Kitty's Korner

by
Kitty Montgomery

For over twenty years "Tom Montgomery" has popped up in the official records and been published in the San Angelo paper with painful regularity. I notice in this morning's paper this "Tom Montgomery," pleaded no contest to DWI, was fined $200 plus costs and placed on two years probation, deferred adjudication (whatever that means).

Over the years the Tom Montgomery I know and live with, has become resigned to this periodic embarrassment and accepts the jibes that go along with it in pretty good humor. However, it never fails irritate me and I have become weary of the "oh you poor dear" looks I get from people who are too well brought up to come right out and mention the notoriety.

We first became aware of this when shortly after we were married I went to another town to visit friends, and they were so sorry the jewelry store was suing Tom for non-payment on my rings. I was shocked, but there it was, right there in the official records, same jewelry store, too.

After a few more years of all kinds of charges in the official records, he showed up in the divorce files. Lucky for us, the wife's name wasn't Kitty. We didn't escape some mention though, everybody knows Kitty is a nickname.

One day when we were struggling along in the ranching business during a drought, a finance company called. When told Tom Montgomery was at the ranch and wouldn't be in till dark, they agreed to talk to Mrs. Tom Montgomery. I was informed he was several months behind in payments on his GMC pickup. The description of the vehicle was exactly the same as ours. I thought the bank owned our pickup, but it was just too much of a coincidence. I landed on Tom with all four feet before he scarcely got in the door that night. He had quite a time convincing me it was another case of mistaken identity.

This other man even had a son about the same age of Jim. We got his hospital bill time and time again, along with the nasty notes that go along with a long overdue bill. We were not able to convince that institution we had no son by that name, nor did we use their facility or physician. It almost came to legal action before they finally admitted they had the wrong Tom Montgomery.

Apparently he spent some time in Ozona in the early 60s. One night Western Union called and told Tom he had been wired a sum of money and the wire was signed "Virginia." Tom isn't talented enough in acting to fake his astonishment, so we knew it was his namesake again.

All this, plus the periodic charges in the official records has become our small cross to bear through the years and it looks like it isn't going to end until one or the other of them winds up in the obituary column. Oh well, this life and then the fireworks.

We were sorry to hear Bill Morrison is leaving Ozona. We've known Bill and enjoyed his wit and humor since he came here nine years ago. Of course, we know preachers have to move on and we are happy for Bill in his new position in Lamesa, but he

4-H members place in S.A. Livestock show

Local 4-H youth exhibited livestock at the San Antonio Livestock Show held Feb. 6-10. Twenty-two 4-H members exhibited 60 lambs, 6 steers, and 3 barrows at the recent stock show. These members were accompanied by parents and the County Agent, Billy Reagor.

According to Reagor, the youth did pretty good in the competition, placing 18 lambs and 1 steer in the premium sale with the barrows showing today. The competition was tough. There were over 2,000 lambs entered in the show and about 1800 were in the competition. The show also recorded a record number of steers this year with over 1800.

Twelve Crockett County 4-H members placed lambs in the show. Bobbie Acton exhibited the first place light weight crossbred lamb. The lamb was bred by Earl Acton. Julie Reagor showed a 7th place crossbred lamb and Les Hale a 9th place crossbred lamb.

A complete list of the classes and places follow:

Light Weight Finewool-Bubba Everett, 20; Louis Bunker 23; Julie Reagor, 28, and Jena Allen, 33.

Coincidence thwarts armed robbery arrests

Some San Angelo men got the fright of their lives here Tuesday morning and local officers were sure they had caught the perpetrators of the robbery-slitting at a San Angelo jewelry store.

Shortly before 11:00 a.m. an all-points bulletin was issued on the armed robbery and slaying at Everett Musick Jewelers in San Angelo, where 20-year-old Sheila Elrod was shot to death. A description of two men and a pickup was given at the time and local hospitals were notified that one of the robbers had suffered a severe hand wound breaking a jewelry case at the scene and would most surely require medical treatment.

Shortly afterward it was reported a man with a hand wound such as that described was in the emergency room at Crockett County Hospital. The vehicle parked at the hospital matched the description of the one police were looking for and the two men, although not dressed as described, did match the description of the suspects. The time elapsed would have been just right for them to have committed the crime and driven to Ozona.

Officers surrounded the hospital and while one was dispatched through the emergency entrance, two entered by way of the front door.

It seemed to fit too well to be coincidence, but as it turned out that was exactly what it was. The young man being treated had cut his hand while moving a pool table. The men had some anxious moments while their story was being checked out by local officials, but they were released after their story proved true.

Smith to be banquet speaker

Plans have been completed for the 16th Annual Ozona Chamber of Commerce Banquet which will be held at the Civic Center tomorrow night, Feb. 14, with registration scheduled to begin at 7:00 o'clock.

Guest speaker this year is Tumbleweed Smith, noted broadcaster. He produced "The Sound of Texas," and has been broadcasting since 1960. He started his daily syndicated program in 1969, which may be heard here over KRCT Radio. His program about Texas has been on the air since 1964. He has authored a book, produced a record album and is a humorous after dinner speaker. He graduated from Baylor with a degree in English. He has his master's in journalism from the University of Missouri and is a former NBC News correspondent.

Smith won last year's cultural achievement award from the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and won an international award for commercial productions. He does television commercials for a large mobile home dealer with outlets in many cities in Texas. He holds a lectureship in broadcasting at the University of Texas and is a native Texan.

He and his wife, Susan and their two sons, Kevin and BZ live in Big Spring.

Smith says when he got out of the Army in 1960, he bought a tape recorder and a typewriter and vowed to make his living with those items. He worked at radio and television stations for nine years learning news work, then struck out on his own, concentrating on people-type reporting. Since starting his syndicated program he has traveled over half a million miles on Texas highways, worn out half a dozen cars and used about 500 miles of recording tape. His studio is in his home.

After registration tomorrow night, Dr. Nelson Latham, pastor of First Baptist Church will give the invocation. The dinner will be catered by Mrs. Thelma Jones Girl Scout Troop.

Outgoing president Rick Whitworth will welcome and introduce guests before recognizing outgoing directors and turning the gavel over to the new president, Clayton Robinson. Robinson will be serving his second term as president of the chamber of commerce. Robinson will introduce the new board of directors and then the guest speaker.

Holdover directors include Whitworth, Jerry Lay, Tommy Stokes, Duane Childress, Lee Carlisle, John Jones, Robinson and Jeffrey Sutton.

Newly elected directors are Becky Childress, Charles Sizemore, Don Sessom, and E.F. Sharp. Outgoing directors are Dr. Steve Sessom, Raymond Adcock, Steve Kenley and Beryl Ruthardt.

At monthly meeting Monday-

Court agrees to update hospital

The Crockett County Commissioners Court met with the Crockett County Hospital Board and the staff physicians for the first item of business during the regular monthly court meeting Monday.

The court approved a one-year lease of an IBM 5120 computer system, which is supposed to enable the office staff to get caught up on billing, reported to be several months behind, and attend to other bookkeeping chores. Cost of the lease-rent for the system is $298.68 per month with a $131.00 monthly maintenance fee.

A spokesman for the board asked for money to make capital improvements and upgrade the hospital facility with a view toward re-instituting surgery and obstetrics at the local facility.

The court asked for a list of requests for upgrading the facility and the costs over a period of time, in order that they might be entered in the county budget for the next few years.

Bids on two cars for the Sheriff's Department were accepted from L-B Motors. The two 1980 Malibu police specials were bid in at $5,620.00 each. Bids on the vehicles were also received from Carlisle Motors, however, the court approved the low bid.

The court voted to amend the budget to reflect actual expenses and approved the purchase of an IBM memory typewriter for the county clerk's office at a cost of $2,070.

The court voted to allow the use of county property on the south side of I-10 at Ave. E, for circuses and carnivals.

A request for a new hanger at the airport was tabled until the members of the court can consider specifications and check on space available at the airport.

The court agreed to pay for all corporate bonds for county employees who are notaries. Before adjourning at noon, the court entered into a 2-year lease agreement with Ingram Communications to use the tower located five miles east of Ozona.

Members of the court reconvened at 1:00 p.m. for the annual meeting with the cemetery board.

Chili cookoff is chilly

The weather dealt the second annual St. Valentine's Day Massacre Chili Cookoff at the Circle Bar Truck Corral a cruel blow last weekend. With roads iced over by noon Friday and freezing drizzle peppering the area, only thirty-seven chili cooks arrived at the campground. There were fifty-nine cooks last year in the first event.

In spite of the weather, the chili cooking went on as scheduled. The mud watter was cancelled since the mud hole was frozen solid and the foot races did not take place because of ice on the course. The freezing weather even forced the wet T-shirt contest into a dry one.

Bill Edge of Odessa won the chili champion title, with Wayne Hill of Odessa a close second and Sam Stewart of Sonora, third. Runner up was Bart Kline of San Angelo.

The Davis Gang and Chicken Charlie chili team of Sanderson and Fort Stockton took first place in showmanship with the Travelin' Kitchen of San Angelo coming in second. A local team, Tilly Chilli Girl Scout team, took third place.

The sportsmanship award went to the Davis Gang.

T-shirt winners were two staff members of KERB Radio, Kermit and a buxom lass from Fredericksburg.

Parks is new bank president

At a directors meeting of the Ozona National Bank late last month, Lowell Littleton resigned as President and was appointed vice chairman of the board. Wayne West is chairman of the board.

John Parks was named to the post of president and Sonny Henderson was promoted to vice president. Pon Seahorn was named assistant vice president and Ethel McCrohan was given the title of banking officer.

Ice storm brings moisture

A weekend ice, sleet and snow storm brought a total of .22 of an inch of moisture to Ozona, according to the official gauge at the Water District office.

The cold front blew into the area at mid-morning Friday and by noon freezing drizzle was falling and the temperature plunged into the lower 20s for the low Saturday morning.

Ozona residents awoke Saturday morning to snow-covered lawns and streets.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Last Monday marked the official opening of the political campaign season—it was the filing deadline for all candidates seeking office.

Already the 1980 election year seems one destined to stand out in history. Determined to end Texas' tradition as a one-party state, Republicans have fielded candidates for as many offices as possible and party leaders act confident of gaining more seats in the Legislature and on state courts.

In no small way are Republican hopes resting on their governor's promise to call a special session of the Legislature at the "most inopportune time" for incumbent Democrats. Governor Clements has long promised to bring the lawmakers to Austin to tackle initiative and referendum, wire-tapping authority and tax relief. Last week he partly fulfilled his promise by saying he will hold the special session in August at a specific date to be announced later.

Why August? Clements said September bumps into too many deadlines before the Nov. 4 general election.

August is also the month the Democrats will hold their national convention, and the special session will surely disrupt their participation.

The Governor has come under hot criticism for his intentions of calling the session. Most Democrats are of the opinion Clements is trying to burn their party at taxpayers expense ($1 million, at least). There is no emergency need for the special session since the regular session would be only four months away, they believe, and Clements is simply trying to put the pressure on them shortly before the election.

Clements, of course, has his defense for spending that much tax money: he thinks he can force the Legislature to reduce taxes by an amount more than the special session will cost. His public opinion poll shows voters are split 50-50 on the necessity of a special session.

Clayton: "Not Necessary"

House Speaker Bill Clayton repeated his position last week: the added cost to the taxpayer will not be worth a special session. Legislators can consider Clement's three issues in the regular session beginning next January.

Slush Fund Allegations

Two weeks ago in Iowa, Texas Republican presidential candidate George Bush took his party's lead for the presidential nomination, at least partly on the strength of his clean image. Last week, amidst the skirmishes of politics, that image was attacked with newspaper reports Bush accepted and failed to report some $106,000 from a secret Nixon White House campaign fund.

Newly obtained records disclose Bush accepted the funds during his unsuccessful 1970 Senate race against Democrat Lloyd Bentsen. Bush declined to comment, but his 1980 campaign manager, James A. Baker III, said that former Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski had already looked into the allegation and given Bush "a clean bill of health." Jaworski last week validated Baker's statement, adding that campaign reporting requirements in 1970 were extremely lax.

Teachers Collective Bargaining

The state's largest teacher organization will seek passage of a collective bargaining bill that will give teachers the right to strike during labor disputes.

Texas State Teachers Association director Cecile Russell called the legislation one of their top priorities for 1981 session.

A similar bill, though weaker, died in committee during the 1979 session. The new bill will give teachers the right to select a labor organization to represent them in contract negotiations with school boards.

Clements promptly promised to veto the bill if it passed the Legislature.

Appointment In Line

State Rep. Matt Garcia, D-San Antonio, may be nominated by Pres. Jimmy Carter as the new head of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service. U.S. Atty. Gen. Benjamin Civiletti said he will urge the nomination of the son of a one-time illegal alien.

AG Briefs

In a legal opinion issued last week, Texas Atty. Gen. Mark White ruled a governmental body may not meet in closed session to discuss the employment of an independent contractor such as an engineering, architectural or consultant firm.

White also ruled the comptroller has the discretion to make payroll deductions from state employees' wages upon their written authorization.

RCC names Crockett Field

The Harlaw (upper Grayburg) field of Crockett County was opened Dec. 28, 1979 with completion of C.F. Lawrence & Associates Inc., Midland, No. 1 Harwood "A", 16 miles east of Iran, for a calculated, absolute open flow of 1,200,000 cubic feet of gas daily, through perforations at 1,902-920 feet.

Location is 467 feet from the south and 1,900 feet from the east lines of 7-GG-H &OB.

The break in Thorp's a week or so ago where several hundred dollars worth of clothes were taken, had the impact softened somewhat this week when Max and Pearlletta Morris found a good many of the stolen articles of clothes behind their house in the draw. Apparently the thief discarded the items he couldn't use. The Morris' had noticed the bundles and several days later they investigated and found perfectly good garments, with Thorp's markings. They notified the sheriff's department, and sure enough most items taken in the break were recovered.

I can't help but think if we had a better night lighting system in Ozona, we'd have fewer break-ins.

Triangle: A square that didn't make it.

Most Americans are so restless that they don't feel at home at home.

Nothing cures insomnia like the realization that it is time to get up.

Seems like folks who know the least, know it might fluently.

It must be wonderful to be young enough to know everything.

Temptation bothers some folks most when they can't find any.

Most men give off as much heat as a 100-watt bulb, but not as much light.

We can think of two reasons why some people do not mind their own business. One is that they haven't any mind, and the other they have no business.

The law will never make men free, it is men who must make the law free.

The house that receives no guests will receive no angels.

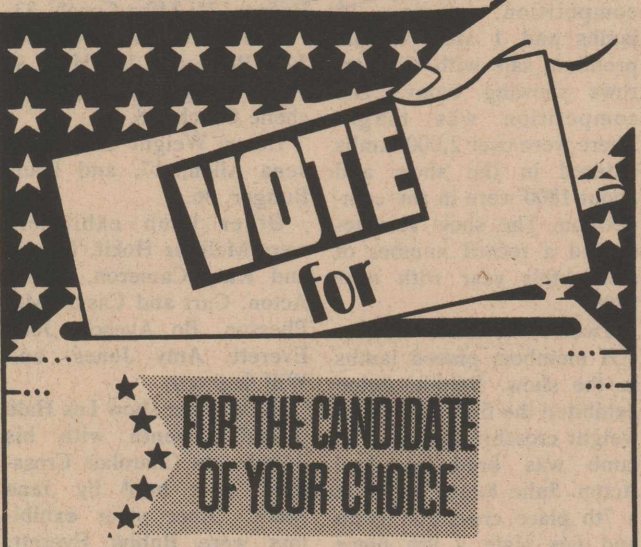

Work may not be as hard as it used to be, but it certainly is more taxing.

Too many folks live cafeteria style—self service.

A modest girl never pursues a man. Neither does a mousetrap pursue a mouse.

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club
by
Mrs. Bailey Post

Since we have had very little rainfall the last few months, let me remind you again about watering your shrubs and especially newly planted trees. Many gardeners think only of the lawn when watering during the winter months. It is most important to always water deeply and thoroughly. Repeated light sprinklings do nothing but encourage shallow root growth. As a general rule you should water established plants when the top inch of soil is dry. The length of time between waterings will depend on the temperature, humidity, rainfall, and soil type in our area. Usually clay soils dry out in about 20 days, loam, 15 days and sand 7 to 9 days. But if you do not water thoroughly, the soil will dry out quicker. Proper watering of ornamentals means soaking the soil to a depth of 1½ to 2 feet. Newly planted shrubs and trees differ from those that are established.

If planted in the winter, deciduous plants should be kept relatively dry and evergreens only slightly moist, for generally winter rains will supply sufficient moisture. If set out in the spring, shrubs and trees need a weekly watering during the first growing season.

With all the beautiful foliage plant material in our gardens, why not use this for an arrangement to enjoy for several weeks.

You don't have to conform to a pre-determined style, for it sets a style of its own. Take the material of nature in the line, form, color, and texture of living plants and arrange them into a unified design.

Before you start collecting your materials, you need to give some thought to where the arrangement will be located and how it will be seen. Location is important because it determines the size, the quantity and character of materials you use.

Container selection is another important consideration, for it needs to be in keeping with the general feeling of the area and with the character of your room. It also needs to be heavy enough to keep arrangement from tipping over and large enough to hold a supply of water for several days.

The most important thing to keep in mind when you are ready to start assembling the arrangement is naturalism. Everytime you add a branch remember how it looks in nature. By allowing the plants to assume their characteristic form, you won't have to make them work, you can let them work for you. Deciduous material can be effective in a foliage design to create the basic structure of the arrangement by placing the bare branches like the form of the tree from which it was taken. Evergreen branches may define the limits of the design and give it a feeling of motion. Additional branches will be used to complete the effect. Plants that can be used.

For Accent-Mahonia, acuba, fatsia, loquat, privet. Deciduous Line-Prickly, Ash, Willow, Crepe Myrtle, Dogwood, Elm, Redbud, elbow bush.

Evergreen Line-Thorny elaeagnus, cotoneaster, yew, showy Jasmine.

Multi Purpose-Longleaf and white pine, Magnolia, Holly, Nandina.

Mass-Boxwood, holly-photinia, japonica pittosporum, sweet olive.

Duplicate Bridge Club winners

Winners in Duplicate Bridge Club play Sunday at the country club were Mrs. Bob Bailey and Mrs. Tom Montgomery, first, and a tie for second between Mrs. John Childress and Mrs. Gene Williams and Mrs. J.B. Parker and Mrs. Robert Cox. The club did not play Saturday.

Mr. Wayne West is expected to return to his home here today after undergoing medical tests and treatment in a San Angelo hospital last week.

Ozona cable system celebrates 25th year

Last Saturday, Feb. 9, was an important anniversary for the people of Ozona, the anniversary of an event that changed the life style of this community.

It was on Feb. 9, 1955, that the first customer was connected to receive television via the cable system newly installed here by a group of Ozona business men who gambled on the future of this infant industry by making the considerable investment necessary to bring the signals from distant television broadcasting stations to antennas installed atop a 400-foot tower erected on the W.E. Friend hill in the northeast edge of the city.

Many in Ozona will recall watching the first demonstrated tv reception in a tent erected at the base of the tower for several days. The signals came in direct from broadcast station to the antennas on the tower. The pictures were somewhat snowy, but it was television nevertheless. Ozonans, however, had seen better pictures in the city and, although many were ordering connections for their homes, but not fast enough to re-assure the promoters that they might soon recover their investment.

As technology improved, however, and knowledge was gained by management, improvements in the reception and distribution methods developed rapidly. Instead of depending on the long range reception via antennas the system began installing microwave equipment, picking up signals at nearby points and transmitting it to receiving equipment in the local tower.

In the twenty-five years of its existence, the Ozona Television System has built a cable system that is the envy of many cities. In fact, Ozona has one of the finest cable systems in the nation, and Ozonans in many cases have better television service than people who live in big cities with television stations a block away.

Due largely to the enterprise and knowledge of its manager, Oscar Kost, the local system has expanded rapidly, and in the last year or two almost phenomenally. From the beginning antenna reception of stations in San Angelo and Midland, the system has purchased the service of a system that brings solid signals from Dallas, Abilene, San Angelo and within the last year the system has installed what is known as an "earth station," to receive tv reception from satellites, orbiting in outer space. The result of all this development has been that Ozonans now have two NBC, two CBS and two ABC stations, plus an educational public broadcast station, and by satellite perhaps the world's largest tv station, WTBS at Atlanta, Ga. plus WGN, Chicago, and Home Box Office service, a pay service offering movies and entertainment commercial free. The system today offers its patrons reception on eleven of twelve channels and had contracted for a twelfth service via satellite to have been provided off the multi-million dollar satellite that RCA recently launched and then lost somewhere in outer space.

Planning for the Ozona system began in 1954 when five men, Oscar Kost, Evert White, W.E. Friend, Jr., Bill Cooper and Dick Henderson began an investigation. Henderson dropped out before the planning had gone far and Sherman Taylor was invited to join. Later Cooper sold out his interest and the foursome or their heirs carried on the development to today's huge operation.

Civic Center scene of Forum meeting

The Woman's Forum met February 5, at the Civic Center, with Mrs. Gene Perry and Mrs. Bonnie Warth as co-hostesses.

The President, Mrs. J.D. Brown, conducted the business session. Several things concerning the District Convention were discussed.

The program was "Pioneer Women." "Women's Role in Crockett County's History" was given by Mrs. P.L. Childress; who told of the role the women played in establishing homes, churches, and schools. Mrs. James Childress and Mrs. Ele Hagelstein showed pictures of many of the pioneer women. Because of program changing in the fall, Mrs. Gene Perry was unable to give her information gathered on "Do We Need a Republican Primary?" She discussed this with the club members.

Other members present included: Mrs. T.J. Bailey, Mrs. Charles Black, Mrs. George Bunker, Mrs. W.R. Clegg, Mrs. Fred Hagelstein, Mrs. Madye Jo Humphreys, Mrs. L.D. Kirby, Mrs. Allie Lock, Mrs. J. McCartney, Mrs. Kirby Moore, Mrs. Arthur Phillips, Mrs. C.O. Spencer, Mrs. W.T. Stokes, Mrs. W.H. Whitaker, Mrs. Lowell Littleton, Mrs. John Coates, and a guest, Mrs. Roy A. Harrell, Jr.

Debra Says

by Debra Price

Books can help children cope with a crisis in their lives.

For example, is your child having problems with any of the following situations?

Acceptance of a new sister or brother.

Death of a family member or friend.

Parental divorce, separation or desertion.

Adjustment to a new school.

Relocation to a new neighborhood.

Temporary separation from family, as in the first time at school or a day-care center, or the first time to spend the night at a friend's house.

Fear of the dark or of the doctor or dentist.

Reading books that deal with the problem can help a child cope.

Technically it's called "bibliotherapy"—a method parents can use to help a child cope with family crisis.

It works this way: the parent reads problem-related books to the child.

Then the parent and child discuss the story in the book and how it relates to the child's own problem situation.

Books can often put into words what the child is feeling.

Books also let the child know he is not the only one who has experienced that particular feeling or problem. He may want to hear or read the book several times.

To find books that deal with specific problems, ask the librarian at your public library or school library for suggestions. Be sure they're an appropriate age level for your child, too.

Also, ask your child's teacher for ideas about books you can use to help him cope.

When it gets too much

A President of the United States in the middle of a war that nobody liked turned to prayer. Abraham Lincoln explained simply that he had been driven to his knees many times by the knowledge that his own strength, and that of all around him, was insufficient.

Sometimes we have to pray! It gets too much

And don't feel awkward if you're not used to it. Folks before you have found that life gets too much. They have been driven to their knees — and turned to God — believing there was something better ahead.

Your worst day could become your best! Why not check it out in church? What Abe Lincoln was driven to may be what your soul needs, hungers for.

When it gets too much — there's a better way ahead.

Texas motor vehicle accidents increase

Despite spiralling insurance costs, rising maintenance costs and skyrocketing fuel prices, Texas motor vehicle accidents continued to increase in 1979.

"The number of Texas traffic deaths increased proportionally with the growing number of licensed drivers in Texas in 1979," James R. Halverson, vice-president for Traffic Safety for Texas Safety Association, said.

According to Texas Department of Public Safety statistics and predictions, 4223 persons died in traffic-related accidents last year. These figures represent a 6.1 percent surge over the 3,980 mortality data of 1978.

Although Texans traveled .7 percent fewer "vehicle miles" in 1979 than in 1978, the death rate increased over one percent last year, Bill Carter, public information officer for the DPS, said.

Carter attributes the majority of traffic collisions to "excessive speed."

"Speeding is the cause of nearly 60 percent of all motor vehicle accidents," Ed Arnold, director of TSA Driver Improvement Programs, said.

"At 65 miles per hour, drivers increase their chances of being involved in a fatal accident by 25 to 35 percent, and use 18 percent more gasoline (than when driving 55 m.p.h.)," Arnold said.

As a result, Arnold stresses observance of the 55 m.p.h. speed limit in the Defensive Driving Course which is sponsored by the National Safety Council and TSA.

Besides emphasizing compliance with the speed limit, the DDC offers many safety tips for high speed driving on highways and thoroughfares. Such precautions include maintaining a smooth flow of traffic, particularly when entering and exiting freeways, as well as practicing the "two second rule."

The "two second rule" is a DDC strategy to prevent rear-end collisions and consists of remaining "two seconds" behind the preceding car. This distance can be calculated by following the subsequent formula:

The motorist watches the vehicle ahead pass some definite point on the road such as a tar strip or overpass shadow. He then counts "one thousand and one, one thousand and two." If his vehicle reaches the mark before finishing the count, he is following too closely.

As driving conditions become adverse, following distance and sight distance time must be adjusted.

Taking rest stops every two hours or one hundred miles and using seat belts are other highway safety practices that are encouraged in the DDC.

The eight-hour Defensive

Driving Course, which is reported to lower accident rates by 32.8 percent, concentrates on driver motivation, positive driving habits and accident avoidance. DDC graduates are entitled to a 10 percent insurance discount from State Board Regulated Texas Insurance Companies for a period of three years.

Gries on A&M honor list

Cemetery Assn.meeting

The annual meeting of the Crockett County Cemetery Association was held Monday afternoon with the Commissioners Court. The members voted to have all cemetery records returned to the county clerk's office where they will remain in a permanent file.

Mrs. Jack Baggett was re-elected as president of the association and David Weant was elected secretary-treasurer.

Judge Johnny Jones motioned to have the County Clerk of Crockett County serve as secretary-treasurer of the Cemetery Association at all times in the future and have the cemetery records of public record and recorded as such. All approved.

Members of the Cemetery Association were re-appointed.

In other action the court directed that a minute volume containing all actions taken by county boards be started in the clerk's office and be available to the public.

Prematurity calls for special help

From the Texas Medical Association

When a premature baby is born, the child often instantly becomes the center of an intense emotional and medical struggle concentrating on the infant's survival. In many cases, the parents' intense struggle with their own special set of problems is overlooked.

Problems start for parents immediately after delivery. The mother must work through four major stages of the prematurity crisis: 1. preparing for possible loss of the baby; 2. acknowledging feelings of failure for having an unhealthy baby; 3. returning to readiness to relate to the baby once survival is assured; 4. coping with the infant's special needs.

The last step means parents' troubles are not over even after the baby comes home from the hospital, according to an article in the January issue of Texas Medicine, the Texas Medical Association's monthly journal. After having doctors, nurses and advanced equipment around to take care of the baby, suddenly parents are left alone with a child that often still has several medical problems, cries a lot and requires frequent feedings. These stresses are compounded by parents' worries if the child develops slowly or has disturbances common to premature infants such as problems sleeping or paying attention.

Luckily medical treatment keeps many premature infants from suffering intellectual handicaps but many still run the risk of having learning disabilities or trouble with school work, especially reading and mathematics, that will show up as they grow older.

Girl Scout leaders in meeting

The regular Neighborhood meeting of the Crockett County Girl Scout leaders and assistants was held Feb. 7, 1980 at 7:30 in the home of Thelma Janes.

Neighborhood chairman Terri Adams asked that money for the annual cookie sales be turned in on or before Feb. 12. Public response was a big factor in the successful cookie sale which was recently completed.

Leaders present were Becky Leach, Kathy Carson, Charlotte Judd, Diane Martinez, Terri Adams, Thelma Janes and Peggy Phillips.

Cakes, made by Mrs. Judd and Mrs. Phillips, were served by Tammy Adams. Winner of the door prize, an umbrella plant, was Mrs. Janes.

A discussion was held on the selection of troops to take part in the rodeo parade March 7, in San Angelo.

The next meeting will be held March 10, at Mrs. Janes home at 7:30. Visitors are always welcome to see what leaders are planning for Girl Scouts.

Regular check-ups to detect learning problems should start at an early age so any troubles can be corrected long before the premature child starts school, according to the article's authors, Murdina M. Desmond, M.D., Abbie L. Vorderman, M.D., and Martha Salinas. They all work at the Meyer Center for Developmental Pediatrics at the Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

How well parents cope with the long and short-term stresses of having a premature baby depends on what the article calls parents' "Emotional bank account" and the support they have. Parents' physical and

Former cult member to speak

Sheila Toney, a de-programmed former member of Way International, a religious cult, will be in Ozona Friday, Feb. 22, to talk to students and parents about cults which brainwash their members and alienate them from their families.

Miss Toney was originally scheduled to make her talks here today, but the dates have been rescheduled. She will speak to students at 10:00 a.m. in the high school auditorium, and to parents at 8:00 that night at the First Baptist Church.

She will be telling students how to avoid becoming involved in cults and speaking to parents on how to recognize signs that their children have come under the influence of a cult.

Crockett County Care Center News

by Joan Nicholas — Director of Activities & Social Care

Another very active week has passed by in a hurry and here it is column time again.

Residents just about wiped out my supply of second prizes at Bingo on Friday! Winning the gift certificate which was donated by Watson's Department Store was Evelyn Bryant. Evelyn hasn't played with us for about a year, and we were happy that she won, because we hope she will join us more often. Winning second were: Frances Borrego, Ruby Cooksey, Gertrude Daniels, Leona Harris, Ramona Lugo, Mary Pender, Verna Talley and Blanche Fortune; eight in all.

We had more music Wednesday night as we welcomed seven folks from Big Lake. In the rush to get over here, Charlie Beaird left his guitar on the kitchen table; (of course, as is usually the case, his wife had to take some good natured ribbing from him—all her fault!) He did have his fiddle, and Leota Cox dug deep into Mary Seelye's closet in her room and found her guitar that she is no long able to play. Charlie was really glad that he had it, and Mary was very proud that he used it. This week we will have Jamie Knox and company, and he tells me he now has two additional members in the group. This will be the fourth week in a row that we have had band music and we really do appreciate these players who, after putting in a hard day's work, come out and entertain us all at the Care Center.

Liz Mary Pipes and Doris Karr hosted the monthly birthday party Monday afternoon. Sadie Whitehurst assisted in serving the delicious cake and punch. Honorees who proudly wore yellow carnations from Maxine's Flowers, were Paul Cavin (92 on the 27th) Evelyn Bryant (80 on the 4th) and Gordon Smith (82 on the 2nd). Paul received a letter of congratulations from the Governor of Texas on celebrating his birthday (past 90 years).

We are especially grateful to the Ozona Woman's Forum for making a new supply of bibs for us. Maudie Couch also took on quite a few and we thank everyone for the pretty new look in the dining room at meal-times!

Sandra Childress delivered a check for $50.00 to be used for the purchase of beauty shop supplies. This is donated by the Woman's League. Thank you ladies, this is great.

Georgia Kirby has loaned us her lava light to enjoy for a week or two. This is located on the TV in the lobby. Another gift was brought by Ruby Cooksey's daughter, Vivian Gilbert of Sonora—two beauty shop capes.

The mending program is a real boon, and Sadie returned a pile of clothing that she had repaired.

Frances Borrego and Tomasa Ramos have been busy making paper flowers to finish up another heart for Valentine decor. Juana Hernandez and several others in crafts, have worked on the two hearts and they are hanging on either side of the TV set and look very attractive. The felt hearts that we decorated last year (or was it the year before?) have been placed on room doors once more. The Valentine theme was also carried out at the birthday party, Monday.

Participation in the Bible class is growing each week. When I first started this class, very few contributed anything during the lesson, but now it is wonderful! Just what I have been wishing for all these months; we have so much input, good ideas, and above all much love and caring shown in the group. The lesson last week concerned the barriers that existed between Jews and Samaritans in Jesus' day. We made comparisons with some "barriers" which still exist in our society today and how we, as Christians can overcome these. We attempted to look back into the past and tell of our first experiences, mostly in our childhood, when we first became aware of our Christian heritage. In reading and discussion we went over the current news, and I read some fiction from a magazine and lots of humor from "Grit."

Glad to report that Frieda Hill is back with us again from the hospital and looking much better.

WANTED! I really need a good supply of the eggs in which a certain brand of hosiery are sold. Would appreciate anyone who comes by these eggs, saving them for me. Thanks.

Ozonan on Sul Ross dean's list

Sarah Jo Bailey Oglesby was named to the Dean's List for the 1979 fall semester at Sul Ross State University. According to Dr. Earl Elam, vice president for Academic Affairs, undergraduate students who have been enrolled for as many as 15 semester hours during the previous semester and have earned a grade point average of at least 3.0 on a 4.0 scale are named to the list each semester.

She earned a 3.8 grade point average.

Community council formed

A local group of citizens met at the Ozona Community Center to investigate possible needs of older people in our community. Sam Emanuel served as group leader for the meeting. The group discussed various community problems and voted to be called a Community Council.

The Community Council will make a survey of Crockett County investigating possible needs of older people. Needs discussed at the Tuesday meeting were transportation, yard work, occasional help in the home, reassurance programs, loneliness, home repairs, ramps at public buildings, and interpreting medicare reports.

Members attending were Liz Mary Pipes, Maudie Couch, Beth Boyd, Beatrice Castillo, Maria DeLa Rosa, Richard Gordon, Eva Gordon, Christina Johnson, Willie J. Wilson, Sandra Childress, Concha Zapata, Orlando Vargas, Joan Nicholas, Connie Marroquin, Maria Vitela, Blas Vargas, Joe Galvan, and Debra Price.

If you are aware of needs in our community or would like to serve as a volunteer call Sam Emanuel at 2-2710, Debra Price at 2-2721, or Beth Boyd at 2-3066.

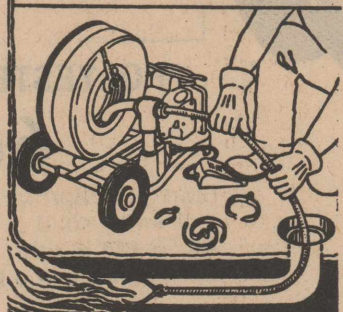

Ozonans on Tech honor roll

More than 5,500 students at Texas Tech University qualified for the dean's honor rolls in the six colleges during the 1979 fall semester.

Among them were 3 from Ozona. They are Karen Kirby, Gwendolyn G. McKinney and Nora L. Perner. To qualify for a dean's honor roll a student must have a grade point average of 3.0 or more on a 4.0 scale and must have taken as many as 12 semester hours of work.

Texas Tech University has an enrollment of more than 23,000 students in six colleges: Agricultural Sciences, Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education, Engineering and Home Economics. There are also the Graduate School and School of Law.

Texas Sheep & Goat News....

If sheepmen could bottle the atmosphere they created at the recent Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Assn. winter directors meeting in Brownwood, the proceeds could carry them through drought, pestilence and even bureaucratic scourges.

It was the kind of upbeat mood that most folks would pay good money to enjoy. Why was it that way? There were many reasons, but none of them alone can explain it.

Take predator control. Things have been dreary on the coyote front the last few years, each year a little drearier than the last, in fact. This hasn't really changed appreciably, but there are indications now that it may.

At least a growing number of stockmen think it may change, and therein lies the jewel. Tired of continually giving up crucial ground to the environmentalists, stockmen show every sign now of rearing back on their hind legs and pressing the attack. There was talk at the Brownwood meeting of seriously pushing a switch of the ADC program from Interior to USDA, even of snatching the miserable little starling away from the feds altogether and nurturing it at home in Texas. In the meantime, U.S. Senator John Tower has introduced a bill that would put a few teeth back into the federal predator program.

Then there was the case of the off-again, on-again toxic collar study. Interior Secretary Andrus' vow to end 1080 research brought an order to cancel a toxic collar test underway at Meridian, but what must have been surprisingly heavy pressure from friendly forces managed to reverse that order.

In other developments, Association people heard at Brownwood that the golden eagle trapping program may be showing good signs and wonder of all wonders—the eagle team even has authority to relocate bald eagles when necessary.

There were other areas where things appear to have a positive glow. Folks have been fretting for some time about the possible impact of federal rules on non-point source pollution, but a representative from the Texas Water Board told the TS&GRA that almost all Texas rivers and streams meet federal water quality rules not even in effect yet. As for the future, he said he doubted the rules would get much tougher because even the feds are beginning to realize that quality improvements above current levels are going to cost too much money for too little gain. That should ease the non-point source problem some.

This "point of diminishing returns" situation is becoming more and more clear to more and more people, according to Texas state representative Lynn Nabers, Brownwood. Both Nabers and legislative colleague Gerald Geistweidt, Mason, warned that rural Texas voters will lose more representation after the 1980 census, but Nabers added that even many of the urbanites who'll profit from that loss are beginning to get fed up with the types of liberal philosophies their country cousins fear they'll favor. Environmental regulations in particular, he said, are more and more being viewed as excessive and counter-productive.

Then there was the fond farewell to screwworms. Mission screwworm director Dr. James Novy told association members that the destructive parasite has essentially been eradicated from the U.S., at least sufficiently to begin considering a phaseout of the U.S. sterile fly plant.

There was still more. Though actual market prices are high enough to make it an academic point, producers were encouraged to hear that the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service has raised mohair incentive levels 15 percent, forming an effective floor against any future slippage. Another positive sign was an indication that Texas A&M may soon establish a branch veterinary diagnostic lab at the San Angelo Research and Extension Center. This branch would concentrate on sheep and goats, much as an Amarillo branch VDL is geared toward beef cattle.

Of course, there were a few clouds, such as the one over the Knox City SCS Plant Materials Center and other such centers across the nation. Rhett Johnson, SCS spokesman, told TS&GRA that USDA is considering plans to do away with the plant research system that has brought many of the improved forage varieties now in wide use across Texas. Johnson also said the Great Plains Conservation program is set to expire by 1981 unless extended by federal legislation.

Resolutions adopted at the meeting supported both the Great Plains program, the plant materials centers, the San Angelo Branch VDL, a 20 percent increase in sheep and goat hauling rates, and a federal version of the predator loss survey conducted by the Texas Crop & Livestock Reporting Service.

Other resolutions expressed appreciation for the Texas predator loss survey and ASCS' mohair incentive increase. Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown received a special vote of thanks for the recent "predator summit" meeting in Austin, as did Senator Tower for his introduction of S.2195.

Poultry profits to be slim

Although Americans may eat more poultry and eggs in 1980, profits to producers will be slim due to increased supplies and rising costs.

Dr. David B. Mellor, poultry marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, points out that poultry and egg production is up in the United States and throughout the world. These increased supplies are keeping the lid on prices. However, some increase in consumption should help the situation.

For instance, Mellor expects egg consumption to increase again in 1980 following increases the past two years. In 1979 each American ate 282 eggs, on the average. The specialist believes egg use is increasing due to higher prices of competing meat products, less fear of cholesterol, and increased promotional efforts.

Broiler producers are in the same shape as egg producers, notes Mellor. Supplies are up, feed costs continue to rise, and large pork supplies will have a negative effect on broiler consumption.

Turkey production is also up and prices are down. But more and more turkey is being used for further-processed items, so turkey prices may not suffer as much as broiler prices in the year ahead, says the specialist.

As producers look to the 1980s, the real key will be the availability and prices of grain, believes Mellor. Both poultry and eggs are low price, high value items to consumers and should benefit from increased consumption. However, profits will hinge on grain prices.

Sales tax rep to visit here

State Comptroller Bob Bullock will have a representative from his San Angelo office in Ozona on February 21, 1980 to assist local taxpayers and answer questions about state taxes.

Bullock said Enforcement Officer Steve Mercer will meet with local taxpayers in the Law Library of the Crockett County Courthouse Annex from 2:00 to 3:00 p.m.

"If Ozona area merchants, or anyone else for that matter, have any questions about state taxes or need help in preparing state tax forms, Mr. Mercer will be there to assist them," Bullock said.

"We're trying to cut the red tape in this office, and we believe these face to face sessions with taxpayers help do just that," Bullock added.

The San Angelo office, headed by Thomas M. Goff, serves San Angelo and surrounding counties.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By Jerry Lay

Only 3 colleges in America have ever won the national championship in BOTH basketball and football. Can you name the only 3 schools who have done it? They are Ohio State, UCLA and Michigan State.

Here's a question on basketball rules that most people aren't sure of. If a player bounces the ball off the floor and it goes into the basket, does it count as a score? Answer, surprisingly, is yes.

What are the fewest points ever scored in any basketball game--high school, college or pro? In a game in 1927, Drain High School of Drain, Ore., beat Wilbur High of Wilbur, Ore., 1-0, when neither team made a field goal at any time during the game, and Drain made one foul shot to win. That all-time record was tied in 1930 when Georgetown High of Georgetown, Ill., beat Homer High of Homer, Ill., 1-0. And, on March 7, 1941, Las Animas High of Las Animas, Colo., played La Junta High of La Junta, Colo., and the game wound up 0-0 in regulation time. Las Animas scored one basket in overtime to win 2-0.

I bet you didn't know. L-B Motor Co. has a car or pickup to fit your needs. Come by and see the new and used cars. Chevrolets, Buicks, Pontiacs, Oldsmobiles, and Cadillacs.
