N. Texas Twisters Wreak Little Damage

By The Associated Press

A small tornado darted out of a mass of scudding gray clouds at Greenville Tuesday, damaging two barns and two sheds as it skipped over a half-mile path.

The twister, which roared "like 20 freight trains" at times, was one of three or four which erupted in a sudden but brief siege of violent weather. Skies were clearing over most of the state Wednesday.

No injuries were reported in the Greenville tornado area, although the twister narrowly missed three homes.

"It sounded like a freight train going over," said Mrs. R. B. Kilgore. The twister unroofed a storage shed at the Paul Ledbetter residence on the northeast edge of town and then wrecked a garage-shed back of Mrs. Kilgore's home.

Then it swept on, gaining speed, and lifted the roof off a barn at the home of Mrs. Harry Bray. Mrs. Bray was inside with her two small daughters, 18 months and 2½ months old.

She said she didn't hear a sound and didn't know the twister had hit until she saw the wrecked barn. It also ripped away part of a barn at the V. T. Banks home nearby.

Mrs. Jack Murpheau, who lives near the Kilgore home, saw it aloft.

"It sounded like about 20 freight trains," she said. "I could see junk flying around the funnel. There were some horses in a field outside and they ran like wild."

Two airline pilots reported seeing another tornado aloft near Forney, 13 miles east of Dallas and about 30 miles south of Greenville. A third pilot spotted another funnel near Wills Point, 40 miles east of Dallas, during a rain and hail storm.

There also was an unconfirmed report of a twister between Bonham and Ector, 35 miles north of Greenville.

The Bray family dog, obviously terrified, broke a leash holding it in the garage and fled. Mrs. Kilgore said a dog which had been outside her home was indoors after the tornado passed. She was unable to explain how it entered.

Newsman Jimmy Jones said the twister traveled directly over Radio Station KGVL in Greenville.

"It was rather an ill-defined circular cone, cloudy-gray in color, with an eye about 50 yards across," he said.

"The bottom of the cone, which had gray clouds scudding around it, never came closer to the ground than 50 yards. It came out of a huge cloud bank which had clouds boiling at the top."

Fred Kassell, a reporter for the Greenville Herald-Banner, who also is a student of meteorology, said the twister didn't have the coloring of normal tornadoes.

"I saw the funnel just after it formed," he said. "Tornado funnels usually are black, but this one was snow-white."

The Greenville storm was formed out of a squall line. Hailstones fell at Sherman and Pottsboro and lightning started a fire which destroyed a gin at High, 10 miles west of Paris, Tuesday night.

Owner Roscoe McClure estimated his loss at $125,000. About an inch of rain fell during this storm.

The violence in North Texas was part of a varied weather picture over Texas Tuesday.

Snow flurries fell in the Panhandle. Skies were clear in the El Paso area and along the lower Rio Grande.

Gusty winds whipped over the San Angelo area. One heavy thunderstorm dumped up to 3 inches of moisture at Perrin Air Force Base near Sherman.

Cold air lingered from the cold front which moved southeastward during the night.

But skies were clear except for parts of North and East Texas. Predawn temperatures Wednesday ranged from 20 at Amarillo to 50 at Beaumont.

Slightly colder weather was forecast for East and North Central Texas, but a warmup was in prospect for West Texas.

High temperatures Tuesday ranged from 42 at Amarillo to 73 at Brownsville.

U. S. Refuses Comment On A-Plane Crash

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government would give no details today on its brief admission that at least one plane carrying a nuclear weapon crashed without exploding the weapon.

The Pentagon, apparently acting after consultation with other government agencies, refused to say where or when the accident occurred or to say whether more than one such incident might have occurred.

However, there was growing belief that the accident mentioned by the Air Force Monday occurred within the last year in the continental United States and involved a B47 medium bomber.

Air Force spokesmen declined to answer a question about that possibility and had general "no comment" when asked about other accidents.

The pilot and copilot of a B29 which crashed and burned Aug. 5, 1950, in California confirmed that their craft was carrying the outer casing of an atomic bomb which did not explode. But they could not say whether the Air Force announcement referred to that crash.

The pilot, Lt. Col. E. Q. Steffes Jr., said in Washington, "There was no possibility of an atomic explosion and there was none. In that form it (the bomb) was not capable of a nuclear explosion. It was just a certain quantity of TNT."

The copilot was Capt. Carter W. Johnson, now at Ellsworth Air Force Base, Rapid City, S. D. Like Steffes, he said the weapon lacked the vital component to explode it. Johnson, now a B52 bomber pilot, said the explosion and fire which followed the plane crash stemmed from the fuel tanks.

"You can assure everybody that while the shape and weight of atomic bombs may be carried, there is no danger of a nuclear explosion because that hush-hush part is always missing on training flights," he said.

Odessa Girl Does Christening Honors

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Julie Ann Boring, 10, of Odessa, Tex., christened a $3,800,000 oil drilling platform named for her yesterday.

She is the daughter of M. O. Boring Jr., president of the Dixilyn Drilling Corp. of Odessa for whom the platform was built by the L. G. LeTourneau Corp. of Longview.

The girl smashed a bottle of champagne against the main control house to christen the Julie Ann. Her sister, Dixie Lynn Boring, was also present.

President Asks Military Pay Hike

Cancer Society Leaders

Raises Due After Service Of 2 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has sent to Congress a military pay bill which would give most service personnel a raise of at least six per cent, and also provide for merit increases.

The bill was introduced in the House by Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) of the House Armed Services Committee, shortly after the White House disclosed details of administration proposals for boosting pay of postal and civil service workers, as well as service personnel.

The raises for all groups would cost about a billion dollars annually. The administration wants the raises to become effective July 1.

Under the Eisenhower program, all military personnel with more than two years' service would get the minimum increase in base pay.

The plan also would give the services greater flexibility in granting periodic raises, placing less emphasis on length of service and giving more consideration to merit.

The military pay plan embodies some of the recommendations submitted last year by an advisory group headed by Ralph J. Cordiner, president of General Electric Co. That group said pay adjustments were necessary to reduce turnover in key military jobs.

In addition to the military raises, the administration also is asking these other increases, which will be set forth in separate legislative proposals:

1. A general six per cent increase for the nation's 500,000 postal workers.

2. An increase of at least six per cent for the nearly one million civil service workers.

The White House also said the proposals call for increasing the top salaries of workers in the highest civil service grade from $16,000 a year to $18,000, and would remove the present limit of 1,226 workers who can hold jobs in the top three classifications.

The administration also seeks upward adjustments in the starting and intermediate grades for scientific, professional and managerial workers.

Legislation now pending in the Senate would give postal workers an average boost of 12½ per cent, and raise civil service workers by 7½ per cent.

The military pay boost was estimated to cost 518 million dollars in the first year. The general increase would apply to 70 per cent of the uniformed personnel or about 1,800,000, but no raise was proposed for men with less than two years' service, nor for retired military people.

It was estimated, also, that four out of every seven servicemen would get additional pay, denending on proficiency and rapidity of advancement under the proposed new program.

4-YEAR SPREAD

Raises for officers would be spread over a four-year period to reduce the impact on defense spending. The biggest increases would go to high-ranking officers, by creation of permanent three- and four-star ranks for pay purposes.

A four-star office could get up to $5,000 more under the new scale than the present figure of about $15,316 in base pay and allowances, excluding quarters and subsistence payments.

The pay for colonels — and Navy captains — would go from the present top of $811.20 to a maximum of $1,065. A second lieutenant or Navy ensign would get a boost of only 70 cents in his first year in that grade, but he could go to a maximum of $244 a month before serving two years.

The new program would provide that no major or lieutenant commander would get less than $530 monthly in base pay. Majors now must serve more than 14 years to earn $514.80.

The naximum for enlisted men would be raised from the present $335.40 a month after 26 years' service to $440. Promotion opportunities would be increased by the proposed creation of two senior enlisted grades above master sergeant.

House Considers Air Force Emergency Construction Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House made way today for quick consideration of a $548,226,000 emergency Air Force construction bill.

Backers predicted approval with little debate of the measure which, among other things, would authorize a start on construction of the country's third base for intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Various other missile projects, a defensive warning system against missiles, and dispersal of bomber bases also would be authorized under the measure, a plans developed to offset Russian missile progress.

Both Senate and House committees, meanwhile, continued separate probes of the nation's overall defense status, and partisans in and out of Congress sought to assess political blame for the situation.

The bill before the House, taken up only eight days after Congress convened, was one of the most swiftly handled major bills in recent years. The Senate still must act. The measure is a preliminary to a $1,260,000,000 supplemental money bill which also must be passed by both houses to be effective.

Chairman Vinson of the House Armed Services Commitee said the authorization measure, backed by President Eisenhower, is true emergency legislation for two reasons.

These, Vinson said in a statement for the House Rules Committee, are, "first, the items in the bill are in themselves of the highest priority, and in the second place, a prompt approval of this bill now will save up to one year on construction time."

Vinson explained that if the construction projects had to wait for consideration of the President's regular budget proposals, outdoor building weather this year might be past in some localities before the work could be well started.

Chairman Mahon (D-Tex) of the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee issued a statement deploring what he called Republican efforts "to make partisan politics out of the defense program."

Referring specifically to remarks made by House Republican Leader Martin (Mass), Mahon said he would "have no part of any attempt to make our defense program a political football."

Mahon quoted a televised interview last Sunday in which Martin said Democrats voted almost unanimously in the last session of Congress against a GOP motion "to restore a little over 300 million dollars" for missiles programs.

The actual facts, Mahon said, are that Congress last year "did not cut the Department of Defense request for ballistic missiles by one penny. It did not reduce any requests for missiles by the Army and the Navy. It did cut the request for nonballistic missiles in the Air Force by 75 million dollars. The Air Force has since made a further reduction in the nonballistic missile program . . . in the sum of 100 millions."

Told of Mahon's statement, Martin indicated he would reply to it later.

Check Suspects Are Jailed Here

Ernest J. Williams, 35, and his wife, Jeppy Joyce Williams, 32, charged with passing forged checks, were being held in Howard County jail today after their return to this city from Lubbock Tuesday afternoon.

The Williamses and another couple, James Alford McCrary, 31, and Mrs. Patsy McCrary, 25, are accused of cashing forged checks at Piggly Wiggly food store here Monday.

Sheriff Miller Harris said that Williams and his wife refused to make a written statement relative to the check operations here. The McCrarys have made statements to Guilford Jones, district attorney.

The McCrary couple was arrested in a clothing store here attempting to cash a check Monday afternoon. The Williams had come to Big Spring with the McCrarys but left town before they were apprehended. They were picked up in Lubbock and surrendered to Howard County officials. Lubbock has a "hold" order against them for alleged check operations in that city.

Bonds for the two McCrarys has been fixed at $3,000. Bond has not been set for the Williams but it was believed that the amount would probably be the same.

Burglars Hit 3 Businesses

Burglars hit two service stations in the same block on U. S. 87 during the night.

Burglarized were the Grady Harland Service Station, 1000 Lamesa, and the Norman Humble Station at 1003 Lamesa.

The House of 1000 Bargains, also on Lamesa, was burglarized, but nothing was reported missing. Entry was gained through a rear window.

At the Harland station, burglars broke in via a window on the east. Amount of money taken from a cigarette machine was not known. In addition, the burglars broke into a candy case and also the credit card machine.

About 20 packages of cigarettes, a small amount of change from the cigarette machine, and 55 pennies were taken from the Norman station. At first police officers thought that the burglary attempt had been unsuccessful, but later it was learned that the building was entered.

Burglars used a tire tool to break out a window on the north side of the building.

First, State National Bank Directors Name New Officers

Changes were made in the officials' roster of two local banks Tuesday, as all three local institutions held annual meetings of stockholders and directors.

Advanced to assistant vice president of the State National Bank was John Currie, who has been an assistant cashier. He thus carries on a tradition in the Currie family, which has managed the State National Bank since its inception.

At the First National board meeting, J. R. Hensley was elected president, succeeding R. T. Piner, resigned; and a new director, Cecil W. Guthrie, was elected. Two directors resigned from the First National Board, Piner and J. Mark McLaughlin of Austin.

There were no changes, either in officers or directors, at the Security State Bank.

Officers at the State National Bank are: Robert W. Gurrie, president; Edith Hatchett, Temp S. Currie Jr. and John Currie, vice presidents; C. M. Havins, cashier; Ima Deason and Fred E. Haller, assistant cashiers. Directors are Robert Currie, Temp Currie, Bernard Fisher, Merle J. Stewart and A. L. Cooper.

Officers at the First National: Hensley, president; R. V. Middleton, H. H. Hurt, Horace Garrett, Reba Baker and Clyde Angel, vice presidents; Jack I Davis, cashier; Faye Stratton and Faye Hobbs, assistant cashiers.

The directorate now includes: Hensley, Hurt, Middleton, Garrett, Guthrie, T. J. Good, G. H. Hayward, L. S. McDowell Jr., Gerald C. Mann, Hardy Morgan, and R. L. Tollett.

STEPS ONTO PODIUM

Violinist Rescues Rhythm At Opera

NEW YORK (AP) — "It seemed like an eternity, and it seemed like a second," says the boyish-looking man who climbed from the second violin section for eight glorious minutes on the podium of the Metropolitan Opera.

Walter Hagen, 37, who always had dreams of being a conductor, got his chance before an audience of more than 3,600 Monday night — which is THE night of the week at the opera.

Hagen, who held things together when conductor Pietro Cimara suffered a stroke, discussed with mingled feelings his brief reign as maestro of the Met.

The violinist, who was relieved by Kurt Adler, the chorus master, said: "I hated to let the baton go. When I saw Mr. Adler — but we won't go into that.

"Actually, I was fortunate in getting as much time as I did. I was surprised that they let me stay on so long."

The 68-year-old Cimara, who was reported still in critical condition but "greatly improved" today at St.Clare's Hospital, collapsed near the start of the second scene of the first act of Verdi's "La Forza del Destino."

Hagen recalled that as soprano Zinka Milanov and bass William Wilderman were in their duet, Cimara "suddenly started to sway forward and couldn't raise his arm."

"Somebody said, 'Give him a chair.'" Hagen said. "I put down my violin and held his arm so that he shouldn't fall. A few musicians grabbed him and pulled him out of the pit."

While Cimara was being carried out, Hagen started giving the beat.

"There was a certain bewilderment on stage," Hagen recalled. "But there was no break in the performance.

"Somebody said, 'Get up on the podium.' So I did."

Rudolf Bing, general manager of the Metropolitan, paid tribute to Hagen.

"I am very grateful to Mr. Hagen for his courageous and quick-minded action," Bing said.

Webb Airman Killed At C-City

COLORADO CITY — A.1.C. Buford W. Eley, Big Spring, was killed when he was struck by a car on U. S. 80 two miles west of here about 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Airmen Eley either was walking along the pavement or attempting to cross the highway when he was hit by an automobile driven by Mrs. Charley Inglehart, 50, of Westbrook, according to Highway Patrolman H. B. Slaughter. A passenger in the car was Mr. Inglehart.

The airman, 26, was assigned to headquarters of the Maintenance & Supply Group at Webb AFB and worked in the base procurement office. His home was at 402 State St., Big Spring. He had lived in Big Spring since Jan. 1, 1955, and had served in the Air Force since 1952.

The body was taken to Kiker & Son Funeral Home here for funeral arrangements.

Airman Eley is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ola Rachel Eley, and two children, Donna Joan, 3, and Steven Wade, 1, all of Big Spring, and his father, Frank L. Eley of Flintville, Tenn.

Payload Satellite Planned By AF

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Force missile experts expect to place a payload satellite in orbit about the earth shortly and they say the same existing missile can perform unmanned reconnaissance of the moon.

This forecast became public today through closed-door testimony by Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, commander of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division.

The much-censored testimony was released by the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, headed by Sen. Johnson (D-Tex).

Dick Simpson To Head State Cancer Crusade

Dick Simpson of Big Spring is one of the co-chairmen for the 1958 Texas Cancer Crusade, it was announced here Tuesday at the District No. 2 American Cancer Society meeting.

Simpson also was re-elected a district director. In addition, he is a state vice president for the cancer organization.

Serving with the Big Spring cattleman as Texas Cancer Crusade co-chairman will be Edwin Phillips Jr. of Fort Worth. The crusade is the name given to the cancer society's fund raising campaign.

Registration for the 21-county meeting here Tuesday totaled 67. District directors named were Dr. R. B. G. Cowper of Big Spring, medical representative, Mrs. Tom Hill of Odessa, laywoman, and Simpson, layman. Mrs. Hill succeeds Mrs. Peyton Howard of Midland. Dr. Cowper and Simpson were re-elected.

The group also voted to hold its 1959 meeting in Big Spring. The session has been held here each January for several years. For the past two years, the Veterans Aministration Hospital has served as host for the gathering.

Three sessions for lay workers and one for doctors were held yesterday. Several representatives of the State Cancer Society staff were on hand to assist with the discussions on the various phases of cancer research and control.

Ike Prefers Red Ink Over Tax Hike

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today he would prefer a reasonable amount of deficit spending this year to a tax increase.

The President, at his first news conference in 2½ months, said he believes some red ink spending would be the only answer under present circumstances if it came to a choice between that and a tax increase in order to handle the proposed new federal budget.

In that connection, Eisenhower noted that his economic advisers are predicting an upturn from the current business recession.

Eisenhower was discussing the $73,900,000,000 budget for the fiscal year starting July 1 which he sent to Congress monday.

This was Eisenhower's first news conference since Oct. 30. He suffered a minor stroke on Nov. 25.

In reply to questions about his health at this time, he said with a smile that he is feeling very good and would like to get out on the golf course for a couple hours if only there were some sun.

His face was ruddy as of old, and the consensus of the 270 newsmen was that he handled himself well.

There was one instance, near the start of the 30-minute session, when Eisenhower appeared to "fluff" a word or two. But there was no more of that—and quite possibly there was less—than before the slight stroke which manifested itself by a temporary speech difficulty.

Eisenhower also discussed these other matters:

SUMMIT - Eisenhower said - as he did in his message to Soviet Premier Bulganin last weekend—that there must be adequate advance preparation before he would agree to any new summit conference with the Russians. He said the preliminary steps probably should include meetings at the ambassadorial level and of the foreign ministers of the countries to be represented at any such conference.

GAITHER REPORT — Eisenhower said he has no intention whatever of ever releasing the administration's Gaither report on the state of the nation's defenses and the prospect for the future. That report, drawn up by a committee of advisers named by the President, reportedly cautions that the United States is fast losing military superiority to Russia.

Eisenhower said he names such study groups with the proviso that information given to them, and developed by them, is in a privileged or secret category. If there should be any change in that, Eisenhower added, he would have to stop setting up such study groups.

DULLES — Eisenhower vigorously labeled as trash reports that Secretary of State Dulles might

Reuther Sees Distortion Or Misunderstanding Of Proposal

DETROIT (AP)—Walter P. Reuther says spokesmen for the auto industry's Big Three either don't understand his profit-sharing and customer rebate proposals or they tried willfully to distort them.

The United Auto Workers chief referred to his union's 1958 contract demands, criticized sharply in statements from General Motors, Ford and Chrysler Corp.

In a letter to General Motors President Harlow H. Curtice, Reuther said his plan was "based upon the right of workers and consumers to share in the fruits of advanced technology."

The letter was made public by Reuther's office several hours after another auto executive, George Romney, president of American Motors, called the proposal a "subterfuge."

Reuther said copies of his letter to Curtice were sent to L. L. Colbert, Chrysler president, and Ernest R. Breech, Ford board chairman, both of whom previously had in effect, rejected the UAW proposal.

He accused General Motors of opposing profit sharing for hourly rated workers while maintaining a bonus plan based on dividing excess profits for top GM executives.

He estimated that Curtice and other executives received a total of 635 million dollars in the 10 years between 1947 and 1956 under the plan.

He questioned whether "public confidence can best be built by a small group of General Motors executives sharing in the excess profits of the corporation while denying workers and consumers their rightful share."

Romney charged, "Reuther's profit-sharing and price rebate 'bludgeon' apparently was devised to silence growing criticism of chain-reacting pattern bargaining. This is subterfuge.

"By concentrating his publicity on the profits resulting from General Motors' far-flung and unmatched operations," Romney said, "Reuther again seeks to use GM in establishing the size of the industry economic package."

In statements Monday, top executives of the Big Three labeled the UAW proposal as "unrealistic," foreign to the concept of the American free enterprise system" and "inflationary."

Reuther's proposal, to be presented to a special UAW convention Jan. 22 and—if approved—to the auto industry in bargaining sessions beginning about April 1, calls for a sharing of above 10 per cent of net capital before taxes—25 per cent to employes, 25 per cent to car buyers in the form of rebates and 50 per cent to the company.

Jayne, New Mate Begin Honeymoon

DALLAS (AP)—Jayne Mansfield, a bright-eyed actress who didn't let grandpappy's fortune keep her from dipping into Hollywood's golden coffers, flew out of her old hometown today with her new husband.

Jayne and her Hungarian-born bridegroom, Mickey Hargitay, 29, are off for a honeymoon in Miami after a hectic two days of wedding activities which through news media was generously shared with the world. The 24-year-old actress and her muscular bridegroom, a onetime "Mr. Universe," will open a nightclub engagement Feb. 7 in Las Vegas.

The gala wedding activities were climaxed yesterday with a reception for about 80 friends at the home of Jayne's mother and her stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Peers.

The couple paused occasionally during the reception to smooch happily and sip pink champagne for photographers.

"We're so happy and so much in love" was their theme.

The motif for the reception, like the wedding, was pink. Jayne wore a pink dress moulded to her bosomy curves like a second skin. The Peers' home was carpeted and decorated in pink and the cottage to which the lovers sojourned at the rear of the home was brownish pink.

In an inferview, her mother indicated Jayne has a few bucks stashed away in case her career ever shows signs of slowing. Mrs. Peers, the former Vera Jeffry Palmer, said Jayne has received "over $100,000 from the estate of her grandfather." He was the late Elmer Palmer, who was in the slate business in Pen Argyl, Pa.

"She'll receive more when she is 25 and when she is 30 and thereafter," said Mrs. Peers. She declined to name the exact amounts.

Sarah Braves Public Scorn

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—They were betting actress Sarah Churchill wouldn't make it.

When the daughter of Great Britain's Sir Winston Churchill entered NBC's huge television studio at 5:30 a. m. yesterday, a stagehand watching her arrival murmured: "That took guts."

At noon, Miss Churchill's wan face was submitted to the glaring lights and searching eye of the television camera in an hourlong play, "The Makropoulos Secret."

She gave one of the best performances of her life, critics said.

Many TV viewers also believed it "took guts" for the actress to appear. Less than 24 hours before arrival at the station, she had been a temporary inmate of county jail.

She had been arrested on a drunk charge after sheriff's deputies accused her of using profane language over the telephone. The arrest was accompanied by kicking, scuffling and tearing of clothes, the officers said.

Ike Makes Dent In Opposition To Trade Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration, puting on pressure for reciprocal trade extension, could point today to a dent in the Republican congressional front opposing the President's trade program.

In a surprise move, Rep. Kean (R-NJ) announced he had yielded to administration requests to sponsor in the House the President's controversial proposal for a five-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Act.

As late as last Saturday, not one of the 11 GOP members of the House Ways and Means Committee—including Kean, could be found who was willing to sponsor the administration trade bill. Trade and tariff legislation must originate in the House committee.

Kean, who now is expected to be a candidate for the New Jersey Republican senatorial nomination this year, had been represented as unwilling to take up cudgels for the program this year. Three years ago he was GOP sponsor of the last trade bill in Congress.

He announced he was glad to help push Eisenhower's mutual trade program through Congress this year in the interest of international security and the domestic economy.

"I believe that the urgent need to stimulate our own economy's growth and to wage total peace makes mutual trade legislation an absolute must," he said.

Although Kean's action rescued the administration's precarious prestige in its own party ranks, it did not signify any major change in the forthcoming trade battle.

House GOP Leader Martin of Massachusetts told newsmen after a meeting of Republican policy leaders that "there will be a fight" over trade extension when a bill reaches the House floor.

Ways and Means Committee Republicans expect to whittle down the President's five-year extension to no more than one or two years, and limit rather than enlarge his authority to negotiate tariff concessions and make international trade agreements.

Cuban Rebels Strike Port

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—Rebel forces of Fidel Castro withdrew safely to their mountain hideouts late yesterday after a bold daylight raid on the sugar port of Manzanillo.

The Cuban army made no comment on the attack. President Fulgencio Batista's forces say they want to meet Castro's guerrillas in an open fight, but they reported no action to counter the young revolutionist's foray on the southeast coast, at the foot of the Sierra Maestra.

Texas' Soil Moisture Good

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas has the best soil moisture supply in many years, but more rain is needed in the northern Panhandle and northern Low Rolling Plains, the U.S. Department of Agriculture said yesterday.

Prospects of small grains are excellent although cold weather has checked their growth. The weekly report also said northwest wheat was reported at good top growth and root development.

Cage Brothers Bid Lowest On Paving

Bids for paving 16½ blocks of downtown streets were opened by the City Commission Tuesday night, but decision to award the contract was postponed until the entire commission can meet.

The commission consisted of only three members Tuesday night—Roy Bruce, Dr. Lee Rogers, and Ward Hall. The mayor, G. W. Dabney, was attending a board of directors meeting at Security State Bank, and Curtis Driver was sick.

The meeting for Hall was the first since Oct. 3. He has been out because of a heart attack.

Three bids were received on the paving job, from W. D. Caldwell, South Texas Construction Co. of Corpus Christi, and Cage Brothers Construction of San Antonio. Caldwell's price for the work was $8.73 per ton of hot-mix for a total price of $31,428. South Texas bid $9.09 per ton for a price of $32,724, but the lowest bid came from Cage Bros.

The Cage bid was $8.48 per ton making a cost of $30,528, or $900 below Caldwell's offer. Caldwell, however, quoted a 45-day limit on the work while Cage Bros. said they would complete the work between March 20 and May 15.

The commission hoped that the other members would be present for a meeting later this week, probably Thursday.

The commission also mentioned a large paving program on an assessment basis, but no action was taken. Whitney explained that five years ago, the city initiated a large paving program and issued $100,000 paving warrants at that time. Since then, the city has taken $20,000 yearly from parking meter receipts to pay off the warrants.

The last payment is due in April, and Whitney said that if the city wished to continue the practice, it could possibly issue another $100,000 in warrants and the first payment would not come due until April of 1959. The commission planned to give more thought to the matter.

In other matters, the commission authorized Wayne Basden to attend a Traffic Court Conference in Austin Thursday through Saturday. Also, the commission instructed the city manager, H. W. Whitney, to purchase three steel desks for the water department. The desks will be needed since the office is being remodeled and expanded.

A Bible Thought For Today

Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost. (Titus 3:5)

New Device For Clamming?

German-born, Texas-raised and Texas A&M educated Major General Bernard A. Schriever, boss of the Air Force missile program, directly challenged President Eisenhower's plan for a separate unified space agency in closed testimony before Sen. Johnson's Senate Preparedness subcommittee.

He called the President's plan a costly duplication of Air Force abilities to send a manned satellite to the moon and back in a few years. He also criticized a Defense Department decision to use both the Army Jupiter and the Air Force Thor as intermediate-range ballistic missiles. Not only did he disagree in other particulars, but he gave vigorous expression to his own ideas.

There were several things unusual in Gen. Schriever's carefully-prepared statement, which was placed before the committee within hours of the President's State of the Union message. One, of course, was his straight-forward and no-holds-barred expression of views.

But the most unusual was that the Air Force itself made the general's statement public almost immediately. Until now controversial matters of this kind, particularly that coming from civil and military officials, have been revealed by the investigating committee—in most cases by the chairman himself, Sen. Johnson. Seemingly the Air Force has been content with that arrangement—or if not content, at least following a hands-off policy.

But this time the Air Force beat the committee to the draw, and itself released the general's statement for publication.

Whether this stems from a new-found desire to keep the public informed, or has some deeper motivation is anybody's guess. Civil and military officials occupy positions of considerable sensitivity, and secret committee sessions are held not only to keep classified information from our enemies, but in a measure to protect the witnesses from retributive action by their superiors. (Witness Maj. Gen. Gavin's failure to get an expected promotion after giving testimony critical of the Joint Chiefs of Staff system, and his subsequent resignation).

Could the Air Force's new plan of making public such testimony as Gen. Shriever's be designed to discourage Air Force officers from speaking candidly and critically before secret investigative sessions? We hope not. But the certainty that their criticism will be made public might cause some of the more timid to clam up.

Fantasy Is Tomorrow's Dread

The Rockefeller Report makes strong recommendations that steps be taken to create shelters for the protection of the American populace from radiation fall-out in case of nuclear war.

In an interview later Nelson Rockefeller put it approximately as follows: In case of an all-out nuclear attack on the fifty principal American cities, an estimated 60 to 65 million people could be expected to die, half of them from fall-out. If half of the potential fall-out victims could be saved from exposure to radiation, the millions so saved could mean the difference between national survival and total extinction.

There has been a disposition in this country to brush off the entire civil defense program as a sort of Alice in Wonderland fantasy, perhaps because the American people have never been subjected to bombardment of any kind, unlike nearly all Europeans except the Swiss and the Swedes.

Yet the German buzz-bombs and V-weapons and Stukas and other bomber types, and the mighty bomber armadas of the Allied powers destroyed whole cities and took the lives of hundreds of thousands of civilians in World War II. Today, a single fighter-bomber can loose more destructive power with a single H-bomb than all the air fleets of WW II could manage in more than four years of war.

It will be a fantastic task to afford bomb shelters for the greater part of our urban population, to say nothing of the difficulty of protecting against radioactive fall-out. Obviously such shelters would have to be thickly scattered throughout all parts of a city, for unless the people can reach them in a matter of minutes after the alarm it will be too late.

If in order to survive at all we must become temporarily a nation of troglodytes—well, that's the way it's got to be.

For in this age of nuclear warfare, when an enemy's ability to deposit a guided missile on our cities in a matter of minutes from the launching base is only a matter of months away, the fantasy of yesterday becomes the dread reality of tomorrow.

President Calls Kremlin's Bluff

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has demolished the Soviet's tricky peace offensive. He has called the bluff of the Kremlin in one of the most effective pronouncements ever made on the subject of "summit" conferences, disarmament and non-aggression pacts.

The President's letter to Bulganin completely debunks the Soviet's alleged piety on the matter of disarmament and peace. It sets forth in concrete terms the steps that will have to be taken before any "summit" conference could be worthwhile.

What Mr. Eisenhower does is to lay down the conditions for such a conference in terms so plain and explicit that, if the Soviets are sincere, they will welcome the proposals. Otherwise, they will stand convicted of insincerity and hypocrisy before the whole world.

The President, moreover, revealed the emptiness of the Soviet proposal for "summit" conferences so long as the United Nations organization is ignored, defied and denounced by the Communists. Mr. Eisenhower says, in effect, that if the Kremlin had respected the U. S. Charter, there would be no need today for any "summit" conferences and no necessity for a handful of bigwigs to try to settle the affairs of 80 nations. The President points out that an organization to enforce peace, with specific procedures to follow in every contingency, already exists but has been frustrated by the repeated veto of the Soviet Union in the Security Council.

The Eisenhower letter was prepared by the Department of State's experts headed by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. It is a document that shows the result of meticulous research into the past pledges given by the Soviets that have been flagrantly violated. Putting it all together—starting with a discussion of the Yalta agreements that have since been broken—the letter to Bulganin is a state paper of transcendent importance in modern history. It will encourage free men everywhere, including the enslaved in Hungary and Central Europe, who still yearn for freedom.

"Peace and good will among men," says the President, "have been the heartfelt desire of peoples since time immemorial. But professions of peace by governmental leaders have not always been a dependable guide to their actual intentions."

The President traces in his letter the Soviet record and challenges the Kremlin to make good on its pledges and to give evidence of its sincerity. He makes a host of far-reaching proposals—all the way from a cessation of testing of nuclear weapons and the abolition of stockpiles of bombs and missiles under a system of trustworthy inspection to the reunification of Germany and the holding of free elections in the captive countries. What the President says may be summarized in this way:

"We are with you in principle in trying to find a way to disarmament and peace. Let's get together through the proper officials and see if there is any chance of agreement. If there is something specific worked out, some progress that we can see ahead of time, I'll go anywhere in the world to attend a 'summit' conference or any other kind of conference to sign such an agreement. But there must be a reliable means of protection so that we shall know you will keep your word."

Most significant is the way the President emphasizes the difference between a free government and a dictatorship. He outlines how the people of the United States "exert such constitutional control over government that no government could possibly initiate an aggressive war."

The President refrains from describing the operations of the dictatorship in Moscow and how it can suddenly plunge the people of the Soviet Union into war without their consent. But he does add the following reminder:

"The past forty years provide an opportunity to judge the comparative peace records of our two systems."

The forty-year period goes back to 1917, when the Imperial German government made "scraps of paper" of its treaties of peace and started World War I. It takes us through 1939, when another dictatorship in Berlin did the same thing and provoked World War II. It brings us to 1950, when the Moscow government deliberately armed a puppet government in North Korea and, starting with a "surprise attack," conducted a war against the United Nations forces that almost became global. It carries us through 1956, when the Soviet tanks crushed the patriots in Hungary. It culminates in 1957 when the Soviets sent arms to stir up the peoples of the Middle East against one another.

Mr. Eisenhower's letter is a milestone in the negotiating process. He scorns the private deal type of "summit" conference and calls for conferences step by step through diplomatic channels. Then, he says, a meeting by heads of state to ratify everything that has been done can be held.

This is the boldest challenge presented by the democracies of the world in the entire East-West struggle since the ending of World War II. It will rally the free world and should clear away once and for all any doubts about American leadership. Even in an age of missiles, America hasn't lost its perspective or its determination or its capacity for understanding deception and trickery in the guise of propaganda for a "summit" conference.

Raising Cane

MONCLURE, N. C. (AP)—On a lofty hill one mile from here stands a large mock-orange tree that was once a walking cane.

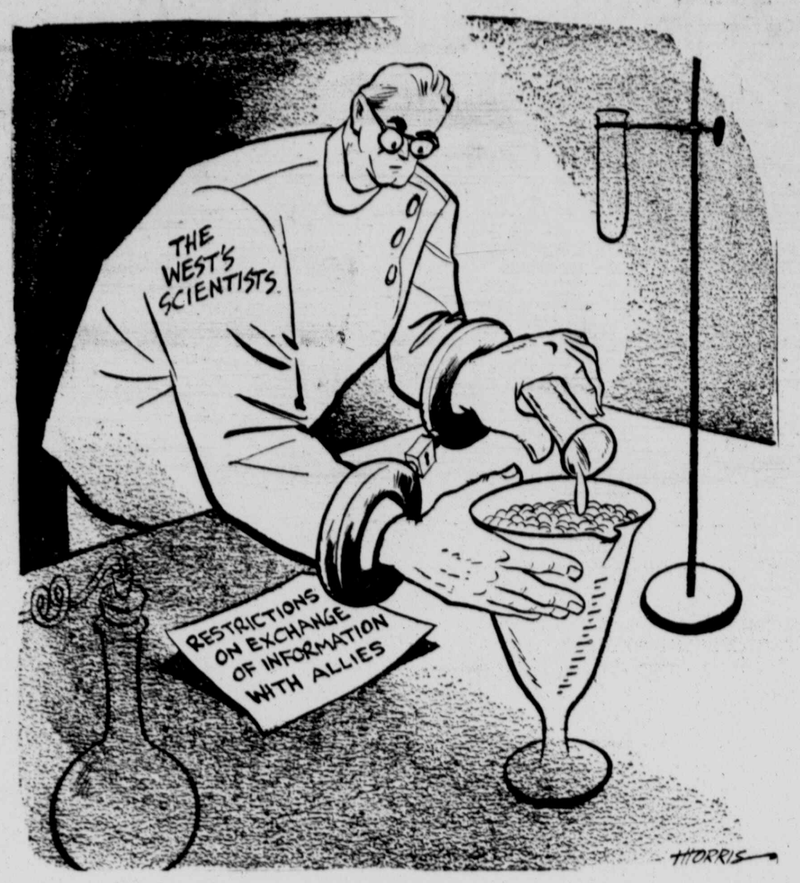

The cane belonged to Waverly Lassiter, whose hobby was walking. One day Lassiter returned to his home with the green stick in his hand. Before entering the house, he casually stuck the stick in the soft dirt and left it there.

The stick sprouted and began to grow, day by day, year by year. Today it is more than 50 years old.

Double Duty

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The emergency squad arrived before an accident happened at South Franklin School here. While squadmen were treating Larry Lybrook, 13, who hurt his ankle on a slide, Paul Foster, 15, staggered across the school yard with a dislocated collarbone. He had slipped on the grass and fallen.

Both boys were taken to a hospital.

Average Man Is Up A Tree

WASHINGTON (AP)—Up a tree. That's where the average man is right now on President Eisenhower's budget.

How can he tell whether this budget—a record for peacetime—is good or bad, wise or foolish, enough or too little? He doesn't know enough to decide.

And that goes for this writer. It's the only honest thing to say.

In a little more than three months—since the Russian Sputniks shocked the world into sudden consciousness about space and missiles—the average man has been forced to feel left behind and out of date.

He can't even guess, because he can't even visualize the problems, whether 500 million dollars for research is enough or whether five times that much is needed to keep this country abreast of Russia.

Worse than that: The average man, to whom this new world of space flight is a blank, probably won't know for years whether this budget was shrewd or a penny-pinching folly. The results coming from this year's budget may not show up for years.

One thing is for sure: Eisenhower is bent on balancing the budget—that is, not spending more than the government expects to take in in revenues of all kinds.

That was his goal when he took office. It still is.

To increase spending for defense, and still balance the budget, Eisenhower had to cut corners: by cutting down on domestic programs, such as public assistance, hospital construction, school construction.

That by itself raises a point: Last year Eisenhower asked Congress for money to help states build schools. He was very positive a lot more schools were needed. No doubt more schools are needed this year too.

But now he's dropping altogether the idea of money for schools—and instead is asking money to educate a limited number of young people, particularly in science.

The question therefore is: In this kind of society, rich and growing, is it for the good of the country to cut down on programs which only recently were deemed essential in order to save on spending?

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)— C. W. Shipman had his camera stolen, but he got it back before he found out it was gone.

Mrs. J. V. Campbell showed up at Shipman's home to ask if he owned a camera that was missing. He said it was in the car but when Shipman looked, he discovered it was gone. Mrs. Shipman had found it in some weeds near her home.

The Same To You

NEW BOSTON, Ohio (AP)—Only one headlight was working on the approaching car. So patrolman Jack Foit stopped it and said:

"From a distance, it appeared you might have been driving a motorcycle."

The driver returned: "From a distance, it appeared you were, too."

Foit checked his police cruiser. Only one headlight was working.

Mongrel On Way Out

NEW YORK (AP)—The mongrel dog—the flea-bitten mutt beloved of children—may be on the way out in this country.

He is becoming a victim of prosperity, according to Milton M. Weiss, president of the Animal Insurance Co. of America.

"In 1953 there were 28 million dogs in the United States and 15 million were pedigreed," said Weiss. "Today our dog population is 30 million, and 18 million are pedigreed.

"In a few short years there has been a decline of about one million in the number of non-pedigreed dogs.

"The reason is simple. People have been buying more expensive homes and cars—and they also have been upgrading their pets."

There were chortles of laughter last fall when Weiss founded the nation's first firm devoted exclusively to life insurance for pedigreed dogs. There also were howls of protest from mongrel owners, who felt their pets were being discriminated against.

Weiss, who had spent 26 years in the insurance business and entered the new field after a 10-year actuarial study of dogs, let neither the laughter nor the howls influence him.

"We can't insure mongrels, because they have only a sentimental value," he said. "But a pedigreed dog has a property value, just like real estate or furniture.

"We feel the average pedigreed dog is worth at least $300. Actually it costs about that much each year to raise one."

This estimate would give the nation's 18 million pedigreed dogs a total value of around 5½ billion dollars.

'Beauty & Beast' Is Best Since 'Peter Pan'

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—"Beauty and the Beast" was a delight. Surely this first in the Shirley Temple's Storybook series on NBC-TV was the most enjoyable fairy tale that has appeared on television since "Peter Pan."

It would be difficult to imagine a more enchanting Beauty than Claire Bloom or a more compelling Beast than Charlton Heston. E. G. Marshall, June Lockhart and Barbara Baxley helped a make-believe world become most credible entertainment in this live color production from Hollywood Sunday evening.

"Beauty and the Beast" combined superb acting and production with a third virtue that has been all too rare in television's previous attempts in never-never land: fidelity to a story that has endured for centuries. For this we presumably are indebted to Joseph Schrank, who adapted it, and to director Kirk Browning and producer Alvin Cooperman.

Those who saw it in color were especially fortunate. Let us note, too, that Shirley Temple makes a charming hostess.

Cast, production, color, Miss Temple . . . all might have been wasted if someone had tried to tamper with the familiar story that probably is best known to us today through the Andrew Lang Fairy Books.

Nobody tried to make a musical of it or load it with esoteric psychological meanings or give it a new beginning, middle or end.

Fidelity to the original, by the way, does not mean a literal translation. In the story Beauty had five sisters and six brothers. On television she had two sisters. In the story she returned home for a two months visit. In television she returned home for 10 days. On television, too, some suspense business was introduced that the story lacks—to the benefit of the drama.

So the television version of "Beauty and the Beast" was genuinely a creative effort that utilized the best technical effects of the medium.

Wastes No Time

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — A Denver taxpayer wasted no time notifying the U. S. Internal Revenue Service of an added tax exemption. George H. Allan, Colorado director, received the notice in the mail—a colorful birth announcement card saying that a 6-pound, 13-ounce baby boy had been added to the taxpayer's family. The card contained no other remarks.

Floating A Loan

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Water oozed into a bank here during a recent flash flood and employes were busy getting files and records up high for protection.

The telephone rang.

A voice told the employe who answered: "Can I float a loan?"

He didn't—at least for a while.

Around The Rim

'Two And A Half, Who'll Make It Sixty...'

It's a fascinating thing to watch and hear an auctioneer in action, particularly a cattle auctioneer. I don't know that you would exactly call Walter Britten typical, for in my book he's one of the best.

With him, working a sale is an art. He possesses that uncanny line of chatter which sounds like the unknown tongue to the uninitiated. But coupled with it he has a sixth sense of when to keep the bidding going and when to knock down the sale. In addition, he has a happy knack of breaking in when bidding lags to inject a little sales plug. He doesn't let this happen often and even then he adroitly avoids a long harangue on the merits of a certain animal. Usually, there's a lot of humor attached, and it keeps the crowd interested and in a light mood.

For instance, at the Howard County South Plains Hereford Breeders sale here last week, he was singing away on one animal which ought to have been commanding a higher price level. "I been bid two and a half; who'll make it two sixty, now do I hear two sixty; two and a half, who'll make it sixty..." and so on. He paused and talked with the owner.

"He says you can keep the bull for a year and if you're not satisfied, bring him home and get your money back. That's more than your car dealer will do."

The crowd laughed and the log jam was broken. Bidding picked up again, and presto, the sale was made.

On another animal, which was showing considerable spirit, the auctioneer halted proceedings in an attempt to unsnag the bidding.

"Listen," he said, motioning to the puffing and snorting bull, "you won't find him hanging around under a shade tree."

Once more the bidding picked up. Again, when he was rattling out frantic pleas to jack up a bid, the raises all came $5 at a time. It was painfully slow.

"Folks," he pleaded, "don't make me work so hard. It's like picking cotton in a wet field."

Frequently, he banged down his gavel and cried in a tone suitable for calling the sinners to repentance: "Now, look here, some of you cattlemen are overlooking a lot of smoothness and quality in this bull..." or "now we haven't sold a bull under $200 this season; don't make me do it now—" or "you've been complaining about these bulls being too fat to work; here's one now that's lean and lank and ready to go."

Almost as much a part of the show as the auctioneer are the ring men. The Texas Hereford Association had a couple of men on hand, and with an ear on the auctioneer and an eye on the crowd, they kept in touch with the bidding. Somewhere out there in the crowd a cattleman lifted a finger, and the ringman cried out "yes." Across the ring, as a new top figure was chanted by the auctioneer, there rung another "yes," and it echoed again on this side of the ring.

When bidding slowed, the ringmen peered at their prospects, pleading for just $5 or $10 more, sometimes reminding that "you can't use him if you don't own him." They crouched, they almost knelt, and when they noted a lifted program, an arched eyebrow, a nod of the head, they jumped and yelled like a cheer leader after a touchdown. It's almost a better show than the cattle.

Research Expert 'Way Off The Track

I am just mad about men, but, by golly, I can only put up with just so much malarkey either about or by them. And, as you may suspect, I have reached the saturation point with one Dr. Ernest Dichter, psychologist and motivational research expert (or at least the blurb says he is.)

Now Dr. Dichter, motivational research expert or no, has just written for True Magazine a piece indicating that this is, indeed, a man's world. Well, that's just dandy with me. But the doctor is 'way off his rocker when he says that it is the husband and not the wife who insists on buying and installing labor-saving devices in the home.

"The woman subconsciously resents appliances that do the chores, because they tend to undermine her importance in the home", is one of Dr. Dichter's obiter dicta. (Psychologist or no, I wonder if the doctor has ever had HIS head examined?)

I have spent a good part of my life observing the marvelous vagaries of men. As a child, I put in long hours of loving observation of my father, uncles, my brother and masculine cousins. And in adulthood, I have had reason to study a husband over a considerable period of time.

And may I say that I have been blessed? My father and my uncles, God rest them, were positively Dream Boats. And my husband is a Living Doll in spades. So are my brother and my cousins.

But let me tell you something, friends: Labor-saving devices and household equipment would still be terra incognita if the Little Woman in the family hadn't acted skillfully and subtly.

If there are women so neurotic — let's say it: crazy—that they "subconsciously resent appliances that do the chores because they tend to undermine her importance in the home," they were happily absent from my family, either by birth or marriage.

Well do I remember the first electric washing machine in our house when I was a child. Sure, papa went up town and bought it. But he went up town and made the purchase only after mama had prepared and conducted a propaganda campaign that our present Psychological Warfare department in Washington could well study for pointers.

Sure, the Head of Clan Robb bought our electric dishwasher. But I am not my mother's daughter for nothing!

Men the creatures who bring home household gadgets and force them on unwilling wives? Ha Professor Dichter, don't make me die laughing! I was only nine or ten at the time, but I have never forgotten papa's dark foreboding the day mama bought a newfangled glass churn with crank action to replace the old wooden one with the up-and-down dingus. Honestly, you'd have thought the cow had died!

I was a few years older when Uncle Charley thought the world had come to an end becuase Aunt Nell bought a mechanical gadget to mix bread. Aunt Nell made wonderful bread. We ate it almost faster than she could make it. And she thought the mechanical gadget, which did away with the necessity of kneading the dough, would help her keep pace with our appetites. But Uncle Charley said it presaged the Decline and Fall of Rome all over again.

Dear Dr. Dichter, I don't know whom you're kidding, but it ain't me!

Buyers Market For N.Y. Office Space

NEW YORK (AP) — A buyer's market seems to be at hand today for one of the last postwar shortages—space in the ultramodern office buildings that have been changing the face of New York City.

Smaller firms wanting modest-sized quarters say they are now able to find them in the fanciest buildings. Until recently builders were loathe to lease to any but those wanting one or more floors.

At least two large projects have been held up until the promoters can sign up enough tenants to induce investors to put up the necessary mortgage money.

Contractors, however, deny that there are any but temporary difficulties. They insist that the great postwar Manhattan building boom hasn't saturated the market, that would-be tenants are still shopping around for space, and that mortgage money will be forthcoming for the delayed projects before long.

Some builders concede that renting isn't as brisk as a couple of years back but say the basic demand for up-to-date offices is still strong.

Growing business firms are finding mounting paper work cramping them in old quarters and are moving into new. Out-of-town manufacturers are moving office headquarters to New York or establishing a New York branch. New businesses continue to be formed, despite all the mergers and even the increase in business fatalities.

Builders say that 1958 will see more square feet of available office space completed than even booming 1957, which set a postwar record. Other buildings now under way will be completed in 1959 and 1960. Enough projected building is considered to be firmly committed to assure construction activity into the next decade.

But the specter of an earlier boom and bust haunts the memory of many in the industry. The 1925 to 1933 office building boom ended with some of the 30 million square feet of new office space going begging.

Proposed building by corporations for their own use seems fairly sure of going through on schedule. The others announced or filed by commercial builders will await signing of tenants and sewing up of mortgage money.

Who's Scared Now?

Whitey Sawyer, Associated Press newsman, shows how he feared he would appear after a tour of an automobile thrill show. That smile on his face shows that he did, after all, calm down the little woman and he's still wearing his wedding ring. The broken steering wheel is just a prop but the helmet was real enough.

Thrill Show? Wife Is More Dangerous

By WHITEY SAWYER

DALLAS, Jan. 15 (AP)—Riding in an automobile thrill show? Nothing to it. The hard part is facing your wife afterward.

It all started the day my wife was to go to the fair to see the things she wanted to see.

Then we got an offer to watch the Auto Thrill Show, Aut Swenson's thrillcade, from the infield. We parked Margie in the stands "just for a couple of minutes."

We walked around looking at the cars and talking with the drivers. Then Lucky Kenny Blaine, called the Canadian daredevil, climbed into a shiny new sedan and said, "Want to go for a ride?"

"Okay," we said, and climbed in.

The car roared out onto the quarter-mile track and two others followed us. Once around the track in a wild slide and we discovered what those funny-looking ramps on the front straight were for. We put two wheels on one, rolled the left side up at about a 45 degree angle for a minute, gave this reporter a startling look at the ground zipping by the window where the scenery should have been, then came down with a crash.

Then ,whomp, up the second. We made a couple of laps and hit the ramps each time, then Blaine slid to a halt, leaped out and took a bow. We didn't get out until the car was driven back into the infield, the match and the cigarette finally got together, and the knees felt a bit better.

We watched a couple more acts and started for the stands to pick up the wife. Blaine was climbing in his car again and asked with a grin, "Want to go for another ride?"

What the heck. The cars didn't look scuffed and the first ride wasn't so bad, so we managed to grin back, "sure," and climbed in.

The ramps were higher this time and the car rolled up to about 90 degrees. Just like the first time, only more so. Took us longer to get the smoke lit afterward, too.

"How'd you like it," Blaine asked afterward.

"Fine," we grinned back, after all, it was all over.

"Say, this guy likes it," chimed in Jumping Jimmy Dean. "How'd you like to go over the elephant jump with me?"

"Sure," we answered with what they call reckless braggadio. "What is it?"

"Well, they put an elephant between those two ramps over there. We run up one ramp in a pickup truck, jump over the elephant, and land on the other. Nothing to it. I do it twice a day," Dean answered.

It was too late to back out.

That was the grand finale.

We roared around the track, lined up with the ramp and elephant, and Dean gave her the gun. Whump, we hit the ramp, sailed through the air for a minute, then ker-blam, came down on the other ramp, bumped off and slid to a halt.

Several broken matches later, we puffed the cigarette and saggered through the late afternoon shadows to where the wife was waiting, not very patiently.

When we got there, well, that's what we meant by the hard part.

Actor's Wife Escapes Fire

ENCINO, Calif. (AP) — Actor John Wayne's wife was slightly burned but she and her baby and servants escaped unharmed otherwise in an earyy morning fire Tuesday at the Wayne residence.

The actor is in Japan making a picture.

Mrs. Wayne, the former Peruvian actress Pilar Palette, and her 20-month-old daughter, Aissa, were asleep when the fire broke out in a second-floor bedroom of the house about 3:20 a.m.

She attempted to put out the fire with an extinguisher, suffering a slight burn on her arm, then called the fire department and fled with the baby. She took refuge in a caretaker's house.

Two servants and three dogs also fled the burning house.

The fire department dispatched seven pieces of apparatus to the house, on a six-acre, $250,000 estate in this western suburb of Los Angeles where many movie people live.

Asst. Chief Harry Gross said the entire second floor of the house was ruined before the flames were controlled after about an hour.

Firemen said there was a fire in the fireplace of the bedroom where the blaze started but Mrs. Wayne said the fire appeared to have started with a burst, like a small explosion, in a pile of phonograph records.

Spreading Storm Covers Northeast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A spreading storm brought continuing bad weather to the Northeast and another storm area—with a mass of arctic air—caused misery in the nation's mid-section today.

In Texas, a handful of small twisters were reported. Most were reported in the air, but one touched ground near Greenville and damaged two barns and two sheds. There were no injuries reported.

The storm moving off the New England coast caused widespread cloudiness and rain as far west as Ohio and parts of Kentucky. Snow flurries occurred through much of the New England states with rain and freezing rain over Pennsylvania and West Virgina.

Arctic air, which brought a chill to the northern Plains yesterday, moved southward into the central Plains, reaching to the Oklahoma and Texas Panhandles.

Solons, Ex-UN Members Okay Space Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP)—Four senators, all former U. N. delegates, endorsed today a proposal that members of the world organization be invited to join in a program aimed at manning space for peace.

They did not indicate whether they thought Russia would go along with the idea, put forth by Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex).

Senators Humphrey (D-Minn), Sparkman (D-Ala), H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) and Cooper (R-Ky) voiced approval in separate interviews of Johnson's suggestion, which would include also a broad exchange of satellite information.

Johnson, Senate Democratic leader, heads the Senate Preparedness subcommittee's inquiry into the missile and satellite programs.

He told a meeting of CBS affiliates that efforts should be made to enlist Russia and all other members of the U. N. to share the endeavor to make outer space an "outpost for peace."

There was no immediate administration reaction to the proposal.

Humphrey, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Johnson's proposal "shows the kind of insight and imagination that is worthy of this country."

Cooper said, "I am for any move that would advance the prospects of peaceful control of space. It would dramatize to the world our desire for peace."

Sparkman said that an invitation such as Johnson proposed could be regarded only as "a step forward in the struggle for peace."

Smith said he agrees with Johnson's thesis that a buildup in weapons alone will not be sufficient to maintain the security of the United States.

"At this point," Smith said, "who controls the thinking of the world is more important than who controls space. We must sell the world on the message of freedom and its hope for peace."

Sleuths Seek Bright Students

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Faculty sleuths at the University of California at Los Angeles are using advanced techniques to uncover freshmen with exceptional academic ability.

The UCLA detectives said that out of 840 frosh tested since last September, 94 placed among the upper half of 1 per cent in intelligence nationally.

"We found two students who could have skipped college altogether and gone into graduate work," one official said.

UCLA Dean of Students Milton E. Harn said there are many gifted students who might go through their four years "never realizing their potential."

The whole program, says Hahn, is to broaden, enrich and speed up educational opportunities. He said the 94 freshmen have an ability to take courses one to three years above their grade levels, and every effort will be made to give them as much additional work as they can handle.

Cotton Poses Most Confusing Of Problems Facing Congress

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cotton poses probably the most confusing farm commodity problem facing the administration and Congress.

A surplus of cotton continues insofar as quantity is concerned. Some experts say there is a potential shortage of some better grades because of the poor quality of last year's weather-plagued crop.

In a report to its 32-member cotton exporting and importing nations yesterday, the International Cotton Advisory Committee said there no longer is a surplus of the higher grades. It said a tight supply situation with regard to these grades may develop later this year.

Similar warnings are being issued by domestic cotton mills.

Yet, in the face of these forecasts, the government is continuing rigid production and marketing quotas on the crop this year. Planting allotments have been set at the minimum level permitted by law. The Agriculture Department also is offering farmers payments to take a part of all of their allotments out of production under the soil bank program.

On the other hand, some cotton-state congressmen and leaders in the cotton industry are urging the government to increase this year's planting allotments. Secretary of Agriculture Benson says farm law gives him authority, under emergency conditions, to raise allotments above the level determined by a farm law formula which takes supply and demand factors into consideration.

Benson hesitates to raise the allotments. He indicates he may not do so unless Congress directs him. He sees the possibility of tight supplies of some grades. But he doesn't like the idea of asking farmers to plant more cotton at the same time it is offering them subsidies to plant less.

This year's cotton developments could have far-reaching effect on future cotton programs and markets.

Because total supplies are smaller than last year, it will be necessary for Benson to raise price supports for the crop. Under the flexible price support law, supports must be raised as supplies decline and can be reduced as they increase.

Yet an increase in supports would work against policies advocated by Benson. He contends cotton must be priced cheaper if American growers are to retain and expand markets hit by growing competition by foreign cotton and by synthetic fibers in this country.

An increase in the support rate would make it necessary for the government to dig up more money to finance sales of surplus cotton abroad.

Benson has been resisting industry pressure to increase 1958 allotments until he can get assurance Congress will enact a long-range cotton program along lines he advocates.

The administration wants authority to set cotton supports between 60 and 90 per cent of parity. The present rate is 75 to 90 per cent.

The administration believes that if lower supports are permitted, it would be possible to ease up on present rigid production controls because markets would take larger amounts of the crop and that farmers would earn larger net incomes.

Strong opposition exists in Congress to the lower support minimum, particularly from Democratic farm leaders.

An increase in 1958 allotments would pose a new risk of surpluses. Because of increasing technology it would be possible, on the basis of a small increase in allotments, to boost production to a point where a new surplus problem would be created. All that would be needed would be favorable weather.

Cabbie May Not Keep Big Tip

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (AP)—A cab driver may not collect a $5,000 tip offered by retired Navy Capt. Jesse L. Kenworthy, 66, of Parkesburg, Pa.

Mrs. Lorna Kenworthy of Encinita, Calif., filed a Superior Court petition yesterday asking Judge Milton Sapiro to declare her husband mentally incompetent. A hearing was scheduled for Monday.

Mrs. Kenworthy, who had not seen her husband for 10 years, said in the petition that he was recently classified as a manic-depressive by a Pennsylvania mental clinic.

Cab driver Bruno Del Carlo, 31, also was told by Lt. George Page of the police check detail that Kenworthy's Parkesburg bank account apparently contains less than $2,600.

Del Carlo told police he was given the $5,000 check after he drove the retired officer around San Francisco and to the airport twice.

Kenworthy is a survivor of the crash of the dirigible Macon and the sinking at Pearl Harbor of the battleship Oklahoma. He was retired after serving 17 months in a Navy hospital and was given a 100 per cent disability pension.

Baby Replaces 8 Lost To Family

SIGOURNEY, Iowa (AP) — Myron Richard Hammes, 1 day old, is going to get a lot of spoiling from his daddy.

The infant is the first child born to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hammes since a train-auto collision Oct. 25, 1956, in which all eight of their children were fatally injured.

Mrs. Hammes, 39, and the baby were "doing fine," said the 47-year-old father.

Mrs. Hammes was driving the family automobile when it collided with a freight train. Hammes said "We've had a pretty dull life for a year."

What Car Has The Best Brakes?

Read this

"After testing a 1958 CENTURY, one of four Buick Series (all but the SPECIAL) equipped with new deeply-finned aluminum front brake drums, it is our agreeable duty to report that these are the best brakes on a Detroit sedan by far that we have tested, and that they are, conservatively, a 100 per cent improvement over conventional Detroit brakes."

Direct quotation from the new issue of SPORTS CARS ILLUSTRATED in a report entitled:
"THE SPORTS CARS ILLUSTRATED 1958 AWARD
IN RECOGNITION OF OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT AND SIGNIFICANT CONTRIBUTION IN THE AUTOMOTIVE FIELD PRESENTED TO THE BUICK MOTOR DIVISION, GENERAL MOTORS CORPORATION, FOR MAJOR ADVANCES IN BRAKES."

NOW—more than ever—
When better automobiles are built
Buick will build them

Every window of every Buick is SAFETY PLATE Glass

22 emergency stops from 60 mph—and Buick's brakes still effective!

As a result of this grueling brake test, SCI stated: "We find it the rule for Detroit sedans to brake quite efficiently for the first few stops, but then they deteriorate rapidly." But here's what happened in the Buick CENTURY: 22 "crash stops"* were made from 60 MPH, and afterwards, the brakes were still fully effective. Says SCI: "This was by far the most severe test we ever have submitted a sedan's brakes to, but after it was over the Buick's brakes functioned perfectly . . . Buick has done it . . . has set a new standard of brake quality . . ."

*"Crash Stop"—fastest full stop possible for a car traveling at a given speed.

THAT's the story as told by SPORTS CARS ILLUSTRATED. You'll find how true the story is when you drive the Air Born B-58 Buick yourself and learn about all its great features.

There are totally new features in ride, in performance, in all-round comfort and ease of handling. Come on in and prove that — at your Buick dealer's—today.

Sarah Churchill Jailed

Actress Sarah Churchill, 43-year-old daughter of Sir Winston Churchill, struggles with deputy Roger Johnson and another officer at County Jail in Los Angeles after the actress was jailed as a drunk.

Weaver Elected YMCA President

R. H. Weaver, Howard County judge, was elected president of the Big Spring YMCA at the meeting of directors Tuesday.

Elected with him in the top official spots were Dan Krausse, vice president; Horace Garrett, treasurer; and Mrs. Arch Carson, secretary.

Bobo Hardy, general secretary, reported on the year's highlights and pointed out that extreme program expansion had emphasized the space problem.

The sustaining division has gone into action on the annual YMCA membership campaign, Weaver reported, and the division leaders and captains have been selected for the general membership enlistment which will start Jan. 27 and will conclude with a victory dinner Jan. 30.

The board instructed the executive committee to proceed with details of a property exchange with R. R. McEwen. This would involve transfer of title on the present plant and property at 5th and Gregg but with an 18-months leeway for the Y to vacate its present premises. This is looking toward a capital funds campaign for a new Y home.

The World Service effort resulted in $322 being raised for this purpose, including $214 by the Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y units, Mrs. Lee Rogers reported.

Members coming on the board for the first time were Mrs. Curtis Driver, Dr. John Fish, Floyd Parsons, Champ Rainwater, Howard Schwarzenbach. Retiring were Dr. R. Gage Lloyd, J. D. Jones, Truman Jones, John Dibrell, S. M. Smith, Dr. T. J. Williamson, E. L. Powell, Tom McAdams and Robert Stripling. Dr. Lloyd had served nine years.

No More Special Sessions Planned

AUSTIN (AP)—Gov. Price Daniel told the key men of his executive branch of state government today that he planned no more special legislative sessions and would concentrate with them to carry out state laws already on the books.

Daniel also said he was making no definite plans for new state taxes.

About 200 administrative heads and fiscal officers of agencies under the executive branch attended the special conference called by Daniel.

"I assure you now that all the special sessions have been held that are going to be held as far as I am concerned," Daniel said in his enthusiastic speech.

"I am now ready to concentrate on working with you in carrying out the legislative enactments."

He bore down strongly on honesty, integrity and law enforcement in the state agencies and departments. Daniel also appealed to agency and department heads to do their best to stay within the money allotted them by the last Legislature.

"There have been some rumblings that we will not be able to keep up with the tax receipts this biennium which will result in a need for more tax income the next biennium," the governor said.

"I assure you these rumblings have not come from me. I am not as pessimistic as some people."

Daniel urged the officials to "enforce with diligence" the new code of ethics law. It requires state officials, employes and legislators to make public any properties they own which are under state control.

Another new law requiring registration of persons who represent others before state agencies also was explained. The law becomes effective Feb. 11.

Daniel's main topics were honesty, integrity and and public confidence in state government.

He said the recent Travis County grand jury's report giving state government a general clean bill of health regarding alleged misconduct of state officials and employes should be maintained.

"You have the most important ingredients for successful administration of state responsibilities—integrity, efficiency and public confidence," Daniel said.

"I consider this matter of public confidence the most essential requirement for the success of any government, and I urge each of you to continue with diligency the maintenance of integrity and public confidence throughout all of our state agencies."

Daniel, who began his second year as chief executive of the state, said he hoped "the very few wrong-doers among our 56,000 state officers and employes have been exposed and eliminated."

He said two kinds of people were guilty of destroying public confidence in government.

"There are the few who violate the public trust," he said.

"On the other hand there are the self seeking demagogues who exploit the few exceptions and create unjustified distrust with broad and unfounded charges against everyone in public service. And our state certainly has had its share of them.

"Both are guilty of destructive acts against our system of government."

Dr. Lloyd Takes Office As New Knife And Fork Prexy

Dr. R. Gage Lloyd, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, is the new president of the Big Spring Knife and Fork Club. He was introduced to the club membership Tuesday night and presided at the initial meeting of the club for the winter and spring series.

He succeeds Elmer Tarbox who served as president for the past year.

Roy Reeder is vice president.

The opening meeting of the new season was hailed as one of the best attended and most enjoyable sessions in some months.

Hostesses for the Tuesday dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Reeder and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Elliott. B. M. Keese asked the invocation.

Frank Goodwin, eminent business expert and popular writer on business topics, was the speaker and was described by club members as one of the most entertaining and informative lecturers the club has heard in a long time.

Dr. Goodwin stressed the importance of human relations in business. He pointed out that if a person is a self-centered individual he cannot help but affect himself adversely and do the same to all persons with whom he comes in contact. In business, he said, it is necessary to have a genuine smile and a warmth of interest to get and hold customers.

Mrs. Moree Sawtelle, elected to succeed herself as secretary of the club, said that 110 persons attended the dinner meeting. There were 12 new members enrolled in the club.

The next meeting of the club will be on the night of Feb. 17.

Painted Rocks On Display As MOD Benefit

Students of early Indian history are invited by the Fred Campbells to visit the famous painted rocks on either of the last two Sundays in January, Bill Sims, assistant county farm agent, said Wednesday.

The Campbells are following a custom of many years standing in announcing the opening of the painted rock area to the public on the last two Sundays in this month. They charge a fee of $1 per car to visit the area and every dime collected is given to the March of Dimes.

Mrs. Campbell is Bill Sims' sister.

The Campbell ranch encloses an area where primitive Indian artists painted elaborate pictures on rocks which form the bank of a creek.

Ordinarily the owners are reluctant to permit public entrance to the area and it is only at this season of the year that such visits are made possible. Several hundred carloads of tourists usually visit the painted rocks each January and the polio fund benefits accordingly.

The Campbell Ranch is about 30 miles east of San Angelo.

Prolonged Tests Produce Oil From 2nd Pennsylvanian Zone

The Shell No. 1-BA Slaughter venture in Borden County flowed oil from a second zone of the Pennsylvanian Tuesday and was still flowing today.

Meanwhile, a Devonian drillstem test at a Martin County wildcat proved fruitless.

The Shell Slaughter flowed 213 barrels of oil in 19 hours through a quarter-inch choke from perforations 8,164-82 feet in the Pennsylvanian. Operator the day before got oil from perforations below 8,300 feet in the Pennsylvanian.

The Hunt No. 1 Flynt Ranch six miles south of the Breedlove field recovered only 2,000-foot water blanket and 30 feet of drilling mud on the test below 12,000 feet.

Borden

Nortex No. 1 Clayton, in the Northeast Good field, drilled through lime and shale at 7,202 feet. The location is 10½ miles southwest of Gail, 1,980 from south and 2,010 from west lines, 21-32-4n, T&P Survey.

Also in the Northeast Good pool, Gulf No. 1-B Clayton deepened to 8,000 feet in lime and shale. Drillsite is C SW SE, 20-32-4n, T&P Survey, and 11 miles southwest of Gail.

Shell No. 1-BA Slaughter continued to flow today from Pennsylvanian perforations 8,164-82 feet, and during the three hours prior to last report, it flowed at a rate of nine barrels per hour. Earlier it flowed 19 hours through a quarter-inch choke and made 213 barrels of oil.

Previously, operator tested Pennsylvanian perforations from 8,310-15 and 8,344-57 feet. The well is in the Lazy S. (Ellenburger) field, C NW NW, 15-30-6n, T&P Survey, and 12 miles north of Gail.

After topping the Ellenburger at 8,590 feet, operator deepened to 8,610 feet and prepared to drillstem test at the Hunt No. 1 Jones, eight miles north of Gail. The test was slated from 8,568-610 feet. The wildcat is five miles southeast of the Lazy S. (Ellenburger) field, C NE NE, 1-HB, Black Survey.

Howard

Guthrie No. 3 Bowen, in the Howard-Glasscock field, pumped 11 barrels of oil and two per cent water in 24 hours. Production in the Yates is reached at 1,247 feet, with casing perforated from 1,254-61 feet. Total depth is 1,295 feet. The well is 2,310 from south and 33 from east lines, 64-29, W&NW Survey.

Hyer No. 4-H Clay pumped 36.52 barrels of 31-degree oil on 24-hour potential. It is also in the Howard-Glasscock field 430 from north and 990 from east lines, 155-29, W&NW Survey. The hole bottoms at 1,818 feet, with top of the pay zone at 1,805.

Martin

Hunt No. 1 Flynt Ranch drilled ahead today after running a drillstem test in the Devonian from 12,190-208 feet. Tool was open three hours, and recovery was 2,000-foot water blanket and 30 feet of drilling mud. The wildcat is 660 from north and east lines, Labor 11, League 248, Hartley CSL Survey, and 8½ miles northwest of Tarzan.

Husky-Pano Tech No. 1 Yates, a Devonian try 10 miles southwest of Patricia, made hole in lime and shale at 10,081 feet today. The project is 660 from south and west lines, Tract 22, League 263, Kent CSL Survey.

In the North Breedlove field, Pen American Petroleum No. 1 Irvin Snell drilled at 11,925 feet in lime. The location is 660 from south and west lines, Labor 2, League 259, Borden-CSL Survey, and six miles southwest of Patricia.

Sterling

Humble No. 1 W. N. Reed drilled through lime at 2,400 feet today. It is a wildcat to test the Glorieta to 3,000 feet and is located three miles southeast of the Howard-Glasscock field, C NE NE, 170-29, W&NW Survey.

Examinations Set

Examinations for several positions have been announced by the civil service commission for assignment to Webb AFB. The positions include general machinist ($2.29 - $2.65 per hour) heating equipment repairer ($2.09 to $2.42), battery servicer $(1.70 to $1.97). Information and applications may be obtained from the post office or from the executive secretary for the commission at Webb AFB.

Youth Implicates Self In Burglary

Carl Lee Cakl, 19-year-old Midland youth held in the Howard County jail on a robbery by assault charge, implicated himself in a Nov. 22 Midland auto supply store burglary in a statement made to Jack Shaffer, Howard County deputy sheriff.

He said that a .22 calibre pistol allegedly used in the Tuesday afternoon burglary of the Pinkie's Liquor Store on the Snyder Highway came from the Midland store. Previously, he told officers he had purchased the pistol from a man whom he did not know.

Cakl's bond has been set at $3,000.

He has made no effort to post bond and Shaffer said that relatives in Midland have not indicated they intend to provide him with any assistance.

He is under the robbery charge in this county and also faces car theft charges in Midland in connection without the stealing of the 1955 Buick in which he was travelling at the time he staged the liquor store hold up.

It was indicated that the Midland authorities planned to lodge burglary charges against him in the auto supply store case.

Cakl told officers he worked in the oil field for a short time.

He was arrested in Gail 35 minutes after the store holdup. Sid Reeder, Borden county sheriff, apprehended the fugitive after a wild race along a Broden county road.

resign. He said Dulles is the last person he would want to see resign, and added that he regards the Cabinet officer as the wisest and most dedicated man he knows.

GAVIN — The resignation of Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin as the Army's chief of research and development was a personality matter, Eisenhower said. He added that Gavin had a right to quit. Gavin has decided to quit at the end of March because of policy differences regarding the defense program.

DEFENSE REORGANIZATION — The President, who has promised a reorganization of the defense setup, declined to answer questions about his plans. He said he would not disclose details in advance of his special message to Congress.

OPPENHEIMER—Asked about the possibility of restoring the access of scientist Robert Oppenheimer to government nuclear secrets, Eisenhower replied that he has not heard the slightest thing regarding any such step. Oppenheimer, who helped develop the atomic bomb, was barred in 1954 from access to government atomic data on grounds he was a questionable security risk.

LITTLE ROCK — Eisenhower said he hopes Little Rock officials soon will be in a position to notify him that they now are able to maintain order there in connection with school integration. He had been asked what he regards as the next step in that situation.

Asked whether he is now awaiting word from Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus that order can be maintained without troops, Eisenhower replied with a crisp no.

Bovines Bounce Midland, 67-49

MIDLAND, (SC) — Nothing the youthful Midland Bulldogs tried worked here Tuesday night as Big Spring raced to a 67-49 decision in the opening District 2-AAAA basketball game for both teams.

The Bulldogs concentrated on trying to stop big Jan Loudermilk in the first half and that gave Bill Thompson and Preston Hollis a chance to break loose.

Hollis got all seven of his field goals in the first two quarters while Thompson accounted for four field goals and a free pitch before the half.

The Bulldogs switched off in the last half and Loudermilk went on a scoring rampage, getting seven buckets and as many free pitches after the intermission.

Jan wound up with 30 points to run his year's aggregate to 517 points, which leaves him just 13 shy of his individual scoring record, which he set last year.

Hollis added two free pitches to his efforts in the last half and wound up with 16 points while Thompson, who sat out much of the second half due to the fact that he had four fouls on him, had nine.

Midland was led by Jim Poteet, who tossed in 16 points; and Charles Geisey, who had 13.

Big Spring led by only three points (10-7) at the end of the first half but had widened that to 32-24 at half time. The Steers outscored the Bulldogs, 16-13, in the third period and 19-12 in the last eight minutes.

The victory was the 16th for Big Spring in 21 starts this season.

Big Spring lost the B game, 64-44, but won the C game, 41-37. Goose Russell led the Steer B teamers with nine points.

In the C game, Eston Hollis and Zay LeFevre each scored 10 points.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Some of the most influential alumni at Texas A&M obviously haven't learned their lesson.

They remind me of the fight manager whose boy was being knocked from pillar to post by the opposition and then, once his tiger was back in his corner, told him:

"Come on. He hasn't hurt us yet."

The restrictions slapped on the school a couple of years ago by the NCAA apparently don't mean a thing to that segment of ex-students who want to have a big say in who runs the athletic department in Aggieland.

Officials of the schools have found their hands tied by the alumni on more than one occasion. The story that the school was to pay Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State $60,000 was not without substance, even though the president of the school and other officials denied it. The school's chief executive wasn't being hypocritical. He probably didn't know too much about the offer.

The big names which have been lured to Texas for interviews are being coaxed by talk of big money. Really big. But it's the alumni, not the school, who are doing the talking.

The NCAA is aware of the situation, however. And, if the alumni doesn't relent and let the people vested with the authority run the school (and its athletic program), the Aggies are apt to be right behind the Eight Ball again.

Shorty Gideon, general manager of the Muny golf course here, works on a limited budget but it doesn't discourage him. He's made many improvements at the course since he took over and has kept busy this winter doing what he could to make the layout more attractive to the customer.

If the city dads could see fit to authorize an irrigation system for the course, Gideon would see to it that Big Spring would have one of the state's finest public links courses.

Bill Svoboda, who played his high school football in Texas and then went to Tulane University, says he will probably retire from pro ball. His knee gave him trouble during the 1957 season.

Svoboda, an employe of the New York Giants, now lives in Houma, La. He's 29. Bill revealed recently the average annual salary in the NFL runs between $7,300 and $7,400.

He says Y. A. Tittle, one-time Marshall, Texas, star and now a standout of the San Francisco 49ers, is the best quarterback he's ever seen play.

Jess Fuglaar, a backfield star here in the late '20's, now resides in Yuba City, Calif.

His nephew, Pete Fuglaar, a linemen here a few years back, coached a Floydada Junior High School team last fall that won seven of eight starts. The team's only loss was to Plainview.

Pete was in the trucking business for a while but turned to coaching last fall.

Transfer

Al Lock, a member of the San Angelo College basketball team, which hosts HCJC tonight, is a transfer from Baylor University. He's 6-feet-4 and will be at the high post in Coach Phil George's tandem offense. He's been one of the outstanding men on the boards for the Rams this season.

HC Tries Ram Five

Harold Davis and his HCJC Jayhawks head for San Angelo today and an 8 o'clock date with Phil George's SAC Rams, seeking their 16th win of the year.

The Hawks have always had trouble with the Rams in Angelo and this year will, without much doubt, prove no exception.

The Rams, defending national juco champions, have dropped five decisions this year and three of those were to junior college teams. Two of the JC reversals, incidentally, came in the Howard College tournament—one to Amarillo and the other to Odessa.

In three starts against Odessa this year, however, the Rams have won two decisions.

The Rams' other losses have come at the hands of Cameron, Okla.; and H-SU's Buttons, two to the latter club.

HCJC beat the Buttons by six points in Abilene only last Saturday evening.

Billy Tankersly is the only San Angelo letterman back from last season. He's a 5-feet-9 guard. He hails from Mertzon.

Other SAC standouts include Al Lock, 6-4; and Douglass Funk, a freshman from Austin.

The Rams have beaten Schreiner Institute, West Texas State College frosh twice, Joplin, Mo.; and Arlington State.

HCJC carries a 15-2 won-lost record south, having lost only to the McMurry Papooses and Ark City, Kan.

Probable starters for the Hawks include Benny Carver, Larry Glore, Tommy Zinn, Mike Musgrove and Dale Woodruff or Bill Borries.

The game is one of two booked for HC this week. The Hawks meet H-SU in a return game here Saturday night.

HCJC has beaten the Rams only one time in history in San Angelo. That was by a score of 67-46 eight years ago, in the era of Bill Fletcher, Melvin Norris, Delmer Turner, Casey Jones and Harold Berry.

Wolfpack Blasts Ponies, 72-59

COLORADO CITY — Colorado City's Wolves blasted Denver City Tuesday night, 72 to 59, with Don Black leading the winners with 24 points, Johnnie Johnson netted 18 for Denver City.

Denver City's B stringers took the opener by a 49 to 46 score. Dickie Richardson scored 20 for Colorado City, Ralph Townes 16 for Denver City.

Colorado City will open its conference season Friday night at Sweetwater.

FOR SIXTH WIN

Jayhawk Queens Shade Wayland

Arah Phillips' HCJC Jayhawk Queens fashioned a 53-45 victory over the Wayland College freshman team in a basketball game played here Tuesday night.

The score was tied no less than ten times during the game but Wayland led only once. That was at the end of the third period.

Peggy Francis paced HCJC's attack with ten points and one free pitch for 21 points. Lovelle Fletcher had 13 points and Patty Francis eight for the winners.

Zee McKunn of Happy, Texas, tossed in 13 points to lead Wayland. Peggy Alexander, who also plays with the Wayland varsity team (the only freshman to do so), was held scoreless by the Jayhawk Queens, who now have a 6-3 won-lost record.

Jane Blissard, Faye Ramsey and Dayna Ward did excellent work in the backcourts for HCJC, along with sub Doris Godwin.

Coach Phillips has a game lined up with McMurry but the date has not been established.

PITCOCK HITS 42 FOR BUFFS

GARDEN CITY (SC)—Garden City defeated Forsan, 46-39, in a District 19-B boys' basketball game played here Tuesday night.

Highlight of the evening, however, was a 42-point scoring effort in the girls game by Nedelene Pitcock of Forsan, who guided her team to a narrow 47-44 win over the home club.

Merger Ruled Out By Prexy

DALLAS (AP)—A possible merger with the Texas League was ruled out by the president of the Mexican League yesterday, but one franchise owner still seems to think there is a chance for it to go through.

Federico Miranda, president of the Mexican League, denied in Mexico City there was any chance of such a merger.

He said the Mexican League definitely will continue to operate for the 1958 season with its regular six teams.

But George Schepps, organizer of the Dallas community-owned baseball club, said there still was a chance of lining up with the Mexican League.

". . . If the Mexican League does not decide on Jan. 26 to operate this season, there is a great possibility that the member clubs of the Texas League will grant franchises to Mexico City and Monterrey. This would make the Texas League eligible for AAA classification."

Miranda's statement, however, apparently ruled this out.

Schepps put out 2,000 letters today inviting baseball fans to become partners in the Dallas Community Baseball Assn. He delivered more than $10,000 in checks to Texas League President Dick Butler yesterday, the first payment on the $40,000 franchise purchase price.

He has until next Tuesday to raise the rest and find a playing site.

Phillips Takes Job

JACKSONVILLE (AP)—O. A. Phillips, an assistant coach at Texas A&M under Paul Bryant for the past year, has resigned to accept a post as head coach and athletic director at Jacksonville High School. Phillips moved to A&M after six years as head coach at Nederland.

Turner To Try Vince Martinez In Philly Ring

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Depending upon where you live, tonight's bout between Philadelphia's Gil Turner and Vince Martinez of Paterson, N.J., is or isn't a fight to earn a shot at he welterweight championship.

If you live in New York or in any place where the jurisdiction of the World Boxing Championship Commitee is accepted as law, you'll merely be watching one of a series of eliminations to determine a title-holder.

If you live in Massachusetts you probably will watch the bout as just another fight of top welterweights.

If, however, you live in a state where boxing is under the National Boxing Assn., you will be witnessing the semifinal elimination in the 147-pound title series. The winner has been ordered by the NBA to fight Isaac Logart for the title vacated by Carmen Basilio after he won the middleweight crown from Sugar Ray Robinson.

The NBA says it will recognize the winner of a Turner, Martinez, Logart, Gaspar Ortega elimination series as champion. Logart beat Ortega and thus already has fought his way into the final.

The world committee, headed by Julius Helfand, New York State Athletic Commission chairman, says it will recognize the winner of a Martinez, Turner, Logart, Ortega, George Barnes, Virgil Akins elimination series.

Massachusetts already has a welterweight champion of its own. He's Akins, who defeated Tony DeMarco in Boston for the New England version of the title. Massachusetts seceded from the NBA when it refused to go along with Akins.

Martinez, the clever boxer-puncher who has won 58 fights and lost only 5, is the favorite at about 7-5. The experts feel he will outbox the aggressive Turner and possibly could win by a knockout if the Philadelphia Negro gets careless as he sometimes is prone to do.

Turner has won 55, lost 15 and drawn in 1.

ABC will telecast the fight.

Lloyd Stevens netted 25, Steve Jarnigan managed 17, and Dennis Love added 15, for the Clarendon win. The Badgers' Tarbet secured 19 and Jim Bevers followed up with 12.

CLARENDON (82)—Steve Jarnigan 8-1-17; Eldridge 1-0-2; Dennis Love 6-3-15; Lloyd Stevens 9-7-25; Schneider 4-3-11; Johnson 2-3-7; Cusinberry 1-3-4; Lesley 0-0-0; McGee 0-1-1. Totals 30-22-82.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Texas A&M climbed into a tie for third place in the Southwest Conference basketball race Tuesday night by whipping the Baylor Bears 57-47.

Swisher led the scoring with 17 points. Bob Turner led Baylor with 13.

The Aggies dominated the backboards, scooping up 51 rebounds to 28 for the Bears.

Buck McNew was the game's leading scorer with 23 points for losing Knott. For the victorious Eagles, Wilbur Stone had 15.

Knott's girl sextet never trailed in their game, although Sterling was right on their heels every minute of the way. Jean Samples collected 26 points for the winners, while E. Cole paced Sterling with 14 markers.

Next Tuesday night the Billies will journey to Forsan for another conference basketball meeting, both boys and girls.

Erdelatz Bows Out With Angry Blast

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Texas A & M was shopping for a football coach again today after Navy's Eddie Erdelatz bowed out with an angry blast at Aggie representatives over the way his visit was arranged.

Erdelatz was the sixth coach mentioned for the $16,000-a-year job and the fifth to visit the campus. No prospects are in sight.

Erdelatz's dispute was with Jack Finney, chairman of the coach selection committee of the college board of directors.

"I am going to remain at Navy," Erdelatz told newsmen. He said he felt A&M didn't follow proper protocol in dealing with him.

The Dallas News quoted him as saying he had learned that the selection committee had more authority in hiring a coach than President M. T. Harrington and the athletic council.

"Hell, if I'd known that I wouldn't have come," Erdelatz was quoted as saying. "But you know I'm a stranger here."

Erdelatz said a condition of his visit was that the college contact Rear Adm. William R. Smedburg III, superintendent of the Naval Academy to get permission for him to come here. He said he learned after his arrival that this had not been done. He said Finney had talked with Capt. Slade Cutter, Naval Academy athletic director, but insisted this was not sufficient.

Finney later issued a statement saying he tried in vain to contact President Harrington so he could secure permission of Adm. Smedburg.

"Mr. Erdelatz agreed to come to Texas to talk to our athletic council and if after talking to them they were interested in offering him the job and he were interested in accepting it, then his admiral would be called," Finney said. "We thought that was the proper procedure."

Erdelatz said he made up his mind to bow out after receiving a telegram from midshipmen urging him to stay at the Naval Academy.

The dispute between the Navy coach and Finney occurred as Erdelatz was framing a formal statement on why he was turning down the job.

Erdelatz had been contacted last Friday in Washington, D. C. at which time Cutter was told A&M was interested in Erdelatz.

Dr. C. H. Groneman, chairman of the Aggie athletic council, said another meeting of the council must be held before it decides its next move. Asked if there were any other coaches under consideration, he said, "I just don't know."

IN NCAA MEET

Oklahoma State May Land A Bid

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

Oklahoma State's Cowboys, members of one conference, scheduled in another and not eligible for the title in either, may be able to corral a post-season tournament berth as an independent.

Coach Hank Iba's boys, new members of the Big Eight after ditching the Missouri Valley Conference, won their 11th straight with a 55-42 decision over Wichita last night. The only setback of State's record is a season-opening 63-56 defeat by Kansas.

The Cowboys, ranked seventh in this week's Associated Press poll, play only four games in the Big Eight Conference (home-and-home against Kansas and Oklahoma) because of long-range scheduling commitments. They also have a full 16-game card against Missouri Valley clubs.

Since the Big Eight membership doesn't carry a title possibility, however, the Cowboys are free to fish for an at-large bid to the NCAA university tournament or a crack at the National Invitation tourney.

Maryland (No. 3) was the only other ranked club at work last night, defeating Georgetown (DC) 53-45 after an unexpected scrap.

Tonight, unbeaten, top-ranked West Virginia shoots for No. 13 against Pittsburgh; North Carolina, sixth, goes against North Carolina State, No. 20, in an Atlantic Coast Conference re-match; once-beaten Bradley meets St. Louis in a Missouri Valley contest.

Oklahoma State's win broke Wichita's streak at eight and handed the 17th-ranked Wheatshockers their first home defeat in a 10-2 record.

Maryland blanked Georgetown in the last 3½ minutes, with free throws doing the job.

Clemson defeated Wake Forest for the first time since 1951 in an 81-72 ACC decision with Vince Yockel scoring 30 points.

Virginia Military won its first of the season in the Southern Conference with a 66-62 upset of Richmond. Texas A&M rolled past Baylor 57-47 in the Southwest Conference, while Miami (Ohio) whipped Ohio U. 75-66 in Mid-American play and San Jose rapped College of Pacific 78-60 in the West Coast Athletic Assn.

Duquesne upset LaSalle 74-55, Hobart knocked off Colgate 82-76, Butler outlasted DePauw 70-64, Mercer beat Georgia 76-69 and Villanova walloped Millersville (Pa) 84-61.

Cactus Jack Curtice Due To Get Standford Post

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP)—Wheels of Stanford officialdom start grinding today and when they stop tomorrow, Utah's Jack Curtice can be expected to be the new football coach here.

A source close to the school said Cactus Jack will receive $15,000 per annum on a three-year pact with the Pacific Coast Conference institution.

Athletic Director Al Masters has readied his recommendation for a successor to Chuck Taylor, who resigned at the end of the 1957 season to become assistant to Masters.

This recommendation will be made today to the school's athletic council which moved up its session, originally scheduled for Friday. Now it can pass along its decision to President J. E. Wallace Sterling who will present it to the board of trustees on Thursday.

Curtice is 50 and received $14,000 on a year-to-year contract at Utah as head football coach and athletic director. Prior to taking the Ute job in 1950 he had been at Texas Western eight seasons and at West Texas State where he was named outstanding Border Conference coach in 1941.

Mort Denton topped McMahon, 45-42, in an overtime game, coming from behind at halftime, 21-22, for the victory.

Leading scorer with 19 points was Mort Denton's Les Sherrod. Sherrod left the game with five personals in the last half. For the losers, Tony Starr had 12.

The regulation game ended 42-42, and in the overtime period McMahon was unable to score, while Denton put in three tallies.

Morrow May Get To Enter Meet

LAREDO (AP)—Bobby Morrow, the Abilene Christian Olympics medal winner, will not be eligible to compete in the Border Olympics here March 7-8, but officials are working on a plan to get him to run in a special event.

Dave Sime, the Duke sprinter considered next to Morrow as the nation's great, will be invited to participate in such a special sprint, said J. James Richter Jr., the newly elected president.

Earl Scott, the meet director, said the Border Olympics follow the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. rules which prohibit four-year men to run. Morrow is on his fourth year of eligibility at Abilene Christian.

Odessa Kayoes Cats, 65-36

ODESSA (SC)—Odessa got off to a fast start in District 2-AAAA basketball play by clobbering the San Angelo Bobcats, 65-36, here Tuesday night.

The Bronchos led by only 31-22 at half time but widened that to 53-29 in the third.

Jackie White paced the Hosses' attack, scoring 25 points.

Only Ronnie Cole could hit for the Bobcats in the third period and he scored only seven points.

TB Association's Fund Drive Lagging

The Howard County Tuberculosis Association is running about $1,000 behind last year's pace in its campaign for funds to assist tuberculosis patients and conduct the quest for persons who may unknowingly have the disease.

Directors of the association heard last night from their treasurer, Mrs. J. T. Isbell, that only $2,489.75 has been raised through the sale of Christmas seals. At this time last year, the total was about $3,400.

Mrs. Garner McAdams told the directors that $185.77 has been raised through sale of TB bangles and by the "tag day" program. Of 180 TB "bonds" mailed out, only 22 have resulted in replies.

Date for the association's annual meeting was set as March 18. Officer nominating committee which will report at that time includes Dorothy Yates, chairman, Zack Gray, Bo Bowen and Mary Vasquez.

Various arrangements for the dinner session will be handled by Mrs. Clyde Thomas Jr., Mrs. Isbell, Mrs. Ross Bartlett and Mrs. R. L. Reeves.

Mrs. Isbell and Mrs. Bartlett were named Howard County delegates to the state TB Association convention to be held in Houston March 28.

Jim Smith, local president, said no word has been received on when the annual chest X-ray survey will be conducted here. It was reported that there are now five patients from Howard County in the TB hospital at Carlsbad.

Sales, Service Course To Be Conducted In Stanton

STANTON (Spl)—Techniques of present day selling and service will be stressed in a week of special training starting here Monday.

The program is sponsored by the Stanton Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the extension division of the University of Texas and the Texas Education Agency.

Enrollment is open to any person employed in retail, wholesale or service occupations with a small registration fee being the total cost to employes. Sessions will be held at 7:30 p.m. daily in the District Court room of the court house.

"Let's Analyze and Sell" is the title of the course which will be directed by Arthur M. Brown, retail training specialist who regularly conducts these courses.

F. O. Rhodes, chairman of the chamber's sponsoring committee, said that the class will include owners, managers, employes of sales and service institutions in Martin County.

The course includes self analysis as a factor in selling; analysis of customer needs and buying motives; analysis of present merchandise information; and analysis of the sale. Complete information may be had from the Chamber of Commerce office.

Urges Harder College Work

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Dr. Walter Orr Roberts, director of the Colorado University high altitude observatory, said yesterday four of every five students at the university should be sent home.

He spoke at a faculty meeting. Some collegues supported him and others differed during a discussion afterward. They all stressed their questions and criticisms apply to American colleges in general and not to Colorado University alone.

Roberts said easy subjects should be thrown out ruthlessly and he named specifically courses in education, psychology and life adjustment.

He asked: Is the university doing a proper job of teaching or is it running a social club? Is its physical education program designed to produce healthy bodies or provide a professional spectacle? Is the school teaching hard ideals or the sophisticated art of getting along in a world of petty deceit?

"I wish we had the guts to flunk out promptly all the kids who are no good," he said. "It should be difficult for a student to stay here. As we're now constituted, we should send about 80 per cent of them home."

Russ Scientist 'Sees' Snowman

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet scientist claims he saw an abominable snowman twice last August in the Pamir Mountains of southeast Russia. It was "a manlike creature," he reported.

Several Western expeditions have sought the legendary creature in the Himalaya Mountains, part of the "Roof of the World" that includes the Pamirs, but have found only footprints and wisps of hair.

A. G. Pronin told a correspondent of Komsomol Pravda in Leningrad he saw a yeti, or abominable snowman, last Aug. 10 and 13 on a cliff more than 1,500 feet above him.

Pronin was a member of a Soviet scientific expedition to the Pamirs, Russia's highest mountains in the corner formed by western China and Afghanistan.

He said it was "a manlike creature walking on two feet, stooped and wearing no clothes. He was stocky, with long extremities and his body was covered with reddish-gray wool."

Three days later he saw the creature for a few minutes at the same spot. The area was otherwise completely uninhabited.

Americans Unpopular In Asia But Not Point 4 Technicians

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

A tall, blond man, very drunk, tore a Bangkok night club apart one evening. The press in Thailand's capital quickly identified him as a crazy American. He wasn't. He was a Dane.

But Americans get blame for practically everything in Southeast Asia. Anti-Americanism is almost a fad.

However, there's another side. Take Indonesia, for example. In that Asian nation, threatened by mounting Communist strength, American technicians are often the best ambassadors of the United States.

So says James Baird, chief of the International Cooperation Administration program for Indonesia. More American technicians are wanted in that sprawling, strategically important island nation, he says.

The ICA in Washington is planning an increase in "third country" specialists who would be hired by the United States to work with American experts. For example, West German doctors might be assigned to jobs in Iran, their salaries paid out of counterpart funds in local currencies. The ICA is also operating a third country program in Japan, helping Japanese train other nationals in various techniques.

But underdeveloped Asia seems to want mostly good Americans to help build its economies. It does not want nationals of a third country.

Asian leaders say Romanians, Russians and other Iron Curtain experts wait offstage, eager to show their technical assistance wares. They say any reduction in the number of American technicians would likely increase the number of Iron Curtain experts in Asia.

How is the U. S. technical assistance program going in Asia? Here is a look at some of the results:

INDIA: Some time ago Washington ordered a big cut in technical personnel for fiscal 1959. Sharp protests from the U. S. mission in India changed Washington's mind and the mission was maintained at its present strength of 230, a rise from 64 in 1952.

Indians say they want more Americans in such fields as education, agriculture, engineering and home economics. Most of it has been in farming, trying to put over modern methods.

PIONEERING TYPE

INDONESIA: ICA Director Baird says the main problem is selection of the "right type" Americans, who work for the love of it and do not gripe about hardships. He admits they are a minority. But to his knowledge, he says, Indonesians do not resent the 160 U. S. technicians stationed among them. Government officials actually urged him to bring in more, to prevent vacancies being filled by Communist bloc personnel.

THAILAND: Thomas Naughton, ICA program director, says he has the "absolute minimum" of Americans (280) to do the assigned job, a long-range program. Officials say any personnel cut would cause irreparable harm. Thailand benefits from an annual 34½ million in U. S. economic aid.

INDOCHINA STATES: U. S. technical personnel in South Viet Nam number 150. Program directors would like 50 more to train Vietnamese. Currently 548 Vietnamese are training abroad at U.S. expense, but even when this is accomplished, the government feels American technicians will be indispensable. They don't want nationals of any other country. Officials say Americans have their "full sympathy and understanding."

In Laos, government sources say they are pleased with American technicians. A reduction would make it imperative to turn elsewhere. The government does not want to.

In Cambodia, U. S. aid, totaling more than 104 million dollars since mid-1955, is called indispensable to the nation's financial stability. Half the aid has been military.

SOUTH KOREA: This country has an annual billion-dollar U. S. aid program, of which 215 million dollars goes for economic help. Actually, the program is said to be understaffed. In technical assistance, $5,600,000 for fiscal 1958 went to a program concentrating on refugee resettlement, sanitation, health, irrigation and housing. It employs 30 Americans who Korean officials say, are vital to effective operation of the program. Public sentiment is a mixture of appreciation and disappointment at the lack of immediately visible results.

JAPAN: This is not an underdeveloped country. But a U. S. technical aid program, budgeted in 1957 at $1,890,000, operates a "third country program." A force of 16 Americans helps Japan train other nationals for aid programs. It's a small, efficient, unpublicized project. There are no problems over the presence of American technical personnel.

Gipson Describes Screen Writing

Many a good writer has discovered that screen writing is hard work, sometimes more nerve-wracking than the penning of a novel.

Fred Gipson, the famed Texan writer who was in town this week, has made that discovery twice—once for the film, "Return of the Texan," which was based on his novel, "The Homeplace," and again for "Old Yeller," film version of Gipson's book of the same name.

I dropped down to The Book Stall for a chat, mainly with the subject of movies in mind, especially movies based on novels. One of the first items Gipson explained was the changes nearly always made in translating a book onto the screen. There has been some justifiable criticism over practices extant in Hollywood, in which the final film version of a novel has nothing left from the book but the title.

Gipson first pointed out the obvious—that, even under the very best of conditions, some changes have to be made. These needs for changes arise from the differences between narrative and visual-auditory methods. A book, for example, can tell what a character is thinking, can describe his every motive and emotion, but a film must get the idea across through purely visio-auditory methods.

This situation often calls for a re-doing of both action and dialogue.

Then there is the need for condensation, for a film that repeated everything in even the average-sized novel would end up with an unacceptable running time.

One little known point Gipson brought out was the fact that, in Hollywood, there are too many people with ideas and everyone of them wants a finger in the pie.

When the scriptwriters are left alone, the screenplay and the book still tell the same story. But the producer has his own ideas, the director has his, and the actors always find something they think would look better this-a-way. Even the cameraman gets into the act.

Gipson has praise for Walt Disney, who translated "Old Yeller" to the screen. Unlike many hard-headed Hollywood producers, Disney is easy to get along with, and gave Gipson a more or less free hand in translation. The result is that the spirit of the book which is pure Gipson is brought full force to the screen, as it was with "Return of the Texan."

Gipson also had praise for the dog that stars in the role of Old Yeller. He tells one on himself, however, in that he first rejected the pup as too fat and well-fed for the role.

The concert opened with Sousa's "Semper Fidelis" march, and an overture, "The French Quarter," by Morrissey.

Ira Schantz, head of HCJC vocal music, sent his strong tenor voice resounding against the walls of the auditorium with "Che Gelida Manina" from "La Boheme."

The band was brassy but good in selections from "Oklahoma!"

The Air Force musicians slowed a bit on "Pavanne," a number that is extremely difficult even for an orchestra, but picked up a good Latin rhythm on "Begin the Beguine," also a difficult piece for a military band.

Maj. Vincent Brophy, the other guest soloist, did a sound rendition of the Toreador song from "Carmen."

The Dixieland styling came from the Bourbon Street Six, a dance combo made up of Webb AFB Band members. Their jazz was hot, the swing was sweet and the rhythm perfect. It takes awhile, however, for Dixieland to warm up, both for players and audience, and the combo's performance was ended just as the warmup began.

The audience especially applauded "South Rampart Street" and the combo's own Dixieland version of "San Antonio Rose." Their interpretations were polished and professional, yet a little wild, as true Dixieland is supposed to be.

The band returned to the stage for the final number, a medley of official service songs.

Band members are now in the process of being reassigned to other Air Force bases across the nation in a belt-tightening campaign. This area, which owes a vote of thanks to the Webb band, will now be served by regional military bands.

Farewell To Webb AFB Band

Varied band music and two numbers by guest soloists went over big with a small audience last night, but it was Dixieland jazz that stole the show.

The occasion was the swan song of the Webb AFB Band, which has been deactivated. The band's farewell concert was presented at HCJC Auditorium and a reception held at the Student Union building afterwards.

The affair was sponsored by the Civic Theatre, the Music Study Club and HCJC. T.-Sgt. Herbert Bilhartz is conductor.

Churchill Mum On Daughter

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill flew to the Riviera today for his annual winter vacation and gave airport reporters no chance to question him about his actress daughter Sarah's arrest as a drunk in California.

Puffing his usual long cigar in disregard of the airport's "No Smoking" signs, Churchill started slowly up the ramp, posed briefly for photographers, and entered the plane still puffing. He is 83.

Lady Churchill did not accompany him.

The British press rallied to Sarah Churchill's support and praised her performance on a TV show after her arrest in Los Angeles.

Miss Churchill spent five hours in jail on a complaint by the General Telephone Co. that she used profane and obscene language over the phone. Sheriff's deputies said they arrested her after she climbed into their car with a glass of rum, resisted efforts to get her out, and cursed them also.

"The belief is growing that she was wrongfully arrested; that doctors, not police should have been called in," declared the Daily Mail, a supporter of her father's Conservative party.

The independent but pro-Conservative Daily Express asserted that "Sarah Churchill's treatment at the hands of the Los Angeles sheriffs has come as a profound shock to the British people."

Gov. Daniel Blasts DOT

AUSTIN (AP)—Gov. Price Daniel has urged voters to pay their poll taxes so that a majority would decide control of the Democratic party rather than "a minority splinter group known as the DOT."

Daniel issued his statement yesterday, adding fuel to the hot controversy between the Democrats of Texas, a liberal group, and the State Democratic Executive Committee, controlled by friends of the governor.

Daniel said 1958 "is one of the most decisive political years in Texas history." He cited election of state, county and local officials, the nine proposed constitutional amendments and the continuing fight "to preserve the rights of our state and local governments."

Daniel pointed out that only qualified voters may "participate in the Democratic precinct and county conventions in which the issue will be decided. I refer to the openly announced attempt of the ultra-liberal group headed by Mrs. R. D. Randolph of Houston to capture control of the Democratic party in Texas."

He said the winner of the precinct and county conventions will control the governmental policies of the state and "this should be a majority of citizens and not any minority group."

Rotary Club Gives Two Scholarships To Junior College

Two scholarships to Howard County Junior College for the spring semester have been approved by the Rotary Club board of directors it was announced Tuesday.

A special committee will be appointed by the club's president to select a worthy Howard County boy and girl as recipients of the scholarships.

Other announcements made during the luncheon meeting included the setting of a date for a Ladies Night. The dinner event will be held at 7:30 p. m. Jan. 28 at the Cosden Country Club. The Rev. Sterling Price will be the principal speaker.

Tuesday's program consisted of a film in behalf of the current March of Dimes drive.

Horses Cited

TOKYO (AP)—Some 600 Japanese horses, killed at the front in wars since 1868, are to be honored at the Yasukuni shrine to Japan's war dead. Kunio Ito is sculpturing a statue of a horse to be unveiled in April at the shrine's annual spring festival.

Redstone Test Data Checked For Satellite-Firing Clues

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Army checked over tape and photographic records of a nighttime launching of its big Redstone missile today for clues that might help it put an American-style Sputnik into an orbit.

The Redstone was sent up into a starlit, cloudless, moonless sky from the Air Force missile test center here last night.

Photographic and recording devices at island stations along the missile test range extending out into the Atlantic registered detailed information on how the missile performed.

The Redstone is considerably more than the Army's biggest—and first operational — ballistic missile. A Redstone will be the first stage of the huge Jupiter-C test vehicle.

With this device the Army hopes, before another month, to send up an earth satellite.

The Redstone, 69 feet long and 6 feet in diameter, lifted sluggishly from its launching pad, in fiery sheets of exhaust fumes and with an earth-shaking roar.

It climbed vertically, at a rapidly accelerating pace, for thousands of feet. Then it arched at a slight angle toward the southeast, still very much on the upgrade.

Its tremendous flaming tail diminished steadily, and for more than a minute before disappearing entirely it resembled a winking red star among the many paler stars in the clear sky.

Unlike most other missiles fired here at night, the Redstone's flight path was marked by a trail of bright white flashes — stroboscopic lights to help the cameras below follow its course through the sky.

The Defense Department, announcing the launching minutes after the takeoff, gave no indication of the distance flown or the target assigned. It said only that the flight was normal.

The Redstone, powered by a liquid-propellant engine, has considerably exceeded its designed range of 200 to 250 miles. A Jupiter-C vehicle with a Redstone as the first of its three stages flew 3,500 miles over the Atlantic.

The Redstone is being produced by Chrysler Corp. at Detroit. Its engine is manufactured by Rocketdyne Division of North American Aviation, Los Angeles.

Separation By Sexes Suggested In School Fuss

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Separate education for the sexes as a partial barrier to racial integration would be authorized under a bill before the Mississippi House of Representatives today.

The bill was introduced by Rep. Elmo Anderson.

Anderson labeled the bill "the second to last step, the one we'll take before abolishing public schools" as a means of keeping Negroes out of white schools.

"This bill will prevent socializing," he said. "It will keep Negro boys from rubbing elbows with white girls in school."

The bill provides that school districts may put all of their female students either in separate schools or in separate classrooms.

In the Senate, Sen. Earl Evans introduced a bill automatically closing any public school when federal troops are assigned in the vicinity, such as were assigned during the integration crisis at Little Rock, Ark.
