YOUTH INJURED — A 16-year-old Lubbock youth was in satisfactory condition Friday night in Methodist Hospital with a broken leg sustained when his 1961 Studebaker pickup was struck by a Santa Fe freight train Friday afternoon just south of 114th Street. Officers said Manual Mendivil of Route 5, Box 161A, remained in the vehicle as the locomotive struck it on its left side and shoved it about 75 feet down the tracks. (Staff Photo by Paul Moseley)

Cattle Loss Tallied; Mild Weather Due

A-J News Services

A WARMING trend was forecast for the South Plains today and Sunday as Panhandle cattlemen continued to tally their losses from the late autumn snowstorm that struck earlier this week.

The mercury should reach the middle 60s today with an overnight low near 40. By Sunday, area weather is expected to warm to a mild 70, according to the National Weather Service.

This weekend's mild weather is in stark contrast to just four days ago, when a late October storm caused devastating livestock losses in northern Texas. Cattle industry spokesmen have termed it the most costly natural disaster since 1972, with losses that could exceed $4.5 million.

Wet snow, driven for periods of up to 12 hours by winds between 60 and 70 mph, apparently caused the deaths of cattle.

Preliminary reports show perhaps more than 9,000 cattle in the northern Texas Panhandle died either in the storm or from aftereffect of pneumonia.

"Unless this is declared a disaster area and unless adjoining counties are declared a disaster area, a lot of them who had range cattle are just going to be out of the business," predicted Albert Law, editor of the Dalhart Texan.

Lynn Heinze, a spokesman for the Amarillo-based Texas Cattle Feeders Association, said the organization had confirmed at least 5,000 cattle deaths in Panhandle feed yards. Most of those animals, he said, were valued at $500 or more each.

Dallam County extension agent Robert Devin, who indicated his first estimates of losses in his northwestern Panhandle county were only "rough guesses," said 3,000 to 4,000 cattle had died there.

Devin, Dallam County agent the past five years, could not recall a more severe storm in terms of losses.

"No, sir, I have not seen one this severe. In fact a lot of people are comparing it to the blizzard of '57," he said.

"It's difficult for me to tell you the cause of death and pinpoint it for the majority (of the cattle)," Devin added, "but you take a 60 to 70 mph wind and below freezing temperatures and you've got a tremendous chill factor."

Cattle industry experts say most of the animals either suffocated, drowned, were tromped to death or simply died from exposure in the storm.

"The main cause of death is suffocation. One of our feed yards who has some wind facilities and so forth in the northeastern part of the Panhandle said they clocked 60 mph winds or better for 12 continuous hours," said Heinze.

The moisture in the breath of some cattle froze on their faces; others inhaled snow which filled their lungs with water.

There were unofficial reports that one large producer had lost up to 1,000 head in the storm, and both Heinze and Devin said only four of 506 head belonging to another rancher had survived.

Heinze said insurance usually is not written on range cattle until Nov. 1, two days after the storm occurred. The revelation was another factor expected to compound problems for the ranchers.

The immediate effects of the disaster were not the only things concerning some cattle industry experts Friday.

Much of the livestock that survived the storm were susceptible to pneumonia and bloat and some cows lost up to 75 pounds when they "went off feed."

Heinze said feeders association officials could not recall a more costly storm since 1972. He said it was unclear whether meat prices would increase as a result of the losses, but predicted any effects probably would not be felt for at least three months.

Losses of cattle were also severe north of the border.

Russell D. Cordova, general manager of Master Feeders Inc. in Hooker, Okla., said he had lost 70 to 75 head and that aftereffects of pneumonia "are killing more daily."

Iran Blocks Envoy As Long As Shah Remains In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iran has notified the Carter administration that it will not accept an American ambassador apparently so long as the shah remains in the United States for medical treatment.

A broadcast in Tehran said "any changes in our mutual relationship depend on the steps taken by America. They must recognize our revolution and respect it."

The broadcast, monitored here, reported on a meeting in Algiers Thursday night between Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser, and Mehdi Bazargan, the Iranian prime minister.

White House and State Department spokesmen said they would have no comment at least until Brzezinski returns home late today. He was in Algiers to attend a 25th anniversary celebration of the Algerian revolution.

Quoting Foreign Minister Ibrahim Yazdi, the broadcast said Bazargan notified Brzezinski that Iran also does not intend to send an ambassador to Washington "for the time being."

Yazdi said Iran had toppled the shah "with its revolution and put an end to the political, military and economic domination of America in this country.

"Now, America should appreciate this fact and review its policies. We cannot trample on the base of our revolution," he said, adding:

"Therefore, any changes in our mutual relationship depend on the steps taken by America. They must recognize our revolution and respect it."

The shah, whose regime was toppled early this year, is in a New York hospital for cancer treatment.

Iran refused last spring to accept Walter Cutler as U.S. ambassador. Bruce Laingen, the charge d'affaires, is in charge of the American embassy.

On Wednesday, about 3,500 Iranian demonstrators, shouting anti-American slogans, massed outside the embassy to protest the shah's presence in the United States.

The protest was staged by religious groups associated with the regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, said Thomas Reston, the State Department spokesman.

On Sunday, the Iranian people were told by Tehran radio that "our enemy, the greatest enemy of all, is the United States."

The broadcast added: "God help us, their victims, who fail to join forces against the enemy in order to protect our interests."

Davis Trial Nears End; Arguments Set Monday

FORT WORTH (AP) — The defense closed its case Friday after a rebuttal witness furnished testimony both helpful and harmful to millionaire Cullen Davis.

Trial Judge Gordon Gray instructed the jury to return to court Monday morning for closing arguments and said to come prepared to spend the night. "Bring your toothbrush," he said.

The defense called it quits at 2 p.m. and Gray called lawyers back later in the afternoon to hammer out the formal charge he will read to to the jury Monday morning.

The jury, unsequestered during the 12 weeks of testimony, will be locked up for the deliberation phase of the marathon proceedings. The trial began July 30.

The slender, stoic industrialist insists he was framed by his ex-wife Priscilla, key defense witness David McCrory, and karate instructor Pat Burleson.

An earlier trial ended last January in Houston with the jury deadlocked 8-4 for conviction.

The state has indicated it would not re-prosecute the case in the event of another hung jury.

In the event of a conviction, the jury of eight men and three women would then hear additional testimony before determining punishment, which ranges from five years to life in prison.

A 12th juror suffered a broken leg midway through the trial and was excused from the panel.

"I think the most obvious strengths of the state case are the same as in Houston," said chief prosecutor Jack Strickland, referring to the physical evidence.

"The tapes, photos, video tapes, the gun, the silencer, and the fact that witnesses for the state are by and large professional law enforcement people — people who have no motive, no reason not to be objective."

Strickland dismissed the Davis defense as "illogical, unreasonable and ridiculous."

The defendant's attorneys, insisting that the state did not prove its case, ended rebuttal testimony after a rather meager attempt to impeach a state rebuttal witness.

Family Farm's Preservation Cited As Goal

By TRAVIS BROWN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

SURVIVAL of the family farm system in Texas may hinge on passage of a constitutional amendment designed to help persons with little money get into farming, say state agricultural leaders.

Three of those leaders were in Lubbock late Friday to promote passage of Proposition No. 3, which will be voted on Tuesday, along with two other proposed constitutional amendments.

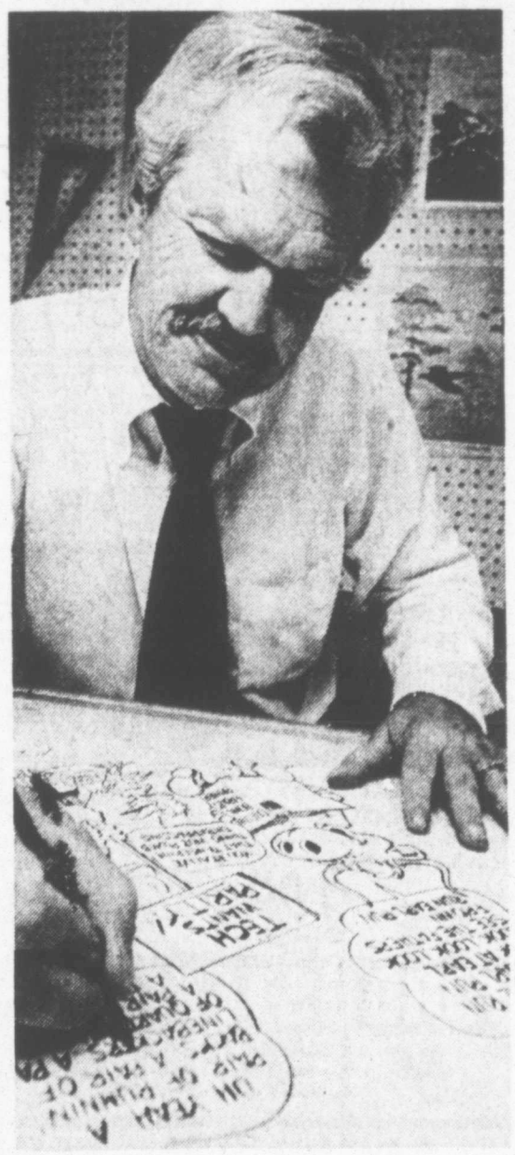

Endorsing the proposal in Lubbock were State Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown, Farmer's Union President Jay Naman and State Rep. Luther Jones of El Paso, who introduced the proposed amendment to the Texas House.

High down payments and spiraling interest rates have slammed the door in the faces of young Texans who want to be farmers and ranchers. Brown said the purpose of the farm security loan program is to make credit available to persons who can make monthly note payments but who cannot pay the 29 percent down payments being asked for farm and ranch loan purchases.

"The only opportunity most young people will have to ever own land is if the state can back them up in getting

Hey, Muleshoe, Here He Comes!

TABLET AT READY — Dirk West will bring his tablet — drawing, not Alka Seltzer — with him when he visits Muleshoe Monday in response to a dinner invitation. The Lubbock mayor's cartoon spoofs of the Bailey County seat and its eating places or lack of them have drawn a mixed reaction in Muleshoe and recently resulted in a good-natured challenge to the mayor to come to Muleshoe and see for himself that good food aplenty is available there. (Staff Photo)

West Hopes Host City's Namesake Not Menu Item

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

DIRK WEST has lampooned Muleshoe as a hazardous place to dine out, and restaurateurs in the Bailey County city are going all out in a dinner for him to prove that the only acidity involved in the issue is his cartoon humor.

Going back several weeks to when he first derided the culinary attributes of the city, the now famous dispute will be resolved Monday night when a Muleshoe police escort meets West and a Lubbock entourage at the city limits for what both sides no doubt hope will be a tasty showdown at a Muleshoe restaurant.

The dinner will begin at 7 p.m. at the Capital Freehold Land and Investment Co. Restaurant, which will be joined by the Corral Restaurant in providing the food.

"In the first place, it's going to take a great deal of courage on my part to make this trip," West said. "I'm going to take my personal physician, who specializes in violent stomach reactions, an armed guard and at least three mystery food tasters whom I'll ask to sample everything prior to my taking part.

"I will wear a tuxedo because we always dress for dinner in Lubbock."

The A-J has learned that the food tasters probably will be members of the Texas Tech football team and that they and an out-sized Lubbock policeman will exit the limousine first to discourage violence when the controversial cartoonist appears.

"I also will be accompanied by representatives of the media and, if we're not back by Wednesday, I've instructed Crime Line to send a full detail in search of our whereabouts," he said.

"The only problem I have right now is finding a map that shows Muleshoe. Most maps don't even include it."

West has been deluged with letters and telephone calls about his prospective trip since an account of the dispute appeared in the A-J a week ago, he said.

"Everywhere, and I do mean everywhere, I've gone, all people want to know is, have I been to Muleshoe yet," he said. "There is great interest in Lubbock and, I understand, even some betting as to whether I'll survive the trip or not.

"It's just unbelievable. It's caught everybody's fancy for some reason or another. I've had letters from Muleshoe, all over the South Plains and mostly here in Lubbock — literally hundreds of people.

"I had an offer from a drugstore in Littlefield to stop by for some free Pepto Bismol on the way back."

West is taking the deadly drawing tablet on which he skewers Aggies, Teasippers from UT, Houston Cougar-alleycats, born-again Baylor Bears, Muleshoe restaurants and other unfortunates in his weekly college football-related cartoons. He plans to do a commemorative cartoon about the occasion and to make other peace offerings to Muleshoe.

Man Accused In Molestation Probe Here

By KIMBERLY PALMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A 48-YEAR-OLD unemployed Lubbock man remained in county jail Friday night as police juvenile division officers continued to interview six local youngsters who may have been sexually abused by the suspect.

The shabbily dressed man was arrested Thursday after a father reported that his three sons and daughter, aged 11, 12, 13 and 14, had been persuaded by the man to stay away from school and spend time with him.

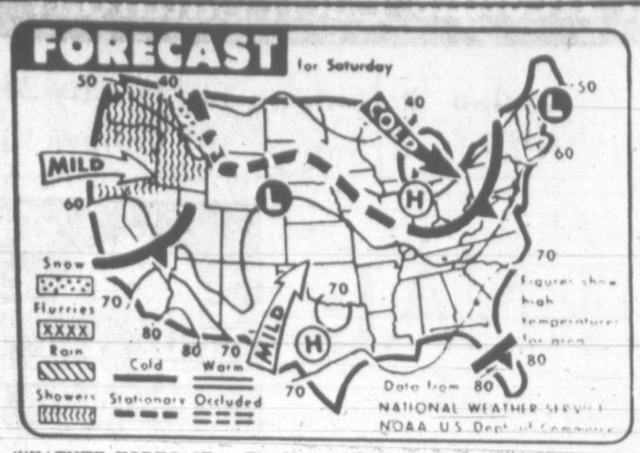

In addition to those four children, juvenile officers said two other children, 8 and 10, from another Lubbock family also may have been sexually molested by the suspect.

Police said the children first encountered the man at an East Lubbock shopping center. He apparently befriended the children over a period of two months, offering them candy and rides on his motorcyle to gain their trust.

Police said the children usually joined the man only during school hours, but that several times the youths stayed with him into the evening and their parents would have to search for them.

Police said the father who filed the

Castro's Son Seeks Spanish Residency; Father Says No

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Cuban President Fidel Castro's 28-year-old son was reported on Friday seeking permission to live in Spain instead of returning to Cuba now that his studies in the Soviet Union are over. But his stepfather denied it.

Quoting unnamed sources, the Spanish news agency EFE said Fidel Castro Diaz-Balat, known as Fidelito (little Fidel), was believed to be in Madrid arranging to stay with his mother, who was divorced by Castro at the beginning of the Cuban revolution in 1959. She now is married to Emilio Nunez Blanco, a Cuban lawyer-jounalist, living in Spain.

The agency said it could not confirm young Castro's presence in the Spanish capital, but the sources reported he came here from the Soviet Union.

Nunez, responding to the reports, said "It is completely false that Fidelito is now here with the intention of seeking political asylum."

One exile source said Castro's son had visited Spain before to see his mother.

But Nunez denied that. "I can say for sure he is not here and reports about his visits to Madrid are untrue," he said.

He did say that young Castro used to meet his mother in London between flights to and from Moscow where he reportedly has just finished a nuclear energy engineering course.

EFE said its sources indicated young Castro was seeking political asylum, but diplomatic sources questioned whether he would need it if he lived with his mother and her husband, both Cuban exiles.

The news agency said young Castro might be with his uncle, Rafael Diaz-Balat, Mrs. Nunez' brother, who reportedly checked out of a Madrid hotel five days ago.

A cousin of the Cuban leader, shoemaker Miguel Castro, told reporters he did not know if young Castro was in Spain or his whereabouts.

Young Castro was kept largely out of the limelight by the his father, althought he grew up with the Cuban revolution, working with other Cuban youths in agriculture.

The president's sister, Juanita, exiledi in the United States, is an avid anti-Castro activist. She went to Mexico in 1964 and denounced her brother for allegedly having 75,000 political prisoners and for directing subversion throughout the Americas. During Castro's recent visit to the United Nations, she went to New York to denounce him once again.

But Castro's ex-wife, the former Mirta Diazz-Balat, was described by friends as non-political. She, her husband and their two daughters live in an apartment in Madrid's northern residential section.

Disapproval Of Bolivian Leadership Registered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States imposed economic and military sanctions against Bolivia on Friday in a sharp signal of disapproval of the country's new military leadership.

State Department spokesman Thomas Reston said $6 million in military aid as well as some $21 million in economic assistance will be cut off.

Initially, Reston indicated all U.S. aid would be suspended. Later, however, the department said $11.2 million of a $28 million U.S. food aid program would continue.

But in a second clarifying statement, the department said no U.S. food shipments to Bolivia would be suspended. Officials offered no explanation for the confusion.

Denouncing Thursday's coup, Reston said, "It is regrettable that this major step backward occurred in the Bolivian people's heartening advance during the last two years toward representative government and respect for human rights."

It was understood that the administration felt a swift rebuke of the new Bolivian regime, led by Col. Alberto Natusch, could have an impact on the still unsettled political situation there.

Reston noted that some political groups are opposing the coup, which ousted the 11-week old government of President Walter Guevara Arce on Thursday. Another official described the situation there as "fluid."

"Our objective is the restoration of democratic rule," said the official, who asked not to be identified.

Reston said the United States will continue to review all aspects of U.S.-Bolivian relations but he added that Ambassador Paul Boeker will not be recalled.

"The forced change of government, of course, was by non-constitutional means," Reston said, "and last night's closing of the Bolivian Congress was further disruption of the consitutional process."

Bolivia has had some 200 coups in its 154 years as an independent nation. The unusually hostile U.S. reaction to Thursday's coup appears to have been related in part to the Carter administration's close identification with the deposed government.

Just 10 days ago, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, who was in La Paz for an international conference, invited Bolivia's top military leaders to a luncheon and appealed to them to stay out of politics.

Natusch declined the invitation to the luncheon. It has since been learned that plans for the coup had been well under way at the time of the Vance luncheon.

Nuclear Problem Called False Alarm

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nuclear Regulatory Commission officials, after reporting a "potential major problem" that could require power reductions at every nuclear plant in the country, said Friday the whole thing was a false alarm.

"The problem completely went away," said Darrell G. Eisenhut, the NRC's deputy director of operating reactors.

NRC officials had summoned nuclear industry representatives on 48 hours notice to a meeting here Thursday after a two-year agency research program concluded that an apparent problem could lead to the blockage of cooling water around the cores of nuclear reactors.

In the tests, sealed zirconium tubes of the kind used to hold radioactive fuel inside a reactor were electrically heated under water to measure their expansion.

Officials said Thursday that the experiments indicated a possibility that in an accident the tubes might swell and burst more readily than had been predicted. The officials said it was indicated that swelling of the tubes could block the flow of water used to keep radioactive fuel from overheating and damaging the reactor.

Officials said the tests could lead to forced reduction of the power output of the nation's nuclear generators.

But NRC staff members hastily called a briefing session Friday for the five NRC commissioners and said they found that the problem they had suspected only appeared in laboratory tests and did not occur in operating reactors.

"I am confident today that we do not have a safety problem, based on what we have seen," Harold R. Denton, director of nuclear reactor regulation, told the commissioners. He said, however, the NRC staff would have to examine information supplied by the nuclear industry to confirm this.

NRC Chairman Joseph C. Hendrie, lamenting the fact that the initial test information and conclusions were quickly made public, commented that "today's exercise is ... one of the penalties one pays for the benefits, presumed, of promptly putting new information into the public record."

When the NRC made its initial findings known Thursday, nuclear critic Ralph Nader had called for a shut-down of any plants the NRC found to have the cooling problem.

On Friday, Richard Pollock, of Nader's anti-nuclear Critical Mass organization, said he would request a meeting with NRC officials next week for a detailed explanation of the sudden turnabout in findings.

Pollock said his organization would not withdraw its petition to the NRC asking for a suspension or modification of powerplant licenses until the group was satisified that no problem existed.

Pollock added that he and Nader believed the discrepancies found between the experiments and earlier computer predictions point up a general problem with the NRC's use of computer models to calculate essential safety limits.

Cartoonist Wins Right To Royalty Suit

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The Arizona Court of Appeals has ruled that a Tucson cartoonist has the right to sue a New York publishing company because it stopped buying his "Sad Sack" comic book drawings.

The ruling handed down Thursday reversed a Superior Court decision earlier this year in which Fred Rhoads' suit against Harvey Publications Inc. was dropped.

"I'm thrilled to death," Rhoads said of the appellate decision.

He is asking for the payment of royalties on the cartoons he drew for years for Harvey Publications up until 1977. Then the company notified him it needed no more of his drawings, while it continued reprinting old drawings.

Rhoads filed for unemployment but found the comic book publisher had not considered him an employee, so e was ineigible for benefits.

He later filed suit on the basis that he had operated as a indepenent contractor and was owed royalties on an estimated 400 million sheets of Sad Sack comics published by Harvey.

Rhoads said he had not worked since Harvey stopped asking for his drawings.

"I'm selling my house," he said this week. "It's down to that."

AN EDITORIAL:

One 'Pioneer' Who Didn't...

DIVISIONS WITHIN the President's Commission on the Accident at Three Mile Island generally reflect the equally sharp disparities in public opinion about the future role of commercial nuclear power.

Transcripts and interviews with those present during the commission's executive sessions indicate that there were four clearly identifiable factions among the 12 men and women searching for common ground—but frequently unable to resolve their differences on fundamental issues.

Three were highly critical of the nuclear power industry and dubious about its ability to operate safely in the future. Three were staunch promoters of the industry and its prospects for the future, one of whom was Patrick E. Haggerty, retired president and board chairman of Texas Instruments, Inc.

BETWEEN THOSE two factions were four "swing vote" members torn between a belief that nuclear power is necessary to meet the country's needs during the coming decades and a profound concern about the health and safety problems posed by potentially lethal technology.

Finally, there were two members whose conduct, or lack of it, that is, must have left the others on the panel—including the industry's critics as well as its defenders—disappointed if not embittered.

They are Cora B. Marrett, an associate professor of sociology at the University of Wisconsin in Madison, and Anne Trunk, a Middletown, Pa., homemaker who was selected as a representative for those who live near the accident site in central Pennsylvania.

THESE TWO MEMBERS of the President's Commission participated only infrequently in the debate and repeatedly declined to vote on virtually all of the difficult issues that closely divided other members of the panel, transcripts show.

Because the commission's rules required that all findings and recommendations in its final report be approved by a majority of 7 to 12 members, those habitual abstentions left the commission without any position on many crucial questions it sought to answer.

Final days of deliberation produced a pattern of ballots in which there were six affirmative votes (one short of the needed majority) and two abstentions.

MRS. TRUNK'S lack of participation is especially unfortunate inasmuch as her appointment to the commission as a citizen representative among a school of academicians was a rather noble experiment on President Carter's part.

Mrs. Trunk had a rare opportunity to pioneer in demonstrating that governance could successfully be shifted away from the professionals and back where it belongs in the hands of the citizenry. But she abdicated that responsibility.

AN EDITORIAL:

Judge Unravels Brutality Suit

FEDERAL lawyers were playing with an illegal "stacked deck" when they filed an unprecedented police abuse suit against the City of Philadelphia, Mayor Frank Rizzo and its police department, a federal judge has ruled.

In throwing all of the police brutality charges out of court, U.S. Judge J. William Ditter said the Justice Department had no legal standing to file the politically inspired civil action.

The only part of the suit that Judge Ditter left for trial was a minor charge accusing the City of discrimination in the administration of federally funded programs.

"IT SHOULD BE obvious that, while the complaint is not being dismissed in its entirety, what remains in the case does not even approach the mammoth proportions of the lawsuit which the plaintiff attempts to bring," Ditter wrote in a 44-page opinion.

Saying the Justice Department was trying to "utilize a power which Congress has refused to grant," the federal judge added that the government filed the suit knowing that Mayor Rizzo and others would never get the opportunity to respond to the allegations.

"To put it bluntly," Ditter said in dismissing the allegations, "the government's timetable, in combination with its press releases, amounted to a stacked deck, the effect of which was to deny the defendants their day in court."

All that was a diplomatic way of saying that the Justice Department was guilty of an abuse of power in the Philadelphia story.

THE SUIT WAS filed Aug. 13 in an attempt to weave into some sort of web unrelated allegations of police brutality in Philadelphia.

It was a result of a year-long investigation similar to those also being conducted in Houston, Memphis and Mobile, Ala.

As The Avalanche-Journal said at the time, the danger in alleging "systematic citizen abuse" that would be difficult to prove is that, depending on the outcome, either the extremist policeman or the extremist police baiter would be encouraged by the outcome.

Police brutality, when it exists in individual cases, needs to be punished. Too often, though, allegations of police brutality may be used as a weapon to undermine law enforcement.

As Judge Ditter has ruled in effect, the Justice Department should stick to its knitting and let each case of alleged brutality stand or fall on its own merits.

ART BUCHWALD:

Computers Programmed To Think Like Inhumans

WASHINGTON—The beauty of computers, so the advertisements tell us, is that they make life easier for all of us. Don't you believe it.

I have been corresponding with two computers who work for my insurance firm—the company that advertises on television during football games and shows a man's house being blown down and five seconds later the agent for the company building him a new one.

These two computers whom I've dubbed Adolph and Dave are as different as day and night.

If you were captured, Adolph would be the one who hit you over the head with a truncheon, and Dave would be the one who offered you a cigarette.

ADOLPH IS one mean computer. He wants to cancel my automobile insurance. He's really mad at me and I figured out why. I've never put in a claim for an accident, and therefore he has no legitimate reason to take me off the books.

He's just waiting for one minor incident, even a crushed fender, and he'll push me out the window.

Every month I get a nasty letter from Adolph wanting to know how many people are driving my car, what ages they are and whether I've committed adultery in the last six months.

He also wants to know how much money I make, if I go to discos and how many times I clean my ashtrays.

I answer every question dutifully because I know he's just waiting for me to make one slip.

EVERY TIME I send in the form Adolph pretends he didn't get it and sends me another one, which says in on the top: "You have 10 days to complete this for our records or your policy will be automatically canceled."

I've never been late with a form and I know this burns Adolph up. Once he sent me a letter saying that there had been too many accidents in my area and although I hadn't had one, they were thinking of canceling my policy anyway.

Once someone crashed into the back of my wife's car and she said we ought to notify the insurance company.

"Are you crazy?" I yelled. "That's exactly what Adolph would like. He's been waiting years to get us. One call from me and he'll hit the cancelation letter button just like that! No one will ever give us auto insurance again."

"WHO IS Adolph?" my wife wanted to know.

"He's a Nazi computer who escaped to Argentina at the end of the war. Then he was shipped to the United States under another name and got a job spitting out threatening letters to poor helpless people like us.

"He's responsible for the deaths of more auto insurance policies than any computer in the country."

"Why do we pay premiums if we can't collect when we have an accident?" she asked.

"Because if we don't pay our premiums Adolph will put our names in another computer and we'll never be able to get credit again.

"I'll pay to fix your car but I don't want you to report it to the police. Adolph is plugged into every accident division in the United States."

WHILE ADOLPH is writing his sadistic letters to me, Dave keeps urging me to buy more insurance from the company.

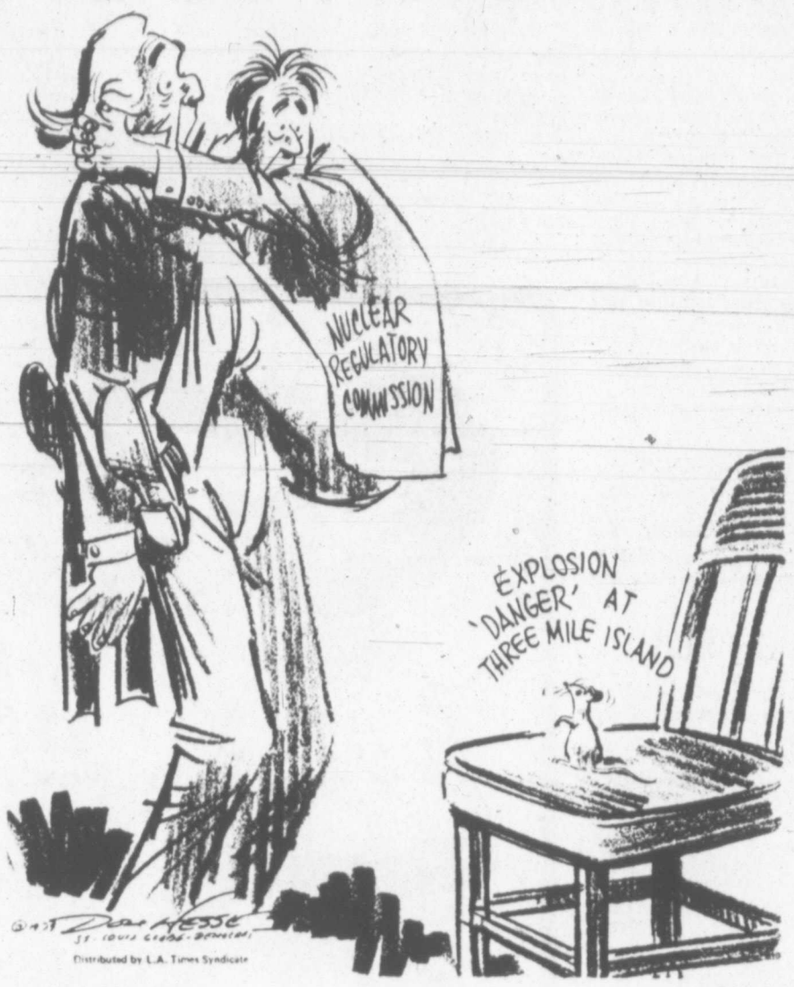

He sends me pictures of houses burning to the ground, thieves breaking into windows, and widows with children whose husbands failed to take out life insurance.

Dave wants me to know the company cares about my welfare, my family and my possessions. He even worries about my kid's education and my retirement plan. Dave has a toll-free number that I can call to get further information.

He's all heart. The only thing I can't understand is how he can stand to work in the same office with someone like Adolph.

"Never buy meat from a butcher who tells you the federal budget is lean."

'I Could Have Sworn It Was A Man Eating Tiger'

GEORGE WILL:

Father Knows Best

WASHINGTON—Norman Podhoretz is an editor of distinction and a writer of heroic indiscretion. As editor, he has made Commentary magazine America's most consequential journal of ideas.

As a writer, he is a scourge of intellectual foolishness, his own emphatically included.

A few years ago Podhoretz's son, referring to the radicalism of the early 1960s, asked dad whether he had really ever believed "all that stuff." Dad replied (a kid on Manhattan's upper West Side should expect this) by writing a book.

"Breaking Ranks," just published, is about the social consequences of boredom.

By the late 1940s the Soviet regime had finally murdered sufficient millions to make anti-communism respectable even among New York's most advanced thinkers. But there are cycles of radicalism, and as Podhoretz writes:

"Robert Nisbet, the brilliant social theorist, once said that boredom is the most neglected force in history, that it is on certain occasions as important a cause of change as the economic and political factors to which we generally pay so much more attention.

"One of those occasions, I believe, was the radicalization of American culture in the 1960s."

Podhoretz and some others got bored with the defense of American culture—they considered it a "wasteland"—that seemed to be a duty during the Cold War.

HE CAST about for a new radicalism and reeled in such fish as Norman O. Brown and Paul Goodman. (Did you say "Who?" Good.)

Podhoretz's radicalism sprang from an "inner need." He decided America was stalled in "incomplete revolutions," economic, social and sexual. Complete "liberation" would be the new radicalism's agenda.

Whereas in the 1930s there was a desire to think well of the Soviet Union, in the 1960s much "revisionism" about the Cold War derived from a desire to think ill of America—its "inherent" militarism, and all that.

When bashing his old allies, Podhoretz uses language like a truncheon. Left-wing intellectuals became "a moral lynch mob," a (in Harold Rosenberg's delicious phrase) "herd of independent minds" who fancied themselves "dissenters" but would brook no dissent. They spread "an epidemic of cowardice" and enforced "the radical loyalty oath."

BY REMEMBERING political arguments and meetings that were not memorable at the time, Podhoretz conveys the boringness of the sandbox politics to which some intellectuals resorted as an antidote to boredom.

They worried—no, agonized—about whether they would be "compromised" by accepting a White House invitation or shaking hands with Hubert Humphrey.

"Breaking Ranks" is fascinating because so many of its subjects are so small.

It is important because it reminds us of the unimportant things (postures, petitions, spats, meetings, parties, articles) that some self-absorbed people thought were history-making.

Is it really important for Podhoretz to remind us that Susan Sontag said "the white race is the cancer of human history" and that Norman Mailer called Castro "the first and greatest hero" since the Second World War?

WELL, YES it is important, if it reminds us that the "radical era" was nothing of the sort. It was, rather, a period when (as a writer said in Commentary) "the general populace...preserved its sanity in the face of the peculiar hysteria of the highly educated."

In 1972 Professor James Q. Wilson wrote that at Harvard, where he teaches, "the list of subjects that cannot be discussed there in a free and open forum has grown steadily, and now includes the war in Vietnam, public policy toward urban ghettos, the relationship between intelligence and heredity, and the role of American corporations in certain overseas regimes."

The list lengthened before the fever broke, and the fever has not yet vanished.

PODHORETZ'S STATEMENT that former Sen. James Buckley, a moderate and respected man, is "a radical of the Right," is evidence that Podhoretz is still susceptible to disfiguring fevers.

And when Podhoretz says that John F. Kennedy's administration was a "prisoner of the need to prove that its ultimate objectives were at least consonant with those of the new radicalism," he offers one of the zanier thoughts ever thought about Camelot, which in fact was understandably more interested in overthrowing Castro and pleasing Mayor Daley.

Podhoretz is a literary critic who sees what he was trained to see—ideas, and not the widest possible spectrum of them.

Still, his noble earnestness about the life of the mind makes him good company, his book a good read, and his magazine a bellwether precinct in the endless election that chooses the Republic's public philosophy.

DONALD F. GRAFF:

Fuel For Thought

SOME PREDICTIONS of things to come: Space explorers from Earth will reach Mars by 1992. A woman will be elected president in the same year. American troops will be fighting a war in Africa by 1985.

If you believe those forecasts, here's another from the same group of prescient prognosticators: Gasoline won't reach the dollar-a-gallon level until 1982.

Omni, a magazine that attempts to popularize science- and future-related subjects, last October asked its readers to predict when a variety of events might occur.

The predictions covered everything from nuclear war with the Soviet Union to the cloning of a human. But the abysmal lack of foresight on gasoline prices suggests that mere mortals ought to stick to predicting tomorrow's weather.

THE U.S. Mint hasn't given up on the Susan B. Anthony dollar yet, even though the public gives every indication of having done so.

It is considering changing the coin's color to get around the most cited reason for resistance to its circulation—similarity to the quarter.

Initial experimentation with various tinted alloys has not proved too successful, however. According to Mint spokesmen, with use these alloy coins have tended to turn green.

Well, that could be a public turn-off. But at least it's an appropriate color, and certainly better than being reminded of the truth every time a coin changed hands—that we're monetarily in the red.

SWEDEN, WHICH earlier this year made it illegal for parents to spank their children, now has an even better legislative idea.

A government committee studying children's rights is proposing a new law under which children would be able to divorce their parents under certain circumstances.

All very progressive, in the typical Swedish fashion. But familial separations along somewhat similar lines are not completely unknown to Americans, who have not gone to the extent of making a federal case out of the situation.

It's called running away.

A PRESS development of more than passing significance has taken place on the other side of the Atlantic with the reprieve of the Times of London.

Management and print unions have reached a settlement of a dispute that for almost a year had shut down the newspaper that, at 194, is among the world's oldest and may well be its most prestigious.

There appeared to be a real prospect that the bitter standoff would close the Times for good.

While the dispute involved the usual bread-and-butter questions such as pay increases and staff reductions, the basic issue was one that has previously confronted many newspapers in the U.S. —technology.

Editorial and production operations will not be fully computerized immediately. But the principle has been established that the venerable Times will follow its more notable American counterparts into the electronic age.

That it is finally doing so provides an ironic comment on that age. The press has been instrumental in familiarizing the world with technology's advances. But it has been an especially long and costly effort to apply them to itself.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Be Wary Of Gifts

DALLAS—Herewith a few more items for your 1980 political box scores. October was a busy month for Jimmy Carter—and an expensive one for the rest of us.

Not that he's the only presidential hopeful trying to entice voters with talk of future goodies. We'll be getting plenty of pretty promises from the rest of the coy candidates, once they can bring themselves to get in line.

But there's a difference. When Carter goes a-courtin' he arrives bearing an incumbent's version of candy and flowers. He brings along grants and appropriations and loan guarantees.

In other words, money. Big money.

And so it came to pass that in trying to cut Teddy Kennedy off at the pass in Florida (which he did, with a pretty convincing victory), he came laden with gifts.

MIAMI GOT a $10.7 million community-development grant; Tampa got $6 million; Dade county is $19.9 million richer for 10 public-housing projects; Orlando has an extra $5 million to relocate residents near its airport; and the state got $31 million to build 949 housing units for the elderly.

An electric cooperative got a $1.1 billion loan guarantee.

Also, 1,000 Miami workers who were due to be terminated from the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) were allowed to stay on the federal payroll.

And strong hints were laid on that when the Labor department gets around to spending $1 billion in unused CETA funds, Florida will not be forgotten.

So maybe the Florida vote was only a beauty contest. But to the state's voters, it was a financial bonanza.

AND THE beautiful part of it all is that none of the money has to come out of Carter's campaign funds; those are taxpayer millions he's handing out.

Black voters are getting theirs, too. The White House recently promised another $1.5 million grant to the Freedom Hall complex being built in Atlanta by the Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Social change.

That brings the Carter contribution to more than $3.5 million, a small gesture of his gratitude for the support he got last time around from Mrs. Coretta King, Andrew Young and Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson.

They still carry a lot of clout with black voters around the country, and the President is hoping that by doing something nice for their sprawling memorial around Dr. King's tomb, they will return the favor by convincing blacks not to support Sen. Kennedy.

THERE'S BEEN some talk that not much of the taxpayer millions funneled to the complex has gone to help poor blacks (out of 10 social programs, only two, a day-care center and a right-to-read program, are open to the local poor).

But never mind. The money helps promote non-violence and civil rights—and it doesn't come out of Jimmy's re-election kitty.

Neither does the extra $3 billion he wants to toss into the federal program to upgrade mass-transit systems around the country.

That brings the total to $13 billion, and it should make subway and bus riders in New York, Chicago, Boston, Baltimore and Miami grateful enough to remember Carter in November next year. That's the idea, anyway.

He's already caved in to organized labor with his promise not to fight inflation with jobs and by including labor in policy decisions of his new wage and price guidelines.

HE'S HOPING this will stall off the threatened mass defection of union members to Kennedy.

There's a little something in the campaign pot for the farmers, too. Remembering the uproar that followed Jerry Ford's refusal to sell any more corn to the Soviet Union in 1975 (after they'd already bought 15 million tons from a drought-reduced crop and boosted farmer's prices to record highs), Carter has offered to sell the Communists 25 million metric tons of corn and wheat.

At the full domestic price.

This should help him out in the farm belt, which has wheat and corn coming out of its ears. It has to export more than half of its huge harvests, or be stuck with large surpluses. And Iowa Democrats caucus in January, remember.

CARTER IS not exactly No. 1 on the Republican farm belt's hit parade, so he had to make his bid early. Because, after Iowa come the primaries in the big-delegation state of Illinois, and the cross-over votes in Wisconsin.

He's taking a risk, because there's always a chance that the Soviet sales will send retail meat prices up.

His advisers don't think that's going to happen, but, even if it does, the results won't show up in supermarkets before November, 1980.

And by that time, whether it hurts you or not, it won't hurt Jimmy Carter.

Environmental Agency To Check City Landfill

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Environmental Protection Agency says it will begin an immediate review of a new list of potentially hazardous chemical waste sites, including the Lubbock landfill site, to determine which are dangerous. But city officials say toxic wastes are properly disposed of at the municipal facility.

Denzel Percifull, director of public services for the city, said he is "not concerned about there being any problem at our landfill site," largely because of state health department monitoring.

"We are totally following state health department guidelines," he said, adding state officials make sure there are no chemicals leaching into the water table.

Although Percifull said liquid chemicals are brought to the landfill "very infrequently," he said a specific area of the landfill is reserved for the chemicals which "totally follows state health department guidelines."

The Lubbock site was one of several South Plains facilities cited by the EPA.

The landfill probably is on the congressional list, Percifull speculated, because it is a state-approved landfill site and someone having chemicals to dispose of properly would probably bring them to the landfill.

Percifull said city landfill operations are "monitored very carefully" by state officials and said the city is "totally in compliance" with state regulations.

"We haven't had any problems in the past and we don't have any problems now," he said.

The survey by the House Commerce Oversight and Investigations subcommittee revealed Texas had the heaviest concentration of chemical dumps in the nation, with 319 sites.

However, subcommitee chairman Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, said "these sites do not necessarily pose threats to the public health or the environment."

He said the survey demonstrates the need for a "national inventory of active waste disposal sites."

The subcommittee survey was based on figures supplied by the nation's 53 largest chemical companies on where 762 million tons of chemical waste have been dumped since 1950.

Also included on the list is the Lubbock County dump.

EPA Director Douglas Costle said Thursday the agency will use "all of its available resources and legal authorities" toward cleaning up dangerous sites from the list.

Costle praised the subcommittee's survey of the nation's 53 biggest chemical manufacturers. But he said his agency, unlike the subcommittee, is limited in its ability to force private firms to provide information on hazardous waste practices.

Other area locations which the subcommittee said could contain toxic materials include:

Environmental Agency Threating To Sue Texas

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is attempting to "throw muscle around" by threatening to sue Texas over the discharge of oilfield brines into playa lakes, a Railroad Commission spokesman has charged.

The EPA is trying to bring "all waters in the United States" under its jurisdiction, said Billy Thompson, RRC public information officer.

EPA regional administrator Adlene Harrison said last week she is prepared to sue to halt discharges of oilfield brines into playa lakes in West Texas if the Railroad Commission does not agree to accept responsibility for enforcing federal pollution control standards.

A playa lake is a basin that temporarily becomes a shallow lake after heavy rains.

A contract is pending between the RRC and the EPA concerning the enforcement of federal pollution standards but has not yet been approved, Thompson said.

Controversy arose between the RRC and the EPA earlier in the year after Harrison said EPA has jurisdiction over pollution control at playa lakes used as brine disposal sites.

Jim Herring, assistant director of the RRC's oil and gas division, said the commission has argued through conversations and correspondence with EPA on the federal agency's jurisdiction.

The EPA is trying to extend jurisdiction to those playa lakes, Herring said.

Suit Filed Against Apartment Owners

The city of Lubbock filed suit Friday to permanently enjoin two garage apartment owners from continuing to illegally use the buildings for residences.

The suits were filed against William A. Bethune, who owns property at 2602 29th St., and Robert W. Sikes, whose property is at 2601 25th St.

The apartments are in violation of the zoning ordinance because the area in which they are located is zoned for single-family, not multi-family, residences.

Both Bethune and Sikes attempted to have the apartments legalized through a zone change when they were cited for zoning violations, but the Planning and Zoning Commission and the City Council denied the request.

However, their zone cases prompted the planning commission to begin examining where and when such apartments should be allowed.

The citations of Sikes and Bethune and the suits against the two men are part of the city's Intensified Code Enforcement program begun largely as a crackdown on multi-family uses in single-family neighborhoods.

Jury Finds Companies Due No Damages

A 140th District Court jury found Friday that two companies were due no damages against the Upjohn Co. in a Sept. 12, 1973, warehouse fire in which the plaintiffs claimed Upjohn polyeurethane insulation was at fault.

The verdict, which addressed several issues, ended two weeks of trial and three days of jury deliberation in the court of Judge William R. Shaver.

The plaintiffs, West Texas Warehouse Co. of Lubbock and Shoprite Foods Co. of Dallas, asked $850,000 in damages from Upjohn, which is based in Kalamazoo, Mich.

Attorneys for the plaintiffs were George Whittenburg and Cary Schachter of of Amarillo and Travis Shelton of Lubbock.

Whittenburg said Friday that a new trial probably will be asked "because of what we view as conflicts in the jury's answers."

Shoprite and West Texas Warehouse contended Upjohn was liable for having failed to warn the companies of the fire hazard of polyeurethane insulation and and for other reasons.

The jury found that the value of the Avenue A warehouse that burned was $901,635 before the fire and $56,677 afterwards.

On one issue, the jury found that Upjohn failed to give adequate warning of the propensity of polyeurethane, once ignited, to burn rapidly and intensely,but the jury said that failure did not render the insulation unreasonably dangerous.

It also found that the principal cause of the fire was the use of heating torches by company employees against insulation in a cold storage vault.

Whittenburg said both sides probably will file motions with respect to what judgment should be entered.

Passengers Prefer Love Field

By TRAVIS BROWN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

An estimated 95 percent of passengers who board Southwest Airlines aircraft in Lubbock are signing a petition requesting that the airline be allowed to continue service from Dallas Love Field to New Orleans, La., says Lubbock Manager Ernie Reese.

Congressman Jim Wright of Fort Worth introduced legislation last week that would prohibit Southwest and other airlines from using Love Field for interstate flights. The legislation is attached as an amendment to an airport financing bill being considered by the Senate.

"Apparently, Congressman Wright doesn't want to lose any revenue from the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport to satellite airports such as Love Field," Reese said.

About 1,000 signatures have been collected at Lubbock International Airport since the petitions became available Tuesday at Southwest Airlines ticket counters, Reese said.

Circulation of the petitions will continue at all airports serviced by Southwest until Monday, when they will be collected and presented to members of Congress.

Last spring, Southwest gathered about 75,000 signatures from passengers supporting the Dallas Love Field to New Orleans route to present tom the Civil Aeronautics Board.

That service began Sept. 28, "and we are averaging over 60 passengers per flights," said Southwest President Howard Putnam.

Thai Controls Limit Of Cambodians Aid

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A cargo ship filled with food was forced to wait five days recently before unloading at a Cambodian port, illustrating the difficulty of delivering the massive aid pouring in from around the world.

Daily aid flights from Bangkok are limited by Thai controls, the Cambodians have rejected the idea of overland truck convoys, and deliveries by sea have become the main lifeline for the more than two million Cambodians said to face death by starvation.

But the country's only deepwater port, Kompong Som, can handle only fourships at a time and unload them at the rate of only 350 tons a day, according to aid officials here.

When two ships bringing 6,000 tons of supplies donated by international agencies arrived late last week, three Soviet vessels were already docked, and one of the new arrivals could do nothing but wait.

But the aid keeps pouring in — from international aid groups such as the World Food Program, the International Red Cross andthe Unitd Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), and from the Soviet Union and other communist countries.

When they rejected a U.S. proposal to truck huge amounts of aid across the Thai border to the capital Phnom Penh, the Cambodian government claimed that sufficient aid is reaching the country by other means.

The government also said the agriculture system which it claims was disrupted by the regime of ousted Premier Pol Pot is beginning to revive, with a harvest of some 56,000 tons of rice expected soon.

But this figure, along with the claim that the huge amount of 200,000 tons of relief has been delivered by communist allies, is questioned by analysts here.

Meanwhile, Western relief agencies are quietly delivering hundreds of tons of supplies directly across the Cambodian border from Thailand to areas that are not under the control of the Vietnamese-backed government of Heng Samrin in Phnom Penh.

This aid, including so far more than 900 tons of food, a ton of medicine, tens of thousands of vitamin pills and thousands of shelter tarpaulins and mosquito nets, goes to people in areas controlled by Pol Pot guerrillas and by third-force right-wing "Free Khmer" troops.

In the next few days, sources here say, another cross-border delivery of 1,500 tons of rice and several hundred tons of dried fish and cooking oil is planned.

County Clerk Receives 24 Absentee Ballots

Twenty-four ballots had been received by County Clerk Frank Guess at 5 p.m. Friday in absentee balloting on three proposed constitutional amendments.

Guess said ballots mailed before the Friday deadline would be counted up until noon Tuesday, and an official count would be reached at that time.

Voter turnout Tuesday is expected to be very light due to the absence of local issues on the ballot in Lubbock County.

Studio 54 Owners Plead Guilty To Tax Evasion

NEW YORK (AP) — Two of the owners of Studio 54 pleaded guilty Friday to reduced charges of federal income tax evasion on more than $1 million that they skimmed from the trendy Manhattan discotheque.

Steve Rubell, 36, and Ian Schrager, 32, agreed to plead guilty in a plea bargan that cut 26 years off their possible prison sentences. They now face maximum sentences of no more than 10 years.

After they were indicted, Rubell and Schrager had alleged that White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordan sniffed cocaine during a 1978 visit to the disco. Jordan has repeatedly denied the accusation, which was turned over to the Justice Department for investigation.

"No comment whatsoever on that," Roy Cohn, attorney for Rubell, told reporters after the court proceedings Friday. "There are specific restrictions on what we can say about that."

A third co-owner of Studio 54, Jack Dushey, 38, pleaded guilty last June 18 in the tax evasion case and is awaiting sentence. He was to have testified against his partners had they gone to trial.

Meanwhile, the State Liquor Authority has filed drug-use and liquor-tax evasion charges against the club. Conviction by the state authority could cost Studio 54 its liquor license.

Rubell and Schrager pleaded guilty jointly to paying corporate taxes of $8,366 on a reported taxable income of $47,807 for Studio 54 during its first year of operation, which ended in April 1978. The actual income was $791,182 and taxes due totaled $366,267.

Rubell then pleaded guilty to reporting personal income of $55,675 for the calendar year 1977, when it actually totaled $131,862. Instead of the $55,260 due in taxes, he paid $18,052.

Schrager reported his personal income that year as $40,838 when it was $116,976. Thus he paid only $14,061 in income tax when he should have paid $59,146.

"I made a serious error in judgement which I deeply regret," Schrager told the court. A lawyer, he could face disbarrment proceedings as the result of his plea.

U.S. District Judge Richard Owen set Jan. 18 for sentencing. The co-owners face maximum sentences of 10 years each in federal prison and $20,000 fines. Originally charged with evading taxes on $2.5 million, they could have been given up to 5 years in prison.

Studio 54 opened in April 1977 and immediately attained immense popularity. Would-be patrons besiege the converted theater between Broadway and Eighth Avenue at all hours of the night, begging for entry.

Crime Prevention Unit Funding Approved By Advisory Board

. Funding for a Lubbock Police Department crime prevention unit, scuttled twice by the South Plains Association of Governments, has been approved by the state Criminal Justice Advisory Board.

The board gave its unanimous approval Thursday to a city grant application for more than $58,000 in unbudgeted funds to pay for the crime prevention unit.

City officials had requested funding for the unit the past two years through SPAG, but both the board of directors and the Criminal Justice Advisory Committee ranked the project too low to receive funding.

The ranking of city projects in February sparked a heated controversy between city officials and SPAG after no city projects were funded for the second consecutive year.

The federal Criminal Justice funds, distributed through the state office, will allow the city to create a crime prevention unit consisting of two police officers — a sergeant and a corporal — with experience and training in crime prevention.

Goals for the project include:

•Increasing the number of citizens participating in Operation I.D.

•Promoting crime prevention to the citizens of Lubbock so a majority of citizens are aware of crime preventions methods.

•Assisting in stabilizing the crime rate.

The grant application now goes to Gov. Bill Clements for his signature.

Rick Childers, administrative assistant to the city manager, said the crime prevention office may be set up within a month "at the earliest."

United Way Volunteers Strive For Goal

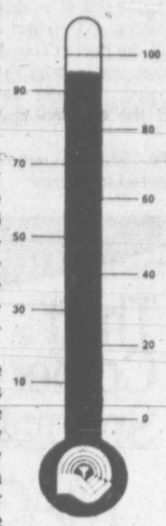

UW METER STILL RUNNING — Joe Price, United Way campaign chairman, received a stylized gas meter bearing the UW symbol at a luncheon Friday. But the UW campaign is about $100,000 short of its $1.8 million goal, so workers have postponed their "victory" celebration until Nov. 14 and hope to raise the full amount by that date. (Staff Photo by Bill Janscha)

The United Way campaign came up about $100,000 short of its goal at Friday's scheduled "victory" meeting at the Civic Center despite what UW officials termed a valiant effort by volunteer workers.

As the tote board showed only $1,706,180 for 95 percent of the $1.8 million goal, chairman Joe Price immediately announced an additional report meeting for Nov. 14.

"Not to raise the budget that enables thousands of people to be served daily through United Way agencies would be a blow to our community," Price said.

1979 GOAL: $1.8 MILLION

"We will continue to work diligently ... and I feel that when we meet here again on Nov. 14, we will have accomplished completion of the goal that will allow our agencies to perform in 1980."

Priee praised a number of division chairman, team captains and volunteer workers for walking "the extra mile" the past week to bring the campaign to its present level.

Don Douglass, last year's chairman and this year's UW president, presented Price with a stylized gas meter bearing the United Way symbol as a memento of his service this year.

"The community owes much to Joe Price, who was brave enough to head up this year's drive in the face of a number of adverse conditions," Douglass said.

Special recognition went to J.C. Chambers, who handled Loaned Executive training during the year; to Bob Suter, who volunteered to work 30 special groups during the campaign; and to members of the Speakers Bureau, who made 189 speeches to employee groups, civic clubs and other organizations during the campaign.

Entertainment was provided by Monterey High School's Sierra Singers and by Betty Tolley.

Division totals and percentages reached today were:

Pacesetter, $436,265, 100 percent; Loaned Executive, 667,086, 96 percent; Advance Gifts, $115,105, 100 percent; Employee, $44,064, 86 percent; Professional, $113,292, 78 percent; Federal, $81,517, 90 percent; State, $10,610, 72 percent; City, $38,702, 119 percent; Schools, $89,268, 90 percent; Texas Tech, $47,005, 94 percent; Metro, $26,247, 64 percent; Business, $22,629, 84 percent; Residential, $14,390, 96 percent.

Search, Investigation Continue In Tanker, Freighter Crash

GALVESTON (AP) — The Coast Guard on Friday searched with little hope of finding 27 more crewmen feared killed in the fiery collision of an oil-laden tanker and a freighter in the Gulf of Mexico.

"I'm afraid by the time we get done with this, we are going to discover we've lost a lot of people," said Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. George Davis.

However, Kenneth B. Hofstra, who will investigate the collision for the Liberian government said some crewmen could still be alive aboard the ship.

happened before 6 a.m., so, basically, other than the people on watch, and possibly the cook, most of them probably were asleep.

"You've got a fire going and some of them might never have made it out of their bunks," he added. "But it's still all speculation at this point.

Three bodies were recovered shortly after the collision Thursday and a fourth was caught in the net of a fishing boat on Friday.

"Four bodies were sighted after the collision and three were recovered, but we were unable to get to the one that was sighted on the deck of the tanker," said Chief Petty Officer Ray Davis.

"When we looked again today, the body was gone and we don't know whether it washed overboard or just what happened to it," he said. "This body found by the fishing vessel could be it, but there is now way we can know."

Davis said the fishing boat Our Father picked up the body in its net about three miles out to sea near the entrance to Galveston Bay. Davis said the body was recovered in the opposite direction from where intensive search and rescue efforts were centered.

Both ships caught fire and were still smoldering Friday, despite an all-night water barrage by commercial fireboats.

In the meantime, a representative of the Liberian government said the tanker, carrying 400,000 gallons of crude oil, may have been at anchor at the time of the accident.

Kenneth Hofstra, a hired investigator for Liberia where both ships are registered, said, "It is apparent to me from pictures I have seen that the tanker was at anchor.

"The anchor chain is out from the bow of the boat and into the water. That surprised me."

Chief Petty Officer Ray Baker said the Burmah Agate was preparing to sail for Houston at the time of the collision, but officials were not certain about the status of the tanker's anchor at the time of impact.

Lt. Kenneth Harry said the tanker was at anchor when he arrived at the scene about 80 minutes after the collision.

A Coast Guard investigating officer, Lt. S.V. LaBurn, said Shuii Shawn, the Mimosa captain, had said the freighter was on a southeast course when the Burmah Agate apparently cut in front of the freighter.

LaBurn quoted Shawn as saying his ship backed off after the collision and burning oil from the tanker poured onto the Mimosa's decks. Smoke was said to have entered the Mimosa's engine room, forcing the ship to be abandoned.

Hofstra and Robert Ingraham, captain of the Port of Galveston, toured the collision site by boat Friday, but Ingraham said it would be impossible to board the crippled tanker because of fires.

The Mimosa smoldered quietly, abandoned by its crew.

Scientists Find Fossils Of Huge, Swimming, Penguin-Like Creatures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists have found fossils of some of the largest swimming birds yet discovered on Earth, penguin-like creatures that in some cases stood more than 6 feet tall.

Fossils of the previously unknown bird family, called plotopterids, were discovered in Japan and the state of Washington, according to a report published Friday in Science magazine.

Rocks bearing the fossils indicate the birds lived at least 30 million years ago.

Dr. Storrs L. Olson of the Smithsonian Institution's Museum of Natural History and Yoshikazu Hasegawa of the National Science Museum in Tokyo said the flightless marine birds apparently used their wings to drive them underwater, as do present day penguins.

But analysis of bone fossils shows the creatures were more related to the order of birds that includes pelicans and cormorants than to the family of penguins.

Single fossils or partial skeletons were found in six locations in Japan and one partial skeleton was uncovered in Washington. Evidence indicates the fossils represent up to five species, or varieties, of plotopterids, the report said.

The fossils indicate some of the species were only slightly smaller than the largest living penguins.

"In life, the largest Japanese plotopterid probably measured more than 2 meters (7 feet) from bill tip to tail tip and may have been larger than any of the giant fossil penguins," the authors said.

Previously discovered fossils have documented the existence of giant penguins, some more than 5 feet tall, that lived in the Southern Hemisphere millions of years ago.

Until now, scientists had wondered about the absence of similar-sized wing-propelled diving birds in the Northern Hemisphere.

"We now know, however, that the plotopteridae occupied such niches in the North Pacific for an undetermined period prior to the end of the early Miocene (period, about 30 million years ago)," the scientists said.

Some scientists have theorized that the giant penguins of the south died out because of competition from seals and porpoises.

Borg, Fiancee Plan Marriage

TOKYO (AP) — Swedish tennis star Bjorn Borg and his Romanian fiancee, Mariana Simonescu, plan to be married next July, the Japanese newspaper Asahi reported Saturday.

Asahi said the couple had received permission for the marriage from the Romanian government, but the newspaper quoted Miss Simonescu as saying, "We don't need to have government permission."

She did say, however, that "it is true that we are getting married next July," according to Asahi. The marriage has been rumored for several months.

Borg is competing in the $300,000 World Super Tennis Tournament in Tokyo. Miss Simonescu was runner-up in the Wimbledon junior tournament in 1973 and winner of the French junior title in 1974.

Neither could be reached immediately to confirm the report.

Freedom Over For Bull

VERNON, Conn. (AP) — The days of romping in gardens and knocking down fences are over for a sprightly young bull. Authorities cornered him Friday after chasing him about the countryside for five months.

The bull, less than a year old, had been roaming in the Vernon area since May, damaging fences and lawns and creating a nuisance for residents. Officials believe it escaped from a dairy farm nearby.

"We had attempted to hit him on three or four occasions before this with tranquilizer guns and have done so, but he had gone off into the brush and I'm sure he slept off the effects of the drugs," said August Helberg, generalmanager of the Connecticut Humane Society.

The animal was spotted again Friday, but he fled from a drive-in movie theater in Vernon when three humane society officers shot him with a tranquilizer dart. But this time, the officers tracked down the bull and trapped him inside a garage.

Helberg said the bull was taken to the society's Newington animal center for examination and care.

Despite local publicity about the errant bull, its owner is unknown.

"I imagine the owner has not come forward because of the damage the animal has done," Helberg said.

Band To Give Up Name

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The original Four Aces of the 1950s have gotten back together, but a federal judge says they'll have to use a different name this time around.

A three-year court battle ended this week when federal Judge John Fullam ruled that four other singers now calling themselves the Four Aces have the right to the name.

The original Four Aces — Al Alberts, Dave Mahoney, Sod Vaccaro and Lou Silvestri — began singing in 1947 and earned five gold records and two Academy Awards. Among their hits were "Tell Me Why," "Love is a Many Splendored Thing," "Three Coins in a Fountain" and "Stranger in Paradise."

They last performed together in 1958 and over the years were replaced one by one, but the group's name stayed the same. In June 1975, the original four regrouped and sued for the right to be called the Four Aces.

But Fullam said they had relinquished their right to the name because there was no written contract and because they were replaced individually.

Stunt Career Goal For Man

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — Ted A. Batchelor likes to set himself on fire. He's also fond of smashing up cars and jumping through windows.

But it's not all in fun, the 20-year-old freshman at Bowling Green State University says. He wants to become a Hollywood stuntman.

"I'm not some kid doing it just to do it," he says. "I've got a goal about the whole thing."

His purpose is to build a portfolio of photographs of himself performing various daredevil stunts. He hopes the collection will land him a job as a professional film or television stuntman from which he might earn $280 a day.

He already turns a few dollars with his stunts. People unfamiliar with his hobby often bet him he won't go through with the stunts. He does, they lose and he collects.

"It's all common sense. The basis for all stunts is acrobatics and tumbling," he said. But, he adds, "You've got to take it seriously."

Batchelor says diving through windows is especially enjoyable, but that his favorite feat is setting himself on fire.

"When I'm done, I'm in a good mood," he says.

Mrs. Talmadge Owns Business

ATLANTA (AP) — For meals with an Old South flavor, restaurant-goers can have a "magnolia supper" at Betty Talmadge's antebellum mansion.

Since last spring, Mrs. Talmadge, the former wife of Sen. Herman Talmadge, has been operating a reservations-only restaurant from the 143-year-old Lovejoy Plantation.

"I've been doing this sort of thing all my life ... I'm just suddenly charging for it," said Mrs. Talmadge. "It's fun. I enjoy people, and this way enables me to keep this house up the way it ought to be kept up."

Mrs. Talmadge said she got the idea for a restaurant after being asked to prepare a Southern meal for chefs attending a cooking school in Atlanta. Her meal consisted of mint juleps, roasted pecans, country ham, fried chicken, candied carrots, cucumber mousse, biscuits and homemade peach ice cream.

Talking Typewriters Offer Possible Careers For Blind

NEW YORK (AP) — A new generation of typewriters is coming — "talking" typewriters for the blind.

IBM's Office Products Division introduced one new model Friday, and at least two other companies, PMI Inc. of Inglewood, Calif., and ARTS Associates of Boston, introduced models earlier this year. Several other companies are working in the field.

With these machines, a blind person types onto a regular keyboard that is The machine then reads the copy back with a computer-generated voice, so the blind person can hear and correct mistakes.

The voice sounds a bit like someone with both a thick accent and a bad cold. But it is clear enough to hear errors, and the operator can then go back to that point in the text, have the voice spell through the erroneous word letter-by-letter, and correct it.

Later, the machine tpes an eror-free copy onto paper.

Manufacturers expect these machines to open new careers for blind people. There are already 7,400 blind typists in the United States, according to government estimates, and some state governments will underwrite the cost of new equipment that makes it possible to hire a handicapped person.

IBM sales vice president Terry Notari said Friday that the company's Audio Typing Unit will be marketed in New York, Chicago, Washington, San Francisco and Austin, Texas, beginning next spring.

The voice synthesizer and its control board cost $5,300. They must be used with one of IBM's Memory or Mag Card typewriters, which range in price from $4,900 to $8,920.

A somewhat less expensive model with the same basic features is the Digivox, made by PMI.

The Digivox sells for $3,100 with what is known as a dot matrix printer, which does not have the quality of typewriting. With typed printing, the price is "under $5,000," PMI president Ty Gray said.

ARTS President Peter Duran said his company's version of a talking typing machine runs about $6,000 with typewriter-quality printer. While IBM plans to concentrate on the office market, ARTS and the makers of Digivox think their machines' low price makes them suitable for office or home.

During a demonstration Friday, the IBM machine performed well except for a few wrinkles of the voice synthesizer. It pronounced the word "typewriter" as "type-you-writer," an apparent attempt to pronounce the silent two-letter combination "ew" in the middle of the word.

The word "character" came out "sharacter." IBM scientists said that mistake stemmed from the need to pronounce "ch-" words like "charade" and "chair" correctly.

Satellite Diving For Earth's Atmosphere

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 11½-ton Pegasus 2 satellite dipped ever closer to Earth Friday as it headed for a blazing dive though the atmosphere on Saturday.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the target time for re-entry is 6:57 p.m. EST Saturday, plus or minus five hours.

As of late Friday, NASA said, the satellite was within 131 miles of Earth, a drop of about 17 miles in 24 hours. The rate of descent will quicken as atmospheric friction builds up. When it falls to about 70 miles, it will begin to break up.

The agency said if it re-enters in darkness it should provide a spectacular fireworks show for anyone who happens to see it.

NASA said computer projections indicate about 20,700 pounds of the satellite should burn up from re-entry heat, with the possibility that about 2,300 pounds of hardier materials might survive.

The surviving debris will be scattered over a re-entry trail about 1,500 miles long and 60 miles wide. The agency said chances of any damage or injuries on Earth are remote.

There was no way to predict where Pegasus will come down. The spacecraft, on a constantly-shifting path, is circling the globe between 31.8 degrees north and 31.8 degrees south of the equator, with 75 percent of the course over water.

In the Western Hemisphere, that course ranges from the extreme southern United States to southern Brazil. The satellite does not pass over Europe but does cross above most of Africa and much of India and Australia.

WITH WAR HERO — Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower enjoys a laugh with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as they leave a Washington hotel for the White House to meet President Harry Truman after the general's return from Europe in 1945. Memory Of Mamie To Live On GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Friends mourned the death Thursday of Mamie Eishenhower, who had settled with her late husband at the edge of this famous Civil War battlefield. Yet they said her memory will live forever.

"I have the feeling that her name will be kept alive in this community the same as his was," said Ethel Wetzel, whose close association with Dwight D. Eisenhower and his wife spanned 14 years.

"She will be missed, but there will always be a strong remembrance. It is like being gone but not forgetten. Mamie will always be a part of Gettysburg," said Mrs. Wetzel.

For seven years, Mrs. Wetzel was administrative assistant to the five-star general who served as the Supreme Allied Commander in World War II and later became the country's 34th president.

She became Mrs. Eisenhower's personal secretary following Ike's death in 1969.

So Mrs. Wetzel, who learned over the radio that Mrs. Eisenhower died peacefully in her sleep early Thursday, had tried to prepare herself for the inevitable.

"I knew that she was not well. I knew that they never expected her to return to Gettysburg," she said. "It was not unexpected, but something like that is always a shock."

The flag at the 189-acre Eisenhower farm flew at half-staff Thursday. The Secret Service agents who cared for the former first lady quietly tidied up her personal belongings.

The farm that the Eisenhowers bought in 1951 has already been donated to the National Park Service.

"We will miss her a great deal, and really the nation will too," said the Rev. Robert MacAskill, pastor of the Gettysburg Presbyterian Church where Mrs. Eisenhower frequently worshipped.

'Her inflence will coninue. Shewas always an inspiration and also an identification with Ike. Everyone can say I like Ike, and they can say the same thing about Mamie," he added.

Mrs. Eisenhower lived in relative solitude after her husband's death a decade ago. But health permitting, she stayed active in civic and political projects.

Last year, she served as honorary chairman for the successful campaign of Gov. Dick Thornburgh, a fond friend.

"All Americans mourn the death of Mamie Eisenhower, and Pennsylvanians are particularly saddened at the loss of this Commonwealth's 'First Citizen,'" Thornburgh said in a telegram to Mamie's lone surviving son, John Eisenhower.

Thornburgh also proclaimed a statewide day of mourning on Monday.

Forgetting Rings Costly To Woman

A credit employee for Sears department store in the South Plains Mall told police that more than $3,000 worth of rings were stolen when she went to the restroom.

Shirley Goodwyn, 28, told police that she went to the public restroom at the store and took off five rings to wash her hands. Reports indicate the woman said she forgot the rings when she left the bathroom and when she returned, the rings were gone.

The woman told police that when she remembered leaving the yellow gold and diamond rings and returned to the restroom she encountered two women leaving the facility. When questioned about seeing the jewelry, the two women said they had not seen any while in the restroom. Reports indicate the rings were worth $3,975.

A Texas Tech student told police that agreeing to give a man a lift to a downtown apartment early Friday morning led to his being robbed of between $60 and $80 by a pistol-wielding man.

Richard Eric Heller, 19, of 619 Weymouth Hall, Tech campus, said a black man asked him for a ride to some apartments near the First National Bank, 1500 Broadway, about 1:20 a.m. Friday and that he agreed.

However, when Heller reached his passenger's destination another black man, toting a .22-caliber pistol, confronted him and demanded his wallet, containing the cash and a $155 check, according to reports.

Heller said the bandit fled after taking the loot. The passenger then asked to be let off at an apartment in the 1000-block of University Avenue.

The victim told police he feels his passenger may have set him up for the robbery. The bandit was described as 5-feet-5, weighing about 135 pounds and having a medium afro haircut. He was wearing dark pants and a dark shirt.

In other activity, two Lubbock women said they were assaulted shortly after 2 a.m. Friday at a club in the 1800-block of Broadway.

Gloria Alvarado, 42, of 2213 Second St. and Mandy Gonzales, 41, of 908 E. Stanford St. said a man wielding a whiskey bottle walked up to their table and began arguing with them.

Mrs. Alvarado said the assailant hit her in the back of the head with the bottle, and Mrs. Gonzales said he used the same instrument to strike her on the right shoulder.

Reports indicate Mrs. Alvarado suffered a gash in the back of the head, but that neither woman sought medical treatment at the scene.

The women gave police the name of the suspect in the alleged assault.

EMS attendants were dispatched to a hotel near downtown Lubbock Thursday night and attempted to treat Joe DeLeon for injuries apparently received in a beating. However, the victim refused help and would not give police information on the apparent assault, according to reports.

Two burglary suspects, both 18, were chased down Thursday night by an intended victim and police Cpl. Frank Keller at 47th Street and Indiana Avenue and taken to the county jail on suspicion of breaking into a car.

Carrol Richardson of 3420 83rd St. said his car was parked in the 3300-block of 47th Street, while he watched a Monterey High School soccer game about 8 p.m. When his daughter went to the vehicle, she spotted the suspects burglarizing it, he said.

The girl ran back and told her father, and Richardson went to the car in time to see the men, walking away with some water testing equipment. Richardson said he yelled at the men and they dropped some of the stolen property and ran.

Panel Head Questions Hiring Method

WASHINGTON (AP) — It is so common for the Energy Department to hire private consultants that Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., asked Friday, "What work is left for the employees of the department to do?"

Pryor is chairman of a Senate Government Affairs subcommittee which reported on alleged abuses found in the department's hiring of consultants.

Among the contracts turned up by subcommittee investigators:

•One for $150,000 to teach department employees how to organize office files.

•Another for $9,800 to provide a list of federal permits needed to build a power plant.

•A $500-a-day fee for 15 days for a consultant to critique the first issue of a publication called Solar Law Review and provide the names of persons who might serve on its editorial board.

At a hearing on the issue, the subcommittee also released an internal investigative report in which the department's Inspector General's Office was sharply critical of a frequent agency practice of not using competitive bids to hire consultants.

The report concluded that the Solar Applications Office in the department used "misleading or inaccurate" justifications for 17 consultant contracts awarded without competitive bidding.

As a result of contract changes, the cost of the work rose from $10 million to $18.6 million over several months, the report said.

In one case, $100,000 was awarded to a firm called Buckmaster Industries to develop a solar hot water-heating system. The firm was hired on the grounds it had "sold more solar-equipped homes than anyone else in the country," and was the only one qualified to do the research.

The contract was justified by a department employee who wrote that Buckmaster's staff members "have extensive experience in marketing, manufacturing and engineering. Key personnel have recent experience in installing, maintaining and repairing solar systems."

In fact, the inspector general found, only one person in the Buckmaster company had any experience in manufacturing solar hot water-heating systems.

Pryor said the Energy Department was unable to say how many consultants it has hired or how much they were paid.

"All the work (in the department) is being done by someone else," Pryor said.

John A. Hewitt Jr., the department's chief financial officer, said about 80 percent of the agency's contracts are awarded competitively.

While "I think there are problems," Hewitt said, department officials are trying to make sure that consultants are hired only when absolutely necessary, rather than having work done by the department's 20,000 employees.

Material, Money Saved Due To Suggestion

NATICK, Mass. (UPI) — There's the right way, the wrong way and the Army way, as the saying goes.

But Frank Todisco stopped to question the Army way, and saved the taxpayers thousands of dollars.

Todisco, a clothing designer at the Army's Natick Research Laboratory, discovered a loop on the back of a pair of Army cold weather field trousers was not serving any useful purpose.

In fact, it was costing money — 8 1/2 cents for each pair, with the Army procuring up to 500,000 of them each year.

The 6 1/2 inch piece of material was originally designed as one of three loops used for years as suspnder hooks.

Todisco made his money-saving discovery in 1976. After some investigating he discovered that even though the Army had stopped using three-hook suspenders "way back — quite a few years ago," no one bothered to do away with the back loop.

He changed the specifications in 1976 and in March 1977 he submitted through official channels his suggestion the loop be officially removed from the books.

"You know about the government," he said. "By the time the paperwork went through it was 1977."

For his efforts, Todisco received a small portion of the estimated savings — about $23,000 in 1978. "I just got the money (an $800 award for his suggestion) in May," he said.

"We went to Florida with it — had a nice vacation, me and my wife."

U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold died in a plane crash in 1961.

'Outsider' To Head DPS

Selection Of Ex-FBI Man Breaks Tradition

AUSTIN (UPI) — Ignoring a 44-year tradition, the Texas Public Safety Commission Friday went outside the ranks of the Department of Public Safety to select former FBI agent James B. Adams to head the state police agency.

Gov. Bill Clements recommended Adams for the $47,500-a-year post over the career DPS officer favored by retiring Col. Wilson E. Speir.

Robert R. Shelton of Kingsville, commission chairman, said Speir's second in command, Lt. Col. Leo E. Gossett, was reappointed assistant director and has agreed to remain under Adams.

William B. Blakemore II of Midland said the selection of an outsider should not affect DPS morale, especially since Gossett will remain in the agency.

Adams, 52, currently director of the criminal justice division of the governor's office, will assume command of the 4,500-employee agency Jan. 1.

Speir, 62, announced in September that he will retire Dec. 31 after 11 years as DPS Chief and 38 years with the agency.

Adams will be the first attorney to head the state police agency and the first outsider to command the Texas Rangers and other DPS forces since the department was created in 1935.

A native Texan, Adams resigned a seat in the Legislature to join the FBI in 1951 and and worked his way up to the No. 2 spot in the federal agency before he retired in May to join Clements' staff.

Clements' hiring of Adams stirred speculation the former FBI man was in line to succeed Speir but the three-man Public Safety Commission said the governor's recommendation did not sway the selection.

Speir, who has drawn fire in recent years about illegal activities of some DPS officers, said he decided to retire because of health problems.

Adams, an outspoken advocate of wiretapping authority for law enforcement officers, has sparked controversy over his efforts to defend FBI operations and allegations from one former FBI agent that he lied about the extent of FBI break-ins.

Before Adams left Washington, however, FBI director William Webster said an investigation cleared Adams of the perjury allegation and produced no evidence that he condoned any misconduct by FBI agents.

Adams has indicated he will push to increase emphasis on law enforcement efforts against narcotics and public corruption, but not at the expense of traffic enforcement that consumed 55 percent of the DPS' $86.5 million budget for 1979.

Speir said the DPS could always use more narcotics agents but the agency's biggest manpower shortage is in the highway patrol.

"For us to be effective we really ought to have about 3,000 troopers. We have about 1,500. That's really where our worst shortage is," Speir said.

Speir indicated he has known Adams for years and said, "I think Jim would make a good director," but endorsed Gossett more enthusiastically.

Gossett, 53, told reporters, "Naturally I'm disappointed but I look forward to working with Jim."

Speir May Teach

Speir told reporters he hopes to teach part-time.

Adams was born in Corsicana, but moved to Mexia at an early age. A 1949 graduate of Baylor University Law School, he served as assistant county attorney of Limestone County before he was elected to the Legislature in 1950.

Resigning his House seat after only seven months, Adams joined the FBI in July, 1951. He worked in Seattle, San Francisco, Minneapolis and San Antonio and served in a number of supervisory capacities in the FBI headquarters.

He was associate director of the FBI at the time of his retirement this year.

Clements later acknowledged Friday that he had met with two members of the Public Service Commission but denied he had pressured the panel to choose Adams to head Department of Public Safety.

Meets Separately

During his weekly news conference, Clements said Charles Nash of Austin and Blakemore had met separately with him in the governor's office Thursday, and both had expressed their decision to choose Adams. Gossett, who has been Speir's chief deputy for 11 years and the DPS director's choice to succeed him, was the other leading candidate for the job.

Robert R. Shelton, after the commission had named Adams earlier Friday, said the panel had been given advice by the governor, legislators, lobbyists and members of the governor's office.

Clements, however, said he had met with Blakemore and Nash at their request but denied he had tried to influence the commission.

"They informed me then what their decision was," the governor said. "I have no knowledge of any pressure from my office."

Called Best Officer

Clements called Adams, whom he recruited to head the Governor's Criminal Justice Division, the best law enforcement officer in the country.

"I consider him the most knowledgable and most qualified law enforcement officer in the country. His credentials are impeccable."

The governor said he had not recruited Adams with the idea he eventually would replace Speir as head of the state's law enforcement agency, and would not try to influence Adam's administration.

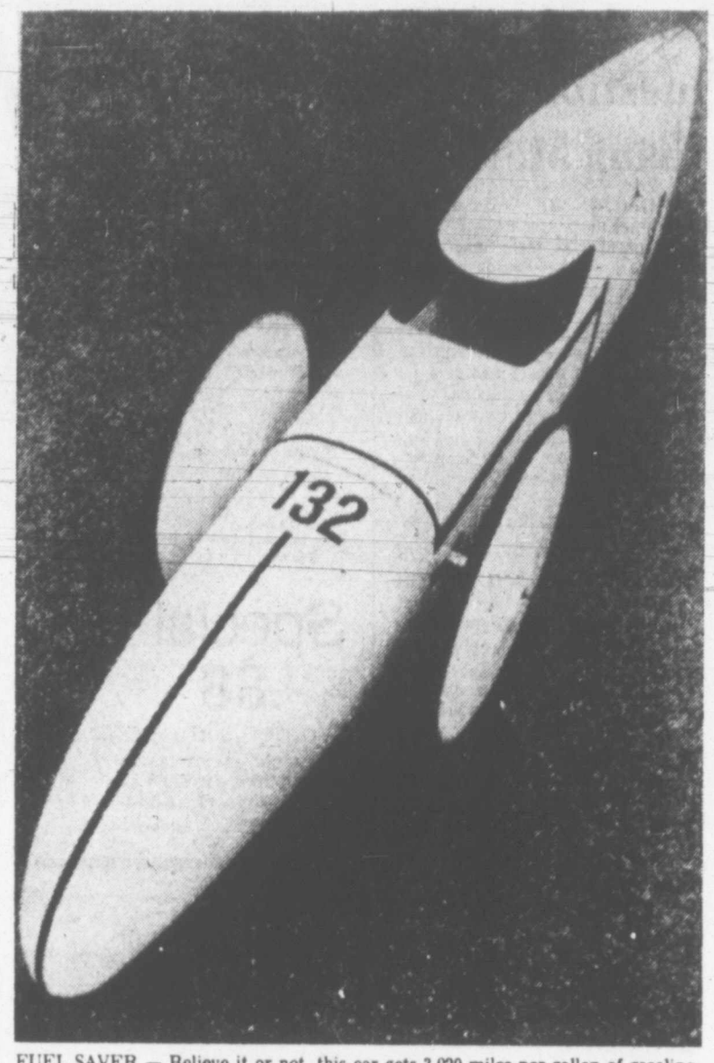

"I'm not telling Mr. Adams what to do or how to do it," Clements said.

The governor said he felt the number of law enforcement officers, and their pay, had to be increased.

Budget May Grow

"The DPS budget may very well grow in the short run and the long run," Clements said.

Adams, who was present during the news conference, said he would meet on a regular basis with Speir and other top DPS officials during the next two months in order to make a smooth transition when he fills the post on Jan. 1. He said, however, he did not "contemplate any drastic changes" in the department.

oe in the event he becomes satisfied that his reference to the city as a "Kaopectate Festival" site and other digs were unjustified.

West says he has never eaten in Muleshoe as far as he can recall, but he put Muleshoe in his cartoons only because he has friends there and thought it would be funny.

"I'm taking some gifts for the City of Muleshoe," he said, "but I'm only going to give them to them if the meal turns out to be good. If the meal's bad, I'm bringing them back with me.

"I look forward to a big evening, a meal that will prove conclusively that Muleshoe does have food that is fit to eat. It occurs to me that the dinner we have Monday may be the mule that the town is named after, but I hope not."

Muleshoe — for those who don't know where it is and whose maps might not show it — is about 70 miles northwest of Lubbock on U.S. 84.

Officials Probe Charge Of Child Molestation

Several of the youths told police that the man drove them to Lake Ransom Canyon in a recently purchased car and told them that he was wealthy and owned several of the spacious homes in the village east of Lubbock.

During one such excursion, a 14-year-old boy told police, the man reached toward the back seat of the car to touch the boy's 12-year-old sister, causing the car to swerve into the path of an oncoming vehicle.

The boy said he grabbed the steering wheel and directed the car back into the right lane, but that the man jerked the steering wheel, causing the car to spin several times. The man then stopped the car and hit the youth in the face with his fist, the boy told police.

The four siblings told authorities the man constantly talked about sex and showed them pictures from magazines such as Hustler and Playgirl.

Authorities said the suspect's 24th Street residence, where the children often spent time, was without water, electricity and gas.

Police said the man's dog, which died in February, was removed, against the man's will, from his living room by health officials in July after neighbors complained about a foul smell coming from the East Lubbock residence.

Reports also indicate that the man frequented the Mahon Library, especially at night, and possessed a library card under an assumed name. Police said library officials once discovered the man in one of the facility's bathrooms, nude and bathing himself in the restroom sink.

Viet Found Innocent In Seadrift Killing

SEGUIN (AP) — A state jury on Friday acquitted a young Vietnamese refugee on charges of killing a local fisherman during a "crab war" in the tiny coastal town of Seadrift.

The verdict came three hours and 20 minutes after the jury began deliberations on the murder charge against Nguyen Van Sau, 21, in the Aug. 3 dockside shooting of Billy Joe Aplin, 35. Sau could have faced a maximum 99-year prison sentence if convicted of murder.

Sau's 20-year-old brother, Nguyen Van Chinh, was acquitted Thursday on an instructed verdict by State District Judge Clarence Stevenson. Chinh also was charged with murder.

The shooting followed a dispute over local fishing customs which holds that a fisherman does not put his crab traps in the same area another crabber has found to be "hot."

The dispute touched off violent reprisals against the town's 150 Vietnamese. The trial was moved to Seguin, 90 miles inland, because of unrest among Seadrift's 1,400 residents.

Seadrift councilmen on Friday called in reserve sheriff's deputies and retired law enforcement officers to patrol the city.

"We're getting ready for the worst," said Seadrift City Councilman F.J. "Bo" Cunningham. "We're going to keep on top of it as much as we can. Hopefully, there won't be any violence. But if it comes down to it, we probably will put another curfew on the town."

When the verdict was announced, the victim's older sister, Sarah Vincent, 41, wept and said, "My brother was killed in cold blooded murder and I believe they will murder all of us. I believe the Vietnamese will attempt to murder each and every one of my family. They own Seadrift now."

She added: "Never in our wildest dreams did we imagine they would be found not guilty."

Judy Aplin, the victim's widow, was taken from the courtroom just after the verdict was read. She made no comment on the verdict.

Defense lawyer Pat Maloney said, "It's just magnificent...Justice has so richly been served." He called the verdict "one of the most reassuring events in my belief of the judicial system."

Sau wept briefly when an interpreter told him of the verdict. He smiled as he shook hands with each juror.

"He was very moved and very grateful and very happy," said interpreter Dr. Nguyen Van Chau.

Maloney said Sau and his brother planned to leave the area. "They'll be long gone," he said. "They're not going to partake of any more Seadrift antagonisms." He would not say where they were moving.

The defense attorney contended during closing arguments that the 5-foot-5, 115-pound Sau acted in self defense, shooting the 6-foot-1, 200-pound Aplin only after he had repeatedly threatened the defendant, beaten him and slashed his chest with a knife.

Maloney, a San Antonio attorney who has donated his services, said the shooting occurred against the backdrop of racial hatred of the Vietnamese.

At one point in his argument Maloney said, "If you ever plan to go to Seadrift, I'd recommend you do it by way of California."

But District Attorney William Day said in his final arguments, "It is not Vietnamese problems we are concerned about. We are concerned about whether this man committed murder.

"He took his gun and blew him away. He put him in his grave. ... This is a clear case of murder."

But Maloney told jurors, "The smallest worm will turn when it has been trod upon."

Aplin's widow and one of his sisters fled from the courtroom, weeping, as Maloney spoke.

Four prosecution witnesses testified that Sau, a former South Vietnamese Marine, deliberately aimed his pistol and gunned down Aplin. But all acknowledged under defense questioning that Sau fired only moments after being beaten by Aplin.

Some of them said Aplin was waving a knife.

About 30 of the 150 Vietnamese attracted to Seadrift by a new crab processing plant have departed since the violence.

Davis Defense Rests; Trial Nearing End

The time is crucial to the defense explanation as to why he met McCrory later in August and discussed guns, silencers, money and murder.

Davis said and McCrory met at 6 p.m. that evening at Coco's Restaurant. Helms said McCrory was flying model airplanes with him at Lake Benbrook.

The defense called Helms' estranged wife Friday to tell the jury of telephone conversation with Helms last Christmas.

"He made the comment that he had not been to Benbrook to fly in almost a year," she said.

The final rebuttal witness suggested Helms either lied or was confused about a different phase of his testimony but corroborated him in the most crucial area.

Ed Rankin, like Helms an enthusiast of radio controlled model airplanes, said he and Helms went to the Benbrook site "on many occasions" in 1978.

NEW YORK (AP) — A new world record of $860,585 was realized Friday at a photography auction, breaking the previous record of $460,000 set earlier this week, Southeby Park Bernet Inc. said.

Some 593 lots were included in the sale.

A new auction record also was set for a single photographic image, the auction house reported, when a portrait of author Alexander Dumas Pere went for $16,000.

The portrait bore the stamp of the St. Lazare studio in Paris in 1857, and the photographer was Gaspard Felix Tournachon, known popularly as Nadar.

Jobless Rate Rises Slightly; Start Of Recession Debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment inceased slightly to 6 percent of the labor force in October, up from 5.8 percent in September, but officials said it is too soon to say whether the long-awaited slide into a recession has started.

"You would have to have a crystal ball to say these are indications we're in or about to enter a recession," said Labor economist Norman Bowers. "The figures don't say that."

The Labor Department reported Friday that the number of unemployed rose by 200,000 to a total of 6.2 million in October, with most of the increase occurring among blacks and women. Employment dropped by 220,000 to 97.3 million, the department's household jobs survey showed.

Same As August

The jobless rate of 6 percent was the same as in August. Unemployment has hovered in the range from 5.6 to 6 percent for the past 14 months.

Anticipating a recession in the economy, the Carter administration has been forecasting a rise in unemployment to about 7 percent next year. However, the recession has been slow to develop.

At the White House, press secretary Jody Powell said he did not believe anyone could make a projection for the future on the basis of the October figures. He said the economy "has been surprisingly resilient in the face of the substantial drain put upon it by the increase in the price of imported oil."

"Nothing Significant"

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller said the October increase was "consistent with the general trend of the economy" and that there was "nothing particularly significant" about it.

Bowers said it would take several more months of increases of the magnitude of the October rise to say that unemployment was definitely rising as the result of slower economic growth.

But Janet Norwood, the commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, told a congressional committee that the October employment report does "reflect a clear slowdown in the rate of employment growth."

Year's Employment Rises

While total employment has increased 2.1 million during the past year, less than one-fourth of the gain, or 451,000 jobs, have been created in the past eight months.

The Labor Department said the increase in unemployment last month resulted from workers losing their jobs. However, a supplemental survey of business establishments reported a contradictory rise in non-farm payroll employment of 305,000 jobs to a total of 90.2 million.

Manufacturing employment was unchanged, while jobs in construction increased by 30,000, the payroll survey showed.

The Labor Department, which relies primarily on the household survey for employment data, said such discrepancies have occurred before.

The department provided this breakdown on unemployment rates for October:

—Adult men: 4.3 percent in October, up from 4.2 percent in September.

—Adult women: 5.8 percent, up from 5.5 percent.

—Blacks and other minorities: 11.7 percent, up from 10.6 percent.

—Teen-agers: 16.6 percent, up from 16.4 percent.

—Whites: 5.2 percent, up from 5.1 percent.

—Full-time workers: 5.5 percent, up from 5.4 percent.

—Part-time workers: 9 percent, up from 8.3 percent.

—Blue-collar workers, 7.3 percent, up from 7.1 percent.

—White-collar workers, 3.5 percent, up from 3.3 percent.

The jobless rate among minority teen-agers increased to 35.7 percent, from 31.5 percent in September, the highest in nearly a year.

Powell said that while jobs statistics for minority teen-agers are extremely volatile, unemployment for the group is "clearly much too high."

Family Farm's Preservation Cited As Goal

loans," Brown said.

To be eligible for the loan security, persons would have to prove they have a net worth of less than $100,000.

All three men warned of the decline of family farms and the rise of corporate farming.

"All consumers should be highly interested in protecting their supply of relatively affordable food," Brown said. "And the best way to insure that food doesn't become another OPEC situation is to keep food production in the hands of as many people as possible."

Jones said the major problems facing passage of the Proposition No. 3 is that a low voter turnout is predicted for Tuesday's general election and that most of those voters will be city dwellers.

"And there is not a great deal of public awareness in urban areas of the problems of agriculture," he said.

However, all three men predicted the proposal will pass. "There is no organized opposition to Proposition No. 3," Brown said.

"Ten million dollars is not a great deal of money," he added. "but if the program gets a good track record, then we might want to expand it." He emphasized that the program would be implmented under the Department of Agriculture and "will not require creation of another bureacracy."

Today, Jones, Brown and Naman will attend the Agriculture Issues Conference, sponsored by the Texas Democratic party and held at the Lubbock Civic Center.

Klan Upheld For March

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge said Friday he was obligated to uphold the Ku Klux Klan's constitutional right to march although he found its beliefs and activities "repugnant."

U.S. District Judge Robert W. Porter refused to issue an injunction that would have prohibited the Klan from parading through downtown Dallas today.

"I do not in any way condone the ideals of the Ku Klux Klan," said Porter, adding that civil rights lawyer Gerald Weatherly had failed to give any compelling reasons why the march should not take place.

Weatherly had argued in a hearing Thursday that because of the Klan's outspoken opposition to integration, the parade would represent a show of force that would have a chilling effect on other members of society.

"I understand what you are saying, and I disagree with it," replied Porter.

Oil Zooms To Top In Egypt's Foreign Exchange

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Almost unnoticed, oil has zoomed from zero to Egypt's biggest foreign-exchange earner in just six years, and future prospects are even brighter.

A combination of good management, shrewd marketing techniques and the good luck that is essential in the oil business has resulted in oil income this year of $1.22 billion — more than the Suez Canal, cotton or tourism.

Crude-oil production has been going up about 20 percent annually in the last three years and analysts expect this trend to continue at least through 1983. At the same time, Egypt is charging substantially more for its oil than the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. It is not a member of OPEC.

"I want to turn this country into a major oil power," says Petroleum Minister Ezzedine Hilal, an ebullient and highly competent engineer who has shepherded the oil industry from its takeoff in 1973.

Experts and industry analysts say only a miraculous find in Egypt's vast and underexplored western desert can spark a bonanza like the oil boom in the Persian Gulf. But meanwhile, they say, Egypt can look forward to steady growth, with more and more companies coming in looking for a strike.

Peace with Israel is a factor in making Egypt more attractive to international oil companies, said Coy Squyres, chief of Egyptian operations of Conoco Inc., America's 9th-largest oil company.

Conoco has about one-third of the area of all the concessions granted to foreign oil companies in egypt. In 1980, Squyres said, Conoco will spend $40 million on exploration, "substantially higher than this year"

Conoco so far has drilled only dry wells, but the German company Deminex has discovered a field in the Gulf of Suez that, when fully developed, may be able to produce as much as 100,000 barrels a day — about one-fifth of present total production.

"Peace is a fact, so let's go to it," said Squyres. "In the past, American companies always had a nagging doubt (about another war), but coupled with the worldwide shortage of oil, Egypt is the place to look."

One major benefit of peace is that Egypt is getting the Sinai peninsula back from Israel. It is right next to Egypt's main oil producing area in the Gulf Of Suez and international companies have already acquired concessions even before Israel's withdrawal is complete.

In addition, Egypt is taking over fields already developed by Israel that are slated to produce 20,000 barrels a day.

"Since 1973, we have concluded 51 agreements with 33 companies from 13 countries which have agreed to commit $970 million in exploration expenses," said Hussein Abdullah. Oil-exploration concessions have been granted over almost 60 per cent of the country's total area.

But these figures must be put into perspective, independent analysts say. Egypt now produces about 530,000 barrels of oil a day, just a fraction of such oil giants as Saudi Arabia or Iran.

Egypt's known reserves are estimated at 4 billion barrels, less than Qatar, one of the smallest of the OPEC states. And while oil income makes up more than 90 per cent of gross domestic product of the major producers, the proportion in Egypt is 12 per cent, according to Hilal.

With a much larger population than its Arab neighbors, Egypt consumes about 40 per cent of its production. Egypt's oil income is soaked up by 41 million people.

But, Hilal said, "Egypt needs every penny." And recent price hikes by OPEC meant a windfall for Egypt because the nation immediately raised its own prices.

The best Saudi Arabian crude, for example, sells for about $18 a barrel, but Egypt's best crude goes for $32.50, Hilal said. Egyptian officials make little effort to disguise the fact that Egypt is charging, and getting, as much as the traffic will bear.

Egypt's feud with most of the rest of the Arab world over its peace policies, however, has cost the country some $200 million this year in lost oil income, sources said.

It used to import refined products from Arab countries at low prices which were covered by foreign sales of Egypt's own excess production of different products. But now that it has to import from Europe at higher prices this tradeoff is suffering a deficit.

The quarrel with the Arabs also would probably stop Egypt from joining OPEC if it wanted to. But Hilal said there was no reason for such a move, because Egypt now takes advantage of OPEC's price increases without being a member. "Why should I buy an umbrella," he said, "when I am already shaded by it?"

Arguments Close In New England Fuel Debate

BOSTON (AP) — Federal lawyers closed their case Friday in the debate over oil exploration off the New England coast, claiming the need for energy exploration justifies environmental risks to one of the world's richest fishing grounds.

"The plaintiffs are saying that we should take no risks," said Justice Department attorney William Cohen. "If we don't take the risks of oil exploration in fishing grounds, then we take other risks in terms of energy needs and dependence on foreign oil." Cohen's arguments came as the U.S. Interior Department sought to stop a request for an injunction in U.S. District Court against next Tuesday's scheduled sale of 116 offshore oil leases on Georges Bank.

The suit was brought by the states of Maine and Massachusetts and the Conservation Law Foundation of New England, claiming the federal government hasn't hown the 0,000-square-mile fishing ground is safe from the threat of oil spills.

During the three days of hearings, the parties opposed to offshore drilling said a major oil spill could permanently damage major spawning areas on Georges Bank and kill schools of right and humpback whales, which are considered endangered species.

Although Cohen conceded risks do exist, he said Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus had complied with the law by making a thorough review of the risks and rewards involved in drilling for oil 100 miles off the New England coast.

"The fundamental error in their case is that they talk about harm in the worst instance," said Cohen. "The plaintiffs' claims of injury are very, very, very speculative. Yes, it's possible, but no, it's not probable."

Cohen also cited other court challenges to offshore drilling off the coast of California and in the Gulf of Mexico, in which federal judges ruled in favor of the government.

"There is no question these cases generate a lot of controversy, but the courts realize their responsibility in these instances," he said.

Cohen cited studies which said there may be as much as 123 million barrels of oil and 870 billion cubic feet of natural gas 1,300 feet below the shoals of Georges Bank.

"The plaintiffs try to minimize the amount of gas and oil out there, but they haven't pointed out the tremendous value of knowing whether there is gas and oil out there," Cohen said.

E. Edward Bruce, an attorney representing a group of oil companies in the lawsuit, said the supplies of natural gas alone would be an economic boon to the region.

Kennedy, Baker Set Out On Vote-Getting Trek

By The Associated Press

Sens. Edward M. Kennedy and Howard Baker set out Friday on political trips that had symbolic overtones for the Massachusetts Democrat and posed an early campaign vote-getting challenge to the Tennessee Republican.

Kennedy traveled to West Virginia for a nostalgic visit to the state that gave John F. Kennedy one of his greatest political triumphs.

Baker, following his declaration of candidacy Thursday, flew to New England for a weekend of campaigning that would include competition for support in a straw poll by 1,500 Maine Republicans.

"Obviously, it's a special state for us," spokesman Tom Southwick said of Kennedy's first campaign-style trip since formation of a presidential campaign committee Monday.

The senator's brother, John F. Kennedy, won the West Virginia presidential primary on May 10, 1960, knocking Hubert Humphrey out of the race and showing the nation he was well on his way to the White House.

Edward Kennedy was scheduled to be the featured speaker at the annual Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner in Charleston, the state capital. He also planned to attend a rally Saturday morning in Buffalo, N.Y., before returning to Washington.

Kennedy officially will enter the presidential sweepstakes next Wednesday in Boston.

At the first stop on his New England tour, Baker renewed his plea for a strengthening of the nation's military might.

"The United States is fast becoming a second-rate military power and if we don't take steps to reverse that trend ... the risk of war will surely increase," the Senate minority leader said in an address at Brown University in Providence, R.I.

Baker had asserted earlier that he could defeat either Kennedy or Carter in the general election next year.

Accompanied by his wife, Joy, the senator told more than 100 people at a reception that 1980 could be "the biggest Republican year we've seen in this country in almost 30 years."

And he told his university audience, "I am serious about being president. This is my life-long effort. This is my contribution to my country. This is all I can do."

The Tennessee senator faces an initial test of strength Saturday in Portland, Maine, where he will be involved in head-to-head competition with other Republican presidential hopefuls in the straw-poll.

Baker will speak at caucuses Saturday in Portland, where he'll be joined by other GOP candidates — George Bush, John Connally, Sen. Robert Dole, Reps. John Anderson and Philip Crane and Benjamin Hernandez.

Missing from the Maine contest will be former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who plans to announce his candidacy Nov. 13.

Meanwhile, White House press secretary Jody Powell confirmed that there has been some discussion of the possibility of a debate between Carter and Kennedy.

Powell told reporters that "there was a brief discussion, not involving the president," about a Carter-Kennedy debate.

However, the press secretary said no recommendation has been made to Carter by White House and campaign staff members involved in the discussion.

Carter has remained generally noncommital on the question.

Daughter Of RFK Gives Birth

WASHINGTON (AP) — The eldest daughter of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy gave birth to an 8½-pound daughter early Thursday at her home in New Haven, Conn., the office of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., announced Friday.

A Kennedy spokesman said Kathleen Kennedy's husband, David Townsend, delivered the baby at home by himself. Mrs. Townsend is 28. The baby has yet to be named, the spokesman said.

Illegal Drivers Licenses Easily Obtained

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Not long ago a gentleman was arrested in California on a variety of complaints, one of which was that he possessed illegal driver's licenses -a great number of illegal driver's licenses. The man matter of factly admitted he owned at least 138 of the road permits.

TOM TIEDE

One hundred thirty-eight driver's Licenses!

California authorities said they were astonished, but they shouldn't have been. As it happens there are millions of Americans who carry more than one driver's license, legions of them carry several, and unknown thousands of the motorists can stack their permits up like decks of cards.

The practice is generalliy dishonest, it is in fact threatening, and it may be something to think about now that the summer gasoline shortage has gone away and America's roads are once again jammed. Many of the motorists have no right to drive, indeed, many are not fit to drive.

How many? Precise figures are not available. But the Department of Transportation says there are 130 million Americans driving today, or about 10 million more than are old enough to drive. So Washington believes that between 10 and 14 million motorists do not have orthodox licenses.

How many? Precise figures are not available. But the Department of Transportation says there are 130 million Americans driving today, or about 10 million more than are old enough to drive. So Washington believes that between 10 and 14 million motorists do not have orthodox licenses.

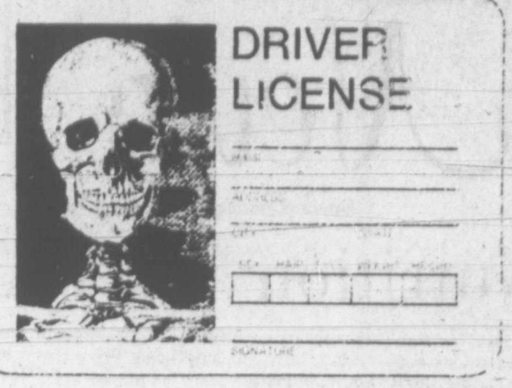

Some of the drivers get illegal permits by having counterfeits printed. There are several mail order houses in the nation that supply false identification documents, identification documents, including drivers licenses, for between $20 and $50. The houses will forge a license from any state, using whatever name the buyer wants.

Besides this, illegal drivers can get licenses on the strength of phony information. In california, for example, a motorist may get a permit by supplying the birth certificate of a dead person of his approximate age and race. Anybody can obtain the certificates from any California courthouse.

But the most popular way for illegal drivers to get licenses is to simply apply in states other than those in which they live. For iristance, the California man mentioned, above did not have 138 different California permits; on average, he had three licenses from each state in the union.

The California chap was therefore immune to the laws of the highways. If he was wreckless and lost his California permit, he could use one from Idaho. If he was wreckless again and that one was confiscated, he could shuffle up a third, or a fourth, and so forth, from New York to New Mexico.

And here then is the threat in the activity. Poor drivers may have licenses to kill. Ken Nathanson, a better-driving activist, says a motorist can cause an accident in, say, Montana, kill someone, have his license revoked,

And Nathanson should know. He's been on the suffering side of this matter. In 1975, while on a motor trip with his family, Nasthanson's car was struck from behind by a tractor-trailer truck. The truck driver was entirely at fault, Nathanson insists, "and my 14-year-old daughter was killed."

It turned out the truck driver should not have been on the road at all. He had a history of motor vehicle problems, and his license in his home state (New Jersey) had been suspended. "But what he did was get an illegal license (from Arizona)," Nathanson says, "and so my daughter was killed."

Nathanson has since organized a Washington-based interest group to combat the menace of multiple licensing. His Citizens For Better Driver Records is small (just Nathanson and his wife) but determined. The goal is egalitarian vehicle use, which is to say: one driver, one driver's permit.

The goal is elusive. As long ago as 1961, Congress tried to eliminate illegal licensing by creating the National Driver Registration clearinghouse. States were thus invited to coordinate their issuings and revocations through a central computer. But it hasn't worked very well.

The reason is state apathy. Only 36 states contribute data to NDR, and sometimes only selective data. Many states feel the datas bank constitutes an invasion of privacy. Others are frankly not interested in denying multiple permits; they'd rather have the revenue that this kind of peddling provides.

Congress has requested that NDR be expanded and revitalized. But no one expects that a big change is on the way. Nathanson says there is no public support for crackdown regulations: "New laws would affect all 130 million drivers, you see, and the people aren't eager to legislate against themselves."

So it is that the licensing continues. As does the hazard. To illustrate: that truck driver who Ken Nathanson says killed his daughter was convicted of dangerous driving, but is appealing, and meantime he's continuing to drive the nation's highways — with, of course, a pocketful of permits.

Patrolman Climbs Inside Attack Suit As Police Dog Target

By RANDY KRAFT

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (NEA) — Rick Mongilutz has been attacked by police dogs regularly for the last five years.

He's not a criminal who won't wise up.

He's a cop.

He's the only man in the Allentown Police Department who regularly climbs inside an attack suit to provide a bad guy for the jaws of the city's police dogs during training and demonstrations.

"I'm the only registered masochist in the state," jokes Mongilutz as he dons his heavy burlap and leather gear for the next attack.

"No, really, it's good exercise," he insists. "It's clean fun. I'm out in nature . . ."

"He's our crazed individual," adds fellow patrolman Ron Manescu while working hard to hold back Adolph, a 3-year-old German Shepherd that is anxious to charge Mongilutz.

"The dogs don't like me too much," says Mongilutz. "They know my odor and associate that with me smacking them around a little bit.

IN AMERICA

"Sometimes we do crowd scenes with volunteers, and the dogs will come after only me. They could have picked me out at Woodstock and worked their way through 10 million people to get me."

Mongilutz needs assistance getting into his attack suit.

"I think the city paid about $450 for the suit," he says. "The sleeves are chewed up and they're always having to work on them.

"I also have to wear heavy shoes in case they get my feet. But the legs aren't protected too well."

To guard his head, Mongilutz wears a football helmet and a fencing mask.

When he's all dressed, it's hard to decide if Mongilutz looks like a medieval knight, an Oriental warrior or something at the bar in "Star Wars."

And how did he get to be the only man who works with the dogs in an attack suit?

"They originally asked for volunteers, and I was the only volunteer," he responds.

"I thought it would be good exercise. The suit weighs about 80 pounds and the dogs weigh about 90. On a hot summer day, throwing a dog around for 10 minutes is like jogging around the world."

Mongilutz says he isn't scared when the dogs attack him. But, he admits, "the first time it was really frightening."

"They are really dangerous animals," he says. "I often wonder what would happen if one of the handlers had a heart attack. I'd be lying there with a dog on me and no one to call him off."

Mongilutz usually tries to offer an arm, the most heavily padded part of the suit, to an attacking animal. but sometimes in practicing different routines — like hiding behind shrubs or sitting in a car — the dogs will grab him by the shoulder, the leg, the head — or worse.

"The object is to feed them your arm," he says. "But we have such unpredictable puppies that you never know where they're going to hit."

When Mongilutz is finally dressed, Manescu commands Adolph to attack

Adolph lunges for Mongilutz's arm. The policeman spins in circles and the dog hangs on.

"Aus! Aus!" Manescu commands repeatedly before the dog finally lets go. Then Manescu tries another attack with Adolph still on the leash.

"Ow!" winces Mongilutz as the dog bites him on the arm.

"You do get pinched a little bit," he explains a few minutes later. "A shepherd has a 1,300-pound bite at the point of the tooth. They do compress my arm, even through the sleeve. Sometimes the sleeve of the suit stays pressed together for a week.

"When they bite, it's like having your arm in a vise. But there's no penetration. I get teeth marks but no blood."

After being attacked so often, Mongilutz has learned that each dog has a different style. Some attack only because they're commanded to, he says, while others seem to do it just out of sheer pleasure.

Mongilutz starts peeling out of his suit.

"Well, that's demonstration No. 740," he laughs. "I've got to get this outfit dry-cleaned. Can you imagine that? I think I'll have it pressed and starched, too."

Mongilutz and the dogs put on frequent demonstrations, sometimes several nights a week.

"It's good public relations," he says. "But after awhile I feel like I'm in show business instead of in the police department."

The patrolman has his own dog, a 140-pound great dane named Rajah. He says the dog is primarily for protection of his home and family — not a pet — and warns people not to try to touch it. One cop didn't heed his warning and got the whole front of his uniform ripped off.

Choking Hazard May Be Caused By Blow-Guns

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 180,000 blow-gun toys that may pose a choking hazard are being recalled by their manufacturer, the Consumer Product Safety Commission reports.

The "Soft Shot Star Launcher" toys were sold nationwide and are made by the Western Publishing Co., of Racine, Wis.

The commission said the toy consists of a plastic tube and mouthpiece measuring about 29 inches in length. It is sold with three small cardboard targets and three orange darts molded in soft vinyl, each about three inches long.

Officials said that the manufacturer decided to recall the toy after receiving three reports of children who choked on the toy's mouthpiece when the mouthpiece separated from the tube and lodged in the child's throat. The children were not critically hurt, officials said.

Despite the incidents, the company reported that the toy meets or exceeds all current product safety standards.

The toy's package carries the model number 4990, but there is no distinguishing mark on the toy itself.

Council Teaches Nutrition

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Many school districts across America teach nutrition in tandem with other skills: art, history, the social sciences, for example.

That system has its drawbacks, according to the Dairy Council of California, whose nutrition programs for second, fifth, seventh and eighth graders are currently being used in a dozen states.

A student may be able to draw a picture of a balanced meal, says Cynthia Carson, the council's acting manager, but if that student hasn't already learned what foods make up a balanced meal, he isn't going to learn from the drawing lesson.

"Students only learn one thing at a time," Miss Carson said in a telephone interview from her office in Sacramento. "You can reinforce the skills they already have.

"We have found — and we have a lot of evidence — that you can't expect people to transfer skills."

Nutrition lessons also should be geared to a child's age, she said.

"At the second grade level, kids can't remember what they had for breakfast or lunch. You have to go meal by meal. They can't recall the whole day.

"By the fifth grade, they have the ability to look at a full day's foods and determine if they're getting adequate nutrition."

In the seventh and eighth grades, she said, they're ready to apply what they've learned to their daily food choices.

"If they skimped on something at lunch, they have to know how to make it up later in the day," Miss Carson said.

Before developing its programs about four years ago, the council interviewed more than 3,000 teen-agers. They found the youngsters usually had memorized the four basic food groups — milk, meat, fruit-vegetable and bread/cereal. But when they were shown a picture of an incomplete meal and a list of foods, they couldn't pick the foods needed to balance the meal.

The council's Food Book for teenagers starts begins with a chart showing the minimum number of servings from each food group that is needed, based on age.

It gives examples of servings: a carton of yogurt or a slice of cheese are among the milk group choices; an ear of corn or an apple, orange, peach or banana makes one fruit vegetable group serving; one tortilla or crust for one medium slice of pizza is equal to one slice of bread in the bread/cereal group.

The booklet for second graders is more basic. For practice, they're shown pictures of 20 different foods, including fried chicken, potato chips, peanut butter, cereal, cocoa, ice cream, hot dogs, cake, sliced tomato, and asked to mark the foods that belong to the milk group.

On other pages, they're shown 20 foods and asked to mark those that are extra, that don't belong to any of the four food groups: jelly and a soft drink, for example.

Boys' and girls' skills and interests are pretty much the same at all age levels, Miss Carson said.

Are students who use the council's materials actually applying what they learn to their food choices?

Miss Carson said the council is working more and more toward monitoring lunch lines to find the answer.

She added that no attempt is being made to train lunchroom personnel to answer the children's questions about balanced meals. "That doesn't mean it wouldn't be a good idea. It would be a nice reinforcer.

"In the fifth grade programs, we are having students talk with their parents about getting more fruits and vegetables into their diets and identifying the food groups their diets are low in."

She said peer groups also talk about the same things in classroom exercises.

"And we've done telephone surveys with parents. We get a lot of positive reaction. Kids are asking their parens, 'Where's my bread-cereal group?' (often that type of food is missing from a meal.)"

Another fifth grade classroom exercise asks students to identify what's missing from their parents' diets and those of other family members. Then the students are asked to share the information with their families at home.

The council says tests show 80 percent of the people taught by its methods master basic nutrition skills so they can apply them to daily living, compared with 40 percent using traditional nutrition education methods. It says remedial exercises increase the council's success rate to 95 percent.

Other states using the council's programs are Alaska, Arkansas, Florida, Kansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Texas.

Miss Carson said the council is not soliciting business but is happy to share its technology to teach nutrition successfully, and will respond to queries from out-of-state groups such as state-funded nutrition program officials and school districts.

Requests for additional information should go directly to: Cynthia Carson, Acting Manager, Dairy Council of California, 2775 Cottage Way, Sacramento, CA 95825.

OVEREATING

To help avoid overeating, use a smaller plate than usual and take smaller bites, suggests Frances Reasonover, a foods and nutrition specialist. Also chew food thoroughly before swallowing it.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Your answer to "Tongue-Tied in Appleton" bothered me. It was good, but I think that mother needs more help. If you remember, she asked for advice on how to answer her 14-year-old daughter who said, "I know I'm a rotten kid, but it's your fault ... you raised me." You told her, in effect, to tell the daughter she could change and make something better of herself. Of course, she can, but she can do it a lot easier with her mother's help. I have a few suggestions for the mother that will ease a tense and unhappy situation:

1. Never engage in a shouting match with your daughter. If she screams, bite your tongue, lower your voice and say anything you feel compelled to say in a voice only slightly above a whisper. If you can't manage that, tell her quietly that you will discuss the subject with her when you are calmer. Then do it.

2. Never let her reduce you to tears. You are an important person, too. When she gets out of hand, send her to her room, deprive her of a privilege, but don't let her defeat you.

3. Let her know you love her. Tell her the next time she rages at you that there is nothing she can say that will cause you to stop loving her. You may not like her behavior, but she is your daughter and you are committed to loving her, so let her know she might as well stop trying to alienate you. (Don't worry, there will be times when you can't stand her, but remember, you're probably not lovable all the time either.)

4. Touch her a lot. This is important! When she's glued to TV and you pass by her chair, reach out and pat her. Give her lots of hugs and don't be put off by her groans or pulling away.

5. Try not to criticize too often. Suggest if you must, but don't be on her back about every little thing. Save your "nos" and "don'ts" for the biggies and MAKE THEM STICK!

6. Stop blaming your husband for not spending time with her. If he is stand-offish and gone a lot, that is his problem — and his loss. You are responsible for your relationship with your child and you cannot control anyone else's attitude or behavior.

7. When you reprimand her (if you must) in your newly-acquired quiet voice, choose good language. Example: "I find your offensive behavior unacceptable." It will be far more effective than, "You are a rotten kid." Remember that 14 is a tough age. It's not easy to grow up, and this baby you rocked in your arms is finding it more difficult than it was in your day. Don't worry about what other people think. Listen to HER. No matter what she says, all she wants is for you to love her.
— Mother Of Four Who's Been There

Dear Mother: Thank you for those excellent guidelines. Mother-daughter relationships are never easy, for a wide variety of reasons. Any mother who says, "My daughter never gave me a moment's trouble or a single heartache," is not leveling. I honestly believe that it is not possible for a daughter to completely understand or appreciate her own mother until she has a daughter of her own.

Consultant Brings 'Art To Own' Show To Lubbock

By FRANCES LOWE
Family News Editor

Mrs. Rosalie Berkowitz, nationally-known art consultant, will be on hand tonight at the official opening and preview party for the "Art to Own" show of the Museum of Texas Tech University.

She is the person responsible for assembling the collection of 50 paintings and 50 prints being exhibited to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the West Texas Museum Association.

The paintings will be on display and on sale thorughout the month, during regular museum hours.

Also on hand at the gala preview party this evening will be Eunice Irwin, acting director of the Presidential Museum, Odessa; John Hellen, director of the Museum of the Southwest, Midland; Bill Grigs of the Panhandle Plains Museum, Canyon; Thomas A. Livesay of the Amarillo Art Center; Georgia Baier of the Beaumont Art Museum; John Palmer Leeper of the McNay Art Institute, San Antonio; and Mrs. Adair R. Sutherland, associate director of the White Museum in San Antonio.

Born in Memphis, Tenn., Miss Berkowitz grew up in San Antonio, studied painting in New York, and returned to Texas to marry and raise a family. Her interest in painting and art continued through the years, and she has exhibited in galleries in New York and other cities, and was listed in "Who's Who in American Women."

After the death of her husband she turned what had been an avocation — advising friends on art purchases — into a vocation, becoming an art consutant to private collectors, universities, museums and businesses around the country. She has drawn upon her talents to choose the selection of prints and paintings which will be available to Lubbockites in the "Art to Own" show this month at the Museum.

Hints From Heloise

FLASH!

Want to know what to do with all those odd and lonely jar lids that have long since lost their mates?

Use them as spoon rests! Yep, that's how simple it is. I happened on this idea by accident and really like it.

I have never used a spoon rest per se. As far as I was concerned, it was just something else to wash.

But a spoon rest is something I needed when fixing something that needed to be stirred and stirred some more. I used the same spoon over and over, and couldn't leave it in the pot.

So, in despiration, I picked up an odd jar lid and used it to rest my spoon on. When done, it went out into the garbage... nothing to clean!

Everything can be recycled as simply as lids with no jars, friends, so put your mind to work before throwing out anything that just might come in handy.

One word of caution: Anything you don't use in six months or a year, throw out or give away. There is a difference between recycling things, and being a pack rat... Got me? — Heloise

HINTS FROM HIM

DEAR HELOISE:

I read your item about freezing water in plastic bags instead of buying ice. It made me think you should warn your readers about using ice water in an automobile radiator.

Never, never pour cold water in an overheated automobile radiator because it can cause the engine block or cylinder heads to crack.

When an engine is overheated and steaming, first allow it to cool below normal operating temperature before removing the radiator cap. Then add water to the radiator slowly, a little at a time, with the engine running. — Donald L. Jackson

Thanks, kind sir, for the advice. A lot of us gals and probably some guys didn't know this. But it certainly is a good thing to know when not to cool it! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Before putting the sewing kit away, thread the needle and put it in the spool.

Next time, if you are in a hurry, all you'll have to do is cut the desired length of thread and start sewing. — Dolores Holler

If you want to, you could have needles threaded with several different colors of thread. This way, you will really be ready for just about any sewing emergency.

You all know about the stitch-in-time emergencies that crop up during that a.m. rush hour when everyone's in a hurry, hurry, hurry. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

A good way to press handkerchiefs without heating your iron is wash them, then spread them smoothly on your refrigerator or top of your stove.

Fasten each corner with a little magnet and you will have no wrinkles or creases. Even works with nylon scarves.

Just look at all the energy you have saved! — Mrs. H. Carnes

DEAR HELOISE:

If the birds aren't using your birdbath, put a large stone in it. Remember, they need a place to sit while they preen their feathers after bathing.

We just tried this and the birds are enjoying our birdbath already. It is such a joy to watch them. -Mr. & Mrs. Ron Deal

DEAR HELOISE:

I'm a habitual saver of grocery bags but I've collected so many that I can't use them all.

I can't stand to throw them away, so I decided to paint and color them and use them as giftwrap paper.

My husband and I are having a great time doing this! — Tena Davidson

North's three-heart call was a definite overbid and South's final bid of four was made only because he didn't like to stop one short of game.

South was rather unhappy when he saw the dummy. There were five potential losers. He decided that he could not afford to rise with dummy's ace of diamonds so he ducked. East won with the queen and could not find a satisfactory card to lead back. Finally, he played a trump. West took his ace and led a second diamond. South won with dummy's ace.

Now South saw light at the end of the tunnel. He decided to try for a diamond-club end play. He started proceedings by cashing dummy's ace of spades, ruffing a spade, returning to dummy with the queen of trumps and ruffing another spade.

Now he ran off his last two trumps. He discarded dummy's last diamond after West who had followed to the next to last trump jettisoned a low spade. South chucked dummy's last spade to hold all four clubs.

East let go two diamonds and South had a cinch play. He threw East in with the diamond king and made the last three tricks with clubs.

FTC Discusses Proper Credit Card Usage

By BETTY YARMON
Women's News Service

NEW YORK — The rising use of credit cards makes it easier to refuse to pay for faulty goods or services, particularly happy news in this day of runaway prices.

Yet despite this, and the fact that the Federal Trade Commission says that the only realistic leverage that consumers have is their power to withhold payment, a Federal Reserve Board survey recently found that only 1.3 percent of consumers refuse to make payment when they are dissatisfied because of incomplete service, padded bills or defective merchandise.

Presumably consumers, trying to stay afloat, often are reluctant to refuse to pay for any number of reasons, among them fear about getting a poor credit rating, enormous waste of time and energy, a general disinclination to go through what could be a protracted period of hassle and frustration.

However, if you choose to take your chances when you feel "had," here are some of the steps to take:

1. If you are partly satisfied with the goods or services, pay an appropriate part of the bill. This certainly indicates seriousness and shows that you are not trying to do someone out of money owed him.

2. Send a detailed letter of complaint to the seller, spelling out all details, particularly just what it is that you find faulty with the goods or work done for you.

3. Hold onto the merchandise — but if at all possible, refrain from using it — until you have received some written indication from the seller about just how he plans to fix things up for you.

4. If two weeks pass and you get no response to your letter of complaint, write to an appropriate consumer office in your community: the Better Business Bureau, a local consumer affairs office, the attorney general's office, etc.

5. If nothing else seems to work, as a final step you might consider filing a complaint in small claims court. This will cost you from $3 to $15. You may find, incidentally, that your creditor is thinking of the same thing. Both of you may be eager for a hearing in small claims court.

If you do take this route and go to court, prepare yourself so that you can prove your case. You may want to bring photos of the defects or the merchandise itself, if it's not too bulky. You may seek opinions from expert professionals as to what needs be done to repair things, and so on.

Obviously your problems are much more intense if you have paid cash — then the shoe is on the other foot — on yours, in effect, because your chore then is to get your money back. Obviously this is no easy task.

If you have paid by check, the logical way to refuse to pay is to stop payment on the check. Be sure of your ground here, though, lest you face problems. The law calls such an action a theft of services. To stop payment effectively, first phone the bank with essential details such as check number, payee, date, amount and your reason for the action, then follow with a confirmation in writing. The bank will then ask you to fill out a stop payment form. You are also advised to notify the payee of what you have done. Even with all these steps you may well have damaged your credit rating.

Use of a credit card is something else. The Fair Credit Billing Act permits you to refuse to pay a bill until the dispute over it is settled, assuming you have a valid claim under state law.

However, you must first give the seller a chance to fix matters up before you withhold payment. In some cases, the bill must be for $50 or more, and the purchase must have been made either in the consumer's state or within 100 miles of where he lives.

Often, even when a seller agrees that the goods or services were faulty, you will find that you are still being billed for the charge, with mounting finance costs added. That's when you must steel yourself against the temptation to give up and pay.

To Your Good Health

By PAUL G. DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I want to find a doctor to measure the percentage of my body fat. Is there a way to do it at home? I have heard of doing it under water. Is it true that 25 percent body fat means obesity? Also, what is the lowest body fat a person can have? — P.L.

For most purposes, weight measured on a standard bathroom scale is a good enough guide when it is considered along with height and build. But you ask an interesting question.

As you imply, the standard scale is not a really accurate way to determine how much of body weight is actually fat. And, after all, it is the fat that's important. A short, heavily-muscled person might be classed as overweight, but in fact have very little body fat.

Since you ask, I must add that there is a scientific way to tell the exact percentage of body fat. One method involves comparison of the weight in air to that with the person submerged under water. By a complex formula this tells a body density. For goodness sake, don't anyone plop his bathroom scale in the bathtub and submerge himself to try this. All you'll get is a rusty scale. Nor is this what you'd call a standard office procedure.

A more practical method is to measure skinfolds. The skin and tissue under it are pinched together. The thickness is measure with a caliper. Measurements are taken at the back, the abdomen and the back of the upper arm.

Young men should have no more than 20 percent of their weight as fat, but 10 to 15 percent is better. Young women should not have more than 30 percent body fat. The lowest percentage of fat one can have is 3 percent, but at that level you wouldn't be able to get on a scale and probably wouldn't be "submersible."

I note from his stationary that "P.L." is a U.S. Navy man. The Navy has done considerable research in this matter.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I learned that my sister-in-law has terminal ileitis. How long does a person live with this? — Mrs. P.R.

It's a serious enough ailment, but I do wish medicine could have come up with a better term for it. The "terminal" does not mean inevitable death. It refers to inflammation of the last 12 or 14 inches of the small intestine — the "ileum." Perhaps a better medical term for it is "regional ileitis." It is treatable with diet, drugs and sometimes surgery. It's discussed in the booklet, "Stomach and Abdominal Complaints." You can get a copy by sending 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I take aspirins for arthritis. I am still menstruating. Is it true that one should not take aspirins during menstruation because they tend to make one bleed more? — M.B.

This is a really interesting question. I am embarrassed for never having thought of it myself.

Aspirin does interfere with the action of small cells in the blood — called platelets. These, as you already know, help form blood clots. Aspirin inhibits the action of these cells and hence of clotting.

I had to take your question to my rheumatologist friends. None said they had to reduce aspirin doses for menstruating patients in spite of this known effect on the blood.

Apparently, then, the answer is to stay on the same dose of aspirin during menstruation. If heavy bleeding occurs, then would be the time to consider a reduction of the aspirin. It is a great question. If another comes to mind, please write.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is it safe for a woman to go swimming during her period if she uses a tampon? People say she shouldn't because of infection. Should she swim in a lake or pool? I hope you print this because I'm sure a lot of women are concerned. — A.L.

Tampons are designed for these kinds of activities. It is OK to swim with the tampon: lake or pool makes no difference.

CONFIDENTIAL TO B.L. — Limbitrol is a combination of two drugs, both of which act on the central nervous system. One helps with anxiety and the other helps combat depression.

Arthritis sufferers can be helped. For a copy of the booklet, "How You Can Control Arthritis," which discusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as effective treatments and medications, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

WHAT'S UP?

A capsule view of tastes, interests and attitudes

Designer to the stars

Hundreds of letters arrive every week for Bob Mackie, the man who dresses such glamour pusses as Cher, Diana Ross, Raquel Welch and Ann-Margret. The letter writers want fashion tips, evaluations of their portfolios or the inside dope on the stars he works with.

Except Carol Burnett, that is. "People never ask me about Carol," says Mackie, "because everyone thinks they know her already. They want to know about people like Cher, who are more enigmatic."

He's addressed himself to those letters in "Dressing for Glamour" (A&W, $14.95), a do-and-don't book for women and design students who admire his work. It's full of sketches and photographs for stargazers.

Although he creates those elegant or preposterous (depending on your taste) costumes, he doesn't necessarily advocate them for anything except as an entertainment device. "Women who buy a $6000 dress and wear it once to a party and hang it away, I think it's sinful. Those days should be over.

"Most glamour clothes make me laugh. You can't take all that stuff seriously, or it gets dull. It's all for effect. I certainly think Marlene Dietrich was funny. Gorgeous, but funny. Real glamour has to do with charisma, not clothes."

Mackie, who prefers to wear casual shirts, sweaters and sports jackets, does not design his own clothes. "Having a lot of clothes doesn't interest me," he says.

What's up in books?

It seems appropriate with Halloween fast approaching that such books as "Ghost Story" and "The Amityville Horror" are high on this week's list of titles in greatest demand at libraries in 150 U.S. cities, according to the American Library Association.

What's up in last words?

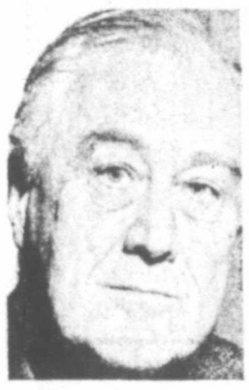

When asked by his housekeeper if he had a last message to the world, political theorist Karl Marx retorted: "Go on, get out! Last words are for fools who haven't said enough."

And no more was heard from the father of communism.

Here are the exit lines of other notables, according to "Famous Last Words" by Jonathon Green:

Economist Adam Smith: "I believe we must adjourn the meeting to some other place."

Artist Pablo Picasso: "Drink to me."

FDR: 'Terrific headache'

Sir Walter Raleigh (about to be beheaded): "Tis a sharp remedy but a sure one for all ills."

Journalist E.W. Scripps: "Too many cigars this evening, I guess."

Writer-art patron Gertrude Stein: "What is the answer?" Not receiving a response, she continued, "In that case, what is the question?"

Mormon leader Brigham Young: "Amen."

Preciseness Of Birds' Flights Remains Mystery

By National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — From tiny airstrips scattered across North America, more than 100 million waterfowl are taking off this fall on scheduled flights to southern destinations. Only about 40 million will return next spring.

The journey for most waterfowl is cut short by predators, accidents, disease, environmental dangers, and man's alteration of the landscape. Hunting claims about 20 million.

Only half the songbirds that leave the northern Atlantic coast each year are expected back. Many, believed to be immature birds or ones that were blown off course, are lost at sea.

Migration — the mysterious semi-annual flight of unknown millions, maybe billions, of birds of all kinds — inevitably takes an enormous toll, assistant editor Allan C. Fisher Jr. writes in a recent issue of National Geographic.

Internal Compass

Why do such small creatures undertake such long journeys and how do they find their way so precisely? Although much has been learned about them in recent years, the answers to many puzzles remain beyond man's reach. Most birds travel much further than would be necessary to find food and better weather.

They pilot and navigate with internal compass and mapping systems that have yet to be understood. Some make extraordinary nonstop flights over water, doubling their weight before takeoff and refueling only after thousands of miles.

The little blackpoll warbler, for example, stores enough fat in its "fuel tanks" for nonstop flights of 105 to 115 hours — for man, the metabolic equivalent of running four-minute miles continually for 80 hours.

The blackpoll and other small land birds, which make nonstop, overwater flights of more than 2,300 miles taking an average of 86 hours, hold the small-bird record in distance and time for nonstop travel. To find good winds, some fly at the cold, oxygen-starved altitude of 21,000 feet, the highest observed for small birds.

The larger arctic tern, which breeds just 450 miles from the North Pole and migrates all the way to Antartica, appears to log more air miles than any other bird — some making round-trip flights of 25,000 miles.

Time to Go

For birds the signal for takeoff each fall and spring is apparently the change in the length of the days. As the days shorten or grow longer, glands such as the pituitary and pineal are affected, and "birds become increasingly restless," Fisher reported. "Finally, they know it's time to go."

Once in flight they rely on their own remarkable navigation instruments. Most birds "possess a sun compass, a star compass, and an internal clock," Fisher writes. "They sense weather and often utilize winds with great skill. They have been shown to detect minute changes of barometric pressure. Apparently they employ the magnetic field of the earth and possibly the gravitational fields in navigation, and may also use their sense of smell."

The incredible ability of birds to "home" so accurately, many experts believe, may relate to the magnetic field of the earth. How this happens is still a mystery.

Scientists are looking at magnetite as a possibility. Among birds, pigeons possess magnetite (a compound of iron and oxygen), but no one is certain whether they actually use it and for what. It is known that some bacteria synthesize the substance and use it to orient themselves in the magnetic field.

Pigeons and some other birds also can hear low-frequency sound thousands of miles away and conveivably could use this ability to help find their way, researchers have discovered. The upland sandpiper, for example, flying high above the Mississippi Valley may hear a thunderstorm over the Rockies and the surf from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

Flying Blind

Most long-distance fliers appear to be able to select the right direction for their destination and to find it, even when taking off from places that they have not seen before. Most scientists feel that when the workings of a bird's "instrument panel" are fully understood, they will be sophisticated and complex.

Meanwhile, each autumn the Tennessee warbler, weighing no more than a 50-cent piece, migrates some 3,000 miles and may stop en route at the same branch of the same tree it perched on before, drinking from the same stream, and foraging in the same small patch of woodland or field.

Man Wants To Pay Debt After 55 Years

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Fifty-five years ago, Dr. James Shupe treated a boy in Phoenix, Ariz. Shupe knew the boy's family was struggling to make ends meet, so he told the boy's mother to take whatever time she needed to pay the $200 bill.

Now, the doctor's son, Dr. R.D. Shupe, says he's been contacted by the man his father treated. The younger Shupe, also an Arizona physician, said the man was worried the bill was never paid and wants to make it right.

The man, a Salt Lake City resident who asked not to be identified, recently offered to pay Shupe $860 — the original $200, plus 6 percent interest for 55 years.

Shupe said the man told him he was going over family documents and could find no record that the bill was paid. He said he was impressed by the generosity of the elder Shupe and was bothered that the debt might not have been settled.

The Salt Lake man said he was bedridden for many months in Phoenix. His mother and a brother came to stay with him in a small apartment while his father worked in Utah. Money was scarce for the family.

Dr. Shupe said his father, who died in 1934, was a compassionate man who cared little for money. He said he considers the debt paid.

"Please wipe this matter from your conscience," Shupe wrote to the Salt Lake City man. "My father would have wanted it that way."

Thanks To "Yanks" — And A String Of Hit Roles — RICHARD GERE IS SHOOTING FOR SUPERSTARDOM

Good theatrical training will out, and Richard Gere, who is currently starring in "Yanks," shows it in a fine performance of a we need you; don't want you Yank in World War II England. Twenty-nine-year-old Gere has a wary eye on stardom that's coming to him whether he wants it or not, but his preoccupation is with acting integrity and a hurry-on-back journey to Broadway. World Of 'Suzy Wong' Not Quite As Busy As Vietnam Years

By RICHARD S. EHRLICH

HONG KONG (UPI) — Stumble with a belly full of booze and a lecherous smirk into a nightclub in Hong Kong's red light district and ask the topless Chinese bargirl her name.

Most likely she will pucker her lipsticked mouth and reply, "My name is Lola, Angel, Debbie, Vivian. What you want my name to be, Suzy Wong?"

The Suzy Wong area, known locally as the Wanchai district, was popularized in the 1950s by the film, "The World of Suzy Wong." Tourists and sailors are still lured to the area by visions of actress Nancy Kwan breathless in the arms of William Holden.

But the risque world of Suzy Wong, after swelling voluptuously during the Vietnam War 10 years ago, has gone flat.

Once a bawdy playground for American GIs on "rest and recreation" during the war years, Wanchai's seedy backstreets now are booming with apartment towers and flashy discos frequented by businessmen and their wives.

In the few remaining, dimly lit bars — the Pussy Cat, Popeyes, Crazy Horse Saloon, and the Suzy Wong — the prostitutes' come-on hasn't changed. But inflation has skyrocketed. Some bar girls in slit-skirt, high-collar cheongsam dresses now decline to hold hands unless $100 passes between fingers.

A heavily mascaraed lady, Sweetwater, with a pronounced cheek mole and her sleek body swathed in black, looks after bargirls in the well-appointed Pussy Cat nightclub. She shouts over disco music to tell about the good old days when money and men came fast.

"During the Vietnam War lots of American GIs came and business was better, even though there were a lot of drunken fights."

Inspector Wong Shu Hong, Wanchai's vice unit commander, gazes through the window bars where his office looks down on the tattered neighborhood.

"Prostituion is legal in Hong Kong," he says. "If you have sexual intercourse for payment, it is not an offense, but you cannot solicit for it in a public place."

Women can solicit in the privacy of their own apartments, however, and often run advertisements in Chinese-language newspapers.

"The ads usually give sexy names, like An An, and say that this very young girl would like to make friends and can play music and has a very good figure," Wong says.

Such expense staggers oldtimers who affectionately call Wanchai "the Wanch" and savour memories of prices only half as high.

Though criminal rackets help introduce some girls into the oldest profession, few are forced to work in bars, Wong says. "Most girls are usually in debt due to gambling or they are addicts."

Some social workers disagree and say that many Chinese girls —especially the unskilled — choose prostitution because it pays more than factory work.

Ali Did Not Write It Down Say Publishers Of Quotations Book

LONDON (UPI) — Greta Garbo, Martin Luther King and Groucho Marx are in, but Mohammad Ali hasn't made it yet.

A new edition of the Oxford Dictionary of Quotations, the first thoroughly revised one in its 38-year history, has been published and anyone interested can find out if Garbo really ever said "I want to be alone" or if Sherlock Holmes said "Elementary, my dear Watson."

The dictionary, which is published by the Oxford University Press, wanted to include two of Ali's remarks: "I'm the greatest" and "Float like a butterfly, sting like a bee."

But th trouble is that Ali is more of a speaker than a writer and the dictionary is based less on oral statements than written ones. It is true Ali's remarks were printed throughout the world, but the dictionary tends to eliminate quotations printed in newspapers.

"We could get no acceptable printed source for Ali's quotes," said Richard Brain, the dictionary's senior editor. "We like to have printed evidence."

Groucho Marx is in with his famous "Either I'm dead or my watch has stopped." Martin Luther King made it with "A riot is, at bottom, the language of the unheard," Liberace with "I cried all the way to the bank," and poet Dylan Thomas with "Somebody's boring me. I think it's me."

And Garbo? The evidence is that she did not say, "I want to be alone" as Garbo the woman but only as Garbo the actress in the film "Grand Hotel." In real life she is credited with saying "I want to be left alone."

Nor did Conan Doyle ever record that Sherlock Holmes said "elementary etc. etc." The dictionary attributes to him only such words as "Elementary" all by itself.

BOMB TRY FAILS

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Two University of Miami students have been charged with arson in what police say was the bungled firebombing of a dormitory room shared by two football players. Officials said the firebomb crashed through a window of the room and landed between the beds of running back Chris Hobbs and tailback Taylor Timmons, but did not ignite.

A capsule look at cinema

NEW RELEASE

METEOR (PG) — Sean Connery, Natalie Wood, Brian Keith. (Adventure) This is the latest disaster movie, and the problem now is a huge chunk of meteor, zooming towards us and there's not way to stop it. But wait! Maybe the Russian and American scientists, working together, can blast it out of the sky. Good special effects and some exciting moments — as well as some pretty dumb ones. GRADE: B

GENERAL RELEASE

APOCALYPSE NOW (R) — Martin Sheen, Marlon Brando, Robert Duvall. (Drama) This is Francis Coppola's long-awaited and very expensive epic — and worth the wait and the cost. It is a study of the madness of war, and Coppola has created a procession of insane images of Vietnam and that terrible war to make his point. It is long and flawed, but must be rated an American classic. GRADE: A-plus

BREAKING AWAY (PG) — Dennis Christopher, Dennis Quaid, Daniel Stern, Jackie Earle Haley. (Romantic comedy) This American film is the kind of thing the French do so well: warm, funny, a little romantic, tied up just right. It's set in Bloomington, Ind., a college town, the summer the local bosy finally ralize they don't mind being "townies." Briefly, it's the "Rocky" of bicycle racing — but so much better. A fine job by these four young actors. GRADE: A

LUNA (R) — Jill Clayburgh, Matthew Barry. (Drama) This is the story of a sensouous widow, an opera star, who becomes physically involved with her adolescent son. The acting is excellent — Clayburgh shatters her "nice girl" mold — but the film moves fitfully and is too long. Ads discreetly warn that parts of the film may be too intense for some viewers. It's true, incest is uncomfortable viewing. GRADE: B-minus

ROSE, THE (R) — Bette Midler, Alan Bates, Frederic Forrest. (Drama with music) This story of the tragic decline of a Janis Joplin-like singer is ugly and unpleasant, but tremendously effective and moving. Midler's performance is truly outstanding, and you'll find yourself aching with her, as booze, drugs and men destroy her. Caution: Gutter language. GRADE: A

RUNNER STUMBLES, THE (PG) — Dick Van Dyke, Kathleen Quinlan, Maureen Stapleton. (Drama) Producer-director Stanley Kramer always aims high, and does so again with this film version of a play about a priest, a nun, a romance (after a fashion) and murder. The trouble is it sounds more exciting than it is, and the film is very slow going. The runner may stumble, but the film fals down. GRADE: B-minus.

SEDUCTION OF JOE TYNAN, THE (R) — Alan Alda, Barbara Harris, Meryl Streep, Melvin Douglas, Rip Torn. (Drama) A liberal senator whose star is rising must weight career and family commitments. Good-hearted but painfully predictable and trite outing. Alda, who wrote as well as played title role, should avoid the typewriter in the future. GRADE: C

10 (R) — Julie Andrews, Dudley Moore, Bo Dereck. (Romantic comedy) You've heard about guys who rate girls on a scale of one to 10? Well, this is about a girl who is a 10, and how that assessment mightily affects a songwriter, as well as the girl and her new bridegroom. Nothing weighty here, just good clean fun — and some of it isn't so clean. GRADE: B-plus

TIME AFTER TIME (PG) — Malcom McDowell, Mary Steenburgen, David Warner. (Fantasy) H.G. Wells pursues Jack the Ripper in present-day San Francisco, thanks to Wells' time machine. Silly and not particularly entertaining. Potentially fun idea but it never seems to get there. GRADE: C-minus

YANKS (R) — Richard Gere, Vanessa Redgrave, William Devane, Lisa Eichorn. (Drama) Story of American GIs stationed in a small English village in 1942 and of the local women they become involved with. Slow, richly textured and splendid to look at, but the romancees ultimately sink into a state of fuzzy dispassion. So does the movie. Caution: Some strong subject mater, language. GRADE: B

(Film grading: A — superb; B — good; C — average; D — poor; F — awful)

NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Couple Arrested In Courthouse Theft

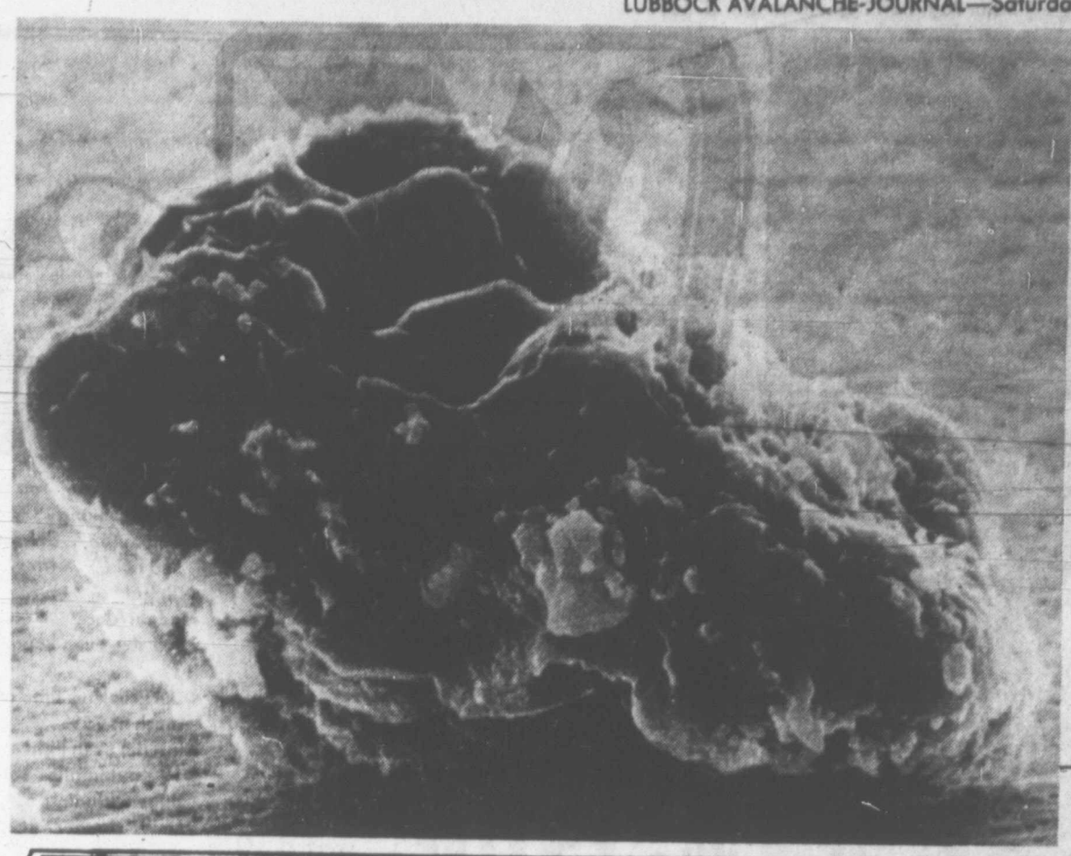

YREKA, Calif. (AP) — A man and a woman were booked for investigation of trying to steal $200,000 worth of gold from a display in the Siskiyou County Courthouse, authorities said Friday.

Yreka Police Chief Bill Duncan said a silent alarm sent officers to the courthouse at 4 a.m. Thursday. Officers said they looked through a window and saw a man helping himself to gold from the display case where the glass had been smashed.

The thief apparently heard the police and ran, but was apprehended after a short chase on foot outside the courthouse.

Duncan said the 26-year-old man gave the name of Emmet Phillips of Folsom, but the police chief said he believed it was not his right name. Also arrested was 35-year-old Isobelle Labarthe of the Shasta County town of Igo. Officers said she was waiting in the getaway car.

Authorities said the display case, which was recently put behind bullet-proof glass, contained gold nuggets and dust worth a total of about a half-million dollars.

HISTORIC CATCH — Magnified about 15,000 times by a scanning electronic microscope, this tiny particle of dust, believed shed from a passing comet, may contain chemical information dating back to the formation of the solar system, 4.5 billion years ago. The particle weighs a billionth of a gram (about one 30-billionth of an ounce) and is 0.01 microns (.25 inches) in diameter. The particles were collected by NASA aircraft flying high above the layer of terrestrial pollution and are being analyzed in a special laboratory at the California Institute of Technology. The particle is one of the more common "fluffy" ones that were gathered; each is made up of as many as one million separate grains of different minerals. Comets are believed to contain material dating back to the infancy of the solar system. (NASA Photo)

TV'S BUCK ROGERS — Gil Gerard (above) plays the legendary space hero in NBC-TV's new series, "Buck Rogers in the 25th Century." The series simple stories of good guys vs. bad guys are jazzed up with eye-popping special effects and a touch of the bizarre and sometimes even the erotic. The new series doesn't qualify as a hit yet but it is NBC's highest-rated new show of the season. (AP Laserphoto)

Topless Model Entices Yankees To Go South

MIAMI (AP) — In a few weeks, Northerners shivering in the cold of winter will see topless Gail Kelly enticing them to come to Miami and "See it like a native."

A lot of Dade County natives wonder: "Where does Gail Kelly go swimming without her top?" The more prudish ask: "Where are her clothes?"

But Dade County tourist officials say the most important question of all is: "When is the next plane to Miami?"

Miss Kelly, a former junior high school teacher, posed with her naked back to the camera, clad only in bikini bottoms and a snorkeling mask. More than 20,000 copies of the poster will be mailed to travel agents and airline offices all over the country.

She says if she can find an isolated beach, she wouldn't mind taking a dip with nothing on even though no beaches in the county are set aside for skinny-dipping.

"If I were on an isolated beach, I would be delighted to go scuba diving with nothing on," Miss Kelly said. "To me, that's freedom to do what I want."

Gary Marcus, creative director of the advertising agency that developed the poster, says "I hope it's sexy; Miami is a sexy place. This is to give a young, fun image to Miami."

Fort Lauderdale tourist officials tried a similar poster last year — showing a young model in skimpy shorts and a T-shirt — and promptly enraged women's rights groups. They said the model was a sex object.

But advertising executives say Miss Kelly is not a sex object.

Says Joy Beber of Beber, Silerstein and Partner: "She's got diving equipment. She's a participator. She's not an object. The implication is that she's doing her thing, which is diving. This is quite different."

Miami tourism officials say the poster is not exploitative of women. The poster is "thought-provoking and provocative — I guess I'd better watch what I say," said Peter Weiner, an assistant to County Manager Merrett Stierheim.

OFFICER SUSPENDED

NORTH MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A police officer has been suspended for four days for firing three shots at a rooster that was bothering residents with noisy crowing. 'There area a lot of people who couldn't sleep because of the bird," said Officer Al Sturtz, who said Thursday he first tried to lasso the rooster. "I ran after the rooter for mre than 20 minutes before I decided I'd better try something else."

Demand For Smaller Plants On Increase

By AL HILLIARD
Texas Certified Nursery Man

However impossible your drainage situation; however awful your existing soil, you can always use container plants. Here you can concentrate your energies and attention on a few high quality plants under perfectly controlled soil and watering conditions. And they have the virtue of mobility. This means when cold weather attacks you can bring the most tender of them inside. The deciduous plants or winter-drab types can be set in the garage or other freeze-free area until spring. And if you change your address, you can take your investment in greenery along to the new place.

Whether you plant in containers or in the ground, there are many year round evergreen shrubs suitable for sun or shade or both. And as costly space-for-living and recreation has shrunk, the demand for smaller plants has increased.

Dwarfed varieties available are numerous and attractive. Often we will find room for several lines of compact shrubs even in a bed two feet wide. Against a wall or fence, a medium compact may be pruned into a flat plane and tied.

Vines are essentially flattened or space-saving plants when stretched along a fence or guided up a wall with simple tacks or adhesive fasteners. They give a lot of foliage, and flowers too, without taking up deep space above or below ground. Among the flowering evergreen types there are the honeysuckle, Carolina jasmine (yellow flower), primrose jasmine (also yellow) which becomes a heavy bush eventually, and star jasmine (white flower) which makes an excellent espallier. The Lady Banksia rose is a fine old evergreen (small yellow flower) that will crawl along fence tops or stand as a rather large bush unless trained otherwise. A fast grower that needs a little protection is the begonia (yellow flowers).

In the shade, the fig ivy with its small leaf and wondrous convolutions makes interesting foliage designs as it climbs. Then there is the old reliable English ivy and the large leaf Algerian ivy in both green and variegated varieties.

To own some shade in Texas is like money in the bank. It means savings in cooling energy for air conditioning. And the same greenery that cools your sunny walls offers insulation against cold in winter. The deciduous trees have the advantage of letting the winter sun in to warm the dwelling.

Most sun plants will take partial shade and be grateful for it. Others are adapted to heavier shade and thrive in it. The gold dust acuba is such an example which gives a spot of color without benefit of sun and remains winter hardy too. It is easily kept low and compact.

Flowering azalea in one of its dwarf (about knee high average) or semi-dwarf (about waist high average) varieties is good but requires some bed preparation and care.

Another winter-flowering shade-lover is the camellia. The sasanqua is lower, hardier and therefore perhaps a better choice for postage stamp landscaping. Culture is much like the azalea.

Aralia sieboldi is a larger shade-lover which would be a good choice for a shady patio corner. It is a tropical, large, decorative-leaf tropical, hardy in winter. The Philodendrom selloum gets even bigger with its large, split-leaf foliage, but will drop its leaves in a sharp freeze. Both can be used indoors.

An interesting variation of the Aralia sieboldi is the Fatsheiera, a hybrid of the English ivy and the aralia. It takes zero degree weather and deep shade. So if you need a luxuriant, vine-like tropical to run up a wall, to be espalliered, to hide utility meters or whatever, here's a dandy.

Think of ferns for a shady area, especially along a foundation which is moist and cool. A shade ground cover could be ivy with several variations. Ajuga sports a blue flower in spring and its runners produces spreading plantlets. It makes a nice edging with its plantlets dangling over the side.

Aspidistra, or cast iron plant, thrives in deep shade and provides a lush dark green backdrop.

The above hardy-shade evergreens are great for low maintenance. But if you are willing to work a bit with bedding plants for the bonus of seasonal flowers, consider sultana, salvia and begonia. For colored leaves take a look at coleus and caladium.

Next month this column will discuss sun hardy patio plants.

Beavers May Be Cause Of New Health Hazard

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Pennsylvania, plagued by a variety of unusual health hazards in recent years, is contending with yet another menace — this one possibly caused by beavers.

Beaver droppings "are a prime suspect" in water contamination that has sickened 110 persons and has 17,000 residents boiling drinking water in northwestern Pennsylvania, state health officials said Friday.

Residents have been hit with abdominal cramps, weight loss and "diarrhea that may last from one day to three weeks," said Bradford city manager Pat Nuzzo. The disorder first was reported a week ago in Bradford and surrounding McKean County.

"I was really taken aback when they said beavers might be doing it," he said.

The disorder can be successfully treated with drugs and is not life-threatening unless it goes untreated or aggravates a pre-existing health problem, authorities said. In some cases, victims have been hospitalized for brief periods.

The real culprit is a waterborne parasite called giardiasis. Authorities believe that the one-celled protozoa can be carried by beaver droppings.

"They'll be live-trapped and tested for the parasite," said David Milne, spokesman for the state Department of Environmental Resources. "Beaver dung is one of the common vehicles for transporting this thing."

If the beavers are determined to be a health menance, more of them may be live-trapped and transported elsewhere. Beavers had become virtually extinct in Pennsylvania before 1917 when two were brought into the state from Wisconsin.

In the meantime, all that can be done is a doubling of the chlorine used to purify the drinking water, said Nuzzo.

"There isn't any panic," he said. "We hope everyone is boiling their water, but you know how some people are. They say, 'We've been drinking this water for 50 years, and we'll keep on drinking it.'"

It is the latest in a series of health problems that have occurred in the state.

Legionnaies' disease got its name after an outbreak of the disease killed 29 people in Philadelphia in 1976.

Eight people were struck by a rare outbreak of polio in Pennsylvania earlier this year, and since January, five people were killed and three others sickened by a new strain of pneumonia in Pittsburgh.

Cyanide deposits were discovered a week ago in an abandoned mine shaft in northeastern Pennsylvania, where the poisonous chemical had been dumped illegally. And it was in central Pennsylvania that the Three Mile Island nuclear accident occurred in March. There have been no reported illnesses caused by either the cyanide or radiation.

Women Point Out 'Kissing Bandit'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police say a 26-year-old man was picked up after several of the women looked over a selection of photographs and pointed him out as the "kissing bandit" who pulled a gun on them and demanded a kiss.

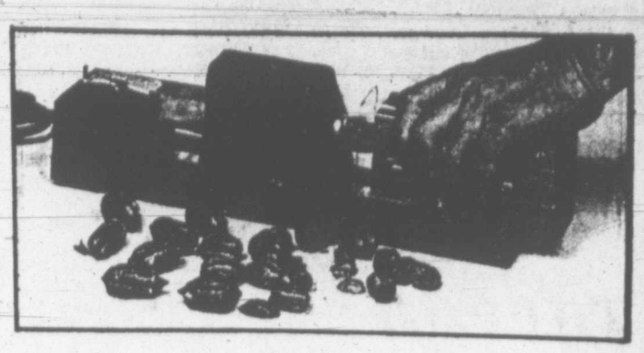

Eb Simmons was booked Thursday on three counts of aggravated assault and three counts of aggravated battery and held in lieu of $37,500 bond, police said.

Police said officers also arrested a second man accused of breaking into a home and kissing a woman who bit his tongue and sent him fleeing. He was identified as John Lee Harris, 25, and was booked on a charge of aggravated burglary.

KLAN ACCUSATIONS

DECATUR, Ala. (AP) — A Ku Klux Klan leader has charged a black civil rights group with negligence in its May 26 demonstration in which he and three other people were wounded by gunfire. David Kelso, 24, said in a $750,000 damage suit filed Thursday that the Southern Christian Leadership Conference failed to properly supervise the march. Gunfire erupted as some 50 black marchers encountered a large group of Klansmen.

Need For Will To Be Discussed

The evening service will begin at 7 p.m. and Oliver will speak following the worship service on "Where There's A Will There's A Way."

Oliver will speak on the need for a will, even for those who feel their possessions are too few to warrant one. He will use slides to illustrate his message and will speak of the consequences and difficulties of not having a will, and of appropriate ways to give to charities and other organizations.

While in this area, Oliver will make similar presentations at other Orthodox Presbyterian churches.

Oliver also serves as director of development and public relations of Westminster Theological Seminary in Philadelphia.

Services To Honor Ministers

Methodist ministers of the Northwest Texas Conference will be honored Sunday in special services in local churches throughout the area.

According to the Texas "Methodist," many local church pulpits will be filled by retired ministers in an effort to increase awareness of the pension program of the Annual Conference as well as recognizing the retired ministers for their dedicated service.

Bishop Alsie H. Carleton, presiding Bishop of the Northwest Texas-New Mexico Area, said, "We are extremely grateful for the dedicated ministers and wives who have served so effectively through the years and are now retired. Let us continue to show our gratitude by observing Retired Ministers Sunday in each local church in honor of those who have contributed so much to the Conference, and to recoganize the responsibility of the Church for their support."

Vesper Concert Series Begins Season Sunday

"King David," a symphonic Psalm, will be presented as the first of this season's Vesper Concert Series at First Methodist Church Sunday at 7 p.m.

The work will feature the 80-voice Chancel Choir of the Church with soloists and instrumentalists. The performance, in the sanctuary, is open to the public; a free-will offering will be received.

The story of the life of King David has been set to music by the contemporary French composer Arthur Honegger. Beginning with David's life as a shepherd boy, the story includes the slaying of Goliath, David's conflict with Saul, and David's eventual crowning as king. Told in dramatic narrative form, this presentation will feature Harlan Reddell as the narrator and Ann Alford as the Witch of Endor.

Featured soloists will be Jeff Bennett, son of Dr. and Mrs. Mike Bennett, as the boy soprano. The tenor soloist will be John Priddy and the mezzo-soprano parts will be sung by Cindy Garrett. The part of the angel will be sung by Helen Dewey Reikofski. Gordon McMillan, organist-choirmaster of the church, will conduct the work, which will be accompanied by Clinton Barrick, organist, and Myra McNeil, pianist. Other instrumentalists include Rhonda Smith, Eric Schmidt, David Fortenberry, Cindy Davis, Laura Richards, and David Thompson.

One of the major sections of the work is titled "The Dance Before the Ark," with Richard Ayers as solo dancer and choreography by Suzanne Aker.

Future events of First Methodist's Vesper Series include Brahms' "Requiem," Handel's "Judas Maccabaeus," and a performance by the world-famous Roger Wagner Chorale. For further information on the series, interested persons should call the church music office, 763-4607.

Sunday has been designated loyalty day. The 11 a.m. worship service will include the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, renewal of membership vows, and dedication of 1980 pledges. Before his appointment to the McCormick faculty, he served as assistant pastor of the First Congregational Church, Wallingsford, Conn., professor and chaplain at the University of Tulsa, and pastor of First United Presbyterian Church of San Angelo.

Revival services are continuing at Bethel Assembly of God, 36th Street and Avenue K, with evangelist Doug Chambers of Tulsa preaching and providing music. Services will be held today and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday at 10:45 a.m. and 6:30 p.m.

SOME KINDA MUZZLE — Tom Stevens of 2103 10th St. pulled an old party trick on his dog, Kato, but in this case, the old lampshade-over-the-head routine is for Kato's own good. The dog injured a leg recently, so Stevens placed the unorthodox muzzle on him to keep him from biting and further injuring himself. As for Kato, he's the hit of the neighborhood. Disciples Of Christ Assembly Closes

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The five-day general assembly of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) ended this week amid grumbling by some delegates that the general board had defused controversial questions before they were voted on.

The assembly's 8,500 delegates considered 62 business items and all were acted on exactly as the 200-member general board had recommended.

"There is a danger in becoming a managed denomination," said the Rev. Charles Bayer of St. Joseph, Mo.

The general board screened all proposals and made recommendations several months before the assembly convened last week.

Some delegates within the 1.2 million-member church said they believed the assembly was rubber-stamping "watered down" proposals of the board.

The Lighthouse Principle

Maybe few of us landlubbers ever thought about it, but those graceful old lighthouses were built on a firm and logical principle.

They assumed their light would be seen and understood. In fog ships did not see the light and many foundered on the shoals. Occasionally captains mistook the light for that of another vessel and sailing across its bow or stern they came to grief upon the rocks. Yet despite hazards of nature and blunders of man, lighthouses became the landmarks of our coasts.

Whenever in your travels, work or play, you see a church think of it as a lighthouse. Its gleam may not reach every soul. But it's there for those who see and understand.

Bionic Replacement May Aid Conductor Who Lost Hand

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Ernest Maino feels his new bionic hand will work pretty well once technicians get the bugs ironed out — well enough even to go fishing again. Maino, 46, a freight train conductor from Susquehanna, Pa., lost his right hand last March when it was crushed in a coupler.

In an 11-hour operation, doctors in New York reattached the hand using microsurgical techniques, but it became puffy and without feeling.

"The other one was useless and I thought anything would be an improvement," Maino, a father of seven, said from his hospital bed Thursday. "Nobody wants to lose a hand, but anything was an improvement over my real one."

Saturday, Dr. James M. Hunter, 55, a specialist at Philadelphia's Thomas Jefferson University Hospital, led a team of surgeons in amputating Maino's hand and replacing it with a new myoelectric one that runs on rechargeable batteries.

"It is probably the most advanced hand in the world," explained Hunter in an interview. "The hand looks cosmetic and has skin tone. I think he feels good about it."

Maino said, "I think if we ever get it working it will be a very good thing. There are some technical problems — Some bugs to be ironed out. I think I will like it."

Hunter said the two-position $3,000 myoelectric hand was developed by the Veterans Administration using space-age technology and a micromotor that has both high torque and high speed, which allows the patient to grasp and hold onto objects more effectively than previously developed motorized hands.

It is covered with a skincolored polyethylene glove and opens and closes when the wearer flexes muscles in his forearm.

"He can pick up a glass of water," said Hunter. "But since there is no feeling he can actually fracture the glass if he lets the motor torque too much. He will have to learn to control torque by listening carefully to the motor noise and also use visual clues."

"My big thing now is to get it working properly so I can go fishing next spring," Maino said.

The first president's widow to serve the federal government in an executive capacity was Eleanor Roosevelt, who was appointed on Dec. 19, 1945, by President Truman to the U.S. delegation to the U.N. General Assembly.

Companies Dragging Feet In Paying Suppliers

By KRISTIN GOFF

NEW YORK (AP) — With interest rates soaring to record levels, more and more companies are dragging their feet in paying suppliers for their shipments.

In many cases, experts say, it isn't a matter of not having the money to pay for what they ordered. It's the lure of high yielding investments in the money markets that make the corporate treasurer andparticulaly reluctant to part with his dollar.

"One of the easiest ways to preserve capital is to delay paying bills, and we've seen it increase tremendously in the last four or five months," said John Gordana, whose New Jersey-based Equitable Adjustment Services Inc. goes after dawdlering debtors to such firms as General Electric, Warner Lambert and American Cyanamid.

Adds a credit manager for an East Coast supplier, "to drag one's feet is almost a profitable thing to do," at today's high interest rates.

Treasurers of some big companies regularly keep funds to cover bills in short-term investments until they are needed. But with interest rates on some common investments returning 14 percent, even short delays can be lucrative.

Other companies might normally borrow to pay for their orders and plan to repay the money when they sell the supplies to their customers. But they can cut interest costs by delaying taking out a loan.

The problems of slow payment and non-payment are recurring ones in the corporate world. In normal times, manufacturers use incentives, such as discounts of 2 to 3 percent on the cost of orders to encourage timely payments.

But, since late last year, when interest rates began creeping up, discounts have looked less and less attractive. Now with loan rates for the most credit worthy companies at about 15 percent, such discounts offer little incentive to pay quickly, said Cooke O'Neal of the National Credit Management Association.

For instance, a company with a few hundred thousands of dollars in bills coming due, is not likely to pay any earlier than necessary when it can earn more than 14 percent in interest on commercial paper, a common type of short-term investment.

But, experts say, real problems are also developing for some types of businesses that operate on relatively low profit margins and routinely borrow to cover inventory costs.

Some small retailers, who are in the process of accmulating goods for the peak Christmas season are worried about being caught in a such a bind this year. While friendly suppliers in the past were willing to grant extensions, sometimes of 30 to 60 days, for payment until holiday sales began rolling in, fewer appear willing to do so this year.

Suppliers and factoring companies — a type of financial middleman who buys billings from suppliers and collects from retailers — are in some cases demanding payment on delivery because it is increasingly expensive to carry debt.

The prime rate, the interest rate banks charge their most creditworthy business customers, has leaped from 11.5 percent only four months ago to around 15 percent now. But companies with less than primecredit ratings may have to pay 16 to 20 percent to borrow.

There is no reliable way to tell how many companies are putting off bill collectors because they are in serious financial trouble or because they could pay but won't. But credit managers and collection agencies sense both in rising level of unpaid commercial bills.

The Commercial Law League of America, which collects statistics from the 51 largest commercial collection agencies in the country, reports the surveys in the first three quarters indicate the number of accounts turned over for collection this year will total $1.06 billion, up 24 percent from last year.

At Dun & Bradstreet, the nation's largest commercial collection agency, Frank Uhlman said the volume of business in October was running about 20 percent higher than the same month in 1978. And, increasingly, names of "well known and financially responsible" firms are showing up on Dun & Bradstreet's collection lists, he said.

While Uhlman doesn't yet see the situation as severe as the last recession, the trends of sharply increasing unpaid bills appear "frighteningly similar," he said.

Not everyone is experiencing serious collection problems but most big firms appear to be keeping a sharper eye on their accounts.

"We have held up extremely well in accounts receivable turnover," said Raymond Maguire, assistant treasurer for credit at Champion International Corp., a building products and paper company.

But he adds: "We expect to begin to come under pressure to hold the line because of a tug of war for the dollar" between debtors and creditors.

Such concern is apparently widespread. The National Association of Credit Management, which each quarter asks its 200 corporate management members for their opinions on industry trends in the next six months, found a decidedly gloomy outlook in its poll last month.

The survey showed a record 70 percent of credit managers expected debtors to take longer to pay their bills. That's up sharply from 58 percent making that prediction in July.

At the same time, 60 percent expected an increase in the number of accounts that would be turned over to collection agencies. That was up from 49 percent last July, and was the most pessimistic outlook since the middle of the last recession. In January of 1975, 78 percent of those surveyed predicted an increase in accounts sent to collection agencies.

Far more credit managers also see an increase in business bankruptcies in the months ahead. The survey found 65 percent expected more businesses to declare bankruptcies in the next six months, compared with 53 percent who said that in the July quarter survey.

Man Gets Army Metal 34 Years After Approval

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A retired accountant and the Army squared things Friday, when the Army presented a medal it promised Norman Wurtz more than three decades ago.

Lt. Col. Larry E. Burchell, commander of the Army's Niagara Falls recruiting district, gave Wurtz, 71, the Bronze Star.

The medal, one of the Army's highest honors, was promised 34 years earlier for Wurtz's "diligent study, tireless effort and uncompromising determination" as the chief clerk of a finance office in Italy between November 1944 and May 1945.

The quiet ceremony was held in a recruiting office near a bowling alley in suburban Cheektowaga.

Wurtz said Army officials had offered him something more fancy, but he had turned them down.

"They wanted to know if I'd like to come to Fort Devens (Mass.)," he said. "There'd be a lot of fanfare. A band would come out. They'd stand with the colors, and someone would come out and sing the Star Spangled Banner — that sort of thing," he said.

"I thanked them and said no, I didn't want to go to Boston, and couldn't it be done in Buffalo?" Besides, he added, "I just thought that was overdoing it a little bit, after 34½ years of waiting."

Wurtz worked in the Naples office administering Lend Lease assistance.

"When the time came for me to go home, my colonel gave me photostatic copies showing I had been recommended for a Bronze Star in May 1945 (and) it had been approved," he said.

"In December 1945 (after his arrival home) I got a card from the Adjutant General's office in Washington, saying they were working on my Bronze Star records, and I would be hearing from them."

Wurtz said he put the card away in a box and went out to get a job. He never heard from the office again.

Thirty-three years later — in September last year — Wurtz discovered the card while going through his records. He decided the time had come to get medal.

Writing to the Washington office, he got his first reply three months later from an office in St. Louis. The correspondence continued with offices in Alexandria, Va., Ft. Devens, Mass., and finally a military base at Niagara Falls.

"When they do things in the Army, they do it the long way," he observed.

BOSTON VIOLENCE UP

BOSTON (AP) — Violence against women in Boston is on the rise this year, according to city police department murder and rape statistics. Women now account for a larger portion of Boston's murder rate than in rising.

Raiders' Kong Meets Bevo's Defense

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

An excited and confident Texas Tech football team, fresh and healthy following an idle weekend, challenges one of college football's most talented and statistically sound defenses today at 2 p.m. in Austin's Memorial Stadium.

That defense belongs to the University of Texas Longhorns and it has allowed only 48 points over the course of six games this season. In a word, that defense is awesome.

The Longhorns are currently ranked eighth among the nation's finest collegiate football squads. Texas is 5-1 overall and 2-1 in Southwest Conference action. UT's lone defeat came two weekends ago at the hands of the Arkansas Razorbacks. The 'Horns bounced back last week against Southern Methodist and posted an easy 30-6 victory.

So far, it's been up one week and down the next for the Red Raiders. Tech is 3-3-1 on the year and 2-2 in conference play following a 30-7 romp over Rice two weeks back. The Red Raiders have not been able to win on consecutive Saturdays in 1979. They would like to cure that ill Saturday in the capital city.

Texas holds a commanding 23-5 edge against the Raiders in the series that began back in 1928. The last time Tech defeated UT was in 1976 when the Red Raiders nipped the 'Horns 31-28 in Lubbock. The 'Horns won in 1977 26-0 and again last season 24-6.

But it will take more than just excitement and confidence to crack the Longhorn defense. It will take precise execution and precious few mistakes on the part of the Red Raider offense. Tech head coach Rex Dockery has been preaching to his players all week long — "You can't make mistakes and expect to beat Texas."

Tech's offensive unit cannot turn the football over and it must take advantage of field position if and when it is available. The Red Raider defense will be trying to squeeze the football from the Longhorns' often-inconsistent offense, but UT has only turned the ball over 10 times this season.

Texas' defense is the game's focal point and for good reason. That defense has allowed only 165.3 yards total offense a game this season, which is the second lowest number of yards among NCAA schools. The 'Horns have given up 71 yards per game passing and 94.3 yards rushing.

Dockery believes the strength of the UT defensive unit lies in tackles Steve McMichael and Bill Acker, a pair of 6-3, 255-pound seniors who do just about everything that tackles are suppose to and do it very well.

McMichael leads his team in tackles with 72 and Acker ranks third in stops. They are flanked by a pair of outstanding senior ends, 6-3, 240-pound Henry Williams and 6-4, 235-pound Ron Bones.

Linebackers Chuck Holloway, Doug Shankle and Robin Sendlein do a more-than-adequate job. And the secondary, which consists of cornerbacks Vance Bedford and Derrick Hatchett and safeties Johnnie Johnson and Ricky Churchman, is as good as anyone's.

Johnson is already an All-American

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Jack Quarles wouldn't come right out and say it, but obviously the Coronado coach was upset. His crimson ears gave him away.

Asked his impression after Monterey's 24-8 high school football win, Quarles commented: "I thought we played pretty well, considering..."

"Considering what," he was asked?

"You got eyes, you can see," snapped Quarles.

Although Quarles didn't come right out and say it, the 12 Monterey penalties (the majority of which were personal foul calls) that resulted in 121 yards worth of walkoffs was the reason he was upset.

Elbows were thrown more often than passes, by both teams.

Meanwhile, James Odom was in the process of setting a speed record for getting out of Dodge.

Both teams dispensed with the usual post-game, school-hymn singing, got on the awaiting buses and headed to their home turfs. It was if the plague had set in at Lowrey Field.

The win by the Plainsmen was their 10th straight over Coronado. But more important, it clinched at least a tie for the District 4-AAAA championship. To capture the title outright, Monterey, now 3-0 in conference play and 8-1 overall, must defeat Hereford in two weeks.

But there's always that if involved, too.

If Monterey should lose to Hereford; and if Coronado should win its last two games over Plainview and Hereford; then the loop race would end in a tie.

But Friday night no one was thinking that far in advance — at least until after the game was over.

Monterey struck first on a 35-yard field goal by sophomore kicker Darron White with 4:05 left in the initial period. The Plainsmen, starting from their own 40, drove down to the 18 before the 11-play march bogged down. MHS head coach James Odom called on the sure-footed — rather bare-footed — White who drilled the ball perfectly through the uprights.

Coronado's Ricky Melvin tried to tie the score at 3-3 with 11:14 left in the second period on a 37-yard attempt, but the kick was well short of its mark.

A few minutes and a fumble recovery later, quarterback Kent Potts nailed end Joe Cockrell on a 36-yard strike, moving the ball down to the 9.

At that point, runningback Willie Johnson took a quick pitch from Potts and skirted around right end for Monterey's first TD of the half and upping the Plainsmen's lead to 10-0.

The drive had been set up when White hopped on a Noel Madrano fumble on the 45.

Westerners Nudge Hereford 7-6

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

HEREFORD — It was a game that featured everything. Everything but scoring that is.

But what else could you expect when Army's Army tangled with the Hereford Herd?

Friday night's Lubbock High-Hereford contest featured plays like this: a 58-yard field goal attempt that fell at least 37 yards short, a fake punt that didn't work, a fake field goal that was good for a minus 15 yards, a flea-flicker pass that bounced off two defenders hands for a 36-yard gain and a bobbled extra point snap that finally cost Hereford the game.

But when it was all finally over, when Hereford's 37-yard field goal attempt with no time remaining on the clock fell helplessly short, the Lubbock High Westerners had somehow salvaged a 7-6 victory.

The win leaves LHS 2-6 on the year and 1-2 in District 4-AAAA play. And Hereford also dropped to 1-2 in loop play and 4-3 on the year.

"I'm real excited for my kids," said Lubbock High coach Army Salinas after the game. "They've worked too hard and too long not to get a win like this."

But despite all the craziness on the field, it looked like nobody really wanted to win. After three quarters the score was still 0-0 and the game looked like a repeat of last year's snore-off when these same two teams battled to a scoreless tie at Lowrey Field.

But Salinas didn't think so.

"No, I don't think that was the case," he said. "It was just that everybody was trying too hard. Both teams moved the ball, but it seemed like we stymied each other down close to the goal."

Hereford scored first as the Whitefaces moved 67 yards in 11 plays. The big play looked like something right out of the funny pages.

Ector Streaks Past Mustangs 26-6

ODESSA (Special) — Ector raced to a 26-0 thrid quarter lead and went on to defeat Andrews 26-6 here Friday night in a district 2-AAA game.

The loss was Andrews' second in district play after the Mustangs posted a 7-0 non-district mark, knocking them out of the running for the district championship.

Ector's first-period scores came on a 38-yard punt return by Willie Joe and a 13-yard run by James Ricks. In the third quarter Ector had scores by Edward Williams, who took a 25-yard pass from Bruce McCowan and a 14-yard interception return by Williams.

Borger Blasts Dumas

BORGER (Special) — Borger zipped to a 27-0 halftime lead and coasted to a 39-8 victory over Dumas in a district 4-AAA game here Friday night.

Fullback Sedrick Love led five Borger backs who took part in the Bulldogs' touchdown parade as he scored long range touchdowns of 63 and 80 yards on runs.

Other touchdowns came on a 68-yard pass to Jeff Forrest, a 42-yard run by Bryan Foster; a 32-yard run by Doug Washburn and a 52-yard run by Mike Meek.

Roby's Stuart Engineers Win

ROBY (Special) — Roby fullback Britt Stuart rushed for 167 yards and scored three touchdowns as he led the Lions to a 27-20 victory over the Loraine Bulldogs in District 3-B East Zone action.

Loraine quarterback Casey Merket had a good night although his team lost, throwing three touchdown passes and completing passes for 266 yards.

Loraine is 3-6 for the season and 0-4 in District. Roby is 3-6 for the year and 2-2 in district.

In the first quarter, Sturt ran for his first touchdown for the Lions and Merket threw a 21-yard touchdown pass to end Frank Sancz for the Bulldogs.

San Angelo, Abilene Battle To 14-14 Tie

ABILENE (Special) — Glenn Payne scored from 1-yard out and Ray Fields added the PAT kick with time running out to enable the San Angelo Bobcats to tie Abilene High 14-14 in a District 5-AAAA matchup Friday night.

Central is now 2-4-1 for the year, while Abilene is 3-4-1 for the year and 2-2-1 in loop play.

Both teams scored in the second period. San Angelo got on the board first on a short dive by Doug Dewitt. Fields kicked. Then Randy Williams scored on a 5-yard pass from Loyal Proffitt and Williams kicked to tie the game at 7-7.

points on the board with no time left on the clock but Melvin was unable to connected on a 27-yard field goal try. The Ponies, now 5-3 overall and 1-1 in loop action, took over at the 40 with seven seconds left before the break. A 25-yard pass interference penalty and a motion call both against the Plainsmen moved the ball into scoring position, but all for naught.

The closest Coronado came to Monterey all night occured after quarterback Alan Harp hit end Jack Lord on a perfectly thrown four-yard TD toss. Lord, who had run a flag pattern, caught the ball and fell into the end zone. On the try for two points, again Harp hit Lord in front of defensive back Marty Bubany, cutting the MHS lead to two points, 10-8.

After that, the Monterey defense stiffened considerably and Coronado never really threatened again.

A 25-yard gallop by Johnson and a 35-yard TD pass from Harp to Cockrell gave the Plainsmen a little extra breathing room. White added both PAT kicks, helping Monterey to the 16-point margin of victory.

Going into the important contest, Quarles had said the Ponies must stop Johnson if they hoped to win.

They didn't.

Johnson carried the ball 20 times for 137 yards and the two scores. The remainder the the Monterey backs had 20 carries, too, but for only 52 total yards. Potts was MHS' second-leading runner with 18 yards on 9 tries. Johnson has 1,309 yards for the year.

What Monterey, well Potts, managed to do against Coronado was pass the ball. He hit five-of-nine passes for 118 yards. Cockrell was Potts' primary receiver, catching four for 107 yards.

Monterey rolled up 205 yards on the ground which was well under its second average of 351.8. However, the Plainsmen defense limited CHS to 93 yards on the ground and 40 through the air for a total of 133 yards.

The contest, viewed by well over 4,000 fans, was mared by the personal foul penalties time and time again.

But going into the game, everybody realized it was a football game diguised as a free-for-all.

Lubbock High Comeback Nets 7-6 Victory Over Hereford

ed off to Joe Mitchum who turned and lateraled back to the QB. Dirks then sent up a weather balloon that looked like a sure interception, but after bouncing through a couple of LHS defenders, the ball came down to Hereford's wide receiver Felix Solis.

That play, the first of the fourth period, covered 36 yards and set the Herd up in business at the LHS 14. Five plays later, Joe Walker swept wide for a four-yard touchdown gallop.

But, as had been the story all night, things went wrong on the extra point conversion. The snap from center was low and the Hereford kicker never had a chance to put his toe into the ball.

Still the Herd led 6-0 and it looked like that might be good enough.

But Lubbock High took the ensuing kickoff and marched 79 yards on 14 yards for the go-ahead TD. There was nothing fancy about the LHS drive, just lots of hardnosed running by backs Tino Chapa, Thomas Romero and quarterback Gilbert Cuevas.

Then Johnnie Johnson, who'd been hampered by a sore ankle, took a wide pitch and scooted around the left side for a 28-yard gainer to give the Westerners a first and goal at the HHS three.

It took three more plays but Chapa finally burst over to tie the contest. Quarterback Cuevas connected on the extra point kick and LHS led 7-6 with 3:21 left in the game. And that's when the fun really started.

Lubbock safety Larry Walker intercepted an Alan Wartes pass on the next series and returned it 12 yards to the Herd 26. The Westerners could get as far as the 18 before they came up against a fourth-and-12.

The Westerners lined up to try what would have been a 36-yard field goal but the snap went not to the holder Larry Walker, but to the kicker Cuevas. And nobody looked more surprised than Cuevas.

The ball bounced off his chest and by the time he fell on it, he was back on the 38 yard line.

They got as far as the 45-yard line, but were forced to use their last time out in the process. Then, with 11 seconds left, Dirks lofted a pass that Dan Delozier came up with at the Lubbock 19. When Delozier hit the ground there were two seconds remaining on the clock.

Somehow Hereford managed to get off a last-ditch field goal attempt, but it fell way short.

"Don't ask me what happened on that last play (Lubbock's field goal attempt)," said Salinas. "We liked to had a cardiac arrest. Larry Walker called the play but it was so loud down there that Gilbert didn't know it."

"But I should have called a time out and gone over the play with the kids."

Hereford's Joe Mitchem led all rushers as he gained 77 yards on 21 carries. The Westerners were led by Romero with 52 yards on 18 carries and Chapa with 48 yards on 11 carries.

Portales Wins On Long Run

LOVINGTON, N.M. (Special) — Halfback Ron Stockton sprinted 65 yards for a touchdown with 8:15 left to play to give Portales a 21-14 victory over Lovington here Friday night.

The Rams are 7-1 for the season and 2-1 in district. Lovington is 5-3 and 0-2.

The Wildcats had taken a 14-7 lead into the fourth period, mainly on the passing of David Bryant who went 14 for 28 for 167 yards and one touchdown. But Portales, held scoreless since the first period when Eddy Poe threw a 37-yard touchdown pass to Randy Eakins, scored twice and got the win.

Abilene Cooper Blasts Steers

BIG SPRING (Special) — Abilene Cooper, the top-ranked Class AAAA team in the state, ran its won-loss record to 8-0 Friday night with an easy 56-0 win over Big Spring in a District 5-AAAA contest.

Abilene scored 21 points in the first period on a 48-yard run by Keith Tantallion, a 66-yard pass from quarterback John Slaughter to fullback Terry Orr and a 15-yard pass from Slaughter to end David Williams. Stuard kicked all eight extra points.

Tech Faces UT's Tough Defense

and Churchman may very well join him this season.

There is a man the Longhorns respect. He is Tech senior fullback James Hadnot, a 6-2, 230-pound baby bull who has gained 928 yards rushing in seven games. Hadnot has been the bread-and-butter man for the Red Raiders offensively this season and he'll be pointed in the general direction of that Orange and White defense today.

"You have to be concerned with an outstanding athlete such as James Hadnot," Texas coach Fred Akers said earlier this week. "He is a fine football player. He is very hard to bring down and can break tackles in the open field."

Akers is also concerned with Tech quarterback Ron Reeves. Reeves has played three straight outstanding games despite being injured and the Red Raiders have won two of them.

"Ron Reeves also presents problems for us," Akers added. "He is different from most quarterbacks we've faced this year because not only is he a strong runner, but he is also a strong passer."

The Jones boys are Texas' game-breakers. Lam Jones possesses 9.3 speed and can burn a team any time he touches the football. Jam Jones is the second leading rusher in the SWC with 122.6 yards per contest this season.

The kicking game also promises to weigh heavily on the outcome of Saturday's matchup. Tech has sure-footed senior placekicker Bill Adams and sophomore punter Maury Buford to call on. The Longhorns have a new star in sophomore John Goodson.

Goodson has booted 15 of 22 field goal tries and nine of 12 extra points. Adams has hit all eight of his PATs and 12 of 15 field goal attempts. Buford is the conference's second-leading punter with a 43.5 yard average.

Texas has been made a 14-point favorite, but Akers doesn't expect his squad to take the game lightly.

"Anyone who knows anything about football wouldn't look past Texas Tech," Akers stated. "We've learned through past experiences with Tech that this will be one of the most physical games we play all year. This football game is the biggest game of the year for us because we already have one loss. We can't afford another."

Manis Guides LCHS Win

GREENWOOD (Special) — Lubbock Christian High School, guided by the passing quarterback Bryan Manis, whipped the Greenwood Rangers, 25-7, in Texas Association of Private Schools football action.

The Eagles are 6-2 for the year, while Greenwood is 5-3.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Eagles scored halfway through the second quarter when Manis threw a 14-yard touchdown pass to split end Randy Stumbo. Tailback Jeff Lott scored on a 13-yard run with three minutes left in the half, to put the Eagles ahead 12-0.

In the third quarter, Manis threw an 11-yard scoring strike to flanker Shawn Williams.

Cotton Center Elks Whip Grady 47-32

The victory gave the Elks an unblemished 8-0 record while Grady dropped to 4-3-1.

Stan Johnson led the Cotton Center attack five touchdowns — on runs of 6, 7, 23, 35 and 51 yards. Other Cotton Center scores came on a 40-yard run by Mandy Martinez and a 63-yard touchdown pass to Jimmy Sageser.

All of Grady's points came in the fourth quarter after the Elks had built up a 41-0 lead.

Ronald Chee scored two touchdowns — one on a 70-yard kickoff return and on a 52-yard pass, while Leandro Gonzales scored on a 3-yard pass and Alfonso Cortez on a 19-yard pass. Larry Key also had a 4-yard run for Grady.

Summers Leads Jal Past Cardinals

JAL,N.M. (Special) — Halfback Craig Summers scored two touchdowns to lead Jal to a 21-7 win over Eunice in a New Mexico District 4-AA contest Friday night.

Eunice is now 5-4 for the year, Jal 6-3.

Tahoka's Ground Attack Rolls Over Tigers 49-7

TAHOKA (Special) — The Tahoka Bulldogs used an awesome ground attack here Friday night, rolling up 357 yards with three players topping the 100-yard mark in ripping District 5-AA foe Frenship 49-7.

Tracy White, Todd Brown and Clifford Oages proved to be too much for the Tigers to handle. White led the rushing parade with 110 yards on 17 carries, giving the Bulldog running back 1,088 yards for the season. But White and Brown were close behind with 108 and 105 yards, respectively.

That trio also provided the bulk of the scoring for Tahoka, which upped its season record to 6-2. White picked up four TDs during the night, two coming on pass interceptions. Brown ran for two tallies and Oages returned a punt for one score and threw for another.

White opened the scoring for Tahoka on a 17-yard run in the first quarter, then Brown went 8 yards in the second as Kevin Elmore booted the PAT to give Tahoka a 13-0 lead.

Frenship, which fell to 3-5 for the year, got its only score in the second quarter on a 30-yard run by John Johnson. Steve Bradford booted the PAT.

In the third quarter, White intercepted a Frenship pass and returned it 31 yards for a TD to boost Tahoka to a 19-7 lead. Then, Oages sprinted 73 yards on a punt return and Elmore added the PAT.

In the fourth stanza, White intercepted again, this time in the end zone,and went the length of the field, going 102 yards for the score. Elmore's kick made it 33-7.

Brown followed that with a 39 yard TD run with White throwing to Oages for the extras.

Oages then hit White on a 23-yard scoring pass. That duo traded jobs on the conversion with White throwing to Oages for the two points.

Both teams picked up 16 first downs, but Frenship had only 107 yards to Tahoka's 357. The Tigers had 97 yards passing to Tahoka's 26.

Mustangs Score Late In Game To Sneak By O'Donnell 15-14

O'DONNELL (Special) — Quarterback Neil Luck scored on a two-point conversion after a Rufino Maldanado touchdown run with 3:39 left in the game to give the Shallowater Mustangs an electrifying 15-14 victory over O'Donnell in District 5-A action here Friday night.

In a game which Shallowater trailed for the majority of the time O'Donnell nearly overcame five lost fumbles to take the victory.

But O'Donnell came right back when defensive tackle John Gass blocked a Shallowater punt with 2:55 left in the first quarter. Defensive end Tommy Knight picked up the ball and rambled 45 yards for the touchdown. The kick failed allowing Shallowater to hold a 7-6 lead.

Shallowater did not keep the lead long as quarterback Stanley Forbes tossed a 9-yard touchdown pass to Gass, who doubled as a tight end. Halfback Johnny Jackson ran in the two-point conversion to give O'Donnell a 14-7 lead, a lead the Eagles would hold for most of the game.

But Shallowater kept their best for last as Maldanado scored on a 2-yard run with 3:39 left in the game. All Luck had to do was run in the 2-point conversion to snag the victory away from O'Donnell, who fell to 1-2-2 in district play.

Hornets Blitz Lockney 23-7

TULIA (Special) — Tulia halfback Terrell Roberts scored two touchdowns as the Hornets came from behind to blitz the Lockney Longhorns, 23-7.

Both teams compete in District 4-A. Lockney is 4-4-1 for the season, while Tulia is 3-5.

Lockney scored first on a 28-yard pass play from quarterback Steve Warren to end Kevin Evans with 7:55 left in the first quarter.

The rest of the game was all Tulia. Early in the second quarter, the Hornets got two points when a fumble by Lockney was recovered in the end zone by linebacker Ray Ruiz. With only 38 seconds left in the half, Roberts scored his first touchdown on a 1-yard plunge.

After a scoreless third quarter, Tulia fullback Cal Travis ran 38-yards for a touchdown with seven minutes to go in the game.

Littlefield Pops Friona 48-13

FRIONA (Special) — A 27-point outburst in the third quarter enabled Littlefield to pull away from a one-point edge and the Wildcats went on to thump 3-AA foe Friona 48-13 here Friday night.

Littlefield, now 6-1-1 for the year, held a slim 14-13 halftime margin before Rex Freeman exploded for two touchdowns and Ruben Torres added a third to put the Wildcats in front 41-13 at the end of the third quarter.

Joe McCanic put the first points on the board for Littlefield on a 5-yard run in the first quarter, but Friona came back to tie it in the second quarter as Joel Height latched on to a 20-yard scoring pass from Joe Malouf.

Torres then sprinted 23 yards to paydirt to put Littlefield on top 14-7, but the Chieftains came back again on an 86-yard TD run by Rod Owen. However, the PAT try failed.

Denver City Wins First District Tilt

DENVER CITY (Special) — The Denver City Mustangs picked up their first District 5-AA win here Friday night with a 28-10 verdict over Cooper.

The win put Denver City at 1-4 in district play, while Cooper now stands 0-5.

Cooper quarterback Glenn Burkemper scored on a 1-yard sneak in the third quarter to round out the TDs for the night.

Slaton Tigers Grind Out 22-6 Win Over Roosevelt

Slaton built a 15-0 halftime lead and held on to take a 22-6 district 5-AA victory over Roosevelt here Friday night.

Led by fullback Jesse Titus, who scored two touchdowns, the Tigers rolled for just under 300 yards rushing to take the seemingly easy victory.

Titus bolted 90 yards off tackle for a touchdown in the first quarter to put Slaton out front 6-0.

On the ensuing kickoff Roosevelt tried a reverse, but the exchange was muffed, with a Roosevelt ball carrier being smothered in the end zone by a host of Slaton tacklers.

Slaton upped the margin to 15-0 in the second quarter when quarterback Kevin Johnston scoring from 13 yards out on an option play.

Roosevelt finally got on the scoreboard in the third quarter when tight end Johnny Adkins took an 11-yard pass from quarterback Rex Beck to cap an 80-yard drive. Fullback Junior Vasquez had a couple of crucial first down runs to keep the drive alive. The run for 2 points failed.

Titus put the game out of reach of Roosevelt when he capped a 45-yard drive with a 5-yard run. He also booted 2 extra points.

Slaton racked up 282 yards rushing and added 45 yards passing while Roosevelt had 135 yards rushing and 89 passing.

Improved Mats, Dunbar Tangle Tonight

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Psst — you might want to keep this under your hat — Estacado coach Louis Kelley says that his '79 Matadors may just be a wee bit better than the Estacado team of a year ago.

For Kelley, that's quite a mouthful.

Because for those of you with short memories — Estacado advanced all the way to the Class AAA quarterfinals last year before bowing out to Gainesville.

"I think in certain areas we are a little bit better this year," admitted Kelley on Friday. "We definitely are stronger on defense this year and offensively we're more explosive."

That's hardly the kind of news that the Dunbar Panthers want to hear. Because the Panthers will have the unenviable task of tangling with the Matadors tonight at Lowrey Field.

Kickoff is slated for 7:30 p.m. and Estacado will bring a 6-1 mark and 2-0 district record into the contest while the Panthers are 1-6 and 0-2 in loop play.

"We were more mature last year," added Kelley. "But I think we have more weapons this year, we're not just a tailback oriented team anymore.

"We've been getting a lot of work out of our fullbacks (Alvin Davis, Stacy Burrell and Kelley McBride.)

"Our wingback Preston Davis has also done a good job and so has our quarterback — Jerry Gray. Right there we've got four weapons."

Kelley reported that his Matadors will go to the air more tonight than they did against Borger last week.

"We want to play better than we did last week," said Kelley. "We're winding up district play now, and anytime you play against a school in town ... it's a big game."

The Estacado-Dunbar rivalry is about as fierce as they come in these parts. Since the two teams started playing back in 1968, the Panthers have only come out on top three times.

The last Panther win came in '76 and the two Panther victories prior to that came while, guess who, Louis Kelley was the DHS boss.

"I guess I've been involved in just about every single Estacado-Dunbar game," said Kelley with a laugh, "either as a head coach or an assistant."

And Van Jefferson of Dunbar hasn't missed many of the Panther-Matador battles, either. So he knows what to expect tonight.

"It's going to be a heck of a game," said Jefferson. "They might have a better team but the best team doesn't always win — we're not going to lay down either."

Cowboys Set For Red-Hot Giant Team

By The Associated Press

There was a time when Tom Landry was a coach with the New York Giants — just about the last time the Giants were a team to be feared.

On Sunday, Landry, the only head coach the Dallas Cowboys have known since their birth in 1960, visit the Giants — who are suddenly a team to be feared once again.

As recently as five games ago, the Giants were pushovers in the National Football League. Then Phil Simms, their No.1 draft choice, became their No.1 quarterback — and the team caught fire.

The Giants beat the then-unbeaten Tampa Bay Buccaneers, ripped the San Francisco 49ers, surprised the Kansas City Chiefs and shocked the Los Angeles Rams.

And suddenly the Giants, 4-5, are a team to be reckoned with in the National Conference East. They're two games behind Philadelphia and Washington and three back of the Cowboys — and they believe that on Sunday they'll beat Dallas for the first time in 10 games.

"This will in every way have to be our best effort," said Giants Coach Ray Perkins.

Sunday's other games are Washington at Pittsburgh, Cleveland at Philadelphia, New England at Buffalo, Tampa Bay at Atlanta, Cincinnati at Baltimore, Minnesota at St. Louis, San Diego at Kansas City, Detroit at Chicago, Los Angeles at Seattle, New Orleans at Denver, the New York Jets at Green Bay and San Francisco at Oakland. On Monday night it's Houston at Miami.

"The Giants have done a tremendous job. It's good to see since they're my old team," said Landry, a defensive assistant coach with them before heading west. "They're at a high spirit level and playing with a lot of emotion. They're at the point where they think they can do anything."

And he rates their young blond star highly. "Simms is an unusual rookie, he has a great touch with the ball and has a knack for seeing things," he said. "Simms has the making of a Bradshaw-type quarterback. He's big and strong and can run. I hope he progresses to that point one day."

Landry probably has seen enough of Bradshaw-type quarterbacks for a while. He saw the real thing last Sunday, when Bradshaw and the Pittsburgh Steelers smothered his Cowboys 14-3. It was their lowest point output during the regular season since — you guessed it — the Giants beat them 23-3 on the final day of the 1972 seson (the Cowboys lost to Washington 26-3 two weeks later in the NFL title game).

"I don't think we will have a top level performance against New York," Landry continued.

The Giants players have been talking about Dallas all week, while the Cowboys have been lamenting their performance against the Steelers. Dallas unquestionably has more talent, but New York will have a full house of 76,000 winning football-starved fans behind them.

"A disappointing defeat usually hangs on," Landry said. "To me, it is going to be a very close, tough football game because of it. Not that the Giants are not capable, but if we play as well as we can play, we should win the football game."

"I don't think you can get too high or too psyched for any game," Perkins said. "I think it's a matter of when you do it. If you do it gradually, I think it's probably better.

"I'm just trying to prepare the guys for a football game against the best team we've played," he said.

Brooks Dawson of the University of Texas-El Paso accounted for 304 yards by both passing and rushing in one period of a 1968 football game with Brigham Young.

UNION SWEEPS WESTERN HILLS

Union swept Western Hills in basketball Friday. Union won the boys' game, 39-36. Jeff Shadden led the Western Hills scoring. Union took the girls' game, 34-16. Beth Elliott paced Western Hills with eight points. Both Western Hills teams are 0-2 and will play McAdoo Tuesday.

Wildcats Waltz To 24-6 Victory Over Antelopes

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

ABERNATHY — In the end the difference, as it usually is when two strong teams meet, was mistakes. Abernathy made them, Idalou took advantage of them.

And Idalou rode home in the driver's seat in District 4-AA with a 26-6 win over the Antelopes Friday night.

The win puts the Wildcats at 2-0 in district play with victories over powerhouses Floydada and Abernathy. The Antelopes fell to 2-1 in loop play.

"The way I see it, we play Floydada for second place next week," said AHS coach Larry Aldridge afterwards. "That is, unless somebody, Lockney or Tulia, beats Idalou."

Asked what the chances of that were, Aldridge thought for a moment then replied, "I don't think real good, I think Idalou's real strong."

The Wildcats are not only strong, but opportunistic as well. Leading only 6-0 at the start of the second half, Idalou converted a Tony Heath fumble into a touchdown in one easy play. Scatback Alan Emery took a pitch six yards for the score.

Quarterback Heath, who had completed only five of 15 passes to this point, notched two completions in three plays to cover the distance.

Tight end Willie Betts caught the first, a flag that found him behind the defensive backs at the 16, then end Dean McGuire outran a Wildcat to the corner of the end zone for the touchdown.

Then disaster struck the Antelopes.

After gaining a first down at the 50, AHS was flagged for having 12 men on the field, a 15-yard penalty that carries a loss of down with it. Under heavy pressure on third down, Heath fumbled again. Again Idalou recovered, and again the 'Cats wasted no time converting.

DeBusk again turned the trick, springing 26 yards on first down. He then found Gary Fabila with the point-after pass, lifting the Wildcats clear, 20-6 with 3:36 remaining.

That wasn't enough. On first down, Idalou picked off another Abernathy pass (their third for the night). Eight plays and 58 yards later workhorse running back Ruben Reyes crossed from six yards out.

Reyes gained 148 yards on 27 carries to pace a Wildcat offense that rolled up 280 yards on the ground.

"It wasn't pretty, it wasn't majestic or anything like that, but I'll take it," said Idalou coach Tom Ritchey of the victory.

Abernathy's Aldridge had a similar view. "They just made the big plays when they had to," he said. "And we didn't.

"I don't know what happened on that confusion with 12 men on the field. We had the momentum going and that makes us get in a little bit of a hole.

"I don't know what caused the confusion, we had a guard hurt and two coaches sent players in. That was one too many."

Interception Leads Indians To Win

DIMMITT (Special) — Morton's Indians converted a pass interception by sophomore Jerry Williams and an 87-yard lightning bolt TD run by David Moore into a 13-0 victory over Dimmitt's Bobcats here Friday night to remain undefeated in District 3-AA play.

Morton now stands 5-2-1 for the season, while Dimmit dropped to 2-6 and 1-2.

Williams took an errant Dimmitt pass at the 50-yard line, moved it to the Bobcat 32, and six plays later James Dent took the ball into the end zone from 3 yards out for a 6-0 Morton lead. Then, with just 47 seconds left on the clock, Moore took the ball at his own 13 and set sail through the middle of theDimmitt line 87 yards to a touchdown.

Each team threatened once more, but failed to score.

Dimmitt led in yards rushing despite Moore's 87-yarder, with a 208-173 edge, while Morton held the edge in passing yardage, 84-52. Dimmitt led in first downs, 13-11.

Dimmitt's Jimmy Stewart ran 21 times for 148 yards, Morton's David Moore 15 times for 141 yards.

Plainview Bulldogs Nip Pampa Harvesters 25-23

PLAINVIEW (Special) — The Plainview Bulldogs built a 25-7 lead through three quarters and then hung on for dear life as Pampa put on a furious rally that just fell short of victory as Plainview grabbed a 25-23 victory here Friday night.

Led by the one-two punch of Pat Brown and P.W. Thompson, the once highly-touted Bulldogs, who evened their record at 4-4 on the year, built a 19-7 lead at halftime and stretched it 25-7 before Pampa came to life in the fourth quarter.

Brown scored three touchdowns for Plainview, the first one when he blitzed Pampa by returning the opening kickoff 90 yards for a touchdown. He also garnered 90 yards rushing.

Quarterback Greg Quarles led Pampa back to a tie by scoring on a 19-yard run in the first quarter.

Plainview came right back to stretch the lead to 19-7 as Thompson, who had 72 yards rushing and Brown led the 'Dog rushing attack. Brown scored both touchdowns, one on a two-yard run and the other on a one-yard run.

After hitting the first extra point, Stan Sherwood missed the second, forcing Plainview to try for two points after Brown's second touchdown. Plainview missed the two-point try. Both missed conversions nearly came back to haunt the Bulldogs late in the game.

Ervin Davis, a preseason blue-chipper, took a 27-yard pass from Gould, who hit on six of nine passes for 125 yards, with 8:16 left in the third quarter. Again, the two-point try failed, leaving the score at 25-7.

Valley Clinches District Crown

Valley tailback James McNary carried the ball for a pair of TDs on runs of 56 and 15 yards, halfback Michael Dowd added a 40-yarder to paydirt and Rodney Carpenter's 2-point PAT conversion and a safety rounded out the scoring for the winners.

Valley now stands 7-1 for the year with a game with Claude coming up and a cinchhold on the right to represent the North Zone of 2-B.

Longhorns Outlast Springlake-Earth

VEGA (Special) — Vega's Longhorns overcame a rough and rowdy bunch of Springlake-Earth Wolverines here Friday night after falling behind by a TD briefly in the second half, coming away with a hard-earned 21-13 victory.

The win gave Vega a 2-1 District 3-A mark, while Springlake-Earth fell to 0-3.

Quarterback Scotty Took's 28-yard TD scamper in the third quarter put Vega even with the Wolverines at 13-13 and Rob Groves' second PAT kick of the night gave Vega a lead at 14-13. Then halfback Rick Jones churned into the end zone from 2 yards out with an insurance TD and Groves added the final PAT for the 21-13 final score.

Matadors Battle Nazareth To Tie

NAZARETH (Special) — Two District 2-B, North Zone, foes, Nazareth and Motley County, squared off Friday and tied, 13-13.

The Motley County Matadors are 1-6-2 for the season and 0-2-2 in district play, while the Nazareth Swifts are 5-3-1 for the year and 2-1-1 in district.

In the third quarter, the Swifts tried a field goal from 25 yards out and missed.

Sundown Gains Win Over Smyer 14-10

SMYER (Special)-Larry Henderson scored a pair of touchdowns, the last with just five minutes left in the game, and rushed for over 200 yards as Sundown came from behind to beat Smyer 14-10 Friday night.

Henderson's 20-yard run lifted the Roughnecks past the Bobcats after Smyer had taken the lead on a 1-yard run by Jimmy Davis.

Sundown got on the board first on a 15-yard run by Henderson in the first period, but then Smyer blocked a punt and Dennis Scott kicked a field goal of about 30 yards to pull the 'Cats within 3.

Sands Dumps Dawson

ACKERLEY (Special) — Sands put 16 points on the scoreboard in both the first and fourth quarters to take a 32-0 win over Dawson here Friday night in a District 3-B West contest.

Mule Mania Rolls Over Olton 27-7

OLTON -Muleshoe kept its Mule Mania rolling along here Friday night when it whipped Olton 27-7.

The Mules, still undefeated in district 3-AA play, scored one touchdown in every quarter while its defense, though allowing 220 yards in total offense, kept the home team away from its goal line.

Muleshoe scored first as time was running out in the first quarter when tight end Jim Norman took a 10-yard pass from steady quarterback Mike Northcutt.

Olton was nearly run out of their own stadium as Muleshoe built a 20-0 lead in the third quarter before Danny Garcia, who had 18 carries for 116 yards, scored on a 3-yard run.

The Mules had a 2-yard scoring run by halfback Zek Pecina and a 40-yard run with an interception by Sam Whalin in the third quarter for a touchdown. Whalin also booted three extra points for Muleshoe.

Pecina put the icing on Muleshoe's victory cake with a 2-yard run in the fourth quarter.

Muleshoe had 259 yards of total offense, completing 3 of 8 passes and picking up 17 first downs. Olton completed 4 of 7 passes and had 12 first downs.

Phillips Leads Petersburg To Victory

SPUR (Special) — Petersburg tailback Mike Phillips rushed eight times for 202 yards and scored two touchdowns as he led the Buffs to a 45-0 shellacking of the Spur Bulldogs in District 4-A action.

Petersburg is 4-3-1 for the season and 2-2 in district play, while Spur is 1-7-1 and 0-5.

The Buffs scored four times in the first quarter. The touchdowns were on a 68-yard run by Phillips, a 64-yard run by quarterback Quentin Berry, a 1-yard plunge by fullback Jerry Don Bright. The last occurred when guard Tommy Roden scooped up a blocked punt and ran 25 yards for the score.

In the second quarter, Bright ran 3 yards for a touchdown and Phillips scooted 78 yards for another to make the score at halftime, 39-0.

The Buffs scored only once in the second half, when Bright ran 3 yards for a score in the third quarter.

Wilson Defeats Leopards 13-8

WILSON (Special) — Wilson fullback Jon Cox scored two touchdowns in the second quarter to help his Mustang team post a 13-8 win over the New Home Leopards.

Both teams compete in District 3-B, West Zone. Wilson is 6-3 for the year, while New Home is 5-4.

In the second qurter, Cox scored his touchdowns on runs of 2 and 6 yards. The first extra point attempt failed, but Donald Freitag successfully kicked the second.

New Home got two more points in the third quarter when the ball was snapped over the head of Wilson punter Jay Ross and was tackled in the end zone for a safety.

Silverton Nips Mustangs 7-0

SILVERTON (Special) — A 6-yard run by Mark Patton provided the only score in the game as the Silverton Owls nipped Claude 7-0 here Friday night in a District 2-B North clash.

Patton scored with 10:24 left in the game and Tommy Potter's PAT kick was true to boost Silverton's record to 6-3 for the season. Claude fell to a 2-4-3 record.

Claude's defense prevented three scoring attempts by Silverton as the Owls moved inside the Mustang 20-yard line three previous times in the contest.

Claude had a chance to win the game on the last play. The Mustangs had the ball on the Silverton 10-yard line following an Owl fumble, but Tommy Potter broke up a pass in the end zone to prevent the score.

Klondike Rips Meadow 40-6 For Zone Title

By ERIC GALE
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

KLONDIKE — The Meadow High School football team spent 48 minutes trying to atone for its mistakes here Friday night.

But the Klondike Cougars refused to absolve the Broncos and handed down a 40-6 penance and won the District 3-B North championship.

Klondike proceeded to travel 49 yards in nine plays, as halfback Lonny Ferguson rushed one yard for the go-ahead touchdown with 7:08 remaining in the first quarter.

"We started with the on-side kick and everything went right from there on in," said Mickey Finley, Klondike coach. "This shows the kind of football our kids are capable of."

Klondike improved its lead to 14-0 on Ferguson's 81-yard scoring burst exactly two minutes later. Quarterback Clay Holcomb threw to Bobby Hanson for the two-point conversion.

Meadow countered with its only scoring drive of the game as quarterback Lance Bingham completed four passes totaling 57 yards to highlight the affair. He connected with Elisel Curiel on a fourth-and-nine from the Klondike 24-yard line to score the points.

The remainder of the evening amounted to frustration built on more frustration for the Broncos. Bingham's five consecutive completions were then followed by one-for-eight passing the rest of the game.

The Bronco rushing attack was even more at a loss for yardage. Excluding Bingham's 11 carries for 78 yards, the Meadow ground game netted one yard in the first half and 11 for the game as Klondike kept a stranglehold on the line of scrimmage.

"They are so big — and then they run that power at you," said Rick Hulett, Meadow coach. "To play with them, you'd have to be somebody with some good linemen who are as big as they are."

The Broncos had an opportunity to trim Klondike's 14-6 lead midway through the second quarter.

Gary Jordan intercepted a Holcomb pass and returned it inside the Cougar 30 but was hit, fumbled and Klondike's Kurt Blankenship recovered at the 27. There was no doubt of this game's outcome from that point on.

First-string quarterback Todd Airhart, who had been sidelined the last two weeks with a bruised knee, returned to direct Klondike's offense and promptly engineered a 73-yard touchdown drive in which he completed key passes of 10 and 27 yards to tight end James Martin.

Ferguson scored the third of his four touchdowns on a 10-yard sprint with 5:13 left in the half. Klondike's district title was in the making.

Meadow managed only two first downs in a second half thoroughly mastered by the Cougars.

Ferguson scored a 15-yard touchdown midway in the third quarter. And, in the final period, Holcomb rushed 25 yards for a score and reserve running back Blaine Todd ran three yards for another. Martin kicked two extra points.

Ferguson finished with 268 yards on the ground in 31 carries.

"He's tremendous," Finley said, referring to none other than Ferguson. "When it comes to running backs and you're talking about desire, that's where Ferguson comes in."

Finley, who won his first district title in four years at Klondike, said, "This was nice. People kicked us around for a long time. This is really sweet."

An exasperated Hulett, who blamed himself for poor play-calling on his team's behalf, said, "In Klondike, we've got a good ball club representing the district."

And Finley, in the midst of his team's post-game celebration, added, "This is a team with a burning desire to win. That's what these kids have got. They worked hard and I told them everything would work out and they made it come true."

Klondike is undefeated at 9-0, 4-0 in the district, with one regular-season game to be played.

After a scoreless first quarter, Snyder broke the scoring ice in the second period as Sam Willis connected on a 26-yard field goal.

The Tigers, now 5-4 for the year, then took a 9-0 halftime lead when Bobby DeGrate plunged over from the 1-yard line.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE NATIONAL COTTON Council said this week a decision by the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to remand the cottonseed oil section of cotton dust standards to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration is "encouraging."

"But the court's approval of the balance of the standard is a bitter disappointment," said NCC president Hoke Leggett, Hobgood, N. C., cotton producer.

"The unfortunate thing is that the interest of workers, consumers, and the industry alike could have been better served by the issuance of a less costly but equally effective standard," he added.

"It's just another case," Leggett said, "where the country's already critical inflation problem is aggravated by regulatory irresponsibility."

The court on Oct. 24 sustained a "general industry" cotton dust standard for all sectors except cottonseed oil mills.

IN CONCLUSION TO ITS 84-PAGE DECISION, the court said OSHA explained adequately the basis for its rule making except as it applied to the cottonseed oil industry.

Concerning the cottonseed oil sector, the court said: "...we are unable to discern the basis for the agency's feasibility determination. We do not conclude that the standard is infeasible for that industry; rather, we remand that portion for reconsideration or clarification by the agency."

The court left a stay in effect, saying: "In view of the alleged magnitude of the consequences...we will defer action regarding the stay to afford petitioners 20 days to show cause why the stay should not be lifted."

The ruling is under review by industry attorneys.

The court's decision does not directly affect cotton gins. A dust standard for the ginning industry remains under review in the New Orleans 5th Circuit Court of Appeals.

Morris Bryan Jr., president of the American Textile Manufacturers Institute, has said the ATMI will ask the D. C. court to continue the stay. He said the ATMI is considering whether to take further legal action in the appelate court or the U. S. Supreme Court.

THE HOUSE RULES COMMITTEE this week put off a decision on an Agriculture Committee request to make it in order for the full House to consider an increase in 1980 wheat and feed grain target prices.

After hearing Agriculture Committee chairman Tom Foley, D-Wash., and others testify on behalf of their request, the rules unit put off action until a possible role for the Budget Committee is resolved.

The Budget Committee has indicated the ruling sought by the Agriculture Committee would require a waiver of provisions of the congressional budget act.

At issue is the treatment of a bill passed last June by the Agriculture Committee but still awaiting action by the full House. This bill would increase 1979 wheat and feed grain target prices by up to 7 percent.

Foley wants the Rules Committee to amend the rule governing floor consideration of that bill so that an amendment providing for 1980 increases would be in order.

No ruling is expected before Wednesday, the day of the Rules Committee's next regularly scheduled meeting.

But an Agriculture Committee spokesman said the bill might be brought to the floor before then, in its present form, if the press of other business in the House permits. The issue of 1980 coverage could be resolved later in the Senate, he said.

A SUBCOMMITTEE OF THE NATIONAL COTTON Council's Cotton Flow-Shipment Committee has drawn up recommendations to standardize data processing codes for bale documents.

The subcommittee recommended that class cards, warehouse tags, and sample coupons be bar coded by the 1982-83 crop year, and that a standard format for keypunching information on warehouse receipts be implemented by the 1981 crop year by firms using such equipment.

The recommendations will be considered by the full committee and the NCC at the council's 1980 meeting.

COTTON FUTURES CLOSED 16 to 41 points higher in nearbys Friday on erratic afternoon trading.

Floor brokers said the market rose on commission house buying before light trade selling cut gains from as much as 84 points in pace-setting March.

Speculative buying was described as unusually active in March, which closed with a 41-point gain at 68.82 cents. December closed with a 16-point gain at 68.50 and May finished 20 points higher at 69.70.

Prices fell into the loss column earlier on mild disappointment that export sales in the official report released Thursday, although large, were not as big as many had expected. Estimated volume was 12,050 lots.

The national average price on the base quality in the 10 designated spot markets eased 11 points to close the week at 63.97, still up from 62.34 a week ago. The markets where the base quotation was lower on the day included Greenville (down 84 points), Greenwood (34 points), Phoenix (nine points), and Fresno (34 points).

Micronaire discounts were widened at Lubbock this week, with the biggest adjustment in the 3.0-3.2 range.

Plant, Insect Control Being Studied At Tech

Texas Tech University entomologists say that the cactus borer could potentially be used for biological control of prickly pear varieties all year round.

The striped and blue species of the cactus borer feed on the inside of prickly pads. The larvae of the striped borer feed on the pads from May to October, while the larvae of the blue variety feed from October through August.

The two insect species are native to the western United States and so are the cactus varieties, which means that some degree of biological control could be achieved without importing any new insect species.

Dr. James K. Wangberg, Texas Tech entomologist, and a graduate student were the first to identify the complete cycle of the 12-month life span of the striped cactus borer. They followed 1,000 eggs in the field.

Using the new information data already available on the blue cactus borer, Wangberg hopes to identify environmental factors that could encourage the two insect species to feed on the prickly pear, scientifically known as the Opuntia.

The striped cactus borer derives its name from the patterns of the larvae, while the other variety has a bright blue color in the larval stage, Wangberg said.

"The two varieties can also be identified by opening a cactus pad. The blue variety will cluster, while the striped cactus borer is a solitary insect," he added.

Although Wangberg has found new information on the borers, additional research will be needed before the data can be put to use.

"Biological control is an alternate to chemical treatment, but without detailed information there is always the possibility that, after controlling the weed, the insect may become established as a pest."

In fact, that is one of the reasons Wangberg wants to use native insects which already have natural enemies in the area.

The Texas Tech research, funded by the State Legislature under the Noxious Brush and Weed Control program, is not aimed at destroying cactus populations.

"Instead, we are trying to develop methods of localizing or controlling population densities."

Livestock feed on cactus pads during periods of extreme drouth — one reason why Wangberg does not want to eliminate the plant.

He is also working on biological control of the perennial broomweed using the leaf tier, an insect which spins silk around broomweed stems and leaves and devours the plant. Wangberg is studying the life-cycle of this insect.

Government Stops Grain Withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices of sorghum grain have dropped enough so farmers will not be allowed to withdraw any more from the government's reserve storage program, at least for now, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

Ray Fitzgerald, head of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said the average farm price of sorghum has dropped to $4.03 per hundred pounds, well below the releasee level of $4.24.

At the release level, farmers are allowed to withdraw stored grain without penalty and sell or otherwise dispose of it. The department reviews the price situation regularly to determine if a commodity should continue being released or kept in bins until the price goes up again.

Farmers initially stored about 43 million hundredweight of sorghum in the reserve program but removed 17 million when rising prices triggered release of the grain.

Farmers Alerted To Viral Infections

By JIM STEIERT
A-J Correspondent

HEREFORD — Area farmers and cattlemen may be well-advised to keep a wary eye out for a viral infection thak holds the potential to decimate stocker cattle beginning to arrive in the High Plains for the fall and winter grazing season.

That's the contention of veterinary officials ranging from personnel at the Texas A&M Diagnostic Lab in Amarillo to individuals actually working the fields and feedyards in a region stretching from Vega through the Hereford area and south to Dimmitt.

Consulted about a possible outbreak of Bovine Viral Diarrhea in the local region, Dr. Larry Hollis of the A&M Lab in Amarillo, Dr. Don Poling of the Vega Veterinary Clinic, and Dr. Ron Easley of the Dimmitt Veterinary Clinic all agreed that more cases of BVD are being encountered in stocker cattle arriving here this fall.

According to the Vega-based veterinarian, attacks of the virus have reached near-epidemic proportions in several herds in his service area, which ranges to Adrian, southward to Milo Center in Deaf Smith County, and to the east of Vega.

In fact, Poling is so concerned with a more-serious-than-usual outbreak of the viral infection in his region that he's encouraging cattlemen to consider vaccinating their cattle against BVD.

And though vaccinations against BVD are still a bone of contention in many circles, Easley reported that the Dimmitt clinic is also recommending vaccination to the feedyards it serves in a region stretching from Dimmitt to Hereford and southeastward to Tulia.

"We're having a lot more BVD now. In past years we've seen a little of it here and there, but it hasn't been in epidemic proportions before," said Poling. "This year we have two or three herds with a high incidence of BVD, and although we can vaccinate those cattle which haven't come down with it against the problem, once the cattle have it , it's hard to treat," he added.

BVD causes ulcerations in the mouth of the cattle which contract it, and the ulcerations spread throughout the digestive system.

Mark Hicks, who conducts a cattle operation west of the Ford community in the northern portion of Deaf Smith County, said he has encountered a severe problem with the virus in approximately 500 head of 200-350 pound stocker calves which he had been pre-conditioning for pasture in that area.

"Our death losses have been running up to 6 percent so far, and there's cause for concern," said Hicks.

He explained that early symptoms of BVD infection include runny eyes with cracks at their corners, and sores on the lips, gums, mouths and tongues of the cattle.

"Some of the stockers have been arriving here with the symptoms, while others show the symptoms 10-14 days after they arrive," said Hicks.

The local stockman estimated that as many as 1,000 head of cattle may be infected with the virus in an area ranging from Adrian to Milo Center and to the east of Vega.

Poling commented on the possible source of the infestation, saying: "It's hard to say just where the problem is arising, but a lot of the southeastern cattle that come into this area as stockers may possibly have been exposed."

The veterinarian reported that the incidence of the virus here does not necessarily mean a massive outbreak of BVD.

"It's probably just one of those years where you have something like this showing up, but there are three or four herds in my area that have a high percentage of infestation with BVD at this time," he said.

"At this point, cattlemen have to do the best they can with the healthy ones, because there isn't all that much they can do for the cattle that have it. Vaccinating the cattle that don't have it is one of the few things stockman can do, in addition to administering antibiotics to prevent secondary bacterial infection. I'd sure recommend that operations go ahead and administer BVD vaccinations, though. It can be given in combination with the other regular vaccines that are already used," he explained.

The veterinarian reported that the virus, which is highly contagious, often causes cattle to dwindle down because of bad health, and most death losses occur as a result of bacterial pneumonia which attacks the cattle in their weakened condition.

Poling reported that an anti-serum provides some help in treating affected cattle, but that quantities of the anit-sermum are in short supply at this time.

Farmers Back From Discussing Cotton Loan In Washington

A 12-member Texas Farmers Union group returned this week from a "cotton fly-in" to Washington, D. C.

Gary Cook of Slaton, secretary-treasurer of the Lubbock County Farmers Union, said chairman David Bowen, D-Miss., of the House Cotton Subcommittee indicated to the group he would seek to have the cotton loan floor frozen legislatively at a level at least equal to this season's base rate of 50.23 cents per pound.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture announced earlier this week that the base rate for the 1980 crop will be 48 cents, the legal minimum under the current farm law.

Cook said the group also visited with other members of Congress, USDA officials, and Dr. Lynn Daft, associate director of the domestic policy staff at the White House.

In addition to the cotton loan, Cook said, the group discussed a cotton set-aside program for 1980, federal water reclamation activities, dwindling energy supplies, and government investigations into the operation of Cotton Inc.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures closed mostly higher Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade in uneventful dealings.

The approach of the weekend inspired some covering of short, or open selling, positions by speculators. Somewhat less commercial hedge selling took place than expected. Hedge selling is a sale of futures to offset cash market purchases with the intent of locking in current price levels.

An industry report of record soybean crushings last week at 22.79 million bushels led to some speculative interest in soybeans and soybean products. Also, deliveries overnight against the expiring November contract were substantially lighter than they have been during the last two days.

At the close, soybeans were 1 cent lower to 6¼ cents higher, November $6.44½; wheat was ¾ to 4 cents higher, December $4.09¾; corn was 1¾ to 3 cents higher, December $2.61; and oats were 2 to 2¾ cents higher, December $1.40¾.

The Chaps are led by the senior duo of Kevin "Tree" Wharton, a 6-foot-6 jumping jack who set a school record last year by rejecting 55 enemy shots. Wharton also pulled down 10.7 rebounds per game. Also leading the chaps is 6-foot-4 Keith Gardner, who led the team in scoring and rebounding last year with 19.4 and 11.2 averages, respectively.

Rounding out the lineup will be guards Marshall Smith and Bill McGee, with either Jim Steensma or former Coronado standout Rick Murdock at the other forward.

Guthrie Girls Down Megargel

MEGARGEL (SPECIAL) — Melanie Keith pumped in 25 points Thursday night to lead the Guthrie girls' varsity basketball team to a 63-56 victory over Megargel. Guthrie raced to a 15-9 first quarter lead, but was tied at halftime 33-33. Guthrie outscored Megargel 15-4 in the third period to claim its first win of the season.

Astros, Rangers Select Ryan

NEW YORK (AP) — The Toronto Blue Jays made relief pitcher Don Stanhouse the top choice today in baseball's re-entry draft, the annual auction of veteran free agents that often produces instant millionaires.

Stanhouse pitched for the Baltimore Orioles this past season.

In the first three re-entry drafts, some 34 players signed million dollar contracts with the top price going to Pete Rose, who got $3.2 million for four years from the Philadelphia Phillies last December.

Some of the 44 players eligible today hoped to duplicate that kind of contract coup with California pitcher Nolan Ryan expected to generate the most vigorous bidding.

Each player on the list could be chosen by as many as 13 teams and their former clubs had the option of selecting negotiation rights as well.

The draft rotation followed reverse order of the final 1979 standings with the teams alternating by leagues. The Blues Jays' opening pick was followed by the New York Mets, who had the poorest record in the National League.

Both the Blue Jays, who acquired first baseman Chris Chambliss in a six-player trade with the New York Yankees Thursday, and the Mets have had the No.1 choices before. The Mets picked Rose first in the 1978 draft and Toronto made Lyman Bostock the first choice in 1977. In 1976, the Montreal Expos had the No.1 choice and drafted Reggie Jackson. No player picked first in the draft has signed with the team making that No.1 choice — a trend Toronto hopes to end this year.

Besides Ryan, the top pitchers in the draft were Dave Goltz of Minnesota, Al Hrabosky of Kansas City, Bruce Kison of Pittsburgh, Rudy May of Montreal, Fred Norman of Cincinnati, and Rick Wise of Cleveland. Also expected to attract attention were veteran sluggers like Boston's Bob Watson, Tony Perez of Montreal, Seattle's Willie Horton and infielders Fred Patek of Kansas City and Joe Morgan of Cincinnati.

Goltz was the most popular player in the first round and was drafted by the maximum 13 teams.

Atlanta picked him first, followed quickly by San Diego, the Chicago White Sox, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Kansas City, St. Louis, California, Cincinnati, Montreal, Boston, Pittsburgh and Milwaukee.

Ryan was tabbed by only two teams in the opening round — the Texas Rangers and Houston Astros. The fireballing right-hander has expressed a desire to return to his native state, Texas.

Other multiple selections in the first round were: Pittsburgh infielder Rennie Stennett, selected by the New York Mets, San Francisco and the Chicago Cubs; San Francisco pitcher John Curtis, who was picked by Seattle and Minnesota, and Watson, the Red Sox' right-handed slugger, who was chosen by Oakland and the New York Yankees.

Toronto was the only team to choose Stanhouse in the first round, and the only other players to get a call were: Kison, chosen by Cleveland, and catcher Milt May, the final selction of the round — by Baltimore.

Goltz' selection by 13 teams marked the first time in the four-year history of the draft that a player has been closed out that quickly.

Tech, Frogs, Owls, Mustangs Rated SWC Underdogs Today

By The Associated Press

Oddsmakers figure the seventh week of the Southwest Conference football season is going to be a slaughterhouse.

Texas A&M, Texas, Arkansas and Houston are rated at least two touchdown choices over thier SWC brethern today in a four-card weekend that begins with the regionally televised Texas A&M-Southern Methodist game in College Station.

The Aggies, who have fallen on hard times particularly in the fourth quarter, were rated 16-point picks over crippled SMU for the 11:50 a.m. televised kickoff. Both teams are 3-4 and trying to salvage the season.

Fourth-ranked Houston is a 16-point favorite over Texas Christian although they have to play the Horned Frogs at their homecoming in Fort Worth.

Eighth-ranked Texas was a 14-point over Texas Tech in a match-up in Memorial Stadium in Austin while ninth-ranked Arkansas was a 21-point favorite over Rice in Houston.

Houston is unbeaten and 4-0 in SWC play. And TCU cach F.A. Dry says, "They're a great football team. They have everythig but a bare-foot punter."

Both Arkansas and Texas have a conference loss and are in a must-win situation.

Texas Tech coach Rex Dockery said of the Longhorns, "They have an outstanding defensive team and their offense has been underrated. It's pretty hard to believe they held Oklahoma and Arkansas to under 200 yards in consecutive weeks."

The Red Raiders were idle last week and Dockery said, "Having two weeks to get ready will help more from the standpoint of letting us get some people healed."

Arkansas must bounce back from a disappointing loss to Houston, and coach Lou Holtz said, "It's never easy to bounce back ... the one thing we don't want to have happen is to start looking for reasons why we lost."

Houston coach Bill Yeoman said he doesn't think the Cougars will be overly confident going against TCU, which has won only one conference game.

"There is no question in our team's mind that it is going to be a real battle," Yeoman said. "TCU is all cranked up."

Weatherford Beats Chaparral Netters

LCC's men are 2-7 for the fall and the women, 1-5. The Chaps will play their final two matches of the fall today, one at 8 a.m. against Wayland Baptist and the other at 1 p.m. against Abilene Christian.

Most Recent Dracula Boasts Of Movie's Quality

As played by Klaus Kinski, in "Nosferatu The Vampyre," the count has a head like a peeled egg, with ashen pallor, pointy ears, sunken eyes and two front teeth fit for piercing.

Thus Kinski diverges from the tradition started by Bela Lugosi in the 1931 "Dracula" and followed through the years by John Carradine, Francis Lederer, Christopher Lee, and most recently, George Hamilton and Frank Langella.

> 'Nothing in the past 50 years and nothing in the next 50 years will come even near to "Nosferatu."'
> — KLAUS KINSKI quoting WERNER HERZOG

"Nosferatu The Vampyre," which 20th Century-Fox is bringing belatedly into the movie marketplace, harks back to the 1923 classic directed in Germany by the great F.W. Murnau and starring Max Schreck. The new version was intended as a tribute to Murnau by the brilliant young German dirctor Werner Herzog.

Kinski, born 52 years ago near Berlin of Polish parents, came to Hollywood to help launch the American release. He is not all menacing without the makeup. He has strong features, wild white hair and converses candidly in self-taught English.

"What's wrong with doing another 'Dracula'?" he argues. " 'Hamlet' has been done a thousand times, and nobody talks about remakes.

"Werner has his own answer. He says, 'Nothing in the past 50 years and nothing in the next 50 years will come even near to "Nosferatu."' Not with the same quality, he means, and he believes it. There is nothing arrogant about it at all."

Kinski himelf is a great fan of the film, which he reported is "breaking all the records of 'Grease' in Italy." He added:

"It's the only time in my life that I have loved a picture I've made; I've seen it 10 times. And it's not only because I'm in it. I Simply enjoy watching it."

Kinski and Herzog worked together before, in the much praised "Aguirre: Wrath of God." It was filmed in the Peruvian jungle, and the actor admitted "there were times when I wished the piranhas would come and eat him." They didn't talk for four years. Then one day Herzog called with the idea of doing "Nosferatu." Kinski readily accepted.

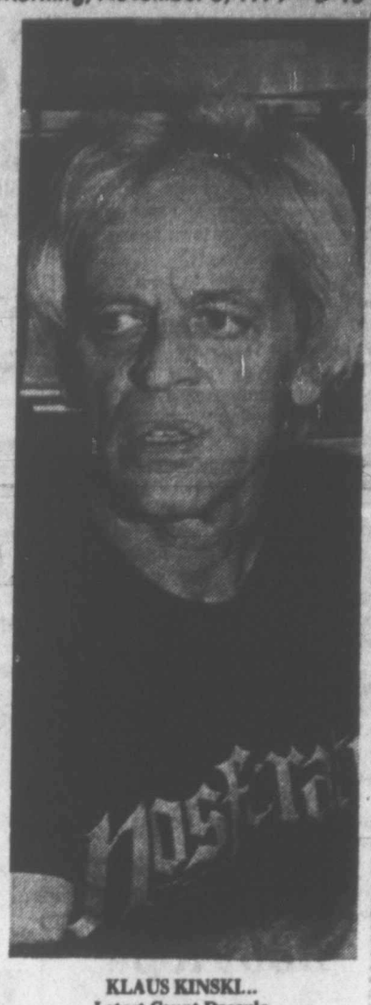

"Werner wanted to make the picture in Rumania," said Kinski. "The government knew his work and said, 'We have never allowed anyone to film "Nosferatu" in our country, but in your case, we would make an exception.'" That proved impractical, and Herzog found the somber atmosphere he needed in Delft, The Netherlands, plus locatons in Czechoslovakia.

The firm-minded director decreed that Count Dracula's makeup would follow the grotesque pattern Schreck used in the Murnau original. "I thought it would be enough to shave my head and wear fangs and fingernails," said Kinski, "but Werner wanted to go all the way."

Both agreed on the portrayal of Dracula: "Not human and nt animal but somewhere in between."

Kinski was enjoying his first tour of the United States, so much so that he has decided to stay. "When I was making 'The Counterfeit Traitor' in 1961, (director) George Seaton told me, 'You must come to America,'" he recalled. "Three times in the past 15 years I have been invited to come, but it was always in the wrong moment of time.

"Everything is up to destiny and right now I think that my destiny is here. I am tired of the European bull. Except for Werner and one or two others, there is no serious work being done in films over there."

Copyrighted Music Used Illegally

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Attorneys for the country's largest music licensing agency say many users of copyrighted music are doing so illegally, but only 1 percent ever go to trial.

The American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers hires hundreds of "outside economic consultants" to go out to places like restaurants, bars and nightclubs to gauge the type of music being played, the attorneys said.

Senior ASCAP attorney Judith Saffer told The Associated Press this week that if outlets are found without a license to play copyrighted music, ASCAP officials inform them they are breaking the law.

"We try to tell them that the creator of the music has the right to be paid for his work. Only when we make sure no stone is left unturned do we initiate litigation," she said.

"You can use music for your own enjoyment, but when you use music in conjunction with another business or for the enjoyment of other persons, you must pay licensing fees."

She said an average of 500 complaints are filed each year but only about five get as far as a trial.

To show the fine line that must be drawn to determine if a music user must pay licensing fees, Mrs. Saffer said: "If a bartender puts a portable radio on the bar for himself to listen to, he doesn't have to have a license. But if he puts speakers throughout the bar and has dancing, then he needs one."

ASCAP, a non-profit organization, collects royalties from music users and distributes them to composers. The amount of royalties is set by a formula determined by the results of consultants' visits and music taste surveys.

"For a lot of artists, ASCAP revenue is their sole income," Mrs Saffer sid. "But a lot of them are driving cabs, too."

She said ASCAP takes its expenses from licensing fees before royalties are paid to composers. There is no charge to music writers for ASCAP's service.

Of ASCAP's $120 million in 1978 revenues, $110 million came from fees paid by radio and television stations, with individual fees set at about 1 percent of gross revenue, Mrs. Saffer said.

A restaurant or bar would pay from about $180 to $500 a year, depending on its size.

In ASCAP's most recent local claim filed two weeks ago against Corki's Corner in Hackensack, N.J., the agency charged members' music was played by a live band June 30 and July 1.

William Pollinger, an attorney for the unlicensed bar, said it hires bands to play and it is the responsibility of the band to pay licensing fees.

"We have no idea what they're talking about," he said. "It's an independent contractor situation."

Pollinger declined Wednesday to say whether his client had known he needed a license to play copyrighted music. He said the case is currently in the contested stage and Corki's owner Joseph D'Angelo had not decided whether to settle out of court or file a countersuit.

Reasons For Volvo Price Hike Cited

DETROIT (AP) — Rising transportation rates are responsible for a 4.9 percent price increase in the 1980 Volvo, a spokesman for the car manufacturer said.

Thursday's announcement also said major price increases for the platinum and rhodium, used in catalytic converters, also have forced Volvo to reprice its emission control system.

Inmate Wants To Keep Pet

Mrs. Byrd, 50, and Thomas L. Singleton, 26, were convicted last March 29 for the 1978 slaying of Robert O. "Papa" Byrd, 64, whose body was found stuffed in a closet.

Robert Morford, deputy corrections commissioner, said warden Penny Burnhardt allows seven dogs to live with inmates at the state women's prison. He said the quota is currently full, but Mrs. Byrd's name was at the top of the waiting list.

Rodeo Cowboys Bust Broncs, Chase Dreams

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — They rattle into town in pickups, chasing dreams born of Zane Grey novels, nurtured by John Wayne westerns and aged in any of a hundred dusty cowtown arenas — the rodeo cowboys.

"Every kid wants to be a cowboy," said Cotton Rosser, here to produce the annual Grand National Rodeo, one of the oldest and largest in the nation. "The majority of your rodeo cowboys just grew up wanting to play cowboy."

Rosser, who quit competing in rodeos years back after he broke both legs, said cowboys can even come from places like New York City or San Francisco.

"Take me," he drawled, adjusting his high-crowned, white cowboy hat. "I was raised on Rainbow Pier in Long Beach.

"I learned my rodeoing about 25 years ago in college at Cal Poly. Yes, sir, learned two things in college — how to shoe a horse and how to fly a plane."

While Rosser admitted to being influenced just a bit by "Zane and Wayne," it's former Dallas Cowboy football player Walt Garrison he quoted when trying to illustrate the practical men drawn to the arena.

"Yes, sir, Walt always says: 'If the money was the same, I'd rather play rodeo.'"

Through this weekend, he's in San Francisco, "ramrodding" the rodeo he calls "the granddaddy of them all." More than 600 cowboys are competing for about $130,000 in prize money by trying to stay on top of a bucking bronco or a one-ton bull, rope a frisky calf or wrestle a stubborn steer.

Today's FOCUS

Typical of the rodeo breed is Julio Moreno, a member of the calf roping team that tied for the championship at last year's National Finals Rodeo in Oklahoma City — the final event of the year where the top money winners compete to settle on who's best.

Moreno and his wife make about 100 rodeos a year, traveling in a pickup. The truck pulls a 20-foot trailer with 12 feet partitioned off for horses and six feet for the Morenos' living quarters.

"I want to win the world (championship)," said the 25-year-old Moreno. "Then we're thinking on having kids, getting a ranch. Probably five or six more years, then I'll settle down."

Moreno has earned $20,000 so far this year and the national finals are not until December.

"For the last five years I've done real good. And my wife, she secretaries the rodeos. We make it."

Moreno said rodeo cowboys don't live up to the wild image portrayed in country songs and movies.

"We're not as bad as the story goes," he said, a faraway smile playing across his face. "There ain't that many wild parties and all that much drinkin' and chasin' around."

Moreno was raised on his father's ranch outside Bakersfield and began roping calves when he was 8.

"When I turned 17, I took off on my own — rodeoing."

Then there's Bob Tallman, who announces the events at the Grand National. He just turned 32, but has been around rodeos for 22 years.

"It's hereditary," he said. "I was raised on a high desert ranch in Nevada. I've worked every event in the rodeo arena. I've tasted and touched all of it."

Tallman, who also produces country and western music, talks about a song recorded by his friend, singer Jerry Jeff Walker, which hints that rodeo cowboys are "bordering on the insane."

"Anybody who gets up in the morning and drives from Oakland to San Francisco on the Bay Bridge is a lot closer to bordering on the insane than anybody in rodeo," Tallman said.

"A man like that hates his wife, hates his car, hates the smog and hates the time of day. Me, being in rodeo, I'm the luckiest SOB who ever put on a pair of boots."

Bob Hope Apologizes To Gators

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope's press manager has apologized for jokes the comedian made about the University of Florida's "party-school" image during a homecoming appearance last week.

"Here I am at the University of Florida, where going to class is an extra-curricular activity," Hope quipped last weekend while at Gator Growl, a homecoming activity.

said press agent Ward Grant. "If someone takes offense, apologies are in order. That's his personal feeling."

University information director Hugh Cunningham wrote Hope, asking the entertainer to present a fair view of the university when Gator Growl footage appears on Hope's Nov. 10 television special "Homecoming U.S.A."

"Because you are a fair man, I know you and your producers will present a balanced view of the University of Florida in your homecoming television special," Cunningham said.

Grant said he'd look into the school's request, but made no promises.

The first commercial product manufactured in America and exported to Europe was a glass bottle made in a factory near Jamestown in 1608.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

Mizzou Aims To Upset 'Huskers Again

By The Associated Press

Well, here we are one year later with Nebraska again ranked No.2 in the nation and about to tangle with a stumbling block named Missouri.

Last season, Nebraska had just knocked off Oklahoma and thought it was heading for a national championship Orange Bowl showdown with top-rated Penn State when a funny thing happened.

Not funny ha-ha ... funny strange. The Cornhuskers were upset by Missouri 35-31 and wound up losing an Orange Bowl rematch to Oklahoma, of all people, while Penn State lost its No. 1 ranking against Alabama in the Sugar Bowl.

So it's Nebraska-Missouri time once again today, this one to be played at Columbia, Mo. Nebraska is 7-0 while Missouri is 4-3 and struggling after a 3-0 start. The Cornhuskers also have outscored the opposition 215-27 over the last five games.

"Right now, Nebraska looks like it's the best football team in the country," says Missouri Coach Warren Powers, who was on the Nebraska staff when the Cornhuskers won national championships in 1970-71. "They're playing well, scoring a lot of points and their defense is doing a great job. They are playing with a lot of confidence ad a lot of authority."

While Nebraska takes to the road, the Nos. 1-3 teams will be at home — top-rated Alabama against Mississippi State and third-ranked Southern California against Arizona.

Elsewhere, No. 4 Houston visits Texas Christian, fifth-ranked Ohio State is at Illinois, No. 6 Florida State travels to Cincinnati and No. 7 Oklahoma is at Oklahoma State. Rounding out the Top Ten, eighth-ranked Texas entertains Texas Tech, No. 9 Arkansas is at Rice and No. 10 Michigan hosts Wisconsin.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Brigham Young is at Colorado State, Syracuse at No. 12 Pitt, Navy at No. 13 Notre Dame, No. 14 Wake Forest at Clemson, No. 15 Purdue at Iowa, No. 16 Washington at California, Rutgers at No. 17 Tennessee, No. 18 North Carolina at Maryland, Miami, Fla. at No. 19 Penn State and Florida at No. 20 Auburn.

Alabama is crippled up but the Crimson Tide has won 21 in a row from Mississippi State — the series stands 50-10-3 — and Bear Bryant has never lost to the Bulldogs. In fact, Bama has won 16 in a row from all corners, the longest streak in the country, and a win against State would give the Tide a record 21 cconsecutive Southeastern Conference triumphs.

But, warns the Bear, "State has some exceptional athletes, especially wide receiver Mardye McDole, who is the best in the nation. They are big and strong and when they are emotionally ready they can play with any team in the nation.

"Thy have a history of playing well one week and being off the next. I'm sure this will be their week to play great. Coach Emory Bellard started the Wishbone when he was an assistant at Texas — in fact, helped us when we decided to switch to it, so he will have some things ready for us we aren't expecting.

"We had 14 players who did not play last week, 10 of them who had been starters at one time or another, and until we get at least some of them back playing regularly we aren't nearly as good as a team as we were when they were healthy. State always is one of the hardest-hitting teams we play, so we had better buckle up our chin straps if we intend to win."

Southern Cal and Arizona are meeting for the first time since 1928. On the other hand, Houston and Texas Christian didn't start playing until 1976 and Houston has rolled to victories of 49-21, 42-14 and 63-6.

"They're one of the top four teams in the country and they're unbeaten," says TCU's F.A. Dry. "What else can I say? That speaks for itself."

Ohio State is one of the hottest teams around right now. The Buckeyes have averaged 47 points and 536 yards a game the last three weeks while allowing just six points and recording two shutouts.

"We are playing with great enthusiasm and confidence," says Coach Earle Bruce. "You can tell we are excited about getting out on the field ad playing football. The better the oppponent, the better we seem to play. I like that. Golly, I like that."

While the Nebraska-Missouri clash matches former coaching colleagues in Powers and Nebraska's Tom Osborne, so does the Oklahoma-Oklahoma State contest. Oklahoma's Barry Switzer was an aide under Chuck Fairbanks before succeeding him while Oklahoma State's Jimmy Johnson was the Sooners' defensive line coach from 1970-72.

In the conference races, Nebraska and Oklahoma share the Big Eight lead at 3-0 while Ohio State and Michigan are atop the Big Ten with 5-0 league records. In the Pacific-10, Southern Cal is 3-0-1 to 3-1 for Washington and Arizona State, which visits Stanford.

Alabama is 3-0 and Mississippi State 2-0 in the Southeastern Conference but both trail 4-0 Georgia, which entertains Virginia in a non-league game. However, if Georgia wins its final two SEC games from Florida and Auburn the Bulldogs will go to the Sugar Bowl despite what anyone else does.

Houston leads the Southwest Conference at 4-0 while Baylor, which has this week off, is 4-1, Arkansas 3-1 and Texas 2-1. North Carolina State, which leads the Atlantic Coast Conference at 4-1 visits its South Carolina for a non-league game. Wake Forest trails at 2-2. Brigham Young is the Western Athletic Conference front-runner at 4-0 while Colorado State and Utah are 4-1. Utah visits New Mexico.

Carlen's Pact To Be Extended

COLUMBIA (AP) — University of South Carolina football coach Jim Carlen's contract will be extended through the end of 1984, a Columbia newspaper reported Friday.

The Columbia Record said the university's trustees apparently will extend only the coaching portion of Carlen's contract, which expires Dec. 31, 1982.

Carlen now serves as athletic director for all sports but basketball. But the board voted Sept. 4 to eliminate the dual athletic director-head football coach position.

Carlen refused to comment on the report. Board Chairman R. Markley Dennis could not be reached for comment.

The newspaper reported that the contract will be extended at Carlen's current salary, which could not be learned Friday.

However, when the contract was rewritten in 1977, Carlen's salary was set at $45,750 with a provision that it would be reviewed annually.

Carlen has compiled a 28-24-1 record since coming to South Carolina in January 1975. So far this year, his squad is 5-2.

Last week, the board voted to terminate head basketball coach Frank McGuire's contract after the 1979-80 season. The trustees agreed to pay McGuire $100,000 for each of the remaining four years of his contract.

'Too Tall' To Make Boxing Debut Today

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — Ed "Too Tall" Jones, who abandoned the Dallas Cowboys and the Naional Footbal League for a new career as a pro boxr, faces his first bout with with emotions similiar to those of a player going into the Super Bowl.

"I'm very confident. And I'm ready," Too Tall said at the official weigh-in Friday.

"I'm excited. In a way, it's like a Super Bowl. That's a big game. This is my first fight. And that makes it a big fight. I know I'll be nervous, hyper, just before the fight. But once the first punch is thrown, once I throw that first punch, the nervousness will be gone. I'll be cool."

Jones, at 6-foot-9, one of the tallest men ever to try boxing, faces mysterious Mexican Jesus "Yacqui" Meneses in a six-round bout at the Pan American Center on the New Mexico State University campus Saturday afternoon.

Jones, 28, weighed in at 255½, some 15 pounds lighter than when he won All-Pro honors and played in three Super Bowls with the Cowboys. He's such a lop-sided favorite that Las Vegas' legal bookies don't even have the fight listed.

Meneses, 20, weighed 204. He's 6-foot-2, and the promoter shows him with a 10-4 record, including 10 knockouts. Meneses, however, is not listed in the Ring Record Book. He speaks no English. Through an interpreter, he said he'd fought several "big men" before, but was vague as to names and dates.

"I've seen him on flim," Too Tall said. "He's a very aggressive fighter. I expect him to bring the fight to me."

And if he does, Too Tall said, it will be a short fight.

"If he follows his pattern, coming after me, I don't think it will last more than three rounds. I'm not making any prediction, you understand, but I'll be surprised if it goes more than three."

And if Meneses doesn't come to him?

"It makes no difference," Jones said. "I'm versatile. I can fight him in, I can fight him out. I can stand there and brawl with him.

"I hope to use my reach to my advantage."

And that reach, 88 inches, is greater than any heavyweight champion in history, 2½ inches longer than Primo Carnera and almost a foot longer than Muhammed Ali.

The bout, to be televised nationally by CBS (with New Mexico blacked out), culminates 4½ months of preparations for Jones, who played out a multiple-year contract with the Cowboys and retired from football at the end of last season.

And he will not return to that game.

"I can't conceive of any circumstances that would send me back to football," he said. "That is over. I don't miss it at all. I miss my friends. We were very close on the Cowboys. But I don't miss football.

"I want to have a lot of fights over the next 2½ years, then starting fighting contenders and then, hopefully soon after that, get a title fight. But I'm not looking for it before that time. I need experience."

Manager Dave Wolf plans to get it for him. He has four more six-rounders lined up in the next six weeks. But all are tentative.

"They're all based on how he does here," Wolf said. "If he loses, or if he's lousy, the tickets that have been sold can be returned."

TOTAL CONCENTRATION — Ed "Too Tall" Jones quietly concentrates as he shadow boxes during his afternoon workout session in Las Cruces, N.M. Jones will make his boxing debut against Yaqui Meneses this afternoon. The fight will be held in the Pan American Center on the New Mexico State University campus. (AP Laserphoto)

Starr Says Luke Made No Malicious Hit

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — A thorough study of film shows Green Bay safety Steve Luke acted within the rules in the collision which broke the jawbone of Miami Dolphins' fullback Norm Bulaich last Sunday, Packer Coach Bart Starr said Friday.

Bulaich, who says the injury has ended his National Football League career, claims films show Luke made an illegal hit on the play. Bulaich said he is considering legal action against Luke, and Dolphins' Coach Don Shula has asked NFL officials to examine the films to determine if there was illegal roughness.

Bulaich was hit by Luke and Johnnie Gray, the other Packer safety, and fumbled on the play. Bulaich claims Luke hit him in the face after the fumble.

Starr said he expected the next statements on the matter to come from the NFL office.
