Duval's Declaration Comes During Rittenhouse Receiver Action

By The Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 30.—The two mutilated bodies found in Lake La Fourche last December and identified as those of Watt Daniels and T. F. Richard of Mer Rouge, who were kidnapped by hooded men near Bastrop, four months earlier could not have been in the water more than forty-eight hours, if that long, Dr. Charles W. Duval the pathologist who conducted the autopsy, told the Times-Pickyune tonight, according to a story that newspaper will publish tomorrow.

Members of the Morehouse parish ku klux klan, at whose door Governor John M. Parker and others have laid the kidnapping and alleged murder of the men, repeatedly have charged the bodies were not those of Daniel and Richard but that they were "planted" in the lake a short time before their discovery in order to fasten the crime upon be klan. Captain J. K. Skipworth, the Morehouse exalted cyclops, has declared upon several occasions that the bodies came from a medical school in St. Louis.

John A. Langford, pathologist of Tulane University, who assisted Dr. Duval in performing the autopsies, was quoted by the newspaper as corroborating the statement of Dr. Duval. Both, however, said there was no doubt in their opinion that the bodies were those of Daniel and Richard.

Dr. Duval's declaration was made during discussion of a deposition read in Atlanta today in the Rittenhouse suit to place the knights of the ku klux klan in receivership. The deponent, S. N. Littlejohn, quoted J. A. Bracewell, a klan investigator, as having told him when he went to Bastrop

Fort Worth Man Shot Dead On Farm

Farmer Near Vernon Surrendered After Shooting, Saying Dead Man Had Gun

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Oct. 30.—A shooting, reminding of the "old west" when the man who "beat to the draw" was the survivor, and the man who was slow on the draw paid for it with his life, occurred near Vernon this morning.

As a result, Pete T. Pickett, 30, of Fort Worth, lies dead, and C. E. Williams, farmer residing near Vernon, was arrested in connection with the shooting and released on $5,000 bail. Pickett is reported to have died instantly with five bullets in his body

According to police officers who arrested Williams, Pickett and his family were picking cotton on the Williams farm. Williams states they were only picking 400 or 500 pounds a day. A few days ago he had a chance to get a unit of pickers who could pick 900 pounds a day, and he asked Pickett to move.

"I will not move," Pickett is said by Williams to have answered. The latter says he then thought he saw Pickett take a pistol from a suitcase and put it in his pocket.

This morning, the Williams' statement continues, he again spoke to Pickett about moving. A short time later Williams came around the corner of the house and met Pickett and his family.

Williams says Pickett had his hands under his coat, so he drew his gun and fired. Five shots took effect. Williams then called the sheriff and said he wanted to surrender.

Sheriff Edmundson, district Attorney John Storey and the coroner placed him under arrest. The coroner's verdict states that Pickett had a pistol in his hand when the body was viewed.

Pickett leaves a wife and five children.

VERBAL BATTLE IN COOK TRIAL

Case Totters on Brink of Mistrial—Joe Bailey Is Flayed

By The Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Oct. 30.— The trial of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, spectacular oil promoter and his 13 co-defendants accused of fraud, tottered on the edge of a blow-up Tuesday and came perilously near to being thrown into a mistrial at the very peak of the government's case.

Sensation piled on sensation as the fourteenth day of the trial began. A case already dramatic with sharp clashes and a steady duel between the court and counsel of the defense, the trial touched a high climax today when Judge John N. Killits, retiring the jury, launched into an arraignment of former Senator Joe Bailey and associate attorneys of a nature seldom heard in federal courts.

"I have never seen such insidious suggestions that the judge is partisan," Judge Killits charged at the end of a long and remarkable statement from the bench. It would appear, he said in effect, that defense counsel had pursued a studied course designed to poison the minds of the jury against officers of the government.

No sooner had the court concluded his arraignment than Senator Bailey was on his feet with a motion that the jury be discharged and the case thrown into a mistrial.

"In the light of the court's statements," Bailey explained, "myself and fellow counsel feel we could not continue in behalf of our clients as we should."

"My decision is no," Judge Killits thundered, "if such a motion should be allowed then any astute lawyer could break any criminal trial in the back by bringing just this condition about."

In answer to a motion by the defense that the testimony of H. E. Robinson be stricken out, Judge Killits declined to strike it out and gave no reasons.

"The evidence tends to show," said the court, "that certain money was raised to silence criticism, to suppress a voice raised in behalf of the government's oil investigation. It is in the nature of a legal admission, just an act of recognition of safeguarding against criticism one of the things done to make the scheme effective. "It will be for the jury to determine how far this tendency goes," Judge Killits continued. "The motion is now overruled, though at a later time the court may hold that it is not admissable as to certain of the defendants."

The judge referred to the testimony of Robinson, a former co-defendant, who pleaded guilty and who testified Monday that the Independent Oil and Financial Reporter was purchased by Dr. Cook and others to silence its attacks.

YELLOW CAB STOCK DROPS HEAVILY

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Yellow Cab issues on the Chicago stock exchange suffered a shrinkage of $8,450,000 in value today. There were wide breaks in both the Yellow Cab manufacturing company stock and the Chicago Yellow Cab company stock, carrying the prices of both issues down sharply.

Yellow manufacturing was the hardest hit, dropping from an opening of $103.37 1-2 to a low of $91 a share, rallying feebly at the close to $92. This represented a net loss of about $6,825,000 on the 600,000 shares of stock outstanding.

At the offices of the Chicago Yellow Cab company the decline in the stocks of the company and its associated enterprises was laid to speculative activity on the short side of the market. It was said that the affairs of the company were as prosperous as ever and that there was no news of any kind to justify the decline

NIGHT SCHOOL PROPOSED HERE

University Club Also Plans Library and Laboratory for Junior

Plans to furnish books for the library of the new Junior College and to provide equipment for the laboratories of the same institution, and also plans to finance a night school in Wichita Falls were discussed at the meeting of the University club at the luncheon yesterday noon at the Kemp. Dr. J. W. Cantwell, superintendent of the city public schools, told the club the problems that were facing the board of education in the way of finances.

"The city has put on an advanced program of education and it is to be financed out of a limited tax rate, 35 per cent of which is to back up the extensive building program," said Dr. Cantwell in his address.

"Any deficiency that is not met now will have to be paid later. The question is 'What will we do with the deficits if we create them?' The board has to face a depreciation of two million dollars from the city of Wichita Falls, a smaller depreciation from the state which amounts of $7,000, and over 500 scholastics have moved into the district here and must be cared for."

Dr. Cantwell continued telling of

SINCLAIR JOCKEY UNDER CHARGES

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—An indictment charging second degree manslaughter was returned today against Lester M. Fater, well known jockey riding for Harry F. Sinclair, after several witnesses before the grand jury had declared he was the driver of a motor car which mortally injured Hugh M. Keon last July 13. A bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

Earlier in the day Fater was sued by Mrs. Margaret Keon, widow of the motor accident victim, for $50,000 damages. Fater denied the charges. He was absolved of responsibility in a magistrate's court hearing shortly after the accident.

KLAN EDUCATION PLAN INVOLVED IN K. K. K. SUIT

Hotel Room Was Scene of Formulation of Oklahoma Objective

PROBER ON STAND

Says Work Assigned Was to Prevent Indictments at Mer Rouge

By The Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 30.—How a ku klux klan campaign of education in Oklahoma was planned in a hotel room at Asheville, N. C., and happenings in connection with the Mer Rouge incident of last winter when an investigation or the deaths of Watt Daniel and T. F. Richard was under way, featured depositions and affidavits read today in Fulton county court in the hearing of the case of H. M. Rittenhouse of Philadelphia and others, seeking a receivership for the organization. Dr. H. W. Evans, imperial wizard of the knights of the ku klux klan in a deposition taken at the imperial palace here on Oct. 4, told of the campaign planned for Oklahoma and discussed various matters connected with the klan and with Oklahoma. J. N. Littlejohn, formerly a klan investigator, told of the Mer Rouge incidents.

Attorney Colquitt, one of the attorney representing the plaintiffs in the action, read the deposition of Dr. Evans. The imperial wizard was asked first about the gathering in the hotel room at Asheville. He said that Paul Etheridge, N. B. Forest of Atlanta; C. J. Orbison, Indianapolis; J. A. Comer, of Little Rock and himself were in the room. The gathering was during a kloncilium meeting in the North Carolina city.

He said in response to a series of questions that the situation in Oklahoma where Governor J. C. Walton had said there had been 2,500 whippings was discussed.

"Feeling that kind of situation ought to be remedied," Dr. Evans said, "and an institution founded upon the teaching of justice, obedience and patriotism ought to get behind the officers of the law to the extent of putting on a campaign throughout Oklahoma for a law that would make it a penitentiary offense not only to flog but to conspire to flog one or both and thereby make the lives and liberty and bodies of the people of Oklahoma safe from unlawful invasion, we had just the sort of conversation I have outlined to you."

Asked what sort of a campaign was planned, Dr. Evans said of was to be a speaking campaign in favor of anti flogging law and to build up a sentiment for law enforcement and obedience to the law. The imperial wizard said that no particular propaganda was issued against Governor Walton, the only plan being for a campaign to stop lawlessness.

Dr. Evans, said in answer to questions, that money was sent to Oklahoma, as it was requested, but he was unable to give the approximate amount. He stated further that the money was sent with the consent of the executive committee in different meeting and released through regular klan channels.

Asked how many times the klan had been active in elections or principles for any special law he said, "I don't think there have been any except possibly the one in Oklahoma. I don't remember at this time."

Later he was asked if Governor J. C. Walton, of Oklahoma was a member of the klan, and said that he understood that the governor has been "obligated" by a kleagle but that the klan where he lived refused

PLEADS GIVING UP FORTS ON BORDER

By The Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 30.—W. P. Thirkield, resident bishop of Mexico of the Methodist Episcopal church, in a speech before the woman's missionary society here today, disclosed a plan he already suggested to President Coolidge and Secretary of War Weeks for the abolition of the 12 forts along the Mexican border which now are manned by 8,300 soldiers and 450 officers.

Bishop Thirkield pleads that the cost of one or more of the forts be used in establishing four or five hundred scholarships in colleges and universities of the United States.

FLAMES DESTROY BEVERLEY TRACK

By The Associated Press.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Oct. 30 The Beverly Hills speedway, midway between Los Angeles and Santa Monica and scene of national automobile races, was threatened with destruction today when flames ate over more than one-eighth of a mile of the wooden saucer track. The fire was brought under control after burning an hour.

The track will be reconstructed immediately and be in shape for the annual Thanksgiving races, it was announced by A. M. Young, secretary of the speedway association. The fire spread to the track from a blaze started by weed burners.

BONAR LAW DIES AFTER MONTHS OF MISFORTUNE

Seven Months in Office Finished Breakdown, It Is Believed

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Andrew Bonar Law, who was one of the strong war time statesmen of Great Britain and its only prime minister of colonial birth, died at his London home at 3 o'clock this morning. The last year of his 65 years was lived under a cloud of heavy misfortunes.

Only a little more than a year ago he reluctantly accepted the highest political office in the empire, telling his supporters that he was doubtful his health would long bear the strain of the duties, and promising to give up the work when he was no longer equal to the burden. Then followed seven months in office—months harrassed by pain; whereupon he influenced his promise.

"The verdict of the doctors has left me no choice," he wrote to his Glasgow constituents in announcing his decision to resign."

The next five months were divided between continental resorts and the English seaside in pursuit of relief from suffering.

With the cauil of the autumn days came his final breakdown, and ten days ago he was brought back from Brighton to his London home for the inevitable end. There he died. His daughter Lady Sykes, and his two surviving sons, Anthony and Richard, were with him. Two sons, James and Charlie, lost their lives in the war. Those blowes aged him beyond his years.

No efecft upon British policies of policies from Mr. Bonar Law's death can be foreseen. His successor like President Coolidge has appeared to regard himself as trustee of the former's leader's estate. The country had regretfully reconciled to the belief that Mr. Bonar Law had disappeared from public life, without the possibility of returning. It is too early for British commentators to appraise the value of his services or the exact weight he pulled in the government boat during the war.

Mr. Bonar Law was credited with being one of the inner circle who arranged the substitution of Mr. Lloyd George's coalition for Herbert H. Acquith's; his word was the decisive one for the return to the old fashioned party government when the unfairs of "tranquility," though as is the way in politics, there are already complaints that the new regime has not dealt strongly enough with foreign and domestic troubles.

AFFIDAVITS IN RIOTING CASE

By The Associated Press.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Oct. 30.—Affidavits charging 19 men with rioting and inciting to riot and six persons with illegal voting were filed in Justice of the Peace Ross Stones court late today by Lee Van Tilburg attorney for the Steubenville ku klux klan. Shortly afterward claims for damages totalling $6,000 were filed for two persons injured in the rioting.

Rioting In Mexico House Of Deputies

One Deputy Shot to Death—Police Break Up Fights—Leader Is Arrested

By The Associated Press

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 30.—One deputy was killed when rioting broke out in the chamber of deputies late today when the Huertasta and Callista factions clashed in the lobbies. Guillermo Zetina, a supporter of Francisco de La Huerta, former secretary of the treasury, was killed.

The session has been suspended because a lack of a quorum. The spectators were emptying the galleries amid the usual cries and the brandishing of revolvers, some of which were thrown to deputies below when the police attempted to disarm the principal rioters.

When the faction met at the main entrance to the lobby, furious fighting in which fists and canes were used followed. There was some shooting before the police came up and ended the disturbance. Jose German, leader of the Callista faction, was taken into custody charged with having shot and killed Zetina.

RAILS DISAGREE WITH COOLIDGE

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Presidents and executives of 100 railroads with lines running throughout the country called together today to hear a statement by Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania railroad of President Coolidge's views on revision of freight rates on coal and grain, drafted their reply to the president's suggestions and sent it to Washington, it was unofficially learned from a reliable source this afternoon.

The reply drafted by the railroad executives, according to the unofficial report, expressed an attitude unfavorable to the suggestions President Coolidge is said to have made to Mr. Rea and which the president of the Pennsylvania railroad explained to the assembled railway men today.

The reply, it was stated, was entrusted to a committee which was sent to Washington. It was believed it would be placed in the hands of President Coolidge by Thursday.

The railway men, it was understood, took the stand that a reduction in freight rates on grain for export would not increase the demand for grain in Europe and would not help the American farmers get rid of their supply.

PASTOR INDICTED ON BOOZE CHARGE

By The Associated Press.

DENVER, Oct. 30.—Indictments were returned against the Rev. Walter A. Grace, former pastor of a Catholic church in Arvada; John Walsh, his brother-in-law; E. H. McLennahan, former federal prohibition director for Colorado; and Ben Englander former federal prohibition agent by a federal grand jury which made its report to United States District Judge J. Foster Symes here tonight.

MORSE TESTIFIES IN VET PROBE

Says Congress Stopped Hospital Abandonment Program

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Congressional influence was brought to bear to block a plan of the veterans' bureau to abandan the projected tuberculosis hospital at Excelsoir Springs, Mo., the senate investigating committee was told today by E. L. Morse, prominent in republican politics in Missouri, and manager in that state of the Lowden campaign for the republican presidential nomination in 1920. Morse subsequently sold the plant to the government for $116,100.

The property consisted of the Morse homestead and ten additional acres and was leased to the government under an agreement which it has been charged before the committee, was rushed through by Ewing LaPorte, then assistant secretary of the treasury, on the last day of the Wilson administration, despite recommendations from the public health service that the place was not suitable for a hospital. Further adverse reports were made by medical men, the evidence showed, and in June 1922, the veterans' bureau decided to abandon the project.

Morse testified that when he was notified of this decision, he came to Washington to use his influence with senators and representatives, who protested to the bureau. He said he saw fifteen senators and that one of them, Senator Bursum, republican, New Mexico, took the matter to the White House. Later the sale was consummated.

Morse was on the stand today for more than two hours and near the close of his testimony, he appeared to be on the verge of a physicial collapse with a result that the committee recessed for fifteen minutes. At the time he was being asked by Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, the chairman, questions prepared by counsel for Charles R. Forbes, former director of the bureau and relating to conferences with Forbes.

The witness testified that Forbes has appeared "very belligerent" against the Excelsoir Springs project, but denied that he had any alteration with the director. He announced that he had been ordered out of Forbes' office here but said he frequently had been compelled to wait many hours outside of the office without ever getting an opportunity to see Forbes.

FRENCH POINTS WILL RESTRICT IT IS THOUGHT

Britain Does Not Feel It Can Refuse Chance for America

SUGGEST U. S. EXPERTS

Internal Situation in Germany Eases, According to Berlin

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Europe is to make another effort to unravel the everlasting reparations tangle.

The British government today decided to accept the French premier's reservations. The British charge d'affairs at Washington was instructed by cable tonight to inform Secretary Hughes of the decision of the powers to enter a conference of experts such as Mr. Hughes suggested in his reply to Foreign Secretary Curzon's plea for American participation.

If all goes well this commission of inquiry will be started before the overseas premiers leave London, and it is hoped that in spite of France's severe restrictions, it may lead to a larger plenary conference on the whole European situation, at Washington or elsewhere, in which the powerful neutral nations like the United States may make their voices heard.

Sir John Bradbury, the British reparation delegate, whose opinion on France's terms of the experts conference was sought, informed the British government today that while some of the conditions would sharply limit the scope of the conference, he felt that Great Britain could not take the responsibility of uttering a peremptory "no" to quence and risk the loss of America's participation.

There is a strong desire among British government officials that the experts committee shall have an American chairman, whose neutrality and disinterestedness, they feel, would insure a greater measure of impartiality and justice in the committee's decision. They would welcome as the American member it is said, a financier of such international standing as J. P. Morgan, or a lawyer of such repute and foreign experience as Roland W. Boyden or Paul Cravath.

Japan will be invited to join in the discussions of the expert committee. The British believe that Japan's detachment from the immediate affairs of Europe will enable the Japanese members also to take an objective unbiased view of the reparation problems and, with the American delegation exercise a moderate or mediative tone.

Germany Refused.

POLICE CAR AND TRUCK COLLIDE

By The Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 30.—Fifteen persons were injured, several fatally, when a police automobile speeding south on Broadway tonight, was struck by a west-bound fire department truck at Fifth street and hurled through a crowd of people into the windows of a Fifth street department store.

The fire truck had the right-of-way, witnesses said, but the police car was unable to slacken speed in time to let it pass and was caught by one wheel, turned completely around and flung into the crowd. The fire truck also was piled against the department store.

PROWLERS GET DENTIST LOOT

Prowlers entered the office of Dr. W. F. Felder, dentist, 307 Morgan building at 10:30 Tuesday night and took merchandise valued at $35.00 from a drawer in his desk.

A pass key was used to enter the office, as the door was found standing open and showed no signs of any kind of tools being used to affect an entrance.

"My decision is no," Judge Killits thundered, "if such a motion should be allowed then any astute lawyer could break any criminal trial in the back by bringing just this condition about."

In answer to a motion by the defense that the testimony of H. E. Robinson be stricken out, Judge Killits declined to strike it out and gave no reasons.

"The evidence tends to show," said the court, "that certain money was raised to silence criticism, to suppress a voice raised in behalf of the government's oil investigation. It is in the nature of a legal admission, just an act of recognition of safeguarding against criticism one of the things done to make the scheme effective.

"It will be for the jury to determine how far this tendency goes," Judge Killits continued. "The motion is now overruled, though at a later time the court may hold that it is not admissable as to certain of the defendants."

The judge referred to the testimony of Robinson, a former co-defendant, who pleaded guilty and who testified Monday that the Independent Oil and Financial Reporter was purchased by Dr. Cook and others to silence its attacks.

YELLOW CAB STOCK DROPS HEAVILY

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Yellow Cab issues on the Chicago stock exchange suffered a shrinkage of $8,450,000 in value today. There were wide breaks in both the Yellow Cab manufacturing company stock and the Chicago Yellow Cab company stock, carrying the prices of both issues down sharply.

Yellow manufacturing was the hardest hit, dropping from an opening of $103.37 1-2 to a low of $91 a share, rallying feebly at the close to $92. This represented a net loss of about $6,825,000 on the 600,000 shares of stock outstanding.

At the offices of the Chicago Yellow Cab company the decline in the stocks of the company and its associated enterprises was laid to speculative activity on the short side of the market. It was said that the affairs of the company were as prosperous as ever and that there was no news of any kind to justify the decline

NIGHT SCHOOL PROPOSED HERE

University Club Also Plans Library and Laboratory for Junior

Plans to furnish books for the library of the new Junior College and to provide equipment for the laboratories of the same institution, and also plans to finance a night school in Wichita Falls were discussed at the meeting of the University club at the luncheon yesterday noon at the Kemp.

Dr. J. W. Cantwell, superintendent of the city public schools, told the club the problems that were facing the board of education in the way of finances.

"The city has put on an advanced program of education and it is to be financed out of a limited tax rate, 35 per cent of which is to back up the extensive building program," said Dr. Cantwell in his address.

"Any deficiency that is not met now will have to be paid later. The question is 'What will we do with the deficits if we create them?' The board has to face a depreciation of two million dollars from the city of Wichita Falls, a smaller depreciation from the state which amounts of $7,000, and over 500 scholastics have moved into the district here and must be cared for."

WACO GIRL IS CROWNED QUEEN

By The Associated Press.

WACO, Texas, Oct. 30.—Amid the pomp and colorful splendor of an ancient Persian court and attended by princesses from a majority of the states in the union, Miss Pauline Breustedt of Waco, was crowned queen of the 1923 Texas Cotton Palace exposition here tonight by King Cotton, J. Bruce Duncan of Waco.

Coronation of the queen is traditional to the cotton palace and to be named queen is considered the highest social honor that can be bestowed by the city of Waco.

Richly painted Persian draperies of colorful contrast of purple and gold a throne room luxurious with divans, gorgeous colored cushions and oriental rugs made the setting that of a world other than the new.

Headed by the princess of Texas, Miss Nina Ball of Galveston, beautiful girls named from other cities and expositions of Texas, and holding the rank of duchess took part in the coronation, clad in Persian splendor. They included:

Abilene Mildred Paxton and Kate Dickey; A. & M. college, Elaine Bizzell and Lily Bess Kyle; Austin, Lily Bess Voss and Grace McNamara; Brownwood, Josephine Gilliam and Marie Looney; Bryan, Nan Shell Waldrop and Patricia Simms; Dallas, Kathryn Pittman and Isabel Wakefield; Eastland, Alpha Winston and Bess Chastain; Fort Worth, Esther Halton and Alice Johnson; Galveston, Rhoda Thompson and Virgilia Chew of Houston.

SINCLAIR JOCKEY UNDER CHARGES

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—An indictment charging second degree manslaughter was returned today against Lester M. Pater, well known jockey riding for Harry F. Sinclair, after several witnesses before the grand jury had declared he was the driver of a motor car which mortally injured Hugh M. Keon last July 15. A bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

Earlier in the day Pater was sued by Mrs. Margaret Keon, widow of the motor accident victim, for $30,000 damages. Pater denied the charges. He was absolved of responsibility in a magistrate's court hearing shortly after the accident.

KLAN EDUCATION PLAN INVOLVED IN K. K. K. SUIT

Hotel Room Was Scene of Formulation of Oklahoma Objective

PROBER ON STAND

Says Work Assigned Was to Prevent Indictments at Mer Rouge

By The Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 30.—How a ku klux klan campaign of education in Oklahoma was planned in a hotel room at Asheville, N. C., and happenings in connection with the Mer Rouge incident of last winter when an investigation or the deaths of Watt Daniel and T. F. Richard was under way, featured depositions and affidavits read today in Fulton county court in the hearing of the case of H. M. Rittenhouse of Philadelphia and others, seeking a receivership for the organization. Dr. H. W. Evans, imperial wizard of the knights of the ku klux klan in a deposition taken at the imperial palace here on Oct. 4, told of the campaign planned for Oklahoma and discussed various matters connected with the klan and with Oklahoma. J. N. Littlejohn, formerly a klan investigator, told of the Mer Rouge incidents.

Attorney Colquitt, one of the attorney representing the plaintiffs in the action, read the deposition of Dr. Evans. The imperial wizard was asked first about the gathering in the hotel room at Asheville. He said that Paul Etheridge, N. B. Forest of Atlanta; C. J. Orbison, Indianapolis; J. A. Comer, of Little Rock and himself were in the room. "The gathering was during a kloncilium meeting in the North Carolina city.

He said in response to a series of questions that the situation in Oklahoma where Governor J. C. Walton had said there had been 2,500 whippings was discussed.

"Feeling that kind of situation ought to be remedied," Dr. Evans said, "and an institution founded upon the teaching of justice, obedience and patriotism ought to get behind the officers of the law to the extent of putting on a campaign throughout Oklahoma for a law that would make it a penitentiary offense not only to flog but to conspire to flog one or both and thereby make the lives and liberty and bodies of the people of Oklahoma safe from unlawful invasion, we had just the sort of conversation I have outlined to you."

Asked what sort of a campaign was planned, Dr. Evans said ot was to be a speaking campaign in favor of anti flogging law and to build up a sentiment for law enforcement and obedience to the law. The imperil wizard said that no particular propaganda was issued against Governor Walton, the only plan being for a campaign to stop lawlessness.

Dr. Evans, said in answer to questions, that money was sent to Oklahoma, as it was requested, but he was unable to give the approximate amount. He stated further that the money was sent with the consent of the executive committee in different meeting and released through regular klan channels.

Asked how many times the klan had been active in elections or principles for any special law he said, "I don't think there have been any except possibly the one in Oklahoma. I don't remember at this time."

Later he was asked if Governor J. C. Walton, of Oklahoma was a member of the klan, and said that he understood that the governor has been "obligated" by a kleagle but that the klan where he lived refused

PLEADS GIVING UP FORTS ON BORDER

By The Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 30.—W. P. Thirkield, resident bishop of Mexico of the Methodist Episcopal church, in a speech before the woman's missionary society here today, disclosed a plan he already suggested to President Coolidge and Secretary of War Weeks for the abolition of the 12 forts along the Mexican border which now are manned by 8,300 soldiers and 450 officers.

Bishop Thirkield pleads that the cost of one or more of the forts be used in establishing four or five hundred scholarships in colleges and universities of the United States.

FLAMES DESTROY BEVERLEY TRACK

By The Associated Press.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Oct. 30. The Beverly Hills speedway, midway between Los Angeles and Santa Monica and scene of national automobile races, was threatened with destruction today when flames ate over more than one-eighth of a mile of the wooden saucer track. The fire was brought under control after burning an hour.

The track will be reconstructed immediately and be in shape for the annual Thanksgiving races, it was announced by A. M. Young, secretary of the speedway association. The fire spread to the track from a blaze started by weed burners.

BONAR LAW DIES AFTER MONTHS OF MISFORTUNE

Seven Months in Office Finished Breakdown, It Is Believed

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Andrew Bonar Law, who was one of the strong war time statesmen of Great Britain and its only prime minister of colonial birth, died at his London home at 3 o'clock this morning. The last year of his 65 years was lived under a cloud of heavy misfortunes.

Only a little more than a year ago he reluctantly accepted the highest political office in the empire, telling his supporters that he was doubtful his health would long bear the strain of the duties, and promising to give up the work when he was no longer equal to the burden. Then followed seven months in office,—months harrassed by pain; whereupon he fulfilled his promise.

"The verdict of the doctors has left me no choice," he wrote to his Glasgow constituents in announcing his decision to retire."

The next five months were divided between continental resorts and the English seaside in pursuit of relief from suffering.

With the cauil of the autumn days came his final breakdown, and ten days ago he was brought back from Brighton to his London home for the inevitable end. There he died. His daughter Lady Sykes, and his two surviving sons, Anthony and Richard, were with him. Two sons, James and Charlie, lost their lives in the war. Those blowes aged him beyond his years.

No effect upon British policies of policies from Mr. Bonar Law's death can be foreseen. His successor like President Coolidge has appeared to regard himself as trustee of the former's leader's estate. The country had regretfully reconciled to the belief that Mr. Bonar Law had disappeared from public life, without the possibility of returning. It is too early for British commentators to appraise the value of his services or the exact weight he pulled in the government boat during the war.

Mr. Bonar Law was credited with being one of the inner circle who arranged the substitution of Mr. Lloyd George's coalition for Herbert H. Asquith's; his word was the decisive one for the return to the old fashioned party government when the unfairs of "tranquility," though as is the way in politics, there are already complaints that the new regime has not dealt strongly enough with foreign and domestic troubles.

AFFIDAVITS IN RIOTING CASE

By The Associated Press.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Oct. 30.—Affidavits charging 19 men with rioting and inciting to riot and six persons with illegal voting were filed in Justice of the Peace Ross Stones court late today by Lee Van Tilburg attorney for the Steubenville ku Klux klan. Shortly afterward claims for damages totalling $6,000 were filed for two persons injured in the rioting.

Rioting In Mexico House Of Deputies

One Deputy Shot to Death—Police Break Up Fights—Leader Is Arrested

By The Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 30.—One deputy was killed when rioting broke out in the chamber of deputies late today when the Huertasta and Callista factions clashed in the lobbies. Guillermo Zetina, a supporter of Francisco de La Huerta, former secretary of the treasury, was killed.

The session has been suspended because a lack of a quorum. The spectators were emptying the galleries amid the usual cries and the brandishing of revolvers, some of which were thrown to deputies below when the police attempted to disarm "the principal rioters.

When the faction met at the main entrance to the lobby, furious fighting in which fists and canes were used followed. There was some shooting before the police came up and ended the disturbance. Jose German, leader of the Callista faction, was taken into custody charged with having shot and killed Zetina.

RAILS DISAGREE WITH COOLIDGE

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Presidents and executives of 100 railroads with lines running throughout the country called together today to hear a statement by Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania railroad of President Coolidge's views on revision of freight rates on coal and grain, drafted their reply to the president's suggestions and sent it to Washington, it was unofficially learned from a reliable source this afternoon.

The reply drafted by the railroad executives, according to the unofficial report, expressed an attitude unfavorable to the suggestions President Coolidge is said to have made to Mr. Rea and which the president of the Pennsylvania railroad explained to the assembled railway men today.

The reply, it was stated, was entrusted to a committee which was sent to Washington. It was believed it would be placed in the hands of President Coolidge by Thursday.

The railway men, it was understood, took the stand that a reduction in freight rates on grain for export would not increase the demand for grain in Europe and would not help the American farmers get rid of their supply.

PASTOR INDICTED ON BOOZE CHARGE

By The Associated Press.

DENVER, Oct. 30.—Indictments were returned against the Rev. Walter A. Grace, former pastor of a Catholic church in Arvada; John Walsh, his brother-in-law; E. H. McLennahan, former federal prohibition director for Colorado; and Ben Englander former federal prohibition agent by a federal grand jury which made its report to United States District Judge J. Foster Symes here tonight.

MORSE TESTIFIES IN VET PROBE

Says Congress Stopped Hospital Abandonment Program

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Congressional influence was brought to bear to block a plan of the veterans' bureau to abandon the projected tuberculosis hospital at Excelsoir Springs, Mo., the senate investigating committee was told today by E. L. Morse, prominent in republican politics in Missouri, and manager in that state of the Lowden campaign for the republican presidential nomination in 1920. Morse subsequently sold the plant to the government for $116,100.

The property consisted of the Morse homestead and ten additional acres and was leased to the government under an agreement which it has been charged before the committee, was rushed through by Ewing LaPorte, then assistant secretary of the treasury, on the last day of the Wilson administration, despite recommendations from the public health service that the place was not suitable for a hospital. Further adverse reports were made by medical men, the evidence showed, and in June 1922, the veterans' bureau decided to abandon the project.

Morse testified that when he was notified of this decision, he came to Washington to use his influence with senators and representatives, who protested to the bureau. He said he saw fifteen senators and that one of them, Senator Bursum, republican, New Mexico, took the matter to the White House. Later the sale was consummated.

Morse was on the stand today for more than two hours and near the close of his testimony, he appeared to be on the verge of a physicial collapse with a result that the committee recessed for fifteen minutes. At the time he was being asked by Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, the chairman, questions prepared by counsel for Charles R. Forbes, former director of the bureau and relating to conferences with Forbes.

The witness testified that Forbes has appeared "very belligerent" against the Excelsior Springs project, but denied that he had any alteration with the director. He announced that he had been ordered out of Forbes' office here but said he frequently had been compelled to wait many hours outside of the office without ever getting an opportunity to see Forbes.

FRENCH POINTS WILL RESTRICT IT IS THOUGHT

Britain Does Not Feel It Can Refuse Chance for America

SUGGEST U. S. EXPERTS

Internal Situation in Germany Eases, According to Berlin

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Europe is to make another effort to unravel the everlasting reparations tangle.

The British government today decidede to accept the French premier's reservations. The British charge d'affairs at Washington was instructed by cable tonight to inform Secretary Hughes of the decision of the powers to enter a conference of experts such as Mr. Hughes suggested in his reply to Foreign Secretary Curzon's plea for American participation.

If all goes well this commission of luquiry will be started before the overseas premiers leave London, and it is hoped that in spite of France's severe restrictions, it may lead to a larger plenary conference on the whole European situation, at Washington or elsewhere, in which the powerful neutral nations like the United States may make their voices heard.

Sir John Bradbury, the British reparation delegate, whose opinion on France's terms of the experts conference was sought, informed the British government today that while some of the conditions would sharply limit the scope of the conference, he felt that Great Britain could not take the responsibility of uttering a peremptory "no" to quence and risk the loss of America's participation.

There is a strong desire among British government officials that the experts committee shall have an American chairman, whose neutrality and disinterestedness, they feel, would insure a greater measure of impartiality and justice in the committee's decision. They would welcome as the American member it is said, a financier of such international standing as J. P. Morgan, or a lawyer of such repute and foreign experience as Roland W. Boyden or Paul Cravath.

Japan will be invited to join in the discussions of the expert committee. The British believe that Japan's detachment from the immediate affairs of Europe will enable the Japanese members also to take an objective unbiased view of the reparation problems and, with the American delegation exercise a moderate or mediative tone.

POLICE CAR AND TRUCK COLLIDE

By The Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 30.—Fifteen persons were injured, several fatally, when a police automobile speeding south on Broadway tonight, was struck by a west-bound fire department truck at Fifth street and hurled through a crowd of people into the windows of a Fifth street department store.

The fire truck had the right-of-way, witnesses said, but the police car was unable to slacken speed in time to let it pass and was caught by one wheel, turned completely around and flung into the crowd. The fire truck also was piled against the department store.

PROWLERS GET DENTIST LOOT

Prowlers entered the office of Dr. W. F. Felder, dentist, 307 Morgan building at 10:30 Tuesday night and took merchandise valued at $35.00 from a drawer in his desk.

A pass key was used to enter the office, as the door was found standing open and showed no signs of any kind of fools being used to affect an entrance.

DALLAS IS AIR —MAIL STATION

Landing Field and Hangar Leased—Connects With St. Louis

By The Associated Press

DALLAS, Oct. 30.—Dallas has been selected as one of the airplane landing depots in the air mail routes being established over the country, the city commission was notified today, when Colonel John H. Howard, Kelly Field, San Antonio, announced that the airplane service will start about the middle of November.

The city has leased a hangar and a landing field at Love field for the use of the planes at a cost of $1,800 a year.

The line passing through here extends from San Antonio to St. Louis by the way of Dallas and Muskogee. For the first few months the line will be used only for war department and for official mail, but later it is to carry regular mail, passengers and express, Colonel Howard declared.

The line that passes through Dallas is to connect at St. Louis with similar lines so that it will be part of a net work of airways across the continent, he said. Delhaviland two-passenger planes will be used at this time. Larger machines will be added as required.

Dallas was selected as the landing spot after several months' consideration by war department officials. Fort Worth also made an effort to obtain the depot.

NIGHT SCHOOL

the temporary buildings that had to be erected. "Some thought the Junior College would be run by the high school force, but the faculty of the Junior College must be set apart and meet certain requirements prescribed by the Junior College Association. The heads of the departments, of which there are five, must hold a master's degree or the equivalent of that in the subject that they teach, and that would call for about $15,000 in salaries.

"There must be a library with the minimum number of volumes suitable for the work of a junior college and a laboratory."

In speaking of the value that the junior college will bring to Wichita Falls, Dr. Cantwell said, "A junior college is almost a necessity for the well being and educational uplift in this part of the country. If Wichita Falls and this part of the country has no prospect of a college, then the best thing is to have a municipal college.

"There are about a hundred students in the junior college this year. When we get into the new building next year, there ought to be 200. It has a tremendous meaning.

"The thing the University club can do is to undertake some project of the junior college. A library is the greatest necessity in any college, and a working library is the thing we must have. I wonder if the University club cannot turn its attention to that."

W. B. Chauncey said he thought that the money for a library could be raised in three hours, and he started contributions at $100. Dr. H. F. Grafton offered a set of books to the Junior College library, as did Dr. S. F. Simpson. Ira L. Cain of San Angelo, who expects to move to this city soon, offered his personal library, and asked that Dr. Cantwell send him a list of books that would be required in the library.

The advisability of having a night school was discussed, and Dr. N. F. Grafton read a resolution asking help from the University club in financing this project. He said that the same proposition had been put before seven other civic organiztions of the city.

He pointed out that in the night school of last year 377 students were enrolled. The maximum cost of running the school for the entire term of the school amounted to $2,600. Dr. Grafton also stated that teachers had said they would teach for $35 per month, and if one of the clubs would pay the salary of one teacher, the night school could be a reality.

Several ladies were present at the meeting, including the two members of the school board, Mrs. M. M. Adlicks and Mrs. L. R. Buchanan, both of whom made talks on the schools, and two presidents of mother's clubs, Mrs. Homer McGregor, from the High school mother's club, and Mrs. Ed Mapier, president of the Austin mother's club. W. B. Chauncey made a short talk on the advantage of the night school. Short talks were also made by W. B. Chaun-

A library committee consisting of Dr. C. L. Simpson, Pete Rogers and R. O. Kenley was appointed, and a night school committee composed of Judge B. D. Sartin, Dr. N. F. Grafton and C. A. Rogers was also appointed. These committees will report on their investigations.

to investigate the disappearance of Daniel and Richard, that "there was no use for him to go to Mer Rouge; that the bodies found in the lake had been tied or 'spread eagled' on logging cart wheels and rolled down the hill and that was what crushed the heads off the two bodies."

The heads were crushed, both feet and both hands crushed off at the ankles and the wrists and the upper arm, forearm, thigh and leg bones fractured in three places, each equi-distant from the other. The chests also were crushed in, the ribs being torn or broken from the breast bones and fractured elsewhere.

Dr. Duval, asked if action of the log cart wheels said to have been described by Bracewell could have so mutilated the bodies, replied it might possibly have resulted in crushing the heads, hands and feet, but that it could not have caused the other injuries.

He was questioned concerning a report that he had recently said the bodies could not have been in the water more than forty-eight hours before the discovery.

Dr. Duval replied that it was self-evident to any pathologist that they could not have been in the lake longer than that period, if that long. Langford later corroborated this statement.

Disintegration Of Once Great Empire Now Feared

Heavy black lines indicates former German boundaries

The disintegration of the once mighty empire of Germany, which but a few years ago planned to become dictator of the world, is now feared by German statesmen. German losses in territory as a result of the Versailles peace treaty are shown in the black and shaded portions of the map. France hopes to see the Rhineland and the Ruhr detached. A bitter quarrel has now arisen between Saxony (1) and Bavaria (2).

to accept him and he never was admitted to a klavern although he said where there was no organized klan a member might be obligated and be a member of the klan without affiliation with a local klan. He said he did not know of his own knowledge that the governor was taken into the klan, but only through other persons.

Littlejohn formerly a klan investigator, in an affidavit read today stated that he worked on the Mer Rouge incident under the name of George K. Lawrence. He said that J. A. Bracewell, Lloyd Ingle, H. L. Taliaferro and C. C. McIlwaine, all of Atlanta, J. M. Hamilton of Houston Jim Murray of Shreveport and O. D. Jackson and Jim Mann of New Orleans, and himself were the investigators, working out of Bastrop, Louisiana.

He said that he went to Bastrop without instructions and on arrival there Bracewell told him "there was no use for him to go to Mer Rouge; that the two bodies found in the lake had been tied or 'spread eagled' on logging cart wheels and rolled down the hill and that that was what crushed the heads of the bodies."

Littlejohn said that the work assigned to the investigators was to prevent indictments by the grand jury and that after the others left he remained behind with Captain Skipwith of the Mer Rouge klan. When the grand jury failed to indict anyone he advised Imperial Wizard Simmons in a telegram.

526 NOW HAVE MADE AFFIDAVIT

Since Wayne Somerville, assistant county attorney, made the announcement a week ago today that all business men of Wichita Falls must comply with the law requiring affidavits to be made regarding business ownership, 526 affidavits have been signed, the records in the office of Mrs. Alma Y. Miller, county clerk show.

The week's record of 526 affidavits shows the law was complied with in that length of time by more business than in the whole two years period since the law was passed. Up until last week only 507 affidavits had been signed in two years. With the 526 who have just complied with the warning from the county attorney's department, a total of 1023 business owners have complied with the law, as designated by statute.

According to Somerville, so thoroughly have the business owners complied with the law since the time limit was given them a week ago, very few charges will remain to be filed. The fine is from $25 to $100 and costs.

RARE POTTERY AT ORIENTAL STUDIO

"It was 200 years ago in Hungary that 'under glazed' pottery was first made. The process of making it was and is not different from that of other pottery, but it has a different appearance. On the clay modeled vessels gold, silver, copper or platinum was spread before the pieces were put into the kilns. When the heat attacked the metal, it caused it to turn many hues, giving it a bright glossy finish of many colors.

"The pottery thus treated is called Eosin Art Fayences. It comes in dull reds, bright reds, dull blues, and many other soft colors. Although brought into being 200 years ago, the pottery has just reached America. There are a few pieces in Wichita Falls on exhibit at the Oriental Studio," says the proprietor of that place:

"The pottery is of very hard material which is also very brittle. The clay of Hungary and of Austria is among the hardest clays in existence. All the work of the Eosin Art Fayences is done by expert potters and is not left up to amateurs," the studio says.

MEGARGLE WELL IS TO RESUME

Mr. Waggoner stated Tuesday that his well located three miles from Megargle would resume operations at once.

This well is now 1450 feet deep and has some showing of oil from a 20-foot sand, but due to salt water and the small amount of oil this sand will be passed up and the well drilled to a depth of 2000 feet or until oil in paying quantities is found.

About 100 species of maple tree are found in different parts of the world.

EVERYTHING SET FOR LEGION BALL

Everything is in readiness for the big American Legion benefit masquerade ball to be held at Legion hall tonight, it was announced last night by Sam Beattie, commander. Crowds are coming over from Grandfield, Iowa Park, Electra, and Burkburnett, according to word received by Commander Beattie, and all indications point to a Hallowe'en blowout for keeps.

Everybody attending is requested to wear masks and any other masquerade Hallowe'en costume. Those in charge announce that the dance will also be featured by a special program, and that everybody is elegible and urged to attend.

Heading the program will be S. F. Sheppard, of the famous army quartet, who will sing, and little Miss Zona Marie Ehlert, who will dance. Miss Ehlert has ordered a special costume for the evening affair, in which she will enterpret the spirit of Hallowe'en.

FITTS NOT IN SHERIFF RACE

"Though a number of my political and personal friends have asked me here of late to make the race for sheriff next term, I shall not run for any public office for some time yet."

This was the statement of J. B. Fitts, former city police commissioner, when asked Tuesday if rumors were true that he was seriously considering offering himself as a successor to Sheriff W. W. Murphy the next election.

"If Pat Murphy offers himself for re-election next time, I shall throw my support to him. I think he deserves the office for another term if he wants it and he has my endorsement," Fitts continued.

DRESDEN, Saxony, Oct. 30.—The socialist parliamentary party has declined to form a socialist minority government. Dr. A. Fellisch, who prior to the setting up of the deposed socialist-communist government was minister of economics, has announced his intention to undertake the formation of such a cabinet. The democrats have agreed to support a socialist government, which would thus command an adequate majority in the diet.

Situation Eases.

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—The general political situation with respect to the Saxon conflict is viewed tonight in official quarters as having showed marked improvement. The united socialists who yesterday threatened to secede from Chancellor Stresemann's coalition government appeared less intransigent today, having deferred a decisive vote on the party's attitude toward the central government's procedure in Saxony until tomorrow.

The attitude of the radicals is explained on the ground that the party, as such, is in neither a strategic nor financial position to offer strong opposition, and also because its widespread withdrawal from the present coalition under the present circumstances would constitute a pronounced concession to the communists in Saxony and elsewhere.

AMARILLO, Tex., Oct. 30.—Hearing in federal court on the petition of George E. B. Peddy in which receivers for ballots of the 1922 senatorial election were sought, was today indefinitely postponed.

Hearing the application of George E. B. Peddy asking a receiver be appointed for all of the ballot boxes and other election data of the last state election at which Peddy was defeated for United States senator by Earle B. Mayfield has been indefinitely postponed, according to an agreement reached here today by Judge James C. Wilson and Attorneys Luther Nichols, and Scott Woodward, for Peddy, and J. W. Veale and A. A. Lumpkin of Amarillo, representing Mayfield.

The attorneys for Mayfield joined with Peddy in asking that the injunction restraining county clerks, election judges and other officials from destroying the ballots remain in force, which was granted.

This is said to be the first time that the attorneys for Peddy and Mayfield have agreed on any one point of the contest.

CHICKEN THIEF ABSORBED SHOTS

Some chicken thief may be languishing somewhere in Wichita Falls with his back full of buckshot, for all Farmer Carter, who runs a chicken ranch near Call Field on the edge of town, knows.

Carter does know that he heard some of his thoroughbred chickens making an awful squawk about midnight Monday. He knows that he grabbed his gun and rushed out into the yard and saw a thief escaping from the chicken house. Carter yelled for the poultry fancier to stop. The P. F. apparently heard not and Carter took good aim and shot.

Sheriff Murphy was notified, but the thief has not been found.

BOY SCOUT DRIVE HAS NOW BEGUN

A drive for 550 new members for the local Boy Scouts organization was begun Tuesday with a meeting of the scout executive committee at the Kemp during the afternoon.

The committee made a number of far reaching plans regarding the local organization and it is expected to put it on a different and more effective basis. The scout park at the end of Sixth street which was donated the local organization by J. A. Kemp a few years ago is to be made an outdoor headquarters and training ground. The park is to be improved and fixed according to scout regulations for campfire work and the like.

A special memorial boy scout service will be held at one of the local churches in memory of Former President Harding on November 11, it was decided by the executives.

Suits Filed.

The following suits were filed in the office of the district clerk Tuesday:

Equitable Credit company against T. J. Stewart, debt.

Pearl Benge against E. A. Benge, divorce.

Train Derailed.

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Eastbound Michigan Central passenger train from Chicago to New York was derailed near Porter, Indiana, about 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. Reports here were that six cars and the engine were derailed but that no one was seriously injured.

Warning

Because I loved the way the candle light
Caressed your hair, while someone else played Ravel,
You need not think by that one tender sight
You shall be swept into the usual hell.
Because you have, as anyone can see,
Strength for your sire and beauty for your dam,
You need not look my way, you need not be
So insolently sure of what I am.

From your variety of autumn fires
I fear you lack experience of ice
The delicate and many-colored spires
That lie not in your power to entice;
And there are reasons you were vain to seek
Why one may be a virgin—and a Greek.

—Lindley Williams Hubbell.

Mrs. Robertson's Class Hostesses.

Members of Mrs. Wiley Robertson's Sunday school class of the First Baptist church were hostesses to Mr. E. Fuller's class Monday evening at an unusually enjoyable masked Hallowe'en party.

The guests were met at the door by two ghosts and ushered into the basement, which was attractively decorated in motifs suggestive of All Saint's day, and game similar to bunco called "Ghosts" was played with witch sugar.

A feature of the party was a witch's booth in which fortunes were spurred, with a palmist who entertained with diver palm readings.

Chocolate ice cream and cake with icing of gold, suggestive of the Hallowe'en colors, was served to 40 guests.

COLOR CUT-OUTS

Hurrah for the Hallowe'en Party!

Little ghosts, big ghosts, fat and thin ones crowded in the gate of Natalie Clipper's back yard, under two grinning lantern faces on the night of the Hallowe'en party. They scrambled for apples on strings; they clamored around the witch's den and heard wonderful fortunes.

And you never heard of such good things as they had to eat. "Pumpkin pie!" exclaimed Tom Cut-Up in a happy voice. "And doughnuts and cider, popcorn balls, ginger cookies and lollypops!" Everybody ate till they couldn't hold another crumb.

They had a parade that wound through all the dark rooms of the house; over chairs and under tables, where you felt icy blasts of air blow down your neck and you shook hands with grewsome people you did not know! In the very darkest attic corner, a tall masked spook jumped out with a scream that made their hair stand on end. Finally, Natalie in her owl costume flapped out and announced it was time to go home.

Of course you have guessed that Marjorie was the ghost in the attic, and have tried her costume on her. Hallowe'en and the witches' party is over! But the fun won't stop, for already the Cut-Outs are planning another good stunt.

NEWS AND PERSONALS

Pre-Hallowe'en Party.

The fall season of social entertainments was ushered in Wednesday afternoon when Mrs. Charles S. Maxwell entertained with a party suggesting Hallowe'en.

The house was cleverly decorated in colors and emblems suggesting the approach of Hallowe'en, black cats, bats, witches, etc., entering largely in the schemes of scenic arrangement. A guessing contest was first of a series of diversions and Mrs. Bob Mooney was the successful winner. After this, tables were arranged and progressive 42 was played. Mrs. L. E. Bowen drew the favor in the games.

Refreshments of chicken and tomato jelly on lettuce leaf, apple nut salad and cake and coffee were served the feature being the apple nut salad served in orange jack-o'-lanterns with covers tied with black and orange ribbons. Mints were passed and crystal bud vases were given as favors.

Those present were Mesdames H. L. Clayton, Kay Henderson, Alva Henderson, L. E. Bowen, T. J. Morrow, F. J. Jemison, A. B. Holsted, J. R. Mooney, E. M. Hatch, O. L. Graves, Robert Carothers, C. W. Goff, J. R. Gossett, M. F. Ray, F. J. Bratt, C. J. Trisler, A. G. Sortore, H. A. Crawford, Roy Dolman, Rufus Carothers and Joe Baker.

Entertains Library Club

Library club had a fine gathering last Thursday. Fourteen answered roll call with current events which all enjoyed. Mrs. Walter Noblitt was present and gave her name for membership and was gladly welcomed by all. There were four visitors, Mrs. A. B. Holsted and little daughter. Vallene, Master Harold Knox and Miss Vinnie Lee Mooney.

A nice program had been arranged by Mrs. H. L. Myers and Mrs. Bob Mooney. "Mother" Jemison gave a sketch of the life and story of Corra Harris, one of our greatest writers. Little Vallene Holsted and little Harold Knox rendered a violin duet which every one surely did enjoy. Miss Lucy Tandy and the mothers of these two children surely ought to be mighty proud of them. Readings were enjoyed from Vinnie Lee Mooney and Vallene Holsted, after which Mrs. Mooney came forward with her part, "A Contest." All worked after it, but no one was lucky enough to get all. But every one had a wonderful time.

After this the hostess served refreshments consisting of sandwiches hot cocoa, cake and fruit salad. Mrs. Rufus Carothers was hostess to the club at the home of Mother Jemison, the change being made on account of the muddy condition of the street crossing. The club adjourned to meet with Mrs. Gordon Bone on Thursday, November 1 at 2:30 o'clock.

Mrs. A. R. Jarrett of Granbury, Texas, arrived yesterday to visit the families of her son, W. D. Jarrett, and her daughters, Mrs. Cecil Stokes and Mrs. Dora Walker.

Miss Cecelia Lambert, Messrs. Harry Byant and Paul Meshon of Walters spent Sunday afternoon with Miss Daphne Sanders of this city.

Lawrence McWhorter, Mrs. Gertrude Peters and Miss Bill Shelton drove in Mrs. Peters' car to Lawton Friday afternoon.

Mr. N. B. Weant, who has been seriously ill is much better at this writing.

DOROTHY DIX

Being a Mother-in-Law Is a Career Not a Joke—And the Sooner She Is Put in the Favored Class With One's Own Mother, the Better.

An altruistic and optimistic woman has headed a movement to can all humor appertaining to and concerning mothers-in-law. She proposes to put the lid down good and hard on all the side-splitting quips and cynical comebacks about the wife's mother—for no woman has ever had the hardihood to jest about her husband's mother—and to put mothers-in-law in the same favored class with one's own mother, so to speak.

Thus is another insidious blow aimed at our personal liberties, for if we may not make merry at what we choose, what freedom is left us? Also it takes the bread out of the mouths of many honest and hard-working jokesmiths and vaudevillians, for since time immemorial the gibe at mothers-in-law has been their main stock in trade, and the one sure thing that they could depend upon as a laugh-getter.

Why the mother-in-law should ever have appeared to anyone as a figure of fun is a mystery past finding out. Probably the man who first set the ball of humor rolling in her direction saw in her a tragic creature about whom we must either laugh or cry, and he chose laughter as the better alternative. That is why the jokes about mother-in-law have always such a salt and bitter taste to them. They are flavored with tears.

Nor does anyone know why the wife's mother should be the one to be particularly held up to ridicule, and to have her little eccentricities, made to furnish mirth for the populace, while the husband's mother has escaped unlibeled. In the funny column of the newspaper, in the comic strip, in the farce on the stage, it is always the wife's mother who is lampooned. It is always the wife's mother who arrives with innumerable trunks, and bundles, and boxes, and a parrot, and a mangy dog, to pay an unexpected visit, and it is at the demise of his wife's mother that the son-in-law makes wise cracks.

No woman humorist has ever taken a fling at mothers-in-law, yet women know the worst of the mother-in-law proposition. Even the man who is most fed up with his mother-in-law has had to stand little of her peculiarities, and wars, and whims, compared with what the woman has to endure who lives with her mother-in-law. The virago mother-in-law of men is mostly a myth, but with women she is often an actuality.

As a matter of fact, women are anxious to get their daughters married, and they are disposed to welcome their son-in-law with open arms, and to love and spoil them if they will let them. Any man with half a grain of tact in his system, and a bit of jolly on his tongue, can make his mother-in-law his abject slave and worshipper if he will take the trouble to do so.

But women do not want their sons to marry. They resent their daughters-in-law, and hate them, sight unseen. Their backs are up and they are ready to scratch the eyes out of the interlopers who have taken their sons from them. And so it takes a doman with the patience of Job, and the wisdom of Solomon, and the diplomacy of a Talleyrand, to win over her mother-in-law, and make a friend of her.

The divorce courts credit the mother-in-law with being the captain of the home-wrecking crew. The judges of the domestic relations court say that when a young couple gets married, and goes off to live alone, that they kiss and make up after their little squabbles, and finally live together in peace and harmony, but that when the mother of either one of the newlyweds makes her home with them, and takes a hand in their fights, that the end is in sight. The dove of peace utters a loud piercing moan of despair, and flaps away to parts unknown at mother's arrival.

Perhaps human nature, and especially woman nature, will have to be made over before this state of affairs can be changed, and the mother-in-law become persona grata to her in-laws. It is most human for the mother who has borne a child; who has given it her very heart's blood; who has spent years sacrificing to it, to be filled with an instinctive jealousy of the stranger who is loved better than she is, who is put before her, who is cleaved to her son or daughter than she has ever been.

It is also human for a mother to be incapable of holding the scales of justice even when her child's desires conflict with those of another. It is human that a mother should think that her own daughter's husband should indulge her in every extravagance, while her son's wife should be a model of thrift, and do her own housework, and make her own clothes.

And it's very human, and very, very feminine for every mother to think that she has a right to run her married children's houses, and to load them down with advice, and put her finger in every pie, even though she knows perfectly well that the price of doing so makes her in-laws gnash their teeth, and wish her in Jericho.

So the in-laws deride her. Yet they are strangely silent about one thing: There are no good stories about the times when there is sickness in the house, or need, and when a hurry call is sent for mother-in-law who never fails to answer the summons. Those are the times when mother-in-law doesn't look like a humorous subject. She looks like a ministering angel, and the man to whose rescue she comes when there's an ill wife, and a crying baby, and no cook, and chaos reigns, doesn't see anything to laugh at in her grizzled, scant hair. It appears to him like the halo of a saint.

Being a mother-in-law is a career in itself. But it isn't a joke.

TEXAS FINANCIALLY STRONG

Cotton placed in the pockets of Texans more than $600,000,000, all new money, this year. Cotton seed placed in the pockets of Texans $150,000,000, all new money. This is the sequel.

Financial institutions of Texas have been paying off their credit obligations to the federal reserve bank of Dallas at the rate of $1,000,000 a day since September 1, making it necessary for the bank to go east for the purchase of trade acceptances, Governor B. A. McKinney of the federal reserve bank declared in a recent address.

In this way he said, Texas is carrying the burden of other sections of the country because of its prosperous condition, due to its wonderful powers of recuperation. Moreover, according to the governor, "in this way Texas is paying back its obligations to the east, which has carried the brunt of the financial obligations of the section of the nation since the Civil war."

Great minds run in different channels. William Jennings Bryan in a recent magazine article declared that the federal reserve board in 1919 or 1920 adopted a deflation policy that almost wrecked the producers of the south and the west. But let this pass.

Texas is basically sound. Texas is financially strong. All the banks, large and small, in city or hamlet, report deposits very heavy at this time. Are the people spending their money?

Well, 580,000 men and women and children paid admissions to the state fair at Dallas in three days. More than $3,500,000,000 represents the value of the output of motor cars and motor trucks for the year 1923 and thousands of new cars and new trucks have been sold to Texans.

American tourists left behind them in Europe this year $300,000,000 and there were many Texans among them.

Yes, Texas is basically strong, Texas is financially strong and Texas is forging ahead at a more rapid pace than ever before.

MEXICO

Mexico defaulted interest on its external or foreign debt in the year 1914. Now the Obregon government has made arrangements for the funding of the debt, involving $500,000,000 of face amount of bonds and $200,000,000 of interest in default since 1914. Many of these were purchased for a song in the long ago but they are worth face value today.

Obregon has given Mexico a stable government. He has redeemed his pledges to his own people and to the world at large. Now Calles and Huerta are rival contenders for presidential honors.

Samuel Gompers is a citizen of the United States. He journeyed to Mexico to attend the labor conference and while there he advised the Mexicans to elect Calles as the successor of Obregon. If Obregon or Calles or Huerta, entoure of the United States, were to advise Americans how to vote or whom to vote for there would be merry hades to pay all along the line.

Is Samuel Gompers a citizen of the United States or a citizen of the world? He is a great man in his way, he hasn't been compelled to dismount in 50 years and he is as wise as he is old but why should he go to a foreign country and tell the people of that country to vote for the candidate of any class or clique.

California produced 25,762,487 barrels of petroleum in September. Over production of petroleum hit the independent producers as hard as over production of wheat in the world hit the American grower in the northwest.

Now the prophets are predicting that in the coming years the consumers of America will be compelled to rely on foreigners for their gasoline supply. Throughout the ages most of the prophets have been proven liars and some of the petroleum prophets are no exception to the rule.

New York Jews suscribed $500,000 in 24 hours for the Jewish education association and the fund will provide 10,000 scolarships for religious students. New York is said to be a city of foreigners, but when there is a call for money for education or charity the money always makes its appearance. Think of the response to the Japanese relief fund. New York was ask by the Red Cross to contribute $1,900,000. New Yorkers took an hour off from business or work and gave $2,800,000 for Japanese relief. That is they donated $920,000 over their quota. An American who isn't proud of New York s a shriveled localism.

PANTOMIME By J. H. Striebel

Giving Him the Silent Treatment

The Witch Of Gondar

By WILLIAM ASHLEY ANDERSON

A Novel o. Strange, Wild Peoples.

As Cuvierson and Barbara moved away silently together, the officer said with a flash of enthusiasm:

"Sevier! I hadn't caught his name. He's probably one of the most romantic figures in Africa."

Miss Whittington replied with an air of abstraction and a slight tremor in her voice:

"Yes. He is certainly romantic. Almost too much so."

INSTALLMENT NO. THREE.

Richard Sevier, an American in the British Secret Service, arrives in Aden, the English Arabian Seaport, to forestall a possible attack on the allies in the great war by a United Islam. He has heard that Lidj Yassou, a youthful ruler of Abyssinia, is planning to foresake Christianity (the ancient religion of his country,) embrace Moslemism and lead the Mahomedans in the rumored holy war.

Colonel Whittington, British political resident at Aden is told of Sevier's plans.

Barbara Whittington, his attractive daughter, is impressed by Sevier.

Cohusac, a crippled Frenchman is a "pal" of Sevier.

Miriam, a strikingly beautiful inmate of the harem attempts to flirt with Sevier from a window. Cohusac tells Sevier he has an appointment with her.

CHAPTER III.

A Gallant Adventure.

For a moment Sevier could say nothing. A pang of jealousy shot through him. Cohusac, seeming to misconstrue his silence, exclaimed, with the petulance of a cripple:

"Oh you don't think she would have me? You doubt me!"

"No," said Sevier grimly. "But I don't see how you are going to carry the thing through."

"Look!" exclaimed the Frenchman, "you can hardly see Abu Khalil's house. Come with me. You shall observe with your own eyes."

Instantly it occurred to Sevier that this would afford an excuse for approaching the house of Juda bin Ismael separated from Abu Khalil's by a couple of twisted alleys

"Right-o! I'll go as far as bin Ismael's. I can watch you from there. But look out."

"Oh, la, la!" laughed Cohusac. "Nearly all the fun for me is in the risk I run. A knife in the shoulder would be more of a thrill than the kiss of a succuba." They stopped soon, alighted, and through the darkness reached the alley beyond a Banian's house which separated it from that of Abu Khalil.

"Oh, Sevier, how well I could play Cyrano for your Valentine!" said Cohusac. "Scale that wall, and I will soften her heart with a song. If she loves me it is only a distance! How can she love me near? Look! A little wall fourteen feet high that cuts us off from paradise—and I, whose soul reaches out to the sun, I cannot scale it."

"Cohusac," Sevier said roughly, "don't be a fool! This affair is yours entirely—and alone."

"Idiot! How little you know of the value of life when you throw the promise of such love away lightly! I tell you it is you she wants—not I. With me, it was a game. I pretended I was you. Otherwise, she might have treated me with contempt. Are you mad to reject the opportunity?"

There was a timbre in Cohusac's voice that seemed to ring from his soul and set Sevier's heart vibrating. The agitation mounted to his head.

He began to tremble. The wall was only fourteen feet high. He recalled that wonderful glimpse of Miriam across the housetops.

"Only raise your voice and call," urged Cohusac.

"Call yourself! I tell you, it is your affair entirely."

Cohusac turned his head abruptly and looked full at him. Then in a mixture of song and recitation, he uttered the seductive phrases of a popular Alexandrian ballad:

"Although your slumber may be deep,
Think not that love can yield to sleep,
By Allah, wild with love I flame,
And he who loves is ne'er to blame.
Dus, ya lella! Dus, ya lella!"

In the silence that followed, Sevier noticed all at once with an unpleasant sensation, that Cohusac, who had buried his face in the crook of his arm, was regarding him furtively out of one eye. Instantly he believed that his companion was playing a dangerous joke upon him.

"Do as you please" he said, in a matter-of-fact tone. "I'm off."

At the corner Sevier could not resist the impulse to look back.

From the grated window above he saw a piece of white fluttering. He forced a short, mirthless laugh, and, turning into an arcade, made his way to the door of Juda bin Ismael's house.

Chapter VI

Miriam

Sevier responded with a grunt. Startled by Cohusac's sudden outburst of enthusiasm he stared out in the dark, remembering the woman all to well. He had first discovered the fair Miriam about a fortnight before.

Looking from the arched, shadowy recess of his bedroom one scorching afternoon, he felt his eyes drawn irresistibly to the dark windows of Abu Khalil's house, which rising above the intervening flat-roofed tenements permitted an uninterrupted view into his apartment.

In the shadow he perceived faintly the figure of a woman, unveiled, her soft white garment falling from her shoulder in graceful folds, her hair drawn back in heavy braids from a face which, even in the shadow, he could see was of remarkable beauty.

Sevier was aware that she regarded him with peculiar intensity. The moment she saw she was discovered, she withdrew, drawing he veil across her face and making a gesture that indicated impatience but not aversion.

The next day she had appeared again, making no effort to attract attention until Sevier raised his eyes and discovered her presence.

Each succeeding day, however she seemed to withdraw with greater reluctance, until finally a time came when she remained unveiled! Then she bestowed upon him a look that pierced straight to his heart. Sevier knew Arabs too well to misunderstand.

Nevertheless, with an efort he had left the window and sank into a chair in the long living room, through which the wind swept freely from the dancing blue bay. He found himself trembling. The violence of his emotion amazed and then exasperated him. Ordinarily he might not have hesitated to enter madly into the adventure, accepting the danger recklessly: but under the present circumstances it was impossible to yield to such an influence.

In this unwelcome state of emotion, struck one day by a whimsical thought, he had brought Hillot Cohusac to his room and managed to have him present when Miriam appeared at her window.

For Cohusac, it was enough.

Into this line of recollection, Cohusac, who had been studying Sevier's countenance as the American looked gloomily off into the dark, interjected a remark, with an air of almost casualness that came like a blow to Servier, "I have made an appointment with her."

Chapter V.

The Gallant Frenchman

As Sevier's gharry swung into the road, a strange figure appeared from the opposite side limping out of the darkness, supported by two walking-sticks. In the moonlight, Sevier recognized Hillot Cohusac, a young French merchant, with whom he had formed an unusual friendship.

"Hello, Cohusac! What on earth are you doing in this part of town at midnight?"

Chousac lifted a mocking finger and rolled his large, large languishing eyes.

"I expect I'm mad, old chap—mad like the rest of them when the moon is full! I could not stay indoors. I could not sleep."

"You have been thinking of the fair Persian—what?"

Ah!" exclaimed Cohusac. I will tell you something to astonish you."

He got in the car beside Sevier who seized the opportunity to remark, with an air of casualness.

Oh, by the way, I'm glad to have run into you, because I'm going over to Djibouti for a few days."

"What!" exclaimed Cohusac, wrenching himself up in his seat. "But why? There is no ship—and you're not likely to sail in a dhow, eh?"

"No. One of the officers of the Vixen invited me; so I thought I'd take the opportunity and go. Only be for a few days, I expect."

Cohusac sagged slightly in his moody silence. Sevier was touched and fell into a strange and somewhat by the expressive cridlike melancholy of his unusual friend.

Cohusac had been the only man to inspire any feeling of genuine friendship in Sevier upon his arrival in Aden. He was, indeed, a remarkable and unusual character.

Rendered a hopeless cripple by the war, he had been obliged, almost in an instant to abondon forever the sports, the violent activities, the romance, and adventures that had made life for him a series of fascinating tales spun on a thread of wit, humor and daring, and to sit to one side, smiling wryly or with the shadow of a memory on his face, nodding with understanding

So Goes It

By G. H.

It developed in the trial of "Doc" Cook charged with oil fraud that he had passed out the information to the persons on his "sucker lists," that he really discovered the north pole. He probably operated on the theory that if the buyers of his oil stock believed what he said about the glowing prospect for the company in question, they wouldn't be skeptical about a little thing like the discovery of the north pole.

Recent forest fires in Michigan were not without their casualties. Six liquor stills were found in a three mile radius after the fires had burned themselves out. The dispatch does not say whether the liquor exploded. Although most of the moonshine stuff will.

Speaking of moonshine liquor recalls the experience of a Wichita Falls negro who was trying to reorder some stuff he had bought from a bootlegger He found the bootlegger and asked for the same quality he had received before. In describing it he said: "I don't jus' 'member de name of de stuff, but a bottle had a picktер on it of a jack rabbit chasin' a lion."

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

The Stammering Danger

One Mother Says:

My older brother was handicapped all his life by stammering, and I was afraid my small son might fall a victim to this nervous defect, which was common among my high-strung ancestors. Therefore, I carefully kept him from association with any stammerers, as children often start stammering by imitaton. I am also trying to keep him as free from emotional stress as possible, at the same time inculcating self-confidence. His reading is watched, and I do not let him have fairy tales that might frighten him or present ugly images. Too exciting games are not good for a boy with a nervous disposition, either. His life should be made to run as smoothly and calmly as possible.

More Truth Than Poetry

—By James J. Montague—

SNOW BIRDS

They come along in legions
About this time of year,
From frozen polar regions
To bring us winter cheer.
Warm feathers pad their gizzards
As they hop through the snow,
What care they though the blizzards
May blow, blow, blow?

The robins are faint-hearted
And timid every one;
They long ago departed
To seek the southern sun.
But snow-birds' hearts are braver,
They cheep, cheep, cheep,
With pleasure at the savor
Of drifts knee deep.

They flit about the edges
Of wilted jimson weeds;
They chatter in the hedges
In search of luscious seeds.
And in the coldest weather,
When bitter winds blow strong,
At night they join together
In clear, sweet song.

Fair weather friends are flighty,
While skies are bright they stay;
Comes snow, and highty-tighty,
They up and fly away.
But this a braver breed is,
With hearts with joy a-throb,
Just when our greatest need is
They're on the job.

TIMELY VIEWS on WORLD TOPICS

BRITISH STATESMEN CONCEDE AMERICA'S CAUTIOUSNESS A WISE COURSE.

"British statesmen concede that the United States is acting wisely in holding aloof from participation in a league of nations of the type drafted by Woodrow Wilson, but they regret any tendency on the part of this great country to stand aghast at the apparent turmoil in Europe and rest in the belief that you cannot be of assistance to us."

VISCOUNT BIRKENHEAD

This was the keynote the Earl of Birkenhead, for many years a member of the British parliament and former lord chancellor, expressed in a recent interview.

The earl's opinion is that President Wilson's representation of the United States brought about premature or at least ill-considered peace.

"But do not take my emphasis for aggressiveness," he said. "British statesmen do not look upon it as the fault of the people of the United States that the two nations have been unable to come together. They do feel, however, that it is the misfortune of Europe that we had to accept as the mouthpiece of your great nation as man who was in no sense a representative of the nation's sentiment.

"Had it not been for Wilson," he added, decisively, "there would not be all of the regrettable conditions in Europe today. The type of peace he demanded had its disadvantages as against a peace which might have been brought about had another representative of your nation come to our shores at that momentous occasion.

"While British statesmen admit the United States had its own decision to make, they do regret any tendency on your part to stand apart, thinking you cannot be of assistance to us. Do not blame Europe for the turmoil which appears to your distant view. Do not be horrified at the reports visitors to our shores may bring back to you.

"Realize Europe is standing nobly under a tremendous effort at readjustment and realize the situation would be less distressing if the great power on this side of the water were put into some effort on our behalf."

WHAT TODAY MEANS

SCORPIO

The important matters of the day should be given attention before noon as thereafter the good influences are on the decline and very malign aspects appear. Try to maintain poise as there is a tendency to high nervous tension and haste.

A child born today will be intellectually brilliant and resourceful.

You are a temperamentalist if today is your birthday and always the wretched or ecstatic victim of your own moods. Whatever your life may seem to others it will always be more or less the same to you because your emotional reaction to an experience is fuller than the event warrants.

You are sensitive and erratic, and the type of person whose whole being thrills or trembles with every thought. For this reason you should cultivate a little introspection and learn your own character—your temperament will work less havoc with your nerves only when you have studied it and given it grace and calm.

You are imaginative and a convincing talker because you can work yourself into a passion with little effort and you impart an emotional fervor which momentarily does not have to be backed by cold reasoning.

You are honest in all your dealings—more so with others than with yourself in fact, and could easily be victimized by unscrupulous people because you cannot imagine evil intentions in others for you have none in your own heart.

You have a splendid talent for music and one that might easily give you a career if you cultivate it with enough diligence in the technique of your instrument, and one that will always be at least a refreshing refuge from the turbulence of your own emotions.

Emotionally you are surprisingly cold for one of your temperament. Probably it is because your life is so hectic that if you involved yourself in the pleasant thrills and agonies of love it would completely annihilate you.

IRRIGATION

By A. M. McPHERSON
Consulting Engineer
Kahn Bldg., Eighth and Indiana

THE COLONIZATION QUESTIONNAIRE.

Men Experienced In Irrigation.

The experienced man in almost any line of business has a decided advantage over the un-experienced, other things being equal. If the business is very complicated the matter of experience assumes a greater degree of importance.

The business of irrigation is a highly complicated one and embraces many different lines of activities, but just learning to irrigate a farm crop in a comparatively simple business and a working knowledge is soon obtained by any intelligent man under competent instruction.

Learning to irrigate a farm crop is a problem that will concern many of the present land owners in the near future if they expect to farm any portion of their present holdings. It is also a problem that will have to be solved by many of the farmers who will come in the next few years to go into the irrigation farming business.

It would not generally be supposed that many of the present land owners would have had any experience in irrigation, yet a question addressed to them asking whether they had disclosed the fact that five had irrigated.

Two of these men had been irrigating here for a very considerable period. Two others for more limited periods and one learned something of irrigation by practical experience in Colorado.

Every man experienced in irrigation is an asset to this community.

Anti Meeting

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 30.—Over 100 Texas pastors and leading prohibition advocates, will attend the national council meeting of the Anti-Saloon League, to be held in Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 17 to 20, Atticus Webb, state superintendent of the league announced Monday.

Dr. Webb asked Governor Neff to appoint 50 or more delegates to the meeting. The governor will do so, Mr. Webb said, after his conference with Neff.

Dr. Webb will attend the conference. He has extended request to all churches in the state which can afford it to send their pastors to the meeting, without cost to the ministers.

Among unusual occupations listed in the London directory are "cocktail-shaker manufacturers," "hotel-keeping instructors" and "preservers of ferns and flowers."

MEXICAN-U. S. CONFER PLANNED

Health and Enforcement Party Leaves Austin November 15.

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 30.—The Texas narcotic control and health mission, which will be in conference with Mexican government officials in working out a co-operative program to lessen the drug and narcotic traffic, control immigration of disease-carrying persons, to educate the people on both sides of the Rio Grande in sanitation, child hygiene, and health matters—will leave Austin for Mexico City Nov. 5, Dr. W. H. Beazley, state health officer announced.

The Texas delegation will be official guests of the Mexican government from the time they cross the Rio Grande at Laredo. The conferences will occupy about 10 days.

Members of his party, Dr. Beazley announced Monday, will be Dr. W. H. Beazley, state health officer; Dr. H. Barst, director of child welfare, formerly stationed in Hidalgo county, and worked in co-operation with border officials.

Dr. J. R. Mahone, health officer for Hidalgo county, in charge of junior cooperative work. Interpreter for the party.

S. Raymond Brooks, publicity.

A co-operative program, taking rank with matters heretofore the subject of treaty negotiations between nations, will be worked out, for individual enforcement on each side of the Rio Grande. It will consist of important plans for education of citizens of Mexico and Texas against narcotics and drug addiction—against use of morphine, opium, cocaine and marijuana. Steps wil llikewise be taken to prevent the entry from one province into another of persons who may spread contagious or communicable diseases. Smuggling and traffic in drugs, though primarily matters of federal control at the border, will be given study, and plans outlined to assist other agencies. Sanitation and child hygiene, together with health administrative matters, will be considered in detail

MISS HENRICLE IS NOW BUSY

Miss Katherine Henricle, local head of the Texas Children's Home and Aid society, reports that there are a good many cases coming to her for help. One of the recent cases concerning a widow who lives near Burkburnett. She is the mother of three children, a girl and two boys. One of the boys is lame, suffering from tuberculosis of the bone.

The girl is only fourteen years old, and she has been keeping bad company causing her to be under the eye of the juvenile officers of Burkburnett and Wichita Falls.

The mother works to maintain the children and herself and the work she does often takes her away from her home for a week at a time. The little boys keep house, do the cooking, and go to school, staying at nights by themselves.

Miss Henricle says that the juvenile officers and the Texas Children's Home and Aid society are working to get the little family out of their difficulties.

"I Am the Woman," Says Double As She Aids Mrs. Stokes' Case

Mrs. Margaret E. Pell, right, as she exhibited her profile on the stand to prove to jurors that she could be mistaken for Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, left.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—"I am the woman."

With these words Mrs. Margaret E. Pell, scored the greatest triumph registered to date for Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes in Mrs. Stokes' fight to clear her name of charges hurled by her millionaire husband, W. E. D. Stokes, in his divorce action.

Stokes witnesses had lain before the jury hearing the divorce action, the testimony that Mrs. Stokes had been seen twice at the home of W. L. Pepperman in Bethel, Conn. She had attended week-end parties there in 1914 or 1915, it was testified. That Mrs. Stokes posed as "Mrs. Wynn" on those occasions was the statement of Stokes' attorneys.

Through this damaging evidence—as she has sat through weeks of the same filth—Mrs. Stokes remained calm. Close observers, however, might have noticed a triumphant little smile trying to break through the corners of his mouth.

Then came Mrs. Pell's turn.

Questioned by Mrs. Stokes' counsel she told the jury that before her marriage to the wealthy broker, Howard Pell in 1919, she was Mrs. Margaret E. Wynn.

Then, asked if she had ever visited the Pepperman home she hesitated a moment and then said clearly: "Yes, I am the woman seen there."

She visited Pepperman's home twice, in 1914 or 1915 and also knew Mrs. Daisy Hays, the woman with whom Mrs. Stokes was supposed to have ridden from the Pepperman place on one occasion, she also said.

Her testimnoy finished, Mrs. Pell remained in the witness chair while her remarkable resemblance to Mrs. Stokes was analyzed. Jurors were startled as they compared the titian hair peeping out from under her hat and the neat turban of Mrs. Stokes—the tilt of their noses, the size and shape of their mouths and even the half-haughty carriage of their heads.

Stokes' attorney made no effort to shake this testimony.

Mrs. Pell told the court she never had seen Mrs. Stokes until they met in the court, that she did not know Edgar T. Wallace, the corespondent in the particular action in court.

Asked why she testified she said: "I simply wanted to see another woman receive justice."

CHICKEN CULLING MEETING CALLED

Ladies of the Thompson district, in the vicinity of the Bowie school are requested to meet Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Chas. S. Foote to witness a chicken culling by Mrs. Coke Jones of the Central Feed store.

Miss Georgia Lansford, county demonstration agent is sponsoring the meeting and will discuss with the ladies the possibility of organizing a Home Demonstration club in that section of town.

HALLOWE'EN

Tonight the witches walk, the ghosts arise from long forgotten graves. Spirits, evil and good, fairies elves, sprites and goblins frolic tonight with bats, owls and black cats, that dart treacherously across the path of mortals who venture out.

Chains clank and terrible groans issue from the fleshless skulls of skeletons, who solemnly unwrap their grave clothes and prepare for one nights sojourn up and down the earth before settling themselves for another year of sleep.

Mysterious hilarity reigns among mortals who congregate at this time to make merry and strive to delve into the secrets of the spirit world. Fortune telling, palmistry, spirit magic, ghostly games, dance of the witches, and bands of Gipsy strollers have served to make local Hallowe'en festivities that have occurred so far memorable occasions. Although many parties and dances have already been given by various churches, organizations, and clubs, the season is not yet in full sway and a busy week lies ahead of the youth of the city in seasonable festivities.

Local shops are showing attractive displays of every sort of novelty in orange and black, caps, favors, place cards, candlesticks, festoons and decorations, clever cut-outs of cats, witches, jack-o'-lanterns and all sorts of Hallowe'en figures that a clever hostess can use to advantage. Piles of brilliantly colored confetti and foolish caps, ties and false faces suggest jolly times and local young people are making the best of this season that is rivalled only in merriment by the Christmas tide.

Night pranks on all saints eve are not quite so destructive nor disastrous as they were some years ago perhaps, but peaceful citizens are warned to watch stray gates, garden seats, Fords and the like, and it is probable that the merchants of the town will spend tomorrow washing candle grease from prominent show windows.

HE APPLIES FOR TWO LICENSES

The marriage market produced a new flurry Tuesday when a man, to all outward appearance sane, appeared at the county clerk's office and asked for two marriage licenses.

"You mean you want two licenses?" the cupid clerk asked him a second time.

"Yeah. One for me and one for Bill. He didn't have time to come after his and I'll just get them both," the reckless man said.

The heavy purchaser of official "I do" blanks was also asking about how long it would be before he could get a divorce if marriage wasn't as he hoped.

As the man left with the two licenses someone was mean enough to remark that "misery certainly likes company."

COME HERE FOR GAS HEARING

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 30.—The three members of the state railroad commission will leave Wednesday for Wichita Falls, where they will Tuesday begin hearing on appeal of the Wichita Falls domestic gas rate.

TEMPERS JUSTICE WITH KINDNESS

Those who do not favor tempering justice with mercy and have not been able to see the efficacy of the suspended sentence law would probably have a different viewpoint had they been in Judge P. A. Martin's Eighty-ninth district court Tuesday when the jury brought in a verdict against John McBride charged with theft.

McBride pleaded guilty to stealing oil field supplies. He came before the court Monday and Tuesday and told his story. He said his young wife and three children, were hungry and the stealing of the supplies offered a way out. He said he bought milk and other things to eat with the money from the theft.

The jury deliberajted quite awhile. They returned with verdict of guilty and recommended the two year penitentiary sentence be suspended. Judge Martin turned McBride loose on a recognizance bond of $500. McBride shook hands with each of the jurors, his face beaming. He then kissed his wife and walked out of the courtroom with her, promising to never deviate from the right path again.

CHURCHES TO HEAR OF WELFARE MEET

In the interest of the Texas Conference of Social Welfare two-minute speeches will be made at the various churches Sunday morning. R. E. Shepherd will speak at the First Presbyterian church; A. H. Britain will speak at the First Christian church; J. C. Mytinger at the First Methodist church, south; W. L. Robertson at the Floral Heights Methodist; E. S. Goodner at the Floral Heights Baptist church; Luther Hoffman at the Central Presbyterian church; John Bland at the Church of the Good Shepherd; O. A. Jones at the Kay Bible class; F. D. Keim at the Sacred Heart church; Ensign Corliss at the Salvation Army.

The pastors' association has been asked by the committees on arrangements to announce the conference at the other churches and missions.

The different clubs of the city have agreed to send committees to attend the meeting of the convention.

OIL INVENTION IS TO BE TRIED

A reamer and lateral drilling machine will be demonstrated today on the Lanning and Monninger farm, two miles southeast of Burkburnett.

Mr. Granville inventor and demonstrator of this machine says that it is possible to drill to the sand and then by the use of the speial device for lateral drilling the sand can be penertated to any desired distance from the well.

It is thought by local oil men that this machine will probably be the imperative to a new ruling on this kind of drilling by the state railroad commission.

'ROTTEN' ACTOR BUT GOOD AGENT

Bushea Arranging for Lachman Shows, Tells a Few Life Secrets

Harold Bushea, who is in Wichita Falls arranging for the coming of the Lachman Exposition shows to the Armistice Jubilee and also for the winter quarters of the show in this city for the coming winter, has had a wide and varied experience in the show world. Starting out with an attempt to become an actor his ambition received a cruel blow at the hands of James O'Neil, who informed the aspiring young Thespian at the end of a summer season at Hooley's theatre in Chicago that he was not cut out for an actor and that he had "better look for a job in a dry goods store" or something of a similar nature.

"Maybe the governor was right," said Mr. Bushea to a Record-News reporter, while relating his experiences, "and maybe the mercantile business lost a bright light by my not taking his advice. Years later I met Mr. O'Neil in the Lamb's club, New York, and some one introduced us. I told the party assembled around a table of goodfellowship how my early ambition had been blighted by Mr. O'Neil and he replied, 'Well, I may have been wrong in picking out a mercantile career for you, you did not try it, so I don't know, but I do know you were a mighty rotten actor.' And this after recently seeing me essay some small part in one of the legitimate dramas in Mr. Haworth's repertoire which I attempted in order to save the salary of a 'real' actor.

Not to be deterred from some connection with the profession, Bushea secured an engagement as treasurer with a minstrel show while just in his sixteenth year. That led to a connection with many different branches of the show business. He went to Mexico with the Mapelson Opera company, he toured Europe with Buffalo Bill, he piloted Joseph Haworth in his starring tours with such successes as "Paul Kauvar" and "St. Marks;" he heralded the coming of Sol Smith Russell and as the first general agent of Al G. Barnes circus pioneered the Canadian country which, west of Calgary, had never seen an elephant nor a lion. In the course of his career he has managed various enterprises from mind readers to grand opera.

When the late Frank W. Gaskill founded the carnival business he engaged Mr. Bushea as his business manager and general agent and the lines upon which the business is conducted today were laid down by him.

As a publicity promoter he was credited with the "milk bath" story of Anna Held, and one of his stunts was covering the pavement around the auditorium annex in Chicago with tan bark to deaden the sound of traffic so as not to disturb a famous English female star who was supposed to be too ill to appear but who in reality was having a dispute with her American managers. Wagon loads of tan bark were strewn around the hotel and the eager, inquiring reporters attended to the rest.

As manager for Mr. Haworth he was the first one to secure permission from the warden of San Quentin penitentiary to take a theatrical company to that institution and give a performance for the prisoners.

His present ambition is to see a fitting monument erected to the memory of his idol, Buffalo Bill, over his grave at Mt. Lookout, and after that to see a monument over the grave of Major John Burke who was for 40 years the friend and close companion of Colonel Cody and was regarded as the dean of press agents at the time of his death which followed closely after the demise of Buffalo Bill.

Mr. Bushea delights in telling his friends of an accident which occurred to him in Minot, N. D. the past summer when he was struck by a Ford car while walking on the sidewalk.

"After dodging traffic in all the big cities of the world I had to get nicked by a Ford car in a little town of 10,000. It reminds me of the Kipling story, '.007.'"

LEARN TO CARRY YOUR PASSPORT

By The Associated Press.

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 28.—Almost all Americans know it is a good thing to be provided with a passport in Europe, and carry the necessary documents always on their person, but occasionally some adventurous soul takes a chance on going without, and runs into bushels of trouble as a result. Trouble traveled hand in hand with two American aviators who, without passports, slipped over the boundary line of Czechoslovakia recently, and was their close companion for six weeks.

Merion C. Cooper, of Jacksonville, Fla., and George M. Crawford, of Wilmington, Del., flew through the war in France under the American flag, and later joined the Kosciusko air squadron in Poland. Together with some Polish friends they recently went on a mountain climbing expedition among the Carpathian peaks in southern Poland.

On one of the excursions Cooper and Crawford and a Polish count, all connected together on a rope, Alpine fashion, lost their balance, began to slide down the snow clad mountain side and were unable to stop themselves. Before they realized it the three had crossed the Polish-Czechoslovakian boundary line, at the rate of about a mile a minute, and landed in a heap in a snow bank at the mountain's base.

Rescuers, among them Czechoslovakian customs officials, soon reached the party. Not even the Polish count had a passport, let alone the two Americans, and it took the party exactly six weeks to establish their identity and secure permission to return to Poland.

Cattle Slaughter In State Slumps

Department of Commerce Shows It Less Each Year; Fewer Cattle Raised Is Report.

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Cattle slaughter is becoming less and less in Texas each year, figures gathered by the department of commerce and made public today show.

In 1921, the last year for which complete figures are available, 304,475 beeves and 348,946 calves were slaughtered in slaughter and packing houses in Texas, compared with 550,550 beeves and 348,946 calves were slaughter 554,479 beeves and 145,391 calves in 1914 and 527,469 beeves and 234,172 calves in 1909.

Sheep and lambs slaughtered in Texas in 1921 numbered 148,604, compared with 151,385 in 1919; 284,050 in 1914 and 77,805 in 1909.

Hogs slaughtered in Texas amounted to 449,602 in 1921, compared with 696,255 in 1919; 570,182 in 1914 and 939,674 in 1909.

But one conclusion can be drawn from the figures, experts say, and that is that the people of Texas are raising less cattle, hogs and sheep for the market, for the ratio of Texas cattle going to Kansas City, Oklahoma City and other packing points outside the state is now about the same ratio as always.

As significant as the number of cattle slaughtered are the figures on weight on the hoof of cattle marketed: In 1921 the weight on the hoof of beeves marketed was 249,470,205 pounds and the dressed beef yield was 129,792,294. In 1919 the weight on the hoof of beeves marketed was 445,013,500 and the dressed beef yield was 224,330,620 pounds; In 1914 the weight on the hoof of beeves marketed was 432,897,416 and the weight dressed was 221,521,566.

Weight on the hoof of calves marketed in 1921 was 96,853,149; 1919, 89,168,798 and 1914, 37,176,694. This tendency to sell calves for beef instead of allowing them to mature is another situation alarming to experts.

Weight on the hoof of sheep and lambs slaughtered in Texas in 1921 was 12,817,095 pounds compared with 13,621,490 in 1919 and 22,635,046 in 1914. The dressed weight of sheep and lambs for all these years was about half the weight of the animals on the hoof.

Weight on the hoof of hogs slaughtered in Texas in 1921 was 83,645,745 and dressed weight 68,307,249; compared with the weight on the hoof of 128,476,461 and dressed weight of 95,061,469 in 1919 and the weight on hoof of 108,158,489 and dressed weight of 78,447,373 in 1914.

Here are some of the value of packing-house products in Texas in 1921: Fresh beef, $13,090,311; fresh veal, $5,256,4755; fresh mutton and lamb, $824,829; fresh pork, no figures; pickled and cured pork, $7,701,272; sausage, meat puddings, head cheese and scrapple, $2,746,188; lard, $1,576,471; cattle hides and calf skin, $2,002,945; sheep pelts, not given.

France Also Lacks Cooks

PARIS, France.—It is not true, as many foreigners seem to believe, that domestic servants are plentiful in France. Here is an advertisement found recently in a French newspaper which proves that the servant problem is very real over here.

"Wanted, cook for family of two. Wages $25 a month. Husband will do the washing, wife will clean the rooms."

GERMAN LAUDS HAGUE COURT

Dr. Schiffer Warmly Commends Permanent Court

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 1.—The permanent court of international justice at The Hague is warmly commended by Dr. Eugen Schiffer in a statement which is based on his recent experience before the court as a representative of Germany in the Wimbledon case and two others concerning the rights of German minorities in Poland.

Dr. Schiffer says President Harding's advocacy of American participation in the court puts the court in a new light, as American participation would give a certain guarantee of impartial judgment. This action of the late president of the United States has in a measure, in the opinion of Dr. Schiffer, caused Germany to renounce its distrust in the court, as the American effort to separate the tribunal entirely from the league of nations leads to the hope that the tribunal is operating along other lines than those forecast in the Versailles treaty.

Discussing the decision on the Wimbledon case, which was against Germany, Dr. Schiffer says it has not been thoroughly understood in Germany. Germany prevented the British ship Wimbledon from passing through the Kiel Canal on the ground that the ship was carrying ammunition for Poland, which was at that time engaged in war with Soviet Russia. The contention of England was that under the Versailles treaty, Germany had no right to take such action, even if it was done on the ground that Germany was maintaining neutrality by preventing arms and ammunition from going to a nation which was actually at war with another. Dr. Schiffer says the principles upon which the court rendered a verdict against Germany are contained in the Versailles treaty and put Germany in the wrong.

Decision was against Poland in the two cases which involved the rights of Germans living under Polish rule. Consequently Germany won two out of three decisions and Dr. Schiffer is firm in his belief that Germany's first experience before the new world court was such as to show that Germany is not lost before international tribunals which are influenced by the voice of right and justice and do away with the appeal to force.

Dr. Schiffer expresses the hope that the new court will develop a truly international law by creating precedents and by steady administration of justice, thus securing itself authority in the face of changing conditions in Europe. He says in some respects the court is still an imperfect instrument in the eyes of legal experts, but it is a start in the right direction and give reason to hope that the big problems of international life may be solved by lawful investigation rather than by force of arms.

Wild Buffalo Find Sanctuary in Canada

By The Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Ont.—Boundaries of a new wild game preserve in northern Alberta dedicated in perpetuity as the wilderness home of two herds of 1,500 wild buffalo, have just been announced by the Dominion government.

The entire habitat of the two herds has been enclosed in the sanctuary. It is heavily timbered and includes several mountain ranges, lakes and rivers. The area of the new park is 10,500 square miles. Throughout the park cabins have been built for wardens which will facilitate an efficient patrol service the year round.

Existence of these wild herds in the Great Slave Lake country has been vaguely known for years, but their numbers were never estimated above 250 until a year ago when a government survey party saw the herds and by rough count figured the total as 1,500 animals. The only other known herd of wild buffalo in the world is in the remote fastness of Yellowstone park and numbers not more than 100 animals.

With the largest number of wild buffalo, Canada boasts also the largest buffalo herd in the government park at Wainwright, the large game preserve under fence in the world. The Wainwright herd now numbers more than 8,000. Two thousand bulls on the Wainwright range will be slaughtered this fall as of no value to herd propagation and to conserve pasturage. Their meat will be marketed in the United States and Canada and a large part of it made into pemmican for distribution among Arctic trading and fur posts.

Coyotes To Play Hastings Legion Saturday

GAME INTERRUPTED BY RAIN AGAIN IS SCHEDULED; HEAVY BATTLE GENERAL PREDICTION

Wichita [illegible] school will play the Hastings, Oklahoma, American Legion team here Saturday at the ball park, 3 o'clock, announced Coach McCallum here yesterday afternoon. The game, which had been scheduled for last Saturday here, was called off at the last minute on account of the heavy rains and after the Hastings team had reached Bowie en route here.

Hastings has run up strong record of games won this season not having met a match. This record will be met against the like record of the Coyotes Saturday, who have played to a thousand per cent all season. Last year the Coyotes won against the Legion team, but the match Saturday is expected to be a battle all the way 'round.

Coaches McCallum and Moore are whipping their men through these last days of practice before the big games ahead, and will, no doubt, show a different team than that which has been seen in the early games.

Against Electra, the hardest contest, the Coyotes showed up as a well-organized, fighting team, but were not hard pressed to cut loose in the matter of scoring. This may not happen Saturday, as everything possible will, without doubt, be under cover for the winner of the Quanah-Vernon game.

McCallum stated yesterday that he would probably leave the team in Moore's hands Friday while he takes a trip north to see the big game at Vernon. The outcome of this contest will mean simply that the Coyotes' chief and only opponent in this part of the district has been named and chosen. The Wichita Falls game with the winner will come next week.

Sport Snap Shots

Speaking of undefeated champions it affords us great pleasure to state that the fleet pacer Anna Bradford's Girl with a record of 2:01, bred and owned by Fred F. Field, the Brockton Mass., merchant and horseman, is the only horse campaigned on the Grand Circuit this year which was undefeated.

Seems like everything is all serene with Coach Alonzo Stagg's Maroons at the University of Chicago, except that the Midway men need a quarter-back, a field general in other words. The concensus of opinion among western sport writers is that if the veteran coach can solve this problem the Chicago eleven is on the threshold of a Big Ten championship.

The way Knute gridders continue to mow 'em down is a caution. They simply slaughtered Princeton a safety being all that saved the New Jersey men from utter rout. If the South Bend crew keeps up its present gait it will be easy enough to pick the star of 1923 in the grid world.

If our memory serves us correctly there's an old couplet which runs something like this: "For the want of a nail, a ship was tossed; for want of a shoe, a race was lost," which may have something to do with the miserable showing Papyrus made in the international at Belmont Park recently. It seems that Basil Jarvis, his trainer, shod him with smooth aluminum plates, the same he had been used to in his English races, and these forced him to slip and slide around in the slippery going, so that he never could get on his stride. It may be alibi stuff, at that.

However, shoes or no shoes, we do not think that Papyrus could defeat Zev on any kind of a track, anywhere. The son of The Finn is almost a super-horse, greater if you please than Sysonby, Man o' War or even Exterminator. There's only one horse which has a ghost of a chance with him today, and that's none other than Admiral Grayson's My Own.

One of the most laughable and at the same time most pathetic incidents in the sporting world recently was witnessed at Mexico City, when Sam Langford, whom the facetious call "The Boston Tar Baby," knocked out poor old Jim Flynn, the Denver fireman, in the third round of a scheduled fifteen-round setto. As if it were not enough to see these ancient mariners wobble around, Jack Johnson and Frank Moran (ever hear of this pair?) challenged the winner.

That numeral "23" will stick in the craw of the Ohio state gridders forever and ever. It is, you will recall, ancient slang for "go chase yourself." Michigan's unkindly act of hanging a 23 to 0 shanty on Ohio's eye eliminated the Buckeye boys as contenders in the western conference. It's a shame, too, for after their showing against Colgate, it appeared as if they had a chance.

Babe Ruth, who played so consistently throughout the recent world's series at New York, broke one mark that had stood for some little time, that being the matter of bases. The big swatter connected for a total of 19, smashing the old mark of 18 which was the joint property of Dougherty, Buck Herzog and Joe Jackson.

SAYS NOTRE DAME IS UNCONQUERABLE

By The Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 30.—Coach Dan Savage of the St. Louis University football team, returned today from South Bend, Indiana, where he witnessed the Notre Dame-Georgia Tech game Saturday, and expressed the opinion that the Notre Dame team was unconquerable. In announcing his view he used such superlatives as "greatest," "brainiest," and "speediest." He declined to say what success he expects the local aggregation to have against the South Bend eleven Thanksgiving Day.

Sports of 1923

By FEG MURRAY

The All-Hallowe'en Team

Twenty years ago today, Coach Pop Warner's team of Carlisle Indians made football history by defeating Harvard with an unheard of bit of gridiron trickery. Towards the end of the game the Indian player who received the Harvard kickoff was surrounded by his team-mates and the ball thrust beneath the back of his specially prepared sweater. Then the group separated, each running towards the Harvard goal line. The Bostonians, not being able to see who had the ball, were completely fooled and the Red Skins passed through the ranks of the Red Shirts unmolested, scoring the queerest touchdown in history.

Tonight being Hallowe'en, when all good spirits come back to earth, the Red Skins have come from the happy hunting ground to the Ghost League Gridiron, to do their eerie stuff. These Braves go the Carlisle team one better—not only the ball is invisible, but so is the whole team. Coach Setting Bull, having met up with the fire-water boy, has stood up to broadcast his college war whoop, in the hope that Sir Arthur Conan Doyle will pick it up on his ouija board. Here it is—"Spookie Pow Wow, Whiskey Weejee Scalpein Bow Wow, Burnum Tepee—Fire water, Spirits Dragin—Hiawatha, Covered Wagon!"

NOTRE DAME WILL BATTLE PRINCETON AGAIN IN 1924

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—College football schedule makers already are laying plans for the 1924 season.

Prominent among the prospective games is a return engagement between Princeton and Notre Dame. The Hoosiers were still dressing in the field house at Princeton after their 25 to 2 victory over the Tigers when Bill Roper, Nassau coach, came in to congratulate the westerners.

"How about another game next year?" Roper asked Knute Rockne, Notre Dame mentor. "It's o. k. with me," answered Rockne.

"We'll make it a week later," suggested Roper as he jotted the date in a note book.

Grid Gambols

BY T. T. HUNT

Wichita Falls-Hastings, Saturday; Vernon-Quanah, Friday.

B-r-r-r—football weather for the first time this season.

The Coyotes are cutting down the chilling tendencies of a norther with a lot of tough scrimmaging. Mud and cold worries but little the Wichita warriors in their preparations for the coming hard games, even though they don't talk that way. They are busting the old school ground regular enough.

Several changes show up in the scrimmage this week. One is that there are some old men missing and some new ones coming to the fore. Bennett Moore is still out with a bad shoulder received in the Electra game, and though raring to go, the veteran backfield man is not yet permitted to again don the moleskins. He will not be in the game Saturday, but probably in the big game next week.

Dummy Deens is not out this week. The star quarterback just "took out" and it is not known when he will resume the uniform if at all.

Among the very noticeable new changes on the practice field is a new addition to the backfield. Smith, whom McCallum has been using as tackle, has been shifted back to half, and plays a mean game from that position. In fact, Smith promises to prove another backfield find, his case being similar to that of Leo Baldwin, star fullback. Smith is Baldwin's uncle, and outside of ten pounds difference in weight and about half an inch in height, for Smith, the two look like twins out on the field. Not only that, but Smith carries the ball very much like Baldwin, and should he hit a stride anything like that of his nephew, there is a pair of running mates who will walk over any team.

In the words of line—Coach Moore, they're just working the stuffins out of the Coyotes this week. Scrimmage, signals, hikes around the field—keep the boys busy. The game with Hastings Saturday will be no set-up, and no chances will be lost to be ready for them. However, Coach McCallum will handle his men so that there will be as few injuries as possible, for the Coyotes mentor certainly does not want to cripple his team just for the big Quanah or Vernon contest next week.

Baldwin, the big fullback who has been scoring most of the Coyotes' points this season, has a bad ankle and may not get in Saturday's game, stated McCallum yesterday afternoon. The star backfield man must be in best shape for the hard game's ahead.

There is no doubt that Leo Baldwin is all-state material, one of the best side-steppers and plungers anywhere. But he has some good coaching to put him there, and a team to aid his work which has seldom failed to function in unison with him this year. The Coyotes pack a consistent machine, at all times good teamwork, outside of several outstanding stars. Just a few more games and the continued handling by McCallum-Moore and Co. and there will be a hard-hitting machine to represent Wichita Falls in the finals.

Southwestern conference teams stack up something like this for Saturday's games: S. M. U. should beat the T. C. U. Horned Frogs by about three touchdowns. Texas should beat Rice without using much effort and few first string men. The Baylor-A. and M. game, at the Cotton Palace, will be by far the most important game to be played, and will have a most direct bearing upon the entire conference race. With their old team and a new offense, the Aggies are favorites over Baylor, despite the fact that they received a drubbing from S. M. U. last week.

In fact, that defeat last week should put a lot of fight into the Bible aggregation, and will, if former results are an indication. Both the Bears and the Aggies always put up a hard scrap against one another, and the game Saturday should prove one of the best of the season. If Bridges has filled up the breeches in his defense, the battle is assured.

"Silent" Stewart of the Longhorns breks into print with the statement that he doesn't like the Mustang victory which he saw put over A. and M. Friday. His belief that the Aggies will beat the Longhorns Thanksgiving if they go into the game the underdog shows that he is not ignorant of the way these things have gone in Texas for some years. But, he adds that Texas is under the odds, they will be the winner. This is one of the many things which has added interest to the annual game between the two Texas state schools, and unless something bad happens to Texas between now and then, his worst fears may, no doubt, prove well-founded, and he will be his own prophet.

In the big show, Dartmouth and Cornell tangle in what will prove the most interesting game, despite the fact that members of the Big Ten will fight it out in several places. Dartmouth, by virtue of its great victory over Harvard last Saturday, has the odds, but not many.

In dopeing the Quanah-Vernon affair Friday, there must be taken into consideration several things but the results of games played. Both teams will be on edge after the postponement and long wait, and there will be more people and more interests represented at that contest than probably ever attended a game in that section. Vernon is ahead in the scores piled up, but that is not much of a barometer. Just now, reports from Vernon say that interest is keyed high, everybody is scared, and the betting is not showing any odds either way. Quanah will have Chillicothe and other towns down rooting for them, and all the way it looks like a tough game for both teams.

Over 40 per cent of the homes of this country are owned by the occupants, and more than one-half of these are free from debt.

What are the most important points for a backfield man to keep in mind in open field running?

Answered by

R. C. "BOB" ZUPPKE

Head Fotball Coach, University of Illinois. The man who has caused the Illinois teams to be known throughout the country as "The Fighting Illini."

1. To take the shortest distance to the goal.
2. To run as hard, as fast as possible in the spaces between the tacklers, and not to slow down too soon for a change pace or stiff arm.
3. To make use of his interference and not run out into the open too soon and to draw the tackler into his personal interference before he intends to dart out into the open.
4. To avoid being tackled near the side lines, and if tackled near the side lines, to place one foot or hand outside the field of play.
5. While running, not to exhibit his baffling intentions too soon.
6. To be ready to
   a. Change the pace by a stuttering run.
   b. Reverse turn or twist at moment of impact.
   c. Straight arm and fade away.

Quite a bit of difference two years make in a world's series contest. The big bout in 1921 between the Yankees and Giants required eight games and set a new record of $900,233 for receipts. The 1923 series required only six games and the total receipts were $1,063,815. The least said about the 1922 series the better especially from the standpoint of American league adherents.

Champs Now To Fight Challengers Every Six Months

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Boxing must defend the titles in bona fide championship bouts at least once every six months, under a new championship ruling adopted today by the New York state athletic commission.

Failure to do so will result in indefinite suspension for the champion and possibly the forfeiture of his title, while any boxer who engages a suspended champion, in New York or elsewhere, will suffer, in turn indefinite suspension, or the refusal of a license to box in New York.

By adopting this rule, the commission did away with its custom of arbitrarily declaring forfeited the titles of champions who refused to accept challenges, and, in most cases, elevation of challengers to the championship.

BURK BOUTS TO GO ON FRIDAY

The Burkburnett American Legion boxing exhibition which was cheduled to be staged last night, will be held with one change Friday night, it was announced yesterday. Red Byrd, of this city, will meet Battling Simmons of Henrietta, in the main feature of the double bill, instead of Jimmie Carroll, of Fort Worth.

The Byrd-Simmons bout should be a drawing card, as the two have fought some close matches here. Simmons won one, Byrd won one, and one was a draw, out of the three mettings.

The other feature of the bill will be Joe Rivers, the fighting Mexican from Fort Worth, and Kid Snyder, the Burkburnett leather pusher, and popular here. This will be an interesting fight to those fans who have seen both men in action in this city.

Preliminaries will be featured by the darkskin goes, with Rattlesnake of Wichita, and Black Joe of Henrietta. Chocolate Mut and Jeff, local Burkburnett boxers, are on this list.

ZEV IS ENTERED IN FIVE RACES

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Zev, international three year old champion has been entered in the $5,000 autumn championship stakes, fourth race of the final day's card at Empire City track tomorrow. This was revealed late today when an entry list of five horses was announced for this feature, which is for all ges at a mile. Zev is coupled with Bracadale as the Rancocas stable entry.

SEEKING CHURCH AID FOR COURT

'Bitter Enders" Reported Determined Against Measure

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—A few "bitter-enders" are responsible for the churches taking the field in behalf of the United States joining the permanent court of international justice, according to a statement headed "The Reason for This Special Campaign" issued today by the commission on international justice and goodwill of the federal council of churches in explaining why the churches have set aside the period November 5 to 11 as world court week.

The document states that it is creditably reported that a plan is on foot to kill the proposal that the United States should join the permanent court by refusing to report it out by the senate committee on foreign affairs.

The statement is being sent to scores of thousands of clergymen throughout the country for use in their churches and is as follows.

"Indications are abundant that the deliberate public opinion of today is overwhelmingly in favor of our full participation in the court,' said President Harding. A large majority in the senate are believed to be favorable to the late president's proposal. The chamber of commerce of the United States unanimously favors American membership in the world court, while the American bar association by a large majority endorsed Mr. Harding's proposal of February 24, 1923. The American Legion has taken a similar stand, and so have the General Federation of Women's clubs the National League of Women Voters and many other important organizations and groups.

"A few 'bitter-enders' however' are determined to prevent the adoption of President Harding's proposal. A number of them are members of the foreign relations committee of the senate. They are known to be extreme opponents of America's participation in any way whatever in international responsibilities. They belong to both parties.

"It is credibly reported that a plan is already on foot to kill the proposal in the senate committee by refusing to 'report it out' to the senate. This would prevent an open discussion of the question upon its merits and the reaching of a decision in truly democratic way. For unless the proposal is 'reported out' the senate can do nothing to carry out the popular will.

"The time has come, therefore, when every member in the senate should be unmistakably informed of the public opinion of his constitutency. This can be done, under our present system of government, only by expressions of opinion and desire through individual letters, telegrams, and petitions from millions of independent voters. The coming election will be decided by the independent voters.

"This is the situation which makes necessary the present special campaign for a world court week. The welfare of the nation and of the world requires that millions of right-minded men and women in the United States should unitedly and simultaneously inform the president and their senators, with utmost clearness, regarding their desires and convictions in order that the senate may carry through President Harding's proposal, in spite of the violent and undemocratic opposition of a few extremists.

"It is important, moreover, that the proposal itself should not be mutilated and virtually destroyed by specious amendments and reservations."

RAINS INJURING TEXAS-OKLA COTTON

WASHINGTON.—Rains have interfered seriously in Texas and Oklahoma with cotton picking and ginning and the quality of the crop has been impaired, according to the crop report of the federal bureau of agriculture for the middle of October. Some yields are reported higher than it was expected and some sections report that picking is proceeding slowly on account of scarcity of labor. The corn is nearly all gathered in Texas.

The sowing of wheat is well advanced in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas. Ample moisture is reported and what has been sown is reported growing well. Pasturing has commenced in Oklahoma.

Ample moisture is reported for the sowing of oats in Texas.

The flood conditions are reported to have interfered seriously with the picking of cotton and other harvesting in Oklahoma and lowland cotton in the state is said to have been seriously damaged.

Pastures are reported good in Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds tend to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Adv.

STAGE AND SCREEN

By JOSEPHINE FISK

OLYMPIC—"The Virginian," with Florence Vidor and Kenneth Harlan.

STRAND—"Held to Answer," with House Peters and Grace Carlyle.

EMPRESS—Chas. Jones, in "Skid Proof."

GEM—Rin-Tin-Tin, the police dog, in "The Man From Hell's River."

Old-Time O. K.'s Picture.

Col. William E. Hawley, who staked out the town of Casper, Wyoming, where Owen Wister wrote and laid the scenes of his classic novel, "The Virginian," and who was a pal of the novelist more than a quarter of a century ago, was consulted almost daily by director Tom Forman, during the filming of the Preferred Picture version of the novel, now at the Olympic Theater.

Col. Hawley, a white-haired veteran of the early days of the great southwest, was the little "cow town's first mayor and it was while he was Casper's ruling law that Owen Wister made his appearance and pitched his tent on what was then known as "Ten Sleep" river. The young mayor and novelist found much in common and were soon frying each other "flap jacks" for the early morning meal.

The former mayor, now a prosperous oil promoter of Los Angeles, after meeting Kenneth Harlan, who is to play the title role of the cinema version, declared the young actor was the type Wister had in mind when he depicted the hero of his novel.

"I am amazed at the faithful way the picture is unfolding the story," said Hawley. "The scenes are true to life and make me see the days of my young manhood as they were when Wister and I sat and smoked over our campfire. Harlan will make an ideal character for the production."

Harlan has played the part of "The Virginian" in four different companies on the speaking stage. Florence Vidor plays the role of his schoolmistress sweetheart, Molly Wood.

Kipling's "Kim."

It is interesting to note that Maude Adams, one of the best-loved stage stars, is to be a moving picture producer. Time was a few years ago when she looked coldly upon any project for making her a screen luminary.

The actress who brought J. M. Barrie before the public has been in a more receptive mood of late concerning the silversheet, for she has been experimenting and studying films, camera, lighting, etc., for several months. She has succeeded in interesting Rudyard Kipling in her ambitions so that he is willing to give her the motion picture rights to "Kim."

"Kim" has been one of the most sought after stories, but up to the present Mr. Kipling has been unwilling to part with his treasure for picture purposes. It is said that it was through J. M. Barrie that negotiations were conducted.

It will be remembered that Miss Adams has played in several of the Barrie plays and their friendship is of long duration. One condition under which Mr. Kipling sold the motion picture rights of "Kim" was that the title role should be played by a boy, rather than by a girl, and second, that the film should be made in India.

Miss Adams will not appear in the picture herself, she will merely act in the role of the producer. Her present plan is to start for the Orient next winter and to film "Kim" in India, getting all the picturesque atmosphere of the country.

Gloria in "The Humming Bird"

Gloria Swanson has begun work at Paramount's Long Island studio in "The Humming Bird," with Sidney Olcott as charge d'affaires. This is an adaptation by Forrest Halsey of Maude Fulton's play.

The star's role is that of a girl of the Paris underworld, leader of the Apaches, whose undaunted courage makes her a heroic figure during the dark days of the World War.

Jackie's Prize Chest.

Jackie Coogan, who recently completed his first Metro picture, "Long Live the King," a film version of the famous novel by Mary Roberts Rinehart, is now the proud possessor of a chest which was made for Charles II of England and given by him to the notorious Duches Du Maine. The chest, presented to Jackie by Karl Freund, is three feet wide and four deep, lacquered, pearl inlaid, and has several trick compartments—a necessity of that early period due to the highwaymen. The chest is worth several thousand dollars.

Another Woman's Wife.

How may a woman make a favorable impression on a man when they dine together for the first time?

Here is a question of interest to every woman. It is cleverly answered in "Everyday Love," William de Mille's forthcoming production for Paramount. In a pretty scene of that picture, Agnes Ayres and Jack Holt dine in a restaurant. It is here that Clara Beranger, who adapted the picture, says by means of a subtitle:

"When a woman wants to please a man who prides himself on his skill in ordering, she says simply: 'You order, please.'"

According to Miss Beranger, it pleases the vanity of a man thus to be given the confidence of a woman. Miss Ayres quite agrees and even admits that she has made use of this "woman's weapon" herself.

Some News Story!

"Wouldn't that make a peach of a newspaper story if it were to actually happen today," remarked James Leo Meehan, director of "A Girl of the Limberlost," during the filming of the remarkable swamp scene which is one of the impressive chapters of Gene Stratton-Porter's famous book, the picturization of which she is now making and personally supervising. The scene shows the tragic death of an erring husband who takes a short cut home and stumbles into the treacherous mire of a swamp and is slowly engulfed while his frantic wife helplessly watches him. Emily Fitzroy, who enacts the role of the Mrs. Kate Comstock of the story, is vividly realistic in the part.

Mr. Meehan is a former newspaper man and from the viewpoint of the city editor grasped the possibilities of a front page spread that would follow the real life occurrence of the scene which he had just directed.

"Well it actually did happen once," said Mrs. Porter. "That's how it got into the story."

"Secrets" Is Norma's Next.

Norma Talmadge will be under the direction of Frank Borzage, creator of "Humoresque," during her next picture which will be an adaptation of Margaret Lawrence's stage success, "Secrets," by Rudolph Besier and May Edginton. Miss Talmadge is at present completing "Dust of Desire," and "Secrets" will be started immediately thereafter. The continuity is being prepared by Frances Marion who, with Chester Franklin, is directing "Dust of Desire."

Eugene O'Brien, who played opposite Miss Talmadge in some of the earlier pictures, will again be seen with the star.

"To the Ladies."

Final scenes have just been taken in James Cruze's latest Paramount production, "To the Ladies," a picture version of the well-known Kaufman-Connolly stage comedy. It is a story of satire and comedy telling how a clerk in a piano factory landed an executive position through the help of his wife.

The featured players are Edward Horton, who had the role of Ruggles in "Ruggles of Red Gap," another James Cruze production; Theodore Roberts, Helen Jerome Eddy and Louise Dresser. Others in the cast include Z. Wall Covington, Patricia Palmer, Arthur Hoyt and Jack Gardner.

Reginald Denny Injured.

Reginald Denny, Universal-Jewel star, was seriously injured several days ago in an automobile accident near Los Angeles. Denny will be laid up for some time.

His injuries consist mostly of severe strains, cuts and bruises. He was riding in an automobile with Ben Hendricks, an assistant director for Universal. The car skidded, crashed into a telegraph pole and turned turtle. Hendricks also was injured.

Denny had just completed work on "The Spice of Life," in which he took the role of a racing automobile driver. He passed through a number of hazardous experiences during the making of the picture, only to be injured in a matter of fact ride home from the studio.

WHEAT MARKET AGAIN RALLIES

Eastern Market Serves to Check Falling Prices

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Although wheat averaged a little lower in price today, eastern buying brought about rallies. Imports of Canadian wheat into the United States had some bearish influence, but sellers were cautious on account of the possibility of government action which might give an advantage to bulls. The close was unsettled, at 1-8 cent net decline to 1-8@1-4 cent advance, with December 1.05 7-8@1.06, and May 1.10@1.10 3-4. Corn finished unchanged to 1-8 cent lower; oats 1-8@1-4 cent off and provisions unchanged to 2 cents higher.

Seasonable readjustment of corn prices from an old crop to a new crop basis led to a drop of as much as 10 cents a bushel in the value of old corn. New crop deliveries held steady owing to unfavorable weather. Oats sagged a little with corn.

Upturns in the price of hogs gave strength to provisions.

Cottonseed Oil.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Cottonseed oil was sharply higher, with commission house shorts competing for the light pit offerings. Closing bids were 25 to 35 points net higher. Sales 17,400 barrels. Prime crude 9.75@10.00; prime summer yellow spot 12.00 bid; November closed 11.70; December 11.42; March 11.52; May 11.66, all bid.

MONEY At Work

Brief but important lessons in finance, markets, stocks, bonds and investments.

At times we have a national catastrophe, which precipitates a break in the stock market. Why should the market go down so suddenly?

At the time of the San Francisco fire and earthquake, the stock market dropped like a shot.

It may seem strange to many people that the market should fall just because there was a fire in San Francisco.

How about all of the insurance companies that had to sell securities to pay off claims? What of the countless number of individuals who lost everything in the fire except their stocks and bonds which they had to sell to get money to live on? Many companies who had advanced goods to merchants in San Francisco would never be paid. For all these reasons there would be a deluge of selling orders.

Who is going to furnish the buying power to offset all of that selling? The market is governed by supply and demand, so naturally if a deluge of selling orders come in, it drops suddenly until prices are low enough to attract many new buyers.

The Japanese catastrophe did not break our market because there is relatively little exchange of investments between the two countries.

New Orleans Cotton.

By The Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 30.—Most positions in the cotton market today made new high levels for the season and spots remained at 30.50 for middling, the peak price of the season thus far. December was advanced to 30.56 cents a pound. Gains were scored in the face of a great deal of pre-bureau liquidation from the long side and were mainly due to continued unfavorable weather in the eastern belt, although some buying was induced by a continued good demand for spots and telegrams from Galveston estimating end of the month clearances for foreign exports out of that port at 160,000 bales as against previous estimates of 100,000.

In the early trading losses of 1 to 12 points were made in sympathy with a poor Liverpool market but when December touched 30.26 new buying came in and during the remainder of the session values were fairly well supported by a scattering demand which at one stage had the list 12 to 24 points higher than the last sales of yesterday. In the late trading there were small sags and the close was net unchanged to four points higher the last sale of December being at 30.35.

ROBBINS TO SPEAK AT LIONS MEET

An electric train which supplies its own power has been invented by a South African railway engineer.

STOCK MARKET IS REACTIONARY

Heavy Selling of Oil Stocks Weakens All Structures

Market Features.

Total stock sales 576,300 shares.

Twenty industrials averaged 85.93; net loss .27.

High 1923, 105.38; low 86.01.

Twenty railroads averaged 80.31; net loss .21.

High 1923, 90.51; low 79.53.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Heavy selling of the oil shares, based on a further reduction in midcontinent crude oil prices, imparted a reactionary tone to today's stock market. Speculation for the decline was influenced also by the relatively high renewal rate for call money, lower refined sugar prices and the cut in the National Enameling dividend from $6 to $4 annually.

Declaration of an extra dividend of 1-4 to 1 per cent on the common stock of the United States Steel corporation proved to be one of Wall Street's most carefully guarded secrets. The announcement was made after the market closed, the stock showing a net loss of 1 1-8 at 86 3-8, the final quotation.

Foreign exchanges held steady, demand sterling being quoted around $4.48 3-8, French francs around 5.87 cents and Italian lire around 4.50 cents. German marks fell back to one cent a billion.

Mixed price changes took place when the market opened with most of the leading industrials displaying a firm tone. The cut in prices announced by the Magnolia Petroleum company was ignored for a time but before noon the selling orders in the oil group increased and losses in the low price shares ran from 1 to 2 1-2 points with Marland and Producers and Refiners sagging to new low levels for the year.

National Enameling dropped 2 5-8 points in direct reflection of the reduced dividend. Dupont, in which a pool is reported to be operating slipped back 3 5-8 points. Stewart Warner had a perpendicular drop of nearly 4 points just before the close. Chain Store and shippings, which have been strong lately, yielded with the rest of the list, Woolworth dropping 6 1-2 points, Marine preferred 1 1-8 and American International corporation 1 1-2.

Call money opened at five per cent, eased off to 4 1-2 and thence to 4 where it closed. Time money was dull and easier, brokers' bidding 4 3-4 for 30 and 60 days funds and bankers holding out for five per cent.

Fort Worth Livestock.

By The Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Oct. 30.—Considerably more moderate receipts of cattle and calves arrived Tuesday and the market was quick to respond to reduction, steers being steady, cows 15 to 25 cents higher; heifers, yearlings and bulls strong and calves strong to 25 cents higher. Receipts were estimated at 3,500 head of cattle and 1,000 calves.

All classes of cows sold to better advantage and the trade was rather sold mostly at 1.50 to 1.75 and cutters went at 2.00 to 2.65. Bulls sold on as fully a steady basis, the best individuals clearing at 3.50 to 3.75.

Receipts of calves were almost too small to make a market quotable. Tuesday's top in carlots was 5.50, with less than carlots selling up to 5.75.

Conditions in the stocker and feeder division remained quotably unchanged.

Forenoon receipts of hogs were limited to 700 head. Prices were called around steady, the top being 7.35, which shippers paid, with bulk sales at 7.00 to 7.30.

Sheep house receipts were placed at 250 head. The market was in line with Monday's closing advances of 25c on wethers, which sold at 6.75.

YAMS ON DISPLAY BY GRAHAM MAN

Special to The Record News.

GRAHAM, Texas, Oct. 30.—T. P. Simpson, living six miles south of Graham, has on display three large Porto Rican Yams grown on his farm. The largest weighs four and one-eighth pounds, the next three pounds and the smallest one pound. The three together weigh approximately eight pounds. They will be placed on exhibit at the Young county fair in Graham, November 8, 9 and 10.

Bavarian Soldiers, Hungry For Conflict Ready to March

Bavarian sharpshooters snapped on return from fighting Poles in Upper Silesia, near Pschlersee.

The monarchist troops of Bavaria, under the leadership of Von Ludendorff, are thirsting for war, according to reports from the German state which has just seceded from the German federation. They are ready to march against Communist ruled Saxony or Thuringia, which fears both invasion by Bavaria or Saxony. Ruppercht has been proclaimed king on public appearances.

RAIN HELP IN GRAHAM AREA

Special to The Record News.

GRAHAM, Texas, Oct. 30.—A slow heavy rain fell here and in surrounding territory Saturday night and practically all day Sunday. This puts the best season in the ground in some time and prospects are much more jubilant than 60 days ago. The Brazos river and creeks are up, the tanks are full and livestock will face the winter in good condition with plenty of grass. Some of the land has already been broken for wheat, a good yield of oats was made, and an average crop of cotton with high prices. When Thanksgiving comes around the farmers will have something to be thankful for.

FIRE IN GRAHAM RAILWAY STATION

Special to The Record News.

GRAHAM, Texas, Oct. 30.—Fire breaking out in the express office of the American Express company, spread to the adjoining building of the Rock Island freight station and destroyed the warehouse Saturday night leaving only the freight offices intact. The burned space is between the express and freight offices and represents about 140 feet of building. Two box cars along the platform were burned. The loss to freight in storage is about $2,000 with about $15,000 on the building. The express records were burned but those in the freight section were saved. The fire is of unknown origin. Work was begun Monday morning on rebuilding the structure.

Foundations of ornithology were laid by two Englishmen in the seventeenth century.

Rotten Row, the fashionable equestrian promenade in London, is one and a half miles long.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The cotton market was rather nervous and irregular today but early declines on talk of an easier spot basis were followed by rallies on reports of very unfavorable weather in the southwest. January contracts sold up from 30.12 to 30.48, making a net advance of 22 points and new high ground for the season on this delivery. January closed at 30.31, with the general market closing irregular at net advances of 4 to 25 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 5 to 10 points because of rather disappointing Liverpool cables and realizing or liquidation. There were rallies of several points reached after the call on reports of rains in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, but they met increased offerings and the market was rather weak late in the morning with reactionary sentiment considerably in evidence around the ring. This appeared to be based on an idea that reduced crop estimates had been pretty well discounted and that the market was likely to feel the weight of spot offerings at the 30 cent level after October engagements had been filled. After selling off to 30.54 for December and 30.12 for March or about 12 to 21 points below yesterday's closing figures, however, the market rallied on the western belt forecast for freezing weather to follow today's rains.

Buying became a little more active in consequence and proved sufficient to send prices up to 30.96 for December and 30.48 for March. Realizing checked the advance at these figures and caused reactions of several points from the best in the late trading. Business was comparatively quiet during the entire day.

LEGAL NOTICE.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION
THE STATE OF TEXAS.

To the Sheriff or any Constable of Wichita County: Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon W. O. Ashley by making publication of this citation once each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular term of the 78th District Court of Wichita County, to be holden at the Court House thereof in Wichita Falls, on the 1st Monday in December A. D. 1923 the same being the 3rd day of December A. D. 1923. Then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 29th day of October A. D. 1923 in a suit, numbered on the docket of said Court No. 14981-B wherein, Pearl Ashley is Plaintiff and W. O. Ashley is Defendant and said petition alleging, That plaintiff and defendant were lawfully married in May 1919, and continued to live together until on or about September 12th, 1923, when by reason of the cruel treatment of plaintiff by defendant she was forced to leave him, and that he would often curse and abuse her, and on numerous occasions has committed an assault on said plaintiff; that just prior to their separation defendant came home drunk and assaulted and abused plaintiff and took his clothes and left and since said time plaintiff has not seen nor heard of defendant. Wherefore plaintiff prays for decree of divorce, and for cost of suit, etc.

Herein Fail Not, but have before said Court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and the Seal of said Court, at office in Wichita

CITATION BY PUBLICATION.
THE STATE OF TEXAS.
And County of Wichita.

To C. L. Watt, and his executor, and administrator, his heirs and all unknown heirs of C. L. Watt, and all unknown owners, and claimants and all lien holders in and to said property, and all persons owning or having or claiming any interest in the land or lots hereinafter described, the same being delinquent to the state of Texas and county of Wichita, for taxes, and the same lying and being situated in the county of Wichita, and state of Texas, to-wit: Lot No. Seven (7) in block No. One Hundred Seven (107) in Floral Heights addition to the city of Wichita Falls, Texas, as per map or plat now on record in the deed records of Wichita county, Texas; which said property is delinquent to the state of Texas and county of Wichita for taxes for the year 1919-1921 and 1922 aggregating the sum of $29.79, including interest, penalties and costs, said taxes having been legally levied, assessed and rendered against said lands and lots, and the same being a lawful charge and constituting a prior lien against the same in favor of the state of Texas and county of Wichita to secure the payment thereof.

And you are hereby commanded to be and appear before the Honorable Seventy-eighth district court of Wichita county, Texas, at the next regular term thereof, to be held at the courthouse of said county in the city of Wichita Falls on the 1st Monday in December A. D. 1923, the same being the 3rd day of December A. D. 1923, then and there to show cause why judgment should not be rendered against you and the said land and lots sold under foreclosure of said lien to satisfy said taxes, interest, penalties and costs, and all court costs; all of which, together with other and further relief, general and special, being fully set out and prayed for in the plaintiff's first amended original petition filed in said court on the 12th day of October, and appearing on the docket thereof as suit No. 2585-B, wherein the state of Texas is plaintiff and C. L. Watt, his executor and administrator, his heirs and all unknown heirs of C. L. Watt, and all unknown owners and claimants and all lien holders in and to said property, and all persons owning or having or claiming any interest in said land or lots defendants.

Given under my hand and seal of said court, at office in the city of Wichita Falls, in the county of Wichita, this 15th day of October A. D., 1923.

Many Women Here Jailed By County

Matron's Report Shows 305 Committed in 9 Months; Few Are Negroes

Startlings revelation as to the number of female law breakers confined in the county jail the last nine months, their ages, habits and attitudes are revealed in a report just made out by Mrs. Harley Snyder, matron in the women's department of the county jail, which will be used by authorities at the state welfare convention which meets here next week.

Mrs. Snyder's report shows that 305 women have been confined in the county jail in the nine month period between January 1 and October 1, last. Some of the women, the report shows, have been placed in jail from one to 12 times, making the total number of entries for the period total 350.

Of the 305 women committed to jail in the nine month period, only 30 have been negroes, leaving 225 whites. The report shows that not a single Mexican woman was committed. The fact that Wichita Falls has such a small Mexican population in comparison to other large Texas cities is responsible for there being no women among the Mexicans here arrested, it is thought.

Another fact shown in the report which is not generally suspected is that 50 per cent of all females committed are of Indian descent. Dr. Carrie Weaver Smith of Gainesville, state president of the Welfare council which convenes here next week, will explain why Indian blood mixed with other nationalities produces criminal instincts in the women who go to jail.

Of all the white women and girls who find their way to the county jail the report shows that 90 per cent of them are alcoholic addicts. Though prohibition is the vogue the report alarmingly shows there is little if any decrease in the number of women brought to jail on various drunk charges. Among the negro women who are sent to jail the report shows that 98 per cent of them are addicted to alcholic uses.

The ages at which women violate the law the most and are then sent to the county jail, range from 17 to 20. Women between the ages of 17 to 30 constitute 70 per cent of the more than 300 women placed in the Wichita county jail the past nine months. Very young offenders, those from 12 to 17 years, constitute 20 per cent of those committed.

That women more than 30 years of age violate the law very little in comparison to those younger is shown by the report. Only 10 per cent of the total number of female law violators are between the ages of 30 and 50.

The report does not show the per cent of women committed who have veneral diseases. It states however, that the greatest number of veneral cases are prevalent in the cases of those from 17 to 30.

The matron, Mrs. Snyder, says that delinquent girls are oftimes picked up homeless on the streets, who have never committed any wrong and have left their homes for various reasons. These girls are for the most part between 12 and 17 years of age. Mrs. Snyder says these are not placed in cells with the older women but are put by themselves until a home or job is found for them.

Mrs. Snyder says that in several instances when delinquent girls have been found and the jail was so crowded the prisoner could not be placed by herself, that she, the matron, has taken them in her own apartments and kept them sometimes a week. "We never turn such girls out until we have found a home for them or have gotten them a job," Mrs. Snyder said.

At the state welfare convention which begins next Sunday the greatest social and welfare workers of the nation are to be present and a thorough study of the local situation is to be made, according to officials.

HOT LUNCHES AT 2 COUNTRY SCHOOLS

Miss Georgia Lansford, county demonstration agent, has succeeded in establishing a system of hot lunches in the schools at County Line, and Barwise. The farmers are donating supplies until the system begins to pay for itself, when equipment will be installed and the lunches placed on a basis where they will pay for themselves.

Boys' and girls' clubs have been reorganized at County Line, Enterprise, Barwise, Lakeview and a new club started at Allandale.

The mother's club at County Line is giving a box supper Friday evening, November 9, proceeds of which will go for playground equipment and equipment for the serving of hot lunches.

HERE'S RECORD TO BE PROUD OF

Kills and Fries Fowl in 3:25 Flat

Question: How long would it take a middle-aged housewife weighing 200 pounds to dress and cook one chicken weighing 2 pounds?

Answer: About ten times as long as it would a man 49 years old, weighing 215 pounds, to kill, dress, and fry a chicken weighing 2 pounds.

In a tense, thrilling contest between two long experienced cooks, one 50 years old and weighing 245 pounds, and the other 49 years old today, and weighing 215 pounds, the latter yesterday ably defended his title and retained his belt of the champion fast chicken cook this side of the Mississippi. Just 2 minutes and 15 seconds were consumed by the champ from the time the live chicken was handed to him until he set it out on the table, fried to a turn. The loser lost in getting his fowl out of the grease, doing the trick in the hardly less rapid time of 2:30. Just one and a half minutes were consumed by the cooks in killing, dressing, and getting the fowls in the grease.

The champion chicken chef is Jack Sawyer, manager of the Gumbo Barbecue Cafe, at which eating place at Tenth and Ohio the contest was held yesterday afternoon. The runner-up is W. T. "Fatty" Broxson. Sawyer won a Hallowe'en horn and a mask as the prize upon the chicken race, of which he seemed mighty proud.

Tom Sawyer had nothing on his namesake, when it comes to getting rid of chicken featers. The trick was done by the two cooks something in this order: jecked chicken's head off; sent a cloud of featers flying all around; skinned fowl, avoiding flying feet; chopped off feet and head; laid chicken open, with one twist of the knife; disemboweled pullet; chopped victim into two-four pieces; pitched parts in frying grease; fished chicken out—done to order. This recipe, if followed, gives quickest results.

Although no handicap was given "Fatty" Broxson, it had been previously decided that a footrace would be held immediately after the cooking to decide at once whether Sawyer had the advantage in weight and who was to eat the chicken not served to the judges. Vowing that he would outdo his lighter opponent on foot, Broxon himself set a track record when he dashed madly across Ohio a nose ahead of Sawyer and won the thirty-yard dash in eight and one-half seconds, flat.

The race broke all predictions of the judges in that they allowed that the chickens might be done in five minutes but that the footrace would consume more time. Moreover, Sawyer put to rest all former opinions that he was spoofing when he said he could do the chicken stunt in less than five minutes, making it a successful day all the way around.

TEXHOMA ONLY DRILLING OFFSETS

Mr. Sheldon of the Texhoma Oil and Refining company stated Tuesday that only offset wells were being drilled at present by that company at the present time they have four rigs running in the Electra field on the W. T. Waggoner land.

All these wells will be drilled to the 1900 foot sand.

FUNERAL HELD FOR C. C. BUNNENBURG

At 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon funeral services for C. C. Bunnenberg, who died Sunday morning at his home, 1103 Bluff street, were conducted at the family residence. Dr. N. F. Grafton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church conducted the service. Burial was made in Riverside cemetery with full Masonic ceremony.

The active pallbearers were W. W. Gardner, Frank Collier, J. R. Bachman, K. E. Bauch, P. B. Curd, and W. Y. Hamnock. The honorary pallbearers were E. V. Friberg, M. J. Gardner, N. M. Clifford, L. I. Bennett, Orville Bullington, Reece S. Allen, N. H. Martin, Homer Karrenbrock, A. Zandelowitz, I. R. Markowitz, R. B. Scott John Bradley, W. J. Davis, R. G. Karrenbrock and M. Mohler.

Mr. Bunnenberg was born in Hanover, Germany in 1860. He came to the United States when he was 21 years old and settled in Missouri. He lived there until he moved to Wichita Falls. During his many years residence here he has formed many acquaintances and was one of the well known men of the city. He was active in civil circles and in Masonic affairs until forced to give them up because of ill health.

Surviving Mr. Bunnenberg are his wife and three sons, Edward, Harry and C. C. Bunnenberg, Jr., and two daughters, Miss Eldora Bunnenberg and Mrs. Edna Vogt, all of Wichita Falls.

TWO ARE DEAD IN HOSPITALS HERE

Ed Trantham, 45, died at the General hospital Tuesday noon. The body will be held at the Merkle Undertaking parlors until this afternoon when it will be forwarded to Hope, Arkansas.

Surviving Mr. Trantham are his wife and step-daughter, who will accompany the body to Arkansas, and one sister who lives in that state.

M. D. Liles, aged 47, of Electra, died at 9:20 Tuesday morning at the Wichita Hospital following an illness of several weeks.

Mr. Liles is survived by his mother of Electra, and a sister who lives in Deer Creek, Oklahoma. The body is being held at the Merkle Undertaking parlors awaiting funeral arrangements.

PLAYERS MEET HELD TODAY

Community players will hold their regular meeting today noon at the Kemp. No program other than volunteer talks by the members has been arranged.

Bridging the Gap

In the early days of America when the railroads started to lay their transcontinental lines, the engineer was confronted with large cavities in the earth's surface, which had to be bridged. THEY BRIDGED THEM because they were prepared.

Your road to success will be interrupted with gaps—will you have the money to build across it or will your road end on this side?

Now is the time to decide.
