Bees reach Laredo

HARLINGEN — Eleven South Texas counties were added to an Africanized bee quarantine zone Thursday, following the discovery of a swarm of the insects in Laredo. The swarm of so-called "killer" bees, trapped Monday in a tree at a Laredo residence, was confirmed Thursday as Africanized, said John G. Thomas, extension entomologist at Texas A&M University. It was the fifth swarm of what Thomas calls the "honey bee with a personality problem" trapped in South Texas since last week.

Senate OKs budget

WASHINGTON — The Senate on Thursday approved a $1.46 trillion Democratic budget for 1992 that ignores President Bush's plan to slash Medicare, preserves his proposed defense spending and boosts his requests for education, transportation and other health programs. The measure was adopted on a voice vote after three days of debate. Bridled by a near-record $290 billion deficit, the spending plan contains no dramatic domestic initiatives. /4A

Gorbachev's move

MOSCOW — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev cut short a chorus of invective from hardline Communist Party chiefs Thursday by abruptly offering to quit as their leader and winning an overwhelming vote of support. Participants at the closed session said Gorbachev's move was less a tactical maneuver than an eruption of pique after two hours of charges that he was personally responsible for the crisis in the party and the country. Several speakers demanded his resignation. /7A

Hillerman hits

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Tony Hillerman, author of best-selling mysteries about Navajo detectives, on Thursday received the Mystery Writers of America's Grand Master of Crime Fiction prize. Hillerman, 65, said in an interview from New York City that he was receiving the prize "for getting old and gray and writing a lot of books." The prize, given during the Edgar Allan Poe Awards dinner in New York, "is not for any one book. It's for all of them. It's a lifetime achievement award. And being persistent," he said. Hillerman, who lives in Albuquerque, said he was going on to France, where he'll be on book tour and will receive an award at a literary festival May 17.

Petroleum group inducts Bush, 3 others into 'Hall'

By John Paul Pitts
Business & Oil Editor

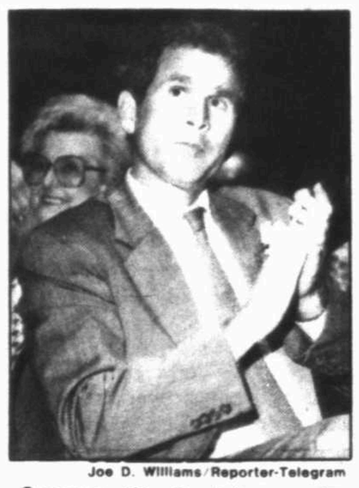

Two historical firsts took place Thursday, as the first woman and first United States president were inducted into the Petroleum Hall of Fame at the Midland Hilton.

Almost 300 attended the installation banquet as four distinguished members of the oil industry were inducted into the Petroleum Hall of Fame, which was established to recognize those persons who have substantially contributed to the development of the oil and gas industry.

Accepting for President George Bush, a former Texas oilman, was his son George W. Bush.

"It is good to be home," said the younger Bush, who grew up in Midland when his father was in the oil business here, and later returned to Midland to be-

Connally isn't sold on state income tax

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite a projected $4.6 billion budget deficit, the chairman of a task force studying Texas finances said Thursday he isn't convinced of the need to raise more revenue, specifically in the form of a state income tax.

Former Gov. John Connally branded as "fallacious" arguments in support of a state income tax to fund basic government services and reduce the tax burden on poor people.

"It will not solve our problems," he said of a state income tax, pointing to New York and California that have such levies and still face enormous budget problems.

"I'm not persuaded we need more revenue . . . government at any level has an insatiable appetite," he said.

Connally was chosen to head the 18-member task force by Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, who has pushed for a state income tax.

Iraq backs off, departs buffer zone

■ U.S. 'may well deploy additional troops,' Cheney says.

ZAKHO, Iraq — Iraq on Thursday denounced an allied ultimatum to pull its troops from the northern refugee zone, but hours later agreed to keep only 50 police in Zakho, where the first allied-protected camp is being constructed.

U.S. military officials had signaled readiness to use force to back their demand that Iraqi security forces leave the zone in northern Iraq where camps are being set up for Kurdish refugees.

The White House hailed the report that Iraq would comply. President Bush called it "encouraging. . . . It's a very good development."

Iraq's prime minister, Saadoun Hammadi, denounced the U.S. order to vacate by the weekend the so-called "safety zone" near the Turkish border.

"We believe that (neither) the United States nor any other country has a right to ask Iraq to do such a thing," he told a news conference in Baghdad.

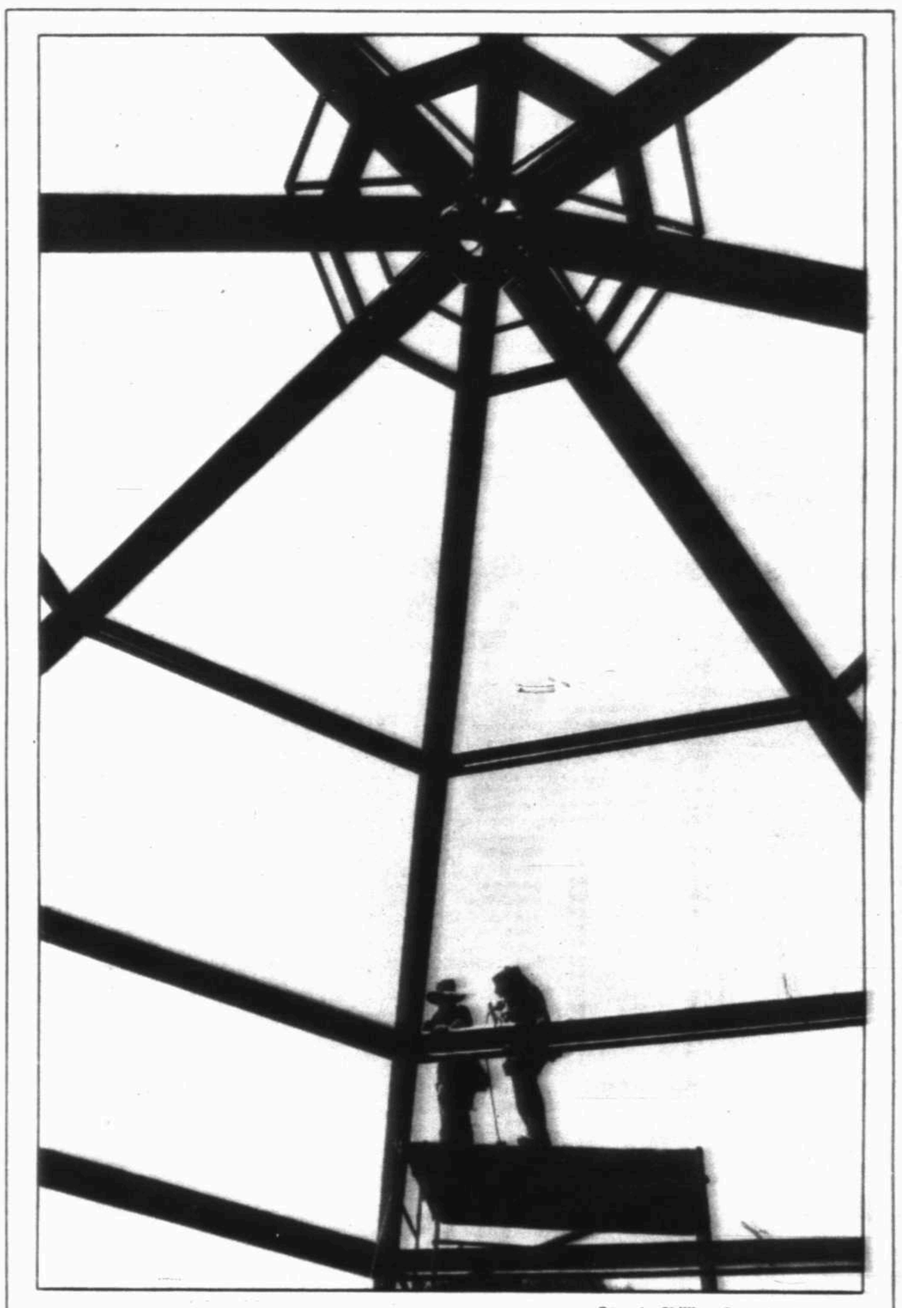

Later in the day, however, Iraqi U.N. Ambassador Abdul Amir al-Anbari said after meeting with U.S. Ambassador Thomas R. Pickering that under an Iraqi-allied accord all Iraqi soldiers had left Zakho and most police were leaving, except for a contingent of 50.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said in Washington that there are about 7,000 U.S. troops in northern Iraq and across the border in Turkey, and that the Pentagon "may well deploy additional forces" to the area.

More than 2 million Kurds fled to the rugged frontiers of Iran and Turkey after government troops crushed their rebellion, which was launched after Iraq's defeat in the Persian Gulf War.

Poll results: Withhold rape victims' names

Cityline Community Pulse

■ Related story/5A

More than 71 percent of callers to the Cityline Community Pulse this week said, "No, rape victims should not be named in news reports without their consent."

Only 22.7 percent agreed with the statement, "Yes, sexual assault victims, like those they accuse, should be named. Fewer than 6 percent said the circumstances surrounding the Kennedy compound assault constituted a special situation in which use of the woman's name was proper.

One female caller said, "I believe until public opinion has changed a great deal more concerning the women who are victimized by rape, it's just too soon to be naming rape vctims in the press. Their independence and their privacy must be protected until such time as people accept rape victims as the victims of any other crime, which they don't at this time."

Another woman summed up her attitude toward the media that identified the woman this way: "I no longer consider the New York Times a reliable source of good journalism. I will no longer watch Tom Brokaw, I'm switching to Dan Rather."

One caller suspected the circumstances of the Palm Beach case played a part in the publication of her name. "She should have known better before she accused a Kennedy," she said.

U.S. to provide aid to Hanoi

WASHINGTON (NYT) — The Bush administration said Thursday that it would provide financial assistance to Hanoi for the first time since the Vietnam War, approving a small but symbolically significant aid package for Vietnamese disabled during the fighting.

The announcement that $1 million would be made available for artificial limbs comes less than a week after the two nations agreed to open an office in Vietnam to resolve the cases of American servicemen missing since the war.

It represents one more cautious step in a slow warming of relations that began two years ago.

Administration officials reiterated that an initiation of full diplomatic relations or the lifting of a 15-year trade embargo would hinge on Hanoi's cooperation in accounting for all missing Americans and in reaching a diplomatic settlement to the civil war in Cambodia.

School-board candidates stump for last-minute votes

Hightower, Keller voice their views

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Both candidates vying for school board representative in District 3 are in favor of passing the upcoming bond issue.

Jack Hightower, a former Midland classroom teacher and principal, said that classroom space is a viable need, "especially at the elementary and junior high level."

"Although I would have preferred the bond issue to have more options for the voters, the fact remains that space is critical," Hightower said.

The candidate said that alternatives to new construction could have been studied before calling the bond election.

"I think we should always use existing facilities whenever possible," he said.

Hightower's opponent, retired businessman Leon Keller, agrees that Midland's overcrowded public schools represent a serious concern for the district. "There is severe overcrowding, teaching materials are in short supply and the overall situation is just short of chaos," Keller said.

Hightower has served as a teacher in West Texas for three years and a Mid-

WEATHER SUMMARY

Via Associated Press Graphicsnet

A cloudy, near-90 day

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a high near 90 and winds southwest to west increasing to 25 to 30 mph, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be fair with a low in the lower 50s.

Saturday is expected to be partly cloudy with a high near 80.

After an overnight low of 53, Thursday's high was 91 compared with the record high for that date of 98 in 1943. The record low for today's date was 37 set in 1946.

STATE

Texas was mostly warm and humid Thursday under partly cloudy skies.

Relative humidities were 50 to 60 percent with balmy southerly breezes contributing to the muggy conditions.

Temperatures ranged from the upper 70s along the Red River to the mid-80s elsewhere under partly cloudy skies. Readings reached the 90s along the Rio Grande.

Skies were clear over West Texas behind a dry line that separated moist air from dry air. The line stretched from Childress to between San Angelo and Midland.

NATION

Thunderstorms rolled across the South with heavy rain and high wind Thursday and a snowstorm blew through the northern mountains of the West.

At midday, showers and thunderstorms extended from the northern half of the Florida Peninsula across the Florida Panhandle, southern Georgia, southern Alabama and southern Mississippi.

Wind gusted to 63 during a thunderstorm at Largo, Fla., and rain was described as blinding, the National Weather Service said.

Heavier rainfall during the six hours up to 1 p.m. CDT included 3.43 inches at the Naval Air Station near New Orleans; 3.05 inches at Apalachicola, Fla.; 1.32 inches at Biloxi, Miss.; 1.23 inches at Panama City, Fla.; and 1.21 inches at Mobile, Ala.

Rain also reached from north-central Texas across southern Oklahoma, and from central and northeastern Missouri into southeastern Iowa and southwestern Illinois.

also set off a flood of refugees. The U.S. military, Saudi Arabia and the Kuwaiti Red Crescent are caring for 40,000 refugees in or near a buffer zone that extends six miles into Iraq and three miles inside Kuwait.

Saudi Arabia is building a camp to house up to 8,000 of the Iraqi refugees camping on the Kuwait-Iraqi border, Gen. Khalid bin Sultan of Saudi Arabia, commander of Arab forces in Operation Desert Storm, said Thursday.

He told reporters in Riyadh the refugees could stay indefinitely, "until their tragedy ends."

In the north, Kurdish clan leaders have told U.S. officials they are reluctant to come to the camps being built for them because of the threat posed by government forces.

The Kurds were especially worried about the hundreds of Iraqi police who were prowling the streets of the near-deserted city of Zakho.

A barber at his shop, speaking on condition that his name not be used, said there were 2,000 police in the city.

"We in city Zakho afraid," he said in broken English.

"An agreement on paper is no good. Only if it's true, if it's carried out," said one man.

AID: U.S. to provide $1 million to Vietnamese aid, Richard H. Solomon, Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs, also pointedly expressed appreciation for Vietnam's program of economic reforms.

(From 1A)

State Department officials said the Agency for International Development would funnel the $1 million in aid through private American humanitarian groups, which will produce the artificial limbs in Vietnam.

The limbs will go to people who suffered their wounds during the Vietnam War, including soldiers from the North and South Vietnamese armies, members of the Vietcong and civilians.

Officials said the program would be similar to efforts for the disabled in Afghanistan, Uganda and Mozambique. They said they could not estimate how many people would be treated.

"It's a sign of new cooperation," said a State Department official who monitors Vietnam. "But it is not a step toward resuming diplomatic relations."

No government officials will be sent to Vietnam to work on the aid program, he added.

Solomon told the Senate Subcommittee on East Asian and Pacific Affairs that the United States had conditionally pledged aid involving artificial limbs and child care in 1987, when Vietnamese and American officials first agreed to work together on accounting for the missing soldiers.

"We have found some improvements in cooperation, but limited results," Solomon said.

come an oilman in his own right. "I promise you that someday my father will shed that giant entourage of his and come back to Midland to pay proper hommage for this great award."

President Bush first came to West Texas in the early 1950s to work as a clerk in an oilfield supply store in Odessa. He later moved to Midland and became an independent oilman and partner with John Overby. He eventually formed the Zapata Corp. with two other Midlanders, Bill and Hugh Leitke.

"I think one of the reasons my father has been such a great president is because he spent time in Midland and the oil business," said his son, who now lives in Dallas and is part-owner of the Texas Rangers baseball team.

Others inducted into the Petroleum Hall of Fame included Edith Whatley McKanna of Fluvanna; Halbert P. Bybee; and Frank Phillips, founder of Phillips Petroleum Co.

Ms. McKanna was a distinguished oil-and-gas woman who played a significant role in the development of the Canyon reef in Scurry County. The founder of Imperial Oil Co., she took an active role in leasing and managing drilling and production. She was also the first woman to solo an airplane in Texas, and served as a captain in the Civil Air Patrol during World War II.

Phillips was a barber who married the banker's daughter and moved to Oklahoma to pursue a career in wildcatting for oil. He drilled four dry holes near Bartlesville, before striking a gusher on the fifth well and the next 80 he drilled.

His drilling efforts on the Osage Indian lands in Oklahoma, in the Texas Panhandle Field and in Oklahoma City resulted in the basis for the 29th largest oil company in the world.

Hal Bybee was a geologist who played a vital role in the exploitation of the oil-rich lands of West Texas, becoming the first geologist in charge of the 2 million acres of land owned by the University of Texas. He established policies that eventually led to the drilling of more than 10,000 oil and gas wells on University Lands, and was instrumental in the West Texas Geological Society.

To date, 81 members have been inducted into the Petroleum Hall of Fame. The members are selected by a committee of members of the Petroleum Museum's Board of Executors and Board of Trustees and Volunteer Board.

tem of desegregation reviewed, Willis has said he approves of integrating pupils during the primary years.

Willis, who has spent Saturdays "working neighborhoods," said, "People seem surprised that any candidate for political office is standing on their porch."

Willis

Willis said the upcoming bond election was not always the topic of discussion during his campaigning. "What I have heard on porches is not near to the extent of what I expected. Some people say they just can't flat out vote for any more taxes for anybody," he said.

"I've explained to them that if only one proposition passes, there won't be any tax increase in the debt service of the bond — that surely they can vote for one of the two propositions they think is most important," Willis said.

"I am one of those people who lives in one of those average homes," Willis said. "By voting for both propositions it means my taxes will increase $2 a month. I spend that much on Cokes each day. Personally, I can find those $2 a month, especially since my own children will benefit."

Crawford

The candidate said persons in his district questioned him on administrative performance. "I told them from the standpoint of a parent I don't know enough of the facts to make an evaluation, but when I served on the bond advisory committee to structure the successful 1988 bond election , I reviewed the school district's financial statements and I was favorably impressed."

For the most part, Willis said he is a man with a vision. "It may be idealistic, but the teacher in me wants to see Midland classrooms where the teachers want to be there, where the children are too excited to eat breakfast in the morning because they want to get to school."

Weant, who employs "communication, negotiation and analytical skills" in his profession, hopes to bridge "the tremendous communication gap between the superintendent and the teachers," and to make principals more available to teachers and students.

Weant said he has been "walking the neighborhoods" while campaigning in the district. "Most people have asked me my opinion on the bond issue," he said.

Weant

Weant said he feels he has been very successful in "getting the word out" about his concerns for the school district.

"One of my goals is to make sure the people of Midland get every opportunity to find out everything that is going on," he said. "Currently, the board is not very forthcoming with information, especially during day-to-day operations."

If elected, Weant said he would "put forth a better effort to inform the public of what the issues are."

Crawford, a Midlander for 13 years, grew up in Andrews where he said "schools are superior." His goal is raise standards in Midland schools.

"The city of Midland needs to think about what is best for the kids and what we need to do," Crawford said.

Crawford said he has received a favorable response concerning both bond propositions. "Most of the people I have talked with have been young," Crawford said, "and they feel like we need both parts of it."

If elected, Crawford said he will make a determined effort to cut administrative costs and "funnel money from the top down to the teachers."

"I also will work to spend Midland's tax dollars for our children's best benefit," he said.

Staley runs for re-election to finish long-range plan

Staff Report

Incumbent George Staley is running unopposed for re-election in District 5 in order to complete some unfinished business.

The school board trustee said he decided to run again to see the long-range plan to decrease the dropout rate in Midland public schools.

"Three years ago the newly elected board developed a long-range plan for the district, for the first time," Staley said. "One of the objectives of that plan was to decrease the dropout rate. We are making progress, but it is so important to see the plan continued for the next three years. It is one of the most important issues in the state."

Staley, a geologist, also has served on the board of directors of First City National Bank. He was a former vice president of exploration for HNG Oil Company and oversaw a $70 million drilling budget.

Staley favors the passage of the bond election. "The school district currently has 51 portable buildings that are used for classrooms. Next year more portable buildings will be necessary," he said. "MISD must maintain adequate schools if we hope to attract new businesses."

The school board trustee said his priorities for the school district are to pass the bond election, reduce the dropout rate, lower the number of at-risk students in the district and to continue to update the older existing schools.

CONNALLY: 'I'm not persuaded'

(From 1A)

Bullock says the levy is needed to fund essential human services, pay for an education reform bill, and reduce sales and property taxes. Texas is one of seven states without a personal state income tax.

The task force is charged with recommending changes in the state's tax system by July 1. Gov. Ann Richards has said she will call a special session then to tackle the state budget.

Connally said he was concerned that Texas' tax structure places too heavy a burden on business. "We certainly hear business and rich escape taxes, but that isn't so," he said.

Former Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said capital-intensive businesses are hit hardest with taxes, while people in the service industry, such as lawyers, "walk away scot-free."

Tom Plaut, the state's chief revenue expert, told the task force that Texas' tax system is "seriously flawed but not broken."

Plaut said Texas ranks low in total tax burden on its citizens, but because of the relatively high sales tax, poor people are paying a larger share of their income in taxes than rich people.

Plus, he said, poor people are hurt the most by high business taxes because these costs are passed through to consumers.

He said that a family of four earning $10,000 per year pays about 7.1 percent of its income on state and local taxes, while a family of four earning $100,000 pays about 4.4 percent of its income in state and local taxes.

land principal for 24 years. He retired from the Midland school district in 1990. He has a bachelor and several masters of education degrees and says that "academic achievement is priority one."

Keller

Keller, a retired businessman, said he "has the time necessary to do the job" of serving as school-board trustee. Keller has been a Midlander for 28 years and is prepared to use his skills to tackle school district problems.

Keller said he has been hitting the pavement to meet with voters in his area. "I think about 35 percent of the people I've talked to are opposed to the bond election," he said. "Many of them are retired, on fixed incomes, but not old enough to qualify for the homestead exemption."

Although Keller said persons opposed to passing the bond issues are opposed to higher taxes, he said some may vote against the propositions in order to "vent frustrations out at the schools."

"They are upset about minor things that add up," Keller said, "such as discipline problems in the schools or children not getting their lunches for one reason or another and going all day without eating."

Keller said that teachers also need more flexibility in their classrooms and adequate supplies to achieve academic excellence. "They need more than buildings," he said. "They need the tools to achieve."

The candidate also said the school district needs to respond to public concerns more readily.

"There is nothing wrong with demanding the best," he said.

Both candidates stress the need for students to show academic excellence with test scores topping state and national averages.

"We should be at state or above," Hightower said. "We just are not there at this point," he said. The candidate said he has been going door-to-door "covering his district."

Hightower

"Most people seem to be for the bond issue," he said. "More seem to be in favor of the proposition to build the junior high school. Some people think the multipurpose rooms are not critical. Parents of students in schools who don't have multipurpose rooms, however, feel they are critical."

Hightower said that misconceptions about the Alternative School could hurt Proposition No. 1. "People seem to think its a disciplinary school, which it is not."

If elected, Hightower said he would "carefully evaluate how all tax dollars are spent."

"Also, I would like to see promotions made from within the school system, rather than conducting a national search to fill an opening," he said. "We have lots of capable people in our own district."

Hightower and Keller will vie for the seat being vacated by school board trustee Ken Morrison. Morrison has endorsed Hightower.

stances" choices, said she believes "these things should be brought out in the open. The man can walk away without any scars, but the woman carries scars for life. I think this should be exposed and that will stop some of it."

But one vehement caller summed up the majority opinion: "I think what NBC and the Globe did was absolutely disgusting and sick. Corrections

Two headlines in The Reporter-Telegram in recent days were incorrect.

In Tuesday's edition, a headline on the front page stated that "Appraised (Midland County property) values post 6-year high." It was the first time in six years that the valuations had increased but they had been higher during the past six-year period.

In Thursday's edition, on Page 1B, a headline stated that "Poll supports change-of-locale motion for Hale's trial." Results of the survey have not been released at this time, making it impossible to determine whether or not they will support the argument for a change of location in that particular case.

The Reporter-Telegram regrets these errors.

Salon owner sued after giving wife's friend free hair cut

NEW YORK (AP) — Nancy Newcombe says it was the unkindest cut of all when her waist-length locks were snipped to her shoulders without her consent.

Newcombe, 23, has charged the man who trimmed her brunette tresses, Oscar Blandi of the Pierre Michel beauty salon, with assault and battery in a $75,000 suit filed in Manhattan's state Supreme Court.

Because of the cut, Newcombe said, she suffered "extreme shock, became nervous and upset, resulting in her inability to sleep or eat."

Blandi, reached by telephone Thursday at his Plaza Hotel salon, said the lawsuit was enough to make his hair stand on end.

He said he lopped Newcombe's locks in his Greenwich Village apartment on May 21, 1990. But he said she asked him to. He also said he did it for free because she was his wife's friend "and now she sues me in gratitude."

"She is totally, totally out of her mind," he said.

Newcombe, a Rutgers University student and part-time sales clerk, said the involuntary loss of her crowning glory obliged her to seek medical attention and "psychological counseling which continues to date."

A letter from clinical psychologist Janet Altman among court papers said Newcombe was up all night after the haircut, "screaming and hysterical." She also took tranquilizers, Altman said.

Newcombe said she suffered financial loss, loss of self respect and self esteem, emotional distress and embarrassment before her family and friends.

"How old is this child?" Blandi asked rhetorically. "You mean someone 23 had her hair cut without her consent?"

"She was delighted to have me do her haircut because she could not afford a salon," said Blandi.

'How old is this child? You mean someone 23 had her hair cut without her consent?'

Senate passes $1.46 trillion budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate on Thursday approved a $1.46 trillion Democratic budget for 1992 that ignores President Bush's plan to slash Medicare, preserves his proposed defense spending and boosts his requests for education, transportation and other health programs.

The measure was adopted on a voice vote after three days of debate.

Bridled by a near-record $290 billion deficit, the spending plan contains no dramatic domestic initiatives. Republicans put their stamp on the measure with a provision making it all but impossible for taxes to be raised to pay for any new programs Congress enacts later in the year.

The budget contains no tax increases. But it also rejects Bush's call for a reduction in the capital gains tax rate, a proposal that lawmakers have turned down two years in a row.

During the third day of debate on the spending plan, liberal Democrats launched several unsuccessful attacks on the $295.3 billion it contained for defense spending.

That amount matched what Bush proposed for the military, and obeyed the defense spending limit set in last fall's deficit-reduction deal. But liberals argued that with the Cold War over, money should be shifted from the Pentagon to domestic programs — a transfer the deficit-reduction accord forbids.

"We need to reorder our priorities," said Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., who proposed cutting the defense budget by $6 billion and using half the money to reduce the deficit and the other half to beef up social programs. "Times have changed," he insisted.

Republicans countered that the Soviet Union remains too unstable for the United States to reduce military expenditures any further.

"I believe it's going too far," Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, said of Bradley's proposal.

Bradley's amendment was rejected 73-22. The Senate also defeated 70-25 a proposal by Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., to cut the the defense budget by the same $6 billion — and use all the money for deficit reduction. And it voted 64-30 against a second Simon amendment that would have reduced military spending by $3 billion.

The budget is just what the name implies — spending plan. Actual spending still must be done through appropriations bills. But adoption of the budget forces appropriations committees to observe its ceilings.

The Senate budget closely tracks a Democratic-written spending blueprint that the House approved April 17. Both rejected Bush's plan to cut the Medicare health insurance program for the elderly, payments to veterans and other benefit programs by $46 billion over the next five years. And both allow most domestic programs to increase at roughly the rate of inflation.

But as the House did, Senate Democrats funneled several billion dollars more than Bush wanted to programs including the Head Start program for preschoolers, grants for college students and aid to mass transit systems.

To help pay for those increases, Democrats were nearly $3 billion stingier than Bush was to space, science and law enforcement programs.

Though the budget funds no large new domestic programs, it leaves the door open for Congress to expand unemployment benefits and initiatives for poor children, health care and transportation.

Under last year's budget agreement, new initiatives cannot increase the deficit. To stymie Congress from raising taxes to finance new programs, Republicans won language requiring 60 votes to do so — a feat that would be extremely difficult for a Senate where Democrats hold a 56-43 edge.

As a result, new programs would have to be paid for by equal cuts in other programs.

Once again, the Senate rejected Bush's call for a cut in the capital gains tax — the tax paid on profits resulting from the sale of real estate and other property and investments. Bush says cutting the levy would encourage people to sell their holdings and boost federal revenues, but Democrats say the plan would cost the government money and mainly save money for the wealthy.

On Tuesday, lawmakers voted 60-38 to reject a budget amendment by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., that would have opened the door for a cut in the Social Security payroll tax.

Newspaper decisions draw debate in rape case

By William Glaberson
N.Y. Times News Service

The New York Times' publication of a profile of the woman who has accused William Kennedy Smith of rape, and the publication of the woman's name by The Times and other news organizations, have ignited a bitter debate across the country and inside the newspaper.

The debate centers on what constitutes legitimate journalistic standards: whether it is ethical to use the name of a woman who says she is the victim of a rape and to report intimate details of her life.

It has revived questions about the competitive pressures that propel journalistic decisions, the relevance of facts about the lives of those who say they have been raped, The Times' respect for privacy and journalists' sensitivity toward women.

The debate has brought The Times scathing criticism from other publications, and from many of its own reporters and editors, who said that the wording of some passages in the profile raised unfair questions about the woman's character and credibility.

Other publications and the NBC Nightly News also identified the woman, but The Times has been the target of most of the criticism.

The dean of the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism, Joan W. Konner, said that was because the critics "were disappointed that the one who has always stood for a certain kind of standard altered that standard."

Others have been more stinging. "The Times," said the Chicago Tribune columnist Mike Royko, "was part of an outbreak of galloping journalistic idiocy."

A front-page article in the Washington Post began by quoting the editor of the National Enquirer, who proclaimed that The Times took a less ethical approach to the Palm Beach story than his supermarket tabloid had. And Newsweek declared that "virtually everyone in journalism now agrees that the nation's most highly regarded newspaper has egg on its face."

The executive editor of The Times, Max Frankel, acknowledged in an interview that the intense criticism has created serious problems for the newspaper. "This is a crisis," he said, "because many people feel The Times betrayed its standards."

Frankel and other Times editors said publication of the name and the profile was consistent with the paper's standards. But they have acknowledged defects in the article and express regret for them in an Editor's Note published Friday.

It is Times policy to not print the names of rape victims to protect their privacy. But after the NBC Nightly News, which has an average audience of 12 million, identified the woman, Frankel and the other editors felt that her privacy had been compromised to the point where the issue was moot.

They have defended the profile as a legitimate background article, though not in every detail.

While the editors said the sensitivities raised by the Palm Beach case would lead them to review their policies concerning the reporting of rape cases, they had reviewed those policies on a case-by-case basis anyway.

Among those who felt betrayed by The Times was a columnist for the paper, Anna Quindlen, who said in print that details in the profile were irrelevant and punitive. Those details included the fact that the woman had a child when she was not married and that she frequented bars in Palm Beach.

One quotation in the article that many found offensive was by an unidentified friend from high school days who said the woman who was quoted as saying she "had a little wild streak."

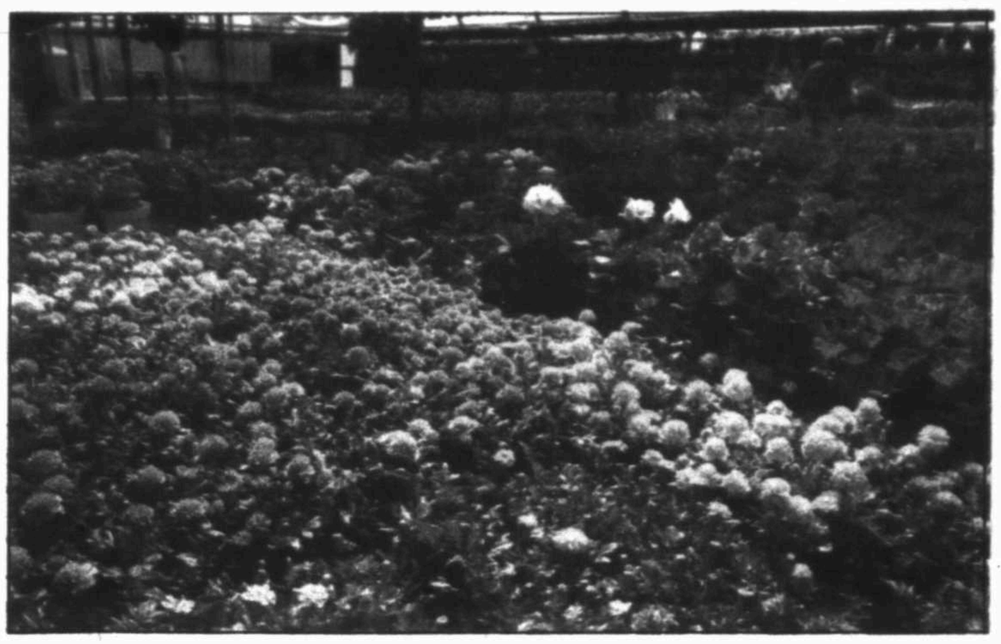

The Times normally avoids the use of negative statements about people by unidentified accusers.

Endeavour brings orbiters to full strength

PALMDALE, Calif. (AP) — A gleaming, white Endeavour rolled out of the hangar Thursday, bringing the space shuttle fleet up to full strength and replacing the destroyed Challenger.

Capt. Dan Brandenstein, who will command Endeavour when it flies into orbit next year, lauded the new shuttle as "the jewel of the fleet."

While the theme to "2001: A Space Odyssey" played as a fanfare, thousands of Rockwell International Corp. and NASA employees cheered and waved American flags at Air Force Plant 42, where all shuttles are assembled.

"If that doesn't put a lump in your throat, I don't think you're human," Brandenstein said.

The captain was joined by Sen. Jake Garn of Utah, who once flew on a shuttle mission, NASA administrator Richard Truly and Rockwell officials.

Completion of Endeavour returns the shuttle fleet to a force of four orbiters, joining Atlantis, Columbia and Discovery. Endeavour is scheduled to soar into orbit next spring.

"This morning we set the stage to continue the exploration of the solar system," Truly said.

He said the nation needs to expand its space program and establish a space station.

Garn linked Thursday's rollout of Endeavour with the nation's military victory over Iraq in the Persian Gulf.

"I can't tell you how proud I am," Garn said. "With Desert Storm and the rollout of Endeavour — when I consider what a free people can accomplish — Endeavour is evidence of that."

Meanwhile, at Cape Canaveral, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration began another countdown for the shuttle Discovery after replacing an engine sensor that failed during fueling for a launch attempt earlier this week.

Discovery is scheduled to lift off on a mission devoted to "Star Wars" research at 7:01 a.m. EDT Sunday.

In the Mojave Desert, the five-story-high orbiter had a dazzling appearance, its heat-resistant tiles radiating the sunlight.

"It won't be shiny like that when we get it back," said Brandenstein.

Rockwell international unveils Endeavour, the newest space shuttle to replace the ill-fated Challenger, during a roll-out ceremony Thursday in Palmdale, Calif.

Sam Iacobellis, Rockwell's executive vice president and chief executive officer, recalled the Jan. 28, 1986, Challenger tragedy in which seven astronauts died, saying, "We will never forget the Challenger tragedy, but we have learned and adjusted and persevered."

Politburo rejects Gorbachev's offer to quit over crisis

MOSCOW (NYT) — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev cut short a chorus of invective from hard-line Communist Party chiefs Thursday by abruptly offering to quit as their leader and winning an overwhelming vote of support.

Participants at the closed session said Gorbachev's move was less a tactical maneuver than an eruption of pique after two hours of charges that he was personally responsible for the crisis in the party and the country. Several speakers demanded his resignation.

The incident illustrated the tension and frustration in the Communist Party as it struggles to maintain the remnants of its battered prestige and power, and also its recognition that it has no alternative for now to Gorbachev and his policies.

The confrontation occurred on the second day of a special meeting of the 349-member Central Committee, the party's policy-setting core, called by the conservatives to vent outrage at the economic policies of the government and to demand harsh measures to restore order.

The tough head of the Russian republic's Communist Party, Ivan Polozkov, was among several speakers who urged the president to declare a state of emergency to restore law and order. Others demanded that he step down.

The breaking point reportedly came when the party chief from the Kuzbas, the Siberian coalfields beset by miners' strikes, put the blame for the collapse of party authority there squarely on Gorbachev.

Gorbachev abruptly rose and strode to the microphones, shrugging off attempts by deputies to stop him. Speaking angrily and somewhat disjointedly, participants said, he declared he was quitting.

"It was certainly not a game, it was an eruption of emotion," said Roy A. Medvedev, a historian and former dissident who now sits on the Central Committee.

"Gorbachev is emotional. He frequently reddened or paled, and he finally had enough."

Gorbachev's deputy, Vladimir A. Ivashko, quickly called a break. When the session reconvened after two hours, he announced that the 24-member Politburo had unanimously decided to propose that the Central Committee not consider Gorbachev's resignation. The motion carried by an overwhelming majority of 322-13, with 14 abstentions.

The announcement was met with loud applause, and the meeting continued without any further attacks on Gorbachev.

The incident demonstrated that Gorbachev remains for now the master of the party, in large part because there appears to be no other leader who could sustain anything resembling unity in the panicked and beleaguered organization.

Without him, several party officials acknowledged, the once-monolithic party would quickly fragment into openly feuding factions.

Kurd autonomy may buy Saddam time

■ Analysis

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Saddam Hussein appears to have neutralized Iraq's Kurdish rebels, a thorn in Baghdad's side for decades, in his drive to cling to power in the post-Gulf War turbulence that has swept his nation.

But the country's majority Shiite Muslims, alienated by Saddam's ruthless suppression of their own ill-fated revolt, remain a potent threat he cannot ignore.

A tentative agreement to give the Kurds the autonomy for which they have struggled for so many decades has given Saddam breathing space as he tries to hold his ravaged country together with himself at its head.

Yet big problems remain, apart from the festering hostility of the Shiites who make up 55 percent of Iraq's 17 million people. Their shrines in the southern cities of Karbala and Najaf were battered by the army.

Western correspondents who have visited Iraq's battle zones said the damage in the south outstrips anything seen in the Kurdish north.

Saddam will have to contend with growing demands for political reforms, the awesome task of rebuilding Iraq and its shattered economy, overcoming a humiliating peace treaty with the U.S.-led coalition that liberated Kuwait and preventing the despair of many Iraqis from degenerating into hostility.

The televised nugs and kisses exchanged by Saddam and the Kurdish chieftains Wednesday in Baghdad cannot mask the deep hatred and distrust between them.

By all accounts, many Kurds are deeply uneasy about Wednesday's tentative agreement in Baghdad, which grants the Kurds more autonomy than they've had before.

"Kurdish people have a bitter experience with Saddam. He's only doing this to try to get back into the international community," said Kawa Rashid, spokesman for the Iraqi Kurdistan Front in London.

Kamal Mirahdeli, director of the Kurdish Information Project in London, noted that Jalal Talabani, leader of the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan, negotiated a cease-fire with Saddam in 1983-84.

"But nothing came from the Iraqis. It was all empty promises,"

"My name is Ellen and I go to Sam Houston and I'm in the third grade and I really like school. But our school is not in very good shape. I'm too young to vote for them to be in better shape, so would you please vote for me?"

Midland schools have 53 portable buildings housing classes. Unfortunately they don't solve the problem. At Sam Houston Elementary, 150 kids like Ellen must wait in the same line because there aren't enough toilets. At Santa Rita Elementary, many classes are held in hallways or storage rooms. Many rooms which were built for the purpose of storage are now being used for classes. Lunchrooms are being used for class space as well as a lunchroom at the same time.

You can do something to help solve this problem by voting FOR Proposition 1 of the Bond issue. If it passes, it won't increase your taxes, but it will increase the ability to teach your children in facilities meant for teaching.

Vote to improve Midland Education on May 4 or vote absentee until April 30.

U.S. MIA office necessary step

Announcement that the United States and Vietnam have agreed to set up a U.S. office in Hanoi to speed up the search for American servicemen still missing from the Vietnam War should be encouraging to all those who harbor hope of finding out what happened to their loved ones missing in that war.

The government of Vietnam desperately wants to "normalize" relations with the United States — particularly in the interest of easing restrictions on the travel of Americans to Vietnam and lifting a trade embargo the U.S. imposed on Vietnam in 1975. That is their vested interest. A lot of American families also have a vested interest that has been met only with bureaucratic pigeonholing for two decades. Now those families deserve answers.

In response to the Vietnamese, officials in Washington, D.C. have set two conditions that must be met before relations between the countries can be normalized: (1) Speeding up the search for missing American servicemen and (2) Vietnam helping to end the civil war in Cambodia, where U.S.-backed rebels have been fighting the Vietnamese-installed government for more than a decade.

The issue of the 1,700 Americans still listed as missing-in-action from the Vietnam War is the critical matter for many Americans and that should be the main thrust of this new office. But there are other issues that could be resolved through establishment of the U.S.-Vietnam office. Many of those questions were raised in "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," a book published in 1990 and written by Monika Jensen-Stevenson and William Stevenson. Stevenson previously wrote "A Man Called Intrepid" and Jensen-Stevenson is the Emmy award-winning producer of CBS's 60 Minutes.

In the book, the Stevensons contend that the American governnent "right up to its highest echelons, knows, and has always known, that American POWs were left behind at the end of the war." The book also delves into the "secret war" carried out in Thailand.

A brief passage from the book is chilling: " 'If they find out about this in Thailand, heads will roll.'

"Those words from a government official suddenly illuminated the POW/MIA mystery. Thailand was a good and close ally. It was not likely that it would ignore charges that U.S. officials had made any kind of arrangement with Khun Sa, who was regarded there as a notorious drug warlord and brigand, who often assaulted Thailand's borders and made claims on Thai territory.

"Thailand had been the base for secret warfare in Southeast Asia since the mid-1950s. The tiny kingdom was awakening to what this really meant; and so were we. Bill was traveling with combat troops in the winter of 1989. They were inspecting a jungle factory making artificial limbs for Thai soldiers.

"Bill asked a general how there could be so many disabled soldiers. 'We lost whole battalions of troops in Laos. They were called "mercenaries" because the war was secret. They didn't wear uniforms, which meant they could be executed if captured. We had to get our wounded back."

Establishment of the U.S.-Vietnam MIA office in Hanoi is the first step toward unraveling the mystery of those Americans still missing from the Vietnam War as well as other mysteries about the war in Southeast Asia that still haunt Americans.

UTPB science fair a 'total failure'

The Permian Basin Regional Science Fair at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin (UTPB) was a total failure in the eyes of many of the students this year. Instead of encouraging the students to continue to broaden their scientific studies, it showed them how unfair and inconsiderate adults can be. As a result, many of these students will never again enter a science fair.

It was bad enough that the children had to stay until nearly midnight waiting for their projects to be judged. But when they returned Saturday afternoon to receive their trophies, they were told there would be no awards for students in the junior division because there was not enough time to total the scores. As adults we can only imagine the disappointment the children felt. The glory of receiving their trophy in front of their peers had been snatched away from them because the judges chose to go to a party after the judging Friday night instead of staying and totaling the scores. I overheard a group of judges say this at 11:30 Friday night as they were leaving UTPB.

The students were also told that their schools would be notified of the winners no later than the Friday after the Science Fair and that they would receive their trophies at school. Instead, they found out who won by reading it in the newspaper Monday morning. If they want their award, they must go to Odessa and attempt to find the person that has them. This is difficult to do when both parents work.

Next year instead of having a Ph.D. run the show (whose only concern is the grade he will give his students for helping), let's have a committee of parents who understand and care about the feelings of the children.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, April 26, the 116th day of 1991. There are 249 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

Five years ago, on April 26, 1986, the world's worst nuclear accident occurred at the Chernobyl plant in the Soviet Union. An experiment involving the number-four reactor went awry, causing an explosion and fire that sent radioactivity into the atmosphere. At least 31 Soviets died in the immediate aftermath of the accident.

In 1937, planes from Nazi Germany raided the Basque town of Guernica during the Spanish Civil War.

In 1961, 30 years ago, Roger Maris of the New York Yankees hit the first of a record 61 home runs in a single season; the homer was off Detroit's Paul Foytack at Tiger Stadium.

Today's birthdays: Actress-comedian Carol Burnett is 58. Guitarist-songwriter Duane Eddy is 53. Singer Bobby Rydell is 49.

Thought for today: "Perfect order is the forerunner of perfect horror." — Carlos Fuentes, Mexican author (1928-).

JACK ANDERSON

Does Alexander have a conflict?

WASHINGTON — George Bush is belatedly trying to make good on his 1988 campaign promise to be the "education president," and he's in a hurry to do it before the 1992 campaign.

Anderson

His package of reforms relies heavily on the involvement of private businesses, and his new Secretary of Education Lamar Alexander is cozy in both worlds — public service and private moneymaking. If George Bush is the "education president," then Lamar Alexander is the "business secretary."

His talent for moneymaking made some in the Senate nervous when they were called on to confirm Alexander's nomination. Privately, some Senate investigators complained that they didn't have enough time to analyze the implications of Alexander's business prowess. He made a long string of brilliant personal investments as governor of Tennessee and president of the University of Tennessee.

Some of those investments were analyzed superficially by the Senate, but the lawmakers wouldn't devote the resources to send investigators to Tennessee for a close look. Nor would the Republicans on the committee stand for a grilling of a candidate who was well-qualified in so many other ways. Alexander is a breath of fresh air in the office, but he is also a man who made millions of dollars on private investments while employed as a highly influential public servant. That is the side of the new education secretary that has to be watched, especially in light of Bush's plan to involve businesses more heavily in the school system.

Alexander says he makes a point of steering clear of conflicts of interest, but he may not steer clear enough.

On his first day as education secretary, he announced his vision of cooperation between schools and businesses, including the possibility that private corporations would run some public schools. And the two corporations that tripped so easily off his tongue were Burger King and Xerox.

Our associate Jim Lynch checked into Alexander's record with both companies. In 1988, Burger King gave Alexander its first national "Distinguished Service to Education" award with a $10,000 check. A spokeswoman for Alexander said he gave the check to educational causes and that the mention of Burger King as a possible school sponsor was "purely coincidental."

Burger King already runs alternative high schools in 10 cities and is shooting for a Burger King Academy in every community. Such an ambitious goal would not be possible without cooperation from the Education Department.

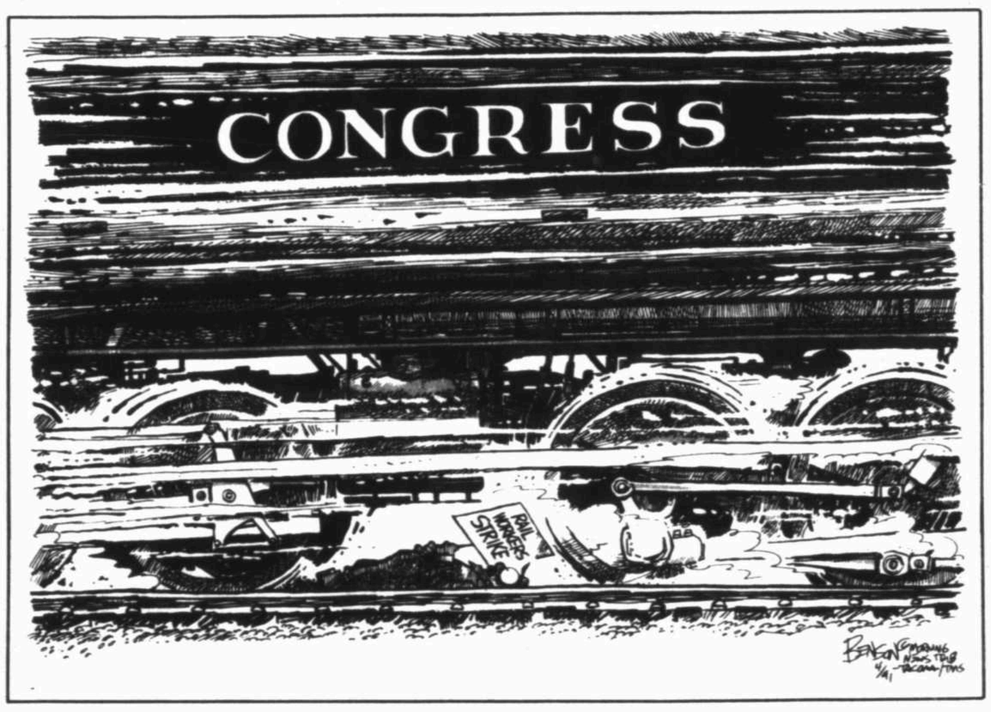

What about Xerox? One of Alexander's first hires was his top deputy, David Kearns, former chairman of the Xerox Corp. and a leading corporate advocate of education reform.

Alexander's spokeswoman dismissed the notion that the proposed new role for businesses in public schools would raise conflicts of interest. But a Senate investigator told us that Alexander's plugging of Xerox and Burger King is a reflection of how cavalier he was about allegations of conflict of interest in his business dealings in Tennessee. "He has no sensitivity toward the appearance of conflict of interest," the investigator said.

Alexander's idea of avoiding conflict of interest is to transfer business deals into his wife's name as he did when he was president of the University of Tennessee. The Wall Street Journal reported that he had arranged to buy $10,000 worth of stock in Whittle Communications, a company that could have done business with the university. When he became president, he transferred the investment to his wife's name. The stock appreciated quickly, in part due to a buyout offer, and the company later bought back the stock from her for $330,000.

Alexander calls himself a risk taker, but his investments have the look of a rainmaker. Perhaps Bush should have made him Treasury secretary where he could wipe out the national debt.

Money wasted on some crimes is criminal

One logical step toward eliminating the crime problem is to cleanse the lawbooks of crimes that aren't really crimes.

In the real world, as opposed to the legalistic world, there are two categories of crimes against people — assault and theft. Under assault is everything that can threaten our physical person from murder to rape to threats of violence; under theft is everything that deprives us of our property.

Reese

When we look at the so-called crime problem, we are looking at people who are afraid. But they are afraid only of crimes under those two categories. They're afraid somebody will kill or hurt them and they're afraid someone will take the property they worked so hard to acquire.

Let's say some poor gal decides to sell the use of her body and some lonely fool decides to rent it. Does this business transaction hurt us? Does it deprive us of property? Does it frighten us? Not a bit. Normally, unless we happened by at the time of the negotiation, we would not even be aware it was taking place.

Yet, we waste enormous amounts of money and the time of cops, public defenders, prosecutors, judges, and jailors because the government has decided to outlaw this human transaction. The government says we can buy tomatoes and cars but not an evening with a lady.

This is stuff and nonsense. We should follow the example of Nevada and license prostitution like any other business. If we wish to disapprove of it on moral grounds, we are still free to do so, but at least we will have freed up scarce resources in the criminal justice system and, as a bonus, gotten a much better handle on the public health problems that prostitution can create.

Suppose my neighbor wants to place a bet with his bookie on a prize fight or football game. Suppose he wants to get together with some guys and play poker? Does this harm us? Does this deprive us of our property? No. Then strike gambling from the criminal codes.

Here government is especially hypocritical and nonsensical because on the one hand it will encourage us to gamble at its own lottery games or licensed betting parlors but arrest us if we deal with private enterprise. More stuff and nonsense.

The same is true of drugs. It isn't the act of an addict buying and taking a drug that causes the fear. It's the dealers fighting over turf, the thefts and assaults a desperate addict — forced by the government to buy at high prices on the black market — may be driven to commit.

Drugs, whether sold in a crack house or dispensed with a doctor's prescription, are a health problem and should be treated as such. Roughly half the jail space, at least in my state, is taken up as a result of the government outlawing the sale and consumption of a few drugs.

If there were no illicit business, no turf to fight over, no huge caches of cash to rob, no desperate addicts, then the rest of us would have nothing to fear, the homicide rate would drop drastically, jails would empty out, and we could concentrate our resources on those few people who are dangerous to society.

Addictive drugs, whether prescribed or proscribed, can pose a serious health risk but they need not be treated as the foundation of crime. Give the addict a legal source of his drug at a reasonable price and medical treatment and you won't have to fear him. Continue the public education campaign about the health problems drugs can cause. Just get the criminal justice system out of the picture and we can save lives and money.

Finally there is that category of crimes that are nothing more than a violation of the government's bureaucratic rules. Here again there is no need to mix up the criminal justice system with what are essentially civil matters.

Let us free the criminal justice system so that it can concentrate on real crimes and it will work. Right now it's clogged like an old drain with extraneous matter.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

The time for choice in schools has come

Ronald Reagan burst into the White House in 1981, pledging to abolish the new U.S. Department of Education. He failed, and that's too bad, because the very existence of this great bureaucracy gives presidents the curious idea that the federal government is qualified to solve our educational problems.

Murchison

Witness George Bush, who yearns to be "the education president" (a role first coveted by Lyndon Johnson). Bush, so to speak, gave it the old college try. He had an array of ideas: individual choice of where to attend school, tougher standards, a national voluntary achievement test. Our leader said he himself would strive to become "computer literate."

Bush wants us to "reinvent" education by designing a new kind of school in each congressional district. He calls his program the America 2000 Strategy. This gives it due weight and significance.

Democrats yawned with predictable disdain. Why, all this fine talk from the White House was just talk, no money being in sight to back it up. "Some strategists," according to USA Today, "said Bush had political motives." Dadgum, I'da never thought of that! A politician with political motives? Next thing we'll hear is that businessmen are in business to make money!

Politics aside, much of what the president proposed is sound; some is even arresting. One proposal alone strikes to the heart of the problem. This is school choice, and there isn't much the president can do to effect it, public education being chiefly (and properly) a state and local concern.

The idea, rooted firmly in common sense, is that parents should be allowed to choose the schools their children attend.

I said school choice strikes to the heart of the educational problem, which is — what? Nothing less than the failure of the government vision of what education ought to be. In bygone times, state education policy promoted patriotism, morality and, not least, objective knowledge of history, literature, science, mathematics. Today's schools are, more than anything else, laboratories of social change.

If education were the modern schools' primary mission, there would be no logical objection to choice. In fact, we call on our schools to fight racism and sexism, eradicate drugs, combat teen-age pregnancy, civilize the unruly, supply professional sports teams with new athletes — all the things families, communities and private institutions used to do. If there's any time left over for the 3 Rs, why, wonderful, let's do it!

This helps explain suspicion of school choice. Parents might opt out of these varied commitments; might prize knowledge more than social uplift; might enroll their children in schools that lay less weight on Good Causes than on trigonometry and Chaucer.

Clearly we can't have that, opponents mutter, so phooey on choice; let's go on assigning everybody, regardless of need or aspiration, to the same rut. But if we do that, the public schools, so problematical now, will get more so, and it won't matter what fine words flow from the White House. George Bush points to the right button. Still, he can't press it for us. We have to do that ourselves — first having shed our socially conditioned embarrassment over imagining that a school's first duty is education.

William Murchison's column is distributed by Heritage Features Syndicate.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Soviets to sponsor talks

KISLOVODSK, U.S.S.R. — The Soviet Union formally announced that it was prepared to co-sponsor a Middle East peace conference with the United States.

Soviet and American officials had been working for the last month on the quiet understanding that Moscow would join Washington in convening any Arab-Israeli peace conference, so the only surprise Thursday was the somewhat grudging manner in which the Soviet foreign minister, Alexander Bessmertnykh, signed on publicly.

The formal Soviet endorsement should add at least some momentum to Secretary of State James A. Baker 3rd's still-unsuccessful efforts to get the parties to the conflict around a single negotiating table. It seems thus far that everyone is committed to a peace conference save the Arabs and Israelis.

The members of the European Community are pressing Baker to find a place for them, the United Nations wants to have a role, the Soviets have signaled they are willing to attend, and only the Arabs and Israelis have yet to give firm commitments. The Soviet commitment was somewhat diminished by the manner in which it was announced. It took the Soviet foreign minister four tries at two separate news conferences with Baker to state explicitly that Moscow would serve as a co-sponsor with Washington.

Earthquake blocks roads

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — Highway crews worked Thursday to open supply routes to scores of cities and villages still isolated four days after a devastating earthquake hit this Central American nation.

Residents desperate for food looted grocery stores in Puerto Limon, hit hardest by the temblor in this Central American country of 3 million people, Police Chief Carmelo Diaz said. Food was reaching the coastal city only by air.

The quake, registering 7.4 on the Richter scale, hit on Monday and killed 82 people — 53 in Costa Rica and 29 in Panama. Hundreds were injured and thousands of homes destroyed.

Eduardo Sanchez, the Red Cross brigade captain in Puerto Limon, said rescue boats had yet to reach about 150 villages between Puerto Limon and Sixaola, 75 miles to the southeast along the Caribbean. Sixaola is near the Panamian border.

Cholera threatens millions

GENEVA — Latin America's cholera epidemic threatens up to 120 million people in the region, and providing safe water and sanitation to stop its spread could cost $50 billion, the World Health Organization said Thursday.

People living in poor conditions in urban shantytowns as well as in rural areas are especially at risk, said the U.N. agency's director-general, Dr. Hiroshi Nakajima.

The epidemic, which appeared on Peru's northern coast in January, has spread to neighboring Ecuador, Colombia, Chile and Brazil.

Brazil's Health Ministry on Thursday confirmed the first case of cholera among a remote Amazon tribe living near the Colombia border, and said the health of the entire 20,000-member Tikuna group is considered in danger.

Nakajima announced the creation of a WHO task force, which he said will develop a worldwide strategy for helping countries fight what he termed a health emergency.

Treaty may return gold

BERLIN — Centuries after Achilles fought heroic battles, Berliners are hoping for the return of priceless gold jewelry and other artifacts from the Trojan War site.

Once among Berlin's most famous collections, the so-called Treasure of Priam disappeared in 1945 after yet another war. Many believe conquering Soviet troops hauled it off to Moscow.

In a treaty ratified Thursday in Bonn, the Soviets and the Germans agreed to give back "art treasures illegally taken away."

A wartime museum director in the bombed-out Nazi capital, Wilhelm Unverzagt, claimed that after the war he gave the Trojan artifacts and other artworks to the occupying Soviet forces

"That's the last trace we have," says Wolfgang Kahlcke, spokesman for the Prussian Cultural Ownership Foundation.

5 years later, Soviets wonder about Chernobyl's legacy

MOSCOW (NYT) Soviet scientists say the fifth anniversary today of the world's worst nuclear accident at Chernobyl scares them because it emphasizes how little they know of its consequences despite the passage of time.

Some Soviets contend that the reactor encased in a sarcophagus at Chernobyl still isn't safe and could erupt yet again — although thankfully with less serious consequences.

With each passing year, the Soviet government finds it must evacuate more people from a wider area and invest more money in cleaning up. And, not unexpectedly, the number of deaths and illnesses grows.

"There has been a top secret cover-up.... The figures will be thousands of times higher than officially released," said Vladimir Chernousenko, scientific director of the 20-mile closed zone encircling Chernobyl. He is dying from radiation exposure.

The government does admit that heart disease, thyroid and blood diseases and nervous system disorders have increased in the affected areas.

Thyroid cancer among girls is especially high, doctors say. But they said it is usually a slow-growing cancer that can be detected and cured.

On the eve of the anniversary, Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev admitted that the full consequences of the disaster were still unknown and untackled.

"The Chernobyl tragedy has not become a thing of the past," he said in a message to world leaders thanking them for their help.

The Soviet government has never updated its original report that the death toll was 33. But estimates by some Soviet experts range between 7,000 and 10,000 deaths.

"Its scope, the time it is going to take and consequences are such that humanity is just beginning to realize fully the global nature of social, medical and psychological problems created by this catastrophe," Gorbachev said.

Protest marches and memorial services in many places in the Soviet Union were scheduled for the anniversary. For the second year in a row, a television marathon will be broadcast throughout the Soviet Union for 24 hours starting Friday evening to raise money for Chernobyl's victims.

Soviet nuclear expert Alexander Borovoi has warned that the danger of more radiation escaping from Chernobyl, located in the Ukraine, increases as time goes by. After the accident on April 26, 1986, the Soviets entombed Chernobyl nuclear reactor number four in a sarcophagus of cement and steel.

Borovoi said that 96 percent of the reactor's nuclear fuel is buried inside and could begin moving as the structure ages. Such movement could spark a chain reaction leading to new leaks of radioactivity, he warned. However, this would not be nearly as dangerous or harmful as the original explosion, he said.

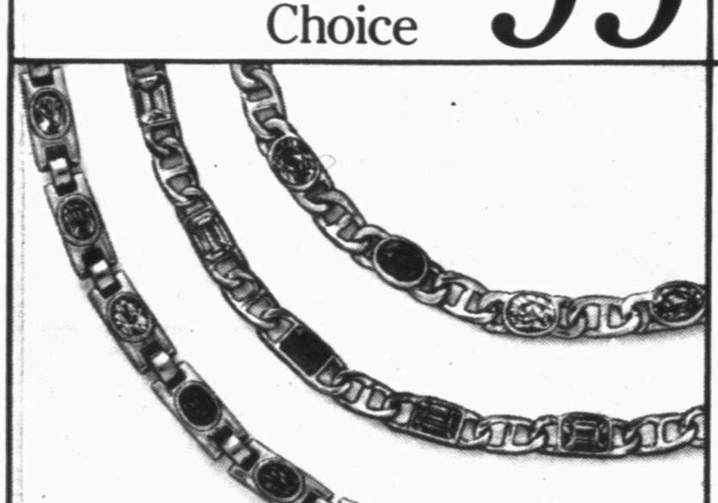

Vladimir Yavorivsky, the Ukrainian parliament's Chernobyl expert, said Thursday the tomb's roof is already in danger of collapsing. The designers of the reactor's coffin had predicted it would last 20 to 30 years.

Victor Gubanov, deputy chairman of the Soviet Commission on Emergencies, said recent studies showed the nuclear fuel inside Chernobyl at the moment was not likely to start such a chain reaction. However, he added that scientists were studying how to reinforce or modify the tomb.

To cope with the disaster, the government plans to spend 10.3 billion rubles ($17.5 billion at the official exchange rate; less on the open market) in 1991 — more than in the first four years put together.

Yavorivsky said recently that 1.7 million Ukrainians — including 336,000 children — lived in heavily contaminated areas. Saying that one-tenth risk death from radiation, he said, "Imagine for a moment a cemetery with more than 33,000 children's graves."

MISD panel backs alternative school

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

The Midland Alternative Program Center needs an image lift and a name change, according to an advisory committee which studied the center.

"The name seems to have a negative connotation in the minds of the general public...and the center's brochure seems to indicate that the students are bad people," said a report from the advisory committee.

The advisory committee has made recommendations to expand the program and improve facilities, which will be possible if Proposition No. 1 of the school bond issue passes May 4 and an entire new $1.7 million facility is built.

The new facility would also offer on-site day care, which will allow young parents to stay in school.

The alternative school, operated by Midland Independent School District, offers an alternative environment for students to pursue their high school diplomas.

It recaptures students who may have missed a lot of school due to a lengthy illness, or students who have experienced trauma within their families.

Females who become pregnant or students who must work to support their families also benefit from the school which offers an opportunity for them to complete high school when the typical school environment just can't accommodate their needs, supporters contend.

The alternative setting also allows students to get individual attention and to work at their own pace when job or family commitments interfere with their school work, school officials add.

Helen Lackey, director of the school, said the public has misconceptions about the alternative center, including a misconception that it is where children with discipline problems are sent.

The school has served 300 students this year, according to information from the school district.

Some students may attend the alternative school simply because they have fallen behind in school and can't catch up, according to Ms. Lackey.

The school director estimated the Alternative Program Center's demographic breakdown is 55 percent Anglo, 35 percent Hispanic and 10 percent black, similar to the ethnic breakdowns of both Midland high school campuses.

"Saving students from dropping out of school now, will prevent them from becoming a burden later on," said Joseph Baressi Jr., superintendent of Midland public schools.

"It's a misconception that this is a school for children in trouble," said Lucy Davis in the advisory

MHCC honors four Midland entrepreneurs

■ Hispanic Chamber of Commerce recognizes Alfred Morales, Polly Vargas, Celia Morales and Clayton Williams Jr.

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Four outstanding members have been recognized by the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce.

As part of the upcoming Small Business Week, the chamber announced its Hispanic Businessman and Hispanic Businesswoman of the Year, along with Member of the Year and Corporate Member of the Year.

Businessman is Alfred Morales, who owns and operates Casita Gerardo with his wife Velma.

"I can't believe it. But I'm very thankful to the chamber and to all my friends," he said of the honor. The San Antonio native did not start out to be a restaurateur.

After graduating from Midland schools, he joined the military and served in Vietnam. After the service, he earned a bachelor of science degree from Sul Ross State University and taught in the Midland Independent School District for eight years.

Then, as he put it, "My wife and I decided to become entrepreneurs." After eight years running his restaurant, Morales said the best advice for success he can offer is "For the owner or one of the owners to be there as much as possible."

Polly Vargas, Hispanic Businesswoman of the Year, said she was "really honored and surprised to be selected."

She and her husband, Ruben, own and operate Trendy Tees in Midland Park Mall. She noted that, though the casual wear shop opened two years ago, she and her husband have had their own retailing business for 10 years. The couple operated a computer portrait system that they took to school fairs, and to the mall during Christmas, Mother's Day and other special occasions.

"I've learned about business through experience," said the mother of two. "And I've learned through my husband Ruben. We've worked into this together."

Her husband runs the DECA program at Midland High School. The secret of their success, she said, is merchandising the store as a specialty shop, not merely a T-shirt store, and offering variety and customer service. Of the store, she said, "It's a lot of hard work, but it's fun."

Member of the Year Celia Morales has been involved with the chamber since it was founded six years ago. As she points out,

City looks for more garage space, again

■ Timing may be the biggest consideration blocking the purchase of a new municipal garage, a City Council member says.

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

A large warehouse south of downtown could become the new home for municipal street and sanitation departments and their heavy equipment.

Despite a proposed effort to cut back on capital expenditures, the city is looking to meet its municipal garage needs without having to start from scratch.

Councilmen earlier this week instructed city management to study buying a 32,000-square-foot building at 2900 Front Avenue.

City Manager Fred Poe said Thursday that it would cost about $750,000 to build a new garage, while it would cost between $150,000 and $175,000 for the Front Avenue warehouse.

The building, formerly the Freight Damage Furniture Store and a bakery prior to that, is owned by Henry Sara-nec, a local attorney. The building has been used for storage purposes for more than five years.

Councilman J.D. Faircloth, after recently inspecting the warehouse, said it would be ideal for a municipal garage.

"It's a tremendous facility and would be a tremendous asset for the city," Faircloth said. "I was very surprised as to the quality.

Schmeltzer pleads guilty to pornography charge

Staff Report

A Midland man pleaded guilty in federal court Thursday to receiving child pornography.

Ernest Schmeltzer, 41, admitted to U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton III that he obtained a magazine entitled "Lolita" that contained pictures of minors engaging in sexual activity.

He also pleaded guilty to a probation violation charge.

Schmeltzer, who was arrested in January, had been serving a five-year federal probation term for a 1987 child pornography conviction in Oklahoma.

He is being held without bond in the Midland County Central Detention Facility.

Schmeltzer, of 3509 Park Lane, faces up to 10 years in prison and up to a $250,000 fine for the child

Washington pays homage to Tower

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — John Tower was remembered Thursday at Arlington National Cemetery as a man with a "sharp mind and elbows to match," and as a patriot with a penchant for British suits and cigarettes.

Shiny limousines with their quivering telephone antennas brought a passel of dignitaries to the cemetery's amphitheater for the memorial service, punctuated by the rumbling of jets and finished with four F-14s flashing across the cloudless sky.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, who got the job the Senate refused to give to Tower, came. So did Sen. Sam Nunn, the Georgia Democrat and Senate Armed Services Committee chairman who led the battle to deny Tower his grandest ambition.

'Tower was his name and for me, he always will.'
— Sen. William S. Cohen, R-Maine

There were Cabinet secretaries, Texans, and Tower's two daughters, sister, and first wife, Lou.

"We gather today at this final resting place of American heroes to honor another worthy of that title," said Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole in recalling the man who rose from enlisted sailor to chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, from West Texas teacher to arms negotiator.

When he died three weeks ago in a commuter airplane crash in Georgia, Tower was also a published author on his way to Sea Island, Ga., to promote his bitter memoirs. His daughter Marian, 35, who worked with her father and was accompanying him on the trip, also died.

"He had a sharp mind and elbows to match. He crunched more than a few toes with his cowboy boots. But inside that tough exterior, you could find the warmth and the kindness of a good father and a true friend, and more than a touch

Firefighters get pat on back for rescue

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

They were just doing their job ... but a heroic job, nonetheless.

As a result, two Midland Fire Department paramedics were honored Thursday for saving the life of a choking victim.

Michael D. Harrison and Tobe R. Partridge Jr. were the first recipients of the Midland Fire Department Silver Eagle Award.

On Feb. 19, the two responded to a call of a Midland man who had stopped breathing because of a piece of a pork chop had lodged in his throat. Taking emergency action, including CPR, and retrieving the meat with a pair of forceps, Harrison and Partridge were able to revive the man before transporting him to the hospital.

"I appreciate it," Harrison said. "Not very often we get a pat on the back. It motivates you to do a better job when you go out," Harrison added.

Partridge expressed similar sentiments. "It is a nice thing to receive. We had no idea it was coming," Partridge said.

Fire Chief James Roberts said more awards — both to paramedics and firefighters — will be presented when the occasion arises.

"It's strictly an in-house that-a-boy" award, said Roberts, who presented the awards.

Woman sentenced in shooting

By David Morris
Staff Writer

A federal judge on Thursday sentenced Lois Marie Foster, 39, to eight months in custody for concealing evidence in connection with a shooting at a Midland post office last fall.

The time Mrs. Foster has spent in jail since her arrest last September will be credited to her sentence, Judge Lucius D. Bunton III said.

Mrs. Foster, who is being held at the Midland County Central Detention Facility, will be eligible for release May 4.

She faced a maximum of three years in prison for her role in the Sept. 5, 1990, shooting.

DEATHS

Lloyd Dunagan

Funeral services for Lloyd Dunagan are scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Saturday at the First Baptist Church with the Rev. James Denison officiating.

Interment will follow at Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

He died Thursday following a lengthy illness.

He was born Jan. 25, 1929, in Austin and came to Midland in the late 1940s to work for his grandfather, Midland pioneer Herbert Benton Dunagan.

He served in the U.S. Navy and was stationed at the North Island Naval Air Station in San Diego, Calif.

After military service, he returned to Midland to work for his grandfather. He later worked for Neills Air Conditioning.

At retirement he was a dispatcher for the Midland Fire Department. He was a member of the First Baptist Church.

He is survived by his wife, Sue Dunagan of Midland and her children, Robert Reed Moore of Midland, Mrs. Mark E. Hill of Midland, Mrs. David Johnstone of Midland, and Mrs. Keith Landry of Lubbock; one son, Steven Lloyd Dunagan of Midland; one daughter, Linda Kay Barnes of Coppell; 12 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

The family requests that memorials be sent to Hospice of Midland, P.O. Box 2621, Midland, 79702.

Robert L. Holder

Services for Robert L. Holder of Midland have been set for 11 a.m. Saturday at Ellis Chapel with Frank Davis officiating. Services are under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Holder died Thursday at a local hospital.

He was born Dec. 21, 1931, in Houston where he was raised and educated. Holder married Lennie Robertson in Houston on Aug. 2, 1950.

Holder entered the Marine Corps Reserves and in the late 1950s was called to active duty and served in Korea.

Following his discharge, Holder returned to Houston and began a career working in the oil and chemical industry as a design engineer. He was employed with Baker Oil Tools and Team, Inc.

Holder and his family came to Midland in Aug. 1987.

Survivors include his wife, Lennie Holder of Midland; two sons, Robert L. Holder Jr. and James E. Holder, both of Midland; two daughters, Karen Kieselhorst of Midland and Dianne Jack of Reston, Va.; his mother, Mrs. Ruth Holder of Midland; and seven grandchildren.

The family requests that memorials be sent to Hospice of Midland.

Edith McDaniel

SEMINOLE, Okla. — Services for Edith McDaniel, 87, are set for 2 p.m. today in Swearingen Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Dwayne Jackson officiating. Burial will follow in Little Cemetery in Seminole County under the direction of Swearingen Funeral Home.

She died Tuesday at a local hospital.

Born Sept. 21, 1903, in Indian Territory. She was a homemaker and a lifelong resident of the Seminole area.

She was a member of Varnum Congregational Methodist Church.

She was preceded in death by her husband, W.R. McDaniel, in 1962; two sons, Alfred McDaniel in 1930, and Sam McDaniel in 1952; and one daughter, Goldie McDaniel in 1967.

Survivors include: three sons, Bobby McDaniel of Seminole, John McDaniel of Apache Junction, Ariz. and Theo McDaniel of Winslow, Ariz; six daughters, Mickey Armstead of Monahans, Edna Willhoite of Seminole, Imogene Dicken of Buffalo, Mo., Mary West of Humble and Martha Timmons and Ida Calaway, both of Midland; one sister, Johnie Heath of Austin; 32 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

CITY: Effort to find larger garage began with bond election in 1982

(From 1B)

The building is only full of World War II junk right now."

He said the owner is asking $170,000 for the warehouse.

"I think we could talk him down to $150,000," Faircloth said.

County appraisers valued the building at $160,000 in 1990.

The question, however, is whether the city wants to buy the facility at a time when management is trying to cut down on capital expenditures for at least another fiscal year.

"It's obviously a good buy," Councilman Bill Williams said. "It's probably as good a value as we've seen anywhere."

A new municipal garage has been a city issue for at least a decade.

Voters in 1982 approved a $500,000 bond issue for a new garage, but the money sat around gathering interest for seven years.

In 1989, voters approved reallotting the money to refurbish a 601 N. Loraine St. building, which soon will become the home of the Midland Police Department.

The vote sent garage employee morale spiraling downward.

Workers had complained that the current garage, 1401 Orchard Lane, was too small and posed unsafe working conditions.

The building, constructed in 1952, had a leaky roof, no air conditioning, cracking walls and floors and a ceiling too low to allow for some garbage truck maintenance, workers said. Ventilation also was a concern.

Although the facility has been renovated some, Poe said the city needs a new garage.

The 2900 Front Avenue warehouse has garage doors large enough for all city trucks, adequate ventilation, a high ceiling and plenty of space, Poe said. It also has 1,000 square feet of office space.

But councilmen and city managers agreed that timing was the biggest consideration blocking a purchase.

"I don't see any way we can do it in this budget year," Faircloth said. "It's a good buy, but from a budget standpoint I'm not sure we can do anything about it this year."

The warehouse would need some work, Faircloth said, including the removal of a leaky underground gasoline storage tank. Repairs to the building also are needed, he said, although a cost has not been estimated.

Head of departments that would use the building, such as sanitation and street employees, were asked this week to calculate moving costs.

MHCC: Honorees include Williams

"I've been involved with every committee the chamber's had." Among the committees she has served on are the All-Male Fashion show and the anniversary/installation banquet.

"It's an honor for me (to be named Member of the Year)," she said. "It's been rewarding to see the chamber grow from a handful of members to over 300."

Corporate Member of the Year was Clayton W. Williams Jr. Cos. Clayton Williams, the head of the group of companies, said that he is very proud of the honor. "I've always thought it was important to be a good citizen and participate in the community. I'm particularly proud to be selected by the Hispanic Chamber. I've supported them for a number of years."

Elvia Hernandez, president of the chamber, said the company was selected because it was one of the first corporate members, has supported all its projects, and that "Clayton has given of his money and his time."

The four winners, who will honored at a May 10 luncheon at the Plaza Club, will compete on the state level this July at the Texas Association of Mexican-American Chambers of Commerce convention in Lubbock. The state winners will compete on the national level at the U.S. Hispanic Chambers of Commerce convention in Chicago this September.

pornography conviction. He could receive an additional five years for the probation violation charge.

His sentencing is scheduled for June 13.

The FBI filed a complaint against Schmeltzer in January after seizing videotapes and photographs from his home, court records show.

A federal grand jury returned a six-count indictment against Schmeltzer on April 11 in connection with the seizure.

The seizure came after the FBI monitored conversations between Schmeltzer and an informant to whom Schmeltzer showed pornographic videotapes, according to an FBI affidavit on file in U.S. District Court.

The videotapes allegedly contained child pornography, according to the affidavit.

In return for Schmeltzer's guilty plea to count one of the indictment, federal prosecutors agreed to recommend that the other five counts be dismissed.

Autopsy reveals cause of death

Staff Report

An autopsy performed by Mexican authorities shows that a 69-year-old Midland man found dead Wednesday near Ojinaga, Mexico, died from heat stroke and dehydration, Midland police officials said.

Henry Kenneth Dittman was discovered dead in his car just south of the Mexican city after being missing since Sunday.

Dittman, who resided in Midland for about six months, was reported missing Sunday by his daughter, after her father failed to meet her at an engagement that morning.

Dittman reportedly had a history of becoming disoriented, officials said.

Police jail man on drug-related charges

Staff Report

ODESSA — A 20-year-old man was arrested Wednesday evening at Permian Mall and charged with two counts of delivery of cocaine and one count of possession of the drug, police said.

Jeffery Steven Vanderroest remained in jail in lieu of bonds totaling $125,000 set by Justice of the Peace Dennis Bright.

Vanderroest was arrested at the mall, 4101 E. 42nd St., about 9:20 p.m. following a month-long investigation by narcotics officers, police said.

Charges of possession of cocaine are also pending for a 29-year-old Odessa woman in a related arrest, police said.

TOWER: Even one-time political rivals pay tribute of melancholy and sadness as well," recalled Sen. William S. Cohen, R-Maine.

British Ambassador Sir Antony Acland remembered Tower's taste for things British, from Savile Row suits and Jermyn Street shirts to a special brand of English cigarettes. He called him a "stalwart friend" his country.

"He was an admired performer on the international stage," said Acland, who read a tribute from former Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

"From his first day as an enlisted sailor in the United States Navy to his last day as chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, John Tower fought for a strong national defense and for a strong America," said Sen. Phil Gramm, a Republican who was elected to Tower's seat when he retired in 1984 after 23 years in the Senate.

"He brought to public service a rare combination of talent and commitment that propelled him from a West Texas school teacher to the corridors of power in Washington and back again with poise and determination," Gramm said. "He met with triumph and disaster and treated the two impostors just the same."

Vice President Dan Quayle called the diminutive Texan a "super patriot" and said that while the was not universally liked, he was universally respected.

"He was called many things, some kind, some not so kind," said Quayle, who served in the Senate with Tower.

Cohen said Tower had the same courage and fighting spirit as Sam Houston, whose military leadership secured Texas' independence.

"Like Sam Houston, he was a man of complexity and contradictions. He never tested or yielded to the shifting winds of popular opinion," Cohen said. "John was a warrior who loved nothing more than a battle. He was at his best when strapping on his intellectual armor.

"Tower was his name and for me, he always will."

USPS: Foster's husband faces sentencing also

(From 1B)

She faced a maximum of three years in prison for her role in the Sept. 5, 1990, shooting.

"I think you can put up with another 10 days in jail," Bunton told Mrs. Foster, who also has been ordered to serve a year of supervised release and attend a parenting skills class.

Mrs. Foster pleaded guilty March 25 to misprision — the concealment of a felony from authorities — in connection with the shooting.

Also injured was 43-year-old John Ray McGraw, who was reportedly living with Miss Willman at the time.

Although Mrs. Foster initially told investigators that she wielded the gun in the incident, she later said her husband, 49-year-old Lonnie Joe Foster, was the trigger man.

Mrs. Foster attempted to conceal her husband's role in the shooting because he is ill with diabetes and a heart condition and she didn't want him to go to prison, prosecutors said.

In return for Mrs. Foster's guilty plea to the misprision charge, prosecutors agreed to drop several more-serious charges against her. The charges included conspiracy, assault with a deadly weapon and use of a firearm during a violent crime.

On the night of the shooting, the Fosters evidently drove to the U.S. Post Office at 10000 Sloan Field to confront McGraw about his relationship with Miss Willman, Assistant U.S. Attorney Tom Beery said.

Miss Willman and McGraw, a postal service contract driver, were sitting in a mail truck at the post office parking lot around 11 p.m. when the Fosters drove up, investigators said.

Beery said the group argued before Lonnie Foster took a .22-caliber revolver out of his vehicle and fired it at the mail truck.

McGraw and Miss Willman suffered lacerations from flying glass and bullet fragments, according to reports.

Lonnie Foster, who is free on bond, pleaded guilty March 29 to misprision in connection with the shooting. His sentencing is scheduled for May 9.

EARNEST KIKER

Gardening requires early preparation against insect pests

Gardening season is just around the corner, and with it the need for early preparation against insect pests that are sure to be around.

Kiker

First, gardners should inspect insecticides left over from last year to determine if they are still good. Product age and storage conditions must be considered.

If properly stored, most products should have at least a two-year shelf life once they begin to be used. Dusts sometimes have a tendency to absorb moisture if the bag is not sealed tightly after each use; they should not be used if lumpy.

Place bags containing insecticides in a clear, polyethylene bag and seal it with a rubber band to keep moisture out.

If dusts are two years old or older and there is any doubt about their storage, dispose of them according to label directions and buy new insecticide.

Although liquid materials are not as likely to absorb moisture, storage is still important. Caps should be resealed tightly on the product after each use. Do not use liquids which are cloudy or milky in color or which have sediments on the bottom of the container.

Do not store pesticides on a shelf in front of a window, especially if the window gets strong afternoon sun. Do not store liquids in an area subjected to extreme temperature fluctuations. Extremes from summer to winter temperatures may not hurt the active ingredients in the insecticide, but it may damage the ability of the product to mix properly in water.

If liquid materials are at least two years old and have not been stored properly, monitor vegetables closely after spraying to determine if the pesticides are controlling insects.

It is important to anticipate pesticides that will be needed for the crops to be grown. Select insecticides by considering the plants and the period for insect control before repeating the application. This also will affect time from application until a safe time for harvesting.

Fianlly, know exactly what is being sprayed on plants and the amount. Don't jeopardize plants by spraying first and then checking for possible plant damage.

Earnest C. Kiker is Midland County Extension Agent for Agriculture.

Valuable bird killed at university

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Police at Louisiana State University were trying Tuesday to figure out why anyone would break into a poultry science department pen and strangle an ostrich.

The ostrich, valued at $10,000 to $12,000, was found dead Saturday, said police Lt. Mark Shaw. A necropsy performed at the LSU veterinary school turned up little additional information.

"The bird was strangled in some manner, we know that," said Harold W. Casey, a veterinary school official. "I think it was a prank-type thing that resulted in the strangulation."

Texas exempt from cover crop plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department exempted Texas recently from cover crop regulations that could have driven some farmers, who are already fighting low prices and escalating operating costs, out of business.

The decision exempts Texas farmers from a controversial regulation requiring cover crops on half of a farm's idled acres, in order to qualify for government farm benefits, said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

The cover crop regulations are intended to conserve soil and water resources from erosion.

But Texans say that since much of the state is so arid, it would not be feasible to plant a cover crop, and that the government's planting schedule for the cover crops may not coincide with their operations.

"Many Texas farmers would have been severely handicapped or even put out of business had they been forced to change long-established farming practices at the last minute, as the original proposal would have done," said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Mission, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, said the decision should help Texas farmers cut costs during continued dry weather conditions in the state.

Under the law, arid lands are exempt from the cover crop requirements of the 1990 farm bill. The decision by Keith Bjerke, administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, classifies the entire state as arid, Gramm said.

"This is a common sense decision that will allow farmers in all 254 counties to decide for themselves how to best use their resources," Gramm said. "The cover crop regulation would have placed unnecessary hardship and expense on Texas farmers."

Farmers fight insects with natural predators

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — Some Pecan growers are abandoning or limiting their use of pesticides and turning instead to natural insect predators to control insect pests.

"We're using Mother Nature's way to control the pests instead of chemicals," said Phillip Arnold of Arnold Bros. farm in Fairacres, N.M. "We have to be responsible about the land and not just spray chemicals that can affect neighborhoods and other nearby places like schools."

"Biological warfare is the new wave, but it's not the end all," he said.

Aphids are the major concern of pecan growers in the Mesilla Valley of southern New Mexico and in nearby El Paso, Texas. Aphids eat pecan leaves, sapping the tree's lifeblood.

"We're very lucky in this part of the country because we only have aphid problems," Arnold said.

He began experimenting with insects in 1985 and now is an insect dealer for Buena Biosystems of California.

Arnold hatches and supplies biological combatants such as lady bugs and the green lacewing.

As many as 200 growers with orchards ranging from 10 acres to 10,000 acres in West Texas and New Mexico are using insects to fight off aphid infestations, he said.

Stahmann Farms, a 3,000-acre pecan farm in La Mesa, stopped using pesticides about four years ago, said its owner, Randy Stahmann.

Workers now release ladybugs into the orchards at the end of May and the green lacewing in August to effectively control aphids, he said.

"We stopped using the chemical pesticides, which were costing us about $1.90 an acre, and we haven't looked back," Stahmann said. "We now spend 77 cents an acre for the bugs.

"People don't believe it, but I have the documentation. We're happy and it's working out real well."

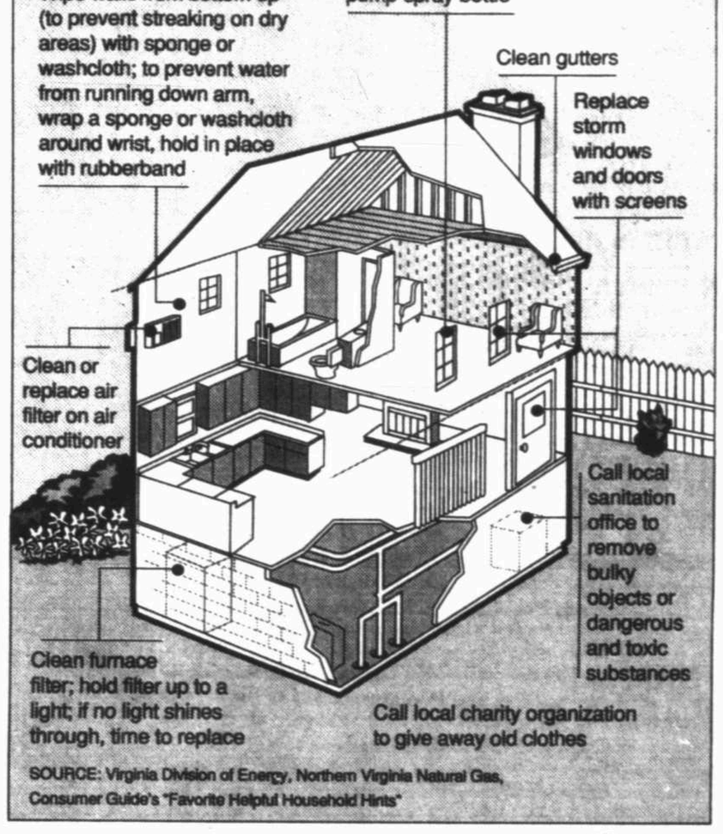

Stahmann said weeds also are allowed to grow in the orchards because they serve as supplemental food for predator insects and at harvest time help machinery stay relatively dirt free.

Carol Sutherland, state Department of Agriculture bureau chief for entomology and nursery industries, said insects may not be enough to combat a recently confirmed infestation of hickory shuckworm in El Paso.

The shuckworm bores into the pecan nut and destroys the fruit, she said.

New Mexico has developed new regulations for interstate transport of nuts from Texas to try to control the spread of the pest.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, APRIL 26, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Impressive gains are possible if you are willing to make the effort. Romance will bring new sunshine into your life this summer. Count on attaining better financial footing in early fall, thanks to certain changes in the economy. Keep your guard up in December; those around you may not be trustworthy. Travel is favored next January. Family members are likely to play a larger role in your affairs by March 1992.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Carol Burnett, architect I.M. Pei, ornithologist John James Audubon, singer Bobby Rydell.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your prudence in financial affairs pays off. Resolve that no one will get the better of you in money matters today. Rework your schedule to accommodate last-minute changes. Romance is sweet.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Keep your wits about you when faced with unexpected developments. Your romantic hopes could involve someone in a distant city. Make full use of the telephone or fax to keep in touch!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Others may question how you earn and spend your money. Make intelligent decisions based on research, not hunches. Safeguard a relationship by showing the object of your affections more attention.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your thoughts and ideas shift with lightning speed. Get ready to make some sweeping changes in your work and lifestyle. Although other people may protest, you know what is right for you!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A change of style will alert other people to your true potential. Financial concerns must be dealt with in a mature manner. Be candid when recruiting a family member's support.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The job outlook remains unpredictable. You may have to take on some unwelcome temporary assignments. Put duty before pleasure. Your mate's or partner's encouraging words will lift your spirits.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Learn to be more discreet. Even well-intentioned friends may reveal things you tell them. Learning new skills will lead to swifter career advancement. Concentrate on do-it-yourself projects.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov.21): A step-by-step approach brings the best results now. Gain the confidence of those with whom you work. A financial matter is more confusing than dangerous. Get experts' help without further delay.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Check with financial experts to save both time and money. See things as they really are. Conservation is the key to greater success. Forget your pride. Open your heart to loved one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Go out of your way to make new business contacts and friends. A fresh love interest could be part of the picture. Do not overlook the obvious. Show more confidence in yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Good will flourishes between family members today. Although a task may be difficult, you do a good job. Others are depending on your shrewd insights. See people and situations as they really are.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): New agreements are possible at your place of work. Encourage partnerships. Keeping a high public profile helps you win greater popularity. Romance beckons. Overseas travel is likely.

TODAY'S CHILDREN have terrific determination and will power. A perfectionist streak guarantees they will do an assignment over and over again until they get it just right. These Taureans' "take charge" attitude makes them natural executives. Frugal by nature, they like to know where every penny is spent. Although they like the idea of marrying, they will take their time choosing a spouse.

Opening lead: Three of ♠

Since the Spring North American Championships were being held in Atlantic City, N.J., Trump Coup Tommy decided it was an excellent time to indulge two of his passions—bridge and a fling at the gaming tables. He was soon afforded an opportunity to display his rare talent—an ordinary player 99 percent of the time, Tommy became a virtuoso when faced with a bad trump break.

By first jumping to three hearts and then taking out three no trump to four hearts, Tommy was making a slam suggestion—with a weaker hand he would simply have bid four hearts directly over the no trump opening. North's cue-bid of five clubs was a waste of time, for Tommy had never been known to reject an invitation. North might as well have bid six hearts right away.

West led a spade to East's ace, and Tommy won the return in hand with the king, keeping every possible entry to dummy. To prepare for a possible trump coup, Tommy cashed the ace of diamonds and ruffed a diamond. Since declarer could claim if trumps were divided, Tommy continued with the ace and king of hearts. When West failed to follow to the second trump, a gleam appeared in Tommy's eye.

Declarer ruffed another diamond, reducing his trump length to that of East and, since East would have to hold at least three clubs for a trump coup to succeed, Tommy cashed the queen and jack of clubs and then entered dummy with a club to the king. When declarer now led the ace of clubs, East was trapped. If the defender failed to trump, declarer would discard a spade, and any plain card from dummy would then coup East out of his trump trick. And if East ruffed the club, it would simply mean waving the white flag a trick earlier.

Police give Ann Landers advice

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Police had some advice for Ann Landers after she failed to report the theft of her purse.

Landers

"You should always report crimes," said New Haven police Lt. Reginald Higgins Sr. "If we don't know about it, how can we help people?"

Landers, a pen name for Eppie Lederer, got the purse back and was uninjured in the incident Monday night.

The 72-year-old syndicated advice columnist had her purse stolen as she returned from dinner. A man grabbed Landers' little red evening bag as she stepped onto a curb near her hotel, said her assistant, Kathy Mitchell.

The thief ditched the purse seconds after he discovered it contained just a compact, lipstick and a handkerchief, Mitchell said.

"As far as I'm concerned, there was no loss to me whatsoever," Landers said through her spokeswoman, explaining why she didn't report the crime.

No official report was filed, police spokeswoman Judith Mongillo said.

But a representative of the hotel where Landers was staying did call police about the incident, although Landers had said she "did not want anything to do with it" out of concern over publicity.

CARMEL, N.Y. (AP) — The Rev. Norman Vincent Peale and his wife have turned over control of their 46-year-old publishing company, which puts out Guideposts magazine.

Peale

John Temple, an 18-year company employee who most recently served as executive director, was appointed Wednesday as chief executive officer and president of Guideposts Associates Inc.

Editorial Director Van Varner was named editor in chief of Guideposts, the nation's 12th-largest magazine with a circulation of 4.2 million.

The Peales, who founded the company, will continue as co-publishers.

In making the announcement, Ruth Stafford-Peale, 85, said that she and her 92-year-old husband felt that the monthly magazine was strongly positioned for the future.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Todd Bridges touched some hearts and minds with an anti-drug message during an assembly at a middle school in Compton.

"I touched him with this hand and hugged him," said 11-year-old Kenisha Collins, who said she still watches Bridges on reruns of "Diff'rent Strokes."

"I hope you can learn from the mistakes I've made," Bridges told the assembly Tuesday. Afterward, he said: "This helps me a lot. I hope it helps one kid out there."

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — Author J.D. Salinger, who for years has refused to be interviewed, wants nothing to do with an award from Brandeis University.

"The assumption is that it is in keeping with his strict desire for privacy," Brandeis spokesman Dennis Nealon said.

Salinger, 71, best known for his 1951 novel "The Catcher in the Rye," had been chosen to receive one of nine Lillian L. Poses Creative Arts Awards at a Brandeis ceremony Thursday.

But the university withdrew the award because Salinger thought announcement of the award focused unwanted public attention on him and caused "credulous strangers" to think he might appear.

Salinger lives reclusively in Cornish, N.H. He last published a book in 1962.

"I guess people assumed he (Salinger) was going to make a public appearance, but he could have received the award without showing up," Nealon said. "We never meant to imply he was coming. . . . Brandeis wants to honor his request that his privacy be respected. It was never our intention to invade it."

Compiled from Reporter-Telegram wire services.

Garth Brooks displays the six trophies he won throughout the night Wednesday at the 26th annual Academy of Country Music Awards in Universal City, Calif. Brooks won for album, song, video and record of the year, as well as being named Top Male Vocalist and Entertainer of the Year.

Care of mother's mother causes woman grief

By Jim May, Ph.D.

DEAR FAMILY: There are times that I just don't understand life and really don't know what to do. I have just spent the worst week of my life trying to take care of my mother's mother. She is in a nursing home in (another city). She just got out of the hospital from having surgery on her hip and needed someone there.

May

The real problem is my mother. She refuses to have anything to do with Granny. I can't get her to call her mother, much less do anything to help her physically or financially. Granny winds up calling me and telling me all her problems. I try to help by listening, but sometimes she needs more than just someone to talk to. I am the only granddaughter so it has fallen to me to do everything. I can get my brother to give some money, but that's it. I'm the one who writes, talks, helps and visits.

My mother is driving me nuts on this. She doesn't want to hear anything about Granny. She absolutely refuses to talk about why she won't have anything to do with her. This just happened over the last three years. Before then, she did everything for Granny and I would have to admit that Granny was very demanding. I can understand my mother cutting back some, but to just stop doing anything?

I don't know what to do about this. I do know that Granny needs more help than I can provide to her. I also know that I have two small children who were very upset when I left them for a week. I need some advice quick. Granny may have to have another operation on her hip. What can I do to get my mother to do her job? STUCK

DEAR STUCK: The short answer to your question is "nothing." I always assume a person has a reason, whether functional or dysfunctional, for refusing to perform an expected role. As a general observation, your mother may be reacting to her life time relationship with her mother by totally disengaging from her. Respect your mother's choice, even though you disagree with her decision. Since you have very little evidence to go on, I assume you may be experiencing the end chapters of a complex relationship. Often it is better to withhold our judgements.

I suggest that you talk to your brother and insist that he start helping your Granny more. In this culture, women are expected to take care of aging parents, but there is no real reason men cannot participate in that process.

DEAR FAMILY: Is it possible for an adult to have ADD (Attention Deficit Disorder)? I have been exposed to ADD because one of the children in my Sunday school class has it and his parents have told me something about it. The more they talked, the more it sounded like my husband! He does a bunch of the things that they described. I was just curious becuase if he did, then that would explain why he acts the way that he does and why he has so many problems. WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Originally, experts thought ADD would be outgrown in adolescence. However, a growing body of evidence suggests otherwise. Dr. Kathleen Nadeau is investigating ADD in adults. She reports the following signs of ADD in adulthood:

- Chronic forgetfulness.
- Problems with time management (estimating realistically how long a task will take and allotting that time to the task).
- Tendency to take on far too many tasks or projects.
- Generally disorganized lifestyle — frequently late, rushed, unprepared.
- Difficulty managing checkbook and finances.
- Frequent moves and/or job changes.
- Tendency to interrupt others in conversation .
- Tendency to be either over-active or under-active with a previous history of over-activity.
- Difficulty concentrating when reading.
- Pattern of achieving less than one's siblings, academically or professionally.

These are only a few of the characteristics. For more information contact Dr. Nadeau at (703) 642-6697. If an adult has ADD or "ADD-like" characteristics, he or she must adjust his or her lifestyle accordingly. If these adjustments are not made, the person often has a very frustrating life. For more information on ADD and the resources available, call 683-6974.

EDITOR'S NOTE: There is a support group called Attention Deficit Disorder Association of Parents and Teachers in Midland. They will meet 7 p.m. May 9 at the Cerebral Palsy Center, 802 Ventura. Ben Hankins, M.D., certified by the American Board of Neurology and Psychiatry, will speak on "The ADD Child, Adolescent and Adult With and Without Hyperactivity." For more information, call 694-1279 or 683-6974.

Parade of Homes raised $15,400

By Elizabeth Edwin
Lifestyle Editor

The Midland Junior Woman's Club presented the 22nd Annual Parade of Homes Sunday featuring four Midland homes.

The event raised $15,400, including $6,100 in sponsorships, according to Jeanne Robinson, publicity chairman for the event. The proceeds will benefit the Palmer Drug Abuse Program and the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Their Children. A special gift also will be presented to Attention Deficit Disorder Association of Parents and Teachers (ADDAPT).

For the 56 workers who manned the homes during the Parade from 1-5 p.m. Sunday — including Junior Woman's Club members, their spouses and former club members — a special affair was provided the previous day. Saturday evening, members and special guests were treated to the annual Candlelight Tour of the homes with a reception following at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Walsh.

Sunday, approximately 900 people toured the homes of Debbie and Gary Baily, Lynn and Jim Dammann, Deborah and Stan Fikes, and Gelinda and George Sutphen. Ticket price was $8.50.

Chairmen for this year's event were Peggy Kuss and Lyndolyn Pervier. Martha Manulik served as sponsor and Liz Rose was in charge of tickets. Home chairmen included Pat Collier and Ms. Manulik at the Baily home, Norma Castello and Ms. Rose at the Dammonn home, Lois Martin and Kandi Dakil at the Fikes home, and Sandy Teer and Cindy Midkiff at the Sutphen home. President of the Junior Woman's Club is Kathleen Hayes.

Sponsors for the Parade were Mr. and Mrs. Joel Castello, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kaufman and Parker & Parsley Petroleum Co.

Patrons for the event were Cox's Decorator Fabrics, Discovery Operating Inc., Mobil Exploration & Producing U.S. Inc., Modern Appliance, The Insurance Man and Associates, and Van Stavern Interiors.

Contributors included Sarilyn and Bill Black, Carriage Company Realtors, Mr. and Mrs. David Cotner, Doug's Baby Store, First City Texas, Folger's Gallery, Greg Frazier Building, Russell L. Freeman Inc., G.L.M. Interiors, Mr. and Mrs. Bill D. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Bill J. Hill, Joseph's Antiques, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Johnson, Kid's Kountry and Amy and Tim Leach.

Other contributors were Mr. and Mrs. Michael S. Loftis, Patty and John Lowery, Luby's Cafeteria of Midland, Dr. and Mrs. Gary Madden, MIDA Computors, Mims & Stephens Insurance, LaVerne and Tom Morgan, Permian Business Group, Carol and John Rodgers, Dr. and Mrs. Walt Taylor, Sandy M. and George A. Teer, Temporary Resourses Inc., Pam and Fred Walsh, J. Weston's and Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Wynne.

Assistance also was given by A-1 Florist, Buddy's Flowers, Clasical Greenery, Curry's, Flowerland, KCHS Foxy 106, Ken's Rent-It Center, The Shop, Gay Glasscock, Magic 102.1 and James Van Stavern.

DEAR ABBY

Open caskets are Filipino way of life

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: With regard to Jessica Mitford's statement: "The open-casket funeral is unique to the U.S. and Canada; in no other country is the bizarre ritual of 'viewing' the deceased a part of any funeral service."

Van Buren

Sorry, Jessica, you are "dead" wrong on this one! Here in the Philippines, the open-casket viewing is traditional. President Corazon Aquino is frequently pictured in local newspapers and on television consoling the relatives of slain government officials, labor leaders, soldiers or victims of violence — all before an open casket displaying a sometimes gruesome corpse. In fact, the body of her own husband, Benigno Aquino Jr., was displayed in the clothing he was wearing when he was gunned down so that "the people can see what they (Marcos' thugs) did to him."

The Philippines is a Catholic nation, the only one in Asia, and perhaps the customs spring from the Hispanic influence. However, one must remember the dramatic pictures of funeral pyres of such Hindu leaders as Gandhi or Nehru. Their bodies were on view as part of the funeral services. Remember, too, in the Soviet Union, where there is officially no religion, the dead bodies of communist bosses from Stalin through Chernenko were always on display before they were laid to rest in the Kremlin Wall.

I am sure you will get a mountain of mail on this, Abby. — FAITHFUL READER, MANILA

DEAR READER: The "mountain" of mail wasn't exactly Mount Everest; let's say it was only Mount McKinley.

DEAR ABBY: Your recent columns on smoking really hit home with me. Having been a heavy smoker for years, I know how hard it is to quit. I am 76 years old and quit cold-turkey 28 years ago. Let me tell you what else I did. I began putting the money I would have spent on cigarettes into a special savings account. The account grew to $15,000, which I used to celebrate our 50th wedding anniversary earlier this month.

I know for sure if I had not quit smoking when I did, I would not have been around today. If you think this idea about banking the cigarette money might help others, you may use my name. — OWEN B. YECKLEY, SEWICKLEY, PA.

DEAR MR. YECKLEY: Congratulations to you and your bride of 50 years. And what a great idea to bank the cigarette money that might otherwise have gone up in smoke.

DEAR ABBY: I am a young man who has let my hair grow very long, down to my shoulders. It's always shampooed and looks pretty, but some people call me "Miss." How can I let them know that I am a man? — ELLIS

DEAR ELLIS: Grow a beard.

DEAR ABBY: A close friend of mine is mourning the death of her 8-month-old son who was drowned when he fell into a five-gallon bucket of water.

My friend was preparing to mop the bathroom floor when her telephone rang in the other room. She ran to answer it and said she was gone no longer than three minutes. When she came back, her child was headfirst in the bucket — dead.

She is filled with guilt, poor thing, and inconsolable. She asked me to write to you so you can warn your readers that this can happen. — HER FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Some years ago, I warned my readers who had toddlers to keep the door to the bathroom closed because a child had climbed up onto a toilet, fell in and was found dead of drowning shortly after. Readers, please look after your precious children and keep them safe and out of harm's way.

DEAR ABBY: "Had It in Hawaii," whose neighbor was always borrowing something which she never paid back, reminded me of a neighbor we had when I was a kid, 60 years ago. She was forever borrowing coffee. She always paid it back, only she gave us a real cheap kind.

Mom got tired of it, so when this neighbor sent over this cheap coffee, Mom would just set it aside, and the next time this neighbor asked to borrow some coffee, Mom would just lend her some of her own cheap coffee.

You guessed it. She quit borrowing coffee. — MRS. JONES (MY REAL NAME) IN INDIANA

What teen-agers need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, and getting along with their peers and parents is now in Abby's updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Fears of amalgam fillings belayed

By Dr. Henry F. Page

TV — what a joyous medical educational experience! Only a few months ago we learned about the poison implanted in our mouths — for lo the last 150 years — in the form of amalgam fillings containing mercury. No wonder the more effete numbers of society complained of 'the Vapers.'

Page

Blood disorders, degenerative nerve disease — including multiple sclerosis, arthritis, female problems, male ineptitude — all constituted an organ recital worthy of the new mammoth instruments at the Methodist and Presbyterian Churches! Immediate detoxification appeared to be imperative, namely removal of all amalgam fillings. This brief article is to belay all those fears and prevent your smile from resembling the old mine cavities at Terlingua from whence quicksilver was also taken.

At room temperature, mercury is a liquid metal capable of being absored through the skin. If used to gross excess, it proves extremely toxic — some old timers may recall the inadvertent swallowing of the disinfectant mercuric chloride with resulting intestinal scarring and ulceration. Conversely, it has provided many positive health uses. In pre-antibiotic days, it constituted the best therapy for eye and skin infections and also for syphilis, where it was administered as unction rub-ins for periods lasting 10 years. As recently as 25 years ago it served as the best diuretic to relieve body fluid retention.

Hypersensitivity or allergy constitute the only real hazard for low levels of mercury and these are obviously rare since it is ubiquitous being found in air, water and food. Sword fish were banned from the market for several years because of a mentally ill Canadian lady who ate contaminated sword fish twice or three times daily for two years with resulting kidney problems.

Dental amalgams contain only a minute amount of the most stable (elemental) form of mercury, with only a billionth of a gram capable of escaping into the air. To quote Dr. Harold Loe, director of the National Institute of Dental Research: "Based on the available research, the NIDR concludes that dental amalgams pose no known health risk to individuals who are not hypersensitive to the materials. At this time, there is no reason for recommending either the discontinuation of dental amalgams as restorative materials, or the removal of dental amalgam from patients who have no demonstrated hypersensitivity to mercury or other components of amalgam."

So now, you Senior Citizens, chomp into that juicy steak, but watch out for hard nuts and macaroons. If you go out on the town, remember the old saying "Ten minutes with Venus; ten years with Mercury."

Henry F. Page, M.D., F.A.C.P., is health and safety consultant to Midland Presbyterian Homes.

AARP encourages elders to be education volunteers

Staff Report

"Become an education volunteer" is the message the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) is sending to older persons throughout the country as it celebrates Older American Month during May.

In recognition of the experience and knowledge that is the unique contribution of older volunteers in education, the Association has adopted the theme "Older Americans Bringing Life to Education."

"Education is our country's best and only chance for the future," said AARP president Robert Maxwell, who is emphasizing education and training during his term. "In my estimation, many of society's problems — poverty, crime, unemployment — can be traced to a lack of education."

Maxwell noted in his inaugural address that:

- Sixty percent of high school graduates are not prepared for entry-level jobs,
- U.S. businesses spend billions each year to train and retrain workers, often in basic math and reading skills,
- Nearly half of all Americans over age 50 have limited reading ability,
- Almost a third of all adults cannot correctly complete a job application,
- Close to three million adults have never attended school.

"I challenge all older persons to share their wisdom and prepare the way through education," Maxwell said. "There are countless ways to light the darkness of ignorance."

According to AARP, opportunities abound for persons who want to volunteer in community education efforts. Recreation centers, senior and adult day car centers, community colleges, schools, and churches and synagogues often recruit volunteers to work with persons of all ages who are learning new skills. The local Volunteer Action Center, school district or library can identify organizations looking for volunteers.

More information on volunteer opportunities in education is available by sending a request on a postcard to: Community Service Projects (D13669), AARP Fulfillment (EE0127), 1909 K Street, NW, Washington, D.C., 20049. Allow six weeks for delivery.

AARP is the nation's leading organization for people age 50 and over. It serves their needs and interests through legislative advocacy, research, informative programs and community services provided by a network of local chapters and experienced volunteers throughout the country. The organization also offers members a wide range of special membership benefits, including Modern Maturity magazine and the monthly Bulletin.

Veteran's Health Care Council announced

CLARKSBURG, W.Va. (AP) — Steps are needed to ensure adequate health care is provided for nearly 9 million veterans who will be 65 or older by the year 2000, U.S. Sen. Jay Rockefeller says.

"I'm optimistic right now about the future of the VA, but I don't underestimate the challenges we face," the West Virginia Democrat said during a recent tour of the Louis A. Johnson Veterans Administration Center.

In 1988, 6.6 million veterans were over 65, and the number will peak at 8.9 million in the year 2000, he said.

Rockefeller also announced the formation of a state advisory council on veterans' health issues.

"I formed this council to help assess the problems and needs within the VA health care system, and then help formulate practical, constructive ways to solve those problems and meet the needs of veterans," Rockefeller said.

A threatened end to drug company discounts for VA patients was listed by some at a round-table discussion as a problem requiring immediate attention.

Permian Gold Directories are ready for distribution

The 1991 Permian Gold Directories are published and ready for distribution. Community and Senior Services offers the Permian Gold product service discount program at no cost to senior citizens 62 years old or older and to the permanently handicapped throughout Midland, Odessa and surrounding counties. Qualifying participants can receive a 5 percent to 50 percent discount from participaing merchants and service providers throughout the year.

The Permian Gold directory, sponsored by TeamBank, Texas Commerce Bank and the Visiting Nurse Service of the Permian Basin, lists all participating merchants divided by city and category of merchandise and serivces they provide. The discount offered by the merchants also is listed with their location. Information listing senior services provided in the area also can be found in the directory.

Persons already enrolled in the program and those who are interested can get information and their directories at the following locations in Midland: Community and Senior Services, 3301 Sinclair, 689-6693; Dellwood Senior Center, 3303 W. Illinois, 699-5033; and Southeast Community Senior Center, 1803 E. Indiana, 685-7231. Locations in Odessa include Visiting Nurse Service, 1015 N. Dixie, 337-8144, Southside Senior Center, 501 Ruth, 337-4531, and Ector County Senior Center, 1225 N. Adams, 337-5281.

Directories are available for free, but a $2 donation is requested from those able to make a contribution to cover costs. For more information, call 689-6693 or 563-2733.

PLASTIC SURGERY

AM I TOO OLD OR TOO YOUNG?

FREE TO THE PUBLIC

TUESDAY, APRIL 30, 1991
7:30 P.M.
Women's and Children's Hospital Auditorium
Presented by

MARY GEORGE, M.D.
Plastic & Reconstructive Surgeon

As we begin to age the changes in our appearance are very subtle. We think it is stress or fatigue, too many suntans, or from having worked outdoors for many years. Our skin begins to shown these subtle changes around age thirty, but there is a wide variation in how fast and when people age. It is a combination of genetic and environmental factors that determine this for us. Cosmetic surgery does not turn back the clock and make our skin and facial features younger, but it can help someone "look good for his or her age". A consultation with a qualified physician is the first step if you are considering cosmetic surgery.

Emotional stability is one of the most important factors to have well established prior to undertaking any aesthetic surgery. Facial cosmetic surgery can enhance your appearance but improvement in self-confidence and much of the "success" of the surgery is up to the patient. Lastly, when contemplating facial cosmetic surgery one should candidly discuss their expectations prior to undergoing any procedures.

Shoemaker update

DENVER (AP) — Doctors have ruled out surgery for Bill Shoemaker, left partially paralyzed by a spinal column fracture.

The 59-year-old Shoemaker was said to be alert and in stable condition Thursday. He suffered a broken neck April 8 when his car careened off a freeway outside Los Angeles and rolled down a steep embankment.

Shoemaker was transferred to Craig Hospital on Monday after being treated initially in Inglewood, Calif.

Shoemaker's injury, called a C-4 quadriplegia, requires a ventilator to assist in his breathing, hospital officials said. He has been weaned from the ventilator for a few minutes each day and he is able to shrug his shoulders, officials said. He has no arm or leg movement.

"It is not yet known if he will be able to wean completely from the respirator. From a medical standpoint however, at this juncture, he is doing well. He is right on course," said Dr. Indira Lanig, the attending physician.

Olson sues

BOSTON (AP) — Sportswriter Lisa Olson filed suit against the New England Patriots on Thursday, charging sexual harassment and civil rights violations that have led her to leave the Boston Herald and the city.

Olson, who has worked for the Herald for four years, will leave her job, her attorneys said. She is currently covering the Boston Bruins for the newspaper.

"She has to leave the state, at least for now," said Norman Zalkind, one of her attorneys. He would not say when she planned to leave the newspaper.

Chaps take over Waco

■ MC's netters are expected to walk away with the men's and women's crowns at the Region V tennis tournament.

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant Sports Editor

WACO — Midland College's Joe Williams doesn't want to seem like he's taking the Region V tennis tournament lightly, but in all honesty, the outspoken Chaparral tennis coach can't seem to get too pumped up about it.

MC's men's team has been compared to junior college tennis's version of Nevada-Las Vegas in basketball by Odessa College's tennis coach. The NMMI coach just earlier this week said nobody was on a par with MC. Even Williams himself said last week that MC won't face any tough competition until the national tournament next month in Tyler.

Regardless of all the plaudits, Waco and the Region V tournament is exactly where the Chap men and women find themselves this weekend.

The men's bracket includes teams from McLennan Community College, Temple, Odessa and New Mexico Military. On the women's side, Midland will join with Odessa, McLennan and Cooke County in the four team bracket.

"We'll only have to win two dual match to win the thing," Williams said. "One Friday match and one Saturday match."

If his teams do that, the men will exit Waco with a 20-0 record while the women will walk away at 14-0 for the 1990-91 season. Both will be overwhelming favorites for the national tournament and both will have retained their No. 1 ranking atop the Volvo-Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association Junior College rankings.

"It's not something we can totally blow off," Williams said of the regional competition. "Temple (men) has some good players, and McLennan is probably the next strongest (men's) team" next to the Chaps.

In the men's rankings, Odessa is ranked No. 8 and NMMI No. 17.

MC's No. 1 player, Tonney Van de Pieterman, is also the top-ranked junior college player in the country; Greg Muller, playing No. 2 singles, is ranked fourth in the country; David Draper is ranked No. 7; Toby Curtis is ranked 34th highest and Robin Van Beveran, 43rd.

Other ranked men's players from other schools at the regional include No. 10 Arturo Martinez and No. 39 Fernando Herrera (Odessa College), No. 20 Matteo Bares, No. 23 Juan Gutierrez and No. 38 Johan Gedlitschka (McLennan), and No. 45 Adam King, No. 46 Craig Dungey and No. 50 Bubba Reader (Temple).

Muller and Van de Pieterman make up the top-ranked doubles team in the country while Draper-Curtis are at No. 8.

The women are just as dominating with virtually the entire team ranked in the Top 50. The most interesting battle all season has been between Myriam Berthe and Seiko Ichioka, who are No. 1 and 2 in the national rankings, but who have flipped three times this season because of beating each other. Ichioka is No. 1 in the current ratings, but has been beaten by Berthe since the last rating was released.

The women's nationals will be held May 13-18, the men's tournament is scheuled for May 19-25. Both tourneys will be in Tyler.

Joe D. Williams/Reporter-Telegram

MC's Robin Van Beveran is ranked 43rd in the nation, one of five Chaps in the Top 50.

Second-team MC golfers runners-up

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant Sports Editor

WACO — The Midland College No. 2 men's golf team provided a glimpse into the future Wednesday by placing second at the Region V golf tournament, held at the Lake Waco Golf and Country Club.

The Chap Green team shot a 284 Wednesday, the low round during the closing 18 holes, and wound up just three strokes shy of regional champ, McLennan Community College.

McLennan finished with a 54 hole, 867 total; MC closed out at 870.

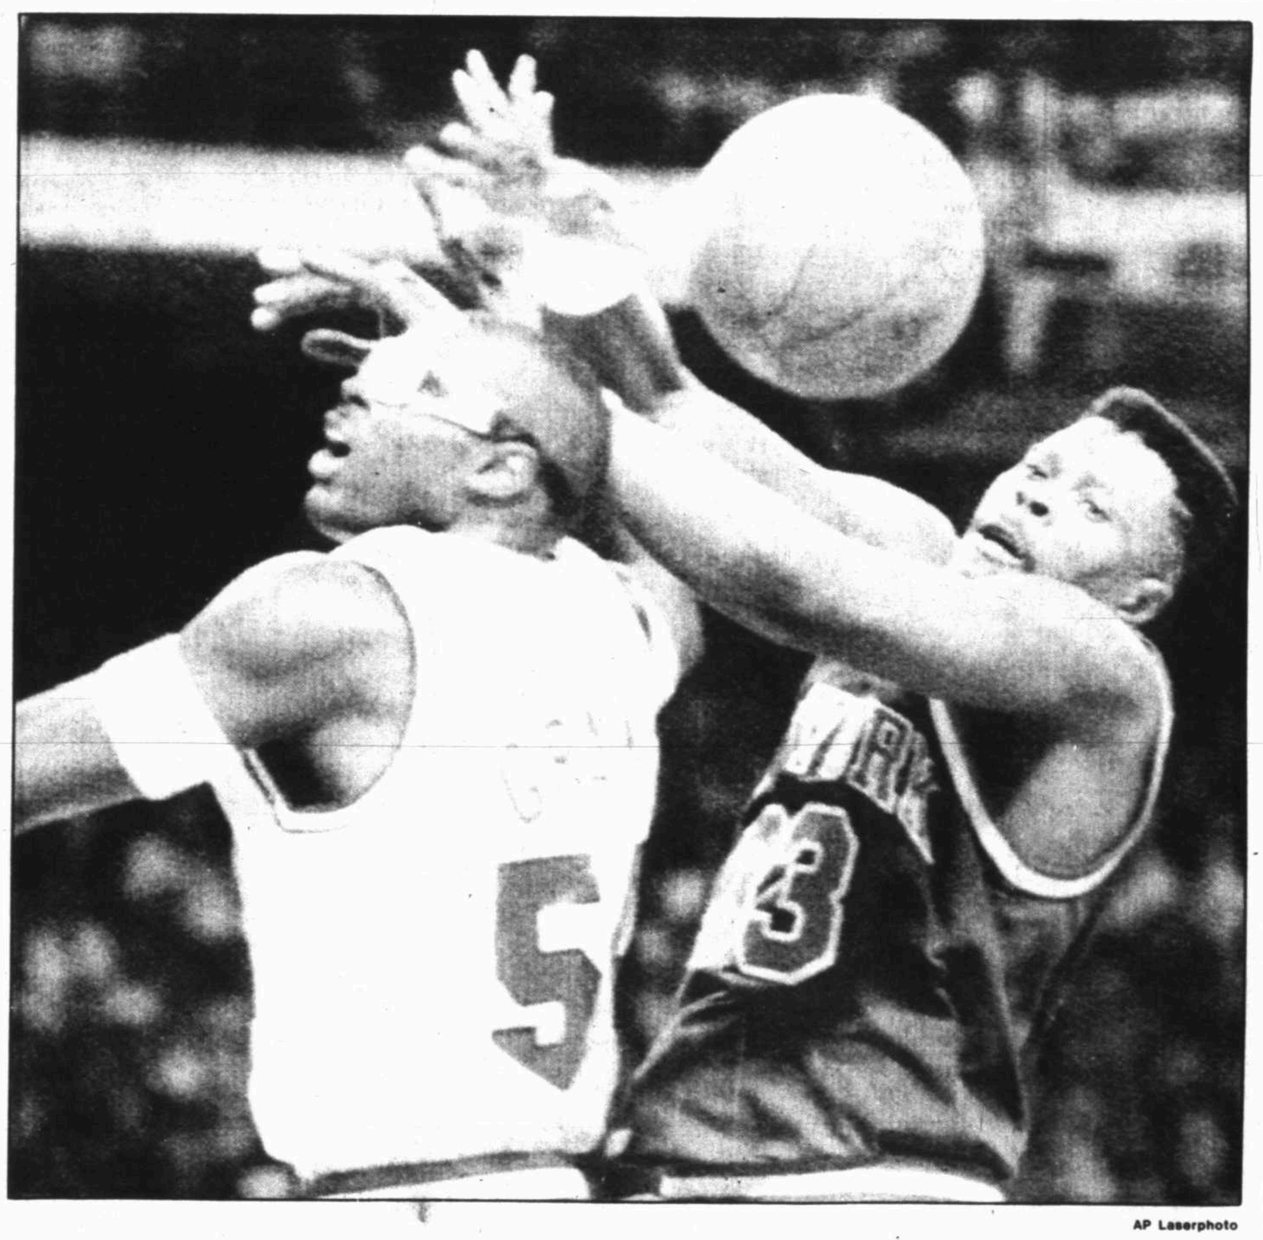

"For this gorup of guys to go down there and do what they did is unbelievable," MC assistant golf coach Mike Stevens said. "I think this is the reason we're the No. 1 team in the country, because we're so deep."

Darren Eckhardt was the sole No. 1 team golfer who was moved to the No. 2 squad for the regional tournament. Eckhardt, a freshman from Australia, shot a 215, good for second-team All-Region honors.

Grant Thomson, another freshman, shot a 213 for first team honors. Thomson was joined on the first squad by McLennan's Gary Clark, top medalist at 208, and teammate Mikko Rantanen; Patrik Johannson, of New Mexico Junior College, and Pedro Jaramillo, of New Mexico Military.

Neighboring Odessa College, a Western Junior College Athletic Conference rival, finished third at 879. The Wranglers would be considered a front-runner to receive an at-large berth to the national tournament, according to Stevens.

Spurs rip Warriors, 130-121

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — Willie Anderson scored a career-high 38 points and David Robinson and Rod Strickland had 30 points apiece as the San Antonio Spurs held off a late Golden State surge and defeated the Warriors in Game 1 of their NBA playoff series.

The Spurs led throughout the second half and by as many as 19 points in the fourth quarter. But the Warriors closed within six points twice in the final four minutes.

Consecutive slam dunks by Robinson in the final two minutes put the game out of reach of Golden State. Robinson also finished 13 rebounds and eight blocked shots.

Mitch Richmond and Chris Mullin led the Warriors with 29 points each while Tim Hardaway scored 19.

NBA Playoffs

The two teams meet again Saturday in San Antonio for Game 2 in their best-of-5 series. The series moves to Oakland for Game 3 on Wednesday.

The Warriors, who had said all week their goal was to shut down Robinson, provided physical coverage of the 7-foot-1 center throughout the game. A flagrant foul and a shoving match involving Robinson and two different Golden State players led to two bench-clearing confrontations in the first half.

While the Warriors went to work on Robinson, the San Antonio backcourt went to work, too.

After leading 30-24 at the end of the first quarter, the Warriors fell behind by halftime, when the Spurs held a 57-53 edge, thanks to 15 points by Anderson and nine by Strickland in the second quarter.

Richmond countered with 15 in the period, but the Spurs moved ahead for good.

Anderson added 15 for the Spurs in the third quarter, a period in which San Antonio had a total of 36.

Midland High's quest to improve upon last season's 5-4 football record begins today, as the Bulldogs promptly open spring training at 3:45 p.m. on the Memorial Stadium practice field.

Corley

And MHS head coach Davis Corley has one pressing concern as camp opens — finding offensive linemen.

While junior to be Antwan Goodley looks to step in at quarterback and soon to be seniors Thomas Acrey and Dewayne Culpepper provide threats at tailback and wide receiver, the Bulldogs have lost four of the front five starters to graduation, including All-State guard Joe Phillips.

Those losses come to a line that provided 1,250 yards worth of holes for tailback James Lee last season.

However, injuries in the 1990 season also allowed Corley and his staff to see some underclassmen log game time up front. Along with returning starting center Phillip Warlick, who will be a junior in the fall, Larry Tompkins, Jay Oliver, Brian Booker and Maurice Lewis all have varsity minutes under their belts, with Tompkins starting defensively at middle linebacker.

"That (zeroing in on offensive linemen) has got to be our first necessity," Corley said. "We've got a good nucleus left, but our main concern is finding offensive linemen and quarterbacks. Antwan (last year's backup signal caller) is still at quarterback, and Raymond Dominguez, Jeff Simmons and Brad Heidelberg will all compete there."

Aside from those concerns, Corley — who expects about 90 players to come out for the varsity, junior varsity and sophomore teams combined — just hopes his staff can provide some individual instruction.

"The main thing is that we give a good look to all of our players. Then hopefully we'll know a little more about what we have going into the fall.

"We are going to two-platoon it and get a lot more individual work done so hopefully we will get better."

Corley also said he will use the time to try some new wrinkles in his pro-I offense.

"It's kind of an experimental deal, but we're not changing much. We might change some of the blocking on some of the plays and see how well it does for us. Spring is a great time to experiment a little bit," he said.

MHS' spring session will conclude May 16.

NBA: Bulls, Jazz dominate

(From 1C)

Chicago Bulls handed the New York Knicks their worst playoff loss ever in the opener of their best-of-5 playoff series.

The Bulls, top-seeded in the Eastern Conference with a 61-21 record in the regular season, put on a dazzling display of ball handling to go with a turnover-forcing defense against the eighth-seeded Knicks. New York came into the playoffs with a 39-43 mark, the only one of 16 NBA playoff teams with a losing record.

The Knicks' worst previous postseason defeat was 130-90 against Philadelphia on April 16, 1978.

Patrick Ewing, the man the Bulls feared the most, was never a factor, scoring six points, the first time in 228 games he's failed to reach double figures. He didn't play in the fourth quarter.

Kiki Vandeweghe led the Knicks with 19 points, 11 in the third quarter.

Game 2 will be played in Chicago on Sunday, with the third game scheduled in New York Tuesday night.

76ers 99, Bucks 90

MILWAUKEE — Hersey Hawkins scored 25 points and the Philadephia 76ers used an 11-0 third-quarter run to beat the Milwaukee Bucks in the opening game of their first-round playoff series.

Philadelphia, which led by 12 at halftime and never trailed in the second half, took the homecourt advantage away from the Bucks. Game 2 of the best-of-5 series will be played at the Bradley Center on Saturday.

Charles Barkley, playing with a big knee brace to protect a sprained ligament, had 19 points, including six dunks. Armon Gilliam scored 17 and Rickey Green 16 for Philadelphia.

Frank Brickowski led the Bucks with 22 points, but had only six in the second half in a game played before thousands of empty seats in the upper areas of the Bradley Center.

Barkley's reverse layup, five straight points by Gilliam, Barkley's dunk and Green's jumper completed the 11-0 run that gave the Sixers a 70-50 lead with 6:02 left in the third quarter.

Lakers 94, Rockets 92

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Byron Scott hit a controversial jumper with 3½ seconds remaining and Sam Perkins added a clinching free throw as the Los Angeles Lakers defeated the Houston Rockets in their playoff opener.

Scott's jumper that made it 93-90 initially was waved off by referee Jack Madden, who thought Scott didn't get the shot off until after the 24-second clock ran out. But, after conferring with the other officials, Madden changed his call and the basket counted.

Jazz 129, Suns 90

PHOENIX — Karl Malone scored 12 of his 27 points Utah's 44-point third period as the Jazz shocked the Phoenix Suns in the opening game of their first-round Western Conference playoff series.

The victory margin was the largest ever in the playoffs for the Jazz, who limped into the postseason without a homecourt advantage after blowing the Midwest Division title with a loss to Golden State on Sunday.

Playing partners included Bill Cotner, Joe Stickney, B.L. Jones and Frank Stahl.

CHAPS: 2nd teamers down ranked schools

(From 1C)

MC, the host team for this summer's National Junior College Athletic Association golf tournament, receives an automatic berth to the June event. Because of that, MC was afforded the luxury of resting its No. 1 team at the regional event. MC's No. 1 team is comprised of sophomore Andrew Coltart, and freshmen Shaun Bishop, J.C. Hernandez and Steve Armstrong. Justin Jacobsen will serve as an alternate at the national tournament.

"The big thing I feel like is that the kids who went down and played haven't had the opportunity (to compete against No. 1 squads), but they have been pushing the guys who have had the opportunity," Stevens said. "This group finally got their opportunity and they took advantage of it."

To appreciate the magnitude of MC's achievement and the degree of its depth, consider that four of the Top 10 teams in the latest national rankings come from Region V, with MC's No. 1 team the nation's top team. Of New Mexico Military (7), McLennan (9) and Odessa (10), only McLennan fared better than the Chaps' second team during the Waco tournament.

MC's second place finish was the 11th time in 12 tournaments the Chaps have finished in the top two this school year. MC has won eight tourneys outright.

Head golf coach and athletic director Delnor Poss stayed in Midland to work on details regarding the national tournament, to be played at The Club at Mission Dorado and Green Tree Country Club June 4-7.

Final results after 54 holes at the Region V Junior College Golf Tournament, held Tuesday and Wednesday at teh Lake Waco Golf and Country Club, in Waco, Tex.:

1. McLennan Community 290-290-287—867; Midland College 295-291-284—870; 3. Odessa College 302-292-285—879; 4. New Mexico Military Institute 296-292-292—880; 5. Ex-Diablo shells Texas

Associated Press

MILWAUKEE — Greg Vaughn, who played for the El Paso Diablos just two seasons ago, drove in five runs with a pair of homers, including a three-run shot that sparked a five-run first inning, and Chris Bosio ran his career record in April to 15-4 as the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the Texas Rangers 9-1 Thursday.

AL

Bosio (2-2) went into the season with an eight-game winning streak in April, then lost two games on the current homestand before stopping Texas' three-game winning streak. Bosio scattered nine hits in going the distance and didn't give up a run until the ninth when Julio Franco singled with two out and the bases loaded.

Blue Jays 3, Tigers 2

TORONTO — Jimmy Key improved to 4-0 and Joe Carter drove in two runs, leading the Toronto Blue Jays over the Detroit Tigers.

Key, who struggled with arm problems last season, pitched seven innings and gave up four hits and two runs. Jim Acker worked the eighth and Duane Ward got the last three outs for his third save.

Twins 4, Mariners 3

MINNEAPOLIS — Kirby Puckett and Al Newman scored on a wild pitch and error by Seattle reliever Mike Jackson with one out in the 10th inning to give the Minnesota Twins a sloppy victory over the Mariners.

With the the bases loaded and the Mariners leading 3-2, Puckett was on third and Newman on second when Jackson's pitch skipped past catcher Dave Valle and rolled to the backstop.

Phillies 5, Mets 3

PHILADELPHIA — The Philadelphia Phillies rallied from a three-run deficit against Dwight Gooden and beat the New York Mets as pinch-hitter Randy Ready snapped an eighth-inning tie with a run-scoring single.

NL

After an awful start by Pat Combs, four Philadelphia relievers held the Mets to three hits.

Reds 6, Cubs 4

CINCINNATI — Pinch-hitter Luis Quinones' two-run homer in the eighth inning gave the Cincinnati Reds a victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Pirates 8, Expos 0

MONTREAL — Vicente Palacios pitched a four-hitter for his first major league shutout and Bobby Bonilla and Barry Bonds hit back-to-back homers as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the slumping Montreal Expos for their sixth straight victory.

Dodgers 7, Giants 1

LOS ANGELES — Tim Belcher pitched a five-hitter and Kal Daniels drove in four runs to give him 10 RBIs in two games as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the San Francisco Giants.

Penguins clinch conference finals

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Penguins advanced to the Wales Conference finals for the first time in franchise history on Thursday night, riding a 33-save effort by goaltender Tom Barrasso to a 4-1 victory over the Washington Capitals for their first Patrick Division title.

The Penguins won the last three games to eliminate the Capitals 4-1. Pittsburgh, which has won six of its last seven games, will visit the Adams Division champion, either Boston or Montreal, in the opener of the Wales Conference finals on Wednesday night.

Bruins 4, Canadiens 1

BOSTON — Cam Neely completed a hat trick by scoring twice in 11 seconds in the third period, and Craig Janney had four assists as the Boston Bruins pushed the Montreal Canadiens one loss away from playoff elimination with a 4-1 victory Thursday night.

The Bruins, ahead 3-2, can clinch the best-of-7 Adams Division final in Montreal on Saturday night. A seventh game would be played in Boston on Monday night.

Boston led 2-1 after two periods on goals by Neely and Vladimir Ruzicka. Brian Skrudland scored for Montreal.

The game was in doubt until Neely's sudden strikes on similar plays put the Bruins in control. He took over the playoff goal-scoring lead with 11, one more than St. Louis' Brett Hull.

Wranglers make it four in a row over Angel nine

Staff Report

WICHITA, Kan. — Brian Cisarik and Greg David scored on a botched play in sixth inning to give the Wranglers a 3-1 lead, and Wichita rolled to its ninth straight win with a 4-2 victory over the Midland Angels Thursday night.

The Angels, who handed the Wranglers (11-2) their only two losses of the campaign in the season-opening series in Midland, lost for the fourth straight game in Wichita and fell to 4-10 for the season.

Dave Shotkoski (0-2) was the hard-luck loser for Midland, which is now just one-half game in front of last-place San Antonio in the Texas League's Western Division.

With the game tied at 1-1 in the bottom of the sixth, Shotkoski walked Cisarik, who promptly stole second base, then third. With two outs, Shotkoski walked Greg David on a 3-2 pitch to put Wrangler at the corners. But as Jose Valentin stepped up to the plate, Shotkoski's pitching hand was examined and the righthander was pulled from the game with an apparent blister.

Midland got a run back in the top of the ninth, but Brian Wood eventually nailed down his second save.

Oil climbs

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of crude oil advanced Thursday, but gasoline and home heating oil showed signs of weakening.

For weeks, gasoline futures contracts had been driving the market as the U.S. supply kept shrinking. That changed Thursday, largely on the basis of industry statistics that showed the supply of crude oil fell last week while the supplies of gasoline and heating oil rose.

Gasoline supplies are still quite low heading into the summer driving season.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in June settled at $21.15 per barrel, up 21 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Natural gas for delivery in June settled at $1.379 per 1,000 cubic feet, down .1 cent, with later months falling even more.

Market drops

NEW YORK (AP) — Uncertainties about the outlook for interest rates and the economy helped drive stock prices lower Thursday, reversing Wednesday's late rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had risen 19.05 points on Wednesday, dropped 28.46 to 2,921.04.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 166.94 million shares, against 166.80 million in the previous session.

Dollar mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar ended mixed on world currency markets Thursday as traders reacted to political developments in the Soviet Union and prepared for an upcoming meeting of international monetary officials.

Gold prices were mostly lower. On the New York Commodity Exchange, gold bullion for current delivery lost $2.10 a troy ounce to settle at $354.

In Tokyo, the dollar rose to a closing 137.87 Japanese yen from 137.55 yen on Wednesday.

In London, the British pound fell to $1.6935 from $1.6940 late Wednesday.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Wednesday's rates, included: 1.7490 German marks, up from 1.7460; 1.4670 Swiss francs, up from 1.4619; 5.8995 French francs, up from 5.8915; 1,291.00 Italian lire, up from 1,288.00; and 1.1531 Canadian dollars, down from 1.1541.

Gold fell in London to a late bid price of $353.70 a troy ounce, from $356.10 bid late Wednesday.

On New York's Comex, silver bullion for current delivery settled at $3.896 a troy ounce, down from $3.919 on Wednesday.

Bush presses for easing of credit

Labor Department reports surge in unemployment claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration, confronted with further weakness in the U.S. economy, on Thursday pressed the case for reductions in American and foreign interest rates as a way of keeping the world out of a global recession.

The administration effort came as the Labor Department reported a big surge in the number of Americans filing unemployment claims and the National Bureau of Economic Research declared last July as the official start of the recession — meaning a downturn was under way even before the oil price shocks that followed Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

Speaking to reporters in the Oval Office, President Bush said, "We want to see these interest rates down a little bit, and I think that would be good for the world economy, including our own."

The president's call for lower interest rates came as the Labor Department issued a bleak jobless claims report, saying the number of new Americans seeking unemployment help rose 47,000 in the second week of April.

The sharp increase brought the number of first-time claimants back to the half-million mark, and was viewed as especially disappointing to economists who had hoped to see a third straight week of declines in the jobless claims. Such a string, they said, would have been a clear signal the recession would soon be over.

"I think that we buried the recession prematurely and the data is now showing that the recession lives," said Robert Brusca, chief economist at Nikko Securities.

Bush and his aides have repeatedly called for lower interest rates as a way to fight the recession, and in a series of moves last fall and early this winter, the Federal Reserve did drive interest rates lower to stimulate economic growth.

However, the Fed's easing efforts came to a halt in early March amid reports of a deep split inside the central bank over whether any further easing might trigger higher inflation once the recovery begins.

Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady and other administration officials have insisted that the Fed is being overly concerned about inflation and that the real problem was making sure the recession in the United States does not deepen and in turn drag the world economy into a downturn.

Bush's remarks about lower interest rates being good for the global economy were amplified later Thursday by Treasury Department officials who are preparing for a meeting Sunday with top finance officials from the world's seven largest industrial countries.

Brady is expected to push at the meeting with finance officials from Japan, Germany, Britain, France, Canada and Italy for other nations to do their part to spur growth by lowering interest rates. The U.S. effort

Sales of U.S. vehicles stall in April period

DETROIT (NYT) — Sales of cars and light trucks made in North America fell 11.6 percent in mid-April, reflecting the slowdown in personal income growth and tighter credit that kept many potential buyers out of the market.

Ten automakers with North American plants sold 165,768 cars, a decline of 13.7 percent.

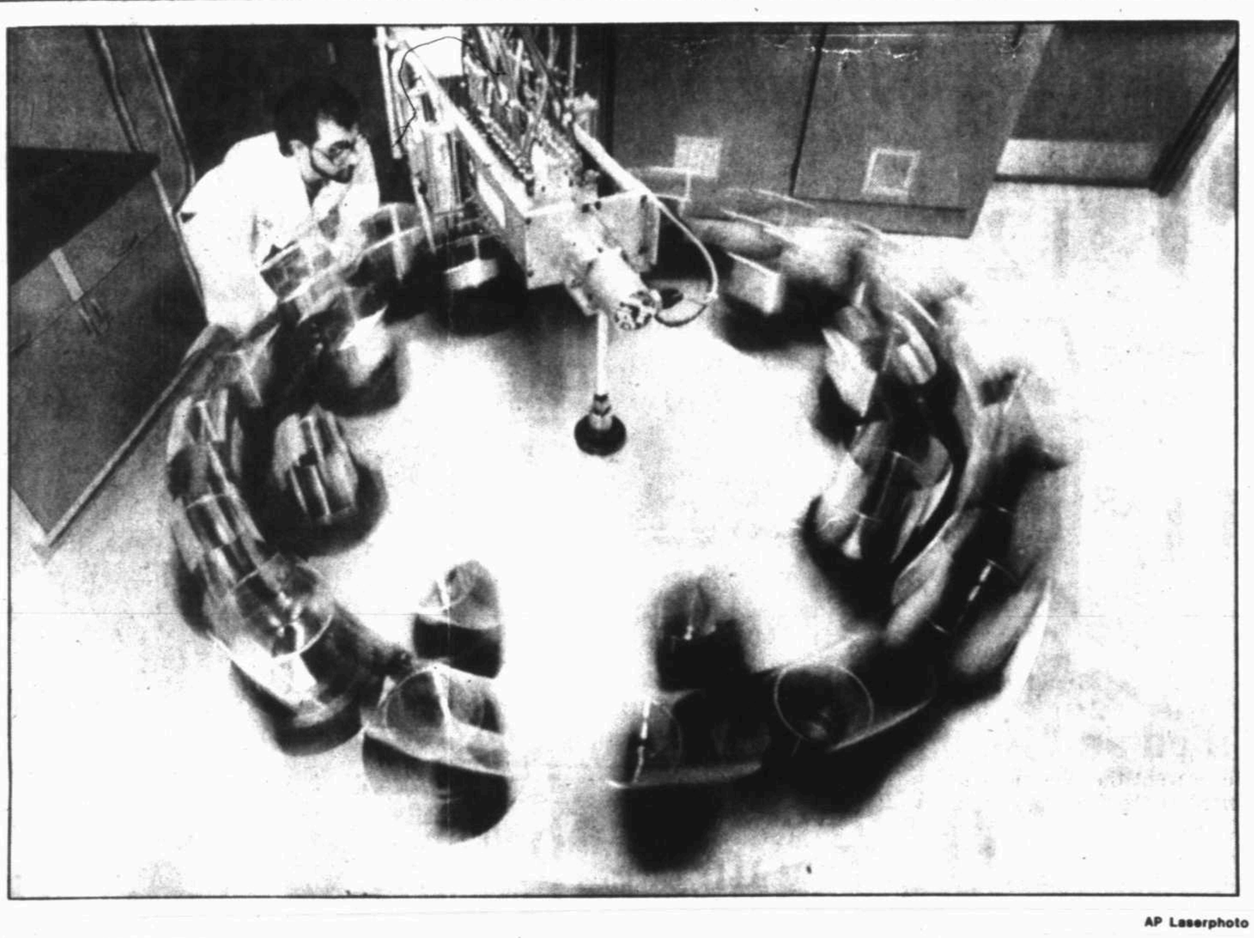

Seasonally adjusted, cars sold at an annual rate of 5.6 million between April 11-20, falling behind the sluggish pace of 5.9 million cars so far this year and well behind the pace of 6.4 million a year earlier.

Sales of pickups, mini-vans and four-wheel-drive vehicles, which account for about one-third of all vehicles sold, dipped 8.2 percent, to 105,189 vehicles.

Joseph S. Phillippi, an automotive analyst for Shearson Lehman Hutton, called the mid-April sales decline "very worrisome."

"We've got a white-collar recession and really difficult credit conditions, with a lot of people getting turned down for new car loans," Phillippi said. "This economy is still pretty weak."

Farmers Union opposes fast track on trade

AUSTIN (AP) — The president of the National Farmers Union says the proposed U.S-Mexico free trade agreement poses financial risks for American consumers and farmers.

Leland Swenson also said the group opposes the "fast track" authority to speed up negotiations.

"A U.S.-Mexico agreement may damage U.S. fruit and vegetable growers, increase food safety concerns because of lax Mexican pesticide regulations and lead to unfair tax, transportation and price differentials that could further undermine growers in Texas and the rest of the United States," Swenson said Thursday.

"We fear that fast track will increase the likelihood of the U.S. entering into agreements that are damaging to American farmers and other interests," he told a Capitol news conference.

GNP figures could be pretty, er . . . gross

By Bill Hendrick
N.Y. Times News Service

It's gonna be gross, dude.

Today, the government releases the one report on economic health that's as widely watched as TV's Bart Simpson: the Gross National Product. And it's likely to be ugly.

Economists say it'll show that the value of all goods and services produced by the economy plunged at an annual rate of 2.5 percent in 1991's first quarter.

That would be even worse than the 1.6 percent rate of decline in the fourth quarter of 1990, when consumer sentiment and spending plunged.

And it could be worse: Some economists expect a decline of 4 percent. In any case, there's no doubt it'll confirm that GNP declined for the second straight quarter for the first time since the devastating recession of 1981-82, when joblessness soared over 10 percent.

Don't say, "so what?"

Gross National Product may sound repulsive, but it would be foolish to ignore it, especially if you dabble in the stock market.

If today's number shows the economy was weaker than expected in the first quarter, that could induce the Federal Reserve to knock interest rates down a notch to try to give it a boost. That would help stocks. But a stronger-than-expected number will reduce the odds that interest rates will fall and knock the stuffing out of the market.

Moreover, GNP has an effect on, and is affected by, everyone, people with jobs, as well as those who've lost theirs.

Because a falling economy can't turn on a dime, the greater the rate of the GNP decline, the bleaker the prospects for people looking for a job.

Unemployment produces ulcers, not goods and services. It also erodes GNP because people out of work cut back on spending, which decreases demand, forcing companies to cut production, which leads to more layoffs.

"There is a negative multiplier that comes from being laid off that is very powerful," said Wayne D. Gantt, chief economist for Interstate/Johnson Lane in Atlanta. "You get a ripple effect. It affects everything. Kids contract their

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Mutual fund management companies sound

By Bill Doyle

Q. I am planning to invest in a mutual fund. With the recent savings and loan mess, as well as the banking industry's problems and the bankruptcy of at least one large brokerage firm, I am concerned about the financial health of the company that manages the mutual fund.

Doyle

Could the management company go under? And if so, could I lose part of my investment?

A. In theory, any corporation can go bust. But that hasn't happened to a mutual fund management company since passage of the Investment Company Act of 1940, the primary piece of federal legislation covering the fund industry.

The old song goes, "Never say never." But with a half century plus record of no bankruptcies, the mutual fund business can boast of stability.

Many mutual fund management companies, including the one you named in your letter, operate a number of mutual funds. Each fund is a separate entity, organized as either a corporation or a business trust. Even if a management company went under, there would be no direct impact on the funds it runs.

There would be side effects, of course. The funds would have to contract with a different management company. There would be changes in personnel and, perhaps, in the custodian bank, transfer agent and other contractual arrangements. But the mutual fund would remain in business.

Q. Years ago, on the recommendation of a senior citizens organization, I invested in a mutual fund. Later, I was notified that a big insurance company had bought out this fund. I thought that was OK until I read that a citizens' watchdog group has little confidence in the fund and actually stated it is insolvent.

Wouldn't you say I have serious reason to be concerned?

A. Perhaps, but not because of any of the things you mentioned in your letter — most of which are dead wrong.

That insurance company did not "buy out the fund." You bought shares of the mutual fund when you made your investment. You and all the other shareholders own the fund.

The insurance company bought the management company that runs the fund. There's nothing unusual about that. Mutual fund management companies can be profitable operations. Many are owned by insurance companies.

You're mixed up in your thoughts about a citizens' group calling the fund insolvent. It's a cinch you never read that. For a mutual fund to be insolvent, its assets would have to drop to zero. Most of a fund's assets consists of stocks, bonds and/or other securities it holds as investments. A fund's assets can't fall to zero unless the market value of every investment security the fund holds also hits zero.

Q. How can an investor know if the money she put into a mutual fund is in junk bonds? I thought high-yielding bonds — with interest rates between 9 percent and 12 percent — were OK and safe.

A. Now that interest rates have come down, a 9 percent yield on bonds is not out of line. But 12 percent certainly is. It's a sign the bonds are not considered high quality and are bordering on the high-risk area.

You should be able to learn if your mutual fund holds junk bonds by opening the shareholder report the fund is required to send to you at least semiannually. Most mutual funds print and distribute quarterly reports.

SALES: Figures reflect slowdown, tighter credit

(From 6C)

Auto executives and dealers did not hide their disappointment that the industry was limping into the important spring selling season.

"This is more of the same bad news we've had for the past six months," said Tom Webb, chief economist for the National Automobile Dealers Association, based in McLean, Va. "The numbers are not consistent with an economy supposedly poised for a rebound."

Michael M. Luckey, president of the Luckey Consulting Group in Cresskill, N.J., said retail sales may have been hurt in mid-April by slightly used cars pouring back into the market at bargain prices from daily rental companies.

Honda Motor Co. and Toyota Motor Corp. both reported sales declines, but four other Japanese car companies — Nissan Motor Co., Subaru Enterprise Co., Mazda Motor Corp. and Mitsubishi Motors Corp. — showed gains in sales of cars built in U.S. plants.

Over all, car sales by Japanese "transplant" companies rose 13.3 percent in mid-April, while sales by the Big Three domestic automakers fell 17.8 percent.

Ford Motor Co. suffered the biggest sales decline of the major manufacturers. Ford's car sales fell 30.2 percent, to 40,577 cars. Company officials said Ford temporarily suspended deliveries to its largest daily rental fleet customers, Hertz Corp. and Budget Rent A Car Corp., for the first half of April. Because automakers book sales to rental fleet companies when they ship cars from plants, the decision to divert cars to dealers caused Ford's reported sales to fall. Retail sales are booked when customers take delivery of vehicles.

Ford's light-truck sales fell 12.6 percent, to 35,419 vehicles. The decline would have been sharper, if not for the popularity of Ford's Explorer four-wheel-drive model.

General Motors Corp.'s car sales fell 14.1 percent, to 77,090 cars. Sales of GM's light trucks declined 16.5 percent, to 41,129 vehicles.

According to estimates provided by Ward's Automotive Reports, an industry newsletter, Chrysler Corp., which reports sales only at the end of each month, sold 19,200 cars, a gain of 2.7 percent. Ward's estimated that Chrysler sold 23,500 light trucks, an increase of 15.2 percent.

Chrysler has been offering customer rebates lately, and is seeking to increase its fleet business by offering favorable prices to daily rental companies.

Murdoch to sell magazines for more than $600 million

NEW YORK (NYT) — Rupert Murdoch, the Australian publisher whose wide holdings in the United States include New York magazine, 20th Century Fox and several television stations, agreed Thursday to sell most of his magazines in this country for more than $600 million, people involved in the talks said.

The buyer is a partnership controlled by Kohlberg, Kravis, Roberts, the New York buyout firm that was also involved in the recent purchase of the Bank of New England.

As head of the News Corp., Murdoch went on an acquisition binge in the 1980s, but the debt he took on along the way has proved too much of a burden.

In February he had reached agreement with bankers to change the terms on much of his $8.2 billion in debt.

Although the agreement with the banks did not specify asset sales, analysts had always assumed that $800 million or more would have to be raised for him to be able to meet his obligations. He needs money not just to pay off his debts but to operate his businesses.

The partnership, called K-III Holdings, is buying nine publications, the most profitable of which is The Racing Form, a daily newspaper that has covered thoroughbred racing nationwide with almost no strong competition.

The other publications are Soap Opera Digest, Soap Opera Weekly, New York, Seventeen, Premiere, European Travel and Life, Automobile and New Woman. Mirabella, the fashion magazine, and TV Guide were not part of the sale, the people said.

The price was fairly low compared with what the magazines might have fetched in the 1980s, but Peter Diamandis, former head of Diamandis Communications, said that given how treacherous the magazine market has been lately, Murdoch got a decent price for his properties.

Murdoch had little choice. Like the heads of many other media companies, both domestic and foreign, Murdoch determined to expand his company internationally in the 1980s.

In the United States alone Murdoch bought 20th Century Fox Film Corp., Metromedia's televison stations, TV Guide, and a variety of magazines.

FIGURES: It's likely to be ugly

(From 6C)

spending. It could even affect his wife's spending."

If top experts are right, job growth and GNP should pick up soon, perhaps by summer.

Roger E. Brinner, chief economist for DRI/McGraw Hill in Lexington, Mass., said his firm's computer model — a kind of crystal ball for Ph.D.'s — is signaling a GNP decline of only 2.3 percent for the first quarter. It puts the odds at 55 percent that the GNP's growth rate will pick up to a positive 0.5 percent in the second quarter, 4.3 percent in the third and 3.5 percent in the fourth.

Unfortunately, if GNP declined as much as 3 percent in the first quarter, then chances are good the recession won't end until October, or later.

In DRI's best scenario, unemployment will rise from 6.8 percent now to 7.1 percent by fall. His worst case is that it'll hit 7.5 percent by year's end, putting nearly a million more souls out of work.

A rebound depends to a large degree, he said, on whether people who still have jobs feel confident enough to spend money more freely.

Real disposable income — a measure of buying power — fell at least 1.1 percent at an annual rate in the first quarter, but should increase the rest of the year, Dr. Brinner said.

Kurt Karl, senior economist for the Philadelphia-based WEFA Group, the nation's other giant commercial forecasting firm, is even more upbeat, expecting today's report to show that GNP fell only 0.5 percent in the first quarter. WEFA's computer projects stronger growth the rest of the year.

"The consumer has been out for six months, and we expect them to come back," Karl said. If they don't, "production won't come back and jobs won't either, and we'll have a longer and deeper recession."

But he expects interest rates to fall, sparking a rebound in the slumping auto and housing industries, buoying home prices and the stock market, and making consumers feel wealthier, which would induce them to open their pocketbooks.

(From 6C)

is aimed primarily at Germany although officials in that country have insisted that they will not bend to American pressure to cut rates because of inflation worries.

"All of the problems around the world will be easier to solve in an atmosphere of higher growth and lower interest rates," Treasury Undersecretary David Mulford told reporters at a briefing on the upcoming Group of Seven meeting.

Mulford said that lower rates would cut the costs for financing reconstruction in the war-torn Middle East and the emerging democracies in Eastern Europe. He indicated it would also buy insurance to prevent the recessions in the United States, Canada, Britain and some other countries from pulling the entire world economy into a downturn.

In its own way, the ruling by the National Bureau of Economic Research that the recession began in July could add pressure on the Federal Reserve to cut interest rates.

Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan has repeatedly said he believed there was a good chance that the Fed's campaign in 1989 and early 1990 to slow the economy enough to dampen inflation would have worked without triggering a downturn had it not been for the shock caused by higher oil prices following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

However, by picking July, the NBER determined that the recession began the month before the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. The NBER, composed of distinguished academic economists, studies a variety of economic indicators to pinpoint the precise month a downturn begins.

In recent days and weeks, there have been mixed signals about whether the U.S. economy is starting to rebound in the current April-June quarter.

Another report Thursday showed a 0.6 percent increase in sales of existing homes. It was the second consecutive advance and was viewed as a good sign that the long-depressed housing industry may be finally turning around. A rebound in housing is often a harbinger of an upturn in other sectors of the economy.

Economic activity, as measured by the gross national product, declined at an annual rate of 1.6 percent in the final three months of 1990. Most economists expect a report due Friday from the Commerce Department to show at least an additional 2 percent decline during the January-March period.

The jobless claims numbers can be extremely volatile, and some economists were not so discouraged by Thursday's report.

ANALYSIS

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed lower today, reversing Wednesday's late rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 19.05 on Wednesday, dropped 7.17 to 2,942.33 by 2 p.m. on Wall Street.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about 4 to 3 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 623 up, 820 down and 537 unchanged.

Stocks came on strong near the close on Wednesday, benefiting from a drop in long-term interest rates.

But rates levelled off in the bond market today, and enthusiasm for stocks faded just as quickly.

On the economic agenda for Friday is a report from the Commerce Department on the gross national product for the first quarter of the year.

The inflation-adjusted figures are expected to show a decline in output for the second consecutive quarter, providing statistical confirmation of the recession.

Compaq Computer tumbled 8⅝ to 53¼ as the most active NYSE issue. The company reported higher first-quarter profits, but said its second-quarter earnings were likely to come in below those of the corresponding period last year.

Data General, by contrast, rose 1¼ to 17¾. The company posted a 60-cents-a-share profit for the quarter ended March 30, compared to a loss in the like period a year ago.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks dropped .55 to 208.62. Volume on the Big Board came to 121.59 million shares with two hours to go.

Gov. Richards vows to 'clean house'

■ More state stories/1D

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards, in a television address Thursday, told Texans her administration has been striving to light a fire under state bureaucracy during her first 100 days in office.

"We're going to clean house," Richards promised. "And we're going to get this house in order by getting our priorities straight in everything that we do."

Her 6:01 p.m. address from the Governor's Mansion was offered to TV stations statewide. Deputy press secretary Chuck McDonald said there was no immediate word on how many stations carried the speech.

Richards touted her administration's crackdown on government inefficiency, her fight with the insurance industry and her efforts to stop pollution.

"We've taken on some very powerful interest groups in this legislative session. We've taken on the insurance companies and the polluters, and we've taken on the bureaucracy. We're proud of what we've done. But we're not nearly finished."

The governor repeated stories of waste and mismanagement she says her administration has uncovered after receiving 200 phone calls a day and 5,000 letters a week.

"It seems like every rock we turn over produces another brother-in-law deal, another example of some bureaucrat more concerned about the size of the desk and the number of parking places than about the taxpayer," she said.

Richards said Texas is engaged in national and international economic competition that can be won "by keeping taxes as low as possible and delivering the services that we need to stay the frontrunners."

Richards said no programs will be approved unless they meet one of three criteria: essential to health and safety, improving education or creating jobs.

"If we don't hear 'yes,' well then it's out. It's not a threat. It's a promise," she said.

Noting that lawmakers will wait until midsummer to write the 1992-93 state budget, Richards noted that work will begin shortly after Operation Desert Storm troops are scheduled to return from the Persian Gulf.

"We're going to fight for a lean, clean Texas government. Forty thousand Texans did not go to win a real war just to come home to an economic defeat," she said.

Beware promotional scams, board warns

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans were warned Thursday to beware of fraudulent telephone marketing investment schemes, particularly those offering shares in oil and gas ventures.

"These individuals are opportunists. Today's oil and gas promoter may have been yesterday's penny stock broker, bogus gold mine operator or pyramid scheme promoter," said a statement issued by the State Securities Board.

The warning came at the same time authorities in Los Angeles announced raids on 32 businesses that sold bogus oil and gas investments with a promise of big profits from the Persian Gulf War.

More than 3,500 people may have invested $50 million in programs sold through the "boiler room" sales firms in Los Angeles, Dallas and Salt Lake City, said the North American Securities Administrators Association, a watchdog group of state regulators.

Officials reported 10 arrests in 16 states, including Texas, over the last 10 days. They said they expect another 20 arrests as the investigation continues.

The State Securities Board issued a bulletin warning Texas consumers of illicit phone promotions of horizontal oil and gas drilling programs, pyramid sales schemes, loan brokers, the wireless cable television lottery and international investments.

"The rise of new technology and the recent recession have spurred the activities of phone swindlers to new heights," the board said.

The board said it has identified 42 Texas-based "boiler room" operations that are marketing interests in horizontal drilling ventures to consumers in Texas and across the country.

"Many are controlled by repeat securities law violators who know little or nothing about oil and gas in general or horizontal drilling in particular," the bulletin said.

Horizontal drilling is a recent innovation in which wells first are drilled down, then horizontally in search of vertical fractures of oil. The securities board said legitimate companies' success in that field mean "con men and unscrupulous promoters have sought to cash in on the publicity."

John Morgan, the Texas securities board's enforcement director, said it is difficult to know how many unregistered firms are making telephone sales pitches.

But consumers should be wary, he said.

"What we're talking about are companies that are unregistered, using unlicensed sales people, using high-pressure sales tactics to pressure people into making investments," Morgan said.

'Today's oil and gas promoter may have been yesterday's penny stock broker....'

— State Securities Board statement

He said the companies purchase lists of phone numbers to find potential customers. The lists include doctors, dentists, subscribers to certain magazines, and the elderly, he said.

"Believe it or not, they target elderly people because they're more likely to be home during the day," he said.

Such scams have been tried before, Morgan said, but the problem is increasing because of the amount of the offerings, with some horizontal drilling programs ranging from $500,000 to $1.5 million.

"It's been around for a long, long time. But from our perspective, it's a growing problem because of the size of the offers," Morgan said.

Almost all investments must be registered with the State Securities Board.

STATE IN BRIEF

■ Senate approves coastal legislation

AUSTIN — A coastal bill denounced by one environmental group as the worst "anti-environmental" proposal of the legislative session cleared the Senate on Thursday.

The bill, which would create coastal conservation districts that could sell tax-exempt bonds and levy taxes for public improvements, was sent to the House on a 19-11 vote. It had been the target of two filibusters by Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, and widely criticized in newspaper editorials.

The measure has been called the "American General bill," following published reports that American General Insurance of Houston envisioned a 3,000-acre project on South Padre Island that would include a $2.5 billion resort complex of condominiums, lagoons, boat harbors, golf courses and other recreational facilities.

Truan warned of environmental damage that could harm the Laguna Madre, which he described as "one of the three wonders of (the) world that we have."

■ Japanese prince tours catfish farm

LIVERPOOL — A Japanese prince who is second in line to the Imperial throne and an expert in fish biology on Thursday toured the state's largest commercial catfish-raising operation and said it was unlike anything he'd ever seen.

Prince Akishino, the second son of Emperor Akihito and Empress Michiko, was accompanied by Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry during a nearly hour-long visit to the Naiad Corp. fish processing plant and farm.

"It was very interesting," the prince said.

The Naiad plant has been in business for about 2½ years and employs some 200 people. Sales in the first year were about $10 million and jumped to $40 million in the most recent year, James W. Regian, vice president of sales and marketing, said.

■ Morales appeals nuclear waste ruling

EL PASO — Texas Attorney General Dan Morales Thursday appealed a judge's ruling that halted state efforts to store low-level nuclear waste in far West Texas.

The appeal has been promised by the state since Jan. 29 when 34th State District Court Judge Bill Moody ruled an area near Fort Hancock was unsuitable for the dump.

Moody's ruling followed a three-week trial in September in which attorneys for El Paso and Hudspeth counties called national experts to argue that the site was in an area surrounded by faults and in a 100-year flood plain.

In 1980, the federal government ordered states to store their own radioactive waste or reach an agreement with one or more other states to store it at a host site.

Texas chose to store its own waste and in 1987, the authority picked the site near Fort Hancock.

■ Schools to close May 1

RICHMOND, Calif. — Gov. Pete Wilson refused to accept blame for the decision by the financially ailing Richmond school district to close May 1, saying that the school board is the real culprit.

"We don't have an obligation to keep afloat the kind of absolutely indefensible, profligate spending that was engaged in by the Richmond district," Wilson said.

The district trustees announced Wednesday night that all 47 schools in the 31,000-student district will be closed because the state has not provided a $29 million bailout loan to offset a massive deficit in this year's budget.

"The school board is the one that makes the decision to keep it open," Wilson said. "If they are unable to do that because they have been profligate, that's not the state's responsibility."

School Board member Frank Calton said Wilson's remarks are unfounded, particularly since the board has been acting this school year under a state trustee with broad veto powers.

"He should not pass the problem off quite so simply," Calton said. "I would urge him to exert a little leadership. Instead of pointing fingers, let's find a solution."

■ NASA begins countdown

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — NASA began another countdown for the space shuttle Discovery on Thursday after replacing an engine sensor that failed during fueling for a launch attempt earlier this week.

Tests on the new sensor indicate it works well, said NASA test director Al Sofge.

"We're fairly certain it is the transducer (sensor) that was the problem," Sofge said. "We're very comfortable with that and looking forward to having no problem with that during the launch countdown."

Discovery is scheduled to lift off on a military mission devoted to "Star Wars" research at 7:01 a.m. EDT Sunday.

NASA was loading Discovery's external fuel tank for a Tuesday liftoff when the sensor began showing impossibly high pressure readings for one of the three main engines.

■ Black nun case approved

BALTIMORE — The Vatican has given the Baltimore archdiocese permission to make a case for sainthood for Elizabeth Lange, a Baltimore nun who founded the first order of black nuns.

"We want to stress that this is a very preliminary stage of the process," said the Rev. William Au, a spokesman for the archdiocese.

"Right now, we want to make the public aware that Mother Lange is being considered for canonization so we can receive any documentation of her life that people might have," he said.

Mother Lange, who was Cuban-born, founded the Oblate Sisters of Providence in the Baltimore suburb of Catonsville in the 1820s.

Officials of the archdiocese will accumulate evidence of Mother Lange's worthiness for sainthood. That evidence must include two miracles attributable to Mother Lange.

■ MOVE claims at $25 million

PHILADELPHIA — The city's tab in settling claims stemming from the 1985 bombing of the radical group MOVE's headquarters is expected to reach nearly $25 million.

Eleven people, including five children, were killed in a fire that was started when the bomb was dropped on the fortified rowhouse in West Philadelphia. The blaze destroyed 61 homes.

The city reached an agreement April 19 to pay as much as $9 million to the only child who survived the blaze, said his attorney David S. Shrager.

Under the agreement, Michael Moses Ward, now 19, and his father, Andino, 36, will receive $840,000, Shrager said Thursday. A fund will be set up from which they will receive monthly payments starting at $1,000 and increasing steadily for the rest of their expected lifetimes, Shrager said.

Ward, who was 13 and known as Birdie Africa at the time of the May 13, 1985, confrontation, was disfigured by second- and third-degree burns over 20 percent of his body. His mother, Rhonda Africa, was among the dead.

Ward and an adult, Ramona Africa, were the only people known to have survived the bombing. Ramona Africa is serving a prison term of 16 months to seven years on charges stemming from the siege.

The elder Ward, a television production company executive who wasn't involved in the MOVE incident, said the money couldn't compensate for his family's loss.

Last June, the city agreed to pay $2.5 million to the parents of the five children who died. An additional $280,000 was paid to the families of three MOVE members and more than $14.5 million has been spent rebuilding the destroyed homes and sheltering displaced residents.

■ FDA approves liquid Prozac

INDIANAPOLIS — A new liquid form of the antidepression drug Prozac, designed primarily for older patients who have difficulty swallowing pills, has gained federal approval, Eli Lilly & Co. announced Thursday.

The pharmaceutical maker hailed the approval by the Food and Drug Administration as a proof of the drug's safety, despite a study that showed Prozac can heighten suicidal tendencies in some patients.

Dozens of lawsuits have been filed against Lilly over the alleged side-effect.

310 General Help Wanted

PART-TIME INCOME AVAILABLE

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with qualified, responsible individuals.

OFTEN ASKED QUESTIONS:

Is it worthwhile for adults also?

Yes! Our current carrier force is already 90% adult and 10% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:

- ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a carrier, you do not need daycare!
- COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends.

How much money can I make as a carrier?

Depending on the size of the distributorship from $300 to $700 monthly! Some make even more!

How long does it take?

The actually delivery takes 1 - 2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2 - 3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many carrier's choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?

6 a.m. Monday - Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, carriers do take days off by finding a friend or family member to substitute for them!

RESERVE YOUR DISTRIBUTORSHIP NOW!
