How's That? Temperature

Q. What is the hottest temperature ever recorded for the state of Texas?
A. On Aug. 12, 1936 in Seymour, the temperature reached 120 degrees, which is the hottest ever in the Lone Star State, according to the Associated Press.

Calendar Rodeo

TODAY

• The 42nd 4-H American Junior Rodeo Association Rodeo will resume at 7:30 p.m. at the Howard County Fairgrounds rodeo bowl.

SATURDAY

• Howard County Youth Horseman's Club will sponsor an Open All-Breed Horse Show at 9 a.m. at the Youth Horseman's arena on Garden City Highway. The concession stand will be open.

• The Forsan All-School Reunion will be at 3 p.m. in the school cafeteria. All school alumni and their families are invited.

• The 42nd 4-H AJRA Rodeo will resume at 7:30 p.m. at the rodeo bowl.

SUNDAY

• The Potton House, 200 Gregg St., will be open from 1 to 4 p.m.

Items for the Spring board calendar must be community-wide events to be included and will be listed no more than one week in advance. Send such notices to: Spring board, Big Spring Herald, Box 1431, Big Spring. Club notices will be printed in the "Bulletin Board" section of the Sunday Herald.

Texas land valued less in Southwest

AUSTIN (AP) — Real estate market analysts say Texas rural land values will continue to decrease into 1988, according to a report by the Texas Real Estate Center at Texas A&M.

The report was based on a survey made in Texas and three other states and partly funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, officials said.

"The 75 rural land market participants surveyed in Texas reported the statewide economic recession has led to weakened land markets," said Dr. Charles Gilliland, an assistant research economist with the center.

Gilliland said panelists from Texas, Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma were asked about current land values and their predictions for price changes the next 12 months.

The panel predicted that an acre of irrigated cropland worth an average price of $966 an acre in January 1987 will fall 6 percent by January 1988. They estimated the same type land has already decreased 4.3 percent in value between June 1986 and June 1987.

Non-irrigated cropland, worth an average of $299 last January, and native rangeland, worth $874, were estimated to fall 6 percent also.

Gilliland said the panel found that improved pastureland, now worth $1,209 an acre will decline 5 percent.

Orchard and vineyard land can be expected to fall 7 percent from a current average price of $1,445 an acre.

Study cites health care challenge

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

A major challenge for hospitals and clinics in the future will be limiting the cost of health care while sustaining quality care, according to Doyle Lamb, director of Malone and Hogan Clinic.

Lamb responded to a recent survey by the American College of Healthcare Executives, which predicted that 10 percent of the country's hospitals will be forced to close by 1995 as a result of declining admissions.

While noting that he was more involved with clinic operation than a hospital, he said the survey's estimate was "... very conservative. There will probably be more than that."

Lamb said the rising health care and malpractice costs are major reasons for future hospital closings.

The Healthcare Executive report also predicted that future policy will be driven more by cost than quality. "The future of health care will be driven by dollar concerns rather than people concerns," said Stuart Wesbury, co-chairman of the study.

"That's not a problem in a clinical environment," Lamb said. While conceding that it might be a concern at the hospital level, he added that the clinic would never turn away people in need.

"We are concerned with payment, but we won't turn people away," he emphasized. Other issues cited by the survey and Lamb's responses were:

• Employers will be forced to provide health insurance to all workers: "Consequently, employers may be forced to pass the costs of mandated insurance to employees through increased deductibles or co-payments," said Robert Clyde, another co-chairman of the study.

"Probably so," Lamb said, noting that it would be to the employer's advantage to do so. "With the way things are going, if employers don't supply it, the workers will just go someplace that does," Lamb said, adding that group insurance costs much less — as little as one-third — than individual health care insurance. A possible alternative to group health care is something Lamb said he has observed in metropolitan areas.

In larger cities, employers are HEALTH CARE page 2A

Doyle Lamb, director of Malone and Hogan Clinic, believes that the rising cost of malpractice insurance is the biggest concern facing the medical profession.

Malpractice

Rising costs curtail services

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

The rising cost of malpractice insurance and the mushrooming of damage awards are the major concerns of the medical community today, according to Doyle Lamb, administrator of Malone and Hogan Clinic.

Lamb disclosed Thursday that the rising cost of malpractice insurance has forced two local doctors to discontinue their clinic practices.

And in this area, he estimates that for every $25 office appointment with a doctor, $10 goes to pay for malpractice insurance.

Lamb noted a full one-third of a doctor's fee is used to buy insurance protection from the patients. That's the irony of the situation, he noted.

He disclosed that Malone and Hogan Clinic had two doctors — James Tipton and J.W. Kuykendall — who have closed their practices at the clinic because of the rising costs of malpractice insurance.

Tipton, an ear, nose and throat specialist, and Kuykendall, an obstetrician/gynecologist, now are on the staff at Big Spring State Hospital, Lamb said.

He said the rising awards from juries have gotten so out of hand that doctors elsewhere in the U.S. have refused to treat patients in high risk categories — most specifically, obstetrics and orthopedics.

Lamb cited several of reasons why these two groups of doctors are subject to more lawsuits than others.

First, he cited is the law of averages. In sheer numbers, these two types of doctors treat more patients than others, he said.

Second, obstetrics and orthopedics basically deal with "acts of nature" — births and joint erosion — that doctors can't totally control, Lamb said.

Obstetricians particularly are subjected to lawsuits. "They are dealing with something where the end result isn't totally predictable," he noted.

The major reason for lawsuits against orthopedic surgeons is the infection risk. Joint repair and replacement and spinal surgery represent the highest risk of infection of any type of surgery, Lamb said.

"That type of surgery runs the risk of being very highly infectious. You can disinfect the environment all you want, and there'll still be a chance for infection," Lamb added.

If infection occurs, disability is a distinct possibility, and lawsuits usually follow, the director said.

Given the difficult nature of the profession, and adding the risks of suits against them, Lamb was asked why more doctors don't leave their practice.

The answer, he said, lies with the vast majority of patients who appreciate their efforts.

"They stay because of the 97 percent (of patients) who don't sue," he said.

Lamb cited another problem arising from malpractice suits. When a doctor has more than two suits filed against him in a year, he is subject to medical review by the State Board of Medical Examiners, Lamb said.

He said that a doctor could lose his license as a result of the review, because the board maintains a tight rein on doctors.

Tort reform is the answer to the problem, Lamb said.

"If a person is wronged, he should be compensated. But there should be a cap (a maximum) set on the amount he can receive," Lamb added.

The Legislature considered tort reform during its recent session, Lamb noted, but there still is no limit to the amount a person can be awarded.

Work on lake dam to begin in winter

An engineering report is expected by mid-August on Comanche Lake Dam, and work should begin on the dam in early winter, city officials anticipate.

City Manager Mack Wofford said he has that time schedule in mind, but it is difficult to determine because "too many things are not definitive."

Engineering firm Freese & Nichols Inc. of Fort Worth is preparing the report to be submitted to City Council about mid-August, Wofford said.

The engineering report is based on a geotechnical study performed by Southwest Laboratories, he added.

After Council approval, the report goes to the Texas Water Commission, which must approve the dam construction, then to the Texas Department of Community Affairs, he said.

The city has a letter promising a $650,000 community affairs grant for the project, but has not yet received any money, Wofford said.

When the TDCA approves the project and grants the money, city officials will decide on specifications and a bidding date, he said.

Wofford believes a contract may be awarded by autumn.

To facilitate obtaining the promised funds, the city last year designated $112,642 of its own money toward repairs. The funds had been budgeted for a softball park.

If the project can be accomplished using only the grant, the TDCA won't require city money to be spent, Wofford has said.

Although no exact figures for the project are available, the city manager said he expects the cost to exceed $650,000, making the city money necessary.

The dam was breached in late August 1986 during heavy rains. The breach released approximately two-thirds of the lake's water, flooding nearby low-lying areas.

A local woman drowned when her pickup was swept from Birdwell Lane during the rains.

The floods prompted the closing of Highland Pontiac and a lawsuit against the city by affected home- and business-owners.

Cogeneration plant now providing power

Herald staff report

A Big Spring cogeneration plant last week began supplying power to TU Electric Co. and is producing enough electricity for a city three times the size of Big Spring, local officials said today.

The Charles R. Wing Cogeneration Facility, located on Cosden refinery property, was declared a partial commercial operation July 23, said Bob Hinds, the plant's technical supervisor.

The plant is generating 140 megawatts through two 70-megawatt generators for TU Electric, which has a 15-year contract with the plant to buy all of its power.

"We're happy with the plant, most units are located to the east," said Hooper Sanders, Big Spring TU Electric regional manager.

The TU system has two gas-fired power plants in West Texas, one in Monahans and one in Colorado City.

The new cogeneration plant "will strengthen the reliability of the system," Sanders said, adding that TU Electric also uses power generated from lignite plants located in East Texas.

He described the contract as "very competitive" with what it would cost the electric company to produce its own power.

When completed, the local plant also will have the capacity to generate steam that will be sold to Fina Oil & Chemical Co., Hinds said.

One of two heat recovery boilers is expected to be completed in October, and the steam turbine will be late this year or early next year, Hinds said.

A sign at the Wagon Wheel No. 2 drive-in restaurant, 21st and Scurry Streets, urges 16-year-old runaway Julie Sosa to call home. The Wagon Wheel is one of about 20 Big Spring businesses helping Joe and Becky Sosa in their search for their daughter, who left home July 18. Churches and law enforcement officials also are participating in the search.

Signs help family search

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

When their 16-year-old daughter Julie left from home nearly two weeks ago, Joe and Becky Sosa, 3704 Parkway Road, turned to the community for help.

Police sent teletyped messages about the situation to various law enforcement agencies and gave the family fliers with Julie's photograph to distribute, Police Lt. Jerry Edwards said.

In addition, about 20 Big Spring businesses are trying to help by displaying signs and broadcasting messages urging the girl to call home, said Robyn Drinkard, Joe Sosa's secretary.

Churches have helped spread the message and comfort the family, she said.

"We've been looking for her just about everywhere," Joe Sosa said. He showed Julie's picture at the bus station and at convenience stores where she might have stopped for a snack. And checked likely locations such as the movies — with no luck, he said.

When he called Julie's friends for information, a girlfriend said Julie had called and was ready to come home, but wanted to speak to her boyfriend first, Sosa said.

JULIE SOSA ... left home July 18

Sosa still has not heard from Julie.

The Big Spring boy believed to be Julie's boyfriend told Sosa he had spoken to Julie, but he had no idea where she was. His mother told Sosa the boy now is visiting his grandmother in Oklahoma.

Police have notified Oklahoma authorities in case Julie goes there, Lt. Edwards said.

Julie Sosa, who will be a junior at Big Spring High School, left home about 10:30 a.m. Saturday, July 18, her father said. She is 5 feet 4 inches tall, slender, with long hair and bangs, good-looking and wears contact lenses, he said.

The family believes she was wearing yellow shorts, a white T-shirt and high-top tennis shoes when she left. She is believed to have taken few belongings and no more than about $15 cash, he said.

Becky Sosa discovered her daughter missing when the clothes dryer buzzer sounded, and Julie didn't respond to it, she said.

Julie left a note stating she was angry at parental rules she believed were too strict, such as a 10:30 p.m. curfew and a prohibition against dating older boys, Sosa said.

"She was very determined. She was angry. She was upset," he said, describing Julie as "sort of adventuresome."

"It's just tearing us apart that she couldn't come to us and talk to us," he said. "We sure would like her home ... We can work them (problems) out together."

Meanwhile the family can only pray and wait, hoping Julie will "come back to her friends and family," he said.

State OKs sale of cash-management notes

Dallas Times Herald Bureau
AUSTIN — Despite the pointed absence of Gov. Bill Clements, the state's top leaders Thursday approved the sale of $1.3 billion in cash-management notes to ease Texas' cash crunch until new tax dollars flow to the state treasury.

State Treasurer Ann Richards said the notes will be paid with taxes collected later in the 1988-89 budget period.

Major expenditures this fall — such as payments to local school districts — would drain the state treasury unless it receives an immediate infusion of cash, she explained.

"This is a device for dealing with cash flow," Richards said. "The notes will ease the temporary shortfall that will occur this fall."

Although the governor's public schedule indicated he would attend, Clements said he chose to skip the meeting of the Cash Management Note Committee, of which he is a member, as a statement of his opposition to the practice.

"My absence was a symbolic absence in the sense that I, in principle, do not agree with cash-management notes. It's a form of deficit financing," said Clements.

He blamed the fact that the state was forced to sell cash-management notes on his predecessor, former Gov. Mark White.

"The reason for the cash-management notes is a direct reflection of the mismanagement of the previous administration," he said. "It could have been avoided and I have been saying that for well over a year."

Texas has used cash from this method only once previously. On Nov. 5, 1986, the committee approved the issuance of $600 million in cash-management notes, which must be repaid by the end of August.

Richards, along with a representative voting for state Comptroller Bob Bullock, voted to sell the notes in late August. Clements' executive assistant, Hilary Doran, joined the panel to represent the governor, but did not vote.

After the meeting, Doran said he did not know why Clements did not attend. He also said he believed the governor would have voted in favor of issuing the notes.

Bullock's representative, Jack Roberts, voted for the issuance of the notes, but read a statement from the comptroller expressing his reluctance.

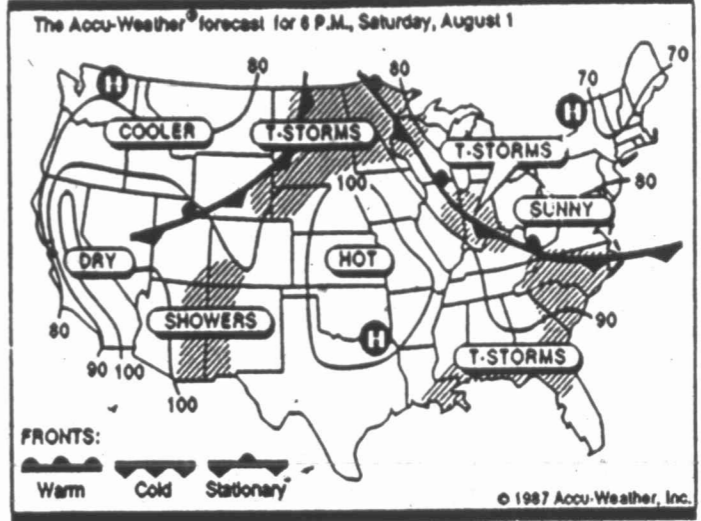

"Recurring debt and today's debt rollover situation violates the spirit, if not the letter, of the constitutional principle of paying as we go," the statement said. "We believe the practice of issuing public debt to pay for ongoing government operations is unacceptable to most Texans."

Richards said the issuance of $1.3 billion in cash management notes, which also are known as tax-anticipation notes, resolves the state's fiscal crisis for the 1988-89 budget period. The Legislature approved a spending plan only last week, giving the treasurer just enough time to sell the notes and avert going broke.

Richards said she hopes the new legislative committee studying tax equity will consider ways to match tax collections with state expenditures.

"Hopefully in the future we won't be dealing with this," she said.

Police beat Robber of 7-Eleven takes beer

Herald staff report

Police are looking for a suspect after a robbery this morning at 7-Eleven, 2301 Wasson Rd.

Timmy Rose, an employee at the store, said that a black male entered the store at 2:50 a.m., and stole beer, cigarettes and an undetermined amount of cash, according to a police report.

No weapon was used in the robbery, the report stated.

• Kenneth Marvin Hart, 22, 404 N.E. 11th St., was arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, failure to control speed and failure to maintain financial responsibility after an accident Thursday afternoon. He was transferred to the sheriff's office and released on $1,000 bond.

• Sean Lauder, 17, 1506 E. 11th Pl., was arrested by police Thursday on a warrant charging him with no insurance and failure to appear.

• Angie Vasquez, 19, no address given, was arrested Thursday on a warrant charging her with assault and failure to appear.

• Betty Gross, an employee at Security State Bank, 1411 Gregg St., reported that sometime Thursday, a known person possibly passed a forged check and left with $225.24 in cash and coins.

• Robert Roeser, an employee at Red Barn Auto Sales, 410 Gregg St., reported that between 9 p.m. Wednesday and 9:30 a.m. Thursday, someone caused approximately $175 damage to a 1982 Chevrolet Malibu parked at the business.

Sheriff's log DWI arrest made by DPS

Ernie Leroy Justice, 35, 1610 E. 15th St., was arrested by the Texas Department of Public Safety at 12:27 a.m. this morning at the corner of FM-700 and Birdwell Lane on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. He was released on a $1,000 bond.

• Randy Olivera, 24, 510 N. Runnels St., was arrested Thursday on a warrant on a charge of Class A assault. He was released on a $500 bond.

• Mrs. T.M. Starnes, 40, Mineola, was arrested by the Wood County Sheriff's Office on a Howard County warrant on a charge of issuance of bad checks. She was released via the Wood County Sheriff's Office after paying fines and checks totaling $195.14.

• Donnie Latimer, 34, Route 1 Box 565, was arrested this morning on a DWI judgment. He is to serve 10 days in the Howard County jail.

Blood drive

Nurse Debra Hinton from San Angelo pulls the tube out from the arm of Luan Touchstone after she donated blood Thursday afternoon at Hall-Bennett Hospital. Cheryl New, coordinator of Hall-Bennett's blood drives, said 46 pints of blood were donated. She said she was pleased with the turnout, but noted that blood is needed most during the summer months when donorship is at its lowest.

Mexico agreement may mean $40 million to Texas ranchers

AUSTIN (AP) — A new livestock export program could mean up to $40 million in sales to Mexico for Texas ranchers in the next year, agriculture officials say.

The program, announced Thursday, will open new markets for Texans and provide needed breeding stock for Mexican ranchers, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said.

"The state of Texas and the Republic of Mexico are delving into a historic new area of international trade," Hightower said. "This came about because of a real need on both sides of the border."

With the new program, Texas ranchers will sell up to 40,000 head of cattle to Mexican ranchers next year, Hightower told a news conference.

According to Texas officials, Mexico's state livestock associations and that nation's agriculture secretariat recognized the potential of bringing stronger blood lines into their livestock by purchasing more registered breeding stock from Texas ranchers.

However, the sagging Mexican currency has made financing such purchases nearly impossible, and Texas livestock exports to Mexico have plunged along with the peso's value.

Under the agreement signed by Hightower, a Mexican agriculture undersecretary and officials of four Mexican border state cattlemen's unions, a financing technique is being established to allow such sales to take place.

The new Livestock Export Finance Program will enable individual Texas ranchers to sell registered breeding stock to individual Mexican ranchers and receive one-third of the sales price upon delivery of the animals.

The remaining two-thirds will be paid over three years, at 10 percent annual interest, with the loan guaranteed by the statewide livestock associations of Chihuahua, Coahuila, Nuevo Leon or Tamaulipas.

The four state associations have combined assets of more than $15 million and a combined membership of 33,000 ranchers, officials said.

"It's a pretty good deal for everybody involved," Hightower said. "What the Mexican rancher gets is good, top-quality breeding stock at a price, with a financing mechanism that allows them to pay it out."

Gov. Bill Clements, who attended the ceremony, said the agreement is an example of the kind of cooperation needed between Texas and Mexico to help both economies improve.

Health care

 paying clinics a flat fee per employee per month to provide health care to its workers. This is advantageous particularly to people who hire a large number of employees, Lamb said.

• Consumers will pay more to keep the same quality care, the study added.

Again Lamb agreed, saying it was a matter of business economics. "Everything we do costs more," Lamb said.

• AIDS testing will become mandatory: Survey participants predicted that testing will be required for immigration, marriage license and insurance policy applicants.

Lamb said doctors, as a rule, are against mandatory testing on the whole — not just in the case of AIDS. He said continuing education on AIDS will do more good than testing.

He said that limiting health care costs and dealing with a shrinking patient base are major concerns to his facility.

He conceded that advances in medical care in the past 10 years have caused patients to seek health care in metropolitan areas. To combat that, the local clinic has developed what Lamb described as "ancillary services."

He described these services as ones the hospital wouldn't have provided in the past, such as Computerized Axial Topography — or CAT — scans.

He said that the hospital had been forced into providing these services by the shrinking patient base. "We had to do something," he declared.

He added that the clinic would continue to "tighten the belts" where possible and conduct sound business practices in an effort to keep costs down.

Teachers' starting salary jumps 7.1 percent in 1986

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average starting salary for school teachers jumped 7.1 percent this past year to $17,900, with six states offering more than $19,000 to newcomers, the American Federation of Teachers said today.

The hike over salaries a year earlier was a larger boost than the 5.7 percent average pay raise for all public school teachers, the union said at the start of a biennial conference on school reform.

The AFT estimated that the average salary for all teachers in 1986-87 was $26,698. That is $6 less than the $26,704 that its rival, the National Education Association, arrived at in a salary report released May 27. The NEA data did not include starting salary figures.

The AFT said the current teacher salaries are the highest ever, even when adjusted for inflation. The previous high was $26,296 (in 1987 dollars) in 1972. The teachers' actual pay in 1972 was $9,705.

The 660,000-member union said starting salaries topped $19,000 in six states — Alaska, California, Connecticut, New Jersey, New York and Texas — and fell below $15,000 in seven — Idaho, Iowa, Maine, Mississippi, Nebraska, South Dakota and Vermont.

Alaska and South Dakota were the highest and lowest paying states, on average, for all teachers, even after adjusting salaries for regional differences in the cost of living, the AFT said.

The AFT's research shop gathered its data from state education departments.

But the union, using a cost-of-living index developed by private forecasters, said Texas moved up from 22nd to 5th when salaries were adjusted, while New Jersey tumbled from the 9th best paying state to the 36th.

AFT President Albert Shanker, noting that after inflation teacher salaries are back where they were 15 years ago, said in a statement: "Teachers seem always to be in the position of playing catch-up. The good news is that the education reform movement has given teachers some momentum. But how much longer can we afford to make education policy by looking at rear-view mirrors?"

Oil prices fluctuate little

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices fluctuated in a narrow range in late morning trading today on the heels of a slight correction.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, contracts for September delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude oil, were off 1 cent from Thursday's close at $21.35 per 42-gallon barrel.

On Thursday, the price fell 8 cents in what analysts described as a technical correction, sparked by a sudden drop in gasoline futures prices.

The September crude contract opened slightly lower today, then drifted higher before losing ground again just before midday.

Analysts reiterated that the market remained jittery about the situation in the Persian Gulf, where U.S. warships plan to resume escorting Kuwaiti oil tankers sometime this weekend.

Unleaded gasoline for August delivery, which fell nearly a cent Thursday to settle at 55.14 cents, was off more than a quarter-cent again today. The contract was quoted at 54.85 cents a gallon at midday.

The slide in gasoline prices surprised many analysts, who attributed the decline to profit-taking. The price of unleaded gasoline had firmed substantially since Tuesday along with crude prices.

Project helps restorations

AUSTIN (AP) — Junior historians throughout the state are helping restore historic buildings and sites. "Adopt A Building" is a project of the Texas State Historical Association which is based at the University of Texas in Austin.

David DeBoe of the association said the Junior Historian chapters, which are a part of the historical association, "academically" adopt a building or other manmade landmark in their community which has not been previously researched.

The historians in junior and senior high school classes spend one year uncovering information about their building or site.

"In the process, Junior Historians develop a new interest in the role buildings have played in the history of their communities and they increase preservation awareness in their own neighborhoods," DeBoe said.

In one case, he said, the research was sufficient to qualify Kilgore High School for a Texas historical marker.

Capt. Kangaroo doing well

HOUSTON (AP) — Bob Keeshan, who played Captain Kangaroo on television for nearly 30 years, is doing well after undergoing triple by-pass surgery a week ago, his surgeon says.

"He's a perfect patient," Dr. E. Stanley Crawford said Thursday. "He looks good and says he feels great."

Keeshan, 60, underwent the coronary artery by-pass operation July 23 at Methodist Hospital, and he should be returning to his Long Island, N.Y., home this weekend, said Ruth Manecke, his spokeswoman.

"He's just fine," Ms. Manecke said. "He's called his office and is coming home in a few days."

Keeshan's doctor in New York had recommended he undergo the operation, and it was not an emergency, hospital spokeswoman Brenda Blake said. Keeshan suffered a heart attack in 1981.

Group raises Texas funds

DALLAS — Texas may soon get a regional office of the respected Environmental Defense Fund — a subtle sign, organizers say, that a state not known for being conservation-minded is taking its environmental problems more seriously.

A group of about 25 attorneys has been talking with officials of the New York-based organization, which has gotten impressive results by using pragmatic methods of persuasion.

Since late May, the lawyers have been soliciting donations in hopes of opening an EDF office somewhere in Texas early next year. At last count about $25,000 had been raised, attorney Stuart Henry of Austin said Thursday.

SMU given deadline

AUSTIN — Attorney General Jim Mattox has given Southern Methodist University until Aug. 10 to relinquish all evidence documenting the participation of Gov. Bill Clements and other SMU officials in the pay-for-play scandal that forced the school to cancel its 1987 and 1988 football seasons.

In a strongly worded letter to the university's chief lawyer and the four bishops who investigated the scheme, Mattox asked SMU to produce all files, reports, sworn statements, taped interviews and other materials relating to the officials' admitted misconduct.

Alamo vendors to move

SAN ANTONIO — Horse-drawn carriages and snowcone vendors will be leaving Alamo Plaza after the City Council approved a plan to revamp the area.

The $4.7 million plan, tentatively approved Thursday, would modify the plaza and restore the shrine to "hallowed-ground" status.

As part of a 10-point recommendation, the street that runs in front of the Alamo could be closed, trees trimmed, a bandstand removed, directional signs put up and new paving materials installed.

Vendors would be moved to the perimeter of the plaza and nearby stores would be encouraged to avoid "garish" Alamo design and commercial exploitation of the structure.

Airline safety groups emerge

DALLAS — As airline passenger complaints pile up and near collisions abound, two new fronts opened Thursday in the attack on air safety and service problems:

In a remarkable alliance, pilots and air traffic controllers have agreed to form an organization focusing on airline safety issues and have raised the possibility that they may refuse to work under certain conditions they deem dangerous.

A new organization — Airline Passengers of America — will fight for travelers' rights. The group, which includes former Dallas airline executive Sam Coats, said it will represent passenger interests with the federal government and the airline industry and provide consumer travel services.

On a lark

Saragosa resident Asusena Melendez, center, and Lorina Garcia, right, enjoy one of the rides at Six Flags Over Texas at Arlington Thursday. The girls were part of a group of children visiting the amusement park on a three-day trip to the Dallas area. The trip was arranged to help the children deal with the trauma of seeing their town destroyed and relatives killed when a tornado leveled it May 22.

President agrees to settlement

CORPUS CHRISTI — The former president of Del Mar College said he resigned rather than face a hearing on misconduct allegations that led to his suspension in June.

Dr. Edwin L. Biggerstaff's resignation, effective Thursday, came after the junior college's board of regents voted Wednesday to accept an agreement to pay him $130,000 for the remainder of his contract through Aug. 31, 1989.

He was suspended June 17 for alleged misconduct. The board cited the president for failure to conduct himself in accordance with accepted standards of conduct, conduct which is a discredit and contrary to the best interest of the Del Mar College District, and improper use of public funds.

The board also cited Biggerstaff for failure to perform his duties as president of Del Mar College in accordance with the policies and decisions of this board.

Biggerstaff said the suspension was the result of "controversies between some members of the board and myself," but would not elaborate.

He was scheduled to have faced a hearing in September, at which he and the board would discuss the allegations in detail. "Rather than go through the hearing, we decided to negotiate a settlement," he said.

Officials release military crash report

FORT HOOD — Authorities linked the crash of a military helicopter that killed 10 people to an equipment malfunction, a heavy load and other factors, published reports say.

A source who has been involved in the accident investigation told the Killeen Daily Herald on Thursday that high humidity and heat also contributed to the crash of a UH-1 Huey helicopter on June 22 at Fort Hood.

The source, who asked to remain anonymous, said the helicopter's compressor apparently stalled, causing a loss of power.

Stevie Wonder plans benefit concert to fight hereditary form of blindness

By the Associated Press
 LOS ANGELES — Singer Stevie Wonder has joined actress Angie Dickinson and Atlantic Richfield Co. chief executive Lodwick Cook in planning a benefit concert to fight a hereditary form of blindness.

The concert Aug. 6 is to help raise money for a research center called "Wonderland" on behalf of RP International, an organization devoted to fighting retinitis pigmentosa. The disease strikes children and young adults, gradually making them blind.

"The world is blind," said Wonder, whose own blindness does not stem from RP. "We must prove we are not so blind so as not to see that victory (over RP) is near."

LOS ANGELES — Kiefer Sutherland, son of actor Donald Sutherland, has several films coming out and says he'd like to work with his father.

The 20-year-old actor, whose mother is Canadian stage actress Shirley Douglas, was acclaimed throughout Canada for his first film, "The Bay Boy," and has made nine movies since, including four that will be released during the next six months.

"The Lost Boys" opens Friday, the same day as his father's new movie, "The Wolf Against the Door."

He said in a recent interview that he wanted to avoid being compared to his father but that he is convinced he will be "until the day I die."

He said he'd like to do a film with his father but that "I want to be at the level in my career where I'm satisfied with what I'm doing."

"I don't think that's going to be very far off, but I would also like a project that would give me the same opportunity that it would give him to excel," he said.

MOSCOW — American rock star Billy Joel is giving belated high marks to Moscow audiences, but says economics stand in the way of a quick return to the Soviet Union after his tour ends.

He told a news conference Wednesday that a cool audience response was one reason he lost his temper during his second concert, when he overturned his electronic piano and smashed a microphone stand. But he didn't apologize for his conduct, which startled the audience. "I know it's shocking," he said. "That's rock 'n' roll."

Asked to rate Soviet audiences, Joel replied: "In the beginning, not so good. In the end, as good as any audience I've ever played to."

He said people didn't seem to understand that they were allowed to show their emotions. "It was a little unnerving at first," he said.

He had three more concerts on the tour, in which ticket prices are low and the pay is in rubles, which are not convertible and may not be exported.

Joel, 38, plans to finance his trip by showing two films shot during the tour, one of the concerts themselves and the other a documentary of his journey.

LOS ANGELES — Actor Sean

Penn and his bodyguard got into a shoving match with a camera crew at the Los Angeles airport but apparently won't face any charges.

Bob Tur, owner of the independent Los Angeles News Service, was taping Penn's arrival from a film project in Germany on Wednesday when the actor, some friends, relatives and his bodyguard tried to enter an elevator at a Los Angeles International Airport parking building.

A shouting and shoving match ensued, said photographer Phil Ramey.

Tur's mother, Judy, said her son had decided not to press charges.

She said her son doesn't blame Penn "because he doesn't like to be videotaped. But the bodyguard is the one who really got out of hand."

Penn already faces a 60-day jail sentence for parole violation and is due in jail on Saturday. He has been in court in connection with a series of incidents including fighting and spitting, and last month was sentenced for violating probation by admitting to reckless driving and for punching an extra on a film set.

Group's aim to keep kids off drugs

NEW YORK (AP) — A common belief that young people who participate in sports are less likely than other students to use alcohol and other drugs may be a myth, one expert says.

Brice Durbin, executive director of the National Federation of State High School Associations, based in Kansas City, Mo., says surveys have found that young people who participate in sports are just as likely to use alcohol and other drugs as those who don't play sports.

"These surveys conflict with the common belief that 'if we can get young people involved in sports, they will be off the streets and out of the alcohol and drug scene,'" he notes.

Two recent surveys by the Hazelden-Cork Sports Foundation in Minnesota said that athletes actually reported more alcohol use than other students.

"When one examines the connection the media makes between athletic events and the use of alcohol, it is surprising that athletes don't use alcohol even more than the average student," Durbin said in an interview here.

The National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism says a survey of high school seniors indicates alcohol is the drug most widely used by American youth. More than half the students surveyed said they had tried alcohol prior to 9th grade; 15 percent said they had used marijuana; and 2 percent said they had used cocaine by the same grade.

The National Federation of State High School Associations is sponsoring TARGET, a program designed to educate school-age youth and to promote the prevention of alcohol and drug abuse among them.

TARGET seeks to provide widespread understanding among high school students that healthy living is beneficial — and that abuse of alcohol and drugs has serious consequences, both now and in the future.

The federation, through its network of 51 associations, works with coaches and sponsors of activities. It created the rule books for virtually every high school sport in America and is involved with speech, debate, drama and music activities.

Durbin says the National Federation's influential network of state activity associations is the element that sets TARGET apart from all other organizations.

He points out that the federation has the unique ability to reach into the nation's schools state-by-state, from the top down, using valuable role models that include administrators, teachers, coaches and activity sponsors.

In addition, Durbin says, TARGET uses a peer approach, primarily through the most influential high school student leaders — those involved in sports, music and debate.

Durbin says education and prevention are the keys to TARGET, and that faculty, students and parents are all needed for the program to be successful.

He says TARGET has four basic tools:

— A computerized reference bank of information on chemical abuse and prevention, especially as it relates to school-age youth and extracurricular activities, including high school sports.

— "On TARGET," a monthly publication that is scheduled to become biweekly in January 1988, which provides, among other things, information on alcohol and drug projects in schools throughout the nation.

Ultrasound can see with sound

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Ultrasound has been used for everything from detecting body organs to cleaning dirt-encrusted tools.

Now, ultrasound technology is being developed to produce a microscope that "sees" with sound instead of light. R.J. Dwayne Miller of the University of Rochester says he is investigating how ultrasound can create images of individual atoms.

Since ultrasonic waves are much shorter than those of light, an ultrasound microscope would offer a better examination of the surface of objects. One use may be in the production of computer chips, where surfaces must meet exacting standards.

On-the-go Americans eat less vegetables

SAN FRANCISCO — Today's on-the-go Americans eat fewer vegetables than ever before because of a busy lifestyle and reduced formal meal occasions.

The truth is, in 1985, the average American consumed 190 pounds of vegetables, up from 147.2 pounds in 1970, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. And that doesn't include potatoes.

But it is also true that the 1980s could go down in history as the era of the single person. And the solo dinner often means grabbing what you eat, without regard to nutrition.

"Cooking for one has always been something of a challenge for most singles," says Donna Higgins, director of Del Monte Kitchens. But even people living alone can't eat out every night, and most want to satisfy nutritional needs in a manner that fits their lifestyle.

"Solitary diners have had a rough time of it," suggests Higgins, who offers these tips for the active, single person trying to prepare nutritional meals for one:

- Do some advance planning. Think about how many evenings in a week you eat at home. Think about the kinds of things you enjoy eating that are easy to prepare and good for you. Then think about the time it takes to prepare what you enjoy.
- Reserve one evening a week for cooking. Prepare dishes and store in single serve portions. Label and freeze meals by placing them in the refrigerator the night before you plan to use them to reduce cooking time.

- Keep the pantry stocked with convenient-sized portions of fruits and vegetables that can be eaten alone, or mixed with other items to create salads and other dishes that can be stored for several days in the refrigerator.
- Always eat breakfast.

Perhaps the simplest and most important meal of the day, it is the most often forgotten. Use cereal, milk and toast on hand. Top cereal with fruit and yogurt for variety.

- Prepare low calorie desserts mixing canned and fresh varieties of fruit. Add a splash of wine to create a sauce if desired.
- Package leftovers in single serve portions, label and freeze to avoid those little mysteries left in the back of the refrigerator weeks later!

Device increases gas mileage by 22%

With the oil glut worse than ever and OPEC wringing its hands, on July 11th, the government awarded National FuelSaver Corp. $22,000 for developing a simple automotive accessory that increases gas mileage by 22 percent. Called the Platinum GaSaver, it injects microscopic quantities of platinum into the airstream entering the engine. The injector itself takes only minutes to install while the platinum entering the engine increases the percentage of each gallon burning in the engine from the normal 68 percent to 90 percent.

Normally, that 22 percent would only burn when it came in contact with the platinum-coated surfaces of the catalytic converter. But with the GaSaver introducing the platinum into the engine, platinum catalysis can now burn that fuel in the engine where the release of that heat and energy is harnessed to drive that vehicle.

With 22 percent more of each gallon burning in the engine, 22 percent fewer gallons are required. The process works on both leaded and unleaded gasoline, and meets EPA and California standards.

Federal Judge Walter Jay Skinner concluded the five-year administrative procedure studying the GaSaver by stating, "Independent testing shows greater fuel savings with the GaSaver than the 22 percent claimed by its developer, National FuelSaver Corp."

In another study concluded recently, the government confirmed that the Platinum GaSaver raises the octane of gasoline, eliminating the need for premium gasoline.

Joel Robinson, the developer, commented, "We've already sold over 70,000 GaSavers. Ironically, we find more people buying the GaSaver for its third benefit of extending engine life, than buy it for fuel savings or octane boosting. Ever since our economy became battered by OPEC in 1973, we were convinced it would be a small company like ourselves that would reverse the trend of higher fuel costs."

Texas, South shortchanged

Texas and the entire South are not getting their fair share of federal largess, according to a Southern Methodist University report. Officeholders representing the state and region should pull out all the stops to see that this "Robin-Hood-in-reverse" situation is turned around.

A report written by Bernard Weinstein and Richard Wigley of SMU's Center for Enterprise says Sun Belt states are getting shortchanged primarily because of the way federal program financing formulas are written.

The report says the formulas are rewarding thriving states in the Northeast and Middle West, while depriving economically depressed states in this part of the country.

Texas is getting robbed, literally. Citizens here are paying $1.59 in taxes for every federal dollar returned. In contrast, New Yorkers pay only 75 cents for each dollar returned.

Granted, the Lone Star State is the home of several large military bases, and firms such as LTV Corp., Texas Instruments and General Dynamics are engaged in defense work that is helping to keep the local economy relatively strong.

But the report notes that during the Reagan administration's defense buildup — the largest ever in peacetime — Pentagon procurement from Sun Belt states has fallen from 18 percent below the national average in 1981 to 26 percent below the average now.

Southern states receive 40 percent below the national average in Urban Development Action Grant funds, and Texas colleges aren't getting nearly as much federal research money as campuses in California and Massachusetts.

So southern congressmen have formed a coalition to change the way federal program funds are distributed.

Now that Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Houston is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and Rep. Jim Wright of Fort Worth is Speaker of the House, they should be doing everything in their considerable power to see that Texas is treated more fairly in the future.

Couple thanks merchants for aid

To the editor:
I'm taking this opportunity to thank the many Big Spring merchants and individuals for their help and generosity in trying to locate our daughter, Julie.

Although they are too numerous to list, some donated their advertising space at their business, some donated their air time with broadcasts, and others kept an ever-watchful eye for her.

Although we have not yet heard from our daughter, it is a comfort to know we live in a town with so many people who care about the other person. Your continued thought and prayers are appreciated.

Writer questions suffering

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My sister (who is my only living relative) is now in a nursing home and is very ill. She will never get any better, and now her mind is unclear and sometimes she doesn't even know me. Why doesn't God just take her to heaven, if He really is a loving God? — Mrs. B.B.

DEAR MRS. B.B.: I'm sure this kind of question has occurred to most of us — and frankly, there is no easy answer for it or similar questions. And yet suffering (both of ourselves and of others) is part of our human experience, and God can use it to bring us closer to Himself.

Instead of trying to solve this difficult question of why God allows suffering, however, let me point you to two ways God can use suffering (like that of your sister) to remind us of some very important truths.

First, through suffering God reminds us of the shortness of life and the inevitable fact of death. Many people spend their lives trying to escape from this fact — but how foolish it is to neglect one of the most important truths of life!

Someday you will die and go into eternity. Are you prepared? Have you given your life to Christ, and are you trusting Him alone as your personal Lord and savior?

Second, suffering reminds me of Grain surplus could finance revival among farm families

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — Rural America is sinking like a stone tossed in a hog wallow, and it desperately needs help from the federal government if it is to survive.

It's not hard to show that farm families — and the small businesses, suppliers and factory workers who depend on them as customers — are in dire straits. With only one-quarter of the nation's population, rural areas account for more than two-thirds of substandard housing and more than one-third of overall poverty.

Creation of new jobs is lagging badly in the countryside. For every new job in rural areas, seven are created in the cities. It's hardly surprising that each week more than 2,000 Americans abandon farming as a livelihood. For family farmers, the prosperous past is fading into memory, the present is bleak and there seems to be no future.

The Reagan administration's concentration on increased defense budgets since 1981 has left little to spend on rural development. Even Republicans concede privately that the Democrats have been generally more attentive to the plight of rural America than the administration has.

Now Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., the son of a onetime grain elevator operator, is spearheading an innovative effort to tap the Farm Belt's own resources for rural development funds. What makes his role significant is not just that as minority leader he has the standing to rally other Republican legislators around him, but the fact that he is a leading contender for the GOP presidential nomination.

In a recent interview, Dole was enthusiastic about the rural revitalization idea that he and Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, came up with. In its simplest form, it would turn mountains of government-owned grain reserves into the collateral for loans that would be used to finance private development projects in rural areas.

This was no instant brainstorm with a light bulb clicking on over the senatorial dome and a cry of "Eureka!" Its genesis can probably be traced to the Republican disaster in last November's elections.

Looking past the loss of the Senate and his own post as majority leader, Dole saw a hopeful sign in the election of new Republican governors in the Midwest. He quickly organized a 30-member task force on rural problems, composed of Republican governors and members of Congress. Out of their discussions emerged the idea of a "Rural Fund for Development" backed by at least $1 billion in loan guarantees. Under the proposal, banks would make federally guaranteed loans to businesses that depend on the farming community.

The guarantees would be backed by grain owned by the federal Commodity Credit Corp., the agency that buys up surplus commodities to keep the market stable. It would be a domestic version of the CCC credits extended to countries like Poland based on their grain harvests.

"These commodities — billions of bushels — are locked away in grain elevators," Dole explained. "Why not put those assets to work in the rural economy?"

The assets are not only huge — more than 2.8 billion bushels of grain worth $5.5 billion in government storage as of May 1 — but they cost the taxpayers a bundle. Storage costs are estimated at $1.3 billion for the current fiscal year, with costs expected to escalate in years to come.

Grain inventories are expected to reach 4.5 billion bushels in 1988, worth more than $10 billion and incurring $1.8 billion in storage costs. Storage costs for all CCC-owned products are expected to amount to $8 billion for the 1987-1990 period.

Readers who want to give Dole the benefit of their two cents' worth on the idea — for or against — can write him at SH 141 Hart Building, Washington, D.C. 20510.

Panhandler should spin yarns

By LEON HALE
Houston Chronicle
HOUSTON (AP) — In old Market Square at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon a guy came up and tried to put the touch on me for $5, and I was impressed by that amount.

Even your major league panhandlers won't normally ask for more than a couple of bucks, and I thought it showed bad manners and a general lack of style for a guy to go around bumming off the public at $5 a whack.

Furthermore, I think asking for such a price is bad business because a citizen who might be willing to hand over a buck is apt to be put off by a request for five, and hand over nothing at all as a result.

I have never thought highly of Houston panhandlers. To begin with, we don't seem to have anywhere near as many as other cities of our size. True, I have spent more time in places like Nacogdoches and Yoakum than in downtown Houston, but I've strolled a good many miles on Houston streets, and I've been approached by bums no more than half a dozen times since I came here in 1947, looking for steady work.

And not one of those had a decent story to tell about why he needed the money. Not even the guy who asked me for $5.

Why, that's the most pitiful sort of low-grade bumming. I have never begged on the streets for as much as a dime, but I know this: No panhandler with any professional pride is going to ask a stranger for five bucks without having a story to tell. It's just not done.

Back in the '60s when I was in love with the entire Republic of Mexico and going down there as often as I found an excuse. I met a little gringo named James who turned out to be an expert at getting tourists to hand out cash. He was maybe 45 and not much bigger than a standard jockey.

He fell in and walked alongside me near the American Embassy in Mexico City, there on Paseo de la Reforma, and he said, "How are things in Houston?" He grinned and confessed he had sneaked a peek at the notebook I was carrying and saw my name and the name of the newspaper I was working for at that time. It wasn't this one. I forget the name of it now.

Anyhow, he said he was from Houston and had grown up in the Heights and used to work as a driver for Oscar Holcombe when that gent was the mayor of our town, which in fact he was for pretty near half his life.

This James knew Glenn McCarthy and several other Houston millionaires, and he was a personal friend of Jess Neeley, the Rice football coach. At this time I think Coach Neeley had been gone from Rice quite a while, but I didn't mention that as I was afraid I'd mess up the story.

Well, it seems James had gone down into Mexico the year before to seek his fortune, as the saying was, and he had not found it yet and was very homesick and trying to raise a little stake to buy a bus ticket and get back home, never-more to roam.

I game him 10 pesos, which at that time was 80 cents. He seemed pleased and told me to say hello to Mayor Holcome, and I said I would, even though I had not met him and never did.

On that trip, I was staying at the Hotel Prince, and two days later, I spotted James across the street, working the tourists in Alameda Park. He was ever so pleased to see a person from his beloved hometown, and we sat on one of the park benches and talked, and I learned some interesting things.

He had been working his little game for something like five years and had become expert at spotting the hometowns of tourists. He knew the names of mayors in all our big cities and the names of other local public figures such as sheriffs and football coaches, and he could do you a pretty good hometown story on any place from Atlanta to Seattle.

Or even London or Paris. Here was a guy who could con tourists in three different languages, and even though the job paid pretty well, he said it was very hard work, much harder than anything he had ever done back in Baltimore, which is where he came from.

I couldn't help feeling a certain admiration for the talents of this little gent, and even after I knew all about his game, he ended up getting another 10 pesos off me.

Having met pro panhandlers like James, it hurts my feelings for a guy to come up and ask me for $5 when he has no story to tell. It wasn't anything, but an insult, and I didn't give him a nickel.

Fat chance of staying on new diet

By ALISHA GOLDMAN
Copy Editor

I just started another diet. I never try the same one twice, and I've done almost all of them once.

I've done Diet Center, Herbalife, Weight Watchers, the Banana diet, the Egg diet (you eat eggs until you don't look at an egg for a year), even the eggplant and zucchini diet.

They were all good diets. They just didn't have one item included that I can't live without.

Pizza. What's wrong with deep pan pizza with everything on it? Doesn't it include lots of nutritious vegetables? And bread is a staple of man since prehistoric times.

As I was saying, I started a new diet. I won't name it, so anyone connected with the diet won't be embarrassed by this testimonial.

It is outlined in a book on the bestseller list. I prefer a book to attending meetings with a lot of other fat people — I mean, heavy people.

The book explains the why and wherefores of how it works physiologically and psychologically, which made me feel intelligent, even though I didn't understand it all.

I finally skipped a few chapters to get to the point: What I get to eat.

I was so depressed after I read it, I almost didn't try it. It turned out to be a diet.

I heaved a sigh, noticed my girth as I did so, and decided to give it a whirl.

First I had to clean out the refrigerator, of course. It doesn't do to begin a diet with a half gallon of ice cream in the freezer or cans of cinnamon biscuits.

Then, for my Last Supper I had spaghetti, with two pieces of bread, and ended with the ice cream. I also drank my last two cherry Cokes.

The next step is a trip to the grocery store to re-stock the refrigerator. This is the investment phase.

I strolled slowly down the pasta aisle, but didn't touch anything. And the taco shells and cans of refried beans I left on the shelves.

I said farewell to the potato chips, too. But at the soft drink aisle, I faltered and nearly gave in.

The toughest section was the dessert area. I'm sure it beckoned to me. I steered as far away as I could, but there it was, in sight most of the time.

Finally, I had made it to the checkout counter. Fresh fruits and vegetables were overflowing in my cart — I could eat all the salad and fruits (three or four a day) that I wanted.

Instead of the usual loaf of soft, luscious bread, my cart also contained dry, hard Wasa crackers and rice cakes.

I had a big box filled with tuna fish cans and pounds of chicken breasts.

Later, I sat down to my first diet meal, fairly pleased with myself.

It consisted of: Half a can of tuna fish with one teaspoon of light mayonnaise (no relish allowed); a rice cake; alfalfa sprouts; a lettuce and cucumber salad — no dressing; and a glass of water — one of seven required daily.

I did it. I ate a nutritious, low-calorie meal.

But afterward, visions of Blizzards danced in my head.

One thing about it — I didn't have any dirty pots and pans.

It was life in the diet lane again. But if it ever gets too tough, there's still a frozen pizza in the fridge!

Fuji trekker returns

LOS ANGELES — Tired but triumphant after trekking to the top of Mount Fuji, 91-year-old mountain climber Hulda Crooks returned from Japan on Thursday saying the secret of her success was "to take care of yourself when you're young."

Mrs. Crooks, wearing comfortable shoes, a baseball cap and a red, white and blue satin jacket that read "Grandma Challenges Mount Fuji," was met by applause when she entered the terminal at Los Angeles International Airport.

California fire rages

WOODFORDS, Calif. — Firefighters concentrated Thursday on protecting a mobile home park from a brush and timber fire that destroyed more than a quarter of the 100 homes in this Sierra Nevada community and blackened 6,000 acres.

Up to 1,500 people were expected to be fighting the blaze by Thursday afternoon, said fire boss John Russell. He said 27 homes in the area were destroyed in Wednesday's firestorm and 50 others were damaged.

Fire officials worked Thursday to establish a line to protect a mobile home park on the fire's southern flank. U.S. Forest Service spokesman Jim Nelson said he didn't know how many homes were in the park.

People Mover opens

DETROIT — The Motor City begins weaning car-happy motorists away from jammed downtown parking lots today as the $200 million People Mover makes its formal debut, officials said.

Mayor Coleman A. Young said he hoped the 2.94-mile elevated rail loop also would generate development of modern rapid transit in the region.

Free rides will be held during its first week of operation; 50-cent fares will be charged afterward.

Manson disciple denied

FRONTERA, Calif. — Leslie Van Houten, a Charles Manson follower convicted in the grisly Tate-LaBianca killings, is not likely to win freedom before the end of the century, a prosecutor says.

Miss Van Houten on Thursday lost her seventh bid for parole. The parole board, which deliberated an hour following a five-hour hearing, said it would not meet to consider a release date again for three years.

Miss Van Houten, 37, was glum-faced as Rudolph Castro, chairman of the three-member board, told her: "We find you would present an unreasonable risk to society at large."

Lucille Babcock, 65, of Little Rock, Ark., shows how she used a cane and harsh words to save the life of a 22-year-old woman being attacked by a man. Babcock, who wears a brace on her right leg, ran from a second story apartment to chase the attacker.

Heroine Cane-wielding lady attacks rapist

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A disabled poetry editor who ran down a flight of stairs to whack a young woman's attacker with her cane says she's gotten congratulatory calls from worried husbands and an offer of free treatment for her sore shoulder.

Still, 65-year-old Lucille Babcock says she's not a heroine, just a concerned neighbor.

"I don't have courage. My heart was in my throat," Mrs. Babcock said Thursday. "But you can't stand by and watch while someone gets hurt, and he was killing her."

Mrs. Babcock, who edits verse for the Arkansas Gazette and has written a murder mystery, was in her second-floor garage apartment Wednesday morning when she heard the screams of a 22-year-old neighbor. The young woman, who had been washing her car, was being attacked by a man in her yard.

A 100 percent disabled World War II veteran who wears a brace on her right leg, Mrs. Babcock bounded down her stairs "four at a time" and ran toward the attacker, swinging her wooden cane.

"He said he would kill me. I swung again and he ran and by that time a man who was nearby heard me. I was screaming like I was meaner than the devil himself. I knew this man wouldn't take any weak 'don't do that' and I kept swinging."

She said she cursed the man and told him she was a policeman. Some of her language, she said, couldn't be printed: "I was trying to impress on him I'm not some little old gray-haired woman."

The man ran. Three male neighbors gave chase. "They had a tussle with the man, and then the police came," Mrs. Babcock said.

Police arrested Lawrence E. Foot, 43, of Little Rock, and charged him with rape and terroristic threatening. The young woman was released after treatment at University Hospital, police said.

Officers were concerned about the cane-wielding older woman. "They brought out an ambulance and a man checked my blood pressure. I was OK, I guess. They kept telling me I was a hero," Mrs. Babcock said.

"I didn't expect all this publicity," she said. "Mostly, I expected the guy to get out on bond and come out here and kill me. I'm a little afraid. I thought my friends would call and say what a stupid thing you've done."

Police promised to watch her property.

Lt. R.L. "Bert" Jenkins, spokesman for the Little Rock Police Department, said Thursday that citizens are discouraged from getting involved in crimes in progress.

"But this whole scenario is unique," he said of Mrs. Babcock. "We are most appreciative of her action."

Navy searches gulf

MANAMA, Bahrain — The U.S. Navy continued searching the waters of the Persian Gulf today for three people missing in the crash of an American helicopter. At least one person was killed and five people were rescued, diplomatic sources said.

The Western diplomatic sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said one of the survivors was seriously injured in the crash of the SH-3G Sea King aircraft at 5:58 p.m. (10:58 a.m. EDT) Thursday. The helicopter crashed into the water as it was about to land aboard the LaSalle, the command ship of the nine-unit Middle East Task Force.

30 killed in rebellion

SAO PAULO, Brazil — Riot police broke up a new rebellion inside a maximum-security prison Thursday and found two more bodies, raising to 30 the number killed in an inmates' uprising the day before.

Mario Garcia, the Sao Paulo State secretary of justice, said the two prisoners had been stabbed to death and their bodies left in the rubble of a trashed cellblock.

Seven hours of fighting between police and inmates on Wednesday killed 29 inmates and one guard and wounded dozens, he said.

Enrile named in suits

MANILA, Philippines — The government today filed three more civil lawsuits against Ferdinand E. Marcos and associates who allegedly helped the former president plunder billions of dollars during his 20-year rule.

In one of today's suits, the government asked for $5.05 billion in damages from former defense minister Juan Ponce Enrile and 42 co-defendants, including Marcos and his wife, Imelda.

The suits, the final batch of civil cases against Marcos and his relatives and associates, bring to 35 the number of civil actions naming Marcos. The total amount sought in the suits is nearly $96.7 billion.

Woodward hospitalized

LONDON — Edward Woodward, British star of the American television series "The Equalizer," was resting after a suspected heart attack and will be cheered by news of his nomination for an Emmy award, his agent said.

Woodward, 57, who plays a champion of the weak in the fight against crime in New York City, was nominated Thursday as best lead actor in a drama series by the American Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

The Emmy winners will be announced Sept. 20 in Los Angeles.

Plane crash turns highway into inferno

MEXICO CITY (AP) — In the flash of an exploding airplane, the Mexico-Toluca Highway was transformed from a normal rush-hour scene into an inferno of twisted metal and burning cars with people trapped inside.

The difference between living and dying was a matter of luck — a matter of being in the right place at the right time.

Alejandro Perez Palma told television crews his house beside the highway shook as if an earthquake had struck when the Boeing 377 crashed Thursday evening, seven minutes after leaving Mexico City's international airport.

Looking out his kitchen window, Perez said he saw the plane pass under a bridge on the highway, avoid a gas station to the right of the road, bounce off the tops of cars, crash into a restaurant and house and explode.

The bridge, commonly known as the Conafrut bridge, is about 16 feet high and leads from the eight-lane highway to the large, Conafrut food processing plant.

The commercial cargo plane was bound for Miami with 12 people and 18 horses aboard. Officials said 37 people died in the accident and 40 were injured.

Cars crashed into each other and some burst into flames, trapping passengers inside, when the plane came down into bumper-to-bumper traffic.

Many of the bodies were burned so badly they resembled twisted charcoal statues lying on the ground. There was no way to tell whether they were men, women or children.

A Belize Air International charter flight carrying horses to a U.S. air show crashed on a major highway at rush hour in Mexico City Thursday. At least 26 vehicles were damaged or destroyed.

Along a sidewalk, rescue workers put the remains in plastic bags and lined them up to be taken away. Smoke rose from some of the bags because of the heat of the remains.

Most of the horses died in the crash, and some that survived the crash were so badly burned they had to be shot by policemen with pistols.

Pieces of wreckage burned in the streets, and fire hoses snaked across the highway as ambulances and helicopters came and went carrying the dead and dying to nearby hospitals. Nearby, the manager of the Tras Lomitas Restaurant said 200 patrons heard the plane coming and rushed into the street before it plowed into the facility. One side of the restaurant was reduced to rubble and the roof collapsed on the tables.

17 receive scholarships to junior colleges, UTPB

The Permian Honor Scholarship Foundation Inc. has awarded 11 full scholarships and six partial scholarships to Big Spring area residents.

The full scholarships will enable students to attend area junior colleges for two years and complete their degrees at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

Grants of $200 to $620 per year also are available to help with the cost of transportation and moving. Scholarship recipients are:

Big Spring High School: Joanna L. Hamilton majoring in chemistry, and Sonya G. Evans majoring in accounting.

Coahoma High School: D. Kent Ballard majoring in music, Tina K. Robertson majoring in business administration, Dixie L. Shaw majoring in chemistry, Angela K. Reid majoring in marketing, Karen E. McCoy majoring in business administration, Vikkie J. Moore majoring in life science.

Forsan High School: Letty J. Martin, a Presidential scholar majoring in business administration, Danny W. Evans majoring in engineering, and Julie A. Williams majoring in life science.

Students granted partial scholarships are: Janice L. Melton majoring in management, Debra D. Montgomery majoring in accounting, Tami A. Dunlap majoring in business administration, and Jerry D. Freshour majoring in business administration.

Mollie F. Madison majoring in history and Betty K. Clere studying for her MBA will attend UTPB on residual scholarships.

Military

Mike McKinley, son of Judi McKinley and grandson of Foy and Dene Dunlap of Big Spring, was promoted to the rank of sergeant in the United States Marine Corp.

He graduated from Hawk Missile School in El Paso in July 1985.

McKinley is presently stationed in Yuma, Ariz., with his wife, Tammy Badger McKinley.

Raymond Fierro, whose wife Catalina, is the daughter of Pete Salazar of 1109 Lamar, has completed a combat engineer course at the United States Army Training Center at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

During the course, students were trained in the techniques of road and bridge building, camouflage and demolition. They also received instruction in combat squad tactics as well as in the use of infantry weapons.

Marriage licenses not nice enough

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Hennepin County marriage certificates just don't make the grade and a licensing clerk is canvassing the state for sentimental ideas to improve them.

"Our certificates are very business-like and very perfunctory," Violet Kilbo, manager of the county's service centers division, said Thursday. "They're paying $45 for their marriage license and I guess they feel they deserve something a little bit better."

Ms. Kilbo mailed a letter July 27 to clerks in the state's other 86 counties, calling on them to submit samples of their marriage certificates. She said Thursday that 47 counties have responded.

Linda Griffith, an Itasca County court clerk, received the letter Friday and said she would gladly comply with Hennepin County's request. "Ours are pretty," she said. "We have a nice fancy little one."

The Big Spring American League All-Stars' season is over. But the Americans didn't go down without a fight.

The Pecos All-Stars scored a run in the bottom of the seventh inning to register a 4-3 win, eliminating the Americans from bi-district play.

The Americans hardly resembled the team that was blasted 13-1 by Pecos Wednesday night in Pecos. On this afternoon the Big Spring team was a poised, cocky team, taking the fight to Pecos. For the first three innings they had Pecos on the ropes, but couldn't inflict the big blow that would produce any runs.

In fact, it might have been their aggressiveness that got the best of them. It came on Pecos' winning run in the seventh. With the score tied 3-3, runners on first and second, and one out, American pitcher Jeremy Edens faced cleanup hitter Julian Urquidez.

After a short conference with manager Alton Fields, Edens got the power hitter to hit a grounder to shortstop Patrick Martinez.

Martinez, who had an excellent fielding game, threw to third baseman Clark Fields (Alton's son) for the force out at third.

Fields went to first, trying to double up Urquidez. The throw was not in time. On Fields' throw to first, Pecos runner Matt Peters, who was on first at the time the ball was hit, rounded second and dashed to third.

American first baseman Jeromaine Gonzales rifled back a throw trying to catch Peters at third. Gonzales' throw went wide, took a crazy bounce off the fence and a gleeful Peters raced home with the winning run.

For the Americans it was an end to a long stay in post-season play. Fields and coach Chuck Ogle led the team to the District III championship and a 5-3 record in post-season play. It was the first Big Spring team since the '81 Texas League to reach bi-district play.

Manager Fields said his team executed just as he told them to do.

"I had just told Clark and Patrick to go third and first for the double play," said Fields. "We were just too late on it. You can't fault us for trying to get that last out at third though. It's a tough way to go down."

Fields said he never considered walking Urquidez, who hit his fourth post-season homer against the Americans Wednesday night.

"I never thought about walking him and loading up the bases. Jeremy had been doing a good job on him. I just told him to keep those curve balls low. I might call a pitch from the dugout every once in a while, but usually I let my pitcher and catcher call the game."

The tall, slender Edens pitched a strong game. The side-arming curve-baller limited a team that had been averaging 13 hits and 10 runs per game to just nine hits and four runs.

He duelled with Pecos pitchers Dominic Tellez and Herby Hinojos. Tellez started and pitched four innings. He allowed five hits and two runs. He left the game with a 3-2 lead. Hinojos, who got the win, was dandy in relief. He allowed one unearned run in three innings. The hard throwing right-hander gave up two singles to Jeromaine Gonzales, and fanned eight of the nine outs.

The Americans came out like gangbusters in the top of the first. Martinez and Fields promptly banded base hits, but they were left stranded.

They threatened again in the second, loading the bases with one out when Edens and David Akin singled, and Todd Parrish reached base on an error. But the threat

Juniors lose to Arlington

Herald staff report

CARROLTON — The Big Spring Junior League All-Stars dropped their first game in the sub-sectional tournament by a 4-1 margin to Arlington West Thursday afternoon at Farmer's Branch Field.

Joey Conaway was the losing pitcher for Big Spring, allowing four hits while going the distance. Big Spring also had four hits in the contest.

Arlington took a 2-0 lead in the fourth inning and Big Spring cut it to 2-1 in the fifth. The Big Spring run occurred when Cort Peterson walked, stole second, advanced to third on a fielder's choice and scored on a sacrifice fly by Conaway.

Arlington West put the game on ice by scoring twice more in the sixth. Big Spring threatened in the seventh, getting two men on base. But they were left stranded.

Patrick Chavarria paced Big Spring with two hits. Kevin Rodgers and Conaway had one hit apiece.

"It was an even game, each team got four hits," said Big Spring manager Paul Peterson. "It's just that their hits found the open spot and ours didn't."

Peterson said he would probably start Gerald Cobos against Arlington West in tonight's game at 7:30. If Big Spring wins, the tie-breaker will be played Saturday morning.

If Big Spring wins Saturday, the team will head directly to Bryan where the state tournament begins Sunday.

Several local cowboys and cowgirls turned in fine showings Thursday night at the American Junior Rodeo Association's rodeo in Big Spring.

This year's rodeo is being dedicated to a longtime supporter of the 4-H club and to a young member of the club, both of whom died this spring.

Fred Coleman was an active supporter of the Howard County 4-H Club and a leader in the Coahoma 4-H Club. His two children, Lee and Dianna, are active members, and his wife Hannah also supports the club. Coleman, a teacher at Big Spring High, died April 17 of a heart attack.

The rodeo is also being dedicated to Russ Billingsley, who had been a member of the Knott 4-H Club for nine years. Billingsley was very active exhibiting steers and lambs, and was active in several other 4-H events.

Billingsley was the son of Nancy and Ed Billingsley of Ackerly. The Sands senior was killed May 1 in a car accident.

Bo Jackson will be one rich dude

DALLAS (AP) — Bo Jackson, the full-time baseball player and soon-to-be part-time football player, will be the highest-paid non-quarterback in NFL history when he begins his career with the Los Angeles Raiders around mid-season, a published report says.

The Dallas Morning News reported today that the former Heisman Trophy winner, now an outfielder with the Kansas City Royals, has a five-year, $7.4-million contract with the Raiders even though he might be available to the Raiders for only eight games a year. Only Miami's Dan Marino, whose multi-year contract is worth $9 million, Tampa Bay's Vinny Testaverde, who will get $8.2 million, and Buffalo's Jim Kelly, who earns $8 million, have more lucrative total dollar deals, the newspaper said. But they play a full schedule.

Denver's John Elway is expected to sign a new long-term contract for $2 million per year before the start of the season, the newspaper said. The present value of Jackson's contract, computed in today's dollars, is $4.5 million, the newspaper said. That reflects deferred compensation in base salary and bonuses.

Neither Jackson nor the Raiders has been willing to divulge contract details. The newspaper did not reveal how it obtained the figures.

Jackson's contract includes a $1-million signing bonus and base salaries that average $864,000 a year. It also has an injury protection clause that guarantees he will be paid in full should he sustain a career-ending injury playing for either the Royals or Raiders once he passes his first Raiders physical in October.

The contract is not based on the number of games Jackson plays. It simply requires him to report to the Raiders 10 days after the conclusion of the baseball season and allows the Raiders to begin using him in games at their discretion.

There is nothing in the contract that forces Jackson to choose between the sports, the newspaper said.

The base salaries for the five years, which will be deferred over a 12-year period, are: $668,975, $748,499, $840,184, $960,886 and $1,101,456, the newspaper said. The total base salary compensation is $4.32 million, which will be paid in equal installments, about $360,000 a year, from 1987-1999.

Jackson's signing bonus of $1 million will be paid in two installments: $500,000 when he reports and passes the physical this year and $500,000 when he does the same in 1988.

He will get a $420,000 deferred bonus for each year he plays.

Local bowler wins state

AUSTIN — Big Spring has another state champion.

Local bowler Joycece Davis recently captured first place in the open division singles crown with a tournament-high series of 683 in the Texas Women's Bowling Association's 50th annual championship tournament.

Thousands of bowlers converged on Austin over the past 17 weekends to compete for more than $212,000 in prize money. At the time of deadline it was not known how much prize money Davis won.

The tournament was concluded last week.

Life not so easy for champ

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Mike Tyson is finding that fame has its price, but the young heavyweight champion says he was forewarned.

"Cus told me everything that has happened would happen," Tyson said, referring to Cus D'Amato, his late trainer and mentor.

Tyson, holder of the World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association titles, has been an American success story thus far, all the while emphasizing that he intends to be a good role model for youngsters.

But he's had to deal with a measure of controversy and some wide-spread rumors in the days leading up to his fight with International Boxing Federation champion Tony Tucker Saturday night for the undisputed heavyweight title.

The 21-year-old Tyson has been charged with misdemeanor assault and battery stemming from an alleged scuffle with a parking lot attendant June 21 in Los Angeles. And more recently, there was a report that Tyson had skipped out of his Las Vegas training camp for four days to visit a female friend in Los Angeles.

"A heavyweight champion doesn't just have to toe the line," said Jimmy Jacobs, Tyson's co-manager. "He has to be three feet behind the line."

"A heavyweight champion is always a target for people who want to get publicity or get money," Jacobs said.

"He's going to be a target for people who want to take on the 'fastest guy.' Boxing history has taught me that heavyweight champions have this problem," Jacobs said.

Cowboys' starting linebacker leaves camp

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas Cowboys' starting outside linebacker Jeff Rohrer has declared himself officially a holdout after leaving training camp.

Cornerback Ron Fellsows also was not in camp and both players were fined $1,000 a day by Dallas Coach Tom Landry starting today until they decided to report.

Fellsows, who has not signed a contract, failed to meet the reporting deadline Thursday night while Rohrer reported and then decided to leave.

Rohrer, in his option year of his contract, met with Landry in hopes of straightening out the situation. But after the meeting, Rohrer packed his bags Thursday night and left for his home in Manhattan Beach, Calif.

"It's very distressing," said

Rohrer before leaving. "This is very hard for me to handle. But that's life. I'm disappointed. But there's not much I can do."

Rohrer made $192,000 this year. He is the third-highest-paid linebacker on the team behind other starters Mike Hegman, at $250,000, and Eugene Lockhart, at $225,000.

The six-year pro was behind only Lockhart in team tackles last season, with his 111 tackles just 10 short of Lockhart's total. He said he deserved more money.

"When I signed, I was not a starting linebacker," said Rohrer. "But now I'm starting and I'm a top producer. I hope to take that into consideration. At this point, though, I don't think they have."

He is negotiating without an agent and has talked in person to team Vice President Joe Bailey once since June 28.

Rohrer said he did talk to Bailey by phone Thursday but "it was an abrupt conversation."

He said he came to camp hoping that he could go to meetings and go through light workouts that wouldn't make him susceptible to injury.

"I could've helped the rookies and been educated on the new schemes," said Rohrer.

Mets sweep Cards; NL East tightens up

By The Associated Press
 The New York Mets did what they needed to do. They went into St. Louis, swept a three-game series from the Cardinals and tightened the National League East race.

Dwight Gooden, moved up in the rotation to face the Cardinals, pitched effectively Thursday night as the Mets won 5-3 and extended St. Louis' losing streak to seven.

"After we lost to Houston on Sunday when they came from behind, I wasn't sure we'd bounce back for this," Mets Manager Dave Johnson said. "We've struggled all year but the race is wide-open now."

New York moved within 5½ games of the division-leading Cardinals. Montreal is in second place, four games behind.

St. Louis' losing streak is its longest of the season and the team hurt itself throughout the series against New York with poor baserunning. The Cardinals were also smarting after losing an argument about Howard Johnson's bat after he hit a home run.

In other NL games, Montreal beat Chicago 6-1. San Diego downed Cincinnati 12-8. Houston defeated Atlanta 8-5 and Philadelphia edged Pittsburgh 1-0.

Gooden, working on three days' rest, won his sixth straight decision against the Cardinals. He gave up two runs on four hits in the first inning but then settled down and raised his record to 8-3.

Gooden left the game after Jim Lindeman led off the ninth with a single. Tony Pena reached reliever Roger McDowell with a single and pinch-hitter Jose Oquendo sacrificed the potential tying runs into scoring position.

Vince Coleman then followed with a bouncer that first baseman Keith Hernandez bobbled. Hernandez had no play on Coleman but suddenly threw to catcher Gary Carter, who tagged out the late-breaking Lindeman in a home-plate collision. McDowell retired Ozzie Smith to end the game for his 15th save.

Carter and McReynolds drove in two runs apiece, although it was Johnson's homer that sparked the most commotion.

Johnson, whose two-run homer in the 10th inning beat St. Louis on Wednesday night, hit his 25th of the season in the eighth for a 5-3 lead. When Johnson crossed home plate, he went to pick up his bat but Pena, the Cardinals' catcher, wouldn't give it back.

The Cardinals claimed the bat was illegally doctored. Umpire crew chief Paul Runge took the bat out of play, examined it after the game and then returned it.

"We had no way of keeping it," Runge said. "We took it out of the game to prevent a fight. The grain looked like it had not been tampered with (and) the weight was right. If he (Howard Johnson) had come up again, he would have been entitled to have it back."

Expos 6, Cubs 1
 Mike Fitzgerald went 3-for-3 and drove in two runs as Montreal got 14 hits and won in Chicago.

Neal Heaton, 12-4, gave up just Keith Moreland's 20th home run in seven innings for his ninth victory in his last 11 starts.

Fitzgerald hit RBI singles in the second and the fourth innings. Vance Law, who also had three hits, singled home a run in the fifth against Bob Tewksbury, 0-3.

Padres 12, Reds 8
 Carmelo Martinez hit a two-run single during a seven-run outburst in the fifth inning that carried San Diego over Cincinnati.

Luis Salazar and Benito Santiago had RBI singles in the Padres' big inning against Guy Hoffman, 7-6, and Bill Landrum.

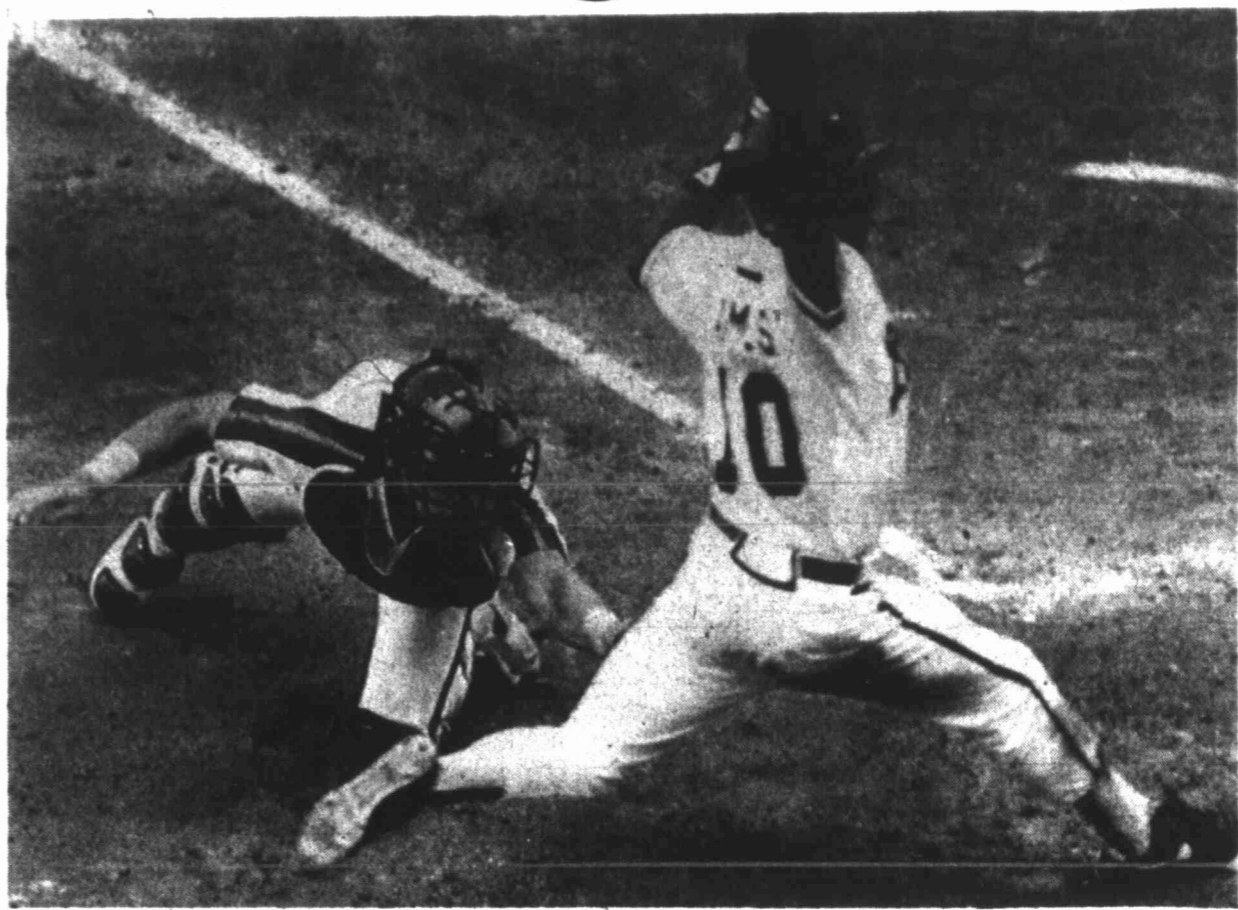

Jimmy Jones, 3-4, won despite allowing six runs on 11 hits in five-plus innings. It was his first victory in five starts this season. Jones helped himself with a two-run homer, his first in the majors.

Terry McGriff and Bo Diaz hit two-run homers for the host Reds and Nick Esasky hit a solo home run.

Astros 8, Braves 5
 Kevin Bass homered and drove in three runs and Alan Ashby had a two-run single that helped Houston's emergency starter Bob Knepper beat Atlanta.

Knepper, 4-12, started in place of Jim Deshaies, whose left shoulder stiffened while warming up. Knepper gave up a leadoff homer to Dion James and yielded six hits in five innings. Dave Smith finished for his 18th save.

The visiting Astros scored four times in the sixth for a 4-2 lead. Ashby singled home two runs and Hass had an RBI single. A balk by Rick Mahler, 6-11, allowed another run to score.

Atlanta Braves Dion James leaps for the plate Thursday, but is tagged out by Houston Astros catcher Alan Ashby in the fifth inning in Atlanta.

Bass' two-run homer, his 10th, capped a three-run eighth.

Phillies 1, Pirates 0
 Bruce Ruffin and Steve Bedrosian teamed on a five-hitter and Glenn Wilson's RBI single in the ninth inning led Philadelphia over Pittsburgh.

The visiting Phillies were held hitless by rookie Mike Dunne before Von Hayes' leadoff single in the seventh.

Pinch-hitter Ron Roenicke drew a leadoff walk from John Smiley, 3-2, in the ninth before Mike Schmidt and Wilson singled off Brett Gideon.

Ex-player-manager gets chance

NEW YORK (AP) — Three weeks removed from being a Class A player-coach, Juan Bonilla sat in the New York Yankees clubhouse and talked quietly about dreams fulfilled. He wore a black T-shirt that read across the front: "When Ever."

"Like in 'When Ever' you want me, I'm ready," he said. "I never lost hope. I thought that one day I would get my chance."

American League

Bonilla, making his fourth start at second base since being recalled, had a double and two singles, scored one run and drove in another Thursday night as the Yankees beat the Kansas City Royals 6-3.

The American League East-leading Yankees opened a two-game lead over idle Detroit. The Tigers begin a three-game series tonight at Yankee Stadium.

The Royals, swept in the three-game series, have now lost 17 of their last 21 games.

Tommy John, 10-3, allowed three runs in six innings. Reliever Tim Stoddard pitched three scoreless innings for his fourth save.

Henry Cotto also had three hits and Rick Cerone hit his first Yankee Stadium home run in five years.

Trailing 2-0 after first-inning RBI doubles by Kevin Seitzer and Frank White, the Yankees tied the game on run-scoring singles by Cotto in the third and Mike Pagliarulo in the fourth. Bonilla, exhibiting some daring baserunning, scored the tying run by racing from second base on a shallow hit to left field.

In the three-run fifth, which broke open the game, New York scored its first two runs on a bases-loaded wild pitch and a botched up rundown. But Bonilla capped the inning with a two-out RBI single off starter Bud Black, 4-6.

Bonilla, who is 6-for-15 for the Yankees, needed to scale three leagues to get to his current position.

After arthroscopic surgery on his right ankle before spring training, Bonilla started the season at Prince William of the Class A Carolina League, where he batted .308 in 44 games.

Then, in a little more than a week, Bonilla was promoted twice, first playing three games for AA Albany and then five for AAA Columbus before becoming a Yankee.

Two weeks ago, when the regular second baseman, All-

Star Willie Randolph, underwent surgery to repair cartilage damage in his left knee, the Yankees searched desperately for a temporary replacement.

Brewers 6, White Sox 1
 Glenn Braggs, Paul Molitor and Bill Schroeder each drove in two runs each as Milwaukee beat visiting Chicago.

Mark Knudson, 1-2, got his first AL victory. He gave up one run on eight hits in 6 1-3 innings and Chuck Crim finished with hitless relief for his first major-league save.

Braggs hit a triple, double and two-run single. His single put the Brewers ahead in the sixth inning against Neil Allen, 0-5.

Molitor had a two-run double in the seventh and Schroeder hit a two-run double in the eighth.

Indians 6, Orioles 4
 Cory Snyder ended his 0-for-20 slump with a two-run homer in the 10th inning that lifted Cleveland over Baltimore.

Snyder hit his 22nd home run after Carmen Castillo's one-out single off Mark Williamson, 5-7. Brook Jacoby's two-run homer, his 21st, gave the Indians a 4-4 tie in the eighth.

Sammy Stewart, 4-1, got the victory. He struck out Mike Young with runners on first and third in the top of the 10th.

Eddie Murray, Ray Knight and Floyd Rayford homered for the visiting Orioles.

Americans

 ended with a Pecos double play.

The Americans left two men stranded again in the third. Fields singled and John Kennedy reached base on an error. But Tellez got Edens to ground out for the third out.

Pecos tried to take control of the game in the bottom of the inning, scoring three runs off a single by catcher Carlos Zamarrripa that turned into a triple after an error. Pecos loaded the bases when Rudy Magana singled, Junior Williams got a bunt single and Peters got an infield hit.

With two outs, Zamarrripa hit a bloop fly to American right fielder Akin. Akin went for the diving catch, but the ball skipped under his glove and the runners were off to the races. By the time third baseman Fields had gloved Akin's errant throw at the screen, Magana, Williams and Peters had all scored.

The Americans rallied back in the fourth with two runs of their own.

Catcher Raymond Ortega walked to lead off. Parrish then reached base on an error by the second baseman. In the process, Ortega went to third. With Akin at the plate, Pecos catcher Zamarrripa picked off Parrish at first, catching him in a hot box.

While Pecos infielders were trying to trap Parrish in the rundown, Ortega dashed from home and beat the throw while Parrish went to second.

Parrish scored when the left fielder dropped Tom Blankenship's fly. The Americans had taken advantage of Pecos errors for two runs.

The Americans worked hard and took advantage of another Pecos error to tie the game in the fifth.

Gonzales greeted relief pitcher Hinojos with a hard single up the middle. Then pinch-hitter Jason Ogle laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt, moving Gonzales to second. Gonzales tied the game when he went to third on a passed ball, and scored when the catcher's throw deflected off the third baseman's glove into center field.

This tied the game at 3-3 and set the stage for Pecos' seventh inning heroics. Williams and Peters set up the game winner by singling. Williams, Peters and Zamarrripa all had two hits each for Pecos.

Fields and Gonzales had two hits each for the Americans.

"It's been a good year," said Fields. "The kids learned a lot and some of them got to play 34 games. That's a lot of games for 11 and 12-year-olds."

Rangers may call Howe

ARLINGTON (AP) — Left-hander Steve Howe may soon be in the Texas Rangers' bullpen after a three-week stay in the minor leagues.

"He's getting the necessary track record," Rangers General Manager Tom Grieve said. "He's been there a couple weeks, spent the necessary time. He's close. Whether close is two days or two weeks, I don't know."

Howe pitched five shutout innings Thursday night to lead the 89ers past the Buffalo Bisons, 6-2. Howe, 2-2, gave up only four hits while striking out four and walking one in his fifth appearance with the farm club since joining the Texas organization earlier this month.

Rangers Manager Bobby Valentine said he would consider Howe for a spot in the bullpen.

Howe needs baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth's approval to return to the major leagues because of his previous drug problems. But Grieve said he was not concerned about obtaining that approval.

"I think the decision about when he comes up will be ours," Grieve said.

He said that Paul Kilgus, 1-0 with a 3.38 ERA in two starts, has so far filled the team's need for a left-handed starter.

Howe must be certified drug-free to play in the majors. He apparently has passed about four drugs tests since being with the 89ers.

Religion roundup

MADISON, Wis. — The president of InterVarsity Christian Fellowship, Gordon MacDonald, has resigned because of involvement in an "adulterous relationship in late 1984 and early 1985," says the organization's board chairman, James Kay. The board elected Thomas Dunkerton, a retired New York advertising man, as new president of the organization that works among college students.

NEW YORK — Differing with Israel's Orthodox rabbis, Conservative Judaism's law committee has ruled that Ethiopian Jews should be accepted as full-fledged members of the Jewish community.

About 15,000 to 18,000 of them, sometimes called Falashas, have immigrated to Israel, where the chief rabbinate has refused to register their marriages unless they undergo ritual immersion in a conversion process.

But the study by the committee of the Rabbinical Assembly, representing Conservative rabbis, recognizes the full "Jewishness of our long oppressed and long isolated Ethiopian co-religionists." The committee said it based its conclusions on Jewish law sources, theological beliefs of the Ethiopian Jews and "knowable facts of their history."

Rabbi Kassel Abelson of Minneapolis, RA president, called for their "full acceptance immediately" by Israel's religious authorities and an end to the obstacles raised against them.

"We hope that those still remaining in Ethiopia (about 7,000) will soon be able to join their families and fellow Jews in Israel." Rabbi Steven Saltzman of Greensboro, N. C., a law committee member, said in a position paper that they were "a distinctively identifiable group who have been living in Ethiopia, isolated from the rest of the Jewish world, for many centuries."

They "considered themselves part of the Jewish people despite the fact that they were physically cut off from them," he said, maintaining a remarkable loyalty to their faith and traditions... "They believe in the God of our ancestors and they look to the land of Israel as the land of redemption."

YOUR FAITH HELPS DISPEL THE EVILS OF ENVY AND RESENTMENT

It is almost a normal trait of human nature to harbor an occasional feeling of envy or resentment toward someone who we feel has had "all the breaks", while life has simply passed us by. Even if there is any good reason for this, it is still wrong, and there are some remedies for it. First of all, seek out the person of whose good fortune you are so envious, and make an effort to become friends. This might easily work, and you could even learn some clues to that person's success. In any case, you will feel much better for having tried, and all that ill feeling will soon evaporate. Most of all, go to your House of worship and learn that we are all God's children, with individual talents and abilities; and that there is no need to envy anyone. You will start to develop your own capabilities, and the world will seem a much brighter place for you and everyone else.

Success Salesman credits God, honesty

By CARLEEN EVERETT-HALEY
Lifestyle Editor

Imagine a car salesman. Does your image include a well-dressed, fast-talkin', smooth-walkin', money-hungry kind of guy?

Over the years, car salesmen have gained a less-than-desirable reputation.

A study on the least trusted people reported that car salesmen head the list.

Fortunately for Big Spring, not all car salesmen are like that. Pete Sanderson, a salesman at Bob Brock Ford, is one exception.

In an interview this week, the tall and lanky Sanderson explained his work ethics.

"It all goes back to honesty," he said.

The 17-year Bob Brock employee says that's what the company he works for was formed on — "Christianity and honesty."

"Bob (Brock) is a very dedicated, good man. Bob told us that the best way to be terminated is to lie to someone. 'You don't have to lie about cars or the price,' he told us."

"If I tell someone something, my word is good, and the dealership will back me up."

Sanderson says that selling cars has been good to him, and he credits his success to God.

"He plays a major part in my life every day. I've done well in the car business because I ask God, and I thank God, for the business I get."

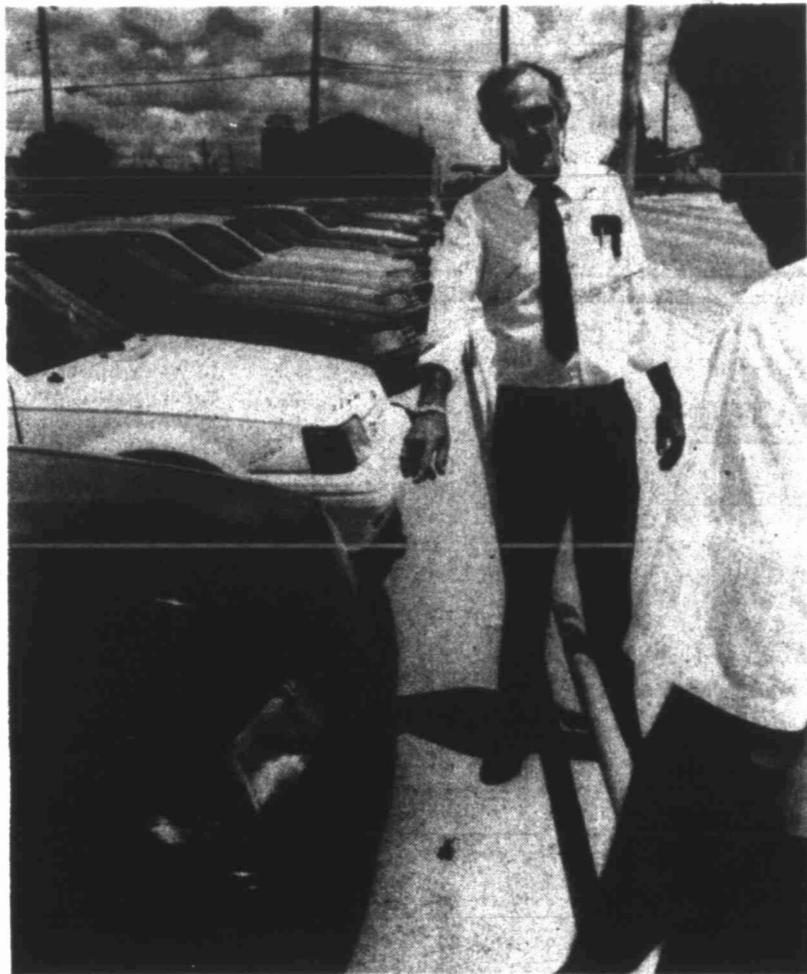

His success is obvious. The walls of his office are filled with about 45 salesman-of-the-month certificates, 20 or more outstanding sales achievement awards, and a salesman-of-the-year trophy.

In addition to thanking God, he attributes his good fortune to his employer's reputation.

"We're known as an honest place to buy a car," he said.

Not only does selling cars provide cash rewards, but Sanderson says he enjoys visiting with the people.

"The best part of my day is talking to the customers. It's a big part

Pete Sanderson points out some of the features of a new car to salesman John Arney. Sanderson is one exception to the less-than-desirable reputation of many car salesmen. He says that selling cars has been good to him, and he credits his success to God. "He plays a major part in my life every day. I've done well in the car business because I ask God, and I thank God, for the business I get."

of my satisfaction — whether they buy or not."

Being in the business so long has helped Sanderson "read people," he says.

"You need to treat everyone equally, whether they're looking at a Ford Escort or a Lincoln Towne Car. But most of the time you can tell whether someone can really afford to buy the car or not."

He admits that he has been wrong a few times — when the person who was dressed to a "T" couldn't buy a tire if they wanted to, while the one in grubbies had enough to buy the whole place, he said with a laugh.

It's tough when he must turn-down a customer, Sanderson says humbly.

"It's hard when someone needs a car to drive, and you have to tell them they can't have it because they can't afford the payments or their credit isn't good. Sometimes I wish I could just buy the car for them."

Sanderson says he doesn't believe in high pressure sales techniques.

"I'd miss a sale before I would intentionally put pressure on someone to buy."

He deals with about 10 to 15 people a day and sells an average of about 20 cars a month, he said.

"When you're selling, you can't bring any other problems to work. If you're short with them, you can lose a sale."

Sanderson says his philosophy is the norm at Bob Brock Ford.

"It would be hard to work in a non-Christian atmosphere. At some dealerships in the metro areas, it's dog eat dog," he said.

He doesn't claim that he or the other salesmen at the dealership are perfect. He admits that sometimes situations occur when Christian actions are ignored — when a short temper flairs or a curse comes out.

Living a Christian life has its challenges, he says.

"It isn't really easy to be a Christian in the business world, but I work hard at it. He (God) is greater than me."

His office also contains the obvious signs that Sanderson is a family man. Pictures of his children and grandchildren are displayed prominently on his desk and credenza.

He and his wife, Billie, have been married for almost 30 years.

"My wife is a real inspiration to me. She is probably the greatest Christian lady I know."

They have two daughters, Vicki and Mitzi, and two grandchildren — Lacey and Jeremy.

"The grandkids — they're somethin' else," he says with joy. He's proud of his roots, too. The Big Spring native said he doesn't have any desire to leave his hometown.

"Everything I've got is here. I like it here."

Sanderson attends the West Texas Bible Center, is an elder in the church and is a member of the interim council.

Baptist agency enacts new fundamental hiring policies

ATLANTA — One of five major agencies of the Southern Baptist Convention has adopted policies requiring future employees and missionaries to believe the Bible is literally true in all respects.

The policy enacted Wednesday by the Atlanta-based Home Mission Board follows the SBC's policy adopted in June requiring the denomination's agencies and seminaries to hire people who share the beliefs of "most Southern Baptists," which a committee said include the holding that the Bible contains no error.

The board, which is responsible for starting new churches in the United States and its territories as well as supervising other ministries, also voted Wednesday to restrict the hiring of divorced persons and prohibit charismatics from being missionaries.

The board fields 3,637 missionaries and will increase that to 5,000 by the end of this century, according to the board president, the Rev. Larry L. Lewis. The board employs about 340 people and has an annual budget of about $74 million.

"We feel it is important that the employees (and missionaries) believe that the miracles did occur as they were recorded in the Bible and were not some natural occurrences," Lewis said.

Biblical inerrancy is one of the key battle lines in a 10-year fight between moderates and conservatives within the 14.6-million member denomination, the nation's largest Protestant group.

Fundamentalists say that the Bible is factually true, not just religiously, but also historically and scientifically as well.

Moderates say that Southern Baptist tradition provides for believers to interpret the Bible in their own ways.

At the SBC's annual meeting in June, a special denominational peace committee said that the conflict could be ended if Southern Baptist agencies and seminaries hired people who share the beliefs of "most Southern Baptists." The committee said most Baptists believe the Bible is historically accurate.

A resolution endorsing the peace committee's view, and calling on the board to hire only persons with fundamentalist views, passed overwhelmingly Wednesday. The board, whose members are appointed to staggered terms by the Southern Baptist president, came under fundamentalist control last year.

The recommendation barring charismatics — persons who speak in tongues and practice faith-healing — from serving as missionaries passed with only a single dissenting vote.

But the recommendation for a new policy on hiring divorced persons, in contrast, was approved by a 48-20 roll-call vote.

The new policy said the board may now appoint only divorced persons whose marriages were ended for either of two "biblical" reasons: adultery or desertion. Under these restrictions, "divorced persons will rarely, and only under unusual circumstances, be appointed or approved," according to the statement outlining the new policy.

'Victory in Jesus' revival Aug. 2

The First Baptist Church of Knott will conduct a "Victory in Jesus" revival Aug. 2-7. Services will be nightly at 7.

Kim Neese, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Coahoma, will be the visiting evangelist. Special music will be provided by Lewis Harden of Odessa, former music director at Midway Baptist Church.

Special events are: Monday — Sunday School Night; Tuesday — Youth Joy Explosion; Wednesday — Young Adult Night; Thursday — Children's Corny Dog Supper; and Friday — Family Night.

Church will provide transportation

Iglesia Bautista Central, 2105 Lancaster, will provide transportation for children who would like to participate in its Vacation Bible School.

Classes will be Aug. 3-7 from 6:30-9 p.m. for the preschoolers, 4- to 5-year olds, children and youth.

The free transportation is limited to children who have no means of getting to the church.

For more information, call 267-5026 or 267-3396. The public is invited to attend.

Crisis management seminar free

A free crisis management seminar will be conducted today through Aug. 2 at 7:30 p.m. at the First United Pentecostal Church, 1700 N. Texas, in Odessa.

The seminar is specifically for the Permian Basin area and will be conducted by J.T. Pugh, a former college president and professor with 46 years in the ministry, and Dr. Michael Parekh, M.D., a thoracic cardiovascular surgeon who will discuss the physical response to stress.

Also, Edward Sample, the former general manager of the national training network for JC Penney Co. He will discuss job related stress and how to manage it.

The seminar has been designed as a service to our community and the surrounding area — and is not doctrinally oriented.

With the economic situation of the Permian Basin, stress has been added to the lives of many, the seminar is designed with these factors in mind.

Unity House open on Day of Prayer

"Blessed are the Peacemakers" is the theme for the Aug. 2 Day of Prayer for World Peace.

The Christian Life Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention is sponsoring the call to prayer and meditation for peace.

Unity House of Prayer will be open between 6 and 8 a.m. For more information, contact Nancy Patrick at 263-6311.

First Baptist Church hosts crusade

Freddie Gage of Houston will conduct a short, intensive "Go Tell" crusade at the First Baptist Church Aug. 2.

Morning worship will begin at 10:30 and evening services will be at 7. Gage has been noted by many:

Newsweek magazine says he is "America's most unusual evangelist." W.A. Criswell of Dallas has said, "I give praise for those you have won to Christ and hundreds more who are preaching the gospel because of your testimony."

Billy Smith of Fort Worth says he is "America's greatest soul winner" and John R. Bisagno of Houston says he is "second only to Billy Graham."

E.C. Autrey, Southern Baptist Convention evangelism director, said it's "the most effective church-awakening ministry in American."

"Few have touched so many hurting persons with the liberating truth of Jesus Christ," said Paul Warner.

Since Gage was rescued in 1951 from a budding career in crime, drugs and gang life, he has conducted nearly 1,400 meetings.

Tim Thornton, director of music for First Baptist Church, will lead the music and a 40-voice choir.

Special events will include a free hot dog supper for first through sixth grade students on Monday evening and a free pizza blast will be hosted Wednesday for sixth through 12th graders.

Witnesses to meet for convention

ABILENE — A three-day district convention of Jehovah's Witnesses will be today through Aug. 2 in Abilene, according to the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York.

Felix Martinez, convention manager, says 7,000 are expected to attend the annual convention.

He added that 123 conventions are planned in the United States this summer with more than one 1.25 million delegates visiting 65 different United States cities.

"In addition to Spanish," Martinez says, "conventions are arranged for seven other languages including English, French, Greek, Italian, Japanese, Korean and Portuguese."

"The program will focus on major problems that affect humanity and will offer practical suggestions on coping with these problems. The pressures on the family in these times of tremendous change is of social concern to us."

The principal address of the convention, "In Our Fearful Time, Whom Can You Really Trust?" will be delivered by Larry Floyd Aug. 2 at 2 p.m.

Church to serve giant banana split

The Westside United Methodist Church, 600 Goliad, will host Vacation Bible School Aug. 3-7 from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

There will be classes for children ages 3 to 14.

At the end of the week-long school, the children will be treated to a 10-foot banana split that will be served on Friday evening.

For more information, call the church office at 267-2871. No pre-registration is required.

Baptist Temple has Bible school

Children from three to sixth grade are invited to attend Vacation Bible School at Baptist Temple Church, 11th Place and Goliad.

Vacation Bible School will be conducted Aug. 3-7 from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Pastor Lee Rodgers invites all parents and children to an open house at the church to an open house at the church at 7 p.m. Friday.

For additional information, contact Pastor Rodgers at 267-8287.

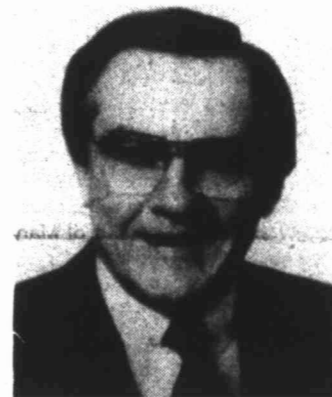

Gospel Meeting August 2nd thru 5th

Nightly Sun. thru Wed. at 8:00 P.M.

Roy H. Lanier Jr. of Denver Colo. will be preaching.

Vealmoor Church of Christ

How Many?

How many meetings did you say Freddie Gage has preached?

Nearly 1,400 in 35 years in tents, churches, stadiums, football fields, coliseums across the nation.

The result of his straight-on, dynamic, no-nonsense preaching has been about a million changed lives. No wonder top Southern Baptist leadership regards him as one of God's most effective voices in evangelism today. Don't miss the chance to hear him starting Sunday.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, AUGUST 1, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning presents the possibility of support from an unusual person which you hadn't expected. Trust this individual and follow the advice given if it seems sound.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) After much accomplishment in the business world, be careful that you do nothing foolish to ruin your day.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Avoid an individual who consistently tries to influence your opinions. You don't need the aggravation.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) An unexpected invitation should be accepted early. Schedule time to relax with your mate and a good friend.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Don't get involved in an argument between a family friend and an outsider — it'll work itself out.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Don't try to push any new ideas you may have in mind; either they work or they don't. Be cooperative with co-workers.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you are getting advice from two people, don't make an immediate decision — sleep on it first and then choose.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be extremely cautious in any kind of movement today. Don't let anyone sway your opinions in the business world.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Your thinking is a bit confused, so work on getting your head clear. Don't make any decisions about your job.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Avoid a group affair this evening where an argument could ensue. Get your mate's OK before inviting friends in.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You may be misinformed about something of great importance, so check it out before taking any action.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be alert — make sure a newcomer isn't trying to pull one over on you. Be cautious in making financial decisions.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study a new business venture thoroughly from every angle. Be very cautious in motion — especially driving.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be very tuned in to current trends, and would do quite well in advertising or marketing. Your progeny may have a tendency to act too quickly, so teach him or her to think first. Some training in psychology would be a big help in understanding self and others.
