Terrorist bomb kills policeman in Rome

ROME (AP) — Terrorists raided the Rome headquarters of the Christian Democratic Party today, exploded bombs and fled while trading shots with officers, leaving at least one policeman dead and two others wounded critically, police said.

The Italian news agency ANSA quoted firemen as saying they found the bodies of three persons in the rubble, but there was no confirmation of this. Fire officials said the only casualties were policemen.

The gang, possibly numbering as many as 15 members, set off high-powered explosives, devastating one floor of the building and causing damage to other floors in the six-story structure.

Scores of police cars and armored vehicles rushed to the scene near the Tiber River in downtown Rome and helicopters hovered overhead in an attempt to spot the fleeing gang members. Some were said by witnesses to have fled in a red Simca.

Italian radio said firemen found the gang had painted the five-pointed Red Star symbol of the Red Brigades, Italy's most feared terrorist group, on the walls inside the building.

The attack came a month before Italians go to the polls in a national election, and the radio said the terrorists scrawled on the wall: "Transform the electoral fraud into a class war."

Sketchy reports from the scene described the gang members as young and unmasked. The gang was said to include several women.

Police closed off a wide area of downtown Rome, behind the Parliament buildings.

The Red Brigades' reputation stems from their kidnapping of five-time Premier Aldo Moro in a street ambush in Rome on March 16, 1978 in which Moro's five police bodyguards were killed. Moro's trussed and bullet-riddled body was found in the trunk of a car 54 days later.

Italy's general elections are set for June 3-4. They were called two years ahead of schedule after the Communists pulled out of a five-party agreement that had supported Premier Giulio Andreotti's Christian Democratic minority governmet, forcing Andreotti to resign Jan. 31. Attempts to form a new coalition failed.

The election is viewed as a referendum on whether the Communist Party, which ran only four percentage points behind the Christian Democrats in the 1976 elections, should be given a place in the government. Andreotti's Christian Democrats have refused.

Politicians don't expect any major shifts. The polls indicate the Christian Democrats may make small gains, while the Communists may lose a few points.

Wholesale price increase shows inflation continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sharply higher prices for gasoline and heating oil helped push wholesale prices up 0.9 percent in April, despite the first decline in food prices in eight months, the government said today.

Although the increase in wholesale prices was the lowest in five months, it still showed inflation continuing at above 10 percent at the wholesale level. The April increase represents a compound annual rate of 11.5 percent. Prices had increased 1 percent in March and in February.

Food prices at the wholesale level declined 0.3 percent, the first drop since last Agust and an indication that the upward spiral in supermarket prices may be about over. Wholesale prices eventually are reflected in the prices consumers pay.

But the Labor Department said prices of goods other than foods increased 1.3 percent in April, the biggest monthly increase since October 1974.

The department said gasoline prices increased 4.4 percent and home heating-oil prices were up 6.7 percent.

The rise in gasoline and heating oil prices reflects a partial shortage of petroleum products resulting from the cutback in Iranian oil production.

President Carter's proposal to decontrol domestic oil prices is certain to push fuel costs even higher in months ahesd.

The wholesale price changes were reported in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index for finished goods — those which are ready for sale to the consumer.

The department said the index in April stood at 211.2 percent of the 1967 average of 100, meaning that goods priced at $100 then had increased in price to $211.20 last month.

Wholesale prices had increased 10.3 percent in the 12-month period ending in April.

The increase in prices for goods other than food showed that the nation will continue to have serious problems with inflation even after the upward spiral in food prices eases. However, administration officials expect inflation will begin to ease at all levels by summer and continue to improve during the rest of the year.

April's 0.3 percent decline in food prices at the wholesale level followed four consecutive months in which those prices had advanced at more than one percent. The department said there were lower prices for pork, coffee, fresh vegetables and poultry.

Wholesale price changes are included in the Producer Price Index, which reports prices at three levels: the wholesale — or finished goods — level, when goods are ready for sale to the final user; the intermediate level, where they have received some processing; and the crude level, where goods have not yet received any processing.

The department said prices at the intermediate level were up 1.5 percent, the most in nearly five years, while prices for crude goods declined 0.4 percent, the first drop in more than a year.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal acknowledged Wednesday that inflation has been much worse than expected this year, but he said it will take at least six months "and possibly longer" for the guidelines to work.

April was the sixth month following announcement of the program by the president last October.

Link to Big Spring killings possible

Double-murderer suspect probed

By DON WOODS

Investigators are checking into the possibility of connecting escaped double-murderer suspect Charles Troy Coleman with a bizarre double murder in Big Spring last week. Coleman escaped from Muskogee County Jail in Oklahoma April 23.

Coleman was being held for trial for the murders of Mr. and Mrs. John Seward on Feb. 9 when he escaped. The victims apparently surprised a burglar at a rural home near Muskogee.

Howard County Sheriff A. N. Standard said a profile developed by investigators from studying the evidence of the case matches that of Coleman. He added that there are several other out of state persons that match the profile developed by investigators.

Coleman was not in custody at the time of the Big Spring murders and no alibi for Coleman has been established. The murders of the couple in Muskogee and the Reeves were both accomplished with a small caliber weapon.

Coleman is now in custody of Pima County, Ariz., authorities said after a desert chase late Saturday night. According to reports, Deputy T. B. Parish stopped Coleman shortly before 5 p.m. on IS 10 near Tucson.

Parish stopped the westbound 1976 Ford pickup and was checking the vehicle registration when Coleman pointed a gun at him and ordered him into the back of the patrol car, according to investigators. The deputy was handcuffed in the back of the car and driven into the desert north of the interstate.

He then returned the pick up and told Parish, " You have been a good boy and I'm not going to kill you."

After Coleman fled in the pickup Parish kicked out the window of the pickup and radioed for assistance.

A Department of Public Safety helicopter in the area sighted the fleeing vehicle and pursued it.

Several patrol cars joined in the chase and Coleman abandoned the pickup in the desert and fled on foot. He was accosted shortly after.

Authorities have identified the pickup driven by Coleman as belonging to Russel E. Lewis Jr., 49, of St. Louis, Mo. Lewis' body was found in Tulsa near a railroad track an hour and a half before Coleman was arrested.

Lewis apparently died from a bullet would that entered the left eye and exited on the lower right side of his head, according to Lt. Milton Robinson.

Coleman is also believed to have slashed the throat of a police officer in Luther, Okla., April 24 after his escape the day before. He allegedly took weapons from the officer and slashed his throat before leaving him bleeding and handcuffed in his patrol car.

Sheriff Standard said four men would be given polygraph tests by next week in connection with the murders in Big Spring. One will be given the test today and one tomorrow. Two will be given next week. The tests will be administered in Midland using Department of Public Safety equipment.

Another fund for rewarding persons who contribute information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer has been started. Money is being contributed by East Texas persons acquainted with the Reeves family.

Governor reverses vow on rate

Clements blames Fannie Mae

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements today backed a proposal for a "floating" interest rate ceiling on home mortgages not to exceed 12 percent.

Clements reversed his earlier position of two weeks ago when he vowed to veto any bill raising the state's 10 percent limit to 12 percent.

"I can assure you that without Fannie Mae's action I would not have changed my position," the governor told a news conference.

The Federal National Mortgage Association, nicknamed Fannie Mae, said last week it no longer would purchase VA or FHA mortgage loans in Texas if buyers were charged the traditional "points" or special processing fees that exceeded the 10 percent usury limit.

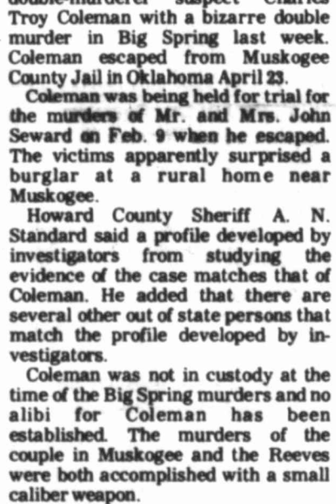

Clements said he had reviewed Sen. Bill Meier's draft proposal of a floating interest rate and added it meets his requirements.

Meier, D-Euless, and Rep. Jerry Donaldson, D-Gatesville, sponsored the original bill for a 12 percent interest cap that Clements blocked two weeks ago. Both legislators were present at Clements news conference.

The floating rate, the governor explained, would be tied to some federal monetary index rate.

"I believe the 10-year Treasury bond rate is the proper rate," Clements said. "There would be a fixed percentage on top of that and I am suggesting 2 percent."

He added that today the 10-year bond rate is 9.31 percent. If the floating rate were operating today, the cap would be 11.31, Clements said.

GOV. BILL CLEMENTS

However, the actual market selling rate is 10.55 percent, he continued.

"In my opinion, if we were perating under that today, the rate would be slightly less than 10.55 on mortgages," said Clements, who said he had reviewed reams of material on the subject.

Attorney General Mark White informally has decided that a floating interest rate tied to a definite cap would meet constitutional requirements for a usury limit, the governor added.

Although switching positions on a higher interest limit, Clements reiterated that increased interest rates are bad for the public and inflationary.

"There is no question that the public out there, the Texas public, does not want higher interest rates on their mortgages," he said. "That is just like saying, 'Give me a bad case of poison ivy.'"

He blamed the Carter Administration in part and questioned the timing of Fannie Mae's announcement.

"It's certainly a coincidence that all this is taking place here within two or three weeks," he said. "It is a rather strange coincidence but the situation does exist and I have no other choice."

Clements denied trying to "play safe" by letting Fannie Mae force him into a position on higher rates.

The federal government should come out against increase interest rates, he urged. However, Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal does not believe higher interest rates are inflationary, the governor said.

"He is certainly working for and under the control of Mr. Carter," Clements said when asked if the president was trying to force increase interest rates in Texas.

"Fannie Mae is a federal entity of sorts. He (Carter) appoints five directors. And the VA and FHA programs are federal programs," he added.

Action / reaction: Not required

Q. Does Texas law require that the deceased be embalmed before burial?

A. No. But, according to Tommy Welch of River-Welch Funeral Home, if embalming is not done, a public health law requires that burial occur within 24 hours after death. Embalming, he said, is done for viewing purposes and allows the deceased's family time for funeral services.

Check roof

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — After a storm, take a few moments to inspect your roof.

Wind and rain can dislodge or tear off shingles, says Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., shingle manufacturer. Out-of-place shingles can allow water to seep under the roof, causing leaks.

Police beat

'Battering rams' bang doors

Vehicles as battering rams? That is apparently an idea that has some credence with local criminals.

Someone drove a large vehicle of some kind over the sidewalk and into the front door of the Teachers Credit Union Office, 708 11th, Wednesday night. Police speculate that a car or truck bumper was used to bend the door's frame and break both adjoining plate-glass windows.

Damage was estimated at between $600 and $700.

Although investigators have found no connection between the two incidents, the office door at the Southwest Tool Company, 901 E. 2nd, was also rammed Wednesday night. Officers believe that a pickup or truck trailer was backed through the screen door and wooden door at the company, causing over $100 worth of damage.

Virgil Spargo, I-20 Trailer Village, believes he knows who stole an eight-track tape, a record album and several items of clothing from his residence, Sunday. Loss was estimated at over $15.

A radar detector was stolen from a car belonging to Danny Heckler, 4202 Parkway, while it was parked at Fourth and Gregg, Tuesday afternoon. The device was valued at $139.

Two blond men stole a six pack of beer from the Seven-Eleven Store at 1801 S. Gregg. The brew was valued at $2.59.

Jack M. Broughton, 2104 Allendale, was badly cut and bruised in a motorcycle accident that occurred at FM 700 and Mesa, 2:19 a.m. today. According to reports, Broughton lost control of his bike, and skidded for 667 feet.

He is listed in stable condition at Malone-Hogan Hospital, which he walked to after the accident.

Four other mishaps were reported Wednesday.

A vehicle belonging to Theodore Hernandez, 1601 Canary, was struck by a vehicle that left the scene in the parking lot of Gibson's Discount Store, 1:37 a.m.

Vehicles driven by Chau Ut, 1110 E. 4th, and Gregory Phillippe, 1613 Lark, collided at Fourth and Main, 3:49 p.m.

'Up With People' cast will arrive Sunday

In just three days, ten tons of professional lighting equipment, an endless array of colorful costumes and two busloads of enthusiastic "Up With People" performers roll into Big Spring to prepare for their Tuesday night performance at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Sponsored by the Big Spring Herald, the show was arranged to benefit the Howard County United Way, which failed to meet its goal last year.

Tickets for the show, priced at $5 and $3.50 each, are on sale at the Herald and the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

The international musical production, which has entertained millions of people around the globe since 1966, is returning to Big Spring after an absence of two years.

It boasts a cast of 90 young men and women, ranging in age from 18 to 25. They represent a total of eight different countries, as well as a diverse cross section of economic backgrounds and ethnic origins. Sweden, Belgium, Canada and Norway are just a few of the foreign countries represented in the cast. Over the last dozen years, over 17 nationalities have taken part in the "Up With People" program.

Actually, "Up With People" has five casts totaling 450 people from 44 states and 17 countries currently on tour. Over the past four years, four million people in 815 communities across the U.S., and abroad have seen "Up With People" in live performances.

Major events such as the 1972 Olympic Games in Munich, Superbowl X and the Indianapolis 500 race have booked the "Up With People" cast for performances. This past May, a 30-member troupe gave 32 performances in six cities of the Peoples Republic of China. This marked the first time since the early 1940s that any European group has been allowed in the country. The 1979 schedule includes invitations to 500 cities and 14 countries in North, Central America and South America and Europe.

Karen Isaak, one of three "Up With People" workers who arrived here a couple of weeks ago to help promote the show, says the troupe will come to Big Spring Sunday and will perform during assemblies at Big Spring High School Monday.

This particular group has been performing in Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, California, Nevada, Idaho, Utah and old Mexico as well as Texas.

"The varied cultural experiences of travel, as well as involvement in the daily operations of the cast, such as promotion, transportation and interviewing of potential cast members, are all a part of the creative educational framework," Isaak said. During its 12-year history, 4,800 people have stayed in approximately 41,000 homes, each traveling 32,000 miles in an average tour.

Charles Beil, president of First Federal Savings and Loan Association, and his family will be hosting a member of the "Up With People" cast.

Beil said he has hosted many groups like "Up With People" in the past and invariably found it a rewarding experience.

"We have not yet been assigned our guests, but speaking from past experience, it always delightful," Beil said. "I find these people to be very talented, high caliber and very American."

Big Spring Savings and Loan Association has given the "Up With People" performance its support by purchasing block tickets to enable various community groups to attend which might not otherwise be able to.

Of the show, Ray Don Williams, president of Big Spring Savings, said:

"I think it is a tremendous thing and provides a wonderful opportunity for members of the cast. I just wish I had had the opportunity — and the talent — to do something like this when I was young."

"Up With People" will precede its May 8 public performance with some special shows for community groups. The cast will appear at the Big Spring State Hospital Monday and will be taken to the Mountain View Lodge and Park View Manor nursing homes for shows the following day. In addition, they are committed to present two shows to students of Big Spring High School and Runnels Junior High.

City, county to share rebates of drink tax

AUSTIN — State Comptroller Bob Bullock Monday said Texas cities and counties will share more than $5.2 million in rebates from the state's mixed drink tax.

Bullock said mixed drink sales for the first quarter of 1979 totaled more than $180 million.

His office has mailed checks totaling $5.2 million to some 200 counties and 354 cities as their share of the 10 percent gross receipts tax on mixed drinks sold in Texas during January, February and March of this year.

The balance of the tax money collected, $12.8 million, will go to the state's General Revenue Fund.

Howard County's share will be 15 percent of the $24,770.72 tax revenues collected in the county, or $3,715.61. Big Spring will receive an additional $3,302.64 on the $22,017.61 in taxes collected in the city limits.

Incorporated cities receive 15 percent of all sales taxes on mixed drinks sold within the city limits. County governments receive another 15 percent of sales in the county, including the sales made within city limits and outside the cities.

Tax revenues totaling $1,138.24 were collected in Dawson County, with the county's share coming to $170.74. Since Lamesa is dry, there were no sales within the city.

Of $1,571.95 in mixed drink taxes collected in Mitchell County, $235.79 will go to the County. Colorado City will receive $192.60 of the $1,284 in taxes collected in the city.

Bullock said mixed drink taxes generated $65.3 million for state, county and local governments in 1978.

The mixed drink tax is collected by the Alcoholic Beverage Commission and the city-county share is rebated on a quarterly basis by the Comptroller's office.

U.S. agency out to punish maverick

Some time, maybe in a few hundred years, scholars will undertake a study of American bureaucracy as it now exists and come to the conclusion that the system collapsed under its own weight. The reasons will be obvious — tragic, but obvious.

Any government institution that runs wild, that answers to no one, that defies the very people who created it and acts to punish those rash individuals who would challenge is destined to cave in sooner or later.

ONE SUCH agency is the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which recently was confronted by one Andrew Bavas. Mr. Bavas, it seems, has been a $40,000 a year civil servant with HEW who indicated he would refuse a $1,272 increase in his annual salary.

Aha, seemed to be the reaction of HEW, we have a viper in our midst. The tall millinery within the entity let it be known that Mr. Bavas was facing demotion, reassignment and a reduction in pay unless he played the game according to the rules.

Bavas' argument made sense to everyone but the decision makers within the agency. Andrew allowed as how it was "indecent" for bureaucrats to be "lapping up every dollar they can get at a time like this." He suggested that the money offered him could be put to better use.

Horrified that there was somebody within his department who dared to think, Bavas' superior said there was no provision in government regulations which would permit him to turn down the raise.

BAVAS SHOULD have let it go at that. Instead, he persisted. For his trouble, he has been notified that he will be transferred from Chicago to Philadelphia. In addition, his rank will be reduced from GS-15 to GS-13.

Some of Bavas' fellow employees are raling at him for trying to rock the boat. They tell him he should have accepted the raise and socked it away.

They'll never carve a statue for Andrew Bavas for what he did, but perhaps the poor beleaguered taxpayer should lead a cheer for him. He is one of the few to realize that the gravy train he's been on is a runaway freight, with no one at the controls.

FBI clearance sale

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — The FBI is considering renting out shops on the ground floor of the J. Edgar Hoover Building, its main headquarters. The idea was suggested by the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corp., which is trying to spruce up the street. The corporation director considers the building as it now stands cold, inhospitable and a waste of space. They say stores would bring life and warmth to the building, and the public wouldn't be afraid to go near it.

It all depends. There are pluses and minuses to the idea. The big plus is that the people who opened stores there wouldn't have to worry about shoplifting. A big minus is that the information in the computers upstairs might be made available to managers of the stores downstairs.

THIS IS WHAT could happen if, for example, a man goes in to buy a suit at the Hoover Haberdashery, which advertises that it sells the "10 Most Wanted Clothes in America."

"May I help you, sir?"

"I'd like a summer suit."

"Yes, sir. With or without a bulletproof vest?"

"Without. They're too hot in the summertime."

"I understand. May I have your name and Social Security number?"

"Thompson, Fred A. 093-16-1890."

THE SALESMAN puts the information into his computer and waits for a reply. Then he says, "I see you're a size 42 twith a 38 waist, that you always wear two-button suits, hate cuffs on your trousers and you're partial to green."

"I am not partial to green. Where did you get that information?"

"One of your neighbors told our people. He also told us you were a very sloppy dresser and that you never wear a belt when you're working on your car."

"Well, it so happens I don't want a green suit. I want a tan one."

The salesman hits the keys of the computer and waits. "It says here that your wife doesn't like you in tan. She claims you always get soup stains over the jacket."

"Did she tell you that?"

"No, one of your relatives did."

"I want a tan suit. Do you want to sell me one or not?"

"Of course, sir. You're the customer. Before you try one on I must advise you of your rights. If for any reason the suit does not fit or the pants are too long, you may remain silent until you have consulted with our fitter."

"I understand."

"NOW THIS IS an especially good buy. It was ordered by Jimmy Hoffa but he never picked it up. We've decided he doesn't need it any more so we're putting it on sale."

"It's a nice suit. How much is it?"

"$110."

"Okay, I'll take it."

"Will that be a charge or cash, sir?"

"I'll put it on my American Express card. Here it is."

The salesman starts spraying dust on the card.

"What are you doing?" Thompson asks.

"Looking for fingerprints. You can't be too careful when you take a credit card. I'll be right back, sir."

A few minutes later the salesman returns looking very grim.

"Did you ever know a Roderick Abernathy?" he asks.

"Yeh, I went to high school with him."

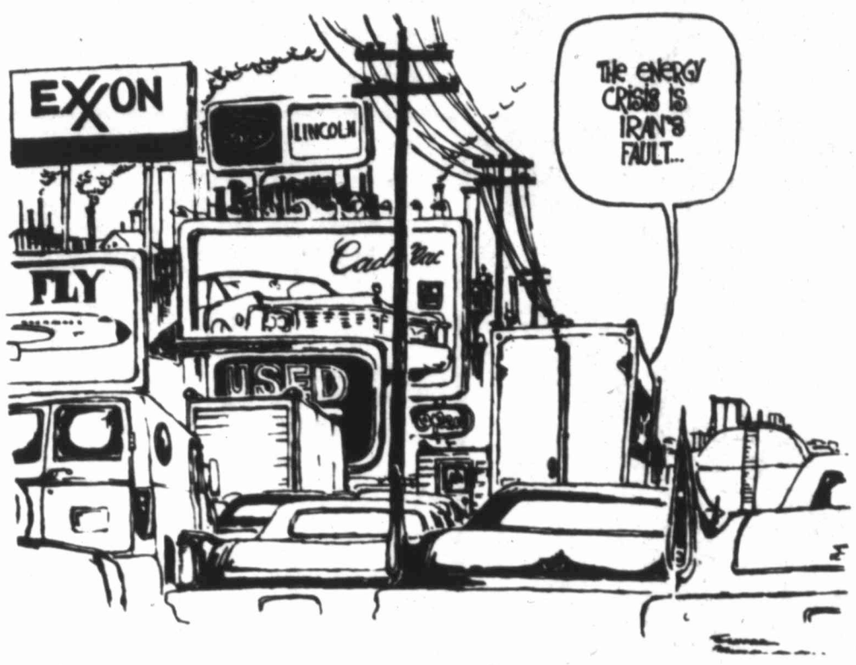

"Did you know he was a member of the Socialist Workers Party?"

"No, I didn't."

"Your file says you did. This is very embarrassing."

"Look, if it's a big deal I'll pay cash for the suit."

"Yes, that might solve the problem," the clerk says. He scratches his head with a pencil and two men come up to Thompson and show their FBI identification. One of them says, "Would you mind telling us where you got the cash to pay for that suit?"

Angina: Extra 'insurance' worthwhile

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Several months ago I had a mild heart attack. It resulted in small damage to the lower left side of the heart. Besides daily medication of Isordil, Nitro-Bid and Inderal, I must go walking every day for exercise. Can You tell me why I don't have to carry nitroglycerine tablets (the kind you put under your tongue). My doctor says I don't need them. Yet everyone with heart problems that I know tells me it is a must with them. Will you please explain? — Mrs. O.K.

Sublingual (under-the-tongue) pills are for people who report heart difficulties from normal activity (angina pectoris). The Isordil (isosorbide) relaxes the smooth muscles in the arteries. Your Nitro-Bid is a form of nitroglycerine. It has the same effect but is longer acting. Inderal propranolol decreases blood pressure and heart rate. If these are working for you, you probably don't need the other kind. Angina is unpredictable, though. Some doctors give sublingual pills to all patients with this problem as a little insurance against an attack. Patients often carry the pills for years and never need them. But the pills are dated and do lose potency with time, so they have to be replenished even if not used.

Your exercise, within limits, is helpful after a heart attack. See my booklet on angina. Send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of this newspaper, Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Six months ago I underwent breast surgery for cancer. It was discovered early. The lumph nodes under the arm were negative for cancer. I did not require chemotherapy. I am now 46.

My periods are somewhat irregular, such as two periods in one month. Others are always early. I have had two D and C's in the past. My doctor will not give me any hormones for menopause. He suggests a hysterectomy, since I would be getting rid of another major cancer site. I am also anemic and am taking a high potency iron supplement. What are your comments? — Mrs. A.J.

The negative report regarding the lumph nodes is good news. It means you have a good chance of complete cure from the surgery. Your doctor is following standard practice by not giving you hormones, which are not advised for a person with a history of breast cancer.

The vaginal bleeding is a matter of concern, however. It is probably causing your anemia (loss of blood that is not being replaced). The D and C's (scraping of the womb) have not helped, apparently. This fact by itself might warrant the hysterectomy (removal of your uterus) so long as the bleeding cannot be brought under control. The uterus, as your doctor said, is another site for cancer. Since at your age you probably do not contemplate more children, the resulting sterility is not a concern. You appear to be a likely candidate for the hysterectomy.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Can ear noises be caused by a tumor of the brain? I can't get this idea out of my husband's head. — J.S.

The likelihood of ear noises being caused by a brain tumor is very remote. There are so many varied causes of this common disturbance that a brain tumor would be one of the last considerations unless your husband had other, more disturbing symptoms than ear ringing or buzzing. Perhaps only a visit to a doctor will get this idea out of your husband's head. It might even get at the root of the ear symptoms.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

I would like to take this means to publicly commend the city councilmen who have been in the majority during the past eight years and are now relegated to the sidelines by the voters. Five of them are no longer in office — two still are, but no longer in the majority.

To Wade Choate, Polly Mays, Ralph McLaughlin, Ralph Brooks, Harold Hall, Charles Tompkins and Frog Koger — as well as to their named administrator, Harry Nagel — I would say thank you for a job well done.

I know the long hours you spent, the difficult decisions you made, and the agonizing and unfair criticism you underwent; but you were good for Big Spring.

Because of you, Big Spring has over 100 blocks of pavement they did not have before, an improved Scurry Street, an 11th Pl. and now an extension, improvements to the sewer and water department, an industrial park of which they can be proud, a good airport, improved parks and tourist attractions, a good land fill, and millions of dollars in grants and improvements.

Many of those grants went to projects on the North Side, an area which never once supported you, but you were fair to that segment of the community to the end.

To the voters I would say, you have made your choice. Support them, but also hold them to their promises. If they promised improved water and lower rates, lower taxes, improvements in the police and fire departments, cleaning up the dog situation and better trash pickup, hold them to it. Over the years, they had lots of advice on these matters. In recent weeks, they may have promised other things. I don't know. I wasn't there. But you are. The city belongs to the voters, and you are the ones who decide whether it becomes a boiling pot of activity or sits on the back burner and stews.

I miss you all.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have developed a physical problem which keeps me from doing all the things I really want to do. Do you think if I pray enough God will heal me? — H.P.

DEAR H. P.: No one can say in advance how God will choose to answer our prayers. The one thing we can say, however, is that God knows what is best for us. If we truly trust Him and seek His will in our prayers, He will answer in the way He knows is best for His purposes. The Bible tells us, "This is the assurance we have in approaching God: that we ask anything according to his will, he hears us" (1 John 5:14, New International Version).

I ask you one very important question: do you really want God's will in your life? Or are you hoping that somehow God will do only what you want Him to do? There is a world of difference between these two ways of looking at things. In other words, nowhere in the Bible do we find God promising us that He will heal us just so we will be free to do the things we selfishly want to do. On the other hand, God has promised us that He will give us the strength and power we need to do the things He wants us to do as His servants.

I urge you therefore to commit your life to Jesus Christ without reserve — not so you may be healed (for that may or may not happen), but that you may become a child of God. When you are a child of God, you know that your life is in God's hands, no matter what may happen. The Bible tells us, "And we know that in all things God works for the good of those who love him, who have been called according to his purpose" (Romans 8:28).

Crime of violence

Around the rim

Eileen McGuire

"To hell with the Supreme Court."

This is the attitude of an Oklahoma lawmaker who would set his state back 48 years to get even with rapists.

Representative Frank Shurden has introduced a proposal, passed by the state's House last week, that he says will rid the state of rape. He proposes to castrate (he prefers to call it asexualization) rapists.

His reasoning is that a sex offender "is like an alcoholic — they can't control it... They ought to be fixed."

Another Oklahoma representative, John Monks, agrees with Shurden. His opinion that castration is an effective solution is based on extensive research.

When he was a child on the farm, Monks told the Associated Press, he observed that after a fiesty young bull was castrated, the animal's "mind was on the grass all the time."

WITH ALL OF THE enlightenment that has surfaced on the subject of rape in recent years, I find it hard to believe that such a proposal could gain as much wide support as it is reported to have gained in Oklahoma.

Rape is not a crime of passion; it is an act of violence. The motivation to rape is not sexual gratification; it's the desire to hurt.

Ridding a man of his sexuality may curb the number of rapes, but I doubt that it will put his "mind on the grass." The venting of anger by hurting another person can be achieved in a number of sadistic ways, not just through rape.

Rather than calming the "fiesty young bull," mutilation, I would think, will have quite the opposite effect. Piling an inferiority complex on an already inferior personality will only compound the problem that caused him to rape in the first place.

The bull's fiestiness was based on an instinctual desire. Surely, man's complex emotions and mental processes can not be equated to a dumb beast who acts according to nature.

A society that attempts to solve its problems through mutilation is not going to suddenly be received with warmth by the individual who has been mutilated by it and then returned to it.

If we're going to solve violent acts by returning the violence in a method that will have permanent effects, then we had better be prepared to shoulder the financial responsibility for that person for the rest of his life because I doubt that he can ever be returned to society successfully. If castration is the only other alternative, it would be more humane and less of a financial strain on taxpayers to attach a quick and painless death penalty to the crime of rape.

BECAUSE JUDGES and jurors are fallible humans, an occasional mistake in punishing the wrong man could have rather devastating effects on at least one person involved. If a mistake is discovered after the castration occurs, how does the state of Oklahoma intend to make—if you'll pardon the phrase — amends?

Apologizing for wrongly incarcerating an individual is one thing, but how do you apologize for destroying an important part of his identity? The violence that results from violence may only beget more violence.

If we are going to castrate the rapist, then perhaps, in all fairness, we should apply the same principle to all lawbreakers.

We can make it impossible to steal by chopping off the hands of the theif and anyone who uses a gun in committing a crime could be blinded in order to prevent him from ever aiming it again. We can rip up the social security cards of embezzlers and forbid them from ever holding another job and he who throws a rock through his neighbor's window can be dragged out to the townsquare and stoned.

Oklahoma's answer to rape makes as much sense as Alabama's answer to poverty. Earlier this decade, young daughters of welfare recipients were being sterilized in that state in an effort to breed out state-supported families.

Sterilizing the poor was found to be unconstitutional and so might Oklahoma's answer to rape be. But as Shurden said, "To hell with the Supreme Court."

And to hell with civilization.

Record is fraud

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — "There are few documents more important than the Congressional Record," Lyndon Johnson once remarked. Unfortunately, he was right.

The daily transcript of debate on the floor of the House and Senate is used by federal agencies, the courts and historians to determine what Congress intended when it passed a given piece of legislation.

The trouble is that by the time members of Congress exercise their self-authorized right to "edit," "amend" and "extend" the remarks they actually made in debate, the result is often unrecognizable. In other words, the Congressional Record is a fraud. Insiders have called it a travesty, a comic book, a monumental sham.

THE DISCREPANCY between what was really uttered on the floor and what appears in the Record has been known for years to reporters who cover the House and Senate. Sometimes, indeed, it is an alert reporter's catch of a lawmaker's verbal foul ball — and his query to the congressman later — that will cause the member to revise his remarks into something less controversial.

But until now, the extent of the liberties congressmen take with faithfully transcribed floor debate has been undocumented. After stubbornly plowing through row after row of bureaucratic thickets, our associate Dale Van Atta became the first reporter to see the original transcript — and the changes made in it by members of Congress.

The existence of the verbatim transcript is something of a national secret. Few if any congressmen realize that the Government Printing Office — for its own protection — keeps the original record and its telltale "corrections" on file for three years.

Van Atta selected two days of relatively heated debate — Oct. 8 and 15, 1978 — to study for evidence of our lawmakers' oratorical shell game. He discovered literally thousands of deletions, insertions and changes, some trivial and some substantial.

The unlimited editing would appal American trial reporters, who never change a word that is spoken in the courtroom. It would perhaps be the envy of British and Canadian legislators, who have never voted themselves the right to have their second thoughts transcribed as original history.

In many places, the members of Congress have simply thrown away the official transcript (which is then lost forever) and glued in speeches or remarks they never made. Where the transcript has been preserved, there is a profusion of scribbled rewriting by such industrious political editors as Sen. Russell Long, D-La., who uses a heavy black felt pen, and Rep. Jim Santini, D-Nev., who favors a blue felt-tip. Former Rep. Robert Sikes, D-Fla., apparently ran the transcript through his own typewriter.

Frequently the changes tone down intemperate remarks made off the cuff or in the heat of debate. Rep. Tom Railsback, R-Ill., for example, called a memo by Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano "devious" on the floor. When the congressman cooled down later, he scratched out "devious" and wrote in "ill advised and poorly motivated."

REP. PHILIP SHARP, D-Ind., thought better of accusing a fellow congressman of "distortion" of facts, and changed it to "misunderstanding." Former Rep. Teno Roncallo, D-Wyo., told the House that some environmentalists had acted "with complete stupidity." But environmentalists vote, too, and Roncallo crossed out the offensive phrase first chance he got.

Rep. Robert E. Bauman, R-Md., sounded really pleased about a piece of HEW legislation in floor debate, but this was transformed into his "strong opposition" to it in the Congressional Record.

It's not unusual for the lawmakers to pencil in an eloquence they never achieved in extemporaneous debate. Rep. Bill Young, R-Fla., for instance, chided President Carter for, in effect, throwing rocks at Congress from a glass White House. "Oh consistency, where art thou?" Young's soliloquy ended. The poetic flourish was never uttered by Young on the House floor; it was scribbled onto the official transcript later.

The editing is of course sometimes done to cover embarrassing but obvious slips, such as Sen. Long's reference to 70 percent unemployment, and House Speaker Tip O'Neill's occasional lapses on parliamentary procedure.

Former Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., had this to say about former Senate aide and convicted felon Bolly Baker: "I can say Bobby because Bobby was from my home state and I know him and I happen to get along with him and like him." The entire reference was cut from the transcript.

Sometimes the meaning of the spoken words is turned completely upside-down by the editing. Rep. David Bown, D-Miss., evidently felt some doubts about a certain bill, noting on the floor that "most people can take issue" with it; this became "most people can take heart" in the Record.

And former Rep. Frank Evans, D-Colo., said flatly of a proposed amendment, "I would vote for it." After thinking it over afterward, he changed "vote for" to "strongly oppose."

On the light side

Ashes to ashes

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The Pennsylvania House has eliminated its biggest smoke-filled room.

Representatives voted 92-91 Wednesday to ban tobacco smoking in chambers. Rep. Ron Gamble, an Allegheny County Democrat, helped lead the fight with the cheer:

"Rabba dabba dee, rabba dabba doo,
"We're the boys from Allegheny U.
"We don't smoke and we don't chew
"And we won't sit with those who do."

But Rep. Camille (Bud) George, D-Clearfield, predicted a return of spittoons in the chamber:

"Twiddle dee dee, twiddle dee doo.
"On Monday morning,
"Bud George starts to chew."

Silver linings replaced

FAIRLAND, Ind. (AP) — Millions of dollars may soon be lining the walls of some Indiana homes.

Richard C. Dunagan, owner of Aerolite Foam Co. of Fairland, says his firm is a distributor for a new kind of insulation made from shredded American currency that has been taken out of circulation.

The recycled money is treated with a fire-proof material. When glue is added, it can be sprayed onto walls and into attics, he explained.

Dunagan said the average home would require about 65 bags, or a total of about $1.3 million.

"The color is good, if you like green," Dunagan said.

To prison, step on it

GRATERFORD, Pa. (AP) — Joseph Riley got a free ride to freedom but paid his way on the return trip.

Riley, 20, was released by mistake Tuesday from Graterford Prison and was given a ride into Philadelphia by a sheriff's deputy.

After learning on a television newscast that he was wanted for escape, Riley voluntarily returned to custody, police said. He took a taxi to the city's detention center.

Riley, who was serving a 22-to-45 year sentence after being convicted of robbery, attempted murder, assault and weapons charges, was not charged with escape. There was no immediate word on what his return trip cost.

Philadelphia Common Pleas Judge Fred DiBona said someone apparently was confused by his order that Riley's sentence be vacated and a new sentence determined. Riley was to have been jailed pending a June 4 hearing but the order apparently was misplaced, DiBona said.

"You can't blame him," said DiBona. "He was told he could go and he went."

1979 Starlight Specials shaped

The 1979 Starlight Specials are being lined out by chairman Frank Wentz and the sponsoring Cultural Affairs Committee of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, with a few changes from the conventional shows.

In the 13th consecutive year for the specials, there will be a minimum donation of 25 cents, with the money to be used for renovation of the Comanche Trail Park Amphitheater, where the events are held.

The first program will be Saturday, May 12, sponsored jointly by Phillips Memorial Baptist Church and Midway Baptist Church. Groups from the two churches, as well as other area churches and from Midland, will perform gospel music. For additional information, contact Robby Barrett, Phillips Baptist Church, at 267-7512.

The first program will begin at 7 p.m.

Other programs in the outdoor entertainment project will include Dr. Gale Kilgore's Country-Western Band, Fiesta Night, the Community Theater, a back-to-school pep rally and several Gospel Sing programs.

"Your support and contributions will be greatly appreciated," said Wentz, "and will help to build up a fund for renovation of the amphitheater and make possible better entertainment for the people of Big Spring in the future."

Coahoma High Rodeo Friday

The Coahoma High School Rodeo, an annual event since 1970, will be held [illegible] at the Coahoma Roping Arena.

Approximately 25 CHS students, most entered in more than one event, will compete in bareback bronc and bull riding; tie-down, ribbon, breakaway and team roping; chute dogging; barrel, pole and flag races; goat sacking; and a rescue race.

Pete Jenkins will donate his time again this year as announcer for the rodeo, and the stock will be provided by Charlie Thompson, of Lubbock.

The gates and statistics will be kept by the parents, who each year contribute their efforts to the event.

Admission is 50 cents, with that money and proceeds from the concession going to pay the cost of the rodeo. Any profits will go to the CHS rodeo Club, which sponsors the rodeo.

Texans have night of violent weather

By the Associated Press

Thunderstorms rumbled across the Texas Panhandle early today after a night of violent weather brought heavy thunderstorms, high wind and hail across a vast section of Northwest Texas.

Forecasts called for more thunderstorm activity across all of Texas except for extreme southwestern sections today. The National Weather Service warned that some of the thunderstorm activity in North Texas could become severe late today.

A flash flood watch was in effect throughout the day and evening for most of North and North Central Texas. The watch area covered everything north of a line from San Angelo to Alexandria, La.

The wild weather was triggered by a cold front stretching across southwestern Oklahoma into the Permian Basin and an influx of moist, unstable air from the Gulf of Mexico. The shower and thunderstorm activity was expected to continue through Friday.

Golf ball size hail fell during the night in the Amarillo and Pampa area and there were numerous reports of pea size and marble size hail throughout the Panhandle during the night.

FORECAST

WEST TEXAS — Scattered showers and a few thunderstorms most sections with occasional rain north and scattered thunderstorms south. Cooler north. Decreasing cloudiness Friday with widely scattered showers southeast.

EXTENDED FORECAST

WEST TEXAS — Partly cloudy with no important temperature changes Saturday through Monday. Scattered showers or thunderstorms Sunday and over the east on Monday. The lows 40s north to the 60s south. The highs 70s north to upper 90s Big Bend.

Health specialist advises doctor cutback

BOSTON (AP) — American medical schools should cut back their enrollments now to avoid a glut of physicians that could lock doctors into cut-throat competition and promote unnecessary treatment, says a public health specialist.

"Increasing evidence suggests that there will be a surfeit of physicians in this country within the next three decades," says Dr. Donald B. Louria of the New Jersey Medical School.

In 1950, he said, there was one doctor in the United States for every 735 people. In 1980, there will be one for every 500, and by 2020, there may be one physician for every 250 or 300 people if the current trend continues.

Writing in today's New England Journal of Medicine, Louria said schools are turning out doctors at a far faster rate than the nation is growing.

Louria, who is chairman of his school's department of preventive medicine and community health, said this will mean more doctors scrambling for less business.

"To me, it seems clear that a doctor glut by 1990, 2000 or 2020 will make the practice of medicine unpleasant, create cut-throat competition, force an increasing focus by the physician on the monetary aspects of medicine, raise costs per patient work-up, encourage the ordering of unnecessary tests and examinations and undermine efforts toward less expensive preventive medicine," he wrote.

Frank Chappell, spokesman for the American Medical Association, praised Louria as a "distinguished physician" but said a doctor glut is contrary to the policy of the AMA's board of delegates as well as current trends.

"It's completely clear when you try to get an appointment with a doctor these days," Chappell said Wednesday night. "Anyway, how many doctors is enough? We haven't defined that...It's true there's going to be a lot of them, but that's a product of demand by the American people."

Louria also said there should be a national effort to find the ideal ratio of doctors and patients.

"If we wait until a saturation point is reached and then react, it will be too late," he said. "Even (harsh) measures will not prevent catastrophic effects on the practice of medicine in the United States."

Currently, 60,000 students are enrolled in American medical schools, Louria said. "We should begin now a phased reduction in the number of physicians trained, amounting ultimately to several thousand new students per year."

This suggestion may be opposed by politicians, he said, because it will increase the cost of educating individual doctors.

Country Music awards given at ceremonies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Kenny Rogers, the Oak Ridge Boys and Barbara Mandrell shared top honors as the Academy of Country Music awards went prime time with a star-studded telecast featuring more music than talk.

Rogers, who walked into the Hollywood Paladium with nominations in five categories, emerged with two prestigious prizes — the top male vocalist and entertainer of the year awards.

The silver-bearded singer's hit "The Gambler" already has won the country song of the year Grammy this year. But Rogers, who won four awards from the Academy last year, said the Country Music honors were the most gratifying.

"It represents a lot of work, a lot of effort," Rogers said, "and this way I can justify to my wife being on the road so much."

The Oak Ridge Boys, who took away silvery cowboy hat trophies for top vocal group and whose "Ya'll Come Back Saloon" recording was album of the year, also came to country music through a side door — gospel. The Tennessee-based quartet has won four Grammys for their gospel recordings.

Miss Mandrell, who co-hosted the two-hour show with Roy Clark and Dennis Weaver, said her award for top female vocalist caught her completely by surprise.

"I didn't even compose a speech," she said, "but gosh, you've made me happy."

Other winners were:

Best Single Record — "Tulsa Time" by Don Williams; Best Song of the Year — "You Needed Me" by Anne Murray; Top New Male Vocalist — John Conlee; Top New Female Vocalist — Christy Lane.

All Star Band — bass, Rod Culpepper; fiddle, Johnny Gimble; drums, Archie Francis; guitar, James Burton; keyboard, Jimmy Pruitt; steel guitar, Buddy Emmons; specialty instrument, Charlie McCoy, harmonica.

Touring Band of the Year — Leon McAuliffe with the Original Texas Playboys; Top Band of the Year, non-touring — The Rebel Playboys, headed by Danny Michaels.

Motherhood disability benefits come at a cost

NEW YORK (AP) — In an almost unanimous vote for motherhood, Congress last October changed the law of the land to provide disability income for employees who lose work time because of pregnancy.

But motherhood comes at a price, and eventually the price of the new legislation, which became effective April 29, will be felt by everyone, in their insurance costs immediately, and in product prices later.

"Social legislation has to be paid for. Ultimately, all society pays for it," says Lloyd Kaye, an authority on the subject. "It's an added cost; it's got to be reflected in higher prices."

Kaye, legal counsel to William M. Mercer, Inc., the nation's largest employee benefit consulting firm, estimates the added cost to insurance programs will be at least 5 percent to 10 percent.

His rule-of-thumb guide is that costs of disability insurance plans will rise about one-half the percentage of women on the payroll. If 50 percent are women, the cost increase is likely to be 25 percent.

Note: That's for disability income plans; the impact on medical benefit plans is likely to be much less, since many plans already have provisions for pregnancy payments.

As Kaye explains it, a company without an insurance plan might have no problem. But not necessarily. If, for example, its practice is to pay a worker out with a virus, it now must do the same for a pregnancy.

While shocks to medical plans — as distinct from disability income plans — will be limited, they'll be felt. In some, for example, benefits were nominal; now they must be on par with other payments.

It could have an added impact on some plans, because in the name of equality a male worker is entitled to medical benefits for his wife's pregnancy. Thus, male as well as female workers may collect more.

But the seismic-like shocks will be felt mainly by the disability income plans — plans that provide for a continuance of income, perhaps on a descending scale as the period grows longer, for work time lost.

Few plans up to now permitted pregnant employees to leave work and remain on the payroll, and for what seemed to have been a sound reason: The Supreme Court said you didn't need to pay them disability income.

That decision, in Gilbert versus General Electric in 1964, eventually distressed Congress. Last fall it passed with almost no opposition a bill to change the law. President Carter signed it last October.

Now that the law is on the books, as of last Sunday, those concerned with equal rights might have another loophole to fill. If women are given disability pay for pregnancy, how do you give men equal benefits.

One of two surrenders to police

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — One of the two men wanted in connection with the kidnap-slaying of Cleveland businessman Julius Kravitz turned himself in to the Akron police today.

Detective Sgt. Joe Bosco said John A. File, 26, of Cleveland telephoned Akron police officer Richard Reese at home early today and told him he wanted to meet with him.

Bosco said Reese did not know File, but police later said one of File's relatives had been arrested by Reese a few years ago. File apparently remembered Reese's name and thought that the officer had treated his relative fairly, police said.

Reese agreed to meet File at a school at 3 a.m. At the meeting, File turned himself in. He was being held today at the Akron jail.

A second man being sought, Michael G. Levine, 35, of Lyndhurst, was still at large.

Warrants filed in Shaker Heights against the two men charge them with kidnapping and aggravated murder in the slaying of Kravitz and the wounding of his wife.

Police said earlier the two men could have left the state, possibly with a $100,000 bankroll.

Police believe it was Levine who fired upon Julius and Georgene Kravitz in the back seat of Kravitz's car hours after the couple was kidnapped Tuesday from their Shaker Heights apartment.

The two men allegedly drove the Kravitzes to a motel in Kravitz's car after forcing their way into the couple's 12-room apartment. Kravitz tried unsuccessfully to raise the ransom by telephone.

Mrs. Kravitz, 56, was shot in both arms but was able to push herself from the automobile and escape. Kravitz, 68, board chairman of First National Supermarkets Inc., was hit three times in the chest and died Wednesday of heart failure following surgery, hospital officials said.

Gold bricks a protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. George V. Hansen is using a flatbed truck filled with 44,300 simulated gold bricks to express his opposition to the new Panama Canal treaties.

The truck arrived on Capitol Hill Wednesday to dramatize what the Idaho Republican says is the $4.1 billion cost to taxpayers of implementing the treaties. The State Department denied Hansen's estimate and said the cost to taxpayers will be $870 million, more than twice its earlier estimate. The treaties turn the canal over to Panama by Dec. 31, 1999.

Big Spring State Hospital in 40th year

Dr. Grace Ferguson strives for fast, quality care in good conditions

By EILEEN MCGUIRE

Getting patients in without delay, providing them with quality care, and moving them to good condition in as short a time as possible is Dr. Grace Ferguson's ambition for the Big Spring State Hospital.

The hospital had been without a fulltime director for nearly a year and a half when Dr. Ferguson arrived last November as the hospital's new superintendent. She brought with her years of study and experience in the mental health field.

Raised in Utah, Dr. Ferguson graduated with a major in biological sciences from the University of Utah. She received her M.D. from the same university in an accelerated program near the end of World War II.

She interned at the Swedish Covenant in Chicago and spent a three-year residency in psychiatry at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center.

Her extensive career in New York City, from 1952 to 1975, included private practice, teaching at Cornell University Medical College and serving as a psychiatrist for the New York Family Court System. During her last five years in New York, she served a series of court clinics in an adminstrative capacity.

Moving to Texas in 1975, Dr. Ferguson worked as a psychiatrist at the Texas Research Institute of Mental Science in Houston until 1977. During that time, she received her M.Ph. from the University of Texas.

Prior to coming to Big Spring, she served as a clinical director of community programs in Gulfport, Miss.

In disucssing the function of the state hospital, Dr. Ferguson said, "I see our purpose as getting patients in without delays, adequately diagnosing them, providing rapid treatment and moving them as quickly as possible to discharge or transfer to a more permanent facility.

"We have found that extended periods of time in hospitals is not desirable. It's better to move the patients through as quickly as possible.

The rapid treatment that Dr. Ferguson desires for patients is coupled with a desire to provide the best possible care for them.

"Quality care for the patients is a mandate," she said, noting state hospital is a registered agency, accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation on Hospitals.

A tough task lies ahead for Dr. Ferguson and the hospital, however, due to proposed budget cuts by the state legislature. The rapid quality treatment that Dr. Ferguson strives to provide may, in the future, have to be accomplished on a reduced budget.

"Because it's difficult to see in what direction the governor, legislature and taxpayers are going, it's difficult to see the direction of the hospital past the next four years.

"The governor wants to cut state employment by 25 percent over the next four years at a rate of six percent a year. He has not clearly stated how this is to be done."

She said that the state hospital will not suddenly decrease it personnel, but in the future, vacated positions will be carefully examined by an appointed committee to see whether it is vital to fill that position.

"We will have to set priorities," she said.

The proposed budget cut comes at a time when admissions, according to Dr. Ferguson, are slightly higher than usual.

"Over the years, the population in state hospitals nationally have decreased 60 percent, but this doesn't mean there is less mental illness. The Big Spring State Hospital is experiencing the same number of admissions and a high rate of readmissions, but for a shorter stay."

She added that since her arrival, the hospital has had a slight increase in admissions and suggested this might be due to an increased population.

In discussing her personal interests in the mental health field, Dr. Ferguson referred to a subject she had used for her masters thesis.

"I'm extremely interested in finding alternative forms of care rather than just focusing on funding and sources of financial programs."

With her background in community psychiatry, she has had an opportunity to evaluate certain alternative forms of providing patient treatment and noted that group homes were very effective for some patients.

The Big Spring State Hospital enters its 41st year in June with a new superintendent, new challenges and a renewed dedication to the areas it serves. Rapid treatment, quality care and direction is what Grace Ferguson is focused on.

What the next 40 years will bring to the hospital is unimaginable, but she did comment on the next five.

"I would like to see more clearly where the state hospital is going. I would like to get a clear idea of where we will be five years from now."

"I'm working on that."

Many superintendents have headed up BSSH

When Dr. Grace Renee Ferguson took over as superintendent of the Big Spring State Hospital in November 1978, she became the eleventh doctor to head up the hospital during its 40 years of service to the community and the state. Prior to the arrival of Dr. Ferguson, Adolph Supak had served as acting superintendent for more than a year.

Mr. Supak took over as acting superintendent in August 1977 following the resignation of Dr. Wallace C. Hunter. Dr. Hunter had served as Clinical Director under Dr. Preston E. Harrison, who was associated with the hospital from 1953 until his death in August 1975. Dr. Hunter was appointed superintendent and served for two years.

Dr. George McMahan, a native of Van Alstyne and a graduate of Baylor Medical College, was the first superintendent of the hospital. Dr. McMahan assumed his duties in January 1938, although the hospital did not open until June 1939. The first superintendent resigned late in 1941 to enter service during World War II.

Dr. McMahan was succeeded in the superintendency by Dr. C.A. Shaw, who served only a few months until his departure in 1942. Dr. Glen Weaver assumed the top job for three years. On his resignation in 1945, Dr. Garnett Miller served until 1946.

Dr. Andrew M. Bowden was superintendent from 1946 until 1950; he was succeeded by Dr. Robert W. Syler. Dr. Samuel Hoerster assumed the post for a year following Dr. Syler's resignation in 1952. Dr. Roy Sloan became superintendent in 1953 and remained at the job until his retirement in 1957.

Dr. Harrison began his tenure with the hospital in 1953, served for a time as acting superintendent in 1957, and was made superintendent in 1958.

Weather extremes top hospital's major events

Extremes of weather seem to figure in many events marking the history of the Big Spring State Hospital. The hospital was dedicated June 6, 1939 — a hot day, but nothing to compare with the one which marked the observance of the 30th anniversary, June 22, 1939. That observance, which featured a visit from Lt. Governor Ben Barnes, is remembered by hospital employees as one of the hottest days ever on the hospital grounds.

But it wasn't always that way; the hospital's birth pangs were observed in an opposite environment: "On a bleak day — January 13, 1938 — four men bundled in overcoats to shut off a nipping north wind, dug shovels into the deep sandy soil just north of Big Spring.

"As they spaded the earth, cameras clicked to record the event, for it marked the formal beginning of work on an $817,000 psychiatric institution to be known as the Big Spring State Hospital...The story behind it had been six years in the making."

IN THOSE WORDS, the Big Spring Herald recalled the events of the historic day in its edition marking the open house and the formal dedication of the hospital June 6, 1939.

The hospital's location was indeed a long time in the making, and the home stretch had found Big Spring in heated competition with 13 other West Texas communities.

Probably the beginning of the hospital dates from Dec. 18, 1932, when a joint legislative committee on organization and economy observed that "very intensive savings can be made in the future by logical location of new plants." Then it continued: "It is believed, therefore, that plans should be made immediately for the replacing of the Austin Hospital by one located in the general vicinity of Howard County, since this is the junction of the two main cross state automobile routes as well as the approximate population center of the west half of the state."

IDEA BURIED AND REVIVED

With a great depression to worry about, legislators buried the report. It remained dormant for three years. In 1935, however, the idea began to be revived. W. T. (Tanlac) Strange, Chamber of Commerce manager, reported in confidence that "someday not far off there's to be a big state institution built in West Texas (and quoting a state official) and Big Spring is where it ought to go."

That was in February, and on April 9, the Chamber of Commerce tried to get Sen. A.P. Duggan to introduce a bill for the hospital. He replied that it was too late in the session. Governor James V. Allred kept the heat on for a West Texas hospital, and HB 397 — authored by Rep. J. Doyle Settle and pushed by Sen. G.H. Nelson, both of Lubbock — passed both houses. Governor Allred blue-pencilled out a companion hospital in East Texas — which already had one — and signed the bill May 26, 1937. The measure specified that the institution be west of the 100th meridian and on not less than 300 acres of donated land, with adequate water at a suitable rate.

Big Spring at once went into action. Dr. P. W. Malone, chamber president, named an eleemosynary committee to be headed by J. H. (Jimmie) Greene, the new manager of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce.

THE BOARD OF CONTROL, whose responsibility it was to make the selection, came to Big Spring June 28-29, 1937, to inspect four sites on which the committee had obtained options. The sites were located: five miles south of town; just south of Washington Place; five miles east of town; and one mile north of town. The latter site was the one which pleased the board.

But San Angelo, Odessa, Midland, Kermit, Lamesa, Lubbock, Slaton, Plainview, Amarillo, Colorado City, Sweetwater and Abilene were also making spirited bids for the location. The selection settled down to a choice between Big Spring and Sweetwater.

To counteract a question about ample water, Big Spring pledged 300,000 gallons a day at 10 cents per thousand, or to deed the State five wells capable of producing that amount. The city also upped the amount of land it would give to 560 acres. The committee had obtained optaions on the land for $80 to $100 an acre; it also had pledges from the city and local utility companies to get water, electricity and gas to the site.

On August 1, 1937, the Herald observed that "virtually everything that could be done has been done, and Big Spring still has a mighty good chance at the hospital."

FIVE DAYS LATER, the Board of Control announced that it was "of the opinion that the City of Big Spring offers the best opportunity for conveniently serving the people of West Texas." The selection, of course, was conditioned on the city's promises contained in its application.

"City is Awarded Hospital; Mass Meeting Set Tonight," read the Herald's banner. "Big Spring has won an $817,000 institution today, the largest single development ever to come this city's way...To thresh out the financing program, which businessmen agree calls for concerted action, a city-wide meeting has been called...in the Settles Hotel ballroom."

Out of this meeting came a petition for a $50,000 bond issue, quickly signed by 560 people, and on Aug. 26 the issue carried by a 606-17 vote, a 35-1 ratio.

Bob Schermerhorn, chamber president, observed, "They have left the baby on our doorstep; we must bring it into the house." Bringing it in was fraught with problems, among them oil and gas leases on the land. To settle these claims, officials quickly raised $2000. Then the Board of Control specified a railroad spur. Howard County spent $40,000 in acquiring land and grading it; $1,200 was raised in a few hours to meet another right of way requirement.

Bids were opened in Austin December 7. The city sold buildings on the site for $1,626, but spent $7,000 to extend the water lines.

IN TIME, HOWEVER, all the preliminaries were completed. Thus the groundbreaking on that raw January day 41 years ago. Meantime, the legislature had appropriated another $199,916 for equipment and for operations to Sept. 1, 1939. A budget of $723,166 was set up for the biennium.

On the day of the open house, people from Big Spring and surrounding areas thronged the eight new buildings with their Georgian style architecture. The superintendent, Dr. George T. McMaham, said he had never seen anything like it.

As the hospital and community prepare to mark the 40th anniversary of hospital operation, the consensus seems to be that the hospital is still a fairly remarkable place in its ervice to the citizens of West Texas.

Executive secretary relates

More specialization involved

Working at the Big Spring State Hospital has been a way of life for lots of families. Employees include children who have grown up in the system as well as couples. One husband and wife team who have contributed to the service of BSSH for many years are Marie and Jim McDonald

Marie came to work at the hospital in May 1950 and is still working as executive secretary on the Medical unit. Jim started work at the hospital in August 1950 and retired in August 1978 following a severe heart attack and heart surgery.

"When I started to work, there wasn't the kind of specialization that there is now," Mrs. McDonald recalls. "I went to work as a clerk in supply, but the accounting office, personnel department, payroll section, and supply were all housed in one office. We worked then at the west end of the hospital in what is now the supply building. There were six of us to take care of all the work of those four departments."

Mrs. McDonald recalled that she started to work for $165 per month and paid back $50 for room and board. She spoke of the much larger patient load in the early days and stressed that the average number of employees in the early days was 240 to 250, although some months it reached 300.

"There was a 10 o'clock curfew then for all employees who lived on the hospital campus," she said, "and most of us did. There was a chain link fence, five feet or so high on the front of the hospital grounds. The rest of the acreage was fenced in with sheep wire topped with barbed wire.

(PHOTO BY DANNY VALDES)

CHECKING THE TIMES — As executive secretary to Betty Condray, unit administrator of the Medical Unit at Big Spring State Hospital, Marie McDonald must spend much of her time checking dates and times to set up schedules.

Maybe it is not something that should be recalled, but one of the big things for employees was to beat the curfew and stay out later than 10 p.m. The patients stayed on locked units, so none of them left the grounds except when authorized, but plenty of employees were climbing fences in to the hospital grounds after hours."

Mrs. McDonald recalled that the fence came down in the mid fifties. And at that time she was moving to the administration building as a payroll clerk in the Administration building. In the meantime, Jim, who had started as a boiler operator on the night shift, moved to a regular maintenance job. In late 1954, he worked for a time as the claims officer; and in September 1956, he became the supply officer, a job he held until his retirement last year.

"I remember that the canteen was across the hall from us in the ad building," Mrs. McDonald noted, "but it certainly wasn't like it is now with patients dropping in and out. In those days, a nurse or attendant came with a big box to pick up all the orders and take them back to the unit."

The McDonalds moved in 1957 to one of the houses back of the maintenance department on the west end of the campus. Patients then were allowed to work as yard men, and there was a large community garden for staff and patients near their home. The garden plot contained flowers and almost every kind of vegetables. And about the same time, as an innovation, patients were starting gardens beside the unit buildings.

Horses and mules were still used for much of the hauling on the grounds. Mrs. McDonald remembers that the laundry cart, horse-drawn like the old bakery or milk wagons, was one of the favorite pasttimes for her nine-year-old son. He would ride in the back of the wagon or beside the driver on the rounds to pick up laundry from all the units.

"The most traumatic experience we had out here was finding our son, at 11 or 12 years of age, after he and another boy had climbed to the top of the water tower," Mrs. McDonald added. "And that was not just to the top of the platform, but to the very top of the tower. We talked them down one step at a time, but I don't believe they were ever as scared as we were."

Early in the 1960s, employees were encouraged to start moving off the hospital grounds. New rules demanded more square footage per patient and the buildings were needed for patient care, Mrs. McDonald said.

"We have seen many changes in our years here," she concluded, "and we feel that it was good then just as it is good now. The hospital has been good to and for many people, both patients and employees through all its years of service."

Millions of dollars turned over in Big Spring economy annually

The Big Spring State Hospital is a nine-million dollar annual business.

While this does not begin to tell what it does in fulfilling its mission in bringing mentally ill people back into the mainstream of life, it does afford some idea of its scope.

Here are some of the statistics connected with the hospital, based on the last fiscal year, ended Aug. 31, 1978:

Total expended $8,615,174 in appropriated funds; payroll $6,982,741, of which $337,747 was reimbursed to the hospital by the CETA program. There were 726 employees, including 10 doctors, 1 dentist, and 50 CETA trainees.

The average daily patient population was 387; the average length of patient stay was 121 days; and the cost was $52.80 per day or $6,389 per discharge. Admissions during the year amounted to 825. readmissions 983, and the total separations 1,743.

In addition to the patients treated in the hospital, another 4,116 patients were seen with 53,748 visits at the out-patient clinic on the hospital grounds.

Not all of the funds were pure expense to the state, for collections reported by the hospital cashier amounted to $1,658,033. Included in this figure was $1,025,489.09 from medicare, medicade, and private payments, as well as $56,844 from outpatient clinics.

Most of the $233,775 food bill was from central supply and contracted, but some items were purchased locally. And, of course, utilities and other service charges are paid in town.

No studies have been made on the amount of revenue generated in the community from visitors to the hospital, but it is estimated conservatively to be more than half a million dollars a year.

A LOT OF RUBBER — Some very expensive tires passed through Big Spring Wednesday enroute to potash mines near Artesia, N.M. The tires, shown above, were being transported from Topeka, Kan. to be used on heavy truck equipment at the mines. The collection includes seven 51-inch fabric tires and one 51-inch radial. The price of just one of these tires is a bargain at $12,000, but may range as high as $19,000. That's a lot of money for a lot of rubber!

24 being sought in drug scheme

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Authorities have begun arresting 24 persons in four states indicted by a federal grand jury here in an alleged scheme to smuggle 86 tons of Colombian marijuana, valued at an estimated $69 million, into Texas.

Assistant U.S. Attorney David P. Baugh said 19 persons named in the 28-count indictment had been arrested Wednesday. And he said authorities expected to roundup most of the others soon.

The indictment alleges that four men — shipbuilder Martin Marion Sneed Sr. of Orange, Charles Elbert Foster of Denton, John Ruppel of Gatlinburg, Tenn., and Carlos Gerdes of Newport, Tenn.—financed the purported smuggling operation.

The indictment, which was returned Tuesday but not unsealed until Wednesday, cited violations of federal racketeering laws.

Baugh said the investigation still was underway.

"I've never seen a drug case end. Drug cases grow and grow. There's a strong possibility that our files are going to be open for quite a while," said Baugh.

Sneed surrendered to authorities Wednesday, and his bond was set at $40,000 by U.S. Magistrate Charles K. Ruth.

Ruppel, described as a millionaire recluse who made a fortune in the land development business in Pinellas County, Fla., posted a $250,000 bond in Knoxville, Tenn., Wednesday.

Gerdes and Foster were still at large Wednesday.

The investigation began after the Orange County Sheriff's Department arrested two men and confiscated 1,000 pounds of marijuana on the trawler Bayou Blues in March 1978.

Texas Tech medical school enrollment increases

LUBBOCK — President Cecil Mackey of the Texas Tech University School of Medicine has received formal notice from the Liaison Committee on Medical Education (LCME) that an increase in medical school enrollment from 60 to 80 has been approved for the entering class of September 1979.

In addition, continued full accreditation for a two-year period has been conferred.

Action of this official accrediting body for American medical education followed recommendations of a survey team which visited the medical school Jan. 29-Feb. 1. Purpose of the visit was to assess progress of the medical school and its readiness to increase student enrollment.

A supplemental report will be submitted to the LCME in Washington, D.C., no later than January of 1980, according to medical school Dean George S. Tyner. The report will provide information on the school's ability to increase enrollment beyond 80 students in September of 1980 and 1981. This ability will depend on assimilation of resources available to the medical school to educate students at the junior level.

Senate begins debate on 1980-81 state budget

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — When senators begin debate possibly next week on the state's 1980-81 budget, they will start with a proposal that is $500 million more expensive than a House-passed version.

The $20.8 billion two-year budget approved Wednesday by the Senate Finance Committee also exceeds Gov. Bill Clements' proposal by $1 billion.

Jim Oliver, assistant director of the Legislative Budget Board, said the finance committee version will leave about $50 million "unobligated and available for other purposes."

Clements proposed a $19.8 billion budget and a plan to cut state taxes by $1 billion.

Finance committee totals that differ from the House version include:

—$269 million more in state funds for local school districts.

—A 5.1 percent pay raise for state teachers, compared to 7 percent approved by the House.

—A 5.1 percent salary increase for district judges, compared to a 19.8 percent annual raise voted by representatives.

Once the Senate passes a budget bill, the versions of both chambers will be sent to a conference committee to work out differences.

Both the House and finance committee proposals include the step-up increases for teachers at various experience levels that Clements has criticized as unnecessary and unfair to other state employees.

Committee members decided to raise state employees' salaries by 5.1 percent a year. The House bill provides money to raise state employees 7 percent, but only on the first $20,000 of their salaries.

The committee voted to give 5.1 percent pay raises to state university faculty and staff making $15,000 or less. School presidents would decide whether to grant raises to persons making more than $15,000.

Sen. A.R. "Babe" Schwartz, D-Galveston, objected to leaving any raises for college employees to the whims of administrators. He promised a floor fight to raise the ceiling to $20,000.

Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan, persuaded fellow committee members to add $330,000 for the biennium to raise reseachers' salaries at the Texas A&M Agricultural Extension Service. His district includes Texas A&M.

Committee members also agreed to remove language already deleted by the House that would have prohibited use of state college facilities by homosexual organizations.

The finance panel earlier decided to grant a $2,700 annual increase for the 18 judges of the Supreme Court and Court of Criminal Appeals. The judges would make $56,700 annually with the raise, with an extra $500 for the Supreme Court chief justice and presiding judge of the appeals court.

Among biennial totals of state and federal funds approved by the finance committee for different state agencies are $4.6 billion for health, welfare and rehabilitation programs; $2.6 billion for highways; and $10.8 billion for public and higher education.

Easter Seal drive, telethon evaluated

The Howard County Easter Seal Society met in the conference room of the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center for their regular meeting for the month of April.

Gertrude McCann was absent and Vice President Ron Killough presided over the meeting.

The bulk of the meeting was allotted to the evaluation of the recent Easter Seals Telethon and Drive. It was the general concenses that, being the first telethon that Big Spring has participated in, it was a general success — with room for improvement.

The Big Spring Telethon grossed around $3000. The total Easter Seal Campaign grossed around $7000 before expenses and will net the Big Spring area around $6000.

Suggestions were then taken regarding improvements on next year's telethon and crusade — all of which will be taken under consideration.

The next and final meeting will be May 17, at the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, conference room.

MIDNIGHT MIRRORS

A silver dagger ripps open
The cloudy sky.
Creating crevices of emptiness
In the midnight air.
Every slice of the dagger
Brings a flash of blinding

Transforming the clouds
Into polished mirrors.
The dagger then pierces
The mirrored clouds
Shattering them into
slivers
Of glittering raindrops
That splash upon the Clouds are a wonder

And lightning that turns

Clouds are calm,
Clouds are fierce,
Clouds are pictures

Dear Abby

Bashful Fluffs His Pillow Talk

DEAR ABBY: Please don't laugh at my question, or throw this away thinking it's from some silly kid. It's not. I'm a normal, 33-year-old man who would like to learn how to be a great lover.

I know what to DO, but I don't know what to say to a lady while I'm making love to her. I feel as though I should be saying something. But what?

They don't have schools for this sort of thing and I can't ask anyone to give me lessons. I have very few hangups, and I've never had any trouble with my love life, but I'd like to know how to make my partner feel really great.

WANTS TO PLEASE

DEAR WANTS: Anyone who sincerely wants to make his partner feel "really great" is well on his way to becoming a great lover. You say you have very few hangups. Fine, because frank dialogue with one's partner is essential. There's also a wealth of information to be found in books. And finally, practice makes perfect.

DEAR ABBY: You told a reader whose husband kept bringing home unexpected dinner guests, "Quit being a GOOD scout — be a GIRL Scout instead, and be prepared!"

Abby, "Be Prepared" is the motto of the BOY Scouts — not the GIRL Scouts.

Girls have succeeded in invading nearly all of the male organizations. Can't the Boy Scouts be kept separate from the Girl Scouts, without making them share a common motto?

EAGLE SCOUT, BRADFORD, PA.

DEAR EAGLE: Your knowledge of Scouting is for the birds. "Be Prepared" is the motto for Girl Scouts, too. (Scout's honor!)

Breath of Spring Bike-A-Thon

Funds raised for cystic fibrosis

By MICKIE DICKSON

The top mileage winners of Saturday's Cystic Fibrosis Breath of Spring Bike-A-Thon in Coahoma were Tim Worden and Shawn Justiss.

Tim, a fifth grader in the 5 years to 5th grade group, rode 31 miles to win $50. He was one of the 23 children entered in group I.

Shawn Justiss, a sixth grader in the 6th grade to adult group, rode 45 miles to win the $50 in his group of nine children entered.

"The Bike-A-Thon was held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the City Park of Coahoma to raise funds to find a cure or control for the inherited disease, cystic fibrosis, while improving diagnosis and treatment of children suffering with serious lung-damaging diseases," says Connie Walker, chairman of the Breath of Spring Bike-A-Thon.

Russell Chad Williams, a first grader in Cathy Nichols class at Coahoma Primary School, is a cystic fibrosis patient who rode 18 miles in the Bike-A-Thon.

"Chad is one of the more fortunate victims," says Mrs. Gaylon (Janine) Williams, his mother. "He only has to take six pills a day, an enzyme that his pancreas in unable to produce, in contrast to the 40 to 50 pills a day that cystic fibrosis patients often have to take." He is on a high protein, low fat diet for the ailment.

Chad had pneumonia at one year of age, but the CF wasn't diagnosed until he was 2½ years old. Since his case is mainly a digestive disorder, the more exercise he gets the better. He rides his bicycle and jogs regularly.

He is taken to Dallas to the Children's Medical Center every six months for a check-up.

Chad is a good student who likes books. He has two dogs and two horses which he hopes to ride later. He also has a two-year-old brother, Bucky Lee, who doesn't have cystic fibrosis.

Each child who raises $25 or more for his bike riding will receive a free T-shirt with "I DID IT" and "Cystic Fibrosis" on the front of it.

The first place money winner in each of the two groups will receive $50 each. The second place winner will receive $25 each, the third place winner, $10 each. Trophies will go to the fourth and fifth place winners.

The Cystic Fibrosis Foundation is appealing for support to expand research and care programs through the Bike-A-Thons. "We have dedicated volunteers, a national organization, renowned scientists and researchers, and 115 diagnostic and treatment centers," said Mrs. Connie Walker.

Although cystic fibrosis, the most serious lung-damaging disease, is still incurable, the average life expectancy of children affected has been increased from infancy to the teen years and many patients now live into young adulthood. These giant strides of progress are due to earlier diagnosis and improved methods of treatment, which have developed from a better understanding of the disease.

In addition, the treatment programs which CF patients are using have proven very effective in alleviating the suffering of children with severe asthma, chronic bronchitis, bronchiectasis and a condition sometimes called "childhood emphysema."

"Naturally, we know more today than we ever have before, but we still have a long way to go before we have conquered CF," said Mrs. Walker. "Every dollar raised for the Breath of Spring Bike-A-Thon means better health and a brighter future for youngsters struggling for the breath of life."

The Bike-A-Thon chairman and her helpers share their favorite recipes:

SPURS WIN — San Antonio Spurs' George Gervin (44) is surrounded by Philadelphia 76ers Darryl Dawkins (53) and Bobby Jones (24) during Wednesday night's decisive seventh game of a National Basketball Association Eastern Conference semifinal series in San Antonio.

San Antionio-Washington meet tomorrow

Spurs nudge Sixers to claim series

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs have earned a playoff rematch with the Washington Bullets. And veteran Louie Dampier says the Spurs will show up this year without the playoff monkey that's been on their backs for a decade.

With emergency starter Mike Green hitting nine crucial fourth-quarter points and guided by the seldom-used Dampier, the Spurs shaded the 76ers 111-108 Wednesday night in the decisive seventh game of an NBA Eastern Conference semifinal series.

The Central Division champion Spurs have qualified for either the ABA or NBA playoffs in 11 of the franchise's 12 years, but hadn't won a series since 1968 — when they were the ABA's Dallas Chaparrals.

They also won the Central Division last year and got a bye into the second round, only to be eliminated by Washington in six games. There was grumbling about a playoff jinx.

"It's just a nice thing to finally get the monkey off our back," said the 34-year-old Dampier, who hit two fourth-quarter jumpers and quarterbacked the Spurs' late surge.

"That (jinx) ended right here tonight," San Antonio's George Gervin said after the game.

"A lot of people said we couldn't win, but we all had faith in ourselves," said forward Larry Kenon.

The Spurs, who had frittered away a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series, led the 76ers by as many as 18 points in the second period and nine at halftime.

But the 76ers, led by Julius Erving, had clawed back, taking a 104-101 lead with 2:33 remaining. The 6-foot Dampier, who had played briefly in only two games of the series, connected on an 18-foot jumper and Mark Olberding had a free throw to knot the score.

Green, starting in place of injured Billy Paultz, then hit a pair of free throws and a jumper and Gervin had two other free throws to put the game out of reach.

"Mike Green and Louie Dampier came through and really won the ballgame for us," said San Antonio Coach Doug Moe. Dampier was pressed into service because starter James Silas was in foul trouble and reserve Mike Gale wasn't shooting well.

"We really didn't really expect that out of Green," said Philadelphia forward Bobby Jones. "But I played with him my first year in the league (at Denver) and I knew he was a clutch player."

"Green played excellent basketball," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham. "We were up by three with about two minutes to go. In the last two minutes it was anybody's game. We had the opportunity to win."

As for the Bullets, the drained Moe savored a beer in each hand and smiled, "I don't even know we're playing Washington yet."

Baseball Roundup

By the Associated Press

Pirates 10, Braves 2

Pittsburgh's Bill Robinson went into the game determined to have a good time, which, lately, has been a rarity for him. But this time, he had a ball.

Robinson belted a pair of two-run homers and went 3-for-5 as Pittsburgh ripped the Atlanta Braves 10-2 Wednesday night. With two swipes of his bat, Robinson doubled his home run production for the season.

"I was perfectly relaxed," he explained.

It has been a long time between laughs for the 6-foot-2, 200-pound slugger, who will be 36 next month. Last year, when he was hampered by an earlyseason injury, his batting average plunged 58 points below his major league high of .304 in 1977, and this spring, Robinson lost his left field job to the John Milner-Lee Lacy tandem. When he did get chances to hit, he didn't make the most of them. He took a .232 batting average into Wednesday night's game as a replacement at first base for Willie Stargell, who was resting an ailing hip.

Robinson said he made up his mind before the game, that, "I was going out there and have fun. It didn't matter if I got five hits or made five outs."

Reds 4, Cubs 1

LaCoss' bid for a perfect game ended when he walked Barry Foote to start the Chicago sixth, then Ted Sizemore followed with a single. LaCoss, 2-0, gave up two more hits before leaving with two outs in the eighth. George Foster's double and Ray Knight's single drove in two of Cincinnati's runs.

"I made one or two bad pitches," said the 22-year old right-hander. "But other than that, I wasn't hit that hard."

Orioles 9, Mariners 3

Billy Smith knocked in three runs, John Lowenstein blasted a three-run homer and Mike Flanagan and Don Stanhouse combined on a seven-hitter as Baltimore beat Seattle.

Smith had a two-run single in the second and a bases-loaded RBI groundout in the fifth. The Orioles smashed 15 hits off four Mariner pitchers while winning their 13th game in the last 14. They capped their scoring with a five-run ninth, three of them on Lowenstein's blast.

Twins 7, Blue Jays 5

Ken Landreaux drove in four runs with a pair of hits, leading Minnesota past Toronto. Landreaux drove in two runs with a single in the third inning and another two runs with a double in the fifth that gave the Twins a 5-4 lead.

Ron Jackson hit a solo homer in the fourth inning for the Twins as Dave Goltz picked up his third victory in six decisions after surviving a shaky start. Mike Marshall notched his ninth save when he came on in the eighth inning to relieve Goltz.

Brewers 6, Indians 1

Gorman Thomas slapped four singles to lead a 14-hit Milwaukee attack and Moose Haas posted his first major league victory in more than a year as the Brewers defeated Cleveland.

Haas, 1-1, struck out six, walked three, and allowed only five hits in going the distance for his first victory since April 12, 1978, before he tore a muscle in his pitching arm.

Cleveland loser Wayne Garland, 0-3, was tagged for three runs and eight hits before he was relieved by Dan Spillner with none out in the fourth.

"I'm still not all the way back, but the first step is the most important," said Haas. "I didn't let the injury get me down and I never doubted myself. I knew the muscle would heal and with a little patience and a lot of work. I knew I would get things together."

Red Sox 2, A's 1

Dwight Evans' solo home run in the eighth inning provided the winning run and Mike Torrez hurled a four-hitter as Boston beat Oakland.

One of the hits off Torrez was a homer by Jim Essian that tied the score at 1-1 in the bottom of the seventh. There were two out in the eighth when Evans connected on a 1-2 pitch from Matt Keough and hit his second homer in two games.

Evans singled in the third and scored Boston's first run.

Angels 1, Yankees 0

Giving up just one run and five hits, you'd normally expect to win a baseball game.

Unless, of course, the opposing pitcher is Nolan Ryan.

At the top of his form, the star of the California Angel staff is hard to beat — as he was Wednesday night. New York's Ron Guidry was as stingy as ever, yet wound up getting burned by Ryan's flame-thrower and lost a 1-0 decision in Anaheim.

"I didn't throw the ball very well at the beginning," said Ryan after his nifty six-hitter, "(but) the longer I threw, the more confidence I got."

Ryan had been removed from his last two starts because of a groin injury, but it didn't seem to bother the hard-throwing right-hander against the defending world champions.

"I wore a rubber sleeve on my right leg to keep the moisture and the heat in," noted Ryan. "It worked."

Terry Humphrey scored California's only run on a double by Jim Anderson in the third inning off Guidry, 2-2. A sellout crowd of 40,648 watched the strong pitching performance by two of baseball's best hurlers. Ryan, 4-1, struck out seven and walked two while Guidry fanned nine batters and walked three.

Cardinals 5, Astros 2

Reynolds' error in the fifth set the stage for Mike Tyson to double home the tying run, and he scored on a single by Garry Templeton. John Denny, who had to pitch his way out of several jams, conceded his victory was "not a thing of beauty."

Erxleben to New Orleans

Cousineau top choice in draft

NEW YORK (AP) — The Buffalo Bills began the instant rebuilding of their porous defense today by selecting Ohio State linebacker Tom Cousineau as the No.1 selection in the National Football League college draft.

And the Cincinnati Bengals began the revamping of their erratic offense by using their two opening round picks to grab Washington State quarterback Jack Thompson and Louisiana State running back Charles Alexnader.

The selection of Cousineau was no surprise — but the Bengals' choice of Thompson, the "Throwin' Samoan," sent murmurs through the NFL draft headquarters, the 18th floor Starlight Roof ballroom at the swank Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

The Bengals had been expected to select tight end Kellen Winslow from Missouri, who eventually was taken by San Diego. When Thompson was selected No.3 (following Cousineau and Kansas City's choice of Colorado State defensive end Mike Bell) it threw the New York Giants plans out of whack. They were hoping to take the NCAA's all-time passing leader.

There were other high-visiblty quarterbacks still around, Steve Fuller of Clemson and Alabama's Jeff Rutledge among them. But when the Giants turn came, they used the seventh pick of the opening round to take little-known quarterback Phil Simms from little Morehead State in Kentucky.

After the Bengals picked Thompson, the Chicago Bears selected Dan Hampton, a defensive tackle from Arkansas, then Buffalo used its other firstround pick to take Clemson wide receiver Jerry Butler. Baltimore's selection of Alabama linebacker Barry Krauss preceded the Giants' choice of Simms.

Other big names to go in the opening round were placekicker-punter Russell Erxleben of Texas, to New Orleans; Georgia Tech running back Eddie Lee Ivery, to Green Bay; UCLA defensive tackle Manu Tuiasosopo, to Seattle; UCLA linebacker Jerry Robinson to Philadelphia (the Eagles' first pick in the first round since 1973), and Fuller, to the Kansas City Chiefs.

Four area girls competing in state track meet

When the girl's state track and field gets underway tomorrow, four area females will be in action.

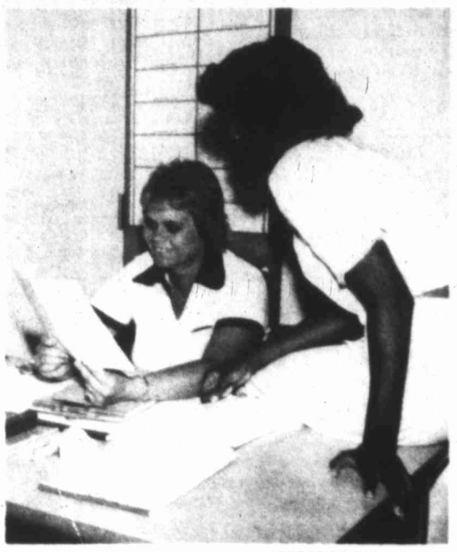

Big Spring's outstanding trackster Selena Harris will be entered in the Class AAAA long jump. Harris leaped 18'1¼" in the regional meet to place second and earn her spot in the prestigious affair. Harris' jump is the fourth best among state qualifiers. Donna Thomas of Forth Worth Trimble Tech and Paula Lake of Richardson Berkner are the early favorites in the event.

Colorado City's Brenda Smith will be entered in two events in the Class AA competition. Smith will compete in the triple jump and the long jump.

Smith's jump of 36'8" in the triple is the third best among qualifiers in a very competitive field, but she will have to improve upon her long jump of 17'3" in order to have a chance at the state title.

Stanton's Marcie Young will be in competition in the Class A 80-yard hurdles. Her regional time of 11.22 is the third best among the entrants. Cathy McCleod of Coppell is the early favorite, having run a time of 10.9 in winning her region.

Ira's versatile Linda Cooley will be entered in the Class B shot put. Cooley heaved the shot 36'11" in regional competition. Cooley's throw is the fourth best among the qualifiers in her event.

CHECKING THE SCHEDULE...Big Spring girl's track coach Barbara Moffett (left) and her state qualifier Selena Harris review the schedule for this weekend's girl's state track meet. Harris will compete in the Class AAAA competition in the long jump.

HC rodeo team takes WTC affair

SNYDER — The Howard College men's Rodeo Team clinched a spot in the national junior college rodeo championship the past weekend with an outstanding performance at a Southwest Region NIRA Rodeo at Western Texas College.

The women's team also had a good weekend, but have not qualified for the nationals at this time. The national rodeo will be in Lake Charles, Louisiana, on June 18.

The Howard College men now have 432 points. Eastern New Mexico is second at 178½ points, with Cisco Junior College third with 129 points.

Mack Altizer was named the All-Around Cowboy in the WTC meet. Altizer won a first place in team roping and steer wrestling.

Other HC men placing were Guy Miller (second in the calf roping), Wes Smith (third in calf roping, sixth in team roping), Joe Martinez (fourth in calf roping), David McClure (sixth in calf roping), and Jess Knight (first in saddle bronc riding).

The women's team also won their division in the WTC meet. Pam Mitchell led the HC women, as she was named the all-around cowgirl. Mitchell was second in the barrel racing, first in goat tying, and first in break away roping. Sherry Altizer was sixth in the break away roping, with Becky Meek third in the goat tying.

The women are now in second place in the region. Both the men and women will compete this weekend at New Mexico Junior College in Hobbs.

Scotch Foursome tomorrow

The Scotch foursome golf play at the Big Spring Country Club begins at 5:30 p.m. Friday for members and guests, and will continue at the same time each Friday until fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Omar Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Novis Womack are chairing the event.

Connors whip Mayer

DALLAS (AP) — Jimmy Connors said it wouldn't be any fun if he was perfect all the time.

And the world's No. 2 player was far from flawless Wednesday night in a World Championship of Tennis quarterfinal victory over hustling Gene Mayer, currently ranked No. 55.

Connors prevailed 6-7, 6-1, 6-4, and 6-1 but it took two and one-half hours and a good deal of frustration in his first meeting ever with the 23-year-old New Yorker, who plays all shots two-fisted with an oversized racquet.

Connors will play 20-year-old John McEnroe in the semifinals Friday night. The survivors for the other semifinal match will be determined tonight when defending champion Vitas Gerulaitis meets Brian Gottfried and No. 1 ranked Bjorn Borg plays Australian Geoff Masters.

"I wish I could be at the top of my game all the time but it is the mark of a champion to win when you aren't playing great tennis," said Connors. "Now, it wouldn't be any fun at all if I was at the top of my game all the time. There's an extra special feeling about winning when you aren't playing well.

Oliver's bat sparks Rangers victory

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Smooth-talking, smooth-swinging Al Oliver may raise some eyebrows among Rod Carew fans, but he says he knows exactly what it's going to take for him to win the American League batting title.

"A little luck," said the Texas Rangers centerfielder.

Oliver, who swears Kansas City pitchers are always hard on him, collected two hits Wednesday night as the Rangers took a rain-soaked, 3-2 victory over the Royals. His 425-foot solo home run in the fifth provided the winning margin for Steve Comer, 2-3, gave the Rangers a 2-1 margin in the first season series between the two Western division rivals and hiked his batting average to .371.

"If I get some luck," Oliver said of the batting race, "it's no contest. No one hits the ball better. A few breaks are all I need."

Oliver's .324 average last year was the best ever by a Ranger and the third best in the major leagues behind Pittsburgh slugger Dave Parker's .334 and Carew's .333.

"I've never had any luck," Oliver said. "That's why I never did it. I'm going to hit the ball hard almost every day. On the days I don't, you can credit the pitchers."

Flying Paster approaching peak

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Trainer Gordon Campbell firmly believes Flying Paster is just approaching his peak. He's also hoping Kentucky Derby favorite Spectacular Bid may have peaked too soon.

"Flying Paster definitely is the best horse I've ever trained," said the 60-year-old Campbell of the California-bred horse which figures to go off as the second choice in Saturday's 105th Derby for 3-year-olds. "And he's going to get better."

Unlike his counterpart, trainer Bud Delp of Spectacular Bid, Campbell is a man of few words. But he fumes a little when the subject of California horses' poor showings at Churchill Downs in recent years is raised. Decidedly in 1962 was the last Californiabred to win here while Majestic Prince in 1969 and Affirmed last year campaigned in California before coming East to win the Derby.

"California horses have done it before and California horses will do it again," said Campbell, a native of Canada. "There's no reason why horses from anywhere can't win the Derby. The reason some California horses didn't do well in the past was that they weren't good enough. This colt is good enough."

The son of Gummo has won 10 of 14 career starts, including the Santa Anita and Hollywood derbies. Don Pierce, who has ridden Flying Paster in all his outings, has been riding for 28 years and will be trying for his first Kentucky Derby win in four starts.

Campbell feels Pierce's experience could help his colt beat Spectacular Bid, who will have oft-criticized Ronnie Franklin up. Franklin, 19, has been riding only since early last year.

"I think I have an edge with Don riding because he's going to know how the race is going to be run in the first eighth of a mile. It makes no difference to Flying Paster how the race is run. He's capable of adapting to any situation."

Spectacular Bid, a Kentuckybred coming off a solid winter in Florida and a Blue Grass Stakes victory last week, has won 12 of 14 starts and figures to go for the lead at the start of Saturday's 1¼-mile race, worth $200,000-added.

Another top Derby challenger is Flying Zee Stable's Screen King.

When the entry box closes Thursday morning, nine colts are expected to be entered. Arkanasas Derby winner Golden Act, and General Assembly figure to be other top candiates. Other candidates include Lot o' Gold, King Celebrity, Shamgo and Sir Ivor Again.

MOVING ALONG THE RAIL — Kentucky Derby nominee Flying Paster, with jockey Don Pierce riding, moves along the rail in a fast workout Monday morning at Louisville's Churchill Downs. The California horse, trained by G.C. Campbell, is one of the heavy favorites in this Saturday's 105th Derby.

Carson will stay on 'Tonight Show'

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — America's insomniacs can heave a sigh of relief — Johnny Carson says he's going to stay on the "Tonight Show." At least for awhile.

"I love doing this show," Carson told a cheering "Tonight" audience that gave him a standing ovation Wednesday night.

"Originally, I had expressed an intent to leave after our 17th year, which would have been Oct. 1 of this year. I intend to stay past that time," he said.

Carson said he was staying "not because of any extreme pressure from NBC. I could make that decision (to leave), but I think I owe something to the show, and I think I owe something to NBC also."

"Besides," he added, "I would probably miss this show terribly and maybe regret walking away from it that quickly."

The 54-year-old Carson returned to "Tonight" after a two-week vacation, a period in which his reported intention to leave the program was a major topic of show business conversation. In patented Carson style, he milked the reports for laughs.

"I've made a new deal with NBC," he quipped. "I won't get a salary but (NBC president) Fred Silverman has agreed to keep my gas tank filled."

Carson denied reports that his relationship with Silverman was strained, saying their meetings always have been amicable.

Carson's request to leave the "Tonight Show" was a blow to NBC, badly beaten in the ratings race this season and not eager to lose its biggest star.

The "Tonight Show" is a big revenue earner for the network, accounting for about 17 percent of NBC's before-tax profits last year.

After his show-opening monologue, Carson explained the situation.

"I had expressed the desire to NBC to finish the "Tonight Show" earlier than I had originally intended which is 1981 (Carson's current contract runs to the spring of 1981). They, of course, would not like me to leave. I have very ambivalent feelings."

Carson said he'd decided "it might be time to pack it in after 17 years, for a couple of reasons."

"I didn't want the show to become boring to the people. I didn't want to get bored with it and I wanted to work at a professional level that I take a certain amount of pride in. Nobody wants to 'dog' a show like this.

"The worst sin is to bore people."

Carson said he and the network are still in negotiations, but he did not say precisely how long he would continue as host of "Tonight."

It seems likely that a compromise will be reached and that Carson will stay with the show until spring of next year.

"I will certainly continue through the 17th year and possibly on into next year. As to any longer than that, I can't say to be honest. We're just in discussions right now. So, we are going to be here awhile," Carson said.

EARL BUTZ

Butz blasts beef plan

IOLA, Kan. (AP) — Former Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz has criticized a proposal for a "beefless Wednesday," saying the cost of gasoline has increased more than the cost of beef.

"I haven't seen anyone calling for a gasoline-less Wednesday," Butz told a news conference in this southeast Kansas town Wednesday.

He also said the United States should do more to develop markets abroad for its beef, saying Japan especially should be an excellent market for good cuts of beef.

Britons begin electing new government

LONDON (AP) — Britons began electing a new government today with final opinion polls promising a Conservative victory and Europe's first woman prime minister after five years of Labor Party rule.

It was the 11th election of a House of Commons since World War II, and three polls forecast margins of 5, 7, 6 and 7 percentage points for Margaret Thatcher's Conservatives over Prime Minister James Callaghan's Laborites.

This indicated the Tories should win 330 to 333 of the 635 seats in Commons, giving Mrs. Thatcher a majority of 25 to 30. That would be the biggest majority for a British government since the Laborites won a 96-seat majority in 1966.

The Conservatives are the traditional supporters of business and free enterprise, and victory for them would mean a sharp turn to the right for Britain after moderate socialist rule under Labor, the traditional party of the workers and their unions.

There were 41 million persons over the age of 18 eligible to vote, a record 2,572 candidates from 110 parties, and the leader of the party that gets the most seats in Commons becomes prime minister. First results should be known by about 10 p.m., or 6 p.m. EDT.

If the Conservatives win the biggest number of seats but don't get a majority, as a fourth poll predicted today, David Steel's middle-of-the-road Liberal Party, Britain's third largest, would hold the balance of power, and its votes would probably determine which of the major parties took over the government. Steel said if that happened he would use the Liberal votes to keep extremists of left and right under control.

The election is being fought mainly on domestic issues, with both Labor and the Conservatives pledged to cut the income tax, which most Britons pay at the rate of 33 percent.

Riveria Hotel sues Liza Minnelli

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A suit has been filed against entertainer Liza Minnelli by the Riviera Hotel here on grounds she failed to live up to a multimillion dollar contract.

The action asks that Ms. Minnelli be prevented from appearing at other resort hotels and seeks damages "in excess of $10,000."

The suit was filed in Clark County District Court and names Ms. ttominnelli and her agency, Flora Inc. It claims the singer had a contract to appear at the hotel for 24 weeks between Aug. 8, 1973 and Aug. 7, 1977, but alleges she appeared at the club for only 13 weeks during the four-year period.

The contract called for her to be paid $100,000 per week, the suit said.

DUSTIN HOFFMAN

Hoffman files negligence suit

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Dustin Hoffman has filed a negligence suit against a West Indies hotel for injuries he claims he received from a defective electric light switch.

Hoffman, a Manhattan resident, said he received a severe electric shock when he turned off a light switch in his room at the La Samanna on Jan. 7. The hotel is located on the land of St. Martin.

The actor asked the U.S. District Court in Manhattan on Wednesday to award him a "reasonable amount" of monetary damages, claiming the hotel was responsible for negligent maintenance.

Money raised in tasting tea

In keeping with the spirit of the International Year of the Child, Church Women United undertook a project recently to contribute to the welfare of the community's children.

The women sponsored a tasting tea Sunday in order to raise money for the Westside Community Center and its programs for youth. Over $700 was raised at the very successful event for the support of the center.

An honored guest was Mrs. Bertha Broyles of Lubbock, Area Coordinator of Church Women United.

The tea was held at the new fellowship hall of First United Methodist Church with women of the church serving as hostesses.

Mrs. Ben Boadle, local president of Church Women United, has expressed appreciation to the generous response of the public and participating church women.

CAB judge ready for settlement

WASHINGTON (AP)- A Civil Aviation Board judge reminded all sides at the outset of a hearing on Southwest Airlines' request for interstate flights from Dallas' Love Field that he will be happy to adjourn for an other try at outside settlement.

Judge William A. Kane Jr. said Wednesday two settlement conferences held in March and April failed to produce an agreement.

The hearing, marked by an opening salvo from Southwest in the form of a ton-and-a-half of copies of petitions signed by its customers, promises to last for days.

Kane's decision will be submitted to the CAB.

Interstate flights have been banned at Love Field, inside the city limits, since the massive Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport opened in 1974.

Opponents of Southwest's request for flights betweeen Love Field and New Orleans say it would undercut the regional airport's efficiency by chipping at its market.

"We're not contending that it (DFW) is a bad airport, but it's a long-haul airport," said Herbert Kelleher, Southwest's chairman of the board.

The Dallas-based airline pioneered low cost flights from in-city airports, avoiding CAB rate regulations since all its flights were within the boundaries of Texas.

Southwest started its first full-scale interstate service in February between Houston's Hobby Airport and New Orleans.

It applied for the New Orleans to Love Field route under a provision of the 1978 Airline Deregulation Act which allows "automatic market entry" for an airline to select one route a year for three years.

U.S. Rep. Jim Wright, House majority leader from Fort Worth, testified that Congress did not intend the provision to extend to a specific airport within the market selected.

Neighborhood groups have objected to expanded service at Love Field because of the increased noise they fear would result.

King named Dallas police chief Wednesday

DALLAS (AP) — Glen D. King, who served 21 years as a Dallas police officer, rising to assistant chief before his retirement in 1969, has been named as police chief.

King, who has been executive director of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, was picked Wednesday to replace Don Byrd, who recently retired.

The appointment drew general approval from rank-and-file officers. Bobby Joe Dale, president of the 1,800-member Dallas Police Association, said he was pleased.

"He's not an outsider. He had 20 years with the department," Dale said. "It's the consensus of all the people in the department that he's someone we can work with."

King will take over from Acting Chief James Dahman. City sources told local newspapers that Dahman turned down the job twice before it was offered to King.

King is a graduate of Southern Methodist University and was working as a police reporter for the Dallas Morning News when he decided to become a police officer. He also has a master's degree from Sam Houston State University and is a graduate of the FBI's National Academy.

Bryd earned $52,200 as chief, but some sources said King's salary would be less than that.

HOOKED ON THE CIRCUS — Bob Parkinson, historian at the Baraboo Circus Museum, poses beside an elaborate old circus wagon at the museum in central Wisconsin. He got hooked on circuses back in 1934 while watching a parade and several wagons that were in that parade are now in the museum.

Circus museum librarian-historian hooked at 11, gets wish after 40

BARABOO, Wis. (AP) — Bob Parkinson was well past 40 when he finally realized every child's dream and joined the circus.

Not the circus of today, which would be thrill enough.

The circus he joined was the circus of his boyhood: gaudy wagons, prancing Percherons, screaming calliopes, dusky odors of elephants and sawdust and canvas. The real circus.

"I got hooked when I was 11 years old," he said. "That was in 1934, in Decatur, Ill. The date was May 16.

"I had been to other circuses, but that was the one I remember best. It was the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus. Clyde Beatty was in it. I can still remember the order of march of the parade.

"I watched it pass down El Dorado Street and then I ran to the corner of Wood and Water streets and stood in front of the Orlando Hotel and watched it again. I can see it still."

Bob Parkinson is the librarian and historian at the Circus World Museum, a 40-acre anachronism on the banks of the Baraboo River in Wisconsin's rolling countryside, a place where those rich memories of more innocent times remain intact for all.

The town, Baraboo, was the family home of an immigrant harness maker, August Ringling, and his sons, John, Charles, Alf, Al and Otto. The Ringling brothers.

A dozen or so of the museum's 27 buildings are the very ones the brothers used as winter quarters for their traveling circus. Baraboo was home for them from the time they started it, in 1884, with nine farm wagons and one tent, until they moved it to Florida, in 1926, aboard 100 groaning railroad flatcars.

"Back before World War I," Parkinson said, "the Army sent engineers to study how the circus people loaded and unloaded those cars. It was done with unmatched efficiency."

Bob Parkinson should know.

Beginning with that magic day in 1934 he went to every circus he could. He took notes, collected programs. In time, he became known among circus buffs as one of the most dedicated.

In 1965, when the Circus World Museum found itself in need of a full-time librarian, the call went out for Bob Parkinson. He dropped his job as an insurance adjuster and headed for Baraboo, grinning. "A dream come true," he said.

He loves nothing more than to show off the library.

From its files he will take out for inspection — carefully, reverently — such a dazzlement of handbills and posters from the glory days of the circus that, looking at them, you tend to sound like a circus ad yourself: Stupendous! Magnificent! Colossal!

But he saves the best collection for last.

Out back, in a big barn, are more than 100 circus wagons.

They are: Magnificent, Bob Parkinson. Stupendous. Colossal.

Wayne undergoes surgery

No further traces of cancer found

LOS ANGELES (AP) — No further traces of the cancer that cost Hollywood superstar John Wayne his stomach in January and his left lung 15 years ago were found during the actor's latest operation, says a hospital spokeswoman.

Wayne, 71, underwent surgery Wednesday for an intestinal blockage after being admitted for abdominal pains.

He was reported in stable condition today in the intensive care unit of UCLA Medical Center, said hospital spokesman Al Hicks, who described the surgery as not unusual.

Wayne was taken to UCLA Tuesday night. The hospital said he was scheduled to return to UCLA, anyway, for a checkup following his January cancer surgery.

At that time, Wayne was admitted for gall bladder surgery. But surgeons found cancer in his stomach and had to remove it during a 9½-hour operation. He left the hospital Feb. 10.

"An examination of Mr. Wayne after his admission for a routine check revealed a partial intestinal obstruction that was relieved in an operation this morning," said hospital spokeswoman Bonnie Whitham.

Wayne, who will be 72 on May 26, was taken to the intensive care unit following the surgery, Hicks said, but had been in the same ninth-floor room where he stayed while recuperating from his Jan. 12 cancer surgery.

Eleven days after he presented the Oscar for best picture of the year at the Academy Awards on April 9, Wayne was admitted to Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport Beach for treatment of bronchitis. He left Hoag on April 25.

It was not the first time Wayne had battled cancer or faced major surgery. Fifteen years ago, his left lung was removed because of cancer. Last year, he underwent open-heart surgery.

While Wayne was recuperating Wednesday, Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., and Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Calif., announced in Washington a bill to have the Treasury Department strike a special gold medallion for the man known as much by his nickname, "Duke." They suggested that President Carter present the award.

Wayne, who won an Academy Award in 1970 for his role as Rooster Cogburn in "True Grit," has appeared in about 200 movies that earned more than $700 million in his 50-year career.

Wayne, who began his movie career as a prop man, is No. 1 in an all-time compilation of box office draws, according to annual polls of movie exhibitors. His last film, "The Shootist," was released in 1976.

'Gasless weekend' planned as protest

NEW YORK (AP) — Buying gasoline the weekend of May 17-20 may be difficult in many parts of the nation if service station owners are successful in their plans for a "gasless weekend" to protest federal controls on their prices.

The idea originated in California, where most dealers are expected by industry officials to participate, and since has spread to other states, including Connecticut, Illinois, Idaho, Iowa, Washington, Nevada, Louisiana and Arizona, according to officials of state dealer associations.

It is unclear, however, just how many dealers nationwide might participate in the proposed closing.

"If something isn't forthcoming from the Department of Energy, many dealers may join the movement," said Charles Matties, who operates an Exxon station in West Hartford, Conn.

"There's a definite feeling toward doing something," said Matties, a former president of the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers, an industry group that has refused to endorse the shutdown proposal.

The aim of the gasless weekend is to force the government to loosen controls on the markup gas stations are allowed to take on sales of gasoline. That mark-up, known as "dealer margin," cannot now exceed the amount it was in May 1973, plus 3 cents. Dealers also have been allowed to add small amounts to cover some other costs.

The dealers want the current system replaced with a straight 25 percent mark-up over the wholesale price of gasoline.

The dealers acknowledge that the gasless weekend would inconvenience the public.

"It wasn't our intention to hurt the public, but we don't know what else we can do," said Don Skilling, a spokesman for the California Service Station Association, which represents 2,000 of the state's 14,000 dealers.

Robert Jacobs, executive secretary of the Illinois Gasoline Dealers Association and a longtime advocate of a gas dealer strike, said the planned shutdown "is doomed because of the timing."

Jacobs said it would be more logical to hold the gasless weekend at the end of the month, when supplies are low anyway as monthly allocations run out.

But that weekend is Memorial Day weekend, and the gas dealers are apparently trying to keep from interfering with traditionally heavy holiday traffic by holding their protest the weekend before.

Vote possible today

Senators keep SHEAF alive

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Senators refused to "shaft SHEAF" Wednesday, keeping alive a proposal that would repeal the state property tax and substitute a special fund to pay for land and construction projects for 17 state-financed colleges.

A possible vote could come today.

In attempting to block the proposed fund — known as SHEAF for State Higher Education Assistance Fund — Sen. Oscar Mauzy was asked if his amendment was the "Shaft SHEAF amendment."

"Yes," replied Mauzy, D-Dallas, "but it could be called the 'Scuff Amendment' because this whole idea is pretty scuffy."

Sen. A.R. Schwartz's proposed constitutional amendment also would allow all schools in the University of Texas and Texas A&M systems to share in the Permanent University Fund — PUF.

PUF now totals an estimated $1.2 billion and generates $70 million a year from leases and oil and gas royalties.

Schwartz, D-Galveston, said in bringing up his proposal he assumed a federal court would rule the 10 cents per $100 state property tax unconstitutional.

"This is a compromise between those who don't want any fund and those who want a honey pot," said Schwartz.

"Where'd you get your crystal ball?" asked Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, adding:

"Saying what the federal courts are going to do is like telling me who's going to win the Southwest Conference — you've been telling me A&M for 10 years."

The Senate voted 21-10 to debate the proposal, the minimum number of votes needed.

The SHEAF fund would be controlled by the Legislature, with construction money for the 17 state-financed colleges not in the UT or A&M systems coming from general revenue. Total SHEAF revenue per year would equal at least 6 percent of the total state spending on state-supported colleges.

The SHEAF income would be divided among the institutions on the basis of recommendations by the Legislature or a state agency, such as the Texas College Coordinating Board.

The proposal, Schwartz said, "would give the Legislature a finger in part of the formula — the 25 percent."

Mauzy's amendment to abolish the proposed SHEAF fund failed, 4-26. 7

Lions given closeup

Downtown Lions got a closeup of "Up with People" at their meeting Wednesday at Howard College.

This extravaganza of young people comes to the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum Tuesday evening with a cast of more than 75 youths from all over the United States and a few other countries.

Mark Kenny, Karen Isaac and Carolyn Merrow told about the non-profit company which tours internationally to promote good will among people everywhere. Headquartered in Tuscon, Ariz., "Up With People" has five touring companies each with a cast upwards of 100 complete with 10 tones of props and an orchestra. After several weeks of training in Tuscon, the performers then to on the road for a year.

The three advance agents said they are seeking recruits for the troups, both performers and instrumentalists. While there is a tuition involved, because the experience is equated with a year in college, there are scholarships available. Special talent is not a requisite, rather a personality for getting along with others.

"Up With People" must generate something like $20,000 a week minimum revenues to sustain the company, they said the program here will include an international section to give a musical flavor of half a dozen or more other countries. A special guest at the meeting Wednesday was Carlile (Frosty) Robison, Dallas, a past president of the club. Ken Dawson was in charge of the program.

Lions light up local scene with annual sale

Did you ever see a Lion cough up a light bulb?

More than three score Downtown Lions are prepared to do just that Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday as they comb the city in their annual Lightbulb Sale. The project packs contain a pair of 60 and 75 watt bulbs for $3. Net proceeds go to finance the club's sight conservation and blind work, as well as other humanitarian projects including ccamp for crippled and diabetic children.

Lions have been selling bulbs here every spring for more than a quarter of a century, and as a result, they have been instrumental in furnishing something like 100 plus pairs of eye glasses to needy youngsters and adults each year. Since foundation of the club 50 years ago, some 3,500 pair of glasses have been distributed by it, thanks to support of Big Spring people.

Chairman of the slae is Larry Farthing, and captain of the teams are Marvin Wise, Bill Alexander, M.A. Barber, Tim Hall, Byron Wicker, James Welch, Tommy Welch, and Dan Conley. Morris Rhodes, president thanked the public in advance for buying the bulbs, adding that "we don't do all these good things--you do. We are just the collecting agency for you."

Committee considering student rap bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Kingsville high school students told a Senate committee Wednesday a non-voting student representative on local school boards would improve communication with students.

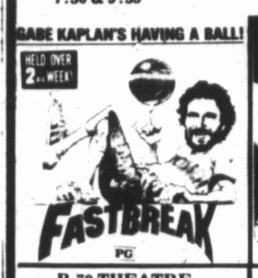

A bill that would give local boards the option of seating a high school senior elected by all the high school students in the district was approved by the Senate Education Committee.

The measure is sponsored by Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi.

"At the present time, students are merely spectators and must receive permission from the chair to speak," Truan said. "It is hoped this legislation would initiate interest among young people in the electoral process."

The student member, who would serve in a non-voting capacity, would be excluded from executive school board sessions, which include discussions of legal, personnel, and disciplinary matters.

Each school board would have the option of holding an election for a student representative. The process also could be initiated by five percent of the registered voters in each district.
