Last chance to stop Carter

Primary season ends

By The Associated Press

Voters in California, Ohio and New Jersey cast the final ballots of the nation's longest presidential primary season today in elections that could tell whether President Ford can be overturned, and whether Jimmy Carter can be stopped.

It was Ford against Ronald Reagan and Carter against three sets of Democratic opponents, for the biggest one-day delegate crop since the primary voting began 15 weeks ago.

All told, Democrats were selecting 540 national convention delegates, Republicans 331.

Ford entered the last set of primaries with 804 of the 1,130 delegates needed to win the Republican nomination. Reagan has 692 and there are 148 in the uncommitted column. Republicans will choose another 283 delegates in caucuses and state conventions, and that is where the competition will focus after today.

Carter is far ahead of the Democratic field, and bids today for delegates to move himself beyond the reach of the rivals who seek to stop him. He now has 909, with 1,505 needed for nomination. That is nearly three times his closest challenger, Rep. Morris K. Udall, who has 307.5. There are 393.5 uncommitted Democratic delegates, and 141 to be chosen after the primaries.

Today's balloting lines up this way:

California
Reagan, the former governor, is in his home territory, bidding for 167 delegates in a winner-take-all contest with the President. Ford casts himself as the underdog but adds: "I don't rule out the possibility that there could be a surprise."

One Ford aide said a victory in California would be a miracle.

The Republican campaign there escalated in the closing hours as Reagan responded bitterly to a Ford commercial suggesting that as President he could start a war. He called it divisive, low road campaigning.

California Democrats were choosing 280 delegates, but they have discarded the winner-take-all rule, so the home-state advantage of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. won't give him a sweep. Carter expects to cut into the California delegation, which will be apportioned on the basis of the popular vote in the state's 43 congressional districts. Udall, Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, former Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma and anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormack also are entered.

The polls close at 11 p.m. EDT.

Ohio
Ford is competing for 97 Republican delegates, unopposed for 24 of them. Reagan made a two-day swing to Ohio in hopes of cutting into the President's column. Ford wound up his primary campaigning Monday with a 288-mile motorcade through western Ohio. He said a Reagan ticket could lead Republicans to landslide defeat in November.

Carter, Udall and Church were the active Democratic campaigners for a primary that will award 152 Democratic delegates. Udall said a Carter victory could make the former Georgia governor unstoppable. He assailed Carter as a "mystery man" who has concentrated on collecting delegates without declaring clear positions on the issues. Wallace, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, who has dropped from the campaign, and a small selection of district favorite sons are the other Ohio entries.

Polls there close at 8 p.m. EDT.

New Jersey
A nominally uncommitted slate, actually allied with Ford, is entered for the 67 Republican delegates. Would-be delegates who list themselves as supporting "former California governor" are competing for 40 delegate slots. Reagan expects no more than a handful of delegates in that one.

There are 108 Democratic delegates there, and Carter's major opposition is an uncommitted slate which includes supporters of Brown and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey. Church, Udall, Wallace, Jackson, Harris and Mrs. McCormack also have entries in the delegate competition.

Brown campaigned in New Jersey on election eve, and said it was the crucial primary. "This is where the Carter bandwagon finally runs off the track," he said.

Carter, Church and three other Democrats were listed on a purely advisory preferential primary ballot. The polls close at 7:30 p.m. EDT.

Ford and Reagan argued at a distance over a campaign commercial broadcast by the President Ford Committee which concludes: "Gov. Reagan couldn't start a war. President Reagan could."

It is based on a comment Reagan made last Thursday in Sacramento, that he might consider sending a token U.S. force to Rhodesia if the government asked for help to preserve peace. He said later that he had made a mistake by giving that hypothetical answer to a hypothetical question.

Ford and his campaign quickly responded that the President wasn't going to send any American forces to southern Africa. And on Monday, Ford told his Ohio audiences that his administration "is not going to send any troops to southern Africa or to Rhodesia."

Reagan, campaigning in northern California, said "Let's make it clear. No, I would not send troops to Rhodesia."

Eight squadrons pass in review

Col. Spannaus in command

By MARJ CARPENTER

At 10:31 this morning, Col. Robert A. Owens relinquished command of the 78th Flying Training Wing to Col. Harry A. Spannaus.

To the stirring music of military ruffles and flourishes and the National Anthem by the Air Force Band of the West, the transition of command was passed.

Lt. Gen. John W. Roberts, commander of Air Training Command, took part in the formal ceremony.

Also during the ceremonies, Col. Owens was decorated with the Legion of Merit, First Oak Leaf Cluster. The decoration was made by Gen. Roberts. It was for meritorious service as Wing Commander at Webb Air Force Base.

Eight base squadrons passed in review to the accompaniment of military music with the ceremony occurring on the flight lines in front of Base Operations.

The 539th Air Force Band from Lackland AFB led the parade. Col. Owens, who came to Webb as wing commander in July 1974 now becomes the deputy director of Aerospace Safety at the Air Force Inspection and Safety Center, Norton AFB, Calif.

MONTH LATER

Col. Spannaus arrived at Webb a month later than Col. Owens. He served first as the deputy commander for Logistics and became deputy commander for Maintenance when the tri-deputy system was implemented.

Squadrons that took part in the parade included four squadrons from Operations, one made up of allied students, one from Student Squadron, one from the 3389th Flying Training Squadron and one from the 83rd FTS.

Others participating included a marching squadron from Headquarters Squadron Air Base Group and Civil Engineering, one from Field and Organizational Maintenance Squadrons, one from Supply Squadron and one from 2050th Communications.

Occupying a place of honor in the center was the Color Guard.

Marching six men abreast and six men deep, each unit had a squadron commander, two flight commanders, one first sergeant, two flight sergeants, one guidon bearer and two guides.

An invitation reception followed at the Officers Club with Gen. Roberts, Col. Spannaus and Col. Owens in the receiving line.

The new commanding officer, before coming to Webb, attended simultaneously the Air War College and Troy State University at Montgomery, Ala. He was named distinguished graduate at the war college.

Prior to his return to school, Col. Spannaus served in Europe as chief of the Operations Division, Inspector General headquarters for the U.S. Air Force in Europe at Wiesbaden, Germany.

IN GERMANY

From Nov. 1969 to June 1973, he held positions as operations officer of two fighter squadrons, commander of the 22nd Tactical Fighter Squadron and commander of the 36th Operations Maintenance Squadron at Bitburg, Germany.

The colonel's career has included conducting spin test programs on T-33 and T-37 aircraft for Air Training Command. He was also involved in the Mach II high altitude intercept program using Bomarc missiles as targets.

Col. Spannaus entered the Air Force direct from school when he was a senior at the University of Minnesota in 1951. He had tours in Korea at K13 and Suwan and flew over Vietnam from Udorn, Thailand while assigned to the 555th "Triple Nickel" Tactical Fighter Squadron.

His other assignments included tours at Bryan AFB, Tex., Moody AFB, Ga., Yokota AB, Japan, as test pilot and maintenance officer at each base. He was quality control officer at Hickman AFB, Hawaii and operations officer of the 11th Fighter Interceptor Squadron at Duluth, Minn.

The colonel and his wife, Mary, reside at the base. They have three children, Terri and Kathi, who attend Texas Tech and Mark, a sophomore at Big Spring High.

Out-of-town dignitaries attending the Change of Command ceremony included Col. Horace W. (Whitey) Miller, wing commander at Columbus AFB, Miss., and former deputy commander for Operations at Webb, Col. Robert Jessup, deputy commander for Maintenance, Columbus AFB, Col. Lawrence Garrison, wing commander at Laughlin AFB, Del Rio, Col. James P. Smotherman, wing commander, Vance AFB, Enid, Okla., Brig. Gen. (retired) Edwin J. White, Midland, former deputy commander for Operations, Webb AFB, Col. (retired) Wilson W. Banks, Midland, former wing commander, Webb AFB and Capt. D. P. Tewel, aide to Lt. Gen. John W. Roberts.

Police nab empty house

HOUSTON (AP) — Special police units rushed a home where a man reportedly had barricaded himself, but found only an empty house and a rifle case.

Police had waited almost six hours before moving in. Relatives of the man, described as a former mental patient and veteran of World War II, had called out to him to surrender peacefully.

The neighborhood was evacuated shortly after a police patrol car was rushed to the scene to pick up a wounded man lying on the street in front of the house.

Neighbors in the blue collar residential area told police the man had barricaded himself in the house armed with a .30 caliber rifle and had a large amount of ammunition. He lived alone in the wooden frame house.

Officers said a search for the missing man was under way.

Police identified the wounded man as John Harris, who was reported in critical condition at Ben Taub Hospital.

A police spokesman said a passerby saw Harris lying on the street early this morning and called police. A patrol car arrived later and officers pieced together the information available from neighbors and relatives.

Harris was shot in the back with a .30 caliber rifle police said.

TO THE FRONT — The official color guard marches briskly forward at special ceremonies at Webb Air Force Base this morning. Col. Robert A. Owens, outgoing wing commander, was officially decorated in front of the guard. The change of command followed with Col. Harry A. Spannaus assuming command.

Impact study hearing delayed

Adolph Swartz elected Century Club chairman

Adolph Swartz, long active in the base-relations council, was elected chairman of the Century Club by the executive directors in their meeting Monday.

New directors were elected, including Dr. P. W. Malone, Ken Perry, J. Tom Graham and Swartz. One of the three will draw a one-year term.

They replace Jimmy Taylor, Dr. Clarence Peters, Tom Locke, and Ron McNeil. The other directors remaining on the board are Al Stephens and A. J. Statser. Also, Mayor Wade Choate and Col. Harry Spannaus serve on the executive council along with Terry Hanson, chamber executive.

Choate was elected vice-chairman and Hanson serves as secretary.

Swartz, in accepting the position, reiterated words said in the earlier general meeting by the incoming wing commander, Col. Harry Spannaus.

"Now is the very time for the Century Club to assert itself and make the greatest possible effort to continue the excellent base-community relations that this community has at this time," Swartz stated.

"I think we need to back this organization to the fullest. The excellent relationship between civilians and military in this community will not be overlooked in the final decision about Webb."

Col. Spannaus pointed out the importance of the excellent relationship between the community and the base stating, "I know that this appeared to be noticed, even by the representative from the Pentagon who came to Webb. This is, after all, one of the most pleasant and appealing bases in the world." Col. Spannaus also commended the community for the work in developing the base-community relationship.

In other business at their noon meeting Monday, Statser presided and heard reports from Jimmy Taylor on recent hospitality events including the farewell for Col. and Mrs. Robert A. Owens and the mini-rodeo and barbecue held for the non-commissioned officers and their wives.

Mayor Choate reported on legislative action and told the group that it looks as though the bill with the clause in connection with waiting a year before base closures will go through the Senate intact and that it probably will be signed by the President.

Choate pointed out that there are now some indications that this would mean a year from the date of signing of the bill. If this were the case, Webb could not be closed prior to the fall of 1977.

It was also announced by Choate that the environmental impact study hearing has been postponed 30 days and will be held July 15.

Ford grounded when flashbulb goes 'pop'

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — "It sounded like it might be ominous but it turned out just to be a lightbulb," President Ford said after he and his Secret Service detail were startled by a flashbulb burst.

Ford was leaving the Bowling Green University field house Monday after a campaign appearance when the flashbulb on a coed's camera apparently malfunctioned and exploded with a loud pop, sending fragments flying through the air.

The President, sunburned from a weekend of outdoor campaigning, turned ashen as Secret Service agents grabbed him, spun him around and pushed him to the floor while other bodyguards rushed into the crowd.

Within moments, Ford was on his feet and announced "I'm all right." He left the auditorium smiling and waving.

White House physician William Lukash said the President was unhurt.

The photographer was released immediately after the agents realized it had been an accident.

When Ford later told newsmen the explosion had sounded "ominous," he was asked if he were injured. "I look pretty healthy, don't I," he replied.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Distracting birds

Q. Why doesn't the school board do something about birds that live in the Goliad Junior High gymnasium? A choral program held there was greatly disturbed and distracted by them Monday night. This situation has continued for six years that I know of because I have a graduating senior and they were there when this child attended Goliad.

A. The school board, itself, does not take care of educational or maintenance problems at the school. They are all men who hold other jobs and give of their time voluntarily to hire a staff to run the school and direct its policies.

The director of properties and grounds said that they have been aware of this problem for many years. Walter Alexander stated, "We have tried to keep the windows closed so birds could not get into the building. We have put out several different items that are supposed to drive birds away. At times, we have improved the situation but we have never controlled it." Anyone who has a solution may call the school business office.

Offbeat: Skirting the issue

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Tex., was asked in a Monday news conference on energy policy if he believed there will be an "orgasm" this fall of energy-related legislation.

Krueger smiled broadly and said, "I'd rather not comment on orgasms in Washington right now."

Best bet on TV: Nothing

There is nothing on tonight worth watching. Actually, if you like reruns there is. But otherwise, for any fresh ions from the tube, you'll have to stay up late for the returns of the last three primaries of this election year. They could be interesting, upsets may be in the making.

Months, some states and many animal disease specialists have expressed doubts that brucellosis can ever be eradicated in the United States and have called for a control program instead.

Under current USDA regulations, any animal found to be infected with brucellosis must be slaughtered. The regulations also require that the herd from which the animal came must be quarantined until the herd is determined to be free of the disease. Livestock producers claim that the USDA regulations result in a severe financial impact on their industry since high-quality breeding cattle in a quarantined herd can only be sold for slaughter at a reduced price. Many livestock groups contend that not enough is known about the disease at present and have asked for an extensive study of brucellosis before implementing more strenuous regulations.

De la Garza asked that all individuals wishing to testify before the subcommittee contact Ms. Anita Brown at the House Agriculture Committee (202-225-2171) as soon as possible to facilitate scheduling.

Texas Tech Bicentennial Trail Drive heads north

"Head 'em up and move 'em out" will sound again in San Antonio Sunday, June 27, as a herd of Texas longhorns and cowboys hit the dusty trail heading north to Lubbock. Sunday marks the beginning of the Texas Tech Bicentennial Trail Drive in observance of the opening of the Ranching Heritage Center at Texas Tech in Lubbock.

The herd of 80 longhorns is now being prepared at the YO Ranch in Mountain Home, Texas. Charles Schreiner III, owner of the YO, is trail boss for the event. He is assisted by straw bosses Jim DeLesdernier, Van Poormann and Charles Schreiner IV.

The drive commences on the northwest side of San Antonio, led by Texas Sen. John Tower. The first night's stop will be at Raymond Russell Park north of San Antonio. On Monday, June 28, the trail continues to Kerrville, Texas, where cattle and riders will cross the Guadalupe River and go through downtown Kerrville. San Angelo and Fort Concho mark the beginning of the drive on Tuesday, while Stamford is the center of activity on Wednesday. On Thursday, the drive continues to Midland and ends at Lubbock Friday, July 2.

Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson

will formally dedicate the Ranching Heritage Center at Texas Tech Friday afternoon when cattle and riders arrive at 5 p.m.

Schreiner says of the event, "I hope this will not only celebrate our Bicentennial but will also afford the young people of Texas the opportunity to see living history and to learn what an important role the longhorn played in the development of our state and its heritage."

Participation in the event is open to the public. For additional information, one can contact Schreiner at the YO Ranch, Mountain Home, Texas 79058, telephone (512) 640-3222.

We close ranks to meet problem

Could anyone have imagined that a Big Spring Chamber of Commerce drive could net 70 new members in one week?

I doubt it.

But that's just what last week's effort accomplished.

THE DRIVE has been described as "the most successful in the history of the chamber of commerce."

I'll bet it will be one of the most productive of any town this size in the State of Texas for 1976.

Ellis Britton, manager of the Texas Employment Commission office here, was drive chairman, and certainly he deserves much of the credit. The top team of 13 participating in the campaign was made up of Al Stephens of Gibson's, Richard Atkins of Big Spring Hardware and Dub Moore of First Federal Savings and Loan. Bob Moore sold 15 memberships to lead the field.

The number of new members and the dollars which will go to support the chamber's programs are significant, but even more so is the underlying reasons why the drive was so successful.

Britton said he had not previously seen a membership drive where people were so anxious to back the chamber. People were waiting, he said, with checkbooks in hand to lend support.

"We didn't have to sell anybody on the chamber this year," he commented.

ELLIS BRITTON

The difference is the precarious economic position in which our town has been placed by the Air Force's announcement that Webb Air Force Base was a candidate to be closed.

OUR CITIZENS REALIZE that this community needs a strong, active chamber of commerce as never before, and I believe the membership drive's success proves that they are willing to back community programs with dollars and time.

Regardless of how the fight to save Webb comes out, Big Spring must work to diversify its economy. This is true of any town dependent upon one or two major payrolls, and the possibility that Webb might be closed has brought this point home to all of us.

Diversifying the economy is a task to which the chamber is committed.

Big Spring is a great town, but like any good product, it must be sold. Selling Big Spring is a major part of the chamber's job.

I THINK THE SHOCKING results of last week's membership drive demonstrated that Big Spring is ready to pull together as a town. This unity was also demonstrated by the flood of 7,000 letters which rained on Washington from Big Spring following the Webb announcement.

If the town can remain committed to pull together, I believe anything is achievable from saving Webb to attracting major new industry.

Who are 'they'?

Around the rim

Troy Bryant

Rep. Wayne Hays' extracurricular activities has been taking the bulk of publicity out of Washington, except for when Ford hits his head on the helicopter roof again, so Senator William Proxmire didn't raise too many eyebrows when he criticized government-financed research projects.

THE MAJORITY of his ire was heaped upon a $102,000 project to study the effects of alcohol on sunfish and a $90,000 project that attempts to turn rats into alcoholics.

"Over the years," said Proxmire, "they've spent literally millions of dollars to turn normal rats into rodent liches with little or no success."

I have a couple of questions for you, Senator:

1. What do you mean by 'they'?
2. Do you mean the four-legged rats with tails or the two-legged elected kind?

So much for polls: After having conducted a telephone poll to find out whether Americans are really trying to conserve energy in their homes, the Federal Energy Administration has concluded that five per cent of the American public is lying. The last question of the poll, which included the obvious queries such as "Do you use electrical appliance less?" was "Have you installed a thermidor in your automobile?" Five per cent said yes. Thermidor is a way of preparing lobster.

HE WOULDN'T have paid anyway: An Akron, Ohio man froze to death in his home this past winter after his gas was shut off for nonpayment of a $60 bill. The office manager of the East Ohio Gas Company issued this condolence: "It's too bad about the man's death. We probably won't have a chance of collecting the money now."

Is that the reason? The founder of the Hare Krishna movement, His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, told a Chicago press conference that women are barred from positions of authority in the movement because their brains are too small.

He explained, "Woman is not equal in intelligence to man. Man's brain weighs 64 ounces; woman's weighs 36 ounces. It is just a fact."

The swami declined to offer any scientific evidence to back up his claim.

Vindictiveness vein

Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — A vein of vindictiveness in the man most likely to be the next President of the United States was uncovered in Cleveland Memorial Day when a beaming Jimmy Carter greeted with total delight the news that Sen. George McGovern had fired two young political aides.

ALTHOUGH THE SMOKING gun has not been found, insiders familiar with Democratic politics do not doubt that Carter caused the Memorial Day mini-massacre. He has long wanted McGovern to get rid of indefatigable left-wing political operative Alan Baron as his press secretary. The other dismissed McGovern aide, legislative assistant Jack Quinn, was the victim of shrapnel from the direct hit on Baron.

Baron's absence from McGovern's payroll cannot make the slightest difference to Carter's highly probable nomination. What matters is that the incident tends to support claims by Carter's old enemies back in Georgia that his admirable intelligence, discipline and dedication are accompanied by vindictiveness extraordinary even for a politician.

This was displayed two weeks earlier when objections from Carter caused an old Georgia political foe, former Gov. Carl Sanders, to quit a seat on the national platform committee. Although Sanders could not do Carter any damage today, he is at least a peer who lost the brutal 1970 campaign for governor to Carter. Alan Baron, 32, is but an obscure staff-level operative. Nevertheless, his persistent year-long opposition has inflamed Carter's wrath all out of proportion to Baron's meager effectiveness. The irrationality makes the reaction all the more disturbing.

Baron began to suspect that Carter was making trouble for him late in March when Sen. McGovern called him in for a heart-to-heart chat. McGovern revealed that his former campaign manager, Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, had advised that Baron was too far to the left for McGovern's image (advice denied to us by Hart).

TO BARON, it was more than coincidental that this followed two events: first, Baron urging liberals to dissuade Hart from endorsing Carter; second, Baron publicly quoting McGovern as saying Carter sought to be his running-mate in 1972, a direct contradiction of Carter's disavowal.

When Baron told friends that he was No. 1 on Carter's enemy list, it seemed boastful exaggeration. But confirmation came from Jimmy Carter. Campaigning in New York, Carter called Baron one of his bitterest political enemies. A few days after McGovern's heart-to-heart chat with Baron, Carter told a reporter he was confident McGovern would soon fire Baron.

It did not happen that soon, but liberals close to McGovern considered Baron a cooked goose — not for lack of competency and not for lack of compatibility with McGovern. "The Carter people were pressuring George," one McGovernite explained to us.

The Carter camp was outraged by recent news accounts of the two McGovern aides attending two not-so-secret meetings of the sputtering stop-Carter coalition (one held in Baron's Washington apartment). The last straw was Baron being quoted in the New York Times of Sunday, May 30, calling Carter "a positive evil, surrounded by a staff committed to no ideals, like Haldeman and Ehrlichman."

That night McGovern telephoned Baron in Cleveland, where he was helping Rep. Morris Udall's campaign against Carter in the Ohio primary. McGovern told Baron there was a "fire storm" of protests against his and Jack Quinn's participation in the stop-Carter coalition; he would have to fire Quinn. Baron obtained McGovern's promise, however, not to do anything until they all met in Washington the next day, Memorial Day.

WHATEVER THE EXPLANATION, however, by the time Baron and Quinn (also campaigning for Udall in Cleveland) returned to Washington, McGovern had announced publicly that both were sacked. McGovern explained to Quinn, 27, who had left the factional Udall campaign to join McGovern's staff two weeks earlier, he had undergone tremendous pressure.

Baron asked McGovern whether Carter had talked to him about this, McGovern refused to say. When Baron said he would have to publicly respond, McGovern replied (according to Baron): "Do it, Alan. Personally, I think that Carter is a dangerous man." While not remembering use of the word "dangerous," McGovern told us he is indeed concerned with the prospect of Carter as President.

Affair is over

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — I'm getting sick and tired of all these women revealing their affairs with the leading political figures of our time. It seems to me that there was a period in this country when a woman was content to go to bed with a President of the United States, a congressman or a well-known Washington celebrity, and do it for the pleasure of his company.

BUT RECENTLY everyone is starting to blab, and I think I can speak for all future Presidents, congressmen and opinion makers when I say that if these women don't stop being indiscreet we're all going to have to say "No" when they proposition us.

I know this is a harsh measure, and many women reading this are going to say "Why should we be punished because of a few women who want to brag about their affairs?"

The answer is that those of us in power have our careers at stake, and if we can't have a lovely evening without fear of being exposed in print we're just not going to get involved in extramarital affairs no matter how intriguing they may seem at the time.

Formerly, the beauty of being President of the United States or a member of congress, or even a member of the press corps in Washington, was that one was able to carry on an assignation with the full knowledge that it would be kept confidential. All of us are very busy men, and the only reason we had an affair was so that we could bring joy and happiness to some poor girl who dreamed of being so close to power.

WE DID IT purely for altruistic reasons and we asked nothing in return for those arduous afternoons and evenings except a little respect and an assurance that our tete-a-tete would not be violated.

But this vow of silence is being broken every day. Every time you pick up the newspaper you read another story about somebody who claims to have had an affair with an important American personality. These women have been egged on, I'm sorry to say, by scandal sheets and paperback publishers who are willing to pay vast sums of money to print the stories of what it was actually like to be the intimate friend of someone in high office.

There was a time when we used to put a woman in a taxi and send her home contented because she had spent an evening with someone she thought she loved. She would go to sleep dreaming that she had done something to make this a better country for every American.

But now these same women seem to rush home and stay up half the night writing in their diaries of things that are none of the public's business.

Well, let me tell you, it's all come to an end. I have talked to presidential candidates, congressmen and senators and they have all told me the same thing: "Enough is enough. If women are going to go bragging like men do about their affairs, they're going to have to find their fun somewhere else."

Move can cause problems

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm an 18-year-old small-town girl who has just moved to the city. I'm 5-foot-7 and weigh about 140 pounds.

My problem is that my stomach protrudes noticeably no matter how much I exercise or what diet I go on. Along with this I have not passed solid waste for over two weeks. Laxatives won't help either. This is getting me depressed and I find myself crying all the time.

I came to the city to do clerical work. I like it, but this is really bugging me. — L.B.

Your complaint is a familiar one.

A sudden move from one area to another can upset the system and its functions, such as digestion, bowel action and even menstruation. Changes in water supply alone could be enough to disrupt things. You may have left mom's good cooking for restaurant fare, and if you haven't chosen your restaurant carefully the problem could be compounded. I have heard such complaints from friends who have stayed abroad.

Probably more important than all of this is the fact that you've changed life-styles and you are naturally a bit nervous about the new work and new surroundings. This should improve with time.

Consider this and see if you don't fit the pattern I've described. Meanwhile, you do seem to be truly constipated. One thing big cities do have over some rural areas is lots of doctors. Why don't you find one? You can never rule out the possibility of a bowel problem that is unrelated to emotions or change in food, etc. An examination of your entire digestive tract should ease your mind about this, and you can go on from there.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I get shaky when I put off a meal, for instance when I postpone my noon meal until I get my work done.

I am 50, am 5-foot-6 and weigh 130. I cannot eat anything sweet in the morning without getting lazy and feeling a bit dizzy. I always wondered if I had low blood sugar. My mother also had an insatiable hunger if she didn't eat on time, also the shakiness. Please comment. — L.R.A.

The morning dizziness strongly suggests a type of low blood sugar (hypoglycemia) caused by too much insulin production. While sleeping, the body produces insulin it doesn't need. This "burns off" the blood sugar reserve. On awakening, your sugar level is sharply reduced, causing dizziness.

Your morning meal may adjust things temporarily, but the imbalance remains to haunt you during the day. Delaying a meal is compounded by the fact that you are working while waiting.

Often a protein snack (cheese, a bit of lean meat, etc.) will help tide the hypoglycemic person over, both during sleep or between meals. But low blood sugar isn't always too easy to control. You may find my booklet, "Help for Hypoglycemia," useful reading. It will help you recognize certain symptoms that are important. For a copy, send 25 cents to me in care of The Big Spring Herald. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Finally, there's no more need for you to guess about things than there was for your mother. A six-hour glucose (sugar) tolerance test will be pretty conclusive about it.

As to sweets, sugar will stimulate insulin production, give you a temporary boost. But it will soon reduce the sugar level even further. Avoid it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Why in the name of common sense would a doctor prescribe the male hormone P remarin for a woman suffering from the horrors of hot flashes? I am dumbfounded. — L.T.

It's not a male hormone. It's a form of the female hormone.

The rest of your letter had a violent tone and I did not print it. Not because it was violent, but because it showed a lot of misunderstanding on your part. I suggest you get yourself together. Perhaps a mild tranquilizer will help tide you over what seems to be a trying period in your life.

Arthritis sufferers can be helped. Dr. Thosteson's booklet discusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as effective treatments and medications. For a copy of "How You Can Control Arthritis," write to him in care of The Herald. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: The last words that Jesus spoke from the Cross were, "My God, why hast thou forsaken me?" What does this mean? — J.M.S.

DEAR J.M.S.: To understand this question we must first of all realize that God and sin cannot go together. God is pure and holy; no sin can abide in His presence. "God is light, and in him is no darkness at all" (1 John 1:5 Revised Standard Version). Paul states: "What fellowship has light with darkness?" (2 Corinthians 6:14 Revised Standard Version).

Christ was able to enjoy perfect fellowship with the Father, for He too is without any trace of sin. "He appeared to take away sins, and in him there is no sin" (1 John 3:5 Revised Standard Version). What happened upon the Cross was that Jesus took upon Himself the sins of the whole world, and for the first time He experienced the full weight of sin upon His life. "For our sake He (the Father) made him (Christ) to be sin who knew no sin" (2 Corinthians 5:21 Revised Standard Version).

As soon as the world's sin was placed upon Christ, His fellowship with the Father was temporarily broken. He was alone. The Father could no longer be with Him for that would have meant being in the presence of sin. At that moment Christ was separated from the Father; our sins caused that separation and that desperate cry from the lips of Jesus.

How important it is that we realize how much Jesus suffered by the sins of this world. Sin in the life of the Christian will still break that fellowship with the Father. "If we say we have fellowship with him while we walk in darkness, we lie and do not live according to the truth; but if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship with one another, and the blood of Jesus his Son cleanses us from all sin" (1 John 1:6, 7 Revised Standard Version).

Big Spring Herald

Dear Editor:

I am writing in response to Tsgt. Norman T. Lee's complaint in Sunday's Mail Bag. I am a career federal civilian employee at Webb AFB and have lived in Big Spring for 20 years. I am not a native of Big Spring and will move wherever I am sent if Webb closes.

However, throughout the years, Big Spring has become home to my family due to friendships with Big Spring people and Webb military and civilian personnel.

I have also been "robbed" by a few local merchants over the years through my own ignorance. It is true there are people in every community who will take advantage of anyone whether they are civilians or military.

It takes time to recognize and find exactly who these people are and spread the word of their practices. After a while they are usually out of business.

However, I do not feel that Tsgt. Lee is justified in condemning the people of Big Spring over this personal injustice.

I have heard for years that the only place some military like is the place they have been or the place they are going.

I know countless military that have retired and returned to Big Spring to make it home. Certainly there are problems in any city where young men are single and away from home but city ordinances and laws are made for the good of all people not to discriminate in the matter of the concert in the city park. Amplified rock music is classed almost with jet engine noise in decibel level and if you are exposed to that level on duty at Webb AFB you are required by regulations to wear ear plugs and ear muffs.

I know the Base Community Relation Council is doing all it can to solve every problem but if a vote could be taken among the military personnel and the majority voted to close Webb then, by all means, let's do our best to get it closed so they can be sent to Utopia where everything is perfect.

However, I would most likely be sent to a base where the same problems exist.

Piano player makes awful church music

DEAR ABBY: One of the reasons I used to love to go to church was the organ music. Well, our organist moved out of town, and now a piano player is playing the organ. It is punishment to listen to her.

She brags that she has never had an organ lesson in her life, and believe me, it is obvious.

She is such a pleasant and willing person that nobody wants to complain, but if they don't get rid of her and get an organist, I will quit coming to church, and so will several of my friends.

Our clergyman must be tone deaf. So what's the solution? This is a small town. No name, please.

CHURCHGOER

DEAR ABBY: You and the others who share your view should call on the clergyman and suggest that he consider getting an organist—or educate the piano player.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't put me down and call me a starry-eyed dreamer, but I have a terrific crush on my doctor. I am a happily married young woman with a perfectly good husband and two beautiful children. So why is this doctor on my mind all the time?

I told my husband about it and even asked him if maybe I should change doctors, and he said it wouldn't do any good—that I would probably develop a crush on the next one. And besides, he says, it's nothing unusual because nearly every woman is in love with her doctor. Is that true?

I am sure my doctor doesn't have a clue that I have this wild crush on him, and I know there's no chance of his becoming interested in me, but that doesn't change my feelings about him.

Any suggestions?

GOT A CRUSH

DEAR GOT: Not every woman has a crush on her doctor, but it's not unusual to mistake feelings of gratitude, admiration, respect and hero-worship for romantic love.

Analyze your feelings and recognize them for what they are before your next appointment, or your doctor won't be able to get an accurate history of your normal blood pressure, pulse and heartbeat.

DEAR ABBY: May I enter an opinion on your recent column on "Euthanasia and Living Wills"? You called upon three distinguished representatives of our major faiths to give their "official" views on these important topics.

The "majority" position of Traditional Judaism on these subjects is reflected by the chief rabbi of the British Commonwealth, Dr. Immanuel Jakobovits, in his revised book: "Jewish Medical Ethics."

On "Euthanasia": "...some authorities sanction the removal from a dying patient of medications or machines which only serve to prolong his agony, so long as no NATURAL means of subsistence (such as food, blood and oxygen) are withdrawn...however, some add that once artificial aids are utilized they also should not be removed."

On Kidney Transplants: "The generally prevailing view is to permit such donations as acts of supreme charity, but not as an obligation."

On "Eye-banks": "...the donor should stipulate in his bequest that his eyes be used only for patients suffering from, or threatened by, complete blindness. There must be prior consent of the donor or his family, and the disused part of the eye after the cornea has been removed should not be disposed of except by burial."

With blessings on your work,

Early breakfast held by Eastern Star-Past Matrons

The Order of the Eastern Star-Past Matrons Club of Coahoma, Chapter No. 499, held a breakfast 9 a.m. Saturday at the Coahoma Methodist Church.

Hostesses for the breakfast were Mrs. Fred Adams, Mrs. D. S. Phillips and Mrs. E. T. O'Daniel. The head table was decorated with an arrangement of spring flowers. Each guest received a gift from the hostesses at the place settings.

Helen Steiner Rice's "Summer Prayers Warm One's Heart With Love" was the title of the devotional which was delivered by Mrs. C. J. Engle.

Twelve members and a guest, Mrs. Sam Armstrong of Reno, Nevada, attended the breakfast. Mrs. Armstrong is a former Coahoma resident.

Mrs. A. K. Turner, the new president, presided over the first meeting of the year. The new officers are Mrs. A. C. Hale, vice president; Mrs. Ernest Garrett, secretary; Mrs. D. S. Phillips, treasurer; Mrs. Eula Bess Westmoreland, devotional chairman and Mrs. Melvin Tindol, reporter.

Hostesses for the July 3 meeting will be Mrs. Bert Shive and Mrs. Fred Beckham, both of Big Spring. The location will be announced at a later date.

June is dairy month, milk prices continue reasonable

Several good values will appear on dairy products—including milk, yogurt, cheese slices and cottage cheese—during June, Dairy Month, one forecaster says.

"Dairymen are producing more milk as a result of lower feed costs, higher support prices and higher market prices—and dairy prices continue at reasonable levels for the consumer, Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt explained.

Mrs. Clyatt is a consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

At poultry counters, turkeys have "very attractive prices," but fryer chicken prices will swing upward, so consumers should take advantage of any specials offered currently, Mrs. Clyatt advised.

Along grocery store aisles, the supply of commercially canned vegetables is large—with lower prices on concentrated tomato products, in particular. These include catsup, tomato sauce, puree and paste.

Fresh vegetables at the most economical prices are carrots, cabbage, yellow squash, green beans and broccoli—along with corn, cucumbers, dry yellow onions, radishes and green onions.

Fruit choices on the economy side are a variety of melons, bananas, and oranges.

"Strawberry quality is outstanding and prices are about the same as last week. However, peaches, cherries and plums are available only in limited supply—and prices are high," Mrs. Clyatt added.

Since snacks are important, choose snack items that are good for the body and the budget: they include fresh fruits, crisp raw vegetables, cheese, dried fruit, fruit juices—along with milk and ice cream drinks, and hard-cooked eggs.

Hints for better gardeners

When the time comes for you to become the garden cut up, here are some tips that will make your cutting easy, efficient and effective.

Whether pruning shrubbery or trees to repair storm damage, to stimulate or control growth, to improve plant shape or simply to remove dead wood, a good saw is an essential tool to augment your common one-hand pruner or long handle lopping shears.

As a rule of thumb, a pruning saw should be used for a clean and harmless cut any time you're faced with removing growth thicker than one inch. Shears will only crush and leave jagged edges, ripe for infestation and disease.

Saw technology experts at Nicholson, fine blade makers for 100 years, recommend you pick up an authoritative pamphlet on pruning before you purchase any tools for the job. State or federal agriculture field offices are a good source.

Hardware and garden supply stores carry a wide variety of sizes and styles. Nicholson pruning saws, for example, range in price from about $4 to $12. These include a general purpose curved pruner for fast cutting of small limbs; a double-edge, dual-purpose saw with fine teeth on one edge for light trimming and heavier points on the other for stouter growth; and a pole tree pruner whose socket fits a standard clothes pole or garden tool handle for reaching those high branches.

Home demonstration club meets

The Howard County Home Demonstration Club met at 2 p.m. Monday June 7 at the County Agent office. Mrs. John Couch, chairman, conducted the meeting, which was hosted by the City Home Demonstration Club.

Inspector Clark eyes law officers in action

By MARJ CARPENTER
Inspector John Clark of Bristol, England, will go back to England and talk about Big Spring, Texas. Clark is an inspector at the Bristol Port of Authority police. He is traveling through the United States by Greyhound bus and gets off and looks over communities that he likes the looks of during his travels.

He got off in Big Spring and was walking around the downtown area. He stopped Mike Hillers, local patrolman, and asked for his assistance in finding some particular location. When Hillers found out he was a fellow law officer, he asked the inspector to accompany him on his patrol. At the end of his patrol time, Clark was still enjoying himself immensely, so he then went with Frank Constable from 10 p.m. to 2:30 a.m. The inspector also visited at the station and talked to the other officers. He was quite thrilled to get a chance to see Texas law officers in action.

"The cowboy boots and guns surprise me," the inspector stated, "but I notice the guns are not used very easily," he added. He was along when several fights and disturbances of various natures were settled without the use of a gun. He was told by the officers that the gun is used only when absolutely necessary.

In England, the police carry clubs "and we know how to use them," the inspector told the local officers. When the inspector got back on the Greyhound and headed for New Orleans, he was quite pleased with the impromptu tour.

He told local officers, "I did not expect to get the opportunity to see Texas lawmen in action, but I am quite pleased." The local officers were just as pleased to have the chance to show him around.

Weather modification confab slated Thursday

Representatives from several agencies will be in on a weather modification project conference Thursday at the Colorado River Municipal Water District headquarters here. Most of the participants are associated directly or indirectly with the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation's HIPEX program which functions in the Great Plains area. Big Spring is the southern anchor. After hearing reports from various agencies, directors will seek means of more effective coordination of the program. Representing the Bureau of Reclamation will be M. A. Silverman, coordinator of the three HIPEX locations and Lloyd Steubinger, who coordinates the Texas program. Both are from Denver, Colo. Dr. James Scoggins of Texas A&M University will report on efforts to develop more detailed rawinsonde data on a mesoscale for the project area, which happens to approximate the watershed of Lake J. B. Thomas and Lake E. V. Spence. With him will be Dr. D. M. Driscoll and J. E. Arnold. Dr. G. M. Jurica will represent Texas Tech University in its assignment to the satellite pictures into the project data.

Representing the Texas Water Development board may be the director, James Rose, along with C. R. Baskin, technical director, and John Carr, head of the TWDB's weather modification division. All are from Austin.

Ted Smith, Snyder, will represent Meteorological Research, Inc., which is applying a scientific evaluation to modification efforts of the Colorado River Municipal Water District. O. H. Ivie, general manager, will head the CRMWD team, which includes R. A. Schooling, coordinator, and John Girdzus, meteorologist.

Texas Drama Workshop to lure local resident

AUSTIN — Forty-five Texas high school students will soon find out that show business is serious business.

As participants in the University of Texas Drama Department's 14th annual High School Theater Workshop, which gets underway Wednesday (June 9), the students will be at work for six days a week from 8 in the morning until 10:30 at night.

Their days will be devoted to an intensive introduction to theater subjects and to production activities.

In addition to classes in acting, dance, stagecraft, directing, makeup and costume, the workshop participants will form the casts and crews for three plays to be given public performances at the end of the session in early July.

One-hour selections from Euripides' "The Bacchae," Ibsen's "Peer Gynt" and Calderon's "The Phantom Woman" will be staged by the high schoolers at 8 p.m. July 2 and 1 p.m. July 3, in the Laboratory Theater.

Directors for the workshop plays will be assistant professor Stephen Coleman ("The Bacchae"), instructor Kim Wheatley ("Peer Gynt") and Robert Singleton, drama director from Austin's Anderson High School ("The Phantom Woman").

Other members of the UT drama faculty will serve as instructors for the workshop classes.

Among those chosen as workshop participants was Mary Adkins, Garden City Rte., Big Spring.

Coahoma grad gains scholarship at HC

Michael Barbee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerrell Barbee, of Route 1, Box 284, Big Spring, was recently chosen as the recipient of the Howard County Merit Scholarship for 1976.

This scholarship program was established by Security State Bank and KMD-TV at Howard College to permit able students to remain in the Permian Basin area during four years of his or her college education.

A committee of business and college officials studied the applications submitted through the area high school counselors. The committee made their award based on the student's high school grades, class rank, and college entrance exam scores. The award will pay tuition and fees up to $300 per year while Barbee attends Howard College.

Barbee finished Coahoma High School with a grade average of 96. He ranked in the 98th percentile nationally in the SRA Achievement. He was valedictorian of his graduating class, a member of the National Honor Society, won all regional and MICHAEL BARBEE state band honors, was a member of the Spanish club and the Office Education Association, and played varsity tennis. Barbee was president of the band his senior year.

Man charged with burglary, items found

The goods were recovered, a man was charged with burglary and statements were taken, Sheriff A. N. Standard said today.

Pedro Salazar, 34, 1311 Elm Drive, is charged with Saturday night burglary of the Valentina Islas house north of the Salem Church.

Justice of the Peace Lulu Adams filed the complaint and set a $5,000, which Salazar posted. The sheriff's office obtained statements from two 16-year-old boys about the burglary and from a woman accused of keeping the stolen property.

Taken and recovered were a tape recorder, record player, clock, radio-tape player, fan and number of tape recordings, according to the sheriff's office.

H. D. Stewart, co-owner of the Highland Barber Shop, was reported in satisfactory condition at Malone-Hogan Hospital today after being injured in a traffic accident.

Stewart fell asleep and drove his pickup off the road into a culvert in the Marble Falls, Tex., area Sunday afternoon, a spokesman said.

He is suffering from a broken leg, crushed knee and cracked shoulder.

Michael Edward Hogg, 21, convicted of two counts of burglary in Howard County, was one of five men released recently by the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Hogg, formerly of Big Spring, was paroled to Dallas County. He was convicted in June 1975.

World

Syrians advance to Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian troops and tanks were reported to have pushed to within 12 miles of Beirut today after night-long battles with Palestinian guerrillas and their Moslem leftist allies. The guerrilla high command said the Syrians rumbled across the fashionable summer resort area of Sofar, 16 miles east of Beirut, and pushed four miles toward the town Bhamdoun.

Pound crisis ebbs

LONDON (AP) — The Labor government has ridden out the worst of the sterling crisis, Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey said Monday night after announcement of a $5.3-billion foreign loan sent the pound up four cents and the stock market climbing. Opposition leader Margaret Thatcher announced that the Conservatives would introduce a motion of censure in the House of Commons blaming the government for Britain's economic crisis. But there was no indication the Conservatives, who trail the Laborites by 36 seats, could rally enough support from the Liberals and other small factions to turn the government out.

U.S. to protect friends

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The United States "maintains a military capacity to protect itself and to protect its friends" and will never accept a repetition of the Cuban-Soviet intervention in Angola, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told the annual general assembly of the Organization of American States on Monday. The secretary of state said smaller nations who want to remain free need not worry about their future.

Small school wins

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — A small high school in the Nevada desert has been brought back to life by a court ruling which puts greater emphasis on the closeness between school and home rather than on budget figures. A budget-minded school board closed Lund High School this school year, forcing its 30 students to ride a bus 80 miles a day to and from a high school in Ely. But the Nevada Supreme Court unanimously ruled Monday that rural schools are worth saving. The ruling means the 50-year-old school will reopen next fall.

Test found valid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civil rights advocates attempting a constitutional challenge to government practices which allegedly discriminate against minorities must prove those practices are motivated by racial bias, the Supreme Court says. In approving a controversial police recruitment test, the Court said Monday it is not enough to show a government action has a discriminatory impact for a law or practice to be ruled unconstitutional. The justices ruled 7-2 a District of Columbia test, which blacks failed four times as often as whites, was legal.

Nuclear safety in ballot test

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A proposal on today's primary election ballot in California will provide the first test of public reaction to the question of nuclear power safety. The outcome could have national impact on atomic energy as a source for electricity.

Proposition 13, the Nuclear Power Plants Initiative, is the first of 16 similar proposals pending nationwide. No one is predicting the outcome, and at one point pollster Mervin Field declared the public was "incredibly confused" on the crucial issue of nuclear energy development versus guaranteed safety from radiation.

"It's the most important issue facing Californians in at least 50 years," said Assemblyman Charles Warren, a Democrat from Los Angeles, whose Assembly committee held hearings on the subject last year.

Colorado and Oregon have similar initiatives on their November ballots.

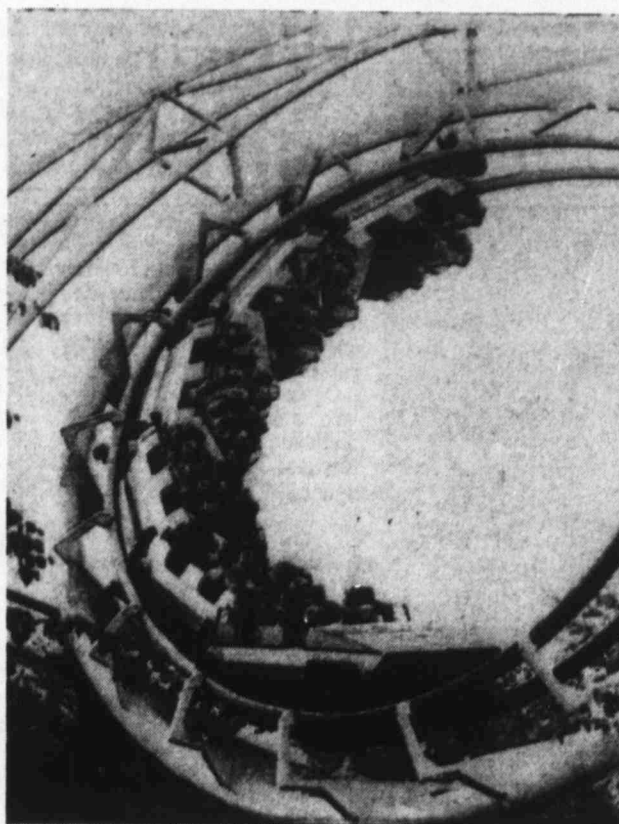

Proposition 13 asks voters to say "yes" or "no" to a safety plan so stringent it could shut down the state's three existing nuclear plants by 1987 and hamper progress on two plants now under construction.

The proposition would not, in itself, cause a shutdown or ban nuclear plants. But it would leave in the hands of the legislature a decision by 1979 on whether plants could operate safely and nuclear waste could be stored without risk.

If these requirements are not met, existing plants would have to reduce output to 60 per cent of licensed capacity in 1981 and shut down by 1987 unless the safety verdict changed. Utility companies say this would force them to seek alternate sources of electricity, increasing expense and possible pollution.

The controversial proposal also would remove the utility companies' shield of a $500 million liability limit in the event of a nuclear disaster.

In months of emotional campaigning, utility companies have thrown millions into their effort to defeat the measure, which they say is unnecessary and threatens economic disaster.

Solons say deregulation bill is deceptive, no good

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex. and U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Tex., say a Senate compromise measure to deregulate the price of natural gas at the wellhead is deceptive and not in the nation's best interests.

Krueger, who sponsored an unsuccessful deregulation measure in the House, told Texas oil and gas producers Monday, "The bill is not a real compromise...for it compromises only the fundamental principles of economics through arbitrary interferences in a supply and demand system."

Bentsen, one of several speakers at the 30th annual meeting of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners association, said he has "serious reservations" about Senate Bill 3422.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe was to address the group today.

Krueger said the Senate deregulation bill simply shifts price-setting authority from the Federal Power Commission to the Congress. Bentsen said there is "a lot of movement" behind the bill and a total substitute would be impossible.

Fed examiners hold Midland pipeline meet

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Federal examiners were to gather evidence in an environmental impact hearing today on a proposal to funnel Alaskan crude oil to Texas along a 1,033-mile route from Long Beach, Calif. to Midland.

At a session in Midland Monday, Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton told Interior Department in a prepared statement read by an aide that the proposal, "is in the best interests of the nation."

Clayton's statement added, "I hope this is not hogtied with red tape as are other proposals. I hope this nation will see the first drops of Alaskan oil by 1978."

The Interior Department said the line would use 788 miles of existing pipeline, with another 245 miles to be constructed, most of it across ranch land, at a cost of $1 million a mile.

Panel may give contract nix power

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A House subcommittee has voted to give the railroad commission power to cancel price increases in most natural gas contracts rather than to freeze gas prices for three years.

Frank Stubbs, president of the Wharton County Electric Co-op, proposed the price freeze on higher prices, which never was voted on.

The subcommittee decided it had "no firm recommendation" to make on possible state regulation of wellhead gas prices, and chairman Ed Mayes said there was "no support" for legislation to establish flat rates for utilities.

Rep. Mayes, D-Granbury, said the public utilities commission already had the authority to establish flat rates.

A proposal adopted 7-0 specifies that if the railroad commission determines that a gas price has been determined through a "favored nations" clause and "is not in the public interest," it may abolish the "redetermined price."

The commission also may require that the "redetermined price be based on the current market in the area."

Military

Services slight blacks?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The four major military services discriminate against potential black recruits to keep the armed forces from attracting more blacks than commanding generals believed the officers could handle, a military manpower specialist says.

The specialist, Edward Scarborough, said information about these practices was gathered in a recent study by the Defense Manpower Commission but was not published in the commission's report.

A commission staff paper written by Kenneth J. Coffey and Frederick J. Reeg had concluded that the recruiting policies were "racially motivated," Scarborough said in an interview.

Asked if the seven-member citizens' commission had rejected a staff recommendation that discriminatory practices of the services be detailed in the April report, Scarborough said, "It did not appear in the final document in the kind of detail our staff study showed."

He said the report mentions discriminatory practices generally but doesn't specify which services employ them or the extent of their use.

Gen. Bruce Palmer Jr., (ret.), currently director of the Defense Manpower Commission, was quoted by the Washington Post as saying the commissioners decided it would be "wrong to kick the services in the teeth" by detailing alleged discriminatory practices.

FLYING DOUBLE PLAY — St. Louis Cardinal second baseman Mike Tyson goes high over Houston Astro Wilbur Howard and completes the double play. St. Louis took the game 7-6.

No fault found in Foucault relief

BALTIMORE (AP) — When Frank Lucchesi replaced Billy Martin as manager of the stumbling Texas Rangers last July 21, he was able to experiment while evaluating the club for the remainder of the season. The Rangers, expected to challenge Oakland in the American League's Western Division, had a 44-51 record when Martin departed. Lucchesi had little to lose by making changes.

One of the moves was to take rookie pitcher Jim Umberger out of the bullpen and make him a starter. Lucchesi's reasoning may not have come from the managerial handbook, but so far it's worked.

Umberger relieved 44 times last season, but his last eight appearances were starts and he won the last four to finish at 8-7. This year, Umberger has been strictly a starter, and he is 6-4 after beating the Baltimore Orioles 6-4 Monday night with ninth-inning relief help from Steve Foucault.

In his last four starts, the slender Umberger has allowed three earned runs in 33 1/3 innings. He pitched two shutouts, one shortened to five innings by rain, and lost 1-0 in 11 innings.

Against the Orioles, he took a 6-2 lead into the ninth inning after scattering seven hits including a solo home run by Bobby Grich in the eighth.

But after Baltimore loaded the bases on a fielding error by Texas shortstop Toby Harrah, a single by Ken Singleton and a walk, Umberger was replaced by Foucault, an old nemesis of the Orioles.

Pinch hitter Tony Muser fouled out on the first pitch and then after Mark Belanger singled for two unearned runs, Grich fanned while bidding for his fourth hit and the slumping Orioles lost for the seventh time in nine starts.

Texas rapped out 12 hits off Ross Grimsley, 1-4, and Mike Cuellar, who made his first relief appearance in eight years with Baltimore. Gene Cline, who opened the game with a triple and scored on Lenny Randle's single, also singled home two runs in the second. During a three-run sixth, Tom Grieve drove in his 11th run in 12 games.

wrist while striking out in the eighth, was hitless in three trips. With two hits in his last 26 at bats, Jackson is batting .205.

Royals 10, Tigers 0

Frank White drove in five runs with a single and a triple and Hal McRae had four hits, including a homer, as Kansas City maintained its 2 1/2-game lead over Texas in the AL West. Steve Busby, 2-1, got the win with relief help from Mark Littell. Vern Ruhle, 4-2, took the loss.

Twins 7, Indians 2

Butch Wynegar's two-run homer and Larry Hisle's two-run single helped Minnesota send Cleveland down to its fifth loss in its last six games. Dave Goltz, 6-2, scattered nine hits for the victory. Rick Waits, 0-1, was the loser.

Tight duel to slugfest

The Pittsburgh Pirates and the Cincinnati Reds put on a home run hitting contest before a regional television audience Monday night and the early reviews were mixed.

The Pirates came out on top 5-4, so the 16,001 fans at Three Rivers Stadium loved it. So did Richie Zisk because his pinch homer in the eighth, the seventh solo home run of the night, was the decisive blow.

"It looked like a driving range," said Zisk. "It was spectacular, an exciting game."

Pirate starter Bruce Kison enjoyed some of it.

"It was really fun when we were doing it to them," said Kison. "But it wasn't so much fun when they reversed it on me."

And Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson didn't like it at all.

"It was dull," grumbled Anderson. "They're all dull when you lose."

Pittsburgh didn't get a hit Monday night until the fifth inning and Cincinnati didn't get one until the sixth.

The Pirates stole a run in the sixth when Frank Taveras singled, stole second and came all the way home on throwing errors by Reds' catcher Bill Plummer and center fielder Cesar Geronimo.

Then balls started jumping into the seats. Joe Morgan ended Kison's no-hitter with a leadoff homer in the seventh. The Pirates countered on roundtrippers by Al Oliver, Willie Stargell and Bill Robinson off Jack Billingham in their half of the seventh to go ahead 4-1.

Not to be outdone, Cincinnati struck back in the eighth to tie it 4-4. Morgan clouted his second homer of the night, Pete Rose hit one and the Reds picked up another run when Tony Perez scored from first base as Pittsburgh right fielder Dave Parker misplayed George Foster's single.

Then Zisk settled matters with his drive off Reds' reliever Will McEneaney in the eighth. The seven home runs tied the major league Cards' outburst. Cliff Johnson hit a two-run homer for Houston.

record for most solo homers in a nine-inning game.

Phillies 8, Dodgers 6

Larry Bowa's tie-breaking single in the sixth off reliever Charlie Hough, 7-1, helped the Phils win their 16th road game in 20 tries. Greg Luzinski and Dick Allen clubbed two-run homer off Rick Rhoden in the first inning but the Dodgers came back in their half of the first on Ron Cey's grand slam homer off Ron Reed.

Padres 5, Mets 1

Dave Winfield's three-run homer, his ninth of the season, and Alan Foster's four-hit pitching carried San Diego to its third straight victory. It was Foster's first win since last June. Craig Swan, 2-6, took the loss.

Cardinals 7, Astros 6

St. Louis battered Houston knuckleballer Joe Niekro for five runs in the first inning and held on behind a clutch relief performance by Al Hrabosky for the victory. Singles by Lou Brock, Willie Crawford and Mike Tyson, a double by Hector Cruz and an error by Niekro accounted for the

To majors or minors that is the question

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the fastest ways to burst the bubble of a blue-chip professional baseball prospect is to send him directly to the major leagues. At least, that's what a brief trip through the record books seems to show.

The Houston Astros, who lead off the 12th annual summer free agent draft today, were expected to select Floyd Bannister, a hard-throwing left-hander with an 18-1 record this season for Arizona State University.

The Astros say their philosophy is not to allow a hot prospect to bypass the minor leagues and jump directly to a major league roster, contending that the move could damage a young man's confidence and career.

Bannister, a junior from Seattle who will be 21 Thursday — the last scheduled day of the draft — started 20 games, completed 15 and had a 1.35 earned-run average in 167 innings this season.

He chalked up 195 strikeouts this season, tops in the nation, and will be on the mound Saturday night when Arizona State begins play in the College World Series.

Mad Hungarian in 'hate mood'

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston catcher Cliff Johnson has to take part credit for St. Louis' 7-6 victory over the Astros Monday night because he put Cardinals reliever Al Hrabosky into his controlled hate mood.

That's how Hrabosky described his feeling after Johnson clubbed a two-run homer in the eighth inning and brought the Astros within striking distance of the Cards, who had battered loser Joe Niekro for five first inning runs.

"When something like that happens, I get very aggressive," Hrabosky said. "I call it my controlled hate mood. Here's where you find the real ball players. It's easy to make a bad pitch to the next guy because you're mad at yourself."

"I was at that stage a few years ago. But now I try to channel that anger at the next batter."

After Johnson's two-run homer, Hrabosky got the next two Astros out to end the inning.

In the pressure-packed ninth, Hrabosky yielded a full-count double to pinch-hitter Jerry 'daVanzo to lead off the inning. That put the tying run on second base with none out and the top of Houston's batting order coming to the plate.

Enter again the controlled hate mood.

Hrabosky twitched his Fu Manchu mustache and got Wilbur Howard on a popout, walked Rob Andrews, struck out Cesar Cedeno and got Bob Watson to hit into a game-ending groundout.

"I enjoy those tight situations," Hrabosky said. "I don't mean to bring up money, but you've got to be a pressure player to make it. It doesn't mean a thing unless you can do it when everything is on the line. I get lackadaisical when I have a big lead."

St. Louis gave starter and winner John Curtiz a 5-0 lead in the first inning on singles by Lou Brock, Willie Crawford and Mike Tyson, Hector Cruz' double and Niekro's fielding error.

NBA draft today

Houston has first pick

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's National Basketball Association draft had a great effect on last week's United States Olympic basketball trials.

Robert Parish of Centenary and Leon Douglas of Alabama, both certain first-round choices in the NBA draft, pulled out of the trials because they feared damaging their chances at pro contracts. They felt an injury or bad showing during the trials or Games could have been devastating.

But two other sure first-round picks, All Americans Scott May of Indiana and Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame, tried out and made the Olympic team with no concern about the draft.

"I'm not here to impress the pros," said May, college basketball's player of the year. "My value won't change. What does the Olympics decide compared to what I've done for the last four years?"

Dantley, who did not withdraw his name from the hardship draft list, agreed.

"I know a lot of guys dropped out because they didn't want to get hurt," he said. "But you don't play the same here as you do during the season. There's much more of a team concept."

Others expected to go early in the draft but missing from the Olympic trials were UCLA teammates Richard Washington and Marques Johnson, both hardship cases, and guard John Lucas of Maryland.

The hardship players had until 5 p.m. EDT Monday to withdraw their names from draft consideration. Among those who pulled back and decided to remain in college were Bo Ellis of Marquette, Bernard King of Tennessee, Tree Rollins of Clemson, and Ricky Green of Michigan.

Houston owned the first choice in today's draft, acquiring it from Atlanta Monday along with center

Dwight Jones in exchange for center Joe Meriweather, guard Gus Bailey and the Rockets' first-round pick.

Until that deal was made, Atlanta had been expected to go for Parish to solve the team's problem at center. But the switch of draft slots with the Rockets left the Hawks with the ninth choice in the opening round and it was unlikely that Parish, a can't-miss prospect, would last that long.

Houston said it would take Lucas as the No. 1 pick in the draft. Lucas scored a school record 2,015 points in his four-year collegiate career, averaging 18.3 points a game.

After Houston opened the draft, Chicago picked next. The Bulls were followed in order by Kansas City, Detroit, Portland, Buffalo, Milwaukee, Golden State, Atlanta, Phoenix, Seattle, Philadelphia, Washington, which had two consecutive first-round picks, Cleveland, Boston and Golden State.

Tiger Cubs stomp Ozona in twinbill

The Big Spring Tiger Cubs traveled to Ozona Sunday and swept a doubleheader from their hosts the Ozona Pirates 10-1 in the first game and 9-1 in the nightcap.

Milo Hernandez, appearing in his third game for the Cubs, hurled a three-hitter to pick up the win in the first game 10-1. It was his first decision.

John Thomas led the winners' attack with three hits. Four Tiger Cubs turned in two hits, Willie Williams, Ernie Garcia, Bryon Eubanks and Hernandez. Mechie Sarmiento smacked a home run, his first of the season.

Rudy Martinez was the victim of the Cub pounding. David Poliquin, who recently joined the Cubs, made his first start a successful one, holding the Pirates to six hits and one run in the nightcap 9-1.

Williams, Poliquin, Vicente Garcia and John Morelino all rapped out two hits apiece against Ozona pitching.

Robert Mendez suffered the loss in the second game.

The Tiger Cubs increased their record to 8-2. The Pirates came here, Steer Park, for a twinbill this Sunday.

Montreal ready for Olympics

NEW YORK (AP) — The Olympic venues will be officially turned over to Montreal organizers on Sunday, a week late, but better than not at all. And there was a time, 6½ months ago, when not at all was a real possibility.

"We were very close to feeling it couldn't be done when we took over in November," Dr. Victor Goldbloom, Quebec's minister of municipal affairs, said of construction woes surrounding the July 17-Aug. 1 Summer Games.

In ceremonies on Sunday, the Olympic Installations Board, conceived to complete the job that some people thought Montreal and Olympic organizers were bungling, will have finished its work.

Yarbrough admits 'misleading' banks

HOUSTON (AP) — Donald B. Yarbrough says he misrepresented himself as owning the controlling interest of Gold and Silver, Inc., twice in 1974 so he could get loans at better interest rates.

He testified Monday in a $117,500 suit brought by two Houston businessmen who claim he perpetrated fraud in connection with a bank purchase deal.

Yarbrough, the unopposed Democratic nominee for the Texas Supreme Court, said, however, what he told loan officials at Greater Houston Bank and the River Oaks Bank & Trust Co. were not complete falsehoods.

He had an option to buy controlling interest in the coin brokerage business both times he made the statements, Yarbrough said. He also said he was the chief creditor of the company, having provided a large coin stock so it could get started. Michael Maness, Yarbrough's lawyer, said he planned to call Rex L. Cooper, one of the two plaintiffs, before resting the defense's case.

Final arguments are expected in the trial Wednesday in the state court of Dist. Judge William N. Blanton Jr.

Yarbrough said he put $100,000 of Cooper's money into a certificate of deposit at the River Oaks Bank and used it as partial security on a $150,000 line of credit for Gold and Silver Limited.

He testified he got the line of credit by "using the corporate entity of Gold and Silver Limited" in order to obtain a better interest rate than he would have gotten as an individual.

Yarbrough said even though Cooper's money was used for the certificates backing the credit line, he would have refunded it had Cooper asked for the money.

Hughes listed Texas as legal residence?

HOUSTON (AP) — Internal Revenue Service records show billionaire Howard Hughes filed his U.S. income tax returns in Austin, Tex., during at least four of the last five years of his life.

The IRS records show that Hughes filed in the Austin district for the years 1971, 1972, 1973 and 1974.

IRS district director Robert McKeever said there is no record of a 1975 return in the Austin district. He suggested an extension may have been requested.

Lawyers connected with a probate battle over the Hughes estate, say tax information is vital in helping determine a legal residence.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock says Texas may collect as much as $35 million in inheritance taxes if it can be shown the recluse considered Texas his legal residence.

IRS officials refused to say what Hughes listed on his tax return as his legal address. Residents in Texas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Kansas, Arkansas and Oklahoma file returns to Austin.

Outstanding paper boy

with Marj Carpenter

When you say you're newspaper people, most folks think you're a writer. But there are a lot of other kind of newspaper people.

If you'd gone to the recent Big Spring Herald picnic, you'd have been stunned at the size of the group of full-time employees including pressmen, composing room employees, advertising department, editorial room department, business department and circulation.

And that doesn't even get into the realm of the part-time employees — the all-important paper boys and girls and men and women.

I'm old newspaper people — now over a quarter of a century in the business and I've worked some in every department except the pressroom, where the closest they ever let me was to gather up papers at the foot of the press and count them.

I think people could take one look at me and know that machines hate me. Among some of the sayings of the old newspaper people are such gems of wisdom as "Don't ever be bored writing obits and weddings. These are the clippings people keep in the family Bible."

There's another old saying, "It doesn't do you any good to have a good paper if you can't get it delivered."

That's where the importance of the circulation people comes into focus.

Out around Lenora, we have a paper boy that did particularly well this year. His name is Daniel Lozano and he was salutatorian at Grady High School.

He also played in a every available sport — football, basketball, tennis and back in his younger years did great at summer baseball.

His dad, E. R. Lozano and his mother, Carlotta, also help in delivering Big Spring Herald papers around the area. The father had some physical setbacks a few years back and then went into newspaper circulation. They have two other sons, Joe and Dago and a daughter, Dora. All of them know what it is to roll and throw newspapers.

"We're glad we moved out to the Lenora area," Lozano stated recently, "Everybody is so good to us out here. Your children really have a wonderful chance to do well. We are proud of Daniel because of

DANIEL LOZANO

ABC members will sell rodeo 'goodies'

The American Business Club members, often called the Red Shirts, will once again man the concessions stand at the rodeo.

The rodeo this year will be from June 23-26. Money raised at the concessions stand will support physical therapy programs supported by the ABC groups locally and nationally.

The ABC Club locally supports the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, the West Side Community Center, teenage baseball, Miss Softball America and a college scholarship program for students majoring in physical education.

Don Brooks, president of the local club, said that the club is always needing new members and men who will help them work for these activities.

his accomplishments, but it is the people around this area that helped make it possible."

You know how it is with paper boys if you ever were one or ever had one in the family.

Theirs is the fun job of collecting and delivering. They get the calls, "Who threw my paper in the top of the cedar tree?" "Why was the paper three hours late?" "Didn't I pay you last week for two months?" "Do you have change for a fifty?" "Didn't my wife already pay you?" "Are you the same kid that let the paper blow away last Tuesday?"

It's a thankless business and a necessary one for all of the persons who want the newspaper at their front door.

And the Lozanos are good examples of those who work at it — this week, out around Lenora ridin' fence.

Introducing the Average Billing Plan from Texas Electric.

AVERAGE BILLING AMOUNT

ACTUAL USE AMOUNT

If you've ever wished the amount of your electric bills could be more consistent every month — instead of changing so much between seasons — here's your chance.

The Average Billing Plan is being provided by Texas Electric to help smooth out the highs and lows that occur in your electric bills. As the name implies, this new plan enables you to pay an "average" rather than the actual amount used each month. It allows you to pay less during high-use months by paying more during low-use months.

Full details about the plan are in a brochure now being mailed with your electric bill. It should answer any questions you may have.
