NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—John W. Davis, Democratic presidential candidate in 1924, called on the American people in an address broadcast tonight over a nation-wide radio hook-up, to "remain true to the nation's birthright of religious liberty and civic equality."

He denounced the satement that a Catholic was disqualified for the presidency as a "bertayal of American ideals," and declared a "muddy deluge of literature and propaganda," was being let loose on the country to lead the people astray from their traditions of religious freedom.

He singled out Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, for criticism. Asserting her speeches had "rightly shocked the country."

Democratic Band Wagon Brings Back Musty Memories In Rally At Idalou

Escape Injuries in Crash of Plane

Miraculously escaping injuries when Chas. Levine's famous trans-Atlantic plane, "Columbia," crashed yesterday, Roger Q. Williams and Pietro Bonnelli, who were taking off on a projected flight to Rome, will have to wait a while longer to cross the ocean. The famous plane was badly damaged. Cesare Sabelli, above center, was not in the plane when it crashed.

Big Crowd Greets Band's Initial Program

"Hell Among the Yearlings," with "Turkey in the Straw" and 'Arkansas Traveler" as well as Soapsuds Over the Fence" and Dixie, reverberated from the Democratic Band Wagon through the community auditorium at Idalou last night, in the first rally to be held by the South Plains Democratic club since its band wagon has been organized.

Auditorium Is Packed.

The auditorium was packed with citizens of Idalou and an enthusiastic reception is reported by the 10 to 15 car-loads of Lubbock Democrats who journeyed there on the band wagon.

The musical numbers were interspersed with political talks by a number of speakers, including Judge Clark M. Mullican, Judge E. L. Klett, James H. Goodman, Owen W. McWhorter and Senator-elect Pink L. Parrish.

Jess C. Levens, secretary of the South Plains Democratic club and bandmaster of the band, stated last night that the club desired to express appreciation to the citizens of Idalou for the reception, particularly of that given by Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Allen.

Mullican Talks Religion.

Judge Mullican, whose talk on the religious question was said to have scored well, said that the forefathers of Americans came here "Catholics as well as Quakers and Puritans," to escape persecution from the Church of England. He told of the constitutional provision, "'No religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States'," and referred to "the inconsistency of religious fanatics who claim Smith is trying to nullify the Constitution as to prohibition on the one hand, while they are trying to nullify it as to religion on the other." He told of persecutions in this country by protestants in early America; burning witches at the stake; driving people into the wilderness to starve or be killed by Indians, and of the Catholic coolny of Maryland receiving them. "The Catholic colony of Maryland," he said, "was the first to declare for religious freedom and to receive these people into their midst.

Following the speech of Dr. Salkeld a Hoover club was organized with a membership said to be between 100 and 150, with the following officers elected: W. S. Mitchell, president; J. T. Elms, Floyd Sadler and Pat Boon, vice presidents, and J. E. Banes, secretary.

Says Smith is Bolter

Dr. Salkeld spoke on many phases of the campaign, particularly emphasizing the fact that Governor Smith bolted the Democratic platform, he charged, and claiming that democrats are not obligated to vote the party ticket because of Smith's stand on modification of the prohibition laws.

He reviewed Governor Smith's record as an assemblyman in the New York legislature and as governor and its relationship to the principles as promulgated by Tammany Hall, and discussed the prohibition question at length.

Texas Agriculture Is In Fair Shape, Federal Man Says

General Condition Averages About 70 Per Cent Normal Over State; Two Million Bales Ginned.

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Oct. 11.—Much of the Texas corn crop is in the crib, cutting and heading of grain sorghums has progressed, about half the cotton crop has been ginned, plowing for fall sowing of small grains has been active, and livestock is in generall good condition with winter grass assured where September rains have fallen, H. H. Scutz, livestock and crop statistican of the federal agricultural department reported here today.

Much Cotton Ginned

Cotton ginnings of 2,420,000 bales, prior to Oct. 1, represent the heaviest percentage for this date since 1923, except last year, when 54 per cent had been ginned. A crop of 5,000,000 five hundred pound gross weight bales is indicated by the 58 per cent condition of the crop.

Corn condition reported at 72 per cent, indicates a production of 101,462,000 bushels compared to 119,347,000 last year, although this season's crop is only slightly less than the past 10 year average. With the price of hogs considerably above the average, and a declining market for corn. There should be better than ordinary profit in feeding corn to hogs.

Rice Yield Good

The 83 per cent condition of rice indicates a probable yield of 41.5 bushels to the acre and total production of 7,221,000 under revised estimates of the area planted.

Production of about 57,910,000 bushels of grain sorghum, two mil-

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

I do not consider that mother mistaken who "pays" her children for work done at home.

She used to be thought a poor sort of mother who brought up her family to be commercially minded. But it would be foolish to persuade ourselves that this standard hasn't been discarded.

We are living, breathing and having our being in a world that thinks of little else but money. Is it fair to a child to bring him to maturity equipped for the struggle?

Money training consists of three things: earning, spending, and saving. In other words, thrift.

Thrift does not mean merely saving in the common conception of the word. It means earning, first of all, and then a wise expenditure of money—buying the right things at the right time, well within one's means, and with a surplus put to join the savings account.

A penny saved is a penny earned but that is not enough. Thrift refers to the more active matter of earning as well.

It is right to pay children for work done at home. An allowance is a better thing. To save part of the money they earn is best of all.

What is wrong with paying John 25 cents to cut the grass, or Mary 10 cents to do the dishes? Not a thing in the world, and it teaches valuable lessons.

Mothers may object to the system on the grounds that John ought to do a favor for his mother for nothing. These same mothers will then give John spending money "for nothing." That is all very well while John is at home.

But unfortunately, that is not the sort of economic world that John will be living in when he is a man. Nobody will give him anything. He will have to learn his lesson when learning is not so easy—the lesson that he has to work and work hard for every nickel he gets.

A boy who is paid for service at home learns to value money. He discovers that money is hard to get and treasures it all the more. What we are given has little value. What we pay for with work or otherwise we prize. We do not spend so lightly or thoughtlessly.

It may be too bad that we are so commercial, but we cannot change change facts and we must prepare our children for the age in which they will live.

Child Study Association Looks Back On Benefits Of Forty Years of Service Renedered to School Kiddies

Mrs. Howard S. Gans, above, for 30 years president of the Child Study Association of America, said, "When my children were young, a 'good child' was one who sat still. Now, in my grandchildren's day, a good child is the active, happy one."

By JULIA BLANSHARD
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—"I used to just smack my children when they were bad and put them to bed without any supper. Then I began to see I should talk to them. Now I have learned that I can make them friends who talk things over with me."

This testimonial, given in broken English by a growing-faced gingham-clad Polish mother from the lower East Side, tells graphically what the Child Study Association of America is doinig to teach thousands of parents how to understand and cope with their modern children.

It is 40 years this fall since a handful of young mothers and educators, perplexed by the "younger generation" even in those pre-flapper, pre-jazz days, started this experiment in parental education by meeting for clinical discussion of their own problems.

In November, this year, the Child Study Association of America will have thousands of members celebrate its 40th birthday, in hundreds of chapters, not only in every state in the union but in Canada, Japan, China and Russia as well.

While many have united in this work, one woman stands out for valiant, continued service as president of the organization for 30 years. She is Mrs. Howard Gans, who joined the group in the 90's when, as the young mother of two children, she suddenly realized that an education in exclusive finishing schools and travel abroad had really taught her nothing she needed to know about rearing children.

"It is almost unbelievable how the world's attitude towards children has changed in three decades." Mrs. Gans said.

"The definition of a 'good child' in those days was one who sat absolutely still, doing nothing. Now, the 'good child' is the active one who is so absorbed working out something for himself or playing that he is entirely unconscious of anybody else.

"Fully as indicative of the new attitude is the father's place in the scheme of things today. In the 90's the father was the provided and the punisher. Now he's 'Dad,' a pal, a comrade, a dominating influence in the child's life.

"In the 90's, when you talked about the child's nature and needs it was a foreign language to most. Folks believed in the God-given parental instinct to manage children. Dewey, Watson and other modern psychologists hadn't appeared yet. Now there is a general appreciation that parents do not know instinctively what to do with children, but must learn.

"In the old days, folks said, 'All children are alike.' Now we know each is different. Given three children who show fear, the chances are that each has had a different reason for it and needs a different treatment.

"The day of punishment for children is really over. Also the terrific misunderstanding between two generations. Parents have learned that they can bridge the big chasm if they stand on tiptoe and copy Alice in Wonderland who felt she must 'keep running fast as she could to stay where she was.'

"By studying modern educational methods, understanding modern literature and never feeling aghast at modern conditions, parents can prepare their children to deal with the problems of today. For children must have freedom but they must be taught, intelligently, how to discipline themselves."

The biggest problem before the Association today is the great American clamor for standardization in dealing with children, just as in running machinery, manufacturing clothes and other mechanical things, according to Mrs. Gans.

One Route to Happiness

"America wants a recipe for dealing with children—a guarantee-to-win formula. Our organization and the many others in the field are beginning to make parents realize that children are the exception to the rule of standardization. Each child needs his own diagnosis and treatment. Only that way can he become the happy individual he should be.

"Our organization has great cause for rejoicing on its 40th birthday," Mrs. Gans concluded. "For it is a pioneer that lives to see so many of its dreams come true. Now, all over America, preparental education is being considered. At least 22 colleges give courses. Clubs are stressing its need."

The Woman's Day

By Alleng Sumner

Sumner

It seems that the burning and perplexing question of the deb and sub-deb as to where and how to park her powder puff and lip-stick at a dance has been solved.

You just use the new modernistic hollow shoe buckles, the buckle of the right having a place of concealment for the puff, and the buckle of the left for the lip-stick.

Sometimes, defender of youth though I always have been, I find myself wondering what in the world is the matter when all the parents are wrestling with staggering problems, economic and otherwise, and youth seems to have little more to think about than where to park its lip-stick or chewing gum or gin or something or other.

Are parents and others supposedly responsible for making life too easy for youth, in attempting to shield it from reality, when less sacrifice and an insistence that youth assume burdens at an earlier age would make stiffer moral caliber?

"CHARGE IT!"

Again the women—wives—are to blame. This time it's for unpaid bills, according to the Collection Agencies Association of Washington.

"Women do not pay—they charge—" says the association's spokesman. "As a rule, hubby pays up. When he doesn't, the association gets busy." He told of the ladies' cute little practices of destroying bills when they get them in the mail rather than show them to their husbands, insisting that they did pay the bill, or that the bill was too high, or that they never got it, or that they never bought the stuff, or that the merchandise was not good.

It does look bad for the girls we'll admit. But if husbands would forget the gesture on which they so dote of Bountiful Male doling out the nickels, and would permit domestic finances handled in a businesslike, sane, and just manner, husbands might not fare so badly.

ONE OLD LADY

Genevieve Parkhurst wrote a magazine article about Miss Emily Howland, Quaker woman of over 100 living near Sherwood, who seems to be one of those few old people who can supply an interpretation to that past world of women which we can have little longer except through history.

The author tells of Miss Howland's showing of the treasures in her calabash bowl—an old yellow glove, a sampler, a hair brooch, a reticule. One wonders just what today's woman might have to show the people who call to see her 80 years from now and want tokens of that world which is ours today?

What could we show? Movie and theater stubs, auto licenses, a radio battery, an orthophonic record, silk hose, beauty clay. Our world may seem as strange to them then as Miss Howland's to us now. But we have nothing so romantic and colorful to hand on as white mitts and reticules and samplers.

proven by practical work in the kitchen, Mrs. Dougan's lectures are not dry discussions of calories, proteins and carbohydrates. Instead she translates these technical ingredients into practical terms of everyday kitchen usage. She makes an especial point of putting something definitely interesting into each of her talks.

Mrs. Dougan's theory is that an appeal to the eye and palate are of prime importance, and that for a successful dinner foods must be both attractive and pleasing of taste.

Best Results Given

Lubbock housewives who often have sighed over the fact that they did not have the opportunities of modern girls, as offered by college home economics courses need lament the fact no longer. All of the best experiments and lessons learned in the college classroom have been condensed for presentation during the cooking school here.

Both old and new dishes will be discussed and demonstrated by Mrs. Dougan. Dishes which were standbys on grandmother's table decades ago as well as "new fangled" concoctions found in the menu of the elite will be demonstrated and explained in a readily understandable, practical way.

All Are Invited

Everywoman in Lubbock is urged to attend the school. Lectures will be held each day starting at 2 o'clock in the afternoon at the Uptown Dance Palace's commodious auditorium on Texas Avenue at Ninth Street. There will be room for everyone and the expense is all of the Avalanche-Journal.

Thanks Lubbock

The following resolution was unanimously adopted by standing vote of the assembly last night, in which the local Presbyterian pastor, Rev. Jack Lewis, his congregation, and the Lubbock daily press were thanked.

"The Synod of Texas desires to express to the pastor and the membership of the Presbyterian church of Lubbock, its heartfelt thanks for their gracious hospitality, untiring readiness to give every assistance for expediting the work of the Synod and anticipating and meeting every want of their guests during the sessions of the court.

"The Synod also thanks the local press and expresses its appreciation of the reports of the proceedings in the daily issues.

"The Stated Clerk is hereby directed to furnish a copy of this resolution to the pastor to be read to his congregation on next Sabbath morning and also a copy to the Lubbock press for publication," Dr. J. C. Oehler was chairman of the resolutions committee.

His projects all are matters urged by Colonel William Mitchell in his famous controversy with the army and navy departments. The Legion endorsed the projects at its convention a year ago asking that the changes be made "as soon as possible."

A meeting of the Legion Auxiliary will be held tomorrow morning and an air circus will be staged by the army, but aside from these events the Legion program closed this afternoon and more than half the delegates and visitors were on their way at midnight.

From Lubbock, Charles F. O'Neall, Frank Wheelock and A. H. Martin, attended the meeting. Attorney Mitchell, of Littlefield, introduced Dr. Salkeld. Mr. O'Neall stated last night that he expected that Salkeld would be brought to Lubbock for a speech during the campaign.

Hold Meeting Here

O'Neall also announced that the Anti-Smith organization here would hold a meeting next Monday night at their headquarters on Broadway, to which would be invited the first voters of Lubbock. He calls attention to all young men and young women who will have become 21 years of age between January 1 and November 7, 1928, to the fact that they can vote in the general election without a poll tax receipt.

At this Monday night meeting which will start at 7:30, a First Voters Hoover league will be formed.

On prohibition, which was Judge Klett's topic, he stated that if the Federal prohibition law were to be repealed, "Lubbock county and this section would have the same enforcement as it has had during the past 10 years," claiming that only the enforcement by local and state officers has been given the prohibition law here as the Republican administration has never sent a Federal enforcement agent to this section.

Of Hoover's flood relief work, he said the nation was behind that, the army, navy and air forces, as well as the Red Cross back of it. Hoover's living 22 years abroad was spoken of, "he has had no experience in government, no finger on the pulse beat and heart throb of American masses, no schooling in statecraft and never met an obstacle or opposition in his life.

In speaking of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Owen W. McWhorter said "The Republicans have, with this commission, taken more power from the states and transferred to the centralized Federal government at Washington. You can not build a railroad in Texas without presenting the matter to this federal commission and getting their permission. Senator Mayfield of Texas has fought to have this changed, but has been blocked by Republicans—controlled by Congress." He cited the railroad growth in West Texas and the fights to extend several roads that have been going on during the past few years, stating, "This shows that these things affect the farmer and the merchant alike, as to transportation by their products and goods, and the high freight rates on what they buy, which are made to protect the Eastern and Northern railroad systems."

Passes Over Spain

Just twelve hours later, the dirigible passed over Barcelona, Spain, well on her way over a course along the southern Atlantic route, westward toward the Azores and America. The northern route had been abandoned even before the flight started because of bad weather condition and even the southern route so far as the continent was concerned was none too good. Out at sea, however, conditions were reported more favorable.

Take 85 Hours

The latest estimate of the length of the flight was made by Commanders Lehmann and Flemming who told the correspondent for the Associated Press that they thought it would take from 80 to 85 hours because of the heavy headwinds that had been forecast. This would bring the dirigible into Lakehurst, some time between 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. Sunday.

Comparative Scores Give Matadors Edge Over Saints

High School Gridsters Set For Battle With Tigers At Slaton Today

St. Edwards Team Coming Saturday Made Up Of Vets

Meagher's Eleven Exhibited Worlds of Driving Power In Game With Rice Owls Last Week.

(Special To The Avalanche)

AUSTIN, Oct. 11.—If comparative scores are a reliable criterion, the Tech Matadors should gain an certain victory over the St. Edwards University Saints next Saturday when the two teams meet in Lubbock.

Two Saturdays ago the Texas Longhorns had a rather easy time beating the Saints by a 32 to 0 score, but last Saturday they were able to push over only two touchdowns against Tech. The statistics of the two games seem to indicate that Tech is stronger on both the offense and defense than are the Saints.

The dope is somewhat complicated however, by the performance of St. Edwards against the Rice Owls last Saturday in Houston. Reports from the Bayou city indicate that the Saints played football despite the unseasonable weather, whereas Rice showed only a few flashes.

The Saints beat Rice by practically the same score that Texas beat the Saints but it is hard to figure that Texas is some ten touchdowns better than Rice. The solution of the problem seems to be that although St. Edwards undoubtedly played a better game against the Owls than they did against the Steers, Rice was not up to par. All of which leads to the conclusion that Tech has the advantage but will have no walkaway.

Heading the list of Saint players are the co-captains, Sam Dyer and Al Sarafiny, veterans who are playing their last season of college football after having starred for three years. With a safe reputation as an all-Texas conference halfback, Dyer needs little introduction to Texas football fans. Sarafiny is perhaps not as well known, because of playing a less conspicious position, but he is nevertheless a center with a few peers in this section of the country. He passes, blocks and tackles with the best of them.

Flanking Sarafiny are Hertenberger and Jenett, a pair of guards who have plenty of drive and who know how to play their positions. Both are letter men, Jewett for three years and Hertenberger for two years.

At tackles, St. Edwards has Krause and Wainscott, rated as among the best in the Texas conference. Krause is playing his last year and Wainscott his second. Wainscott received a shoulder injury that may keep him out of Saturday's fray. In that case, Vogt may be shifted from end, as he has had considerable experience at tackle.

The Saint ends Brotherman and Hannan, showed up well in the Rice game, smearing many attempted end runs and working well on the offense also. This line is one that should fight on about even terms with the stone wall that the Matadors threw up against Texas last Saturday.

Four Leter Backs

In the backfield, Coach Meagher will have available four letter men and two or three new men who did excellent work against the Owls. The letter men, besides Dyer, are James, quarterback; Kilday, fullback, and Parma, halfback. Kilday and James are both seniors and first class men. Parma is a second year man, but he is proving to be an able ball carrier and a good emergency punter.

Besides these veterans there are Jansing and Figari, coming halfbacks; Ewen, fullback, and Fanette, quarterback. All of these men did good work against Rice. Jansing especially coming in for high praise on the part of the Houston sports writers. This big fellow carried the ball through the line and around the ends with great eclat and also did a good job of punting.

MEADOW BROOK FOUR WINS

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (AP)—The Meadow Brook four today won the United States open polo championship, defeating a crack army aggregation, 8 goals to 5 in the finals on International field at the Meadow Brook club.

Winston Guest, back of the United States "Big Four" which defeated Argentina last week for the championship of the Americas, again played a leading role in Meadow Brook's victory.

Toe Operation

HOUSTON, Oct. 11. (AP)—The proverb that "constant dripping wears away a stone" may be applied to the big toe of the left foot belonging to the "Iron Man" Bill Hallahan, southpaw Houston hurler and Texas league strikeout king.

"Sweet William" plans to have an operation performed in the near future to remove a sore which has developed at the base of the big toe, came into constant contact with the slab in the pitcher's box when he was toiling. In the four games of the Texas league playoff Hallahan won two and saved another and he performed in the relief role the day after holding Birmingham, to two hits in nine innings during the Dixie series.

FORT WORTH, Oct. 11.—Cyrus Leland, fleet sophomore back, will be one of the new me non the Horned Frog squad who will be in the starting lineup against Austin College here Saturday. Coach Bell plans to start several men who have gone in as subs so far this season as it will be his last chance to ee how they hape up before sending them in against conference competition.

Cyrus Leland, who will make his first appearance in regularly scheduled game with, the Texas Christian College Horned Frogs against the Austin College Kangaroos at Fort Worth Saturday afternoon as announced by Matty Bell, Frog mentor, to the Associated Press, is a graduate of the Lubbock high school and a former member of the Westener gridiron machine, enjoying his most successful season with the local high school griders in 1925.

Leland, too, was one of the fleetest sprinters ever turned out of the local school, copping the 100, 220 yard dashes in 1025 and at present holds the 220 yard record for the South Plains Interscholastic league meet, which is held annually in Lubbock.

He is the brother of Mrs. Marlin Smith of this city.

Frogs Expect Hard Battle With A. C.

FORT WORTH, Oct. 11.—Texas Christian University will take no chances with the strong Austin college team from Sherman Saturday when the teams meet for the Frogs' fourth scrap of the year. The Kangaroos have demonstrated the fact that they have a good crew and their play in their 36-0 victory over the Abilene Christian college at Dallas Tuesday has dispelled all thoughts of an easy victory in the minds of the Frog coaches.

The Frog fray will be the fourth indulged in by the Sherman school in nine days. Last Saturday the team was divided and two games were played on the same day. One of these battles was won 2-0 while the other was lost by a good margin. Then only three days later they defeated the Abilene team by a decisive score and had only four days to prepare for their battle at Fort Worth. Coach Matty Bell, who scouted the Tuesday scrap in person, came home with his whip unleashed and has been driving his charges as though the biggest game of the year was in the offing.

Junior High Team Wins From Slaton By 12 to 2 Score

Local Junior Gridsters Get Jump On Slaton Junior Eleven; Corley Makes Long Runs for Counters.

The Lubbock Junior High school gridsters got the jump on the Slaton Junior High football eleven in the first quarter and downed the invaders 12 to 2 Thursday afternoon at Merrill Park in a tightly contested gridiron fray. The locals scored in the first few minutes of play when Archie Corley returned the kickoff to the Slaton 5 yard line, the team carrying the ball across.

Corley also scored the second marker by returning a Slaton punt fifty yards through the enemy team with the aid of perfect interference. This lead, the locals held throughout the game, displaying stubborn resistence when their goal was threatened. On a number of occasions the Junior Tigers from Slaton carried the ball with a few yards of the Lubbock goal and were held for downs.

After their brief attack at the beginning of the game, the Junior Westerners were kept on the defense by the heavy Tiger crew. The visitors prevented a shutout in the second half by registering a safety. After holding the Tigers for downs the locals attempted to kick out but the punter stepped behind his goal line, giving the Slatonites their two points.

The Lubbock line played a stellar brand of defensive football considering the weight handicap against them. Jones, at tackle, was the outstanding performer. The red skin youth broke through the enemy line repeatedly to throw the runner for a loss.

Landis Pays Off Champion Yankees

Baseball Commissioner Is Signer of Checks That Gives Champions Largest Cut Ever Given Winners

CHICAGO, Oct. 11. (AP)—Financial echoes of the world series reverberated from the office of the baseball commissioner today, as Kenesaw Mountain Landis signed over checks totaling $176,289.37 to the victorious New York Yankees.

The commissioner disposed of the Yankees division of the spoils in checks ranging from $500, the amount given Mrs. Urban Shocker, widow of the former Yankee hurler, to $5,813.20, the sum received by 26 players, coaches and Manager Miller Huggins.

From the bat boy to the mighty Babe there was something for all.

It was the largest cut ever received by a team winning the world series. While having no comment to make, Commissioner Landis' beaming countenance expressed his satisfaction at the success of the 1928 series.

Razorbacks Leave For Baylor Tilt

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Oct. 11. (AP)—Twenty-three Razorback football huskies left here tonight for Texarkana, where Arkansas will meet Baylor university Saturday in the Arkansans first Southwest Conference football game.

The Porkers will put a 200-pound forward wall on the field, but the Texans will have a slight edge in reserve strength.

The game between the Porkers and the Bears originally was scheduled for Little Rock, Ark.

Aggie-Centenary Tilt Outstanding

COLLEGE STATION, Oct. 11.—Two maroon and white teams both of whom won national praise last season and each of whom carried away honors in its conference last fall, will clash on Kyle Field Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock when the Texas Aggie gridsters of Coach Dana X. Bible and Coach Homer Norton's Centenary Gentlemen meet in what is expected to be one of the outstanding games of the southwest football card this year.

The Aggies last year went through to the championship of the Southwest Conference, winning all of their games except one, which resulted in a scoreless tie with the T. C. U. Horned Frogs. The Gents were victors in the S. I. A. A. and were one of the few teams in the country who finished with a record marred by neither a defeat nor a tie game. Both of the teams were among the high point scorers of the country, the Aggies finished last fall with a total of 262 points to their opponents' 32 and the Gents closing with 259 points to their opponents' 37.

Longhorns Primed For Vandy Clash

AUSTIN, Oct. 11. (AP)—A cautious football team representing the University of Texas, not over-confident but determined, will leave here Friday for Dallas to tie up with the Vanderbilt university squad in the annual state fair game Saturday.

A weeks hard practice ended today with signal practice—a week in which the Longhorns have had time to ponder over Vanderbilt's victory over Colgate, one of the East's strongest teams.

Longhorns draw some consolation from the fact that Armistead, who made such a showing in the Colgate game, is no new problem for the Texas squad. Armistead was with the Commodores last year when Texas won, 13 to 6.

Critic Eulogizes Tech For Showing In Longhorn Tilt

Austin Sport Writer Says Matadors Would Have Made Any Leading Team Look Bad.

That the Matadors made a remarkable showing against the Texas Longhorns last week is substantuated by an Austin sport writer, who gives the Tech aggregation credit for having a wonderful football machine that would have made any of the so-called leading teams look bad.

Taking a hand in the complicated melee of interpretations of the Tech-Texas tilt, this sport scribe points out that the Longhorns were up against a powerful defensive team and therefore the Texas followers should not take the results of the game so seriously.

An excerpt from his series of remarks follows:

"We happened to be present at the Tech game last Saturday and we want to say right now, that that bunch of cowboys from Lubbock are no set-ups for any football team. They are all large, powerful and fast men, and are coached by as clever a coach as there is in this neck of the woods—Freeland."

Littlefield started his second string against the Matadors but was forced to hurry in some of his big guns, when the huskies from Lubbock had the ball uncomfortable close to the Texas goal line in the first quarter. Then at the beginning of the second half, Littlefield sent in his entire first team, and it was a different story then. The Longhorns were up against a powerful defensive team, and a team that would make many of the so-called leading teams look bad. The weather was more suited for baseball than football, and summing up their showing from every angle, we don't see a thing to become alarmed about."

While many dopsters seemed to think that the Texas eleven was held back in the Matador game, there is at least one who gives the Scarlet and Black warriors credit for giving the Longhorn sa real battle. A victory over the Vanderbilt Commodores next Saturday will make the Tech showing against Texas even more brilliant. Some critics feel that the Longhorns are in for a sound drubbing while those who have followed the team closely predict a victory for the Southwest conference team.

The melancholy days are almost here when sporting editors receive letters beginning with, "Permit me to call your attention to Willie Keeler's feat in playing the whole season without striking out . . ."

We are now wondering what became of the Weisenheimers who predicted a couple of weeks ago that the Athletics would win the pennant because the other teams in the league would rather see them cop than the Yanks.

In selecting his all-star team this season, O'Goofty wants to be sure to have Clark Griffith to buy and sell the players. It's a good thing Altrock is with Washington. Griffi probably would trade Bucky Harris, Goose Goslin and Joe Judge for him.

Judging by the success the gray-haired pitchers have had this year, the training camps in spring are going to look like a Grand Army encampment.

St. Louis crowds during the last few days of the National League chase, ran between 40,000 and 50,000. Just as a tip to Sam Breadon—he'd better make room for 1,000,000 for the first game that old Aleck wins against the Yanks.

Tigers Determined To Uphold Record On Home Gridiron

Large Squad of Gridsters Make First Trip; Coaches Expect Hard Tussle With Slatonites.

Coaches Henry Frnka and Del Morgan will leave shortly after noon today with their high school Westerners for Slaton where they will tie up with the fighting Tigers of Slaton in the first game for the locals on foreign soil. With a clean slate for their home games, the Tigers are expected to put up a bitter fight to ward off defeat from the hands of the undefeated Westerners.

In view of the hard game, the local coaches are taking a large squad of reserves to the neighboring city. The Tigers are reputed as having one of the strongest clubs in the history of the school, having defeated the Tahoka Bulldogs by a decesive score.

Aside from the quarterback position, practically the same team that started against the Quanah Indians last week will be on the field when the game starts today. Capt. Earnest Dowell will run the team in the place of Moody Smith. The other probably backfield selections are Pangburn and Teal, halfbacks and Lawson, fullback.

In the line Buckingham will likely start at center. Calhoun and Wilson will be at guards flanked by Barton and Frizzell at the tackle posts. The regular wingmen, Rich and Castleberry will be at their posts.

The officials for the tilt who are going from Lubbock are Ingerton, Condray and Vermillion.

Lubbock County's Exhibit Makes Big Hit In State Fair, McKinley Reports; Million Or More To View The Display

Uniqueness of Booth Draws Many Visitors; Fair Officials Comment Upon Plan.

Although not having an array of agricultural exhibits in the number assortment and manner of exhibition, conforming to the rules governing entry into competition with other counties of the southwest, the Lubbock county exhibit at the Dallas State Fair is creating more favorable comment among the million or so visitors attending the great exposition than is the exhibit of any county.

Reason for this unexcelled attention, according to Bill McKinley, who has been to Dallas with the Lubbock county exhibit, returning here yesterday, is the unique exhibit that this county sent to the fair. The exhibit is in charge of Garnett Reeves, publicity manager of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce. The interest created in Lubbock and the South Plains section by this unusual exhibit has been tested out in various manners at the fair and found to exceed by far the interest in any other single exhibit.

Planned Differently.

Because the exhibit was planned differently from any other county's it will not compete in any of the prizes offered for county exhibits. It gives a graphic picture of what the South Plains has to offer, however, and "sticks out like a sore thumb" to every passerby.

There is a large wheel, on which eight of the principal products of this section are suspended, which revolves slowly all the time and by its motion attracts the onlooker. Placards on this wheel explain the amount of these products produced here. It is the only moving object in any of the agricultural exhibits at the fair.

Highways and railways of the section are depicted on this wheel and a miniature reproduction of Texas Technological College, carved out of wood, shows the college in perspective and layout of buildings, with information regarding the school.

On the rear wall of the exhibit booth there is a colored map of the South Plains section, showing Lubbock as the "Hub of the Plains," signs on all sides telling much valuable information about both city and county.

Test Drawing Power.

Mr. McKinley stated yesterday that he and Garnett Reeves, in testing the drawing power of the Lubbock booth, compared the number of visitors who stopped at the booth and at the best one of the other county booths. While these onlookers stopped for from one to three minutes at the other booth, and in groups of four or five, when they came to the Lubbock booth they stayed from five to 25 minutes and in groups of from five to a dozen at a time. An average of 10 minutes to each visitor, in looking at the Lubbock display was noted.

An official of the Dallas Fair Association told the Lubbock men that their exhibit was approached in drawing power by only one other exhibit at the entire big event. This was that of the Texas Power & Light company, in the Industrial Building, where it had installed a display costing them $17,500.

Davis Goes to Dallas.

A. B. Davis, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, who left last night for Dallas to attend the fair, said that the idea of the Lubbock county exhibit was concieved several years ago and that the plan of having somethat that "sold" the section to strangers who would look upon its county exhibit was planned to be different from the old-time and stereotyped idea of every county having its agricultural display made up on similar lines.

One feature of the Lubbock county part of the great State Fair was the display of fine apples raised here. These are of such enormity in size than many people, in investigating them, asked to feel them, thinking they were made of wax.

Planes to Make Tour of 3 States

ORANGE, Oct. 11. (AP)—The airplane of H. J. Lutcher Stark, millionaire lumberman and regent of the University of Texas, will take part in a good will trip over three states, which started from New Orleans on October 9. The plane will be piloted by Lieut. Bledsoe Payne and J. I. Byrne, general manager of the Orange Car and Steel company, with W. K. Ennis, superintendent of the company's aircraft section.

The craft is to be accompanied by nine other planes, and will carry approximately 25 passengers. They will pass over parts of Mississippi, Louisana and Texas, stopping at the principal airports in the section. The chamber of commerce is sponsoring the flight, believed to be the first of this nature in this section of the country.

SHEEP KEEPS BABE

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Oct. 11 (AP)—Not all lost children are kidnapped. After Billy Coe, 2, had been missing two days he turned up with a flock of sheep, ten miles from his father's farm at Warnock. A posse of farmers and sheriff's deputies found him happily strolling along with his dooly companions. Billy, it appeared, had avoided complications as a result of his exposure to the elements by turning in with the sheep when night came.

OUR "NATURAL RELIGION"

Ed Howe, the well-loved Kansas editor, remarks that he believes he has a "natural religion."

"If I pass a church," he writes, "and faintly hear the organ and choir, I have heard a sermon that does me good."

Probably a good many of us are in Mr. Howe's class. Living in a world in which the requirements of bread and butter compel us to devote most of our time to the job of making a living, we fall out of touch with spiritual values. Yet we aren't entirely out of tune, for all that; dimly-heard music, caught out of the air, can be to us, as to Mr. Howe, "a sermon that does us good." These chance eavesdroppings are important. It would be a mistake to assume that a man can worship only when he has donned his best suit of clothes, composed his mind and seated himself in a pew. Life continually throws out accidential little snatches of organ music to us; a hurried moment on a busy street in broad daylight can rift the clouds and give us a vision of the world's glory and majesty. When you walk down a city sidewalk, impatient of the crowds that jostle you, you are in reality moving through a tousand separate human dramas—each one of which would move you to your heart if you could see it clearly. You encounter, for instance, a shabbily dressed woman with a chubby little boy, pausing at a window of a toy shop. The boy's face shines with the eagerness fo expectant youth; the mother's tells of a life time of self-denial and penny-pinching. The boy points a grubby finger at some cheap gay toy and looks up questioningly; the mother hesitates, then smiles — and they go in. You lose them. But the memory of the smile will stay with you; a beacon light of love and endurance and pity. People are infinitely nobler and better than we usually think. There is a divinity in human nature that silences forever our sneers and doubts whenever we get a glimpse of it. For the most part it goes unnoticed. We go about our daily routine, through a mass of strange faces, without ever suspecting that the unknown people we meet are other than they seem. Then, unexpectedly, some little thing happens; we hear a stray word, catch a sudden smile—and then we know. The organ and the choir! You can hear them everywhere, if you will listen. They are contained in the daily, ordinary words and movements of plain human beings, fighting unknown fights and meeting unknown tragedies; yet they come from a farther place. They prove that whatever else life may be—however frustrated, unhappy or tragic—it is never mean or ignoble. There are glory and splendor in and around it.

SPEAK AT THE POLLS

There is a great effort being put forth by leaders of this nation to get the people of America to wake up to the importance of going to the polls and voting. "Vote as you please, but vote." This is the sentiment expressed by the leaders of our nation. None of us are very uneasy about the safety of the nation as long as the people will take a part in the election of people to be their representatives. It is when the voters become unconcerned and uninterested that the danger comes in. It is when only a little more than half of the voters of America exercise their soverign rights at the ballot box that the situation could become serious. Senator Capper of Kansas in a recent meeting of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, assembled in Kansas City addressed them and he urged that they vote. He stated among other things that to vote and make your vote count. If there is a candidate on the ticket that you do not approve, vote for his opponent. Unless you vote for his opponent, you actually give the obnoxious candidate half a vote. It is a shameful fact that four years ago only 51 per cent of the qualified voters of the United States took part in the presidential election. I believe this will be increased this year. I am glad to find greater interest in ploitics among women than ever before. The non-voters is a cipher in his community in the one thing given him with which he can make his personal influence definitely count. The more decisive an election is, the better. It is the best that the people should speak emphatically when hey do speak. Such elections clear the political atmosphere. When the people show decisively that they approve a certain measure, that usually ends further political opposition."

NEW YORK DEMOCRACY

The unavailability of Governor Smith to succeed himself placed upon the democratic party in his state a difficulty from which it has long been free due to the lengh of time in which he has served as the head of the state and of his party, with victories over republican candidates so numerous as to show clearly that they were personal rather than party. For years it has had a winner always at hand. This time it had to hunt for one. Since New York is normally a republican state, it has been evident that if Governor Smith is to be succeeded by a democrat the party must place in nomination a man who, like the governor, can not only hold party factions in line, but also win republican votes. In the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt the New York democracy has chosen wisely, indeed. It is something of a coincidence that its choice should be fixed upon a man who, in declining the nomination a decade ago, cleared the way for the rise of Alfred Smith to the governor's chair, a man who suggested and fathered the Smith campaign then as he is contributing splendidly to it now. Men of Mr. Roosevelt's persoal charm, mental attainments and ability are the exception rather than the rule in politics. The New York democrats are fortunate in having been able to overcome his objections because of ill-health. New York itself is fortunate in having the choice of nominees in Mr. Ottinger, both of whom are admirably fitted for the office they seek.

WHY BE UNEMPLOYED?

Although under the republican administration there are sundry millions of persons unemployed, there seems to be no real reason for anybody being unable to earn a living. Out at San Angelo a man has been making good money by posing as a statute in the show window of a clothing store. He offers $100—and probably has the cash in hand — to anybody who can make him smile; and hour after hour he stands as still and as dumb as a wax figure while the sidewalk traffic passes or pauses to stare at him or, maybe, to try a trick or two in an effort to compell him to relax and show some of the symptoms of life.

It isn't the kind of profession most of us would choose, but it suffices. Being paid for refusing to smile takes all the joy out of life; but, perhaps, it's better to banish the smiles and have a full dinner pail than to smile and go hungry. Anyway, there's no excuse for anybody starving to death when money can be earned so easily.

Bank statements of last week show that West Texas banks are in better condition than last year, and that means that most of the people, are. There are many people who are no flush with money now, but most of the farmers are pretty well caught up, and do not owe the usual large amounts. It's a mighty good condition that exist, and we should all feel proud that we are in West Texas.

Texas is attracting more attention every year. Some four years ago we were in the eyes of the people because of a woman governor. We are in he eyes of the world now, because we have gotten into the middle of the presidential fight, first by getting the national democratic convention and then by furnishing the battle ground for the parties to fight over the votes of the tsate for president.

The theatre-going people of Sweetwater are anxious to have talking pictures in their theatres, and the theatre owners do not believe their business will justify the installation of the equipment. But the patrons are going to have the talkies if possible and are organized for the sale of several thousand tickets to be paid for in advance and the money turned in to the theatre owners to put on the new feature. That Sweetwater bunch go after things when they want it. They have always been a bunch that realized that if a thing was worth having it was worth going after, and while that sometimes fails it is very seldom, and they are to be commended for their enterprise. It is such folks as the Sweetwater people that make things happen.

It seems that Hickman is just about at his rope's end. That is, he will be on the 19th, unless something slips between now and that time. He has lived several months longer than most people thought he would at the time the awful crime was committed, and it seems that his lawyers have made a hard, faihful fight to save his neck, but all the while we have thought that was where he would finally get it.

By a vote of four to one the Brown county voters authorized the issuance of $1,650,000 road bonds last week.

SO THINK WE

It would be a mighty good thing to mark the streets as it is a very difficult thing to find the street you are looking for if there is no marker anywhere within several blocks to give you the information.

Parking space might be very beneficially conserved if the streets were uniformly marked, and automobiles parked accordingly. This is done in many cities and it seems to work very satisfactorily, both in keeping the proper angle and the spacing distances, which prevents injuries to cars often resulting from jamming in the parking spaces.

We think it will be a great relief to many people when this presidential campaign is over. Both sides are certain and we just cannot believe that both can be right, so we are anxious to see how the thing turns out.

We think that oil wells and such like are great things for flushing conditions up temporarily, but the good old agricultural backing, suplimented by the cow, the sow and the hen is hard to beat for permanent development, and brings more general prosperity. That is the reason that the Lubbock trade territory is going to be the best in the southwest for many years to come.

We think many of the West Texas communities have a hard time keeping up with the requirements for schools. A section of country that is improving as rapidly as this along every line certainly has to keep humping to keep up with the developments in the way of schools, but the South Plains section is doing that in a great way, and it is one of the greatest drawing cards of this section. Good schools and good churches and clean towns will induce good people.

We think its well to look after the sanitary conditions in the out-skirts of the city. We may keep the heart of the city as clean and polished as a mirrow, but if unsanitary conditions are allowed to exist around the edges, it is liable to spread disease and other unpleasant conditions over the entire town. Better sanitary conditions should be afforded the Mexicans of Lubbock. As long as they are with us and they are here to stay it is necessary that we look after their health conditions for ou rown protection if nothing else.

We think the hotel situation is hardly more crowded in Big Spring than the jail. We read in the Big Spring Herald that one hundred and thirty-one people were in the jail at that place during the month of September, and no doubt there were that many more who should have been, and this is no reflection on the officers of that city either, but that is the usual proportion in any town. The people protect many of those who need to be behind the bars.

We think that loose conduct can at least be depended upon to lead into mighty tight places some times.

We think Mr. Ford is probably correct in his statement that hard work is the secret to success. This, no doubt is true, but it does not always bring success. Some men work as hard as others and never succeed. It takes something besides hard work to bring success. It takes a lot of good common horsesense along with the work, to make things go over in good shape.

PRESS COMMENTS

MOMENTUM

West Texas has speed on its highways, and is speeding the improvement program.

Reagan County soon will submit the matter of a 306,000 bond issue to the voters for hardsurfacing the petroleum highway, coinciding with highway No. 99 west of San Angelo Brown County Monday is voting on one of the largest single county wide issues in Texas.

Brown County's action is highly significant for San Angelo as regards traffic east of here for with outBrown County's roads improved, traffic east out of San Angelo will have hard surfaced roads all the way to Brownwood, getting the links connected up with Fort Worth. More significant is the program west of this city including over 171 miles of the petroleum highway, piercing the productive oil fields of West Texas.

The recent rainy period with its resultant mud and traffic tie-ups has been convincing argument to many persons who wanted to go somewhere and couldn't—San Angelo Standard.

YOUR HEALTH

CALCIUM IS IMPORTANT ITEM IN THE DIET

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Ass'n and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

One of the substances most needed in the human dietary is calcium, the substance responsible for the building of bones and teeth, as well as for many other functions.

It is concerned in the general handling of mineral elements, in the actions of the muscles and of the heart, in the use of iron, and in the stability of the nervous system.

Unless the body has sufficient calcium, bones do not develop properly and there may be contractions of the large bones and stunted growth.

Daily Requirement

The average adult person requires about 0.45 grams of calcium per day, which is only about 1-60 of an ounce. Women who are having children require more calcium since the child draws on the mother's supply for the growth of its skeleton.

In the same way nursing mothers require additional calcium so that that child may secure a sufficient amount in the milk. The child of from three to 13 years requires about twice as much calcium as the average adult; namely about 1-30 of an ounce each day.

Calcium is to be had in the diet in many forms, but is supplied particularly by milk. It occurs, of course, in vegetable foods, but the milk appears to be in what is called an easily utilizable form; namely, it is more easily handled by the digestive processes of the body.

It has been found, of course, that milk products also contain considerable quantities of calcium, this substance being retained when the milk is changed into cheese, with the additional factor that cheese is a more concentrated form of food.

Cheese Has It

One and six-tenths cubic inches of American cheese contains 20 times as much calcium as four ounces of lean beef and 12 times as much calcium as one egg yolk.

There are two types of cheese, sour milk cheeses, such as cottage cheese and the rennet cheeses, which include most of the others. Swiss cheese has 14 times as much calcium as has cottage cheese weight for weight. Therefore, all cheese must not be considered as equally valuable in supplying calcium.

Cheese is a concentrated food and is best used when combined with bread, crackers and other substances which promote thorough chewing before swallowing.

IT IS REPORTED

Every county fair in the South Plains area went over with much success this year. This section of the country is in fine shape and exhibits were numerous this season which makes a fair a reasonable easy proposition to put over.

The Republicans claim prosperity and the Democrats claim corruption. We do not know which one is right, but maybe a change would be alright.

More people are taking an interest in fire prevention in the United States this year than ever before. America is awake to the enormous losses each year by fire, and it is hoped to be able to eliminate part of them. If everyone will be cautious about fires we are sure there will be a big reduction.

People who make their dreams come true always have to wake up.

It is reported that there is plenty of argument on both sides of the political question.

It is reported that there is two sides to every argument except when it is between the husband and wife.

It is reported that there were many prize winners in the poultry department of the Panhandle-South Plains fair this year from the South Plains and this indicates that there is much improvement in the quality of the poultry raised in this country now as compared with former years.

It is reported that there was much favorable comment on the fine showing that was made at the fair this year in the livestock department. The very best animals to be found in the country were here, and in the new livestock building the showing was much more favorable.

It is reported that even with the new building there was not room enough for all of the animals entered for the fair exhibition. The dairy cows belonging to the farmers need to be taken care of in a better way, and this is really the part of the dairy business that needs to be taken care of in good shape. This is the part of the dairy business that should be given attention, for it is this class of cattle that the South Plains is depending upon as the source of production.

It is reported that Lubbock is the only city between Amarillo and Abilene that have the stop light signals as traffic regulators. Lubbock is just naturally a center of progressiveness and it is nothing but natural that this up-to-date regulation is found here.

LAUGHS

Not for many years has old Baxter been more than four or five miles from his native village but, having come into money, he decided to visit old friends in London and Manchester.

"Taxi, sir?" a driver bawled in his ear immediately as he emerged from the London terminus.

Baxter shook his head.

After seeing London, he went on to Manchester. Again, as he left the station, a taxi pulled up to the curb.

"Taxi, sir?" asked the driver.

"No, no!" snapped Baxter. "I said no in London. Now stop following me about!"—Edinburgh Scotsman.

History Of Presidential Elections

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN
Author of "The American Government"

XII THE DEMOCRACY REUNITED

Washington, D. C., Oct. 11—When the Democratic National Convention of 1852 met in Baltimore there was a general feeling in the party that a nomination was equivalent to an election, and therefore no dearth of candidates. There were Stephen A. Douglas, Lewis Cass, William L. Marcy, James Buchanan and Sam Houston, with Franklin Pierce as a dark horse. General Cass started out the favorite, and after a number of ballots had been taken he came within hailing distance of a majority of the convention, but immediately began to lose. On the 49th ballot the convention stampeded to Franklin Pierce. William R. King of Alabama, was nominated as his running mate.

It is asserted by some authorities that the nomination of Pierce as a dark horse had been planned weeks before, under the guiding hand of his college chum and lifelong friend, Senator James W. Bradbury of Maine, although it may well be doubted whether any one could stage such a finale as was witnessed. It is evident, however, that there was an agreement that the first support Pierce should get was to come from outside of New England, a support which Virginia gave him after some thirty-odd fruitless ballots had been taken.

The Whig convention met in the building that lately had been the scene of the Democratic struggle, and it also was deadlocked. Millard Fillmore had succeeded to the prsediency uopn the death of General Taylor, and had immediately aligned himself with the liberal Whigs, a direct reversal of the Taylor policy. Some assert that Fillmore's quarrel with William H. Seward over the patronage of the state of New York was really responsible for Fillmore's recognition of the liberals. Fillmore had 133 on the first ballot in the convention, General Scott 131, and Daniel Webster 29. The battle continued hour after hour and day after day until the 53rd ballot, on which General Scott had 12 more votes than were necessary. The convention then nominated William A. Graham of North Carolina, for vice president.

Free Soilers Lose Ground.

The Free Soilers held a convention in Pittsburgh and nominated Hale of New Hampshire and Julian of Indiana. They had lost ground in four years and also were not able to affect the result in a single state in 1852.

If the Whigs had thought to win a third president on the war hero issue, they reckoned without their host, for, from the day that a delegate, immediately following the nomination, read a letter from General Scott accepting it—a letter plainly written before the nomination had been made—their war hero counteracted the effect of hero worship by doing ridiculous things. A New York paper published his stump speeches under the headlines: "The Modern Epic. Fifty-two speeches by Major General Winfield Scott, embracing a narrative of a trip to the Blue Licks and back to Washington in search of a site for a military hospital, the Iliad of the Nineteenth Century."

Scott did not want to appear as going on the stump, so he had a trip arranged which would take him to Blue Luicks, Ky., to locate a military hospital, and he swung around the circle to get there. Much fun was made of his gushing flattery as he tried to counteract the effect of some of the letters he had written leaning toward the stopping of immigration. He told how he loved "the rich Irish brogue" and the "sweet German accent" of his auditors, and his efforts were so obvious as almost to laugh the hero out of court. He was called "Old Fuss and Feathers."

Campaign Canards Not Modern.

On the other hand, Pierce did not escape the ridicule of the enemy. He was accused of being a drunkard, and a circumstantial story of how "he had sworn off his convivial habits" to his friends if they should land him in the presidential chair. It was charged that while a brigadier general in the Mexican War, he had fainted from fright at the battle on the plains of Churubusco, and a campaign poem was generally circulated comparing the fainting Pierce with the lare-devil bravery of "Old Chapultepec."

The Whigs had failed to meet the views of the Seward element on the slavery question, and the platform, satisfying the Southern Whigs, failed to please the Northerners. The

MEDITATION

ON THIRD BASE

Friday. Scripture Lesson, read Revelation 22:10-17. Meditation for the day: "The Spirit and the bride say, Come! And he that heareth, let him say, Come!" The famous evangelist, Billy Sunday, as every one knows, was once a baseball player. At one of his meetings, a man coming down the aisle to shake hands with the evangelist as a token of acceptance of Christ, shouted as he came, "O Bill! I've been on third base for twenty years!" Billy Sunday shouted back instantly, "Come on in home, boss!" "I am home now," answered the man, as he shook hands with Dr. Sunday and happily took his place on the bench.

Twenty years so close to the home plate, and yet not there! Twenty years of near-victory over sin, but sad record! And yet it is the record of many and many a soul.

No one plays baseball that way. If a player reaches third base how eager he is to complete the run and make the score! As soon as the ball is struck, off he goes with all his might, and slides over the plate, his eager hand outstretched to touch the goal. No dallying on third base in a league game!

Why not come on in home, and why not do it now?

Let one of the parents offer a prayer that all in the room may come to the Saviour without delay, since postponement may mean that one will never reach home.

Public Opinion

Editor Avalanche, Lubbock.

In reading the letter from J. D. Cunningham, in the Avalanche of Oct. 9th, I notice he says he is sick. I think he is not only sick, but must be "out of his head." Since when has conditions in Texas been such that a citizen can't vote for the man of his choice without being punished "as he richly deserves?" We are hearing this cry of "traitor" from every Smith camp. The Anti-Smith men are the real friends of the democratic party. If by any chance Smith should be elected, it would be the beginning of the end of the democratic party in America. The real friends of the party are trying to prevent this and the real "traitors" are the Smith people.

While on the subject of bolters, I might remind our friends that practically all the progress of the world has been by bolters. In the real, in religion, we have such bolters as Jesus Christ, Paul and the other Apostles, Martin Luther, John Knox, John Wesley and many others. In politics we have such "traitors" as Geo. Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Robert E. Lee, Stonwall Jackson, Jefferson Davis, and Alfred E. Smith, who bolted the democratic party at the Houston convention.

Judge Parrish, in his speech at Lamesa, holds out the fear that if the South Plains county vote for Hoover the State Legislature might refuse to appropriate money for the expense of the Tech college. He seems to forget that the Tech does not belong to Lubbock, but is a state institution belonging to every citizen of the state, Smith men, Hoover men, Democrats, Republicans and Populists. The Judge will be a member of the next legislature. I would like to ask him how he stands on the subject. Is he going to let the fact that the South Plains will vote for Hoover influence his action? To even intimate that the Democratic party would be guilty of so small an act is an insult to every honest Democrat. Pretty small politics Judge.

We notice the Democratic free vaudeville show is ready to start its season of entertainment, featuring Pink Parrish in "Poor Tech," Jess Levens in a banjo act, and Clark Mullican in a monologue. When they come to Crosby county, we will all be out to give them a respectful hearing, laugh at the fun, listen to the hot-air and then go home and vote for Hoover.

WATCH YOURSELF GO BY

What's the use of taking stock in all those things we hear?
Why rip the lining out of Brown and make Smith look so queer?
You cannot always tell, my boy, it may be all a lie,
So just step around behind some
tree and watch yourself go by.

You'll find that things look different and crooked paths seem straight
That Smith is not the only man who sometimes gets home late.
Perhaps your wife's own husband
sometimes goes awry;
So just step around behind some
tree and watch yourself go by.

In business, as in pleasure, and in the social life,
It doesn't pay to speculate or let your thoughts run rife.
Just try to think the best of those who in your pathway lie—
And just step around behind some tree, and watch yourself go by.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Sybil Thorne, Boston society girl has scandalized her little world by having a baby, and failing to present its father. Her husband, Richard Eustis, was a fascinating adventurer whom Sybil met on a trip to Havana. The marriage lasted two weeks. Sybil's baby is born the following spring in Houston, and Sybil finds herself in Boston, and Sybil finds herself rather ostracised by people who decline to accept the story of her marriage.

Sybil's brother, Tad, is married to a girl named Valerie, a selfish little creature whose great redeeming trait is an overwhelming love for Sybil's baby. Valerie will not have a child herself.

Dolly Weston one of Valerie's frivolous friends, finds Sybil and Mabel Moore lunching together and tells them excitedly that she has dreadful news of Valerie.

Dolly tells her that Valerie is planning to desert Tad, and elope with a man from New Haven. At first Sybil is inclined to let Val go ahead but Dolly and Mabel convince her that it would break Tad's heart, and persuade her to interfere. When Dolly makes a frantic declaration about the way men feel when their wives are unfaithful, Sybil decides to save Tad from whatever pangs Valerie might cause him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV

Suddenly Sybil became amendable.

"All right, Dolly," she said. "I won't tell Tad. And if Jack will drive us, I'll go down to New Haven tonight. Thanks for telling me about it, Doll. You meant well, I guess. Perhaps it's for the best. I'll see what I can do anyhow. Don't worry about my dragging you into it. And don't tell Dot Paxon's crowd."

Dolly turned wide eyes on her friends.

"Why, Sib," she reproached gently, "don't you know you can trust me? I'm awfully fond of Val—really. Wild horses couldn't drag a word out of me. I'll run along now. You and Mrs. Moore will want to be making arrangements. Valerie will thank you some day for this."

Dolly winked back surprising tears, and powdered her nose resolutely.

"Good-by," she said. "You're good kids—both of you."

"My dear," said Mabel when she had gone, "that girl's been in a jam herself. And Tom Weston raised the devil. It's plain as the nose on your face. Did you ever know a girl to give herself away so?

"I'll bet Tom had her on her knees. It's a wonder to me he ever took her back. But he put the fear of God in her, sure as you live. That's why she wants to save Val. She's been through the mill herself.

"Say, these modern wives! What's become of good old-fashioned morality? They make happiness their god. Then they spit in virtue's face. No wonder they're discontented. The blind fools."

Sybil sighed.

"It's a dizzy world, Mab. Have you seen Tom Weston lately? Old before his time. Grayer than his father. Lines like scars. Poor Tommy. If a fool woman can hurt a man that much, then, Mab, I'm going to bring Val home again."

Coogin's on the Post Road is a nefarious place. Blatant as a circus. In the semi-privacy of crimson booths men and girls made love. Under a red and green striped awning an orchestra made strident noise. And in the little space between the double row of painted booths couples danced and laughed, and continued to make love.

Valerie raised her glass, and smiled provocatively into the flushed face so close to her own.

"Here's to the movies," she cried, "and fame."

Their glasses clicked.

"To Valerie West," he responded, gravely, "on the billboards."

She dimpled demurely.

"I always did think," she admitted, "that I have a nice, euphonious name—effective, you know, for posters and electric lights. The girls at school used to say it sounded exactly like a movie star's. And I don't mean to brag. But, honestly, I do take the best pictures. They flatter me outrageously. Everyone says I photograph like Billy Dove.'

"My dear," he protested, "you'll make poor Billy look like a washout."

"Oh, Darl! You adorable flatterer." And then, staring speculatively into her empty glass—"You know, Darl, they say blond beauty fades soonest, but I don't think so—do you? I think it all depends on the woman herself.

"Dolly Weston's been running round for years, and she still looks like a china doll. And there's my sister-in-law, Sybil. She is awfully dark, and she's been through a whole lot. But there are times you'd swear she wasn't a day over 20."

"I knew a girl named Sybil once," he interrupted. "Whenever I think of her I take another drink."

He drew a flask from his pocket.

"Ginger ale, Sweet?"

"Just a little. Did you love her, Darl?"

"Sure did, honey."

Valerie pouted.

"I think you're horrid."

"Well, you asked me."

"But you don't love her any more."

"I'll say I don't. She walked out on me, Sweet. I'm off her for life. I hope she has lumps in her mashed potatoes."

"Oh, Darl, don't joke. Tell me about her."

"That's all there is, old dear. The righteous Sybil smelled my well-known breath one night, and left me flat. Most outrageous thing ever happened to a man."

He reached for her glass, and his fingers found her wrist. Dull red suffused his face, and his eyes burned with an unholy fire.

"Val, I never wanted a woman so much in all my life."

"How about Sybil?"

"The devil with Sybil!"

A girl in a crimson skating suit pelted cotton snowballs. A girl in pink tarlatan kicked and whirled. And a girl in a rush skirt shimmied. Waiters hurried about, depositing small bottles of rank liquor under folded napkins.

Ten o'clock . . . Eleven o'clock. The place was wild and noisy. The girl in the rush skirt kissed bald heads impartially.

The girl in tarlatan was soaking wet and swearing roundly. Someone had ducked her in the iridescent fountain.

Sybil and the Moores had driven from Boston directly to the Ramseys in New Haven. Briefly Sybil introduced herself to Valerie's hostess. A plump creature, swathed in satin dripping monkey fur, hennaed and facialed and plucked. A matron of glib phrases.

"Poor Val," she exclaimed volubly. "We actually drove her out this evening. To Googin's—such a jolly place. Mr. Ramsey had a beastly headache. We were all going, but the very last minute—"

An expression of conventional concern succeeded Mrs. Ramsey's fixed smile. "Nothing's wrong at home I hope."

Sybil chuckled maliciously. "Oh, no—we're just giving Val a little surprise party. She will be surprised, won't she Mrs. Ramsey? Of course you'll phone and have her paged. But we'll drive fast—and perhaps we'll get there first."

Mrs. Ramsey elevated her tweaked brows. Flushed apoplectically. But Sybil had flown.

"A little speed, Jack. Step on it."

Through the frosty night they drove like mad.

"It's like the movies," gigled Mabel, snuggling warmly against her husband's shoulder. "Sib, the virtuous sister, starring. Val's the ingenue lead, and you're the hero, Jackie, rescuing the innocent ingenue from the villain at Googin's."

Presently they were there, standing the doorway. Life and love surged by, staggering sometimes as they passed. Youth in youth's arms. And youth in age's embrace. Pretty rouged cheeks against heavy jowls, and the corrugated skin of old dancing fools. Tragi-comedy. The business of having a good time.

Sybil's glance embraced the great dining room.

"There they are—over in the corner booth. Val's facing us, powdering her nose."

Like a flash she had left them. A slim little figure in a plaid sport skirt and beaver jacquette, threading her way between the dancers.

"Sybil! What are you doing here?"

Valerie swayed a bit unsteadily. Clutching the table cloth, dragging the china perilously.

"God Almighty!"

The man with her was on his feet. White as death. Facing Sybil across the empty glasses and the stained linen. The words were coming from dry lips, choked from a parched throat—

"WHERE DID YOU COME FROM?"

(The man with Valerie? Drama and tragedy in the startling chapter ahead.)

History Of Presidential Elections

Southerners liked the platform, but not the candidate.

When the vote was taken, only four states, Vermont, Massachusetts, Tennessee and Kentucky fell outside of the Democratic column, and General Scott went down to one of the worst defeats in the history of the country. It tore asunder the foundations of the Whig party and prepared the way for another party which should fall heir to its strength and escape its weaknesses, a party that was destined to live more than half a century without a single serious split.

Daniel Webster, one of the candidates before the Whig convention in 1852, consented to head another party that year, called the Union party, but he died before the election and his little party died with him. He sent a message to Rufus Choate, who had nominated him in the Whig convention in one of the finest nominating speeches ever heard in a convention, and advised him not to ruin his future by voting the Whig ticket, saying that it was destined to defeat and the party destined to exist only in history after that campaign. The message was published in the Democratic press and proved one of the fulfilled deathbed prophecies of American political history.

The campaign of 1852 was notable for the activity of the woman suffrage advocates. The suffragettes held a great national convention, made up partly of bloomer-wearing women. Elisabeth Cady Stanton and Susan B. Anthony were two prominent figures. The Prohibition party also got into the field with a good deal of activity, and how strong the prohibition sentiment was is disclosed by the fact that Sam Houston, of Texas, was considered by some for the Democratic presidential nomination because of the fact that he was a "maineac," as the prohibitionists of the Maine variety were called. But the Democracy was not ready to hitch its wagon to a prohibition star.

The election of Pierce was taken by the country at large as ending permanently the threatening danger of civil war over the slavery question. Henry Clay had proposed his celebrated compromises of 1850 and Congress, with the co-operation of President Fillmore, passed them. Daniel Webster and many other Northern Whigs aided in their passage. The Democrats approved them in their platform and the vast majority secured by Pierce and King was taken as the country's final verdict on the slavery question.

"I am so happy that the last pimple is gone—"

WITHOUT this handicap, there returns the very natural confidence, joy and cherished pride of possessing a clear skin.

Men and women both justly covet admiration, and you can expect such satisfaction only if you are happy in a clear, unblemished skin.

The sure way to reach this state is through the blood.

Red blood cells are Nature's elements for building and sustaining the body.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there can be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

You know a clear skin comes from within. Correct the cause—through the blood—and pimples, boils, eczema and that sallow complexion will disappear.

Thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking a few bottles of S.S.S.—Nature's own tonic for restoring the appetite—building strength—and clearing the body of so-called skin troubles.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Get the larger size. It is more economical.

Dr. Wallace Gives Talk On Gossiping

Evangelist Scores Talebearers In Sermon At First Christian Revival Last Night.

Gossiping and telling other people their faults, criticizing their life or their actions, is not frankness but it's crude, ungodly and vicious. The evil tongue with its little whispers and slanders and faultfinding is one of the greatest curses of mankind. God did not give us tongues for gossip and scandal but to speak words of love, kindness, friendship and faith in Christ and man, declared Evangelist Wallace last night, whose sermon on Lubbock's Town Gossips attracted a well-filled auditorium.

Uses Romans As Text

He used as his text a part of the 29th verse of the first chapter of Romans. In connection with this text he used other scriptures such as Liviticus 19:16 "Thou shalt not go up and down as a talebearer among the people." Proverbs 11:13. A talebearer revealeth secrets, but he that is of a faithful spirit concealeth a matter."

"Some tongues are like bucking broncoes, said Dr. Wallace, and are far more to be feared than the most vicious man-killer of the plains. Gossiping tongues are far more dangerous to ships of reputation than derelicts are dangerous to ships at sea. A delerict at sea drifts aimlessly and will only wreck the craft that collides with it, but a derelict tongue will seek you out, follow you into the most sacred harbors of life.

Are Worst Foes to Society

Gossipers are like hissing reptiles masculine and feminine in gender, and the worst foes of society, the scavengers of the gutter, the buzzards of human relationship, the scavengers of the world and the mud-turtles of hell. They can hear more through a key-hole than you can through an open door. Men are whispered into bankruptcy, nations are whispered into war."

There were those who responded to the gospel invitation. The service of song was of an inspirational character. A special chorus by the men was appreciated as well as the soul stirring message in song rendered by Mrs. Wallace.

Dr. Wallace announced that he would speak to the subject "The Unpardonable Sin." tonight.

PASSENGER SHIPS ORDERED

HAMBURG, (AP) — The French Compagnie Generale Transatlantique has ordered two steam and one motorship to be built in a German yard for service between Havre and the West Indies, Mexico and the North American Pacific coast. The ships, of 10,000 tons capacity, will be named "Oregon," Wyoming" and "Wisconsin."

FINLAND BUYING BRICKS

HELSINGFORS, (AP)— Finland's building boom has resulted in consumption of the country's entire annual production of 100,000,000 bricks and the necessity for importing millions more. Some 35,000,000 were imported last year and it is estimated that the 1928 importation will be double that total with Belgium supplying the largest share. One reason for the increased demand is the tendency to erect higher business buildings.

SUMMARY

Market up about 30 points from yesterday's close. Liverpool was better than due about a dollar a bale which would make it appear that Europe is beginning to believe that there is a great possibility of there being a short crop in America. A high barometer in the northwest caused apprehension of a cold wave in the western part of the belt where a good deal of green cotton might be damaged by frost. December New Orleans contracts gained 35 points early and held steady most of the session. Hedging and taking of profits over the holiday caused a slight recession but the market closed steady only five points down from the high of the day. Although hedge selling continues to be a deterrent, trading for the most part is bullish and only a small incentive is needed to make the market do much better.

Boston—The Garside Bureau estimates the September consumption of cotton at 499,000 bales of line against 527,000 in August this year and 628,000 in September last year. The bureau states that the decrease from August is due to fewer working days that the average daily consumption is higher.

It was rumored late today that one of the largest Wall Street traders was covering his short contracts in the cotton market.

Midlothian, Texas.—Picking of cotton is 60 per cent done and ginning is well up with picking. All unopen bolls are weevil stung and there are only one to three locks to the boll.

Stratford, Okla.—Cotton is over half picked and ginned. Grade is running well but staple is short.

Corinth, Miss.—Ginning indicates crop here 15 to 20 per cent short of last season's crop. Weevil damage slight, but weather this fall has been unfavorable.

New Orleans—The stock of cotton on shipboard is 33,748 bales against 37,852 last year.

Cotton exports all ports thus far this season 1,312,886 bales against 1,362,451 last year.

Cotton exports all ports thus far this week 122,929 bales against 180,797 last year.

Cotton exports all ports today 35,815 bales against 36,849 last year.

Average price of middling spots yesterday was 18.16 cents per pound.

Total spot cotton sales in Southern market yesterday 48,273 bales. Holiday same day last year.

Total spot cotton sales thus far this season 2,209,107 bales against 1,915,974 same time last year.

WEATHER REPORT

Early weather reports indicated that barometer was high over cotton belt area central in northeast portion 30.3, low over Nevada 29.4, very high 30.5 central over western Canada. Much colder weather and snow in this area. Unseasonable warm weather continues for the most part over cotton belt with maximum exceeding 100 degrees locally in Arkansas and near 90 degrees in many localities elsewhere. Light to moderate showers fell in eastern and southern Louisiana and southeast Texas.

At noon the eastern cotton belt was mostly fair, the central belt ranged from clear to cloudy and the western belt ranged from clear to cloudy and generally cooler. Forecast: Western belt, Louisiana tonight and Friday partly cloudy, not much change in temperatures. Arkansas increasing cloudiness tonight. Friday cloudy and showers in north portions. Local showers and colder Friday. Oklahoma tonight cloudy; showers in northwest portion, colder in north portion and local showers and colder Friday. East Texas, tonight and Friday cooler; showers in north portion Friday; colder in north portion Friday. West Texas tonight and Friday cloudy with occasional showers; colder tonight in the Panhandle; colder Friday. Eastern belt: North Carolina and South Carolina fair tonight and Friday, not much change in temperatures. Georgia partly cloudy tonight, Friday fair. Floria partly cloudy with local showers tonight. Mississippi and Alabama fair tonight. Friday increasing cloudiness followed by showers in northwest portion. Slightly cooler in extreme north portions Friday.

Holiday in all markets today—Columbus Day.

BASEL, (AP) — Negotiations between France, Germany and Switzerland are reported under way looking to improvement of navigation conditions in the Rhine river between Strasbourg and Basel. New Fire Truck Brought Into Use

(Special To The Avalanche)

SLATON, Oct. 11.—A furnished residence on South Third street here, owned by Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Sledge, was badly damaged by fire Tuesday. The fire's origin was not determined. Mr. and Mrs. Sledge were absent from the city when the fire occurred. Some insurance was carried.

In combatting the blaze, the Slaton Volunteer Fire Department brought into use for the first time the new truck and pumper placed in service here last week at a cost of $12,000. The other fire truck maintained by the city is undergoing repairs.

South Plains Gins Begin Operations

Farm Bureau Gin Plants In Busy Opening As Fleecy Staple Starts Ginward; Officials Proud.

With today expected to see the two gins of the Farm Bureau Gin company in Lubbock ready for operation, the several gins of the organization that have been built this year will be ginning the season's cotton in full blast.

The gin at Idalou has been operating for about two weeks now, although picking has not yet got into its full stride yet. A total of about 18 bales have been ginned there up to date, according to J. W. Cannon, one of the bureau's directors of that gin, and by Saturday it is expected the number will be increased to around 25 bales. All four gins at Idalou ginned 15 bales Wednesday and picking in that locality will be on in earnest within the next few days.

"We feel proud of these gins," Mr. Cannon said, in speaking of the bureau's several gins in this section, "and believe we are going to have a good season's run."

The Lorenzo gin has been running several days and Slaton started the bureau gin plant there last week. The plants at Abernathy is ready to operate and the one at Tahoka is in operation.

DAILY MARKETS

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, Oct. 11 (AP)—With the exception of calves, which were steady to around 25c lower, the cattle trade here today generally was steady. Not enough steers were on hand to be quoted. Cows brought from $7.00 to $9.25, yearlings from $11.00 to $12.00, bulls from $6.75 to $8.00 and calves from $10.00 to $12.00

Hogs showed strength the tone being steady to strong. A top of $9.65 was paid, and the bulk sold from $7.75 to $9.50. Sows brought from $7.00 to $8.00 and pigs from $7.00 to $7.25.

In the sheep market, wethers were weak to 25c lower at $7.50. Other classes were steady. Lambs traded at $12.50.

KANSAS CITY LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 11. (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—As indicated on yesterday's market the decline on hogs around the eleven market circuit has been temporarily checked. Trade today was moderately active to both packers and shippers at strong to 15c higher prices. The day's extreme top at Chicago was $10.25. Total offerings were around 56,100, as compared with 61,507 a week ago and 58,293 the same day last year.

The market for killing cattle had noappreciable degree of stability. Packers, where supplies were sufficient, shading prices on the in-between grades of steers and yearlings as much as 25c. Some strength on strictly choice grain feds was reported at Chicago; inbetween grades of short-fed steers scaling over 1,200 pounds are especially susceptible for price fluctuations. Prime 1,381-pound steers at Chicago scored $18.35, while highly finished lightweights realized $18.25. The supply estimated at 31,200 was 1,500 more than last Thursday and 7,000 less than a year ago.

Fat lambs found a fairly active outlet at strong to 25c higher prices and firm to slightly higher values prevailed on aged stock. Choice native lambs in Chicago topped at $13.50, while best Westerns at Kansas City ended at $13.25; aggregate receipts were estimated at 52,400 against 57,529 a week ago and 79,-530 a year ago.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 11. (AP)—Higher prices for wheat today resulted largely from snowfalls and freezing temperature over the Canadian prairie provinces and domestic spring wheat territory as well. Drought complaints from the Southwest aera also a bullish factor, and there were indications that the winter wheat acreage of the United States is to show decided curtailment.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1-2@5-8c net higher, with corn 1-4c to 5-8c up, oats unchanged to 1-8@1-4c off, and provisions varying from 15c decline to a rise of 17c.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (AP)—Dun's Review this week will say: "Although restricted in some localities by special influences, the public purchasing power, as a whole remains notably extensive, while attractive prices on many goods are increasing consum traffic with expectations of two immediately preceding years, and the marketing of crops naturally is giving a stimulus to trade in agricultural sections. Supplementing the encouraging features enumerated, the general iron and steel industry continues to disclose exceptional progress.

Weekly bank clearings $9,227,-676,000, an increase of 14.2 per cent over a year ago.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (AP)—Establishment of a new high record for all time by U. S. Steel common at 163 1-4 on buying influenced by unconfirmed reports of a stock dividend at the next meeting of directors, featured the irregularly higher price movement in today's stock market. Thirty individual issues were pushed into new high ground some of them on extreme gains of 5 to 15 points.

A distinctly easier undertone in the money market was an important factor in the day's rally. Call money dropped from 6 1-2 to 6 percent, with loans available in the outside market as low as 5 1-2. Time money was again on a flat 7 percent basis, with a plentiful supply of funds available. The U. S. Treasurery announced the withdrawal of nearly $62,000,000 next Monday, of which $16,000,000 will be from the New York district.

A sharp break in Hudson, accompanied by rumors of dissension among operators previously identified with that issue, aroused widespread uneasiness in speculative quarters. Hudson broke from 94 to 88 1-4 but snapped back to 91 1-4 off 3 3-4 points net, on the appearance of organized buying support. General Motors closed unchanged at 216 1-2 after having sold more than 2 points above that figure. Chrysler showed a net loss of slightly more than 1 point at 132. Dodge Bros., common broke from an early high of 40 3-8 to 33 1-2 off 5 1-2 points net, on rumors that the stock exchange was investigating reports of a "Technical corner" in that issue.

The weekly federal reserve statement of brokers' loans showed an increase of $19,905,000, bringing the total to another new high record at $4,589,883,000. Loans for the banks' own account dropped $63,-000,000 but loans for the account of out of town banks and others increased.

Heavy accumulation of steel common through brokerage houses previously identified with bankers for that corporation helped to rally the general market. Reports circulated around Wall Street that the stock would be split up 2 for 1 and the dividend increased.

Spectacular advances again took place in several of the so-called "blue chip" issues. Montgomery-Ward, which sold as low as 117 this year, ran up nearly 10 points to a new high record at 282 and closed at the top. Cushman's Bakery jumped nearly 15 points to a new top at 225. International harvester soared 11 points to a new peak at 311 3-4.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. Sterling cables yielded slightly to $4.85 1-8. Japanese yen jumped 10 points to 45.80 cents.

Commodities displayed a firmer undertone. Wheat futures improved fractionally, and cotton rallied $1.50 to $2 a bale on a resumption of trade demand. Coffee and sugar prices showed little change.
