Division chairpersons named...

College begins realigning administrative structure

By Joyce May
Staff Writer

Western Texas College board of trustees Monday night took the first step in realigning the college's administrative structure when it approved appointments of division chairpersons.

Bill Halbert was named chairperson of the Math/Science/Computer Science/Business Division while Lee Burke was named chairperson of the Health, Physical Education/Social Science Division.

Jerry Corkran was appointed chairperson of the Communications/Fine Arts Division and Mike Harrison was named Adjunct Faculty Division chairperson.

Recommendations for these appointments were made by a selection committee, which included representatives from the faculty and administration.

WTC Vice President Bettie McQueen said the realignment will mean better communication between faculty and staff and will ensure that WTC continues to provide quality service.

The restructuring will also more closely balance the supervisor to staff ratio.

"We have tried to equalize the number (of staff) to be supervised and I feel we have succeeded as closely as we can in that regard," McQueen said.

In addition, the teaching load of the division chairs will be reduced to nine hours with the exception of the Adjunct Faculty Chair which will carry no more than six teaching hours.

The next step in the realignment is to hire a vocational dean.

"With the vocational dean position, we hope to be able to explore new programs for our on-campus students as well as students at present sites," McQueen said.

Interviewing continues for the position.

In other business, a request from the rodeo team for $7,400 to attend the College National Finals Rodeo in Casper, Wyo., in June was approved.

The women's team as well as two individuals from the men's team are to attend the event. The funds will cover lodging for eight people and transportation costs.

Trustees approved the promotion of Dan Osborn, counselor and assistant professor of physchology, to associate professor.

The promotion does not mean a position or salary change, only a change in title and status.

In addition, the board voted 4-0 to extend the college's depository contract with West Texas State Bank. The current contract expires Aug. 31.

Trustee R.C. Patton abstained from the vote due to his position on the WTSB board of directors.

The board also approved a resolution from General Services Commission, which is the state purchasing agency. The resolution is necessary for WTC to continue to purchase through state contracts.

The board also gave its approval to sign a long-distance telephone service contract with Qwest Communications, which has bought out the college's current long distance carrier, U.S. Long Distance.

In personnel items, the board approved the resignation of Jana Martin, English instructor.

Trustees gave the go ahead for administrators to seek bids in a matching annuity plan.

The college offers a matching savings plan to employees and has been with the same company for 15 years.

By seeking bids, administrators hope to improve on the service and investment earnings. It will also allow local companies an opportunity to submit bids.

Beginning this week, the college will go to four-day work weeks. Offices will be closed on Fridays for the summer months.

Drew Bullard presided and trustees in attendence included Patton, Lee Presswood, Eddie Peterson and Jackie Greene. Dr. Jay Kidd, board president, and Carolyn Barbee were absent.

Chinese still question if bombing was accident

WASHINGTON (AP) — Holed up in the U.S. Embassy in China as a virtual prisoner for four days, Ambassador James Sasser nonetheless believes the flap over the mistaken U.S. bombing of the Chinese Embassy in Belgrade is an aberration that the two sides will overcome.

"I think wiser heads will prevail on both sides, and both sides will move forward and continue to build a partnership," Sasser said Monday night on CNN's "Larry King Live" program.

Sasser said he is encouraged by signs of a Chinese willingness for the first time to permit the media to publish U.S. expressions of condolences over the loss of life in Belgrade and the apologies of President Clinton and other senior officials.

But Chinese President Jiang Zemin has yet to accept a telephone call from Clinton, and other Chinese officials are continuing to cast doubt on the American claim that last week's bombing was an accident.

In the first direct fallout on the fragile U.S.-Chinese military relationship, Beijing canceled a planned visit next week by Gen. Charles Krulak, commandant of the Marine Corps, and "put on hold" virtually all military-to-military cooperation with the United States, U.S. defense officials said today.

Defense Secretary William Cohen's planned trip to China in June now appears unlikely, officials said, although Cohen said Monday, "Much will depend upon whether the Chinese government wishes to have me travel there." He said he wanted to strengthen defense ties, "but that depends upon the Chinese government."

China's ambassador to the United States, Li Zhao Xing, said on CNN: "Some people are saying this is a mistake. ... How could they make such an error?" He demanded a "thoroughgoing investigation" into the incident.

The situation improved today, Sasser said. "We are not getting nearly as many rocks thrown at us and the crowds are much smaller," he said on NBC's "Today."

"I think it is clear that we have to move rapidly to give China a clear and cogent explanation" how the bombing mistake occurred, Sasser said.

Undersecretary of State Thomas Pickering, interviewed immediately after Sasser, was asked when the United States would provide that explanation.

"Yesterday," he replied, referring to Defense Secretary William Cohen's statement Monday. "We responded with great speed and made clear to the Chinese that this was a tragic mistake," Pickering said. He would not rule out further explanations, adding, "We are continuing our review."

Clinton has said his efforts to reach out to China have paid dividends.

THE SDN COLUMN

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Anything free is usually worth what you pay for it."

A year or so ago, we printed the story about the Darwin award winner who reached speeds in excess of 350 mph with a Jet Assisted Takeoff before crashing three miles away.

Once again there was a long list of nominees for the Darwin award, "given posthumously to those who seek to improve the human species by the elimination of inferior genetic stock — namely their own."

A 22-year-old man was found dead after he tried to use occy straps (the stretch little ropes with hooks on each end) to bungee jump off a 70-foot railroad trestle.

Fairfax County police said Eric A. Barcia, a fast-food worker, taped a bunch, of those straps together, wrapped an end around one foot and anchored the other end to the trestle.

He jumped and hit the pavement. The length of the cord he had assembled was greather than the distance between the trestle and the ground.

Another nominee:

Three young men in Oklahoma were enjoying the fourth of July holiday and wanted to test some fireworks. Their only real problem was the launch pad and seating locations were atop a several hundred thousand gallon fuel storage tank.

You can guess the rest of the story.

Still another:

A man in Alabama died from rattlesnake bites. Not unusual, but the details make the victim an excellent candidate for the Darwin award.

It seems he and a friend were playing catch with a rattlesnake. Again, the picture of what happened is easy to envision. His friend, a future Darwin candidate, was only hospitalized.

At least this nominee wasn't driving and talking:

Not much detail was given on this unlucky chap — a man from Korea killed by his cell phone.

He was walking and talking, obviously distracted by his cell phone conversation. He accidently walked into a tree, causing him to break his neck.

Local efforts continue for victims of tornado

Local efforts continue to aid the Oklahoma survivors of the killer tornadoes that hit that state last week.

One of the newest contributions comes from the First Church of the Nazarene where Ethel Herrington had founded the "Ethel Fund" to aid locals in need.

However, after the devastating tornadoes wreaked havoc in parts of Oklahoma, Michael Howard, church pastor, said Herrington suggested that the money in the fund might better serve the tornado victims.

He agreed and $400 was donated to the Red Cross which is assisting with the relief effort in Oklahoma. He noted that Herrington, who is 95, is always looking for "what else she can do" to help someone.

Snyder's First Baptist Church continues to accept monetary contributions also to be forwarded to the Red Cross.

Checks should be made out to the American Red Cross, and brought to the church office at 1701 27th St.

Persons needing additional information may call the church office at 573-2631.

The Scurry County Ministerial Alliance continues to coordinate local efforts to collect items to be forwarded to the Oklahoma City area.

Donations of brooms, rakes, dust pans, bottled water, non-perishable foods, bleach, hand can openers, blankets, sheets, towels, flashlights & batteries, diapers and personal hygiene items are being accepted at Wal-Mart and Lawrence IGA.

The local ministerial alliance will distribute the items through the Urban Ministries of Oklahoma City.

Three-day visit...

Rotarians will host Philippine group

Snyder Rotary Club will host five visitors from the Philippines as part of Rotary Club International's Group Study Exchange program.

The three female and two male guests have been traveling around District 5730 visiting various towns and cities including Midland, Odessa, Plainview, Amarillo, Post and Hereford to see how Texas businesses operate.

The visitors will then take ideas and techniques being used in Texas back with them to be applied in their homeland industries.

In addition, five Rotarians from District 5730 are travelling in the Philippines.

"It is an exchange tour to acquaint each other with our parts of the world," Frank Miller, local Rotary secretary, said.

The group was to arrive this afternoon. After settling in, the visitors will attend a dinner at 7:30 at Snyder Country Club.

Tours of local businesses will begin Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. when the group will tour Von Roeder Seed Farms located on the Lamesa Hwy. Max von Roeder will describe the cotton industry to the Filipinos.

Following lunch Wednesday, the visitors will tour Lorber Industries. Dinner will be at 6:30 p.m. at The Rusty Spur.

Thursday morning will be spent visiting Western Texas College and the courthouse square, followed by a noon lunch with the Rotary Club at Martha Ann Woman's Club.

After Snyder, the group's next stop will be Lubbock as they continue their tour of District 5730.

Spending ideas mount; GOP wary of draining fed surplus

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is about to take another bite out of the federal surplus, this time to pay for the conflict with Yugoslavia. With proposals mounting for other spending ideas, many Republicans worry that their image as a tightfisted party is in jeopardy.

As early as this week, congressional leaders hope to send President Clinton a bill financing the confrontation over Kosovo, a package expected to cost about $10 billion. Virtually all of it is sure to come from this year's federal surplus, which the Congressional Budget Office estimates will be a record $111 billion.

The problem for Republicans is that all of that surplus will come from Social Security, which is collecting more money than it spends each year to prepare for the baby boomers' coming retirement. Republicans have pledged repeatedly to leave that money alone, in hopes of establishing themselves as protectors of the popular pension program.

But with Congress considering the Kosovo funds and a long list of other proposals — such as beefing up spending for the Pentagon and schools — the GOP is finding it increasingly tough to abide by its Social Security promise, blurring that message.

"Politically, the Republican Congress is creating a track record that can be used against them," warned Ron Utt, a senior fellow at the conservative Heritage Foundation.

Some lawmakers want to add $1 billion to the Kosovo package for school safety and up to $4.3 billion for farmers. And that bill seems likely to be attached to another measure providing help for Central America for damage from last autumn's Hurricane Mitch and for U.S. farmers, to which senators have added hundreds of millions of dollars to aid the oil, hard-rock mining and steel industries.

By the end of the year, lawmakers and Clinton may dip even deeper into surpluses for 1999 and beyond.

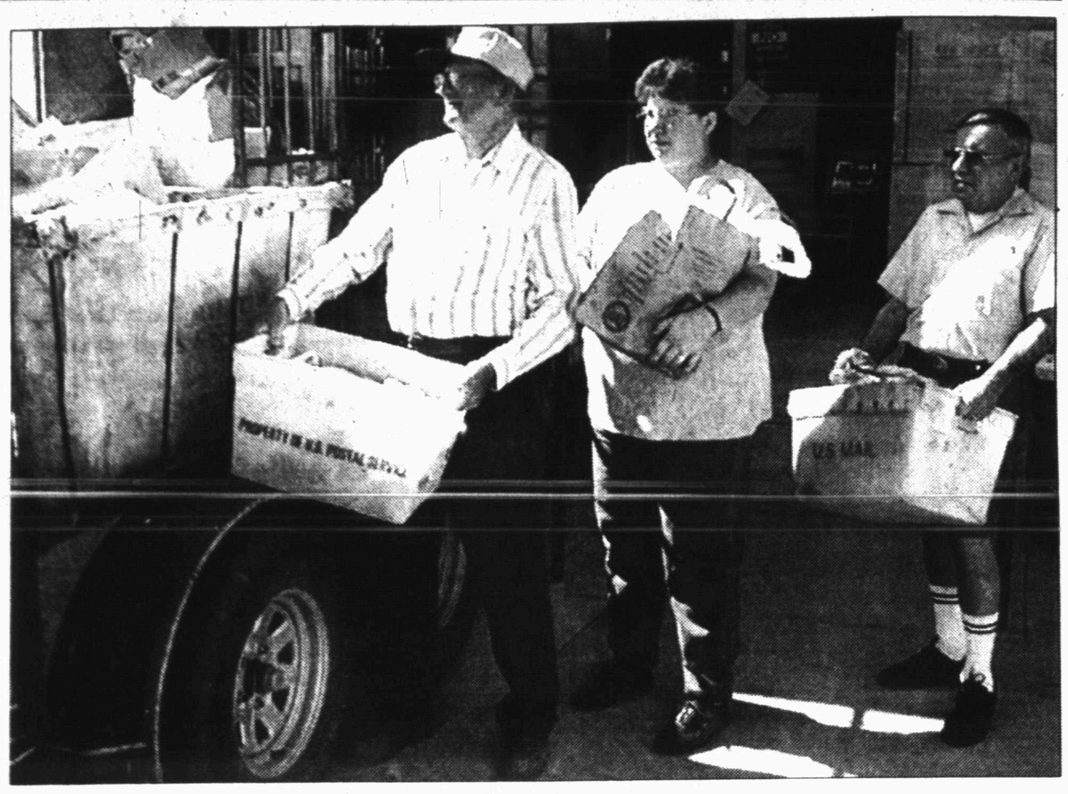

Both parties say they want to spend more to improve education, fortify the military and boost troops' pay. Democrats want to add prescription coverage to Medicare, and some want to roll back Medicare savings imposed two years ago on hospitals and other health-care providers. Republicans want a tax cut of about $800 billion over the next decade, although they say none of it would be paid for from Social Security.

In fact, the Kosovo spending measure is not even the first chunk lawmakers have taken from the surplus.

When Congress and Clinton enacted a big package of "emergency" spending last fall, it was financed through the surplus, and the nonpartisan CBO estimates it will trim this year's black ink by $17 billion. Without it, the latest projection for the 1999 surplus would have been $128 billion.

That spending spree, however, upset many conservative voters, which Republicans say helped cause their poor showing in the November congressional elections. In reaction, many GOP leaders want to sharpen the party's conservative image by holding such raids on the surplus to a minimum.

A group of conservative senators led by Senate Majority Whip Don Nickles, R-Okla., have been pushing to keep the Kosovo package close to the $6 billion Clinton requested.

Mistaken embassy bombing may complicate war conduct

WASHINGTON (AP) — The military got little grief from the home front when a Baghdad shelter was attacked in the Persian Gulf War and more than 300 civilians killed in carnage shown on TV. Support for the bombing campaign remained overwhelming, and planners pressed ahead for the ground war less than two weeks later.

A mistaken bombing, however horrendous, rarely throws warriors off course, military historians say. But the attack on the Chinese Embassy in Belgrade may be different.

In World War II, it was taken for granted that bombs would kill mass numbers of civilians and land in unexpected places. "If they were lucky they could hit a city," war historian Harry Summers said. "But they were not sure where."

With total war going on then, few Americans stopped to worry about German or Japanese innocents.

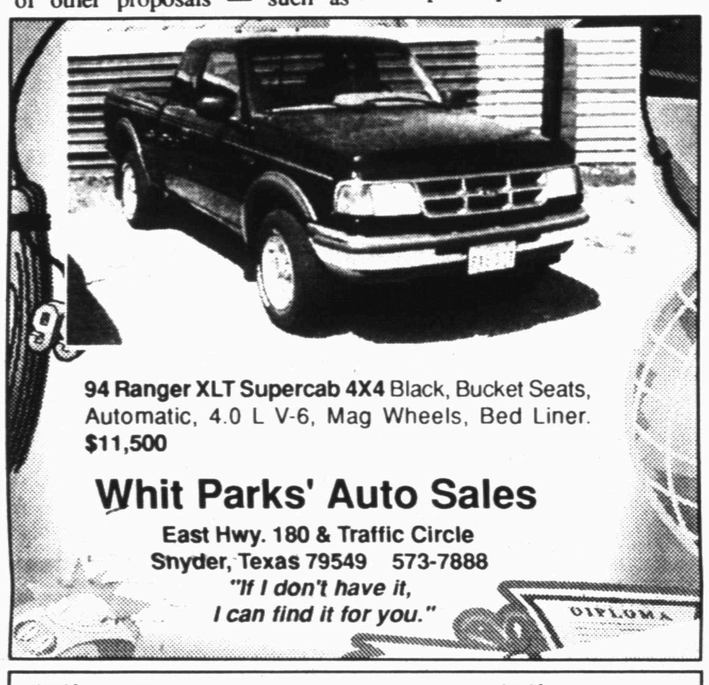

In the Gulf War, standards had changed, thanks to precision technology. But the bombing of the shelter — as with the embassy bombing, a failure of intelligence, not targeting — was seen as an anomaly.

"We could measure progress toward the objectives," said William J. Taylor Jr., at the Center for Strategic and International Studies. People could see that the war effort was succeeding and that mistakes in such a huge enterprise were bound to happen.

Without that sense now, Taylor said, the embassy bombing could interfere with the conduct of the war. "It's going to complicate it enormously," he said.

Summers, distinguished fellow at the U.S. Army War College, said the sheer incompetence suggested by the embassy attack may be NATO's greatest problem. "My God, not knowing where the Chinese Embassy is," he began. "It's so gross a malfeasance that it's almost impossible to conceive.

"There's been a relative lack of American outrage over civilian casualties," he said. "This may sensitize people as to what's going on."

GOOD NEWS
By Wayne Horton

Three elderly widowers, rather hard-of-hearing, were vacationing in England. As the train on which they were traveling slowed, approaching a station, the first old man looked out the window and asked, "Is this Wimberly?" The second replied, "No, man, it's Thursday." And the third man responded, "Hey, I am too. Let's get something to drink!"

Communication. Sometimes it's difficult. Mis-communication often happens at work, at home and even at church. The secret with communication is to keep on trying to get it right.

At the Hermleigh Church of Christ we keep trying to learn what Jesus says to His people. We've found some answers...but we don't know them all. So we keep on looking and seeking and praying. We're still listening to God for answers. And He keeps being faithful to give them. It's fulfilling to hear God, and grow, and...change. It's also a little scary. But how can we become like Jesus unless we change?

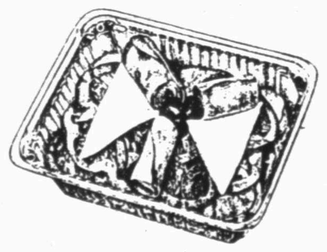

Probably everyone who reads this is satisfied with his church home. We're not trying to steal anyone's sheep. But, if there's a reader who is looking for a church family who believes and preaches the Bible - and still admits they don't possess all truth - then a visit to the Hermleigh Church of Christ might be worth the trip.

Come see us. We'll save you a seat!

How did he do that?

Arthur Symons, a British poet and critic, wrote, "He knew that the whole mystery of beauty can never be comprehended by the crowd, and that while clearness is a virtue of style, perfect explicitness is not a necessary virtue."

The late Terence Reese, arguably the best bridge writer ever, was a firm believer in economy of style. This had both the drawback and the advantage of making the reader work some things out for himself.

In these columns, we strive to make things as clear and comprehensible as possible. Still, occasionally the deals are mysterious. For example, in this one, how did South make four spades after West led the club queen?

The deal occurred during a team match and was reported a few years ago by Reese in the London Evening Standard.

The first declarer won trick one with his club ace, drew two rounds of trumps ending in the dummy, and called for the diamond jack. East rose with his ace and switched to the heart six. The defenders took two tricks there, then sat back to await a club trick: one down.

The other South found a clever ruse: He ducked the first trick. When West continued with the club jack, South won with his ace, drew trumps, and finessed his club nine. Over to dummy with a trump, South discarded a heart loser on the club king. Finally, a diamond toward the king brought home the contract.

Nicely done, but perhaps South should have unblocked the club nine at trick one. Then, if West continues with a high club, declarer gets home more easily by eventually finessing dummy's club eight.

14 strokes back...

Rain, delay bogs down Lady Cats

By Eric Drennan
Sports Editor

AUSTIN — What started out as the first round of the Class 4A State Golf Championship quickly turned into a marathon and a survival of the fittest.

The Snyder Lady Tigers finished their opening round this morning, carding a team total of 323 to hold down second place, heading into this afternoon's final 18 holes.

The Lady Tigers, in their sixth consecutive state tourney appearance, trail cross-state rival Dallas Highland Park by 14 strokes.

"This is a deficit we can make up," Snyder Coach Matt Glenn said. "We just need to calm down and play. There's still a lot of golf left to be played in this thing."

Following a rain delay of almost two hours on Monday, the Lady Tigers began play on the Roy Kizer course at just after 10 a.m. But just over an hour later, play was suspended for more than five hours due to lightning and steady rain.

When action resumed at 4:30 p.m., the Lady Tigers tried to resume the stellar play they had started with earlier in the day. The Lady Tigers were only one-over-par as a team when the horn sounded to stop play. Only one foursome completed their 18 holes on Monday.

"We got off to a great start," Glenn said. "We couldn't get off to a better start than that."

By the time play was halted at 8:10 for darkness, the Lady Tigers trailed the Lady Scots by nine strokes with four holes to play.

Back at 7:20 this morning to finish the first round, the Highland Park squad put more distance between itself and Snyder. The Lady Tigers were 11-over-par over the final three holes. The final round was slated to begin about two hours later.

Glenn remembers that Snyder faced rain delays five years ago when play was suspended after nine holes. That year, the Lady Tigers finished fifth in the 27-hole tournament.

"We just didn't come out this morning and play our best golf," Glenn said. "We can still catch them, but it will take some good golf on our part to do it."

Pacing the Lady Tigers' effort was a 7-over-par 78 by senior Keisha Gafford. Lacey Kidd tallied a 79 with Randy Reed coming in at 80.

Stephanie Alderete carded an 86 while Sally Barham finished with a 95. Alderete was the only Snyder linkster to finish Monday and her 86 included her first-ever eagle on the 14th hole.

Alderete's shot was from 50 yards out, using a sand wedge. The ball bounced twice and rolled into the cup for the eagle.

Last year's top medalist, Highland Park's Maiko Senda, made her way around the 5,496-yard layout with a one-over 72.

Heading into the final round, Mission Sharyland was holding down the third spot at 347 with Montgomery in fourth at 351.

The UIL made the Kizer course longer this year, and Coach Matt Glenn predicted that it would play longer because of the rains that fell on Sunday night.

1. Highland Park, 309; 2. Snyder, 323; 3. Mission Sharyland, 347; 4. Montgomery, 351; 5. Southlake Carroll, 359; 6. New Braunfels Canyon, 367; 7. Pampa, 368; 8. Brenham, 385.

Fall 5-2...

Navarro confuses Rangers' batters

CHICAGO (AP) — Texas was just one of the many teams that knocked Jaime Navarro and his transparent pitches around last season. So imagine the Rangers' surprise when they saw Navarro and his new, sneaky throwing motion.

Navarro, who went from No. 1 starter to the bullpen last year, thoroughly confused the Rangers on Monday, pitching four-hit ball for eight innings and giving up just one run as the Chicago White Sox beat the Rangers 5-2.

"He really caught them off-balance," manager Jerry Manuel said. "I saw some guys looking hesitant. He now has some deceptiveness to his pitches, and I think they were really surprised to see that deception out of him. I don't think they really figured it out."

In 1995, Navarro (2-3) won 14 games for the Chicago Cubs and was one of the NL's hottest pitchers. But when he moved across town two years later, he seemed to leave something behind. He went 9-14 in 1997, his first year with the White Sox, and his 5.79 ERA was the second worst of his career. He was 8-16 last year, and Manuel finally demoted him to the bullpen.

Navarro's biggest problem was his throwing motion, a windmill-like style that showed batters what he was going to throw. But in the offseason and spring training, he worked with pitching coach Nardi Contreras to alter his angles so his pitches never came from the same spot.

"Nardi said, 'They haven't seen you in a long time. They're going to be real surprised,'" Navarro said. "That's good. I think I surprised a lot of people."

Though he'd lost his last two starts, Navarro has really only had one rough inning this season. In last week's loss to Baltimore, he retired the first 12 batters and took a perfect game into the fifth inning — only to give up seven runs, four of them earned, on five hits.

Astros blank Pirates, 6-0

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros are making a living off left-handed pitchers.

Pittsburgh's Pete Schourek is the latest lefty to be victimized by Houston's hitters. The Astros, despite stranding a season-high 14 runners, routed Pittsburgh 6-0 behind Mike Hampton's five-hitter and three hits apiece from Ken Caminiti and Tony Eusebio.

"They've got several guys who are really killing left-handers," Pittsburgh manager Gene Lamont said of the Astros. "If you don't have your best stuff against them, they'll make you pay."

The Astros had 13 hits — including nine against lefties Schourek and Scott Sauerbeck — to raise their average against left-handers to .356 (104-for-292), tops in the majors.

"Against most left-handers, we can put up a strong lineup of right-handed hitters. I have no explanation for it, we've just been hitting them well this year," Astros manager Larry Dierker said.

Four starters — Derek Bell, Jeff Bagwell, Caminiti and Carl Everett — are hitting .400 or better against left-handers.

"I didn't realize we were doing that well," Bell said. "It's just the way our luck is, I guess. It's one of those things in baseball, we've got some good right-handed hitters."

Caminiti extended his hitting streak to 11 consecutive games.

"Left-handers haven't given us much of a problem this year, but it's a long season and I don't want to pay much attention to that right now," Caminiti said. "We have a good hitting team all around. The one thing they told me when they signed me was that this team has trouble against good right-handers."

Hampton is 4-0 in his last five starts.

"This is three in a row that he's been dominating. The last three games he has had command of all of his pitches, changing speeds, using all four corners, he's had a good sharp slider and his fastball has been good when he needed it."

Hampton (4-1) struck out seven and walked none in his first shutout and complete game since a seven-hitter against the New York Mets on April 21, 1998. He also kept up his solid hitting, going 1-for-3 to raise his average to .286.

Hampton, who got his fifth career shutout, has allowed just one run and seven hits in his last 16 innings, lowering his ERA to 2.83.

Dr. Gott

Don't worry about Gilbert's syndrome

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have recently been diagnosed with Gilbert's syndrome. Although I have been reassured that the disorder is harmless, should I take any precautions?

DEAR READER: Gilbert's (pronounced JEEL-bers) syndrome is an entirely benign, surprisingly common condition of unknown cause, marked by a slight increase in the level of bilirubin in the blood stream. Bilirubin is a byproduct of red blood cell metabolism and is excreted in the bile. Patients with Gilbert's syndrome probably have inherited an enzyme deficiency that prevents the liver from withdrawing bilirubin from the blood. Although the syndrome may be mistaken for hepatitis, the liver is completely normal. Gilbert's syndrome does not affect health, needs no treatment and requires no precautions. For all practical purposes, you can safely disregard the diagnosis.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am a man in my mid-40s. In my line of work, a youthful appearance is indispensable. Consequently, I've colored my hair for a number of years. I have tried the shampoo type, cream-dressings and comb-in color. All the products caused reactions ranging from skin irritation to sores. All contain lead. Is there a safe hair-color product that is lead-free?

DEAR READER: I'm not at all convinced that you are reacting solely to the lead compounds in your hair-coloring solutions; you could well be allergic to other components in the preparations. Therefore, I am unable to advise you about a specific product. Your pharmacist, however, may carry hypo-allergenic, lead-free hair coloring that would be appropriate for you.

Forgive me for making an additional observation: A youthful appearance depends on a lot more than hair color. Wrinkles, paunch, sagging tissues and altered facial characteristics are equally obvious manifestations of the aging process, and you can't do much about them short of plastic surgery. Do you want to make that extensive a commitment to youth? Maybe I'm kidding myself, but I believe that middle-age need not be fought hand-to-hand with tints, creams and cosmetics. For most of us, a youthful DEMEANOR — as opposed to a youthful APPEARANCE — may, in the long run, prove more successful. Perhaps this is true in your occupation, too.

I question whether hair color makes the man in any employment. In my experience, an aging gentleman who colors his hair really doesn't fool anyone, TV ads notwithstanding. Such a person is often viewed by his younger colleagues as "that vain old relic who dyes his hair orange."

Just because our society worships youthfulness is no reason for us "experienced" adults to surrender unconditionally. Many middle-aged graybeards retain their attractiveness by keeping trim and vigorous, maintaining balance in their lives, and making the most of what they've got — without succumbing to weird hair. Oh, and a sense of humor helps, too.

Activity slow for lawmen

Monday was unusually slow for local law enforcement personnel as the activity sheet indicated less than 30 calls were made to dispatchers.

Officers are investigating a report of an assault on a 12-year-old female that was reported at 9:14 p.m.

Earlier in the day, a report of a gas drive-off from Town & Country on Highway 84 was filed. However, the clerk was unable to give a description of the vehicle.

Four motorists also received assistance after locking their keys in their vehicles.

TNRCC recognizes Chevron Oil Corp.

Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission (TNRCC) Commissioner Ralph Marquez recognized Chevron Corp. last week for making a commitment to cleaner air by volunteering to join an effort led by Gov. George W. Bush and the TNRCC to move "grandfathered" industrial facilities into the permitting process, thereby helping to reduce overall air emissions.

The facilities Chevron will permit include the Colorado City station, located just inside the Scurry County line, in China Grove.

Other facilities include two in Winkler County, one each in Midland and Eastland counties, and five in the Houston area.

Chevron volunteered to enter into the Clean Air Responsibility Enterprise (CARE) program and obtain permits for Chevron Chemical Co. facilities and Chevron Pipeline Co. facilities statewide.

These facilities are currently totally or partially grandfathered.

In addition to reducing emissions, permitting allows the TNRCC to more closely monitor the emissions from the plants, allowing the agency to better protect human health and the environment.

Chevron is among 20 companies honored last week for joining CARE.

So far, the 49 early CARE volunteers, which represent 199 facilities, have agreed to reduce emissions by more than 100,000 tons per year. These 49 companies account for more than 60 percent of the grandfathered emissions in Texas.

CARE is designed to encourage industry to obtain air permits for grandfathered facilities. The program was created by House Bill 3019, which was promoted by Gov. Bush and passed by the 75th Legislature.

The program was designed by an 11-member committee and approved by the TNRCC last year. It is now under review by the Texas Legislature.

"I am very impressed that Chevron has come forward and volunteered to make this commitment, without knowing for sure, at this point, the extent of emission reductions that will be required," said Marquez. "Clean air is everyone's responsibility, and industries that choose to permit a grandfathered facility are demonstrating that they accept that responsibility."

Grandfathered facilities are those that existed or were under construction when Texas adopted the state's Clean Air Act in 1971. That law exempted those facilities from receiving permits from the state under the theory that the plants would be modernized or become obsolete over time.

CHEVRON AND TNRCC — Members of both organizations gathered recently to note Chevron's committment to cleaner air by volunteering to join in an effort to move grandfathered industrial facilities into the permitting process. Shown from left are TNRCC Commissioner John Baker, TNRCC Executive Director Jeff Saitas, Chevron Energy engineer Tom Swulius, Chevron Community Affairs representative Vicki Derese, Chevron Public Affairs assistant Lynn Woodworth, Chevron Public Affairs Manager J. Bradley backing bill on hate laws

AUSTIN (AP) — Democratic presidential hopeful Bill Bradley is throwing his support behind a bill to strengthen Texas' hate crimes law.

Senate Criminal Justice Committee member Florence Shapiro, R-Plano, said Monday she thought her staff was joking when they gave her the message that Bradley had telephoned last Friday.

They weren't. Bradley told Mrs. Shapiro the James Byrd Jr. Hate Crimes Act was a "very important issue" and he knew she would "do the right thing."

Mrs. Shapiro said she "resented" the gesture.

"I care very much more for my colleagues in the Senate and their thoughts and feelings, and for my colleagues in the House and their thoughts and feelings than I could ever care about a total stranger like Bill Bradley, who is of a different party and has no influence over me whatsoever," she said.

Mrs. Shapiro said she hasn't decided how to vote on the bill.

Busy on the campaign trail in New Hampshire, Bradley could not be reached Monday for comment.

President Clinton also has urged passage of the bill named for the black man dragged to death in Japser last summer. Clinton on Friday met with Byrd's daughter and nephew — Francis Renee Mullins and Darrell Verrett — during a trip to Texas.

While Clinton promised to do everything in his power to help, Verrett said Republican Gov. George W. Bush told them he would give the bill "serious consideration" if it passes the Legislature.

The bill earlier passed the Democratic-controlled House, but it has been stalled in the Senate Criminal Justice Committee.

The James Byrd Jr. Hate Crimes Act is HB938.

Dear Abby

Boy's Sleeping Arrangements Are Cause of Cousin's Concern

DEAR ABBY: My cousin is the single mother of a 9-year-old boy, "Kenneth." He is an only child.

Kenneth has never slept in his own room. After his father left, my cousin used this as her excuse to let him sleep with her. He doesn't want to be alone and is afraid his mother will leave him, too, so that's the excuse she uses to justify allowing him to sleep with her.

Abby, his father left four years ago!

I spoke to my cousin about this, and she said, "It's no big deal; plenty of people do it." The truth of the matter is that she doesn't have the patience to listen to him scream and cry all night if she tries to make him sleep in his own room. It's obvious to the family that Kenneth is in charge of their household.

I'm afraid this boy will have serious problems due to the sleeping arrangements. I'm also worried that a state agency will get wind of this strange situation and investigate my cousin.

Do you agree that this boy will become maladjusted? Perhaps if she sees it in your column, she'll wise up.

NAMELESS

DEAR NAMELESS: Kenneth should not be sleeping in the same bed with his mother. If your cousin doesn't know how abnormal this situation is, she should be told in no uncertain terms that she's doing her son a terrible disservice with this sleeping arrangement.

Further, at age 9, Kenneth is too old to be "screaming and crying all night" when he's left alone. The boy needs counseling to overcome his fears of abandonment.

DEAR ABBY: As a state trooper, I would like to comment on your advice that drivers pull over before using their cellular phones. While it is dangerous to drive while using the phone, it can be equally dangerous to just "pull over" while on the highway.

Many vehicles stop in the breakdown lane for this purpose without realizing that the most serious accidents take place when there is a large variance in the speeds of the objects colliding. This occurs most frequently when a stationary car or person is only inches away from traffic traveling in excess of 60 to 70 mph. It takes only a moment's inattention for a tragedy to occur. Many fatal accidents are the result of a truck or car straying only slightly over the white line near a stopped vehicle.

Because of this danger, our state and many others prohibit the use of the breakdown lane unless there is a mechanical or medical emergency.

Abby, please urge your readers to use caution when pulling over. Look for a safe place to stop well away from the flow of traffic such as rest areas or parking lots, and of course, always wear seat belts.

Thank you for all your good work on behalf of police officers everywhere.

TROOPER STEVE EARLE,
MASSACHUSETTS
STATE POLICE

DEAR TROOPER EARLE: Your advice to stop well away from high-speed traffic is a safety tip that could save the lives of many. Thank you for it, and for the reminder that a moment's distraction can occur during a long highway journey even with the safest of drivers. It is absolutely vital that motorists stay fully alert at all times.

Best ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — Monica Lewinsky's appearance on "Saturday Night Live" over the weekend gave the show its best ratings this season.

The NBC comedy drew an average audience of 10.3 million viewers, based on Nielsen Media Research's measurement of 46 major markets. It drew higher ratings than any other network show on Saturday, including prime-time program, Nielsen said on Monday.

Snyder has two top online scholars

TALLAHASSEE, FLA. — Snyder High School students Juan Arizmendi and Lidia Rodriguez are among the nation's top "online scholars," based on the results of the semi-final round of Florida State University's Online Scholar Challenge.

High school juniors and seniors from every state, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands registered to compete May 21 in the online information scavenger hunt, answering tough questions on a wide variety of topics through the Web-based LEXIS-NEXIS information center.

Based on their score, Arizimendi and Rodriguez qualified to compete in the semi-final round of the FSU Online Scholar Challenge Saturday.

The second round will narrow the field to the five highest-scoring teams who, with their chaperones, will receive all-expense paid trips to Florida State University June 3-5, for the FSU Online Scholar Challenge,

Prizes for the top "surfer" team of one or two students are four-year full-tuition scholarships to Florida State University, a value of nearly $40,000 for non-Forida residents.

According to Frank Murphy, president of the University Communications group, "The Online Scholar Challenge recognizes what we call in tech jargon the nation's "most wired" students. That seems appropriate for FSU, which has just been named the "most wired" university in Florida and second "most wired" public university in the Southeast by the pioneering Internet publication, Yahoo! Internet Life.

Lego reports loss

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Danish toymaker Lego lost $27.7 million in 1998, its first annual loss since the company's founding in the 1930s.

The loss was attributed to increasing competition from electronic toys which cut deeply into sales.

Coleman tables his TSU bill

AUSTIN (AP) — A Houston lawmaker has tabled his bill to abolish Texas Southern University's governing body after recent improvements in the school's management.

"Texas Southern University has had its challenges," bill sponsor Rep. Garnet Coleman, D-Houston, said Monday. "During the last month and a half, two months most of those issues have melted away."

Coleman's bill would have abolished the historically black college's board of regents and replaced it with a transition team designed to deal with financial and management difficulties the university has encountered.

State auditors have recently found that the university had made significant improvements.

The legislation would have fallen short of the threats of some lawmakers to put the school under the care of a larger university system.

The TSU bill is HB3525.

"IS IT TRUE PROSPERITY?"

"Beloved, I pray that in all respects you may prosper and be in good health, just as your soul prospers" (3 John 2). Old friends meet and inquire about each other's family and health. Answers come, relating with pride the current job, location, and state of health that each family member enjoys. How often do we reply to such inquiries giving priority to "the soul's health?" The Apostle John prayed that the body of Gaius was prospering as he knew the soul was. He put first things first. When we stop to analyze the matter, we agree that John was right. Yet do we not often place more emphasis on physical prosperity than we do on prosperity of the soul?

"For what will a man be profited, if he gains the whole world, and forfeits his soul?" (Matthew 16:26). Yes, success in a job has importance, but not first importance. Unless prosperity of soul keeps pace with prosperity in temporal things. then we may question whether such success is real.

NATO insists on total withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP) — NATO will accept nothing less than a total withdrawal of Serb military and police forces from Kosovo, Defense Secretary William Cohen said today. He told a Senate panel there was no evidence yet that a partial withdrawal, as announced by Belgrade on Monday, was under way.

"Number one, we have seen no evidence of any partial pullout, and number two, a partial pullout would mean a total victory for him," Cohen told the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on defense.

Speaking on the 49th day of NATO's Operation Allied Force, Cohen said President Slobodan Milosevic must accept all of NATO's key demands on Kosovo, including granting the Serbian province autonomy and allowing displaced ethnic Albanians to return under the protection of an international military force.

"Anything less than these key compontents would mean a victory for Milosevic, so we will insist on this," Cohen said.

At the White House, press secretary Joe Lockhart told reporters Milosevic could not be counted on to keep his word. "I think you can probably put this into the category of another in a long list of promises that Milosevic has made that he hasn't kept, going back through ... the six-year long experience we have had with him," he said.

"He very often says things that he has no intention of completing, and right now we see no indication that he has pulled back any troops."

On Monday, Cohen left open the possibility of NATO easing up on the bombing under certain circumstances.

"If he is committed to all of those conditions and then starts to withdraw his forces consistent with that commitment, then of course NATO could consider a bombing pause at that time," Cohen told a Pentagon news conference.

"But simply saying he's going to withdraw part of his forces is completely insufficient," Cohen said.
