Over Tax Cut Proposals. . .

Intraparty Squabble Could Favor Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic leaders, already pushed to the wall by President Reagan in a battle over competing tax-cut bills, now are facing a challenge from liberals in their own party who don't like either version.

The intraparty squabble, unless defused, could drain enough votes from the Democratic tax plan to assure a victory for Reagan.

Reagan plans a nationally broadcast address from the White House tonight to whip up support for his plan.

If all goes as planned, the House and Senate will pass a tax-cut bill Wednesday, which likely would result in getting the finished product to Reagan before Congress begins a month-long recess Aug. 7.

That would allow the first phase on the individual tax reduction to begin Oct. 1, resulting in slighly fatter paychecks for American workers because of slightly reduced federal income tax withholding.

In addition, both houses hope to complete work this week on 1982 budget reductions expected to total $35 billion.

At the heart of the tax-cut fight is Reagan's insistence on a three-year, 25-percent, across-the-board reduction in personal tax rates.

House Democrats have written a two-year plan whose benefits would be targeted to persons with incomes under $50,000 a year. A third-year tax cut would be provided only if the Reagan administration is able to cut interest rates and inflation as deeply as the president forecasts.

Since Republicans account for only 191 of the 434 House members (there is one vacancy), a handful of conservative Democrats could hold the margin of victory, just as they did on important budget votes earlier this year.

Reagan stepped up his bid to woo those lawmakers last week by agreeing to add more than $65 billion to the five-year cost of his tax bill, including $13 billion in special relief to the oil industry. Another provision offered by the president — a popular one with conservatives — would automatically adjust personal taxes each year, starting in 1985, to offset inflation.

The president hosted 15 House Democrats Sunday at Camp David, Md., to talk taxes and eat hot dogs and hamburgers.

Some of the changes advocated by Reagan already are in the Democratic bill, which was written by the House Ways and Means Committee. The Democratic Study Group, made up of mainly of liberals, is opposed to many of those ideas and wants a chance during the House debate to delete them.

More than 60 liberals have petitioned for a caucus Tuesday of all House Democrats, and under the rules, a session must be called. Liberals want the caucus to instruct the Rules Committee to allow debate on striking provisions that the Study Group opposes.

The liberals are especially offended by provisions in the two bills that would benefit the oil industry; soften a crackdown on tax-avoidance devices known as commodity straddles; and reduce maximum rates of taxation on estates.

Reagan TV Address Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, opening the final round of the battle over his tax-cut program, goes before a national audience tonight to plug his plan and scorn a rival Democratic proposal.

After a weekend of speechwriting and lobbying at the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., Reagan planned to address the nation from the Oval Office.

PLO Fires More Rockets

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas fired rockets and artillery into the pro-Israeli Christian militia enclave in southern Lebanon early today, breaking a fragile cease-fire for the fourth time since it took effect Friday, the Israeli military command said.

No casualties were reported in the shelling and neither Israeli nor Christian gunners returned the fire, the Tel Aviv command said.

Senate Gets Water Plan

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Perhaps the most far-reaching water proposal ever to come before the Legislature — Speaker Bill Clayton's water fund — was on the Senate agenda today.

A Senate vote also was pending on a compromise bill that continues state regulation of physicians and, for the first time, puts non-doctors on the Texas Board of Medical Examiners. It was approved by the House on Friday, 142-0, and sent back to the Senate for action on amendments.

Casey Controversy Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Embattled CIA Director William J. Casey, stepping up his fight to keep his job, now faces a new controversy over a CIA covert action plan that sources say he approved in an effort to topple Libyan strongman Moammar Khadafy.

One Republican source said Sunday night that Casey recently presented the House Intelligence Committee with a proposal that the CIA try to undermine the radical Arab leader.

Phones Out In Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — A blown fuse that knocked out 20 lines left Houston police headquarters without emergency telephone service more than two hours Sunday.

The exact cause of the problem had been undetermined but the lines were said to have gone down as lights flickered during a heavy rain.

'Reduction' Really A Hike. . .

Scurry Commissioners Oppose State Tax Bill

Scurry County Commissioners were preparing a resolution this morning officially opposing Senate Joint Resolution 4 now under consideration at the special legislative session.

This is the measure which would reduce the 10-cent state ad valorem tax levy to three cents and dedicate the funds to construction and maintenance of buildings at the 17 state colleges and universities.

County commissioners here say the word "reduce" is deceptive in this case.

Actually, the 10-cent state levy was all but abolished two years ago when the ratio of assessment for it was cut to .0001 of a cent. The last time the full 10-cent levy was collected, taxes in the state were levied on less than 100 percent of actual value. In Scurry County, the percentage of assement in 1976-77 was 10½ percent, and the 10-cent state tax amounted to a total of $254,000. In 1979-80, the last year the 10-cent state levy was collected, the ratio of assessment here was 25 percent and the total tax yield was $345,000.

However, now that the state requires assessment on 100 percent, the proposed three-cent rate would cost Scurry County taxpayers more than $800,000, according to Jay Massingill, county auditor.

For the past two years, the state ratio of assessment has been cut to .0001 of one percent, yielding a total of $2.36 in Scurry County.

So, when the legislature and those promoting SJR 4 talk about "reducing" the 10-cent rate to a three-cent rate, they are not talking about the same conditions that existed when the 10-cent rate was actually being collected. They are, in fact, talking about an $800,000 tax increase for the property owners of Scurry County.

Scurry County Commissioners said they planned to contact Rep. Larry Don Shaw and Sen. Ray Farabee personally, in addition to forwarding copies of their resolution in opposition to SJR 4.

"We hope a lot of other people will let them know how they feel about this increase, too," said Commissioner Hassie Sneed.

Leaving RSVP...

Mrs. Krenek To Bookstore Post

Marsha Krenek, director of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program in Scurry County for the past 4½ years, will leave that position on July 31 to become manager of the Western Texas College Bookstore.

A new RSVP director is expected to be named early in September.

RSVP is an organization for persons 60 years of age and older who give volunteer time to community projects and presently has about 260 members in Scurry County, Mrs. Krenek said.

"Our volunteers range in age from 60 to 95," she added, "And RSVP serves all age groups through its work at the various stations."

Mrs. Krenek's husband, Dr. Harry Krenek, is professor of history and sociology at WTC. The couple has two sons.

RSVP has been active in Scurry County since 1973 and is sponsored locally by WTC.

Ask Us

Q.—We notice TG&Y is now open on Sundays and were wondering, does the Snyder Police Department enforce the Texas Blue Law when stores do this?

A.—The so-called "blue law" does not prohibit any store from opening on any day, including Sunday. It does prohibit the sale of some specific items on consecutive Saturdays and Sundays. This is a state law, not a city ordinance and we know of no instance in which personnel from any law enforcement agency stand by checking counters to inspect items puchased by customers. There have been instances in some cities in which individuals have lodged complaints.

Blood Drive Set Tuesday

An important blood drive has been scheduled for Tuesday at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

The hours will be from 2 p. m. to 8 p. m.

The drive is being sponsored by the hospital laboratory and the Ladies Auxiliary of the hospital.

The drive has been scheduled to eliminate a shortage of available blood here, and all Snyder area residents who are eligible to give blood are being urged to participate.

Recipients, Others Gather In Waco Sunday For Herod Day

For more than 30 years, Carl Herod was known as one of Snyder's most avid sports and youth boosters.

From 1944 to 1965, excluding four years in the early '50s, Carl Herod presented the Carl Herod trophy to the Tiger's most outstanding gridder.

Thirteen of seventeen recipients gathered in Waco Sunday and turned the tables on Carl Herod. Mayors from both Snyder and Waco had signed documents proclaiming Carl Herod Day.

It was an nostalgic event, complete with laughs, reminisces and tears.

Held at Ridgewood Country Club, the event was planned by Baylor head coach Grant Teaff, a 1950 recipient of the Herod award.

Herod, who was an oil company distributor when he lived in Snyder, is now retired in Waco. His wife, Maurine, was in the hospital and unable to attend the banquet.

In addition to the recipients and their wives, there were others to came to pay tribute to Herod. Those included Guy Lewis, head basketball coach at the University of Houston. Herod had coached Lewis at Arp High School.

Also attending was Hugh (Blue) Lowry, a native of Arp and retired Snyder teacher and coach. Also attending from Snyder were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Teaff parents of the Baylor coach.

Teaff served as master of ceremonies and said the common thread of those present is the appreciation of Carl Herod. Teaff said Herod encouraged young people to "strive to be the best you can possibly be."

"This is what made the Carl Herod award so meaningful in those formative years," Teaff said. Success, he said, is measured by having character in everything you do.

Each receipient made brief remarks directed to Herod and at the end of the testimonials, Herod was presented a book containing a letter written from each winner. Also he was presented a plaque for his years of dedication to young people.

The first speaker was 1944 receipient Charlie Boren, now high schoool principal at Burleson High School. Burleson recalled that Snyder had no football team the previous year and that Carl Herod was instrumental in getting football started back in the high school.

The 1945 recipient was Dr. Raymond Bynum, now Texas Commissioner of Education in Austin. Bynum said Carl Herod was typical of Snyder people--good folks that believed in hard work.

Winner of the award in 1946 was Dr. Jack Longbotham, now professor of education psychology at Hardin-Simmons. He recalled that before days of scouting, Herod used his own time to scout opponents for Snyder.

In 1947 the award went to Jack Gorman, now assistant superintedent of the Snyder schools. He recalled that Carl was always visible, fostered excellence and was always dependable.

Donald Jack Jones of Longview was the reci-

Progress In ReducingNumber Of Government Workers Slow

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Efforts are still being made to do something about the ratio of approximately one state or local government employee to each 20 Texans, but the progress is slow.

State officials, prodded by Republican Gov. Bill Clements, say there is progress in reducing at least some parts of the state bureaucracy but there is no sign of such reduction among local govenments.

"Prospects for keeping the Texas bureaucracy under control are not as good as would be desired," said a recent report from the Texas Association for Taxpayers, based on 1980 Census reports.

"The hefty increase in the number of local (government) employees in Texas substantially outdistances the 0.9 percent increase nationally," according to the report.

The TAT was particularly incensed that the 1981 Legislature refused to reinstate an admonition to state agencies calling for a 5 pecent reduction in state employees, as the 1979 Legislature did.

"No doubt the governor will continue to work on this, but some assistance in the form of continuing work force limitations in the Appropriations Act would have been useful," TAT said.

Recent reports on operations of major state agencies through June show the payroll in those agencies is still going down slightly, according to Paul Wrotenbery, Clements' budget director.

Within the 12 largest state agencies there has been a reduction this fiscal year of about 800 employees, according to Wrotenbery. Coupled with a reduction of about 600 in fiscal 1980, this means the state payroll has been reduced for two straight years, the first time since 1945, he said.

However, employee numbers in state colleges and universities are up about 1,000 for this year.

According to the 1980 Census reports there was considerable variation in employees among the various agencies and departments. Welfare workers were down 4.5 percent from October 1979 to October 1980 and health employees were down 7.4 percent, while the highway work force dropped 2.5 percent. Higher education employees were up 0.6 percent for the same period and hospital workers up 5.5 percent. Correctional employees increased 11.1 percent.

"All we can do now is ask agency heads to strive to reduce their employement total as much as possible under present conditions," said Wrotenbery.. "I think you will see reductions in the major state agencies for the next year or so."

The Census reports, cited by TAT, say Texas local government employment increased 2.9 percent from 1978 to 1979 and then grew another 5.5 percent from 1979 to 1980. The last increase, of 27,362 employees, pushed the estimated total local government payroll to 525,997.

Texas school districts accounted for much of the increase the past year with a growth of 12,000 employees or 3.9 percent. Cities added 2,600 employees for a 2.2 percent annual increase. County employement jumped by nearly 10 percent, adding 6,000 for a total of 58,736.

Special districts grew from 19,100 to 26,400, an increase of 37.7 percent.

Only seven other states have more state and local employees than Texas according to population status.

Or to put it another way, the TAT said, therer are 488 state and local government employees in Texas for each 10,000 persons in the state.

paul harvey

The men and women who work in hospital emergency rooms drive the biggest cars they can afford.

They see too many drivers of small cars under red blankets.

The small car on the American highway, a David among the Goliaths, gets stepped on.

Their drivers almost never save enough gasoline to pay their higher insurance rates.

Responding to the question, "Why does car insurance cost so much?" the Journal of American Insurance has published three charts.

One chart shows how much gasoline the small car saves.

The third chart shows the relative risk-of-death when both cars are the same size.

The numbers are sobering.

The last year of record (1979), small cars were 38 percent of all cars--yet 55 percent of all highway deaths were in subcompacts.

Sixty-two percent of all cars are large cars, yet they are involved in only 45 percent of the fatalities.

The statistics can be rephrased more ominously: In a bantamweight car, if you collide with a heavyweight car, your odds of being killed are eight times greater!

A logical assumption is that we'll all be safer if and when all cars are small cars--but that's not so, either.

Even in a collision between a compact and a subcompact, occupants of the smaller car are three times more likely to be killed.

Now we come to the single car crash--where it runs into a telephone pole or careens over an embankment: Again--while small cars make up 38 percent of all cars--they account for 51 percent of all fatalities in single-vehicle crashes.

It has to do with irrevocable physical laws of mass, motion and acceleration. Lightweight vehicles simply have less "muscle" to absorb a blow.

The Virginia Highway Safety Division studied 200 crashes and concluded that, once cars are downsized to 3,000 pounds, every additional 100-pound decrease in weight reduces the crashworthiness of the vehicle by five percent.

Another factor: There is less "survival space" in small cars. Occupants are thrown into the dashboard or crushed more readily.

The Highway Loss Data Institute confirms "declining insurance claims with increasing car size."

Yet small cars continue to dominate the new car market. Each of us must decide for himself whether the tradeoff is worth it. Here are the odds:

--Each person can expect to be in a car crash once every 10 years.

--One in every 60 people will die in a car crash.

--The risk of death if you drive a small car is double.

letter to the editor

To The Daily News:

The laboratory and Ladies Auxiliary of Cogdell Memorial Hospital are sponsoring a blood drive on Tuesday, July 28, from 2 p. m. to 8 p. m.

I do not know how to impress upon those of you who never donate blood the importance of doing so. You would be furious if one of your family, friends or neighbors were to lose his life because blood was not available, but remember that all of our patients are somone's family, friend or neighbor.

There is a definite blood shortage this time of year. Many regular blood donors are gone on vacation. There is also an increased use of blood due to vacation-related accidents.

The citizens of Scurry County should be ashamed of the poor turn-out for our blood drives. We feel lucky if we get only 40 units. Snyder alone has over 12,000 residents. If half of those are between the ages of 17 and 65 and if half of this 6,000 are healthy enough to donate, we should have at least 3,000 elibigle donors. The same wonderful people donate time after time. Where are all of the rest of you and how can you, on good conscious, refuse to try to donate one unit of blood?

Will all of you regular donors come and bring a friend with you? By introducing new folks to the good feeling you get from saving lives, we can make our blood drives bigger and better.

I would like to extend a special thanks to the employees of Cogdell Hospial. Not only do they spend hours caring for your family and friends who are our patients, but they are also our best blood donors.

Who may donate?

Those who are 17 through 65 years of age (17-year-olds must have written parental permission), weigh at least 110 pounds and have not been a donor within eight weeks. You may not donate if you have had hepatitis, cancer, diabetes requiring insulin, drug addiction or epilepsy. You may be temporarily deferred if you are presently ill, have had major surgery within six months, are taking certain medications, or have been pregnant within six weeks.

If you have any questions, please feel free to call the laboratory at 573-6375, extension 220.

We would like to make this the best blood drive we have had in a long time. Please help us. We can't do without you. Come and donate and bring a bunch of friends. We will be looking for you.

To The Daily News:

There is some confused concern among many about our governing aristocracy's laxity on the importation of immigrants. Does our U. S. A. not have immigration laws and quotas and is our government not obligated to obey these laws? It seems that many of these are imported and supported at the public expense. Charity is a most admirable characteristic--but enforced charity loses its savor.

Then, too, concerning imports, there is a large trade deficit of U. S. money to Oriental manufacturers. It would seem prudent to enforce an exportation of U. S. mfg. goods of an equal dollar amount. The Oriental mfgrs. probably do not have the restrictions forced upon them that our U. S. mfgrs. have. This would seem to give them a competitive advantage, then, too, their productivity may be based on a no work, no eat policy.

Troops Step Up War Efforts

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South African troops have stepped up their war against South-West Africa's black nationalist guerrillas, taking advantage of a lull in Western efforts to break the Pretoria government's grip on its mineral-rich neighbor.

Attacks by South African airborne troops on guerrilla bases deep inside Angola earlier this month killed about 200 guerrillas of the South-West Africa People's Organization, or SWAPO. It was the bloodiest surge of fighting this year.

According to South African records, more than 700 guerrillas have been killed since January, at a cost of 24 South Africans.

The July escalation appears aimed at underlining South Africa's claim that it is winning the 16-year fight against the guerrillas.

South Africa has ruled South-West Africa since it captured it from Germany in World War I. It received a League of Nations mandate to run it in 1920, but the United Nations revoked that in 1966. South Africa defied the U.N., and now the United States and four allies are trying to arrange a settlement providing for U.N.-supervised elections leading to establishment of the independent nation of Namibia.

The mediators — the United States, Britain, France, West Germany and Canada — are to resume their efforts to get an independence formula at a meeting beginning Wednesday in Paris.

Diet facts & fallacies

These nutritional tips brought to you by DIET CENTER

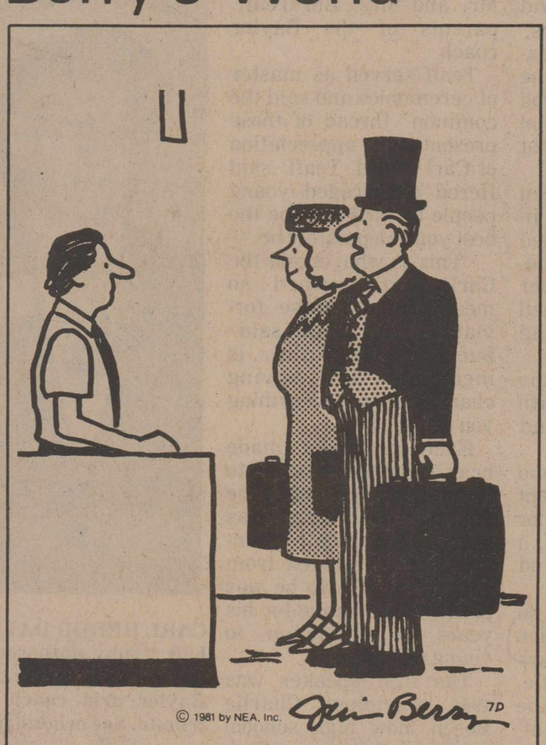

As temperatures climb and the gardens, full of fresh vegetables ripen, hot, heavy meals often give way to fresh, crisp salads.

While this may be good for the waistline, it may be detrimental to other bodily functions, because summer's lighter fare tends to run short on B vitamins. You need to eat the foods that are high in B vitamins to give you energy, to feed the nerves, and to help with proper digestion.

Necessary B vitamins are abundant in meat, eggs, whole grains, green vegetables, nuts and cheese. The most important of which are B-1 (thiamine), B-2 (riboflavin), B-3 (niacin), B-6 (pyridoxine), pantothenic acid and folic acid. All vitamins are water-soluble substances that can be cultivated from bacteria, yeasts, fungi or molds. Different B vitamins are found in varieties of vegetables and meats. It is important to eat a variety of vegetables and meats. It is important to eat a variety of all types of foods to ensure the entire B complex to help keep the body healthy.

Diet Center suggests that you make your salads delicious, main dishes by using a large variety of fresh greens, adding cheese, sprouts, sunflower seeds, hard-boiled eggs, raisins, mushrooms, etc., making your gardens yield a special treat, not only to your taste buds, but also to your waistline.

Rajai Wins Presidency

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Prime Minister Mahammad Ali Rajai won Iran's presidency with about 2 million votes more than ousted President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr received in his election 18 months ago, Iran's official news media says.
With counting from Friday's election nearly complete, Rajai has amassed more than 13 million votes, compared with about 11 million votes for Bani-Sadr in January 1980 when Iran held its first presidential election after 2,500 years of monarchy, Tehran Radio and the Pars news agency said Sunday.
Rajai has 89 percent of the nearly 14 million votes counted, according to figures released by Pars. There were three token opponents.
Meanwhile, the media reported 10 more executions of alleged dissidents in the continuing crackdown launched with the June 22 ouster of Bani-Sadr by the Islamic regime. Scores of opponents of the ruling fundamentalists have been put to death in the campaign.
Bani-Sadr, reportedly hiding among rebellious Kurdish tribes in northwest Iran, had urged his countrymen to boycott the elections in a clandestine election-eve broadcast. The fugitive leader vowed to return to power.
Iranian leftists in Turkey had predicted a bloody uprising on election day but only scattered violence was reported as Iranians flocked to the polls. Tehran Radio and Pars said more than 165 leftists were arrested on election eve and election day.
Eight members of unidentified outlawed groups were executed Saturday night and Sunday morning for "armed revolt against the Islamic republic" and "armed sedition," Pars said. The executions occurred in the southeastern city of Kerman and in the Caspian sea towns of Babol and Sari, Pars said.
And Tehran Radio said two "international Zionist elements" were executed Sunday in the northeastern city of Kashmar.

British Monarchy Has Endured For Years

LONDON (AP) — For almost 1,000 years the kings and queens of England have survived wars and plots to build a dynasty that has defied history and become the symbol of the nation.
While other royal houses vanished in the face of revolution and democracy, the British crown survived as a constitutional monarchy, gathering a popularity it often lacked in the days when kings, not Parliament, actually ruled.
When Prince Charles marries Lady Diana Spencer in an outpouring of splendor on July 29, much of the world will be watching, enthralled or intrigued by a monarchy that has survived the often stormy personalities of its incumbents.
The 42 men and women who have held the throne in a line that winds back to 1066 have ranged from Charles I, who was beheaded by his subjects, and Edward III, who pawned his crown to pay a debt, to Henry V and Elizabeth I, who were among the greatest rulers of history.
The royal family traces its ancestry to William the Conqueror, a savage, illiterate Norman warlord who invaded England and won the throne at the Battle of Hastings in 1066. A notoriously greedy man, William commissioned the "Doomsday Book," a list of his new kingdom's possessions.
The history of the English throne over the next 500 years is crowded with wars and plots as factions fought for power and the crown was often a political football. Henry II, who carved out a kingdom that included half of France, was ousted by his sons and Edward II and Edward V were murdered.
It was during this period, under King John in 1215, that barons and the church rose up to protest the monarch's misuse of his power as a feudal lord and demanded guarantees of the rights of subjects in the most famous document of British constitutonal history, the Magna Carta.
Many medieval kings could not speak English and spent most of their time in France. Edward III was one of the first kings to learn English, 250 years after the Norman conquest.
In 1485 Henry VII came to the throne, defeating Richard III, the hunchback blamed for the death of his young nephews who stood between him and the throne. A dour, tightfisted Welshman, Henry was to found the Tudor dynasty. His flamboyant son Henry VIII married six times, and Henry VIII's daughter, Elizabeth I, saw her realm extended to North America and the Far East.
The Tudors were replaced by the Stuarts, who believed that they were chosen by God and could do what they wanted. The Stuarts' claims led to war with Parliament, the defeat of the royalists and the beheading of Charles I before a crowd of his cheering subjects.
When Charles II, his younger brother, was invited to return to the throne in 1660 after a short-lived republic under Oliver Cromwell, the rulers of England were to be very cautious in the handling of their subjects. Power moved steadily into the hands of Parliament.
As Britain grew into a great imperial and mercantile power in the 18th century, the nation was ruled by the four Georges, German princes who inherited the throne after the last of the Stuarts died childless.
Often charming and distinguished, their line degenerated into insanity with George III, who once mistook a tree for a foreign ambassador, shook it by a branch and discussed foreign affairs.
It was George III's policies that caused 13 colonies in America to revolt in what some English still call a "supreme act of disloyalty."
The height of British power in the last century coincided with the reign of Queen Victoria. As the British built a global empire, she gave her name to an age of enterprise and a code of morality that even kept piano legs covered lest they excite "unnatural passions."
Victoria and the prudery of her times were followed by her son Edward VII, noted for the number of his mistresses and the prowess of his racing horses. But Edward was also to set a pattern for the modern monarchy by performing ceremonial duties and putting a human face on the machinery of state.
Monarchs of this century have worked tirelessly at this role.
During World War II, George VI was a leader second only to Winston Churchill. And in an age when Britain's power has vanished, Elizabeth II has been one of its few sources of prestige.

Heart Patient Clings To Life

HOUSTON (AP) — A 36-year-old Dutchman clung tenuously to life during the critical hours after surgeons transplanted a human heart to replace the mechanical one that had sustained him for about 54 hours, a hospital spokesman said.
Willebrordus A. Meuffels remained in critical condition late Sunday night, a day after the transplant and more than three days after Dr. Denton A. Cooley connected an artificial heart in a desperate effort to save the patient's life, said Texas Heart Institute spokeswoman Hazel Haby.
"Doctors are guardedly optimistic, but it is going to be touch and go for the next 48 to 72 hours," Ms. Haby, the hospital's director of public information, said.
"His heart is performing beautifully and Mr. Meuffels' blood pressure is good," she said. "But we are still having some problems with his blood coagulation. It is a little difficult to control the bleeding.
"They are giving him some packed red (blood) cells and some plasma to beef up his clotting mechanism."
She said doctors told her clotting difficulties can develop any time there is major trauma, and "any major surgery like this has to be considered trauma."
Cooley elected to employ the plastic, mechanical heart Thursday after Meuffels' heart stopped three hours after a triple bypass operation.
The artificial heart, a small pump attached to wires and tubes outside the body, sustained Meuffels from about 6 p.m. Thursday until about midnight Saturday.
Cooley defended the procedure, only the third time an artificial heart had been tried on a human being, saying in emergencies it allows surgeons to wait for a suitable human donor.
In Meuffels' case, the practice meant he was still alive Saturday when the donor, an unidentified 29-year-old with irreversable brain damage from a traumatic injury, was flown to Houston from Tennessee.
Cooley and his surgical team performed the switch from the artificial heart to the real one in three hours and 40 minutes of surgery that ended at 1:40 a.m. Sunday.
Hospital spokesman Pat Kiley, who was in the operating room during part of the operation, said the team all but let out a cheer when the new heart started beating in Meuffels' chest at 12:24 a.m. Sunday.
"It was tense until they saw that donor heart beating. It started beating strongly from the minute it was activated," said Kiley.
"There were sighs and jubilation. Everybody was overwhelmed and jubilant. It was truly breathtaking," Kiley said.
Kiley said the patient's wife was in the hospital during the operation but did not witness it. "Dr. Cooley discussed everything with her during and after the operation," he said.
Over the weekend, Cooley modified his prediction Friday that there was more than a 50 percent chance the retired tourist chauffer from Holland suffered brain damage when his heart stopped Thursday and interrupted the normal blood flow to the brain for 45 minutes.

Pre-Nuptial Jitters Are Not Surprising To Prince Charles

By JEFF BRADLEY
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles finds his blushing bride's pre-nuptial jitters "hardly surprising" and Lady Diana Spencer's nervous tears have endeared her even more to her doting public two days before the royal wedding.

Clamoring cameramen forced the 20-year-old bride-to-be to flee weeping from Charles' polo game on Saturday. On Sunday, she hovered in the background at another match while the lensmen focused on her future mother-in-law and Nancy Reagan.

Diana's display of vulnerability brought only encouragement from the admiring British press.

"Chin up, cheer up, we're all behind you Lady Di," said Daily Express columnist Jean Rook.

As royal wedding mania mounted, the tabloid Sun called today "Di-Day Minus 2" and reminded Lady Diana of the "enormous reserve of love and respect" for her in the land.

It was a hectic weekend of royal activity and the pace picks up tonight when Queen Elizabeth II gives a glittering party at Buckingham Palace for the kings, queens, princes and other official guests — including Mrs. Reagan — attending Wednesday's ceremony at St. Paul's Cathedral.

The polo match at Windsor Great Park drew a crowd of 10,000 spectators Sunday instead of the usual few hundred. Wearing a special visor to protect his face, Charles scored a goal in the England reserve team's 10-5 victory over Spain.

In a TV interview at the polo ground, the 32-year-old prince explained his fiancee's sudden departure from the match the day before:

"It isn't much fun, actually, watching polo when you are being surrounded by people with their long lenses, poking them at you from all directions almost the entire time and then taking photos, which is quite easy to do, and saying 'looking bored.'

"I think it all adds up to a certain amount of strain each time and it told eventually, which is hardly surprising."

Lady Diana also was interviewed, replying to questions submitted by the British Press Association, and said she was fond of polo despite reports that she has asked Charles to give up the game. The prince dismissed that notion as "absolute rubbish."

A quiet young woman who shared a London flat with three other girls before royal romance made her an international celebrity, Diana admitted she was having difficulty adjusting to the glare of publicity.

"It has taken a bit of getting used to the cameras," she said.

Her pre-wedding nerves were "the same as any would-be bride," she said, adding that her goal is "being a good wife after July 29."

Meanwhile, thousands journeyed to the heart of London before 8 a.m. Sunday to watch the troops and the horse-drawn carriages rehearse the two-mile wedding procession from Buckingham Palace to St. Paul's Cathedral. No members of the royal family took part in the dry run.

THIS WILL BE the first royal wedding at St. Paul's since its rebuilding after the Great Fire of 1666 by architect Christopher Wren.

Press Confused By Reagan Nod

By CAROLYN LESH
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Nancy Reagan reaffirmed America's independence with a handshake for Queen Elizabeth II instead of a curtsy but confounded the British press with a nod.

"Mystery of Phantom Curtsy," read the headline in the Daily Mail. The Daily Express said Mrs. Reagan "made as if to bow then changed her mind."

The American first lady and the British queen met without benefit of press photographers Sunday before Mrs. Reagan joined the royal family to watch Prince Charles play polo at Windsor. It was the first meeting of the two women since Mrs. Reagan arrived as the official U.S. representative to the wedding Wednesday of the prince and Lady Diana Spencer.

Mrs. Reagan's press secretary, Sheila Tate, said the president's wife "shook hands with the queen and inclined her head slightly as you would when you meet someone. It was definitely not a curtsy."

Whether Mrs. Reagan would bend her knee to the descendant of King George III became an issue in the British press because of the flap in the United States when her friend Leonore Annenberg curtsied to Prince Charles on his arrival in Washington earlier this year.

Mrs. Annenberg got in practice when her husband, Walter, was U.S. ambassador to Britain. But she is now the State Department's chief of protocol and was welcoming Charles on behalf of President Reagan and the U.S. government.

Critics contended it was improper for an official American representative to bow to pay such obeisance to the royal institution since the United States had fought a war to get out from under the British crown.

Mrs. Reagan's decision to shake hands rather than curtsy was announced Friday and caused a furor in the British press. Buckingham Palace said, "Normally there is a bow or curtsy, but if Mrs. Reagan wants to shake hands that'll be fine."

Mrs. Reagan's schedule today included a visit to St. Paul's Cathedral, where the royal wedding will take place Wednesday, to place a wreath at the American memorial chapel, and a performance by the Dance Theater of Harlem at the Royal Opera House.

Tonight she goes to Buckingham Palace for a reception Queen Elizabeth is giving for the official wedding guests. Mrs. Tate said Mrs. Reagan would again shake hands.

PRINCE CHARLES AND LADY DIANA relax at Balmoral, the queen's estate in Scotland. It was there that the couple's romance blossomed last summer.

In Trouble For Flying Kites Too High

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Cuttitta may feel like telling the cops to go fly a kite, but they've told him to take a hike — to Brooklyn Criminal Court.

His crime?

Kite flying "at 1,000 feet."

Officer Charles Consenza swooped down on Cuttitta in a helicopter Saturday and told him flying a kite above 150 feet without the consent of the nearest federal air traffic control center is a misdemeanor.

"We don't want to give people summonses indiscriminately," Conenza said. "But it is a dangerous condition."

However, the Federal Aviation Administration could not confirm the existence of the altitude regulation.

He said Cuttitta, 51, the president of a paper supply company, had his $42 Delta miniature kite "at 1,000 feet."

Royal Couple Plans BroadlandsHoneymoon

By MARK S. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

ROMSEY, England (AP) — Prince Charles and his bride will spend their wedding night in a magnificent Georgian mansion filled with rare art works and antiques with more than 5,000 acres of Hampshire countryside to help give them privacy.

It's "Uncle Dickie's house" to the royal bridegroom and his father, Prince Philip.

The royal honeymoon will begin Wednesday at Broadlands, the country estate of the late Earl Mountbatten, Charles' great-uncle who was killed by an Irish Republican Army bomb in 1979.

Charles often went there as a boy to visit the dashing soldier-statesman who became a surrogate grandfather to him. The prince spent hours fishing for trout and salmon in the river Test, which meanders through a copse of trees a hundred yards from the mansion. It is said he first learned to love polo and horseback riding on the estate.

That he and Diana decided to spend their wedding night at Broadlands did not surprise the estate staff.

"They're looking for a little privacy, and here is the place to get it," said one member.

Charles' parents, Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip, also stayed at Broadlands on their wedding night in 1947.

Three months before his death, Earl Mountbatten opened the estate to the public to help pay the mounting maintenance costs. Charles paid the first admission.

"It is a treasure trove of beautiful things," said Mountbatten. "It is a pity not to let them be seen."

Broadlands, now owned by Mountbatten's grandson Lord Romsey, has become a popular tourist attraction. When the royal couple announced their honeymoon plans, the stream of visitors turned into a flood.

Many of these pre-nuptial visitors hurried past the four Van Dyck portraits in the dining room and the memorabilia of Mountbatten's military career and his tenure as India's last viceory.

They were mostly interested in the three state bedrooms — the Portico Room, the Green Room and what used to be known as the Lord Palmerston Room before a painting of the 19th-century prime minister who lived there was moved downstairs.

Asked which one the royal couple would occupy, a polite guide said: "Oh, Prince Charles will find a room. He knows this place very well, you know."

The estate was closed to the public Sunday evening so it could be readied for Wednesday.

The village of Romsey is decked out in bunting and flags. Middlebridge Street is awash in blue and white, the colors of the Prince of Wales crest.

Texas Linguist Wins USSR Medal

HOUSTON (AP) — An 18-year-old Houston student came home from a Moscow language competition with a bronze medal and the assurance that he made a lasting impression on his Russian hosts.

J. Sterling Mullins said one Russian journalist described him as "a real Texan who took off his cowboy hat only when he entered the testing room."

Mullins was on a six-member team of American students competing with 350 contestants from 41 nations in the Fourth International Russian Language Olympiad in Moscow earlier this month.

Russian language teachers judge the competition, which is held every three years.

"They could all tell that I was an American," Mullins said. "Between the cowboy hat and boots, they couldn't help but know."

Mullins, who graduated from Bellaire High School in May, earned his place on the team after winning a six-state regional competition in April.

"Our team did a fantastic job for America," he said. "We all won medals. We came back with two gold, two silver and two bronze medals."

Mullins says he plans to attend the University of Texas in September as a Russian language major. But he says he also studies German, Chinese, Spanish, French, Hebrew and Welsh.

He says he did "pretty good" in other subjects in high school, but that "language is what comes easy for me."

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Oil millionaire Wyman E. Fraley may not have been invited to the royal wedding, but he has sent Prince Charles and Lady Diana an unusual gift.

Fraley, 33, sent the royal couple part interest in an oil and gas well he drilled in May. Interest in a second well will be transferred when drilling on it is completed, he said. He has received no official confirmation of the present.

"There's been so much merchandising, so much commercialization of this wedding, I just wanted to make a personal gesture," said the native of Mangum in southwestern Oklahoma.

Fraley, whose office is in a remodeled Victorian-style home in Oklahoma City, will make his first trip to England in August to open an office in London, where he plans to headquarter offshore drilling operations and an oil supply business.

"I just wanted this present to be a good introduction," he said.

Fraley Oil & Gas reportedly has assets of $6 million. Fraley says he has drilled or participated in 84 wells and hasn't hit a dry one yet.

Fraley is secretive about the production of his gift well, but he says the monthly income would provide the royal couple with a comfortable income for the rest of their lives.

"We don't want to cloud the issue with the value," he said.

Whether the gift ranks with the Steuben bowl, reportedly valued at $75,000, presented to the couple by the Reagans remains in question.

"I don't think it'll put the king in another tax bracket," said Marshall Udden, consultant for Geodyne Resources of Tulsa.

Oil experts estimated the well's production at around five barrels a day. A 26-year veteran in the business said the royal couple could receive several thousand dollars a month from the well if it conforms to the stripper production of older wells in the area.

In 1979, a well one-half mile north and east of his "showed 138 barrels a day," he said. "Another drilled in March averages about 180 barrels a day now."

Experts estimate the royal paycheck from a well that size could exceed $50,000 a month.

The novelist Marcel Proust died in 1922.

Molasses Cookies Made Without Eggs

MOLASSES COOKIES

Old-time sweet "icebox crackers" made without egg have great texture and rich flavor. 2¼ cups all-purpose flour

1 teaspoon baking soda
½ cup butter ½ cup sugar
½ cup molasses
2 tablespoons milk

Stir together the flour and baking soda. Cream butter and sugar; beat in molasses and milk — don't worry if mixture looks curdly. Add floury mixture and stir until smooth. Cover and chill until firm enough to handle; turn out on wax paper and shape into a block — about 8 inches long and 2 inches wide. Cover tightly and chill thoroughly, but no longer than overnight. Cut in half crosswise; work with one half at a time; keep other half chilled. Using a long thin-blade knife and cutting straight down rather than sawing, slice the cookies as thinly as possible. If necessary, patch any uneven corners. Using a wide blade metal spatula, transfer slices, placing them a couple of inches apart, to a buttered cookie sheet. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until lightly browned — about 10 minutes. Remove to a wire rack to cool. Makes about 4 dozen.

Safety pins were invented in 1849 by Walter Hunt and first manufactured in New York.

Doctors Against Overfeeding Of Infants

By Gaynor Maddox

It may startle many parents who think fatness in an infant is a sign of God's favor. Doctors and nutritionists say this is not true.

Doting parents, and relatives, in fact, do a child a favor if they do not insist on "fattening" him up from infancy throughout adolescence.

One way, according to a leading pediatrician, not to blight their lives with psychological, physical and social problems that often come with excessive overweight, is not to let a child get truly fat in the first place.

It has been learned in the last few years that fat adults learned to be fat when they were children.

Pediatriian Alvin Eden, M.D., who wrote "Growing Up Thin," points out that certain children are destined to grow up fat.

These are children who are overstuffed with milk and are fed solid foods much to early, for example.

Pediatricians say that a baby who is kept in a playpen or a stroller and not encouraged to crawl or scoot around getting exercise also may face later weight proglems, especially if they are encouraged to stop crying by having a cookie or bottle stuffed in their mouths. A preschooler who is bribed with sweets so he will finish his meal or constantly snacks while keeping quiet in front of the TV also may face a weight problem in later life.

Some children get less exercise than they really should have pediatricians agree. For example, the adolescent who is driven to and from school rather than walking or riding a bicycle. And the child who never walks when he can sit and never runs when he can walk.

It is up to the parents to encourage some form of physical activity from infancy on. Of course, the problem may well be that the adults also are slothful, and probably fat.

Doctors further explain that usually a thin child will grow up to be a thin adult, not skinny, but within the normal weight range. A fat child almost always grows up to be a fat adult and studies show that a person does not lose the fat tissue built up as a child.

It may sound anti-parent, but don't insist your child finish everything on his plate. He may not truly be hungry. He may not need the full portions served him. By forcing him to eat you may start him on the path to putting on extra weight.

To avoid conflict at the table, serve smaller portions.

An infant or toddler knows how much food he actually wants. And, no crank diets or special diets are needed, unless medically required.

Again, help your child to avoid being an overweight adult from infancy on.

Singer Marked By Hostility

NEW YORK (AP) — Joan Baez, recently returned from a six-country tour of Latin America that she says was marked by hostility from ruling right-wing regimes, says she wished she would have been arrested to amplify her message on human rights.

"I had really planned to enter these countries quietly," Ms. Baez told People magazine after her return home to Woodside, Calif. "I'm softer now than in the '60s. I didn't feel compelled to be strident in Latin America."

Alan: "It is like Frank Stockton's story called, 'The Lady and the Tiger.' There is an even-money chance and no way to get up to 51 percent. Today's hand is a case in point. If South is in six diamonds he is guessing for an overtrick. At seven diamonds he is guessing for the difference between plus 1140 and minus 100."

Oswald: "Now it is up to South to cash the ace and king of one of the major suits. If he cashes the spade he drops West's queen and his worries are over. If he cashes the hearts only small cards appear and his best play will be to cash one high spade, enter dummy with the one possible trump entry, discard the jack of hearts on the ace of clubs and try the finesse for the spade queen."

Alan: "Looking at all the cards we note that by refusing the spade finesse we would make the slam, but that would just be a lucky result from a bad play."

DIET CENTER®

The Last Weight-Loss Program You'll Ever Need.

Fairy Eicke
Diet Center Counselor

Sure it's tough to lose weight. If it were easy, we would all be slim. Maybe the hardest part of all is getting started. There are so many diets, pills, miracle capsules and weight-reduction programs to choose from that weeks or even months can pass while we try to decide what to try next! And while we wait and wonder, we eat and gain even more weight.

Before you buy another pill, before you clip another magazine diet, before you skip one more meal stop ... ask yourself if this is the way you want to spend the rest of your life. Look beyond your desire to lose a few pounds and consider the fact that there is only one way to lose weight and keep it off. You have to change your eating habits—not just while you're dieting, but permanently. And no pill, no miracle formula and no fad diet is going to do that for you ... you have to do it for yourself. And the best way to do that is through education.

Here's a Sensible Weight-Loss Program That Really Works!

At Diet Center, you will receive private, daily support from a counselor who cares and understands. She knows what it takes to make those permanent changes because she has done it herself. You will learn how your body functions and just how satisfying a nutritionally balanced diet really is. You will lose weight quickly and safely, without hunger or loss of energy. But what's even more important, you will lay the foundation for a lifetime free of excess weight.

In just 10 years, Diet Center has grown to over 1,100 locations all across the United States and Canada. We've grown this big, this fast for one basic reason ... Our Program works!

Lose 17 to 25 Pounds In Just 6 Weeks!

At Diet Center, you will lose 17 to 25 pounds in just 6 weeks. If necessary, that rate of reduction can be sustained until you have lost 50, 75 or even 100 pounds and more. And all this is accomplished without shots, drugs, stimulants or prepackaged foods. No wonder more and more doctors are prescribing Diet Center for their patients who need to lose weight. We offer separate programs for men, women and children, and your program will be modified to fit your individual needs.

When you decide to lose weight, call Diet Center for a free introductory consultation. Stop by and talk to people who are already on the program. (Our dieters are our best salespeople!) We think you'll decide to try Diet Center, and when you do you'll find that this is the last weight-loss program you'll ever need.

Dear Abby

Once Her Jeans Are On, Girl Should Stay in Them

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I have been told by friends that it is possible to get pregnant through your jeans. I can't believe this!

I am a virgin, just turned 15, and know I am going to be more involved with guys now that I'm dating. If this is possible, I am scared to death to get very close to any guy. I need to know as soon as possible.

I hope you won't think this is a dumb question.

WORRIED IN EL PASO

DEAR WORRIED: It is not a dumb question. It's a very intelligent one. A lot of kids get aroused by just lying close to each other while kissing. Then they just naturally proceed to the next step, which is petting.

It's not possible to get pregnant through one's jeans, but sometimes kids remove some of their clothing because it's "in the way," or they burrow underneath it to explore each other's bodies with their hands. This is known as heavy petting, or "doing everything else but."

The technical (and legal) definition of sexual intercourse is "penetration." (The male's sex organ must penetrate the female's.) However, as impossible as it may sound, in the medical literature can be found cases where there has been no penetration — the girl remained a virgin, but after engaging in heavy petting, she found herself pregnant.

The above is from my new booklet, "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know." It can be obtained by sending $2, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (35¢) envelope to ABBY'S TEEN BOOKLET, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

DEAR ABBY: My son works long hours, so when he wants to buy his wife something for her birthday, Mother's Day, Christmas or their anniversary, he asks me to please buy something for him to give to her.

Although it's not easy for me to get around, I'm happy to accommodate him, but I have yet to select a gift his wife has liked well enough to keep. I know her size, and I also know what colors she likes, but for some reason nothing I select has ever pleased her, so back it goes to be exchanged for something she picks out herself.

Abby, since shopping for my daughter-in-law's gifts is a total waste of time, I finally told my son to give her the money and let her buy what she wants. He said his wife didn't consider money a proper gift — it lacked warmth and sentimentality. Now what do I do?

KENTUCKY CHICKEN

DEAR CHICKEN: Resign as your son's personal shopper. Tell him if his wife wants warmth and sentimentality, to send her a gift certificate with a warm, sentimental card.

DEAR ABBY: How do I get through to my in-laws? I have a 2-year-old daughter who has a favorite doll she carries wherever she goes. When Tina goes to Grandma and Grandpa's house, they take her doll away from her, which is bad enough, but then they pretend to beat it up! This gets Tina so upset that she cries and carries on. Then her grandparents laugh at her.

Abby, I have tried to explain that Tina doesn't understand their actions, but they insist on doing it every time we visit them. They call it "teasing" and say Tina should learn how to take a joke. I love my in-laws, but I don't like their teasing my child this way. What should I do?

YOUNG MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Tell them that they may view this kind of teasing as a joke, but if it moves a child to tears, it's cruelty. Furthermore, if they don't discontinue that cruel practice, you will discontinue your visits.

* * *

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby: 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Officials Gripe About Protests

HOUSTON (AP) — Demonstrations by foreign students are straining Houston police resources, and city ordinances governing protests should be strengthened, city officials have said.

Mayor Jim McConn and members of the City Council made the comments after anti-Israeli protesters and construction workers clashed for the second time last week.

Houston police were called in Friday when demonstrators protesting Israeli raids into Lebanon gathered near the Israeli consulate next to a construction site in southwest Houston. One person was arrested, though no violence was reported.

"It has gotten completely and totally out of hand," McConn said. "We have bent over backwards so far to protect the rights of everybody, including foreign students, to the point where one of our police officers, if he had gone over and hit somebody on the head — which I would have loved have seen, frankly — if he had done that, he would have gotten called before a grand jury on a civil rights abuse."

"Anytime you take police officers away from their primary duty of protecting the people of our city to control foreign students who are trying to incite a riot, it hurts us all," City Councilman Johnny Goyen said. "We simply shouldn't tolerate this and I'm sure the council will discuss it this week."

But City Attorney Ed Cazares said he doubted the city "could prevent protesters from orderly demonstrations. We certainly don't have any ordinances that would prohibit them from exercising their First Amendment rights."

Councilman Judson Robinson said city regulations may need tightening, but defended the students' right to protest.

"... such demonstrations follow the tradition of our country, and certainly people must have the right to express themselves," Robinson said. "That is, after all, something we've gone to war for."

But Loses Again. . .

Paroled Convict Wins Appeal

TITUSVILLE, Fla. (AP) — In 1977, Willie Reddick was convicted of robbing a convenience store at gunpoint. Sentenced to 10 years in prison, he had served almost four when he was paroled.

Determined to clear his name, he finally won his appeal for a new trial — and was promptly convicted a second time and sent back to prison, given another 10-year sentence for the same crime.

Is this double jeopardy — prosecution of a person twice for the same crime? Reddick and his lawyer say so.

Prosecutors, other attorneys and officials of the state Parole and Probation Commission call the case "rare" and "unusual," but not unprecedented, and strictly within the law.

Reddick, now 27, filed an appeal shortly after his 1977 conviction for the robbery of the Titusville shop. The store cashier and a customer had identified him as one of two gunmen who held them up and stole $230 from the till.

The 4th District Court of Appeal in West Palm Beach rejected Reddick's argument that Circuit Judge Volie Williams had erred while instructing the jury. The appeal then went to the Florida Supreme Court.

The years passed.

Last December, when Reddick had served 1,390 days — almost four years of his sentence — he was paroled. He went back to "civilization," as he calls it, found work as a carpenter's helper and was doing well.

This February, the state Supreme Court found that the judge in the Reddick trial had, indeed, erred in his jury instructions. It ordered a new trial.

Again, the state attorney's office in Brevard County charged Reddick with armed robbery. Prosecutor Kent LeBlanc rounded up his witnesses and went back to the courtroom.

It meant a disruption in his new life, but Reddick was pleased with the chance to clear his name. He had maintained his innocence all along, and he felt certain a new jury would find him innocent and wipe the slate clean.

But on June 26, a Brevard Circuit Court jury found him guilty. By law, a jury isn't told of a man's previous record. Jurors didn't know he was on parole after serving almost four years for the same crime.

Circuit Judge Virgil Conkling imposed a 10-year sentence, identical to the one he'd received earlier, but credited him with time already served.

So Reddick went back to jail — a victim of his own appeal.

The Parole and Probation Commission is working on the case — again — and Reddick's lawyer, Leon Daniel Watts, expects him to be a free man again within three or four weeks.

Reddick finds that small consolation.

"I'm trying to lead an honest, comfortable, decent life and people won't let me," he said from his jail cell. "I feel I've been treated like I'm a wild animal."

Watts said that what happened to Reddick was due to "a quirk in the law. His reincarceration is virtually double jeopardy. But the law in Florida allows that to happen."

Because the Supreme Court's ruling had the effect of wiping out what went on before, there were three possible courses of action in Reddick's case, lawyers say: a new trial, dismissal of all charges or a guilty plea from Reddick.

If the defendant had pleaded guilty, putting the crime back on his record, the judge probably would have sentenced him to time already served and continued his parole, most lawyers agree.

But, Watts said, "Mr. Reddick has always maintained his innocence. An innocent man is not going to plead guilty."

Assistant State Attorney LeBlanc decided to re-try Reddick instead of dropping the charge because "armed robbery is a pretty serious charge."

"We consider a number of things — past record, seriousness of the offense....If we had dropped the charge, Mr. Reddick would have had no record for a very serious crime," LeBlanc said.

Reddick's hope now lies with the Parole and Probation Commission, which has agreed to interview him to decide whether he should be granted immediate parole.

"We've got to go back and talk to him, be sure that his record was clean during his previous parole," said a commission spokesman. "Case material has to be compiled just as if it were a new parole.

"I've been here for 12 years, and I've never seen a case like this."

Woman Terrorized For Months Before Death

CHICAGO (AP) — Hard of hearing and nearly blind, Sigrid Barginde lived the last two months of her 87 years in terror, pleading with police to believe her story of telephone taps, assault and strangers lurking in her darkened house.

One officer on the beat said police had just begun to believe her tales and had beefed up their checks on her small brick home on the South Side when her body was found face down on her bed, her hands bound behind her back with a scarf.

There was no sign of forced entry, police said. There are no suspects and her death remains a mystery.

The police theory is that Miss Barginde may have died of natural causes after an intruder bound her and left her on the bed.

Miss Barginde said the terror began in April after she awoke on the living room couch one night after falling asleep watching television, which she could see only through thick glasses from 10 inches away.

She made out the shadowy figures of three strangers as she moved through the dark house toward her bedroom, she told police. She said she screamed, they threw a sheet over her, hit her on the head and threw her in a closet.

She showed officers Bill Melmine and Larry Viles the bloodied sheet and her black eye the next morning, but they found her story hard to believe, especially her whispered fears that the phone was tapped and the house bugged. They found no signs of forced entry.

Later, Miss Barginde complained she had to go across the street and use a neighbor's phone because no one could hear her when she talked into hers. When Melmine and Viles took the phone to be repaired, they were told pieces of the receiver had been ripped out.

"That's when I started to at least half-believe her," Melmine said. "My partner and I got her a new phone and screwed the receiver on so tight even I couldn't get it off. A week later, she called us from the neighbor's house and sure enough, the parts were missing again. So we used super-strong glue to stick the receiver cover on. After that, someone pulled the receiver and the cord out of the phone altogether."

On June 18, Miss Barginde was mugged on her way home from the bank. But she held onto her purse, refusing to give in.

"It started to get to her," said Viles, who with Melmine befriended the old woman and began cruising by several times a week, spraying the rays from a spotlight around the bungalow.

"She would be sitting there talking and happy, and then she would sit down and cry. She was just scared to death," Viles said. "She was living in terror all the time. But she wouldn't move."

"We told her, 'If you don't get out of here, you're going to die here,' " Melmine said.

A few days after the mugging, nothing was heard from the old woman. The telephone man, who also had befriended her, got no answer when he stopped by for a visit.

On June 26, police found her body.

From Other Ag Suppliers...

Competition Is Stiff

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is getting stiff competition from other suppliers of agricultural products in a lucrative, growing market that extends from Morocco in North Africa to Iran in the Middle East, says an Agriculture Department analyst.

John B. Parker of the department's Economic Research Service cites, for example, the rapid growth of European exports to that vast area, which includes some of the world's richest oil states.

Last year, he said, the region imported $24 billion worth of agricultural products, a 33 percent increase from calendar 1979. The total in 1981 could rise to another record of about $30 billion.

The United States' share last year was $2.6 billion, about 11 percent of the total. This year it could grow to about $3.3 billion or about the same share as in 1980.

Sales by countries of the European Community, meanwhile, totaled about $5 billion last year — 21 percent of the total — and may rise to $7 billion in calendar 1981, reaching more than 23 percent of the projected $30 billion total.

Parker's assessment is included in the current issue of Agricultural Outlook, which is published monthly by his agency.

One factor in the U.S. export business affecting the region was the cutoff in trade with Iran. Some grain is being sold to Iran now — since the hostage situation was relieved last year — but business is a long way from returning to the old days.

Sales of U.S. commodities to Iran plummeted from $415 million in 1979 to $8 million in 1980. However, they are expected to rise above $200 million this year, Parker said.

Besides European suppliers, Australia has increased its exports to the region, reaching nearly $2 billion last year, including a big increase in the shipments of wheat and flour.

"Australia picked up much of Iran's wheat trade when trade with the United States was halted," Parker said. "Iran, Iraq, Saudi Arabia and Egypt each bought about $300 million worth of agricultural products from Australia in 1980."

Parker sees the North Africa and Middle East region as a collective growth market for agricultural products overall.

"This area's population is growing 3 percent a year, with food demand probably growing more than 5 percent annually," he said. "As a result, average diets improved tremendously during the 1970s, and futher gains are being made this year."

Turkey, an exception, has increased its food supplies through higher yields. Otherwise, Parker said, the region has relied on larger imports to improve diets.

"In the Arab countries and Iran, imported meat and dairy products account for nearly half the increase in calories in the average diet since 1973," he said.

Among the reasons Parker cited for the the region's growth in demand for agricultural products:

—Per capita incomes have "climbed dramatically because of soaring petroleum revenues and financial flows related to petroleum wealth."

—Governments in the region have "adjusted their policies and programs to allow much larger agricultural imports because of rapid growth in urban populations" and have subsidized most essential food items to keep prices low for city consumers.

—The area of usable cropland in the Arab countries declined during the 1970s because of urbanization, and only limited efforts were made to bring desert areas into production.

—Supplies of agricultural products in Europe, the United States, Brazil, Australia and some other countries were generally abundant and prices for most food items attractive.

—The rapid growth in demand in Arab countries for livestock products and "the array or export subsidies" provided by countries in Europe and elsewhere helped boost sales of those products, including meat, eggs, milk, butter and cheese.

—Extensive programs to expand port facilities to handle more grain and refrigerated grocery items.

pient in 1948, but was unable to attend.

The 1949 Herod trophy winner was Billy (Rip) Boss, electrical contractor from Italy, Tex. He recalled that Herod went about "quietly doing good." That year, Boss said, Herod helped put a divided team back together.

Teaff, the 1950 winner called Herod an advisor and counselor. "He has always been a good friend." Teaff recalled during his high school days that Herod tutored him in math so that he could be eligible to play football.

A UIL ruling prohibited such an award from 1951 to 1954, but in 1955 the recipient was Norman (Shorty) Grimmett, now a lieutenant colonel in the Army stationed at Ft. Hood. "Carl Herod was always there when you needed him. He met the bus regardless of winning or losing."

The 1956 recipient was Milton Ham, owner of Snyder Athletic Center. He said Herod helped young men dream. "He talked and I listened and his message was always the same: 'Things will be better.'" Ham said the Herod legacy will be "someone really cared."

Bud Morgan, coach at Odessa, received the award in 1957. Richard Mahan of Bloomington, Ill. was honored in 1958 and Dick Hays, now a dairy farmer from Comanch, was honored in 1959. The three were unable to attend.

Winner in 1960 was Reg Scarborough, a pharmacist in Fort Worth. "For a long time I thought Carl Herod was on the coaching staff." Scarbrough said Herod's award and inspiration kept him from giving up football in the 8th grade.

The 1961 winner was Tim Marcum, now backfield coach at Rice University. "When I moved to Snyder the first person I met was Carl Herod. He was the team's ambassador."

In 1962 there were dual recipients of the Herod award. Pete Greene, now district attorney in Snyder, was one. He said Herod promoted the philosophy of "not just winning, but wanting to win."

Leslie Brown, coach at Jersey Village near Houston, was winner of the Herod award in 1962, 1963 and 1964. "Carl was always there picking a fellow up when he fell down."

David Holt, president of Fluid Transport in Snyder was the final winner in 1965. "Young men have been deprived of a great award for 15 years."

Teaff joined Holt in suggesting that the Carl Herod award be reinstituted. Recipients who still live in Snyder agreed to work with Teaff in reviving the honor.

Herod emotionally responded to the testimonials. He revealed for the first time the criteria for the Herod award. In addition to outstanding football performance, citizenship and passing academic work were equal factors.

Delighted with diet

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I ordered your Health Letter, Weight Losing Diet, six months ago. I weighed 265 pounds. I followed your diet except I substituted a poached egg and a strip of bacon for breakfast. Although you recommended 1,300 calories a day, I dropped to 700 calories. In six months I was down to 168 pounds. I lost 97 pounds and went from a waist size of 44 to 32.

I did feel weak sometimes, particularly when it was hot. I am a brick mason and was busy in the heat. I'm 40 years old and 6 feet tall. Before my diet my blood pressure was 155 over 110. Now it is 117 over 70. My hair has gotten thinner and I remember you saying that dieting could cause this. Now that I have my weight down, what do you recommend for a diet? I don't want to go back to my previous diet and gain all that weight back again.

Thank you for the wonderful diet. I have had at least 10,000 compliments and some people don't even know me. Also thanks for introducing me to a daily walk of one-and-a-half to two miles. Nothing in my life has been more relaxing and enjoyable.

DEAR READER — I am delighted with your success. Had I known what you were doing I would have insisted that you stick to the diet and not decrease your calories so much. A 1,200 to 1,300 calorie diet would have done the same thing, more slowly, but with less danger to your health. And you might not have lost your hair. It is the deficiency in calories and in protein in severe diets that commonly cause hair loss.

In a diet-weight control program a daily exercise program is important. At your initial weight, walking a mile a day used more than 100 calories a day. And walking does help a person feel better while dieting.

Regarding your future diet, the plan in The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, is designed so you can continue it as a balanced diet to maintain your weight at a desired level.

Just stick to the basic plan and add additional foods from the four basic food groups included in the diet to the level that you can maintain your weight without gaining. That could mean more vegetables, fruit, fortified skim milk or lean meats with all the fat removed. Others who want this diet can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I want to ask you if pepper is good for you. I do not use much salt. People tell me pepper will not hurt you. Is this true?

DEAR READER — There is a lot of truth to the old saying, "One man's meat is another man's poison." Pepper will not harm most people. Its actions are totally unrelated to salt.

Consider it a spice. If a person happens to have digestive problems, such as stomach acid symptoms or colon trouble, pepper may aggravate the condition. Otherwise it is harmless.

Many spices, including pepper, help to perk up food without adding salt. Learning to cook with spices rather than relying so heavily on salt as a seasoning is a healthy trend.

The problem with salt is its sodium content. Spices do not contain any significant amount of sodium.

Chrysler Head Often Had A Lot To Say, But Few Wanted To Hear

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee Iacocca, chairman of the embattled Chrysler Corp. and architect of the "biggest," most glorified and publicized six-cent quarterly profit ever recorded, generally has a lot to say.

The problem for him and Chyrysler, however, has been that he hasn't always had an audience. Who seeks opinions from the head of a company that compiled nine straight quarterly losses totalling $3.1 billion?

Now Iacocca may have listeners. Although Chrysler's had a first-half loss of $287 million or $4.46 a share, the second quarter of that period, taken alone, showed a $12 million profit, six cents a share gain.

That's a profit so tiny it can almost fit on the tip of a creative accountant's pen. And it may be followed by more enormous losses too.

So what if critics suggest it resulted from rearranging production periods, or that it might be traced to tank production or items other than cars. It was a profit, and it was certified by the accountants.

First, he said, the country must be rid of "wasteful and unnecessary regulations that are crippling America's basic industries."

"Keep the good ones, and throw out the bad ones," he said. "Get rid of the air bag. Belts are better." A return to regulatory reason, he said, would save Chrysler alone more than $500 million by 1985.

"Second, we need a monetary policy that assures a steady supply of money at a rate the country can afford," he said. "We need a stable monetary policy, instead of jerking interest rates from 10 to 20 percent like a yoyo, both to encourage business investment and to give our customers the confidence and the means to buy our products."

Mating Game Has Changed

LONDON (AP) — For crown princes, princesses royal, princesses of the blood and others eligibly arrayed in a direct line of descent from William the Conqueror, the Mating Game as it is played around Buckingham Palace and Windsor Castle has changed considerably.

If royal marriages are not exactly made in heaven these days, they are no longer craftily contrived in the gilt-filled back parlors of power with the ruling monarch and privy counselors going over the European stud book to see where the empire needed bolstering.

Marrying at age 32, Prince Charles looked the field over carefully before deciding on Lady Diana Spencer, the little girl from the estate next door. She was born at Park House just a silver spoon's throw from his mother's country house at Sandringham in Norfolk.

From the time he was old enough to wave at the Ascot crowds from a horse-drawn coach, Charles's name was linked with a number of lovely ladies including Lady Jane Wellesley, Princess Caroline of Monaco, Tricia Nixon, Davina Sheffield, Princess Marie-Astrid of Luxembourg, Lady Sarah — Diana's older sister — and that smashing American blonde from California who looked so stunning on water skis.

The matter of free choice alone makes it a different world for this the 21st Prince of Wales since the title was swiped from the Welsh in a royal rumble in 1301. His forebears were quite often spoken for before they spoke their first words. Or quite soon thereafter.

For example, his great-grandfather, George V, in 1893, married princess Victoria Mary of Teck. She originally was bethrothed to his older brother, who died the year before. Queen Victoria, as a 16-year-old princess fell rapturously in love with the handsome Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg, who became her Prince Consort. But the Coburgs had been plotting the match from the day he was born.

Flips Over Flop To Be On Top

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Former Canadian Football League lineman Brian Utley knows all about come-from-behind victories.

So, with determination on his face, the 310-pound man, clad in shocking-pink tights and tutu, beared down and leaped into the water in classic style Saturday to win the "world belly-flop and cannonball diving championship" — also known as Super-Flop VII.

Utley, 28, a Calgary, Alberta, schoolteacher, won by two-tenths of a point over 300-pound Bob McKay of Everson, Wash. Hometown favorite Roy Zenko splashed his 252 pounds in the water for third.

Nearly 1,000 people turned out and saw Utley make his final belly flop and walk away with the coveted green bathrobe, the badly tarnished world championship trophy of simulated gold plate (valued at $49.95) and a $1,000 check.

NBC taped the event for broadcast later this year.

Man Jailed After 20-Mile Chase

A driver who led Snyder police on a 20-mile chase wound up in jail with a DWI charge filed against him in Mitchell County early Sunday.

The chase began on the East Highway in Snyder and continued down Texas Highway 208. The man's vehicle was stopped about two miles north of Colorado City. He was taken into Colorado City where a bond was set on the DWI charge, and then the driver was returned to to the Snyder city jail.

Vandalism, two minor traffic mishaps and a few prowler complaints also were reported over the weekend by city police.

Eight window panes were reported broken out at Quick Auto Service. Also, a man reported several window panes broken at his residence, but later advised police that a disgruntled girlfriend did it.

A minor one-vehicle mishap was reported at 2:10 a. m. Sunday at the Ave. M access road on U. S. 84. Involved was a 1970 Dodge pickup driven by Brenda Biddle Gaddis.

A minor two-car mishap was reported at 5:52 p. m. Sunday at 1900 40th St. Involved were a 1976 Ford pickup driven by Preston Lee McDonald and a 1980 Chevrolet driven by Mark Nelson Erwin. There was damage to vehicles, but no ambulance was needed at either mishap, police reported.

Chutist Pays Houston Fine

HOUSTON (AP) — The Louisiana parachutist who thrilled early-morning downtowners when he leaped from the top of a 75-story building last month slipped quietly back into town to pay a fine for trespassing.

Municipal Judge Angel Fraga said DeWayne Bruette pleaded guilty, paid a $75 fine, "and then just took off. I didn't even know he was the guy."

Bruette was arrested June 28 after he and three other men parachuted 1,000 feet from atop the uncompleted Texas Commerce Bank building. The three other men escaped before police arrived to nab Bruette.

The 30-year-old Sulphur, La. man has refused to explain his reasons for the jump. He told the Houston Chronicle Saturday that he had hoped trespassing charges would be dropped.

But, Bruette said, "the publicity killed me. When people started coming out of the closet with pictures of the jumps and all, I figured then that my ship was sunk."

Fraga was disappointed he didn't get to quiz Bruette about the stunt.

"I wish I had known who he was. I wanted to ask him some questions about it, from a curiosity standpoint," Fraga said.

Claim WTC Partnership...

Spencer-Upham Do It Again

Lightning struck a second time in Snyder over the weekend as Midland golfers Grant Spencer and Robert Upham out-dueled ex-WTCers Britt Lindsey and Mike Waller in sudden death to win the Western Texas College Partnership - their second victory here in three weeks.

Spencer and Upham, who rocked the college course with a 62 on Saturday, had won the Earl Fish Memorial Partnership at Snyder Country Club two weeks ago.

The pair tied a 67 with their earlier round for a total 129. Meanwhile, former Westerner golfers Lindsey and Waller put together a 64 and a 65 to lock up the Championship Flight at 129-all. Spencer and Upham went on to defeat the Abileneans in the first hole of sudden death.

There were ties in all four flights of the fifth annual partnership, held under favorable weather conditions.

The First Flight saw no playoff, but two teams did tie for third place. The teams of Laddie and Lance McMillan and George Gann and Doug Lyles elected to split their winnings other than stage a playoff. Likewise, WTC golfers George Gonzales of Fort Worth and Phillip Jones of Gatesville tied at 132 with Angus Baker and WTC's Jeff Seger for fourth place in the Championship Flight. They also split their earnings.

Snyder's Pat Doran and Jeff Wagner, another former Western Texas College Westerner, tacked on a 66 to Saturday's 72 to post top honors in the First Flight. Rick Cox and Jim Partick, both of Snyder, carded a 73-71 to finish six strokes back at 144. In third at 145 were the McMillan-McMillan and Gann-Lyles teams.

A pair of two-way ties led to an exciting finish in the Second Flight. Snyder High School golf coach Mackey Greene teamed with Midland's Bush Jordan for a 148 to lock with Tracey Witherspoon and Al Valdes of Lubbock. The Lubbockites appeared out of the running after posting a 78 on Saturday, but came back to shoot a 70 and tie the leaders.

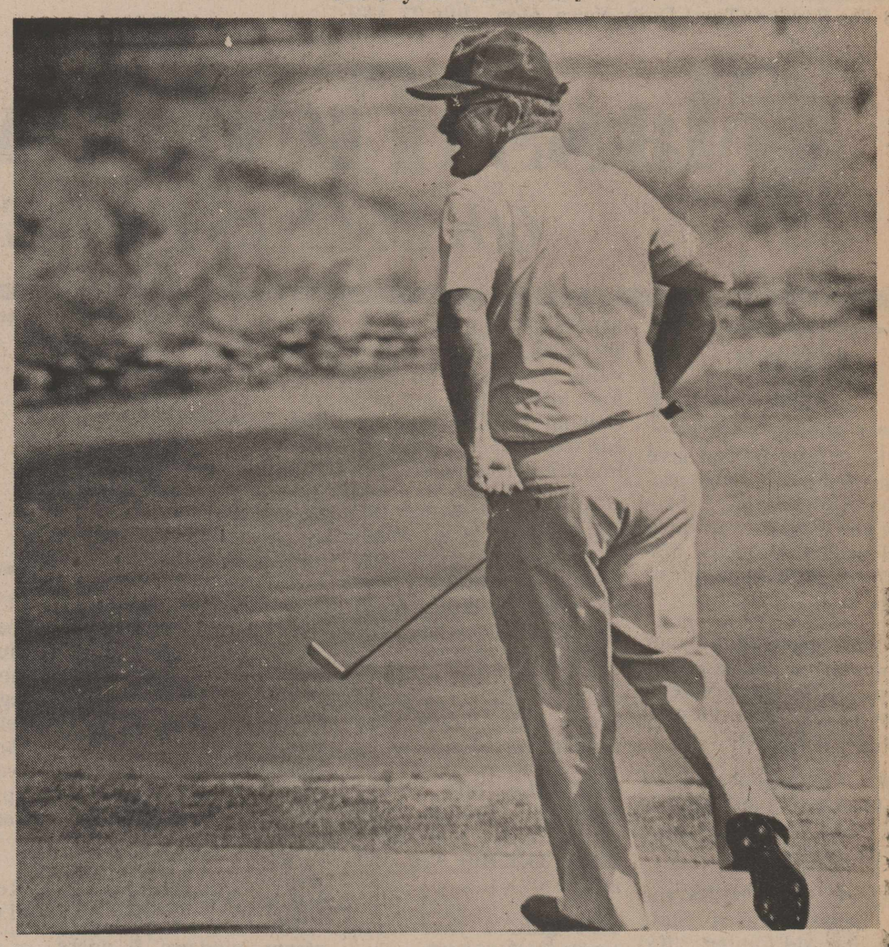

Greene and Jordan took home first place honors however, defeating the visitors on the first hole of a sudden death shootout.

Third place also landed in a tie, though the teams elected to split their winnings. Tied at 149 were Jeral Beard and Eddie Peterson of Snyder and Carson Cummings and Jamie Ramires of San Angelo.

The best was yet to come as three teams tied for honors in the Third Flight. Colorado City's Glen and Gary Womack kept in check with a host of teams for a 79 on Saturday. All other co-leaders slipped out of the race Sunday, but Snyder's Jim Stehley and Harold Lacik slashed their 80 with a 73 on Sunday, and Mal and Devin Donelson, also of Snyder, cut their 81 with a 72. The Womacks turned out a 74 on Sunday, giving the three teams equal scores of 153 after 36 holes.

It was the Donelsons who survived the total distance as Womack and Womack dropped out on the first hole of extra play, and Stehley and Lacik succumbed on the second.

Taking fourth place in the Third Flight were Rob Hall and Travis Hatter, with a 154.

DANCIN' A JIG -- John Reed takes a skip around No. 9 green after he makes a difficult putt during first-day action of the Western Texas College Partnership held Saturday and Sunday here. Bradley Open Champ; Whitworth Tops 1 Mil

The 41-year-old Whitworth failed for the 23rd time to win the U.S. Women's Open, as two comparative youngsters, Bradley and Beth Daniel, put on one of the most torrid battles in the tournament's history.

Bradley, 30, breezed over the La Grange Country Club course Sunday with a closing 6-under-par 66 - the lowest score ever shot by a woman on the 6,204-yard layout - and shattered the women's open 72-hole scoring record with 9-under-par 279.

Daniel, 24, took second place with birdies on the last two holes for a 68 and a 280 that matched the former women's open record set last year in Nashville, Tenn., by Amy Alcott.

Whitworth, who had three sub-par rounds in a dedicated attempt to capture the only title to elude her throughout her career, began wilting with successive bogeys on the No. 3 and No. 4 holes. Finally, when her chances already had drained away, she hit the water on the 155-yard 17th for a double bogey-5.

She finished third with a 74 for a 284, good for $9,500, which boosted her career earnings to $1,008,469.

Bradley's $22,000 first prize put her first on the 1981 money-winning list with $154,182. She replaces Nancy Lopez-Melton, who did not start the final round because of a painful right shoulder problem.

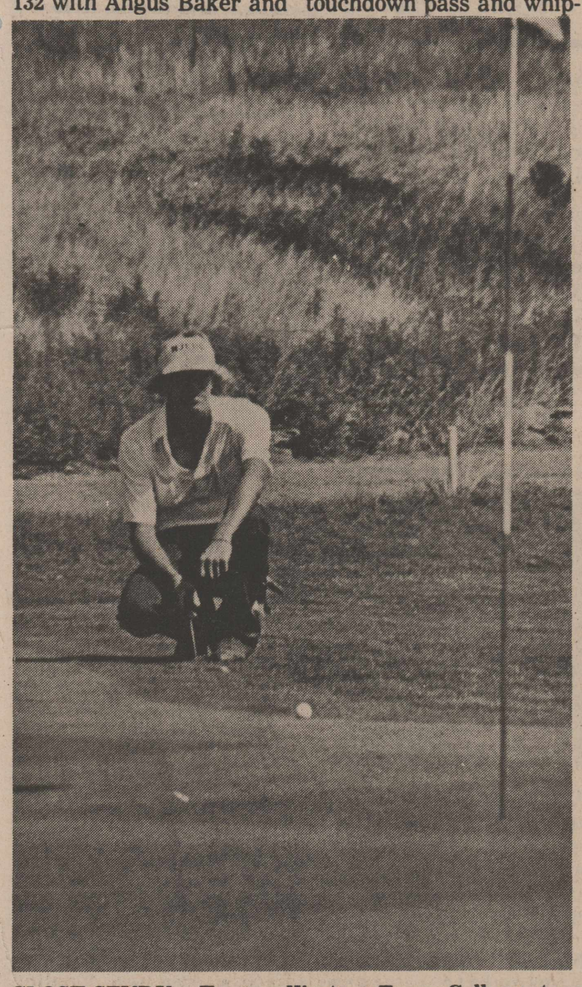

Whitworth entered the finale Sunday with a 1-stroke lead over Bonnie Lauer, who shot a 76 for 287 to share fourth with Cynthia Hill, who finished with 72.

Tying for sixth with 290s were Marlene Floyd, JoAnne Carner, Donna Caponi and Patty Sheehan.

Bradley broke into tears as she left the 18th green as champion, saying, "It is the greatest moment of my life."

North Stars Blank South Squad, 20-0

DALLAS (AP) - Quarterback Matt Skinner of Euless Trinity capped an 80-yard drive with a touchdown pass and whipped the North 95-yards for another score Saturday night, giving the underdogs a 20-0 victory over the South in the 47th annual Texas High School Coaches Association All-Star football game.

CLOSE STUDY -- Former Western Texas College standout Jeff Wagner makes mental calculations to determine the angle and speed of his upcoming put. Wagner teamed with Pat Doran to take top honors in the First Flight of the annual WTC Partnership held over the weekend here. (SDN Staff Photo)

Skinner, who will attend Rice University, nailed Dirk Davis of Dallas White with a 30-yard touchdown pass with just 48 seconds to play in the first half.

Then Skinner whipped the North 95 yards midway of the fourth quarter with Texarkana's Nathan Jones scoring from the four-yard line.

The long drive came after the South had rolled from its own one-foot line to the North five led by quarterback Todd Dodge of Port Arthur Jefferson.

Dodge dashed for 20 yards on the longest play of the drive. However, on fourth down from the North six-yard line, Dodge passed to Marvin Wesley of Navasota. Wesley was tackled by Byron Linwood of Pittsburg and the ball went over on downs.

Skinner and Davis provided the big plays all the way on the 80-yard drive that produced the only touchdown of the first half.

Keith Brown of Midland Lee was named the most valuable lineman and Skinner was the most valuable back.

The victory before 11,548 fans in steamy Texas Stadium upped the North's record to 27-16-4 in the series.

Teenagers Set To Open District Tourneys At 6

Snyder Teenage League teams were hoping threatening skies wouldn't hamper their opening performances as they began competition today in respective district tournaments held here and at Merkel.

Rain clouds brought light showers here this morning, but skies appeared to be clearing at noon.

The Texas Senior Teenage League District Tournament is to begin in Merkel at 6 with Snyder Black and Brownwood taking the field first.

The other entries in the three-day tournament are Sweetwater and Anson. They are to play at 8:30.

Snyder's Oilers, defending Junior state champions, open 1981 District Junior League Tournament action here tonight.

The Oilers, sponsored by Pool Well Service, will take on Sweetwater at 6 o'clock at Moffett Field. Today's other game in the six-team tourney will pit Colorado City and Clyde at 9.

Winners of tonight's Senior League games at Merkel will vie at 5 p.m. Tuesday. Losers begin the elimination process at 7:30.

Finals are slated for 7 p.m. Wednesday with an extra game scheduled for 9:30 if necessary.

Snyder Black, composed largely of local high school players, is sponsored by Overton Transport.

Meanwhile, the winner of the Snyder-Sweetwater Junior League contest held here will meet Tri-Cities at 6 Tuesday. The loser plays at 3.

Winner of the Colorado City and Clyde game contests Merkel at 10 a.m. Tuesday. The loser will vie at 9 p.m. Tuesday.

The double-elimination tournament has its finals scheduled for 6 p.m. Thursday. An extra game, if needed, will be held immediately following.

Hoosier Star Injured In Automobile Accident

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Indiana University basketball coach Bobby Knight was "speechless" when he learned that IU star forward Landon Turner remained in serious condition after a weekend auto accident.

Knight, who led IU to an NCAA title this year, called the family Sunday morning from Idaho, where he is vacationing, according to Turner's mother, Rita Turner.

"Of course he was just speechless," she said. "He offered everything he possibly can, even to fly in today. But we told him that wasn't necessary because there isn't anything he could do."

Officials at Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis said Turner was semi-conscious and has some paralysis in his extremities after an accident Saturday on an Indiana highway.

"He is not in a life-threatening situation," said hospital spokesman Fred Price, adding Turner was in traction because of a fractured spine and other injuries. Price said the 6-foot-10, 240-pound forward had suffered a break in the sixth vertebra.

Turner was injured when the car he was driving went out of control on a two-lane highway and flipped over about 50 miles southeast of Indianapolis. Three other persons in the car were injured. One was hospitalized.

A neurosurgeon who examined Turner was uncertain whether the 21-year-old player would suffer permanent paralysis, said Price.

Turner, of Indianapolis, who was a starter for the 1981 NCAA champion Indiana basketball team, also suffered a concussion, said Price who added that it was "to early to determine" how the head injury would affect him.

"There's no scheduled surgery as of yet. And there won't be until they run some more extensive tests," Price said.

Billy Sims of the Detroit Lions, in his first season in 1980, led the non-kickers of the NFL in scoring with 96 points on 16 touchdowns.

Top Cowboy Picks Pleasing Coaches

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - Dallas Cowboy coaches say their top two draft picks, Howard Richards and Doug Donley, were by far the most impressive rookies in workouts with veterans at the team's training camp Sunday.

"Richards has all the attributes to be a top pro," offensive line Coach Jim Myers said Sunday of the 6-foot-6, 262-pound lineman Dallas picked first in the NFL draft.

"He does things already by instinct that it takes a lot of linemen years to learn," said Myers.

Donley, a 6-foot, 174 pound receiver who was the Cowboy's second draft pick, is seeing a lot of action because veteran wide receivers Tony Hill and Butch Johnson have been sidelined withleg injuries.

"Donley reminds a lot of people of (former Cowboys receiver) Golden Richards," said receivers coach Mike Ditka. "I think he's got more potential than Golden. Donley's already ahead of where Tony Hill was as a rookie (in 1977)."

Hill and Johnson were not the only veterans out with injuries. Billy Joe Dupree has a knee injury, and fullbacks Robert Newhouse and Timmy Newsome are having hamstring problems.

Carter Wins Michigan 500

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) - Pancho Carter survived an early spin, a 97-minute race delay caused by a serious fuel fire and a late charge by Tony Bettenhausen to win the accident-marred Norton Michigan 500 Indy-car race at Michigan International Speedway.

Bettenhausen was the only driver on the same lap with Carter, finishing just 1.6 seconds behind.

Fifteen people were hurt during the race - 14 of them in the fire.

Nehemia Nips Foster At National Festival

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) - A gusty wind blew away any chance for a world record, but that didn't stop Renaldo Nehemiah and Greg Foster from putting on a world class show Sunday at the National Sports Festival.

The classic confrontation in the 110 meter hurdles stole the spotlight during the rain-punctuated third of six days of action at the Festival, a non-Olympic year forum for American athletes in 33 winter and summer Olympic sports.

Foster, who badly beat his archrival on May 10 at the UCLA-Pepsi Invitational at Los Angeles, refuses to talk to either Nehemiah or the media. But Nehemiah wasn't holding anything back after tying his own world record of 13.00 seconds.

The wind reading for the dramatic meeting, run on the rain-softened track at Sunnycrest Park, was 3.41 meters per second. The allowable wind speed for a possible record must not exceed 2.00 meters per second.

In another top performance Sunday, Pete Pfitzinger of Ithaca, N.Y., took the marathon in a course record 2:15:20. That also was the personal best for Pfitzinger.

Since Pfitziger did not represent one of the four regional teams in the Festival, second-place finisher Gary Tuttle of Ventura, Calif., received the gold medal for his 2:16.00 clocking.

Laura DeWald of Arlington, Va., was 14th overall in the 42-runner field and the top woman finisher, at 2:47.06, in the first official marathon for women under the auspices of the U.S. Olympic Committee. The women's marathon will be included in the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles.

In the women's 800 meters, Madeline Manning-Mims, the 1968 Olympic champion, beat 17-year-old prep sensation Kim Gallagher of Upper Darby, Pa., in 2:01.99. Gallagher came home second at 2:02.99.

In the basketball tournament, the South beat the East 94-93 on Jim Master's 20-foot shot from the left corner with two seconds remaining. Masters, a Kentucky guard, had 14 points.

The Midwest baseball team had its first victory in three starts, coming from behind to beat the previously unbeaten West 4-3.

Heavyweight boxer Tyrone Biggs of Philadelphia scored a unanimous decision despite fracturing his right hand during the second round of his bout with Michael Armas of Milwaukee. Biggs was forced to withdraw from further competition.
