing her into a 20-foot-deep abandoned mine shaft, police said.

Robert DeGraw, 42, of Franklin, was being held Friday in the Sussex County Jail in lieu of $100,000 bail on an attempted murder charge, authorities said.

Police said Adele DeGroat, 44, also of Franklin, was forced at knifepoint into the shaft, which was filled with 4 feet of water, then was pelted with rocks. DeGraw pulled her out two hours later, police said.

Ms. DeGroat was hospitalized for cuts and bruises, authorities said.

Woman buried husband

HAYWARD, Calif. (AP) — Bail was doubled to $1 million on Friday for a woman charged with murdering her husband and burying his body under her bedroom floor.

Faye Flores McCabe, described by Alameda County Deputy District Attorney Ann Kenfield as a "clear and present danger to the community," was arrested after police found the body of James Flores and the remains of a dog under the floor of the Hayward home on June 14.

Neighbor, Paulette Vance, told authorities last week that Mrs. McCabe had told her in January that she had killed her first husband.

Ms. Kenfield opposed the motion for a reduced bail, saying Ms. Vance said Mrs. McCabe had threatened to kill her if she revealed the secret.

Ms. Kenfield also argued there was evidence the defendant had tried to hire someone to kill her present husband, Leo McCabe. McCabe fled to New York with the couple's 18-month-old child after the body was found.

Flores was 30 when he disappeared in December 1976. Mrs. McCabe said at the time he had run off with a woman.

Family may be homeless

WINTHROP, Maine (AP) — A severely handicapped man and his bedridden grandmother may be forced from their home unless they pay overdue bills to a utility that has a lien against the property.

"I can't afford to lose my home," said Ralph Record, 22. "If I do, my grandmother would be put in a home and I would be put somewhere, too."

The Winthrop Water District has put a $642 lien on the house Record shares with his 84-year-old grandmother, Gertrude Record. They owe the utility $1,402 in sewer charges dating to 1981.

Record, who suffered brain damage when he was struck by a motorcycle 13 years ago, collects $150 a month in rent on an apartment he owns, he said. His grandmother gets $192 a month in Social Security. They also receive food stamps.

Ex-grocery clerk files suit

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A former Kroger Co. worker has filed a sex discrimination suit against the grocery store chain, claiming the company provides uniforms only for its female clerks.

Boyd F. Kammerdiener of Beaver Falls, who filed the class-action suit in U.S. District Court here Thursday, said male clerks must wear neckties, which the company does not provide, and are prohibited from wearing jeans.

Teen to be tried for murder

DETROIT (AP) — A 17-year-old charged with fatally beating his mother's boyfriend with a baseball bat has been ordered to stand trial for first-degree murder.

Robert Reyes was bound over for trial Thursday in Detroit Recorder's Court after Judge William Hathaway called the June 9 death of Vincent Wise "the worst clubbing, the most vicious slaughter, the most gruesome killing I've ever seen."

Hathaway also ordered Otis Lee Banks to stand trial on a first-degree murder charge for aiding and abetting Reyes.

After he began hitting Wise, Reyes asked his mother, Katie Thompson, "Who do you love, him or me," a witness testified Thursday.

Plane lands on highway

TUALATIN, Ore. (AP) — A light airplane landed safely on an interstate highway here after its single engine quit, police said.

The plane's occupants, David E. Bixler of Oregon City and Denny Davidson of Portland, were unhurt Thursday night, State Police Trooper David Fife said.

Although the two-seat Cessna 150 landed on the northbound lanes of Interstate 5, no traffic accidents resulted, Fife said.

Prison inmate denied castration

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A prison inmate asked to be castrated "as a preventive measure" so he won't commit more sex crimes, but corrections officials say they will turn down the request.

"I know who I am, what I've done in the past and what will happen in the future," inmate Harry Frink, 26, said in an interview in Friday's Cedar Rapids Gazette. He said the surgery was needed "as a preventive measure to protect society. They wouldn't be doing me wrong. To me, castration is the only alternative I have left."

Frink made the request in a letter to Gov. Terry Branstad.

"Somebody wants to solve all of his future problems with one fell swoop of the knife. Obviously that isn't going to happen," said Dr. Paul Loeffelholz, medical consultant to the Department of Corrections.

Frink is serving time on two conts of kidnapping and sex abuse. He will be eligible for release in three years.

Court records say the charges stem from a 1979 incident in which he held two women hostage and sexually abused them. That came two months after he was released from a California jail, where he spent time on another sex charge.

Corrections Department spokesman Paul Grossheim said it's not unusual for prison officials to get a request from an inmate for castration, but he said most are related to requests for sex-change surgery.

"We've had several who have wanted sex-change operations," he said. Those requests were routinely denied, he said.

Aides said Branstad won't respond to the letter, which will be forwarded to the Corrections Department so that agency can explain to Frink why the surgery won't be done.

Honoring Frink's request, he said, could lead to legal problems.

Thatcher moving to Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Mark Thatcher, the son of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, apparently is moving to Dallas, to be near the home of his girlfriend, the Dallas Times Herald reported Friday.

Thatcher, 30, has signed a lease for an apartment at the exclusive Terrace House near downtown, manager Kitty Dozier told the newspaper.

A one-time race car driver, Thatcher has been coming to Dallas on business for more than two years, the Times Herald said. He met his romantic interest of six months, Karen Fortson, of Fort Worth, during a Dallas Cowboys game, the newspaper said.

Miss Fortson is an heiress to the fortune of Kay Kimbell, who made his money in merchandising and milling and founded Fort Worth's Kimbell Art Museum, the newspaper said.

Court orders transfusions

DALLAS (AP) — A prematurely born infant will receive blood transfusions over the objections of her Jehovah's Witness mother, a state district judge has ruled.

"It's not that I'm a cold person or I don't love my baby. You have to put God first," said Tina Ransome, who gave birth Wednesday to the 15-week premature girl.

Dr. Rachel Griffith said in court documents filed Thursday that "the child's condition, without blood transfusions, is of the gravest type, such that she has no chance of survival without such transfusion."

State District Judge Harlan Martin signed a court order allowing treatment, hospital spokesmen said.

Election's loser files suit

CLEBURNE (AP) — Even though the Republican Party declared Joe Barton a 10-vote winner over Max Hoyt in the 6th U.S. Congressional District June 2 runoff, Hoyt says the race isn't over.

Hoyt, a Montgomery County energy lobbyist, filed a lawsuit challenging the outcome of a recount, saying he believed "the choice (of the voters) was different than what was certified."

Hoyt was initially declared the winner over Barton by an 11-vote margin, 4,627 votes to 4,616. Barton, an Ennis consultant, gained 10 votes in the official canvass the following Tuesday. After a recount in all 14 counties last week, Barton was declared the winner, 4,632 votes to 4,622.

Glen Griffin, Barton's campaign manager, called Hoyt's suit "unfortunate."

Fired nurse files suit

DALLAS (AP) — A fire department dispatch nurse who was fired after she argued with a man requesting help for his dying mother has asked a federal judge to declare the city's internal appeals process unconstitutional.

Billye Myrick, who was scheduled to appeal her dismissal before a city trial board Monday, filed the lawsuit Wednesday before U.S. District Judge Joe Fish.

The suit does not ask that Ms. Myrick be reinstated because the city has not given her a fair appeal, her attorney, Donald W. Hill, said.

Hill said that he had asked that the hearing be delayed and said the city agrees that a delay "would be best."

EDB 'all but non-existent'

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Health said Friday that EDB (ethylene dibromide) was all but non-existent in the 65 food tested the past two weeks.

The department said four products had minute traces of the chamical and all were within the acceptable limits set by the board.

The tests included ready-to-eat foods made with grain products, as well as one sample of honey and various mixes needing cooking.

TRC: Coal production up

AUSTIN (AP) — Coal production by surface mining in Texas increased 12 percent last year compared with 1982, the Texas Railroad Commission said Friday.

In 1983 the state produced 38,925,397 tons of coal, compared to 34,750,787 tons in 1982.

Lignite accounted for all of the state's production except for 413,418 tons of bituminous coal, which has a higher energy content.

David Port

Teen pleads innocent to murder

HOUSTON (AP) — A teen-ager pleaded innocent to murdering a mail carrier Friday in hopes of keeping his parents from being jailed for refusing to testify before a grand jury on religious grounds, a defense attorney said.

But Assistant District Attorney Brad Beers said the state has a right to seek an indictment and the issue of the parents' testimony "is still alive."

David Port, 17, pleaded innocent before State District Judge William Bachus in the June 7 shooting of Debora Sue Schatz, 23, who disappeared while delivering mail in the affluent west Houston neighborhood where the Port family lives.

Port's attorney, Jack Zimmermann, said the hearing was waived because he had expected the grand jury to issue an indictment anyway, "so why continue to punish the parents? They're the ones that have suffered through this."

The grand jury would determine whether authorities had enough evidence to try Port on a murder charge. Without the grand jury hearing, he would go straight to trial, but prosecutors would not be able to use evidence that might be admitted to the grand jury.

The teen-ager, who remains free on $20,000 bond, entered the plea after Bachus postponed a hearing to determine whether prosecutors had enough evidence to seek the grand jury indictment.

Prosecutors asked for the delay because they had been unable to subpoena the youth's father and stepmother, Bernard and Odette Port, who have been ordered to answer questions from a grand jury investigating Miss Schatz's death.

Earlier this week the Ports refused to answer some of the panel's questions, saying their Jewish beliefs forbid them from bearing witness against their son and claiming a privilege similar to that which allows spouses not to give evidence against each other.

When the Ports originally invoked their Fifth Amendment privilege against self incrimination, State District Judge William Hatten ruled them immune from prosecution.

But Hatten ruled earlier this week that the Ports had no right to refuse to testify before the grand jury. He set a hearing for Wednesday for the Ports to show why they should not be held in contempt of court.

The Ports vowed they would go to jail before breaking their silence. But the couple's attorney, Randy Schaffer, said that as a result of the indictment waiver and innocent plea, he believes "there's no grand jury" involved in the case and so the Ports should not be held in contempt.

Beers has said prosecutors have enough evidence to indict the younger Port for murder, but insisted the investigation would be incomplete without the parents' testimony.

During Friday's hearing, Beers said the Ports arrived home on the evening of the slaying and found their son missing and several bullet holes in the stairwell of their home.

The following morning, the couple discovered their son had not been home and called police, Beers said. Port also found a .22-caliber semi-automatic pistol in his son's bedroom and determined the weaon had been fired recently.

"I know of no other witnesses that would be able to testify to those facts," Beers said.

Leader to be sworn in

OTTAWA (AP) — John Turner, elected Liberal Party leader last weekend to replace retiring Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, said Friday he would be sworn in June 30 as Canada's 17th government leader.

Turner told a news conference in the capital that his new Cabinet would be sworn in at the same time.

He sidestepped questions about whether his Cabinet will be smaller than the current 37 members and whether he will appoint non-parliamentarians to it.

Turner also declined comment on political talks with Jean Chretien, Trudeau's energy minister who was runner-up at the Liberal leadership convention last Saturday. Turner said only that discussions with Chretien, a longtime Trudeau ally, would continue discussions next week.

Trudeau's 16-year tenure in office, broken only by a nine-month Progressive Conservative administration in 1979, made him the longest-serving head of government in the Western world.

Turner was finance minister under Trudeau before resigning in 1975 for reasons he has never stated publicly. However, Trudeau and Turner were believed to have disagreed over economic policy. Turner has pledged to improve relations with the United States, which had been alienated by nationalist economics pursued by the Trudeau administration.

After leaving the government, Turner entered a lucrative corporate law practice in Toronto and had shunned politics until entering the Liberal leadership battle following Trudeau's resignation announcement earlier this year.

NATO secretary-general retires

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Joseph Luns led his final meeting as NATO's secretary-general Friday, said goodbye to 1,200 alliance staff members and headed into retirement in his green Rolls Royce.

Luns, 72, was secretary-general for 13 years. On Monday, he will be succeeded by Lord Carrington, the former British foreign secretary.

In a farewell ceremony on the lawn at NATO headquarters on the outkirts of Brussels, Luns shook hands with senior officials, reviewed a military honor guard and waved goodbye to applauding staff members. NATO's 14 ambassadors presented Luns with an inscribed silver bowl and a book with 150 photographs of his years with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Luns had a 48-year career in diplomacy that began in the Dutch foreign service in 1938.Before becoming NATO secretary-general, he was Holland's foreign minister for 19 years.

Thai employees to get disco breaks

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The conservative Thai bureaucracy announced Friday that six minutes of disco music will be piped daily into Interior Ministry offices, and dancing will be allowed.

"Disco breaks," are being introduced to provide relaxation to some 700 ministry employees, said Poonsak Ronootnaraparn, the agency's public relations representative.

The disco tunes will be played twice a day for three minutes at a time, and dancing or aerobic exercises will be permitted, he said.

The idea reportedly came from an agency official who said he witnessed the beneficial effects of "disco breaks" while visiting Japan.

Pope: Alcoholism plagueof society

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II, describing alcoholism as one of the worst plagues of modern society, called Friday for urgent international efforts to deal with "untold suffering and anguish" caused by alcohol abuse.

The pope, speaking in English to a group of 55 people attending an international conference on alcoholism, said the drinking problem "deeply touches the human person — the life of individuals, families, communities and societies...and untold suffering and anguish are involved."

Those fighting alcoholism have "the full measure of my encouragement," he added.

Minister frees Czech hostages

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Czechoslovakia's deputy foreign minister went into the Angolan bush to retrieve 20 countrymen held 15 months by anti-Marxist rebels, and brought them out Friday through South Africa, which is ruled by a staunchly anti-communist white minority.

At Jan Smuts Airport, Stanislav Svoboda thanked South Africa for allowing the group to transit through this country, which views communist influence in Angola and other parts of black Africa as its most dangerous external threat.

Svoboda and the former captives then flew on a Red Cross plane to Zaire, where they planned to catch a flight to Prague.

South African Foreign Ministry spokeswoman Lorraine Fourie stressed that Svodoba was allowed to go through Johannesburg at the request of the Red Cross. "There has been no contact between the deputy foreign minister and our government," she said.

The Czechoslovaks were held hostage by the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA), following a raid on Alto Catumbela in early March of 1983.

In the raid, UNITA captured 66 Czechoslovaks, nearly all electricians, engineers or other contract workers at an industrial project. Forty-five people, mostly women and children, were released three months later. One man died on the long march to UNITA headquarters in Jamba, Angola.

Svoboda said he went there to secure his compatriots' freedom, after a rebel envoy visited Prague recently and said a high-ranking Czechoslovak official would be permitted to pick up the hostages.

When asked if he was well-treated, captive Alexander Ivan, 54, replied, "You can hardly say that when you are a prisoner...But I must say we were never tortured, physically beaten or denied food as punishment."

Ivan, of Bratislava, said that from August 1983 until last month, UNITA kept the captives two men to a hut, and they were isolated from other pairs of hostages.

He said his worst moments followed a double hernia operation performed by UNITA surgeons at their guerrilla base.

"They performed the operation under what we could describe as bush conditions. After that, there were moments when I did not believe I would come out alive," he said.

UNITA has fought the leftist regime of President Jose Eduardo dos Santos since the southern African nation achieved independence from Portugal in 1975.

Dos Santos' government is backed by an estimated 25,000 Cuban troops, along with East German and Soviet advisers.

UNITA says an undisclosed number of American, Colombian, and Portuguese hostages are being marched toward the rebel headquarters, where the rebels are believed to be holding Cubans, Bulgarians, and one Yugoslav.

But the rebels said they recently have been releasing scores of captured foreign workers. Their usual route to freedom is through South Africa, widely believed to aid UNITA in the Angolan war.

Unwilling Iranian passengers leave Paris for home

PARIS (AP) — An Iran Air flight has taken home four Iranians who were unwilling passengers on a commandeered Iranian navy transport plane, sources at Orly Airport said Friday.

The navy plane's four other occupants were placed under indefinite house arrest following their request for political asylum.

The passengers, three non-commissioned officers and a civilian, went back to Iran late Thursday on the Iranian commercial flight, the sources said, after being brought to the Paris airport from Nice where the twin-engine aircraft had landed Tuesday.

The pilot and co-pilot of the commandeered plane and two other men are being held in the Bordeaux region of western France, authorities said.

French authorities have not said whether political asylum has been granted.

Iran has demanded the return of the plane and the defectors.

Hamburger machine still a dream

TYLER, Texas (AP) — One man's dream of an automatic hamburger vending mmachine came close to reality 30 years ago. But like so many dreams, it ended up in a warehouse full of junk.

In 1953, six University of Texas graduate students in physics designed the contraption in Austin. In two minutes, the machine sliced and toasted a bun; seared a ¼ pound burger; put on the mustard, mayonnaise, cheese and the patty; wrapped the finished product in waxed paper; sent it down a chute; and made correct change for the customer.

The inventor, Brooks Oakley of Austin, was convinced he had perfected the mass-production of hamburgers. He gathered up the plans and flew to Westinghouse Inc. headquarters in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Westinghouse engineers told Oakley they could constuct the machine and catalogue the parts for $975,000.

Oakley, like so many dreamers, had a cash flow problem. He abandoned the project.

But photographs were taken of the outlandish-looking machine at the time by Bill Baker, one of the machinists who honed some of the parts.

BAKER, NOW a resident of Tyler and employed by the 'Tyler Morning Telegraph,' fondly recalls working on Oakley's fantasy in Austin.

"He (Oakley) lived and breathed and dreamed hamburgers and carried a wad of money. It was a beautiful sight," Baker recalls.

Baker says the machine performed 650 separate operations, required 150 patents and cost $375,000 to build. It dispensed 5,000 standardized hamburgers before a timing error caused the meat patty to sit slightly off the center of the bun.

At 9,000 hamburgers, the ingredients missed the bun completely.

Oakley decided to abandon the electronic relay system which let customers custom-build burgers by punching "rejection buttons" in favor of a system of pneumatic tubes.

Baker remembers one of the nagging engineering problems — how to make a machine slice an onion without the rings falling apart.

THE INVENTORS tinkered until they came up with the idea of replacing a knife blade with a saw blade in an electric jig saw.

The machine stood 6 feet tall and 6 feet wide. Seventy-two-inch refrigerated aluminum tubes were stacked with whole onion (ends of which had been trimmed), layers of three tomatoes, dill pickles, heads of lettuce, raw ground meat and buns.

It was "real dressed up like a modern jukebox with lots of color and flashing lights," Oakley, now 75, says.

Hamburgers cost a quarter. A slice of cheese was a nickel extra.

Oakley had broken down the hamburger-making process into 13 steps. First, a sheet of waxed paper fell onto a conveyor belt. A bun was sliced and toasted. One half was kept in a holding container. The other half dropped on the paper.

The bottom bun started around the stations, picking up the vegetables, condiments and cheese.

SIMULTANEOUSLY, a meat patty was seared for 21 seconds in a vertical grill, designed so grease fumes were dissipated by running through a water filter.

As the bottom bun circled, the patty plopped down, followed by the toasted bun top and another sheet of waxed paper.

The edges were sealed, and the package slid down a chute.

Oakley says the machine had a tape recorder to thank the customer and urge him to come back.

"There was built-in accountability in that machine. No human hand touched the burgers," Oakley reminisces. He dreamed of setting up the machines outside ball parks and on street corners.

He envisaged a half million outlets worldwide using five million pounds of beef a year for 20 million burgers.

"I was going to make a million dollars a day," sighs the eccentric inventor.

NOW BROKE and retired, Oakley cares for his invalid sister in a ramshackle house on a tree-lined street in a West Austin neighborhood.

Described by associates as a "genius" and revolutionary thinker," Oakley was born in Pickering, La. He came to Austin in 1931 to study at the University of Texas.

The woman he eventually married hired him, because he intended to work his way though school, to wash dishes at the Longhorn Waffle Shop on Congress avenue, which she owned.

Oakley and his late wife, the former Leta K. Hanneford, incorporated the Waffle Shop in 1948 into the Somewhere Cafe, which specialized in "Someburgers."

By 1952, there were 12 "Someburger" stands in Austin. The last cafe at 1510 Interregional closed in 1968.

"There was none to compare with a Someburger," says Dr. Bill Rose, one of the graduate studets in nuclear physics who helped design the assembly-line sandwich more than 30 years ago.

Dispute centers on resort's water supply

CATAWBA ISLAND, Ohio (AP) — Contaminated water seeping into private water wells of some island residents is more a political issue than a safety concern at this Lake Erie resort.

For nearly 20 years, the 3,000 or so year-round residents have squabbled over the need and cost of a public water system. Tests by the Ottawa County health department show 35 percent of the wells tested have unsafe drinking water. That figure has been stable for 10 years.

Though residents are concerned about water, no one has figured how to pay the estimated $10-$15 million cost to install a water system.

Underlying the dispute is rapid development of the island that could follow a public water supply. Many residents oppose building more houses, marinas and businesses.

"Quite frankly, it's not viewed as an urgent problem at all. It's a move by development and business interests to develop the area," said Helen Jean Rofkar, an Ottawa County commissioner elected in part because of her opposition to a public water system.

Mrs. Rofkar has lived on the island 25 years and says she has not found any bad water. Some neighbors have had problems, but she says on-site treatment is the best and cheapest answer.

Catawba Island is separated from the mainland only by West Harbor, a body spanned by a bridge on Ohio Route 53. Much of the island is bedrock with little soil cover. That subjects wells to seepage from residential septic tanks and contamination from coliform bacteria, created by human and animal wastes.

The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency ordered the county to put a water system on the island in 1972. The county fought the order in court and lost. The Ohio EPA then ordered construction to begin by May 1981, but hasn't enforced its order since federal financing dried up.

"When we started, all of this could have been done for $1 million. Now, it's an $8 million to $10 million project," said Lee Baker, who owns three marinas on the island. "The longer we wait, the more it will cost."

He said development on the island would continue and that the island would eventually have to have a community water or sewer system. A water system, he said, is cheaper.

Mrs. Rofkar said no law required residents to use public water.

"Once either (water or sewer system) is installed, the name of the game is development," she said. "The rates are high to start with and they go higher. The only way to keep them in line at all is to have more customers."

Rich paying more taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — New statistics from the Internal Revenue Service confirm high-income Americans are shouldering a greater share of the tax burden but the figures do little to end the debate over the fairness of President Reagan's tax program.

The IRS reported taxpayers with incomes of $100,000 or more paid 17.4 percent of federal income taxes in 1982, up from 15.2 percent a year earlier. The number of taxpayers in the highest-income group also grew — from 654,652 to 740,206 — and accounted for about 7 of each 1,000 returns.

The tax share paid by the big middle-income group — those earning between $15,000 and $50,000, who file 410 of each 1,000 returns — dropped to 56.3 percent from 57.8 percent in 1981. The lower-earning half of all taxpayers — with incomes of $15,000 or less — paid 7.9 percent of the taxes in 1982, down from 8.8 percent.

The number of couples and individuals with incomes of $50,000 to $100,000 grew from 3.4 million to 3.76 million; their tax share rose from 18 percent to 18.2 percent.

The figures were released three months after the IRS made its first preliminary estimate of how the across-the-board tax reductions recommended by Reagan and approved by Congress were affecting the tax burden.

The newer figures support the contention by Reagan and his supporters that the cuts are stimulating greater investment and effort by higher-income people.

The IRS emphasizes that all these figures are estimates derived from sampling fewer than 100,000 of the 95.3 million individual returns filed last year.

Omer W. Ware of Kansas City, Kan., a member of the "Posse Comitatus" anti-tax group, ignored the advice of his accountant, swore off filing returns and boasted, "I will never do a day in prison." According to Tax Court records, he filed a W-4E form with his employer claiming to be exempt from withholding, and solicited others to do the same, chanting, "the W-4E will set you free."

Ware was convicted on three counts of willfully failing to file returns and sentenced to a year in prison. The Tax Court agreed he owed $5,500 in back taxes and, declaring that Ware "acted with the specific, obstinate intent to evade and defeat taxes that he knew were owed," upheld an additional $2,800 penalty for fraud.

A recent Tax Court decision points out what a theft victim may consider an unfair law: You may not claim the appreciated value of stolen property when taking a deduction for a theft loss.

Elmars P. Ezerins of Wisconsin bought U.S. silver coins with a face value of about $1,500. After they were stolen in 1980, he claimed a theft loss of $51,390, based on a big increase in the price of silver since his purchase. The Tax Court noted the law permits a deduction for the full fair market value of the stolen property at the time of the theft or its purchase price — whichever is less.

The court permitted a $1,700 deduction.

A new law now in effect further restricts any casualty or theft loss to that portion exceeding 10 percent of adjusted gross income and requires the taxpayer to absorb the first $100 of each loss. The old law had only the $100 threshold.

Joining a fitness salon produces a questionable tax deduction.

Mary Gayle Strickland of Atoka, Tenn., claimed a $332 deduction on grounds her doctor recommended a health club to control her high blood pressure. The IRS rejected the deduction and by the time Ms. Strickland got into Tax Court, her doctor had died. She produced some notes from a doctor she had visited earlier and an affidavit from an attendant in a parking lot near the health club.

That was not good enough, the court held, noting that to be deductible, a medical expense must be incurred "primarily for or directly related to medical care as opposed to an expenditure which is merely beneficial to the general health" of the taxpayer.

M-Cubs win, 6-4

From Staff Reports

EL PASO—Midland's Cubs evened their record at 1-1, the first time the Bruins have have been at .500 this season, by beating the El Pas Diablos, 6-4, before 2,494 fans at Dudley Field Saturday night.

What's more the win put Midland in a four-way tie for first in the Texas League West, another season's first.

Shawon Dunston hit a seventh inning home run which proved to be the decisive run. It was Dunston's third homer of the season. Scott Johnson came in in the ninth and got his first save of the year.

Doug Potestio worked the first six innings in leveling his record at 2-2.

In the second, Dan Norman doubled and scored on Tony Woods' single while Rick Baker singled, Darrin Jackson doubled and Jeff Jones, with a sac fly, and Norman with a single got the runs home in the third.

Griffith sells Twins

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Saying it was time to step aside, but not out, Minnesota Twins owner Calvin Griffith signed a letter of intent Friday that contains the offer by Minneapolis banker Carl Pohlad to buy a majority interest in the American League team.

Griffith, his sister and co-owner Thelma Haynes and Pohlad signed the document at home plate of the Metrodome before the team's game against the Chicago White Sox. The final contracts have not been worked out, however, and Pohlad will not officially own the team for several weeks.

Tears flowed from Griffith as the Twins players came on the field to offer their goodbyes.

Griffith, presenting Pohlad with a baseball, said,"I hope there's not a lot of curves in it."

The soon-to-be Twins owner held the ball aloft, saying, "This is probably the most expensive baseball in the world."

Details of the agreement have not been released, but Pohlad is reportedly offering about $32 million for 52 percent of the Twins stock. Another 42 percent of the stock was sold by its owner, Gabe Murphy, to a group of Tampa, Fla., investors, but the American League owners have not approved the sale, and Pohlad says he is talking with Murphy about buying the stock.

The agreement ended a long and highly publicized search for a buyer that would keep the team in Minnesota.

"We got down to one person that we feel that's going to do the job for the community. We're very, very happy to be with Carl. He's been after me for 10 years to buy the ballclub," Griffith said at a news conference before the signing.

Pohlad said he will not drastically change the organization's structure and will not be involved himself with the day-to-day operation of the team.

"We want to field a team that the state of Minnesota and the entire Upper Midwest region is going to be proud of," Pohlad said. "I don't play to lose, I play to win."

Pohlad has said he isn't a great baseball fan and doesn't know a lot about the game's details, but he told reporters his attitude has changed recently.

Holcomb in mat finals

ALLENDALE, Mich. (AP) — Mike Holcomb won each of his matches against Gary Albright by disqualification Friday to advance to the final round of qualifying for the U.S. Olympic wrestling team.

Holcomb, a 23-year-old freestyle heavyweight from Pleasant Plain, Ohio, won his first match 1-0 in overtime when Albright, 20, of Billings, Mont., drew a fourth caution from officials, tournament spokesman Dan Hall said.

Holcomb won the second of the best-of-three matches when Albright voluntarily left the mat after protesting several injury timeouts called by Holcomb, Hall said. Albright disqualified himself with seven seconds remaining in the match, the spokesman said.

Friday's victors will face the top-seeded qualifiers Saturday at Grand Valley State College for the right to represent the United States in the 1984 Summer Games at Los Angeles.

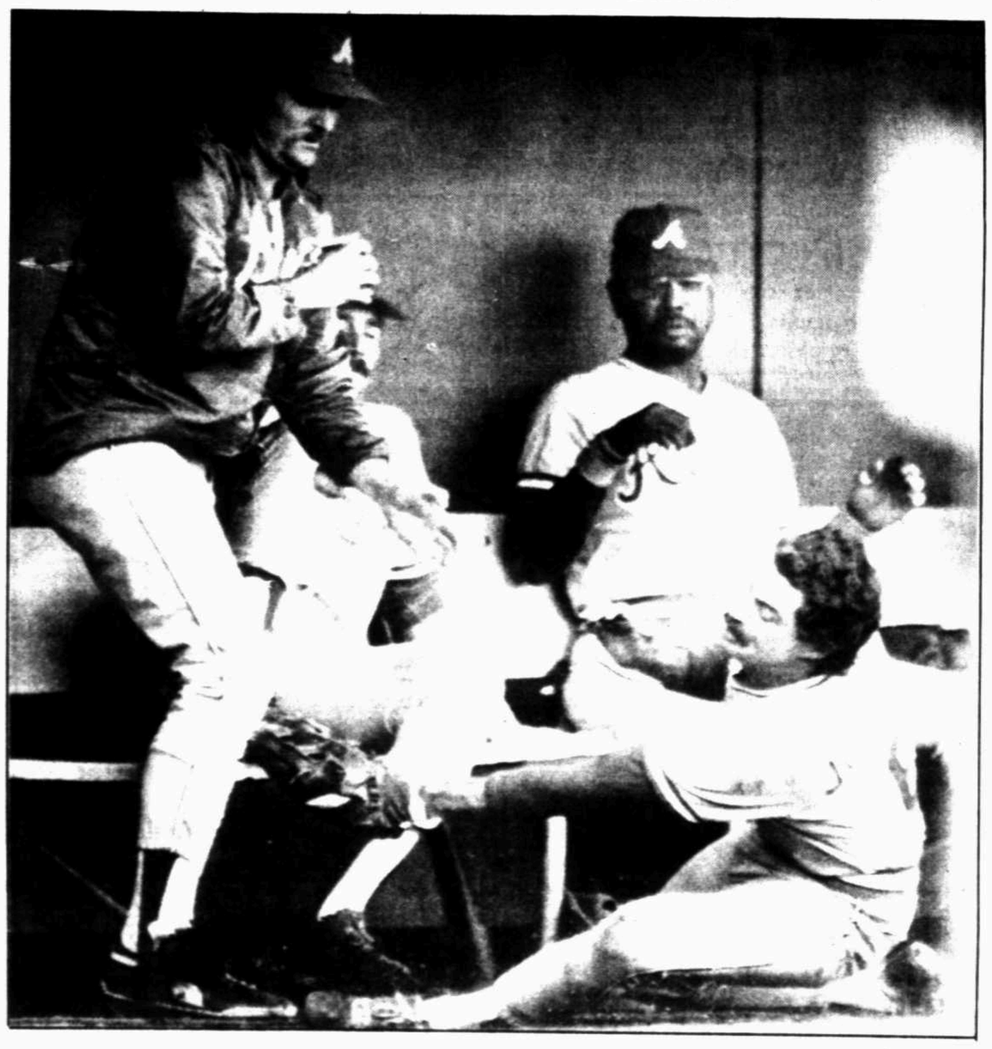

Saturday's key matches will include a pairing of Lee Kemp and Dave Schultz in the 74-kilogram (163-pound) freestyle category.

Schultz defeated Kemp in the 1983 World Cup trials at Toledo, Ohio. But Kemp evened the score later that year at the National Freestyle championships at Madison, Wis. Schultz then defeated Kemp earlier this year during the National Freestyle qualifying rounds.

Each of 10 wrestlers who advanced Friday defeated their opponents in two consecutive matches, Hall said.

U.S. Army Sgt. 1st Class Tony Thomas remained hospitalized Friday at St. Mary's Hospital in Grand Rapids after suffering the first serious injury of this year's Olympic trials, Hall said.

Thomas apparently suffered a bruised spinal cord Thursday night while competing against John Guira, 21, of Oak Park, Ill., in the 68-kilogram (149-pound) Greco-Roman event, said Dr. Richard Strauss, the team physician. James Martinez, 26, of Brooklyn Park, Minn., ousted Guira 13-0, 9-1 on Friday.

Brisco-Hooks steals show

Olympic Trials

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Valerie Brisco-Hooks ran the fastest time by an American this year and the third-fastest clocking in the world in winning the women's 200-meter dash at the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials Friday night.

The 23-year-old Brisco-Hooks, who previously made the U.S. team in the 400 meters and recently set the American record in that event before it was broken by Chandra Cheeseborough at this meet, was clocked in 22.16 seconds.

The time also made Brisco-Hooks the No. 3 performer in U.S. history. Only Evelyn Ashford and Cheesborough have run faster.

Ashford, the Olympic Trials 100-meter champion, pulled up during the first-round heats of the 200, and Cheeseborough, the Trials' 400-meter champion, withdrew from the 200 semifinals because of strained ligaments in her left knee.

Despite their absence, the final was filled with a lot of speed.

Brisco-Hooks, married to pro football player Alvin Hooks, blasted out of the blocks quickly and led all the way.

Florence Griffith, formerly of UCLA and the NCAA champion in 1983, finished second at 22.40 seconds, and Randy Givens, this year's NCAA champion from Florida State University, took third in 22.59.

After the sizzling race, Brisco-Hooks waved an American flag to the crowd at the Los Angeles Coliseum, then carried her 2-year-old son around part of the track, before returning him to his father in the stands.

HOOKS HAS played two years with the Philadelphia Eagles as a wide receiver and has signed with the Buffalo Bills for the 1984 National Football league season.

He had an opportunity to sign with the Los Angeles Express of the United States Football League this season, but skipped the chance to help his wife train for the Trials.

"He helped me train ... he helped me with my confidence," said the 1979 national collegiate champion at Cal State-Northridge. "I was beginning to doubt myself. I was feeling bad about my training.

"I had injuries last October and November, so he decided to wait to play football and help me."

Brisco-Hooks has said she had no thoughts about retiring after giving birth to her son in January 1982.

"I eat, sleep and drink track," she said.

THE ONLY two runners in the world who have run the 200 faster than Brisco-Hooks this year are East Germans Marlies Gohr (21.74) and Marita Koch (22.13). Neither, of course, will be in the Olympics, because East Germany has joined the Soviet-led boycott of the Los Angeles Games.

Meanwhile, Mary Decker, the American record-holder, loped through her semifinal heat in the women's 1,500 meters and led the advance into Sunday's final. She also will run the 3,000 final Saturday, as she attempts to qualify for the Olympic team in the two events in which she won world titles last year.

In the 1,500 semifinals, Decker ran shoulder-to-shoulder with Regina Jacobs for the first 400 meters, before quickening the pace and assuming the lead for good.

She finished easily in 4:09.05, well ahead of runner-up Sue Addison (4:09.93).

KIM Gallagher, also trying to make the team in two events — she already has won the 800 Trials — took the other 1,500 semifinal in 4:10.81.

Sydney Maree, the South African expatriate who now is a U.S. citizen, posted the fastest time in the three opening-round heats of the men's 1,500.

Maree, timed in 3:38.42, said, "I would have preferred an easier pace. Running three races (including Saturday's semifinals and Sunday's final) is very difficult. All that counts (Sunday) is mental toughness and strength."

Steve Scott, the nation's top-ranked 1,500-meter runner each of the past seven years, also won his heat, in 3:42.19.

"There was a lot of anxiety in the race," said Scott. "It was a very physical race. I got caught inside early. Then, with about 200 meters to go, I got boxed in again and had to push it down the homestretch."

JIM SPIVEY, the national champion, won the third 1,500 heat, in 3:43.26.

Craig Virgin, already on the Olympic 10,000-meter team, continued his bid to become the first American in 28 years to make the team in that event and the 5,000.

The veteran Virgin finished sixth in his heat of the 5,000 and advanced to Sunday's final. The last to make the U.S. team in the 5,000 and 10,000 was Max Treux in 1956.

The fastest time in the 5,000 heats was posted by Don Clary (13:35.32). Steve Plasencia took the other heat in 13:42.35.

Among the other qualifiers for Sunday's final were Doug Padilla, Steve Lacy and Bruce Bickford.

Pam Page, formerly of the University of Missouri, easily had the fastest time in the first round of the women's 100-meter high hurdles.

All-Big 10 back among indicted

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Craig Swoope, a first-team all-Big Ten defensive back from the University of Illinois, is among three men indicted by a federal grand jury on drug charges, federal officials said Friday.

U.S. Attorney Gerald D. Fines said the indictment was handed up June 7 but had remained sealed until Friday.

Swoope, 20, now in his hometown of Fort Pierce, Fla., and the two other men are accused in the multi-count indictment of conpiring to possess and distribute cocaine and marijuana, and also with various charges of possession and distribution.

Swoope could not be reached for comment at his Florida residence.

Tab Bennett, sports information director at Illinois, said that until the school learns more about Swoope's case, "it would be inappropriate of us to comment."

Also named in the indictment were Herbert Lorenzo Siler, 25, and Ted Bailey, both of Champaign. Bailey's age was not immediately available. Siler is living in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Fine said.

The indictment said the three men conspired with each other from about December 1983 to June 1984 to possess cocaine with intent to distribute.

Highway 80 tennis arrives

From Staff Reports

The Highway 80 Tennis Tournament rolled over Midland Friday like a West Texas sandstorm with 400 players volleying and serving on three different courts.

Play will continue through today and conclude Sunday.

"We hope to get through semifinals today and finals will are scheduled, tentatively, around noon Sunday," said Midland High Tennis Coach Pete Barizon, who was overseeing the play at Midland High courts. Bobby Connell, Midland Lee coach, the tournament director, is watching action at Midland Lee courts while Midland College coach Joe Williams has charge of the MC court action.

Play resumes at 8:30 a.m. today at all three courts and will continue, probably, until late in the afternoon.

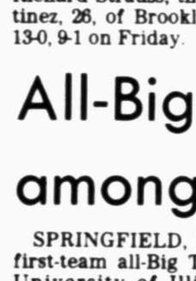

Boys and girls singles in the 12, 14, 16 and 18 age groups and an adult division is in action. Some 50-60 netters from both San Angelo and Lubbock make up the bulk of the out-of-town entries.

Midland is the second stop on the summerlong Highway 80 tournament. The tour opened earlier this week in Odessa with players from Wichita Falls and Odessa hogging the titles.

Odessa High's Cathy Carlson, bound for Texas Tech, won the women's and 18-and-under divisions. Carlson defeated 15-year-old Jill Bramlett in the 18 finals.

Mark McMullen, 16 division; Mark McMullen, 14, and Michael Martinez, 12, all of Wichita Falls won singles titles. And Amy Lawrence, also Wichita Falls, won the girls 12 singles.

Steve Kennedy, San Antonio, defeated Mike Hernandez, Odessa, in the 18 singles. In the men's doubles, top-ranked Todd Reed, Odessa College coach, and Joe Dan McBeth, Odessa CC pro, teamed up to beat Jon Lanier, Midland, and Roger White, Abilene, in the men's finals.

TED BATTLES

Don't mess with Bill Bates

Bill Bates is one of those guys who lets his actions do his talking. As a result, the Dallas Cowboys defensive back isn't one with whom to press an issue. After all, the rookie from University of Tennessee quickly gained the fans' favor last autumn as the successor to Cliff Harris, whose impending presence caused more than one teammate to yelp "I'm on your side."

So when Mr. Crash II says the media has overplayed the Danny White-Gary Hogeboom quarterback thing, one is inclined to let the matter drop.

"The year before last, Danny was the best in the league. I'm non-commital on the subject. As far as I'm concerned, let them settle it on the field."

Bates was in Midland recently, along with Tony Dorsett, as the guest of Joe Henderson, for a Texas Tech fund-raiser.

Looking down the road, Bates feels St. Louis Cardinals' may be the most improved team in the division and he feels the secret to the Redskins success (a Super Bowl team the last two years) is Joe Theismann. "He's a strong competitor, a fighter and he has been in the league a long time. He knows what's in all the oppositions' closets."

After a year in the league, for Bates, there's no hesitation when it comes to "who is the toughest player in the league to defense?"

"Marcus Allen. He's got it all. Great speed, he can catch the ball, throw it, run and block. As a pass receiver, Joe Washington is probably the toughest to cover."

"But when they get to the NFL, they are all good. I think the best adjustment from college was recognizing offensive plays and sets."...

ON COACH Tom Landry's "get tough" policy of a year ago, Dorsett feels it was another case of the media overplaying something that wasn't that big a deal.

Dorsett feels the heralded "get tough, throw open all positions" policy of a year ago was overplayed. "The biggest change was that we stayed at a hotel the night before home games. The security beef up at camp wasn't that effective. Guys still got robbed."

On the change in ownership, Dorsett, who has been working out daily since April in the off-season program, sees no change as yet. "Gil (Brandt) and Tex (Schramm) are still running things. But, who knows, Bum might show up at Thousand Oaks, I never saw Clint out there."

Butch Johnson? "He had been around a long time without starting. Perhaps it was time to move on. In Ray Renfro, we got a good, veteran receiver. I don't think we'll be hurt."

RANDY VELARDE, former Midland Lee pitcher and shortstop, was a Cubs Stadium visitor recently before reporting to Liberal, Kan., where he will play summer ball in the Ban Johnson League for the second year in a row.

In 1983, Randy made NAIA All-American as a shortstop. This year, he made it at second base after a season in which he hit .408 with 15 homers and 78 runs batted in for Lubbock Christian College.

However, the year wasn't the success of 1983 when LCC won the NAIA College World Series. This year, LCC was eliminated in the regionals.

"We had just beaten Texas three out of four at Austin and were looking forward to playing Grand Canyon College," says Randy. "We just didn't see Dallas Baptist coming."

DBC whipped LCC decisively. "They deserved to win. We just played bad baseball that series."...

Dodgers batter Atlanta, 10-4

From Wire Reports

ATLANTA — R.J. Reynolds and Candy Maldonado homered and Pedro Guerrero collected four hits in a 16-hit Los Angeles attack as the Dodgers pounded the Braves 10-4.

In beating Atlanta four in a row for a 4-1 season's edge, the Dodgers jumped on Pete Falcone, 4-6, who lasted just two-thirds of an inning as Los Angeles scored five times before the Braves came to bat.

Steve Sax singled and Reynolds lofted his second homer over the center-field fence.

Guerrero doubled, Mike Marshall walked and Steve Yeager singled Guerrero home to make it 3-0. Marshall scored on Maldonado's RBI single, which chased Falcone. Rick Camp surrendered a double to Bill Russell which scored Maldonado.

In the third, singles by Guerrero and Marshall, a walk to Yeager, Maldonado's double play grounder and a single by winning pitcher Bob Welch, 6-7, stretched the lead to 7-0. Maldonado's third homer of the season in a two-run fifth made it 9-0.

Reds 8, Padres 7

CINCINNATI — A throwing error by San Diego center fielder Luis Salazar's on a single by Dave Parker allowed Duane Walker to score the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning as Cincinnati beat San Diego 8-7.

Eddie Milner's two-run triple off Padres relief ace Rich Gossage, 3-2, tied the game 7-7 in the bottom of the eighth.

San Diego scored three times in the first inning when Steve Garvey singled ahead of Nettles' 10th homer, Terry Kennedy doubled and Bobby Brown singled.

Garvey hit his first home run since May 13 with one out in the third. Kennedy singled with two out and continued to second on left fielder Walker's error. Brown singled to score Kennedy and went to second on the throw home, then scored on Carmelo Martinez's single to give San Diego a 6-2 lead.

Walker's solo homer, his seventh, started the Reds' three-run fourth.

Hannah inks four one-year packs with Pats

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — All-pro offensive guard John Hannah, who retired and returned to football before last season, has signed a series of four one-year contracts with the New England Patriots, the National Football League team announced Friday.

The 6-foot-3, 265-pound veteran has sparked the Patriots running game since he was the team's first-round draft pick in 1973.

"We are very pleased to have signed this new contract with John," said Patriots General Manager Patrick Sullivan. "He is obviously a very important member of our team and this new agreement will allow him to finish his career with the Patriots."

The terms of the contract were not released.

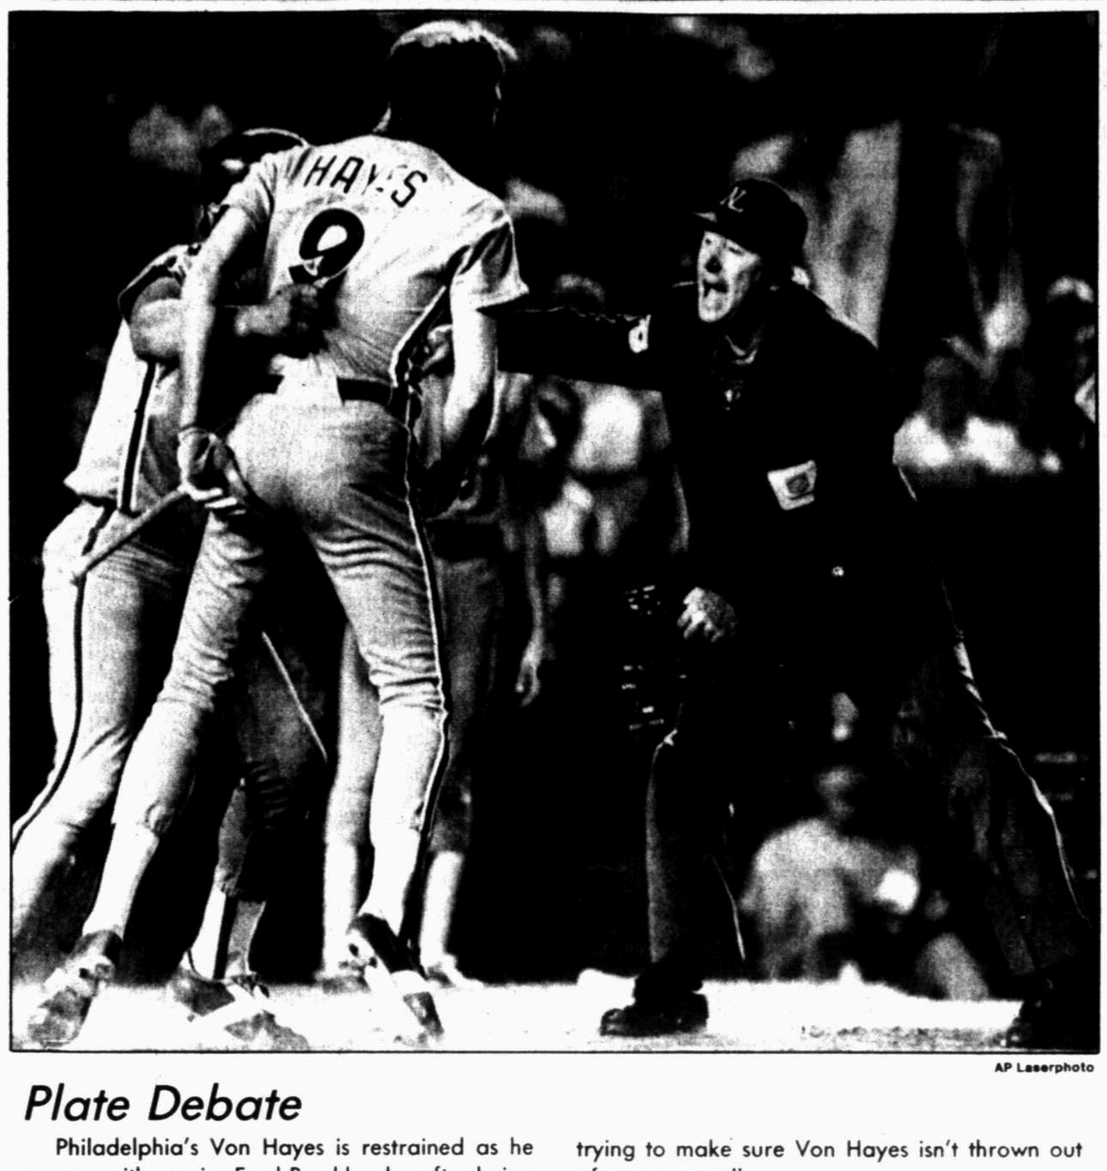

Hannah, a Pro Bowl choice for seven years, announced in May 1983 he was retiring from football following his 10th season. But he was lured back before the start of the 1983-84 season without missing a game.

Pryor triumphs

TORONTO (AP) — Aaron Pryor returned from a six-month layoff and retained his International Boxing Federation junior welterweight title with a unanimous decision over Nicky Furlano in a 15-round bout Friday night.

Pryor, who improved his record 35-0, was awarded the fight on all three judges's cards, 146-139, 146-138, 148-140. Furlano's record slipped 39-7-1.

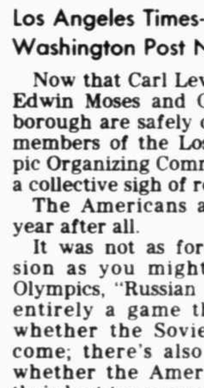

Furlano, a Canadian, was knocked down in the first round but recovered to go the distance in Pryor's first fight since announcing his retirement after defeating Alexis Arguello six months ago.

Risky thing, this qualifying

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

Now that Carl Lewis, Greg Foster, Edwin Moses and Chandra Cheeseborough are safely on the team, the members of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee can heave a collective sigh of relief.

The Americans are coming this year after all.

It was not as foregone a conclusion as you might think. In the Olympics, "Russian Roulette" is not entirely a game that determines whether the Soviet athletes will come; there's also the matter of whether the Americans will send their best team or only an unreasonable facsimile.

You see, we are the only country that has a sudden-death overtime to determine positions on the American Olympic team.

It's great theater. Suffocating suspense. But it is a deadly exercise in which our Olympic team holds a loaded gun to its head every June of an Olympic year, pulls the trigger and hopes the chamber is empty.

IN SOME ways, it's like holding a 15-round championship fight, then calling the contestants together and telling them, "OK, we throw out everything that's occurred up to now. Even though one of you guys has only won two rounds and has a cut eye, broken jaw and been knocked down three times, if he wins this round he gets the title. Clear?"

Consider, if you will, Edwin Moses coming up to the starting blocks in the Olympic trials with 99 consecutive hurdle-race wins. One unseen pebble in the track, one loose screw in the starting blocks, one unevenly set hurdle, maybe even a bump from a falling competitor, and the 1984 Olympic 400-meter hurdles is a claiming race for non-winners of two races, lifetime.

Supposing Moses had simply had a bad artichoke for lunch that day? Suppose his cab had had a traffic accident that swelled Moses' ankle, made him dizzy, nauseated, concussed?

Such things happen. In 1964, Bob Hayes was not only the world's fastest human but maybe history's. But he had a leg injury and was unable to compete in the Olympic trials at Randall's Island that summer. Under the rules, he was off the team. Fortunately for him and for history – since he was able to run a relay leg of 8.6 at the Games that year – the Tokyo Olympics were held in October to avoid the monsoon season and refresher trials were held in the fall. A healthy Hayes belatedly made the team.

IN 1976, America's Steve Williams had broken the world record for 100 meters five times. But he had to walk off the track, injured, in the quarterfinal heat. The 100-meter dash at Montreal that year marked only the second time in history there was no American in the first three. Our qualifiers were teen-agers Harvey Glance and Johnny Jones. "I could tell by their eyes they were already defeated," the winner, Trinidad's Hasely Crawford, later told the press.

In 1956, our world-record sprinter, Dave Sime, pulled up lame before the trials. He was healthy again by the Games, held in Melbourne that year, but had to settle for a silver in the 1960 Olympics, when he was past his prime.

One of the saddest sights ever seen in the L.A. Coliseum occurred the night of the 400-meter hurdle trials in 1956 when Aubrey Lewis, the fine Notre Dame hurdler and football player, tripped and fell midway through the final and lay weeping in the grass while the eventual winner, Glenn Davis, was being carried around the track on the shoulders of Ohio State rooters.

THE OLYMPIC trials may be wildly exciting for you and me. For the organizing committee they're like a tiptoe through a haunted house. Or being hanged by your heels from a 44th-floor window by a guy who keeps giggling crazily and looks like Richard Widmark.

An agreement was reached Thursday for the sale of the American League team, subject to approval by major league baseball owners. Purchase price is about $16.5 million, according to a joint announcement Thursday night by LeFevre, who is a Cleveland native; Patrick O'Neill, chairman of the board of the American League team, and J. Andrew Kundtz, executor of the estate of F.J. "Steve" O'Neill...

Sims to donates scholarship to UT

AUSTIN (AP) — Kenneth Sims, probably the best-known University of Texas football alumnus since Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell, followed Campbell's lead Friday by announcing an athletic scholarship fund for his alma mater.

Several years after winning the Heisman in 1977 and joining the Houston Oilers, Campbell established a scholarship fund for UT men's athletics.

Sims' $100,000 endowment is strictly for UT's women athletes.

Sims, the Lombardi Award winner as the top college defensive lineman in 1981 and the New England Patriots' No. 1 draft choice in 1982, said:

"For some small reason, I felt I owed this institution a small bit. I came from a place where there was no sunshine (Groesbeck, Texas) to a place where it seemed like the sun never stopped shining."

UT women's athletic director Donna Lopiano called Sims' gift "the most unique endowment of its kind in the nation for women's athletics."

Detroit strikes early for victory

American League

Tigers 7, Brewers 3

DETROIT — Larry Herndon singled home two runs as Detroit scored five runs in the first inning on the way to a 7-3 win over Milwaukee.

The victory, before 48,497 — the largest since Opening Day at Tiger Stadium — snapped Milwaukee's three-game win streak.

The Tigers sent 11 batters to the plate. Rusty Kuntz walked, Alan Trammell singled and Kuntz cored on Barbaro Garbey's single. Chet Lemon walked to load the bases, setting up Herndon's hit, which chased Bob McClure, 1-3. Darrell Evans greeted reliever Jack Lazorko with an RBI single and Tom Brookens added a run-scoring single.

Milwaukee made it 5-2 in the third when Dion James singled and rode home on Jim Gantner's home run, his second. Ben Oglivie added a solo home run in the sixth, his fourth of the year.

Kirk Gibson doubled in two Detroit runs in the eighth off reliever Tom Tellmann.

Dave Rozema, 4-0, earned the victory in his longest outing of the season.

BALTIMORE — Mike Flanagan and Tippy Martinez combined on a six-hitter and Rick Dempsey drove in two runs as the Baltimore Orioles over the New York Yankees 5-4.

Flanagan, 7-5, gave up four hits in seven innings. Martinez picked up his 10th save.

The Orioles, who scored two runs in the second on Dempsey's groundout and a wild pitch by Dennis Rasmussen, 1-3, scored twice in the fourth to take a 4-3 lead.

Ken Singleton, who doubled for his 1,999th career hit in the second, walked to open the fourth. Singleton took third on Dauer's single and scored on Rick Dempsey's squeeze bunt. Floyd Rayford then delivered a two-out, RBI single.

Eddie Murray singled home his American League-leading 61st run in the seventh to make it 5-3.

White Sox 8, Twins 6

MINNEAPOLIS — Harold Baines belted a two-run homer in the ninth inning to rally the Chicago White Sox past the Minnesota Twins 8-6.

Baines's 11th home run gave the White Sox a 7-6 lead. The 458-foot homer, off former Midland Cub Ron Davis, 3-5, followed a leadoff single by former Midland Cub Scott Fletcher. Marc Hill's squeeze bunt with the bases loaded accounted for an insurance run later in the inning.

Dan Spillner, acquired a day earlier from Cleveland for a player to be named later, pitched 5 1-3 scoreless innings of relief to win his first game in six decisions. White Sox starter Floyd Bannister was knocked out during Minnesota's four-run fourth inning and then ejected by plate umpire Larry Barnett for arguing while Spillner was warming up.

Greg Walker's fourth hit of the game, a two-run homer, his seventh, pulled the White Sox within 6-5 in the seventh inning.

Rangers 4, A's 0

OAKLAND (AP) — Rookie left-hander Mike Mason pitched eight strong innings before getting relief help from Dave Tobik in the ninth Friday night as the Texas Rangers blanked the Oakland A's 4-0.

Texas' Larry Parrish, who had driven in runs in 11 straight games, failed to collect an RBI. In the first inning, Mickey Rivers doubled and scored on a single by Pete O'Brien. Parrish followed with a double, but O'Brien was thrown out at the plate on a relay from center fielder Dwayne Murphy to shortstop Tony Phillips to catcher Jim Essian.

Parrish got up three more times and did not drive in a run. His streak of 11 straight games with an RBI was two short of the American League record, set by Taft Wright of Chicago in 1941. Oscar Grimes of the Chicago Cubs set the major league record of 17 in 1922.

Mason, 5-4, took a three-hitter into the ninth, but left after allowing leadoff singles to Murphy and Joe Morgan. Tobik got the final three outs for his fifth save.

Mason struck out five and walked one. Steve McCatty, 4-6, took the loss.

Parrish scored in the first inning when third baseman Carney Lansford threw away Gary Ward's grounder.

Ward led off the fourth with a single and scored on consecutive singles by Donnie Scott and Billy Sample.

Rinker's record pace builds eight-shot lead

Boston Five Classic

DANVERS, Mass. (AP) — Laurie Rinker crushed the course and the competition for the second consecutive day Friday with a 4-under-par 68 to grab a huge eight-stroke lead and set a two-round record in the LPGA's Boston Five Classic.

Coupled with her opening day 65, one stroke better than the previous single-round mark for the $225,000 golf tournament, the 21-year-old Floridian reached the halfway point at 11-under-par 133.

The previous 36-hole record of 136 was set last year by Patti Rizzo, the eventual winner.

Tied for second at 3-under-par 141 were Lynn Stroney, Jackie Bertsch and Kathy Young. Stroney and Bertsch each shot 73, one over par on the 6,008-yard Radisson Ferncroft course. They started the day tied for second at 4 under par, three strokes off the pace, and remained in the runnerup spot after 36 holes.

Young, who shot par 72 Thursday, birdied the last three holes for a second-day 69 that gave her a share of second place.

Two strokes further behind at 143 were Atsuko Hikage, Kathy Whitworth and Marta Figueras-Dotti, who all shot 71, and Jo Ann Washam, with a second-round 73. Pia Nilsson, who shot 72, was alone at even par 144.

Kathy Dougherty who was in fourth place after the first round at 3 under par, ballooned to 4-over-par 76 and was at 145.

Charlotte Montgomery set a tournament record with a 5-under-par 30 on the front nine but was 1 over par for the tournament after shooting 69.

Having left the field far behind, Rinker, the only golfer with two subpar rounds, said she's reduced the opposition to just two things — herself and the course.

January grabs senior lead

CLEVELAND (AP) — Don January shot a 69 Friday and took the lead after two rounds in the Senior Tournament Players Championship at Canterbury Golf Club.

January's 5-under-par 139 total on the par-72, 6,615-yard course put him one shot ahead of Arnold Palmer, who stormed into second place at the midway point of the tournament. Palmer shot a 68 Friday.

The $250,000 tournament is the 10th of 26 Professional Golfers Association senior events this season.

PGA members must be at least 50 years old to compete.

January, 54, sank five birdie putts before he made his only bogeys of the day on the final two holes. January, who has won 25 tournaments in his long career, was the leading money winner on the 1983 senior tour and also leads this year, with $185,485 earned thus far.

Palmer, also 54, dropped in six birdie putts on the first 13 holes, the type of rally which has helped him capture 67 tournament championships. He then had bogeys on the 14th and 17th holes.

Dan Sikes played the last 12 holes of the second round in 4-under to move into contention at 141, tied with Peter Thomson, one of three first-round leaders.

Bob Toski trailed January by three strokes at 142.

The two other first-round leaders, Rod Funseth and Bob Goalby, each struggled Friday. Funseth shot a 75 for a 143 total, while Goalby had a 76, leaving him among a large group at even par.

Defending champion Miller Barber, Jim Ferree and Charles Sifford all joined Funseth at 143.

Valentine strings 7 birds to take lead

Atlanta Classic

ATLANTA (AP) — Tommy Valentine, playing in his hometown, rode a string of seven consecutive birdies — one off the all-time PGA Tour record — to a 63 and a two-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the $400,000 Georgia-Pacific Atlanta Classic.

"I kind of got on a roll," understated the 34-year-old Valentine, whose career-best finish was a playoff loss to Tom Watson in this event three years ago.

"I'm finding my game after a year's absence," said Valentine, whose lack of performance last season cost him his tour card. He was forced to return to the Qualifying School last fall to regain his playing rights.

"My swing still isn't 100 percent, but I can kind of see the light at the end of the tunnel.

"I just hope this tournament ends like it did three years ago. Particularly since Tom Watson is home in Kansas City."

VALENTINE REACHED the tournament's halfway point with a 133 total, 11 shots under par for two trips over the hilly, 7,018-yard Atlanta Country Club course.

Defending champion Calvin Peete held second at 135. He had a 69 despite an errant drive into the water that produced a double bogey on the 15th.

The group at 136 included Tom Kite, Bobby Wadkins, Don Pooley and Mark Brooks. Wadkins finished birdie-birdie for a 66. Kite and Brooks each had a 67 and Pooley added another 68.

First-round leader Mike Donald slipped to a 73 and was at 137. Also at that figure were Joe Inman, Rex Caldwell and Canadian Dave Barr. Barr had a 67 in the hot, cloudy weather, Pooley 68 and Caldwell 69.

Masters titleholder Ben Crenshaw was 69-139. Newly crowned U.S. Open champ Fuzzy Zoeller had a 73 and was 10 back at 143.

VALENTINE, TRAILED by a gallery of family and friends, dropped a 35-foot putt on the third hole, made par on the next and then started his string of seven consecutive birdies with a 12-foot putt on the fifth.

He hit a 5-iron to within eight feet of the flag on the sixth, made the putt and then scored from about 10-12 feet on the next two holes.

On the difficult, uphill ninth, Valentine put his approach almost 50 feet from the flag, but ran in the putt to extend the birdie string to five consecutive holes and complete the front nine in 30.

A wedge to about eight feet on the 10th provided another birdie on the 10th. On the par-5 11th, he hit a 5-wood second shot into the fringe and 2-putted for his seventh in a row, one short of the record Bob Goalby set in the St. Petersburg Open in 1961.

His chance of matching that old mark disappeared when he drove into the rough on the 12th, chopped it out, pitched to the green and 2-putted for bogey.

He got the shot back with a 12-footer on the 14th, then completed the 63 with another 2-putt birdie-4 on the 18th.

Dodgers put Rick Monday on waivers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers have placed veteran outfielder Rick Monday, who has spent the past eight seasons with the club, on waivers, the National League club announced Friday.

Monday, 38, is a 17-year major league veteran who brought a .264 career batting average into this season.

Used mostly as a pinch-hitter in recent years, Monday was hitting .191 with one homer and seven runs batted in in 31 games for Los Angeles this season.

Monday was involved in two memorable occasions, once when he was with Chicago when the Cubs were playing in Dodger Stadium in 1976. Monday, playing in the outfield, stopped two protesters who had sneaked onto the field and were attempting to burn an American Flag.

In 1981, after joining the Dodgers, Monday hit a dramatic homer that lifted Los Angeles over the Montreal Expos in the fifth and deciding game of the National League Championship Series.

Monday, acquired by the Dodgers from the Cubs in 1977, had 240 homers and 768 RBI coming into the 1984 campaign.

The Dodgers also announced Friday that they have called up outfielder-first baseman Franklin Stubbs from their Albuquerque, N.M., farm club.

Steve Braun finds niche in baseball as pinch hitter

By CHARLES COOPER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — At 31, Steve Braun thought his career was over. Traded to Kansas City after two mediocre seasons, he was trying to win an outfield spot on a pair of legs that were 10 years too old.

But Braun found a niche — he learned to pinch-hit.

Braun is one of a group of players — aging stars and journeymen alike — who have made or extended careers by pinch-hitting. Their common link — they can hit in clutch situations.

A starter with Seattle and Minnesota, Braun spent most games on the bench after joining the Royals in 1978.

"I knew my limitations and that helped me adjust," Braun said. "I didn't have enough speed to play the field every day and I understood that."

WITH AID from batting coach Charlie Lau, Braun developed into the team's top pinch-hitter. Since signing with the Cardinals in 1981 as a free agent, he has been St. Louis' most dependable left-handed pinch-hitter, leading the club with 15 pinch-hits last year.

"As a pinch-hitter, you can't expect to get a hit every time at bat, but if you make good contact, they'll fall in more often than not," he said.

Sitting in the dugout for long stretches, a player can lose his timing. But Braun stays crisp with a tri-weekly diet of callisthenics and extra batting practice.

"It helps you mentally," he said. "And when you feel good, you play good."

Even more crucial, he added, is the adjustment to not playing every day.

"If the manager doesn't put you in the lineup, you got to figure that there's a pretty good reason. We all have our pride, but you've got to face reality."

Jose Morales of the Los Angeles Dodgers is another player who rescued his career by pinch-hitting.

"In this job you can't afford to miss," said Morales, third on the all-time pinch-hitting list behind Smokey Burgess and Manny Mota. "That's what they're paying you for."

MORALES, WHO set a major league record with 25 pinch-hits in 1976, has led the National League four times in pinch-hits since breaking in as a seldom-used first baseman-catcher with the Montreal Expos in 1973.

"For me a slump is every time I don't get on base," he said. "Look, if I don't get a hit, that's my incentive to go out there the next time and bang one. I say to myself, 'Tough luck, Jose', and try to do better the next time." Morales equated his task with that of a relief pitcher.

"The only difference between us is that he comes in to close the line, and I go in there to open it up," he said. "We have pride in what we do."

Morales, who has not started a game since August 1977, said the lack of playing time forces him to concentrate on the game at a much higher level.

"There aren't many players that take baseball home with them, but I do," the 12-year veteran said. "Even the night before, I'll be thinking about what the pitcher is probably going to throw in different situations. You have to do a lot of mental preparation. That's the key. I always have my mind on the game."

Not all pinch-hitters cheerfully accept their roles.

When he signed with the New York Mets as a free agent in 1981, Rusty Staub, third among active players in total base hits, was a player without a position. The beefy 230-pound right fielder no longer had enough speed or a strong enough throwing arm to play the outfield. He accepted the inevitable — the transition to pinch hitter.

Flaming Viking impressive

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — Flaming Viking, a palomino gelding, scored an impressive victory Friday in the final day of elimination trials for the upcoming Rainbow Futurity for 2-year-old quarter horses.

It took three days of trials to reduce the field of contenders for the futurity field. The first and second place horses in each of the elimination trials advances to the time trials on July 5. The 10-horse field for the Rainbow Futurity finals will be determined in the time trials.

Flaming Viking, who finished sixth earlier this month in the $605,384 Kansas Futurity, led from start to finish in his trial race Friday.

All 14 races Friday were trials for the Rainbow, which this year will carry a purse of $750,000. The 400-yard race will be run on July 22 at Ruidoso Downs and comprises one of the three major races for 2-year-olds at the southern New Mexico track. The other two are the Kansas Futurity and the $2.5 million All-American Futurity that is run annually on Labor Day.

Little goes unnoticed on star-studded Expos

MONTREAL (AP) — Bryan Little's name is not on the All-Star ballot. As a rookie last season, his .260 average with the Montreal Expos went unnoticed by many.

He plays second base on a team loaded with hitters — looming Andre Dawson, chatty Pete Rose, muscular Tim Raines and energetic Gary Carter, all exciting players at the plate.

Yet the quiet and reserved Little, whose blue-and-white director's chair in the Expo clubhouse says "Twig" on the back, can do something with the bat that no one else on his team, or even his sport, can do as well.

He can bunt.

Who says he is best?

His fellow players in the majors said so, in a New York Times poll taken last year. The major-league managers said so, in a Toronto Star poll taken at the same time.

The statistics bare them out.

Of Little's first 100 hits in the majors, 27 were bunt singles, including a team-record 24 last year. Through the first two months of this season, Little had 11 bunt hits, and he added three more in the first half of June.

"The guy is awesome," said Atlanta third baseman Ken Oberkfell. "I enjoy seeing him bunt. He's amazing."

Joaquin Andujar, the hot-tempered pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, was more direct in late April. In the first inning, Little's perfectly placed bunt made Andujar fall off the mound trying to field it; the next time up, Andujar's first pitch sent the 160-pound Little sprawling.

How many guys have ever gotten knocked down for a bunt?

A couple of pitches after the brushback, Little bunted again, but was thrown out by Andujar.

Little, a 24-year-old Texan, is matter-of-fact about the skill that has the rest of the league raving and has earned him a two-page feature in the bilingual Expo game program.

He also has some ideas on why good bunters have seemingly disappeared from the major leagues.

"A lot of players are scared to do it. I mean they think they're wasting an at-bat," he said. "They just have to release that fear, that feeling that they're losing a swing, the thought that, 'I shouldn't have bunted.'"

Slugger Harmon Killebrew, recently elected to the Hall of Fame, went through his entire career without a single sacrifice bunt. He says he was never asked and never had to bunt; for Little, who often bats second behind Rose or Raines, it's different.

"It's a necessity to my game. I'm not going to hit the ball out of the park," said Little, a switch-hitter with one lifetime home run, off San Diego's Ed Whitson last year.

"I feel I should try it once a game. That doesn't mean I'll actually bunt each game, but I should at least think about doing it once a game."

Little, with four sacrifices through mid-June, worked on bunting while growing up with his brother, Grady, now manager of Baltimore's Class AA team in Charlotte, N.C.

Little started the season batting over .300, often slapping hits past drawn-in infielders. His average now ranges between .260 and .270.

"I play him as close as I can and still feel safe," New York Mets third baseman Hubie Brooks said. "It's stuck in my brain what he can do. He can bunt any time, even with two strikes, and when he does, the ball just stops."

Little said keeping his top hand loose on the bat when he bunts is the key to "deadening" the ball, especially on slick aritificial turf.

Oberkfell said he plays Little as close as anyone, halfway between the bag and pitcher's mound.

"I always play him like it's a sacrifice situation," Oberkfell said, "even when there's no one on base."

Little, a left-hander who prefers to drag bunts into the triangle between the pitcher, first baseman and second baseman, said he doesn't worry about the opposition.

"I'm not scared to bunt on anyone," he said. "I shouldn't even worry about the third baseman. Some players, like Mike Schmidt and Hubie Brooks, can make the play better than others."

"Some pitchers don't like it. It annoys them. But I'm not going to do it when I'm not supposed to, like when we're way ahead late in a game."

Also of little concern to Little is the surface he's bunting on, whether it's the new AstroTurf at Montreal's Olympic Stadium, the artificial turf at Veterans Stadium in Philadelphia, where balls bunted close to the lines tend to roll foul, or the grass-and-dirt fields in half the National League ballparks.

"It's not bad here," he said of the turf in Montreal, where players complained about gaping seams and "hard spots" before a new surface was put in before the season. "The ball stays pretty true."

When Ted Sizemore was batting second behind Lou Brock for the Cardinals in the 1970s and wanted to bunt, he often used a bat made of a softer piece of wood. "If I got two strikes, I'd pretend it was chipped and go back and get another," laughs Sizemore, now working for Rawlings in St. Louis.

Little uses no special lumber. "I could probably bunt with a fungo bat," he said with a smile.

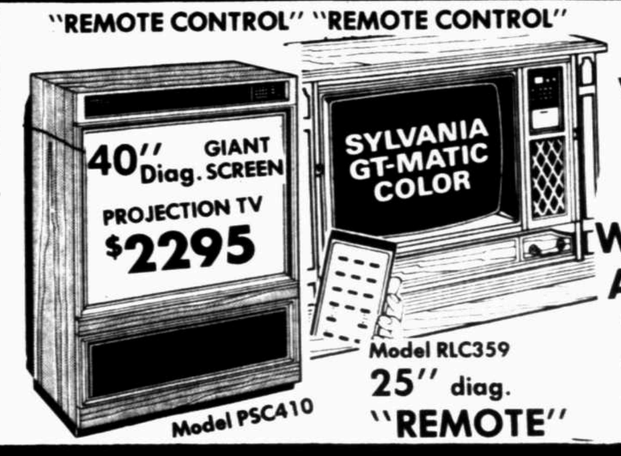

Nor does Little spend an overwhelming amount of time working on his craft. The first time up in batting practice, as is the tradition for all players throughout the majors, he bunts twice, tries to hit a hit-and-run single to right, and then swings away.

"I just take my two in the cage," he said. "I don't really work on it that much. I don't want to take up someone else's swings."

Once in a while, though, a few of his teammates will gather around to watch.

NT greens feel drought's effect

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN

DALLAS — Lee Trevino used to say he loved golf so much he'd putt on a gravel road.

The way things have gone for North Texas golf courses since December's vegetation-killing freeze, a gravel road might look pretty good.

Greens are "browns" as in "I hit the fourth brown today with a driver and a wedge." Or, "I one-putted four browns and three-putted two browns."

A lot of them also are like putting on the top of a corrugated roof.

DAY AFTER day of sub-freezing weather killed bermuda like it has never been hurt before.

"It's a shame," said Jerry Andrews, head professional at Firewheel Golf Course in Garland. "But there's nothing anyone can do. There's just been too much stress on the bermuda."

Some extreme measures are being taken.

In the rose country of Tyler, the country club has had to go on temporaries. To even things out, the pro has subbed coffee cans for regular cups.

Andrews, for one, is experimenting with bent grass, which normally thrives only in the north and east.

"We had to do something," Andrews said. "This freeze was the worst ever. It was so bad we lost bermuda grass on our tees."

HE FIGURES there already are 250 temporary greens in Dallas alone.

Golfers hate temporary greens. They are shaved areas of fairway and have the consistency of shredded wheat. They are like putting on the back of large dog with the mange.

At Sherrill Park in Richardson, a suburb north of Dallas, pro Buster Creagh is blessed with 36 scenic holes. However, he has had to close one of his 18 holes while bermuda was sprigged, and put temporary greens on another.

"The freeze just killed us," he said. "But just about everybody else in the same boat. It's the worst freeze I ever saw."

Now back to the dice roll by Andrews.

"When you've had a winter where there were 298 consecutive hours below freezing, then you have to try something," said Andrews, whose munnicipal course opened last fall.

"Understand, we lost all of our bermuda," Andrews said. "We knew that three months ago."

So Andrews and his assistants got on the telephone.

"We placed 22 long distance calls all over the U.S. and decided to overseed our greens with Pen-Eagle Bent," Andrews said. "We bought seed out of salesman's trucks — anywhere we could get it."

BENT GRASS has trouble handling the high 90- and 100-degree temperatures of a Texas July and August.

However, Andrews said this particular bent grass is a little hardier than most.

PCL fines umps for bar advertising

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Three Pacific Coast League umpires will be fined for wearing shirts advertising a Waikiki bar during last Saturday's Hawaii-Albuquerque game in Honolulu, PCL president William S. Cutler Sr. says.

Another league umpire will be fined in an unrelated incident for allowing an extra person, with an apparent connection with the same bar, to umpire a May 12 game in Honolulu between the Islanders and Tacoma, Cutler said Thursday.

Cutler said he heard about Saturday's incident involving umpires Bill Speck, Larry Poncino and Chuck Meriwether while listening to the game on radio.

The three umps changed into their regular uniforms mid-way through the game after receiving a long distance telephone call from Cutler.

Cutler said Bill Hohn, the umpire crew chief for the May 12 game, should not have allowed a fifth person, who was not qualified, to officiate the game.

Even if the person was qualified, Cutler said Hohn would have needed permission to use an extra umpire.

The extra ump was listed as "Earle Straus" in the official scorebook.

An Earle Straus works at the same Waikiki bar that was advertised on the shirts worn by the umps in last Saturday's game.

NFL reinstates Schlichter

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterback Art Schlichter of the Indianapolis Colts, suspended last year after admitting to running up a $389,000 in gambling debts, was reinstated today by National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

An NFL spokesman said Schlichter, who had undergone extensive rehabilitation, has been reinstated to the active roster of the Colts, who moved to Indianapolis from Baltimore following the 1983 season.

In a statement released by the league, Rozelle said in part:

"We met twice recently with Art Schlichter and reviewed all the factors in his case. We also have reviewed the medical views of physicians qualified in the care of compulsive gambling.

Goodness knows, they were better

TOGETHER

Mae West was a singular sensation everywhere she went. From her start in vaudeville to such classics as "Diamond Lil" and "She Done Him Wrong," Mae was a master of innuendo. Another vaudevillian, W. C. Fields, wrote the book when it came to sarcastic remarks and practical jokes. Dour-faced and unpredictible, his genius was evident in such films as "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man" and "The Bank Dick". But the two were at their best when they appeared together in "My Little Chickadee". Of all the pictures West and Fields made, the one they collaborated on is the most remembered and requested. As Mae would have said, "Goodness, my dear, had nothing to do with it!"

Teamwork can work for cities, too. Cities like ours. Think about it, MIDLAND/ODESSA.

Portable heart driver offers freedom to potential patients

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Hanging from a shoulder strap, the Heimes portable heart driver looks like a large purse. But for the second recipient of the Utah artificial heart, it will offer freedom the late Barney Clark could only have dreamed about.

Clark, who made medical history as the first human to receive the permanent plastic Jarvik-7 heart on Dec. 2, 1982, spent the rest of his life tethered by two 6-foot-long air hoses to an unwieldy 375-pound cart packed with an air compressor and other apparatus.

An avid golfer before degenerative heart disease left him bedridden, Clark's movement was limited by the range of the bulky drive unit and his own frail health. The 62-year-old retired Seattle-area dentist died of multiple organ failure March 23, 1983, at the University of Utah Medical Center.

The 10-pound, battery-powered Heimes driver is designed to free the next recipient of the artificial heart from Clark's restraints, said Dr. Peter Heimes, the West German inventor of the device.

"Quality of life — it is a big issue," Heimes said. "The patient should be the least aware as possible that he has an artificial heart. This, in my opinion, is a very important psychological thing."

While praising Heimes' invention as a breakthrough, Dr. William DeVries, the only surgeon authorized to implant the artificial heart, said earlier this week the first task doctors face is to "prove it is safe and effective.

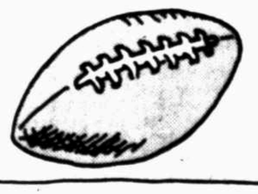

"We're interested in quality of life, but...it is not necessary to have the patient on the Heimes drive system walking around and playing golf," DeVries said. "All of the time we're going to be experimenting to show (it) is as effective as the big system."

Yes, that's me! I looked like that... dressed like that... and had fun!

That is the part the youngsters simply do not grasp. We weren't odd characters. We were living life to the hilt. And after awhile we were not so young—but we still lived to the hilt as life unfolded before us.

Everything in life didn't change like the bathing suit. Truths we learned, we passed on to our children and they are teaching them to theirs. Principles we believed in, hopes we cherished—they still motivate Christian men and women all over the world. They are preached every Sabbath, practiced every day.

We had something. It is vital that you gain it, too. Now it's your turn to serve!

Witnesses gather at Chap Center

Approximately 5,000 Witnesses met in assembly Friday at Chaparral Center for the second day of a four-day "Kingdom Increase" District Convention of Jehovah's Witnesses.

Frank Garig delivered the Key-note Address speaking on "Kingdom Fruitage Increasing in All the World." As he talked about the centennial of the religious movement, which was established in Pittsburgh, Penn., in 1884, Garig reviewed the growth of Jehovah's Witnesses in recent decades and also looked to the future.

He warned the audience that the present world faces destruction at the hands of God and that He will soon act to execute this judgment.

Speaking of the Witnesses, Garig said they respond to a call from Jesus in Luke 21:25,28: "As these things start to occur, raise yourself erect and lift your heads up, because your deliverance is getting near."

Garig stressed that organized religion shares part of the blame for the present world situation.

"Christiandom's religion has shown itself to be part and parcel of the world empire of false religion, Babylon the Great — far, far removed from the light of truth. Worldly religion can supply no answer to the problems of this nuclear age, nor can it dispel the heavy gloom — the sickening hopelessness — that has settled down upon the people of the nations."

Reviewing the Witnesses' history, Garig said the number of Jehovah's Witnesses increased during World War II from 71,509 to 141,606. Today, there are 2,650,000 active in the Witnesses' ministerial, evangelizing work in 205 lands established under 95 branch offices.

Citing examples of the growth, Garig pointed to Italy where, during Mussolini's regime, there were only 120 Jehovah's Witnesses. Current statistics indicate, Garig said, that Jehovah's Witnesses is the second largest religious organization in Italy and 1984 figures show 109,351 active representatives.

Wilshire Park Baptist Church's new worship center is at 801 S. Bentwood St.

Church to dedicate new building

Wilshire Park Baptist Church, 801 S. Bentwood St., will celebrate the completion of its new worship center at 11 a.m. Sunday.

The dedication service will be followed by a fellowship dinner. It will feature music provided by the six choirs in the church, led by Curt Hamlin, minister of music. The message will be brought by the Rev. Chris Osborne.

Constructed by Cooper Construction of Odessa, the $875,000 worship center, which seats 750, was designed by Peters & Fields, Inc. of Odessa. Primary funding is through a three-year "Together We Build" program.

Wilshire Park began in 1959 as a mission of Bellview Baptist Church. Former pastors include the Rev. Travis LaDuke, the Rev. Luther Mann, the Rev. Gene Welch, the Rev. Jesse Leonard and the Rev. John Riggs.

Osborne, who was called as pastor in 1981, says, "We invite all former members to celebrate with us the fulfillment of their 25-year dream. The Lord continues to bless our people with vision, zeal and a desire to minister to our city."

Unusual Paris 'church' bridges world of religion, modern art

RELIGION

PARIS (AP) — Bulldozer treads on a bed of gravel and dried roses climb the steps of the altar. An ancient moped painted in gold — wheels filled with shards of pottery — stands to one side.

One of the most exciting collections of contemporary art by emergent, innovative artists in this city is not in a gallery, a museum or even a private home. It is in a church.

Located in the Latin Quarter on the Left Bank of the Seine, the dilapidated 19th-century church, unused for six years, belongs to the neighboring Curie Research Institute.

The institute, which plans to build a hospital on the site, is awaiting a government construction permit and has invited artists to set up studios and exhibitions in the former church.

"We decided to make it a living, useful place," said Dr. Robert Calle, director of the Curie Institute.

Calle, who said the church had been deconsecrated and was "no longer a holy place," contacted a handful of artists in 1982. The first show took place in January 1983.

Now on the occasion of the sixth exhibition, 54 artists or groups of artists from around the world are participating in the unusual effort.

"It's what they call in New York an 'alternative space,'" said Calle.

About 10,000 visitors have attended the free exhibition called "To Pierre and Marie: An Exhibition in Development," an acknowledgment to the founders of the institute.

Unless a visitor knows the way, the little church is difficult to find. Set well back from the street, it is concealed behind a tall wooden barrier covered with posters. The only indications that something is out of the ordinary are the flourescent bands of paint that decorate the former church's entrance and the unsual amount of grafitti in the immediate vicinty.

Though there is a set number of participants for each "presentation," which lasts a few months, the works are constantly changing. Artists are encouraged to modify their entries after an official opening so each weekend will be different.

This flexibility contributes to the notion of the church as one massive, evolving work of of art, an amalgam of different styles, united by artists' consciousness of the alternative space.

Many of the artists play directly on this concept, emphasizing and expanding their environment rather than ignoring it, as is standard procedure for artists who exhibit in museums or galleries.

Sculptors or painters work directly on walls, arches, columns or even the altar, frequently using archelogical or biological motifs in what seems a celebration of decay.

The bulldozer treads are the work of Swiss artist Max Roth.

French artist Jean-Luc Vilmouth immortalized the moped. He also fashioned a hammer and set it into the altar's plaster base. It is a symbol of building up and tearing down, reminding visitors of the church's impending destruction.

It is works such as these that make the exhibition so unusual. The majority of the art displayed is tailored to the surroundings, giving the pieces a personalized, intimate air. They can not be reproduced.

"This is no ordinaary show," remarked Sarkis, an Armenian sculptor who uses only his last name.

Lutherans to introduce curriculum

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) — A new Sunday School curriculum, "Living Faith Series," will be introduced into congregations of the Lutheran Church in America this fall.

According to the church, the new curriculum places greater emphasis on the Bible and provides more detailed lesson plans.

It was recently introduced at St. Paul Lutheran Church here and has been presented at 239 other workshops in the United States.

"We believe this curriculum is educationally and theologically responsible," said the Rev. C. Richard Evenson, director of the Department for Parish Support. He led the Davenport workshop.

Mummies pulverized

Egyptian tombs were often rifled in the 16th and 17th centuries for mummies, which were then powdered and sold to apothecaries. The notion that they were medicinal probably arose because they were treated with "mumiya," a pitch with some antiseptic properties.

Nazarene pastor receives fellowship award

The Rev. Harold Quarles, pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene, has received the Great Commission Fellowship Award in recognition of outstanding achievement in membership growth, Sunday School attendance gain, and 100 percent budget payment. This award was received at the annual District Assembly of the church held recently in San Antonio.

Quarles came to First Church in 1977 and, since that time, the church has had a membership increase of 30.6 percent, Sunday morning worship average attendance increase of 110 percent, Sunday School average attendance increase of 109 percent and the total church finances have increased 175 percent.

Also during this time the church has added an associate pastor, the fellowship hall and sanctuary have been completely remodeled and an educational wing and additional parking lot added on the east side and the parking lots paved. The church is now in the process of landscaping the grounds.

The church will have its annual "Faith Promise Convention for Missions" at 10:45 a.m. Sunday. The Rev. Fred Fike of Lubbock is the special speaker.

religion in brief

Church member to talk on 'Alpha, Omega'

Guest speaker at the Permian Church of Religious Science Sunday will be a member of the congregation, Berny Young. He will speak on "Alpha, Omega: Inside Out."

Young and his wife, Kathi, have lived in Midland nearly two years. While attending Lubbock Christian College, he took part in several projects which focused on self-development and measuring achievement.

He has been speaking in church since he was 16 and his community church in Lovington, N.M., sponsored a program to allow youth and young adults to speak on Sundays. Service time is 11 a.m. at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave.

Worship services set

The American Episcopal Church of St Pauls, 801 Andrews Highway, has Holy Communion the first and third Sundays of each month at 10 a.m. The second and fourth Sunday's of each month the church has Morning Prayer at 10 a.m.

Rector of the church is the Rev. Kenneth Weaver.

Church to begin revival

Evangelist Juanita Sapp of Dallas will begin revival services at Faith Temple Church of God in Christ, 1605 N. Terrell St. at Jax St., at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

The revival will continue through Friday. Service time is 7:30 p.m.

The church's pastor, the Rev. W.C. Kenan, invites the public to attend.

Christian leaders to meet

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — More than 1,500 Christian leaders from about 100 denominations have been invited to an autumn meeting on pornography, obscenity and indecency.

"We are not bringing the group together to adopt our agenda or methodology but rather to consider the seriousness of the present situation and move ahead together in discussing concrete proposals," Jerry Kirk, chairman of the National Consultation on Pornography, said in a news release.

Four national "pro-decency" groups will be involved in the two-day event beginning Sept. 6. They are: Morality in Media, Citizens for Decency Through Law, National Christian Association and National Federation for Decency.

CWU to create center

NEW YORK (AP) — A group named Church Women United plans to create an ecumenical center at the third United Nation's World Conference for Women, being held in Nairobi, Kenya, in July 1985.

The facility, to be called Women of Faith Center, will be a gathering place where women of all faiths can worship together and share information and experiences.

The U.N. conference, which was preceded by similar meetings in Mexico City in 1975 and Copenhagen in 1980, will explore the progress achieved by women in the International Decade for Women, which ends next year.

Women to discuss roles

NEW YORK (AP) — United Church of Christ women from throughout the United States will meet next month in Milwaukee, Wis., to discuss the problems and responsibilities of women in church and in the secular world.

New pastor appointed to Asbury Methodist

The Rev. Douglas W. Gossett was appointed pastor of Asbury United Methodist Church and Garden City UMC by Bishop Louis Schowengerdt at the Northwest Texas Annual Conference of United Methodist Churches held in Abilene May 30 through June 2.

"We are happy to have this opportunity to serve with these people of Midland and Garden City, who have received us in a gracious way," Gossett said. His Sunday schedule includes driving to Garden City for a 9 a.m. worship service and then returning to Asbury UMC for an 11 a.m. service.

"We hope to provide the pastoral leadership and ministry for these two congregations so that they can fulfill their mission for Christ in these communities as United Methodist people in proper relationship with other congregations of Christ's holy church," said Gossett.

Both Gossett and his wife Betty were raised by farm families in Garza County. They graduated from high school at Post. They have two children, Warren, a public relations officer for the Fire Department of Austin; and Linda Gayle, who works in the personnel department of First State Bank, Abilene. Mrs. Gossett's mother, 92-year-old Lillie Cummings, lives with the couple.

The Gossett's married following World War II, after he returned from Army service in the Pacific. They moved to Abilene, where he studied at McMurry College, before moving to Dallas, where he studied at Perkins School of Theology, Southern Methodist University.

Gossett was admitted on trial in the Northwest Texas Conference in 1952 while still in seminary and ordained an Elder in 1952. He has served churches in this conference since then. His last church was Fairmont UMC at Abilene, where he served for 6½ years.

Gossett replaces the Rev. Neeley Landrum who moved to Paducah.

Actor shunned as Tarzan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Hugh Hudson was trying to find a lead for "Greystoke, The Legend of Tarzan, Lord of the Apes," a young British actor named Rupert Everett was among the candidates.

"It was a crazy scene, a bunch of actors jumping around like apes," Everett recalled. "Thank God I didn't get the part."

Strongly built at 6-feet-2, Everett might have looked good swinging through the jungle. But the casting as Tarzan might have proved a fatal detour for the career of one of England's most promising young actors.

American TV viewers saw him in the four-hour "Princess Daisy" as the wicked half-brother who raped the heroine and controlled her fortune.

"AN easy role to play and the one that drew the most attention," Everett commented. "Everyone else was so good, and he was so bad, the one nasty character in the film. All the others were like Jesus — they always thought before they said anything."

Everett, 24, has been touring a few U.S. cities on behalf of headier fare, "Another Country," a new release from Orion Classics.

When a movie is released by a classics division of a film company, you can guess that it's not meant for the mainstream. "Another Country" is not. But it is likely to draw thoughtful reviews and discriminating audiences.

"Another Country" was well received at the recent Cannes Film Festival and won an award for Peter Biziou's cinematography. Julian Mitchell wrote it first as a play, in which he tried to explain the puzzle of Guy Burgess and Donald Maclean, the Englishmen who spied for, and defected to, the Russians.

"IT HAD always been a mystery as to why men who had everything — education, position, looks, money, intelligence — would betray their country, and their class," said Everett. "Everyone theorized that they had turned while they were at Cambridge. Julian Mitchell thought that it must have happened before that, at public school."

Rupert Everett himself is the product of a public school, which means a private institution in England. It was a Catholic school, and he dropped out to seek training as an actor at London's venerable Central School of Speech and Drama.

"I was thrown out after two years," he recalled. "I guess I was a bit rebellious, but it seemed to me they weren't teaching the things that an actor needs to know.

"They are very smug about the theatrical tradition in England. There was one golden era with actors like Laurence Olivier and John Gielgud, then a revival with the plays of John Osborne and Harold Pinter. Now the standards have fallen to a miserable state. The two major companies are unbelievably bad, totally boring."

EVERETT apprenticed at the Glasgow Citizens' Theater, then was cast in the play version of "Another Country." Besides "Princess Daisy," he has appeared in "The Far Pavilions" for television and in such films as "Arthur the King," "The Real Life" and "Dance With a Stranger."

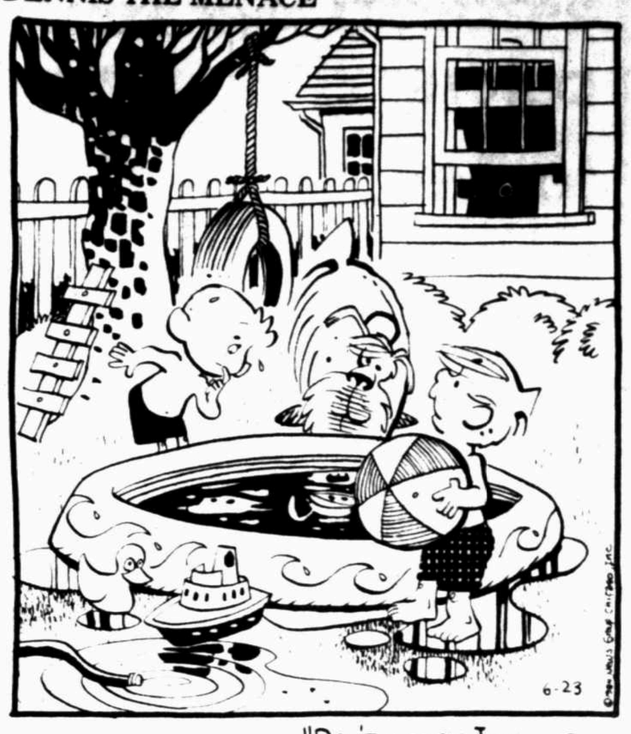

The actor would like to work half of each year in this country, and spend the rest of his time abroad. "The basic element of acting is to act," he said, "and that's why I try to keep working. I am amazed by American actors who do a picture every year and a half. That would kill me."

Posh hotel caters to pets

NEW YORK (AP) — The newest luxury hotel on Manhattan's trendy Upper East Side boasts spacious suites, limousine service and a doctor on call, and it's so exclusive it doesn't even accept people.

The Montrose Pet Hotel caters to the dogs and cats of New Yorkers who go away on occasion and can spend $17 a night for pet care.

"Instead of cramped cages," the pet palace features "spacious, private suites complete with beds and a continuous supply of fresh drinking water," according to a hotel brochure.

The hotel is the fourth in a national chain developed by Don Mensh of Potomac, Md. The first was built 13 years ago in Rockville, Md., and others followed in Fairfax, Va., and Marietta, Ga.

Recently, Leslie Liebman of Manhattan reluctantly checked in her dog Gingi.

"She hasn't been in a kennel in three years," Ms. Liebman admitted. "She usually stays with my folks, but they are going away too."

Did Ms. Liebman feel guilty?

"Sure, especially when she started barking, but everything looks very clean and nice."

Ms. Liebman left specific instructions for Gingi's care and the clerk dutifully noted the details: dispense half a pill twice a day; let her play with the rubber bone; let her sleep with her favorite sleeping companion, an old pair of pantyhose, and feed her canned food if she refuses dry food.

The Montrose also offers premium food, a pet pickup service, a grooming salon and cubbyhole mailboxes.

Mailboxes? Certainly, and it's not just children who send vacation postcards to their pets.

"You have to remember you are dealing with a member of one's family," explained Mensh, owner of a Jack Russell terrier.

The Montrose, on 95th Street between First and Second avenues, opened May 22 with accommodations for 134 dogs and 84 cats in separate wings. The price is about $17 and $15 a night, respectively. There are "family rates" for pets who can share a room.

By comparison, the ASPCA's Animalport at Kennedy Airport charges $12 a night for dogs and $8 for cats.

Five large sun rooms face the sidewalk so the cats can laze by the windows, climb on the "furniture" or sharpen their claws on scratching posts.

Mensh said what makes the Montrose a luxury pet hotel is the size of the kennels and the level of cleanliness.

Cool homes heat up love lives, researchers say

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Air conditioning has cooled homes but apparently heated up sex lives in the South, say two University of North Carolina researchers.

"We have looked at a lot of important things that might explain our findings that an increasing number of infants are being conceived in the hottest part of the summer," said geography professor John Florin. "Air conditioning is the only logical explanation we have been able to come up with that fits."

Florin's ongoing research comes 50 years after a study by Elsworth Huntington, a Yale University professor who studied the birth rate.

Huntington found that 20 percent fewer babies were conceived in the South during the hot summer months than during the rest of the year. Florin reports that air conditioning has apparently help reduce that figure to 15 percent.

Starr treated for eye injury

WINDSOR, England (AP) — Ringo Starr was treated at a hospital for an eye injury after the former Beatle reportedly tripped over one of his dogs, Press Association, the domestic news agency, said Friday.

The onetime Beatle's drummer also was told to see a specialist at the eye clinic in King Edward VII Hospital in this small town west of London, the news agency said. It quoted an unidentified hospital spokesman as the source of its report.

The 43-year-old entertainer was said to have been treated at the outpatients' eye clinic Thursday after the fall at his home in nearby Tittenhurst Park. Press Association said it was believed he had tripped over a dog while walking on the grounds of his home.

"I gather there was a bump and he had redness in the eye," the hospital spokesman was quoted as saying.

A nursing supervisor refused to give further details by telphone, saying those able to speak for the hospital were gone for the weekend.

Publicists for Starr could not be reached by telephone.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — John Fogerty, former lead singer for the 1960s rock group Creedence Clearwater Revival, may sue the Bahamian company that owned his recording contract even though the company does no business in California, a state appeals court has ruled.

In their suit, Fogerty and his wife, Martha, claim that their money was misappropriated by Argosy Venture of the Bahamas, which signed Fogerty as a solo singer after Creedence Clearwater disbanded in 1972. The group hit the Top 40 during the 1960s with such hits as "Bad Moon Rising" and "Proud Mary."

The suit claims the Fogertys lost large sums of money when the bank that managed Argosy and held Creedence Clearwater's trust accounts in a tax-shelter plan "disappeared" in 1977.

Argosy contended it could not be sued in California courts because it had no offices or business in the state. The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that, with certain exceptions, a person or company cannot be sued in a state with which it has no contact.

But the 1st District Court of Appeal on Thursday reversed a lower court ruling in Argosy's favor. The appeals court said Fogerty was making his records at studios in Berkeley, and Argosy "profited from the California exposure" enough to have to defend the suit here.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Britain's Duke and Duchess of Kent, in Maryland to celebrate the state's 350th birthday party, presented a special gift to Gov. Harry Hughes — but it wasn't for keeps.

The duke, a cousin of both Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Phillip, arrived at the statehouse Thursday to unveil a display case containing a 1734 copy of the the Charter of Maryland, which was granted to the second Lord Baltimore by King Charles I. The original was lost during the 18th century.

The copy, owned by the House of Lords, will be displayed in Maryland for one year before being returned to England.

The three-day royal visit, commemorating the arrival of the first settlers in Maryland from England in 1634, will end today with a trip to St. Mary's City, where the duke and duchess will join Gov. and Mrs. Hughes to view replicas of 17th-century English and American villages and attend a symphony concert and a fireworks display.

RED BANK, N.J. (AP) — The Monmouth Arts Center is being renamed the Count Basie Theater and Grammy award winner Ray Charles will be on hand next week for a memorial concert to honor the late bandleader, who was born here in 1905.

"At least in some small way, we will be able to carry his spirit for some time to come," Calvin Hart, president of the board of trustees of the Monmouth Arts Council, said in announcing the name change Thursday. The memorial concert will be held Wednesday.

Basie, who died in April at age 79, left Red Bank in 1934 to join the Bennie Moten Orchestra in Kansas City.

Indonesia pushes compulsory education

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Compulsory primary school education is now the law of the land in Indonesia, but in fact may not be achieved for years.

President Suharto has declared that all children from 7 to 12 years old should be in the classroom.

Education officials say that at the outset at least they are using persuasion rather than compulsion to get parents, especially the poor, to send their children to school. The officials note that many poor parents depend on the earnings of young children to supplement their own meager incomes. Public schools charge no tuition fees but pupils must wear uniforms and buy books and other supplies.

Education Ministry officials say 1,143,000 of 23 million children between the ages of 7 and 12 do not attend school.

There will be an estimated 26 million in the 7-12 age group at the end of the latest five-year development plan, by which time it is hoped the law will match reality. The plan, known as Repelita IV, began on April 1 and continues until 1989.

Suharto said in announcing the plan on May 2, National Education Day, "We are starting the compulsory education movement now because we must prepare ourselves to do the job to the best of our ability. Education requires an extremely high cost."

The budget for education in fiscal 1984 — the equivalent of $1.5 billion — is the largest sum set aside for development spending.

The government built 136,000 primary school buildings in the last 15 years but the project suffered several setbacks.

One newly built schoolhouse crumbled before any classes could be held. Another was built in the middle of a jungle far from any village in West Kalimantan province on Borneo.

Other schools were built in Irian Jaya, formerly West New Guinea, in villages already served by Roman Catholic or Protestant mission schools. The result was competition between the government and church schools for teachers and students. Catholic authorities decided to close their schools in the hinterland of Irian Jaya.

"It seems that some people in authority, especially in the provinces, are either ignorant or have been irresponsible about the future of our children," the Jakarta Post said in an editorial.

"With the present rate of mismanagement...we wonder if national compulsory education will ever reach its goal."

Saudis search for causes of eye diseases

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — A modern-day caravan is coursing across the desert, stopping in towns, villages and tent encampments in search of the causes of the eye diseases that afflict so many Saudi Arabians.

The caravan of trucks and camp trailers has brought doctors, nurses and modern examination equipment to remote corners of country for the first time.

Their mission is to examine some 18,000 Saudis and to determine the effects not only of the harsh climate of the desert — bright sunlight, dust-filled air and lack of water — but also the frequency of consanguineous marriages and the limited availability of medical care on Saudi eyesight.

Eye diseases and blindness are among the most serious health problems of this oil-rich kingdom.

As many as 90 percent of all Saudis may have some sort of eye disease, according to some initial surveys prepared by doctors and caravan researchers attached to the King Khaled Eye Specialist Hospital (KKESH) in Riyadh.

Trachoma, an easily transmitted disease that is estimated to have caused blindness in some 20 million people worldwide, is the most common disease in the kingdom, said Dr. Khaled F. Tabbara, director of research at KKESH.

Caravan researchers reported evidence of trachoma in as much as 96 percent of the population, vision impairment affecting one of every two people in some localities and blindness in 6 percent of the population of certain areas.

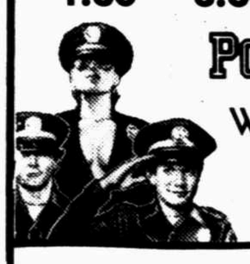

The incidence of blindness here, about 1.5 percent to 2 percent, is very high when compared with a rate of 0.5 percent or less in the United States, said Dr. Tabbara, who is on sabbatical leave from the Proctor Foundation for Research in Ophthalmology at the University of Califronia at San Francisco.

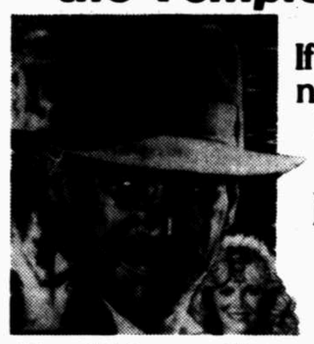

A study of 187 blind Saudi children found 106 were blind due to genetically determined diseases and that 56 percent of these children were the product of consanguineous marriages.

The study recommended a "comprehensive program of religious and governmental intervention to discourage such marriages."

Kinship marriage is the product of medieval tribal wars and alliances, a practice that persists through modern days.

Sri Lankan orphanage home to elephants

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Among the palmy groves and sandy beaches of this island of tea and spices is a unique orphanage — for baby elephants.

An hour's drive from the capital, the Pinnawala Orphanage has become the latest tourist attraction, stealing an enviable share of the limelight from Sri Lanka's traditional tourist spots.

Set up in 1975 to protect an estimated 2,000 elephants from extinction, the orphanage now shelters 16 babies.

Pinnawala officials and local villagers rescue abandoned babies after they fall into wells, gem pits or water holes and are left behind by their herds.

Researchers at Pinnawala, believed to be the only such orphanage in the world, also conduct scientific studies of elephant physiology and behavior.

Lyn De Alwis, orphanage director, said researchers are studying whether blood pictures change with years in capacity and the hormonal changes and as the animal reaches puberty.

They also are studying behavior patterns of elephants from different parts of the island.

De Alwis fondly tells of Matali, the matriarch of the Pinnawala herd, who feeds the babies regularly.

"She is the leader. And when we give away some of the babies to temples and so on, she raves and rants and becomes very difficult. Partings for her are very sad," he said.

Matali gets into strange moods in the mating season, he added.

"She insisted on disturbing proceedings when one of her companions was being mated. But when she realized that it was serious business, she left them alone."

The mating experiment stems from an effort to meet growing demands for baby elephants from temples, which use them in religious ceremonies.

The Sri Lankan Army's mascot, too, is an elephant. The light infantry looks out for suitable baby elephants because the serving mascot grows too large for parades.

But the government recently decided to go slow on giving away or selling elephants from the orphanage because officials want to keep the Pinnawala herd intact for studies.

The current population of the orphanage includes seven milk-feeding babies, four weaned ones, four of breeding age and one cow elephant.

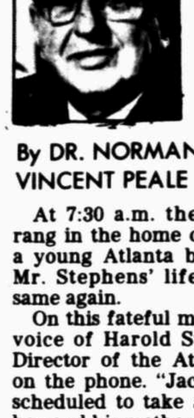

A 7-day-old baby recently was rescued from a gem pit in Hambantota, nearly 200 miles south of here. It was half-dead, badly bruised and starving when help reached him.

Massive doses of life-giving drugs and antibiotics followed with protein-rich dried milk until the baby came around. Now the veterinarians let nature look after the baby.

Conservationists, university experts and veterinarians place great value on the Pinnawala experiment.

"All they want to know about the behavioral patterns of these great beasts can be studied here," said Shelton Atapattu, director of Wild Life Conservation.

Studies done at the orphanage have proved that elephants from different herds integrate when brought together. A baby taken into the Pinnawala herd is almost immediately adopted by older elephants and younger adolescent female elephants play mother to the new baby.

POSITIVE THINKING

Experiences can activate concern

By DR. NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

At 7:30 a.m. the telephone bell rang in the home of Jack Stephens, a young Atlanta businessman, and Mr. Stephens' life was never the same again.

On this fateful morning it was the voice of Harold Steele, Executive Director of the Atlanta Boys Club, on the phone. "Jack," he said, "I'm scheduled to take a little 4-year-old boy and his mother to the hospital at eight o'clock. This boy is in the last stages of leukemia and must get there at once. He has only a few days to live. But my car won't start. Will you pinch hit for me and take him to the hospital? Their home is only a few blocks from you."

Jack picked up the child and the mother promptly. The small boy was so weak that he lay in his mother's arms, his little feet resting upon Jack's right leg. As they drove the man stole a look at the sick little boy who gazed at him out of big lustrous eyes set in a chalk white face.

The boy's look was intense. Suddenly he asked, "Are you God?"

Startled, Jack Stephens said, "why do you ask, son?"

"Oh," replied the boy, "my mommy told me that God was coming to take me to a beautiful place. Are you God?"

Deeply moved by the poignancy of the youngster's look and question Stephens replied softly, "I am taking you to a beautiful place where kind people will take loving care of you."

It was only four days later that God did come and take the little fellow to a "beautiful place" where there is no more sickness nor suffering.

The course of Jack Stephens' life was changed. The memory of the frail and pathetic little boy with the big eyes asking, "Are you God?" stayed with him and caused him to take action that led in time to his becoming director of the Joseph B. Whitehead Memorial Boys Club. He entered upon a constructive career of helping boys to grow into healthy, decent, patriotic American citizens.

This moving story, told by W. Clement Stone in his book "The Success System that Never Fails," points up a curious and dramatic fact about any person's life. It underscores the possibility that some deeply searching experience can come at any time to activate an individual to new goals and purposes. The reason tremendous things happen to some and not others is that some keep themselves exposed to the mysterious movements of destiny.

A friend of mine as he read the papers daily fretted and fumed about conditions and growled, "Why doesn't somebody do something? Haven't we got any leaders anymore who know the score?" Then one day a thought hit him like a ton of bricks: "Why don't you do something? Don't wait for someone else; you do something." But what can I possibly do, was his instinctive reaction. Anyway, he was living a comfortable life not getting mixed up in anything. Why should I bother, he reasoned. Why should I stick my neck out?

But the destiny and purpose of his existence kept prodding him. So one day he walked into a political club in his city and applied for membership. "I want to learn how to do something as a citizen in a practical, meaningful way," he said simply. The club, it appears, had never heard of anyone doing such a thing but they took on this "sort of oddball."

This man found a new and absorbing purpose for a hitherto comfortable but basically innocuous lifestyle. Ultimately he became a congressman and served in Congress for eight terms, during which time he was the object of incredible criticism and even vituperation for he was a positive exponent of his convictions.

"Why do you take it? Why put up with such attacks?" he was asked.

"Because what I believe in is worth fighting for," he replied. "And besides, I found myself by getting outside of myself and I'm actually happier."

It seems sort of too bad that so many miss the exciting experience life might be. But it doesn't need to be that way. Get exposed to the prodding of your own personal destiny. It may strike you at any time.

DEAR ABBY

Roots of hair loss could be physical

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My problem may seem silly to many people, but it is having a devastating effect on my life. I am an intelligent, average-looking 22-year-old male whose hair has been constantly thinning since I was 17 years old.

I know this has happened to other men, but for some reason I am unable to fully accept it. It is psychologically devastating to my happiness and productivity. Some mornings I don't even want to get out of bed and look at myself in the mirror.

I've lost all my confidence and zest for living, and I'm depressed most of the time. I have one year of college left, but no desire to finish now. I feel that a part of me is slowly dying day by day.

I have spent a fortune on so-called "hair-restoring" products, but they were all disappointing. Is there anything I can do to save the rest of my hair? Is there any information you can give me on hair replacements? Please don't suggest counseling because the money might be better used for reversing my condition. Please answer soon. — LOSING HAIR AND HOPE

Abby

DEAR LOSING: First, have a thorough physical checkup to make sure there is no medical reason for your excessive hair loss (endocrine deficiency or scalp disease, etc.). If there is none, then your early balding is probably an inherited trait, and there is nothing you can do about it.

In that event, there are three choices: Buy the best hairpiece you can afford. (Some are so cleverly designed they are almost impossible to distinguish from the real thing.)

Go the hair transplanting route, which is a long, expensive and often painful process that doesn't always turn out as hoped.

Seek counseling to help you accept this condition. When a man reacts so strongly to the loss of hair, there is usually more involved psychologically than meets the eye.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for two years to a wonderful man. He's intelligent, handsome, affectionate and is very good to me. We love each other dearly and have a fantastic sex life.

My problem? He has to have another woman on the side. He always lets me know when he is seeing someone else so he doesn't have to sneak around. (I'd rather know.) So far it's never gotten out of hand or robbed me of my time with him.

I used to have an open mind about his other women on the side, but lately I've begun to suffer pangs of jealousy.

What am I afraid of? — JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: You feel threatened. And with good reason. Very few people are able to share the one they love with another.

Counseling for both of you might help resolve your problem by curing your jealousy, or eliminating his need for other women.

It might also bring to light the reason your husband feels compelled to "let you know," and your reason for "wanting to know" — although you find it painful.

It's time to tell your husband that the "other woman on the side" deal you agreed to some years ago is not working.

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)
