Junction, Kimble County, Texas, Friday, September 19, 1924.

Number 22.

KIMBLE COUNTY GETS VALUABLE PUBLICITY.

Some weeks ago Mr. Frank Briggs, editor of Farm and Ranch, was a visitor here and according to his own statement, enjoyed the two weeks stay to the fullest extent. In fact, he was so impressed with the desirability of the country as a vacation spot, and with the hospitality of the Junction Chamber of Commerce and Mr. Harde man, at whose camp he spent the time, that he prepared an exceptionally fine publicity article which ran in Farm and Ranch some two or three weeks ago.

This article was well illustrated with views of the Hill Country and carried an unusual appeal to those seeking a place to spend their vacation in their own state, which would be superior to the more widely known resorts in Colorado and California. As an advertising feature for Kimble County, the value of this courtesy of Mr. Briggs and Col. Holland cannot be estimated.

Sunday's Fort Worth Record carried another very valuable publicity article that was read by thousands and doubtless will be the means of directing hundreds of vacationists this way in the future. A half page of pictures of the Hill Country around Junction was used as well as the splendid article. Credit for this publicity is due Mr. Hamilton Wright, West Texas editor of the Record. Some months ago the Eagle editor met Mr. Wright at Amarillo and had a long talk with him about the Hill Country around Junction as a pleasure resort. He had recently visited here and was sold on the possibilities of this country and promised this editor that the Record would do more than its share in telling the world about Junction.

MEXICANS CELEBRATE INDEPENDENCE DAY.

The Mexican population of this county had an Independence Day celebration at the Schreiner Park Monday and Tuesday of this week that was well attended by the Mexicans and many Americans, especially at night, when a Mexican orchestra from San Antonio played at the dance platform.

Everything passed off quietly the natives of the Republic to the south seemed to enjoy the occasion to the fullest extent.

The 16th of September, 1924, was the 114th anniversary of the first declaration of independence for the Priest Hidalgo. Through his efforts the country was freed from Spanish rule.

The stage was beautifully decorated. On one side was the red, white and green, the national colors of Mexico, and on the other the red white and blue of America. A large Mexican flag hung at one side, and a large American flag at the other.

Miss Coonie Brown of Richland Springs returned to her home Monday after a very pleasant visit with Miss Modelle Jones.

Junction and Kimble County. The article in last Sunday's Record is the result, and will probably not be the last valuable publicity article that this country will receive from the Record and Mr. Wright.

The citizens generally and the Chamber of Commerce in particular, are very grateful to Messrs. Briggs and Wright for the above mentioned articles and will always extend them a hearty welcome to the Hill Country around Junction, and will see that their visits here are very pleasant ones.

HARD FOUGHT POLO GAME FAIR PROSPECT.

Visitors at the Kimble County Fair next week, September 23rd and 24th, are assured plenty of entertainment. One of the main features of the program will be a polo game between the Watson Divide Boys and the Copperas Creek Boys—a real cowboy vs. cowboy game, and it promises to be a fast one, too, for the Copperas boys are going to make every effort to defeat the Watson Divide boys, who have built up quite a reputation throughout this section of the country. Two recent games were played between these teams, resulting in a final game count of one to one, with an even number of points for the two games.

Messrs. O. W. Cardwell, Marvin and Orville Cowsett and Joe Watson will represent the Watson Divide, while Messrs. Ed Iode, Herbert and Emmet Simon and Aubrey Hill and Smith will play on the Copperas team, the last two playing alternately, the fourth man.

The Watson Divide boys won a game and lost a game with the Army players from Fort Clark, who are among the best in the Southwest, during the July Barbecue; and with the Copperas boys running a close second, these two games next week will be of more than ordinary interest to those who enjoy this fine sport.

The games will be played in the Skaggs pasture, three miles north of town, and the boys will ride their own horses.

Miss Nellie Bennett will leave next week for Austin where she will enter the State University. She was one of the graduates of Junction High School last year and the record she made in this school insures a splendid one at the University.

MANY PATRONS ATTEND OPENING OF SCHOOL.

The beautiful new Junction school building was thrown open Monday morning to the school children of this district and the many visitors who were out for the opening exercises.

While there were not as many patrons present as there should have been, there were doubtless more than has ever attended a school opening here before.

A feeling of pride in the fine new building, and a general spirit of optimism was radiating from the faces of school children and older people alike. Everyone fell into the spirit of the occasion and those who expressed themselves, felt that Junction has the brightest educational prospects in its history.

While the opera chairs have not arrived, temporary seats were provided and the exercises held in the auditorium.

Oren C. Reid, president of the School Board, presided, announcing the following program: Song, "America"; Invocation by Rev. Parker; Song, "Good Morning," by the Primary pupils, lead by Miss Austin Durst; Talk by Superintendent Miller; Talk by County Superintendent Baker; Song, "Star Spangled Banner;" Talk by Mrs. Riley, president of the Parent-Teachers' Association; Miss Lois Hankins was at the new Wurlitzer Studio Piano, which was delivered by G. M. Doyle that morning, the gift to the school by the Parent-Teachers' Association. This high grade piano is a valuable addition to the school equipment, and was sold to the P.T. Association by Mr. Doyle at a nice reduction in price, as his part in helping the school.

At the close of the program, Mr. Reid spoke a few words in behalf of the trustees, who have given much of their time during the past few months to looking after the work connected with the construction of the building.

L. A. TAYLOR BUYS J. C. MORRIS INTEREST.

A deal was recently negotiated whereby L. A. Taylor purchased the interest of J. C. Morris in the grocery and feed business conducted at the old Allen Produce stand, under the name of L. A. Taylor & Co. and the name of the firm will hereafter be L. A. Taylor.

Mr. Taylor recently sold his residence purchased from Roy Skaggs last year, to C. G. Montgomery and has moved to the W. M. Allen residence just east of the Taylor store building.

Mr. Taylor will continue the business as heretofore, carrying a complete line of fancy and staple groceries, and making a specialty of stock salt and feed of all kinds.

Superintendent Miller made the announcements for the school, and after a short recess pupils went to their respective rooms for classification and to secure books.

Mrs. Riley told of the things the P.T. Association had done, and what it hoped to do, and asked for the fullest co-operation and support of all those interested in the welfare of the school. Supt. Miller thanked the many patrons who were out for the opening and invited all patrons to visit the school often and keep in close touch with what the faculty was doing for the boys and girls who are being educated in the Junction school. Judge Baker recounted some of his experiences as a former student of the school, and spoke of the progress that had been made along educational lines during the past twenty years.

Sallie's Temptations

SALLIE CHANGES HER PLAN OF ACTION.

"You don't approve of flappers, do you?" I asked Mr. Wright, as we left the driveway and he turned my roadster into the elm-bordered road.

"As far as I know," he responded, whimsically, "I don't believe I've ever known one of the home-wrecking, heart-devastating creatures at close range enough to pass judgment. Once again I felt that he was ridiculing me, or either he preferred not to commit himself on the subject.

"Oh, you needn't think you can crawl out of it," I persisted. "I've heard all that you've said about us." I was determined to have his opinion so that I could quote him to the girls, who would be clamoring for news when they heard that I had been out with the celebrated architect, whose arrival had been heralded in the social columns.

"Hear what I said about you," he was replying to my accusation. "Who I've only said the pleasure of knowing you a few hours. Fair Lady, and," he hurried on, "as much as I dislike to reopen an unpleasant subject, it is almost necessary that I ask you which is the road that will bring us to the Davis."

"Honestly, Mr. Wright," I implored, "after hearing the family dissertation on that subject, did you really have any idea that we were going there where we once got started?"

"But your father—I am his guest—I recall his insisting and telling you—"

"Did YOU ever do everything

YOUR father told you to do, Mr. Goodie-Goody?" I interrupted. "And as for your being implicated, I guarantee to protect you. If father finds out that we ditched the Davis funeral, I won't let him scold you for leading his little, bitty baby-girl astray. Really, I won't. I'll protect you." I teased, with maddening solemnity.

"All right, you win," he answered with a sort of I-can't-stand-much-of-that-in-his-resignation. "Where to, then, My Princess? I'm at your service." "To the right," I commanded, and moved over as I gave the direction. "We're going to the party at Atlantic Beach. The bunch knows I'd get there some way or other."

He faced me for a moment, and I noticed from the rays of an art light that there were little lines around his eyes, caused not so much from laughter, but from a keen, appreciating sense of life and its complicated situations, which, I judged, he had grown to handle philosophically.

I asked him to raise the windshield. I loved the breeze thrum my hair. It always gave me the thought of freedom and the wide, wide world.

"Watch your step on it," I moved over a bit closer. The road stretched ahead with beckoning fingers, and there swept over me the strange, nomadic emotion that comes when I follow a road that leads on and on with no turning.

"Tastes will be an oasis," I said enthusiastically. "Slowly, but surely I am sinking. By the way," I continued, "how many did you and father have before dinner?" "Little 'bitty' girls shouldn't ask so many questions," he mimicked me perfectly, but I noticed that the speed of the car increased slightly.

At last the light of the road-house! The subdued yellow glow reached out through the darkness—friendly and alluring.

"Come ahead, and I'll introduce you to some of those notorious flappers." I tried to look like a deacon and, taking his hand, we started toward the austere cast by the wrought-iron lanterns.

"Hurrah, it's Sallie!" yelled one of a group standing on the veranda. I could see that the party was well under way, and that it needed no assistance on our part to keep up its hilarity. They crowded about us, and although I knew I was one of them, I also realized that some of their enthusiasm was of the half-fellow-well-met variety that makes even an unpopular arrival at a party feel welcome and a popular person a riot.

"Hear ye all!" I announced, hopping onto a chair and drawing my words like a State Fair squawker. "It's the famous Mr. Wright I'm introducing, the well-known architect who builds the floors of his houses with women's hearts—to tramp on." I ended. Mr. Wright laughingly threatened to pull the chair from under me and there was one thing I observed about him: while he was certainly not at ease in our crowd, he had evidently made up his mind to enter into the things as wholeheartedly as possible. The way he took my foolishness was nothing short of splendid sportsmanship.

"Drink anything, Sallie?" asked Ted Billings, who had been standing by my side since our approach was signaled.

"Yes, anything," I responded, and we moved towards the well-known room at the far end of the inn, overlooking the ocean. The pleasing sound of cracked ice against the metal cocktail shakers brought the rest of the crowd, and soon there prevailed a spirit of gay camaraderie.

"I'm famished," I sighed dejectedly, holding out my glass to the "bar-tender." "Refill the prescription. That was a pretty good sample."

I began to feel reckless. Then the unexpected happened. (To be continued.)

Green C. Reid recently sold his residence to Doug Jones of Segovia, who will move here to place his children in school. Mr. Reid and family are living on his farm just east of town, with Mr. and Mrs. Sheppard.

OLDSMOBILE OF 1900 BEING USED IN EGYPT.

Still using the little one-cylinder Oldsmobile which he purchased in 1900 is the record of Dr. J. W. Faulkner, physician at Cairo, Egypt, formerly of New York City, according to W. N. Johnson of the Johnson Supply Company.

The little car is in perfect running condition," he states. "It does not give me any more trouble than when first purchased. Although it may lack many of the modern accessories and features of the new car it gives perfect satisfaction. My little Oldsmobile has been a great aid to me throughout these last 24 years. In fact, it has been more like a pal. I would not care to part with it for any of the late models."

Dr. Faulkner is known by the inhabitants as the "Doctor on wheels."

THE HEART OF THE HOME IS MUSIC

It makes a heap of 'em in a house 't make a home.
—EDGAR A. MORT

A HOUSE becomes a home because of what is in it. There must be joy and contentment and love—a sharing of hopes and griefs and pleasures—the giving and taking which join one to another.

Music clothes the very furniture and fills each room with sunshine, cheer and comradeship. It is the very essence of home life, and without it a house is little more than a place of shelter. It keeps the boys and girls within the family circle and helps to develop the family ties. It creates a desire for wholesome enjoyment, so important in character forming.

You can make your home more attractive by that most satisfying pleasure to be found anywhere—an attractive home life. "Music in the home puts sunshine in the heart."

OLD SPANISH TRAIL HIGHWAY NEWS.

Road matters in Sutton County were thoroughly studied this week and plans discussed to prevent any distress to travel over the Old Spanish Trail during wet weather this winter.

Harrol B. Ayres, managing director of the Old Spanish Trail, arrived from San Antonio Monday. The Commissioners' Court was in session two days, and the Division Engineer, A. F. Moursund came over from San Angelo. H. P. Stockton, the county engineer, and H. L. Taylor, the maintenance foreman, were in the conferences. The Commissioners, Mr. Ayres and Mr. Taylor made a personal inspection of the new work west to the Crockett line, and Commissioner W. H. Kelley and Mr. Ayres made an inspection of the road from the Kimble County line to Sonora. Wednesday, Mr. Ayres went again over the road to Junction.

Mr. Moursund said it was the purpose of the Highway Department to put travel through in wet as well as dry weather. The question was, how much could be conditioned before the wet weather started.

Mr. Moursund and Mr. Stockton inspected conditions Wednesday.

The engineers are planning to have all the road across Sutton and Crockett Counties ready for bad weather if possible.

It was emphasized that it will be a year or two before the new road to Kimble County can be built, and that maintenance on the old road must care for increasing travel while this construction is under way.—Devils River News.

SOUTH LLANO NEWS.

Evergreen school opened Monday, the 15th, with a good attendance, with Mr. E. Calender as teacher.

Mr. J. F. Richardson left last Tuesday for New Mexico; he went to Menard with Lane Hodges.

Miss Gussie Boone went to Mr. Deats Saturday where she opened her school Monday at Seven Hundred Springs.

Mr. Bayless Lane of San Antonio and Mr. Arch Nealie of Yoakum, representing the Karo products of Houston, were week end guests of F. M. Hodges and family. Mr. Lane is nephew of Mrs. Hodges. They left Monday for Mason and Llano.

Our community was blessed with fine rains last week which will insure winter range to some extent.

Messrs. Joe White, Harker and Austin, and their wives, of Abilene, were week end visitors at the company ranch on South Llano.

J. W. Boone's family left last week for Junction to put their children in school.

Mr. Wallace and family expect to go soon for the benefit of the school.

(Too Late For Last Issue.)

Last week Mr. J. J. Richardson sold his ranch on the river, known as the Boone Ranch, to Mr. Jack Hubble of near Menard.

Mr. J. J. Richardson left last Thursday for Kerrville and other points on a prospecting tour.

Lane Hodges returned from Brady Sunday much improved after his treatments; he was accompanied home by his sister and her children, who will visit here for a few days.

Singing Sunday night was a decided success.

Mr. Marvin Moran and family of Millsap are visiting his parents on the Moran ranch this week.

R. C. Bruce and family are visiting at Ed Hunger's for the present.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Henderson honored their house guests last Saturday night with a delightful supper. Mr. and Mrs. A. Pettigrew and daughter, Miss Dorothy of Austin and a few invited guests. All report a very pleasant evening.

Mrs. Gardner Franks is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. M. Stevenson, this week.

The neighborhood had a gathering at the school house Tuesday night; had games and served refreshments of cake and lemonade. All report a pleasant evening. It was given in honor of the school boys and girls who are to leave soon for school; also for the families who are to return to Junction for the school term.

IN MEMORIAM.

(Tribute of love by Mrs. Lilla K. Durst to her dear husband, John S. Durst.)

Leaves have their time to fall
And flowers to fade at the north
wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O, Death.

As the beautiful Gates were flung ajar on the eve of the 31st of August, and was heralded over the Courts of Heaven
that the pure spirit of my darling husband was admitted, the very angel harps were attuned in one grand refrain, as they echoed around the throne.

"Rejoice, for the Lord brings home His own."

His beautiful life itself is more effectual than sermon or tribute that could be spoken or written. As a Christian, he wrought marvelously, with discerning mind; saw opportunities and with ready hand and heart, provoked results.

He fully appreciated and always appropriated that statement:
"I know whom I have believed and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him
against that day."

His entire confidence increased his effectiveness as a Christian.
His Bible was his guiding star.
It proved "a lamp unto his feet
and a light unto his path."

God's time for him to approach
His Kingdom began several months ago. He failed rapidly in health, with every appreciation of scientific knowledge, it became evident that his mission had been attained,
and God's will must be done.

Through all these months of intense anguish, his great faith never wavered. He lived by faith; yes, he died by faith. Today he revels in the high lands over there. He is at rest. He hath done what he could.

"Well done good and faithful servant, enter thou into the Kingdom of my Joys."

His devoted wife,
Lilla.

RED CREEK "RALLY."

Rain at last! Rain began to fall here Thursday about 3:30 o'clock and continued intermittently until Saturday night.
Cotton was not damaged much,
due to the fact that very little wind accompanied the rain. Fall feed crops will be revived, pastures will be greatly benefited, and cotton pickers will enjoy a few hours rest.

Ellie Pettigrew took a bale of cotton to Junction Friday for C. M. Massey, in the latter's truck. He came back Saturday in the rain.

Bill Jones recently sold a number of cows and will deliver them at London on Thursday
of this week.

Everett Stewart returned
from Brownwood Saturday,
where he attended the Teachers' Institute. He reports the Institute as a very successful affair.

Mrs. Josie Summers and daughters went to London last Saturday evening.

Ernest Hardesty and wife of Yates are the proud parents of a baby boy born Saturday, September 13th.

Leonard Hensley visited at the Jack Goodman home Saturday night and Sunday.

The recent rains were so greatly appreciated that we draft the following in commemoration of their coming:
We've traveled the long, long
highways;

We've journeyed around and around.

In search of a place that was pleasant,
But never one yet have we found,

That was free from the dust
and the heat;
All had their discomforts and
pain,

We knew that nothing could beat, just now,
An old time, ground soaking
rain.

At last, when our hopes were near vanished,
And the heat near melted our
forms,

We felt the cool patter of rain
drops,
Which we'd hoped for, for many
a morn.

The leaves of the trees are all singing,
The drooping flower's lifted its head,

The birds are singing more
sweetly,
And the grass is no longer dead.

We're cooled and refreshed this morning,
And we feel, as we pen these lines,

That it's only a call of the season,
And soon we shall see autumn
times.

LONDON LOCALS.

nity Tuesday.

The little son of Mr. and Mrs.
Jim DeSpain of Saline, died
Saturday night. The little fellow was a robust child of two years, but about a week ago he contracted diphtheria, which caused his death. The London community sympathizes with these young parents in the loss of their child.

Will Jones was avisor here
from Yates City Monday.

J. W. Estes and S. H. Weaver made a business trip to Katemcy Friday.

Ed Furr and son, James,

Fire Cracker Johnnie, of the Brady Sentinel, takes a couple of shots at us in the last two issues of the paper which he admits he was furnished money to buy, by men whose radical ideas needed a man who was willing to run a paper as a factional organ, rather than as a newspaper.

While admitting as true the statement we made some weeks ago, he thinks we are a jackass for having known more about his business than he did about ours, at the time he started the controversy, and made a lot of insinuations about us, following his usual custom of knocking everything and everybody that is not bound hand and feet to a bunch of radicals, like he is under obligations to.

We didn't care anything about his financial difficulties, and would never have mentioned them, had he not opened the proposition in a way that we had only one thing to do—set him right. In thinking that we got our information from your predecessor, you are as far wrong, F. C. J., as you usually are in the many long winded editorials that you write to please the fancy of those whom you say put you in business. You are doubtless not familiar with the fact that when a man conducts his business in a way that brings him into financial embarrassment,
the mercantile agencies of the country become cognizant of these facts and they are passed along to the wholesale trade
and the information of course,
comes to the notice of the traveling men. We are not responsible for this information being collected, but of course, Fire
Cracker Johnnie didn't know it.

There seems to be two things that F. C. J. will never get over—one, the fact that we were defeated in a political campaign two years ago, when we had only been in the county
a few months; and the other,
the candidate about whom he wrote so many favorable and scholarly(?) editorials, was defeated by the biggest majority in years and lost by a big majority in his own county. We hope the pleasure he gets in gloating over our defeat will help him through his critical period of despondency caused by the defeat of his own candidate.

We are glad to note, also,
that he gets so much pleasure
over the unusual promotions that he has received at the hands of his friends—they were certainly remarkable ones, but considering his present status,

we hardly admit that he has gone very far, unless he was at the very bottom of the ladder

RESOLUTIONS.

John Sterling Durst.
Whereas, that on August 31,
1924, our brother, John Sterling Durst, who had attained the ripe age of more than four score years, and had long labored at the task of building the Temple of Justice, righteousness and truth, and was ever faithful in drawing spiritual designs upon the trestle board of life, and maintained his integrity of lofty purpose to the end,
and even the mallet of death not being able to defeat him in his victory which will cause him to be raised by the strong Hand that leads into the Eternal City, inhabited by the true and faithful brethren who have gone on before, and are now to ever be with the Supreme Grand Master of all men and ages,
who is the great God of love
and mercy.

Therefore, be it resolved:
That Junction City Lodge No.
546, A. F. & A. M. loses a true and lawful brother, our country
a patriotic and useful citizen, and the church a tried and faithful servant, and his family a loving and devoted husband and father.

Further be it resolved, that a chair be draped in the lodge room in memory of him, and that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the lodge,
a copy given to the family, and a copy given to the Junction
Eagle for publication.

Hart Schaffner & Marx Fall Suits For Young Men Who Want Style

That really means all young men, because we've never seen one that didn't want style. Some don't always get it—that is not their fault; few clothes really have the smart, distinctive air these have. You'll see it in the drape of the coat, and the hang of the trousers; in the new shades and in the fine exclusive all-wool fabrics.

We are featuring many of these suits at a price that's much lower than the quality of the clothes.

$37.50, $38.00, $39.00, $40.00, $41.00

MEN WHO THINK THEY ARE HARD TO FIT

They're taken care of, too, in this store. Big heavy men;
short men; stout men; tall, slender men; no matter what your figure is, we can fit you —economically too.

NEW STYLES FOR BUSI- NESS MEN

We've said a lot about young men. As a matter of fact all men in business today are young, regardless of years.
We have clothes for men of every age and size.

SPECIAL FOR A FEW DAYS!

Men's Star Brand Shoes and Oxfords, values up to $10.00, going at $3.90; (cash only at these prices. Every pair absolutely guar-

A. C. Stewart of El Dorado, Arkansas, is visiting his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Stewart, this week. A. C. has a very responsible position with the American Railway Express at the Arkansas Oil city, to which place he was transferred some months ago from Ranger.

AT THE PICTURE SHOW.

Friday night of this week, a Fox Special, "The Governor's Lady," and a two reel comedy will be shown. On Saturday night "The Three Musketeers," featuring Douglas Fairbanks, will be shown. These pictures are well worth seeing, especially the one for Saturday night, which is taken from the well-known book of the same name.

Another camp house has been completed in the Tourist Park for the use of the public. This one is a substantial shed with galvanized iron roof and is 18x40 feet. It was built at this time to be used for the Fair exhibits next week.

CARDWELL RANCH NOTES.

Any Cardwell horses that may run at the Junction Fair or elsewhere, will accept no purses that they might possibly win. A race will probably be run between the Cardwell 3-8ths Shetland, 2-year-old, and the John Fleming colt. Other fast two year olds will be eligible. There may be also a Cardwell entry in the saddle horse race just to 'pep' up the game.

A shipment arriving each week. Children's hats from 75 cents to $2.75. See them before buying. Mrs. Munn.

John M. Hankins, Emil A. Loeffler, H. G. Perry and E. Holekamp were in the Segovia community Monday looking at some prospective locations for the fish hatchery, but were unable to find anything that would meet the requirements. It has recently become known that it will not be possible to secure the location selected and surveyed near the head of Cedar Creek and the committee is having to make another search of the county. Anyone knowing of a location that might be suitable and that could be secured, will confer a favor by taking the matter up with some member of the committee, which, for more than a year has been making every effort to find a suitable location. It is a difficult job. Those we can get are not suitable, and those that are suitable cannot be secured at a reasonable price. The committee will appreciate any information from interested parties.

Mrs. Andrew Paterson wishes to thank all of their friends for their flowers and sympathy at the time of her sorrow.

P-T. A. MEETING.

A meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association will be held Monday afternoon at four o'clock in the School Auditorium. You are urged to attend this meeting.

"Sweet are the uses
of adversity"

So sang Shakespeare in his immortal works. But that was long ago—back in the 15th Century. Times have changed greatly since the Bard of Avon wrote and directed his plays for the edification of virgin Queen Elizabeth and her gallants.

Adversity and hardships are certainly not "sweet" to anticipate nowadays. It is only the man who has had the wisdom and forethought to save part of his wages that finds adversity anything but a sad experience.

Don't wait for adversity to teach you the necessity of saving. Come in and start an account to-day with this bank.

EDWARDS COUNTY NEWS GIVEN BY THE LEADER.

County Engineer W. E. Simpson who was here this week, says the fact that they have not yet gotten the deed to right of way across Mr. Brown's Fairview ranch, is causing delay in getting started across Real County with the highway. Mr. Brown, who lives in Uvalde, wants the road to cross his land at another place than that selected by the engineers. Mr. Simpson says they are now trying to relocate the road so as to satisfy Mr. Brown, and he thinks things will soon be adjusted.

Mr. Simpson says Kerr County is making plans to start engineering work on their end of the highway.

In an election held in Common School District No. 4, Saturday, on the subject of a school tax not exceeding 50 cents on the $100, the proposition carried with a 10 to 1 majority. Eleven votes were cast, 10 for and 1 against. District No. 4 is in the neighborhood of the head of South Llano. They have not had a school in that district; we understand there will be a school house now that funds have been provided.

Dr. F. M. D. Hill of Brackettville has announced as an independent Democratic candidate for Governor. Dr. Hill is quite well known over this part of Texas as a wide-awake aggressive Baptist preacher. If he were to be elected he would probably make a good governor, but he is not likely to be elected. He wouldn't get many of the lady votes, as he is strongly opposed to woman suffrage, and is opposed to the Klan, and is opposed to the Ferguson's.

RAGS WANTED.

Will pay 5 cents per pound for clean cotton rags. No flannel or cheese cloth wanted. Bring to Eagle office.

HARPER NEWS ITEMS IN FRITZTOWN STANDARD

Mr. Herbert Gamel was a business visitor in town this week.

A telephone meeting was held Monday night. A proposition being on foot to extend the line direct to Noxville.

Tuesday morning several business houses had "K K K's" September 27 at Harper," painted on their door steps and side walk. We judged that we were to receive a visit from the Ku Klux Klan on that date, but found out later that the Kimble County Kats (a basket ball team), were to be here on that date.

Prof. L. E. Stockard and wife took supper with Mr. and Mrs. L. Bierschwale Friday night on their return from Mason, where they had gone to attend the Teachers' Institute.

Devote Parker is spending a few days this week with her sister, Mrs. Eugene McDougall, coming down on the mail car from "Old Noxville" Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Bierschwale, with the children, spent Sunday night in town, returning with Garrett Bierschwale and family, who had gone out to the ranch Saturday night.

EVERY DAY IN EVERY WAY

Sam T. McClure, newly-elected cyclops of the Klan at Houston, through the daily press announces that henceforth the Houston Klan will be out of politics; there will be no secret caucuses from which members will be barred; the Klan will not be dominated by any clique, bloc or individual; will endorse no man for office, nor will a group of men at the head of an organization attempt to influence the vote of any member. Concluding, he says: "In the future, to be a klansman, a man must be a Christian and a gentleman."

All of which sounds like a confession, repentance and a promised reformation.—Brady Standard.

PROCESS OF THINKING.

"I don't think—" Sad but true. Too many people never think at all—they let George do it for them. Original ideas are as scarce as Jews you see carrying hods. You don't see them? Well, do you think? Thinking is a process, deep with some people and shallow with others. With the most of us, it is so shallow that it doesn't flow at all. Light travels very rapidly through certain space, but it travels mighty slow to some people—depending on what it has to travel through. Some head spaces are nothing but space, yet cannot be penetrated with light—others are so dense that light doesn't get through. Still—we mean "yet" not the kind of a copper contraction makes solid into liquids—still—it is better to be grammatically correct and say, "I think not—" instead of "I don't think—" because there's no use in giving yourself away to people if they have not already found it out.—H. D. Cee

SPEAKING OF BANKS.

A group of men were sitting about the big air-tight heater in the general merchandise store of Grandpa Hibbs. Haze Lynn elevated his feet and spat into the coal scuttle as he volunteered this bit of information: "Guess Si Slator's bank is in pretty bad condition—'bout to fail."

"How so?" inquired Grandpa pausing in the distribution of the mail.

"Wall," said Haze, "I seen a check Frank Bovee wrote for $2. It was returned, marked 'No funds.' Now a bank that ain't able to cash a check for $2 must be pretty nigh busted." "That's so," agreed the rest of the loafers.—Forbes Magazine.

MULE HAS COLT.

Granville Wright has a mare mule, four years old, which recently gave birth to a colt. The mule was bred to a jack, and the foal is an active healthy youngster. It is a rare occurrence for a mule to breed, being a hybrid, and when there in offspring it usually attracts considerable attention.—Bandera New Era.

WHITE MEN CAME TO TEXAS IN YEAR 1528

(From 40th Anniversary Edition San Angelo Standard.)

The first white man to set foot on the soil of West Texas was Alvar Nunez Cabeza de Vaca, who spent much of the time between 1528 and 1536 in this region. He accompanied an expedition from Spain, headed by Panfilo de Narvaez, an active Spanish adventurer, who resolved to conquer the region lying to the north of the Gulf of Mexico.

He easily obtained permission from the Spanish Government and led a large and finely equipped expedition to the southern coasts of the United States. For years, nothing was heard of him or his men, until in 1536, one of the officers of the expedition, Alvar Nunez Cabeza de Vaca, appeared at San Miguel, little Spanish village on the Western Coast of Mexico, with three companions, one of them a negro.

During the years that Cabeza de Vaca was in this country, Charles V. was ruler in Spain and in Germany. Francis I. was King of France, and Henry VIII. ruled in England. Columbus had reached the west Indies thirty-six years before. It was only ten years since Luther had initiated the revolt against the church, and less than that length of time since Cortez had conquered Mexico. Nearly 80 years later, the English made their first permanent settlement on this continent, at Jamestown, Virginia, in 1607.

The following account of the struggles of Cabeza de Vaca before he reached the Pecos river, and also a sketch of the origin of the house of De Vaca, numbering many adventurers and explorers, is quoted from "The Romance of the Davis Mountains and the Big Bend Country," by Carlyle Graham Raht, an authentic history of the early days in the land west of the Pecos:

"In the dark days of the Spanish Inquisition, so runs the legend, the Kings of Castile, Aragon, and Navarre, respectively, were seated in grave council beneath the canopy of their joint council tent. About them were gathered their captains and soldiers—the flower of Spanish knighthood.

"Up in the mountain passes, strongly entrenched, crouched the Moors. Far outnumbering their Spanish foes, and conscious of their strength, they patiently awaited the hour to strike a fatal blow.

"Realizing their desperate plight, the Spanish Kings looked to their followers in growing perplexity. Should these soldiers be hurled against the Moors, in a desperate effort to break through the coils, which daily grew tighter about the allied armies?

"The answer came in an unusual manner, and from an unexpected quarter. A sentry, closely guarding a peasant in the garb of a goat herder, pushed through the soldier throng, to the feet of the three Kings. 'Sires,' said he, bringing up with a salute, 'this man begs an audience with your Majesties.'

"Let him speak," said the King of Castile, although he frowned at the interruption.

The peasant bent low over the King's hand. 'Sire,' he said, 'my name is Martin Alhaja, a goat-herder. With your Majesties' permission, I can take you to a pass that I know in the mountains, which will lead you to the rear of yonder Moors. I have marked it well with la cabeza de vaca (the head of a cow) so placed that you can see it from a great distance.'

"Due to his timely information, the allied armies gained a strong position, and on July 11, 1521, the battle of Las Navas de Tolosa was fought and won by the Spanish Kings.

"In payment for this service, the humble goat-herder was enabled, and he was given the name, Cabeza de Vaca, 'The Head of a Cow,' to denote the origin of his improved social condition. From Martin Alhaja descended a long line of adventurers and hardy explorers.

When Governor Panfilo de Narvaez sailed from the port of San Lucar de Barrameda, June 27, 1527, with orders from Charles V. of Spain, to explore and conquer Florida, he took with him as comptroller and royal treasurer, Alvar Nunez Cabeza de Vaca, a descendant of the one-time humble goat herder.

"After reaching the shores of Florida, misfortune befell the Narvaez expedition. Governor Narvaez, with half his force, numbering 300 men, marched in land in quest of rich cities; and while he ordered the five ships to proceed westward, where he would meet them on his return to the sea. But few of his land forces lived to return, and those who did saw no ships.

"Already starving, the followers of Narvaez built five barges and put out to sea in search of the Spanish settlement known to be at Panuca, near the present day seaport of Tampico, Mexico.

"In a storm off Galveston Island, the barges were wrecked and but a small remnant landed safely. So emaciated and ill were these that a dozen only survived. Four of the most able-bodied men were chosen to explore down the coast in search of Panuco, which the Spaniards believed to be nearby.

"Following the departure of these men, the weather turned cold, so bitterly cold that the Indians, who had been feeding the Spaniards on roots and fish caught from the river's edge, could no longer work. The crude lodges afforded but scant shelter or warmth and both Indians and Spaniards died.

"Almost immediately following the shipwreck and disintegration of the Narvaez expedition, de Vaca had been made a captive by the Indians, and he remained a slave for six years before he attempted to escape. The reason for this long deferred attempt was due to the fact that on an island not far from the abode of de Vaca's captors, there lived another member of the ship-wrecked expedition, Lope de Ovide, by name. Every year de Vaca went over to the island where lived this man, and tried to persuade him to go in search of their countrymen. But each year Ovide put off going, until the sixth year, when he consented to accompany de Vaca on his westward journey.

"In the six years of slavery, de Vaca had learned many things about the ways and customs of the savages, and he became practiced in two arts, the art of barter and the art of healing. The first of these he had acquired that he might, in some degree, escape the ill-treatment accorded him by his brutal masters. Even the Indians must have felt the influence of de Vaca's personality, for while they beat and cuffed him unmercifully, they elevated him to the position of medicine man, a place of high honor among them.

"The Indians escorted de Vaca to a grove of pecan trees about three miles from the village, and here he found Andres Dorantes, one of the three men of whom the Indians had already spoken. Later, Dorantes took de Vaca to where was Alonzo del Castillo, the second of the three men spoken of. They proceeded to find Estevanico, the Moor, who was the third man of whom the Indians told. Together the four plotted to make their escape."

The author recounts many of the hardships encountered by de Vaca and his companions on their way westward, sometimes followed by several thousand Indians, who respected de Vaca's reputation as a healer and a medicine man. The adventurers were the first white men who reached West Texas. At length they struck "a great river coming from the north," which is reasonably believed to have been the Peco.

"The Christians came suddenly upon the banks of the Pecos River. This river they crossed and continued for thirty leagues over a great plain, before they struck rugged mountains again. At the end of this distance, the Christians journeyed fifty leagues through rugged mountains arid and devoid of game. They now came to a river that flowed between mountains, the Rio Grande, a short distance below Presidio, Texas, in the Big Bend; and here for the first time they saw a village of real houses. De Vaca journeyed westward until in April, 1536, he came upon a party of Spanish horsemen, who conducted him to the settlement of San Miguel."

METHODIST CHURCH.

There will not be any services at the 11 o'clock hour next Sunday on account of the pastor having to be at Copperas; but at the evening hour the service will be at 8 o'clock. The subject for the sermon will be "Troubles and Trials, and the Blessings that Come From Them."

Sunday School meets at 10 o'clock; Intermediate and Junior Leagues at 4 o'clock and Senior League at 7 o'clock.

JAPANESE BRIDGE PARTY.

Mrs. George Vierling, Jr. complimented the Merry Wives Club and a number of guests with a five-table bridge party Wednesday afternoon at the Vierling ranch six miles east of town.

The tables were arranged in a beautiful pecan grove on the bank of the Johnson Fork.

The grove was tastefully decorated in Japanese lanterns and pot plants.

Mrs. Phillip Josph won high club score and received six beautiful hand painted iaffia table mats. Dr. Helen Gray was presented with a Japanese cake plate, the guest prize, while Miss Lela Taylor was consoled with a pretty Japanese 'chime'.

Refreshments of chicken salad in tomato cases, potato chips, cheese straws, saltine flakes, and iced tea, were served. The second course consisted of ice cream and angel food muffins. The plate favors, little Japanese umbrella and basket containing mints, tallies, napkins and table covers, also carried out the attractive Japanese motif.

LONDON SOCIETY

Miss Thelma Barrett entertained the F. F. F. Club last Tuesday evening with a Bunco party. The dining room was decorated in green and white, and the refreshments served were lemonade and cake. The prize awarded to the best player, Neta Estes, was an Irish linen handkerchief, beautifully hand-embroidered; Miss Mavy Adams was consoled with a hand-painted lemon.

Miss Mavy Adams entertained quite a few of her friends Friday night with a bridge party. Scooter Ivy received the prize for high score, and Miss Neta Estes received the booby prize. After the games the young guests enjoyed music and dancing. Iced refreshment were served.

CITY CAFE BOUGHT BY WILSON AND WILLIAMS.

Messrs. William Wilson and Barney Williams purchased the City Cafe last week and took charge of the business Monday.

These boys are well known to the people of the Junction country. Mr. Wilson having worked for Schreiner-Hodges Co. for a number of years, and Mr. Williams has been with the City Meat Market until last week.

The Cafe was closed Monday and was given a general cleaning up and now presents a very favorable appearance. They plan to make some changes that will make the interior more attractive, and will conduct a clean, up-to-date eating house, and through their advertising in this paper, expect to solicit the patronage of the people here and will, from time to time, have something special to announce.

CHANGE

Then
Simpson
Thought!

Simpson was ambitious. At least he thought he was. He had been with his firm for years, and his prospects looked bright.

One day fortune knocked at his door. He was offered a partnership providing he was in a position to make a suitable investment.

But—

Simpson had never learned to save money. He had spent all he had earned. And in deep humiliation he had to admit that he was not in a position to accept the big chance when it came.
