More About Brew—Bedtime Story—Fall Business—Comparisons—

Comes now a Record News reader, who closes his letter "Respectfully yours," but fails to sign his name, with additional information on the number of bottles of beer which can be secured from one can of malt and certain other ingredients. The communication is called forth by a recent news story which said 15,600 cans of malt are sold each month in Wichita Falls. The letter follows:

"May I not present new figures in relation to the attached article (on home brew):

"The 15,600 cans of malt syrup would make (after the average recipe) 1,170,000 bottles of home brew. This amount of malt will require approximately 62,400 pounds of sugar and 100,200 gallons of city water, also 7,800 cakes of yeast.

"This amount of home brew for a city of 30,000 inhabitants will give 39 bottles to each person a month, just a little over one bottle a day. If only 50 per cent of said population partook of this beverage, it would leave two bottles to the remaining persons, one for lunch and one for supper. Wichita Falls must have a real nice sober population.

"Ain't prohibtion figures the candy?"

◆ ◆ ◆

To which the correct answer, if any, would seem to be: "Hurrah for Volstead and Dean. Open up another bottle of beer, Mother. I want to give the children a lecture on law observance."

◆ ◆ ◆

Cheerful news: Department stores of Wichita Falls show an increase in sales of 17.2 per cent for the first six months of 1928, according to a survey of the Texas Business Review, monthly publication of the University of Texas business research bureau. In almost every business and occupation there has been a steady improvement for the last few months. Calamity howlers are going to have a tough time here in the fall.

◆ ◆ ◆

Traffic jams try the patience and temper of motorists, but they usually indicate a busy and active town. That should be some consolation to Wichitans who have found it increasingly difficult to make progress downtown between 7 and 9 o'clock for the last few weeks, especially on Saturday nights.

◆ ◆ ◆

The Texas Electric Service company exhibits prize-winning photographs of Wichita Falls scenes and homes taken by Bartlett's studio. The pictures are worth taking a trip down to the electric company for every Wichitan with civic pride. Residents of this town, under difficult conditions, have built one of the most beautiful cities in Texas. But they don't talk much about it.

◆ ◆ ◆

Austin has much to say of its claims as one of the beauty spots of Texas, and rightfully. Visiting there a week ago, this writer was impressed with the poor comparison between the parched lawns and parks of the capital city and the green, well-kept plats of Wichita Falls. Comparisons may seem of poor taste, but Wichitans could afford to make them oftener.

MYSTERY SHOT REMOVES HAT FROM VICTIM

Foard County Farmer Is Made Target For Strange Attack

THREATS ARE SENT

Mark L. Self Reports Four Letters Received Prior To Shooting

Special to The Record News.

CROWELL, Texas, Aug. 6.—Foard county officers late tonight had not picked up the trail of an unknown assailant who late Sunday night shot the hat off the head of Mark L. Self, prominent Foard county farmer, while the latter was attending a revival near Thalia, and then escaped into the darkness in an automobile. The car was reported to have headed towards Crowell but officers there Monday had not seen it.

The mysterious shooting, which now has a whole county baffled, followed the receipt by Mr. Self of four anynomous letters, each of them charging the recipient to leave $1,500 "by the bridge" or stand ready to part with his life. The threatening notes made no effort to tell Mr. Self which bridge was meant as the hiding place.

Mr. Self, under a severe strain, did not sleep the remainder of Sunday night and spent Monday in a relative's garage at Thalia.

Scores of Foard county citizens were deputized by Sheriff L. E. Campbell today to assist in the search. Sheriff Campbell himself was marked by the phantom gunman in one of the threatening letters. It charged Mr. Self not to inform Sheriff Campbell of the sender's actions or he would slay the officer.

The shot which took Mr. Self's hat from his head, missing it by deadly nearness by scarcely a half inch, was fired when Mr. Self was sitting in his car near a tabernacle. He said a stranger beckoned him to come behind a nearby car. Leaving his own car to investigate, the farmer could find no one, and was about to return when the shot blazed away in the darkness. The assailant made a get-away among a hail of bullets fired from Mr. Self's automatic pistol. It was impossible to get an adequate description of him, Mr. Self said.

AIRMAN SPARED FROM BLAZING PLANE IN U. S.

Courtney Gives Graphic Account of Exciting Adventure

CREW LOST HOPE

Flame in Mid-Ocean Gives Aviation Its Most Thrilling Story

By SAM LOVE
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. (UP)—The authentic story of how Capt. Frank T. Courtney, the British transatlantic flier, landed his flaming plane in a rough midnight sea by the light of its own fire was told to the United Press tonight by Captain Courtney.

It is doubtful if a more hair-raising narrative of adventure in the air was ever related.

Captain Courtney and the crew of the flying boat Whale—Hugh Gilmore, radio operator; Fred Pierce mechanic, and Elwood Hosmer, son of a wealthy Canadian railroad man and financial backer of the flight—arrived today on the rescue ship Minnewaska of the Atlantic Transport lines. They were met by the steamer Macom and given a New York welcome—Grover Whalen, parade up Broadway, Mayor Walker and rooms at the Ritz.

Dined By Club

Then the air adventurers were smuggled to an exclusive Lexington avenue restaurant, where the strange order of flying men known as the Quiet Birdmen were waiting to dine them.

Captain Courtney, who had talked wireless to the ship down the bay, left the dining room to give the United Press a narrative account of the whole adventure.

His regards the experience of the flying boat Whale as a successful venture and not solely because he escaped with his life and the lives of his companions.

End of Two Years' Work

"I didn't have much feeling when it happened," said Courtney of the 30-second ending of two years of preparation. "It all seemed so absolutely unreal.

"Up to this point—it was exactly 2:35 Greenwich time, which was about midnight our time—we had had no trouble whatever. The machine and engines were functioning better than ever before.

"The whole business from the time I saw the flames until we hit the water could not have taken longer than 20 or 30 seconds," Courtney said.

"We were flying at 1,500 feet and everything was dark but comfortable.

"I first saw a faint red glow reflected on my windscreen. If I had

M. E. PASTOR GETS VACATION

Former Wichita Man Too Hot Against Ticket

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 6. (UP)—With the leader of the bolting Democrats on an "enforced vacation" for "several weeks," the threatened outbreak against Alfred E. Smith and Senator Joseph T. Robinson in Arkansas was believed quieted today. Rev. H. D. Knickerbocker, pastor of the Methodist church, who is regarded as anti-Smith and anti-Robinson leader, left on a vacation today, after the stewards and trustees of his church, to which Senator Robinson belongs, voted 64 to 26 to rebuke the pastor for his attacks on Senator Robinson and Alfred E. Smith, presidential candidate.

Former Pastor Here

Dr. H. D. Knickerbocker, given an "enforced vacation" from the pastorate of his Little Rock Methodist church because of his political attacks on the Democratic presidential nominees, is the former pastor of the First Methodist church of Wichita Falls.

Dr. Knickerbocker recently visited in Wichita Falls, at which time he promised to have much to say about the nomination of Gov. Alfred E. Smith by the Houston convention. PRYOR RESIGNS HIS OFFICE AS CONSTABLE

Electra Officer Quits Post After Series Of Charges

OMITS EXPLANATION

County Commissioners Accept Withdrawal At Meeting

The resignation of Ed Pryor as constable of precinct No. 4, was received and accepted by the commissioners' court of Wichita county Monday afternoon. Pryor wrote, "I hereby tender my resignation as constable of precinct No. 4, Wichita county." Reasons for the resignation were not given by Pryor.

The former Electra constable is under bond of $1,500 on an indictment charging burglary of a news stand in Electra. Following his indictment bondsmen notified the commissioners' court that they would like to be excused from their bonds. They were released and Pryor was advised that he could not serve as constable until a new bond was made. New bond was not made.

Vacancy Filled After Vote

Either L. S. Tinnin or R. W. Johnson will be appointed to complete Pryor's unexpired term as constable, according to Judge E. W. Nicholson. Mr. Tinnin and Mr. Johnson are candidates for the office of constable at Electra, and one of them will be appointed to complete Pryor's term after the results of the second primary have been announced.

The commissioners court, Judge Nicholson pointed out, did not feel that it would be fair to appoint either to the vacancy until after the primary of Aug. 25.

Meanwhile the duties of constable at Electra are being taken over by Dick Morris, deputy sheriff, until a successor to Pryor is named.

Tax Rate Fixed

The county tax rate for this year was placed at 75 cents by the court, in accordance with plans made earlier in the year. Maintenance and bond tax rates on the common school districts also were agreed upon when the recommendations of Burl Bryant, county school superintendent, were accepted.

Bids were ordered on one 10-ton crawler type tractor for use in precinct No. 2, the bids to be opened Sept. 3. Bids for a 10-foot grader for precinct No. 3 and a four cylinder automobile with delivery body for precinct No. 4 also were asked, these to be opened Aug. 27.

Monthly reports of Miss Elizabeth Hall and H. L. White for July were received by the court.

AL PORES OVER MUSTY PAGES

Governor Prepares to Reply To Kansas Editor

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 6. (US)—Returning to the capital today after spending 10 days in New York and Long Island, Governor Smith began an intensive study of 30-year-old legislative records preparatory to answering the charge hurled at him by William Allen White, Kansas editor, that he voted when a member of the legislature to protect the saloon and the liquor traffic.

The records filled a long table in the governor's private office. While the governor was absent on Long Island, enjoying a brief vacation, his counsel, Edward G. Griffin, had the records brought to the executive chamber so Governor Smith would have them at hand as soon as he returned.

In opening his attack on the governor, White charged him with always voting when he was a member of the assembly to protect vice and gambling as well as the saloon. Subsequently, however, the Kansas editor retracted that part of his charges about vice and gambling.

When the governor was asked if he intended to issue a formal reply in answer to White's charge, he said:

"I am going to get hold of all the stuff and go over it."

"Does that imply you have definitely made up your mind to answer White?"

Sharply, the governor replied:

"I don't want to pin myself down. I haven't seen any of that stuff yet. What is the use of writing about it until something happens?"

Italian Under Water Vessel Goes Down In Deep Water

HIT BY DESTROYER

Weather Conditions Are Unfavorable For Rescue

ROME, Aug. 6. (AP)—The Stefani agency reports that the Italian submarine F-14 was sunk in 40 meters of water by a collision with the destroyer Giuseppe Missori this morning. The crew of the submarine is in communication with surface craft through a special submarine signalling apparatus.

Weather conditions at present are said to be not very favorable. There are already at the scene four sets of diving apparatus and also a mechanism to supply the submarine with fresh air.

The submarine was engaged in an attack maneuver with the fleet seven miles west of the island of Brioni, near the northeast coast of the Adriatic. It emerged suddenly under the prow of the destroyer Giuseppe Missori, which struck it.

The F-14 sank to the bottom. The submarine's exact position has not yet been found, but observers from a hydro-airplane said they had sighted it a little way from where the warship Brindisi lies at anchor. Admiral Foschini was on board the Brindisi and has taken charge of the salvage operations.

The sinking of the F-14 was the first serious disaster to any of the Italian undersea craft since August, 1926, when the submarine Sebastiano Veniero disappeared during naval maneuvers off Sicily and was never found. Fifty men were believed to have lost their lives in her.

Archer Grand Jury Debates Conflict in Duckett Testimony

The Archer county grand jury recessed Monday afternoon until Tuesday morning without making a report to Judge E. G. Thornton and without having returned any indictment against George Duckett. Duckett is held on charges of murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Charles McDaniel in an attempted holdup of the First State bank of Dundee.

Most of the day was spent in an examination of witnesses in the case, with indications of a conflict in the testimony. It is understood that a number of Newcastle citizens, testifying before the body Monday, were positive in statements that Duckett was in Newcastle at the time McDaniel was shot.

State witnesses, on the contrary, have positively identified Duckett as the man who attempted to hold up the Dundee bank, shooting Mr. McDaniel in a subsequent struggle in front of the bank.

Judge Thornton indicated Monday that the case would be set for trial in the 30th district court on July 30 in the event Duckett is indicted by the grand jury.

Story of Plains In New Review

Special to The Record News.

CANYON, Texas, Aug. 6.—Copy is now being prepared for the first issue of the Panhandle Plains Historical Review which will come off the press in the latter part of the summer. It will contain about 100 pages which will be devoted to the history of the southwestern part of Texas.

J. Evettes Haley of the West Texas State Teachers college is general editor of the Review and will have a special paper in this issue on "Colonel Goodnight's Indian Recollections."

L. F. Sheffy, head of the department of history in West Texas State Teachers college, is preparing a paper on Captain S. W. Arrington, a noted ranger of Texas.

Hattie M. Anderson, member of the department of history in the college, is editing some of Hank Smith's memoirs. Hank Smith was the first settler on the south plains of Texas. These memoirs deal with his experiences in mining and Indian fighting in Arizona and New Mexico during the Civil war.

There will probably be a paper on the Quaker settlement in Crosby county. This will be written by Roger A. Burgess of Childress.

PILATE WINS EXONERATION

Bibical Character Softens With Time, Claim

CHICAGO, Aug. 6. (UP)—Time, and possibly politics, gradually are softening the character of Pontius Pilate, procurator of Judea.

Modern theologians appear agreed that the man who is supposed to have delivered Jesus to be crucified now deserves some measure of exoneration, Dr. Shirley Jackson Case, professor of church history at the University of Chicago, said today.

But whether the new conception is historically correct, or whether it springs from a desire of the Christian religions to cast the entire crucifixion blame on the Jews, is problematical, the noted Chicago theologian added.

Doctor Case subscribes to the latter theory. He sees church politics behind the new version of the crucifixion, translated and published in London recently from Arabic and Syrian documents. While not doubting the authenticity of the translation, which describes Pilate as a great Christian martyr, Doctor Case believed it will help diffuse the harsh image originally presented.

Pilate Exonerated

"Biblical historians have a tendency to exonerate Pilate," he said. "We find the picture of him improving all through the four Gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. The writings that came after these, of which the Arabian and Syrian documents may be very interesting specimens, softened Pilate's character."

The Arabian and Syrian writings present Pilate and his wife, Procula, as two who "loved Jesus like their own soul." They set forth that Pilate delivered Christ to be flogged, believing it would save him from death. They also add an entirely new chapter, in which Pilate himself is crucified and later delivered, with his wife, into heaven.

Pontius Remade

"The reason for all this," explained Doctor Case, "is easy to see. Pilate was a Gentile and the Gentiles wanted the Christian religion all to themselves. Now, if the Jews could say, 'One of your own race put your Savior to death,' it wouldn't sound very nice. So the historians got together and slowly, perhaps even unconsciously, remade Pontius.

"With the Roman procurator made a saint, the religion would appeal to a great number of people: it was a more attractive proposition, hence the evolution of the Pilate legend. All through the religious writing after the death of Jesus we find this disposition to give the Jews a black eye and to white-wash Pilate."

Doctor Case, who is the author of "Jesus: A New Biography" and numerous other theologic works, pointed out that all the New Testament writings, of which Paul's letter to Thessalonica was the first, were in Greek, as were the four Gospels.

The documents in Arabic and Syrian, he said, were obviously of a much later date, when the campaign to meliorate Pilate was well under way.

KIDS CHEATED

'Tourists' Collect Funds For Poor, Passing As Rescuers

CHICAGO, Aug. 6. (US)—Thousands of poor children have been cheated out of their customary summer outings on Illinois farms, it was revealed by the United Charities organization today.

A band of "tourists" drove through Illinois, it was stated by the charities, under the name of the "Volunteer Rescue Army" of Chicago. These "tourists" told the farmers, who have in the past furnished recreation for the poor of the city, that the children would not make their outing this summer, but instead the organization was collecting clothing, foodstuffs and money for them.

The farmers are reported to have contributed liberally, and did not feel they should also furnish a summer home for the children.

Hickman's Mother To Plead for Son

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 6. (UP)—The mother of William Edward Hickman, slayer of Marion Parker, will plead with Gov. C. C. Young to save her son from death on the gallows.

The plan for Mrs. Mary Hickman to come to California in a last desperate attempt to stop the execution was revealed by attorneys for Hickman today as they prepared to carry their fight to the United States supreme court. The state supreme court twice has ruled against a new trial for the slayer.

Mrs. Hickman is a resident of Kansas City.

"If all else fails," Richard Cantillon, attorney, said, "Mrs. Hickman will seek an audience with the governor to plead for Eddie."

Insurance Firms May Issue Policy Stock

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 6. (INS)—It is not unlawful for an insurance company doing business in Texas to issue stock purchase agreements in connection with its policies of insurance, so long as the terms of such agreement are expressly specified in the insurance policy, it was held here today by Attorney General Claude Pollard.

It is, however, a violation of the insurance law to make such agreements without being specified in the policy.

TEXAS SENATE MUCH CHANGED

Many New Faces Elected To Upper House

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Aug. 6.—New members will make up half the 31st Texas senate when the body convenes next January, and special elections in three, and possibly four districts, make it probable that a majority of senators will be new members of the upper house.

The defeat of Senator Edgar E. Witt of Waco, by Representative W. R. Poage, ascertained Thursday night in the final count of votes, leaves Senator Carl C. Hardin of Stephenville the only member of the present senate who had opposition to be re-elected. Five were defeated.

The presence of from 15 to 17 new members of the upper house—the terms are four years—is unprecedented. Several hold-over members resigned, died, removed from their districts or were candidates for other offices.

Special Election

New senators are assured from the first, second, fifth, eighth, twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth, eighteenth, twentieth, twenty-fourth, thirtieth and thirty-first districts.

Senator J. W. Hall, Houston; Senator Ed Westbrook, Sherman, and Senator R. A. Stuart of Fort Worth have been nominated for local offices, and special elections, probably on general election day, will be called to fill the vacancies caused by their retirement. Senator Thomas B. Love is in the run-off for lieutenant-governor, and should he be nominated, this would create another vacancy. Senator Julius Real, Republican, has a Democratic opponent. Senator A. E. Wood of the Austin district was defeated by John W. Hornsby, candidate two years ago for attorney general. Senator R. S. Bowers of Burleson county was among those defeated. Senator I. D. Fairchild of Lufkin recently died following an automobile accident. Senator John H. Bailey of Cuero, dean of the upper house, declined to seek renomination.

Two Youngsters

Senator Witt and Senator Jesse Smith's successors will be among the youngest members of the upper house.

Walter F. Woodul of Houston, favorably known here by reason of his splendid service as assistant adjutant general of Texas, during which he held the rank, successively of major and lieutenant colonel, is in the race for the senate at Houston, to succeed Senato. Hall. His election would be in line with the trend of recent years of sending able young men to the Texas senate. Within the past 10 years the senate has been made over from a group of 31 men preponderantly aged, to a new group the large majority of whom are successful young men of from 25 to 40 years of age.

The senate has one woman member, Miss Margie Neal of Carthage.

What's the Odds?

BURRO TO RACE WITH ELEPHANT

Legion Post Sponsors N. Y. "Marathon"

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. (INS)—Despite a warning from the national headquarters that the enterprise violated the nonpartisan clause of the American Legion constitution, the advertising men's post of the legion here today completed its plans for a race from New York to Washington between a donkey and an elephant, to begin at the Astor hotel, Aug. 15.

Chairman O'Hara Jr., of the arrangements committee, said that neither political party is directly interested in the project. It does not fall within the prohibition of the legion constitution, he added.

F. Barton, vice commander of the legion, ordered the race held up on Aug. 1, but at a special meeting of the post today it was decided to go through with the race to the White House.

Five hundred dollars was offered on the victory of the elephant at noon with no takers. It is expected that the 300-mile route will require from 10 days to two weeks for the race.

BAYLOR OPENS TERM SEPT. 17

Building Program Promises Largest Session

WACO, Texas, Aug. 6.—The 84th session of Baylor university which will open on Sept. 17 bids fair to be the largest session in the history of the institution, according to Registrar F. M. Allen of Baylor university. Mr. Allen has held the position of registrar for 25 years, only one year less than Dr. S. P. Brooks, president, has held the presidency.

During the coming session a building program will be begun, financed by the citizens of Waco. A total of $1,000,000 will be placed in buildings on the Baylor campus, $416,000 of which amount was raised in a whirlwind campaign April 28 to June 5.

The first building to be erected in this campaign is Waco hall. The plan will be drawn by a construction architect in conjunction with a landscape architect whose plans for Greater Baylor university will include buildings to be erected during 1929, 1930 and for years to come.

The enrollment of Baylor university last year was 3395. The number of degrees granted during the year totaled 504.

Mental Tests Given

The freshman class will have a period of orientation of two days under the direction of Dr. W. S. Allen, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. Mental tests are given to first year students and classification is advanced because of sectioning of classes according to the ability of students.

This plan of administration was inaugurated by Dr. Allen, dean, who took his Ph. D. degree from Columbia university.

During the coming session there will be representative Ph. D.'s on the Baylor university faculty from Johns Hopkins, Iowa, Yale, Harvard, Chicago, Wisconsin, Brown, Texas, Cornell, California, Virginia, Pennsylvania, as well as those who hold literary degrees from English and European universities.

There is little talk of limiting students at Baylor university as compared with August of last year, but it was confidently expected that limiting students would be necessary unless a building program was started. Burleson hall is being made new from front to back and many other women's buildings are being put in order so that an increased enrollment will be cared for in the fall term. A new dormitory for men, a five-story fireproof structure, is expected to be filled to capacity.

AUTO KILLS SLEEPING MAN

Richard Grey of Goree On Road Near Floydada

Special to The Record News.

FLOYDADA, Texas, Aug. 6.—That an autoist who drove the wheels of his car over Richard Grey, 28, of Goree, while he was sleeping on the highway near here Monday morning was not conscious that he had struck a human body, was the belief of officers here today. Sheriff P. G. Stegall, who has been assisting in the search for the driver, voiced the theory that Grey's death was not caused by a "hit and run" driver.

Grey was found crushed to death on the highway by his companion, Floyd Smith, 21, of Munday. Smith said he and Grey had started from here to Plainview to visit Grey's family, and had caught a ride from Floydada to Aiken with a man named McReynolds. After walking two or three miles from Aiken, Smith said they sat down in the road to rest, and went to sleep. Smith was awakened, he said, by Grey's screams after an automobile had passed over his body. The car speeded away, apparently unheeding.

Gray's body is being held in a Lockney mortuary. He is survived by his widow and three small children.

CHICAGO COPS FACE SHAKE-UP

New Police Commissioner Cuts Salaries

CHICAGO, Aug. 6. (UP)—Complete reorganization of the Chicago police department was forecast today as Acting Police Commissioner William F. Russell, recently appointed to succeed Michael Hughes engaged in further conferences with his aides regarding the "shake up."

John Stege, new deputy police commissioner, today ordered the payroll list of the entire department revised. This order followed closely the sweeping edict Saturday of Commissioner Russell, transferring 328 officers, including 19 captains, 13 lieutenants and 26 sergeants.

The Russell order affected officers in the "Bloody Twentieth" ward, where gambling and racketeering, the cause of much violence in Chicago in recent months, had been flourishing.

The underworld was startled by Russell's move and many were said to have closed their doors Saturday night before the new regime, which started work today, had moved into the ward.

Bootleggers, gamblers, racketeers and other vice lords were said to be preparing to "hide out" until after the November election.

"Scarface Al" Capone and Joe Saltis, beer barons and vice leaders were being sought by police under instructions of Russell. Saltis was believed to have left the city temporarily and Capone is "hiding out" in one of his favorite haunts.

Other habitues of the underworld also were sought by Russell's men in keeping with their chief's determination to wipe out crime and vice from Chicago.

Moody to Address Regional Kiwanis Meet

DALLAS, Aug. 6. (UP)—Governor Dan Moody will informally open the annual convention of the Texas-Oklahoma district of Kiwanis International here September 2.

It is estimated that more than 1000 convention visitors will be here for the governor's speech.

The convention will be formally opened September 3, for a two-day session, and every one of the 100 clubs in the two states are expected to be represented at the conference. At that time, district officers will be elected, next year's convention city will be chosen, and the problems of Kiwanians in general will be discussed.

Ranger Man Thought 'Ma' Still Governor

RANGER, Texas, Aug. 6. (UP)—Here is the best story received to date concerning the recent primary election held in Texas.

The boys were "whooping 'er up" during an election rally held on the streets of Ranger.

"I believe that Wardlaw will beat Moody out," said one fellow.

"Say, who is this fellow Moody?" inquired another.

"I mean Governor Moody," came the retort.

"Why, I thought Ma Ferguson was still governor!"

The crowd dispersed.

Neither Sex Is Superior and No Comparison Is Possible, Doctor Says

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. (US)—"Is woman as a wage earner changing civilization?"

"Must the state, instead of the family, care for her children?"

"Will this mean a reversion to a decadent era?"

These are all questions which Dr. Abraham A. Brill, one of the nation's leading psychiatrists, finds involved in that other perpetual inquiry:

"Is man or woman the superior?"

The distinguished physician discussed the main question, that of superiority, first. He declared flatly:

No Comparison

"There is absolutely no comparison between man and woman. Each has his own physical and psychological makeup and the two are as different as a desk and a chair.

"A man is controlled by the mastery of aggressive impulse. A woman is passive and receptive by nature. In primitive times man was the propagator, the defender and the provider. Woman was the bearer, the receiver and the bringer-up of children. Fundamentally this has not been changed by civilization.

"This did not mean that man was the superior. It does not mean so today. There is no superior sex. Each is superior in its own sphere. But man today maintains that active, aggressive mind which he developed in the struggle for existence in primitive times.

"The primitive woman was equipped physically and psychologically to be the bearer and bringer-up of many children. Nature gave her a wonderful emotional outlet in her love for her child, which compensated for the tremendous suffering she had to undergo in the process of mating.

"Birth does not really detach the mother from the child. Psychologically they are not apart, which accounts for the proverbial mother's love. The father is pleased with the child only to the extent of the pleasure it offers him.

Man Still Aggressive

"As I said before, man still retains his aggressiveness of primitive days. He has changed only his method of displaying it. Instead of tracking game through the forest to kill and bring home as food, he fights daily for his family in his office or at his farm or in the factory. Man is essentially unchanged, so far as his mode of outlet is concerned.

"But civilization has hit woman a harder blow. Our present economic system forces her to begin actual mating late in life, and by mating in the modern sense, I mean marriage and child-bearing.

"Even when she marries well she is seldom able to have more than two or three children. This is not what nature intended when she created woman. She wanted her to have the large families of olden days—10 or 12 children.

"I can hear some feminist now saying 'So you want to turn us into breeding machines.'

"My reply is, 'Breeding machines or not, the best outlet for women is having children. If she does not have them, if she does not have several of them, she cannot lead a normal feminine life.'

"Thus modern life produces two classes of women who have become economic competitors with men. The first of these is the woman of 38 or so who may have had one child or perhaps even two, but whose children have either died or grown up and are away from her. The second is the woman who either does not marry or marries late in life.

Forced to Work

"The first type, then, becomes restless and nervous. She is blind to what she really wants and wanders about trying to do social service work or this or that other occupation, which rarely offers more than a very scant outlet.

"Then we come to the second class of women who are forced by economic necessity to go to work. I feel the greatest sympathy for them. No woman ever told the truth when she said she enjoyed single blessedness and competition in the economic struggle with men.

"Bachelor girls often come to my office to consult me. They are suffering from nerves, in spite of their business success. To be sure, they don't see the connection. They insist that they wish to be like men, but before leaving they pause in front of the mirror to powder their noses. They cannot get away from their femininity. They wish to look as well as possible in order to attract men.

"And furthermore, woman cannot compete economically with man. No woman is successful in a field where a man's dominating aggressive impulse is required. Women like Joan of Arc or Boadicea, who led armies, did so because they inspired their followers emotionally, as the' men's own mothers might have done.

"Nature intended that man and woman should never compete against each other, but that each should prove his superiority only in his or her own field. A successful woman is to be judged by her femininity. It is not by accident that our best nurses and cooks are women."

LAMESA HOST TO MOTORCADE

Moody Made Member Of West Texas Chamber

LAMESA, Texas, Aug. 6.—The West Texas motorcade under the leadership of Homer D. Wade and Andy Bourland, manager and president respectively, better than 100 strong, was greeted here at noon today by a western fashioned chicken barbecue given by the Lamesa chamber of commerce and prepared by Walter Turner of this city, and between 3000 and 4000 enthusiastic Lamesa and Dawson county citizens.

The party was joined here be Governor Moody and W. R. Ely, state highway commissioner and his son Walter Ely of Abilene.

Meeting At Cap Rock

The motorcade was met just off the Cap Rock by Mayor E. B. Warren, S. L. Forrest, president of the local chamber of commerce, Prof. V. Z. Rogers, superintendent of the city school here, and William A. Wilson, secretary of the local chamber of commerce and escorted into the city. The Simmons university band entertained the great throng at the band stand just prior to the speaking of the governor. Wilson gave the welcome to the governor and the motorcade, while Homer D. Wade, manager of the West Texas chamber and leader of the caravan, responded and acted as master of ceremonies.

Wade introduced Bourland as president of the regional organization. He spoke briefly on the agricultural possibilities of this section. Next came Judge Ely of Abilene, who spoke of the need of this country for better highways and roads. He pledged the commission's cooperation to the Dalpaso Caveran highway route over which the motorcade is travelling this year. Pink Parrish of Lubbock spoke for five minutes, pledging his support and influence as the newly elected senator for better highways in his territory.

V. Z. Rogers, superintendent of the city schools, introduced Governor Moody who spoke for 30 minutes on the progress in Texas. His address was well taken by the westeners who burst into cheers when the governor referred to Dawson county and Lamesa territory as "once a prairie of open plains, now a garden spot."

Moody Acclaimed

As the governor closed his address Miss Emily Frances Key, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Key of Lampasas, and Miss West Texas last year, presented the governor with the official badge of the motorcade. At the close of this presentation it was moved and voted unanimously that the governor be elected as an honorary member of the West Texas chamber of commerce. The governor accepted his badge and membership with his usual broad Texas smile and a polite nod of his head.

Homer D. Wade then introduced Walter Ely, son of the highway commissioner.

Borger Puzzled By Mysterious 'Jailbreak'

BORGER, Texas, Aug. 6. (UP)—The question confronting Borger citizens now is whether or not they will be forced to remodel their jail.

A. D. Nelson, local dishwasher, got drunk the other night and officers "threw him in." The next morning Nelson was missing. Presumably, he had crawled through the bars.

"HOW'S POLITICS?"

NEA New York Bureau

"How's the political situation?" was the first question asked by Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt when she landed in New York the other day after a European tour. As usual, the widow of the former president was attired in deep mourning. But quite contrary to her former custom, she consented to pose for the photographers.

POULTRY SHOW AT ARDMORE

Texas Turkey Club Meets During Exposition

ARDMORE, Okla., Aug. 6.—A record-breaking entry list of choice birds from every part of the United States for competition in the International Poultry show to be held here Aug. 14-18 in conjunction with the national convention of the American Poultry association has been compiled according to William C. Tallant, show manager. The entry list was definitely closed on Aug. 1 and final preparations for housing the birds in the buildings at fair park are in progress this week.

Definite decision of the Southwestern Turkey club, with members in all parts of Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas, to hold its annual meeting in Ardmore at the same time as the International show and the A. P. A. convention was an important development of the week. This means that several hundred turkey growers from the five states will gather here on Wednesday, Aug. 15, for annual conference.

The Southwestern Turkey club is headed by C. H. Pigg, widely known turkey expert, of Waxahachie, Texas. G. R. Warren of Denton, Texas, is the secretary. Mrs. T. A. Garrett of Richland Springs, Texas, is second vice president.

Reservations continue to pour into the chamber of commerce office for rooms during the show. Systematic handling of these applications plus arrangements for any unexpected overflow is assuring all visitors of suitable quarters.

It is roughly estimated that between 4000 and 5000 visitors from all parts of the country will be in Ardmore for the meeting which will be one of the outstanding poultry and agricultural events of 1928.

Middle Age Not Reached These Days Until Half Century Mark Is Passed

When Is Middle Age?—Folly of the Wife Who Is Jealous of Her Husband's Business Associate. The Boy and Girl Who Wish to Bury the Past and Make a Fresh Start in Marriage.

Dear Dorothy Dix—Is a person young or old at the age of 32 years? At what age is a person considered middle-aged?

MABEL W.

Answer: Certainly a man or woman is young at 32. In these times one doesn't get to be middle-aged until one is 50, or over. The greatest modern improvement is the lengthening of the span of youth. It has brought more happiness to humanity than the automobile and the radio and the orthophonic and the telephone and the trains and ships de luxe and all the other joy-giving inventions combined. For what are these compared to the pleasure of still being up and doing and in the thick of things, at an age when our grandparents had retired to the chimney corner with nothing to do but to meditate upon their latter end?

I can well remember my grandmother telling me her first child was born when she was 17 years old, and that her mother-in-law was scandalized because she refused to put a cap on over her glossy black hair and give up going to parties. It was not then considered seemly for a wife and mother to go about and enjoy herself and have any interest outside of the home. In those days a woman was middle-aged at 30 or thereabouts. If she was unmarried at 35, she was esteemed an old maid, and at 45 she was considered an old woman who was done with earthly vanities.

Imagine how that curtailed one's happiness! No wonder people died early. They had no incentive to go on living. No vital interest to keep them pepped up. Nothing to look forward to but the grave. They simply perished of dry rot.

But we have far different standards now. We regard people in their teens as mere chit of children. At 25 they are flappers and cake-eaters. At 32 they are still boys and girls. At 48 they are just beginning to get middle-aged and from then on they are as old as their arteries and their artifices.

We have laid the awful specter of calendar age, which used to keep the whole human race in terror. We have shown it up for the humbug it was, and nobody is afraid of it any more. Indeed, we have inaugurated an era of perpetual youth in which everybody dresses alike and does the same things. Instead of buying a black bombasine dress and a bonnet that ties under the chin and flat-heel shoes, grandma gets sport clothes that are exactly like granddaughter's, and you can't tell 19 from 90 by the length of the skirts.

Instead of sitting at home knitting baby socks for her great grandchildren, grandma is making a world tour, and instead of grandpa doddering over his cane as he hobbles down the street, he is out on the golf links after half a day at the office, where he makes the youngsters sprint to keep up with him in turning out work.

Why people used to waste three-fourths of their time getting old before their time, and they have quit doing it. They keep young by keeping themselves busy and interested and amused and by thinking that they are young for we all write our own age tags and we are just as old as we think we are.

And, anyway, age isn't a matter of the number of birthdays you have had. It is the way you think and feel. It is your ability to learn, your ability to alter your point of view, and so long as you can change your mind you are young. But when you get set in your ways and have fixed ideas, you are old.

There are people who are born old and who are in reality centenarians in their cradles, and there are other people who are still girls and boys when they are 90.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I have been married eight years and we have one child. Our home life has been ideal until recently, when a woman in her 30s came to work in the same office with my husband. He took a great fancy to her and was always telling me how sweet and good, how pure and innocent she was, and what a lovely smile she had, until finally it got on my nerves and I exploded and told him just what I thought of him and of her. This made him so angry that he tore the ring he had given me off my finger and struck me. Afterward he apologized and begged me to forgive him, which I did, but he still insults me if I mention her name and gets furiously angry. I have asked him to leave this place and get work somewhere else, but he refuses.

I love my husband dearly, but I feel our home is going on the rocks and my heart is filled with bitterness when I think of his insulting me for this stranger. What shall I do?

A WORRIED WIFE AND MOTHER.

Answer:

"For man is tinder and woman is tow, and somebody comes and begins to blow," and the tragedy of it is that it is so often the wife who starts the conflagration that burns down her house of happiness.

That is what you have done, my poor friend. You have taken the surest possible means of alienating your husband from you and making him fall in love with the other woman by your suspicions and your accusations and your attacks upon her.

Evidently there was nothing between your husband and this girl except a mild mutual attraction, or else he never would have told you about her. Certainly he would never have sung her praises to you if this feeling toward her had not been one of platonic admiration and if you had agreed with him that she must be a perfectly lovely young woman and asked her up to dinner on Sunday there are ninety-nine chances to one that it would all have petered out into a harmless friendship that would have been a pleasure in his life, and nothing more. Perhaps you would even have liked the young woman as well as he did if you had got to know her.

You must remember that when men and women work together day after day there is bound to be some sort of relationship established between them, and they make things either pleasant or unpleasant for each other.

Many men and women who work together in the same office find each other intelligent, interesting, stimulating. They come to have the sincerest friendship and affection for each other, based on mutual helpfulness and kindliness and generosity, but that does not mean that they are in love, or entertain any sentiment toward each other to which the most jealous husband or wife could object.

So my advice to you is to try to get this point of view, which is evidently your husband's. Apologize to him for the insult you offered him in believing that he was not capable of having a disinterested friendship with another woman. If you don't, as sure as fate you are going to drive him to her and fan his fancy for the girl into a genuine passion.

And for heaven's sake quit nagging him about giving up his politics. He is quite right to refuse to do so, because good jobs are hard to get in these days of unemployment. Besides, wherever he went there would be women in the office. The only difference would be that next time he would have sense enough not to tell you about one that he happened to think was nice.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—A young man who has had a "past" and a young woman who has also had a "past" are in love and thinking about getting married. They have confessed to each other, and they want to know if they will be happy if they marry. I am an old maid with no experience in love affairs, so I told them that I would put the question up to you.

ALIKULL.

Answer:

It seems to me a highly suitable match and that they have a much better chance of happiness than they would have if either one married some one with a spotless past. Being fellow sinners, they should know how to make allowance for temptations that were too great for weak flesh to resist. Like the woman in Barrie's play, they can say to each other "poor soul," and forgive and forget. My advice to them is to wipe the slate off and make a fresh start, and for neither one ever to mention the past again.

Pain in Right Side

May Mean Dangerous Congestion of Bile Ducts—How to Correct It

Pain, uneasiness and a sense of fullness on the right side, just underneath the lower ribs, is frequently a sign of trouble in the liver and bile ducts. Headaches, nausea, biliousness and constipation point to the same thing. If neglected, may mean gall stones.

Good health demands an active liver and a free flow of bile. You can safely rouse a sluggish liver and bring about a normal flow of bile by taking Bi-a-lin, a marvelous prescription of a noted doctor. Cleanses the liver and gall bladder of thick, sour bile and purifies the intestinal tract. Quickly ends constipation and insures regular bowel action. Contains no harmful drugs or narcotics. Easy and safe to take.

Get Bi-a-lin today and TRY it. Money back if you don't think it helps you. Ask for it at any good drug store.

CHIC CHERIE—WEDNESDAY... Cherie is going to visit Sue. So is Dina. So are Eustace and Edwin and Ernest who are unable to account for this strange cruelty on Cherie's part. But she's been having trouble with her eyes lately. She wants to rest them. Her hat, to the extreme right, is a brand new advance fall model of soleil trimmed with belting ribbon. Dina's is felt with a band of velvet for trimming. The new feature of both is their brim. Brims are back—you know that by now. But it still isn't quite usual to have a brim be a brim straightforwardly, with no apologising. That's why brims do such things and are rather likely to pull down over one's ears or curve up over one's eyes.

Cherie is a superb dishwasher. We have her word for it. She makes it a decorative pastime, helped by her sleeveless dress of pastel blue shantung. Dina's house dress is of voile with embroidery and smocking in red and blue. Sue, herself, wears a practical dress of printed sateen cut princess fashion and trimmed with bands of plain colored sateen. She believes in color in the kitchen and starts with her own frocks. It may be a little extreme, but we have known her to change a red print for a yellow one before mixing cake in a yellow earthenware mixing bowl. That was in the days before she was completely organized. Now with all her kitchenware green, she prefers flower prints.

FAITH in man is not dead. Sunday a man walked into the office of the Times-Record News, and asked the operator at the switch board for 30 cents with which to buy his mother milk and bread. The girl asked him to repeat, giving the request time to seep in. The man raised it 10 cents on her, asking on second thought, for 40 cents. The girl handed over 50 cents, firm in the belief that he will return it. And I hope he does.

AND THEN, if there is any doubt that summer is waning, there comes the fact that vacationists are returning from months spent among hills and along the seashore. I wonder if residents of Wichita Falls by writing of the cool weather of the last few weeks, have managed to get these vacationists back early? Indications are that the cool weather is at a temporary end. Hope it returns. I could use more of it while I sit here and listen to accounts of interesting vacations.

And this extremely hot weather is causing people in this state to do such unnecessary things. It takes nerve these last few days to pick up a paper. Columns are full of mishaps that should never have happened.

THE hard-boiled flapper who came into prominence 10 years ago is really dying. She has almost passed away and the people that aided her in making her departure are dressmakers. For the flapper was causing the dressmaking trade considerable grief with her short skirts and abbreviated wardrobe.

Now, according to the dressmakers, we'll have the sweet feminine thing who exchanges the study of gin with a study of the appropriate and appealing thing in dress. The perfect lady who will occupy the throne soon to be vacated by the flapper will be a throwback from the late Victorian period. She will wear, if these same dressmakers are successful, clothes of exquisite daintiness and fashioned along strictly feminine lines.

More expensive, too, I'll bet. There is no use getting into a heated argument during this kind of weather, but we don't take all this talk so seriously. The world has grown a little tired of the flapper, and is asking to be served with femininity that is feminine. And clothes must be fashioned to match. This corner is sold on the idea that the age and public opinion create fashions, and that dressmakers like the rest of us, are mere ministers to human demand.

STARS SET OWN STYLE PAGES

Day of Style Dictators Past, Says Creator

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Aug. 6. (UP)—There was a time, years ago, when Billie Burke's clothes were the last word in fashion and when Irene Castle's walk was mimicked by stenographers from coast to coast.

That was in the day of style dictators and when Paris decreed what Hollywood should wear.

But that was years ago.

"Today there is no fashion dictator on the screen," according to Max Rea, First National style creator.

"It is an age of individuality, of types, and there is none who may say what all shall wear.

"Even though 9 out of 10 girls on Hollywood boulevard do roll their socks down to the ankles this summer, each one contrives an individual twist to the vogue.

"Ambiguous as it may sound," Rea said, "while many girls copied the Colleen Moore bob, they suited it to their individualities, modifying it, if need be, in order to retain their own smartness.

"The same is true about other ideas. The styles of the past two seasons have been simple, almost uniform in line and the little felts have a severity that is disillusioning when they are seen in shop windows, but the charm of them all lies in the fact that no two girls wear their things alike.

"When the first cave woman threw a tiger skin over her left shoulder instead of her right shoulder, she was expressing a new thought and women from that time on have been fighting against the decrees of dictators.

"Now Hollywood has come nearest of all times to reaching the era of freedom of thought in matters of dress."

"There is no doubt," Rea continued, "about Hollywood setting the style pace, but no dominant figure sways the mode at all times."

Snow Is Reported 10 Ft. Deep in West

No Tie-up in Traffic—Trains Running on Schedule

While Texas and Louisiana swelter in torrid heat, consoled only by the fact that "it's good for the cotton," deep snow is reported in the West. Observers say that in some places in the mountains of Colorado it is from ten to a hundred feet deep. However, this is snow that fell last winter and simply failed to melt in the high altitude of mountain peaks and on high sheltered slopes above timberline.

The trains are running without interruption over the Fort Worth & Denver Road, carrying hundreds of happy vacationists to cool Colorado to play in the perpetual snows of the peaks; to fish in tumbling streams; to ride and hike and play golf in the high, dry, sunny climate that is always cool. Passenger officials of the Denver Road say that the low summer rates are attracting increased rail traffic this season.—A.P.

1927 BUSINESS ON HIGH LEVEL

Efficiency in Industry And Trade Reflected

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6. (UP)—American business in 1927 was "on a very high level, continuing the prosperity which has been characteristic of every year since 1921 and which reflects the steadily increasing efficiency of both industry and trade," the commerce department year book for 1928 said today.

Toward the close of 1927 there was a recession in activity in some lines, but this has been recovered in part during the early months of this year, the survey said.

"Manufacturing output, the best measure of general economic activity was less by only an insignificant margin than the record attained in 1926," the survey said. "The somewhat more marked decline in railroad traffic was chiefly due to the abnormally large shipments of coal in 1926, the traffic of 1927 exceeding that in any other preceding year.

Big Crop Production

"Mineral output fully equalled the record volume of 1926, and crop production was larger than in any other recent year. In quantitative volume export trade was considerably larger than in other postwar years owing primarily to the continued growth of exports of manufactured goods, but the decided decline in average export prices, especially of certain raw staples, left the value somewhat below that of 1925, the peak fixure figure of recent years."

Comparatively little quantitative change was noted in the nation's import trade, the survey explained but there was a material decline in prices of imported goods, including such major items as silk and rubber.

Prices Decline

"Wholesale prices continued to decline during the first part of 1927 and the average for the year as a whole reached about the same low level as in 1921. Prices of farm products in central markets, however, advanced during the course of the year and at its close their purchasing power in terms of other commodities was higher than at any other time since January, 1920.

"The cost of living declined 2 per cent during 1927, the decline in retail food prices reaching 4 per cent, and in those of housing, fuel and lighting about 3 per cent. Retail trade showed some expansion as compared with the preceding year."

Manufacturing production in 1927 was said to be the greatest ever attained, with the exception of 1926, being 44 per cent larger than in 1921. Building construction during the year was extremely active and mineral production continued on a high level, equalling the record volume of 1926, and exceeding the figure for 1921 by 47 per cent.

Major production increases reported were petroleum 17.2 per cent, silk (mill consumption) 12.2, cotton (mill consumption) 11.3, gasoline 10.8, gas and fuel oil 7.4, and rubber tire casings 5.1.

Decreases in output were noted in locomotives, 33.6 per cent; freight cars 20.6, coke 10.4, bituminous coal 9.3 pig iron 7.1 and motor trucks and busses 7.1.

The survey said there was a continued growth in volume in 1927 of nearly all kinds of financial transactions.

Engineman Fails To Avert Disaster When Huge Iron Pipe Wrecks Train

Freight Engineer Races Limited to Big Obstruction On Rails; Nine Killed, 200 Injured

MOUNDS, Ill., Aug. 6. (US)—Interstate commerce commission inspectors and Illinois Central officials are today investigating the cause of the Illinois Central wreck here in an effort to establish responsibility for the disaster.

Work of clearing tracks of debris and wreckage and the replacing of rails and ties has been virtually completed.

Shortly after dawn today the crack Chicago-New Orleans limited of the Illinois Central derailed and crished into train No. 16, the Chickasaw, north-bound from Memphis.

A cast iron sewer pipe two feet in diameter and approximately 20 feet long is said to have fallen from a north-bound frieght across the tracks directly in front of the speeding Chickasaw. The train struck the pipe and hurled it upon the south-bound rails.

Realizing the instant peril awaiting the Chicago-New Orleans limited just then due, Engineer Able of the Chickasaw, threw his air brakes into emergency, stopped his train and ran to remove the pipe.

He was a fraction of a second too late. The onrushing New Orleans limited plowed into the pipe, sprung rails and hurled itself into the side of the stalled Chickasaw, smashing wood and steel.

Doctors and nurses dispatched by special train to the scene of the disaster established an improvised hospital where more than 200 passengers were treated for shock, more than a score were given first aid for serious injuries and rushed to hospitals. Nine were killed. Passengers who were able to continue their journeys were dispatched to their destinations by special trains.

Windmill Tower For Air Beacon

The 60-foot windmill tower, ordered by the Wichita Falls municipal airport, probably will be ready to receive the big beacon light at Kell field in another week, it was said Monday by C. W. Cahoon, Jr. The tower was ordered from the Bailey-Moline Hardware company.

Mr. Cahoon also called attention to the cost of the hangar at Kell field as compared to the cost of the hangar at Meacham field, the Fort Worth municipal airport. While the Meacham hangar is twice as large as the Wichita Falls hangar, it cost $52,000 including the administration building. The hangar here and the administration building cost $10,000.

The local hangar has been acclaimed as one of the finest in the south, and it is capable of caring for th elargest commercial ships of the day.

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 6. (UP)—An easy method of making preliminary road surveys in the hill country about Kerrville has been adopted by the state highway department.

The work is being done from the air with cameras.

So rapid is the progress being made that it is expected the surveys will be completed in a month.

Ordinarily six months would be required.

The highest inhabited place in the world is the Buddhist monastery of Ilaine, in Thibet; it is 17,000 feet above sea level.

BOARD MOVES HOSPITAL FUND

Abilene Deposits Changed At Moody's Request

AUSTIN, Aug. 6. (AP)—The state board of control requested Supt. T. B. Bass of the Abilene State hospital today to remove hospital funds, estimated between $6,000 and $9,000, from the Citizens State bank of Abilene to some bank other than the one from which the money was withdrawn some months ago.

George Paxton, father-in-law of Governor Moody, is identified with the Citizens bank. Chairman R. B. Walthall of the control board said the resolution, which was offered by Dr. H. H. Harrington, member, was adopted at request of the governor.

Roy I. Tennant, other member, claimed the transfer of funds to the Citizens bank was made by J. C. Hollinger, storekeeper and accountant at the hospital, last fall, on written request of Harrington, then chairman of the board, and that Superintendent Bass did not know of it at the time. Chairman Walthall said Governor Moody did not know of the matter until very recently.

The board adopted unanimously a resolution by Tennant that hereafter "no superintendent or storekeeper of any institution administered by this board, and that no member of the board of control shall transfer an account from one bank to another until the matter has been brought to the attention of the board of control."

The board also adopted Dr. Harrington's resolution that the "secretary be instructed to notify the superintendents of all institutions that there shall be some retation of bank funds from one bank to another, subject to their discretion where equal safety can be had, and that state banks be given preference as depositories for these funds."

The short course this summer was the best that has ever been held at the school, with more than 5,000 persons attending the farm lectures and demonstrations last week, Mr. Oates said.

Other Wichita Falls persons to attend the course last week were O. K. Barnes, G. C. McGowan, Miss Ethel Webb and S. E. Johnson.

WILLING CORPSE

Convict Hides in Grave Outside of Prison In Escape Attempt

PUTNAMVILLE, Ind., Aug. 6. (US)—Having himself buried in a shallow grave while working in a shale pit outside prison walls, an enterprising prisoner at the Indiana state farm almost made good his escape here today.

An alert guard, however, missed the prisoner at roll call and on a hunch returned to the pit where he located the fresh "corpse" and yanked him from his grave.

The prisoner was in a grave about 18 inches deep with a rock so arranged over his head that he could breathe through crevices.

JURY VOTES SIX TRUE BILLS

Adournment Voted Without Report

The Wichita county special grand jury adjourned Monday afternoon, subject to recall, without having returned further reports concerning Ed Pryor or Tom Shook, constable, officers of Electra, and without making a report to Judge W. W. Cook of the 78th district court, at whose call they were convened. The body returned six indictments, two charging statutory offenses, two charging forgery and two liquor violations.

John Grant and Cora Anderson, negroes, were indicted on a statutory charge on evidence presented by Gage McDermett and Dick Kenley, assistant district attorneys, following investigation into accusations made by two 16-year-old negro girls. Both men were arrested and placed in the county jail Monday.

Lawrence Caley and Bill Cook, out on bond of $1000 each, were indicted on charges of possession and transportion of intoxicating liquors.

The grand jury had been convened by Judge Cook at the request of Ben F. Allred, district attorney, and Fred Weeks, special prosecutor, for consideration of further evidence against the two former Electra peace officers. Mr. Weeks was retained by citizens of Electra to aid in the prosecution of charges previously returned against Shook and Pryor.

GUSHER OPENS PERMIAN WEEK

Wentz Opens New Pool In Stephens County

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, Aug. 6.—Flowing at the rate of 60,000 barrels a day, yet to be completed, Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental's No. 2-H Yates, in Pecos county, started off the week in the Permian basin of West Texas with a rush. The well is shut down for orders at 1735 feet, topping the big pay at 1730, when it started making 2500 barrels an hour. It is 1337 feet from the north line and 1600 feet from the east line of section 32, block 194. It shows every evidence of being the greatest of the Yates wells, as it is yet incompleted.

Another step was started the first of the week by the two companies, jointly, which may make the Yates pool all the more remarkable. The discovery producer, No 1-A Yates, in section 34 1-2, was deepened from 1032 feet, where it has been doing around 500 barrels a day, to 1075 feet and in an hour and a half, through three four-inch lines, flowed 1090 barrels of oil. The companies are rigging up to deepen No. 4-A Yates. Practically all of their old wells are expected to be deepened because of this find, and none of them has been completed, the top of the pay being barely hit.

New Stephens Pool

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, Aug. 6.—Southwest Stephens county's newest oil pool was opened Sunday by the Wentz Oil corporation on the Ross Elliott lease, 18 miles from Breckenridge.

The well is credited with being good for 100 barrels daily, 40 gravity oil, and is only a few feet in the sand. The total depth of the hole is 3404 feet. H. D. Eggers, Texas manager for the company, was on the lease late Monday, where he was having erected eight 200-barrel tanks and the Humble is preparing to connect up with a pipe line.

The well is about midway between the Ibex and Moody pools. Each of which is about four miles distant. The company has a block of some 4000 acres.

Valley View Votes On School Change

Residents of the Valley View community will go to the polls Tuesday, either approving or vetoing a measure which would transfer the school from a common school to an independent school district. The polls will be open from 8 a. m. to 7 p. m. at the school building.

Purpose of the proposed transfer, according to Burl Bryant, county school superintendent, is to enable the school to increase valuation on its property should such action be deemed necessary at a future date. As a common school the valuation can only be increased through recourse to a special law, it was stated.

Her MAIL-ORDER husband!

Read in September TRUE STORY the fascinating story of this girl who believed that marriage should be a business proposition—and made it so.

All the marriages she knew of seemed to prove that love was blind—so to get her husband she mailed a coupon! Let experts recommend him!—as bankers recommend a bond.

Only this would be a marriage bond. Not an adventure, but an enterprise. A merger of souls, not a union.

And so she found herself traveling—a little frightened now—a thousand dreary miles to meet and marry "Mark Stevenson, age 35. Generous, good-tempered, affectionate, handsome. Plantation owner."

Idly she visioned the quiet luxury and culture of life in the Old South, in the picturesque foothills or Arkansas. These she understood were largely owned by Mr. Stevenson.

Then came an hour that was like a fantastic dream. Could this be Stevenson, the handsome plantation owner, this lean, taciturn stranger she had wed in the dim light of the parsonage? Was this his carriage and pair, this creaky old buck-board?

Mile after mile she clung to the seat at his side, in an agony of tears and mortification. Surely this was some cruel pretense, to test her resolution!... Or had she, too, been merely advertised for and bought? ... On and on they jolted and creaked—the business girl and her coupon husband! Well, she would see it through until tomorrow, until—

But you will want to read for yourself this amazing, true story as Virginia herself tells it—complete in September TRUE STORY—out today! By what a miracle this mail-order marriage became a tremendous adventure! The situation that followed—more amazing than the wedding. The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The use of the little peg tees on golf courses has now become so common that some of the clubs around New York have stopped supplying sand. One would think that swank would not show up in connection with these utili-tarian tees, but I played golf recently with a dandy who had celluloid ones with his initials on them. I didn't care about that, but he wasted all sorts of time after every drive looking for his monogrammed golf ball elevators. Sometimes he drove the tee further than he did the ball. This, I call, about the ultimate limit in fastidiousness.

Because of the nature of this story the characters playing the principal parts in it must be nameless, but it is sufficient to say that one is a well known artist and the other a great inventor who happened to be living together in a suite in a fashionable foreign hotel several years ago. Just at that time, the inventor was having some difficulties with his wife which have since been aggravated into a divorce, and he has married again.

There were several doors leading into the suite from the main corridor, but there was one principal entrance which opened into a small hall. The inventor was entertaining in the drawing room one afternoon a beautiful Marquise when the artist entered and met her for the first time. It was evident the lady and the inventor desired to be alone so after a couple of minutes conversation, the artist prepared to depart. As he was leaving the room, there came a knock at the door of the main entrance to the suite, and the inventor, evidently suspicious, signalled the artist if the caller were for him, he was not in. Opening the door, the artist found facing him a fashionably dressed lady who inquired for the inventor.

"I'm not sure he is in," replied the artist, recalling the last restraining gesture. "If you will wait just a minute, I will see."

Entering the drawing room, he found the Marquise alone and returned to explain that the inventor was absent when the latter came swinging down the hall with his hat, gloves and stick as if he had just arrived from a stroll on the streets. He had secretly exited from one of the other doors.

"Why Laura!" he greeted the lady as he kissed her on both cheeks. "So glad to see you. Won't you come in?" The lady was his wife.

All three went into the drawing room where the Marquise still remained. Turning to his friend, the inventor, calling the artist by his first name, said,

"Won't you please present me?"

The artist made the introduction which the Marquise acknowledged. Then she turned to the artist and said:

"We must be going now, Ben. We have no time to waste if we are to be on time for tea."

The artist getting his cue found his hat and stick and departed with her as if they were old friends instead of only acquaintances of a few minutes. The inventor was left alone with his wife.

"We had a beautiful dinner together," concludes the artist in telling the story, "and then the theater and a night club. She was charming, and we got to be good friends. And would you believe it, when I returned, my friend was very much aggravated at me instead of being grateful for taking her off his hands in a moment of emergency?"

It is a story worthy of a scene in a play-and perhaps will be yet.

During the recent hot spell in New York, I ran across a corpulent man strolling the streets with the sun streaming down on his hatless head, but with a cane and a book. He looked conspicious, even in New York.

SIGNS

I like to ride along and see
The countryside, with grass and trees—
See God's own endless beauteous plan—
Degree of art unreached by man;
But nature, and its symmetry
To me is blasted when I see
A filling-bank, or woodland shrine,
Obliterated by a sign.

Oh, when I drive in search of rest,
What harms and woes depress my breast!
I want to see the birds and trees,
The flowers, grass, and honey bees;
I do not care to think and fret,
About the saddest cigarette,
Or of my tires, or oil, or gas,
Or other things on signs I pass.

Had I the nerve, I'd tear them down,
And put them up again—in town!

Fire House Ethics

THE FIREMEN of a certain station in Worchester, Mass., are having a terrible time because one of their number broke off an engagement to marry a Worchester girl.

Not that the firemen are prone to worry about affairs of the heart. They have, one may assume, the typical fire department airiness in that matter. But the jilted young lady is revenging herself on her sweetheart, and doing it in a way to disturb all of his buddies as well.

Every night, during the small hours, she turns in a false alarm to disturb the one-time sweetie's slumbers. Night after night the engines go rolling out, with sleepy firemen clinging on, on a futile errand. The calls can't be traced and the young woman can't be found: but every fireman in the place is convinced that he knows what is wrong.

It is a fiendish scheme. One can imagine that the Worchester firemen are ardently praying for a reconciliation.

Lapwings Come Over

OUR AVIATORS have done quite well in conquering the Atlantic but we needn't think yet that we are ready to outclass the birds.

The little lapwing is an English bird, unknown in this country up to this time. But now lapwing will flourish in America, too. Why? Well, not long ago two large flocks of lapwings flew all the way across the ocean, landing in Newfoundland. There were nearly 500 in the first flock; 24 hours later a thousand more came winging in over the ocean.

The birds accomplished this feat in the difficult east-west direction, too. If a lonely airplane soaring over the empty waters a thousand miles from land is an appealing sight, what shall we say of these little birds, flying courageously on tired wings from England to America?

Ford's Responsibility

HENRY FORD has always been a man with original ideas.

He put into effect a $5-a-day minimum pay scale at a time when that was a princely wage. He followed that up by announcing that the way to make money was to pay as high wages as possible and sell as cheaply as possible, thus reversing two old maxims of the business world. Then he adopted the five-day week.

Now he says that the money he made by selling 15,000,000 Model T Fords wasn't really his money at all but belonged to the public. He didn't lose money when he stopped production to develop a new model, he said; he simply reinvested a surplus of funds that he had been holding in trust.

"The profits we made on our Model T cars wasn't our money," he remarks. "The public paid it to us. Organized as this company is, we couldn't do anything with it except use it to make a better automobile."

It is interesting to ponder on the weight which success and great wealth give to a man's words. Suppose some down-at-the-heels agitator, or long-haired scribbler, had propounded this theory. He would have been hooted from one end of the country to another. But Henry Ford, who is worth one billion in cash and has two or three hundred thousand men working for him, says it—and nobody hoots at all. Many question his statement, of course; but they do it deferentially, respectfully.

In that respect, more than in any other, Ford has a tremendous responsibility. Beside it the responsibility that comes from the mere ownership of vast wealth shrinks to nothing. Ford's ideas—ideas that find expression in such remarks as those quoted above—are bound to have a greater influence than he can dream. For millions of men in this country accept them as gospel. Ford is the greatest industrialist of our time; is it to be wondered that when he talks about things in his own field, people take everything he says as true?

It is entirely possible that Henry Ford will eventually cause a realignment of our entire business and economic structure. Not only has he set an example; he has talked, and the magic of his name has gained a hearing for his words that no other man can get. His theorizings will be remembered long after he is gone. It may even be that some day his statements will be battle cries for the world's radicals.

That is the real significance of Ford. Actions may speak louder than words; yet, in this case, it would seem that what Ford says can have even more importance than what he does.

BUSINESS BET MISSED

If the business men, bankers, chamber of commerce, Lions club and other civic organizations and individuals will get behind the dairy movement they will find that they and the city will prosper as a result. This can be shown by a comparison of the city of Chillicothe and the city of Turkey Texas.

Chillicothe has one cream station. It has about 30 customers, each selling in small amounts the surplus from the family dairy herd. This is the Beatrice Creamery station, located just north of the Denver tracks. The cream station buys about 10 cans per week, most of the cream coming in on Saturday. About $75 per week is paid to the 30 farmers for their cream. This amounts to about $4,000 per year.

CIVIC CLUBS AID CLEANUP

The Rotary and Lions clubs of Childress in the past week or so have given serious thought to the subject with reference to garbage disposal.

No other subject could be of more importance.

Health, civic pride, attraction for a new residence, property values, comfort, all are involved in this matter of cleaning up our city. It has as its goal an ideal which we must ever keep before us—one we can never attain but toward which we can strive with ceaseless effort.

A clean city should make itself known to the world. It means more satisfied residents, less sickness.

RECENT CAMPAIGN CLEAN

Tillman county Democrats should rejoice in the fact that their primary race has been conducted without a display of mudthrowing. There are several lively races in the local contest, but in none of them, so far as The Leader has heard, has there been a sufficient amount of charges and countercharges to disturb the placidity of the surface.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service — by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Virginia Brewster is in love with an artist, Nathaniel Dann, but she is tricked into promising to marry Frederick Dean in one year if she fails to earn $100,000 that he alleges her father cheated him out of. Brewster had lost his fortune before his death and Virginia is left destitute.

She pawns some of her jewelry and Oliver Cutter promises to invest the money for her. She seeks work without success. She discovers that she is being shadowed and suspects that Dean has bribed the agencies not to help her.

Oliver gains her confidence and shows her attentions which Niel resents, but then she does not like the familiarity with which his model, Chirl, treats him.

Virginia is lucky enough to obtain a position which she likes. In the early autumn she is amazed when charged by Cutter's wife with trying to alienate his affections.

She appeals to Oliver to explain, and demands an accounting of her investments. Then he confesses that he has not made a penny for her, but that he will give her the money if she will go away with him. She denounces his knavery and leaves his office.

Her company offers to send her on a six weeks' cruise as ship hostess, but before giving her answer she goes to see Niel. His model greets her at the studio with such an air of proprietorship that Virginia is angered.

Meanwhile, Dean has written Niel of Mrs. Cutter's charges and when he asks for an explanation, Virginia lets him think that her love for him is cooling.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER XLI

Virginia could see Nathaniel's point of view easily enough, but it did not suit her purpose to admit that she could. Had it not been the source of her greatest fear? The fear that Frederick Dean would communicate with him as he had with Jeanie Cutter?

And didn't she realize that any lover, no matter how trustful, would be sunk in suspicion when he learned of his sweetheart's meetings with another man under the conditions that she had been meeting Oliver?

Virginia forgave Nathaniel his brief period of doubt. But it was a great pity that he did not know she had forgiven him, because he was in a wretched state of suspense over the outcome of the whole miserable business.

"I suppose it did look bad," she said haughtily; "but I think you might have found out why I did it before jumping to conclusions about it."

That hurt him, she could see, but she went on mercilessly. "You'd have tried to stop it if I'd told you; you know you would, I didn't want to quarrel with you."

"I can't see why you had to meet him after office hours to transact business," Nathaniel return stubbornly.

"How could I meet him during office hours? You know I am not at liberty to leave my work whenever I like."

"You left it yesterday."

"Because Mr. Dean had written Mrs. Cutter. She took the stand that I was trying to lure Oliver away from her. We had to settle everything without delay."

"Then you're through with him?" he pressed eagerly.

Virginia hesitated. "Oh, I don't know," she said thoughtfully. "Perhaps we can manage by seeing each other at noon. That is if Jeanie doesn't object."

Nathaniel took note of the fact that she utterly disregarded his objections. He felt he counted very little with her. And while he might storm against her association with Oliver he found no words to tax her with her seeming indifference to himself. It was a deep wound, one that only her voluntarily-offered affection could heal. Nathaniel could not beg for love, knowing that it was not within anyone's power to bestow it upon request.

A few months ago he would not have believed that Virginia could change so, but his mind was too sound to ignore facts. An ostrich might stick its head in the sand on faith but Nathaniel could not.

Virginia had not kept her promise given shortly after her father's death to set their wedding date. He had thought they would be married within a month or two at the most. Then had come her surprising demand for the right to self-expression, to be followed by weeks of what he now believed was reluctance to become his wife.

And because he was, as Chirl said, a poor pipsqueak as far as money was concerned, Virginia had played along safe, waiting to make certain that love had fled before she finally quit him.

For a moment Nathaniel despised her.

But someone has said that the dividing line between love and hate is a very fine one. Nathaniel discovered, to his dismay, that the two seemed to have no division at all in his heart, because he knew himself to be not one whit less in love with this girl now than ever.

It was love that tortured. There was no longer any happiness in it, because it hurt his pride. But he could not help it.

In the weeks that followed, before the sailing date of the Agena, Virginia suffered the belief that she had accomplished her purpose. Nathaniel seemed not to care any more.

Well, that was what she had wanted . . . victory for Frederick Dean seemed assured. He emphasized it with a constant stream of reminders. Flowers, theater tickets, books, lovely things to wear, even jewels. Virginia accepted nothing.

She would have given up in despair but for one ray of hope that remained to her.

The name she had heard on Stacy Blaine's lips—the name of a man people called "Oddly"—nagged at an elusive memory until Virginia was driven nearly frantic to recall where she had first heard it, and why it impressed her.

It was one night when she lay awake, telling herself that success, if it came to her now, could only be bitter because Niel's love seemed gone beyond recall, when the name of O. D. D. Leigh sprang suddenly into her mental vision from a written page.

Her father's diary!

Since his death she had not dared the heartbreak of reading it as he had once told her he wished her to do when he was no longer with her.

Parts of it he had read to her; other parts he had asked her to read to him. These pages generally concerned her mother. She could picture her father in a chair drawn up to the fire in the library drinking in the beauty of her mother's portrait that hung over the mantel, while Virginia read, and learned of a great love.

At other times he had asked her to read excerpts from his record of the years he had spent in wandering after his wife's death.

It all came back to Virginia vividly, once her memory was started aright. Her father had known Leigh. Reckless, adventurous daredevil Leigh. "Oddly," he had called him.

Virginia sprang out of bed and turned on a light. In a moment she was back, her father's diary in her hands, hastily turning the pages.

There it was! In India. " . . . met a fine fellow . . . likes a good fight . . . doesn't know what fear is . . . owe him my life . . . tiger hunting . . . sent me spinning out of the beast's path and put bullet into its brain as neatly as he takes his liquor . . . going to the West Indies to settle down . . . sugar raising . . . sounds a bit tame for old Oddly but he says there's a real scrap to be had with the sugar people . . . want to give him a leg up . . . bad luck with money."

A few pages farther on Virginia found more about Leigh. ". . . had to use a lot of persuasion . . . could only get him to take $25,000 and that on condition that I'd be part owner of his sugar lands. He sails tomorrow . . . good luck, old man."

And after that, much later. ". . . Leigh's bad luck hangs on, poor devil . . . had a letter from him . . . still bucking the trust . . . wants to know if he should sell out . . . not for my sake, old man . . . I'll see you through. Well, I wouldn't spoil your fight to get out a hundred times the amount I'm in it."

Virginia put down the book. "Good for you, dad," she said softly. "We don't quit, do we?"

It seemed to her that her father had spoken to her through his diary. "Perhaps he knew I'd need a pat on the back some day," she said to herself.

She read through to the end. Now and then there was mention of Leigh. Nothing new. The big sugar people still after his Haiti plantations. Leigh still holding out. . . . "It doesn't matter whether he wins or loses, it's the fun he gets out of a fight that keeps him at it . . ." her father had written near the end.

"Haiti," Virginia whispered. "Haiti. That's one of the islands on the Agena's cruise! I wonder if 'Ole-Oddly' is still there?"

From that thought grew the idea of getting help from the man her father once had aided. "If he's able to, he will do it," she assured herself.

"Still holding out." That line in the diary impressed her. There must be something to hold out for, she reasoned hopefully.

The morning after her perusal of the diary she telephoned to Mr. Gardiner to ask if there was any record of a business transaction between her father and a man named O. D. D. Leigh.

She surmised that "Oddly" Leigh would insist upon repaying the loan her father had made in gratitude when he sold the plantations. The diary had closed some few weeks previous to her father's death. Perhaps the sale had been made in that time.

Virginia did not believe so but she wanted to find out if possible. She remembered that Mr. Gardiner had spoken of the money her father had obtained on the estate at Glen Cove. He had not mentioned a sum of $25,000, as he might have done if it had come to the estate so recently.

Besides, if her father had received it, Virginia thought, it would have gone to Frederick Dean; and he had not acknowledged receiving any part of the money he claimed her father had cheated him of.

Mr. Gardiner replied by letter after looking into the matter and informed Virginia that there was no record of the Brewster estate containing the name of Leigh. Virginia breathed a sigh of thankfulness. She regretted, however, that Stacy was away on his ship. She wanted to ask for more information concerning "Oddly" Leigh, particularly regarding the bad news that Stacy had spoken of in connection with him.

She had no idea in which part of Haiti his plantations were located, or how to reach him by mail. Stacy had said that he was a well-known character, however, so she set herself to making inquiries at every likely source of information. Among the few men on the Capella liners whom she knew there was one who gave her the information she wanted not long before the Agena sailed. Leigh owned a goodly sized plantation just outside of Port au Prince, she learned.

"You can drive out in one of those coaches as they call their horse cabs. It's a great sight if you go on market day. An endless chain of natives to and out of the city. You'll find Mr. Leigh a great fellow, too."

The Fable of Why Sweetie Flew the Track

By GEORGE ADE

Once there were two Married People who used "Lovey" and "Pet" when they were in Company, and as soon as they were at Home they went to the Mat.

She used to watch him through a hole in the Curtain to see if he Flirted with any Women as he walked up the Street, and he bribed the Hired Girl to tell him Everything that happened while he was off the Reservation.

They did not Mocha and Java worth a Cent.

The Cardboard Motto in the Dining Room said, "Love one Another," but they were too Busy to Read.

He had a Clearing on the top of his Head and bore a general Resemblance to the Before in an ad for a Facial Treatment, and yet she suspected that all the Women in Town were Crazy to steal him away from her.

Likewise, inasmuch as she was the same Width all the way up and down, the same as a Poster Girl, and used to sport a Velvet Shroud with Black Beads on it, and could wield a Toothpick and carry on a conversation at the same time, he knew that sooner or later some Handsome Wretch with Money would try to Abduct her.

Sometimes he would bring a Friend Home to Dinner, and then if the Friend extended himself and told the Missis how well she was looking or perjured himself over her Hand-Painting, Papa Would get a Grouch and hide in Corner.

Then she would Fan herself rapidly and ask, "Aren't you well, Dear?"

Dear would force one of those Dying Martyr Smiles and reply, "I'm quite well, Puss."

Then Puss would tell the Visitor that Baby was simply ruining his Health through Devotion to his Employers, but they didn't seem to Appreciate him at all.

After the Visitor went away there would be Language all over the Shop, and the poor Hired Girl would lock the Door and write to the Intelligence Office for a new Place.

Truly, it was a Happy Little Home, with the Reverse English.

She would Frisk his Wardrobe every day or two, looking for Evidence, and he would compel her to Remise her Accounts so that he might be sure she was not giving Jewelry to the Iceman.

She would find a certain Passage in a Book relating to Man's Cruelty and Woman's Silent Suffering, and then she would Mark the Passage and put it where he could Find it.

Then when he Found it, he would Mark it "Rot!" and put it where she could find it, and then she would weep and write Letters to Lady Authors telling them how Sad and Lonely she was.

But all the time They kept up an Affectionate Front before their Acquaintances. They thought it better to avoid Scenes in Public; and although each knew that the other was False and had ceased to Love, they could not bring themselves to think of a Separation or a Divorce on account of the Cat—their Cat. The Cat must never know.

However, one of his Business Associates was On. He was a Bachelor and had lived at a European Hotel for Years, and he knew just how to Arbitrate a Domestic Scrap.

So he sat down one day and gave the Husband a Good Talking-To. He said it was a Shame that such Nice People should have their Differences when it was so easy to be Happy.

With that he handed over a Slew of Platitudes and Proverbs, such as: "A Soft Answer Turneth Away Wrath," "It Takes Two to Make a Quarrel," "Think Twice Before You Speak Once," et cetera.

The Gist of his Heart-to-heart Talk was that any Husband could stop Rough House Proceedings and shoot all kinds of Sweetness and Light into the sauciest Mooch a Wife ever got on to herself, if only he would refuse to Quarrel with her, receive her Flings without a show of Wrath, and get up every Morning ready to Plug for a Renaissance of their Early Love.

Oh, but it was a Beauty Bright System! The European Hotel Bachelor said it couldn't Lose.

The Husband decided to give it a Trial. That very Afternoon he met his Wife, who had come out in her long Fawn-Colored Coat that fell straight in the Back. She had her Upper Rigging set and was trying to Blanket everything on the street. He flashed a Smiling Countenance, and said he was glad to see her.

Then, instead of asking her When she left the House, and Where she had been since then, and How Soon she expected to go Home again, he told her she was looking Unusually Charming. She was Startled.

He Handed her a Ten and told her to have a good Time. Now, usually, when she wanted any Pin Money, she had to Pry it out of Him.

On her way home her Mind was in a Tumult. Why had he given her the Con Speech and all that Money? What was the Ulterior Motive? What had he been doing that he should Attempt to Coodle her into a Foregiving Mood? Did he Fear that she would get next to his Past? Huh?

He just couldn't Fool her. She knew Something was Stirring. Else why should he try to Fix her?

As Soon as he came Home that Evening she Accused him and said she knew All. Instead of Countering with the usual Gibe, he told her that she was the Only Woman he had ever Loved and would she go to a show that Evening?

She went, thinking that perhaps the Other Woman might be there and she could detect some Signal passing between them.

While at the Theater he fanned her and explained the Plot, and was all Attention.

After they were at Home he asked her to sing the Song he had liked to such in the old Days, "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean." This was Conclusive Proof to her that the Hussy's Name was Bonnie.

Next Morning before he started away he Kissed her, and it wasn't any Make-Believe, such as you see in Comic Opera. It was a genuine Nasimova Buss, full of Linger and Adhesian. To cap the Climax he said he would stop in and order some Violets.

As soon as the Door slammed she Staggered toward the Kitchen, holding on to the Furniture here and there.

In the Kitchen was a Box of Rough on Rats. Hastily Concealing it beneath the loose Folds of her Morning Gown, she went to her Room and looked in the Mirrow.

Ah, when he saw that Cold White Face, then he would be Sorry. Upon Second Thought, this didn't seem to be a Moral Certainty, so she Weakened and had the Girl take the poison and Ride it. She said she would Live—Live to forget his Perfidy.

That day she went back to Mamma, and took the Cat with her.

When he came home in the Twilight he found no Wife, no Cat—only a Scribbled Note saying that he could no longer Deceive her; that she had seen through his Diabolical Plan to Lull her Suspicions, and that she was no longer Safe in the Same House.

When the Deserted Husband went to the Friend and told him what had Happened, the Wise Bachelor said:

"I see. You did not go at her Strong enough."

Moral: They don't know Anything About It.

Brookhart Irked At George Peek

DES MOINES, Iowa, Aug. 6. (AP)—Declaring himself in full accord with Herbert Hoover and condemning George N. Peek, of Moline, Ill., chairman of the committee of 22, for supporting the candidacy of Governor Alfred E. Smith, United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa today sent an open letter to John E. Brenner of Mapleton, Iowa, in answer to Monona County Farmers unions' refusal to permit Senator Brookhart a speaking engagement.

"You would not be in the slightest disagreement with me about the present situation, if you knew the whole truth," Senator Brookhart wrote Mr. Brenner. He added that he is "sorry you have fallen into the hands of this gang of Tammany Al Smith's boosters."

"Peek told you farmers that Hoover held down your prices during the war," Senator Brookhart wrote. "This was absolutely untrue, I have the documents with the signature of Charles S. Barrett, national president of your farmers union, in which we have every confidence, and, instead of holding down the prices, Hoover held them up during the war."

Women Write Nominees Concerning Equal Rights

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6. (AP)—Expressing dissatisfaction with both the Republican and Democratic platform declarations as to the proposed amendment for equal rights for women, the National Woman's party has addressed letters to Herbert Hoover and Governor Smith asking the presidential nominees to make clear their personal views on the subject.

Demo Speakers Assert Prohibition Is Issue

CHICAGO, Aug. 6. (AP)—Three spokesmen of the Democratic party today stated that the amendment of the Volstead act was the principal issue of their party's campaign.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, spoke at a picnic given by John E. Conroy, county assessor, while Floyd W. Thompson, Democratic nominee for governor, and Anton J. Cermak, candidate for United States senator, addressed a Jefferson club picnic.

"The Republican party cannot avoid the prohibition issue or minimise it," Senator Copeland stated.

Family Killed On Railroad Crossing

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. (AP)—Mayor James J. Walker returned to a sweltering New York after a six weeks' tour of the West which began with his trip to the Democratic national convention at Houston.

He said he was delighted to find "everywhere an unbelievably strong, solid support for Governor Alfred E. Smith, particularly in the Republican states of Washington and Oregon, and in the somewhat doubtful state of California."

Rise in Great Lakes Over July Average

CHICAGO, Aug. 6. (AP)—A two to four-inch increase over the average rise in the level of the Great Lakes was noted in July, the findings of the government survey reveal. The average level is computed from the heights during the last 38 years.

Lakes Michigan and Huron were 26 of a foot higher in July than they were in June, the survey states. This rise compares with an average increase since 1860 of 26 of a foot.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE (366) A WEATHER GLASS

We may have seen a curious looking weather-glass in the form of a round tube containing liquid. First of all we require a glass tube ten inches long and three-fourths of an inch in diameter. Then we must fill the following prescription at the druggists': camphor, two drams; potassium nitrate, half-dram; ammonium chlorid, half-dram; absolute alcohol, two ounces; water, two ounces.

By NEA, Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1922-28.

If the solid ingredients do not dissolve readily, shake the bottle. Then put a cork into the top of the tube to keep out dust.

The weather-glass is best placed when exposed to the north, and in a shady place where the direct rays of the sun will not strike it.

Clear liquid means bright weather; crystals at bottom, thick air, frost in winter; dim liquid with small stars, thunder; large flakes, heavy air, overcast sky, snow in winter; threads in upper part, windy weather; small dots, damp weather, fog; rising flakes which remain high, wind in upper air; small stars on bright, clear winter days, snow in a day or two. 8-7

FRANK ERNEST NICHOLSON

By MARY NASH

Mary Nash is one actress who steered her way to stardom without the preliminary arduous months in stock or the usual years of trouping which press agents like to tell of.

Her most recent production, "The Command to Love," was a very, very "sexessful" play. It was Miss Nash's 35th starring role.

When the play first opened the reformers had more fun! They hollered around City Hall until the manager of the show was requested to buy a thicker pair of pajamas for the war minister's wife and certain of the lines were revised. Evidently the critics thought that the command was a bit too strong.

"I got a big laugh out of a story I heard not long ago," Miss Nash told me, "about two negroes who were being lynched in the South.

"There were no big trees in the immediate vicinity, so the two men were to be let down from a trestle-work bridge,

The first intended victim fell before the noose could be draped around his neck. He swam ashore and escaped.

"The remaining negro regarded the scene with horror and as he was being shoved forward, said:

"'Boss, please tie that rope carefully, 'cause Ah I cain't swim a lick.'"

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

The Causes of Anemia

I find many patients who are obsessed with the idea that they are suffering from anemia. Sometimes doctors have told them this, but usually it is their own idea, which they have formed—probably from the fact that their general rundown condition has given them the impression that their blood must be weak.

Anemia comes from the Greek, and means "without blood." When this condition is present, there is either a deficiency in the amount of blood or a lessened number of red corpuscles. An anemic condition usually refers to the entire body, but it may only apply to a restricted area.

Pericious anemia is quite rare—perhaps not oftener than once in a thousand cases. Secondary or simple anemia is much more frequently found. Practically all of the cases, who imagine they are suffering from anemia, are suffering from some perfectly definite disease which they imagine is anemia. This is particularly true of such diseases as: Tuberculosis, cancer, chronic appendicitis and other disorders where there is a large amount of pus accumulation in some part of the body.

Contrary to the generally accepted belief, anemic patients are not always thin and frail looking, but in many cases they are fat and apparently overfed. There is no reliable way of determining the degree of anemia except by a careful blood examination with the microscope.

The average person is certainly no more than 80 or 90 per cent normal in every way, and those who think themselves ill enough to go to a doctor will usually show a hemoglobin or red blood test of somewhere between 80 and 90 per cent of normal. This then is the average condition which doctors contend with, but, of course, the few who are in perfect health will show a hemoglobin test of 100 per cent, with the red cells numbering over 5,000,000 and the leukocytes or white cells 7,500.

In some cases the white blood cells become so numerous that they produce a pale complexion, and this disease is termed leukemia. It is very closely related to anemia, and the cure for these two conditions is similar. A diminution of the blood's color, or the number of red corpuscles, cannot be called a sign of true anemia until the percentage of reduction is at least below 80 per cent of the normal.

Secondary anemia is present in any disease where there is a formation of pus, as in appendicitis, liver abscesses, ulcers, etc., and when these pus pockets are removed by surgery, or through absorption and elimination, the white cell count becomes reduced to normal, and the red cells and hemoglobin are automatically increased.

In spite of all the nonsensical fiction that has been written about anemia, and claims that have been made that the cause is unoknown, I assure you that this disease is not so mysterious; and, although we have not isolated and named the poison which produces it, we nevertheless know that anemia is due to definite toxins, and that most patients can be cured through the simple plan of eliminating these disease poisons from the body. Through this method, we rid the body of all anemic toxins, even though we do not know them by definite names.

Questions and Answers

Question—Roy W. asks: "In what manner do three drops of arsenic in a glass of water as a tonic, affect a relief from pimples, and clarify the skin in a 16-year-old boy?"

Answer: "Arsenic has a definite effect upon stopping skin erruptions, but I do not recommend the form used in medicines. There is a slight amount of arsenic in carrots when used raw and unpeeled. Use a properly balanced diet and a liberal amount of raw carrots. You will then get the same effect as you would from taking the medicinal arsenic, and have no bad results.

Question—Mrs. J. asks: "May fruits be combined with protein foods?"

Answer: Ans one kind of fruit may be used with any one kind of protein food.

Question—M. J. B. writes: "I am troubled with cartarrh of the nose, also have acne. Is there any connection between the two diseases? Am also underweight."

Answer: Cartarrh of the nose and also acne may be caused by intestinal poison. A short fruit fast would be helpful at the beginning of the treatment of either of these disorders. Then use a diet free from fats, sugars and starches. Do not "stuff" to gain weight, but use a proper amount of the right kinds of food, and avoid constipation.

Question—Ida asks: "Are sun baths as good as the violet ray lamps? How can I really cure pleurisy?"

Answer: I consider sun bathing to be superior to treatments with the ultra-violet lamps, as the sun's rays doubtless contain more beneficial rays besides the ultra-violet. To cure pleurisy, you must first find the cause, which may be due to tuberculosis, a tight diaphragm, or the irritation from excessive gas pressure.

GRAHAM-PAIGE CARS ON DISPLAY FIRST TIME TODAY AT BIRCH'S

PUBLIC ASKED TO NEW PLANT

Formal Opening And Display, 7-10

The first Wichita Falls showing of the new line of Graham-Paige motor cars and the formal opening of the Birch Motor company's new home at 115-121 Indiana avenue, will be observed Tuesday evening by the Birch organization at their salesrooms. M. T. Birch, manager of the company, has extended the public a cordial invitation to call during the hours of 7 to 10 when they will be personally conducted through the building and given an opportunity to inspect the new cars.

Announcement of the appointment of the Birch Motor company as Wichita Falls dealers for Graham-Paige cars was made last week and much interest has been manifested by Wichitans in the appearance and performance of the new cars. For the formal opening Mr. Birch states he will have a practically complete line of models in many different body styles.

"I investigated a number of cars recently before taking over the Graham-Paige line," Mr. Birch stated, "and finally reached my decision after a thorough acquaintanceship with the car and the factory behind it.

The three Graham brothers have been outstanding figures in the automobile world for many years past and it was during their regime with Dodge Brothers that Dodge reached its record breaking peak of popularity. Graham Brothers trucks, which in a surprisingly short time won the esteem of the entire commercial world, did so because they were thoroughly good trucks. They were exceptionally well built because the Graham brothers would never permit a poorly constructed product to bear their name. This same integrity of manufacture is evidenced in the Graham-Paige line and is apparent in the cars themselves to anyone who will make a study of Graham-Paige specifications and design.

"For those whom engineering specifications have real meaning there is, for example, much of interest in Graham-Paige engines. The fact that every one of the six-cylinder motors, even the smallest, has a seven-bearing crankshaft, with main bearings of extra width and extra strength, suggests the way these cars are built for a long life of active service.

"During our past seven years as dealers for Oldsmobile cars we have been unusually successful and July of this year, just ended, was perhaps the greatest summer month in the history of our business. It is to better serve our rapidly growing list of patrons that we have expanded our business and taken over a line which offers a greater price range. We believe that our association with Graham-Paige will result in broadened opportunities and wider usefulness to our many friends in North Texas. To the many motorists we have served in the past and the many whom we hope to serve in the future we extend a cordial invitation to inspect the cars and to see how well qualified we now are to serve them."

New Home of Birch Motor Company One of Finest in Section

The new Birch Motor company home, located at 115-121 Indiana avenue, is said to be one of the largest automobile sales buildings in North Texas. A formal opening of the building will be held Tuesday night at which time the public will be given its first official glimpse of the new Graham-Paige models recently received by the Birch company. The photograph shows the exterior view of the building.

GRAHAM-PAIGE FINS FAVOR

New Motor Car Climbs In Sales Volume

Some idea of the popularity of the new Graham-Paige line of cars is indicated by a report of the company's production records for June, recently received by M. T. Birch, newly appointed Graham-Paige dealer in Wichita Falls. The report follows:

"While the Graham-Paige factory was creating a new production record in June, with a total of 8829 cars, distributors and dealers were keeping pace by setting new high records in sale, putting Graham-Paige higher in the registration standings. In Detroit, Graham-Paige was fifth, all makes included; in Chicago, seventh; Indianapolis, fifth; Dallas, eleventh; Minneapolis, eighth; Vancouver, seventh; Philadelphia, ninth; Omaha, ninth; and Atlanta, eighth. Other cities reported similar high standings, and distributors in many districts reported new records for sales."

Used Car Expert

H. C. Kirkpatrick is used car manager for the Birch Motor company, newly appointed Graham-Paige dealers for Wichita Falls and the North Texas territory.

'Courtesy Car' For Patrons' Use

A courtesy car, operated for convenience of the firm's customers, has been put in service by the Birch Motor company, newly appointed Wichita Falls dealer for Graham-Paige motor cars. According to M. T. Birch, manager of the company, the car and driver are at the service of car owners who drive into the company's service department to have work done on their cars. The driver takes the car owner to his home or business and returns for him when work on the car has been completed.

"With our new equipment we are prepared to turn out every motor service," Mr. Birch stated Monday. "We are far enough out of the business district to be able to offer car owners plenty of parking space. Our building is large enough to accomodate a large number of cars at the same time. The building was built for us and planned to meet our own particular needs. I believe we can truthfully say that we offer an usually efficient service for car owners."

BARRED NEGRO VOTERS APPEAL

Harris County Petition Filed In Federal Court

HOUSTON, Aug. 6. (AP)—Appeal from a decision whereby negroes were denied the privilege of participating in Harris county Democratic primaries was filed in federal court here today.

R. D. Evans, negro attorney, acting in behalf of two negro residents, filed the appeal. Federal Judge J. C. Hutcheson, who denied a former application for an injunction to prevent precinct judges from denying negroes balloting privileges, must rule on the appeal before it legally can be entered. Judge Hutcheson was in New Orleans today sitting as the third jurist on the circuit court of appeals there.

The negroes, in their original petition, alleged that since the Democratic primary is, in fact, "the real election," they were being denied voting rights. They asked Judge Htucheson to order precinct judges to let negroes vote.

Judge Hutcheson overruled their plea on the ground that the negroes had not shown that their rights were being infringed upon.

That portion of the pledge on primary ballots which says that "I am a white Democrat" was specifically attacked in the original action.

Mother Witnesses Son's Death In Accident

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6. (UP)—Mrs. Josephine Martin and her son, Herbert, 18, stepped from a trolley car yesterday as a machine collided with a taxicab. Her son rushed to the scene and aided in extricating a man from the car whose head was crushed beyond recognition.

'Fatty' Sore Because Wife Won't Fight

Former Comedian Sued for Divorce

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 6. (INS)—Roscoe Arbuckle, screen star, entertainer and cafe owner, was charged in a complaint for divorce filed today by Doris Arbuckle, with becoming grossly intoxicated at a party and with making improper advances to women guests.

Mrs. Arbuckle also alleged her husband would complain in the presence of friends that he could get no "kick" out of life because his wife would not fight with him, according to the complaint which was filed through Attorney R. D. Knickerbocker.

At the time of Arbuckle's alleged attack upon a woman guest at the home of friends in Hollywood the woman was asserted to have screamed for help. Mrs. Arbuckle said she went to the relief of the woman and tried to force her husband to release her and that Arbuckle slapped his wife.

Numerous incidents when Arbuckle was alleged to have become intoxicated, called his wife names and drove their automobile in a reckless manner, were cited in the complaint.

FRUIT PRICE SLASH SEEN

Production in California Orchards Excessive

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Aug. 6. (UP)—Rice pudding filled with raisins, peach cobblers and possibly a glass of home made wine brought cheer and contentment to diners throughout the nation today but little did they realize the troubles that confronted growers of the fruit they were eating.

For while tasty deserts brought cheerful dispositions in other parts of the land, the vineyardists and orchardists of California wondered if their bounteous meals would last through the year to come.

The question of supply and demand has aroused tillers of the soil in the state and heads of cooperative associations dealing in fruits, often in the past held up as splendid examples of progressive methods in marketing, are plainly worried.

Optimism for the 1929 season universally prevails but the season that has just started has not brought cheerful smiles from those involved.

Probably the greatest problems have arisen in the "garden of the sun," the fertile San Joaquin valley in the central part of the state, where most of the world's grape supply is produced.

Growers of the territory face the possibility of having to sell raisin grapes for one cent a pound when they need five cents a pound to make profit.

Supply Exceeds Demand.

More than average prosperity favored the fruit growers for several years but apparently instead of placing their profits in a bank they invested them in the addition of more vines and more trees. Consequently the supply has exceeded the demand.

A survey completed by the staff of the University of California college of agriculture showed that new markets must be found or fruit production curtailed. In the past five years, according to the survey, field crops have decreased 26 per cent while vine and tree crops have increased 43 per cent.

The drastic remedial proposal to destroy half of this year's crop of raisin grapes has already been adopted by many raisin growers. If this proposal, approved at a mass meeting of raisin grape growers, is generally carried out, it will mean destruction of approximately 150,000 tons of raisins, it is said. Acreage of raisin grapes has increased 33 per cent in the past five years, the university survey showed, and leaders of the raisin industry claim the "carryover" from last season was 100,000 tons.

Grape Prices Lower

Although growers of raisin grapes are mainly affected, producers of juice or wine grapes face the possibility of lower prices and their crop likewise exceeds that of last year. The estimated production of wine grapes this season has been placed at 497,000 tons, enough to exhilarate the entire nation.

Peach growers apparently passed their crisis last season but numerous conferences under leadership of the governor have been necessary to prevent rotting of first grade fruit on the trees.

Growers of peaches will receive $25 a ton for their fruit providing the output does not exceed 15,000,000 cases. This will probably mean a curtailment of the crop and elimination of all second-grade fruit. Co-operative peach associations have been alligned against commercial canners for many weeks.

Emil Gundelfinger, general manager of the California Peach and Fig Growers association, resigned Saturday night and said today the association had been placed in the position of carrying overhead for 25,000 to 30,000 tons of fruit on a total of 10,000 tons in actual deliveries. This has made costs excessive, he said.

Old Settler's Gather In Chicago for Reunion

CHICAGO, Aug. 6. Each year for more than half a century these genuine antiques of Chicago and Cook county have assembled in Chicago to discuss old times.

TELEVISION IS NOT PRACTICAL

Noted Scientist Thinks Perfection Far Off

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 6. (US)—Strange, isn't it?—that the very man who has helped blaze the world with such things as television and transoceanic telephony and radio should be so pessimistic about their future.

Television, he acknowledges, is wonderful. But as far as he can see now, we'll be twanging harps in heaven before there is home television as we have telephones and radio sets now!

Telephoning to Europe is a wonderful thing, he grants, but already the transoceanic channels are so jammed up with business that those in charge are at their wits' ends to know what to do about it!

Radio—wireless—is marvelous. But it'll never supplant wires for telephones and telegraph. Radio has too confounded many limitations.

And so on, and so on.

Some Hope Left

Yet he leaves us hope. For all this pessimism is leavened by a generous dose of the "but" of optimism by Dr. Frank B. Jewett, the unassuming man who bosses the researches and the magic of 4,000 electrical wizards in the Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc.

Doctor Jewett told all about it while he's here from the east, visiting his people in Alhambra, where he was born some 49 years ago.

He told, for instance, that the wonders which leave us aghast are just by-products of the telephone business.

"Ever since we were founded," he said, "we have had just one aim, to better telephone service. We seek to increase the range of the telephone; to increase its efficiency, and to decrease its cost. All the other things we have evolved are merely by-products of that enterprise.

Local Problems Biggest

"You hear of such spectacular things as the 'talkies' and television. But as a matter of fact, just now our biggest problem is solving the riddles of local transmission and switching.

Here's another interesting thing, he said—they may soon build a 3,000-mile cable—one single great line, either underground or overhead, running from here to New York.

"Transcontinental telephoning has increased so tremendously that it appears we may soon have to build such a cable," he explained.

"The most spectacular thing we have done recently," the volt-wizard went on, "has probably been transoceanic service. And yet, although it's very new, the business already exceeds the traffic capacity and we are struggling with the problem of getting added crossocean channels to handle the talking! There are so few radio channels available in the world today that it is going to be very, very difficult to get enough to handle our workaday business."

Somebody popped up with the hopeful question:

"And how soon will we have television—by telephone or radio—in our homes, so we can see our friends when we talk to them on the phone, or see important happenings or big games, or such things?"

Long Time Off

"Not for a very long time. Not within any reasonable time at all," wet-blanketed the scientist.

Stories, which are ridiculed as a sanitary asset in Holland, are decreasing in number, due it is said, to their eating bread generously, says while wintering in South Africa.

CASE AGAINST SLAYER MADE

Body of Woman Identified As Companion

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 6. (AP)—A witness at a coroner's inquest today positively identified the young woman's body found last Thursday in Stone canyon, above Hollywood, as that of Barbara Mauger, completing, police said, the case against Russell St. Clair Beitzel, formally charged with the slaying.

A physician's record revealed today that Miss Mauger, 19-year-old former Philadelphia waitress, had expected to become a mother just four days after the date on which police estimate she was mortally shot and thrown into Stone canyon.

Girl Visited Doctor

Police believe it was possible that her child had actually been born between the time she was shot and the moment of her death.

The record was that of Dr. J. Frank Griffin, who died two weeks ago, supplied to police by the widow. It showed that Miss Mauger, who had been living with Russell St. Clair Beitzel of Philadelphia, who is charged with her murder, had visited the doctor and had been told that her child would probably be born on June 27. Police believed she was shot on June 28, and the coroner said she might have lived several days after that. Near her body, which was only found last Thursday, was an infant's skull.

LOVE AFFAIR IN MELLUS SLAYING

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 6. (INS)—The clandestine love affair of the wealthy society woman and the family butcher precipitated the tragic slaying and mutilation of Mrs. Myrtle Mellus, 41, police here declared today.

The love affair—liquor—an absent husband—this was the combination which fostered the murderous impulse which the police say caused Leo P. Kelly, 29, the meat cutter, to kill Mrs. Mellus in a brutal passion and then to mutilate her body in cannibalistic fashion.

Husband Finds Body

Mrs. Mellus' nude, bruised body, stripped of the blue silk pajamas which she wore when her husband left home Sunday morning on a fishing trip, was found by her mate, Frank Mellus, wealthy business man and sportsman, when he returned in the evening.

Kelly, his face and clothing splotched with blood, the police say, was discovered by detectives hiding in a closet off the maid's room in the palatial Wilshire district home, where detectives say the murder was committed.

It was the meeting between the wealthy woman, a dozen years his senior, and the handsome butcher boy at a downtown meat market five years ago, followed by a mild flirtation that started the ardent love affair, Kelly declared in his jail cell today.

The three youths admitted to police that in the future they would call the police station when they saw an automobile parked too long in the same place. The car was stolen in Childress last week, police records show.

Flier Speaks Vividly Of Narrow Escape

any feeling about it at all, I had it then. I looked back.

Engine Ablaze

"The whole rear engine was blazing, and even as I looked the whole thing shot up in a terrific sheet of flame.

"I looked back for Pierce, to point it out, I suppose. But he'd already seen the flame and he shot up at once into the engine room. I turned off both switches and nosed the machine over into a headlong dive to burn it out quickly. We plunged toward the water.

"Pierce had turned the petrol off and the broken feed line should be no longer spraying. But the fire did not go out.

"I felt that we must be near the water and so I flattened out and the next stage was an automatic attempt to land. The instruments were useless. I had no hope of seeing anything.

"But I looked down automatically and I saw the glow of the burning engine reflected in the water.

"With that bit of glow, I managed to hold the machine in something like a landing position and the rest I must have done absolutely automatically.

"I suppose I did have feelings. The tail was already burning away and when I pulled up to land I half expected to find that the controls had parted. It didn't seem as though they could still be there.

Watched Ship Burn

"The flames finally went out after we landed. We used everything we could on them, but the ship burned for 10 or 15 minutes. We stood on the hull and watched the flames consume the last drops of the spilled petrol and the paint on the metal work. Thank God it was metal.

"The chief thing I remember of that is the four of us standing on the hull, looking at each other and watching the thing burn. We were waiting for the petrol tanks to go up. We didn't doubt but that they were going up, and so we stood in a row and waited. I don't think we said anything. The flames were burning rather brightly within three feet of 800 gallons of petrol, when all of a sudden we were in darkness.

"Perhaps a wave flicked them out. We were in a rather heavy swell.

"Then we got busy. We talked. We connected the two boats hooks prepared for such an emergency and made a wireless mast.

"Gilmore sent out an S O S and got no reply. We decided to save our power until daylight, when all operators are on duty.

"At daybreak we sent another S O S. The Celtic answered immediately. I had been trying to estimate my position, and we gave it to them hurriedly.

"We had examined the plane. Everything was in first-class shape except the portion that was burned. If I had landed in broad daylight I couldn't have made a better landing in a heavy swell.

"We heard through our wireless that several ships were looking for us and we listened to them exchanging messages about us.

"After I had given that position, I realized the rate we were drifting. I spent several hours calculating by dead reckoning and such wireless bearings as I could get, our actual position.

Drift With Wind

"I got this position absolutely accurate. The position I gave was 42.30 north, 39.40 west. Before the ships got there, however, we had drifted some 30 miles before the hard northeast wind.

"Captain Frank H. Claret of the Minnewaska realized that our plane would drift faster than a ship. He carefully allowed for this extra drift and he picked us up. It is unnecessary to try to tell you how grateful we are to the captain of the Minnewaska or how much we admire his seamanship.

"Our feelings when we sighted the ship and knew it had sighted us are also hard to describe.

"We are very disappointed at our failure to get here, but our failure has enabled us to demonstrate my contention when I got my equipment together. That is, to cross the Atlantic safely by air, you must have a seaworthy flying boat and an efficient wireless.

"Yes, this attempt took two years of preparation. Another attempt at a westward crossing is entirely a financial matter. This machine, which we were forced to abandon because Captain Claret told us it was impossible to hoist it aboard the Minnewaska, has cost Mr. Hosmer a great deal of money. You could hardly ask him to do more than he has done.

"As for me, I hope to be able to offer additional lessons and make additional experiments for the general good of aviation."

Captain Courtney is a tall, slender man, his pointed features given a somewhat scholarly and classroom atmosphere by pince nez glasses. His moustache is a tan wisp.

He expects the abandoned Dornier-Napier flying boat to drift to the coast of Spain. His answer to criticisms in shipping circles concerning the diversion of ships to rescue fliers was an expression of gratitude coupled with the retort that flier are "doing shipping companies' pioneer work, for a flying boat will someday be the shipping companies' express service."

Darrow May Enter Trial of Woman Slayer to Defend Atheist's Honesty

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 6. (UP)—Whether an atheist on his deathbed is as honest as a Christian under the same circumstances is the question raised in an effort to save Mrs. John Marshall from a death sentence on a charge of murdering her husband.

On his deathbed the husband signed a statement that his wife shot him. Upon that evidence Mrs. Marshall was convicted. Now defense attorneys are striving to save her from execution on the ground that the husband was an atheist and as such had no fear of punishment after death and therefore was not under the same compunction to tell the truth as a Christian would be.

Mrs. Marshall is in Alabama state prison awaiting execution. Representatives of the American Association for Advancement of Atheism are understood to have made application to be heard in the forthcoming plea for reversal of judgment in Mrs. Marshall's conviction.

If the association is permitted to enter the case it was understood here Clarence Darrow and Arthur Garfield Hays, who defended Scopes in the famous evolution trial at Dayton, Tenn., might be retained to meet the charge of the defense that an atheist's last words are less trustworthy than those of a Christian.

Coastwise Ship Route Planned

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Aug. 6. (UP)—Operating between the port of Corpus Christi and the Atlantic seaboard, a regular coastwise service with semi-monthly sailings is being planned by the Baltimore and Carolina Steamship company. The service probably will be inaugurated early in September.

Roy Miller, special representative of the port, stated that this steamship company had filed a tariff with the Interstate Commerce Commission which would provide for through bills of lading on cotton consigned to manufacturing centers along the Atlantic coast.

This tariff will be approved at an early date and its approval will mean a movement of at least 50,000 bales of cotton to various ports along the coast.

According to J. L. Boyd, director of the port, the establishment of this service will be of great value to the port and it will stimulate jobbing and retailing through Corpus Christi. Because of the large saving in freight costs it is believed there will be a heavy movement of commodities from the eastern points.

Mason Weems Williams, president of the Baltimore and Carolina Steamship company, made a personal survey of the situation in Corpus Christi a few months ago. At that time he intimated that regular schedules of sailing would be inaugurated.

We must cut down expenses

A discussion of family expenses is rather a delicate subject, and one that is to be very carefully avoided, BUT when these same expenses exceed the family income, or get to a point where they prevent the setting aside of at least a part of that income in a savings account of some sort -- then SOMETHING must be done about it.

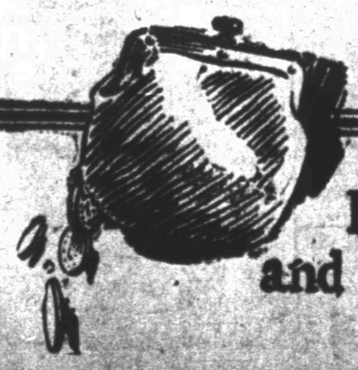

Placing the blame for the sorry condition of the family finances is not the important point, even if it is usually the subject that comes in for the major portion of attention.

Deciding on some definite plan to stop the leaks in the household expenditures IS important.

One of the very easiest and best ways to cut down on the family expenses will be found in a careful reading of the various ads in this newspaper . . . Whether the family allowance is to be spent for groceries, furniture or clothing--for ANY commodity, at ANY time, on ANY occasion--it will pay you to read the ads BEFORE you make your purchases.

The ads are here--in this paper--ready to be of service to you right NOW! Read them and save.

JENKINS' 21ST HOMER WITH 3 ON BASES BEATS BEARS, 4 TO 1

PAYNE CHUCKS 4 TO 1 VICTORY

George Hurls 5-Hit Game For Spudders

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Thomas Tut Jenkins, the Dynamite of the Diamond, a foremost disciple of the creed of Ruth, yesterday performed one of his magical and strong-arm acts. The result was that the Spudders won the ball game in the opener with the San Antonio Bears out at our playground.

It was in the first inning; three comrades were on bases. The always-colorful Jenkins ambled to the plate. Like Casey of Mudville as made famous by DeWolfe Hopper, 10,000 pairs of eyes were upon him. Only there weren't 10,000 pairs of eyes.

And Jenkins didn't strike out like Casey.

He fouled the first ball and Flaskamper and Boggess permitted it to fall safely. Sad young men. Thomas smote the next ball pitched over the center field wall and of course his three mates scampered home ahead of him. It was Tom's twenty-first home run of the season.

Glazer Checks Spuds

That terrific clout meant the ball game, for Norman Glazer relieved Les Cox and his deliberate slow delivery and change of pace held the Spudders scoreless thereafter.

George Won Payne, emulating the superb pitching that has been turned in for several days by other, Spudders, chunked another superb game. His excellent hurling enabled the Spudders to mark up a 4 to 1 triumph, their seventh consecutive victory.

Payne retired the Bears in order for the first four innings and didn't yield a hit until the fifth. He gave up only five blows for the nine innings, struck out five and passed two.

Great Fielding Helps

Brilliant outfielding by Fitzgerald and Jenkins aided Georgs in turning back the enemy.

After Cox had given up the four runs and three hits in the first inning Glazer held the Spudders to foun knocks, scattered along as many innings, the rest of the route. His control was splendid, only one Spudder receiving a free transportation.

The Bears played erroriessly, Flaskamper and Chapman starring on their defense.

Skipper Frank Gibson of the Bears was banished from the park in the ninth inning by Umpire Gerald Hayes when he protested too vociferously on a called strike on Nason. Frank tarried too long in the dugout to suit Hayes and Gerald told the Bear boss it would cost him $25 to change from his spiked shoes to his "sneakers." But Frank made the change—the most costly pair of shoes on record.

That Big Inning

Jenkins' home run in the first inning with the bases filled started the Spudder run-getting. Turgeon singled to left after one was out. Fitzgerald and Eldred strolled. Flaskamper and Boggess failed to get under a foul near third base when Jenkins hit the first ball pitched. Tom lined the next toss over the Erie P. Halliburton company sign in center field, a mighty clout that sent Turgeon, Fitzgerald and Eldred home ahead of him. Swenson singled to center. Glazer relieved Cox and stopped further scoring that inning.

After turning back the Bears in order for four innings Payne yielded a tally in the fifth. Nason was passed after one was out. Chapman singled to center for the Bears' first hit, Nason going to third. Stanton made a fast play on Meyers' grounder, forcing Chapman on a toss to Benton, Nason scoring.

Glazer Battles Spuds

Glazer's deliberate delivery mystified the white-uniformed athletes although they threatened in the fifth by getting runners to second and third.

The Bears had runners on second and third in the sixth but George bore down and struck out Ray Grimes, the clean-up slugger, on a third called strike.

George set down the hostiles in order in the seventh, to retaliate for Norm retiring our side one-two-three in the sixth.

A hit, error and stolen base put Bears on second and third with one out in the eighth. But Payne caused Boggess and Mulvey to hoist to Stanton and Jenkins.

Notes of the Game

Skipper Jim probably will send Herb Cobb to the hill today.

Fitzgerald made a pair of scintillating plays in succession in the first inning. He came in fast for Flaskamper's fly and went far to left-center for Boggess' drive.

Jenkins pulled down Mulvey's smash to short left-center in the fourth after a hard run.

Jenkins made seven "putouts" and Fitzgerald three to account for ten of the Bears.

Buck Stanton flashed some brilliant fielding around first base.

Flaskamper handled seven chances and Chapman six in an impressive display of effective guarding the keystone bag.

Stealing a base on that fellow Truck Meyers is a difficult proposition. The San Antonio catcher threw out two Spudders trying to steal second.

Mantell Ready For Joe Pareilli

Grapplers to Settle Argument On Mat Tonight

Dutch Mantell, wrestler of more or less renown from Amarillo, who meets Joe Parelli, a descendant of the spaghetti-crushers of Italy, here Tuesday night in a finish combat at Soudder park, insisted in a statement Monday night that he is just a plain country boy trying to get along.

"I'm tired of having some of these dudes keep on referring to me as an ape man," was the gist of a brief statement by the Dutchman after it had been properly censored for picturesque figures of speech and translated into readable English.

"Yah, that guy's just trying to win public sympathy and he's gonna need it when I get through with him," declared Roughhouse Joseph when informed of the Amarillo matman's resentment over being referred to as a descendant of tail-swinging tree climbers. It was Joe's remark the other day that Mantell must feel out of place on the treeless Texas plains where he now makes his home that aroused the Dutchman to issue his word of warning Monday night.

Both Mantell and Parelli, according to Promoter Alec B. Ross, are in fine shape for Tuesday night's match. Ross announced also that all six fighters booked for the three preliminaries of boxing are in good condition and promises some real scraps.

Baer Facts

By "BUGS" BAER
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. — Among the latest distinguished guests to join the rush for big business is the frankfurter.

Efficiency experts, slightly wilted with the heat, have organized the hot dog stands and will form a skinless incorporation.

The hamburger filling stations will supply mustard on the usual 30 days' request. But you will have to wait in the Foyer hall while the manager of the traffic department investigates your credentials.

We have not yet heard of the self-made merchant who started out in life as an office boy to a Frankfurter.

But the time will arrive even though the clock be busted. America is sweeping into big business from all angles and even crumbs and safety pins will be quoted on the curb.

The Frankfurter men will hold their first convention up a prominent alley in St. Louis. They intend to place the Frankfurter in its rightful niche among the important accessories to Amedican independence, faith, hope and recalls.

California can claim its gold, New Orleans its cotton, Boston its cod and Philadelphia its scrapple, but the frankfurter is not to be localized by fragmentary legend. Like Napoleon, Lindbergh and the next man in the barber chair, it belongs to the ages.

Soon the frankfurter will come under the eye of the Interstate Commerce Commission, there will be hot dog stock inflation and non-union mustard.

We prefer it in its good old homely style when it was only a steamed pup.

You could buy it at Coney for a jitney and slap enough mustard on it to paint a St. Barnard. We don't know what mustard is made of. But it certainly tastes good on your necktie.

Althcugh we hate to think of it the day is near when frankfurters must be dabbed up with forks and finger bowls. Think of sailing for Europe and getting a bum voyage gift of a steamer basket loaded to the muzzle with hot dogs.

Big business is spoiling our traditions. When we think of those ancient hot pups sizzling in the incandescent grease we wish that big business was alongside it in the pan.

"Yankees" really means "English." When the first English settlers went to America the nearest the Indians could get to the name was "Yengees." That was twisted to "ankees" and applied later to Americans.

Runyon Gives Statistics to Show Loughran Is Entitled to Crown

Tommy's Showings Against Stribling, However, Not So Good, Though Damon Seems to Overlook That

By DANON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. (US)—The boys are just recovering to some extent the shock of finding that Tommy Loughran, the phantom of Philly, is indeed the heavyweight champion of the world.

At first some of them shook their heads over Tommy's claim, and muttered that this wouldn't do, at all. But they couldn't think of any fighter as good as Tommy Loughran.

Risko?

Well, Tommy has licked the rubber man twice. Not once, TWICE.

The boys wouldn't even pause for argument there.

Paolino?

Nope! Two nopes, in fact. A mere varsity drag for Thomas.

Sharkey?

The terrible Sharkey man?

Now here, apparently, was a peg on which to hang plenty of argument, but what's this they seem to be saying:

"Loughran would out-game him!"

This struck me as an all too summary dismissal of the terrible Sharkey man. I think he might give Loughran a better battle than any of the others, because he is a fair sport of boxer, and doesn't rush at a man like a halfback hitting center.

Would He Be Easy?

But Loughran himself thinks the terrible Charkey man would be as easy for him as Risko. The human stepladders and ganders, and bloodsweating behemoths of the heavyweight division, might as well go back to some honest and useful calling as long as Tommy Loughran is in the division.

They don't belong in the same country with him, let alone the same ring.

Out of the cypress swamps of Dixie comes a low plaintive moan as if someone was bogged in the mud and was crying for help, but 'tis only the voice of the parent of the famous Graeco-Roman champion of the southland, young Stribling, claiming Mister Tunney's vacated title.

Now it has been but a comparatively short time back, over in Brooklyn, that Loughran gave young Stribling a larruping in their third meeting. The fought a six-rounder here in New York several years ago on a milk fund card, Loughran substituting for Paul Berlenbach on a day's notice and without training more than an hour.

Who Agreed?

Stribling got the decision, but it was generally agreed that it was a punk decision. They fought again on the Pacific coast, in San Francisco, to be exact, and the oldest inhabitants out there say it was the most terrible affair since James J Corbett and Peter Jackson fought those sixty-odd rounds without a blow being struck in some 40 of 'em.

Stribling got the decision again, but the fight was so awful that the infuriated clients considered passing a law barring heavyweights from the entire country west of Chicago. Loughran has always admitted that Stribling was entitled to the decision on pin falls, flying mares and other wrestling grabs, if that's what the referee was figuring in.

There is no doubt but that the pride of Dixie is the best wrestler in the boxing group, and we have some pretty fair wrestlers in it, at that. However, Loughran is quite willing to meet him in defense of his claim on the heavyweight title, if the referees and judges will count a boxing point as better than a toe hold.

Commodore George Loser Rickard was somewhere off Montuk Point yesterday in the good ship Maxine with a party of friends, and was engaged in mistreating the flounder, blackfish, eel, dogfish and other insects which infest those waters. So perhaps he hasn't heard as yet that Tommy Loughran is the new heavyweight champion of the world, and he is going to be mighty displeased when the news reaches his ears.

Tex Likes Sharkey

Skipper Rickard wished to have something to say about that new champion himself. The public prints had him up in Boston "angling," as the boys say, for the terrible Sharkey man, who is said to have bolted the Rickard party and joined up with the McNary-Haugenites or something to that effect.

Bo's'n Rickard probably doesn't care a whoop what the terrible Sharkey man does, as long as he makes plenty of noise until it comes time to sign him up. I believe John Risko is also said to have bolted, but I play all bolts with a copper: Where are the lads going to fight this winter and what for, if they don't fight for Admiral Rickard?

That's almost as tough as the question: WHO CAN LICK TOMMY LOUGHRAN?

The only bolt from Second Mate Rickard that you can bet on will be the bolt of the mighty spaghetti mangler, Signor Roberto Roberti, of sunny Italy, in case he gets anywhere in particular, for Signor Roberto Roberti is the personal friend of the good Signo Humberto Fugazy.

And Signor Humberto Fugazy bolted the Rickard party one Tuesday some semesters back.

I imagine that Thomas Loughran is quite ready to fight for Gunner Rickard. Loughran has no grievance, and he knows that he can make more money in Madison Square garden than anywhere else. But it is a sure thing that Loughran will not enter any tournament, and there is no good reason why he should.

Loughran-Sharkey "Natural"

Let them pick the best man they've got and throw him in with Loughran, and we'll see if the fellow can fight. If Risko is supposed to be their best, heave him in there and make Loughran spot him the first four rounds by way of a handicap.

The de luxe match of the layout, of course, is a match between Loughran and Sharkey. That's the kind Commander Rickard's millionaires turn out to witness. It would draw more money along in October than any other match that could possibly be made just now.

But in the meantime there is nothing to prevent some other promoter from nabbing Loughran and Sharkey or Loughran and Risko and presenting a match for the world heavyweight title. There will be a wild scramble for the light heavyweight title when Loughran formally relinquishes it, and San Francisco promoters are preparing to bill a bout between Mickey Walker, the middleweight champion, and Armond Emanuel, the west coast Hebrew, for that title.

At the same time James J. Johnson and Mr. Pete, the goat, and William Duffy are set for a spring on behalf of Pete Latzo and Leo Lomski, while Buffalo frantically signals that James Slattery has a claim in his hip pocket.

Well, it steams things up a little, anyway.

National League Umpires Confer

Arbiters Clarify Rules In First Mid-Season Meet

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. (AP)—At the first midsummer meeting of umpires in 53 years of National league history, arbiters of the senior major baseball circuit yesterday discussed knotty problems and made suggestions for improvements through rule changes to John A. Heydler, president of the league. The meeting was attended by all 11 members of the staff.

The umpires first discussed the present rule regarding home runs. A ball driven over an inside fence or other barrier is fair or foul according to where it leaves the playing field. One smashed over the outer barrier is fair or foul depending upon its position when it disappears from view.

The umpires favored a single rule covering both situations—the present regulation regarding drives over inner barriers—but they agreed that no change could be made until tall poles marking the end of fair territory could be erected at all parks. The arbiter also suggested that a space of at least two feet on each side of foul lines on fences be kept free of advertising and painted dark green so the white marks would stand out the more clearly.

It was decided hereafter to permit only one player of the side at bat to leave the bench in anticipation of his turn at the plate and to enforce more strictly the rule prohibiting players from talking with persons in the stands.

The umpires went into the question of how long a fielder must retain a fly to be entitled to the benefits of the rule regarding drives "momentarily held." While no definite space of time was agreed upon, it was the sense of the meeting that the ball must be held securely by the player for some seconds.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

NOW THAT BERT ELLISON has walked the plank, a sacrifice to the god of victory, speculation centers on the selection of manager of the Dallas Steers. Bob Tarleton, who occupies the position of general manager of the Mavs, is temporarily in charge of the nine on the playing field. But, although Bob may run the club for the remainder of this season, he won't hold that position next year, having no inclination for the job, even if he were offered it. Indeed, in his present position Tarleton is more of a power than that held by a field director, occupying a post with the Mavs similar to that held by Billy Evans with the Cleveland Indians.

◆ ◆ ◆

Hap Morse was recently appointed field captain of the Steers and that may be taken for an indication that the second baseman will be given the post as manager in 1929 if he displays leadership ability for the rest of this campaign. Morse is a brainy, aggressive player and if given an unhampered hand might do well as boss of the Mavericks.

Which may be construed as a compliment to California's glorious climate or a knock for politicians.

CALIFORNIA is all right. It is famous for Jeffries, Corbett, the gold rush, Hiram Johnson, Hoover, Hollywood and the Barbary coast. The Barbary coast is no more. But resourceful California always has a substitute that's better than the original.

So now there is Hollywood.

TILDEN STATUS TO BE DECIDED

U. S. L. T. A. to Consider Bill's Case August 24

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. (UP)—An amateur or a professional?

William T. Tilden, who was barred from the United States Davis cup team, July 19, for a violation of the amateur rules and reinstated six days later to permit him to play in the challenge round against France, will again face charges of professionalism when the executive committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association gathers for a special meeting here Friday, Aug. 24.

Tilden and the other members of the United States Davis cup team who were unsuccessful in their attempt to regain the tennis trophy from France will arrive aboard the S. S. Paris Wednesday. The official announcement of the U. S. L. T. A. follows:

"There will be a meeting of the executive committee of the U. S. L. T. A. at the Vanderbilt hotel, Friday, Aug. 24, to consider charges filed against Mr. William Ti Tilden II by the advisory and finance committee of the U. S. L. T. A. of a violation of the amateur rule of the U. S. L. T. A.

Collom Calls Meeting

"The meeting was called by President Samuel H. Collom by a radiogram from the S. S. Paris and Secretary Harry S. Knox of Chicago notified all the members of the calling of the meeting by President Collom."

Tilden's status may be decided once and for all time at this meeting. He has long been the stormy petrel of the amateur world, defying the tennis powers that be and always coming out on top in the long run.

Barred from the United States team on the eve of the interzone final between the United States and Italy, Tilden was later reinstated in the interest of international relations by President Collom.

Hardy Files Charges

The original charges filed against Tilden were brought about by Dr. Samuel Hardy, president of the California association, who read an article by Tilden under the heading, "Tilden reviews first week's play at Wimbledon," in the San Francisco Chronicle of July 8.

The article was considered a violation of that portion of the by-laws of the U. S. L. T. A. known as the amateur rule, particularly paragraph 4 of section B, which reads as follows:

"By writing for pay or consideration current newspaper articles covering a tournament or match in which he is entered as a competitor."

The amateur rule of the U. S. L. T. A. permits any player to write or comment on a tournament 72 hours after it is over for money and remain an amateur, yet it is not legal to write about a tournament while it is going on.

KAMM'S DRIVE WINS, 5 TO 4

Willie's Hit off Pipgras Sends Falk Home

CHICAGO, Aug. 6. (AP)—Kamm, and his roommate, Bib Falk, kept the Yankees from increasing their three and a half game lead over the Athletics today.

With two out in the 15th inning, the score tied at 4 to 4, and Falk on first, Kamm landed on a fast one from George Pipgras and drove it to deep left center to send Falk across the plate with the run that gave the White Sox a 5 to 4 victory. Score:

Allred Says Lead Is Significant

Leading Candidate for Judge Says Big Vote for Weldon, Smoot and Self Means People Want Change.

To my many friends of the first primary: I thank you for the splendid testimonial of confidence evidenced by your votes and efforts in the first primary.

The present judge of the 78th district court has stated repeatedly from the political platform that he could promise no improvement in his present manner of operating the court. Therefore, I consider the enormous majority over him in the first primary, received by Judge Weldon, Mr. Smoot and myself, as a repudiation of his administration, and as an endorsement of the plans and methods for speeding up trials and reducing court expenses advocated by all candidates in this race except the present judge.

Further, the fact that I was fortunate enough to lead the ticket in the field of four, and even to receive 727 votes more than the present judge in a race for his own job, would indicate that I am the first choice of those who advocate and demand better and more efficient service from their judge of the 78th district court.

Thus, the second primary will present an opportunity to the people to express themselves upon this principle of speedier and better justice in the courts. With the campaign pitched upon the high plane of this important issue, it cannot be permitted to degenerate into a mere contest of personalities between two men desiring the same job—with the victory going to the one who can shake the most hands and beg the most votes.

"I am glad that the issue is thus put squarely up to the voters—whether they desire to endorse, by retaining the present judge, his present manner of operating the 78th district court, with the attendant delay and high cost of operation—or whether they desire, by electing me, to bring about the improvements for which Judge Weldon, Mr. Smoot and myself have worked.

Martha Norelius Breaks Records In Winning Two Olympic Swims

By FRANK GETTY

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 6. (UP)—With the track and field games ended, swimming and rowing held the Olympic spotlight today. Martha Norelius, Women's Swimming association, New York, contributed the outstanding performance of the day when she established two world swimming records for women in winning the 400-metre free style swim.

Leading all the way, Miss Norelius set a new mark of 5 minutes, 42.8 seconds for 400 metres and 2 minutes, 40.6 seconds for 200 metres, half the distance.

Arne Borg Victor

Arne Borg, Sweden, won the other swimming final today, setting a new Olympic record of 19 minutes, 51.8 seconds, in winning the 1500-metre free style swim. Andrew Charlton, Australia, was second, and Clarence Crabbe, Honolulu, representing the United States, third.

The Penn A. C. double scullers beat Australia and qualified for the semi-finals in that event along with Switzerland, Germany and Holland. In winning, Charles McIlvaine and Paul V. Costello made the best time so far in the Olympic double sculls events—6 minutes, 48.4 seconds, a new Sloten canal record.

The Penn Barge club defeated Great Britain in the second heat for the pair-oared shells without coxswains. Paul McDowell and John Schmitt in the Penn barge boat, won by a length in 7 minutes, 12 seconds.

France Defaults

France defaulted to the Penn Barge club in the four-oared shells without coxswain, preventing the United States entry from getting a much needed workout.

For a time in the 400-metre free style swim for women, it looked as if the American mermaids would obtain a double victory, as the slender Josephine McKim of Homestead, Pa., was racing the physically superior Dutch girl, Miss Braun, to a standstill. It was not until the last lap that the Dutch girl was able to gain a yard over Miss McKim, who finished third.

Miss Norelius took the lead at the start of the race, gaining over the field with each stroke. Miss Braun's time was 5:57.8 and Miss McKim's 6:00.2.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. (AP)—Rallies of late last week were followed by re...wed weakness in the cotton market today. Prices made new low ground for the movement on near months. December selling off to 19.25 or 29 points net lower and 40 points below the best price touched on the advance of Saturday. December closed at 19.28, the general market closing steady, at net declines of 17 to 30 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 1 to 9 points under selling supposed to be partly for southern account, which may have been influenced by a private crop report placing the condition at 72.4 and the indicated yield at 15,500,000 bales. The effect was offset to some extent by another report making the condition 67.1 and the indicated yield only 14,207,000 bales.

Belief that the crop had been making fairly good progress since the beginning of the month, probably encouraged the selling, but on the whole, the day's fluctuations were considered less the result of any immediate new feature than of further readjustments of the technical position in preparation for the government crop report due on Wednesday. The idea in this connection appeared to be that there had been extensive buying last week in expectation of a pre-bureau rally, and that failure of the market to show greater strength was leading to liquidation or reselling of this cotton.

Up to the close of business today 15 private reports had been published, showing an average condition of 68.0, while the average of 12 private crop indications was 14,757,000.

Exports today 4,948 making 37,774 so far this season. Port receipts 3,722. United States port stocks 548,845.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 6. (AP)—Pre-bureau liquidation dominated trading in the cotton market today and there was also considerable selling induced by large private crop estimates with a resultant sag in prices equivalent to nearly $2 a bale.

October contracts, after opening 3 points up at 19.15, gradually eased off to 18.77, then rallied 10 points and closed at 18.83. The general market closed steady at a net decline of 29 points.

The opening was irregular due to the absence of Liverpool, that market remaining closed for the last of the midsummer bank holidays.

After rallying 5 to 13 points on some covering in advance of the government report the market turned easy again under selling induced by a private estimate of 15,500,000 bales.

After midsession, business tapered off and prices rallied 10 points on a renewal of pre-bureau covering. The market remained quiet to the end, December closing at 18.87, 29 points net off.

Prospects of Easy Money Soon Cause Continued Advance in Stock Issues

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Belief that comparatively easy money would be experienced for the next few weeks induced further advance in industrial stocks today.

Automobile stocks were the outstanding feature for the most of the day but met rather heavy profit-taking in the final trading that wiped out part of their gains.

Warner Brothers scored the most sensational gain with the Cutten and Durant groups working together in bringing the new high price for the move.

Kennecott was whirled and influenced a more lively market in other coppers. The oils, too, received more favorable attention and pushed into higher ground with Sinclair standing out in the independent group. Rails were quiet and held to fractional price range.

Although the banks called $10,000,000 loans for tomorrow's adjustment with the reserve, the call rate held at 6 per cent throughout and there appeared to be plenty of funds available.

Motors Go Forward

Short covering coincident with renewed operations by Durant brokers was responsible for the early strength in the motor stock. Practically the entire group moved forward. General Motors covering was due to knowledge that no decision has been reached as to the special distribution at Thursday's meeting. Chrysler buying was by the same group of brokers who first took it in hand when there appeared doubts that the Dodge acquisition would go through. That group never had any doubt, however, as they knew what the Chrysler people expect to earn through the Dodge properties and sales agencies.

Chandler enjoyed sudden prominence with Durant credited for strength therein also. Its move revived the talk of a merger in which Peerless and others would take part. The resistance to the motor advance late in the day was due to growing indications that the remaining months of the year will witness increasing competition throughout the industry.

Mail Orders Gain

Montgomery Ward and Sears both went into new high ground with the bulls thereon repeating their optimistic expectations of growth in the retail distributing and sales stores of these companies and the results to be gained in earnings.

If but 50 per cent of the rumors regarding plans of these organizations prove correct, the small retailer is going to have an increasing hard time of it the next few years. This group of westerners, also, were mostly accountable for the new high on the move registered by Warner. Their associates sent out advice regarding a Ford contract secured by Moto Meter but that stock showed no particular benefit.

Coppers Prosper

Kennecott's renewed strength was due to expectation that dividend increase will be announced within the next fortnight. The copper companies now are showing the best earnings in more than four years and several other companies are likely to take favorable dividend action before the end of this year. There was talk of merger again as Sinclair moved forward in the advance of other oils. The buying however was entirely due to the larger earnings resulting from the more stabilized condition of the entire industry. While Sinclair eventually is expected to go into another organization, there has been no agreement reached as to price as yet, it is stated, and none seems near.

New Rate Wanted Now

With the continued operations of the few bull leaders willing to work against money conditions, there was talk of the bankers assuming a "more reasonable attitude." In connection therewith, questions were asked why the collateral value of certain stock was marked down so severely a few weeks ago by bankers who now are willing to take them closer to the market. The action of the clearing house in making the new interest rates effective September 1 was regarded as having some favorable feature that had the bankers regarding the situation as so very serious, they would have ordered the rate into effect at once. It is known that at least one bank made the new demand rate effective as of today, believing it would increase deposits if it did not wait for the time officially set by the clearing house.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW
By THOMAS TAMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Aug. 6. (US)—Grain traders were confronted with an array of bearish weekly statistics today, and under general selling pressure the markets ruled weak. Wheat prices continued to sink into new low ground on the crop and the deferred futures in corn followed suit. At the close wheat was ¼ to 1⅛c lower, corn was off ⅝ to 1⅝c, oats were ⅛ to ¼c down and rye declined 1⅛ to 1⅝c.

While bearish weekly figures had been anticipated last week and to some extent discounted in prices then, the wheat situation displayed nothing which would tend to promote buying. Selling of the futures was general and to this pressure was added consistent hedging sales.

Prices rallied some and closed nearly 1c above the lows, for the break in prices led shorts to accept profits. Holders of the privileges also bought in a moderate way. Crop advices were all very favorable.

Apparently the farmer took advantage of the good weather and high prices for corn last week by moving part of his surplus to market, for the visible supply of corn increased 1,320,000,000 bushels. This was a large increase for this time of the season and compares with an increase of 904,000 bushels last week when prices were high and a decrease of 2,043,000 bushels for the corresponding week a year ago.

Corn prices moved sharply lower early in the session when general selling uncovered stop-loss liquidation. As in wheat, a rally was staged later on short covering to take profits.

EASTMAN FOR NEW CALENDAR

Aged Kodak Maker Hopes For Change in 1930

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 6. (UP)—George Eastman, whose name instantly brings up the Kodak and movie film and now colored movies, is now becoming just as well known in another venture apart from business. In 1933, or at the latest 1938, the 13-month calendar of four weeks to the month will be launched throughout the world, he confidently declared in an interview.

Eastman is sponsoring the movement to revise the calendar and eliminate the fallacies of the present system of dates. He is as much interested in "putting over" this pet scheme as he is in watching the progress of his $125,000,000 business in Rochester.

At 74 years of age Eastman devotes most of his waking hours at his desk. He is alert and has the appearance of a man of 60.

Answers All Objections

His keen mind is ever ready to parry all objections to the 13-month calendar system on which he has placed his personal mark of approval. He has men working in all parts of the country and throughout the world, in fact, digging up facts and in trying to win over those who object to the plan.

There isn't an objection he cannot answer. For example, he was asked about the sentimental question of birthdays.

"The new calendar might involve changing the date of one's birth," he said, and added: "Washington's birthday is celebrated on February 22, whereas he was born on February 11. The Gregorian calendar was adopted by us when Washington was 22 years old. That was in 1752. The old Julian calendar had drifted 11 days out of gear with the seasons and it was necessary to drop the period between the second and the fourteenth."

And so with other objections. He can tell the exact history of the present calendar from the early Egyptian system through the period of changes in the Roman empire to the present Gregorian method which changed Washington's birthdate.

Conference Necessary

"The calendar should be changed by January 1, 1933," he said, "because then the year, month, week, day, hour, minute and second all begin together. The year begins on Sunday and ends on Sunday. But to achieve this objective the nations of the world will have to meet in international conference not later than 1929."

The work of ascertaining public sentiment in the United States on the subject of revising the calendar is being undertaken by the national committee on calendar simplification, which was organized at Washington, D. C., July 9, 1928.

Eastman is chairman of this committee, which includes members of the principal departments of state, scientists, business executives and other leaders throughout the country.

The calendar as advocated by Eastman is made up of 13 months of exactly four weeks each. Each month begins on Sunday and thus but one month calendar would do for all 13. Eastman pointed out that clocks could be made to register the day and date of the month in addition to keeping time, and thus keeping track of dates would be simplified.

"The new month would be inserted between June and July," Eastman said, "for at that time of the year the change will cause the least confusion in respect to the seasons. The 365th day will be December 29 as an extra Sabbath. This day, to be known as "Year day," will be inserted between December 28 and January 1. In like manner, in leap year the extra day June 29, will be placed between June 28 and the first day of the new month."

CHICAGO, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS & OMAHA RAILWAY CO.
Five-Year Record

The Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railway company is controlled by the Chicago and Northwestern. The main line of the corporation extends from Omaha to Minneapolis and St. Paul and thence north to Duluth. An additional line is operated to the Twin Cities providing entry thereto for the Chicago & Northwestern. The road serves some of the best agricultural territory in Minnesota, Iowa and eastern Nebraska by its side lines. The system has about 1,750 miles of main track.

Freight traffic is well diversified, with agricultural products accounting for 28 per cent; manufactures for 22 per cent, and mining for 21 per cent of the total. Passenger traffic has decreased in the last six years. The company had a land grant covering 1,448,619 acres, of which 58,825 acres still remain in the control of the company. The tentative valuation placed on the road by the Interstate Commerce Commission amounted to $86,710,600.

Total operating revenues increased in 1927 after showing decreases in each of the two previous years due to the increased movement of agricultural products. Higher operation expenses reduced net income in 1927 to $319,885, the lowest since 1921. This was equivalent to only $2.84 a share on the preferred, with nothing on the common, and compared with a net income in 1925 and 1926 of $800,000 in each year.

Funded debt totals $48,014,400. Capital stock outstanding consists of $11,259,859 in 7 per cent non-cumulative preferred of $100 par, and $18,559,087 in common stock and scrip of $100 par. Preferred and common have equal voting power.

Dividends have been paid on the preferred at varying rates. From December 31, 1924 to 1927, 5 per cent was paid. None has been reported to June 1 1928. On the common, no dividends have been paid since 1923, the last year in which 5 per cent was distributed.

PANHANDLE HAS NEW OIL WELLS

But Production Drops Off 859 Barrels

The Panhandle field of northwestern Texas fell off 859 barrels in daily output the past week, although it has two new producing wells.

By counties its daily production follows:

Area	Wells	Daily Output
Carson	159	6757
Gray	236	20,344
Hutchinson	1012	34,878
Moore	3	204
Potter	1	25
Wheeler	38	892
Totals	1449	63,100

Moore county, the county west of Hutchinson, and Hansford, north of both Moore and Hutchinson county, now loom brightly in the Panhandle. The Skelly Oil company strike at No. 3 Armstrong Byrd, in J. C. Proctor survey, southeastern Moore county, which found a producing lime from 3100 to 3195 feet for 15 or 30 barrels an hour, proved the existence of a pool in southeastern Moore and southwestern Hutchinson counties.

Following this event, Caldwell and others' No. 1-A Sealy, in section 21, block 3, of G. H. & H. survey, found gas pay at 2950 feet and it made 500,000 feet, which increased to 1,000,000 feet at 2990 feet. Elevation there is 3224 feet and it has an excellent chance of finding oil, which would give the Panhandle another county, as this well is in Hansford county.

Saturday's report on the Skelly well had it deepened from 3190 to 3195 feet and making 240 barrels in eight hours. The previous 20 hours it had swabbed 600 barrels.

Skelly's No. 7 Schafer, in section 69, block 4, of I. & G. N. survey, in eastern Carson county, was deepened from 3164 to 3187 feet and found no increase, still making 7½ barrels an hour, but drilling on to 3189 feet, it entered a soft granite wash and sandy lime and the production jumped to 15 an hour. It flowed 296 barrels.

Gray county continues to be the most active of the Panhandle areas, with deepening operations on in the old Wilcox pool near Pampa; new drilling on the edges of the Bowers pool and the LeFors pool having some wells approaching the sands, while wildcatting is on around Kingsmill and McLean.

Smith May Visit Southern Plantation

CLARKSDALE, Miss., Aug. 6. (AP)—Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, the Democratic candidate for president, may visit Mr. and Mrs. John Bell Hood at Matagorda, their plantation near here, after he has visited Senator Joe Robinson, candidate for vice president, at his home in Arkansas, according to a letter from Governor Smith, received by Mr. and Mrs. Hood.

The Democratic nominee said in his letter that he regretted not being able to visit Matagorda plantation at present as the Democratic national committee was in charge of his schedule, but stated that he hoped to do so upon the occasion of a considered visit to Arkansas.

Texas Pro-Ration Aids Simms Co.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. (AP)—Reporting net loss of $209,842 for the first half of 1928, T. W. Streeter, chairman of Simms Petroleum company, informed stockholders today that the new proration plan put into effect in the Yates pool, West Texas, had resulted in a substantial increase in the company's production in that field. The company produced 2,307,232 barrels in the half year, against 1,983,958 barrels at the same period last year.

He cited that prices for crude oil were advanced generally throughout the Mid-Continent area on July 26, the price of West Texas crude oil had been increased 5 cents a barrel and the price of Simms light oil production had been increased an average of 10 cents a barrel. Prices for gasoline also had shown a further advance since July 1.

HIKES WHET LUST FOR OIL

Storage Reduced by 100,000 Barrels Daily

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 6.—The demand for light oils continues and the recent crude advances has only whetted the appetite of the oil buyer for more and more crude.

Inquiry indicates that more than 100,000 barrels of oil is going out of storage a day in the Kansas, Oklahoma and North Texas oil fields, and unless light oil production is increased this movement will continue for some time.

In Oklahoma alone the withdrawals from storage average 55,000 to 60,000 barrels a day, while in Kansas the movement out of tanks figures around 20,000 to 25,000 barrels a day, and the balance is in North and East Texas.

Bulk of the Oklahoma withdrawals have been in the Seminole district, and analysis shows that part of this movement is actually from one tank to another so as to provide room for anticipated production in the Little River and other active pools. But it is a withdrawal, nevertheless.

A check of active producers on withdrawals in Kansas and Oklahoma gave the following figures this past week:

Operator	Out
Carter	24,000
Prairie	20,000
Sinclair	15,000
Roxana	8000
Vacuum	8000
Marland	7000
Miscellaneous	7000
Empire	3000

Twelve firms were actually storing oil, the runs to tanks averaging 16,000 barrels, with Magnolia leading with 7000 barrels a day; Phillips Petroleum was putting away 4000 barrels, and Texas 3000, while others were storing here and there.

In the Osage the withdrawals that have been under way for weeks continue, with Vacuum shipping around 8000 barrels a day in tank cars to Texas City.

20 to 25 Declared Healthiest Period

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6. (AP)—Human beings were described as being most free from sickness between the ages of 20 and 25 years in a report of the public health service, made public today by Surgeon General Cummings.

In infancy and early childhood the greatest sickness comes, declared the report which is based on a two and one-half year survey of the white population, about 8,000 persons, of Hagerstown, Md., which was considered as a representative small city of the eastern section of the country. "The curve of ill health" drops rapidly to a minimum in late childhood and adolescence, it continued, and then "gradually rises until another maximum is reached in old age."

GAMBLING SHIP OUTWITS LAW

Millions Spent on Boat Outside Seven Mile Limit

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 6. (UP)—The good ship Johanna Smith enjoyed a favorable week-end. Some 10,000 persons passed over its gangways and some $125,000 over the green felt-covered tables of the main deck forward.

As late as 5 a. m. today the dice still were rolling, the roulette wheels still spinning, and the card games still prospering on this amazing gambling ship seven miles off the California coast line.

Since the official backers of the Johanna Smith never have been publicly announced, the week-end figures came from one of the many attendants.

"We had at least 10,000 patrons since Friday midnight," the attendant said. "That number paid 125 grand. If we keep operating until the end of this month, we'll be ready to give the boat away."

The Johanna Smith, once a proved schooner in coastwise lumber trade, has been operating as a wide-open gambling palace for more than a month.

"We use the law to beat the law," the semi-official explained. "The law can't touch us. We can run here until we're ready to quit."

Outlook Good For Sheep Industry

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6. (AP)—The immediate outlook for the sheep industry was described as favorable in a report, made public today by the department of agriculture, but the growers were cautioned against undue expansion.

Increased marketings and slaughter of lambs, accompanied by an improved consumptive demand for lamb and a continued good world demand for wool, are indicated during the next nine months, the report, which is the midsummer sheep and wool outlook survey of the bureau of agricultural economics, said. But it added "sheep production in the United States has been rapidly expanding and suggests the need for considerable caution in regard to further expansion."

The lamb crop of 1928, it continued, is forecast as 8 per cent larger than last year.

Killam, president of the South Texas Chamber of Commerce, has announced a special committee which will leave for Monterrey in automobiles, September 2, for the purpose of extending to Governor Aaron Saenz of the state of Nuevo Leon, and other Mexican officials, a special invitation to attend the second annual convention of the South Texas Chamber of Commerce, which is to be held at Laredo, November 19-20.

GRANTED FEDERAL BOND

Roy Franklin made a $500 bond granted him on charges of possession of beer in a hearing before J. A. Lantz, United States commissioner, Monday.

Complaint against Franklin was filed by Charles Gant and George Garrett, deputy sheriffs.

The Fox Film company has just purchased the Poli string of theaters for $20,000,000 in the New England states. That does not sound much like live news way down south in Wichita Falls, but it is significant.

Paramount and other chains are in every state in the Union. When they go in, the independent has a hard time of it.

As it stands in Wichita Falls we get everything. The local houses deal with all of the major companies, Fox, First National, United Artists, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Paramount and the rest. The result is that we are able to have variety, see all of the great stars of the various companies, and get the best each has to offer.

When one film producer owns the movie houses, the public sees that one producer's pictures and none of the rest unless he runs out of pictures.

Wichita Falls is lucky in more ways than one.

Another way in which we are lucky is in that we have the city manager form of government and stand a chance now of getting out of the hole in the next couple of years.

Charlie Moorehead is back from his vacation. To those who go to Mission shows this means a lot. Charlie is always rigging up some new way to make them spend their money and enjoy spending it. Right now, plans are complete for the return of "The Young Rajah," hypnotist, who played to packed houses last week. There is a lot of good entertainment in that show. Whether or not you believe in hypnotism is immaterial. The show is entertainment, and you can't help laughing long and loud if you see it.

POLES PLAN ANOTHER TRY

Rescued Airmen Undaunted By Close Call

OPORTO, Portugal, Aug. 6. (UP) Rested after their hazardous adventure when they were rescued by the steamship Samos after their plane had crashed on the water, the Polish aviators Majors Leon Idzikowski and Casimir Kubala today began their plans for another transatlantic attempt to North America.

It was Major Kubala who revealed to the United Press today that the fliers are undaunted by the failure of their first attempt to cross the Atlantic from east to west.

Flight Related

The story of the flight from the time the giant biplane careened down Le Bourget airdrome, Paris, under its heavy load early Friday to the time the plane landed near the Samos Saturday was related today by Kubala as he left the Oporto military hospital where he was treated for injuries.

"Everything appeared to be going well as we dashed over the Atlantic toward Horta. We sighted several ships, which we afterward learned were reporting our progress," Kubala said.

"A defect developed, however, in the gasoline feed-line and we knew that we must make an attempt to return to Paris.

"On the way back trouble developed in the engine and it was while we were endeavoring to locate the cause that we fell in the sea some 80 miles south of Cape Finisterre. Fortunately for us, the steamship Samos was near and we were saved and the airplane salvaged.

Wings Broken Off

"The wings of the plane were broken off in the crash and the plane otherwise damaged."

Large crowds gathered about the plane today in the Leixoes harbor near here where the Marshal Pilsudski, as the fliers called their plane, was being dismantled and prepared for shipment to Paris. Just how soon the aviators expect to make another attempt is not known, but Kubala said it would be "at the first opportune moment."

Both of the fliers were deeply touched by the rescue and were profuse in their thanks to the captain and crew of the Samos and the Portuguese authorities.

Motion pictures and musical scores featured the luncheon of the Kiwanis club at the Kemp hotel Monday noon.

Joe McMakin and E. F. Bohmfalk soloed on the saxophone and trombone respectively, with Mrs. Cortez Slaughter and Mrs. Bohmfalk playing the accompaniments on the piano.

Armored Payroll Trucks in Service

DALLAS, Aug. 6. (UP)—Armored motor truck service for the delivery of payrolls and bank deposits of Dallas stores was started this week.

The Armored Motor Service company is placing three armored trucks into service. Each will be manned by two heavily armed guards and a driver. The company will cater to chain stores, theaters, filling stations and merchandising stores, and will provide a general "armored taxi service."

Each truck will be supplied with a machine gune, sawed off shotguns and other arms. W. D. Mastin, manager of the service, said a highly satisfactory response had been received and that contracts have been made with several companies. In addition to transporting sums of money for stores, the firm will cater to general trade, such as delivering jewelry and other valuables to storage vaults.

A second armored delivery service will be inaugurated here August 15 by the Merchants Armored Car Service company, it has been announced.
