PLAN TO KILL TROOPS IN CORK

GEN. SEMENOFF HAS BEEN CAPTURED

TOM SLAUGHTER ARRESTED BY A KANSAS OFFICER

WITH TWO CONFEDERATES WAS PREPARING TO ROB CEDARVALE BANK.

REWARDS AMOUNTING TO $35,000 ARE OUTSTANDING

Admits Robbing Ten Banks, Three Of Which Are Located In State Of Texas.

BETTER TIE HIM SAYS A DALLAS DETECTIVE

DALLAS, TEXAS, Oct. 30.—"They'd better tie his arms and legs while they got a good hold on him or that bird'll be gone by night," Chief of Detectives Gunning, Dallas, commented here today when told "Slim Jim" Tom Slaughter, bandit, had been captured in Kansas.

Slaughter is known to police here as "Slim Jim" because he escaped from Texas officials a half dozen times or more. One time he whipped two detectives in Dallas and got away. Another time he jumped from a train going 40 miles an hour. He also left the Texas penitentiary once without telling anyone where he was going, officials declared.

Slaughter is wanted in Texas for an assortment of alleged crimes, Gunning said.

WICHITA,KAN., Oct. 30.—Plans of three bandits to loot the Cedarvale State Bank at Cedarvale, Kansas, today in a daylight robbery, came to an unexpected end yesterday afternoon with the arrest in Chautauqua county of Fulton Green, Frank McGivins, and the notorious Tom Slaughter, age 27, murderer and bank robber, over whose head hang rewards totaling $35,000.

Slaughter confessed, after a short grilling, that he is the man who killed Deputy Sheriff Rowe Brown near Hot Springs, Ark., October 10, and that he has robbed ten banks in the last few years.

Capture of Slaughter was effected by Sheriff J. H. Powell of Chautauqua county. Rewards totaling from $25,000 to $35,000 are known to be outstanding for the capture of the three men.

Greene and McGivins, the other two were arrested by John Hynes, deputy sheriff at 5 o'clock yesterday on a road near Cedarvale, in a Ford car. They offered little resistance. All three men were heavily armed. Slaughter is 27 years, McGivins 25, and Greene 23.

Much Wanted Man.

All of the middle west had been looking for Slaughter and his companions for some time, and an intensified search in northern Oklahoma and southern Kansas had been carried on in the last two weeks, following the robbing of the Alluwe state bank in northern Oklahoma, October 15, of $25,000 by a man believed to be Slaughter. He escaped in a motor car.

How thoroughly the three had planned the robbery of the Cedarvale bank this morning was indicated by the finding of three horses in the timber near Cedarvale, loaded down with Winchester rifles and revolvers. The horses were to have been used for the escape, the bandits evidently having forsaken the automobile. The horses had been stolen at Burbank, Okla.

Slaughter's record, he admits, includes the robbing of three banks in Texas, one in Louisiana, one in Mississippi, one in Tennessee, one in Kentucky, two in Oklahoma and one in Arkansas.

On September 10, 1919, the Chautauqua State Bank at Sedan was robbed of $15,000. Although Slaughter admits no connection with this, an attempt is being made to identify him as one of the robbers.

INDICTED FOR MURDER OF ARKANSAS DEPUTY SHERIFF

HOT SPRINGS, Oct. 30. — Tom Slaughter and Fulton Greene, alleged bandits and bank robbers captured at Sedan, Kan., today were indicted by the grand jury here on a charge of murder for the death of Deputy Sheriff Rowe Brown of Garland county on October 10. The capture of the men wanted in Oklahoma and Texas also on charges of bank robbery was a result of an alleged confession of two women held here for several days, with whom the men had arranged a meeting at Sedan. The women were released.

MORE THAN $35,000 IN REWARDS ARE OFFERED

DALLAS, TEXAS, Oct. 30.—More than $35,000 in rewards have been offered in several states for Tom Slaughter, alleged bandit held in Kansas today, according to Chief of Detectives Charles Gunning here.

Slaughter, in addition to being wanted in connection with automobile thefts, bank robberies and other offenses in the southwest, was more recently sought following two murders at Hot Springs, Ark., according to Gunning.

BARNES WAIVES HEARING AND IS RETURNED TO JAIL

FORT WORTH, Oct. 30.—W. H. Barnes, who was arrested in Dallas last week after he had enlisted in the army and confessed to the slaying of Motorman James Acord during an attempted hold-up here, waived preliminary hearing here today and was returned to jail.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—A wireless dispatch from Moscow reports that General Semenoff, the Cossack anti-Bolshevik leader in Siberia, has been captured by irregular troops. He was fleeing by airplane from Chita, his headquarters, says the dispatch, and was captured when he landed at Makevo station.

PARIS, Oct. 30.—Helsingfors dispatches describe the situation in Moscow as very serious and declare that martial law has been proclaimed. The peasants revolted in eleven provinces because of the requisition of wheat by the government, the dispatches add. Among those who have been cast into prison is General Alexis Brussiloff, former commander-in-chief of the Russian armies, according to the dispatches.

LITHUANIAN GOVERNMENT IS EVACUATING KOVNO

RIGA, Oct. 30.—The Lithuanian government is hastily evacuating Kovno and is removing all railway material possible to Shavli and other points of northern Lithuania, as a result of General Zeligouski's insurgent army having broken through the Lithuanian front near the town of Vilkomir, 45 miles northeast of Kovno, last evening. General Zeligouski's offensive continues along the whole front.

SOVIET TROOPS CAPTURE ELEVEN THOUSAND MEN

MOSCOW, Oct. 30.—Soviet troops have captured 11,000 troops in the Crimea, the bolsheviki communique said today.

A bolshevik offensive against the army of General Wrangel was expected to follow the Russo-Polish armistice. Although General Wrangel knew the offensive was impending and announced himself ready, the soviet troops were reported to have made big gains, recapturing Ekaterinoslav and Alexandrovsk.

CANADIAN RIVER AT OKLAHOMA CITY HAS DONE MUCH DAMAGE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 30. — The Canadian river continued to rise slowly today.

Remaining levees are expected to withstand the maddened waters.

The weather bureau guage showed a rise of more than four feet since last Tuesday.

City welfare organizations under the direction of the Red Cross were cooperating in aiding refugees. Hundreds of persons driven from their dwellings trudged along with an armful of dry clothing.

By means of boats, vandals last night entered and looted several abandoned homes on the river lowlands, of money, jewelry and phonograph records, it became known today.

PRESIDENT AND WIFE MARK THEIR BALLOTS FOR ELECTION TUESDAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The President and Mrs. Wilson voted today in the presidential election. They marked their ballots at the white house and mailed them to Princeton, N. J., where the president heretofore has gone each election day to vote.

Nine other ballots also were forwarded to New Jersey today from the white house, those voting by mail including Secretary Tumulty and Mrs. Tumulty, Dr. Stockton Axson, a brother of Mr. Wilson's first wife; Charles Swem, the president's private stenographer, and other attaches of the white house.

These were the first ballots ever cast by Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Tumulty, and they were among the first of the great army of women enfranchised by the nineteenth amendment to vote in the 1920 election. The ballots from New Jersey were forwarded to the white house early this week by request.

PRAIRIE COMPANY TO BUILD EIGHT INCH LINE INTO CHICAGO

TULSA, OKLA., Oct. 30.—The Prairie Pipe Line company today announced that work will be started immediately upon an eight inch pipe line from Florence, Kansas, east 90 miles to the main pipe line leading to Chicago. This line, which will cost $1,000,000, will connect the Oklahoma oil fields direct with Chicago, it is said.

CHICAGO MEN CAN SEE PART OF WOMAN'S EARS

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Chicago men today are able to see a bit of feminity they haven't been able to gaze upon for a long time—a woman's ears. They are showing them here today, all but a little bit of the top which are still covered.

REQUESTS LEGION TO STAND AT ATTENTION

FORT WORTH, Oct. 30.—State Commander Guy O. Shirey of the American Legion in a statement today requests all Texas members of the organization to stand at attention one minute, facing west, November 11, in memory of the American soldiers killed in the world war.

PARTY LEADERS CLAIM VICTORY AS THE CAMPAIGN NEARS CLOSE

GOVERNOR COX SPEAKS BEFORE CHICAGO VOTERS

MEETING IS PRECEDED BY AN AUTOMOBILE PARADE WITH FIREWORKS.

CALLS ATTENTION TO PLEDGE TO THE MEN WHO FOUGHT

Says President Will Be Satisfied To Retire If Promise To Mothers Is Kept.

"Broken and bleeding Europe is today like the wayfarer on the road to Jericho," Governor Cox continued. "If you tell me that America, like the selfish Levite, should turn her back on this tragic scene and seek only her own safety and comfort, I will tell you that you are libelling and slandering the America in which I believe."—Governor Cox in speech at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Governor Cox virtually finished his campaign here tonight with a series of speeches, in which he pounded home his League of Nations and other doctrines. Except for a final speech next Monday night at Toledo, Ohio, today was the last and a rushing day of campaigning for the democratic candidate.

In addresses here, at Gary, Ind., and Evanston, Ill., Governor Cox predicted victory for "the cause of peace" and urged his audiences to "vote as our soldiers fought, to end the war."

That American entrance into the League of Nations was a "pledge" to the men who fought in the world war and to their mothers—a bond to end war forever, if possible—and also a measure for national and world progress, economic and moral, was stressed by Governor Cox in all today's addresses. He reiterated vehement attacks upon the league position of Senator Harding and other opponents.

Belief that President Wilson would be ready to retire from public life if "the league pledge" should be kept was expressed by the governor to an audience of women.

Anxious to Keep Promise.

"He thinks of one thing and one thing only," Governor Cox said. "He talks of it more than anything else, and it is this: that he gave a promise to the mothers of America, and that the promise would be kept. I am certain that if he knew definitely that the promise would be kept, he would be perfectly willing to conclude his participation in all public affairs, either officially or privately."

The women's meeting opened the governor's program here. This afternoon the candidate gave his views on labor, settlement of strikes without "the bayonet" and other industrial questions to a crowd at Gary, Ind.

Returning here, the governor motored to Evanston, discussing the league issues with an audience in Patten gymnasium at the Northwestern University.

His coliseum meeting tonight was preceded by an automobile parade, with red torchlights, fireworks and other spectacular features. Afterward addresses at Carter H. Harrison Technical school at St. Stanislaus auditorium were the closing events of the day's program.

REFUSED LEGISLATION TO PUT END TO PROFITEERING

EN ROUTE WITH GOVERNOR COX, Gary, Ind., Oct. 30.—The last republican congress "in a dastardly attempt to keep the people in distress so that reactionary influences might win a presidential election this year," refused the two requests of President Wilson for legislation to end profiteering, Governor James M. Cox said here today, speaking before an audience made up largely of steel workers.

Profiteers and big business are always lined up behind reaction and the same is true this year, the governor declared.

He told the workers "labor should have the right to organize and through representatives of their own choosing, negotiate collective bargaining.

Some of the women wept when Cox made his appeal for the league.

SAYS REPUBLICAN SUCCESS MEANS SENATORIAL CONFUSION

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Business men throughout the country are beginning to realize that Senator Harding's election would mean only one thing—"senatorial confusion," Governor Jas. M. Cox said upon his arrival here today.

He indicated to newspapermen that he expects to win next Tuesday by the combined vote of "the women, labor, former service men, progressive business men and the intellectuals who want the United States to enter the League of Nations."

"A great tidal wave started to sweep through the country about three weeks ago," Cox said.

"You mean for the democratic party?" he was asked.

"No, sir, for the League of Nations," he shot back. "In the last few days the business men have been realizing that our entrance into the league means continued prosperity, while our failure to do so would threaten the financial welfare of the entire world.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The presidential campaign of 1920, waged principally around the League of Nations, formally closed tonight.

Tonight the leading figures on republican and democratic tickets addressed audiences in the east and middle west. Tomorrow they will rest. Monday will bring the last toot of campaign horns and the last flare of red light.

But although on Monday there will be staged the final skirmish for votes, the real battle ended tonight. It was marked as every political campaign is marked, with expressions of confidence in victory from rival headquarters.

"The evidence of the overwhelming republican victory hourly increases," was the statement of Will H. Hays, chairman of the republican national committee. "It is now certain that the republicans will have a minimum total of 368 electoral votes. We will have a greatly increased majority in the house and a substantial majority in the senate."

White Claims Victory.

This from George White, chairman of the democratic national committee: "Cox and Roosevelt will win. They will have a party majority in the senate and house."

Socialist headquarters, while making no claim of electoral votes, predicted that the party would poll the largest vote in is history—three million some leaders claimed. While asserting that many of these ballots would represent party converts, socialist advocates also prophesied that many would represent a protest vote against imprisonment of "political prisoners" including Eugene V. Debs.

All parties took into consideration the swelling of the vote by appearance of women casting their first ballots for president. In his prediction of victory for Senator Harding and Governor Coolidge, Mr. Hays laid claim to the following states:

Claimed by Republicans.

California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

"In addition," Mr. Hays said, "the republicans have very much better than an even chance to carry Arizona, Kentucky, Maryland and New Mexico, with 27 additional electoral votes. This makes 359 republican electoral votes almost certain out of the total of 531.

"The republican victory in Kentucky is absolutely certain, provided the weather makes it physically possible for the great majority in the mountains of eastern Kentucky to get to the polls. The same elecent enters into the result in Tennessee, where there is a splendid chance for the republicans. We also have a splendid opportunity to carry North Carolina and Oklahoma. This makes the probability of an additional 34 states.

"The only states certainly democratic, are Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Georgia, Texas and Virginia."

Democratic Forecast Stands.

Mr. White, who declared tonight he had spent the last three days checking up detailed reports from all state chairmen, asserted he "saw no reason to alter my forecast in which I predicted a certain victory for the democratic ticket."

Mr. White referred to a prediction he had made yesterday. The democratic campaign manager reviewed "tactics our campaign forces have been forced to meet" ending wh he termed his "final statement" with the following paragraph:

"These are but a few of the unfair and unscrupulous methods used to arrest the onward march of the cause espoused by democracy. They have failed. In that failure, I have the satisfaction of knowing that the democratic campaign has been clean, fair, above board and American. I and my associates have never hit below the belt. We have proclaimed and advocated the greatest moral issue in the history of this country. We go to the nation with clean hands and clean hearts to request and receive the victory that means world peace, democratic progress and individual prosperity."

Torchlight Parade.

The presidential candidates—Senator Harding and Governor Cox—wound up their campaign travels in the west. The senator chose Columbus to deliver his last address before election day, while his opponent ended his election activities with a torchlight parade in Chicago and an address at the coliseum.

The vice-presidential candidates selected the east for their final election speech, Boston for Governor Coolidge and New York for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Parley P. Christensen, presidential candidate of the farmer-labor party, running with Max Hayes, today carried his campaign into the state of Washington. Although his ticket mate, Eugene V. Debs, was forced to conduct an unique campaign in the form of statements issued from behind prison walls, Seymour Stedman, vice-presidential choice of the socialist party, carried his appeal for votes personally throughout the country. Aaron S. Watkins and Leigh Colvin, leaders on the prohibition ticket, and Robert C. Mac-

ELECTION RETURNS ON SCREEN AT THE TIMES

Election returns, covering national and state contests, as received over the two leased wires in the Times building, will be flashed on a screen in front of the office on Seventh street Tuesday night, the service to be continued until the result is made known, or as long as there is sufficient interest to hold the crowds.

Returns will be given as soon as received and the service is expected to start soon after dark.

HARDING RESTS PARTY'S CAUSE ON AN APPEAL

IS MADE TO "DEPENDABLE, INTELLIGENT PUBLIC OPINION."

LAST MESSAGE FROM STUMP IS DELIVERED AT COLUMBUS

Invades Home And Birthplace Of Governor Cox During Campaign Of Day.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, Oct. 30.—Resting the republican case on an appeal to "dependable, intelligent public opinion," Senator Harding told the voters of the nation in his final campaign speeches today and tonight that his party wanted a calm, sober verdict at the polls, based on good faith and attained by honest political methods.

Coming to Columbus after a day of campaigning over the stamping ground of his opponent, Governor Cox, the republican nominee delivered to a meeting in Memorial hall here, his last message from the stump.

In all of his speeches Mr. Harding emphasized his stand on domestic issues which he declared the democratic managers had sought to obscure with a fog of debate about the League of Nations. He also asserted over and over that it was the "confidence" of the nation to which he was appealing and that the methods of his party in the campaign had been free from sectional or class appeal.

Speaks at Middleton.

On the way here from Cincinnati, where he spent last night, the senator spoke at Middletown, the boyhood home of Governor Cox, at Dayton, where he now lives, and at Springfield, the home of one of the Cox newspapers. In not one of his speeches did he mention his opponent by name, but he made many references to the democratic nominee's campaign utterances, and voiced in pointed terms his own reply to them.

At Middletown where many steel workers were in the crowd, Senator Harding argued for the protective tariff policy to preserve the American steel industry.

"We are witnessing today," he said, "practically the close of a great political campaign and as one speaking for the republican party I rejoice to say to you that we have tried to make our appeal to the confidence of the American people. We have tried to speak to the intelligence of American, because in popular government dependable, intelligent public opinion is the final authority.

Have No Apologies.

"We have sought to promote unity and understanding. We have sought to bring Americans together. We have sought to eliminate all thought of class. We have sought to ignore every suggestion of section; aye, more there isn't anything that has happened in this campaign that the republican party or its nominee is ever going to be called upon to apologize for."

At Dayton the crowd cheered his hits at one-man government and bade him goodbye in a great roar of applause when the train pulled out. It was the republican nominee's first campaign visit to the home town of his opponent and in his talk he declared his hesitancy about bringing a republican message here.

UNSETTLED WEATHER FORECAST IN EAST FOR ELECTION DAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Unsettled weather election day east of the Mississippi river and generally fair weather west of the river, except in the north Pacific states, was forecast today by the weather bureau in its regularly weekly report.

The forecaster said a storm now over Arizona probaly would cross the Mississippi river tomorrow and be over the eastern half of the country Monday. It was stated that this storm might cause rains Tuesday over the eastern half of the country, as well as in the upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys.

The predictions for the week beginning Monday were:

West gulf states, unsettled and rains at beginning of week, followed by generally fair and cool weather with frosts in the interior.

MINE SWEEPER IS SENT IN SEARCH OF VESSEL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The mine sweeper Tantargin has been sent from Guantanamo, Cuba, in search of the steamer Rambler, previously reported adrift off the southwest coast of Cuba with 19 passengers aboard. The Rambler, plying between Key West and Havana, according to radio dispatches, received at the navy department here, was without water and in a helpless condition.

BRITISH OFFICERS INTERCEPT PLOT TO MURDER CROWN FORCES THAT MAY APPEAR ON STREETS

CORK, October 30.—British intelligence officers declared this afternoon that they were in receipt of information, obtained through interception, that every officer or man of the crown forces appearing in the streets of Cork tomorrow was likely to be shot.

The authorities this afternoon were seeking to appraise the effect the viewing of the corpse would have upon the thousands who passed by the bier of the late Lord Mayor MacSwiney today, and are bearing in mind the statements officials say were made by sinn fein representatives during the prisoner's long fast should death ensue there would be reprisals of some kind.

FILE IN SOLEMN PROCESSION PAST BIER OF MACSWINEY

CORK, Oct. 30.—Thousands of Irishmen of all classes and callings with their wives and children, filed in solemn procession today past the bier of Terence MacSwiney, late lord mayor of Cork, mutely testifying the esteem in which the deceased lord mayor was held by his feilow townspeople and the whole of nationalist Ireland. By train, jaunting cart and afoot hundreds from the country about Cork and from the more distant Irish centers entered the city from early morning.

The glass covered casket, revealing the emaciated features of the late lord mayor and his body dressed in the uniform of an officer of the Irish republican army, which had been substituted for the Franciscan robe, reposed on a flower-banked catafalque, four volunteers in civilian dress maintaining guard. The platform of the choir loft, in front of which the body lay, was a bank of greenery and flowers, framing a central floral representation of the crucifix, which, outlined against a huge background of black velvet, dominated the whole display.

Chaplain-General Pays Tribute.

The offerings were accompanied by condolences and tributes to the lord mayor's martyrdom from all parts of the world. Many came from the Chicago chapters of the Friends of Irish Freedom and other American organizations and individuals. Father Dominic, the dead lord mayor's private chaplain, today received the following telegram from Chaplain-General James J. Troh of the American forces on the Rhine, dated Coblenz:

"Please convey to the lord mayoress my profound sympathy in her great bereavement. Mayor MacSwiney died for the things we thought we fought for in the world war and his name shall go down the ages as an immortal who did not quake before the tyrant, but whose soul was as grand as the ideal for which he died. I have said mass for him and the other martyrs in Cork jail and will do the same on the Feast of All Souls. Their names will be forever treasured, not merely in Ireland, but wherever the world and reality of freedom are loved and honored."

TO HOLD MEMORIAL SERVICES THROUGHOUT UNITED STATES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Memorial services for Terence MacSwiney, late lord mayor of Cork, will be held throughout the United States tomorrow, it was announced today by the Friends of Irish Freedom. Locals of the organization, it was said, would set the time for the services.

Bishop Thomas J. Shahan, rector of Catholic University, in a sermon at the solemn requiem mass sung for the repose of the soul of the late lord mayor at the university today, declared that never in the history of mankind had there been an individual act of self-sacrifice equal to that of MacSwiney's.

HUNGER STRIKERS REFUSE TO OBEY ORDER TO EAT

CORK, IRELAND, Oct. 30.—Bishop Cohalan of Cork visited the jail yesterday and peremptorily ordered the hunger strikers there to take food. All refused. Thereupon the bishop instructed the nuns attending the hunger strikers to prepare food. The nuns, having no alternative, obeyed the command and offered food to each of the prisoners, but all refused it.

Bishop Cohalan now is appealing personally to the sinn fein leaders to release the prisoners from their hunger strike. At noon today they had completed the 80th day of their fast.

WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS TAKES MEN FROM STATE

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., Oct. 30.—Judge Jacob Trieber of the United States district court here today granted a writ of habeas corpus taking from the state custody of J. H. Hopper and Ray Stegall, prohibition agents charged with killing Cecil Lacotts and P. O. Capps in a raid on a moonshine still in Arkansas county a few weeks ago. The action of the federal court followed withdrawal of the state charges against the men by Prosecuting Attorney E. B. Brockman of Pine Bluff. It is expected that charges against the prohibition agents will be presented to the Arkansas county grand jury in January.

RANCHMAN IS FORCED TO SIGN $25,000 CHECK

WAS KIDNAPED IN ST. LOUIS AND TAKEN TO FARMHOUSE IN COUNTRY.

MAKES HIS ESCAPE WHILE THE GUARD IS ASLEEP

Woman Also Taken To House Verifies Statement Of Fort Smith Man.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 30.—After an all-day search, the police announced tonight at a late hour that they had failed to find any trace of the men who kidnapped Joseph Alexander, reputed wealthy ranchman and farm owner of Fort Smith, Ark., and Mrs. Margaret Taber of this city, in an effort to collect $25,000 from Alexander. According to the story he told the police of this city and the authorities of St. Louis county, he was lured to a farm house in the county last Monday and maltreated by his abductors until he escaped early this morning after his guard had fallen asleep.

Mrs. Taber is the wife of the manager of Alexander's ranch.

Alexander returned to Fort Smith late tonight.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 30.—Joseph Alexander, reputed wealthy ranchman and farm owner of Fort Smith, Ark., and Mrs. Margaret Taber of this city, wife of Alexander's ranch superintendent, today related to police how they had been kidnaped in an attempt to collect $25,000 from the ranchman.

Alexander, according to advices, is known as the "potato king" in Fort Smith. He appeared at the St. Louis county courthouse early today, barefooted and sparsely clad, and described to officials how he had been gagged, bound, beaten and constantly guarded by his captors. Mrs. Tabor told a similar story.

Alexander came to St. Louis Monday, he explained, in response to a telegram bearing Mrs. Taber's name, reading:

"Come at once; serious trouble."

Mrs. Tabor denied sending the message.

Met At The Depot.

Met at the depot by the men, Alexander said he accepted an invitation to ride to Mrs. Taber's home in their automobile and was taken to a farm house, about eight miles west of here. Mrs. Taber, who had been kidnaped Sunday, was brought to his room, he related, and he was ordered to sign the check, payable to her.

Refusing, he was beaten and the bonds on his arms and ankles tightened, he asserted. He protested that he did not have $25,000 in the bank, he continued, but the kidnapers continued torturing him and on Tuesday he wrote the check, scribbling the signature to make it appear a forgery. Alexander is 45 years old.

Substantiates Story.

Mrs. Taber substantiated Alexander's story. She said she had been decoyed to the farm house by a spurious message last Sunday.

After Alexander had written the check on a bank at Fort Smith the men drove her to a local bank where she deposited it. She then was returned to the farm house.

Early today, Alexander told police, his guard fell asleep and in a seminude condition, he escaped from the farm house. His escape was learned shortly afterwards, Mrs. Taber said, and she was hurried into an automobile and driven home.

Officials visited the farm house and found it unoccupied. Overturned furniture, they said, indicated the men had made a hurried departure.

ONLY CONDITIONAL RECOGNITION MAY BE EXTENDED TO MEXICO STATE DEPARTMENT INDICATES

ATTACK IS MADE ON EQUAL SUFFRAGE IN A MARYLAND COURT

BALTIMORE, MD., Oct. 30.—Suit attacking the equal suffrage amendment was filed in the court of common pleas today by members of the board of managers of the Maryland League for State Defense against the board registry of the seventh precinct of the eleventh ward. The court set November 22 for a hearing.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Only conditional recognition may be extended to Mexico, it was indicated at the state department today.

One of the plans under consideration by the department is the granting of such recognition by an exchange of protocols. Such a protocol, it is expected, would carry guarantees from Mexico that Americans and their interests would be protected.

Continued recognition in this event would depend on whether Mexico lived up to these guarantees, it was held.

Officials said it had not been definitely decided whether outside countries would be invited to participate in the arbitration commission which Roberto Pesqueira, Mexican agent here, said Mexico is willing to set up for adjustment of claims and differences by the two countries.

Another point in question is how Mexico will meet the objections of the United States to the Carranza decrees held confiscatory of American oil interests.

LOCAL PEOPLE ENJOY AIR TRIP IN ALL-METAL MONOPLANE HERE ENROUTE N. Y. TO CALIFORNIA

The mysteries of aerial transportation were dispelled for some ten or twelve Wichitans Saturday morning when the big J. L. 6 monoplane that stopped in this city while en route from New York to Los Angeles carried them for short flights over the Call Field aviation camp. Included in the number who viewed this section of the globe from the native habits of an airship were W. W. Silk, J. J. Perkins, Clint Wood, R. O. Harvey, C. W. Reid, Preston Lee and Reece Allen, together with members of their families. Incidentally a Times reporter was privileged to make one of the flights and as a result has been "privileged" to give an account of the trip and of the events which made them possible.

The big monoplane is really owned by Cecil B. De Mille, the moving picture director, that dignitary having purchased it recently from the J. L. Aircraft corporation of New York, but it is still in the hands of the company, who are flying it by easy stages to Los Angeles for delivery to Mr. De Mille. Mr. Harry Larson, an official of the J. L. corporation, is in charge of the crew of three men who are taking the plane on its cross-country flight. H. S. Myers, pilot, and E. Buehl, mechanician, are the other two members.

Government Type.

The plane is of the type now being used by the United States government in its mail service from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast and is built entirely of metal. There is not a stick of wood in its wings or body and with the exception of the cabin upholstering no fabric has been used in its construction. A light aluminum alloy of great strength is used in the wings, cabin, tail, rudders, frame and all the rest of the parts that go to make up a respectable airship.

The enclosed cabin has a seating capacity of five people and is furnished in as luxurious fashion as the interior of an expensive limousine. Deep cushioned seats, heavily shaded windows and convenient foot rests were all provided for the comfort of passengers. The pilot's seat, together with accommodations for an observer were located in a forward cockpit which was protected from the wind but which was not enclosed.

Has Good Position.

It was the good fortune of the writer to be assigned to this latter position, and from here he attempted to gain about twelve square miles of northern Texas, see to it that the pilot attended strictly to business and to wonder how long it would take to reach the earth by the straight "drop" methods if anything should happen to go wrong. Riding in a big monoplane, when it confines itself to merely covering territory and does not attempt any elaborate acrobatics, has no more thrills or impressions of danger attached than a fast ride on a Wichita Traction company street car has, and certainly there is none of the exhilerating up and down, sidewise, jolting, jarring, rock-a-bye movement that is thrown in with a six-cent ride on a street car. The airship simply rushed through space, bringing an ever-changing panorama into view.

"Going Some" and High.

There were altitude guages, speedometers, pressure valves and sundry other contraptions on the instrument board in front of the reporter, but he was too busy watching the Wichita Mill turn over on its side and then straighten up again, or in wondering why Lake Wichita should suddenly sink from sight on one side and then just as suddenly bob into view over on the other side of the ship to pay much attention to height or speed. However, he caught a blurred vision of a little black needle that danced around a 100 mark on a big dial, and so concluded that he was either going 100 miles an hour or was up a hundred something in the air, he didn't know which, but another little needle hovered between 600 and 700 when the plane was at its greatest height, so it was evidently miles per hour of the fleet and "height in feet of the second.

Landmarks Change Places.

How the pilot ever kept his directions straight is the one mystery which will never be solved. Circling about the field, doubling back, and flying straight ahead for a short time turned the compass completely inside out and made east and west about as definite as Harding's stand on the League of Nations. The Wichita Mill on one side and Lake Wichita on the other were the only two landmarks large enough to distinguish and they changed positions so rapidly that at times it was hard to tell which was which.

In making the descent some creepy sensations became apparent, especially when the roofs of the Call Field buildings began to rush upward at dizzy speed and to loom larger and larger straight ahead, but the frigid blasts of air that swept through the cockpit and replaced the warm torrents which had poured back from the big six-cylinder engine while it was in motion numbed all fear of a collision with anything. But this lasted only a few moments and the plane and its cargo was soon standing quietly in the same spot from which it had started.

Credit to W. W. Silk.

Credit for bringing the J. L. 6 to Wichita Falls belongs almost entirely to W. W. Silk, who has known Mr. Larson for some time. Mr. Silk received word that the monoplane would be in Tulsa Wednesday and so immediately took steps to bring it to Wichita Falls. Mr. Larson and his two associates left the company aviation ground in Central Park, Long Island, a week ago last Wednesday and proceeded to Tulsa by way of Harrisburg, Pa.; Dayton, Ohio; Kokomo, Ind.; St. Louis and Tulsa. They were detained for a time in Dayton and were held for four days in St. Louis by rain and fog. The trip to Tulsa from St. Louis, a distance of over 400 miles, was made in less than five hours, while the flight from Tulsa to Wichita Falls, a 280-mile trip, began at 12:40 Friday afternoon and ended at 4 o'clock.

Plane Holds Records.

The J. C. type monoplane holds the world's altitude record for commercial aircraft, having atained a height of 22,000 feet with a full load of fuel and passengers, and it also holds the longest non-stop flight record for a commercial airship, having flown from Omaha, Neb., to Philadelphia. Mr. Larson and his companions left at noon Saturday, going from here to Ft. Worth, thence to Dallas, and from there to Los Angeles by way of El Paso, Tucson, Arizona, and San Diego.

The plane weighs 2,200 pounds without a load and can carry passengers equal to its own weight. Motive power is furnished by a six-cylinder Mercedes motor which develops 185-horsepower. A number of the J. L. 6s have been sold throughout the country and are being used by business men in taking trips between widely scattered points. The United States government is using this type in its aerial mail service and the moving picture companies are also utilizing a few for filming purposes.

Mr. Silk stated that the landing of the plane here might have some bearing on the efforts which are to be made to bring the government aerial mail route through Wichita Falls. The New York to San Francisco mail service that is now being maintained runs through the northern states but is said to be unsatisfactory because of frequent delays occasioned by fogs and inclement weather. If the government authorities could be persuaded to use Call Field on the main line of the air route it would be a big boost for the city, and inasmuch as the J. L. planes are being used almost exclusively in the mail service it is not unlikely that the local field will receive attention.

SUGGESTS REASONS FOR THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

The peacable, law abiding people of the town or city are leagued together and called a municipality, for the protection of the rights of the citizens against the outlaw element who would rob, murder and rape the individual if he were not protected by the league. The people of the county are leagued in a county court for the promotion of peace and order. The citizens of counties are leagued into a state government for the protection of the rights of each citizen and the consequent peace and order. The states are leagued into a United States government. Texas and Oklahoma would be at war now over border trouble were it not for this league of states which took the matter in hand. The nations of the American continent are leagued into what is known as the Monroe doctrine for the protection of the rights of each nation. Now to magnify the league idea or the Monroe doctrine and carry it to the highest pinacle is to have a League of Nations for the protection of the rights of each nation and the consequent peace of the world. There are outlaws everywhere, even at the head of nations who will jump on a weaker nation and rob it of everything. This is the cause of war. There are powerful nations today whose holdings have been taken away from some weaker nations. If the nations are all leagued together, the outlaw will not dare to start anything. To oppose the League of Nations is to admit that you are against our form of government, or that you are ignorant or that you are jealous because your party is not the "Daddy" of the League of Nations.

Our Banner Week

Last week closed our first year's business in Wichita Falls, making the last week the "banner." We wish to thank our many friends and customers very highly for their part in making Richardson's Bargain Basement a real success. It has been ever our aim to give the very best values obtainable at all times. Keeping our prices at the very lowest. Practically all of our first class merchandise comes from New York. We have a resident buyer at that place keeping in touch with market conditions, buying special pick-ups that cannot be obtained only by being right on the spot. When merchandise can be had for less, we will give our customers the advantage.

We are lucky having purchased 90% of our Fall and Winter Merchandise since the slump came

So we are still able to give bargains that cannot be obtained elsewhere.

This week, the first week of our new business year, we are launching a selling campaign. Our first year doubled our expectations, now for the next year we have zeal to double again. To do this we are going to sell on a smaller margin of profit, giving better values than ever. We assure you any article will be sold more reasonably than it can be obtained elsewhere. We appreciate your trade and it makes us happy to give you bargains. Every article throughout our entire stock brand new and at reductions.

EL PASO TRIP CONVINCES LOCAL MEN POSSIBILITIES DECLARED UNLIMITED; J. A. KEMP'S DREAM WILL COME TRUE

By C. F. CARTER

J. A. Kemp has dreamed a dream for twenty-eight years. Throughout a period stretching over a quarter of a century this one man has kept before him a vision of the future greatness of his home city—Wichita Falls. He has had the courage and the faith to cling to this dream in the face of obstacles that would have wiped away the visions of smaller men. He has believed, and, believing, he has spent thousands of dollars in a one-man fight to bring the truth of his dream home to his own people—but for almost this full quarter of a century he was alone in his castle of dreams.

Today, however, J. A. Kemp is not dreaming alone. Twenty-five of the wealthiest and most prominent citizens of Wichita county have seen Joe Kemp's vision, and have joined forces with him in the battle to make that vision a reality. These men returned to Wichita Falls Friday night, after spending almost a week inspecting the wonderful irrigated farms of the El Paso Valley and the amazing Elephant Butte dam that impounds in the canons of the Black Hills of New Mexico the largest artificial lake in the world.

There are now twenty-five men in Wichita Falls who know that Joe Kemp's plan to construct a great storage reservoir that will irrigate the entire Wichita Valley is practical; that it can be done; that it will be done, and that the entire future of Wichita Falls as one of the leading cities of the Southwest depends upon this great project. These men have always believed in Joe Kemp, but the big thing now is the fact that they believe heart and soul in Joe Kemp's dream. Every man today is filled with the same inspiration that kept the dream alive in Kemp's heart for twenty-eight years.

There are two stories to be told today on this page of the Times; the story of what the Wichita Falls men saw on their trip, and the story of the Wichita Valley irrigation project as J. A. Kemp and his engineers have planned it. The last story shall be told first.

A district has been organized under the Texas district irrigation law, and the people have voted, almost unanimously, to issue $4,500,000 in bonds. From the sale of these bonds the funds will be provided with which to construct the irrigation project.

Will Dam Wichita River.

Some forty-five miles northwest of Wichita Falls, on the edge of the Baylor county line a great concrete dam will be constructed across the Wichita river to catch the flood waters from the hills above. This great storage reservoir created by the dam will cover 17,500 acres, and will impound 500,000 acre feet of water.

From this immense lake water will be released through the dam and directed down the channel of the Wichita river. Twenty-five miles northwest of Wichita Falls a diversion dam will impound 45,000-acre feet of water—a reservoir in itself three times the size of Lake Wichita.

From the diversion dam main canals and laterals will deliver water to the farm units on both sides of the river. The project will irrigate 150,000 acres and, in addition, will furnish an adequate water supply for the city of Wichita Falls. This city will be completely surrounded by the irrigation area, as the great reservoir and diversion dam will carry water into the Wichita Valley over a width of ten miles.

Water at $3 an Acre.

Water will be furnished to the farmers in the Wichita Valley at a cost of $3 per acre per annum, which will care for the maintenance and operation of the canal system and will provide a sinking fund to retire the bonds and protect the interest. In other words, the total cost of the water right will be approximately $40 per acre—and at this point it might be advisable to go one step into the second story and state that this same cost on the Elephant Butte project is $90 per acre. The value of the water in the diversion dam of the Wichita Valley project, figured at $40 an acre, will be sufficient in itself to more than pay for the dam.

Nature has provided the drainage in the Wichita Valley. This is one of the most advantageous features of the entire project. The drainage problem, the taking away from the farms of surplus water, is the most serious problem of every irrigation project—and especially is this serious with reference to the Elephant Butte project. But the Wichita Valley will need very little drainage, and it will be a comparitively simple matter to drain the tiny area of flat lands in the valley that may require this.

Drain Off the Alkali.

The drainage canals of the Elephant Butte project have drawn off from the El Paso Valley lands 400,000 tons of salt (alkali) during the last three years. In this respect also the Wichita Valley is fortunate, for it has no alkali conditions, either in the water or the land, that are serious. Furthermore, the lands in the valley have a very rich salt that in itself serves as a wonderful fertilizer.

When the Wichita Valley project is completed and in operation, Wichita Falls will be surrounded by one of the richest agricultural sections in the world. Cotton, wheat and oats of the finest quality can be raised; peaches, pears, plums, apricots, grapes, sugar beets and all vegetable will thrive on this native soil, properly fed by water, as they will not grow in any other section of the entire Southwest.

That, in brief, is the outline of the irrigation project that Joe Kemp has fought for these past twenty-eight years. But his dream, the dream that the men who made the El Paso trip now are seeing also, does not end there. The Wichita Valley project will mean a great, prosperous rural community surrounding Wichita Falls. It will mean modern farms lying along the edge of a net-work of concrete and asphalt highways fringed with shade trees. It will mean good district schools and churches, and comfortable homes where men may bring up their children amid all the advantages of progressive, clean rural life—plus accessibility to a rich, growing city. It will mean homes for industrial workers, who are now discouraged by many city burdens and who would gladly, if they could, own their homes in some suburb of the city where orchards and flowers might steal away some of the taint of the factory.

And there, briefly again, is the vision Joe Kemp has clung to all these years; the vision that other men now see—which brings us to the second story.

Elephant Butte Project.

The Elephant Butte irrigation project lies in central and southern New Mexico and Texas. The source of the water supply is the watershed of the Rio Grande river, which rises in central Colorado and flows southward through the middle of New Mexico, onward past El Paso, Texas, where it becomes the boundary between the United States and Mexico, until it empties into the Gulf of Mexico. One hundred and twenty miles north of El Paso is a narrow canon or "draw" forming part of the foothills of the Black Hills. Here the engineers of the United States reclamation service constructed the Elephant Butte dam, named after a high, rocky butte shaped like the head of a huge elephant and lying some five hundred yards north of the canon mouth.

Here, then, is the start of the Elephant Butte irrigation project, and here twenty-six Wichita Falls men gathered as guests of the government last Wednesday. They saw the greatest utilization of natural power, and the greatest transformation to topography for which the hand and brain of man has ever been responsible. No man who made that trip will ever forget it, and it is hardly within the limited power of the writer of this article to present a description that will carry the tremend us impression that this project stamps on the mind of every man who views it.

Dam a Gigantic One.

The dam itself is a gigantic thing: a great, slanting wall of concrete 308 feet high, 1400 feet long, 250 feet thick at its bottom, 18 feet thick at its top and containing 500,000 cubic yards of masonry. The members of the Wichita Falls party went to the very base of this great wall on its southern side, and stood in silent amazement watching the effect of the opening one of the gates of the dam. Through this gate, only five feet in diameter, a tremendous white bolt of water and hurling spray was tosesd into the channel of the Rio Grande. Hundreds of fish fro mthe lake wer ethrown fifty feet in the air by the awful suction and rush of the waters.

In five minutes the sight was gone, the gate was closed by hydraulic pressure and only the disturbed condition of the water below the dam indicated that anything unusual had happened.

The members of the party entered the dam far down below the surface of the lake, and here for the first time they reached actual physical realization of the size of this great engineering monument. Up a dimly lighted stairway of narrow concrete blocks, more than 300 steps in all, they climbed to the top of the dam—a distance, according to the government engineers, equivalent to climbing to the top of an eighteen-story building.

An Engineering Feat.

The writer lays no claim to engineering knowledge. The construction of this great dam unquestionably was an engineering feat that reflects enormous credit upon E. H. Baldwin, Louis C. Hill, W. M. Reed and L. M. Lawson, the reclamation service engineers under whose direction it was built. It is tremendously interesting, however, to sketch the direct effects of the building of the dam.

That great wall of masonry across the canon mouth has held the flood waters from the San Cristobal range and the Black Hills in check until today in the canons and draws where the Apache Indians once ranged there is a lake forty miles long, six miles wide at its widest point, and averaging 105 feet in depth.

From the hill above the dam the members of the Wichita Falls party could see this great reach of waters extending fourteen miles to a point where the curve of the canons shut off the view. Buttes fantastically carved, and tinged with rose and blue lifted from the bosom of the lake, cone-shaped islands showed here and there, while on the left the shore line of the lake merged into a broad level mesa running back clear to the lofty Sierra Madres.

Beneath the waters of this lake lie three old Mexican towns, Paraje, Contradella and Contrarecio. The United States government, dealing direct with each individual settler in these canons, bought every village that might lie in the path that the lake would have to take—and today the adobe buildings of these three towns lie beneath 105 feet of blue mountain water. Old Paraje was once a town of several thousand inhabitants, and a point of importance in the day of the Overland Trail. It is impossible to describe the strange feelings of the Wichita Falls men when, later in the afternoon, they rode in a motor launch directly over this old Mexican settlement.

Old Fort McRae, associated in the early sixties with war and the days of the trader, also lies far below the surface of the lake, a thing of history but no longer of place.

This great artificial lake contains 2,600,000 acre feet of water, sufficient in itself to irrigate 180,000 acres for two years if a single drop of water was not added to its capacity during that entire period. This water, if spread out one foot deep would cover 4,285 square miles, or an area over twice that of the state of Delaware. It would fill a pipe four feet in diameter and 1,734,700 miles long, or nearly seventy times around the world. Reflect on these figures a moment, and use your imagination in picturing this great storage reservoir created by Uncle Sam.

First Diversion Is South.

The first diversion dam of the Elephant Butte project is south down the Rio Grande twenty miles, at Percha, where 20,000 acres are irrigated, the Leasburg diversion dam, 60 miles below the Butte, cares for 40,000 more acres, next comes the Mesilla diversion dam 80 miles south of the Butte and irrigating another 40,000 acres—and last is the International diversion dam at El Paso, 120 miles from the great reservoir. Fifty thousand acres are irrigated from this dam.

There are over 500 miles of canals leading from these diversion dams, and

A section of the Asphalt County Highway running through the El Paso Valley, showing the big shade trees and lands made productive by irrigation.

ENTHUSIASTIC OVER PROPOSED IRRIGATION PROJECT.

Twenty-five men made the trip to the El Paso Valley and to the famous Elephant Butte dam in the heart of the Black Hills of New Mexico. Every man today is "fired up" to work for a similar project that will irrigate the Wichita Valley and make Wichita Falls one of the really great cities of the Southwest. The Times quotes below the impressons brought home by some of these prominent citizens:

C. H. Clark: "I believe that every man in our party felt a thrill as he stood with Mr. Kemp on the top of the great Elephant Butte dam and realized that Wichita county has the opportunity to build a similar system for our farm lands."

N. H. Martin: "We have come back with the determination that the chamber of commerce, acting for the citizenship that has put its hand to the plow in this irrigation movement, must not turn back until this wonderful project, which will mean so much for the building of our city, is realized."

J. B. Marlow: "Mr. Kemp has been of incalculable benefit to Wichita Falls, but his crowning service will be the completion of this irrigation project."

Hubert M. Harrison: "The Elephant Butte dam is 300 feet high and 250 feet thick, but it is not nearly as big to me as the imagination, faith, energy and courage of J. A. Kemp, who has been planning the Wichita project for a quarter of a century."

W. S. Curlee: "The irrigation project will bring our people back to appreciation of living in the country under ideal conditions. I am impressed as never before with the possibilities of irrigation."

B. F. Johnson: "The Elephant Butte project is helping to make El Paso a great city. The Wichita project will make Wichita Falls a city of 100,000 in ten years."

Newton Maer: "I am completely 'sold' on this matter of irrigating the Wichita Valley. This trip has brought home to me facts I had never before realized, or even dreamed of."

O. F. Marchman: "The Elephant Butte project has accomplished miracles. With the greater advantages possessed by the Wichita Valley the possibilities of irrigation here are absolutely unlimited."

What these men said was echoed and repeated in other words by their companions on the trip. "Sold," every man of them; "sold," all down the line—a little doubtful a week ago, but enthusiastic boosters today.

Making the trip with Mr. Kemp were N. H. Martin, C. H. Clark, H. M. Harrison, Reese S. Allen, J. B. Marlow, F. F. Gwynn, Frank Boyd, C. E. Rogers, P. A. Rogers, W. Newton Maer, John Finch, W. S. Curlee, O. F. Marchman, B. F. Johnson, W. B. Corlett, F. J. McCoy, J. M. Baber, Paul Block, J. W. Stone, Mack Sumate, R. H. Cook, Paul Barnett, R. M. Ewalt and C. F. Carter.

Plan Mass Meeting During This Week

J. A. Kemp, father of the proposed Wichita Valley irrigation project, is now president of an honest-to-goodness Boosters' Club composed of the men who made the recent trip to the El Paso Valley with him. These men have promised to get behind any movement that will further the success of the local irrigation project.

To that end Mr. Kemp plans to hold some day next week a mass meeting of Wichita Falls citizens to create additional interest in the project, and to form a united citizenship back of this great movement. Every man who made the El Paso trip will attend the meeting, and will be prepared to tell in simple facts and figures what he saw and heard, and to give his own personal views of the feasibility of irrigating the Wichita Valley.

more than 170 miles of drainage ditches.

All that we have tried to describe here includes what was seen by the Wichita Falls men who made this trip. Now the story must change to the description of another trip, whereon the actual results of irrigation were seen.

In El Paso the Wichitans were the guests of the chamber of commerce on an automobile trip down the El Paso Valley. This trip was a revelation to many business men who have been in El Paso before, but who until now had never traveled outside the business section of that city.

Trip Lasted One Afternoon.

The trip lasted throughout one afternoon, and the visitors covered more than 70 miles over broad asphalt highways, shaded by huge cottonwood trees, and with wonderful orchards, cotton and alfalfa farms and dairies on every side. The El Paso Valley is a land made wonderful by irrigation—and by the proper drainage that accompanies irrigation of this kind. For it should be understood at the outset that irrigation is no new thing amid the lands that border the Rio Grande. For practically 200 years these lands have been irrigated in more or less crude manner. They have been overirrigated, in fact, and the real value of the wonderful Elephant Butte project lies in the restraint it exercises upon the turbulent flood waters of the Rio Grande, and the care with which it drains this great agricultural section.

"The big drain ditches have done the trick," C. J. Blanchard, statistician of the reclamation service, told the writer. "Areas a short time ago better adapted for fish farming than agriculture have come back to cotton, alfalfa and grain. The stagnant pools are gone, and a new and vigorous spirit has returned to dispel the gloom of other days."

Visit 2,000-Acre Farm.

The Wichita Falls men visited among others the huge farm of Lee Moor, some sixty odd miles south of El Paso. It is a farm of 2,000 acres given over entirely to alfalfa and cotton. The cotton runs a bale and a half to the acre on an average, while five tons of alfalfa are produced on every acre where this crop is grown. Three years ago this land of Moor's could have been bought for less than $20 an acre. It was full of alkali, and a barren waste part of the year and a swamp the rest. Today it is worth more than $100 an acre.

J. J. Smith, another wealthy El Paso farmer, has a pear orchard covering 150 acres—and under irrigation he is netting between $300 and $500 an acre from this crop. He also has 108 acres of apple trees, bearing three boxes of apples to the tree—worth this year $2 per box.

There is not an improved farm in the El Paso Valley under irrigation that is not valued at from $100 to $200 an acre; unimproved lands are worth from $20 to $75 an acre where they can be irrigated; while raw lands above the "big ditch" can be bought as low as $1.25 an acre.

The cotton crop in the El Paso Valley this year is estimated at $3,000,000, while it is also conservatively estimated that the Bartlett pear crop will fill 65 cars. The whole story in a nutshell is told in the words of L. M. Lawson, government engineer in charge of the entire project:

Gross Value Fifteen Million.

"The survey of the gross land investment on the project," he said, "including not only the value of the land in its raw state, but the additional value through land improvement, equipment and stock on farms, together with houses, barns and other plant items, shows a gross value of $15,000,000. Making this investment possible, as well as protecting it, the United States government through the reclamation service has constructed irrigation and drainage works valued at $10,000,000. This $25,000,000 property, to be owned and controlled by the property owners on the project, is a unique investment. Its successful outcome guarantees not only homes but fortunes for its stockholders. It is a national, states and city asset, creating taxable property for state and county income and contributing even in a larger degree to its principal municipality, El Paso, through which the business of the project passes."

As an illustration of the value of the Elephant Butte project attention might be called to the years 1917-1918, when for 18 months not enough water came down the Rio Grande to irrigate the project and when it became necessary to draw upon the great reservoir above the Butte dam. Although, according to government figures, the farmers during that period would have received from the rainfall less than forty days of wet weather, the great reservoir irrigated the entire project in such a manner that no farmer was aware of the drough—while during that period the value of the crops raised was $4,500,000, which happens to be the exact cost of constructing the Elephant Butte dam.

We have tried to describe all these matters in detail, as they were seen by the Wichita Falls men who made this trip. What L. M. Lawson has said, as quoted above, regarding the value of the Elephant Butte project to the El Paso community will apply with force equally striking with reference to the proposed Wichita Valley project and Wichita Falls.

Joe Kemp's dream will come true. There is not a man who made this El Paso trip who does not believe in the vision.

In closing, the men who made this trip wish through The Times to thank the El Paso chamber of commerce for the many courtesies shown, and also to thank L. M. Lawson, general manager of the project; T. W. Parry, superintendent of irrigation, and other government men who went out of their way to make the trip enjoyable and profitable.

Voters: Are the political principles of George Washington and Sam Houston good enough for you? Then vote the farmer-labor American party ticket. McGregor for governor of Texas. (Political Adv.) 169-4tp

Woman's Faith Helps Husband.

"I owe my good health to my wife who had faith in a newspaper ad she saw of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I was down so badly with stomach and liver trouble after 15 years of suffering and trying every known remedy that I had no faith in anything. This medicine has certainly been a 'God-send' to me." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.—Mack Taylor and druggists everywhere.—Adv.

COMPLETE DETAILS INVOLVING TRANSFER OF WATER SYSTEM

LEGAL OBSTACLES HAVE BEEN OVERCOME BY RECENT CONFERENCES.

DEED TO BE EXECUTED IN ABOUT TWO WEEKS

Agreement Made With Electric Company For Power For Pumping Station.

At a meeting of the city council held Saturday morning at the office of Mayor Cline in the First National Bank building, an agreement was reached with the representatives of the water company for the long-deferred purchase of the water system.

All legal obstacles and other technical difficulties in the way of the purchase have been overcome, and the deed to the property will be executed and delivered in about two weeks, or after the release of two mortgages against it held by the Banker's Trust Company of New York in the sums of $400,000.00 and $200,000.00 respectively. The city will give in exchange for the property city bonds in the sum of $800,000.00 plus the cost of certain improvements which have been made since negotiations have been pending.

An agreement has been made with the electric company for power for the pumping station.

The present offices of the water company will probably be used until an addition to the city hall can be constructed to house both the water office and the city engineering department.

Councilmen Bonner and Curlee have been appointed a committee to act in conjunction with the mayor in working out details for the operation of the water system.

Adopt Taxicab Ordinance.

A taxicab ordinance has been adopted under which licenses will be issued at a charge of $25.00 per year. Each license will require of the licensee a bond in the sum of $2500 for bodily injuries to any one person and of $5000 for all persons who may be injured in any one accident and of $1000 for injury to property. The licensee will be required to make a selection of a stand to be approved by the council.

Rates of charge will be:

For one person, six blocks or less, 50 cents.

Between six blocks and one mile for one or two passengers, $1.00.

Each additional half-mile, 50 cents.

Each additional passenger above two, 50 cents.

By the hour, a five-passenger vehicle $3.00; a seven-passenger vehicle, $4.00.

For violation of this ordinance or connivance at violation, the license will be forfeited. Under the ordinance the furnishing of transportation by a licensee for any immoral purpose is unlawful.

The regular meeting night for the council has been changed from Thursday to Monday.

Health turns the Clock Backward

Healthful Kidneys A Winter Necessity

(Sunday Health Talk No. 6)

By P. L. MYERS, D. C.

The kidneys control the action of the skin and are the heat regulators of the body. During the season of the year when there are quick changes from the warmth of day to the chill of night, or the body must adapt itself to a change from the extreme of outdoor cold to indoor comfort, the kidney sufferer is in constant danger.

Kidney weakness and inefficiency in adapting the body to sudden changes, is apt to cause lung congestion or pneumonia. Kidney weakness is due to pressure upon spinal nerves at the spine. By chiropractic spinal adjusting this pressure of hard bone upon soft nerve tissue is lifted, and the nervous energy flows freely once more. After adjusting the kidney vigor comes back to normal and health follows as a matter of course.

Backache and Kidney Trouble Is Now Gone

"Before taking chiropractic adjustments I was bothered with my back and kidneys so badly that I could not sleep after two in the morning. Now I sleep all night, and my health is sound and vigorous once more."—Marion Morgan, Chiropractice Research Bureau, Statement No. 1237H.

DEAR FOLKS:

I just came back from St. Louis where I took advantage of the Sales that the big wholesale houses had there. You have read about them in the daily papers. I claim that my store is the only store in this city and I am the only man who bought goods at the present cut rate prices. I am going to pass this tremendous saving direct to you at a very small profit. In my store you can buy anything you desire at less than elsewhere, no matter how much their reduction may be. Remember, I paid much less money. Save the difference. M. HARRIS.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1920.

Tuesday ends a great political campaign, speaking nationally, and the great issues confronting the American people, upon which they will express their individual judgment, are "on the lap of the gods." With Chairman White declaring the republicans "demoralized" and victory certain, and with Chairman Hays predicting for Harding the "greatest popular majority in history," how should a mere layman undertake to say which will win? Indeed, ante-election predictions and courage-maintaining forecasts aside, who can have the prescience to know what the verdict will be? But this we do know: Governor James M. Cox, democratic nominee, has made one of the greatest political fights recent American history has recorded. Undaunted by the odds that, in the beginning, were confessedly against him; undiscouraged by the apathy that existed among his own party members, very many of whom went into the fight with the idea that it was hopeless; ignoring his own party's empty purse and the opposition's plethoric one, the democratic nominee has battled down the odds until he has the opposition badly frightened, he has inspired his own partisans not only with hope but real confidence of victory, and he has made his campaign "on a shoe-string," as it were, devoting all of his matchless energy and ability and powers of persuasion to the inspiring of his own party and to the discouraging of the opposition. That he has made a winning fight, we are hopeful; that he has made a fight that has endeared him to the progressive elements of this country and that he has demonstrated that the national democratic convention made no mistake when it selected him as its standard bearer, nobody will deny. And, win or lose, James M. Cox is going to be an influence in these United States for many years to come, because he has proved his right to weigh heavily in any councils of his party or of his country that may be called.

"Mr. Bryan," suggests the Dallas News paragrapher, "is making so much noise in favor of the democratic nominee that you can hear a pin drop in Nebraska." Mr. Bryan's course in this campaign has rejoiced his enemies and disappointed his friends. Wielding an influence that is not to be discounted, Mr. Bryan could have been of real help in a number of pivotal states this year had he been big enough to swallow his chagrin at his rebuff at San Francisco and subordinate his own ideas to the party's—and, we might say, the country's good. He was against Cox at San Francisco no more strongly than he was against McAdoo. In fact, the steadiness with which all of the convention votes dominated by Mr. Bryan remained so firmly with Senator Owen of Oklahoma, whom nobody suspected of having even a remote chance for the nomination, that there were reasonable suspicions that there was truth in the charge made by the Nebraskan's enemies, to-wit: No candidate suited him except himself. Mr. Bryan could have brought about the nomination of McAdoo if he had wanted to and, alleging his opposition to Cox was grounded upon the Ohioan's suspected "wetness," that would have been the thing for him to have done, McAdoo being "bone dry." It is not improbable, even, that, by swinging his support to John W. Davis, another "bone dry," at the psychological moment, he could have brought about his nomination as a "dark horse." But he did none of these things; his delegates stayed with Owen, and the one pronouncement from him since the convention was "my heart is in the grave" interview given at Portland on his way home from the convention. Only Mr. Bryan's enemies have derived any satisfaction from his attitude; his friends and admirers, among whom we have always been glad to be counted, have had only disappointment and Mr. Bryan has, we think, seriously impaired his influence with the party, among whose leaders he has been conspicuous in every campaign beginning with his own in 1896.

It appears, from dispatches from the Rio Grande Valley, that Texas has, or soon is to have, a Japanese problem of its own, and the citizens of the Valley, with knowledge of what the Oriental immigration has meant to Californians, are taking prompt steps to prevent a recurrence in Texas of what has come about on the Pacific coast. The South long has suffered, spiritually and materially, from the presence of an unassimilable people in its midst. That, as much as anything else, has given Southern sympathy to California in its troubles with the Japanese. And just why, knowing these facts, there should be any sympathy here in the South toward bringing in another unassimilable people and creating another and tremendously more serious racial problem, is beyond us. It is true, of course, that the presence of a few Japanese can make no impression on the nearly 5,000,000 Americans in Texas. But, intensely gregarious and un-wanted elsewhere, the Japanese, given even a dubious welcome here, will follow the few. It is better to dispose of the question before even the "few" arrive. Dispatches from the Rio Grande valley indicate that the bulk of the citizens down there hold to the same opinion.

Following that order's great slogan, "He profits most who serves best," Gainesville Rotarians sought to do a good service to their home city by starting a rat-catching contest. They offered 5c each for all the rats caught and the results indicate that the "Pied Piper" might have made a more advantageous bargain with Gainsville than he did with Hamelin, for the club's $150 set aside for paying the prizes was soon exhausted, as was a second $150 put up when the first was exhausted. It required $218 more than the $300 to pay for the rats turned in at a nickel apiece and then, with no apparent diminishment of the rat bounties demanded, the contest was called off. Five hundred and eighteen dollars include 10,360 nickels. North Texas has suffered from short crops in some lines this year. It would be difficult to convince the Gainesville Rotary club that the "rat crop" is one of them.

Every loyal democrat owes it to himself and to his party to vote Tuesday. It is not that we believe there is even a remote likelihood of the success of any opposition party in Texas that we urge this, but that the democratic victory of 1920 may be so complete, so overwhelming, that it will not soon again be questioned. Then, again, there are three constitutional amendments to be voted on in Tuesday's election, upon which there should be a full expression from the sovereign voters, because all three of them are important and one of them tremendously important to the welfare of the state. With a big ticket to be voted and the probability of a heavy vote, those who can do so should make it a point to vote as early as possible.

The New Freedom.

(State Press in Dallas News.)

The saloons were closed to save the boys and now it is beginning to look like we will have to close the garages and drug stores to save the girls.—Pflugerville Press.

Girls, in the final analysis, must save themselves. That is what they have always had to do, but when they led what was called the sheltered life they certainly had fewer opportunities to lose themselves than at present, when they have all the liberty they know what to do with, or a little more than that. Give a girl the right kind of parentage, which is to say a father and mother who not only believe in virtue and modesty, but practice them, and the daughter is ninety per cent safe. Give her fair, average brains and an environment of respectable associations, and she is ninety-six per cent safe. Give her, in addition to decent parents, adequate sense and wholesome associations, a worthy ambition to preserve her personal dignity and self-respect, and she is one hundred per cent safe. A girl's safety, by which is meant her self-determination for virtue, is rarely an economic question, seldom a question of social advantage or disadvantage. It is an insult to a poor girl to believe her hospitable to temptation because of her poverty, just as it is equally an insult to the rich girl to believe her similarly receptive because of idleness and luxury. Poverty in one case and idleness in another may be, and certainly have been, influential in promoting the success of the tempter. But there is no rule in such cases any more than there is a rule for veracity. Some are truthful and some are not, and social condition has little or nothing to do with it. The conditions which obtain today, whereunder girls and young women go and come at will, escorted or unescorted, require an occasional consideration of new conventions. Unquestionably there are more chances for false steps on the part of the inexperienced. Parents or others in authority should impress it upon the minds of girls that the latter must be the captains of their own souls; that they must employ their own moral strength, their own sense of responsibility, their own intelligence and their own pride as the defenses of their integrity. The father or the big brother can not go with the girl as her shield today. She must be her own protector, her own body guard. She must be worthy of her new liberty if it is not to prove a curse to her sex and the race.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS FROM THE BIG SIX WELL DRILLING IN MONTAGUE

NOCONA, TEXAS, Oct. 30.—Encouraging reports come in from the Big Six well drilling on the Dunn farm about six miles southwest of Nocona. A sand carrying no water was found at 800 feet and a second sand of the same kind was encountered at 880 feet. This is taken to show a high spot, and to offer a pretty good prospect for finding something still better at a deeper level. A good feeling prevails among the backers of the Big Six project and others interested in that locality.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST

The Easiest Thing.

It's hard, sometimes hard to keep plugging along
When the game isn't going your way;
There are times, without doubt, when your hope flickers out,
And you think it is useless to play;
But just keep in mind that the battle's not lost
Until all of the fighting is through,
Make a contest of it, do not lie down and quit,
For quitting's so easy to do.

The way of a man in all struggles of life
Is to play to the end of the string;
He may feel that defeat he is shortly to meet
But he'll fight till the last bell shall ring;
The cowards and quitters drop out of the fray
Ere ver the finish is due.
They haven't the heart to go through with their parts
And quitting's so easy to do.

It's easy to flinch and it's easy to whine
When foes that are stronger assail;
When your pathway is barred and the going is hard.
That's the time it is easy to fail;
But while you've a chance don't give way to despair,
To yourself and your purpose stay true,
Make a battle of it, do not lie down and quit—
That's the easiest thing you can do.

Side Talks

By RUTH CAMERON

Someone Busier.

There's always someone busier.

When you were driven to distraction by the number of duties that seem to clamor for your attention, did you ever think of that?

It doesn't seem to me I ever knew anyone who did not think he or she was a very busy person.

I have known women living in hotels with not one thing in the world to do but look after themselves and tell how busy they had been and how they had no time to answer letters.

Then I've known of women without children, and with small, easily cared-for homes, complaining of how b sy they were.

Again I know a woman who has three children and keeps two maids who thinks her life is most strenuous.

Yet across the street from her lives a woman who has three children and no maid. If the one is busy, how about the other?

Again, if this latter should think she was the busiest woman on earth I could point out to her another woman who has four small children and a decrepit father to look out for, and who also has no service.

Again, I know a woman who works very hard in an office and thinks she has a most difficult life. But across the street from her lives another who works as hard in the office and comes home and helps her mother—who keeps boarders—with the dishes every night. And still another office worker of whom I know, used to come for years to the care of an invalid mother, sometimes being up three-quarters of the night with her.

So there you are. If you want to cure yourself of self-pity, just look about for someone who has a good real harder row to hoe than you, and the chances are you can easily find him or her.

Of course, there must be somewhere the ultimately busiest person, but presumably there is only one of her or him. I seem to feel pretty sure it's a her.

You may say that it doesn't make your way any easier to know about other people's troubles. But it should, in this way—if you have the right stuff in you, you can't help being ashamed of pitying yourself when you really have less to stand up under than your neighbor. And if you get rid of some of your self-pity you have gotten rid of one big obstacle.

A woman who was left a widow with three children and who went out into the world and made a good living for them and then came home at night and looked after her house and made most of her clothes, said that she drew a great deal of her strength from saying to herself, "What anyone else has done, I can do."

Someone who heard her said they called that conceit. I don't. I call it the opposite of conceit—namely, the finest kind of pride and courage.

RIPPLING RHYMES

By WALT MASON

Henry the Great.

I have a hat that cost a pile—hat prices high have soared—and I take off that treasured pile, and bow to Henry Ford. Like many patriotic gents, the people's cause I'd aid, unless 'twould cost me 15 cents—and then I am afraid. I'd gladly make the welkin ring demanding prices fair; wind doesn't cost me anything, and I have lots to spare. But when it comes to selling rhymes at any pre-war rates, why, I have use for all my dimes, like all the other skates. But Henry took a nobler view, and he had higher plans; he said, "I'll cut the price in two, on my nice tin sedans. What though it means a mighty loss? My spirit won't be grieved; the cause is good and coin is dross wher good may be achieved." So he indulged in slashing jags, cut prices many beans; and poor folk brought their shopping bags and bought his limousines. And other plutes beheld the sign, and their price schedules smashed, and merchant princes fell in line, and slashed, and slashed and slashed. And while we still have breath and life, we must not this forget—'twas Henry took the pruning knife and an example set.

AND HE DID.

WHY?—

Is Peace Represented by a Dove?

(Copyright, 1920, by Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

The dove has always played a leading role in legend, folk lore and religious symbolism, probably because of the bird which Noah dispatched from the ark and which returned carrying a sprig of olive leaves. This story is found not only in the Bible, but in the legendary history of many peoples and the details are practically the same in all the versions. It is not possible, of course, definitely to state that the bird used by Noah, to discover whether the waters had abated sufficiently to permit of a safe landing, was the dove as we know it today, but it is probable that it was a member at least of the same family—the homing instinct being particularly well marked in this species.

In addition to this tradition, and because of its peculiarly mournful notes, the dove was used in connection with pagan funeral exercises, and later passed into Christian usage. Thus we find the likeness of the dove, usually with an olive branch in its mouth, carved on the tombs in the catacombs of Rome as a symbol of eternal peace.

THE THRILL THAT COMES ONCE IN A LIFETIME

HOROSCOPE

The stars incline but do not compel
(Copyright, 1919, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Sunday, October 31, 1920.

Uranus rules strongly for good today, according to astrology. Neptune is slightly adverse.

It is held a fortunate sway for traveling and for visiting, since minds seek minds on the plane of understanding.

The stars are favorable to love-making and engagements made on this date should assure congenial marriages.

Scandals will be prevalent all through the winter and gossip will be more widely disseminated than usual, but a sensational suit or newspaper revelation that will encourage caution in speech is prophesied.

There is a lucky sign for the meetings of young men and women, since friendships begun under this sway are supposed to be lasting.

Aviation is likely to be much discussed at this time, owing to some possible service that may be required of the army's air forces.

Neptune frowns on all psychic investigations or occult studies during this planetary government.

France, Italy and Northern Africa are still subject to the most sinister sway.

An English astrologer foresees for next month military operations for the British army and navy. Mars in Capricorn will disturb India and troubles that require military intervention may affect India, Turkey or the Near East.

The fact that thought is projected and almost as dangerous is disclosing secrets as is the spoken word will be much discussed, the seers predict.

Cold weather is predicted for the coming winter, which will be better for agricture than for stock-raising.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of travel and change with success. Business will progress satisfactorily and there will be no cause to worry.

Children born on this day will be natural wanderers who search for new fields of operation as they progress in life. They have the augury of happiness and success.

OVERTON M'DOWELL ACQUIRES BUSINESS OF HUNT GRAIN CO.

A deal has been consummated whereby title to the property and business of the J. C. Hunt Grain company passes to Overton McDowell, possession to be given January 1.

The business will continue to be conducted under the established name of J. C. Hunt Grain company.

Mr. Overton has tendered his resignation as assistant general manager of the Wichita Mill and Elevator company to take effect the first of the year. His connection with his present employers has lasted over twelve years, he having started at the bottom, as office boy at a salary of $25 per month and gradually worked up to his position as assistant general manager.

Mr. Overton takes Mr. Hunt's interest in the elevator at Dundee as well as the Hunt interests here.

Large Storage Capacity.

The Wichita Falls plant has a storage capacity of 400,000 bushels.

Mr. Hunt had elevators in numerous towns in northern Texas and southern Oklahoma and has now disposed of all of them, after a successful career in the grain business here covering a period of 33 years, during which time he has been intimately connected with the life of this city. He has served on the school board, the city council and in other civic activities.

Mr. Hunt states that he expects to continue to make his home in Wichita Falls, notwithstanding the persistent rumor that he contemplates removing to the Pacific coast.

AN ENJOYABLE HALLOWE'EN PARTY ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Friday night a Hallowe'en party was given by Leila Mary Wood at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. L. M. Boyd.

All present were masked as witches or fairies and the house was decorated in Hallowe'en colors and designs. Pumpkin games were played and prizes were awarded. An old-fashioned informal good time was concluded by a liberal serving of ice cream and the youthful guests went to their homes regretting that Hallowe'en, like Christmas, comes but once a year.

Those present were: Lewis Edmonson, Stanley Field, Hillard Carey, Dinzel Whitman, Warren Wolifel, R. J. REPORT THE PUFCHASE OF ANNA BELLE OIL COMPANY

As a forerunner of better business conditions immediately after the election for the oil industry in Wichita Falls and Wichita county, Charleston A. Kleinman, of the firm of Lyons & Kleinman, reports considerably increased activity during the past week. He advises that his firm is receiving a great many calls, by letter and wire, regarding leases and production in Wichita county, and that he expects a greatly increased volume of business immediately following the election.

Lyons & Kleinman also report that they have purchased the holdings of the Anna Belle Oil company, including a 30-acre lease, fully equipped, with four wells, in the Zink oil field, Iowa Park.

RENT REDUCTION IS ANNOUNCED BY LOCAL APARTMENT HOUSE

The owners of the Brook Manor apartment house at Eighth and Brook streets voluntarily reduced rents, in a statement issued to their tenants Saturday. It was also stated that in the future the management of the apartment house will be in the care of Curlee & Johnson, local real estate operators. The complete statement follows:

"In keeping with the readjustment of economic affairs throughout the country in general and in Wichita Falls in particular, the owners of the Brook Manor Apartments, at a meeting held Friday afternoon, voluntarily decided to make a reduction of twenty per cent in monthly rentals, to take effect November 1, 1920; that is to say, apartments now renting at $150 per month will, under the new arrangement, be $120 and those at $125 will be $100, and all unexpired lease contracts will be amended accordingly. Tenants who have paid November rentals on the old basis will be given credit for the amount overpaid on December rental.

"It may interest you to know that Brook street is soon to be paved, if present plans mature, and that the Brook Manor company has signified its willingness to share its portion of the expense for this needed improvement."

ARRANGEMENT NOT COMPLETE FOR FUNERAL OF OTIS EVANS

Detailed arrangements for the funeral of Otis Evans, who was killed when his automobile was struck by a Katy passenger train late Saturday afternoon, have not yet been made. Funeral services will be held some time Monday and burial is to be in the Iowa Park cemetery, but aside from that nothing definite has been decided upon. Word from a brother who lives in Arkansas is being awaited before final arrangements are made.

NEWS FROM THE COURTS

VERDICT OF GUILTY RETURNED IN CASE OF FRANK DODSON

PUNISHMENT IS ASSESSED AT A TERM OF FOUR YEARS IN PENITENTIARY.

ATTORNEY SHIELDS HEYSER IS FINED FOR CONTEMPT

Motion For New Trial Will Be Argued Before Judge Scurry On Monday.

Setting a record of being in the jury room but thirteen minuts, the jury which heard the case against Frank Dodson charged by indictment with keeping a gaming house for the purpose of gaming, returned a verdict of guilty and assessed his punishment at the maximum provided for law which is four years confinement in the state penitentiary.

Sensations were numerous during the trial. Among the numerous incidents that occurred was the fining of Attorney S. Heyser for contempt of court. He paid the fine, which was $100.

The incident occurred just before the case was placed in the hands of the jury during the argument to the jury by County Attorney John Davenport. An objection was raised to the court over some remark that the county attorney made. The court held that the defending counsel had disregarded an order given and asked that the attending bailiff take the attorney in charge.

Fine Is Assessed.

Thereupon Mr. Heyser asked if the court would not permit him to remain in the court room until the conclusion of the trial. The court granted this request but fined him $100, which was promptly paid.

This is the first of the list of cases which have been set for trial in which the special grand jury has returned true bills and was the first case to be tried which resulted in the development of the investigation conducted following the raid on the alleged gambling den in Kemp City in which two men lost their lives.

The trial of the case against Frank Dodson was begun on Wednesday morning but was postponed shortly after court had convened for various reasons. On Thursday morning before the selection of the jury was completed, Judge Scurry of the 78th district court heard two motions presented by the defense but after arguments were presented both were overruled. The first was a motion for continuance and the second a motion to quash the indictment.

Difficult to Secure Jury.

During the selection of the jury the venire of jurymen that had been summoned was exhausted twice before a panel of thirty-two men had been secured, those being excused, being challenged for cause.

The submission of testimony was begun Friday afternoon and was concluded shortly before the noon hour Saturday. The afternoon was consumed in the presentation of arguments.

During the process of the trial the jury was excused several times and retired into the jury room while the attorneys for the state and defense argued points of law before the court, the judge holding that the argument would be prejudicial if had before the jury.

The defendant, Frank Dodson was remanded to the county jail after the jury had reported, being forced by law to remain there until the court can hear the argument of the motion for new trial Monday, which was filed immediately upon the report of the jury.

OLDHAM SENTENCED TO FIVE YEARS ON A ROBBERY CHARGE

The final chapter in the alleged highway robbery which took place at a farm house near Burkburnett on the night of August 7, was written at 9 o'clock Saturday night when the jury which heard the case against James Oldham, the last of the trio of youths arrested to be tried, returned a verdict of guilty and assessed his punishment at five years confinement in the state penitentiary.

When the jury foreman knocked at the jury room door and announced that they had reached a verdict, besides the court attaches the defendant, his three sisters and a brother were present. Silence prevailed as the judge read the written verdict handed him.

The judge had read: "We, the jury, find the defendant guilty," when all three of the sisters buried their faces in their handkerchiefs. Their sorrow became audible when the assessed punishment was read.

Little Moved by Verdict.

The defendant was little moved by the verdict. The wrinkles that had adorned his pale face for the past two days seemed to vanish and an expression seeming relief showed upon his countenance as though he was glad the suspense was over.

The case was called for trial Friday morning and the entire day and a part of Saturday was consumed in the selection of a jury, it being necessary to call in a special venire and several talesmen.

The incident which resulted in the arrest and conviction of Roy King, Roy Woods and James Oldham occurred at 2:30 o'clock on the morning of August 8. The same morning at 10 o'clock the three were placed under arrest when James Oldham was brought to the Wichita General hospital by the other two accused. Suspicion was aroused among the nurses and the doctors called to attend the patient, who had a gunshot wound in his leg, and the sheriff was called and the arrests followed.

Roy King was the first to be tried ten days ago and the jury assessed his punishment at 15 years. Roy Woods received a sentence of five years.

SEEK TO ANNUL MARRIAGE ACCOUNT OF GIRL'S AGE

Judge Scurry of the 78th district court Saturday afternoon heard the case of E. F. White against J. E. Norton in which the plaintiff prayed the court that the marriage of his daughter to the defendant be annulled on grounds that his daughter was but fifteen years of age at the time of the marriage.

It developed at the trial that Elberta White, daughter of the plaintiff, and the defendant J. E. Norton secured a marriage license on October 7, 1920, at which time it is alleged the defendant swore that the girl was eighteen years of age and that there was no objection to the marriage.

The returned marriage license certificate showed that Justice of the Peace C. J. Arrington performed the marriage ceremony on October 9, 1920.

The court took the matter under advisement, he holding that since the plaintiff testified that the daughter did not care to have the marriage vows set aside that it was his opinion that divorce proceedings would have to be instituted and that the marriage vows could not be dissolved by an annullment decree. The court advised the attorney for the plaintiff to bring the law governing the case before him.

The case referred to is the one in which it was discovered shortly after the marriage had been performed that the girl had left school in this city to get married under the pretense of visiting her mother.

FEDERAL JUDGE TAKES CASE UNDER ADVISEMENT

Attorney J. B. Hatchett, acting as special master in chancery in the United States federal court who has heard the case of Clifford Bell Sales Co. vs. the Interstate Oil & Refining Co. and the Turnbow Oil corporation, has taken the case under advisement and asked that a transcript of the case be made and submitted to him, after which he will make a ruling in the case.

The case, it is alleged, grew out of the failure of the defendant, the Interstate Oil & Refining Co., to furnish 160 cars of crude oil to the plaintiff which the plaintiff alleges had been contracted for.

The Turnbow Oil corporation was made a co-defendant in the suit as it had purchased the Interstate Oil & Refining Co. after the alleged contract was made.

The case had been in progress since Thursday morning and was not concluded until Saturday afternoon.

JUDGE MILAM RETURNS TO HIS HOME IN SEYMOUR

Judge J. H. Milam of Seymour, who has been holding court for Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court the entire week, during the latter's absence from the city, returned to his home in Seymour late Saturday night.

The judge in speaking of his visit to this city stated that he enjoyed his stay and his work to the fullest extent and that every courtesy was shown him by the court attaches, attorneys and the press. He expressed his desire of returning again to Wichita Falls.

During his stay in this city the judge tried three felony cases and one divorce case. The last of the three felony cases was not completed until a late hour Saturday evening.

AIR TRANSPORTATION COMPANY RECEIVES MACHINE SATURDAY

The Wichita Aircraft corporation, a commercial aerial transportation company which is to operate a fleet of flying machines throughout this section of the country, received its first plane Friday and has placed it in operation at Call Field.

This concern has been organized with the purpose of establishing a rapid and safe transportation system throughout northern Texas and Oklahoma and it is now ready to accept passengers from this city to all points within a radius of 200 miles of Wichita Falls. They intend to establish a regular schedule of flights from here to the more important cities of Texas and Oklahoma within a short time. At present they will make flights only as required by those making use of the system as a public utility.

The machines which the company will use are Lincoln Standard airships, which are said to be the type most widely used in the United States at the present time. The machine which arrived in this city Friday was driven from Dallas in less than two hours against a strong headwind. Three passengers were carried and one stop was made at Graham to permit an inspection of some oil property there.

Experienced Pilots.

F. L. Bronson and H. K. Meal, former air service men in the army, are at the head of the new concern and will act as pilots for the time being. Both are experienced fliers who have retained an interest in the possibilities of the airship as a means of transportation since the close of the European war. The men have city offices in room 508 of the City National Bank building.

Mr. Bronson and Mr. Meal are embarking on the venture with the belief that business and professional men will use the airships as a means of transportation when they are convinced of its practicability, and with this in view they propose to demonstrate to local business men the fact that their proposition is a good one. The exhorbitant rates heretofore charged for transportation in airplanes will find no place in the Wichita company, according to Mr. Bronson, and while the charges must of course be somewhat higher than those charged by the railway companies, the saving of time which the flying machines will make it expected to be much greater than the slight increase in the fares. When the public comes to know that it can travel to Dallas, Fort Worth, Oklahoma City or Breckenridge in far less than one half the time required by train, and with as much safety, it is believed by the officials of the company that the public will make use of the flying machine as a means of transportation.

Aviation has been developed to a point where, with reasonable caution, it is as safe a means of transportation as any other. The airship accidents recorded these days are almost entirely caused by "stunt" flying, looping the loop, nose dives and such as that, but when a plane is flown properly and on a level the danger of falling is negligible in the extreme. The officials of the local company are stressing this point and are putting themselves on record for the fact that they will exercise every possible caution and that they can effect a real saving to the travelling public.

CENTRE IS UNABLE TO WITHSTAND GEORGIA'S OVERWHELMING DRIVE

"Golden Tornado" Upsets Dope By Winning From "Praying Colonels" 24 To 0.

ATLANTA, GA., Oct. 30.—Georgia Tech's "golden tornado" administered a stunning defeat to the Centre College football machine today, piling up three touchdowns and a field goal for a 24 to 0 victory. The game was clean and hard fought. Eagerness, however, led to fumbles which proved more costly to Centre than Tech.

Tech had all the best of it from the kick off. The day was ideal for football. Hardly any wind stirred above the field to interfere with puting, which was frequent. Seats had been provided for 15,000 persons.

The spectators, many of whom had given Centre the odds, even after the latter's injuries became known, appeared to be taken aback by the very rush of their own eleven against the Kentucky team.

Those who had read accounts of Centre's wonderful work against Harvard a week ago, especially in the first two periods, could not feel as they watched today's game that the same team was in action.

The dashing attack that had earned the praises of northern critics crumpled up time and again before the Tech line. One striking example of this was in the last period when Captain McMillin made three desperate drives against the line for one touchdown. McMillin's forward passes outdid anything of the kind seen here in many years. Ferst battered down two of them and his long run for a touchdown was the result of grabbing another out of the air. Centre's most effective use of the aerial attack proved to be in short passes.

Tech got the jump at the start, when, after failure to accomplish anything in bucks and end runs both teams had resorted to punting followed by a goal from the field.

Tech's other scores were touchdowns for a score on a safety was later ruled a touchback. In the second period, Barron, a star of the game, found a hole in right tackle and dashed 57 yards and across the goal line. Fincher kicked the goal.

Ferst made the second touchdown on a 65-yard run in the third period after snatching one of McMillin's long forward passes out of the air.

A twenty-five-yard end run by Flowers in returning a short punt and a smashing drive through left tackle for 20 yards by Barron put Tech on Centre's eight-yard line in the fourth. It took four smashes before Fullback Harlan made the final yard for the touchdown.

HENRIETTA APPEARS WITH BUNCH OF INELIGIBLES—GAME IS CALLED OFF

A misunderstanding between the faculty and students of Henrietta high school was given yesterday as the reason for cancelling of the game with Wichita high. A team, supposed to represent Henrietta Hi showed up, nevertheless, but it was soon discovered by a member of the faculty that a number of ineligibles were among those present and it was decided to call the game off, Wichita getting a 1 to 0 decision by forfeiture.

A broken leg sustained by one of the members of the team earlier in the week in a game with Electra is said to have caused the parents of others to forbid their sons playing.

The local high school was not informed of the cancellation until just before game time and the boys were quite a bit peeved to think that they had not been notified earlier.

Coach Cantwell sent his charges through a bit of scrimmage work for the benefit of those who journeyed to the gridiron in hopes of seeing some real football. Two evenly matched teams struggled for a few moments, one scoring a lone touchdown.

HARVARD SUBS HAVE EASY TIME DEFEATING VIRGINIA

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., Oct. 30.—Harvard rolled up three touchdowns and a field goal against the University of Virginia today, winning 24 to 0. Although the visitors showed proficiency in the overhead game, their offensive vanished at Harvard's 25-yard line. The Crimson played the game almost entirely with subs who found some difficulty early in the game in stopping the forward passes and end runs of the visitors.

TEXAS LEAGUE MEETING TO BE HELD IN FORT WORTH

FORT WORTH, Oct. 30.—President Morris today called the annual meeting of the Texas league owners for November 6 in Fort Worth. Officers will be elected and legislation recommended. Originally, President Morris called this meeting in Kansas City simultaneously with the national association of minor league clubs, but this was changed because of the distance from Texas.

AERIAL GAME WINS FOR MICHIGAN OVER TULANE

ANN ARBOR, MICH., Oct. 30.—Superior forward passing combined with the weight of Michigan's backfield enabled the Wolverines to defeat Tulane University 21 to 0 on Ferry field this afternoon.

The New Orleans eleven showed surprising strength in the opening period and held Michigan scoreless. Most of the play was in Tulane territory. A 45-yard run in the third period and one for 40 yards in the final quarter by Jack Perrin, both of which produced touchdowns, featured the game.

FIRST POLO GAME AT CALL FIELD GROUNDS TO BE STAGED TODAY

Do you like to watch a thrilling game of dominoes? No? Then go to Call Field tomorrow afternoon and watch a whirlwind game of pony polo—you'll enjoy it, 'tis so different from dominoes.

This polo game is one between members of the Wichita Falls Polo club and will be the first game played on the new grounds at Call Field. It will start at 3:30 o'clock, will be open to the public as spectators and no charge of any kind will be made for the inestimable privilege of watching some prominent Wichitan go slithering on his ear.

Warren Jennings is captain of one of the two teams. Warren is better known to his friends as "Al" Jennings, due to the fact that they consider him a bandit at this polo game. The other team will be bossed by Dr. John Fletcher, the most peaceable, docile, tractable man in captivity—until he gets on a pony and grips a mallet. Then he gives a perfect imitation of a vexed woman cleaning house; he sweeps everything before him, in other words.

You may also—though no guarantee goes with this—see J. D. Farnell, retiring representative in the state legislature from the 101st district, riding a pony. J. D. is too wise to get tangled up in this polo business, but he may, in order to entertain his friends, consent to ride once around the field. He is a wonderful horseman.

YANKEES WIN FROM CANADIANS IN FIRST INTERNATIONAL RACE

Esperanto Leads Delawana At Finish Line By 18 Minutes And 28 Seconds.

HALIFAX, Oct. 30.—The American schooner Esperanto today won the first race in the international fisherman's regatta off Halifax harbor. She will meet the Canadian contender Delawana again Monday in another contest which, if she is victorious for the second time, will give her the championship. The Esperanto led her Canadian rival by about twenty minutes on the home stretch.

Starting 32 seconds behind the Delawana, the Gloucester schooner raced beam to beam over the first leg of the course, pressed ahead on the second, broadened the gap between boats on the third and fourth, and started the fifth with every prospect of romping home well in the lead.

Making up half a minute she lost at the start, the sturdy New England fishing smack breezed along into the lead within the first ten miles and when half the distance had been covered appeared a sure winner. The Yankee craft, when she headed into Halifax harbor for the finish line, was twenty minutes ahead of her rival, and made for the Nova Scotian port like a horse for his own stable.

Esperanto crossed the finish line 18 minutes and 28 seconds ahead of her rival by official time.

ACKER'S TOE GIVES T. C. U. VICTORY OVER PHILLIPS

FORT WORTH, Oct. 30.—Acker's perfect drop kick from the 35-yard line in the second quarter was the only score of the game between Phillips and T. C. U. here today and enabled T. C. U. to win 3 to 0, and keep its season's record of wins unbroken. The Christian tackle not only made the score but placed his team in a scoring position by recovering a Phillips fumble just previously to his successful attempt for a field goal.

Young Gotch Defeats Lewis.

ABILENE, TEXAS, Oct. 30.—Young Gotch won his thirty-eighth straight wrestling match when he defeated here last night Sailor Lewis, former heavyweight champion of the navy. Gotch got two out of three falls.

CENTRE COLLEGE'S ALL-AMERICAN QUARTERBACK

By Wood Cowan

ALVIN "BO" McMILLIN

CAPTAIN AND QUARTER LAST YEAR AT CENTRE COLLEGE, KY. AND ELECTED ALL-AMERICAN QUARTER. GREAT THINGS ARE EXPECTED OF HIM THIS FALL—

When "Bo" McMillin and "Red" Weaver, quarterback and center respectively of Centre College, Ky., were given those positions on the all-American football team last year, it was the first time such an honor had fallen to so small a college—for Centre has an enrollment of but 203 students.

McMillin was captain of the last year's eleven at Centre, and take Robert L. Myer's word for it (director of athletics at Centre), this McMillin boy is some wild Irishman. Meyer says:

"I was Bo's first coach at North Side high school in Fort Worth, Texas, some years ago. Like most kids, he had a fondness for the Tip-Top Weekly. Frank and Dick Merriwell were his heroes. Taking them as models, Bo made it his ambition to become an all-American halfback. He got all-American quarterback, which was near enough. He has never smoked or taken a drink of any liquor because his heroes did not. He has a secret ambition to be a good baseball player, but the fact is he cant play a lick.

"He is about 23, weighs 170, and is 5 feet 10 tall, a Beta Theta Pi frat man and has a line of conversation all his own—imagine Irish blarney crossed with negro wit and you can get an idea of it. He cries most of the time while he's playing and the harder the game, the better he cries."

In view of the fact that Centre will have eight of its eleven veterans back in the line-up this fall, and the team went through the season last year without a defeat, great things can be expected of the little school between now and Thanksgiving. Their schedule is much harder this year than last.

SPUDDERS PLAYED TO 130,146 PAID ADMISSIONS IN 68 DAYS AT ATHLETIC PARK LAST YEAR

While other cities around the Texas League circuf are boasting about the large attendance at their ball parks last summer, it would not do some of them any harm to take a slant at the Athletic park total for the year. According to the figures compiled by J. Will Gray, secretary of the Wichita Falls club, the Spudders played to 130,146 paid admissions last summer in their own back yard in 68 days. This makes an average crowd of over 1900 a game, which is a total that will be pretty hard to beat. Mr. Gray does not contend that it is the highest total in the league, but he does maintain that it was not exceeded by more than one club and he has doubts about that one.

Fort Worth may have outdrawn Wichita Falls, but it is doubtful. If the Panthers do top the league there is every reason in the world why they should have, when the difference in population is taken into consideration and when it is realized that the Atzmen were blazing the trail practically all season.

The Spudders may well be proud of their record and their attendance figure is going to be one of Walter Salm's strong talking points for Class A ball in Wichita Falls next year. Although Little Rock copped the rag in the Southern League, the Travelers played to only 165,000 people, and their playing season was longer than that. The fact that Class A ball will mean an increased salary list is not bothering the Spudder management one whit. It showed last season that money was no object; if Skipper Salm saw a player he wanted, he went out and got him, regardless of cost. Salm is strong for Class A ball and is going to leave no stone unturned to get it.

Every team in the league, with the possible exception of Beaumont and Galveston, wants Class A ball, and from the lay of the land now, it looks as if their plea for a higher grade of ball will not go unanswered.

The election of a president at the meeting of Texas League moguls next month will be about the most important matter to be brought before them. President Morris did not make himself the most popular man around the circuit last year with his method of handling the reins and it will not be a bit surprising to see a new head in his place. He still has a few supporters, but they appear to be in the minority. Doak Roberts has been mentioned as a possible successor, but the Houston leader has been on the question himself.

Walter Salm has been jazzing around the Pacific coast for the past couple of weeks, but is due back some time next week. No word has been received from him relative to the signing of new players, but he was not worrying much when he left, in spite of the fact that the Pittsburgh Pirates purchased his entire outfield together with Danny Clark and Jimmy Zinn. Birmingham gobbled up about the classiest looking youngster Salm had in the pitching line when it drafted Darrough, but as Salm says, "There's lots more where they came from."

OKLAHOMA UNIV. UPSETS DOPE AND BEATS MISSOURI

COLUMBIA, MO., Oct. 30.—Oklahoma University, newest member of the Missouri valley football conference, upset expectations here today by defeating the University of Missouri eleven 28 to 7. Missouri has been regarded as one of the principal contenders for valley conference title.

The Oklahoma eleven started scoring soon after play began when Morrison carried the ball over for a touchdown and Davis kicked goal.

Neither side scored in the second period, but the Oklahomans, in the opinion of observers, demonstrated superior ability by puncturing the Missouri defense in nearly every play.

WATSON PILOTS TEXAS UNIV. TO 21 TO 0 WIN OVER RICE INSTITUTE

Longhorn Quarterback Individual Star As Mates Completely Outplay Opponents.

HOUSTON, Oct. 30.—Texas University, outplaying the Rice Institute team in practically every department of the game, won today by the score of 21 to 0. The Rice team was unable to solve the forward pass formation of the Longhorns. Grady Watson, at quarter, was the individual star for the Texas team. McCallum tore off a 60-yard run after intercepting a forward pass. Tynes and McCallum also played well for Texas.

Rice only made on first down by straight football while Texas was held for downs on few instances. The teams were evenly matched as far as weight was concerned. The largest crowd ever witnessing a football game saw the contest. One thousand Texas rooters came here on a special train. The line-up:

SOUTHWESTERN PIRATES WIN FROM BAYLOR 7 TO 0

WACO, TEXAS, Oct. 30.—Playing good defensive ball and taking advantage of all the breaks, the Southwestern Pirates defeated the Baylor Bears this afternoon at the Cotton Palace by the score of 7 to 0. The Pirates' score came in the first quarter when they blocked a punt by Whitman and recovered it on Baylor's two-yard line. Campbell, quarterback for Southwestern, carried the ball over in two downs for the only score of the game. The goal was kicked.

For the visitors, Campbell was the star of the game. Tom, playing right tackle, also did some good work. For the Bears, Pittman was the shining light. He was a consistent ground gainer and played stellar defensive ball. Collins and Dotson also played good for the Bears.

Kansas Uni. Blanks Aggies.

MANHATTAN, KAN., Oct. 30.—Getting a lead of seven points within five minutes after the kick off in today's game with the Kansas Aggies, Kansas University in the second period scored another seven and won the fray 14 to 0.

New Franklin Prices

Represent Reductions of $500 to $800 According to Type

Type—	Former Price	Price Effective Sept. 23	Reduction

Brougham	$4,300	$3,500	$800
Runabout (With Winter Top)	$3,300	$2,750	$550

In a list of fifteen leading makes of automobiles, ranging in price from $1,200 to $6,000, an analysis of prices prior to recent reductions is illuminating.

It shows that in percentage increase since 1917, the Franklin ranks fourth from the lowest. The Franklin percentage differs from the lowest record by only 12%, while it shows a margin of 54% below the highest increase.

In the light of these comparisons, it is plain that the Franklin Car represents by far the greatest value among automibles today.

lowe'en Brings sual Activity of e "Spook" Family

he eve of All Saints Day, which first of November, the spirits of rth and air and sky, are loosed the bonds that ordinarily hold and for the brief space of one are allowed to roam the world at Haunted houses and graveyards rial vaults are deserted by their tenants who from sunset until witching hour of midnight" hold carnival.

this night many of the ordinary al laws are suspended and the eyes of mortals may gaze into uture—if their owners have the ge required. During this brief of witchcraft a maiden may, all along with a single lighted by looking over her shoulder in- mirror, behold the likeness of her e lord and master, and the egg coal-black hen, laid as the clock riking the midnight hour on Hal- en, if boiled in the late evening ght, over an open fire made of obs of red corn, will be found to upon its inner surface, under- the shell, accurate account of uture of the lady maxing the ex- ent.

e wandering spirits are given to ing pranks upon mortals on this night of freedom, and because of the custom has grown, among the lieving and irreverent, of prank- in imitation of the spirits. They dress as witches and ghosts to ten the credulous ones. Ghostly are carved upon hollowed-out pkins and gourds and these, with les burning inside them, are car- about in the darkness or placed in darkness in positions where the d will see them.

Activities Change With Years.

this night tick-tacks and horse- les and (with apologies to Dobbin say it) other kinds of horse-play, brought into action. But even e activities change with the years. d find tehm to places where their the blessed privilege of being boys e very active on Hallowe'en, but did what they had to do in a nce and mystery that befitted the sion. They unhung signs and they others in their places. The her's sign they hung over the eon's door and the cooper's sign placed at the door of the corsetier the saloon keeper's sign they ed to the lintel of the church, hing in exchange, the church sign e saloon door. In the village of mer's Grove, dwelt one Charley er, and regularly on the morning All Saint's day did he arise to find sign from McNaught's "Bakery" rating his premises. The negro, Smith likewise found Jim Such- "Blacksmith" sign at his humble Though the neighbors all ap- iated this joke, it was quite lost poor Tom who regularly carried back to the blacksmith shop ex- ning that "De boys done let' dis my po'ch, yes sah!" And regularly, the sign on the Hotel Mitchell was e by the simple process of elimina- to read, Hot Mit hell, to the great of old Jake Mitchell, mine host. walks were tipped over and horse ks were upset and wagons were oved from where their owners d find them to places where their ers could not find them.

Decorate the Horse.

ld Churchill had a white horse and never could remember when Hal- e'en came, so annually the boys nd his old white horse in the little pasture across the railroad, and an- nually they decorated it with paint, sometimes in spots and sometimes in stripes, but always with an effort to imitate nature, and so every winter, and until the horse shed his coat in the spring, Churchill drove a "calico" horse and had to stand the chaff and banter of the entire masculine portion of the community.

But sometimes the joke turned up- on the joker as in Joe Moore's case, for after Joe had worked half the night to put his father's wheelbarrow on top of the barn, the old gentleman dismissed the matter from his mind with, "Joe, the boys have put our wheel barrow on the barn roof. You get it down and pull the turnips and wheel them into the cellar today!"

But the horse-block is no longer in evidence and wagons are hard to find and the boys must find something else to play with. The automobile, which has superceded the horse and the wagon now plays a large part in the Hallowe'en activities and many of the boys and some members of the other sex as well, content themselves with riding about town in motor cars in fantastic garb and blowing horns, while a trailer of tinware drags and rattles along behind.

But all this imitation and usurpation affects not the witches and ghosts in the least and they continue to revel on this their night, as they have done for a thousand thousand years and as they will do for a thousand thousand years yet to be, and these boys and girls will join them in reality as they do now in mockery, when they too shall be al- lowed to play but one night in a year.

FESTIVITIES FEATURED BY DOWNTOWN AFFRAY

Hallowe'en festivities broke forth violently Saturday night in front of the Washington Cafe on Indiana street when two men, evidently overcome by an excessive amount of holiday cele- bration, undertook to settle a personal grievance in the street by means of a lively fist fight.

Just what started the row is not known, but at any rate the two pug- nacious individuals must certainly have had cause of some sort, for the rate at which fists and personal remarks were flying it appeared that a life- time grudge was being settled.

A noisy mob of revellers urged on the fight and threatened to turn the affair into a free-for-all, but the ar- rival of several cops put an end to the rumpus. The pugilists were invited over to the city hall and the crowds ordered to disperse.

LABOR FEDERATION ASKS IMPEACHMENT OF GOVERNOR KILBY

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., Oct. 30.—The Alabama federation of labor in con- vention here today adopted a resolu- tion authorizing immediate steps to- ward the impeachment of Governor Kilby for sending state troops in the coal strike district. Vote on the re- solution was unanimous.

In accordance instructions contained in another resolution adopted, attor- neys for the federation will be re- quested to start proceedings for the impeachment of the governor on the grounds that he has violated the state constitution by interfering with the guarantees of free speech and assem- blage.

COFFEE MAKES SENSATIONAL CLIMB ON THE MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Coffee made a sensational climb in the market to- day, advancing from 98 to 101 points while rapid trading during the spurt of quotations was the heaviest in sev- eral months.

Powerful factors in the big upturn included Brazilian cables saying it was believed the loan had passed and ad- vising purchasing here, together with active support from large local in- tests who were re-entering the market after recent liquidation and heavy buy- ing on contracts against reported large sales to the navy department.

The close was virtually the best point of the day with December at 8:32, March at 8:93 and May 9:25.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED AT THE MEETING OF THE NATIONAL COUNCIL OF FURNITURE ASSOCIATIONS, HELD AT GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., SEPTEMBER 29 AND 30, 1920.

WHEREAS, There have recently been established new and lower levels of price on a number of commodities, and

WHEREAS, It has been generally reported that the costs of manufacturing furniture have been materially reduced, and

WHEREAS, The retail merchants, desirous of ascertaining facts, have requested the executive committee of the National Retail Furniture Association of the United States to make a thorough and careful analysis of conditions governing the costs of furniture manufacturing today and to insist upon a lower level of prices, if conditions are found to warrant it, and

WHEREAS, This investigation has been made in an extensive and thorough manner, and

WHEREAS, It has been determined that there have been no changes affecting the costs of furniture generally that would indicate that any material reduction could take place in the immediate future without affecting seriously the wages and employment of men engaged in furniture manufacturing.

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by the furniture manufacturers in the National Council assembled that the details of the findings of this investigation be conveyed to all branches of the industry and to the public generally; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the secretary be instructed to keep members of this Council and the officers of the National Retail Furniture Association of the United States informed of any changes in market conditions that affect the cost of manufacture; and

FURTHERMORE, We deem it desirable and for the best interests of the furniture industry, as well as of the American home, that concerted effort be exercised by the manufacturers to reduce manufacturing costs, other than labor, to reflect these reductions in the finished product as soon as possible; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That to our best knowledge, no general reductions in the price of furniture can possibly take place at this time and that the decline will be extremely gradual, and can only come with parallel reduction in manufacturing costs.

It is our policy when any article we handle is reduced at the factory to immediately reduce the article on our floor in that same proportion. You get the benefit immediately.

TIMES DAILY MARKETS

New York Stocks—Grain and Provisions—Cotton—Livestock

COTTON MARKET.

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The continued unfavorable situation in cotton goods circles, with curtailment exceeding 200,000 pieces in Fall River for the week and prospects of an even greater reduction next week; wage reductions in great many mills and an absence of killing frost in the belt, caused a weak opening in the cotton market today. Early selling by Wall street, local houses and the south was on rather a large scale, influenced to some extent also by prospects for rising temperatures in the belt and a bearish interpretation was placed on the condition report of a local trade paper indicating a decline of 4.5 per cent during October, or only about half that for the corresponding period last year. On the break a good deal of covering developed, which, with the relative strength of the New Orleans market and reports of an increased spot demand at some of the southern points, promoted a rally that eventually recovered most of the loss, the market closing firm at 2 points advance to 25 points decline.

New Orleans Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 30.—Trading in cotton today was first at a decline, after which the market reacted rather sharply for a short week-end session, mainly on covering by shorts and some new buying on the frosty weather in the eastern belt, with prospects of more frost there tomorrow morning and the outlook for rainy and much colder weather in sections of the western belt.

Early declines were partly due to liquidation of long contracts and partly to selling which had its foundation in the unsatisfactory tone of general commercial and financial reports. The close was net unchanged to 19 points higher on the day, with December 20.37.

There will be no trading in this market until Wednesday, when the opening will be at the normal time of 9 o'clock, daylight saving laws expiring.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—The wheat market was erratic all day and the final sinking spell was due to unloading by pit longs who bought earlier on the corn strength. Last prices were 1 to 1¼c lower, with December $2.08¼@2.09 and March $2.02 to 2.02¼. Corn was up ⅛c to 1¼c, oats was ⅛ to ⅜c higher, and provisions were generally lower, prices ranging from unchanged to 50c down.

There was an absence of seaboard buying to any extent but there was enough absorption on weak spots to steady the market. The report that the Argentine market was off two cents and that the price of flour had dropped ten cents a barrel, were the chief influences.

Heavy short covering was noted in the corn pit owing to the improved shipping demand and lighter receipts. Reports of charters to move corn via the Gulf were influential in advancing prices.

Oats sold at the best prices of the week, the gain, however, being only fractional as the trade was light.

Provisions trade was light.

Market Review

New York Stocks.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Stocks were irregular and frequently unsettled this morning, the market evincing no sign of any attempt on the part of speculative interests to create a pre-election boom.

Such efforts probably would have failed in any event by reason of the further stiffness of money rates and backward condition in many lines of trade and commerce, the latter being attended by additional commodity price

Industrials of the group represented by steels and equipments were among the most reactionary issues, together with numerous shares of basic raw products, notably leather, rubber, cotton and grains. Although lower quotations were posted by the metal companies, those issued were but slightly affected.

These conditions were ignored by the investment market, where further underwritings were consummated and carried to successful flotation.

Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Attention given to farm strike reports has had much to do this week with a lively advance in the wheat market here. Compared with a week ago, wheat this morning was 6¢ to 7¢c lower, corn up 1¢ to 2¢ and oats showing gains on 1¢ to 1¢. In provisions the net difference varied from $1.65 decline to a rise of 50c.

Before the interest of wheat traders became focussed on farm strike news, bears were making capital of assertions that as low as $1.50 a bushel had been accepted for wheat in Nebraska. Next day, however, signs of concerted stoppage of rural selling accompished evidence of export buying on a large scale. The result was a sudden ascent of prices.

Export buying of corn helped to give independent strength to corn and oats. Provisions were very unsettled.

STOCK MARKET.

New York Stocks.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Stocks were firm to strong in the early stages of today's brief session, a moderate inquiry for the rails, shippings and oils imparting stability to related issues. Sales 225,000 shares.

The clearing house statement was favorable in that an increase of almost $38,000 in actual cash reserves effaced last week's large deficit and left an excess of $14,000,000.

Liberty bonds and other active domestic issues were steady.

Total sales, par value, $6,675,000.

THREE MEMBERS CREW ARE KILLED IN CALIFORNIA WRECK

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 30.—Three bodies had been recovered at 9:30 tonight from the wreck of the eastbound passenger overland train No. 102 near Yermo, 10 miles east of Barstow, Cal., according to information received at the offices of the Salt Lake road here. It was said ten were injured.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Oct. 30.—Two members of the train crew were killed in a wreck of the eastbound Los Angeles limited, No. 102, ten miles east of Barstow, Cal., late today, according to a statement issued here tonight by the trainmaster at Salt Lake route offices. The trainmaster said his information was meagre.

FIRST OUTBREAK OF NIGHT RIDERS IN THE STATE OF ALABAMA

MONTGOMERY, ALA., Oct. 21.—The first outbreak of night riders in the black belt of Alabama was reported tonight when Sheriff Scoggin received a telephone message that three gins and two dwellings were burned on the Woodley road, twenty miles from Montgomery. The sheriff and a posse left Montgomery at 12:30 o'clock for the scene.

CLAIM VICTORY AS CAMPAIGN CLOSES

Auley and Richard C. Barnum, single tax candidates, also have carried on their campaigns aggressively.

And while presidential candidates today were matching plea with plea, for the right to occupy the white house for the next four years, the present occupant cast his vote. President and Mrs. Wilson mailed their ballots to Princeton, N. J.

OKLAHOMA CAMPAIGN TO END WITH BIG RALLIES

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 30.—Senatorial and congressional candidates in Oklahoma of the two major parties are scheduled to complete their campaigns Monday and Monday night at scores of political rallies throughout the state. Scott Ferris, democratic senatorial candidate, will speak here Monday night and J. W. Harreld, republican senatorial candidate, will speak at Lawton.

"RAGGED STRANGER" IS STILL MYSTERY IN CASE

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Identification of the "ragged stranger" whom Carl Wanderer confessed and later denied having hired to stage a fake hold-up in which Wanderer's wife, her unborn child and the man he described as a "poor boob" were killed, collapsed again today. Herbert Potter, a Canadian, last night identified the body which had been lying unclaimed in the morgue since June 21, as John Barrett, a former Canadian soldier.

Detectives learned today that Barrett was fifty years old. The "ragged stranger" was not more than 21.

The state's attorney's office, however, is going ahead with plans to try Wanderer for the man's death.

AIRPLANE INVENTOR CHARGES CONSPIRACY AWARDING CONTRACT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Suit to recover $102,050,000 damages for alleged conspiracy was filed today in the district supreme court by E. L. Rice, an airplane inventor of the Pacific coast, against Secretary Baker, Postmaster General Burleson, the democratic members of the house military committee, other democratic members of the house of representatives and various army officers. Rice charged that orders to purchase airplanes containing his invention were pigeonholed by certain of the officers named and he was deprived of large profits.

TWO MORE WARRANTS IN ALLEGED WHIPPING CASE

EDGEFIELD, S. C., Oct. 30.—Investigation into the alleged whipping of Peter McMahon of Yonkers, N. Y., near Trenton, S. C., one night of October 18, has resulted in the issuance of two additional warrants, Sheriff Swearingen announced today.

One of the warrants has been served on J. D. Holstein, who gave bond in the sum of $1,000, while the other has been placed in the hands of the sheriff for Charles Hill of Aiken. The sheriff's office said that other warrants would be issued.

SAN ANTONIO HAS PARK IN HONOR OF ROOSEVELT

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 30.—Roosevelt parks, believed to be the first named for the former president in the south, was dedicated here today under Masonic auspices. The park was named in honor of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who organized his rough riders here at the beginning of the Spanish-American war and covers 18 acres.

CONSUMPTION OF OIL REACHES HIGH RECORD PRODUCTION DECLINES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Consumption of petroleum reached the high record figure of 48,670,000 barrels in September, while production decreased slightly, geological survey reported today in its monthly statement. The average daily production was placed at 1,261,500 barrels, as compared with 1,270,870 barrels in August.

The deficiency in domestic production, the survey stated, was offset by net imports of 10,914,000 barrels, the largest ever recorded in a single month.

Decreased production was ascribed by the survey to lessened returns from central and north Texas and North Carolina.

California in September attained the record daily production of 304,267 barrels, supplanting Oklahoma as first in rank. Montana also went ahead of Colorado.

AVERAGE GROSS YIELD UNITED STATES 1,312,425

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Oil production continued to increase, the average gross yield in the United States during the week ending October 23, being estimated at 1,312,425 barrels, compared with 1,283,115 barrels the preceding week.

The American Petroleum institute in announcing these figures here today stated that if the production of this last fortnight is continued, the annual yield will be 474,983,820 barrels, against 377,719,000 barrels last year.

The combined estimated daily gross production of the southwestern territory including the mid-continent and gulf coast fields, increased 29,316 barrels above the week ending October 16, the statement added, while north Texas boosted its production 4,000 barrels, north Louisiana showed a slight gain, Oklahoma remained unchanged and Kansas yield dropped a little.

COL. CEDRIC FAUNTLEROY RETURNS FROM POLAND

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Among the passengers on the Aquitania arriving today was Colonel Cedric Fauntleroy of McGehee, Ark., organizer and commander of the Kosciuszko air squadron—the famous unit composed of American volunteer aviators who helped Poland in the war on the Russian bolsheviki. He said he had returned to buy airplanes and other material for the Polish government.

Colonel Fauntleroy said that he had positive proof of the death of Captain Arthur H. Kelly of Richmond, Va., one of the two aviators of his squadron who disappeared over the Russian lines. The other, Captain M. C. Cooper of Jacksonville, Fla., is a prisoner in Russia, and was alive when he left Poland, he said.

GENERAL FELIX DIAZ HAS ARRIVED AT NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 30.—General Felix Diaz, nephew of the former president of Mexico, Porforio Diaz, arrived here today on the steamer Cartago from Havana, to which place he went from Mexico for alleged revolutionary activities. General Diaz, whose immediate family and a number of relatives reside here, will take a long rest, then engage in business, it was stated.

TUESDAY TO END GREAT POLITICAL BATTLE

NATIONAL AND STATE ELECTIONS WILL BE NOTABLE FOR NUMBER OF PARTIES NAMING CANDIDATES

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The national and state elections to be held next Tuesday, November 2, will be notable for the number of women who will vote for the first time and the large number of parties which have nominated candidates.

Six parties have national tickets for president and vice-president, though by no means in all the states. These tickets are republican, democratic, socialist, prohibition, farmer-labor and single tax. About 13 other parties have candidates either for state tickets or for representatives in congress, bringing the total of parties in the field nearly to a score.

In the presidential election there will be chosen 531 members of the electoral college of which 266 will be necessary to the election of a candidate as president. In the last election President Wilson had 277.

The present membership of the United States senate is 96, composed of 47 democrats, 48 republicans and one republican and progressive. This year 33 states are to elect 34 senators, the terms of 32 members of that body expiring on March 3, 1921, while the other two are being selected to fill unexpired terms up to March 4, 1925. Of the 32 senators whose terms expire next March, 17 are democrats and 15 republicans. The two additional vacancies were caused by the deaths of Senators Bankhead of Alabama and Martin of Virginia, both democrats. One senator is to be chosen in each of the 33 states except in Alabama, which elects two.

Do Not Elect Senators.

The only states which do not elect senators are Delaware, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, New Mexico, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Texas, West Virginia and Wyoming.

Women candidates for the senate have been nominated in six states, by the prohibitionists in Indiana, New York and Pennsylvania; by socialists in California, by the farmer-labor party in New York and Connecticut and by independents in Nevada.

Socialists have candidates for the senate in 11 states: Alabama (2), California, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, New Hampshire, New York, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Washington. The farmer-labor party has senatorial candidates in seven states: Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, New York and Washington.

At least eight other parties have nominated candidates for senator in one or more states. These are progressive, socialist, labor, single tax, independent, industrial labor, labor, independent republican and non-partisan league.

The total membership, 435 of the next house of representatives is to be elected. Of this number 218 is necessary for a majority. The present membership is: democrats, 190; republicans, 232; independent republicans, 2; independent, 1; prohibitionist, 1; vacancies, 9. Women have been nominated as candidates for representatives in at least 11 states including Alabama, California, Idaho, Iowa, Michigan, Nebraska, Massachusetts, New York, Oklahoma, Oregon and Missouri.

States Electing Governor.

Governors are to be elected in 34 states as follows:

Arkansas, Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Many women have been nominated for office on state tickets.

Constitutional amendments are to be voted upon in 29 states. There will be referenda in 12 and initiatives in four. Arkansas will vote on amendments granting suffrage to women and the powers of the initiative and referendum to the people. California will have a referendum on five questions including the Harris prohibition enforcement act and the sale of poison act. One of the most notable of the initiatives is that in California where the voters will be called upon to decide the fate of Japanese farmers by amending the alien land law so as to withdraw the land leasing privilege from aliens who are ineligible to American citizenship. California has an initiative vote also on prohibition of vivisection. Voters will pass upon several constitutional amendments including the single tax measure and prohibition of compulsory vaccination.

Other Amendments.

Georgia will pass on a constitutional amendment authorizing pensions to Confederate veterans or their widows. In Kansas the voters will pass on an amendment to provide state aid in the purchase of farm homes. Louisiana will vote on pensions to Confederate veterans. Michigan on an amendment to require all children between the ages of five and 16 to attend public schools and Minnesota will decide whether to exempt automobiles from personal property tax, increase the license fees and use the funds to build and maintain state highways.

Missouri will decide whether to call a state constitutional convention. Montana will vote on a proposed repeal of the presidential prefential primary.

Nebraska will decide a referendum on a law substituting nominating conventions for primaries for all state offices except governors. New Hampshire will vote on questions of levying a state income tax, granting the governor right to veto items in appropriation bills and reducing the size of the house of representatives.

New York voters will pass on a proposed $45,000,000 bond issue. North Carolina will vote on a proposed state income tax while North Dakota will decide whether to grant woman suffrage. Ohio has a referendum on an act providing for the enforcement of prohibition while Oklahoma is to settle the question of regulating the practice of medicine.

Compulsory Voting.

In Oregon there will be a vote on a constitutional amendment for compulsory voting and registration and an initiative on an anti-compulsory vaccination.

Six constitutional amendments are proposed in South Dakota including one to authorize the issue of $6,000,000 in bonds to provide bonuses for soldiers, sailors and marines. Washington also will vote on a proposed bonus for soldiers and on the question of increasing the salaries of state officers.

No state elections will be held next Tuesday in Maine, Maryland, Mississippi, New Jersey nor Virginia.

Probably the banner state for the number of candidates for governor is Illinois, where 10 parties have named candidates for that office, including the democratic, republican, socialist, socialist labor, farmer-labor, single tax, prohibition, co-operative party of America, liberty party and Harding-Coolidge republican.

INDIRECT OPPORTUNITY TO VOTE TO RAISE SALARY OF GOVERNOR AND OF OTHER STATE OFFICIALS

By JOHN GOULD.

The voters of Texas will vote indirectly, on Tuesday, to raise the pay of their governor and a number of other state officials. One of the three constitutional amendments to be voted upon authorizes the legislature to increase the stipends of elective officers above the rather modest to use a mild term, figures established in the constitution adopted in 1876.

Amendments increasing the governor's salary have been voted upon before and have always lost; some folks were of an economical turn of mind others thought the governor at the time was already overpaid, and others were constitutionally opposed to changing the constitution. At any rate, the salary has stuck at the $4,000 and no more" which the constitution makers in 1876 thought was sufficient.

The circumstances under which the 1876 constitution was adopted were set forth in an earlier article in The Times; the delegates wanted to put the governor in his place, so to speak, and they stripped the office of much of its power and reduced the salary rate, the salary has stuck at the "$4,000 wasn't a picayunish figure in 1876, by any means, and the delegates probably felt that they were liberal enough; that sum had the same buying power approximately, that $12,000 would have today. The framers of the constitution doubtless believed, when they allowed the governor and attorney-general each $4,000, the treasurer, controller and land commissioner $2,500 and the secretary of state $2,000 that they were making those offices quite attractive, and at least remunerative, to the type of men qualified to fill them. They were right enough judging by 1876 standards.

By refusing to increase these figures Texas voters have, in previous constitutional elections, moved to bring about a condition that was very far from the minds of the delegates of 1876; they have made it practically impossible for any save a man of means to hold state office. They have said, in effect, that the chief executive of the state cannot be a poor man.

It has been nearly 30 years since James Stephen Hogg was governor, and yet $4,000 a year was insufficient for a man of even his simple and democratic tastes. Governor Hogg was $2,000 poorer when he relinquished the gubernatorial chair than when he first occupied it, according to his own statement.

The governor gets his house rent free, but that is a questionable emolument. The state has provided a "mansion" for its chief, and all of the governors so far have been too well-bred to refuse to live in it, though it is safe to say that most of them would have preferred camping out. It is a dilapidated, leaky, decrepit structure, ancient in furnishing and appointment and thoroughly out of keeping with both the dignity of the state and the importance of the occupying officer.

Two governors have, in recent years, gotten into hot water through efforts to stretch the constitutional allowance so as to cover some of their household expenses.

Evidently Unfair.

It is undoubtedly true that Texas will always have a governor, even without raising his pay. Jobs of that sort don't go begging, and wouldn't even if they didn't pay anything. But the unfairness of calling upon any officers worthy of the office to serve at a financial loss ought to be thoroughly evident.

Most Texans expect their governor to keep up something of a "front." It might be in keeping with some ideas of democracy for the state's chief executive to drive his own flivver, but one rather expects him to have an attractive car and a chauffeur and to put on at least as much dog as hundreds of private citizens. There is a large amount of entertaining required of the governor; he can't get out of it with any sort of grace at all. And the cost of even the irreducible minimum of receptions and functions will cut pretty deep into that $4,000.

No less ridiculous are the salaries paid other state officials. The attorney-general gets $4,000, provided he earns a certain part of it in fees. The treasurer, controller and land commissioner get $2,500 each; the reader might cast about among his acquaintances and see how many he can find, in positions one-half as responsible as these, who receive no more than $2,500 a year. There is more than one stenographer in Wichita Falls getting that much.

Not a Definite Raise.

The amendment to be submitted Tuesday doesn't definitely raise the state salaries, but permits the legislature to do so. There is no reason to believe that the legislature will permit excessive salaries to become the rule; legislators have fixed a number of salaries in the past and they've been pretty reasonable about it. The highest pay in the state is that received by supreme court and criminal appeals court justices, $6,500, which isn't any fortune for a lawyer who must spend most of a life time before attaining such position.

The true merit of the amendment in question, however, is not apparent from its phraseology, for, in authorizing the legislature to establish salaries, it does away with the fee system that has worked so harmfully in many ways. County and precinct officials will be on salaries, and the amounts will vary, it is presumed, in counties of different population.

Under the fee system, an officer can be zealous enough about arresting the participants in a crap game, drunks, vagrants and such other offenders as come under the misdemeanor heading, for there is at least a fair chance that these will plead guilty and that fees will be collected from the fines they pay. But there is less financial incentive about running down more serious offenders, who will fight their cases and perhaps win acquittals, for acquittal means no fees for anybody, and the work has gone for naught.

Valuable County Officers.

Some county officials, before the fee bill was amended several years ago, received larger pay than the governor. The sheriff's office in Dallas county was commonly reported to be worth $10,000 annually to the holder. The amendment will provide definite income for each office holder.

There are two other amendments on the same ticket; that affecting the school tax has already been discussed, and the third, which permits towns of 5,000 population and less to increase their tax rate from 50 cents to $1.50, simply puts such towns on a basis more nearly equal that of towns over 5,000. Towns over 5,000 can levy up to $2.50 tax on the $100.

All three of the amendments provide long-needed changes in the state's organic law. There is a dearth of argument against them, but there will not be a dearth of votes against them on Tuesday; it behooves every citizen who favors them to go to the polls and register his approval.

COLDS

Her old fashioned but effective way conquers Croup, Colds, Grippe and Pneumonia by using this simple, sane and efficient treatment. First she rubs the afflicted part with the hand until a warm glow comes to the skin. Then she applies hot applications to open the pores and increase the circulation. An application of RUB-A-COLD, the stitch in time remedy, is followed with woolen flannel cloths, and presto—The cold is soon gone. RUB-A-COLD is made from wool fat, the most penetrating of all animal oils. Combined with this ointment are harmless but stimulating properties that sink right into the open pores and drive out the pain and congestion. This method strikes at once at the seat of the trouble. It calls to the front fresh, warm blood to oust germs and to build up where they have torn down. RUB-A-COLD opens up the breathing passages leaving a soothing sensation that is of great assistance to the sufferer.

Gentlemen:
I have used RUB-A-COLD and think it is one of the best remedies I know of. My children take colds easily and are subject to the Croup. I find that I can relieve them more quickly by applying RUB-A-COLD than by any other way. I usually apply it at the first approach of the croup and it is certainly wonderful as a preventative. I always keep it on hand.

The ballot contains the names of four women who are candidates for office. One is on the democratic state ticket, one on the republican county ticket, one on the socialist national ticket, and one on the socialist state ticket.

There are three amendments to be voted upon. The first is an amendment to the state constitution increasing the total tax rate that may be levied by cities and towns having a population of 5,000 or less from one-fourth of one per cent to not exceeding one and one-half percent.

The second is an amendment to the state constitution providing that the limitation upon the amount of school district tax of $1 on the $100 valuation shall not apply to independent or common school districts created by general or special law.

The third is an amendment to the constitution providing for the compensation of public officials.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

Mr. Culbertson will deliver the closing address of his campaign at the Wichita Theater Monday night at 8 o'clock. Mr. Culbertson is a successful and progressive business man, and has a definite and constructive program to offer for the consideration of the voters of the state. It will be well worth while to hear what he has to offer.

Texas Is Too Big

And rich and powerful to remain tied to the political coat-tail of any party. Instead, all parties should be tied to Texas. Texas will remain a simple ornamental appendage in a political way, and will never achieve its rightful position of influence as long as it is a foregone conclusion as to how its elections will go. Neither will it ever achieve anything but a miserably incompetent and inefficient administration of its own affairs, as long as any one political party can be sure of winning the election. There is no incentive toward cleaning up its affairs, as long as the party in power feels that there is no danger of its being ousted, and the affairs of the state government aired for the benefit of the voters of the state.

A Position of Power

Can be achieved by the people of Texas, and a more efficient administration of its internal affairs secured, by the making of the state one of the DOUBTFUL states. When this condition has been achieved, the national parties will give careful consideration to the affairs of Texas, and will shape their policies in the interest of Texas, too, just as they now shape them in the interest of Eastern and Middle Western states. This is certainly not the case now. Neither party has in the past cared about what Texas wants, because the Democratic party is sure that Texas will be theirs anyway, and the Republican party, heretofore, had no hopes of carrying the state. With Texas in the Republican column one time, Texas will loom large in the minds of both great National parties, the Republicans in the hope of again carrying the state, and the Democrats in an effort to recover lost ground.

State Affairs

Will gain in efficiency simply through the competition injected. The party in power, with the danger of their being supplanted by the other party of they do not deliver an honest and efficient administration of public affairs, will at once begin to exercise greater care in the expenditure of the public's money, and will try to see that the people of the state get a dollar's worth of government for every dollar collected through taxation—a condition which certainly does not exist today. One party in power—the other on watch, and better government will be the immediate result. This condition can be brought about this year through the election of the Republican state ticket, headed by a clean and successful business man, who is universally admitted to be of the calibre to make Texas an able and efficient governor.

Better Men

Offered for public offices will be another result of a two-party system in Texas. Once defeated, the machine in control of Democratic politics will be powerless, for their satellites will realize that the Democratic party will have to nominate good men to win. Then they can not act in accordance with their present boast that they could name a stick horse as the Democratic nominee, and elect him to any office in Texas. The room for this best must, however, be removed, before good and honest government is to be attained.

A Striking Illustration

To return to National affairs, of the indifference with which Texas and the other southern states are looked upon under the present regime, is afforded by the action of the Democratic administration in refusing to come to the aid of the cotton farmers of Texas and the South during the present money stringency. The Federal Reserve Board not only refused them aid in holding their cotton so they could dispose of it at a price above the cost of raising the cotton, but the Democratic Secretary of the Treasury showed the same startling indifference which he has shown on the several occasions when he has been responsible for a break in the price of cotton—each break costing Texas and the South millions of dollars. Cotton is the chief money crop of Texas and the South. A prosperous condition in the cotton market is essential to Texas and the South, as it is one of the chief means by which money is brought in, and when money is plentiful, times are good for all—whether they are cotton raisers or not. It was particularly necessary that the farmers of Texas be able to turn their cotton into money during the present stringency. But the National Administration did not bother to help—figuring that the votes of Texas and the South were theirs without bother.

It Was Different

In the wheat belt, where the wheat farmers were faced by a somewhat similar problem. President Wilson carried some of the big wheat states in 1916, and the Democrats thought that maybe they could do it again. President Wilson, at the first call from these states, arranged a conference to see what could be done in behalf of the wheat growers, and has held out hope of relief. Appeals by the cotton farmers have fallen on deaf ears.

In Times Past

The South was strictly doubtful territory. Throughout the South, at the time when the South was furnishing presidents and leaders to the nation, it was a two-party section, and the issue of the election was in doubt until the last. When James K. Polk, one of the Southern presidents, was elected, he lost his own state, Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia, Alabama and others, and Mississippi was doubtful to the last. The large community interest of the South would gain its immense power were its support not given blindly to a single party, and both parties made to do something to gain it. This was the case—as we said—in the days when the South furnished the leadership of the Nation. Were it the case today, there would not be a National ticket without a Southern man somewhere on the list, and there would not be a National council where Southern men were not called to sit.

This Can Be Achieved

In Texas, at any rate, by the success of the Republican ticket. In voting the Republican ticket in Texas, you vote for better government, you vote in the interest of your state, both as regards its internal affairs and its national influence, you vote in the interest of the South, and in the interest of your country.

PROSPERITY

Demands the retirement of the present and prospective Democratic Administrations. Twice since the Civil War the Democratic Party have had control of the American government. Both times the business and commercial machinery of the nation were paralyzed. Hard Times reigned. This was the case under Cleveland. This was the case under Wilson until the abnormal conditions of the war came along, and European competition removed. Now that the war is over, and the abnormal conditions removed, the country is again paralyzed commercially, and Hard Times are again with us. If you wish the return of Prosperity—

POLITICAL ATMOSPHERE OF TEXAS IS SURCHARGED WITH INTEREST UNUSUAL TO GENERAL ELECTIONS

AUSTIN, Oct. 30.—Several features operate to create interest in the general election next Tuesday and raise it above the perfunctory affair similar elections have been in Texas for many years past.

No one has ventured to predict that Texas, one of the most solid states of the "solid south," will fail to select democratic presidential electors, and only the enthusiastic opponents of the democratic party have declared there is a chance of defeating any of the democratic nominees on the state ticket. However, some political observers are inclined to believe that American party candidates may gain a few seats in the house of representatives and elect a few local officers in certain localities. This would be significant, as both branches of the legislature have been solidly democratic, with the exception of one republican senator, since the decline of the populist party in Texas.

There have been no considerable indications that the republican party will show an unusual strength, according to political observers. On the contrary, the fact that that party is split, and has two state tickets, and in some places two local tickets—the republican party and the black-tan republican party they are listed on the ticket—will tend to divide the block of republican votes.

Contests for Congress.

Republican congressional candidates have not been nominated in all districts, and the republican campaign has centered in two districtsthe ninth and 14th—where pre-election claims of election have been made. In these districts J. J. Mansfield and Carlos Bee, the democratic incumbents, are opposed by J. G. Rudgley and Harry Wausbach, respectively. The republican claims also list as "doubtful" the sixth congressional district, where Retus Hardy, democratic incimbent, is opposed by D. M. Merrill.

The fifth party on the ticket—the socialist party—never has developed considerable strength in Texas, their vote at the last general election being less than 2,000.

The main subject of speculation among politicians is the probable strength of the American party, which has been organized since the last general election, James E. Ferguson, former governor of Texas who was impeached and who later was defeated by slightly more than two to one by Gov. W. P. Hobby in the democratic primary two years ago, heads the ticket as candidate for president. Politicians concede the American party a considerable portion of the support which went to Mr. Ferguson in that primary, and some of them declare that the American party's strength largely is composed of Mr. Ferguson's personal following. Both Mr. Ferguson and T. H. McGregor, the party candidate for governor, are opposed to national prohibition and woman suffrage.

Strength Problematical.

The prohibition amendment to the state constitution had considerable opposition and the woman suffrage amendment to the state constitution was defeated less than three years ago. The amount of these issues is problematical, the political observers say. American party supporters point to the comparatively light votes in democratic primaries this year as an indication that former members of the latter party stayed away from the polls in order to be free from the pledge to support the nominees of the party.

Approximately a million voters in Texas are eligible to participate in the general election, according to estimates of officials of the state comptroller's department, but for a number of years past only about one-fourth of the qualified voters have entered the general elections, which have, in practically all instances, been merely a matter of form to confirm action of the democratic primaries.

However, this being presidential election year, the appearance of the American party, and the fact that women are voting in the general election for the first time, are expected to increase the volume of the vote.

Approximately 900,000 poll taxes and exemptions have been reported to the comptroller's department, and officials estimate that former soldiers who may vote upon their discharges, and women who paid poll tax under the law passed by the last special session of the the legislature, will bring the number to approximately 1,000,000.

Light Woman Vote.

Press reports from various sections of the state indicate that the woman vote will be comparatively light, as a number of them failed to pay their poll taxes before February 1, of this year, and failed later to take advantage of the new law to allow them fifteen days in which to pay poll tax after the federal suffrage amendment was ratified.

The vote for governor by parties in Texas at the general election preceding this one was: democratic, 148,982; republican, 26,713; socialist, 1,660; total, 277,355, or approximately one-fourth of the voting strength of the state. However, campaigns of all parties following the democratic primaries have been more active this year than formerly, owing largely to the fact that the American party was in the field, and this in connection with the fact that a constitutional amendment, which also has been supported by an intensive campaign, and presidential electors are to be voted upon is expected to bring out a larger vote in proportion this year.

Texas has twenty presidential and vice presidential electors — two of large and eighteen by districts.

No Texas national senators will be voted upon as the incumbents both are hold-overs. Eighteen congressmen, two at large, and sixteen by districts, are to be voted upon.

Three amendments to the state constitution also are to be voted upon, the school amendment attracting the most attention. It would remove the constitutional limit of taxes which may be levied for school purposes and allow school districts the privilege of voting any school tax they desire upon themselves.

The other two amendments would give the legislature power to fix salaries of all state, district, county and precinct officers; and would authorize towns of 5,000 or less population to vote a 1½-ad valorem tax.

When crown burs and cotter pins are not supplied in motor car construction good, well tempered split washers may be placed under the heads of bolts to keep them from rattling loose.

IF YOUR KIDNEYS ARE OVER-ACTIVE

Millions of people—grown folks and children alike—are bothered with over-active kidneys either during the day or at night.

If you or your child are among those affected with kidneys acting too freely or too often don't wait until some serious kidney trouble develops but get a bottle of Liquid Shu Make from the drug store today and stop this disorder.

Druggists carry Liquid Shu Make or will get it for you in small or large size bottles, so why not give this medicine a chance to relieve that over-active kidney condition.—adv.

CAMPAIGNING WITH COX.

By HERBERT WALKER
(United Press Staff Correspondent With Governor Cox.)

Weather men as a rule must be democrats. During the first two months of Governor Cox's vigorous stump campaigning, only twice was rain encountered, although the nominee travelled from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean. Having the weather man on his side was a big asset, as approximately 75 per cent of the democratic candidate's speeches were made in the open air.

The rain of the first two months came at Spokane and again at Seattle and Tacoma, local democrats there hastening to explain that the rain season was just beginning. Snow was encountered in Wyoming, but it did not interfere with meetings, as all there were scheduled for indoors.

Not once during all his travel and speeches has Governor Cox departed from his practice of wearing a plain business suit. He has attended fashionable dinners and receptions where full dress suits have been in evidence, but the governor doesn't have one in his traveling wardrobe.

"And I don't intend to," he said.

The same principle applies to the food which the democratic candidate desires, according to John Stephenson, chef of the private car, "Federal," used by Cox on all his tours.

"He wants plan simple food, and has told me to leave off all the fancy frills," the chef said. "Rice pudding is one of his favorite desserts, but the engineers seem to be prejudiced against this dish. Twice I have lost a pan full of pudding because the train took a curve too fast. The governor's standard breakfast consists of fruit, cereal, eggs with ham or bacon, toast and coffee."

Cox attributes his good health in large measure to his practice of eating simple food. When he attended banquents he invariably passed up the fancy food.

"As a result," he said, "I felt fine during all my travels."

If Governor Cox is elected president, dentists from the Atlantic to the Pacific may hang out this sign: "The President's Dentist."

Just before the governor started his western tour, he broke off a tooth on the seed of a blue plum. It could not be fixed before his train left, and as a result "the damage" had to be repaired bit by bit as he made his big swing around the circle. Chicago, St. Paul, Portland, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Omaha, and Wichita dentists worked on it, and even then Cox had to visit his dentist upon his return to Dayton. At Wichita, his dentist took some of the gloom out of a dental visit by telling the governor that he had "flopped from Harding to Cox."

Trucks fitted with a winch demand a little extra atention, for the winch and winch drive should be lubricated once a month. After carefully cleaning off any dirt or grease on the case remove the top cover plate and put in enough transmission oil to bring the lubricant in the case up to level.

KNOWLEDGE FOR CAR OWNERS

Interesting and Important Facts That Every Motorist Should Know.

Never allow a nacked flame to come near the storage battery while it is being charged or immediately afterward.

An ordinary screw driver is not adapted to all classes of work. By making a heavy screw driver with the center portion in the form of a heavy square of metal, a socket wrench may be placed on the tool, so that all the leverage necessary may be obtained.

A car owner recently devised an ingenious automatic safeguard against overheating. The ground for the ignition current was made by soldering a copper wire to the top of the rear cylinder. Just as soon as heat enough develops in the cylinder the solder is melted and the engine automatically stops.

When removing a worn tread determine as far as possible the condition of the casing if the tread is only worn down to the breaker and not through the breaker and if any separation has been detected from the outside, cut off the ol dtread down to the breaker, or remove only enough to get down to a good solid surface.

A loose rear end bearing in many cars will permit oil to run back into the clutch housing, so that it must be drained out every two or three weeks. The remedy is obvious and it will be well to examine the oil retainer between the clutch and transmission, as part of the trouble may come from this.

When the doors of one side of the body do not fit properly, either bind so that they are hard to close or fit too loosely, with so much clearance that the catch will not snap, the trouble may be cured by placing wooden wedges under the body at the rear. Metal plates may also be used. In either case the wedge should be bolted through the frame so that it will remain firmly in place.

Any ordinary speed wrench may be duplicated to use in connection with all sizes of nuts by using it in conjunction with a set of sockets. A socket is selected the hexagon end of which fits the end of the speed wrench. In the other end a piece of square stock is inserted. By this means a speed wrench is adapted for use with any of a whole set of socket wrenches.

Several old flywheels such as come from motorcycles may be used for saving time in relining brake bands on motor cars. The wheels can be cut down to the required size in a lathe, and then mounted upon a steel shaft, two nuts on either side, with a little play allowed so that they may be turned at will. These may then be clamped in the vise and when the bolt running through the ends of the brake band is tightened upon the wheel after the rivets have been placed, it is a simple matter to make the brake lining fast. The wheel may be turned with one hand and the rivets flatened with a hammer.

A very good and inexpensive trouble shooting at night can be made out of an old spotlight or headlight reflector with bulb and about eight feet of double lamp cord with two battery test clips on the ends. This light can be hooked up in a minute to a battery on the service car or even to a battery which is being tested from another car, as long as it will furnish current enough for the light. The test clips can be shifted around to the terminals and connecting straps so that there will be always at least a four volt current for the trouble light even while one of the battery terminals is being disconnected.

AN INCREASED NUMBER OF WELLS DRILLING IN BURKBURNETT FIELDS SHOWN BY LATE DRILLING REPORT

A review of the latest available drilling report shows that the number of wells actually drilling in the Burkburnett field has increased considerably and that a number of the wells which were shut down previously for various reasons have resumed operations. The number of drilling wells in the other fields remains practically the same as there have been only a few completions during the past couple of weeks. Last week's heavy rainfall held up activities in every field.

Every Drop of Your Blood Should Be Absolutely Pure

Any slight disorder or impurities is a source of danger, as every vital organ of the body depends upon the blood supply to properly perform its functions.

Many painful and dangerous diseases are the direct result of a bad condition of the blood. Among the most serious are Rheumatism, with its torturing pain; Eczema, Tetter, Erysipelas and other disfiguring akin diseases; general debility, which makes the strongest men helpless, and many other diseases are the direct result of impure blood.

You can in a large measure avoid liability to disease by the use of S. S. S., the wonderful blood remedy that has been in constant use for more than fifty years. S. S. S. cleanses the blood thoroughly. It is sold by druggists everywhere.

THE MOTORISTS' PROBLEMS'

By WILLIAM H. STEWART, JR.

Motor Department — Will you kindly inform we through the Motor Department a method of properly timing valves and distributor of a Chalmers 35-C, 1918 model, automobile. Can the valve timing be done without reference to the fly wheel workings?
A. B.

It is best to follow the marks on the fly wheel to insure accuracy in timing. Different makes of engines differ more or less as to valve timing so would advise that you follow the instructions of the manufacturer. In timing the valves set No. 1 cylinder on D. C. with D. C. mark under pointer. Then turn fly wheel about five degrees past D. C. or until E. C. mark comes under pointer. Turn cam shaft in the direction of rotation until first exhausted valve is just on point of closing (paper just released) and replace the cam shaft gear. Turn fly wheel five degrees more or until I. C. mark comes under pointer. At this point the intake valve should be about to open. With the valves of one cylinder properly timed, the others must follow due to the construction of the cam shaft. Ignition timing is a little different. Proceed as follows: Find firing order. Set spark lever fully retarded. Set No. 1 clyinder with piston past firing dead center (exhaust valve of last cylinder just closed). Turn distributer shaft in the direction of rotation until the interrupter points are just ready to separate. Then tighten the screw that fastens the distributer arm to its driving shaft. Replace distributer parts if removed. Connect a high tension cable from high tension terminal of coil to central terminal of distributer. Connect a high tension cable from the distributer terminal next to the distributer brush to No. 1 spark plug. Connect high tension cables from the remaining distributer terminals to spark plugs according to firing order. To test turn on switch and advance spark lever quickly. The spark should appear at No. 1 plug when the spark lever has been advanced about one-half inch.

Motor Department — What is a ground-brush used for? B. L.

We suppose you mean the ground brush on the mageto. It conducts the primary and secondary currents back to the armature. The secondary current would arc as it passed through the ball bearing and ruin them. The primary current would find it difficult to pass through the lubricant. So the ground brush gives better primary action and prevents damage to the ball bearings of the armature.

Motor Department—Have a low tension Remy Magneto with coil on dash and have been told that the spark is weak, causing trouble in climbing hills and reducing the miles per gallon of gasoline. Can you advise me as to where to look for this trouble? E. K.

Touch up circuit-breaker points with a piece of fine sandpaper and try out engine. Make sure all wire connections are clean and tight. Borrow a battery and try running on battery. If good power is shown the magnets are weak, but may be easily recharged. If no increase in power is shown the trouble may be a punctured secondary winding in the coil or a leaky condenser, requiring a new coil.

Motor Department—Why do spark plug points have to be closer together for magneto ignition than for battery? Is battery ignition stronger or is it for some other reason? M. S.

The magneto gives a much hotter spark at high speed than the battery, but at very low speeds does not give a spark which will jump much of a gap. In order to enable the engine to run at low speed the gap must be set small. The battery gives the same intensity of spark at all speeds and so can have a large spark gap.

Motor Department—Thanking you in advance I would like to know how to take end play out of my crank shaft.—A. L.

As the bushings are badly worn the only thing to do is to replace them with new ones properly fitted. This will require blueing and scraping—a delicate job, which only an expert should undertake.

Motor Department—Which is the better place to fasten the speedometer? Should it be driven from the front wheel or from the transmission? If there is any preference in the matter please let me know which is preferable?—M. W.

Driven from the front wheel the drive is more accessible, but on the transmission it is better protected from dirt. It has the disadvantage there that in case the rear wheels slip the speedometer will register mileage that has not been run. This is not a very serious objection however. The usual practice is to drive it from the front wheel.

Motor Department—My car does not runs smoothly, but jerks irregularly. Please give me some idea how to go to work to locate the trouble?—R. B.

The trouble is probably due to rich mixture causing the engine to miss explosion. If the same cylinder misses explosions right along it will be an ignition trouble or loss of compression. Black smoke or pungent odor from the exhaust will indicate rich mixture. Crank the engine to test compression and then trace out the ignition system until the fault is discovered. Be sure that the points of the distributer and spark plugs are clean and properly adjusted.

Motor Department—Please tell me through your valuable column what makes my carburetor drip gasoline all the time. I have to shut it off at the tank whenever I stop the motor and turn it on again after the motor starts. Is it anything the inexperienced motorist can fix without special instructions?—K. P.

If the carburetor drips as badly as that it should be attended to at a service station. It may be dirt in the float valve, a worn valve or a heavy float. We should not advise you to attempt repairs unless some one has shown you how to do them.

Motor Department — My oil gauge used to float freely in the oil, so that when I used to push it down it rose immediately. Now, when I push it down it stays there. What should I do to correct this?—D. S.

The oil is becoming foul and should be replaced. Clean out case with kerosene first to remove dirt and sediment.

Motor Department: A cotter pin in the clutch finger on my 1917 Ford broke and lodged in the magneto. It has stopped motor once by becoming lodged against the magneto point, but I did not have the necessary tools with me to reach it. Will it cause trouble at any place except magneto point? I removed transmission cover but was unable to find it.—S. H.

It might get into the oil pipe and clog that. The chance is very remote, however. Remove drain plug at bottom of oil pump and run engine a few minutes and the pin will probably drop out.

HELPFUL HINTS.

If ammeter shows more than the usual charging rate, when engine is running at normal speed it shows that the voltage regulator is not correctly adjusted. Study your ammeter, learn to read its indications and you will get results from your system.

If the ammeter does not register "charge" when engine is running at normal speed, consult the repair man immediately. If you are handy at cleaning the commutator of the generator or adjusting the regulator, etc., all well and good, but do not delay or attempt to experiment.

Watch the ammeter on the dash as it puts you in close touch with the whole system. Find out what each set of lamps uses in the way of current, and you have a basis for your observations.

If ammeter needle shows more discharge than the lamps usually require there is a short-circuit on some lamp wire. Find it immediately as it may ruin the wires or battery, or may even set the car on fire.

An unsteady ammeter needle usually shows a defective contact between the commutator and brushes.

Reduction in Price Came as a Surprise to the Dealer Here

"The reductions in the prices of prices of Studebaker cars came as a complete surprise to me," said T. D. Kern, local distributor of Studebaker cars, referring to the official announcement recently made by A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker corporation.

"In taking this action the Studebaker corporation was the first quantity producer of quality automobiles to effect a reduction in prices of its product. When one stops to consider that Studebaker is the third largest manufacturer of motor cars in the world, and for that matter one of the world's greatest industrial institutions, its action in the way price reduction may be accepted as indicative of a real desire to materially assist in the lowering of prices of commodities in an effort to bring living conditions back to something more nearly approaching a normal basis.

"As President Erskine has so aptly remarked, 'It is highly desirable that the lowering of prices be encouraged at this time and in reducing the prices of its product, Studebaker is anticipating its ability to buy raw materials at lower prices next year and to increase its labor efficiency.'"

"Without cheapening the quality of its product in any manner and at the same time maintaining its present wage scale, it has, in my estimation, taken real courage to announce price reductions.

"Labor, too, is showing a splendid dispositions to help in making it possible for the manufacturer to make these reductions, by its increased efficiency in the shops, and this is a factor of greatest importance if we are to bring prices back to a lower level without further loss of time.

"Although wholly unexpected at this time I am, nevertheless, gratified at the turn things have taken and I am happy to be associated with an industry that is leading the way to lower prices, and with a manufacturer possessed of a vision broad enough to look ahead to the future."

TEXAS LEADS ALL OTHER STATES DECLARES BULLETIN

Figures contained in a bulletin issued recently by the transport bureau of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber company show that the state of Texas leads all other states in the Union in regard to public highway and railroad mileage. These figures show that there are 128,960 miles of highway in the Lone Star state and 15,932 miles of railway. In the entire country there are 2,478,532 miles of highway and 253,626 miles of railways, giving a ratio of about 10 to 1 in favor of the highways.

Following Texas in highway mileage and ranked in the order named are Kansas, Oklahoma, Iowa, South Dakota and Missouri. Illinois follows Texas in railway mileage and after it comes Pennsylvania, Iowa, Kansas and Minnesota.

Three Types of Tires for Three Kinds of Use

YOU don't want a truck motor in a touring car; you use a different oil in the cylinders than in the transmission.

Different conditions must be met differently. That is why Lee builds three types of tires for three kinds of uses. The right type for your purpose is the one built especially for that use.

Consult us on tires. We'll survey the conditions your tires must meet and prescribe the Lee Tire that will serve you best—the Lee Tire that will give you maximum mileage and comfort.

The Lee Cord Puncture-Proof

1. For the hardest possible service on all kinds of roads. A real cord tire—easy riding—economical—and absolutely puncture-proof. The only puncture-proof cord tire. Dependable under all conditions.

The Lee Cord

2. For gruelling service in town and in the country. Lee Cord construction makes these light riding tires practically free from the usual tire troubles—blowouts, tread separation, sidewalls breaking, internal friction, etc. Hand made.

The Lee Fabric

3. A husky tire that fights mean road conditions and invariably wins. Quality-built from lining to tread; good looking and as good as it looks; oversized, with miles of extra service.

Attitude of Board Toward the Motor Industry Explained

A local auto dealer is in acceptance of a bulletin from the General Motors Company which makes clear the stand of the federal reserve board of America in regard to reports circulated that the board had placed restraints upon the banks of the country which dealt with automobile paper. These reports, it appears, are wholly unfounded for no prohibitive measures of any kind have been issued by the federal reserve board. An extract of the statements made in the General Motors bulletin is given below:

"In a situation such as we have seen in the past six months many misunderstandings of banking policy are almost certain to be encountered. The most widespread misunderstanding appears to be that dealers' local banks feel the federal reserve board has issued some sort of prohibition against automobile paper, regardless of time, class or amount. This is not true.

"W. P. G. Harding, governor of the federal reserve board at Washington, has repeatedly issued statements regarding the board's position, but less publicity has been given to his statements than to those of many local bankers to the contrary.

Position Is Outlined.

"At Cleveland on September 16, before the credit department of the Motor Accessory Manufacturers Association, Governor Harding fully outlined the position of the federal reserve board. A reprint of his speech is given in the September issue of the Motor World. Below are a few excerpts of Governor Harding's speech which we believe it may be of value for you to have before you at the moment: 'The federal reserve board will not attempt to give a definition of essential and non-essential loans.' The whole question therefore of the essential and non-essential character of a loan is left to the determination of the individual banker.

"'If I were a local banker I would look out for my good customers. If a dealer in automobiles brought a lot of paper to me for discount, if I were satisfied with the solvency of the dealer, with the value of his endorsement, if he did not wish an excessive amount of credit all told which was out of proportion to the average balance which he carried with me, or out of proportion to the amount of credit which I might feel I should grant to merchants and other lines of industry which were dependent on my institution for credit support, I would certainly take his offerings.

"'If on the other hand, I felt that he was disposed to do too large a business for his capital and was undertaking to get from me for the purpose of expanding his business, an unduly large line of credit, I would hold him down under any circumstances. In that place I would scrutinize his paper. If he offered the paper of a man with whose credit standing I was perfectly familiar and satisfied, whom I knew was able to pay his obligations at maturity, I would take it. If on the other hand, he offered the paper of a man who had no credit rating, no responsibility, who had merely bought an automobile, paying possibly 10 per cent cash and wanting to give his note for the rest, I would decline to take that paper, because I would doubt the maker's ability to pay it. Certainly a well managed bank does not want to become a dealer in second hand automobiles.

"'Now there is the whole proposition. There hasn't anything been done by the federal reserve board and in most cases nothing has been done by any federal reserve bank that reflects in any manner on one of the nation's greatest industries. It would be a very serious thing for any body of men to attempt to make an attack to destroy a business that is as firmly rooted and which has so many of the elements of essentials as your business has and I want to assure you that as far as the federal reserve board is concerned, no such attempts have been made.'"

NEW TRUCK STANDARD IS ADOPTED AT A RECENT MEETING IN NEW YORK

At a meeting of the truck division of the National Automobile chamber of commerce held recently in New York a new table of standard speed for truck weights, weight allowance, gross weight, chassis, body and freight loads, was adopted.

A committee was appointed to draft the new speed standards together with their weight allowances and to submit their work to the entirie assembly for acceptance. This was done and the recommendations unanimously accepted. The table recommended is given as follows: (The first column of figures indicate gross weight, chassis, body and freight load, while the second column gives the speed in miles per hour. Pneumatic tires up to

28,000 pounds	25
Solid rubber tires up to
4,000	25
8,000	20
12,000	18
16,000	16
20,000 to 28,000 pounds	15

It was agreed that these speed ratings should be recognized by motor truck manufacturers as being the maximum limits and that they should not be exceeded under any circumstances. It was also agreed that motor truck manufacturers should stamp on the frames of their trucks and on the caution plates this table and that they should not guarantee their truck to operate efficiently under conditions other than the ones given.

Waco Man tries to Revive Interest in Meridian Highway

The Meridian highway project, which made such an auspicious start in this section of the country some time ago has apparently fallen through for lack of proper attention. The great gulf to border highway which enthusiastic autoists talked of was at one time almost a reality, and should have been, but has now dropped into almost complete oblivion, merely for lack of proper suport from those who at first were responsible for its inauguration.

The Meridian highway, as originally planned, ran from Laredo, Texas, to Winnepeg, Canada, having a total mileage of about 2,200. The gulf division, which with other branches in Texas totaled over 800 miles, ran from Waco to Galveston and was designed to furnish subsidiary outlets from the main road to various cities throughout the state.

This gulf division has recently been given attention by Fred B. Robinson, gulf division commissioner at Waco who has sent out letters to newspapers along the route of the highway urging them to take up the Meridian proposition in their respective cities and to work in its favor.

The local situation does not appear to be extremely favorable to a rapid completion of the highway in this country, for no one appears to have any definite knowledge of what should be done and why it should be done. At present some ancient and inadequate markings on telephone poles form the sum total of the work that has been done in Wichita county in connection with the Meridian highway movement. In Mr. Robinson's letter he urges that the work already accomplished on the highway be pushed to a conclusion and points out that if the cities and counties through which the roadway passes will each do their share in its construction the cost and work will not be at all burdensome.

ITCH!

A WAR-TIME ILL THAT'S SPREADING HUNT'S SALVE CURES IT!

BRED in the war trenches of Europe, a wave of ordinary ITCH is spreading over the country. The skin disease, history shows, has always prevailed, following wars and the concentration of armies. It was common during the Civil War and following that conflict. There was an epidemic of the Itch after the Spanish-American War. Now history is repeating itself after the great European struggle.

Returned soldiers and those with whom they come in contact will find a recognized remedy for the Itch in Hunt's Salve, commonly known as "Hunt's Itch Cure." Many a veteran of the late '90's will testify to its merits. If directions are followed HUNT'S SALVE will prove a never failing cure for all forms of the Itch, and your druggist will tell you so. He sells HUNT'S SALVE under a strict guarantee to refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied user.

A Medford, Oklahoma man, among thousand who praise HUNT'S SALVE, says:

"Some people dislike to call it the Itch, but candor compels me to omit I had it badly. Your Hunt's Salve, however, cured me after many other remedies had totally failed. One box completed the cure—the first application afforded wonderful relief. My advice to those who have to scratch, to use Hunt's Salve."

Hunt's Salve is especially compounded for the treatment of Itch, Eczema, Ringworm, Tetter and other itching skin diseases and is sold on our guarantee by all reliable drug stores, or it will be sent direct by mail if your local druggist cannot supply. Price 75c per box.

Political Cavalry.

Every now and then it is said of one statesman or another that he is riding for a fall. Presumably the Fall of 1920.

Substantial Walls.

They had at last obtained a villa in a suburb, and he was hanging the pictures. There was a certain photograph of his wife which he decided must go up, but which was too small to suspend from the rail by a cord. He thereupon got a substantial nail and hammered it into the wall. There came a knock at the door.

"It's Mr. Nexdor," said his wife running to the window. "Your hammering has disturbed him."

Mr. Newbride hastened to apologize. "Oh, I don't mind the noise," replied Mr. Nexdor, cheerily. "I only came to ask if I might hang a picture on the other end of the nail."

Specifications.

"But, Mabel, on what ground does your father object to me?"

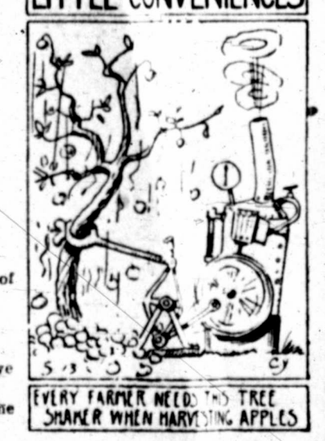

"On any grounds within a mile of our house."

Live vs. Let Live.

"Do you think your poems will live after you are dead?"

"Can't say. I wish they'd let me live while I'm alive."
