Was Second Son Of Packer Who Made Chicago Capital Of The Meat Industry; Son Rushes To Tragic Scene

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, May 28. — Edward F. Swift, 68, head of one of the first families of Chicago and chairman of the great packing house his father built, dropped six stories to instant death today from a window of his Gold Coast apartment home.

He was second son of the late Gustavus Franklin Swift, the Massachusetts packer who came west to make Chicago the capital of the meat packing industry.

Rumors Dismissed

Attendant rumors of financial worries were dismissed by one banker on La Salle street; intimate with the Swifts: "In our opinion, his personal finances could have no connection with the tragedy."

Theodore Philip Swift, one of the packer's two sons, hurried to his father's apartment. He found the window of the sunroom open and Mr. Swift's lounging robe draped over a chair. The body had been clad only in pajamas.

Liked Fresh Air

"He was always insisting on fresh air," said Philip, "Only one of the windows in the room had been open." He thought his father, thrusting up the sash, had leaned over the eight inch brass guard rail and fallen. There was no screen on the window.

Swift securities reacted nervously on the Chicago stock exchange. Some reaction, however, had been anticipated because of the halving of Swift and Company's dividend by the directors yesterday, placing the stock on a $1 annual basis.

Held To Industry

Other Chicago pioneer families, like the Armours, have slowly relinquished the industries they builded, but not the Swifts.

The five sons of Gustavus—Louis, 71; Edward, 68; Charles, 60; Gus-

Lightning Starts Fires As Storms Sweep Dallas

Stranded Motorists Rescued; Rains Fall Between Lubbock And Clovis Saturday

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, May 28.—A woman was injured slightly, two persons had to be rescued from water over their heads and several fires were caused by lightning during a severe rainstorm here this afternoon. More than an inch of rain flooded the city's low sections.

Mrs. R. P. Copeland, 30, was cut on the head when lightning struck a chandelier at the Fundamentalist Baptist church. A light globe fell from the chandelier and hit her head.

The automobile of Charles E. Brown, 36, and Mrs. Edna Giles, 36, was submerged in overflow water from a creek in East Dallas. The couple were forced to abandon the machine in water over their heads. Brown held Mrs. Giles above the water until rescuers tossed them a rope.

The abandoned automobile was one of 11 cars stalled in the swirling water which covered several blocks. Residents of the vicinity were instructed to leave as the water rose. Business establishments were flooded and floors of several houses were covered.

Lightning started a fire at the Highland Park home of Sam and J. L. Lancaster, jr.,

Raging Controversy On Sales Tax, Focusing On Hoover And Press, Stalls Revenue Plans

Connally Demands That Chief Executive Make Statement; Presidential Message Being Expected On Measure

By FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 28.—A raging controversy over the sales tax—focusing on President Hoover and hte press—swept the senate today and temporarily stalled the billion dollar revenue bill.

The upshot of the furious debate was a demand from Senator Connally (D., Tex.), for a statement by the president on his position and circulation of a round robin petition pledging members to vote against the disputed levy.

Message Expected

Intimations reached the capitol that Mr. Hoover was prepared to take a hand in the tax contest and a message from him next week was expected.

Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, Democratic tax leader, challenged the proponents of the sales tax for an immediate showdown and then drew up the round robin petition.

He claimed 34 Democratic signatures tonight and predicted more than 50 of the senate—a majority—would be pledged by Monday noon, when the president's message is expected.

Majority Claimed

Advocates of the 1.75 per cent sales levy, sponsored by Senator Walsh, (D., Mass.), claimed they had a majority.

Opponents, however, pointed to refusal of the house to accept the proposition and placed the blame on proponents of the sales tax for any delay in enactment of the revenue bill.

The opponents also contended some large newspapers were "propagandizing" the country for the sales levy and denounced the president for calling in publishers last Wednesday night. They said it was a "covert" movement to get at public opinion.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, told the senate that Secretary Mills estimated the pending revenue bill would fall short by $56,000,000 of the $1,025,000,000 budget balancing goal.

"How are we going to raise the $56,000,000?" asked Watson.

Harrison and Couzens (R., Mich.), both promptly endorsed the proposal of Senator Connally, (D., Tex.), for a higher income schedule as the means of meeting the margin.

Murray Is To Stay In Race

Oklahoman States That He Can See No Hope In Garner And Declares That His Name Will Be Up At Chicago

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, May 28.—Governor William H. Murray of Oklahoma will stay in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination, he telegraphed Texans today. A movement had been started by Senator J. J. Loy of Sherman to have the Sooner state's twenty-two votes in the Chicago convention switched to Speaker John N. Garner of Texas.

Loy had been told that Governor Murray had made a statement which in effect withdrew him as a candidate for the presidency. He telegraphed Murray soliciting his convention votes for Garner.

Murray telegraphed Senator Loy that "press reports of withdrawal were promoted by enemies," said his name would be presented to the national convention, declared himself "against any New Yorker," and asserted he could "not see any hope in Garner."

Felix Hausner Turns Back On Projected Hop

Mystery Flier Takes Off For One Of Three Cities; Finds Conditions Bad Over Ocean And "Feels" Way Back

Defied Warnings

London, Paris Or Warsaw Was Destination; Instrument Of Navigation Went To Bad In A Blinding Fog

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, May 28.—Stanislaus Felix Hausner "mystery flier" of Newark, N. J., returned to Floyd Bennett field at 8:20 p. m. (central standard time) tonight, slightly more than six hours after he started on a projected non-stop flight to Europe.

Hausner said he had got about 300 miles out to sea and was flying in a blind fog when the artificial horizon, the "brains" of an aviator's blind flying instruments, stopped functioning.

"Feels" Way Back

He turned his heavily loaded flame-colored monoplane about and "felt" his way back to Floyd Bennett field as best he could with the aid of a compass only.

His return, despite such odds, made those who had murmured "flying fool" when he hopped off at 3:05 p. m. despite warnings against hazardous conditions, wonder if Hausner, the silent, non-committal amateur pilot, possibly knew more about aviation than they had given him credit for.

ALONE AT START

NEW YORK, May 28. (AP)—Alone in a reconditioned monoplane, Stanislaus Felix Hausner roared down the runway of Floyd Bennett field today and set out on a trans-Atlantic flight as mysterious as he has made himself.

The 32-year-old Newark, N. J., flier, holder of only a limited private flying license, hopped off for "London or Paris and Warsaw" at 2:05 p. m. (central standard time) in the face of warnings that the course he had charted was fog-bound and extremely perilous.

Persists In Start

But the "right wind" he had said he was waiting for during the four days he lived at the field with his

"I wish to express my great appreciation to many friends who have urged that I should be a candidate this year for governor of Texas, but I have decided that the wiser course is for me to run for re-election as lieut. governor," Witt said.

"If I am re-elected, I pledge my best efforts to cooperate with whomsoever the people might select as governor and to the legislature in all efforts in behalf of the people for better and more economical government."

Art Goebel Crashes His Ship; Mechanic Is Dead

Famous Flier Badly Hurt In Crack-Up Late Saturday

(By The Associated Press)

McKINNEY, May 28.—Art Goebel, widely known aviator, was injured, and his mechanic, R. L. Riss, was killed when their plane struck a tree as they took off from an airport here today.

Riss was killed instantly, his head being crushed by wreckage of the plane, which was demolished. Goebel, winner of the Dole derby from San Francisco to Honolulu, suffered a broken leg above the knee and facial lacerations.

Performed Stunts

Goebel had come to McKinney, where he recently gave an air circus, to visit friends. During the day he performed some stunts over the courthouse square.

About 3 p. m. as a heavy rain was falling, he prepared to return to Dallas. The field was soggy as a result of rain, but he seemed to have no difficulty getting into the air.

Plane Hits Tree

When about mid-field and at an altitude of about 35 feet, the plane struck the top of a tree and crashed, strewing wreckage for many feet. It did not burn.

Riss was dead when spectators lifted him from the debris. Goebel was conscious, and was rushed to the city hospital, where a quick examination indicated his injuries were not fatal.

It was believed a gust of wind whipped the plane into the tree. The plane was a bi-plane and was powered with a Diesel-type motor.

Riss' body was held at an undertaking establishment pending efforts to communicate with relatives.

OMAHA, Neb., May 28. (AP) — Headed by E. J. Hill, Detroit, winner of the Gordon Bennett balloon race trophy in 1927, and Ronald Blair, Goodyear Zeppelin corporation pilot, who won the American national race in 1930, six of the country's best balloon pilots were busily engaged today in making preparations for the start at 4:45 p. m. (cst) Monday, of the 1932 national race from the municipal airport here.

The balloon race start is the feature of the second annual Omaha air races, now in progress here. The races end Monday.

Garner Strikes Back At Hoover

WASHINGTON, May 28. (AP) — Speaker Garner slapped back today with a stinging thrust at President Hoover and proceeded with plans for speeding his relief bill through the house.

To the president's charge that the public works phase of the speaker's two billion dollar relief bill was "pork barrel" legislation, Garner replied that the same appellation might be applied to the reconstruction corporation for which non-partisan support was elected by Mr. Hoover.

"The Democrats did not expect to receive real cooperation from the president in any matter benefiting the masses and those who might be termed the middle classes of American people," Garner said.

German Expert Says Payments Should Be Cut

Moratorium On Reparations Is Suggested In Event Germany Still Unable To Pay Debts After One-Third Slash

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, May 28.—Because business has fallen off thirty per cent, the Young plan annuities paid by Germany to the victors in the world war should be slashed one-third, Victor Berenger, negotiator of the 1925 Franco-American debt agreement, suggested in an article published today.

In the event that Germany still was unable to make the payments despite the cut, M. Berenger suggested a moratorium on all reparations with the exception of 440,000,000 Reichsmarks (about $110,000,000).

Settlement Necessary

The success of the impending Lausanne conference, at which the European powers will attempt to reach an agreement on reparations, is subordinate to a settlement between the United States and Europe, he asserted.

The debt agreements made by the United States and its creditor nations have been linked. In M. Berenger's view, with the amount that Germany is able to pay.

Approximately 1,000 Singers Gather Here; Programs Will Continue Today

NEARLY 1,000 singers and others braved inclement weather Saturday night to attend the first of a two-day annual convention of the Lubbock county singers convention at the First Baptist church. D. W. Fortenberry, president, of Lubbock was in charge, and after the meeting was closed, Mrs. Imogene Pace was hostess to about 40 singers at a reception at her home at 2347 Nineteenth street.

Mr. Fortenberry estimated that at least 40 out-of-county singing leaders were present, and said that others are expected for the sessions beginning at 10 a. m. and 12:50 p. m. today at the church. V. O. Stamps and his quartet of Abilene, are to attend Sunday.

No advance programs are outlined for the convention, but the entertainment is arranged from the available talent. Last night's program included duet, trio, quartet, chorus and group numbers. Trial Date Of Curtis Is Set

Norfolk Hoax Negotiator Will Face Court Action June 27; Closed Indictments Returned By Jury Saturday

(By The Associated Press)

FLEMINGTON, N. J., May 28.—John Hughes Curtis of Norfolk will go on trial the week of June 27 for hoaxing the Lindberghs and police seeking the kidnap-murderers of their baby son.

Prosecutor Anthony Hauck made this announcement after indictments handed down today by the grand jury which pondered the Curtis case Thursday.

Because only three cases had been considered and because of Hauck's statement as to the trial date and a further announcement by him that Curtis would be arraigned for pleading next Saturday in quarter sessions, it was taken for granted that one of the closed indictments named Curtis.

Relatives Of Dead Man Ask Investigation

Viscera Of A. T. Ballard Sent To State Chemist; Analysis To Determine Cause Of Death Will Be Made

Died On March 19

Grand Jury Makes Inquiry But Takes No Action; Order For Action Is Given Saturday By Judge W. S. Clark

THE body of A. T. Ballard, 40, a tenant farmer who died March 19 at his home about five miles north of Shallowater, was disinterred at about 9 o'clock Saturday morning and the viscera removed and sent by the district attorney's office to the state chemist at Austin for analysis to determine whether Ballard died of poison. Burial had been in Lubbock cemetery March 20.

Following a grand jury inquiry in the death, Justice of the Peace W. S. Clark issued an order for the disinterment. The grand jury took no action, and the peace justice's order was understood to have been made at the request of relatives. Immediate survivors of Ballard were his widow and two sons.

No Certificate Filed

A physician's certificate of the cause of death was not filed, Ballard dying about six weeks after last being attended by a doctor, and funeral home attaches were not summoned to the Ballard home until nearly eight hours after his death, and then because the corpse was darkening, the district attorney's office reported its investigation had revealed. Burton S. Burks, assistant district attorney, at the prompting of Ballard's relatives, had investigated angles of the death at intervals since soon after it occurred.

Dr. W. L. Baugh, county physician, assisted by attaches of Rix Funeral home, which supervised the original burial, had charge of digging up the body and removal of vital organs. Joe Rieger, deputy sheriff; Cap Moore, deputy constable, and Aubrey Ballard, a son of the dead man, were there.

Body Becomes Black

Relatives had said, investigators indicated, that after Ballard's death, at about 5:30 o'clock the afternoon of March 19 at his home, they bathed, shaved and dressed the body, intending to conduct the

City Of Lubbock Makes Profit Of More Than $100,000 In Year 1931

Audit Report Shows City In Healthy Status

City Light And Water Units Carry Bulk Of Financial Load, Clearing More Than $175,000 During Year

THE City of Lubbock cleared $101,355.91 during the fiscal year ended March 31, 1932, according to the audit report of William W. Condray accepted last week by the city commission. This sum does not include $70,039.76 spent for capital outlay and which became a part of the city's assets.

Chief net income came, of course, from the city water and electric plants which brought in $103,682.96 and $121,824.33 in net income, respectively. The general department, as usual showed an operating loss, which last year amounted to $58,298.89.

Assets Increased $124,066.96

The city's assets were increased by $124,066.96 during the 12-month period, and at the end of March 31 the total was $4,786,828.07, the report showed.

Bonded indebtedness was decreased $39,000 from $2,401,500 last year to $2,362,500.

The light plant led in gross income, bringing in $196,641.82 from all sources, and the water department showed a gross income of $155,772.73. The general departments returned $36,604.26. Expenses for these three divisions of the city's business were, respectively: $74,817.49, $52,089.77, and $172,771.23.

Delinquent Taxes Increase

An addition of $90,228.54 in delinquent taxes for 1931 brought the total of delinquent taxes to $169,108.58, an increase of $37,413.54 during the year. The city collected $209,794.24 in current and delinquent taxes and penalties, and disbursements were as follows:

General fund (general cashier) $1,876.12; general fund (direct), $18,189.86; interest and sinking fund, $150,764.55; city special BCD fund, $39,118.83.

Your attention is again directed to the fact that purchases in excess of $100 are still being made without competitive bids, in some instances, in violation of the city charter," Mr. Condray pointed out in a preface to the report. He also expressed disapproval of "the policy of crediting to the general fund interest earned on the interest and sinking fund account, which seems to have been done in prior periods as well as the one under review." He termed the policy one of "doubtful propriety, although possibly permissable under the law."

Fines Total $7,528.30

Of the general revenue, the fines of corporation court, totaling $7,528.30, topped the list in amount. Milk permits brought in $1,034; dry closet permits $1,157.20; slaughter permits, $2,507.80; tax penalties, $4,928.36; depository interest $6,969.76.

By a difference of only about $200, the fire department was the most expensive of the units in the general departmental group. Fire department expenses totaled $26,503.67, of which more than $24,000 went for salaries of the chief, firemen, and fire marshal. Police expenses total $26,397.27, including more than $22,000 for salaries.

Total salaries for all divisions—including the water and light plants—exceeded $140,000.

The annual report of the Board of City Development also is included in the audit. The report shows that Jan .1, 1931, the BCD had $2,884.43 on balance, received $38,193.86 from the city of Lubbock, and $141.60 from the WTCC convention, and spent $35,851.36. Bank balance as of Dec. 31, 1931, is $5,368.53, or an increase of nearly $2,500.

Welfare Association Head Visits In City Saturday

The Rev. W. A. Nicholas, white-haired and bearded superintendent of the West Texas Children's Aid and Welfare association of Abilene, Texas, was in Lubbock Saturday when the adoptions of two young children from his home were completed.

The Abilene man who has secured homes for 800 homeless children in ten years now has three infants less than three weeks old and six older children in his care now. The adoptions completed Saturday were of boys, made by Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Boyd and Mr. and Mrs. Garlan McWhorter.

The association has arranged for adoption of nine boys and five girls already this year, the Rev. Mr. Nicholas said. He left last night for Abilene.

Honey Enters Sheriff's Race

Former Member Of Lubbock Police Force Announces His Candidacy For Office On Saturday; Here 23 Years

Baxter Honey, former member of the Lubbock police force and a resident of the county for the past twenty-three years, Saturday announced his entrance into the sheriff's race of Lubbock county.

Mr. Honey announced his candidacy subject to the action of the Democratic primary, July 2.

A former stock farmer and lately a peace officer, Mr. Honey is well known throughout the county both to old and new residents. He is making his first race for a public office.

Former Peace Officer

"With no apology, I am announcing for the office of sheriff of Lubbock county," Mr. Honey said. "Many people of the county probably know me better than I know myself.

"Having no desire to boast my qualifications, I simply state that I have served the people of the city of Lubbock as a peace officer for the past seven years. The record I have made in that capacity, I am at least not ashamed of. I have tried to do my duty as I understand it and to be courteous and fair with everyone with whom it has been my duty to deal.

"If elected your sheriff, I promise to enforce the law to the best of my ability.

"I realize that an officer is the servant of the people and that the office he holds belongs to the people and not to him."

Moreland Wins Texas Title; Sens Beat Yankees Twice

Dallas Ace In Top Form With Austin Golfer

Gus Equals Nowlin's 69 While Getting Big Lead In First 18 Holes; Match Ends When Moreland Wins At 27th

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

TEXARKANA, May 28.—Playing with uncanny accuracy throughout this short-lived final match, Gus Moreland of Dallas today defeated W. R. Long of Austin 10 and 9, to win the Texas Gold association's state title for the second consecutive year.

Moreland's game was brilliant in all respects, but his putting was sensational. Time after time he dropped long putts to increase his lead over Long, whose game attempt to maintain the pace set by his opponent was in vain.

In all his competitive golf career Moreland probably never has been in better form than today. His 35-34—69 for the morning round tied the course record set by Louis Nowlin of Dallas in a qualifying match.

Needs Eagle—Gets It!

Moreland reached the eighteenth tee needing an eagle three to tie the course record. Deliberate and confident, he cracked a beautiful tee shot, then followed with a spoon to the green. The ball stopped ten feet from the cup. Moreland sank it for his eagle.

It was this kind of competition Long met all the way. Unlike Moreland, his putts were inaccurate. Due more to poor shots on the green than anything else, Long was able to win but four holes out of the 27 played. He turned in an erratic 41-38—78 for his first 18 holes.

On the afternoon round he scored 40. Moreland continued his sparkling play, mingling birdies frequently with his pars to wind up the match with a score three under par.

Long Always Behind

From the outset Long trailed. Moreland took the lead on the second hole with a birdie four. He won the next two holes to increase his lead to three up. Long rallied to halve the next four holes, but Moreland increased his margin in the eighth with a four. Long shot a five. Moreland took a four to win the ninth, Long scoring a five. Spectators at this point realized that the champion was on the road to victory and that he was out to tie the course record.

Moreland lost the tenth hole by shooting into a bunker with his tee shot. His second found another bunker. He wound up with a five. Long bagged a four.

At the twelfth Long took a birdie four to further reduce Moreland's lead. Moreland then settled down to win the next four holes. He halved the seventeenth and took the next with his eagle.

Starting his afternoon round eight up, Moreland did not slacken his pace. He halved the nineteenth with a five, then tightened up to win the next two holes. This made him ten up.

He lost the twenty-third when his tee shot landed in the rough and his second went over the green into a trap, giving him a five against Long's par four.

Moreland then lost the twenty-fifth to Long's par five. His third shot was bladed and almost rolled off the green. He required three putts for a six. This left him eight up.

He birdied the next two holes with threes to end the match, 10 and 9.

Tulsa Star Wins Trans-Miss Title

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., May 28. (AP) Reeling off par after par with deadly consistency, Mrs. Walter Beyer, Tulsa, scored an eight and seven victory today over another Oklahoma woman, Mrs. Tom Wallace, Sapulpa, in the 36-hole finals of the women's trans-Mississippi golf tournament.

The victory added another title to that of Oklahoma champion held by Mrs. Beyer. She succeeds as trans-Mississippi champion Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Kansas City, who is in England with the United States women's golf team.

Although faced with consistent par golf by her opponent, Mrs. Wallace, who has held the Oklahoma championship three times, never gave up and fought gamely to the 29th hole where another par by Mrs. Beyer ended the match.

Penn Crew Ends Columbia's Four-Year Reign On Harlem

NEW YORK, May 28. (AP)—Columbia's four-year reign over the Harlem was broken today as a sturdy Pennsylvania varsity crew pulled away from the Lions by a length to win the Child's cup race for the first time since 1926. Princeton finished third, a half length behind Columbia.

American Team Triumphs Over Australian Invaders

Allison And Van Ryn Top Off In Doubles Sets

BY GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA, May 28.—America's young tennis gentlemen today completed a crushing triumph over Australia's Davis Cup team and virtually assured this country's participation in the inter-zone finals next month at Paris, probably against England.

When Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn, stellar doubles team, overwhelmed the Australians' top pair, Jack Crawford and Harry Hopman, by scores of 6-0, 6-4, 5-7, 7-5, they rounded out a clean sweep over the vaunted players from "down under" in the three matches played yesterday and today.

Two Matches Left

The two remaining singles matches Monday will be little more than exhibitions, merely affording the invaders an opportunity to avert a complete blanking. On the strength of their play the last two days it was exceedingly doubtful the "Aussies" would do even that.

Ellsworth Vines, this country's youthful champion, prepared the Australians for the finishing wallop in doubles by completing a singles conquest of Crawford. The final score was 6-2, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

As usual, Van Ryn and Allison looked like the world's greatest doubles pair as they scored their triumph. Their stroking and all around workmanship approached perfection and it was only in the third set that Crawford and Hopman were able to prevail in the pinches.

Orcutt Medalist In British Open

SAUTON, Eng., May 28. (AP)—Maureen Orcutt, the blonde American girl, added a fine 78 to a brilliant 73 of the first round to win the qualifying medal today for the British womens' golf championship.

Her total of 151 led the final 64 into the match play rounds which start Monday. In the field, tucked neatly away under the qualifying limit of 180 strokes, were all the members of the American team that defeated a British girls' team recently at Wentworth, with the sole exception of the non-playing captain, Marion Hollins, Santa Barbara, Cal.

Ralph Metcalfe Beats World Record Time In 220 Sprint

CHICAGO, May 28. (AP) — Ralph Metcalfe, powerful negro sprinter from Marquette university, today raced 220 yards in better than world record time as the Hilltoppers overwhelmed Chicago, Illinois Normal and Loyola of Chicago, in a quadrangular track and field meet.

The negro flyer sped over the cinders at Stagg Field in 20.4 seconds in the 220-yard dash, to better by two-tenths of a second the world record established in 1926 by Roland Locke of Nebraska.

Mrs. Moody Pairs With Ryan To Win Over Defending Champs In French Court Warfare; Straight Victory

AUTEUIL, France, May 28. (AP)—After a lapse of a year, Helen Wills Moody and Elizabeth Ryan re-established themselves today on French courts as the best women's doubles team in the world.

In straight sets the American women defeated Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall and Betty Nuthall, defending champions, 6-1, 6-3, outclassing one of the best of all the women's doubles combinations.

Rene Lacoste, brilliant Frenchman, after three years of retirement, returned to the tournament play with an easy victory over Georges Krasny, young Czechoslovakian player, in the first round of men's singles. The scores were 6-3, 6-1, 0-6, 6-0.

Pirates Beat Cards In 6th Straight Win

Brooklyn Climbs Up A Step In Third Successive Victory Over Giants; Cubs Defeated By Reds; Braves Lose

(By The Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH, May 28. — Aided by four hits from the bat of Dave Barbee, Pacific Coast importation, the Pittsburgh Pirates today annexed their fifth consecutive game by trimming the St. Louis Cards, 8-6.

It was the eighth victory for the Buccaneers out of their last nine combats.

Steve Swetonic, who twirled for the Pirates, chalked up his fifth win in six starts, three of the victories being over the cards. Swetonic lacked his usual effectiveness, weakening in the latter stages after whitewashing the Cards six innings.

Tech Athletes Scatter During Vacation; Eligible Men Named

Fifty-One Gridsters Conclude Spring Training And Become Eligible For Matador Team Next Fall

With the 1931-32 long term of school practically over, Tech's athletes are receiving final instructions this week in preparation for what is anticipated as the college's greatest football year in its history. Next week they will be scattered hither and yon, setting out on a summer of rest, work or travel. Only a few will remain in Lubbock to attend summer school.

Not satisfied with the rigor of two months of spring training, less than a dozen backfield candidates have retained uniforms and will continue to work out daily this week. The others were let loose following the Canyon game and last week's practice.

At the conclusion of spring training, Head Coach Pete Cawthon announced that fifty-one prospective gridsters would be eligible for varsity competition next fall, provided scholastic standing and return to school warranted continued eligibility.

Before the boys were dismissed for the summer, measurements were taken for uniforms to be used next year. Due to the change in style, color and weight of uniforms, exact measurements were required. The list of lads who will be expected to decide among themselves who shall carry the Matador standards next fall, and their addresses this summer is as follows:

Captain-Elect Ross Ayers, Texas Tech summer school; Elva Baker, Abilene; Raymond Barton, Lubbock; Johnny Beauchamp, Greenville; Comer Burton, Abilene; Billie Bush, Wellington; Aubrey Butts, Waco; Demp Cannon, Slaton; Adrian Clark, Denison; Marvin Collins, Celina; Harold Crites, Lubbock; Renouf Crittendon, Lubbock; Leonard Curfman, Electra; Roy Curfman, Electra; Blake Dowell, Royce City; Eddleman, Lubbock; Elmer Fortner, Sherman.

Stars Of Speed Are To Take Track In 500 - Mile Go

(By The Associated Press)

INDIANAPOLIS, May 28. — A week's bitter struggle for places in next Monday's 500-mile automobile race here ended late today with the completion of the fastest field in the history of the event.

Qualifying speeds ranged from Lou Moore's 111.363 miles per hour to 104.645 miles per hour made by Kelly Petillo of Los Angeles who got into the race just a few minutes before the dead line on time trials.

Entry Cut Down

A record entry of 72 cars was cut down gradually during the week by accidents which took two lives and injured several others and by failures of motors or parts to withstand the punishment of the two and a half mile brick track.

Juan Gaudino, South American driving champion, will be the only foreigner in the race which will contain 40 starting cars.

America's Stars In

Pitted against him will be America's greatest pilots, among them three former winners here—Louis Meyer, Billy Arnold and Louis Schneider, who will drive for approximately $100,000 in prize money and trophies.

The track was closed to the drivers at conclusion of today's qualifying trials until tomorrow afternoon so oil spots could be removed. The drivers and their riding mechanics and pit crews will be given final instructions at a meeting tomorrow.

Lubbock Country Club Plays At Post Today With Slaton At Littlefield; Meadowbrook Players Urged To Play

South Plains Golf league activities will be resumed today at Post and Littlefield.

The Lubbock Country club team journeys to Post today for a setto with Charles Quails' Post Country club team, one of the high rating clubs of the circuit. Slaton's team will meet Littlefield on the latter's course this afternoon.

Lubbock Meadowbrook Golf club draws an off day in the five-team loop, and Manager Bill McMillan has issued an urgent request that members of the club report to the links today for practice and for challenge rounds in the ladder tournament. He urges that players play in foursomes, and that medal scores be kept. Of the foursome, low medal scorer, even if he be low man in the ladder, may climb to top place.

In a postponed match played during the week at Post, the Post players defeated Meadowbrook, 14 to 8. The match was started on May 8, and rain interfered before eight games could be played. There was considerable dispute, and the matches were resumed where they were formerly halted. Final report of the game, as submitted by Quails at Post, is as follows:

Billy Holmes, Lubbock, defeated Charles Quails, 3-0; Thrasher of Lubbock lost to Crump, 3 to 0; Hines lost to Ray, 3 to 0; Bryant lost to Collier, 2-0; Harvey lost to J. Samson, 3-0; Lockhart beat J. H. Jones, 2-1; Lyle Holmes lost to Clyde Hundley, 2-0 and Mendal Hughett defeated Jim Hundley, 2-0.

Republicans Vote Wet Platform In Illinois Meeting

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 28 (AP)—Led by Len Small, its nominee for governor, the Illinois Republican convention for the first time since prohibition went into effect in 1920, Friday adopted the "wet" side of the question in a platform which did not mention President Hoover by name.

The 69-year-old former governor, who is seeking a third term, was roundly cheered as he declared for repeal of state and national prohibition laws and asserted Illinois voters plainly had showed their sentiments on the issue in the referendum of 1930.

Prosperity will return, Small—hitherto a "dry"—said, and "the reign of terror in crime syndicates" will end when prohibition is terminated.

Small and former Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago, his political ally, controlled the convention, also elected 22 uninstructed delegates-at-large, with a half vote apiece to the national convention in Chicago next month.

Not a single "dry" raised his voice in convention. And when Small had concluded his address the convention by unanimous action adopted his entire speech as its platform.

Guyrene Horton Contest Winner

Miss Guyrene Horton, 15-year-old Four-H club girl of Hurlwood, Saturday was announced as winner of the Lubbock county bedroom contest for club girls. The winner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Horton, will receive a free trip to the A. and M. Short course this summer.

Second place was won by Corene Corley of Shallowater; and third was won by Juanita Meadow of Acuff, Miss Isla Mae Chitwood, home demonstration agent, announced.

Miss Horton completely renovated a bedroom in her parents' home at a cost of $6.18. She bought an old washstand for 25 cents, repaired it and made a study desk. Her purchases also included a desk chair, a waste basket, bed rollers, pictures, a magazine stand, sheetrock, a curtain, a flower stand, paint and cretonne.

The winner also included with her report of her work pictures taken during the progress of the project. A club calf which Miss Horton fed out and on which she cleared about $25, furnished finances for the bedroom improvement contest.

Plans For Encampment Made At 4-H Meeting Held Here

A program of music was given by Slaton club members and plans for the summer encampment in July were discussed at a meeting of about 50 Lubbock county Four-H club boys and girls Saturday afternoon at the courthouse.

The musical program was directed by Jack Stalcup. Date of the annual encampment probably will be set this week, said County Agent D. F. Eaton. Fred Elliott and James Potts were named to plan a meeting for older boys Friday night. Arvle Elliott, club president, was in charge.

funeral and burial Sunday without the expense of having it embalmed. Several hours later, the body appeared to be becoming black, and funeral home attendants were summoned from Lubbock, arriving about 4 o'clock Sunday morning. Services were conducted Sunday afternoon.

The farmer died, relatives said, soon after arising from the supper table, remarking that he was "feeling well," only to suffer cramps. Ballard had been ill in January, and a physician had diagnosed the ailment as pancreatitis, inflammation of a gland which secretes juices aiding in digestion: Ballard appeared to recover after treatment and not to be sick again until the day of his death.

Ballard seemed to be prosperous as a tenant and had an efficiently equipped and industriously kept farm, investigators said. Payment of $1,000 on a life insurance policy was made to the widow, the Avalanche-Journal was informed by a reliable source.

Ballard had lived in Hardy community about four years.

Stocks Squeeze Average Net Gain Out Of Short Session; Early Decline Seen

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, May 28. (AP) — Stocks squeezed on average net gain out of today's fairly active short session after an early decline had deposited many leaders into new low ground.

It seemed fair to assume that shorts covering, based partly on pre-holiday curtailment of commitments and partly on hopes that the revenue bill would be much further along by next Tuesday, contributed substantially to the buying that eventually absorbed offerings. In any event the rebound by some issues was substantial, although trading was much brisker on the early setback than when prices began to firm.

Foreign exchanges made another advance against dollars, some rates rising sharply. Bonds were weak, especially in rail and utility sections, and their action lent strength to the assumption that the late gain in stocks was of a technical nature.

Offerings brought numerous losses of 1 to 3 points during the first half hour with tobaccos, merchandising and utility issues showing most weakness.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN

Export purchases of North American wheat totaled 1,000,000 bushels, including some United States hard winter. On the other hand weather indications for next week were construed as bearish, pointing to more moisture and seasonable temperatures suspicious for crops.

Wheat closed irregular, 5-8 down to 3-8 up, compared with yesterday's finish, corn unchanged to 3-8 lower, oats at a shade to 1-4 advance, and provisions unchanged to a decline of 3 cents.

Ocean Flight

attractive wife, Martha, developed unexpectedly at 1 p. m., and he persisted in starting. Clarence Chamberlin and Roger Q. Williams, both veterans of trans-Atlantic flying, did their best to dissuade him.

Four hours after his takeoff, the young Pole's red, white-striped plane was unreported. He planned to pursue a route somewhat south of the seasonal ship lane.

Wife Is Calm

Mrs. Hausner, who calmly kissed her husband goodbye, gasped as the 220-horsepower Wright whirlwind motored plane lifted with a lurch and rolled drunkenly as if about to crash. But Hausner righted the heavily loaded craft and zoomed away, gaining altitude slowly.

The 550 gallons of gasoline and 22 gallons of oil he had loaded into the plane indicated if the flight progressed favorably Hausner would attempt to reach his native, Warsaw, Poland, in a single hop. Otherwise, he shouted, "I'm going to London or Paris and then to Warsaw," was the only indication of his destination.

Plans Were Secret

All during the time he was at the field, Hausner, who prefers the first name Stanley, refused to discuss his plans. His plane could cover about 6,600 miles in 50 hours.

A naturalized American, Hausner was born in Poland, March 5, 1900. He formerly was a seaman in the naval reserve.

He was taught to fly by C. D. Bowyer, pilot now engaged in passenger service between El Par, Tex., and Mexico City, and was described by airmen at Linden, N. J., who knew him casually as an especially resourceful though not brilliant pilot.

His plane is the same old Santa Maria in which William Brock and Edward Schlee flew from Harbor Grace to Tokyo in September, 1927.

ARE'NT YOU TIRED OF CHEAP MERCHANDISE?

When So Much Standard Worth While Merchandise Is Available At Such Attractive Prices Why Experiment?

We believe in the good judgment of people in general—in the intelligence and common sense of the buying public—in the inherent ability of purchasing America to judge values. That is why we are now prompted to ask the question, "Aren't you tired of Cheap Merchandise?"

Under the stress of abnormal times there has been a constant pressure for Cheaper and still Cheaper prices. Under this pressure realness of values has many times been overlooked and as the situation has progressed the result has been in many cases that the only cheapness that remained was the cheapness of the merchandise itself.

It can not be, that you the purchaser, are not now becoming aware of these facts. For ourselves, we believe you are, and that you are fast changing your viewpoint—that you are now considering more than just price alone. That's why we especially invite you to closely consider the real values of this fine store, where nationally advertised, well known brands are featured at all times and where, even at the expense of possibly having it said "You are a high priced store," we have attempted to maintain our standards of quality and reliability in each and every item we have offered for sale.

Highway Metal Cleaner Is Tested Out Near City Saturday; Picks Up More Than 220 Pounds In Less Than A Mile

More than 220 pounds of metal of all kinds, including tin cans, nails, wire, nuts, bolts, bars, small parts of automobiles, tractors and engines, were jerked up into the maw of the 10-foot electric magnet highway metal cleaner Saturday morning between the East Broadway underpass and the edge of Yellowhouse canyon.

The machine was given a test after being overhauled at division headquarters here, preparatory to being worked for the next two weeks over this division.

Average 50-70 Pounds Mile

"We try and cover all of the dirt highways in the division every six months," Joe H. Caldwell, maintenance engineer for the division explained. "I think the average amount of metal picked up is 75 to 80 pounds to the mile.

"The machine is generally called a nail picker, but that is a misnomer. In fact, nails only form a small portion of the metal picked up. We get all kinds of metal. One would be surprised at the different kinds of metal we find along the highway.

"Our experience has been that the streets in the towns have more metal than highways in the country. I don't know where all the metal comes from, but there is a lot of it."

Magnet Weighs 4,500 Pounds

The machine consists of a magnet, about ten feet long, mounted on a heavy truck-trailer. The magnet can be raised and lowered and when in operation is kept from three to five inches above the roadbed. The magnet weighs about 4,500 pounds.

A stationary motor is used to generate electricity, 150 volts or 50 ampers being used. When it is necessary to clean the charged magnet of iron, a canvas fastened to two poles about 12 feet long, is placed underneath and the power cut off. The metal then drops to the canvass and can be put in a wash tub and weighed.

The engine has a speed of about six miles an hour. In operating the truck a four hour run is made on one shoulder of a highway and then the return made on the other. The next day the middle of the road is worked, giving a 30 foot cleaning. The magnet is so powerful that metal imbedded in a round surface half an inch to an inch can be picked up. In soft dirt the penetration is between two and three inches.

Records Kept

"Records are kept of each day's operation over the highways," Mr. Caldwell explained. "We know what it costs us to operate and also the amount of metal we find. It amounts to a great deal during the course of a year."

The machine here is used in three West Texas divisions. It is kept at Amarillo, where it was made. The machine replaced a lighter one mounted on a Chevrolet truck and which could be operated by one man.

The present outfit needs two men to operate, a driver and a man to operate the magnet.

A COLLEGE COLUMN

By LOIS JACQUES, TECH CORRESPONDENT

YEARBOOKS ARRIVE

La Ventanas for 1931-1932, bound in black and scarlet, are here, and students will receive them sometime this week Robert Huff, editor, has announced. Since most of the annuals are paid for with library deposits, those fees will have to be checked by the library staff before the books may be issued and for that reason cannot be distributed immediately.

The theme of the yearbook is "Coronada's Children," and printing throughout the volume is in blue tones, rather than the usual brown. Several new ideas have been carried out in this year's edition; pictures are arranged according to students' classifications instead of schools; the grind section is much bigger than formerly; and the feature pages contain varied material. Snapshots are, for the most part, clearer than the usual ones found in annuals.

TO DEDICATE GIFT

Dedication ceremonies for the memorial tablet honoring Dr. Paul W. Horn which the senior class is presenting the college will be held Saturday, June 4. The service will be on the lawn of the administration building at 6 p. m. and Clifford B. Jones of Spur, member of the board of regents, will make the dedication.

The plaque was designed by Hilton Kaderli, sophomore architectural student, and is to be hung in the west wall of the sally port in the ad building. It is a bronze tablet bearing a likeness of Dr. Horn and information concerning him.

SISTERS TO ATTEND TECH

Marjorie and Georgie Lee Drake of Memphis are to return to Tech this summer. Georgie Lee, who has been teaching near her home, received her degree in '31, and her sister is classified as a junior.

MURDOUGH HEADS CLUBS

Prof. J. A. Murdough, head of the civil engineering department, was elected president of the Faculty Science club at a dinner held Friday night at the Hotel Hilton. He succeeds Dr. L. T. Patton. Miss Vivian Johnson, home economics teacher, is the new vice president and Miss Bessie League is the club secretary. Prof. Carl D. Brandt of the textile school was elected treasurer.

Dr. Patton made the principal speech. He described the purpose of field trips and showed pictures made on past trips.

ARTIST COURSE PLANNED

Artist course numbers for this summer will include three programs. The first, which is scheduled to be here June 10, the week summer school begins, is the "Deep River Plantation Singers," a chorus of five negro voices.

The second number will be the men's glee club from Milwaukee State teachers college on June 29, and the Sylvia Tell ensemble will appear in the latter part of July to conclude the programs for the session.

Prof. C. S. Mast is to be in charge of the tickets, which will sell for $1 for the season.

TO VISIT DAUGHTER

Mrs. J. W. Hamilton of Waxahachie is to arrive early this week to visit her daughter, Marguerite, who is receiving the A. B. degree from the liberal arts school in June.

SEWELL IS VISITOR

Bill Sewell of Amarillo is visiting friends in Lubbock today. He was graduated from Tech last year.

IS ON VACATION

Florence Rogers, employee in the business office, leaves this week for her vacation. She plans to visit her father in Arkansas.

BOOKS DUE TUESDAY

All books for outside use are due in the library Tuesday, May 31, unless otherwise stamped, officials have announced. Library deposits are scheduled to be returned Thursday.

NORMAN VISITS FRIENDS

Floyd Norman of Amarillo arrived Saturday night for a visit with friends enroute home from Galveston where he has been a student in the state medical school. He is an ex-student of Tech.

COMPANY AIDS STUDENTS

Boys who desire work next year are asked to apply now to the Student Service, Incorporated, so that they may receive help in getting employment next year, Heber M. Ellsworth, a member of the organization, said Saturday.

Student Service, which is similar to organizations in large eastern universities, was started in Tech in September, 1930, with the purpose of providing employment for as many students as possible. An average of six students have been used each term, Ellsworth said. Several projects are sponsored by the organization, with laundry and dry cleaning the most important.

TO RETURN TO SCHOOL

By means of questionaires circulated in the schools of engineering and agriculture, it has been learned that a large number of students plan to attend at least one session of summer school. Figures are not yet quite complete, as not all of the students have returned the data sheets.

In the engineering school Dean O. V. Adams reports that 42 per cent of the students who answered the questionaire say they are going to summer school and approximately 90 per cent now plan to return next year. Two hundred five engineers said they will reenter Tech next fall, 16 said they would not, and 14 were undecided.

Exact figures for the aggie school are not obtainable, but Dean A. H. Leidigh reports that the present survey indicates that as many students will enroll in summer sessions as a similar survey showed last year.

TEACHERS TO STUDY HERE

Davis Pounds, principal of the Close City High school this year, and Bristol Chesser, principal at Southland, were here Saturday making plans for advanced work in agriculture during the summer. Both are graduates of 1931.

J. W. Hulsey, vocational teacher at Olden, is also planning to do advanced work in the school of agriculture this summer. Bob Martin of Graham, who has been teaching in Benjamin this winter, will be here for special study this summer. He received his degree last June.

Installation services for new officers of Las Leales club will be held at the home of Mrs. E. B. Adcock this afternoon at 4:30, Pearl Harrison, outgoing president, has announced. Initiation for new members will also be held, but their names are to be withheld until after the ceremony.

Next year's officers include Ruth Thompson, president; Geraldine Clewell, vice president; and Ruby Rae Williamson, secretary-treasurer.

Charles Hatchett, senior engineer who is taking his B. S. degree this week, recently has accepted a position as teacher in Shumate, a school in Dawson county, for next year.

Eufaula Wise of Amarillo is expected to arrive today for a short visit with Pearl Harrison. Miss Wise, who received the master of arts degree from Tech in 1930, has been teaching in Amarillo High school.

Stylish Paris Women Wear Smart Knitted Garments

Some Make Their Own As Handiwork Grows In Popularity

BY ROSETTE HARGROVE
NEA Service Writer

PARIS, May 28—The knitted garment, or "tricot," as it is called here, is acquiring more and more importance as the season advances. Relegated years ago to the unworthy role of some unmentionable as well as unbeautiful undergarment, it is now being glorified beyond measure.

Even as recently as last year sports and informal ensembles, however simple, were still fashioned of delicately woven wool fabrics. Today the smartest and most distinguished are made up of knitted material, either handworked or machine-made, and what is more, the Parisienne is now knitting her own blouses, sweaters and scarfs. Probably the depression is to be blamed or praised for the revolution in the habits of the elegantes. Whilst not so long ago backgammon, ping-pong, bridge and cocktail parties occupied many of their leisure hours, today they stay at home trying to find a new pattern or stitch or get together on a knitting party.

Tricky Designs Urged

There is an explanation for this new and perhaps inexplicable craze for knitting among the smart set. Nearly all of the most up-to-date creators have launched the tricot suit for this spring and each one has endeavored to acquire the most effective and trickiest stitch or design. And the best results are undoubtedly those obtained by handwork. The openwork weave is a very recent acquisition anyway in the fabric field and every day new progress is being made in this direction. The result is that some of the most beautiful examples of weaving are to be found in the "tricot" groups.

The sweater has graduated into a very glorified affair. It has been adapted to the ever-changing silhouette, to new ideas regarding coloring, design and cut. There is also a sweater for every occasion, for golf, tennis, informal morning wear and the sweater or tricot bolero has even made its appearance as an adjunct to the informal afternoon dress.

As a matter of fact, most of the new sweaters are really blouses, so intricate is their design and so studied their cut. The originality of stitches and the more or less transparent effects achieved mark the high-class garment.

Chic Accessories, Too

Some of the smartest women are now wearing tiny little polo caps and scarfs of hand-knitted tricot of the same color, or in some gay, contrasting shades, cleverly combined with the new spring coats. The caps are worn very much to the side and pulled down on the right eye, the scarf either knotted in an artist bow or in the fashion of a smock.

Lelong's attractive little bolero vestee of tricot worn over a black crepe marocain dress is certain of success both on account of its novelty and its endless possibilities. The model he shows is in black with a cape collar and seven-eighths sleeves edged in very light green and yellow wool. The narrow neckband buttons on to the yellow buttons that decorate the front of the frock. The hem of the bolero is also outlined in the yellow and green and a black patent leather belt shows through the openwork mesh of the tricot.

Oklahoma Men Are Guests In Home Of Mr. And Mrs. Weaver

Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Weaver, 1901 Broadway, have as their guests this week-end Mrs. Weaver's father, Judge D. Moncrief, of Lawton, Okla., and her nephew, William Moncrief, jr., who has been attending the University of Oklahoma at Norman.

Sanders Aid Society Meets With Mrs. L. Stokes Friday

Members of the Sanders Aid society met at the home of Mrs. L. Stokes Friday afternoon to hear a Bible lesson taught by Mrs. C. A. Bickley. There were 16 women present. The society is to meet next Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock with Mrs. J. B. Hubbard.

Lelong's success of the season is seen here in the form of a bolero coatee in hand tricot, black with edging in yellow and very light green. Touches of yellow are found in the buttons and sleeve finish of the black marocain dress. The hat, by Maria Guy, is black straw trimmed with yellow and green ribbon.

A wool tricot ensemble in the new chevron weave is featured here by Maggy Rouff. The suit itself, composed of dress and bolero, is of light gray with roman stripes in red, black and white as relieving colors. The sleeves and bolero hem are drawn in by an elastic band to achieve a pouchy effect. Turban by Agnes.

Forty-Two Is Played Friday At Party Here

Assembly Dances At Country Club; Large Attendance Is Noted; College Men Have Farewell Dinner

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Woman's Editor

AMONG the most attractive week-end events here was a party given by Mrs. C. G. Stinson Friday afternoon in the E. B. Adcock residence, 2601 19th street.

Other affairs included a monthly dance for The Assembly and several collegiate affairs. These latter came during the week-end because of a "dead week" ban at the college prohibiting socialities on school days or evenings. "Dead week" precedes final examinations.

Roses and other garden flowers formed a background of color for Mrs. Stinson's party and harmonized with the party appointments which were in orchid, pink and green. Guests received individual favors of small wicker baskets, tied in tulle and filled with flowers. High score favor was a white pottery basket filled with Kilarney roses. This favor went to Mrs. R. I. Tubbs.

Games of forty-two were played.

J. W. Jackson, Tech Teacher, Makes Main Talk Before City Club Women

Preceding Mr. Jackson's talk, there was some business discussion, concerned chiefly with reports, and Miss Evelyn Jackson, Tech student, played two violin numbers. She was accompanied by Miss Lucille Heggen.

Points To Consider

Introducing his talk by mentioning some cities famous for beauty that have been artistically planned, Mr. Jackson told of the things to take into consideration in laying out a city. Transportation lanes, location of buildings and segregation of districts are three of the principal points to be considered, he said.

Means of relieving conjestion in travel were told, such as diverting traffic and widening streets.

Public buildings and grounds fall into three classifications, he said; those that must be centralized, such as governmental buildings; those that need to be scattered, such as school buildings and parks, and those that need special locations, such as dump grounds, hospitals or bathing pools.

He told some disadvantages and advantages of zoning, explaining what one means by reserving certain sections of a city for special buildings.

It is usually a good plan to divide a town into four districts in the zoning plan, he said, having an industrial area, a mercantile district, apartment section and residential district. Radical changes were not advocated by Mr. Jackson, who said that city planning is a sober and conservative campaign for the future city beautiful.

Church Young People Plan Attendance At Summer Institutes

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

AT least one cot for every employe! That's the slogan with which this angler is going to introduce a strenuous campaign for summer siestas.

The rest of the world can pull hair and grow wrinkles over finances and politics. This angler is interested only in an hour of sleep for each seven hours of work during the day. A daily siesta for working people. A cot for every worker!

Of course, those fortunate people who can let the dinner dishes and drop on a bed for an afternoon nap every day during the year don't appreciate this campaign. More than likely they will thumb the page, stifle a yawn and wonder what these working people will be wanting next. The world has enough troubles, they probably will aver, remembering what the bread winner recently has said about curbing bills.

But this writer knows better. She is even willing to offer reasons why all the other troubles of the world might be solved through this siesta program—unemployment, finances, politics and the rest.

The importance of an afternoon snooze can't be estimated by anyone who does not return to an office day after day following a hearty lunch. The lure of sleep can't be truly defined unless one has nodded for an hour or two in the early afternoon fighting drowsiness. The full meaning of slumber is lost until one struggles with the stupor of summertime.

IT'S SLEEP ANYWAY

WEBSTER defines sleep as "to take rest by suspension of the voluntary exercise of bodily and mental powers, and apathy of the organs of sense." Which leads me to believe that Webster either includes this open-eyed dormancy of early afternoon as sleep or that he did not suffer attacks of siestaitis. For, although one may be technically awake, he is to all intents asleep during the hour that follows lunch. Hence this campaign for cots and an hour during which all work is suspended in order that the office may enjoy a doze.

As to solving problems other than those concerning the comfort of employes, this campaign has possibilities that are extensive.

A cot for every worker! Steel, wood, wire, paint and all the rest of materials that go into the making of cots would suddenly be in the demand class with the institution of such a program. Manufacturers of everything from crude camp cots that could be folded into the store room to luxurious day beds that might grace the sumptuous offices of oil firm executives would find themselves swamped with offers overnight.

People who sell fancy couch covers might find a new field for peddling as stenographers vied with each other in having the most individual robes for their drowse. The alarm clock men might thrill to additional orders as heavy sleepers found a bell necessary to announce the close of this lethargic pause. Cosmeticians might record a flood of orders as young women found it necessary to renovate their complexions after their forty winks.

EVEN OFFICE BOYS

AND in those institutions where machinery might not be entirely shut down because of this soporiferousness, additional men might be employed to keep things going while regular staff members rested. Even in the field of office boys there might be a sudden boom. For while the regular lad was dozing an additional one might be hired to protect the boss and make his slumbers pleasant.

Old Morpheus himself, might steam things up in the land of myths—provided unemployment has filtered there too—by surrendering to this general dullness and hiring an assistant to make the rounds and make this a happy hour for weary men and women who now yawn and sigh through the early afternoon.

* * *

A solution for all the problems of the world! A cot for every office employe and a summer siesta for all! Other people can demand what they will of presidential and gubernatorial candidates. This angler shall demand that they stick by her program. She'll vote for those who push her campaign—a program that she is presenting for purely altruistic reasons since it will solve the difficulties of the generation.

Miss Weeks Tells Of Aims In Second Annual Nursery Class

Equipment And Training Are Designed To Form Perfect Environment; Teacher For School Is Expert

An explanation of the function of the nursery school has been made by Miss Margaret Weeks, dean of the school of home economics, Texas Technological college, who is in charge of arrangements of the second annual school of this nature to be conducted at the college. Dates are from June 7 until July 13 six days a week from 8 a. m. until 1 p. m.

It is something new in the educational world, Miss Weeks points out, saying that the school has three main objectives, namely; that of a laboratory where parents may have demonstrated to them the theories that educators advance regarding child development; that of a place where the environment is planned so that children may develop to their fullest capacity mentally, physically and socially, and that of being a part of the pre-parental training of young women.

Miss Catherine Landreth, director of the school for child study, New Jersey State College for Women, New Brunswick, N. J., is to direct the school, which is to be conducted in the home management house on the campus.

Miss Landreth has degrees from the University of New Zealand and Iowa State college and has traveled extensively in Europe, Canada and the United States, according to Miss Weeks. She is considered an expert in her field.

Part of the group is to come at 8 o'clock and others will arrive at 9 o'clock, according to announcement. Miss Landreth is to have conferences with mothers during the school.

The equipment of the nursery school has been selected with an aim of providing for the children an adequate and attractive material environment, according to Miss Weeks. Swings, slides, a sandpile and wading pool will be placed out of doors. Indoor equipment is adapted in size to the uses of the children.

Enrollment is to be limited and children between the age of two and four years are preferred. A fee of $10 for the school term is to be charged.

Doctor Myers' Daily Column On Child Welfare

DR. MYERS

BY GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

READ ALOUD MORE

During the past ten years the school has almost abandoned oral reading above the second grade. It had been discovered that an enormous amount of time had been lost on oral reading in the classroom, that many children had merely learned to pronounce words without getting meaning from the printed page. It was found, moreover, from careful investigations that pronouncing words tended to slow up reading. Accordingly there has come upon the schools a kind of orgy of silent reading. In our country educational fashions go in waves. Oral reading has almost entirely been neglected in many schools. It probably will come back to some degree.

Junior and senior high school teachers are beginning to beg that more oral reading be taught in the elementary grades. Parents also are concerned. There is a social value in the home to oral reading. It may be that the best place to cultivate good oral reading is in the home anyway. Often have I urged in this column that the older child be induced to read to the younger, particularly to the pre-school child, to entertain the younger profitably and to afford a motive for the older to read better and to express himself orally. Parents who read to children from the time the child is two, on through the early school years, and who encourage their children to read aloud to them for enjoyment, are doing well. In any home the child who has learned to read likes often to read a paragraph or sentence from his school book, or from a magazine or newspaper. Maybe it is from the comic strip he wishes to read something which particularly interested him. Let us encourage this practice. Fine that family atmosphere in which different members of the family read aloud short selections to the rest every now and then, when to all agreeable. Splendid that companionship of dad and son or, daughter and mother when the boy or girl in junior or senior high school reads aloud a poem or classic to the enjoyment of the parent. Some parents share considerable with their adolescent children, reading with and talking over together some of the school assigned classics.

How fine it is for the child who can read, to read to a father or mother or grandparents or aged neighbor at the request of the auditor. While the reader is supplying pleasure he is gaining by way of good practice in oral reading. Only by reading aloud can poetry be thoroughly enjoyed; only by reading aloud can the rhythm and music of good prose be appreciated. If your child and mine, if you and I, indeed, wish to improve in ease of speech, in variety of expression, in ability to converse more agreeably and to write more forcefully we shall try to have some daily practice in oral reading. It will do any of us good to read aloud from choice selections of literature, including the Bible. We who read aloud a great deal to our children not only gain added means of comradship, and give them enjoyment; we also improve our own speech and style of writing.

The many good letters from my readers help me very much. When a personal reply is requested, please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Summer Bobs Worn By Social Elite Are Softly Curled; One Has Choice

Soft little curls that aureal the face or nestle enchantingly at the nape of the neck are part of the new bobs just released by coiffure experts. Left is Eleanor Diehl wearing the "Park Avenue bob," so called because it is favored by residents of that world renowned highway. At the right Jeanne Audree's hair dips in soft waves ending in little flat curls at the nape of the neck. Miss Audree's hair is "Honey blonde," which shade is now all the rage. Contrary to the all-bobbed vogue a few seasons ago, one may now decide for herself whether hair is to be short or long.

MEMORIAL DAY

On May 30, the citizens of this great nation pause in their daily activities to pay tribute to the memory of those dead heroes who in time of dire stress offered their lives to perpetuate the noble traditions of their homeland.

To the Grey, the Blue and the Khaki we pay tribute. Those courageous men who fought for their country defending the principles they believed were right, those who marched forth never to return — those men we salute.

From Gettysburg and Vicksburg, through San Juan and across the war torn fields of Soissons, Belleau Wood and Chateau Thierry those noble patriots have marched to successfully protect their country's honor.

To perpetuate in the minds of the living, the sacrifices of these dead heroes and to once more pledge allegiance to the cause for which many of them died, we observe Memorial Day.

PROLAPSE OF THE OVIDUCT

PROLAPSE of the oviduct is not a true disease, but an ailment ite common during the spring nths, the period of highest egg duction. Hens of the smaller type h as Leghorns, etc. are more quently affected than the larger ds.

rolapse, or protruding vent, is ected by external appearance. affected bird shows a raw, ding, fleshy mass just outside vent. The general health of bird is rarely affected and they ally continue about their work. serious effect of this ailment flock is the fact that other s are attracted by the appear- e of the sore and will pick at often pulling the interstines and r vital organs out of the vic- Cannibalism is thus started.

Early Recognition Important

prolapse is detected early, atment may be successful, but if has existed for some time or has n badly picked and torn, it is less to treat. Disposition should be made of the bird.

Causes

In many cases the condition is due to a weakness of the oviduct walls, the muscular portions and the glands. Because of this weakness the oviduct is unable to stand the strain of heavy egg production.

Sometimes the lack of lubrication interferes with the easy passage of the egg. Straining in an effort to expel the egg breaks the membrane and causes prolapse.

Some Causes

1. The production of over-large eggs.
2. Inflammation of the oviduct from constipation.
3. Roosts and nests that are located too high forcing birds to jump up or down a considerable distance. For this reason birds with clipped wings are susceptible.
4. Over-forcing feeds of too high protein content.
5. Over-accumulation of droppings about the vent.
6. Over-fat condition.

Treatment

First investigate cause and remove it. If not too chronic, relief may be given by inserting with finger a lump of vaseline, or bathe with a strong solution of alum water. Sometimes a small piece of ice inserted will relieve. Push the protruding parts gently back into place. Birds affected should be removed from the flock. Omit laying mash or milk for a few days to retard egg production.

Vent Gleet A Different Disease

Prolapse is often confused with vent gleet. The latter is a contagious catarrh of the vent, a venereal disease accompanied by an offensive odor and transmitted by the male. This disease is difficult to cure, requiring patience and long treatment. Investigation and inspection of the flock should be made often and any affected birds should be removed and disposed of. We find them in most every flock we cull or inspect for certification.

Results Of 90-Day Feeding Test On Lambs By Tech Man Are Announced

Six Pens Fed Out In Past 3 Months; Records Kept

BY J. SAM LEWIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff Writer

FINAL reports on the sale of the 120 lambs on feed in the lots of Texas Technological college for a 90 day experimental feeding project, have been announced by W. L. Stangel, head of the department of animal husbandry who conducted the experiment. He was assisted by J. M. Jones of the Texas Agricultural Experiment station.

Two of the six lots brought $5.75 per hundred pounds; three brought $5.50 and one $5.25.

To Determine Values

"Object of the experiment was to determine: comparative feeding values of sorgo silage with and without four ounces of finely ground oystershell per head daily when fed with ground milo heads and cottonseed meal; comparative feeding values of chopped sorgo fodder with and without four ounces of finely ground oyster shell per head daily when fed with ground milo heads and cottonseed meal; gains made by lambs fed chopped sorgo fodder, ground milo heads and cottonseed meal when having free access at all times to a mixture of equal parts of finely ground oyster shell and salt; gains made by lambs fed chipped alfalfa hay, ground milo heads and cottonseed meal," said a statement issued in connection with the report.

Six pens were fed out. Local market prices for grain sorghums were used in figuring the costs. These prices included: ground milo heads, $6.75 per ton; cottonseed meal, $19, a ton; ground alfalfa hay $14.50 per ton; ground red top sorgo fodder, $6 per ton; red top sorgo silage $3 per ton and oyster shell $1.25 per hundred pounds.

The Results

Pen 1:—Fed ground milo heads, cottonseed meal and alfalfa hay ground; gained 35.87 pounds per lamb or .40 of a pound per day; cost of feed was $3.75 per hundred pound gain or $1.35 per lamb. The lot brought $5.50 per hundred pounds.

Pen 2:—Fed ground milo heads, cottonseed meal and red top sorgo silage; gained 25.79 pounds or .29 of a pound per day; cost of feed was $3.96 per hundred pounds gain or $1.01 per animal. The lot brought $5.25 per hundred pounds.

Pen 3:—Fed ground milo heads, cottonseed meal and red top sorgo silage with oyster shell; gained 36.11 pounds or .40 of a pound per day; cost of feed was $3.05 per hundred pounds or $1.11 per animal. The lot brought $5.75 per hundred pounds.

Pen 4:—Fed ground milo heads, cottonseed meal, ground red top sorgo silage, oyster shell and salt; gained 33.42 pounds or .37 of a pound per day; cost of feed was $3.06 per 100 pounds or $1.02 per animal. The lot brought $5.50 per hundred pounds.

Pen 5 :—Fed ground milo heads, cottonseed meal, ground red top sorgo fodder and oyster shell; gained 34.17 pounds or .38 of a pound per day; cost was $2.91 per hundred pound gain or $.99 per lamb. The lot brought $5.75 per hundred pounds.

"Double Size" Horse Keeps Growing, Takes Five Stalls Now To Stretch In

WATERLOO, N. Y., May 28. (AP) It's the largest horse in the world, says its owner—and still growing.

"Just getting his growth," is what Clarence H. Van Wickle says of his Sillon B, pure white and perfectly formed, and weighing 2,960 pounds, nearly a ton and one-half. A horse weighing a ton is considered extraordinarily large.

Sillon B, now 12 years old, has outgrown his famous full brother, Sillon, of directly opposite hue. Sillon died after having been acclaimed the world over as the largest equine specimen.

Truly a mountain of horseflesh is this pride of the Van Wickle farm, 21 hands high, the tips of its ears nine feet from the ground in natural posture.

Beside him a horse of average size, even a very large one such as once hauled brewer delivery trucks, looks like a mere pony. Sillon B measures eight feet 10 inches around the girth. He was imported from France.

Five stalls of ordinary size were made into one to give Sillon B room for comfort as he continued to grow.

Temperamental as a prima donna Sillon B likes to be fussed over with comb and brush.

Sillon B, 21 hands high and weighing 2,960 pounds, is claimed by his owner to be the world's largest horse.

Second, Third Plantings Are Necessitated

Heavy Rains Of Past Month Force Numbers Of Farmers To Replant; Acreages Are To Be About Same This Year

SECOND and even third planting of crops, washed out by the heavy spotted rains in Lubbock county the past two weeks, were reported from several sections of the county as farmers neared the end of the annual planting season.

Rains which fell on seed before it had sprouted, washed out the crop, necessitating a replanting. In the eastern part of the county there were reports of several farmers of a third planting, with indications that the coming week will see more of this.

Good Stand Noted

Cold weather that accompanied the rain, has retarded growth and seed germination to some extent. What cotton and gain sorghum is up, has a good stand.

Cotton planting was virtually finished the past week, D. F. Eaton, county agent, stated. "There may be some replanting on account of rains," he added. The agent said he estimated the acreage of cotton at about normal, possibly slightly more. The federal census for 1930 gave the acreage in Lubbock county as 205,000. Last year because of reduction of acreages, Mr. Eaton estimated the total at approximately 185,000. This year's acreage is expected to be between these two figures.

Better Seed Used

Grain sorghum acreage will be about normal, Mr. Eaton added. There has been an increase in the use of certified seed, the local breeders having sold a larger amount. However, the breeders will carry over some from their crop. Late replanting may use more certified seed than is now expected.

The rains of the past two weeks have been spotted over the county, Mr. Eaton explained. In some sections there is enough moisture to carry crops through until in June and in others there is not enough moisture. These latter places are comparatively few in number and of small area.

"Our grain crops this year will be short," Mr. Eaton said. "The cold spell in March damaged the wheat especially. I do not think the average will be better than eight to ten bushels to the acre."

Most of the wheat grown in the county is north and east of Lubbock, in the Becton community. Hail has damaged it some, it is reported.

Poultry Increases

Farmers report a good turkey crop. Whether the crop will be larger than last year depends upon how the little ones come through the spring and the rainy weather. "It is too early to tell about the increase," Mr. Eaton explained. "There are lots of young chickens. It looks like we will have more than we have ever had."

The calf and pig crop is about normal. The agent explained that there are more young hogs ready for the market being held by farmers at this season of the year than for many years. Low prices for hogs have caused farmers to hold back their animals with a view to marketin them later.

Farm gardens are in good condition. Nearly every farm in the county has its garden and where rain has not been sufficient, the owner has used the windmill for irrigation purposes. Early home grown vegetables are in use.

The boys will take up farm projects of the 4-H club work.

Mr. Prather before his death some months ago started the deal with Mr. Hester but died before he completed it.

LEVELLAND.—Four-H club boys and girls who fed 61 calves during the past winter made $580 over and above the cost of their feed, W. T. Magee, county agent, states. The profit includes $165 in cash prizes from the calf show at Lubbock in March. Pigs, 34 in all, won $28.50 in prizes at the show and $110 additional money in profit.

ASSOCIATION LEASES PLANT

RALLS—The Texas Wheat Growers association, a subsidiary of the Farmers National Grain Corporation, has leased the local Alliance Milling company plant here. J. H. Wilson, manager, will remain in a similar capacity.

Experiments are being made to protect - smokers against nicotine by producing a tobacco plant containing very little of the poison.

Wheat Crop In Panhandle-Plains Area Is Expected To Be Under May Estimate

Wheat in the Panhandle Plains section is rapidly deteriorating and unless there is a good general rain over the entire area before harvest and in fact before June 10, it appears that the crop will be considerably under estimates made the middle of May.

This is the view of W. H. Wright, manager of the Burrus elevator, here, who this week made a survey of the territory.

"The average is estimated at 8 bushels and it looks like it may get down to six to seven bushels to the acre," he said.

Gives Latest Reports

Mr. Wright said the following were the latest crop condition reports from the various branches of railroads in the area:

Lubbock-Parwell main line of the Santa Fe: Parwell, 30 per cent; Clovis 30 per cent; Muleshoe, Sudan and Amherst, 60 per cent each; Littlefield, 75 and Anton, 10 per cent; average 39 per cent.

Crosbyton branch: Crosbyton, Ralls, Lorenzo, 80 per cent.

Canyon-Lubbock branch: Canyon, 25 per cent, Happy, 35 per cent; Tulia, 35 to 45 per cent; Plainview, Hale Center and Abernathy, 50 per cent; average 43 per cent.

Amarillo-Parwell main line: Bovina, 50 to 60 per cent; Friona, 40 per cent: Hereford and Umbarger, 30 per cent; average, 37 to 40 per cent.

Floydada branch: Lockney, 60 per cent; Floydada 60 to 75 per cent; average 60 to 65 per cent.

Fort Worth and Denver South Plains; Silverton, 50 per cent; Petersburg, 50 per cent; Becton, 50 per cent; Dimmitt, 20 per cent and Hart 40 per cent; average 42 per cent.

Latest reports indicate the acreage will not yield over 30,000,000 bushels to possiby 35,000,000 bushels. Further damages from winds may cut this.

EXPLANATION OF LAST SUNDAY'S CARTOON

THE GREAT WALL OF CHINA

This mightiest work of man which creeps across plains, spans rivers, jumps gorges, and climbs steep mountain slopes, for a distance of 1360 miles, was completed between the year 218-204 B. C. Of the colossal population of China one man out of every three was conscripted to aid in the construction. In its immensity the achievement has no counterpart in human history. The Great Wall has been called the longest cemetery on the globe because within its masonry exactly one million workers have been buried. As soon as a laborer would weaken or show any signs of insubordination, he would be killed and his body would be thrown in with the rocks and earth to form part of the Wall.

To an observer on the moon the Great Chinese Wall would look like a black thread that had casually been dropped across the map of China. It is the only work of man that could be discerned 200,000 miles away.

And it is a fitting anticlimax that it was built as a result of a dream in which the Emperor saw danger threatening him from the North. The soothsayer predicted that the Wall will stand forever if at least a million men be immured within the masonry.

THE TITAN OF HISTORY

Chin Shi Huang Ti, the first Emperor of China, is the one Titan in history whose presence would dwarf most of the world's great conquerors. He was the first ruler to employ the plural in referring to himself. He is the builder of the Great Chinese Wall, an achievement which has no equal in history in the immense scale on which it was conceived. The Chinese refer to him as the Tigerheart, Wolf Voiced, Slitteyed ruler. He called himself the One and Only, the Only First, and the Only One.

In order that History might begin with him he destroyed all literature, including the revered works of Confucius, and ordered 500 savants immolated so that none could transcribe any destroyed book from memory. His entire family was entombed with him after his death.

Robert Woolsey Tells About Splitting Up Of The Team Of Woolsey, Wheeler

BY HUBBARD KEAVY

HOLLYWOOD—Perhaps to stave off the rumors, Robert Woolsey called the press together to tell about the split-up of the team of Wheeler and Woolsey.

ROBERT WOOLSEY

It's becoming the custom to "tell all" in Hollywood.

Ann Harding and her husband did it, and apparently none of the details of the Dietrich-Von Sternberg-Paramount story disagreement were kept secret.

James Cagney also did the unusual by telling all about his salary fight with Warners.

The Woolsey conference was unexpected. The comedian began it by denying rumors he said were current that he and his associate for five years had parted after exchanging a few blows.

And Woolsey intimated that no one was more surprised than he when Bert Wheeler said simply: "I'm going to New York — for good."

He said the trouble started originally when Wheeler objected to the terms of a contract, one under which they were to work without salary and collect a percentage of the profits.

Woolsey also admitted that Wheeler believes he can make more money playing a lone hand and that he further felt he was losing his identity working in tandem.

Regretful Dolores

DOLORES REY, a Follies girl who's sorry she came to Hollywood, has ingenuity enough to become a star.

For her first film and voice test, after she arrived, she wrote what was believed to be an imaginary phone conversation in which she told a mother that her daughter had been seriously injured.

DOLORES REY

When Dolores was complimented for her originality, she revealed that not long ago she had to make just such a call, when a sister showgirl was injured by a falling drop backstage.

Miss Rey wants to get out of the 5-year contract she signed at the behest of friends.

Going, Gone, Gone!

THE auction sale of Estelle Taylor's house, furnishings and decorations took on some of the aspects of a picnic.

ESTELLE TAYLOR

The crowd was too large to get in the house, and so the sale was held in the front yard.

Here buyers and merely curious ones sat around drinking pop and eating hamburger sandwiches supplied by an enterprising vender who parked his portable store in the Taylor driveway.

As at every Hollywood auction, souvenier hunters paid outrageous prices for ash trays and knick-knacks, while valuable rugs and furniture were sold for small portions of their worth. For example, a $14,000-imported automobile went for $900.

Now It's Rumorwood

IRENE Dunne calls this place Rumorwood.

She has reasons for applying this not very complimentary nickname. She's heard so many humors, involving herself, that she not only knows when to expect them, but the answer to give as well.

IRENE DUNNE

They started, when she first came to Hollywood two years ago, before her more or less secret marriage to Dr. Francis Griffin of New York became known locally. They were engagement stories then.

A few months after her marriage became known, the gossipers had her and Dr. Griffin permanently separated, with a legal finis about to be written.

Such an arrangement as theirs, she said, would naturally cause some talk. Her husband must live in New York, since his practice is established there. And she must stay in Hollywood.

Irene wasn't even slightly bothered by a telephone caller's inquiry about her state of marital happiness and the possibilities of its continuance, which came a few minutes before I dropped in.

"I don't even mind thes questions any more. A lot of writers would like to have me say our arrangement is the ideal one. I suppose that statement would make a very good story."

"... when husband and wife live on opposite sides of the continent, seeing each other every three or four months, it is anything but the ideal arrangement. So says Irene Dunne, and she added this comment:

"I know it can't go on indefinitely. We'll have to do something about it some day."

THE NEW BOOKS

Siren Sounded For World In "Fear And Trembling"; Another War Is In Sight, Writers Of Two Books Predict; Beals Writes On Central America and Bananas, Citing U. S. Imperialism

* * * * * * * * * * * *

MR. GLENWAY WESCOTT, talented novelist, has been looking at the moon and has discovered that it has blood on it. There are about to be fell deeds at the crossroads, and Mrs. Wescott sounds the siren manfully in his newest book, "Fear and Trembling."

What he fears is nothing less than the collapse of European civilization. He sees the world drifting straight toward another war, and he is convinced that none of the things that civilization prizes most highly could survive such a catastrophe.

Drift Has Begun

He also believes that democratic government has collapsed, and that a drift has begun which is very apt to result in Bolshevism—which, he believes, would be a calamity as great as that of a new World war.

All of this, of course, is what a great many very intelligent men have been saying lately. Mr. Wescott is not alone in his pessimism. His manner of presenting it, though, is unfortunate.

It seems that he and three friends talked all of this over on a motor trip across Europe; and his book, somehow, sounds like that. It has in it the odor of self-conscious high-browism, so that it is irritating rather than persuasive. When Mr. Wescott loftily explains that money does not bring happiness and that it is silly to believe in the possibility of eradicating poverty, he provokes in one a strong desire to toss his book into the handiest wastebasket.

"Fear and Trembling" is offered by Harpers.

The Menacing Machine

"THE end of the world," "collapse of civilization," looms as a dangerous possibility, according to Dr. Ludwig Bauer in "War Again Tomorrow."

"The next war," Bauer says, "would utterly destroy the hopes and ideas on which we have been building for centuries; its result would not be just a change in the distribution of power, which till now has been the only purpose of any war, but the complete shattering of power itself, the dissolution of society into so many atoms, disintegration into anarchy and chaos."

May Be Averted

This situation may be averted, he believes, by a process of planned world economy, gained without terrorism, which would result in "equality in the pace of progress."

"The world plan," he says, "means control of the machine. The machine—a term which is meant to embrace all aspects of mechanical progress together with inventions and processes of rationalization—is hurling us down and cutting us to pieces."

Bananas Get Preference

BLISTERING heat, voracious mosquitoes, froway hotels, pompous officials and valuable bananas—these are the chief products of Central America. Or so, at any rate, it seems after a reading of Carleton Beals' "Banana Gold."

Mr. Beals went roving through Central America to see what he could see, and he had quite a trip. He found a potentially rich land sunk in poverty, misruled by ignorant and venal politicians and systematically milked — in many cases—by American industrialists.

It's Same Country

It is a land where railroads provide mattresses for bananas and bare floors for human passengers; where a president-elect flees in terror on learning of his election; where a hotel guest must choose between roasting with his bedroom window closed, or being eaten by mosquitoes with it open; where mountain villages provide glimpses of Mayan life in almost its pre-conquest state, and where drifters from a dozen nations infest cheap, squalid waterfront bar rooms.

This provides material for a swell book, and Mr. Beals makes the most of it.

Mr. Beals tells how he struggled through the mountains to interview Sandino. He shows pretty clearly that the man is no bandit, in any sense of the word, and he has some caustic things to say about American imperialism in Central America; Nicaragua, he points out, has gone steadily downhill during two straight decades of American "guidance."

In The Lives Of Children

SHEILA KAYE-SMITH writes with insight of the importances in the lives of children in "Summer Holiday."

Selina and Moira walk their own path among the efforts at influence of nurse and their parents. They play elaborate games with imaginary playmates, and find a secret charm in toys that have a part in the games.

"At present they much preferred things to people," Miss Kaye-Smith explains, "and nurse was a thing—a thing to care for you and help and protect you, not merely an uncomprehended unsettling personality, as their father and mother were.

They're "Things"

"Jenner was a thing, sitting up on the box and clucking and cracking his whip, a thing to drive them to Platnix; the horses were no more things than Jenner, and no less persons. Mr. Huggett was a thing that owned Platnix, Mrs. Huggett a thing that made cakes and pies and laughed with her arms akimbo.

"They loved all these people as grown-up people love beloved things. Platnix itself was not a thing—at least not to Selina; to her it was rather a romance, a spirit, a dream and a gleam."

And at Platnix, where the summer is spent, Selina and Moira gather new experience that ranges from kittens and green pears to the ritual of proposals.

On The Bathing Suit Front

THE fair name of Lubbock has been preserved for posterity—or whatever you call it. The Hub of the Plains thus far cannot be linked with Punkin Center or Dayton, Tenn.

The bathing suit controversy, which commanded the best thought in the city, has been peacefully settled and our mermaids, lord bless 'em, will not be required to wear long cotton stockings, petticoats and bustles each and every time they plunge into the more or less cool waters of the city swimming pool!

Yes sir!

Is everybody happy? They should be.

Rules and regulations, posted at Tumble N pool, prohibit indecency, as they certainly should. Yet, at the same time, they permit bathing regalia not destined to be so heavy as to force its wearers to the bottom of the tank. A happy medium has been struck—and on top of that Lubbock has gotten a wad of perfectly good publicity as a result of the "anti-one piece suit" ordinance that one time threatened the peace of the community.

Maybe editors are "funny that way," but as a rule they would rather print a story like Lubbock's bathing suit ordinance than about the World court, the League of Nations or the latest racketeering murder. As a result of this peculiarity, newspapers all over the country elicited chuckles from their readers through front page feature stories on Lubbock, almost a thousand miles from a bathing beach, yet "requiring" beach censorship. Associated Press wires hummed merrily with the story, gleefully passed in from humorously inclined young gentlemen in the Avalanche-Journal organization. And everybody had a good time.

Of course, it's all over now but it was fun while it lasted.

And, incidentally, we've a sneaking idea that the whole fiasco now forms a bright and shining example of how we humans permit ourselves to make mountains of molehills and to expend thought, time and energy on something that will "all come out in the wash" anyway.

ERRATIC MONEY

There was a time back in the early days when people borrowed services of each other. "If you will help me at my barn raising I'll help you draw your wheat." The same exchange frequently was effected in commodities. "If you will lend me a setting of eggs, I'll pay you back when my hens get to laying."

Those were perfectly reliable transactions needing only good will and integrity. The return of the service or the commodity might be within a month or it might be delayed for a term of years; it was still fair and equitable.

But modern society has "improved" upon these primitive methods. We now use a "medium of exchange". If now one performs a service for another, he receives money for it. Primarily the money he receives is a token of or a receipt for the service. It should be good to secure for him a like amount of service at any time. But because of some defect which has nothing to do with the essential nature of the exchange of services or commodities, these "receipts" for service have an unfortunate way of changing their value. They may appreciate and they may deteriorate wholly without regard to the services for which they stand.

Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale University, who for years has been warning of the perils of this peculiar behavior of money, recently told the senate banking committee that so erratic has been the conduct of the dollar that the man who borrowed a dollar even so recently as 1919 and has to repay it today, really owes $3.33 without interest. In the abstract that is not so easy to understand, but the poor fellow who bought a house in 1919 and promised to pay $6,000 for it knows something bad has happened when he discovers that though he is still paying on that contract his property now is worth only about $2,000.

Practical Health Problems

"FIRST AID" WHEN FOLK TAKE POISON

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The first thing everybody tries to think of as soon as a member of the family has taken some poison accidentally, is the right antidote.

That, however, is probably the least important element in the emergency procedure for poisoning.

What can be done that is most helpful before the doctor comes, is simple, easy, applies to every poison—no matter what kind—cannot possibly do any harm if there has been a false alarm, and need not tax the memory.

First, make the patient vomit three or four times.

Then give an enema.

Then start a perspiration.

Then get as much fluid into the patient as is possible.

All this is based on the very simple logic that the best things to do are to get as much as possible of the poison which had not been absorbed out of the patient's body and to dilute the poison that has been absorbed so that it can do the least amount of harm.

The induction of vomiting is best accomplished by having the patient stick a finger down the throat and stimulating the soft palate until the vomiting reflex is started. If the patient is too weak or hysterical or comatose to do it himself, it can be done by the attendant. Common household substances which cause vomiting, are mustard (a teaspoon to a pint) and salt (two tablespoons to half a pint of warm water.)

Be sure the patient is breathing. If he is lapsing into unconsciousness start artificial respiration and keep it up indefinitely.

Attention should also be given to stimulating the patient. The most effective way of doing this is to wrap him in blankets with plenty of hot water bottles. This not only is a circulatory stimulant but it helps elimination by increasing perspiration, and removal of the drug in that way. Hot coffee, or ammonia, or brandy, may also be given as stimulants.

The antidotes usually given are egg whites and milk. These are useful, however, only to mercury poisoning. This, however, is one of the three commonest poisons. It is most frequently thought of by suicides and is for many reasons one of the commonest poisons swallowed by accident. So the use of eggs and milk is likely to be right.

The other two commonest poisons are carbolic acid and arsenic, the latter because it is so frequently used as an ingredient of rat poisons, etc. Epsom salts and alcohol are the antidotes for carbolic acid. The best antidote for arsenic is hydroxide of iron, which may be given in unlimited quantities.

Samuel Vauclain, Baldwin locomotive chairman, says the United States "is in clover." That may be true, but you can't get anything for clover these days.

Now the big bankers are saying that Congress knows nothing about money. Well, it knew enough to give us a two-billion dollar deficit.

Records of a bond transaction between a broker and Jimmy Walker in New York are missing. But that isn't half so surprising as if they were not missing.

May Keep Them Busy

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Maybe with a short recess for the national conventions, perhaps with no recess at all, present indications are that congress will continue on the job in Washington until its leaders believe the unemployment crisis has been met, to some extent at least.

Senator Wm. E. Borah

Speaker Garner, it will be recalled, recently voiced his opinion that it will be necessary for the lawmakers to hold a summer session, beginning soon after the big political gatherings in Chicago in June.

Now Senator Watson, Republican generalissimo in the upper house, has announced that the legislators will not even suspend proceedings during the conventions unless relief has been voted in the meantime for the country's millions of destitute.

WATSON, to be sure, was in a state of acute alarm when he spoke, due to Senator William E. Borah's warning, just uttered, that to hold the conventions with the unemployment problem still wide open, probably would serve as the one push needed to launch a third party movement.

Both G. O. P. and Democratic strategists decided several weeks ago that the danger of an independent presidential ticket was past, but they have little doubt that the Idaho senator could readily revive it.

Borah is the only insurgent of whom they are much afraid.

Senator Norris they consider too old to stand the wear and tear of a nationwide fight; Senator La Follette as too light a weight; his brother Phil, the governor of Wisconsin, as too young; Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico, though a "coming man", as not yet fully "arrived"; Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania as deficient in popular appeal; the redoubtable Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana (by no means discounted as a future possibility) as a comet only just looming into visibility.

SENATOR BORAH is recognized, however, as a peril of the first magnitude in the coming campaign—if he really intended the hint, which so greatly exercised Senator Watson, to imply a willingness to accept leadership of a progressive uprising similar to the late Senator La Follette's in 1924.

Old guardsmen, Republican and Democratic alike, were quick to sense that the merest suggestion from him of such availability would, at any rate, instantly arouse (as it actually has done) every third party instinct in all classes of political mavericks. To head off a stampede of this sort is, of course, the first thought of "regulars", regardless of partisan affiliations—for there is no telling into whose alignment an outlaw candidacy would cut most seriously.

The situation, indeed, is difficult.

Conservatism hitherto has been as bitterly opposed to unqualified federal relief (of the masses; not the large financial and industrial interests) as the progressives have been insistent upon it. Nevertheless, the Borah threat, if anything can do so, is calculated to break down resistance to a policy of all-around liberality.

ITS COLLECTIVE mind once made up, congress is capable, it is true, of acting with considerable celerity. Thus, if the adoption of unemployment relief measures were the sole consideration, it does not follow that adjournment to next December need be materially delayed.

But the fact is that an increasing number of senators and representatives have been mentioning an additional reason, in the last few days, for objecting to a prolonged recess at this juncture.

In short, President Hoover's advocacy of the assumption by the government's executive branch of "emergency powers" to cope with the depression is discussed in certain circles on Capitol Hill (a geographical center notoriously jealous of White House encroachments) with marked disfavor. Not alone by liberals but by many conservatives it seems evident that any extension of it would be strongly resented, except as strictly in accordance with a congressional grant of authority, which appears altogether unlikely to be given.

Nevertheless, the most detailed reports are in circulation of a plan to organize, in the course of the summer, a group headed by the president, similar to the wartime council of national defense, to take over economic control of the country.

THAT RUMORS of this sort were current is a fact I have had occasion to refer to before.

Since then they have multiplied rapidly, increased steadily in number and are beginning to appear persistently in print, still as rumors, but as rumors which decidedly convey the impression of "trial balloons."

Nervous lawmakers manifestly are uneasy at the thought of dispersing for very long while the air continues so full of them.

What Other People Think

It would be a better idea to wipe out crime than to wipe out crime pictures.—Ernst Lubitsch, movie director.

Harold Francis Davidson, English rector being tried for "immorality."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SUSAN CAREY, pretty secretary, is in love with BOB DUNBAR, young millionaire she met at business college. At a party given by DENISE ACKROYD, society girl Susan realizes Bob is not for her. Bob fights with BEN LAMPMAN, another admirer of Susan's. ERNEST HEATH, Susan's employer, happens along and escorts the girl back to the Ackroyds' house. MRS. HEATH, bitterly jealous, later threatens to sue Susan for alienation of affections. JACK WARING, Heath's assistant, is able to prevent this by producing an incriminating letter. Mrs. Heath goes to Reno instead. Susan tries to forget Bob. RAY FLANNERY, stenographer in the next office, confides to Susan that she is heartbroken because "SKY" WEBB has married another. Susan's chum, ROSE MILTON, plans to give up a career for the man she loves. Bob comes to the office but Heath interrupts his conversation with Susan. On Christmas eve Ben calls to see Susan. Angered because Heath has sent her flowers, he forces unwilling kisses on her lips.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXI

"Are you with the Giedding's party?"

Jack Waring smiled down at the heart shaped face tilted up to his. "I am."

Denise narrowed her long eyes at him. "I thought you were Laura Giedding said they were having a very smooth man out for the New Year's shindig."

Waring continued to smile mockingly. "And I'm the only one who answers that description I suppose?"

Denise shrugged. "Well, pretty much. The rest are mostly infants home from college for the holidays. You couldn't really call them men." Her disdainful glance swept over the bright room.

"Not even that one?" Waring indicated with a lift of one eyebrow a tall, fair haired young man glowering in the stag line. "He looks fairly grown up."

"Oh, Bobby!" Denise took the trouble to throw a provocative glance in the stern young man's direction. "Of course I wasn't counting him. He's special."

"Really? I didn't know." The music had stopped and the dancers began to drift in the direction of supper. Denise clung to Waring's arm, her costume of pale green velvet swirling around her.

"Laura had some really good ideas for this party," she chattered. "Tables for two. Don't you think that's neat?"

"Splendid," the man agreed. "It's a good party. But won't your young man mind if I carry you off like this?"

Denise said, "never mind about him. He's in a fearful temper anyhow. I'll let him cool off."

They found a little table just under the balcony in the big hall. The man noticed with idle interst that his companion's frock was by far the most outrageously revealing in the place. In front the bodice was demurely cut but there was the merest ribbon at the back. What he could not know was that Denise's mother, a futile, nervous little woman, had spent hours trying to argue the girl out of wearing it. What were young girls thinking of nowadays, he wondered idly. They wore gowns which 10 years ago would have been dared only by women of the half world.

"What are you thinking of?" The long lashed, provocative eyes of the girl opposite flashed at Waring challengingly. She was really extraordinarily effect in an exotic way, the man reflected. Like a Michael Arlen heroine with that dead white skin and scarlet mouth.

He knew the answer to that one and promptly supplied it. "You, of course."

A waiter filled their glasses with pale, sparkling, golden liquid. The girl drained hers thirstily.

For a moment Waring was conscious of engulfing boredom. Why had he come? Surely if there was anything melancholy in the world it was a New Year's eve party. He supposed one had to do something but these youngsters made him feel like Methuselah.

"I know your boy," he said abruptly. "That's young Dunbar, isn't it?"

She nodded. "Good number Bobby is most of the time—when he's not in a state."

Waring wasn't interested but he threw the conversational ball again. "What puts him in a state?"

"Oh, nothing—anything. He's temperamental. I'm going to marry him one of these days, so he'd better snap out of it."

Something clicked in Waring's mind. "You're going to—oh, I see! I didn't remember hearing it."

"It hasn't been announced," Denise said. "It's just one of those things."

"You don't seem too enthusiastic," the man said.

Denise's glass had been filled again. She sipped at it before she replied. "Well I am and I'm not. It's like this. Bobby's always been my property and I get steamed up if he plays around with anyone else."

"Does he do much of that?" Waring was finding this crude child amusing now. Furthermore there was something he wanted to find out.

"Don't be that way," Denise admonished him. "Of course he does but I never worried about it until a few months ago."

"What happened then?"

"He got the most insane idea! He began to rave about a girl he'd met at some frightful business school. I fixed that!"

Waring's tone became softly admiring. "Clever child!"

"It was a plot really," laughed Denise excitedly. "It was lots of fun. I had this girl and her gang come out for a week-end and showed her up. It was simple."

"Did she eat with her knife?"

Denise pouted. "Now you're making fun of me."

"On my word of honor I'm not. I'm vastly entertained. How did you show her up?"

"Oh, things happened," said Denise vaguly. "I spiked it anyway."

Silkily the man said, "Aren't you being the dog in the manger?"

Denis stared at him. "Of course I like Bobby and you have to marry some time. We'd be a pair. He'd let me go my way and—well, anyway it's virtually settled. His father expects it and so does mine."

"It sounds prehistoric," Waring commented, offering her a cigaret.

"It's not. It's a perfectly good arrangement," the girl said coolly. She hadn't, Waring noticed, touched any of the various tempting dishes which had been set before her and whisked away. Instead she devoted herself to her cigaret and expelled the smoke in clouds All about her at other little tables flower-faced girls were doing the same.

"They're a decadent lot," Waring said to himself. He scarcely relished the role of mature philosopher this evening.

"Let's dance, shall we?" he said abruptly. As Denise slipped into his arms he murmured, "What did you say the girl's name was in this comedy-drama?"

"I didn't say," Denise replied. "You're a funny one. Old Papa Sherlock."

Waring tightened his arms around her, using that seductive tone he had found so successful, "Tell Papa Sherlock," he coaxed.

"I love the way you dance," said Denise. "Not that it matters, but since you're so inquestive I don't mind telling you. Her name is Susan Carey."

Having learned what he wanted to know, Waring exerted himself to please. Underneath his baise exterior there was current of excitement. He liked meddling in others' affairs. It was one of the diversions he permitted himself. Remembering the expression on Susan's face that day he had spoken to her of young Dunbar,

IN NEW YORK WITH GILBERT SWAN

Off the Cuff Again

NEW YORK, May 28.—Notes on nothing in particular and everything in general: Times are so tough that Peggy Hopkins Joyce now goes about Manhattan's gay places with a newspaperman. . . . Unless she'll accept her bracelets set in agate, no gems will come from that! . . . But maybe she's trying to save the price of a press agent. . .

George Bernard Shaw's advertising idea arrived too late to be of any value to his newest and dullest play, "Too Good To Be True" . . . Shaw had prepared the following wheeze: "If you're going to the theater to forget your troubles, then go to the Shaw play and be reminded of them" . . . An attitude which may have had something to do with the play's early demise. . .

It's gray flannel trousers for the golf links this summer, boys, instead of knickers. . . Or, at least, they'll try to make you think so . . . And Joseph Lhevinne, famous concert pianist, waits until the end of the season to play his best bass. . . The Wisconsin lakes are his vacation grounds.

Just to show you what the great open spaces are coming to: Dan Thomas, recorder of Hollywood's film-flams, waits until he gets to New York to buy his youngster a cowboy and an Indian suit. . .

From Your Town?

AND for those who wish to celebrate "old home day" here are a bevy of notes on what the home town girls are doing in the big city. Talented and ambitious beauties from over the land remain in the majority, as you can see from this list:

Of seven Albertina Rasch specialty dancers in "Face the Music" you'll find that Mary and Kathleen Vannoy come from Atlanta; Melva Cornell is from Santa Barbara; Vida McLain from Portland, Ore.; Virginia Bethel from Yakima, and Valere Huff, San Francisco.

In "The Cat and the Fiddle"—Dorothy Lane, Amsterdam, N. Y.; Liza Guigon, Richmond, Va.; Frances Wise, Newark, N. J., and Georgiana Orr, Springfield, Mass.

Ed Wynn's "The Laugh Parade" specialty steppers include Florence Nelson, Portland, Ore.; Mabel Barry, Minneapolis, Minn., and Mary Wilkinson, Denver. While the RKO vaudeville artists include Helen Carson, Oklahoma City; Rose Gale, Des Moines; Ruth Fisher, Salt Lake City; Gertrude Gerard, Manchester, Conn., and Margaret Eisele, Cincinnati.

So some of the girls have been getting work, anyhow. . . Which reminds me that one of the most famous of the old Greenwich Villagers was Polly, whose last name is Halliday, although known exclusively as Polly . . . And she arrived from Evanston, Ill., to help put Village on the map. . .

Ah, There, Hoople!

JUST because he's accepted a movie job, George M. Cohan wants Broadway to know he'll never "go Hollywood" . . . And Ray Perkins writes in to say that his patent arrived too late for me to see it at the Inventors' Show. . . . It's a returnable umbrella with a homing pigeon attached. . . He is now working on a self back-patting device.

Note to Tourists:

New York's newest view—and one of the handsomest—is to be had from the 400-foot observatory of the Laura Rockefeller carillon tower f Riverside Church. . . . A 20-mile vista pens, even with a mist clinging to the nearby Hudson . . .

And to these startled ears the other evening came, over the ether from Los Angeles, a "gin rickey" program with instructions on "how to mix 'em."

Famous "Boswell Parade" Still On

Eighth Member Of Plainview Family Graduates From High School Since 1917; One More Boy To Finish

(By Staff Correspondent)

PLAINVIEW, May 28.—The eighth in line of the famous "Boswell parade" that began in the Plainview high school in 1917 when John Boswell of Wichita Falls received his diploma here, marched across the stage here during the annual high school commencement. He was Jim, a member of the class of 1932.

George Boswell and his family came to Plainview a score of years or so ago and settled here. A few years later Mrs. Boswell died. Her husband proceeded to raise the family, giving them as much educational training as possible. There were nine in the family and the task was not an easy one.

John Boswell was the first to graduate, receiving his diploma in 1917. He attended college, became a chamber of commerce secretary and is now at Wichita Falls where he has made a splendid record.

John was in the first class to graduate from the present high school building. His brothers and sisters have since sat in the same rooms and desks and have walked the same corridors as the older boy.

Besides the eight who have gone before, there is a ninth, Milton, who becomes a junior next fall and who is scheduled to graduate in 1934.

Graduates are: John, now of Wichita Falls, 1917; Ray, of Plainview, 1919; Lewis, also of Plainview, 1922, and Blanche, Plainview, 1924; Mack, now in Crowell, the same year; Eagle, Plainview, 1925; Mae, Plainview, 1929, and Jim, Plainview, 1932.

Denise came fluttering toward him, her voluminous wrap of white fur clutched around her. She took his arm.

"You're not such a slow number," she approved. "I said when I saw you, 'I like that man's looks. He looks like a bit of rogue.'"

Waring handed her into the car. "I'm flattered."

"Let's go places and do things," Denise cried. "Lets have fun. You haven't a snifter about you, old timer, have you?"

Waring slid the car into gear before he replied.

"Better wait until we get to Tony's," he advised her. For an instant he felt a surge of distaste for the whole affair. Then he remembered Susan's stricken look and grew resolute. Why shouldn't he meddle if he wanted to?

Crops Are Grown In Tests At Tech

One of the little known activities of the school of agriculture at Texas Technological college is the laboratory work for students in agronomy where many varieties of grain sorghums, wheat, barley and rye are grown.

These tests are made to show the best types of seeds and how to select best types. All types of crops grown in this area are found here.

H. J. Bower, agronomist, has 50 varieties of grain sorghums growing in one plot and in another he has 72 heads of select milo. He also has a sweet clover row test and an alfalfa row test.

In another test is found 52 strains and crosses of wheat, rye and barley. Weste cotton, developed by the state experiment station here, is grown. The cotton is ginned in a small, portable gin owned by the college.

Lockney Postoffice Is To Go Back To Third Class In July

(By Staff Correspondent)

LOCKNEY, May 28—The Lockney postoffice on the first day of July will return to a third class status according to H. Howard, postmaster. The decrease in postal receipts during the calendar year 1931 was the cause of the change.

However there has been an increase in receipts since the first of the year, he said. It is not enough to change the rank of the office unless there is a decided upward turn during the fall season.

TIPS ARE GIVEN

With the presence of summer and hot weather, many motorists are troubled by motor overheating. James F. Donahue, a writer for NEA and this newspaper, gives some ideas of how to cure or prevent overheating in engines. There are about fifty faults which can cause overheating to occur, most important of which are fan, radiator, cylinder block, thermostat, pistons and piston rings, water pump, hose connections, carburetor, distributor, ignition timing, timing gears and chain, valves, brakes, clutch and muffler.

In case of the fan, you are advised to see that the belt is tight enough to give about an inch when pressed lightly midway between the fan and pulley. Oil on the fan belt will cause it to slip. Leaking radiators will always cause the engine to overheat. A good repairman can fix this trouble, as well as clean out the possibly clogged pipes and inside of the radiator.

A clean clyinder block will do a lot to keep your car from overheating. If covered with a film of dirt, oil and dust, the air forced back on to it by the fan can do little to penetrate the coating and cool the block. Carbon on cylinder walls will act as an insulator against the cooling effect of water outside the cylinder. It's best to have carbon removed often.

The water pump should be kept tight at all times. Too lean or too rich an adjustment of the carburetor will cause overheating. Improper timing is frequently the cause of an engine getting too hot.

Condition Of Wheat Is Good

Prospects Are From 10 To 2[5] Per Cent Better Than A[t] This Time Last Year In Th[e] Lockney Area, Bankers Sa[y]

(By Staff Correspondent)

LOCKNEY, May 28—Wheat co[n]ditions are better than last year [at] this time, prospects ranging fro[m] 10 to 12 per cent to as high as [25] per cent better.

Artie Baker, president of [the] First National bank, places th[e] conditions at from 10 to 20 p[er] cent better. Dorsey Baker, [his] brother, is of the opinion the i[n]crease is even more than that.

Tib Merriwether, implement dea[l]er, says that while conditions a[re] better than a year ago, they a[re] still below what the normal cr[op] should be.

Expects Larger Harvest

Pete Thornton, a farmer, sa[ys] that the acreage is about ten [per] cent under what it should [be] that conditions are greatly imp[roved] over the situation a year ago, a[nd] that with a couple more inches [of] rain the harvest should be consi[der]erably larger than last year.

The acreage in the Lockney t[er]ritory is estimated at around 12[5],000 in wheat. Rain recently has i[m]proved the crop. There was a lit[tle] hail but no serious damage repo[rt]ed. Blown out wheat and th[in] frozen out is believed not to exc[eed] ten per cent of the area planted [in] fall.

Handle Much Wheat

Lockney has two elevators a[nd] between them more than 150 [car]loads of wheat were handled dur[ing] the season. Two more west of to[wn] handled 350 cars and three no[rth] handled 500 or more cars, while [the] elevator four miles east of to[wn] shipped several hundred more ca[rs].

The territory as a whole last y[ear] produced 1,350 car loads of whe[at]. The normal production should h[ave] exceeded 2,000,000 bushels.

Grain men state that with [a] more good rains before harvest, t[he] are should average 15 bushels to [the] acre or nearly the normal produ[c]tion. There is a general belief t[hat] the price will be above 50 cents [a] bushel.

"If our farmers get 50 cents [a] bushel for wheat there will be [at] least $100,000 in debts paid off [in] this bank," Dorsey Baker said.

In 1886....

The following excerpts from the report of the United States Commissioner of Labor that year make amusing reading in retrospect:

"The rapid development and adaptation of machinery have brought what is commonly called over-production * * * railroads and canals that are really needed have been built * * * harbors and rivers are sufficiently developed * * * water and gas works, tramways, etc., are largely provided for * * * the Alps are tunneled, and the Suez Canal has been built. Terrestrial and trans-oceanic lines of telegraph have been laid and the merchant marine has been transformed from wood to iron. * * * On all sides one sees the accomplished results of the labor of half a century * * * new processes * * * will act as an ameliorating influence, but it will not leave room for marked extension * * * The day of large profits is probably past."

Where Have We Heard That Before?

1886 was a panic year. Things looked blue-black. The country had "gone to the bow-wows."

And then came renewed confidence, better leadership, more enthusiastic building for the future, g r e a t e r production, greater consumption, shorter working hours, higher wages and a higher American standard of living.

Electricity did its part in bringing those things about; it is doing its part now in again building toward a brighter future.

Abuse Of Credit To Blame For Past Business Slump, Babson Declares

Nation's Vast Resources Are Still An Asset

Financial Adviser Says People Confused Wealth; Business And People Building Up Again In Right Way

BY ROGER W. BABSON
Copyright for Avalanche-Journal

BABSON PARK, Mass., May 28.—It is well at times like these to ...nt our blessings and to discount ...r fears. The reason so many ...ple are panicky about the pres... and so fearful of the future is ...t they are confusing "real" ...lth with that fictitious kind of ...lth with that fictitious kind of quotations of securities, commodities, and credits. Actually this depression has caused no loss of real wealth. We still have 123,000,000 vigorous, healthy, educated people—our greatest asset. We still have 522,000,000 acres of good farm

Roger Babson

...nd, capable of producing annually ...0,000,000 bushels of wheat, 2,000,-...0,000 bushels of corn, 16,500,000 ...les of cotton, and other crops and ...egetables sufficient to feed the ...ntire population and leave a sur...lus for other nations.

We have nearly half a billion ...cres of pasture lands, capable of ...eeding livestock for an annual pro...duction of 6,350,000,000 pounds of ...beef and 637,000,000 pounds of mut...ton. We have forests and lumber ...mills capable of producing 26,500,-...000 M board feet of lumber a year. ...There is coal enough in the United ...States to last six thousand years; ...iron ore reserves of 7,000,000,000 ...tons; and steel mills with an an...nual capacity of 56,000,000 tons. We ...are producing annually 18,000,000,-...000 gallons of gasoline, and 900,-...000,000 barrels of crude oil. A vast ...system of public utilities furnishes ...householders and industries with ...96,000,000,000 kw. hours of electric...ity and 120,000,000,000 cubic feet of ...gas annually. These things and a ...host of other valuable assets are all ...here. They are tangible wealth ...which, when put to normal use, can ...offer employment, food, shelter, ...clothing and some luxuries for all.

Abuse Of Credit To Blame

If America were poor in natural resources, backward in industrial development, devastated by war or pestilence, then the pessimists might have cause for despair of the future. It is not. Our national wealth exceeds $320,000,000,000; our manufacturing industry does a business of over $70,000,000,000 a year; our retail business exceeds $50,000,000,000 a year. Our people have $27,000,000,000 deposited in savings banks, and more than $100,000,000,000 in life insurance. The $5,000,000,000 currency in circulation is backed by a wider margin of gold reserve than that of any country on earth. We have developed mass production to a point unrivaled in any land. "Why then," I am asked, "should 7,000,000 people be out of employment and many are on part time? Why should our income and purchasing power be so greatly reduced; why are many factories shut down; why are corporations, railroads, cities, and towns unable to borrow money?"

The trouble is not with our physical resources or our scientific development. The main trouble arose from the abuse, instead of the proper use, of credit. Through speculations in securities, through mortgaging our future incomes, through waste and extravagance, through reckless foreign loans, through piling up debts far beyond our near-term capacity to pay, we brought about an unhealthy expansion of credit from 1926 to 1929. The drastic liquidation of the past two years has been correcting this situation; and in spite of the 80 per cent decline in security prices, the 35 per cent decline in commodity prices, the curtailment of incomes, the passing of dividends, in actually no real wealth has been destroyed. We have been liquidating those credit excesses for the past two and a half years. This process of liquidation was drastic and violent, thus throwing the whole machinery of production, prices, and purchasing power out of gear.

A return To Common-Sense

Credit is the basis of all business. Confidence, in turn, is the basis of all credit, and character is the basis of all confidence. Hence, the keystone to the whole economic structure is the character of our people, from the highest officials and business leaders to the humblest of wage workers. Character is the nation's greatest asset, far surpassing all of the vast physical and material resources which I have enumerated. This depression was the reaction from the flagrant abuse of credit, which in turn destroyed confidence, smashed prices, curtailed purchasing power, reduced production, and created unemployment. However, during the depression the majority of people have again come to a common-sense view of the real fundamentals of living, and are again developing the elements of character which will bring back confidence and credit. Great as the distress and suffering is, there apparently was no other way by which all of us could relearn the lesson that real prosperity must be based on hard work, thrift, honesty, and the other old-fashioned virtues which were temporarily discarded in the speculative hey-day of 1928 and 1929.

We are again building up in ourselve characteristics which our hardy ancestors possessed and by which they built up this great nation. Hence, instead of being discouraged about the future I encouraged for two powerful reasons. First, the fundamental physical assets of this country—farm lands, minerals, forests, buildings, factories, machinery, power lines, roads, railroads, and other resources—remain unimpaired. They are still here in excellent conditions ready to use for economic reconstruction. Second, hard times are building up in us an appreciation of the common-sense attitude toward life. Realizing that we can no longer get something for nothing, everybody will attack the task of reconstruction in the right spirit. Hence, the depression has destroyed none of our physical assets and in the end will be found to have improved our spiritual assets.

General business as measured by the Babsonchart is now 38 per cent below the normal X-Y Line, compared with 38 per cent a month ago, even with adjustments for usual seasonal movements.

Hale County 4-H Members Are Feeding Lambs For Expositions

By Staff Correspondent

PLAINVIEW, May 28—Twelve 4-H club boys and girls are feeding out three cars of club lambs for fall and spring shows and for the markets according to W. W. Evans, county agent.

The foundation stock are high grade ewes bred to Southdown and Hampshire bucks, producing a very high quality of lamb.

Seven rams were secured from the Texas Tech herd at Lubbock and two came from the Oklahoma A. and M. herd at Stillwater. One of the latter as a lamb, had taken first in the Fort Worth show. Mr. Evans believes that these animals will place high in the sales markets next spring.

With a view to lessening early-morning noise of rattling milk bottles, a rubber company has devised rubber-covered milk containers.

Girl To Receive Two Degrees At Age Of 19

AUSTIN, May 28 (AP)—Unless something unexpected prevents, Miss Virginia Irvine will receive two degrees from the University of Texas at the June commencement. And she is only 19 years old.

The degrees are master of arts and bachelor of arts. One of unusual features is that she will have spent only four years in the university in acquiring them and has never made below an "A" average in any of courses leading to the degrees.

Miss Irvine is an honor graduate of Austin High school. She has the distinction of having made the highest grade, 98, ever scored in a freshman English entrance examination at the university.

Miss Irvine has made her high grades without sacrificing other campus activities. She had played a prominent part in several clubs and served as a member of the co-ed council. She also participated in athletics.

She was one of the five juniors elected to Phi Beta Kappa and is a member of Delta Delta Delta society sorority.

In addition to taking six courses each semester, Miss Irvine has found time to do coaching on the side. For her bachelor of arts degree she is majoring in French and for her master's degree she is majoring in English.

Miss Irvine is fond of swimming and dancing. She is not too domestic but does not mind cooking. She does not disapprove of girls' smoking, although she doesn't smoke.

Pay Of Solons Big Attraction To Candidates

Service In Legislature Aim Of Many This Year Mainly Because Of Salary; Economy Move Expected

AUSTIN, May 28 (AP)—The ten dollars per day pay of Texas legislators, who are assured of at least 120 days' employment every two years, has attracted more candidates for the 150 seats in the house and sixteen places open this time in the senate than ever.

Until Texas voters, just before convening of the current legislature, voted a constitutional amendment increasing the lawmakers' pay one hundred per cent and the length of a regular session one hundred per cent was not so attractive.

Can Not Go Over $10

The constitution states that the pay of members of the legislature shall not be in "excess of $10 daily" and leaves the way open for the legislators to revert back to the old $5 scale, or fix wages at $7.50 if they want to.

Truman O'Quinn of Beaumont has come out advocating a $7.50 day for legislators. He was running without opposition when he got into print on the strength of his economy move.

Is Big Attraction

Harold Kayton of San Antonio, veteran member of the house, said the $10 per was a big attraction and that not only he but all the other Bexar county members of the legislature were being opposed.

When the forty-third legislature meets next January it is evident that there will be a strong economy wave felt, with another attempt to reduce the salaries of state employes. Bills that would have reduced pay of those working for the state were defeated at the last session, but the urge to retrench has expanded materially since then.

It will be interesting to note how the trend within the legislature to trim salaries affects the legislators' views toward reducing their own salaries.

Salvation Army Here Given Four City Lots In Petersburg

Notice of a bequest of four lots in the town of Petersburg, Hale county, has been received by Captain W. T. Wilson of the local Salvation Army corps from Southern Area headquarters at Atlanta.

The bequest was made by Blanche E. Leonard and Captain Wilson was instructed to investigate the lot locations and also the tax payments.

After A Three-Year Trial In Lubbock Public Schools, The Group And Study Method Is Praised By Local Teachers

After three years of trial in Lubbock public schools, the group and study method, put in effect here by Supt. M. H. Duncan, is declared by many of the teachers to be the most practical plan of instruction they have ever used.

"Learn to do by doing" is the fundamental principle of the plan, or as Mr. Duncan sets out in his booklet on the method: "The group and study method is an effort to apply in the work of the schools the well-known educational law that people are educated by what they do for themselves and not by what others do for them. It is an effort to create a situation where the pupil learns to and for doing and not merely to cram into his head some information the teacher believes he should know.

Three Factors

"Under the method, there are three factors involved: The challenge, the study, and the check. The pupils in a class or room are divided into four, five or six as nearly homogeneous groups as it is possible to divide them and over each groups is appointed a group leader who is assistant to the teacher. There is group planning, group discussions, group challenges, and group reports, but in the actual study the pupil must work by himself."

In other words, "pupil work takes the place of teacher talk. The pupil becomes the center of gravity in the school instead of the teacher."

"In all of our instruction, our purpose is to build in our children those worthwhile character-building attitudes, that will enable them to be, while in school and out, a worthy member of society," Mrs. O. N. Baucom of K. Carter school said. "Life-like situations are created in which each little group can actually live those things which we wish its members to become.

Leaders Needed

"Our country needs leaders, well-trained leaders, possibly more than any other one thing, and in the group and study method we try to throw all the responsibility that is possible on the children, thus giving each child a chance to develop along the line," she continued. "The group chooses its leader who is changed often so that every child has his turn in serving in that capacity.

"Personally, I think that the method if properly carried out challenges the very best that is in both teacher and pupil, and I know of no other method that offers the wonderful opportunity for building in our boys and girls those knowledges, skills, ideals, attitudes, and interest as does this plan."

Writes C. H. Willingham, supervisor of instruction in Junior high school:

"After three years experience with the group and study method, I am of the opinion that we have made much improvement in the efficiency of the school. One who visits the schools now will find an excellent situation, a large per cent of the students challenged and busy working under the direction of the teacher."

"Under the group and study plan, we are no longer merely trying to hold the attention of a varied group of children during a recitation period, but through homogeneous grouping and effective challenging are creating an atmosphere where work predominates," Mrs. F. J. Beck of Junior high school declared.

"Effective Procedure"

"It is the most effective procedure that I have observed for both teacher and pupil," declared H. C. Bowlin, Central Ward principal. "It furnishes the teacher the greatest opportunity for directing study and building proper study habits. It is a splendid method to use in meeting individual differences in the classroom."

The students, as well as the instructors, comment favorably upon the system. Pauline Stafford, high eighth grade student in junior high school likes the plan because it offers the student an opportunity to develop two talents. "These two talents," she explained, "are leadership and that of being a good follower."

"The advantages derived from the group and study method are that it rightfully places the responsibility on the individual. He equally shares the class duties," said Gerald Deavenport, junior high school eighth grader.

"This plan," in the opinion of Dorothy Nell Dunn, another eight grade student, "means Democracy, and gives an equal chance for unequal minds.

"The intention of it is to point the way toward classroom organization where study is the dominant note, and to make the task the pupils' task. The student is grouped according to his ability. The keynote of this method is self-activity which shows a change of attitude on the pupils' part.

"The modern aims are not just to learn, but to teach the pupil how to learn; to set him free to use his own talents."

One of the best examples that the students in the Lubbock schools are learning to do by doing is the annual display of classroom projects, Superintendent Duncan pointed out. Accomplishments of children from cutouts of the beginners to home economic, chemistry and manual training students are shown. Work of the last named group in the last exhibit showed almost flawless craftsmanship.

Hawkins Faces Trial In Hale

Crosby County Man Will Be Brought Before Court For Third Time, June 6; Bradley To Assist

(By Staff Correspondent)

PLAINVIEW, May 28.—With a special venire of 100 talesmen called as prospective jurors to try Joe Hawkins, Crosby county farmer on a charge of murder for the alleged slaying of his father-in-law, the late S. M. "Uncle Sam" Watkins, October 28, 1929, the case is scheduled to be heard in 64th district court here starting Monday, June 6.

This will be the fifth time the case has been called in court and the second time in this county. At the first trial in Crosby county two years ago the jury returned a verdict calling for 50 years in the state penitentiary. Hawkins appealed and the state court of criminal appeals reversed the judgment and sent the case back for trial. It was then transferred to the Floyd county district court. Durwood H. Bradley, Lubbock, district attorney for the 72nd district, was prosecutor and Homer L. Pharr, Lubbock, district judge.

In February of 1931 the case was again heard and the jury, after being out for a long time, reported to Judge Kenneth Bain it was unable to agree. A. J. "Jack" Folley, Floydada, was the district prosecutor. Later in the year a second trial resulted in a panel of 100 names being exhausted without a jury being secured.

Hung Jury Second Time

After this the case was transferred to Hale county and on February 8, 1932 was called in district court here with Meade F. Griffin, district attorney appearing before Charles Clements, district judge. Judge Clements postponed the case for the term owing to alleged absence of a defense material witness. It was set for the May term and later the date of June 6 decided on.

Hawkins is represented by R. L. Templeton, Wellington attorney; L. G. Matthews, Floydada and A. E. Watkins, Crosbyton attorney. The three men have handled the case since the beginning.

District Attorney Griffin announced that Durwood Bradley would be here from Lubbock to assist in the case.
