Anderson, Bush Deadlocked in Massachusetts

BOSTON (AP) — Republicans George Bush and John B. Anderson were locked in a dramatic Massachusetts standoff today after Ronald Reagan inched to victory in Vermont. The two tight New England contests point to the kind of stalemate that might entice former President Gerald Ford into the GOP presidential race.

Sen. Edward Kennedy got a lift for his Democratic challenge with a landslide victory over President Carter in home-state Massachusetts. Carter buried Kennedy by an even more lopsided margin in Vermont.

Kennedy won by better than 2-to-1 in the campaign year's first big-state primary, winning enough nominating delegates to offset the lead Carter built up earlier. Carter took Vermont by 3-to-1.

As the final votes were tallied early today, Anderson trailed by margins so tiny that they represented virtual dead heats.

Bush led by little more than 600 votes out of more than 373,000 cast in the Republican primary in Massachusetts with 96 percent of the precincts reporting. Reagan's margin was 616 votes with 99 percent counted in a Vermont primary that drew more than 62,000 GOP ballots.

Reagan ran third in Massachusetts, close behind Bush and Anderson.

The results were so close that unofficial morning-after recounts were scheduled by News Election Service, which tallies the ballots for news agencies and networks.

Tuesday's big surprise was the tandem challenges by Anderson, the white-thatched liberal congressman from Illinois. Anderson said that by coming so close, he had established himself as a major competitor for the GOP nomination.

Both Bush and Reagan said Anderson was a one-day wonder who couldn't last. The competition shifts on Saturday to the conservative South, with a Republican primary in South Carolina, and contests to follow on Tuesday in Florida, Georgia and Alabama.

While Anderson said he had proven his national campaign credentials, he is bypassing those states to concentrate next on the March 18 primary in his Illinois home.

With Reagan and Bush unable to take clear cut leadership of the GOP campaign, Gerald Ford loomed as an imponderable factor. He wasn't saying much.

Kennedy gained almost two-thirds of the Democratic vote in Massachusetts, and said that was an important lift for "the campaign and the issues we're concerned about," inflation chief among them.

The Massachusetts victory gained Kennedy 77 votes for the Democratic nomination, while Carter got 34.

That put Kennedy ahead nationally, for the moment, with 113 votes to Carter's 89. It will take 1,666 to win the nomination.

Carter almost surely will reverse that advantage in the South next Tuesday, and the White House said he already is assured of 55 Minnesota delegates who have yet to be formally selected.

The Vermont victory won Carter no delegates, since that primary was purely advisory.

This was the Democratic verdict in Massachusetts with 97 percent of the precincts reporting:

Kennedy 567,290 or 65 percent.

Carter 251,231 or 29 percent.

California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., who had folded his

USDA: Plan Should Hike Grain Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — A plan by the Agriculture Department to buy corn and wheat is expected to boost market prices at the farm significantly in the coming weeks and months, says Howard W. Hjort, the agency's chief economist.

If that happens, the department then would be able to sell grain contracts acquired from exporters who had sold grain to the Soviets — until President Carter suspended deliveries on Jan. 4.

The department then stepped in to take over the exporters' contracts. At that time, administration officials promised the export contracts would not be resold — dumping grain back on the market — until farm prices of grain climbed back to levels they were at before Carter's embargo action, about $2.40 a bushel.

Most recently, according to USDA, corn prices at the farm have averaged about $2.32 a bushel.

Under the plan announced Tuesday, the purchases could total as much as 13 million metric tons of grain and are aimed at jacking up market prices, thus allowing the contracts to be sold.

The purchases could involve up to 4.25 million metric tons of wheat and up to 9 million metric tons of corn. The purchases will be made "at prevailing market prices" from country elevators and, in some cases, farmers themselves, officials said.

No costs were announced, but at current farm prices of the grain, the purchases could total as much as $1.4 billion, including about $819 million for the corn and $582 million for the wheat, if the maximum quantities are bought.

But Hjort said at a news conference that it was "conceivable, not likely" that the entire 9 million metric tons of corn would be bought. All of the wheat will be purchased, however, to be used as a U.S. food reserve.

Instead, Hjort said he thought the purchases would boost market prices of corn high enough to enable the

Militants Still Refuse Panel

By The Associated Press

The young militants holding the American hostages in Tehran refused again today to let the U.N. investigating commission meet with their captives even though Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini gave his implied approval to the meeting.

"Our position has not changed. We will not let the meeting take place," a spokesman for the militants occupying the U.S. Embassy told a reporter by telephone.

The spokesman said Khomeini's agreement to the meeting had not been confirmed.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, who favors the visit, accused "communists and Zionists" of trying to foil the commission's mission, an apparent reference to leftists among the captors. The foreign minister's comment was in an interview with the Tehran newspaper Azadeghan.

Khomeini's son, Ahmad, who in the past has acted as a liasion between the embassy militants and his father, was quoted as saying he believed the meeting would be "useful."

"It doesn't hurt anybody and this was part of their (the commission's) work," he was quoted as saying in an interview with the official Pars news agency.

The five members of the U.N. commission met with Ghotbzadeh to try to nail down arrangements for the meeting with the hostages. They returned to their hotel an hour later, and a spokesman said they still expected to see the Americans.

President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr told reporters Tuesday night that Khomeini had given him and the Revolutionary Council, which Bani-Sadr heads, jurisdiction over the matter of the proposed meeting between the U.N. group and the captives. He said the council decided the meeting should take place, and it would be held.

But Khomeini, the 79-year-old religious leader of Iran's revolutionary regime, apparently did not issue a direct order to the young militants to permit the meeting on Bani-Sadr's terms. This apparently emboldened them to defy the president and the council, as they have successfully done in the past.

The militants agreed Monday to a meeting between the U.N. panel and the hostages but only on terms that were unacceptable to the U.N. group, Bani-Sadr and the Revolutionary Council.

The militants said they would let the commission meet with all the hostages to determine their condition only after the

U.S. Israel Vote Called 'Foul-Up'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even though Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance took responsibility for the "foul-up," the fault for a controversial U.S. vote criticizing Israel in the United Nations rests with the White House, according to two administration officials.

Their account, to The Associated Press, is that President Carter's objections to any criticism of Israel's control of east Jerusalem were not adequately transmitted to the State Department before the Security Council vote.

The result was unanimous adoption of a resolution condemning Israel's settlements in former Arab territories — which had Carter's approval — but also condemning Israel's control of east Jerusalem, which did not have his approval.

This caused a political and diplomatic furor. The Israeli cabinet deplored the resolution and Carter's principal Democratic challenger, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, called the U.S. vote "shameful." Even Carter's campaign manager, Robert S. Strauss, termed the vote "a terrible mistake" and said he was "rather shocked by it."

The White House issued a remarkable statement Monday night admitting a voting mixup.

Then on Tuesday, with the controversy still raging, Vance took responsibility for what his spokesman, Hodding Carter, called a "foul-up" in transmitting Carter's instructions to U.N. Ambassador Donald McHenry.

However, the account supplied by two insiders, who asked not to be named, was substantially different.

These officials said the White House had not made clear to the State Department, and consequently to McHenry, whether all references to Jerusalem were to be deleted or whether the United States could register its reservations in a separate statement.

As a result, the State Department assumed it would be sufficient to delete one specific provision in the resolution particularly offensive to Israel. Designed to assure all religions access to holy places in east Jerusalem, that section was viewed by the Israeli government as implicitly challenging its right to hold that part of the city.

Chamber Representatives Visit Holly

Representatives of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce were in Colorado Springs Tuesday to visit with Holly Sugar officials. The visit was one in a series planned by the Past Presidents committee of the chamber.

Six Hereford men participated in the home-office session with Holly. They were Ken Rogers, Bud Eades, Neill Cooper, Calvin Jones, Gene Ehler and Mike Carr.

Eades, a past president, termed the trip as "an exciting change of ideas...I believe these visits to corporate offices of local industries will be very beneficial."

The local group flew to Colorado Springs Tuesday morning and held a session with Holly officers and department heads. Joe Fabeck, executive vice president of Holly, hosted the morning session. John Bunker, Holly president, hosted a luncheon for the group.

Carr, C of C executive vice president, said the purpose of the past presidents' project is to "touch base with officers of local industries and indicate our interest in their operations, and our appreciation for their contribution to the local economy."

He reported that Holly's primary concern, at this time, is in securing enough acreage in close proximity to the plant. The current contract with farmers includes some 22,000 acres, and Holly would like to have around

Stands Made Difference for Anderson

NEW YORK (AP) - Over and over, John Anderson has said he is the only Republican presidential candidate taking different, distinctive positions on the issues.

On Tuesday, that difference made a difference.

Anderson's stands on the issues were the spark that drew independents, liberals, young people and new voters to the polls in Massachusetts' Republican presidential primary to vote for the Illinois congressman, the Associated Press-NBC News poll found.

Anderson and George Bush finished in a dead heat for first place in the Bay State primary, the best showing thus far for Anderson.

For the Democrats, the issues did not play nearly as important a role. Sen. Edward Kennedy's overwhelming victory over President Carter was based more on the Democrats' perception of Kennedy as a leader and on their judgment of a poor performance by Carter in the White House.

Nearly two-thirds of those who cast their ballots for Anderson said they agreed with his stands on the issues. Eighteen percent cited Anderson's leadership abilities. The rest gave other scattered reasons for their vote.

Among Bush supporters, 38 percent said they agreed with his stands on the issues; 28 percent cited leadership; and 16 percent said he is the candidate with the best chance of winning in November.

On specific issues, the Anderson voters showed their issue orientation.

For example, take resumption of the draft, which Anderson opposes.

Half of those who oppose the draft voted for Anderson; 25 percent for Bush and 16 percent for Reagan. Of those GOP voters who support resuming the draft, 24 percent backed Anderson; 39 percent Bush and 28 percent Reagan.

Or look at the proposed Equal Rights Amendment, which Anderson favors.

Of those GOP voters who support the ERA, Anderson snared 45 percent. Bush got 32 percent of the ERA supporters and Reagan 16 percent. But of those who oppose the ERA, Anderson

Rebel Charges U.S. Unconcerned

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — An Afghan rebel leader accused the Western and Moslem worlds of "being unconcerned spectators...while our people are floating in their own blood because of Russian atrocities." He denied the rebels are receiving aid from the United States or China.

Professor Burhanuddin Rabbani, head of a coalition of five rebel groups fighting the communist government in Afghanistan, told a news conference here Tuesday that hundreds of his men had been killed in the past four days as Soviet warplanes bombed rebel strongholds in eastern Afghan provinces near the Pakistani border.

Rabbani denied the rebels were receiving arms or other assistance from the United States, China or any Moslem nation that pledged support during a foreign ministers conference here in January.

Reagan Strength Seen in County

Deaf Smith County Ronald Reagan campaign chairman Wes Fisher said today he was "amazed" at the local response in favor of the Republican presidential candidate during an organizational meeting Tuesday night at the Hereford Community Center.

Jim Brandon of Amarillo state vice chairman of the Reagan for President Campaign, and John Ryan of Lubbock, 19th Congressional District chairman were in Hereford for the meeting.

"I've never been to a political meeting with more interest and enthusiasm," Fisher said. "I was really amazed. There was definitely an air of optimism there."

Fisher said that those attending the meeting are "not opposing" any Republicans at the present time.

"But, it's obvious that local support for Reagan is growing. After the South Carolina primary, we're going to see even more optimism, not only here but across the country. I feel like he's going to snowball now."

Local campaign plans were organized following talks by Brandon and Ryan.

Forty persons attended Tuesday's meeting.

Oilcade to D.C. Leaves Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - An official of the Independent Petroleum Association of America in Washington, D.C., said an oil field equipment caravan that was to leave Oklahoma today for the nation's capital to protest the windfall oil profits tax will do little or not good.

"I don't see how an equipment parade is going to turn this thing (the tax) around," said Lloyd Unsell, executive vice president of IPAA. "They're not going to do it with a brass band and drilling rigs."

His remarks were reported here by the Washington Bureau of The Daily Oklahoman.

Unsell said he saw possible similiarities between the oilcade and last year's American Agriculture Movement tractorcade "that alienated more people in a shorter time than anything I've ever seen done by someone trying to influence government."

Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., who helped organize the oilmen's protest during a trip to eight cities in the Southwest last week, took issue with the pessimism of Unsell and others in the industry.

Anderson Optimism Grows With Victory

BOSTON (AP) - Rep. John B. Anderson, buoyed by strong second-place showings in the Massachusetts and Vermont Republican presidential primaries, said today his success was the beginning of a "new citizens' coalition" that will catapult him into the White House.

Anderson, appearing on NBC-TV's "Today" show after 2½ hours sleep, woke today to find he trailed George Bush in the Massachusetts vote by a scant 800 votes. He was just 600 votes behind Ronald Reagan in the Vermont primary.

The Illinois congressman, who made only a few appearances in Vermont, called his showing in that state "nothing short of astonishing."

He had harsh words for Bush's contention that he was siphoning votes from the former Texas congressman's challenge to front-runner Reagan.

"Nobody has annointed Mr. Bush to be the alternative to Mr. Reagan," he said. Anderson also criticized Reagan for offering voters

Colombian Government Talks to Guerillas

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) - The Colombian government talked by telephone with the guerrillas holding the U.S. ambassador and some two dozen other hostages for a week, and one official said direct talks may resume today.

However, there was speculation Presdient Julio Cesar Turbay Ayala wants to wait until after municipal and regional elections Sunday before coming to terms with the guerrillas, either by force or mutual agreement.

"It would be troublesome for the government to appear to be surrendering to the blackmail of the guerrillas a few days before the election," a government source said. Leaders of Turbay's Liberal Party have asked voters to turn the election into national plebiscite by supporting government candidates.

The Government gave an indication Tuesday that talks may drag on for some time by allowing the Red Cross to deliver to the embassy a new shipment of food as well as games, playing cards, letter-writing material and a Koran, the Moslem holy book, presumably for Egyptian Ambassador Salah Allouba.

Testimony To Open In Francis Hearing

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Attorneys have clared the way for the opening of testimony by completing jury selection in the trial of a man accused of hiring the 1977 stabbing death of his business partner.

A nine-woman, three-man jury was chosen late Tuesday.

Kevin Francis, 29, was charged by a Potter County grand jury last summer with soliciting three men "to obtain a person to...kill Frank Potts."

Potts was found stabbed to death in an apparent robbery attempt on Oct. 8, 1977, in the downtown clothing store he co-owned with Francis.

The grand jury that indicted Francis also indicted George Hicks, 34, and his wife, Bedale, 29, on murder charges.

Hicks' trial ended in a mistrial last November when jurors deadlocked 11-1 for conviction. Potter County prosecutors have indicated he will be retried. Mrs. Hicks has not yet come to trial.

The indictment claims the motive for Potts' death was remuneration" from a life insurance policy.

Ely to Replace Parks

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Former television Tarzan Ron Ely is going to succeed popular Bert Parks as emcee of the Miss America Pageant, sources say, but he won't be crooning his predecessor's trademark "There She Is" to tearful beauties.

The 42-year-old Ely, now host of "Face the Music," a syndicated TV game show, was to be named as the pageant's new master of ceremonies at a news conference today, the sources said.

Pageant chairman Albert A. Marks Jr., who fired Parks after 25 years as pageant host and took a heap of a abuse for doing so, refused Tuesday to discuss the identity of the new emcee.

Sources close to the pageant that has launched the careers of such beauties as Phyllis George Brown and Bess Myerson said Ely will not sing the traditional theme song, and instead a beefed-up orchestra will play the tune as the winner is announced.

At 6-foot-4, Ely was the 14th Tarzan and the first actor to play the role on television, from 1966 until 1969. He did most of his own stunts for the program, but the jungleman's famous yell was the recorded voice of best-known movie Tarzan, Johnny Weissmuller.

Ely played Mike Madison in the CBS-TV series "Aquanauts," later called "Malibu Run," in 1961. He first appeared on television in "Father Knows Best" in the 1950s. He has also performed in several movies.

Born in Hereford, Tex., and a former oilfield roughneck, Ely now lives in Pacific Palisades, Calif.

Parks had no immediate comment, but his wife, Annette, said Tuesday, "We wish he has 25 years of lovely joy the way Bert did — but higher pay, of course."

Parks, who called his firing "a shabby trick," had claimed to have only a passing interest in the identity of his successor. At 65, he's enjoying the sun at his Hollywood, Fla., winter home and the publicity his dismissal triggered.

"I feel great, man. I've never felt better in my life and I've never worked harder in my life," Parks said in a telephone interview.

"Have you seen all the specials I've been doing? And it's going to get better and better."

Parks, 67, was let go because the 59-year-old pageant wanted a new image, Marks said. It was erroneously reported that the reason was age.

Pageant officials were known to be considering three other candidates recently: actor Gary Collins, husband of Mary Ann Mobley, Miss America 1959; actor Gavin MacLeod, star of television's "Love Boat" series and a former pageant judge; and actor Ken Howard, star of TV's "White Shadow" series.

Others considered were actor Chad Everett, star of the new "Hagen" series, and entertainer John Davidson, who is to take over Westinghouse's "Mike Douglas" program.

Wilson Named to Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, has gained a new platform for his generally hawkish views on defense by becoming a member of the powerful House appropriations subcommittee on defense.

Although there are no major defense installations in his largely rural East Texas district, the state is near the top of the list in defense contracting.

Wilson will be the only Texas member of the subcommittee.

Subcommittee chairmanships were the price he paid to gain the slot in the appropriations committee realignment prompted by the resignation of Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Pa.

The vacancy was filled by Rep. Vic Fazio, D-Calif., last week, and Democratic members of the committee gathered Tuesday to decide subcommittee assignments.

Wilson gave up his chairmanship of the District of Columbia subcommittee. He also gave up his seniority on the foreign operations subcommittee, diminishing the possibility of ever becoming chairman.

"I lost all chance of becoming chairman," he said.

Now a member of three subcommittees, Wilson said the defense subcommittee's importance "in these troubled times" compensates for the loss of the chairmanship.

Wilson, a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, said he generally planned to support President Carter's defense proposals but would like to see the addition of the B-1 bomber and the neutron bomb.

The Texas congressman said he had passed up chances to gain a defense subcommittee seat at other times, but he re-evaluated his decision in light of the current world situation and the declining number of hawks on the subcommittee.

Wilson, from Lufkin, said the criticism he received from his district for devoting time to the urban District of Columbia subcommittee did not play a part in his decision to give up the chairmanship.

Rep. Julian Dixon, D-Calif., inherited the District of Columbia chairmanship.

The only other Texas member of the appropriations committee is Rep. Jack Hightower, a Democrat from Vernon.

Senate Committee Rejects Fed Judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Apparently for the first time in history, a Senate panel has rejected a nominee for a federal district judgeship because he was considered unqualified for the job.

The Senate Judiciary Committee voted 8-6 Tuesday to reject the nomination of Charles Winberry, a Rocky Mount, N.C., lawyer rated "unqualified" by the American Bar Association.

The ABA based its assessment in large part on allegations Winberry had once "fixed" a criminal case in exchange for cash.

Winberry, who has denied the accusation, was not immediately available for comment on the committee vote.

It was the first time in 42 years that the judiciary panel had rejected a federal district court nomination for any reason. In 1938, the panel sent the nomination of Floyd B. Roberts of Virginia to the floor with an adverse recommendation based on opposition from his state's senators. The full Senate accepted the recommendation and rejected Roberts' nomination.

But committee records do not indicate when, if ever, a federal district court nomination was previously rejected on its merits.

Six committee Democrats voted to send the nomination to the full Senate without recommendation. Five Republicans and three Democrats voted not to send it to the floor at all.

The most devastating blow to Winberry's nomination came from a former Postal Service informant, James McTighe, who testified during confirmation hearings last week that a convicted cigarette smuggler told him Winberry had agreed to "fix" a criminal case in return for cash.

The smuggler, Gordon Dildy, refused to testify on grounds of possible self-incrimination.

Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., who recommended Winberry, said he was "very disappointed" by the vote against the political ally who managed his 1974 campaign for the Senate.

Florida Fruit Damaged

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Relieved that a late-winter freeze lasted only two days, Florida growers are assessing damage in the 750,000 acres of lush citrus groves across the state's midsection.

"We were lucky," said Wilson McGee, executive vice president of United Growers and Shippers Association, as temperatures began to climb late Monday and Tuesday.

But there was still concern in the $2 billion industry about next year's crop since some blossoms were damaged by the cold snap Sunday and early Monday that sent temperatures below freezing.

Growers also worried about the ice and slush found on rapidly maturing Valencias, the "bread-and-butter" orange that gives frozen concentrate its rich taste and color.

Farther down the Florida peninsula, rich winter vegetable fields near Miami and Fort Lauderdale also appeared to have escaped serious damage.

But concerned farmers stood vigil, burning stacks of old tires on the edge of sprawling fields of tomatoes, mangoes, squashs, corn and beans.

On the edge of bean Ed Hilson's bean patch southwest of Miami, four helicopters were ready to circulate air with their blades if the temperature dropped too low.

"It costs me $600 apiece to have them sit on the ground," said Hilson.

He said he had a hard time convincing the pilots to sleep on the ground. "They told me they could get over here (from the airport) in five minutes. But I told them in five minutes I could lose $50,000."

Hilson called the vigil off about 6 a.m. Tuesday.

While the 34-county citrus district suffered less damage than expected, growers and state inspection teams were checking cold-blackened blooms that could mean a curtailed crop next year.

In the premium Valencias, cell damage and dehydration could reduce juice yield of the rapidly maturing crop of 85 million 90-pound boxes.

campaign in the state, 30,089 or 4 percent.

The balance of the vote was uncommitted.

In Vermont, virtually complete returns stood:

Carter 28,622 or 74 percent.

Kennedy 9,896 or 26 percent.

It was Carter's third victory in New England, to go with Maine and New Hampshire.

The Republican results in Massachusetts, with 97 percent of the precincts tallied:

Bush 119,699 or 31 percent.

Anderson 118,821 or 31 percent.

Reagan 110,665 or 29 percent.

Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee 19,199 or 5 percent.

Former Gov. John Connally of Texas 4,601 or 1 percent.

Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois 4,449 or 1 percent.

Ford picked up one percent of the vote on write-in ballots.

Uncommitted Republicans and three other candidates shared the rest.

Those returns gave Bush 14 nominating delegates, while Reagan and Anderson claimed 13 each and Baker won 3. Bush and Reagan gained 22 apiece in earlier contests. It will take 998 to make a Republican nominee.

In Vermont, the GOP numbers read:

Reagan 19,441 or 31 percent.

Anderson 18,825 or 30 percent.

Bush 14,006 or 23 percent.

Baker 7,936 or 13 percent.

Crane 1,218 or 2 percent.

Connally 879 or 1 percent.

Constant candidate Harold Stassen got 100 votes.

Under Vermont rules, it took 40 percent of the vote to win any delegates, so none were convention.

panel issued its report and "convinced" the United Nations of U.S. crimes in Iran and those of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

The militants also demanded that the commission examine embassy documents they said proved five of the hostages were spies and then interrogate those hostages. The five were not identified.

Pars, the official Iranian news agency, said Bani-Sadr and other members of the Revolutionary Council rejected the militants' terms because the government had already promised the commission it would meet with all the hostages.

The commission has nearly finished collecting evidence in connection with the revolutionary regime's charges against the shah and the United States and is preparing to return to New York. Today is the hostages' 123rd day in captivity, and the commission is anxious to interview all of them so it will have something positive to bring back to the U.S. government in exchange for its agreement to the panel's trip.

U.S. officials say the Carter administration agreed to the investigation on the understanding that it would result in the speedy release of the hostages. But Khomeini said last week the new Parliament to be elected in April would decide their fate, and another leader of the regime said the decision could not be made before mid-May.

He added that Holly was concerned about shipping costs from outlying areas. Company officials pointed out that freight rates had risen from about $2.50 a ton up to as much as $7.50 a ton.

"Overall, we felt Holly was very optimistic about their operation in Hereford," said Carr. "They feel Hereford is a good distribution point and that helps make for a more efficient operation.

got only 17 percent of their votes. Bush and Reagan each took 36 percent.

And Anderson's backers were an unusual group.

About one-half of those who voted in the GOP primary said they are independents. Anderson took 46 percent of that group's vote, leaving 26 percent for Bush and 19 percent for Reagan. Other candidates split the rest.

Liberal Republican voters gave Anderson 60 percent of their vote. He split the moderate GOP vote with Bush, with Anderson getting 33 percent and Bush 39 percent. Reagan got 19 percent.

Reagan did not do particularly well among the conservatives, the core of his support generally. The former California governor received 38 percent of their vote, while Bush took 34 percent. Anderson got 17 percent of their ballots.

Reagan did his best among older voters and Anderson the best among the younger group.

gradual sale of the original exporters' contracts back into the market without CCC having to buy the full 9 million metric tons.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or 39.4 bushels of corn.

Most recently, according to USDA, wheat at the farm has been selling for about $3.74 a bushel or approximately $137 a metric ton. Corn, at $2.32 a bushel, is equal to about $91 a ton at the farm.

Formal offers by the department's Commodity Credit Corp. to buy the wheat will be made on Friday, March 7. Corn offers possibly would be made next week. All offers will be handled by the agency's commodity office in Kansas City, Kan.

In all, the embargo affected approximately 17 million metric tons of grain that the Soviet Union was expected to take this year from the United States. An exemption, however, was made for 8 million metric tons that was provided under an earlier agreement.

The 13 million metric tons or so represent the actual contracts that were held by a dozen exporting companies as of Jan. 4, excluding the 8 million permitted to go to the Soviets.

Although the Soviet Union was expected to buy a total of 25 million metric tons of U.S. grain in 1979-80, exporters at the time Carter took action had contracted for only about 21 million metric tons.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, who announced the grain-buying program, said the wheat purchased will be used "for overseas assistance" and urged Congress to approve "legislation requested by the administration to establish a food security reserve so the quantities acquired can be transferred to that special food reserve."

William T. Cherry of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service said the grain purchases were included among the options after the embargo action was announced on Jan. 4.

He said the cost of the purchases was included in estimates two months ago that the entire package of federal aid to offset the effects of Carter's partial embargo would run $2.5 billion to $3 billion over a two year period.

Consequently, Cherry told a reporter, the decision was made for the Commodity Credit Corp. to buy and hold an equivalent amount of corn, removing it from the market in hopes that prices will go up.

As corn prices rise above the Jan. 4 level of about $2.40 a bushel buyers will be sought for the contracts acquired from the exporters, he said.

Meanwhile, under the law, CCC cannot resell the corn it plans to buy directly for less than 150 percent of the government's price support loan rate of $2.10 a bushel.

Thus, corn prices will have to rise substantially from current levels — to $3.15 a bushel — before CCC can resell the grain and get its money back.

About 70 percent of the people in the United States live in 2 percent of the total land area of the country.

Chamber Women to Send Coed to Area Pageant

Miss Diane Warden will represent Hereford in the upcoming Miss Irish Rose contest in Shamrock, it was decided yesterday by the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce Women's Division. The group convened for their monthly business session in the board room of the Chamber office.

Miss Warden, who currently holds the title of Miss Teen Hereford, will be carrying the local banner in the pageant which is part of the St. Patrick's Day festivities scheduled March 14-15 in Shamrock.

In other business considered by the executive board on Tuesday, plans for the quarterly general membership meeting on April 1 were discussed. It was decided that a program on rape prevention will be given by Sheriff Travis McPherson and Alice Warden. The meeting will be held at the Community Center.

Mary Herring presented a brief report from the Miss Hereford Pageant steering committee, stating that this year's scholarship competition will be held April 26. Further details concerning entry in the pageant will be released as that date approaches.

Representing the blood drive committee, chairman Pat Clark reviewed the February and January blood totals and announced that the mobile unit will be visiting Hereford High School this month in lieu of a community-wide drive.

It was announced that the Women's Division assisted with the Forensics Tournament held this past weekend at the local high school. Also, the public was invited to view the artwork of Mike Page, who has been named Chamber of Commerce artist for the month of March.

The board reviewed the February financial Statement and heard minutes of the previous board meeting. Conducting the meeting was Frances Berry, Women's Division president.

Others in attendance were Mary Thomas, Marcia Snyder, Leatrus Clark and Betty Gilbert.

Ann Landers

Unwanted Mail

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am sitting at my typewriter involved in a boring and tedious job--updating a mailing list for a small organization. Suddenly it occurred to me that you could do a tremendous service by printing my letter.

I wonder how many people who receive our organization's newsletter pitch it into the wastebasket without even opening the envelope? I would be more than happy to take these people off our mailing list if they'd identify themselves. The savings in postage, not to mention time and energy, would be greatly appreciated. Simply send a note with the label. Say: "Please remove my name from your mailing list."

And for those who have the problem in reverse, I urge you to be persistent! I had to write one such note three times before they stopped sending me their mailings.

Thanks for the assist, Ann!--Overworked And Understaffed

DEAR OVER AND UNDER: Ever try to argue with a computer? Well, it's enough to gag a maggot. Another problem: Some organizations and companies sell their mailing lists, and the consumer may suddenly find himself the recipient of a stream of pornographic garbage. The outfits that push that stuff never give up. This sort of thing should be reported to your nearest post office.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'd like to reply to the sophisticated woman of 42. She was astonished that the teenagers polled were dissatisfied with their parents. Well, when I was a teenager, I would have gladly traded by dad for almost anybody's.

Mom died and he raised me alone. I am now 25 and grateful that he had the good sense to be strict. I realize it would have been easier to be permissive. Discipline takes guts.

He couldn't understand some of the fads of the changing times, but he managed to instill in me values that never change--love of family and God, the work ethic, loyalty and a sense of responsibility.

The time will come when my own children will want to trade in "old dad and mom" for more "with-it" versions, but I'm going to be tough. Someday they will say what I'm saying now--"Thanks for everything. I'm glad you are my father."--Older And Wiser

DEAR WISER: I wonder how many parents who read this will hope their kids see it? My guess is about 10 million.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was embarrassed recently when a house guest suggested that I not keep the kitty-litter box in the bathroom. She said it was unsanitary because "people are in there with bare feet."

In my opinion, the bathroom is a better place than the kitchen or dining room, which is where most of our friends keep theirs. I don't think they belong where food is prepared or served. Do you?--D.F.W. In New York

DEAR D.F.W.: According to Dr. D.I. Epstein, a local veterinarian, the best place for a kitty-litter box is a place that has a minimum of human traffic--such as the pantry or basement. Makes sense to me.

What' prudish? O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's avaialble in the booklet: "Necking and Petting--What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"Forum participants are reminded to bring their old or new tacky clothes for the contest between district groups Saturday evening following the forum banquet," she adds.

Here it is March already with spring just around the corner--we hope. Activities are in full swing at Westgate with our usual activities. Our newspaper readers for the month were Lottie Wertenberger, Joe Williams, Byron Terrell, Eleanor Hudspeth and Oneita Davidson.

The Rev. C.L. White of the Seventh Day Adventist Church gave a most inspiring Bible Study that was well attended by the residents. Music was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Boyer, J.B. Noland, Homer Garrison, Lathan Garnett, Paula Eubank and Nina Frances McMeans.

The craft and bingo volunteers were Lucy Fay Cocanougher, Faye Williams, Lois Ethridge and Belle Hromas. God's blessings to all of you for making our residents at Westgate an important part of your busy schedule.

The monthly birthday party was hosted by the Red Cross Uniformed Volunteers. Hosting the party were Nell Culpepper, Alice Gillelland, Betty Henson, Tommie Cherry and C. Ora Cockrell. The honorees were Montie Rockwell, Ella Harper, May Pittenger, Annalou Caraway, Dola Phillips and George Kelly. These parties are eventful occasions at Westgate and we wish to thank you ladies for your time and efforts.

The past month we welcomed several new residents. They are Fern Arp, Mary Helen Fisher, Bess Moore and Ora Hill.

Opposition, for openers

HAMPTON FALLS, N.H. (NEA) — The future of commercial nuclear power, an unexpected but significant issue in New England's early political contests, could become the object of a nationwide debate during this year's presidential campaign.

Plans to carry the issue into other states throughout the country already are being made by the two organizations that have met with surprising success in their efforts to focus attention on the subject in Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

Those groups are the campaign organization of California Gov. Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown Jr., a contender for the Democratic presidential nomination, and the Campaign for Safe Energy, a Boston-based citizens' organization.

One of the country's best known and most outspoken critics of nuclear-powered generating stations to produce electricity Brown has made the issue a cornerstone of his early campaign in the Northeast.

Although he finished third in the New Hampshire primary and in Maine's precinct caucuses, well behind President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., Brown displayed considerable strength along the seacoast, where opposition to nuclear power is concentrated.

In a reversal of his performance elsewhere in Maine, Brown was the most popular candidate in Lincoln County, home of the state's only nuclear generating station, the Maine Yankee plant near the coastal community of Wiscasset.

Here in New Hampshire, the Brown campaign distributed thousands of copies of an elaborate four-color poster carrying a "Stop Seabrook" headline and portraying the governor speaking in front of a massive "No Nukes" banner.

"Seabrook" refers to the two-unit, 2,388-megawatt generating station under construction near the coastal town of Seabrook, less than five miles south of here. Demonstrations mounted there by opponents of nuclear power have attracted national attention to the facility.

Prominently displayed in Brown's basic campaign leaflet here was a statement of strong support for those protesters: "If I'm elected the next president, I guarantee you I'm not going to license Seabrook — but you're going to get safe, efficient, economical alternatives. That's my pledge."

In a day-long campaign tour along New Hampshire's seacoast, the governor repeatedly criticized nuclear power. At a rally here, for example, he charged that "Seabrook and nuclear power are very basic symbols of the excesses and irresponsibility in our country."

Brown's strategists plan to press the issue as the primaries move into the Midwest and West — a strategy shared by the Campaign for Safe Energy, whose leaders have eschewed the confrontation politics and radical tactics that have produced only limited success during demonstrations at Seabrook and other nuclear facilities.

Instead, that organization has dispatched articulate young representatives to politely but firmly question the various candidates about nuclear power during their scheduled campaign appearances.

"We want to have a presence all the way through the primaries," says Douglas Phelps, a leader of the organization. "We know that many people, all across the political spectrum, are concerned about nuclear power even though there's no reason to believe they're going to change their voting patterns — their candidate support — because of the issue."

Phelps' group expects to mount a major effort against nuclear power during the primary campaigns in Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and California. Similar campaigns will be undertaken in Illinois and Florida if additional funds can be raised to support them.

Because considerable skepticism about nuclear power already exists in many of those states, the planned campaign could have a profound impact on how the public views the controversial issue in the future.

Program chairman Eunice Petersen announced recently during the Hereford Art Guild's monthly meeting that Palo Duro Home Demonstration Club will serve sandwiches, pies, and coffee at the Guilds Art Show scheduled March 22-23.

Ruby Lee Hickman, president, conducted the meeting of 17 members.

Marguerite Newell volunteered to furnish a picture for this month to be displayed at King's Manor Methodist Home. This is a monthly project.

A letter was read from the YMCA concerning the Easter Oprey Road Show to be held at the Hereford High School auditorium.

The club voted to send Eunice Petersen as a Women of the Year nominee to the West Texas State University Award Luncheon scheduled April 19.

After business, vice president Ida Mae Gilbreath announced the program given by Marguerite Newell on clouds, naming various types and giving a demonstration on painting them on canvas.

Mary Lou Aven and Ruth McBride were hostesses for the meeting.

The next scheduled meeting will be April 22 with the election of officers.

Second Suspect Arrest Made in Abduction Case

MERCED, Calif. (AP) — A second suspect has been arrested on suspicion of kidnapping in the abduction of 14-year-old Steven Stayner, who for seven years lived with one of the men as his son, police said.

Lt. Bill Bailey of the Merced Police Department identified the new suspect in the 1972 abduction as Ervin Edward Murphy, 38, a night janitor at a lodge in Yosemite National Park.

Authorities said Murphy was taken into custody at the park, and was then returned to jail in Merced, some 90 miles away, for booking.

Meanwhile, Kenneth Parnell, the quiet ex-convict once described by a psychiatrist as a "sexual psychopath," pleaded innocent Tuesday in Ukiah, about 200 miles from here, to kidnapping a 5-year-old boy, Timmy White.

Authorities here said they were preparing charges against Parnell in connection with Stayner's abduction in December 1972.

"At this time, we have nothing to tie him (Murphy) in with the White case...Needless to day, we will be pursuing this further," Bailey said.

Stayner told police someone named "Murray or Murphy" was involved in his abduction, the officer said, and police had a photograph of the suspect. Bailey said Murphy revealed during interviews with police that he had once worked with Parnell at the lodge.

Merced County District Attorney Pat Hallford said the statute of limitations on kidnappings is only three years and he was unsure if courts w would permit a kidnapping trial in the Stayner case. As a precaution, Hallford said he would file additional charges of child stealing and concealment, which he believes is a continuing offense.

Stayner lived with Parnell during a seven-year odyssey that ended Saturday night when Stayner and the White boy hitchiked 40 miles from Parnell's dilapidated mountain shack to the Ukiah police department.

White also contended a second man took part in his kidnapping as he walked to his babysitter's house after school Feb. 14. Police said they planned to hypnotize the youth in a bid to verify his story.

No sooner had Parnell pleaded innocent Tuesday in Ukiah Justice Court to the kidnapping of White than his attorney said he would move to close a preliminary hearing and request a change of venue.

"I am worried about the pretrial publicity this case has generated," Mendocino County Public Defender Scott LeStrange told a crowd of reporters outside the tiny courtroom.

LeStrange said Parnell probably could not get a fair trial in Ukiah because the boy he allegedly abducted has become "a very popular young man. Timothy White is a household word."

The preliminary hearing in the White case was set for March 13.

Ukiah Justice Court Judge James W. Luther imposed a gag order barring attorneys, investigators and court officers from discussing the case with the media.

Stayner has been besieged with movie and tabloid newspaper offers for the exclusive rights to his story ander, the boy's father, said the family has hired a lawyer to represent the family in negotiations.

Arctic Cold Blast Strikes Montana

By The Associated Press

A huge mass of frigid arctic air that produced blizzards in the mid-Mississippi Valley has spilled over the Continental Divide, dipping temperatures in western Montana this morning to 14 below zero.

Strong northeast winds funneled through the canyons and picked up as much as seven inches of snow from the valley floors, producing blowing and drifting in the Missoula and Bitterroot Valleys, the National Weather Service reported.

Showers and thunderstorms spread today from the lower Mississippi Valley across the Ohio and Tennessee river valleys to the mid-Atlantic states.

A band of snow stretched from northeast Missouri and eastern Iowa across southeast Minnesota, northern Illinois and much of Wisconsin to western and northern lower Michigan. Snow fell in parts of the northern and central Rockies.

Showers and thundershowers spread inland from the Oregon and northern California coasts, with snow in the higher elevations.

Snow was forecast from the Ohio Valley and the central Great Lakes to New England while rain and thundershowers were expected from the Tennessee Valley and the Southeast along the central and southern Atlantic Coast.

Showers were forecast for the West Coast into the central Plateau, with snow in the higher elevations.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 14 below zero in Cutbank, Mont., to 69 at the Key West Naval Air Station in Florida.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Ladies and gentlemen, the winner and heavyweight champion for the fourth time — Muuuu-haaaa-maaad Allll-eeee," the 38-year-old champ says over the phone from his Pennsylvania training camp.

Well, not quite yet. But the three-time heavyweight champion, out of retirement again, is trying to arrange a bout with 24-year-old Big John Tate, the World Boxing Association champion.

"He who is creative enough to take risks will accomplish anything on life," said Ali, who's ego is already in fighting trim.

"I'm trying to tell you something. I'm going to shock the world.

"Muhammad Ali is a four-time world champion. People can't imagine how great it is. I'm in a whole new world," he says.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer-instrumentalist Charlie Daniels, nursing a broken arm and two fractured fingers, says he'll be playing his fiddle and guitar again in another month or so.

"I'm mendin'," Daniels said Tuesday. "I'm not gonna come back 100 percent — I'm gonna come back 110 percent. This will make me a better musician."

He was injured Jan. 29 when his sleeve got caught in a hydraulic post-hole auger on his farm east of Nashville.

He said his doctor told him Monday he'd be playing "in a month or so."

Daniels and his band won a Grammy award last week for the 1979 hit song, "The Devil Went Down to Georgia."

LONDON (AP) — The new Archbishop of Canterbury, Robert Runcie, will go to Africa in May for his first foreign visit as spiritual leader of the Church of England and head of the world's 65 million Anglicans.

"The trip is for the inauguration of a new Anglican province of Burundi, Rwanda and Zaire on May 11," the primate's press secretary, John Miles, said Tuesday.

He said the new, French-speaking province was formed by the division of the present province of Uganda, Rwanda, Burundi and Boga-Zaire, where baptized Anglican membership soared from 1.3 million to 2.1 million between 1965-75.

Rhodesian Leader Makes Promises

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesia's new Marxist leader, Robert Mugabe, promised no confiscation of private property, a neutral foreign policy and fair treatment for the white minority.

The prime minister-designate told the nation in a TV-radio address after his landslide election victory was announced Tuesday there would be "no expropriation of property," and his government would not be aligned with the Soviet bloc or NATO.

"I urge you, whether you are white or black, to join me in a new pledge to forget the grim past," said the co-leader of the seven-year guerrilla rebellion against white rule in which some 20,000 persons were killed.

Mugabe said he would seek the cooperation of his chief political rival and co-leader of the guerrilla armies, Joshua Nkomo, and former Prime Minister Ian D. Smith, the leader of the white minority.

Nkomo, whose party won 20 of the 100 seats in the lower house of Parliament to 57 for Mugabe's party, said he welcomed the renewal of their wartime alliance. There was no comment from Smith, whose Rhodesian Front won all 20 of the seats reserved for whites.

The other three black seats were won by Bishop Abel Muzorewa's party.

"There is no intention on our part to use the advantage of the majority to victimize the minority," Mugabe told reporters in an effort to reassure the 230,000 whites. "There is a place for everybody in this country.

"We cannot practice racialism in reverse....(the whites) are entitled to serve the nation as the blacks are entitled to do so. And hence we would want to see them develop a greater sense of security, a greater sense of confidence, a greater sense of belonging."

Both will receive certificates for heifers they will exhibit at Houston next year.

Mac Hagar showed the 31st medium weight medium wool lamb and Marcel Fischbacher showed the 11th place heavy Limousin steer for the Hereford FFA.

A strong showing at Houston wrapped up a highly successful season for Deaf Smith 4-H and Hereford FFA exhibitors.

Sprinkler Safety Program Set

The Hereford Young Farmers will host a program on sprinkler irrigation safety tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. at the Hereford State Bank Community Room in conjunction with their regular monthly meeting.

The program is open to all interested farmers and irrigation equipment dealers in the area as a public service project of the local chapter.

Ernest McFarland, civil engineer-irrigation from Amarillo will present a slide show highlighting potential trouble spots in irrigation systems and recommended procedures producers should follow to avoid severe electrical shock or other injury when working with electrical - driven irrigation systems.

Potential hazards faced by farmers working with such systems were first pointed up in a dramatic manner during presentations to SCS personnel of the area last summer, and improving safety procedures in conjunction with these electric systems has grown in consideration since that time.

McFarland will also present technical information concerning hazards and safety procedures during tomorrow's program.

Lewis Alleges Trilateral Commission Involved In Control of Food, Energy, Education Policy

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

J.C. Lewis, who in an address on the controversial Trilateral Commission here in August of 1978 indicated that on the scale of a 12 hour clock, the TLC was at 11:55 in its drive toward one-world government reported in an encore appearance here last night that "it's now 11:59" in the organization's drive to achieve its goals.

Lewis, a retired Air Force officer and combat veteran and now farmer from Guymon Oklahoma appeared at the Hereford Community Center Monday night in a program sponsored by the Deaf Smith County chapter of Women Involved in Farm Economics.

The Oklahoma farmer leveled broadsides at a "corporate conspiracy" in the form of the TLC and the Council on Foreign Relations, charging they are working toward an eventual goal of one-world government during his 1978 visit here, and the charges were still standing as Lewis addressed a large gathering Monday night.

"Mr. Kissinger claimed a loosely-knit world government would be possible by 1980. It's now 11:59 on the 12-hour clock," Lewis commented.

According to Lewis, the Trilateral Commission is a "select group working to speed up one-world government through control of food, energy and a worldwide monetary system."

Lewis cited evidence supporting his claim that multinational corporations with interlocking boards of directors are exerting influence in food, energy and the monetary system, and that declining fortunes in American agriculture during the past several years are directly related to the activities of the Trilateral Commission.

Lewis repeatedly blasted David Rockefeller as the head of the TLC and claimed that the organization has such power and influence in political circles and has placed members in such high political positions that "the executive branch of government represents only about 65 special interest groups."

The Oklahoma farmer also charged that Henry Kissinger is "the second most powerful TLC member, next to David Rockefeller."

According to Lewis, the TLC's professed goal has been to radically reduce the number of farmers in the nation. He pointed out that 2,000 farmers per week have been lost to the nation since 1950.

The Oklahoma farmer reported that the TLC was formed in 1973 when farmers were receiving near-parity prices for their commodities, and at that time multinational corporations began moving into the food industry.

"Commodity prices have long since declined, but the corporations didn't lower their food prices, they doubled their margin of profit," Lewis charged.

"Control of food is closer than most people realize. Every time a farmer goes under, that much of the country goes under too. Parity is a real ally of the farmer and the people in charge of the TLC are fighting agriculture parity," the Oklahoman continued.

Lewis indicated that parity in agriculture would cripple the overall efforts of the Trilateral Commission, wrecking their drive toward one-world government.

"The TLC has hundreds of billions of dollars in loans under its control. Parity would mean farmers would not have to borrow all of their operating capital, and borrowing would be greatly reduced. That would really slam the fat cats operating on this money in the TLC. Parity is in the interest of the whole country, not just agriculture," stated Lewis.

He claimed that parity prices for farm goods and raw materials would end inflation, with the whole economy recovering as the result of a fair return for raw materials.

"The only way our economy will roll is for the biggest industry in this country to make a profit.--That means farmers must receive a fair return, so they can turn their dollars over and benefit the economy," said Lewis.

"The question will soon become what percentage of your paycheck do you allow for food if you're hungry? American consumers could pay three percent more of their paycheck for food right now and never have to worry about food. Paying 19.42 percent of your paycheck for food is a pretty good bargain when you're buying insurance for our country," he added.

lewis also charged that the TLC is influencing the teachings in the nation's schools, pressing ideas of interdependence, denying the existence of God, and avoiding the teaching of American history to discourage any feeling of nationalism and thus speed up the process toward one-world government.

"In my opinion, the TLC is controlling college textbooks and education. We've just created a new Department of Education and its head supports ideals which claim there is no supreme being, that man is a divine power, and who supports the teaching of such things in our schools," Lewis charged.

The Oklahoma opponent of the TLC reported that encouraging progress is being made toward derailing the TLC's drive toward one-world government.

"George Bush, a member of the Trilateral Commission, was soundly defeated in New Hampshire on the TLC issue. John Connally and Ronald Reagan are speaking out on the Trilateral Commission issue now, and even the Wall Street Journal and the Washington Post are reporting on it. If we are fortunate and nationally prominent candidates tell this on national television, the people will get irate over it and we'll put a stop to this.--I think that's gonna happen," stated Lewis.

"We've got to make the Trilateral Commission so unpopular that representatives are afraid to talk to members of the organization or take their money," he continued.

Lewis advocated returning government control to the states in keeping with the original concept of a republic with government at the lowest level at which it can be efficiently administered.

"We have to fight the Trilateral Commission to the death in rural America. If you don't, you can take the bulldozers to rural communities like Hereford," stated Lewis.

"It's time we've gotten through with just being passive. Freedom isn't free," he concluded.

Opponent of the TLC

J.C. Lewis, center, drives home a point on the Trilateral Commission to a number of local residents during a break in the program on the TLC which was presented here Monday night by the Deaf Smith County chapter of Women Involved in Farm Economics. Lewis maintains that the TLC, which includes the leadership of multinational corporations, is working toward a one-world form of government and that the declining fortunes of modern agriculture are due to the interference of the TLC in the marketplace for the benefit of its own top officials. Beeferendum Rejection 2:1

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cattle producers, including those in some of the leading beef states, rejected by a vote of almost 2 to 1 a plan under which they would have paid fees to finance a $40 million beef research and information program.

Preliminary figures on the voting, held last month, were released Monday by the Agriculture Department.

The National Cattlemen's Association, a leading advocate of the program, conceded last week after surveying voting in various states that producers had rejected the plan.

Merlyn Carlson, president of the association, said the cattle industry will have to reassess the situation "and come up with more effective plans" at some point in the future.

According to the department's preliminary count of votes in the Feb. 19-22 referendum, about 80 percent of those eligible to vote cast ballots.

Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said 288,445 cattle producers had registered at local offices of the agency.

Of those, he said, 231,032 voted. Those included 151,119 who voted against the program — 65.4 percent — and 79,913 or 34.6 percent in favor.

The program would have required approval by more than 50 percent of those voting before it could have been put into effect.

Under the proposal, authorized by Congress in 1978 as an amendment to the Beef Research and Information Act, a levy would have been made on cattle each time they were sold in the marketing chain. A board compoed of producers would have overseen beef research and promotion projects.

The plan was approved in 18 states

Texas Briefs

DALLAS (AP) — U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes is expected to return to the bench Thursday, ending speculation that she expected to retire soon.

Dr. Maynard F. Ewton, the judge's physician, said the 83-year-old jurist had a pacemaker installed last week to correct an irregular heartbeat.

The judge "is doing very, very well and is up and about," the doctor said. He said the pacemaker was installed after it was discovered that a recurring upper respiratory problem was caused by the irregular heartbeat.

The judge was hospitalized last month after she fainted at social function in Dallas.

Judge Hughes administered the oath of office to President Lyndon B. Johnson in Dallas Nov. 22, 1963, shortly after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

FORT WORTH (AP) — Bond has been reduced for an Iranian coed accused of conspiring to smuggle $10 million worth of heroin into the United States.

U.S. District Judge David Belew Jr. said he would reduce the bond for Nasren Javadzadeh Bijari from $70,000 to $20,000 if she agreed to surrender her passport.

The 23-year-old student at Texas Women's University at Denton was arrested last month after authorities found almost five-pounds of heroin concealed in a package she picked up at the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport.

Defense lawyer Roland Hill said the woman's father has been having trouble sending the bond money from Iran to the United States because of the turmoil in Iran. The woman will remain in the Tarrant County Jail pending posting of the bond.

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas County Jail inmate suffered two broken ankles and a fractured verebra Monday when he fell to the pavement whilee attempting to escape from a third floor courthouse restroom.

Witnesses said Thomas Richard Pearse, 41, of Dallas, kicked a window out of the restroom and was climbing down the face of the building when he fell about two stories to the pavement.

Pearse was jailed Feb. 23 on charges of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and aggravated robbery. He was on probation for a previous burglary conviction and was being taken to a probation revocation hearing at the time of the escape attempt.

Authorities said the escape attempt was under investigation.

HIGHLAND PARK, Texas (AP) — A surprise gift mailed to a Southern Methodist University student gave authorities at the SMU post office and Dallas County bomb squad members some anxious moments Monday.

Bomb squad member Jeff Teurman said the squad was called to the SMU campus post office after an employee heard a package ticking.

The ticking package was narrowed down in a stack of packages and placed in a trash can until the bomb squad arrived.

Employes became more suspicious when they checked and found that the student whose name was on the package was not expecting a package.

Post office employe Alan Wright said he was about 15 feet away from Teurman when he opened the package and discovered that it was a battery powered toy train.

"We were all relieved," Teurman said, "I was wearing my good suit and I didn't even have it paid for."

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas County Judge Garry Weber has proposed that the county commissioners guarantee county employes a 10 percent raise effective Oct. 1.

Weber said he made the proposal Monday because he believes President Carter may soon invoke a wage and price freeze.

Saying he believes the county employes should get some kind of increase, Weber said, "They should have gotten a 10 percent raise at the beginning of this budget year, but because we were changing the fiscal year, we couldn't afford to."

"If we should get into a wage and price freeze, I want to make sure they can get at least 10 percent," Weber said, "This would assure them of that"

"Anything above that would be subject to negotiation when set the budget," he said.

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas man involved in an incident in which one of the victims was mistakenly shot by police has been sentenced to 99 year in prison on an aggravated kidnaping charge.

A jury Monday set the prison term as punishment for Larry Darnell Butler, 24.

Butler was accused of abducting his wife and 3-year-old son from his mother-in-law's home last Oct. 25. His wife, Sharon, testified that Butler was leading them down a street at gunpoint when he also abducted Lee Douglas page, 39, and forced him to let them all get in his car.

During a brief shootout with police, Page fled from the automobile and was shot to death after he failed to stop when ordered to do so. Officers said they believed Page was the person who had abducted the others.

Prosecutors argued for a stiff sentence for Butler, pointing out that he was on 10 years probation at the time of the abduction. He had been senteced for attacking his wife and a friend of his wife's with a knife. Butler still faces trial on a charge of attempted capital murder in connection with the shootout with police.

DALLAS (AP) — A bank teller thwarted a robbery Monday by refusing to hand over money when a man pushed a note and what appeared to be sticks of dynamite into a cash receptacle at a drive in window.

Police said the man drove away without any money when the teller refused to give the man any money and activated the bank's alarm system.

Bill Little, senior vice president of the Commercial National Bank in Southeast Dallas, said what appeared to be dynamite turned out to be two road flares.

DALLAS (AP) — Vice officers say they believe they have "put a dent" in the nude modeling operations in Dallas with the arrests Monday of a man and two women at the fourth nude modeling agency raided in a week.

Lt. E.R. Walt said the arrests were made at the Hollywood Express Modeling Agency. He said the agency operated out of two apartments near downtown Dallas.

Walt said the latest raid, the fourth in a week on such businesses in Dallas, will bring an at least temporary end to the raids.

"Of course this won't put a stop to these activities because once some of these people get out of jail on bond, they'll be back in businss," Walt said, But it will put a dent in the business."

Dent said the nude modeling agencies are a front for prostitution activities with frees ranging between $75 and $100.

Earlier raids were at the D-24 Modeling Agency, Bare touch of Vegas Modeling Agency and another not identified by name.

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Police are searching for a suspect but have made no arrests in a convenience store shooting that killed two teenage girls.

The shooting took place about 2:30 a.m. Sunday, police said. Maria Carrillo, 14, was pronounced dead at the scene from a gunshot wound in the head.

Samantha Campbell, 17, died Monday afternoon at an Abilene hospital from three gunshot wounds in the head, which police said were fired at close range.

Investigators believe the shooting stemmed from a personal argument between Miss Campbell and someone she knew.

Grocery Prices Double Over Ten-Year Period

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Remember when coffee cost less than $1 a pound? When hamburger wasn't much more than than? When milk was less than 40 cents a quart?

It's not so long ago. An Associated Press market-basket survey shows grocery prices have nearly doubled in the last seven years and February brought another increase.

The AP drew up a random list of commonly purchased food and non-food items early in 1973. The prices were checked on March 1 that year at one supermarket in each of 13 cities and have been rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

Among the highlights of the latest survey:

—The average market-basket bill at the checklist stores is 87 percent higher today than it was on March 1, 1973. That means it costs about one and four-fifths times as much to buy the marketbasket items as it did seven years ago.

—The marketbasket bill increased at the checklist store in eight cities during February and decreased in five cities. An overall basis, the bill at the start of March was 1.1 percent higher than it was a month earlier. The rate of increase was steeper than in January — when the average marketbasket bill rose seven-tenths of a percent — but it was less than half as bad as during December — when the average total jumped 2.6 percent.

—Higher sugar prices were to blame for much of the February increase in the AP marketbasket. The price of sugar on world markets has risen from an average of 8 cents a pound in the first half of last year to 21 cents a pound in the first weeks of February.

The price of a five-pound sack of sugar increased at the checklist store in 12 of the 13 cities surveyed by the AP and was unchanged in the 13th city. Increases ranged from just under a nickel to almost half a dollar.

—There were scattered bargains at the meat counter. Pork prices have been declining as hog production increases and the price of center-cut pork chops declined during February at the checklist store in seven cities, the AP found.

—Egg prices continued to drop. The cost of a dozen eggs dropped during February at the checklist store in 11 cities and rose in two.

No attempt was made to weight the AP survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents. The AP did not try to compare actual prices from city to city. The only comparisons were made in terms of percentages of increase or decrease.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar. The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Stafford to Make Attempt at Alibi

PURCELL, Okla. (AP) — Convicted mass killer Roger Dale Stafford and five other witnesses will take the stand in an attempt to create an alibi defense in his trial on three more murder charges.

Defense attorney J. Malone Brewer said he expected his case, which was to start today, to take one or two days to present.

Stafford — currently appealing six death sentences he received in October for the July 16, 1978 murders of six Oklahoma City steakhouse workers — could face three additional death sentences if convicted of the murders of three members of a San Antonio, Texas family.

The 28-year-old Alabama drifter is charged with gunning down Melvin Lorenz, 38, his wife Linda, 31, and son Richard, 12, along Interstate 35 near this central Oklahoma town during a June 22, 1978 robbery.

McClain County District Attorney Kay Huff presented 32 prosecution witnesses and 123 exhibits during the first nine days of Stafford's trial. Stafford's wife, Verna, was the star prosecution witness, testifying she watched her husband kill the Lorenz family.

Doctor Probably Won't be Charged

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration officials say they are "doubtful" formal action will be taken against a doctor who prescribed marijuana for a lung cancer patient.

"It is doubtful any punitive action will be taken against the doctor if he does not have the license (to prescribe marijuana)," a DEA official said Tuesday.

The statement came after the DEA had launched an investigation to determine if Dr. Sam Barnes of Trinity had violated federal law by dispensing marijuana to Dan Nash, 51, a cancer victim.

Barnes received permission last Thursday from state District Judge Erwin Ernst to use marijuana confiscated by the Walker County Sheriff's office in treating side effects suffered by Nash after chemotherapy.

Jim Flewellen, regional compliance director for the DEA, said Tuesday federal law requires a special license, usually issued only for research projects, before marijuana can be given to any individual.

Barnes has refused to comment on the matter, saying the case was a private matter between himself and his patient.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Is stress test needed?

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you please give me a few details on the advantage of having the stress test done? I'm 61 and have a rapid heartbeat frequently and it is also slow at other times. These conditions are both very noticeable to me and very frightening. Would it be wiser to find out the causes before the stress test or is this part of the diagnosis? I do have elevated pressure at times for which I take Aldomet.

DEAR READER — I would suspect that the stress test has been recommended in your case as part of the overall evaluation of how your heart functions and whether or not you have significant underlying heart disease.

In some instances the stress test is very useful. It helps to determine whether a person's heart and vascular system is adequate for a person to begin a relatively active physical exercise program. It also improves the ability to diagnose underlying coronary artery disease with an electrocardiogram done during and immediately after the stress test.

I was careful to say improve because it's not perfect and people can have test results that look like they have coronary artery disease when they do not. And other people can have quite a bit of coronary artery disease and have a perfectly normal stress test. Very few things in life are perfect, so that shouldn't be too surprising.

The stress test is a form of vigorous exercise to work the heart. It does under laboratory conditions what you might do if you were jogging on your own. The amount of exercise your body does determines how much oxygen you need. The more oxygen you need, the more blood usually has to be pumped to your working body muscles.

To give you a better understanding of this, I am sending you The Health Letter number 14-10, Exercises For Your Heart. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I am not suggesting that you begin an active exercise program. Your doctor will have to decide that on the basis of the results of your test and the other information he has about you. The Health Letter I'm sending to you, however, will explain what kind of exercises should be used if you want to exercise and develop the fitness level of the heart itself.

There are all kinds of exercises and the kind a person does should depend on what his goal is in relationship to his overall health status. If you want to develop your heart and lung capacity, then the endurance exercises such as running and jogging and competitive sports are useful provided you're healthy enough to do them. If you're interested in losing weight, then lighter exercises that you can sustain over a longer period of time such as walking may actually enable you to use more calories without endangering your health. Finally, if you want to develop muscles then you want to do strength or resistance type exercises.

Paint's still on pants

DEAR POLLY — I got some light yellow paint on a pair of dark blue 100 percent polyester pants and wonder what I can do to get this off. — D.J.

DEAR D.J. — Try sponging wih turpentine until paint softens, scrape off any excess and then launder as usual. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — We found that a good way to clean a smoked brick fireplace is to use equal parts of liquid bleach and water and a scrub brush. Rinse with clear water. — IRENE

DEAR POLLY — For reasons unknown to me cider vinegar quickly and easily removes wood smoke from a brick fireplace area. — LUCILLE

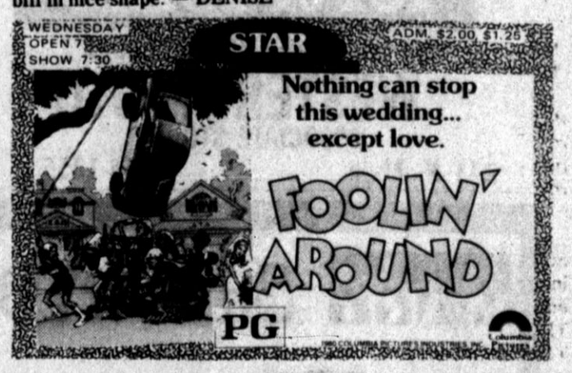

DEAR READERS — Always test anything in a inconspicuous area before diving in on the entire surface. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Save any pocket change accumulated during the day. It comes in handy for unexpected emergencies or bills. Such change can add up fast and total a nice sum to be used as spending money for next year's vacation. My husband and I saved close to $700 over a 3-4 year period and had a fabulous trip to California on nothing but change.

Put a container in your laundry area and every time you wash a load of clothes put a quarter in it. Such quarters saved pay for the water bill or at least part of it. It could also be earmarked for a fund to take care of any unexpected repairs or the washer or dryer. — LOIS

DEAR READERS — It would be interesting and most informative to hear ways other readers are saving and meeting inflation. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Find a pan that the cap or hat you are going to wash will fit over. After washing stretch the cap over the pan and leave until dry. This prevents having a cap or hat shrink until it is too small to wear and also keeps the front or bill in nice shape. — DENISE

Whitefaces Win Match Over Wildcats

By MAURI MONTGOMERY
Brand Sports Writer

The fine edge had worn off of head varsity tennis coach, Robert Cox, and for the Whiteface tennis team during the Odessa Tournament held Friday and Saturday. After all, the squad had failed to even post one win in the 1st round matches of the tourney and as a result had packed their bags for home after the first day's competition.

But, after the HHS squad mainlined the Clovis Wildcats 15-5 here Tuesday, they held an edge as sharp as a Wilkerson stainless steel razor blade.

A closer shave was hard to come by!

The Whitefaces took four out of six matches in the boys singles competition as HHS netter Trent Thomas defeated Danny Boone 7-5, 6-4; Adolfo Garcia out-performed Wildcat Larry Wheeler 6-1, 6-1; Whiteface Raymond Duncan beat Mark Rierson 6-0, 3-6, 6-1; and Robert Castro won both his matches 6-0, 6-1.

In boys doubles action, the Whitefaces netted two of three games. Hereford's duo, Duncan-Castro beat Boone-Graham 6-1, 6-3; while the Garcia-Esley team swept their competition 7-5, 6-3.

The HHS girls team mounted an attack of their own however, as they managed to grasp a one sided 9-0 victory (in both the singles and doubles competition) over the Clovis girls team.

Karla Driskill whipped Clovis' Becky Rowley 6-1, 6-1 while Clary Montemayor had an undisputed win over Jackie Goodwin 6-0, 6-0. HHS netter Lisa Snyder beat Linda Sluder 6-0, 6-4; Beth Frye defeated Nicki Gunnels 6-2, 4-6, 6-2; Dolly Montemayor won two matches over Melinda Garrett 6-1, 6-1; and Lime Sims lost her first match 4-6, but came back to win the final two 6-4, 6-1.

In girls doubles competition, Whitefaces Driskell-Snyder derailed Rowdy and Goodwin; Montemayor - Montemayor whipped Sluder-Gunnels 6-2, 6-3; while HHS team Sims-Frye outlasted Garrett-Delong 6-2, 6-2.

"We didn't do very well in the Odessa Tournament and so I was pleased with our effort today," said Cox. "I don't know what the problem was down at Odessa because its really hard to put your finger on. We were just playing against teams that have seen more big tournament experience (by that I mean-the tournaments having top quality teams entered) than we have and its hard to compete with a deficit in that category."

Some of the teams the Whitefaces faced in their brief stay in the tournament ere: Abilene Cooper, El Paso Eastwood, Odessa Permian, Pecos, San Angelo, Lubbock Monterey and the Lubbock Coroando J.V. team.

"I'll tell you what, none of those teams are slouches! Even Pecos was pretty tough, and the Coronado J.V. squad is one of the favored teams in our district," he said. "We were classified in the A&B Division and took twelve of our players, but we had a pretty hard time of it to say the least."

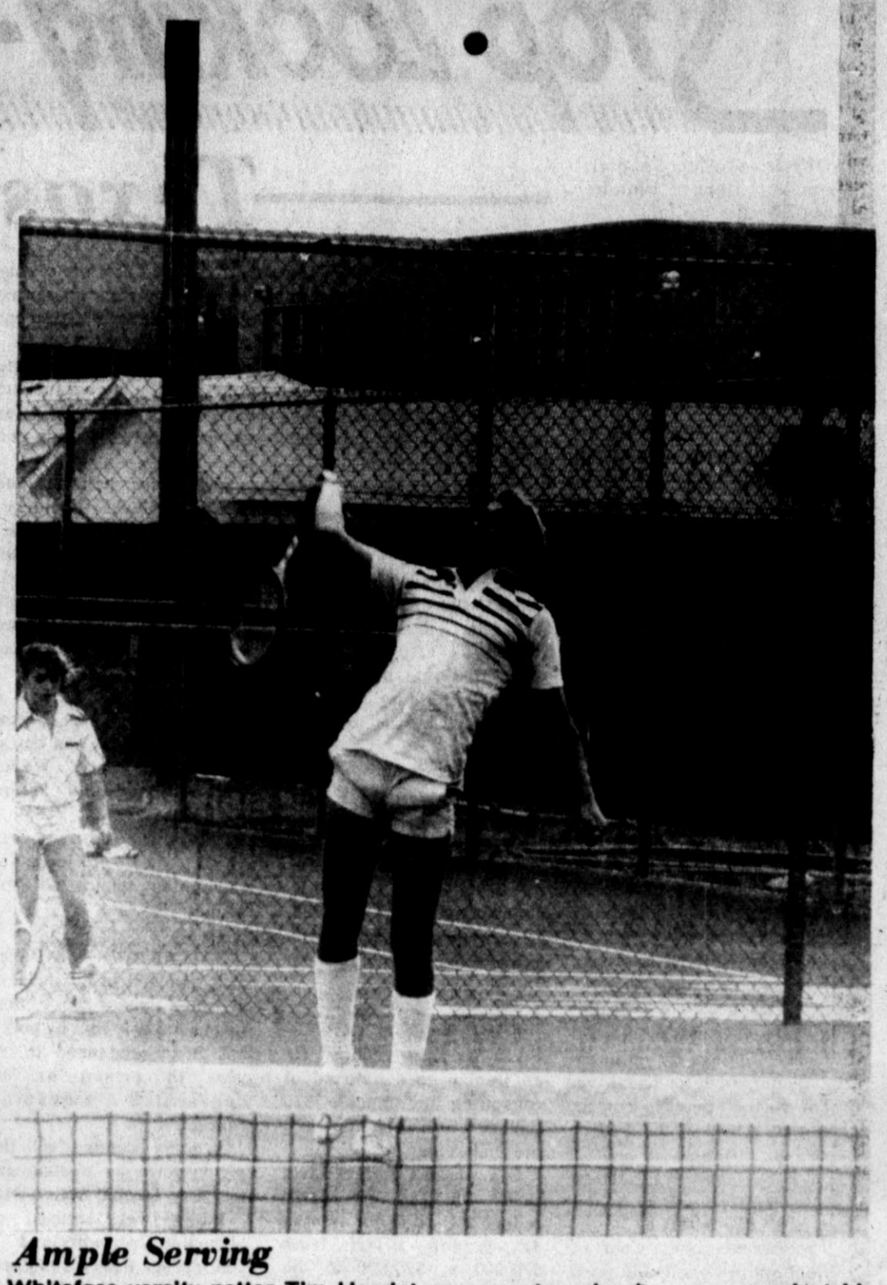

Hereford did have some high points in the tourney as far as hopefuls go however.

Trent Thomas made a showing in the singles competition, as he lead his first match 5-1 but later lost it 6-4. Also on the HHS hopeful list were Robert Castro and Raymond Duncan in the doubles section of the tournament. The Whiteface duo lost their first match by scores of 6-4, 6-4, to a Sweetwater team.

But the Hereford team has already forgotten the Odessa Tourney and the match with Clovis. Now their looking at their chances in the Hereford Invitational Tournament Friday and Saturday.

"We've got our work cut out for us this weekend too because some good teams will be coming to the tournament. Sme of the teams that have entered are Plainview, Borger, Clovis, Pampa, the Coronado J.V.s, and Dimmitt so you can see there are some teams in there that pose problems," Cox said.

"The CHS J.V. team will be the favorites in our tourney because they won the Plainview Tourney and many of the same teams featured in this tournament were at that one," he said.

Ample Serving

Whiteface varsity netter Tim Hamlet prepares to unleash a serve against his Clovis Wildcat singles opponent in a match between the two schools Tuesday. Even though Hamlet lost the match 7-5, 6-1; the boys team went on to take four out of six singles matches of the day while the girls team won all their matches. Hereford won the contest with an overall score of 15-3.

Pennsylvania Falls In NCAA Opener

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

The University of Pennsylvania became the last team into the NCAA tournament and Pepperdine became the first team out of the National Invitation Tournament. And tonight, the postseason action begins in earnest.

Penn edged Princeton 50-49 on James Salters' bucket with 10 seconds left to win a playoff for the Ivy League title at Easton, Pa. The Quakers, who made it to the Final Four last year but lost their other four starters from that team to graduation, thus completed the NCAA tourney field. Penn travels to West Lafayette, Ind., on Thursday to play Washington State in the Mideast Regional.

The NIT opened with Michael Wiley connecting for 31 points in leading Long Beach State to a 104-87 rout of Pepperdine. All five Long Beach starters hit for double figures.

The NIT continues tonight with eight first-round games. St. Peter's visits Connecticut; West Texas State is at Illinois State; Lafayette travels to Virginia; Loyola, Chicago is at Illinois; Penn State takes on the University of Alabama in a game at Birmingham, Ala.; St. Joseph's, Pa., visits Texas; Murray State goes to Jacksonville and Bolwing Green is at Minnesota.

There are six more NIT openers Thursday and one more on Friday.

Other NCAA tournament sites Thursday include Greensboro, N.C., Lincoln, Neb., and Ogden, Utah. On Friday, opening round contests will take place at Providence, R.I., Bowling Green, Ky., Denton, Texas and Tempe, Ariz.

Salters is the lone starter left from Penn's surprising finalists.

"I was in that rhythm," said the captain of the 16-11 Quakers. "Last year we had something to prove; we knew how good we were. This year we don't know how good we are ourselves."

"I was really proud the way the kids hung in," said Penn Coach Bob Weinhauer. "With one senior guard — and we lost three possible starters to injuries — they just kept hanging in all year."

Salters led Penn with 15 points and impressed Pete Carril, coach of the 15-15 Tigers.

Long Beach State's Wiley added 12 rebounds to his 31 points and Francois Wise had 15 points and 18 rebounds.

"We played the first 10 minutes about as well as we could play," said 49ers Coach Tex Winter. "In our last five or six games teams held the ball on us and kept us on defense. We were foaming at the mouth to get in a running game, like a racehorse that is trying to get out and run."

"I guess as long as you are in the game, these things are going to happen," noted Pepperdine Coach Jim Harrick. "Long Beach played exceptionally well. We missed some shots we normally should have made, but you cannot take anything away from Long Beach."

The 49ers, second place finishers in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, are 22-11. Pepperdine, 17-11, were third in the West Coast Athletic Conference and had beaten Long Beach 95-94 earlier this year.

Bullets Rout Pistons Behind Hayes'42

By The Associated Press

The Big E has rarely been bigger — or better — than he was Tuesday night.

The Big E, also known as Elvin Hayes, connected on 18 of 27 shots — including 12 straight at one stretch — and scored a season-high 42 points to lead the surging Washington Bullets to a 135-107 rout of the Detroit Pistons. For good measure, Hayes grabbed 10 rebounds and handed out three assists.

The Bullets have won six of their last seven games to move into the Eastern Conference playoff picture. The triumph moved them ahead of Indiana in the race for the final playoff spot.

The Pistons, meanwhile, have lost 15 of their last 16 games and have a road record of 3-31.

In other National Basketball Association games, the Boston Celtics crushed the San Antonio Spurs 137-108, the Houston Rockets downed the Atlanta Hawks 93-83, the Los Angeles Lakers shaded the Milwaukee Bucks 127-124, the Seattle SuperSonics nipped the Portland Trail Blazers 98-97, the New Jersey Nets defeated the Indians Pacers 114-109, the San Diego Clippers trimmed the Cleveland Cavaliers 116-105 and the Golden State Warriors beat the Utah Jazz 111-105.

Celtics 137, Spurs 108

Larry Bird scored 2 points and Cedric Maxwell added 23 as the Celtics routed the slumping Spurs for their seventh consecutive victory. It was the sixth consecutive loss for the Spurs — worst losing streak since they joined the NBA in 1976 — who fired Coach Doug Moe two games ago.

Rockets 93, Hawks 83

Moses Malone scored 28 points, including a 10-foot jumper that gave Houston the lead, as Atlanta's magic number to clinch the Central Division crown remained at eight. The Rockets built a 66-53 lead before the Hawks scored 13 straight points, eight by John Drew, for a tie. Malone's jump shot then put the Rockets ahead to stay.

Lakers 127, Bucks 124

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar hit two crucial free throws in the final seconds and combined with Jamaal Wilkes for 52 points as the Lakers snaped Milwaukee's five-game winning streak. Milwaukee pulled within 125-124 with nine seconds to go but Dave Meyers fouled Abdul-Jabbar, who made the final two of his 28 points. Wilkes had 24.

SuperSonics 98, Trail Blazers 97

Seattle guards Dennis Johnson and Gus Williams outscored Portland guards Dave Twardzik and Ron Brewer 46-10. The loss dropped the Blazers into a virtual tie with San Diego for the last Western Conference playoff berth. Dennis Johnson led the way with 32 points for Seattle.

Nets 114, Pacers 109

Maurice Lucas scored 25 points as New Jersey handed the Pacers their fifth straight loss, severely hurting their playoff hopes. The setback dropped the Pacers behind Washington in the playoff race. Indiana now has the eighth-best record in the Eastern Conference, three games out of the sixth and final playoff spot.

Warriors 111, Jazz 105

Robert Parish paced the Warriors with 26 points. Sonny Park added 24 and John Lucas scored five key points in 15 seconds.

Clippers 116, Cavaliers 105

Lloyd Free scored 10 points in the third quarter and Brian Taylor added nine to rally San Diego.

Baseball Strike Possible

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Armed with a resolution directing him to seek strike authorization if a new contract is not reached by the start of the season, Marvin Miller, executive director of baseball's Players Association, today resumed talks with Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for management.

Miller met for nearly five hours Tuesday with the executive board of the players association, briefing them on what he considers a lack of progress through 23 negotiating sessions over a period of 16 weeks.

"In that period of time, you should have narrowed the issues," said Miller. "Normally, it is not a difficult matter to say, 'Here is where we are.' I can't do that at this point. There are no agreements on anything. It's almost like the first week."

That was the essence of his report to the union's executive board and the result was the authorization for possible strike action.

The players board will convene another meeting April 1 in Dallas to consider further action. Miller said that if the action is ratified by the players on the 26 major league teams, but would be taken after April 1. The season is scheduled to begin April 9.

Grebey said he had no immediate comment on the action of the players, but he disagreed with Miller's assessment of lack of progress.

"I think the bargaining sessions have been very productive," he said. "Both sides have exchanged proposals and ideas...I think there is no need for any concern at this time."

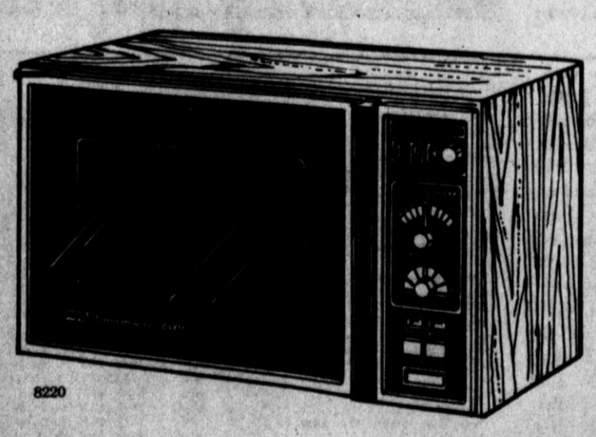

Miller said his group remains hopeful that an agreement can be worked out.

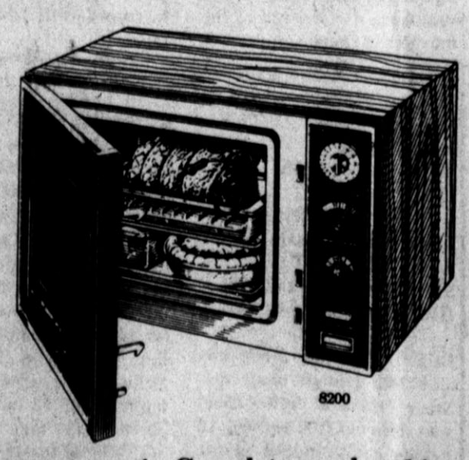

The union chief pointed to record attendance levels and television income enjoyed by baseball since the last basic agreement was signed in July, 1976.

"Against this background, it is not appropriate for management to try and turn back the clock and cut," he said.
